

Committee suspends assassination report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House assassinations committee investigated 21 allegations of conspiracy in the murder of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., but will review other evidence before reaching final judgments on their validity, members said today.

"We are suspending judgment as a committee until all the evidence is in. Nothing else would be fair," Chairman Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, said as the committee opened its first public hearings on the assassination of King in Memphis, Tenn., on April 4, 1968.

The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, King's successor as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, was ready to testify as the first witness.

Walter Fauntroy, the District of Columbia's delegate to the House and chairman of the subcommittee that focused on King's death, said the panel's investigation has been "comprehensive and thorough."

He said the investigation has covered "every important allegation of conspiracy that has ever been made in the case, 21 of them in all."

Fauntroy did not elaborate. Among the most recent conspiracy theories under investigation have been claims that two St. Louis businessmen, both now dead, offered to finance the assassination of King.

The week of hearings have elements of both a trial and a play and today's session was designed to establish the mood of Memphis on the day of the murder.

"The first theme of the questioning will be Dr. King in Memphis. What did he represent in America, how did he embody symbolically the civil rights movement, and how did he come to Memphis?" a committee representative said at an advance briefing for reporters.

With the scene set, the committee plans on Tuesday to question a pathologist about the medical investigation following the murder.

For Beirut bombing

Pro-Syrians blamed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The leader of a radical Palestinian guerrilla faction supported by Iraq has accused a pro-Syrian guerrilla group of the bombing of his Beirut headquarters in which at least 161 Palestinians are reported dead or missing.

Abul Abbas, the 29-year-old head of the pro-Iraq Palestine Liberation Front said the bombing, which leveled a nine-story apartment building early Sunday, was the work of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, led by a former Syrian army captain named Ahmed Gebril.

"They wanted to kill me and the movement in order to undermine reconciliation moves that were under way. They wanted to keep the inter-Palestinian rift brewing," said Abbas.

Gebril and his organization were silent, and there was no confirmation of Abbas' claim from other sources. But some observers said if Gebril's guerrillas did make the attack, they might have been acting for Yasser Arafat, whose Al Fatah guerrillas have been warring with pro-Iraqi guerrillas in London, Paris and Pakistan for the past month.

Arafat as chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization has been holding reconciliation talks with Abbas and other pro-Iraqi guerrilla leaders. The observers said he probably still wants to neutralize his rivals but cannot pursue factional bloodletting publicly and still claim

with Marj Carpenter

Ed Newton, news director of the radio station in Colorado City and in recent weeks a correspondent for the Big Spring Herald, is abandoning all that opportunity to cover news to attempt a real experiment.

Ed says he is retiring at the ripe old age of 35. He isn't retiring from work. He is only retiring from formal work as such.

He has gone to a little farm in Arkansas and plans to spend the remainder of his days living off the land.

"My family and I will be engaged in an experiment in partial self-sufficiency. We will grow crops and raise animals for food, produce our own electricity and fuel and build a house that will stay between 69 and 73 degrees year round without heating or air conditioning," Newton claims.

Well, we wish him luck but it sounds like a very difficult task to this old gal. Newton, who was raised in Loraine like George Mahon, says that he plans to swap and barter a lot. He says he has retained a physician who, for half a beef a year, will take care of his family's medical needs.

Now that will be unless some real disaster comes along. Newton says his wife, Nancy, is all excited about the venture. She is a home economics grad from Texas Women's University and a former dean at the school. She expects it all to be challenging.

Somehow I think that may turn out to be the understatement of the year. Studying and teaching home economics and practicing home ec to the degree that you raise and put up your own food may turn out to be two entirely different things.

Newton says, "One of the reasons we decided to do this is so we can involve every member in the making-a-living process and grow together as a family."

Their two sons are Mike, 4, and Timothy, nine months. Feeding the chickens might be fun, but when they get older they may turn out to be those kind of parents who tell about milking a cow and then walking through the snow to school.

Maybe this is all sour grapes on my part because I really hate to see a good news gatherer like Ed bite the dust. Or maybe it's because so few of us have that kind of courage.

They are going to build a house from scratch on a 38-acre farm near Mena. "The walls will be made from 30-inch logs stacked like firewood with mortar in between. The windows in the 30-inch thick walls will have two thermal panes. The slant roof will have three layers of six-inch insulation separated by six-inch air spaces," said Newton.

Oh it sounds good, Ed. Lots of luck. He says similar houses maintain inside temperatures of 69 to 73 degrees year round. The only cooling system will be a ceiling ventilation system.

