

Demand for Texas oil will be down 4 percent, Commission head says

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Demand for Texas gas in September will be 4 percent less than in August because of both seasonal and economic reasons, railroad commission chairman Mack Wallace said today.

Wallace announced the drop in gas nominations as the commission again set the oil production allowable at 100 percent of market demand — the factor it has used since April 1972.

The main exceptions from the statewide allowable continues to be the East Texas and Kelly-Snyder fields, where an 86 percent cap was imposed to prevent waste that would result from faster pumping.

Wallace announced that gas purchasers say they will buy 23 billion cubic feet of gas in September, down 4 percent from their August forecast.

Part of the drop is seasonal, with cooler weather meaning smaller demands on electrical generators fueled with natural gas, he later told reporters.

Wallace added, however, that he sees a trend toward decreased gas consumption.

"It has something to do with increased technology and conservation. Personally, I think it has something to do with the gross national product. Consumption of gas parallels the gross national product . . . and the economy has declined," Wallace said.

Don Jones, a statistician in the commission's oil and gas division, said September's demand for Texas gas is "below capacity — substantially."

"The interstate market has declined somewhat. The intrastate market is fairly constant compared with the interstate," Jones said.

Wallace said Texas has ample gas for the winter and asserted that the Northeast should be in better shape because of higher volumes of gas in storage.

"The idea that the United States is out of gas is a myth," Wallace said.

Royal flush helps British Empire lure travelers

By MARJ CARPENTER
The sun never used to set on the British Empire.

That was in the days when the little isle of Britain owned or controlled Canada, Australia, India, parts of Africa, and many other portions of the world.

Those days are gone and the sun sets beautifully on that little isle. Britain no longer claims to be a world power. Auberon Waugh, in a recent issue of Spectator, pointed out that Nassau effectively kept Britain out of the European community for eleven years.

"Since the retreat from Empire, our armed forces have been no more and no less than toys for politicians to foster their illusions of importance," he said.

"Any contribution we might have been able to make toward military and political decision-making would almost certainly have been baneful and half-baked. We are well rid of the world and its problems and the world is well rid of us."

Perhaps this is true, but the world is going to Britain, as tourists en masse, to see what is used to be and what contributed so many things in our own world.

People from all over the world pour into London a lot of them Americans — to walk into Westminster Abbey, view the Tower of London and push and shove to see the changing of the Guard at Buckingham Palace.

The countries who have long since done away with royalty, hang on every word about the kings and queens of England, purchase books that tell their story, and study with horror, traitor's gate at the Tower of London where those who were beheaded were brought by boat down the Thames. They stand in line for hours to see the crown jewels.

The visitors travel the Thames to Kew Gardens or to Hampton Court to "walk where the king's walked"

Sponsor hopes

Califano will change stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sponsor of a motion to cite HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. for contempt of Congress says he hopes Califano will find some way to furnish by mid-September subpoenaed documents describing how major drug companies make their products.

The House Commerce investigations subcommittee voted 9-8 Wednesday to recommend that the secretary of health, education and welfare be held in contempt if he did not turn over the documents. The motion was sponsored by Rep. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn.

Members said the documents were needed for an investigation of whether major drug companies buy generic or chemically named drugs, put their own brand-name labels on them and then charge steeply higher prices for the drugs.

At a hearing on Tuesday, Califano gave the subcommittee confidential data on the generic drugs, their manufacturers and the brand-name drug company purchasers.

But he said Attorney General Griffin Bell had said Califano could not provide documents showing the precise manufacturing process because they are legally protected trade secrets.

"I'm hopeful the secretary will negotiate more seriously in the next two to three weeks before the full committee is scheduled to vote (on the contempt citation)," Gore said.

"I think he now knows we're very serious about this matter. I predict the full committee will vote the contempt citation as recommended, but I'm optimistic we'll be able to reach a compromise solution between now and that vote," Gore added in an interview.

Califano says he and the Food and Drug Administration "are deeply committed both to promoting the use of less expensive generic drugs and to ending the drug companies' practice of secretly marketing generic drugs produced by other manufacturers as their own, more expensive brand-name products."

Gore said brand-name drug companies justify the higher prices "by saying their factory processes are unique."

and play the game in the maze at Hampton.

The visitors view the doll house at Windsor and peer through the royal apartments trying to imagine the queen there.

They truck up the high hill to Edinburgh Castle in Scotland and squeeze into the small bedroom where Mary Queen of Scots bore James I of England.

They drive across the lush and beautiful landscape, ride down narrow hedged lanes, and glance at the roses big as plates that flourish in Wales. They visit the wide open spaces in Northern Scotland that include sky, sea and heather, mountains and lochs, and a mist of mystery over the entire beautiful landscape.

They clamor into the pubs, visit the theaters and look endlessly in the museums. They view the ruins of the castles and stay in the hundreds of 'Bed and Breakfast' spots that have proved a life saver to more than one British home owner laden with heavy taxes.

They listen in awe to the words of Shakespeare, knowing nothing better has been written. They stand at the little pottery shoppe immortalized by Charles Dickens and recall his works.

FROM THE LANES IN WALES
... hedged narrow roads

The travelers tour the cathedrals and stand in the mist and slow rain at the remains of Tintern Abbey and remember the words of Wordsworth.

They crowd into buses for tours and peer out at Bobbies, who carry no guns yet keep crime to a minimum. They mutter about the strikes that inconvenience the efficient train system and the ferries, and study little maps to try to fathom the mysteries of the 'tube.'

They pull back in horror when they see the signs in the tube that remind you that unattended luggage might hold a bomb.

The tourists listen to Mozart in the opera house, or view a ballet or hear a symphony. Then they stand at the memorial to Handel in Westminster and recall the music of "The Messiah."

They shed a tear as a bagpipe in Edinburgh rings out with "Amazing Grace." They meet Scotsmen in pubs who like to share their knowledge of good whiskey and Irishmen who like to sing and tell the tales of the unrest in their land.

