FLOOD VICTIM — A drain pipe provides shelter for a small boy whose home was swamped by flood waters from the Yamuna River at Wazirabad, India. While many families went to relief camps about 10 miles north of Delhi, others set up housekeeping in pipes along roadsides. Hundreds of thousands have been driven from flooded villages since the annual summer monsoons hit India in June.

Seven killed, 19 injured

Helicopter plunges into holiday crowd

DERRY, Pa. (AP) — Twelve-year-old Mary Beth Allison was laughing as she dropped handfuls of pingpong balls numbered for prizes from a helicopter to a crowd attending a Labor Day church festival.

Moments later the helicopter — its blades turned into giant scythes — plunged into the crowd, injuring 19 people and killing seven, including Mary Beth's mother.

"Everybody was running for those balls," said Denise De-Cario of New Derry, who was mingling in the crowd. "The girl was laughing. Then there was blood everywhere."

Six people were killed instantly when the craft slammed into a concession stand at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in this southwestern Pennsylvania borough. Coroner Leo Bacha said Mary Allison, 46, died later at nearby Latrobe Hospital.

Hospital spokeswoman Andrea Guzik said 11 of the 19 people brought to the facility remained hospitalized today, including three in critical condition.

Eyewitnesses said the church parking lot was covered with blood and severed bodies after the three-seat helicopter, a Hughes 269-C, crashed.

"There were people lying all over the place, some with their heads off and arms off," said Helen Irwin, who saw the crash from outside the family tavern a half-block away.

"One man, his body was cut in half. It was just a terrible mess."

Latrobe police Sgt. Joseph Muchinski said about 500 people were at the festival on the last day of a three-day annual fundraiser.

Federal Aviation Administration inspector Dave Koutz said the blade tips of the helicopter were traveling at 350 to 400 mph.

"The pilot indicated the possibility that the engine might have failed. She did attempt to land," Kuntz said.

The pilot, Pam Nelson, and the two passengers, Miss Allison and her father, Leo, a church janitor, were uninjured, authorities said.

Mrs. Nelson's husband owns Nelson Helicopters, based at Allegheny

CRASH SCENE — Rescue workers work over one victim of a helicopter crash in Derry, Pa. Monday. The helicopter which was dropping ping pong balls with prizes in them, crashed into a Labor Day church carnival. At least seven died and another 19 were injured.

County Airport in West Mifflin, said Derry policeman Ronald Boien.

For several hours after the mishap, firemen scooped up body parts and placed them in plastic bags. They were taken to a temporary morgue established in a cafeteria inside St. Joseph's hall, where the Rev. John Wilt administered last rites.

The other dead were identified as Gertrude Gray, 54, and her daughter, Darlene, 15, of Latrobe; Irene Maloy, 55, Tim Deglau, 32, and Parece Smith, 14, all of Derry; and Lois Joy Weidenhoff, about 50, of Ford City.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Short about shorts

Q. Why can't the school district settle on white gym shorts? They seem to change the color every year at Goliad Junior High.

A. Superintendent Lynn Hise replied, "We encourage students to all have the same uniforms for their physical education classes, but we do not and cannot require that a certain uniform be worn."

Hise said that the colors had indeed changed last year at Goliad, but said that the change was well-publicized in advance, and that the school district had selected a uniform readily available from local merchants.

Offbeat: Book worm pays debt

Joyce Ellis, high school librarian, got a real shock when she opened the mail this morning.

A total of $30 cash fell out in her lap and the accompanying short letter said:

"Several years ago, I borrowed some books from the library which I never got around to returning. This money will cover the price of the books and includes a little interest.

Mrs. Ellis said, "Whoever you are out there — thank you."

Tops on TV: Fantastic flicks

It's a great night for television! ABC is "Re-Rooting" at 8 p.m., but Kunta Kinte will have to compete with Suzanne Somers in a premiere movie, "Happily Ever After," on CBS. At 9 p.m. you can watch a strange movie directed by John Cassavetes, "Minnie and Moskowitz," on Channel 11. Then they get you where you live at 10:30 p.m. on ABC with the Texas tale, "The Last Picture Show." And a final note for you late night viewers: Channel 11 has begun, this week, airing vintage "Maverick" shows at 11:30 p.m. Whew!

Outside: Cloudy

The forecast calls for partly cloudy weather today and Wednesday, with a slight chance of showers today and tonight. High today and Wednesday is predicted in the mid-80s, with a low in the low 60s tonight. Winds are from the southeast at 10 to 15 miles per hour. Chance of rain for the rest of today is 20 per cent.