"Should we ever need it, we will have a wood burning stove and there will be a fire place — but only for aesthetic value since they are energy inefficient," Newton added.

Somehow I'm kind of concerned about that first winter when the house isn't complete and the winter arrives and the children are small. Lots of luck, old boy.

He also said the home will have four bedrooms, two baths, a sewing room (when will she have time to sew), a study (when will he have time to study) and a large kitchen.

The kitchen will have an island cooking area with built-in grills and a built-in barbecue pit. Here's one big happy barbecue to you, Ed.

I felt a great deal better about it after he said he had relatives in the area to help, including a father-in-law who is a retired home builder. Because he'll put those kids up that first winter.

For electricity, Newton is building a device that will tap the near-by White River (may it never flood or go dry). It is a spindle type affair that will be turned constantly by the spring fed river producing about 2,000 watts.

"If the river goes down, don't count on watching Kojak tonight, Ma."

Anyway, to add to their bravery, they plan to burn methane in their motor vehicles instead of gasoline. Methane is the gas given off by decaying vegetation and animal waste.

He's going to raise cows,

Could get worse

Are you ready for some more reform from our friendly federal legislature? Well get a good hold and hang on as we take a look at what's called Civil Service Reform.

Actually each of the congressional bodies has a bill. The House version HR11280 provides revision to the Hatch Act which would permit federal workers to participate in partisan politics. Now if you think the federal bureaucracy is a monster now just imagine what it would be with political clout derived from support of a particular party, candidate or incumbent. It also provides bargaining authority for unions concerning standards for promotions and layoffs and number and type of employees assigned to particular jobs. There is also a provision for certifying a union as the exclusive representative without an election among the workers.

On the Senate side S2640 endorses creation of a new federal labor relations authority and a new general counsel office. Further, it does not eliminate the provision of certifying a union as the exclusive representative without an election among the workers.

The impact of the clean air act of 1977 has not yet been felt but believe me it will be.

Striking police arrested

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — National Guardsmen in riot gear swept through the streets of Memphis in jeeps and armored personnel carriers today, rounding up picketing police officers who violated a dusk-to-dawn curfew.

Mayor Wyeth Chandler ordered about 100 armed Tennessee Guardsmen — part of 1,200 soldiers activated in response to a walkout that entered its fourth day today — to help non-striking policemen arrest picketing officers at precinct houses.

About 50 strikers were arrested by early today and charged with violation of the curfew and threatening a breach of peace.

Meanwhile, union firemen threatened to stage their own walkout, continuing a strike interrupted by a court order July 4.

Local 1744 of the International Association of Firefighters votes today in two meetings on whether to accept a city wage offer.

The deployment of National Guardsmen, who last month fought fires during the firemen's walkout, could influence their decision. But even before the arrests, two union officers, who asked not to be identified, predicted the offer would be rejected.

At a televised news conference early today, a haggard-looking Chandler said he decided to deploy the guardsmen after rocks were thrown through windows at Central Police Headquarters and two precinct stations.

The soldiers, wearing plastic face masks and body armor and carrying automatic rifles, roared down Memphis' Union Avenue in a convoy of trucks and tracked vehicles.

When guardsmen arrived at headquarters, police director E.W. Chapman and chief of operations John Molnar, the department's ranking uniformed officer, led a group of shot-gun-carrying supervisors from the building to inform about 25 pickets they were under arrest.

Cleveland mayor survives recall

CLEVELAND (AP) — A jubilant Mayor Dennis Kucinich, clinging to a thin 275-vote margin, joked with hundreds of cheering supporters after apparently surviving a bitter recall effort.

If he wins by one vote, "it will be good enough," Kucinich said Sunday night as Cuyahoga County election officials took the first steps toward a recount.

With all of Cleveland's 645 voting precincts reported, Kucinich turned back the recall drive by an unofficial vote of 60,308 to 60,033.

Cleveland has been plagued with problems since Kucinich took office on Nov. 14, 1977, but the recall drive was triggered when the mayor fired Police Chief Richard Hongisto during a televised news conference March 24.

Contacted after the recall vote, Hongisto, now head of New York state's prison system, said he does not expect any changes for the better.

"It's hard to kill a city. But he'll (Kucinich) do a fair job of trying," Hongisto told a reporter.

"I don't think Dennis won. I just think the people said they didn't want anything as drastic as a recall."