They hear the frenzied discussion of the oil in the North Sea and whether it will save Britain economically for one more generation or whether it will cause the Scotsmen to withdraw.

They eat foods from every land, with the Chinamen the only ones who manage to still serve it cheaply. They shop in such beautiful stores as Fortnam and Mason shops that feature fantastically beautiful clocks — and Harrod's. But then they watch housewives scramble for groceries and meat that run out daily in many of the small shops.

They might take time to notice that the British once again have gardens on many plots to raise fresh produce similar to the victory gardens of World War II.

They can still feel the fierce pride of England as a boatsman on the Thames reminds you that his boat went to Dunkirk.

As they visit musicals and plays for enjoyment or look at Nelson's statue in Trafalgar Square, they feel like a tourist. But they still take a little time to feel the rich heritage that passed from Britain to America through all the wars they fought together and against each other.

The garden on the Thames is where the cottonseed was developed to begin the cotton industry in America. The cattle near Hereford were the first of the strong breed still popular in the western hemisphere.

"The Hallelujah Chorus" is the same as they sing at Christmas and Easter. The hymns sung with a Scottish burr in early Presbyterian Churches are the same as they sing on Sunday at home.

The architecture — the books — the newspapers — the scientific test tube baby of '78 — or the early theories of Isaac Newton — the poems of Keats and Shelley — the Canterbury Tales — the early churches — all are reminiscent of things that have carried over to home.

Patrick Marnham pointed out in Spectator that the purpose of a newspaper is "to find out what is going on and print it." He then elaborated on the different types of news that English newspapers print. Each one of them is different, and all of them are even more different than what the tourist finds in the newspaper back home.

And to the "ugly American," as they are often called in Europe, the early influences have been carefully brought over, and in some cases simply oozed over into their lives in the U.S.A.

If Britain is no longer a world power, they still hold a rich heritage. They also offer a beautiful place in their corner of the world.

Americans mumble about the English hot tea and talk of iced tea and iced water, and softer toilet tissue and efficiency.

But they still walk, fly, ride and trek through the isle of Britain trying to comprehend its long, rich, and influential history.

And as they hear an Irishman running down an escalator waving his umbrella and singing, or hear a guide named Jenny quoting poems on a tour as she describes her city with pride, or hear a pianist in a restaurant sing "I'm From

TO LONDON IN THE RAIN
... near Victoria and Albert Museum
on a Sunday afternoon

London Town" — they present world power of wonder for a moment which America, or the historic land is the happier — the world power of Britain.

Trial moves into second day

Discrepancies in Ray's testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Assassinations Committee tried today to shake one discrepancy after another in James Earl Ray's bizarre account of his travels with mystery man Raoul, triggering a storm of protest from Ray's attorney which often delayed the hearing.

Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, today pursued questioning started earlier about discrepancies between Ray's earlier stories and documents of the FBI investigation into the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. on April 4, 1968.

Stokes assailed Ray's statement to the committee that Raoul had never handled the .30-06 rifle which later proved to be the weapon used to kill King in Memphis, Tenn.

Ray said he bought the weapon for Raoul earlier in Birmingham, Ala., for what he thought was a gun-running scheme. Ray said he and Raoul had worked together for months, from Canada to Mexico, in various smuggling deals.

Stokes said: "Mr. Ray, I say to you, this committee has reviewed every FBI document relative to this case, every other investigative document, and nowhere is there a reference to a man named Raoul."

To that, Ray replied only that perhaps not all documents had been found in the matter.

Promising to be more flexible

Administration taking fight to Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration — still smarting from a defeat in the House — is taking its case for a tax cut bill to the Senate Finance Committee, where the chairman already is calling for major changes opposed by the president.

If the record of the last few years is any guide, the committee will write a bill that gives considerably more benefits to corporations and investors than would fit into President Carter's idea of tax equity.

The Finance Committee called Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal as its first witness today. He was expected to spell out how much change the administration would be willing to take in the tax bill the president proposed earlier this year.

That bill was shot to pieces by the House after the administration refused until the last minute to negotiate a compromise. But there are reports the administration will be considerably more flexible in the Senate in hopes of getting a bill that would not end in a presidential veto just a few weeks before the November elections.

The measure passed by the House would allow new tax cuts of about $16.3 billion, effective next Jan. 1. The administration appears willing to accept a reduction of that figure, even though the president originally had asked for more.

The Carter administration has two major problems with the House-passed bill: —The individual tax reductions are tilted toward the upper income brackets. Tax cuts in recent years have given proportionately more reductions to lower income groups, a course Carter wants continued. —The bill contains a big reduction in the tax on capital gains that would all but wipe out the 1969 "minimum tax," which was designed to ensure that high-income investors pay some tax regardless of how many deductions they have.

Although the president's advisers reluctantly agreed to support some reduction in the tax on capital gains, which are profits from the sale of stocks, real estate and other property, they insist that the minimum tax must be retained.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the committee, has said publicly that he favors a bigger individual tax cut — but that he sees no need to change the "tilt" of the House bill from the upper income levels.

His position on the capital gains tax is for an even larger reduction than was voted by the House. If the economy is to pull out of the doldrums and shake the problem of inflation, he contends, Americans must be given greater incentive to invest.

And the best incentive is to let the government tax away a smaller share of investment earnings, Long says.

Texas textbooks watched by other states

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — As publishers hear their textbooks assailed by women's rights activists and fundamentalists in annual hearings this week, they can take comfort in one thing: If a text walks the Texas tightrope and lands on the approval list, it likely will be a best seller in other states.

"People watch Texas, and usually if a book sells well here, it will be a success elsewhere," said Don Hale of Holt, Rinehart & Winston. "It's like a bellwether. Texas is one of the top five textbook markets."

Hale's comment followed the first day of State Textbook Committee hearings on books proposed for use during the 1979-1980 school year.

Two simultaneous hearings continue through Tuesday as 44 individuals and groups scrutinize elementary and secondary books. The committee meets Sept. 11 to make recommendations to the State Board of Education which adopts textbooks Nov. 11.