County dads, two landowners will discuss wet problem

Usually a water dispute in West Texas means someone covets his neighbor's supply, but the Howard County Commissioners' Court and two local landowners will talk this afternoon about getting rid of the wet stuff.

County Attorney Harvey Hooser, along with the commissioners, will meet with Jerry Iden and R.V. Fryar in the commissioners' courtroom to discuss standing water on Rock House Road.

According to Hooser, the two have

Weekend death toll reaches 494

The Labor Day weekend highway death toll climbed to the 494 mark by midnight Monday — the end of the official counting period.

The National Safety Council estimated before the three-day weekend began that there would be 470 to 570 deaths. During a three-day non-holiday period at this time of the year, 430 traffic fatalities could be expected.

Last year, 469 motorists lost their lives during the Labor Day weekend. Ten years ago, there were 688 fatalities — the worst Labor Day holiday for traffic deaths on record.

Former president will speak here

Gerald Ford, former President of the United States, will definitely come to Big Spring Wednesday, Sept. 13, in the office of Bill Fisher, GOP Congressional candidates confirmed today.

Ford will arrive at the Big Spring Airport at 11:45 a.m. speak at a joint Civic Luncheon at the Dora Roberts Community Center and leave immediately afterward.

Additional details of the function will be announced by Mrs. Polly Mays and Mrs. Carol Hunter, coordinators of the local Fisher campaign.

Firm battles for fighter planes pact

Four to present package deal to Lockheed

Four Big Spring civic workers will fly to Ontario, Calif., Wednesday to reopen negotiations with Lockheed Aircraft Service Company for the rental of property in the Big Spring Industrial Park.

The four are City Manager Harry Nagel, City Attorney Jim Gregg, Harry Spannaus, manager of the Big Spring Industrial Park; and Clyde McMahon Sr., who has been busy the past several days working up a package deal for Lockheed.

Lockheed is bidding for a Department of Defense contract to modify the Navy F-4N fighter plane and any agreement worked out between the firm and the Big Spring delegation would, of course, be contingent upon Lockheed winning the contract.

Even now, Lockheed is preparing dikes which back up water across the road after every heavy rainfall, causing danger and damage for those who use the road.

"I informed both parties June 16, 1977," said Hooser, "that the county wanted the dikes cut or the owners would be held responsible for the resulting damage to county property."

"There hasn't been any rain to speak of since then, so it wasn't a problem. But Monday's rainfall backed right up across the road again."

The county's view is not likely to be entirely unopposed. Iden will probably be represented by attorney Lanny Hamby, and Fryar by R.H. Weaver.

The water apparently backs up approximately 1 1/2 miles west of old Angelo highway.

Rosalynn Carter calls on Texans to vote for Krueger

HOUSTON (AP)—Rosalynn Carter, in an effort to boost the hopes of Democratic congressional candidates in a state that frowns on her husband's energy policies, made a Labor Day tour of Texas' three largest cities Monday.

She stumped in U.S. House districts where Democrats are in trouble and called on voters to support Rep. Bob Krueger, who is attempting to unseat Republican Sen. John Tower in the November general election.

The first lady began her campaign in San Antonio, then moved to the Dallas area, where Republicans generally run strong, and then to Houston, a traditional GOP stronghold and the heart of the state's major oil and gas industry.

Following the same thought from place to place across Texas, Mrs. Carter said, "We need to return Democrats to Congress. We need the type of congressman who knows your need and will let us know what you need."

"We need leadership in Washington to meet the controversial issues ahead. And, Jimmy needs your prayers," she said.

About 3,000 persons greeted her at a Democratic Funfest at a Houston beer garden, where a country and western band strummed some Texas foot-stomping music, such as "Whiskey River" and "Hell yes, I'm Cheating."

Later she shook hands with most of the 250 persons at a reception on the campus of Rice University and then appeared at a rally of an estimated 1,000 campaign workers of Rep. Bob Gammage, D-Texas, on a parking lot in front of the Gammage headquarters.

Here, as in Dallas earlier, Mrs. Carter was met by several sign-waving, anti-abortion demonstrators. Some chanted, "Praise the pope."

Other posters protested the appointment of Sarah Weddington of Texas as the presidential advisor on women's affairs. Ms. Weddington argued before the U.S. Supreme Court for a woman's right to abortion.