But Kucinich was exuberant. "Thank God for the people of the city of Cleveland for ignoring my imperfections and giving my administration another chance," the 31-year-old mayor said. If the victory is sustained, he would complete his two-year term in the $50,000-a-year post.

"I could have embraced the old wheeler-dealers and toadied up to the editors, but somebody has to make a stand in behalf of the people. By the grace of God and the people, the city government is going to stay that way," Kucinich said.

Robert Hughes, Cuyahoga County Republican chairman and a member of the Board of Elections, who early in the evening had predicted a wide Kucinich victory, called the results "unbelievable."

Recall forces gathered at a nearby hotel and celebrated to the strains of "Happy Days Are Here Again."

Thomas Campbell, a leader of the Recall Committee to Save Cleveland, said: "What we have done is raise the level of accountability of Kucinich so high that things will have to change. He no longer has any excuses."

Election officials impounded the paper ballots and four armed police officers were assigned to guard them.

An official survey of the votes was scheduled to begin today and could continue for three to four days. Board of Elections Director Virgil Brown said. The canvass is expected to certify a margin of less than one-half of 1 percent in the vote outcome.

A ward-by-ward report on the unofficial vote showed Kucinich carrying many of the predominantly white west side areas of the city and being rebuffed in the mostly black east side neighborhoods.

Suit to redo precinct lines filed in Martin

STANTON — Martin County Judge Jimmy Mathis and county commissioners Earl Newcomer, Troy Bradshaw, Ronnie Deatheridge and M. D. Goggin have been named defendants in a suit filed in federal court in Midland last week by a Mexican-American group seeking equitable voting precincts in Martin County.

Plaintiffs in the suit, first rumored a month ago, are Luis M. Segura, a San Antonio civil rights lawyer; Bonifacio Arguello, Santos Guevara, Ricardo Parra and Joe Luis Salgado.

The men share in the suit that the present method of apportioning Martin County commission precincts involves "excessive population deviations" which makes the system "unconstitutional."

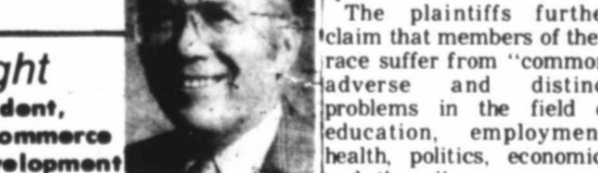

The plaintiffs further claim that members of their race suffer from "common, adverse and distinct problems in the field of education, employment, health, politics, economics and others."

The suit further contends that the commissioners' court last allotted "county commissioners precincts according to law many years ago and such apportionment now contains a population disparity in the neighborhood of 100 per cent."

They also charge that this situation "divides the Mexican-American communities of Martin County in such a way as to dilute and minimize their impact on elections."

The suit and its ramifications were to be discussed at today's meeting of the commissioners' court.

Christina's husband says couple will share earnings

MOSCOW (AP) — Sergei Kauzov, husband of shipping millionairess Christina Onassis, said Saturday he is looking for a job teaching English at a Moscow high school. He also said he expects to share his wife's future earnings "50-50," but knowledgeable sources in Greece questioned his ability to do that.
"At the moment I don't have any job at all," Kauzov, 37, noted in a telephone interview with The Associated Press from his mother's Moscow apartment, where the couple are to stay until a permanent home is found. His wife is currently in Athens.
Kauzov quit his $225-a-week job with the Soviet freight organization Sovfracht two months before marrying Miss Onassis on Aug. 1 in Moscow.
As a high school English teacher, Kauzov would receive only $200 to $260 a month.
But the once-divorced newlywed clearly will depend on his wife for additional money.
"Whenever a Russian is married, he is entitled to half of what he and his wife are earning during their married life," he told the reporter.
He explained that "what was mine before we were married is still mine, and whatever was hers, will remain hers. Whatever we earn during our mutual life together, that's what belongs to us, 50-50."
One shipping expert in Athens, however, said keeping an account of what Mrs. Kauzov, heiress of shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, earns each year is a difficult task and a closely guarded secret.
"Christina doesn't even know exactly what her income is from the shipping empire and commercial interests she inherited from her father.... How could the Russian state determine it?" asked the source, who preferred to remain unidentified.
The empire of ships, real estate and commercial ventures is estimated to be worth more than $500 million, with the annual income from it running into millions.