No other state conducts as far-flung hearings as Texas, said J. Henry Perry, director of the state's textbook division. Critics and publishers exchange written comments before oral hearings begin.

American history, literature and life science books grab perennial attention. Evolution stirred debate in material prepared for today's hearing.

A seventh grade life science book lacks sufficient explanation of evolution, contend Americans United for the Separation of Church and State.

"These fundamentalists have apparently so frightened the authors-publi- shers that they attempt in this text to downplay the truth about evolution," the group said, "thereby seriously impairing the students' chance for understanding this unifying principle of the life sciences."

Reviewers appearing Wednesday included Mrs.

Joel M. Potter of Pasadena, who objected to an E.E. Cummings poem "Buffalo Bill" being included in a tenth grade literature book. The poem uses the name Jesus.

"Since it is not permitted to use this name in schools in prayer, it should not be allowed to be mocked in schools," Mrs. Potter told the committee.

The book publishers, Scott, Foresman & Co., replied in writing:

"This poem by one of America's great modern poets has been anthologized in textbooks for over 20 years. We believe that the word is used for emphasis. It implies admiration, awe, even envy."

The Texas chapter of the National Organization of Women charged some publishers perpetuate sexism and traditional role stereotyping in textbooks.

A high school book on manufacturing urges women to pay special attention to clothing, said NOW representative Lynne Mutchler of Houston.

"Is it because women are hired not for what they can do, but for their appearance?" she asked.

Leader purges military

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — President Antonio Guzman kept Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and other inauguration guests waiting while he purged the Dominican military command in his first official action.

Guzman swore in four new commanders Wednesday as Vance and the others waited in another room at the national palace. Dominican and U.S. sources said the new military chiefs were viewed "more favorably" by the Americans than the old hierarchy.

It was pressure by the United States and other countries on May 17 that forced a military group to back off after it stopped the counting of the vote in the presidential election when Guzman took the lead over President Joaquin Balaguer.

Although there had been rumors that Guzman would make some military changes, he had not been expected to act so quickly.

His changes included Maj. Gen. Rafael Adriano Valdez Hilario to replace Juan Rene Beauchamp Javier as cabinet secretary of the armed forces, Brig. Gen. Ramiro Matos Gonzalez, former director of forestry services, replacing Maj. Gen. Neit Rafael Nivar Seijas as commander of the 1st Military Brigade in Santo Domingo; Gen. Mario Imber McGregor to command the air force and Gen. Francisco Amiana Castillo to command the navy.

Gen. Nivar Seijas was chief of the national police during the election and is believed to have been the instigator of the attempt to nullify Guzman's election.

Maj. Gen. Enrique Perez y Perez, the army chief of staff, was not replaced, apparently because he is trusted by Guzman and his associates in the Dominican Revolutionary Party.

The new president in his inaugural speech said his administration will bring a "new attitude" toward the law.

"The time has come for dedication to work in the service of the fatherland and not for illicit enrichment," he said. "A public official must distinguish himself for the honesty with which he carries out his duties. Our country has lived through a moral crisis in the past few years."

Balaguer, who had been in office since 1966, admitted earlier in the week that official corruption had done great harm to his administration.

Guzman said his administration will also emphasize economic development in cooperation with private enterprise and will provide incentives and financing "to make our products more competitive."

Although the country maintained a favorable balance of payments last year, the economy this year has been adversely affected by the high price of imported oil and the low price of sugar, the chief export.

'Workaholic' admits playing political hardball in House

Abilenian catches flak while serving as 'buffer'

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — When Speaker Billy Clayton gavelled the House of Representatives into special session last month, Jack Gullahorn stood nearby — smiling, confident, prominent and comfortable.

JACK GULLAHORN

Gullahorn frequently stepped forward to whisper information or suggestions to Clayton.

Three weeks later, the speaker's executive assistant could not be found in the House. He ended the session in his office, hoping by his absence to quell a controversy that pushed him unwillingly into the public spotlight.

Gullahorn, a political wunderkind from Abilene who at 25 helped Clayton win his first speakership race, was a political liability at 30.

Several legislators accused him of helping their opponents in the May primary.

Others said he blocked their access to Clayton and was arrogant.

Twenty-three members demanded his resignation for distributing a vote list showing who hadn't supported the speaker on tax relief. They called it intimidation.

Clayton turned back the demands but said Gullahorn planned to resign soon and enter private law practice in Austin.

After the session ended and the legislators scattered, Gullahorn relaxed in his office and smiled about rumors that he had been sacrificed to stem anti-Clayton efforts.

I told the speaker at the beginning of the last session (1977) that it would be my last, that I didn't want to go through another session," he said.

He said he is under "a little bit of pressure" from Clayton and the rest of the staff to stay around and to avoid the appearance that complaints brought the departure. Gullahorn said wanting to oppose an anti-Clayton legislator, Gullahorn said he would talk with him or her. "I'll talk to anyone who comes up here or calls me."

Gilley and others accuse the speaker's staff of funneling money into their opponents' campaigns.

"We don't have any money to give," Gullahorn said. But he does talk about candidates with people who do give political money.

"They say they have met this guy and are wondering if they should support him. If I think he's worthwhile, I'll give my opinion."

Candidates Gullahorn considers worthwhile are likely to be conservative. He got involved in politics and met Clayton through the Young Americans for Freedom, a nonpartisan conservative group founded by William F. Buckley.

Gullahorn was state chairman and Clayton, then an ambitious state representative from Springlake, was a YAF advisor.

After getting a degree in political science from Trinity University at San Antonio, Gullahorn enrolled in the University of Texas Law School at Austin.

He soon gained statewide attention twice: by suing the UT student newspaper for allegedly favoring liberal political candidates and by working for the state and for Clayton's speaker's race at the same time.

A judge threw out the suit as too general but Gullahorn believes the suit led to reforms.

Speaker Price Daniel Jr. found out about Gullahorn holding legislative committee jobs while on Clayton's political staff. Gullahorn avoided dismissal from the committee jobs only by a fast resignation. Two weeks later Clayton replaced Daniel as speaker and made Gullahorn his executive assistant.