Earlier, in the Dallas suburb of Garland, Mrs. Carter rode and walked in a two-mile long Labor Day parade in hot, sticky weather. More than 100,000 spectators lined the town's streets.

The first lady was accompanied by Krueger and Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Texas, a first term congressman who also is facing a tough re-election battle.

In San Antonio, the first lady was confronted by about 100 jeering demonstrators protesting the firings in July of striking city garbage men. More than 80 garbage collectors remain off the job.

While in San Antonio she said, "Jimmy Carter is a fighter. He doesn't give up and he doesn't give in when the interests of our people are at stake."

In Houston she said President Carter had cut the unemployment rate and trimmed the national budget deficit.

Mrs. Carter's visit in San Antonio was also on behalf of congressional candidate Nelson Wolff.

Earlier, former Texas Gov. John Connally had held a barbecue for Tom Loeffler, the Republican candidate.

ment contracts put up for bids.

In addition to Lockheed, Vought Industries of the Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex has made inquiries about the availability of facilities here.

Mayor Wade Choate said Vought may have scouted the Big Spring Industrial Park for reasons similar to Lockheed's — that of bidding for the Navy fighter plane contract.

Should one firm or the other gain the government contract and look to Big Spring as a site for operations, Big Spring would have to proceed with plans to construct a giant new hangar.

Estimated cost of the structure would be $1.8 million. The government would pledge $1 million of that in a grant made through the Economic Development Administration.

The Big Spring delegation will remain in California about two days negotiating with the Lockheed people.

The Big Spring Steering Committee, met with city officials and members of the Big Spring Industrial Committee at the city hall this morning to receive a copy of the terms proposed in the contract with Lockheed, all of which are open to negotiation.

In addition, those present heard a report on the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Housing Committee, which voted last Thursday to support the Steering Committee's plan to petition the General Services Administration plan to initially place only half of the 460 homes in the Capehart Addition on the market, withholding the remainder to see how the arrangement affects the local market.

'Flying machine' caught on cliff

A Pontiac station wagon, stolen Monday evening, hung like the sword of Damocles over Big Spring after the thieves attempted to fly the car off South Mountain.

The 1975 Pontiac Aste, valued at $800, belonged to Alfred C. Parker, 1503 E. 3rd. It was stolen between 10:30 and 11:30 p.m. Monday from 1500 Kentucky.

The car was spotted later by a resident of Fisher St., who reported the car "hanging off a cliff" above Highland South.

According to sheriff's deputies who recovered the vehicle, it "was pointed right at Birdwell Lane, but there weren't any houses under it."

The car apparently tipped off the flat area at the top of the slope, but caught its front end on a sizeable boulder, preventing the runaway from going over the cliff. Investigation of the incident is continuing.

HUNDREDS ARRESTED IN NICARAGUA

Marta Borges, right, is comforted by an unidentified friend after she broke down during the trial of her brother Monday in Jinotepe, Nicaragua. Her brother was arrested and charged with setting off contact bombs. The Nicaragua government said Sunday night it had arrested more than 200 opposition leaders on charges of planning demonstrations. More arrests are expected.

Six persons arrested

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Six people were arrested and two injured when a group of demonstrators threw rocks and bottles outside a struck Georgia-Pacific paper plant.

Police Chief Terry Mangan said the two-hour incident Monday began after several dozen people from a Labor Day Georgia-Pacific employees' picnic headed to the plant. Two locals of the Association of Western Pulp and Paper Workers, with about 825 members, struck the mill on July 10.

Firefighters make gesture

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Manchester's firefighters said they would keep calling in sick but would meet today with negotiators in an effort to reach a contract. About one-half of scheduled workers have failed to show for each shift since Saturday night.

Fire Commission member Joseph Higgins said Monday no major public safety problems had occurred as a result of the sick out, called by Local 856 of the International Association of Firefighters, who seek a reduction in their work week from 48 hours to 42 hours and a 13 percent salary increase.

Abducted woman returned

ATLANTA (AP) — A young Florida woman who said she was abducted for 14 hours during the Labor Day weekend has been reunited with her husband and child in Cleveland, Tenn., authorities said. The abductors were still at large.

Wayne and Denise Mead and their 22-month-old daughter had been picked up by two men in a van as they hitchhiked near Atlanta early Sunday, she said, and her husband was later forced at gunpoint to leave with their daughter. She was bound, blindfolded, but otherwise unharmed and released near here Monday.

Six bombings unsolved

SPEEDWAY, Ind. (AP) — Six Labor Day weekend bombings that left $10,000 in property damage in this central Indiana town remain unsolved, authorities say. No injuries resulted from the bombs, and no claims of responsibility for them have been received.