Teen 12 and 20 — Summer fever common for both boys and girls

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.
Teens: I received two very interesting letters this week and by my not answering them, you will get the message. All I will say is Ronda, please meet Ronda. Dr. Wallace: Since school is out and we are on summer vacation my girlfriends and I have many different places to go.
Here is our question: "How do we approach boys and start a conversation?"
Please answer this because I will bet there are millions of other girls wondering too. Hurry because summer fever is here. — Ronda, Springfield, Ohio
Dr. Wallace: My buddies and I are considered cute by girls. We are 15 and would like to meet new girls but whenever we are in a place where girls are around, we turn chicken. I guess we are shy.
Is there any way we can overcome this shyness? I guess we are afraid of being turned down. Please answer this letter because you will be helping lots of guys, not just us. — Richard, Wahpeton, N.D.
Dr. Wallace: I've got the worst problem a boy could have. I'm 13 and will be going into eighth grade and I'm about the weakest 13-year-old boy around.
Other boys my age are constantly picking on me. In fact, many times they spit on me. No girl wants to go with me because of it.
They always tell me to fight back but when I do, I just make a fool of myself. — Ruined, Petaluma, Calif.
Ruined: Every time I give this answer, I get hundreds of letters in protest but still I feel very strongly about this type of situation.
It seems like boys your age must have a pecking order.

Running Is Good For His Heart

DEAR ABBY: My husband started running every morning before work for his health. He said he felt like a new man, and he really looked terrific. He lost 15 pounds and started to pay more attention to his diet.
Well, everything was wonderful until he started running after work. I thought it was rather odd for him to come home from work, shower, put on cologne and comb his hair to go running! Then I found out why, quite by accident.
I was driving along the parkway where he runs, when I saw him saying goodbye to a blonde who was getting into her car. She had on running clothes, too. Such a goodbye I never saw outside a movie. They were embracing and looking into each other's eyes like a pair of young lovers. I don't know how old she is, but my husband is 57.
He doesn't know I saw him. Should I tell him? I don't want him to quit running, because it's been so good for him. I can't run with him because I'm not the type. What do you say?
RUNNER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Don't blame the running. If your husband didn't run, he'd probably run into a blonde somewhere else. Of course you should tell him you saw him. And let the next movie be his.

DEAR ABBY: I've been playing Mah-Jongg for over 30 years and I never cheated in my life. However, last night I really don't know what came over me, but I wanted so desperately to make a hand that I cheated.

Well, a dear friend who was out at the time noticed what I had done. Although she didn't say anything to me, I could tell by the expression on her face that she saw me cheat.
The rest of the evening I felt terrible, and that night I couldn't sleep a wink.
I know that I will never cheat again, but how can I rectify this with my good friend? I don't want to lose her friendship over a stupid mistake.

Should I just let it pass? Or should I say something to my friend? Sign me...
VERY, VERY SORRY

DEAR SORRY: You are obviously suffering from a very troubled conscience, so go ahead and clear the air with your friend. You'll feel better.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 27, and for the first time in my life I'm in love. He's 34, divorced, and his name is Paul.

Paul and his wife (Theresa) lived next door to my mother, who has been like a second mother to Theresa. Paul and Theresa have two kids. Paul moved out, but Theresa is still my mother's neighbor.

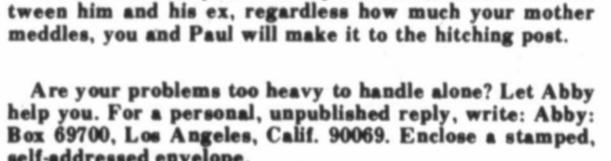

My problem is my mother. Mom should have been a nun. She goes to church every morning and lives by the Bible. Mom insists that in the eyes of the church Paul and Theresa are still married even though their divorce was final a year ago. Mom says if I marry Paul, I'll burn in hell for living in sin.

Mom told me that Theresa told her that she and Paul never stopped sleeping together. Paul told me that he hasn't slept with Theresa since he moved out of the house. I love Paul and he loves me, but I don't know what to believe. What should I do?
MIXED UP IN MINNESOTA

DEAR MIXED UP: Have a heart to heart talk with Paul and get the facts. If he's still sleeping with Theresa, perhaps you should bow out of the picture and give them a chance to reconcile.

But if Paul loves you as he says he does, and it's over between him and his ex, regardless how much your mother meddles, you and Paul will make it to the hitching post.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Bob Burton is the county courthouse reporter on his regular beat, but works the sports desk one Saturday a month and on Mondays from time to time.

(Being from Cincinnati, he cut his teeth, so to speak, on professional sports by watching the Reds do their stuff. Burton just completed reading the voluminous series of articles dealing with money in sports in a popular sports magazine.