Corsicana, who jumped on the Clayton bandwagon early, remembers Gullahorn as a highly efficient political strategist. He said the things Gullahorn planned were planned well.

He said he found Gullahorn easy to work with and doesn't understand why some members call the aide arrogant or abrasive.

Gullahorn said he doesn't understand it either. He thinks his directness hurts him sometimes. "If I don't think something is right, I tell them."

Gullahorn remains a staunch conservative but said he said his work has increased his tolerance for other views. He professes friendship and respect for several House liberals.

He also has learned much about how state government works. He plans to be an lobbyist during legislative sessions and to practice before state agencies after he resigns his job.

Gullahorn said he also hopes to spend more time with his family. Clayton works long hours and so does his staff.

Gullahorn often is described as a "workaholic" who never lets his hair down.

He said he might be more popular if he spent more time socializing with legislators, but he already feels badly about the time his job takes away from his wife and three young sons.

Some people think

Gullahorn talked Clayton into talking Gov. Dolph Briscoe into calling the special session on tax relief. "If we could have called it we would have put it off and been much more organized and planned," he said with the air of confidence.

Hints offered to beat travel motion woes

A disturbance in the tiny canals of the inner ear can destroy the best-laid travel plans. When the body's balance mechanism, contained in the inner ear, is bothered by motion, suddenly the traveler may be concentrating more on the nausea, vomiting or dizziness of motion sickness than on the pleasures of a long-planned vacation.

To help prevent motion sickness, which is much easier than controlling it once it starts, the Texas Medical Association offers these suggestions:

— Try to ride in the front seat of a car, midship in a boat and in the middle, usually over the wing, in an airplane.

— Avoid heavy meals, excess alcohol and other substances that might cause an upset stomach under normal conditions. During prolonged periods of motion, simple foods and small amounts of liquids can be taken. For short trips, avoid eating anything.

— Proper head position also can be helpful. Try tilting your head back, keeping the line of sight at about a 45 degree angle. Also try to steady the head against a pillow or other solid object.

— Focusing on a distant, stable object instead of concentrating on pitching, swaying nearby surroundings aids some people. But make sure the object looks very stable. Some authorities say a moving horizon and emotional factors such as fear are two of the main causes of motion sickness.

— Over-the-counter drugs such as dimenhydrinate, meclizine and cyclizine can be useful. These are not the trade names so read the labels to find the ingredients. Ideally these drugs should be taken before traveling, but if motion sickness starts to sneak up unexpectedly, taking a pill immediately may help. Many airlines carry the drugs onboard for just such occasions. Since these drugs make some people drowsy, do not operate a vehicle if you use them.

— Sitting still and avoiding reading helps many people avoid motion sickness.

If motion sickness does occur, the victim may eventually get used to the motion and recover. One pilot would eat a load of pancakes, take his plane up and do acrobatics until he began to get sick. He would land, vomit and then eat another stack of pancakes.

He repeated the process until he got used to the motion. If you are not up to such heroics, sip simple fluids to keep from becoming dehydrated if the problem continues for quite awhile and take a motion sickness drug at recommended intervals.

'Tax relief' in Texas big joke

AUSTIN — Jokes about test-tube babies dominated the humor scene of the legislative special session, which otherwise lacked much to smile about.

None of the jokes can be printed in a family newspaper, and few are worth repeating even orally. Some persons are saying the "tax relief" constitutional amendment is the session's biggest joke.

The amendment as a whole didn't please many legislators, but it had enough angles for enough interests to get sufficient support.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe is pleased, particularly with provisions for taxing agricultural land on productivity rather than real estate value. Some observers think Briscoe — one of the state's principal landowners and a protector of rural interests — called the session just to get that one change through.

It's rather strange, since Briscoe vocally opposes a state income tax, and taxing on productivity is a form of taxing based on income.

Gov. Briscoe is meeting with various interests to plan a campaign for voter approval of the amendment in November.

Luckily for supporters, someone realized late in the special session that calling the proposal "the special session amendment" wasn't a good idea. The new name is "the tax relief amendment."

One legislator told an Austin newspaper reporter the news media should tell voters how bad the amendment really is. The legislator said he had to vote for the amendment in the House — it was the politically smart thing to do.

Chances of the amendment's defeat appear slim at this point, however. The amendment probably has enough tax relief for enough voters to win. The senior citizen vote practically is assured by promises of special exemptions and a freeze on taxes.

Some voters may do as an East Texas legislator did on the last night of the session — hold their noses and vote aye.

One of the mysteries of the special session is why Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, supported the compromise amendment, Peveto's tax reform proposals came out of the session as abused as a Republican at a Democratic convention.

The amendment includes a flat prohibition against "statewide appraisal of real property for ad valorem tax purposes."

Some tax reform supporters say this will block any true reform in the future.

Peveto says the language isn't important and should eliminate fears that tax reform will create a state tax assessment monster.

That will help pass reform measures next year, he says.

Some cynical legislators think Peveto had a more personal reason for his action.

If Speaker Billy Clayton names Peveto chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee next year, they will smile knowingly.

Running around the State Capitol during the special session wasn't enough for Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado. About every other day Patman showed up at the University of Texas football stadium to jog three miles.

The senator got hooked on running last November after joining a cardio-vascular exercise class of UT's continuing education department.

Some other officials who run to keep in shape are Sens. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, and Bill Meir, D-Eules; Rep. Bob Close, D-Perryton; State Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong; Don Adams, Legal Counsel for Gov. Briscoe.

Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas, may miss the next Sunset Advisory Commission meeting because of a marathon in Chicago. But he won't even be out of breath.

In the Ceverha family it's wife Jan who jogs. The mother of two teenagers took to the track under peer pressure. Several of her co-workers in Dallas took up jogging and talked her into trying it.

Ceverha said the Chicago marathon is his wife's first big race, and he's going to be there to cheer her on — even if it means missing the big public hearing on the State Bar of Texas next month.