Five of the six blasts, which were all in open areas, were from gunpowder-packed beverage containers, police said, adding they believe it may be a prankster's work.

Time capsule has addition

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Songwriter Sammy "Three Coins in a Fountain" Cahn and President Carter have each paid $3 to include memorabilia in a 50-year time capsule to be buried next month, says the California Parks Foundation.

Cahn sent a tape recording of his hits and Carter mailed a copy of his inaugural address.

Sixth tropical storm no threat to land area

MIAMI (AP) — Flossie, the sixth tropical storm of the Atlantic hurricane season, was about 1,100 miles east of the Lesser Antilles today and packing 55 mph gales, forecasters said.

The National Hurricane Center said there was no threat to any land areas from the storm, which was expected to assume a west-northwesterly course.

Meanwhile, Hurricane Ella, which has caused no damage during its several days duration, continued to weaken as it moved over the cold waters of the North Atlantic.

At midnight, Ella's center had passed near Cape Race, Newfoundland, and its highest winds had diminished from 140 mph to 60 mph.

Texan convicted of kidnapping

MARSHALL, Mo. (AP) — Louis Marion Holloway, 19, of Houston, Texas, one of three men charged in connection with the Christmas weekend abduction of a Moberly woman has been convicted of kidnapping.

Holloway was found guilty of the charge Friday by a Saline County Circuit Court jury.

Light showers dot Big Spring

A light shower fell in the eastern section of Big Spring shortly after noon Monday, increasing in the area southeast of town.

The rain measured .6 in the golf course area and there was a heavy shower on South 87 about 14 miles out.

No rain fell in the western portion of the city. Lightning accompanied the showers.

For the record

A story in Monday's Herald listed the date of the annual Malone-Hogan Clinic and Hospital picnic as Friday. The picnic will be held Saturday.

The Herald regrets any inconvenience caused by the error.

Two Big Springers nominated to U.S. Air Force Academy

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Omar Burleson announces his appointment of Randolph Francis Stukel of 2604 Clanton Street, and James Kevin McLaughlin of 803 W. 14th Street, both of Big Spring, to a slate of nominees to the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., for admission in July 1979.

The Academy will now examine and appraise the nominees and select a Principal for admission, with qualified Alternates. Alternates may be given further consideration, depending upon available vacancies.

Dorothy Garrett Coliseum open house will be delayed

Open house at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum will be delayed until final approval of the building, Dr. Charles Hays, college president, said today.

"We do not want to accept the building until leaks have been repaired and other minor items corrected. And we do not want to hold any activity in the facility until final acceptance," Dr. Hays stated.

A new opening date will be scheduled by the board trustees at its next regular meeting.

Lamesa Seven indictments returned in Lamesa

LAMESA — A Dawson County Grand Jury handed down seven indictments at the end of the February term last week.

A new grand jury will be seated as the Sept. term begins Sept. 11.

Matthew Ross, 27, was indicted for indecency with a child. He was arrested Aug. 31 and is free on a $2,000 bond.

Michael R. Lee was indicted for burglary in connection with a July 24 burglary. He is free on $1,500 bond.

June Hogg was indicted on charges of theft by check in connection with March 2 and March 24 incident and is also out on a $1,000 bond.

F.E. Van Steenburgh was indicted for hindering secured investors. David W. Davidson of Ackerly was indicted for theft by check on May 24 and is also out on $1,000 bond.

D.C. Sharp was indicted for theft by check in connection with an incident July 20 when he purchased a tractor and front loader with a bad check. He is out on $1,000 bail.

Pretty baby, this might interest you

LAMESA — "You must have been a beautiful baby." If you were ever a winner in the annual Pretty Baby Contest at the Dawson County Fair, you were undoubtedly a beautiful baby.

There will be a contest again this year on Sept. 15 with McCall Drug as the sponsor. The Lamesa Cotton Growers, Inc. award a first prize in each category.

The contest is open to the surrounding seven counties and Howard County pretty babies are eligible.

The nine categories include Girls: Class 1, 0-6 months; Class 2, 6-12 months; Class 3, 1-2 years and Class 4, 2-3 years. Classes 5-8 are the same age groups for boys. There is also a special category for twins.

To enter, call Area Code 806, 872-7878 or A.C. 806, 462-7399 before Sept. 12.