By BOB BURTON
Guest Columnist
(One of a series of four.)

Sports Illustrated, in a three-week series ending July 31, ran a mammoth story on money in sports. It was very long, and in spots hard to read unless you're a qualified CPA. But it provided, in one locale, more information on the topic than I'd ever seen before.

It was most ironic, however, that the fans could care less about the whole thing. A poll printed in the third issue quotes 87 per cent of the fans saying there is too much emphasis on money in sports; 73 per cent saying it doesn't reduce their enjoyment of the game; and 65 per cent saying big player salaries have had no effect on the fan's interest in the game.

Why did they run the longest article in their history on something the fans overwhelmingly say they've had enough of?

Probably because it is here to stay, whether you want to be alone with your team and your dream or not.

"The fan can help himself by remembering this straight, hard truth: the pro game is a business, first, foremost, always, and forever. The fan should also know that the owners have a hangup about admitting this truth, that the players have a compulsion for exploiting it and that the public has a psychological block about accepting it." SI

NAME OF GAME
Big Bucks

In Truth, the dollar-game (lovingly referred to as Moneyball in the SI article) is as circular as anything else these days. The bottom line, as always, is that sports is a consumable and fans appear to have insatiable appetites. Not only that, the craving has reached such limits that boosters will do a thing to satisfy it. The stats say that 56 per cent of the fans would still go if ticket prices went up 25 per cent. That's a big enough price hike to make people stop eating meat, but it doesn't faze the lemmings. In fact, the hunger of the fan completely outstrips the sports industry.

"There is nobody who can put meat in the seats the way I do." Reggie Jackson.

"The annual gross of the average NFL team ($8.9 million) is equivalent to that of a small supermarket; the revenues of an NBA club ($4.3 million) put it in the same league with a large filling station, and even last year's banner performance by major league baseball (230 million) was eclipsed by the snuff and chaw-tobacco industry. In fact, the total gross revenues of all four major pro sports ($640 million) would pass for petty cash at Exxon ($48 billion)." SI

But when one man was fatally shot in a Denver bar for playing the jukebox while a Bronco team was on TV, one Bronco fan asked, "Why have a trial? That fellow committed suicide."

"Moreover, millions do not cheer the workers at IBM, nor is an estimated $50 billion gambled annually on whether Bethlehem Steel meets its production quota." SI

Compare the forgiving largesse of the fans with this example of the pinched-pennies of the owners, and then recall the last time you called them spend-thrift from hiking players salaries to such astronomical heights.

"When George Steinbrenner bought the Yankees from CBS in 1973, the deal included a freshly drawn lease with a humdinger of a clause that allows the team to deduct stadium maintenance costs from its rent. In 1976, when the Yankees grossed $11.9 million in gate receipts and concessions, they should have paid $54,504 in rent. Instead, after maintenance, the city owed $10,000. . . . Steinbrenner commented, A lease is a lease." SI

And if you think the thrift is in any way translatable to ticket prices, think again.

"If anything, the striking imbalance between the payroll costs and ticket prices of many teams suggests that high ticket prices are somehow holding down salaries. For instance, the Seattle Seahawks have one of the lowest payrolls in the NFL. So guess whose average ticket price ($11.79) is the highest in the league? Of the 22 teams in the NBA, the Nets were No. 29 in salaries ($1,163,000) and No. 2 in ticket average ($8.58)." SI

"As long as people keep paying the high prices, they'll keep going up. When the point of diminishing returns is reached, the owners will know they've gone too far." —Padres owner Ray Kroc

George Allen canned by Rams

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — George Allen, normally an intense and animated man, looked and sounded tired and forlorn. "It's an unbelievable thing," he said, his voice trailing off.

"Do you think I got a fair chance ... two preseason games?"

Allen, fired Sunday as coach of the Los Angeles Rams by team owner Carroll Rosenbloom and replaced by assistant Ray Malavasi, said: "I'm not bitter. I'm hurt."

The sudden and dramatic move came after the Rams had lost their first two preseason contests, the opener 14-7 to New England then 17-0 to San Diego last Saturday.

Allen was hired just last February to return to the team that he'd coached from 1966 to 1970, having been fired twice and rehired once by Dan Reeves, the Rams' late president.

Allen said he told Rosenbloom that he was making a mistake.

"I told him what I have to offer is what the Rams need," said Allen, 56. "There were several things he said, and that I thought we wouldn't win if I continued as the coach, and that I would work better in the framework of an organization where I'd be general manager and coach."