Weather

Most Texans to have hot, dry weather

Widely scattered thunderstorms were expected today in the mountains of Southwest Texas, but most Texans were to have more hot, dry weather.

Some widely scattered thunderstorms damped light amounts of rainfall on West Texas Wednesday night, but the activity ended during the night.

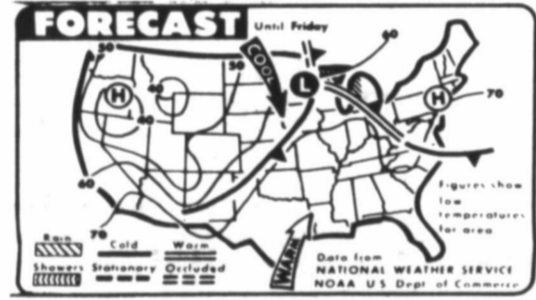

Some patchy low clouds formed early today over South Central Texas, but most of the state had clear to partly cloudy skies and temperatures in the 70s and lower 80s. Early morning temperature extremes ranged from 61 at Marfa to 82 at Galveston.

Some early morning readings included 74 at Amarillo, 77 at Wichita Falls, 80 at Dallas, 79 at Austin, 75 at Lufkin and Houston, 80 at Corpus Christi, Brownsville and Del Rio, 77 at San Angelo, 81 at El Paso and 78 at Lubbock.

Carter shows concern over dollar value

LONDON (AP) — The dollar strengthened today after President Carter's expression of "deep concern" over the U.S. currency's sharp decline on the world's foreign exchanges. The price of gold dipped.

West Germany, fearful a weak dollar will price its exports out of world markets, praised the Carter administration's interest in shoring up its currency.

Dealers cautioned, however, that the long-term future of the dollar is still far from bright. A Frankfurt trader said the money market is in a "holding pattern" pending firm indications of what action Carter might take to shore up the beleaguered currency.

The dollar edged up by almost one percent in 24 hours in Tokyo to close at 185.475 Japanese yen, up from 183.775 yen at Wednesday's close and the postwar record low close of 182.85 yen set Tuesday.

A Tokyo foreign exchange specialist said: "The dollar will still fluctuate in the short run but decline in the long run."

The firming trend continued when business got under way in Europe. But dealers described trading as "very nervous" and restrained.

"Nobody is quite sure what will happen next," said one London dealer. Another questioned how long the new strength of the U.S. currency will last if the Carter administration doesn't take "basic measures" to help the dollar.

Lubbock man shot to death in struggle

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A Lubbock man was shot to death late Wednesday after he fired his pistol at a police officer during a struggle, a police spokesman said.

Pronounced dead at the scene was Tommy Earl Davis, 27, according to Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy.

The police spokesman said officer Pat Hastings and several other officers responded to a disturbance call late Wednesday.

Hastings was attempting to take a pistol from the man, the spokesman said, at the time the man fired the pistol at Hastings and then whirled in the direction of the other officers.

Officer Richard Foster fired a single shot, hitting Davis in the chest, the spokesman said.

Hastings suffered powder burns on his hands, but did not require hospitalization, the spokesman said.

Dear Abby

Her Kids Shouldn't Be Seen or Heard!

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating Ethel for over a year. She's a beautiful 35-year-old divorcee with three children. The oldest is 10. I'm 44 and have never been married. The problem is Ethel's kids. One hour is about all I can take of them—then they start getting on my nerves. If it weren't for those kids, I'd grab Ethel in a minute because she's everything a man could want in a woman.

I suppose we could send her kids to camp in the summer, but how about the rest of the time? Boarding schools, maybe? But it will be years before the two youngest will be old enough to go.

Ethel is pushing for marriage, and I honestly hate to let her go. She says she's not going to wait around for me much longer. What should I do?

CHUCK

DEAR CHUCK: It's a package deal. If you can't stand Ethel's kids, say goodbye to Ethel. And look for a woman who (a) has no children, (b) has grown children, or (c) is unbearable.

DEAR ABBY: You were very generous to suggest to DESPERATE IN DENVER that the reason her husband had lost interest in sex could be due to a physical or psychological disorder. Nine times out of 10 it's neither. I've been through this myself and so have many other wives.

When a husband reaches 40, he gets bored and restless, so in order to prove that he's still a "man," he reassures himself by making it with other women.

My husband was always "too tired" for me. There was nothing wrong with him physically or psychologically, but he was having an affair with his best friend's wife, so he pretended that he had lost interest in sex. The truth was, he had lost interest in ME! With others he was very much alive and able to function.

I am interested to know how many other letters you received like this.

UNTOUCHED IN WENATCHEE

DEAR UNTOUCHED: The number of "other letters" amounted to an epidemic!

UNISEX DIVISION — The Women's Division of the upcoming fair is not for women only, advises people involved with preparations for the fair. Most of the items pictured here, which are possible fair entries, were made by men. Displaying the items are Joyce Soles, Teresa Adamson, Tammy Peugh, Mrs. L. Z. Rhodes and Mrs. Joe Mitchell.

Fair fever sets in Divisions widely varied

By CAROL HART

Getting both men and women involved in the Women's Division of the Howard County Fair is the goal of several people who are working to get this year's fair off the ground. The fair is slated for Sept. 18 through 23.

The title "Women's Division" is somewhat a misnomer, according to Janet Rogers, County Extension Agent. She explained that men are also eligible to enter any category in the division.

Categories which fall under the Women's Division are art, crafts and hobbies, textiles, baked goods, canning and antiques. There are also special categories in the above in Youth and Over 60 divisions.

"We don't get many men, and would like to have them very much," Mrs. L. Z. Rhodes, co-chairman of the crafts and hobbies division, said. "We would like to emphasize the fact that the men should enter the handicraft division," she said. "We want the women too," she added.

Mrs. Rhodes and Mrs. Joe Mitchell are in charge of the crafts and hobbies division. The division had 308 entries last year. "We hope we have more than that this year," Mrs. Rhodes said, adding that she was very pleased with last year's turnout.