Speed bumps to help enforce existing law

By MARJ CARPENTER

City officials, in an attempt to enforce the laws they already have in the city park, have installed speed bumps and a one-way zone in Comanche Trail Park.

Speeding through the park had become an increasing problem and "there weren't enough officers to be assigned to the park area to keep it enforced at all times," according to police officials.

The speed bumps are similar to those at the Big Spring State Hospital complex, only smaller. Some citizens who go to the park to play golf are upset by the speed bumps.

Parks board members decided it was the method to slow down speeding with the least enforcement necessary.

Police officials emphasize, "We will still have officers in the park but if they are not having to spend all of their time giving speeding tickets to persons racing through the parks, it will leave them free for other violations of the law."

One area in the center of the park, near the Old Settler's Pavilion has been blocked off with steel cables.

"The roads in the park were built in the 30s when cars were smaller and slower. It never was meant to be a race track," a park committee member added.

A one-way street east has been marked in the area between the playground and the swimming pool. "This is the area where a lot of children may be playing," Paul Feazelle, assistant city manager said today.

He added, "We may eventually tear out the streets that are now cabled off and sod them as part of the park. However, we are waiting to see how it works out. The speed bumps have already gone a long way toward stopping racing through the area."

Police beat Beer, cash, shoes stolen

Burglars were busy again in Big Spring.

Intruders stole a 20-gauge shotgun, two cases of beer, $70 cash from the register and two pairs of size-10 tennis shoes from the Figure Seven Tennis Center, 100 Whipkey, where tennis pro Barry Stephens resides. Loss to Stephens and the center was estimated at $307.

Burglars also hit the home of Dora Armendariz, 603 N. Lancaster, sometime between 8 p.m. Sunday and 3 a.m. Monday. After breaking in through an east window of the home, the intruders made off with three gold watches, a set of encyclopedias, a pair of shoes, an assortment of boys and men's clothing, a purse, $55 in cash, two wallets and two gold rings.

Total loss was estimated at $520.

A gold and diamond ring was stolen from a vase in the home of Steve Hannabass, 1507 Avion, sometime between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday. The ring was valued at $354.

Two Big Springers' cars were hit by flying bullets, 11:15 p.m. Monday, in the lot of the Northrest Apartments. Lester J. Stevens, 1001 N.W. 4th, heard shots, and, examining his car, found two bullet holes in the door.

Damage was estimated at $100.

Ann Sanders, Post Office Box 191, heard shots at the same time, same place, and found a bullet hole just below the rear-view mirror in her car. Cost of damage has not been estimated.

Only one mishap was reported during the Labor Day holiday. A vehicle driven by William A. Burgess, Sterling City Route, struck a utility pole just outside the front gate of the Big Spring Industrial Park, 2:15 a.m. Monday.

Deaths

Services for W.C. (Clay) Garver, Sr., 69, who died at 12:30 p.m. Sunday in a local hospital after a sudden illness, are at 4:30 p.m. today in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with Elder Ben Howze, Primitive Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial is in Mount Olive Memorial Park.

Pallbearers are W.C. Garver, Jr., Mark Crawford, Everett Horn, Howard Thames, Dale Fryar, and Dewey Byers.

Mrs. Hollis takes tax position

WESTBROOK — Mrs. Alvah Ruth Hollis is the tax assessor-collector for Westbrook School.

The new tax office is under construction and will open Oct. 1.

The tax office and position became necessary when state law abolished the office of county superintendent effective Jan. 1.

The district voted unanimously to become an independent school district.

Mrs. Hollis has lived in Westbrook two years and had experience working in the tax office in Lamesa.

CITY WILL GET OUT OF AMBULANCE BUSINESS AT MIDNIGHT WEDNESDAY

The city's brief venture into the ambulance business will be over at midnight Wednesday, according to Harry Nagel, city manager.

He said that starting at that time, the new Big Spring Ambulance service will take over the former Alert facilities. The firm may be reached by calling 263-8111.

The service is under new ownership, but may be reached through the Alert number.

Nagel thanked the local firemen for their "excellent work in serving during the interim period."

Ohio tomato farmers call for investigation of migrant funds

CAREY, Ohio (AP) — As striking migrant laborers march toward Columbus, a group of Ohio tomato farmers say it wants a congressional investigation into whether federal money is being used to support the migrants' work stoppage.

Some 140 members of the Farm Labor Organizing Committee marched about 20 miles Monday before stopping for their first night at a Roman Catholic shrine in this northwest Ohio town. The call for an investigation of La Raza Unida of Ohio, a social action agency, came from disgruntled farmers in nearby Leipsic, who staged a 110-car caravan Monday opposing the organizing committee. La Raza is a federally funded agency that provides services to migrants.