"All I know is that I did everything in my power, did it the way it should be done, did it my way. We worked hard and were committed to the program we've used successfully all these years and I could not change that if I was to live with myself."

Allen's "way" was not Rosenbloom's way. In a prepared statement, the Rams' owner said: "It is my feeling that I have made a serious error in judgement in believing George Allen could work within our framework."

"It has been extremely difficult for him to adjust to a new situation. Unquestionably he is a fine coach and administrator. His record speaks for itself. However, I'm certain it's in the best interest of all concerned to make this change at this time."

Rosenbloom would not talk in specifics.

There had been a certain amount of unrest in the Rams' Fullerton State training camp, with some players unhappy with Allen's long practices and rah-rah psychology. Five players walked out at one time or another, although contract disputes out of Allen's control were the major problem.

However, that lack of control was apparently another factor in the firing. Allen, who was general manager and coach of the Redskins for the past seven seasons, may have wanted power that Rosenbloom would not relinquish.

Allen, who said he hadn't even finished moving all his furniture back to Los Angeles, will apparently be paid the salary due him under a reported three-year, $200,000 a year contract he'd signed with the Rams.

"George Allen is a fine gentleman and a damn good football coach," said Malavasi, 47. "It (getting fired) happens to nearly everyone. It's happened to me."

Malavasi was serving as offensive coordinator under Allen, although he'd run the Rams' defense for the five years Knox was at the Los Angeles helm. Malavasi had one brief stint as a head coach in the National Football League, serving as Denver Broncos head man for 12 games in an interim capacity in 1966.

He now faces the pressure that led to Knox's leaving for the Buffalo Bills and Allen's being fired.

"Los Angeles fans are spoiled," said Los Angeles linebacker Isiah Robertson. "They want a Super Bowl. And Mr. Rosenbloom wants to give them a Super Bowl."

LITTLE DID HE KNOW — Former Los Angeles coach George Allen is shown talking with his players on the sideline during the exhibition game against the San Diego Chargers in Los Angeles Saturday. Allen, who coached the Rams for just the two preseason games was fired by Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom Sunday.

L.A. move surprised players

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rams' players reacted in various ways when they learned George Allen had been fired and Ray Malavasi named to replace him as Los Angeles coach, but they all said it was completely unexpected.

"I was really surprised; I was happy with the way things were going with George Allen," said Los Angeles quarterback Pat Haden after Ram owner Carroll Rosenbloom announced the changes Sunday. "We had two bad games, and I feel badly that I didn't play well. I didn't do a good job of directing the offense, maybe that's why this happened."

"There were probably some things that went on that we don't know about," Haden continued. "Coach Allen had more control of his team in Washington since he was both coach and general manager, and I know Mr. Rosenbloom believes in a clear chain of command ... maybe that was the problem."

"It was a shock," said offensive tackle Doug France. "The man (Rosenbloom) just wants a Super Bowl and we want it, too, and if this is the best move, then we're for it."

"We played bad in those two games," France said of the 14-7 loss to New England a week ago and last Saturday's 17-0 loss to San Diego in preseason contests. "It wasn't the coach's fault. We lost five preseason games last year."

Linebacker Isiah Robertson, who had walked out of camp earlier and was used sparingly by Allen in the two preseason losses, said he thought it was a "great move," adding that he didn't figure to be with the team much longer if Allen stayed.

"I think it solves one or two problems that we were having," Robertson said. "People were having trouble adjusting to the system, and now we'll go back to the system we've used for the last five years."

"George walked into an uncomfortable, unfortunate situation here," Robertson added. "Some of the players had personal problems, and a new system with a demanding coach did not help the problems."

"Ray Malavasi is a great coach, and now we're looking for a great football season. George Allen had his system that's worked other places, and I wish him a lot of luck, but now I feel like we're a California team again."

Offensive guard Tom Mack, who played under Allen during the coach's 1966-70 stint at the Rams' helm, said the players were to blame for Allen's firing.

"We have to vindicate ourselves," Mack said. "I think George will be back as a coach and a winner. He was replaced because the players didn't play well...they're the ones who play football, not the coach."

Rangers win 9th out of last 10 games

"When we get runs we get no pitching, and when we get pitching we get no runs," said Torborg after the Indians dropped a doubleheader, 3-2 and 6-5, to the Rangers Sunday.

Texas now has won nine of its last 10 games, seven of the wins coming against Cleveland, while the Indians have dropped nine of their last 10 games.