Entries in the division vary. Mrs. Rhodes explained, saying "interest changes from year to year." A popular item in last year's fair was macrame, she said, with ceramics being another popular entry. Specialty areas in the division are dolls, toys, leather work, wood carving or burning, enamel on glass, plastics, ceramics, decoupage, macrame, gold leafing and memory books.

Others are cut bottles, purses, beads, miscellaneous, furniture, plastercraft, tole, mobiles, china painting, porcelain and needlepoint.

Individuals may enter one handcraft or a pair, Mrs. Rhodes said.

"There is a professional area judged separately from the amateurs, she added.

Mrs. Rogers said that the division is judged by professionals in handicrafts, and by area home economists.

Terry Patterson is chairman of the art division. This division covers oil, acrylic, water colors, graphics, mixed media and pastels. All work entered must be original, and will be judged by professional artists.

There will be a professional, non-professional and children's division in art this year, as well as a photography category.

Sue Robinson will head up the youth division this year. The division offers areas of entry much like the Women's Division, but is designed for youth through high school age who are unmarried.

In charge of the Textile division are Mrs. Bud Hughes and Mrs. B. A. Bunn. Entries in clothing, afghans, aprons, pillowcases, tea towels, tablecloths, potholders, scarves, quilts and quilt tops fall in this category.

Others falling in the category are pillows, miscellaneous, baby accessories, crocheted or knitted wearing apparel, needlepoint pictures and decorated shirts.

Items which are over 50 years old will be displayed in the antique division. The division will not be judged, but is just for exhibit.

The Over 60 division will include entries in crafts and hobbies, foods, and clothing for people over 60. People over 60 may have a choice of entering this division or the Women's Division.

Chairman in the baked goods division this year is Joyce Soles. In the canning division this year is Mrs. John Riffe. Bessie Love and Mrs. R. T. Newell are chairing the Over 60 division, and Mrs. Lois Ray is chairing the antique division.

Items for entry in the fair should be brought to the fair grounds from 7:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Sept. 18. Mrs. Rogers said that entries should be retrieved no earlier than Sept. 24.

A tabloid containing a condensed version of the rules for entry in various divisions of the fair will be published in the Herald around Sept. 3, Mrs. Rogers said.

Killing the chefs

Omelettes are stars of show

The definition of an omelette sounds easy enough — beaten eggs cooked in a skillet, often topped with a filling, then folded over in half. While it sounds simple, the making of a successful omelette often eludes even accomplished cooks.

There are those who attempt to build a mysterious air around an omelette — stressing the need for one particular pan, specific instructions and the like. A different kind of mysterious air surrounds omelettes in the comedy-mystery, "Someone is Killing the Great Chefs of Europe," premiering this fall from Warner Bros. Omelettes — mean money in the film for its star, George Segal, who believes he is on his way to becoming the world's fast food kind with a chain of omelette restaurants aptly named "H. Dumpty."

Segal's pre-occupation with making it big in the world of fabricated foods remains a constant source of aggravation for his ex-wife, Natasha O'Brien (played by actress Jacqueline Bisset), the world's greatest dessert chef. Segal must make the decision in favor of the bottom line and financial success, or to take the oath to use butter instead of margarine and only fresh ingredients in the hope of winning again the love of the beautiful Natasha.

The movie's mystery is that one by one the world's greatest chefs are being murdered in diabolical, yet fitting, ways. As the story progresses, it becomes clear that Natasha is being saved for dessert, the murderer's final victim.

While Segal thinks of omelettes in terms of dollars and cents, most people think of them as economical ways to add variety and appeal to menus. Basically, there are two types of omelettes, the French type most people are familiar with, prepared on top of the stove, and the puffy type that is started on top of the stove and finished in the oven.

Techniques vary, from using a fork to draw in the edges of the eggs as they cook to let the uncooked portion flow to the bottom of the pan, all the way to using no utensils, merely giving sharp pulls with the wrist to the pan, forcing the omelette to "fold itself" as it cooks.

Whatever the method that works best for you, here are some hints that will help smooth the way to successful omelette making. One basic step that must be followed is to use moderately high heat. This is one dish that abandons the general rule that eggs shouldn't be cooked over high heat. With an omelette, the goal is to have the bottom lightly browned, while the inside remains creamy and moist. For that reason, the pan should be heated with butter over high heat, and the heat should be turned to moderately high when the eggs are added.

Another reminder about the proper temperature — be certain to reheat the pan between omelettes. And, prepare them one at a time as larger portions are harder to handle and probably won't cook evenly.

If you have the eggs at room temperature, the chances are that you'll get more volume from them. Some suggest adding a small amount of cold water for each egg rather than milk, saying that milk makes the eggs tough as they cook. Don't overbeat the eggs, but don't underbeat them either. The best rule of thumb seems to be beating them briskly with a fork or whisk for about a half minute.

As for the butter, it should be heated until it bubbles and foams, but not until it browns. There are many pans that will work successfully.

Think ahead before moving in with guy

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and I'm in love with an older guy, 25! He says he loves me and wants to marry me and be the father of my kids.

He says we don't have to have sex till I'm ready, and he's never done anything to hurt me. We've talked about living together till I'm 18.

He gave me a pre-engagement ring about six weeks ago, but there's one problem. If my parents ever found out, I'd get killed. I'm seriously thinking about talking to them about it, but I don't want to lose my guy because of them. If they don't agree, I'll get pregnant so I will have to get married.

What should I do? — Tanya, Little Rock, Ark.

Tanya: It looks like you are going to live with your boyfriend one way or another. But before you do, give this a little thought. What would you do if you were pregnant and your boyfriend just ... happens to take off?

Dr. Wallace: My aunt has a very bad weight problem and everyone makes fun of her.

Now that I've gained a little bit of weight, my mother is always picking on me and she really hurts my feelings. I told her to stop but she only thinks I'm joking.

Please tell me how I can control my hurt feelings. I'm 12 years old. — S.H., Fredrickton, New Brunswick, Canada

S.H.: At 12 you should not be gaining a little bit of weight. Mother might not be polite in her desire to have you slim down, but her intention is good.

Lose those extra pounds and everybody will be happy.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 19 and engaged to a 22-year-old guy. When he was 15 he started smoking pot but quit when he was 19. During this time he dropped acid a couple of times.

I have never used drugs of any kind but wonder what effects, if any, his past drug involvement could have on our future children. I want a large family. — Marsha, Newark, Ohio

Marsha: I have no way of knowing (nor would anyone) the effects of your fiancé's drug habit on future children but chances are great, if you quoted the correct usage, there would be no effects.

Dr. Wallace: I am a cute 14-year-old girl and would you believe I have only one problem. I am very flat-chested. In fact I haven't even started using a training bra.

What can I do to help solve my "small" problem? Will eating help? — Anne, Vancouver, Wash.

Anne: Most girls continue developing physically until they are 17. Many develop even after that. So ... all you can do is wait.

Overeating will only get you larger in places you don't want to be large.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large self-addressed envelope to Dr. R. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Sales tax figures hint of prosperity

Big Spring's sales tax allocations continued to rise during July.
 The city's check totaled $30,346.56, as compared to $26,724.63 for the same period last year. This brings the total for the year so far to $484,088.42, while the same figure for 1977 was only $448,912.52.
 Coahoma was the only area to show an increase for the month. Payment for July came to $1,625.95, compared to $921.43 for the same month last year.

Colorado City received $4,546.10, as opposed to $5,318.62 for the month last year. Snyder's allocation dropped from $20,234.39 in 1977 to $18,020.91 for this year.
 Lamesa's payment was $10,503.29, just under the $10,618.75 payment for 1977. Stanton received nothing either period.
 State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Texas cities netted a record $236.4 million in sales tax revenues during the 1978 fiscal year, a 14.8 percent increase over the previous budget year.

Bullock said his office mailed checks totaling $20.1 million to 903 cities on their July share of the local option, one percent sales tax.
 The current state budget year ends August 31.
 The city sales tax is collected by merchants along with the state sales tax and rebated monthly to the cities in which it was collected by the Comptroller's Office.

The City of Houston recorded the biggest percentage increase in sales tax collections among the state's larger cities, with revenues up 18 percent for the year.
 Houston's total for the year was $49.3 million.
 Dallas recorded a 9 percent increase for the year, with collections of $27.7 million. San Antonio received $13.6 million, a 10 percent hike, and revenues for Fort Worth totaled $9.8 million up 13 percent.

Wives kept up to date

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Wives of company executives are the target of a program designed to inform the women of their husbands' specific responsibilities.
 The program, introduced by Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp., also tells wives of the company's products and its role in society.

Wives are kept up to date with regular mailings of financial statements, internal publications and employee news letters.
 The program also offers a variety of courses, involving speech training, crime prevention and recycling, to help prepare wives for community action work.

Brown told about delay

MIDLAND — Ruel Frank Brown of Midland has been notified of a second postponement of his sentencing in federal court here on income tax-related convictions and is unhappy about it.

Brown likened the U.S. Internal Revenue Service to the Nazi's Gestapo and the U.S. judicial system to Russia's brand of justice.

Brown, a 38-year-old former aircraft mechanic, said he was the victim of the biggest run-around he's ever seen.

The defendant was to have been sentenced Tuesday in Federal Court Judge John Wood Jr.'s court on three misdemeanor counts.

About 30 placard-carrying tax protesters demonstrated on Brown's staff outside the courthouse.

Brown faces a maximum of three years' imprisonment and a fine of $2,500 on the misdemeanor convictions. He was convicted July 6 on two counts of willful failure to supply tax information to the IRS and one count of supplying false information to his former employer, Continental Airlines. He was suspended without pay by Continental last July 24.

Of Memphis policemen and firemen

Teachers threaten to honor strike

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Public school teachers threatened today to honor the picket lines of striking police and firefighters set up outside schools on the first scheduled day of classes.
 Lorene Osborne, president of the 5,500-member Memphis Education Association, said teachers would not cross picket lines. The police union sent pickets to several schools Tuesday when teachers were to begin preparing for the new school term. The teachers waited until the pickets withdrew before reporting for duty.
 Neither police nor firefighters would say late Wednesday whether they planned more pickets at the schools today.

 City and labor leaders huddled behind closed doors Wednesday, and police union lawyer Russell X Thompson said some progress was made — "Yes, a little bit at a time."
 However, the president of the 60,000-member Memphis Labor Council, composed of more than 100 Memphis-area unions, won unanimous endorsement for a general strike in support of the striking police and firefighters. Council president Tommy Powell said his group would meet again Friday before calling any strike.

 City attorney Cliff Pierce asked Chancery Court Wednesday to find the two striking unions in contempt for refusing to obey back-to-work orders. Pierce said the unions could be fined a maximum of $50 a day and strikers could be sentenced to 10 days in jail if the court finds them in contempt. Hearings were scheduled for today on the police union and the firefighters' hearing was set for Friday.
 No problems were reported at Graceland Mansion where thousands of fans of the late Elvis Presley stood in 90-degree heat to view the grave of the singer, who died a year ago Wednesday.

 Some 1,100 policemen have been off the job since 11 p.m. last Thursday, shortly after rejecting what Mayor Wyeth Chandler called the city's final wage offer.
 About 1,400 firemen, who had struck for three days in early July, joined the police on the picket lines Monday morning, defying a Chancery Court's back-to-work order. Policemen also ignored a court order requiring them to return to duty or resign.

 Some 1,500 National Guardsmen, brought in Friday after the policemen struck, accompanied police supervisors on patrol and joined about 100 non-striking firemen Wednesday at the fire stations.
 Powell and Thompson met throughout the day with a federal mediator and representatives of Chandler.
 The meetings at ITC Hall concerned the unions' counter to Chandler's offer, to hold a public referendum on the unions' wage demands.

Carter's tuition aid bill stuck

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's plan to provide college tuition aid to middle-income families is stuck in the House Rules Committee with no assurance it will be cleared for floor action before Congress adjourns for the year.