Ranger manager Billy Hunter said, "We're getting decent pitching, clutch hitting and good defense ... We're playing very well right now."

In the opener, Kurt Bevaqua's seventh inning homer, his fourth, made the difference.

"It was the same pitch I struck out on my previous time at bat," said the Ranger third baseman who hit a curve into the leftfield stands.

The Rangers broke on top with a pair of runs in the fifth inning off Indians starter and loser Dave Freisleben, 1-4. Bevaqua singled and came home on a triple by Toby Harrah, who then scored on a sacrifice fly by Mike Hargrove.

Texas starter Doc Medich, 6-6, faced the minimum number of Indians until running into problems in the sixth inning. Then, Larvell Blanks doubled, Jim Norris walked and Buddy Bell singled to load the bases with no outs.

Medich walked John Grubb, forcing home Blanks to cut Texas' lead to 2-1. Reggie Cleveland relieved Medich and kept the Indians at bay until an error resulted in an unearned run in the ninth inning.

Bum's breather

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips isn't breathing a sigh of relief, but he doesn't think tonight's exhibition game against Philadelphia can be as rugged as his team's opening against Super Bowl entry Denver.

"They may play good, but I don't think their personnel is as good as Denver's," Phillips said of the Eagles. "If they were as good as Denver, they would have been in the Super Bowl, too."

The Oilers opened the preseason with a 17-12 loss to the Broncos in which rookie Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell rushed for 29 yards in 12 carries in his professional debut.

Walton's picked his club

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bill Walton, the injury-prone Most Valuable Player who didn't like the medical treatment he got with the Portland Trail Blazers, has decided he wants to play for the Golden State Warriors.

"Bill has determined that if he is going to play in the NBA, (Golden State) is where he is going to play," said Jack Scott, the sports activist, author and Walton's friend and adviser.

Warriors General Manager Scotty Stirling, who met with the 6-foot-11 center last week in Portland, also confirmed Sunday night that Walton wanted to play for Golden State.

"That's essentially the story. We have agreed in principal. I won't comment beyond that."

The San Francisco Chronicle reported in today's edition that Walton preferred the Warriors over other National Basketball Association teams because he liked the Bay area, the team, its fans and management.

Scott said, "We felt it was one area of the country that he would get support from the fans..."

The New York Knicks reportedly offered Walton more money but the Warriors offer was large enough, the Chronicle said. The Philadelphia 76ers and the new NBA franchise in San Diego also sought Walton.

Scott said, "If finances were a problem, Bill wouldn't have chosen Golden State. But I think we've said before money isn't the issue. Bill's health is."

That's the bottom line."

Allen now has been fired four times in his NFL coaching career — three times by the Rams and last January by Redskins' President Edward Bennett Williams. Allen would not agree to contract terms with the Redskins and Williams said he believed the coach was negotiating with the Rams at that time.

"It's probably my saddest decision because I'm very fond of George Allen," said Rosenbloom, who met with Allen for more than an hour at the Rams' camp Sunday afternoon before the announcement.

"I felt it was time to do what I did."

Saying he was packing his bags and leaving immediately, Allen then mused, "I guess I made a mistake giving up a great job in Washington. But I'm not worried; I have a fine family and I'm set financially."

Malavasi, who's spent 23 years in the pro coaching ranks, said he plans some immediate changes, including length of practice sessions.

Orange Crush fans have short memories

DENVER (AP) — How quickly they forget, Craig Morton must be saying to himself.

The retired quarterback, whose pinpoint passing and confident leadership helped stake the Denver Broncos to a Super Bowl berth last season, was booted during the early stages of Saturday's National Football League preseason game won by the Dallas Cowboys 21-14.

The cat-calls began early in the game after Morton was sacked for a 7-yard loss on one play, then slipped down while dropping back to pass on the next play. Some of the malcontents doubtlessly were recalling Morton's poor performance in the Super Bowl as well.

"We Want Weese," came the chant.

Norris Weese, Denver's No. 3 quarterback whose scrambling tactics have made him a favorite among a segment of Bronco fans, appeared later in the half and passed 14 yards to tight end Riley Odoms for the game's first score.

With the Broncos trailing 14-7 in the final period, the call rang out again for Weese. Weese re-entered the game to a chorus of cheers. But on the first play, his pass was picked off by Dallas linebacker Mike Hegman, who dashed un-molested 66 yards for the Cowboys' third score which proved to be the difference.