"There just hasn't been any pressure to get the bill out," a Rules Committee aide said.

Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., whose Education and Labor Subcommittee produced the bill, wrote the Rules panel on July 21 and again on Wednesday to ask that the measure be sent to the floor, so action can be completed this year.

But the aide said the Rules Committee must deal with a heavy backlog of legislation to extend expiring government programs before it can handle such matters as the tuition bill.

This source, who asked not to be identified, refused to speculate on the chances the bill might die in committee. Only four work weeks remain before Congress is supposed to adjourn for the year on Oct. 7.

The Senate version of the bill, which would extend existing federal tuition grant and loan programs to middle-income students, passed Wednesday by a 68-28 margin.

That vote came less than a day after senators also approved a rival aid plan, which would allow a tax credit of up to $500 per student to help offset college tuition costs.

The House has approved a version of the tax credit, which the administration opposes. The president's aid plan has been held up in the Rules Committee since shortly after it was approved by the Education and Labor Committee in February.

Before any major bill can be considered by the House, it must be cleared by the Rules Committee.

Carter proposed the grant-loan program in an effort to head off passage of the tuition tax credit bill. He contends the tax bill is inequitable because, in contrast to his own program, it would provide benefits to all regardless of need.

The grants and loan bill passed by the Senate would provide federal tuition assistance to an estimated 1.2 million students.

The key part of the plan would make students from typical families in the $25,000-a-year income range eligible for more than 88 percent of the grants now go to students whose family incomes are less than $16,000.

'Recruitment Month' is under way at college

The Adult and Continuing Education Program at Howard College has declared August "Recruitment Month."

This means that during this month the staff along with many of the students are engaged in an effort to enroll Big Springers in their many Adult Education Courses.

During the week of Aug. 14-18, Big Spring businesses will be visited in an effort to encourage their employees to enroll in the many courses offered.

During the week of August 21-25, the campaign will be directed at recruiting students for the Veterans Administration Learning Center. This will only include those within the hospital that are eligible for the courses.

On Aug. 28-Sept. 1, the campaign will focus entirely on recruiting within the Big Spring State Hospital.

The city-wide door-to-door campaign will be Sept. 5-9. During this week the staff and students will be visiting people at their homes.

This will then conclude the campaign, the public is invited to visit the Howard College Learning Center during the month of August to talk to some of the instructors or to ask any questions concerning Adult and Continuing Education. For more information call 267-6311 Ext. 66.

Telethon needs volunteers

Anyone who can answer a telephone, relay messages, lick envelopes, pick up pledges or operate an adding machine is needed during the Muscular Dystrophy Telethon set for 8 p.m. Sept. 3 to 6 p.m. Sept. 4 on KWOM-TV, Monahans and KWAB-TV, Big Spring.

Those interested in volunteering can meet at 8 p.m. Monday at the Fina Truck Stop with telethon sponsors REACT.

REACT is a nationwide organization of over 1,500 groups and 100,000 volunteers who use their own Citizens Band Radio equipment to monitor emergency channel nine, provide local two-way radio communication in response to emergencies and perform other community services.

This is the first year that REACT has worked as sole sponsor of the telethon, although they have co-sponsored it in the past. They plan to use CB channel eight to take donation pick up requests during the telethon.

Volunteers are needed in four-hour or more shifts during the telethon to operate telephones and adding machines, pick up pledges, verify pledges, work on mail-outs, relay messages and any number of other tasks.

Prior to the telethon, volunteers could be used to distribute posters around Big Spring.

For more information, contact Mrs. Bill Wood, 263-3398, or Deloris Albert, 263-8161.

Donna Sue Hale crowned queen of Martin fair

STANTON — Donna Sue Hale was crowned Martin County Fair Queen Monday night and will take part in presentation of prizes at the three-day event which begins Thursday and lasts through Saturday night.

Runners up were Tamala Allred, Natalie Mitchell, Marcie Young and Belinda Martin.

The official opening of the fair will be at 6 p.m. Thursday with the queen cutting the ribbon along with Jaycees who sponsored the fair again this year.

Exhibits will already have been judged at that time in art, textiles and culinary shows. A square dance will be held at 8 p.m. on the slab north of the community center.

On Friday, judging of the flower show will be held at 10 a.m. and registration for "Anything Goes," a student game event, will be from 8-10 a.m.

Steers will be judged at 9 a.m. Saturday but will weigh in on Friday night. The judging of the ice cream freeze off and auction are at 7 and 8 p.m.

Street dances will be held both Friday and Saturday nights. The food show is at 4 p.m. Saturday and the Old Fiddlers Contest at 4:30 p.m. The new queen will pass out special ribbons at the beginning of the Old Fiddlers contest to some of the fair winners.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUG. 18, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is the best time to express your desires to those who can be helpful. Later a new series of conditions come into being by which you can easily gain your aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Seek those friends who can best assist you in gaining your wishes. Obtain the advice you need from a financial expert.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can now reach a goal in the outside world that has been difficult to gain in the past. Strive for increased happiness.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle new situations that arise early in the day in a most intelligent way. Your insight is good now, so use it wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you keep promises you have made with associates. Take time to study new projects that appeal to you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study your weekend plans and make new arrangements if they suit you better. Strive for increased harmony with family members.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find the right appliances that will help you to be more efficient at your work. Make sure your activities are well organized.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Consult business expert for advice you need. Reserve the evening for personal pleasure. Evening is fine for romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Give more attention to home affairs now than you have in the past. Take no chances with your money at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can easily gain the information you need early in the day and then reserve the evening for happiness with kin.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan how to put your monetary matters in better working order. If you go out socially, be sure to use tact and be poised.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Sidestep an opponent who could stand in your way of progress. Show more friendliness toward others and get excellent results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A good time to follow that intuitive prompting that keeps pecking away at you. Try to be less antagonistic toward others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to find a more up-to-date system for handling matters of great importance, so be sure to provide now for an extensive education that will fit your progeny for work in the highest circles. Much talent in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!