Weese quickly fell out of favor with the fickle Bronco fans. And, presumably, Morton may emerge as their hero again next week. Such is the reaction of fans to whom success has come so quickly after many lean years.

Second-year wide receiver Tony Hill caught scoring passes of 16 and 29 yards to account for the Cowboys' other TDs as Dallas boosted its preseason record to 2-0. Denver is 1-1.

The game, played in 90-degree temperatures and before a capacity crowd of 74,619, was billed as a rematch of last January's Super Bowl teams. But Dallas Coach Tom Landry saw "no comparison" between the two games.

"Our guys aren't ready yet," said Landry. "They've been in training camp and they are tired. We have got a ways to go yet."

Denver Coach Red Miller said "our offensive line handled their defensive line better than before." Miller also felt that "up until that interception, we were with them all the way."

Hegman darted in front of a Denver receiver, grabbed Weese's pass and outran the pursuing Broncos for the score with nine minutes left in the game. "I set him (Weese) up," said Hegman. "I read it all the way. Really, it was too easy."

The Broncos rallied for a touchdown with 3:32 left, with rookie Dave Preston running the final eight yards, but it was too late.

STINGLEY INJURED — Ambulance attendants carry wide receiver Darryl Stingley of the New England Patriots off the field after he was seriously injured during Saturday night's game against the Oakland Raiders. Stingley suffered serious neck injuries and temporary paralysis after being tackled by Raiders' safety Jack Tatum on a pass play during the second period.

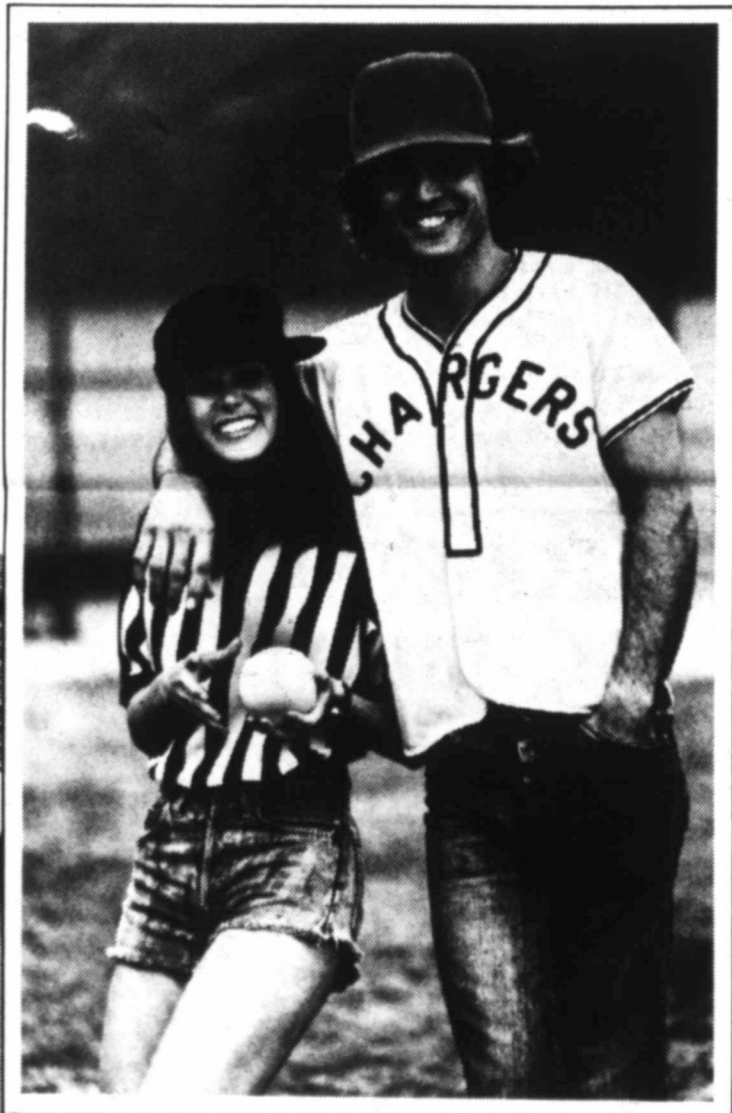

WANTS TO GO TO GOLDEN STATE — Portland Trail Blazers Bill Walton, who announced that he wanted to be traded, has decided he wants to play for the Golden State Warriors, the San Francisco Chronicle said in its Monday edition. The newspaper stated the choice was based on the Bay area, team management, fans and the team.