The small group made no signs of leaving the area after a midnight deadline of an eviction order passed. The trek to Columbus was being led by Baldemar Velasquez, president and founder of the 11-year-old Toledo-based strike group. The decision to march marked the beginning of the second phase of the Ohio migrant movement, Velasquez said. After the tomato-picking season ends, strike organizers plan trips to the migrants' homes in Texas and Florida to urge a boycott of Ohio by migrant labor next year, he said.

Atheist O'Hair ejected from district courtroom

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Atheist leader Madalyn Murray O'Hair was asked to leave a state district courtroom today after she objected to taking a juror's oath that includes, "So help me, God."

She said she intended to file a lawsuit alleging her civil rights were violated by being asked to swear in the name of a God in whom she does not believe.

Judge Hume Cofer told Mrs. O'Hair he would not allow her to disrupt jury selection. When she refused to sit down, he ordered a bailiff to escort her from the room.

Mrs. O'Hair made her objection known by handing Cofer a written statement outlining her opposition to the standard juror's oath. She said he told her, "You have objections which are not as strong as you believe they are. You will go and sit down and keep quiet and you will not do anything disruptive."

Mrs. O'Hair quietly left in the company of the bailiff. "I am objecting to the ritual of swearing in with the words, 'So help me, God,'" Mrs. O'Hair said after leaving the courtroom. "American atheists have just as many rights as any other American." Cofer asked her to leave when she refused to rejoin the other prospective jurors and take the oath.

Besides representation in contract talks, the strikers seek raises of 10 cents per 30-pound hamper of picked tomatoes and an hourly minimum wage of $3.25. They now make about 25 cents per hamper and $2.65 an hour.

Own half of uranium reserves

Indians more competitive in negotiations

NEW YORK (AP) — The Indians who own half the U.S. uranium reserves and billion of dollars in other energy resources are becoming vastly better businessmen than their forbears — the Manhattan who lost their island home for just $24 in trinkets.

Though a source of pride to the Indians, their new financial approach is seen differently by businesses that deal with them.

"They're afraid they're going to get beaten, so they drive the hardest bargain they can," said John LaGrange of Bear Creek Mining Co. in Spokane, Wash.

"But," LaGrange added, "in many cases they drive such a hard bargain they drive themselves out of the market."

Ed Gabriel, executive director of the Council of Energy Resource Tribes, said of the Indians' bargaining stance: "In all cases that I know of, they're going competitive in the bidding and they're going very rough on the negotiations. I'm very proud of them."

The energy council, formed in 1975 by 25 tribes representing almost one-third of the nation's Indians, provides a voice in Washington and gives technical help in managing Indian energy resources.

Those resources are considerable. Indian tribes occupy only 4 percent of the nation's land but own half the uranium reserves, 16 percent of the coal areas and 4 percent of the natural gas and oil fields, plus acres of forests and mineral deposits.

"They're energy-rich," says Gabriel. "You're talking about 250,000 people owning billions and billions of tons of coal, billions of tons of uranium, and 4 percent of the oil and gas."

Gabriel puts the worth of Indian land "definitely in the billions" and says it could greatly improve the Indians' living standards.

Indians represented by the tribal energy council now earn about $1,400 per capita annually, and Peter McDonald, the Navajo who is chairman of the energy council, says getting the most for their resources is a necessity for the Indians.

"Unless we manage our resources properly now, we will not have them in 20 or 30 years," he said. "I think it will mean our survival and a future for our children."

The Indians blame the government for some past business problems. Gabriel says, for example: "The government, acting as a trustee through the Bureau of Indian Affairs, has done a pretty sloppy job."

BIA officials admit that bad judgment or poor advice soured many leases and say they now scrutinize leases more carefully — while turning over more of the responsibility to the Indians.

The Indians do not view all past agreements unfavorably — many timberland leases with paper firms have worked out well, for example.

In cases where the Indians see past wrongs, they are using the law to try to right them. They are trying to renegotiate more favorable deals on many BIA-signed contracts and have had a measure of success.

McDonald recently led a successful fight for renegotiation of his Arizona tribe's coal lease with El Paso Natural Gas and Consolidation Coal. The lease, signed in the mid-1960s, gave the Navajos a royalty of 15 cents a ton, included few environmental safeguards and did not mention who would reclaim land destroyed by strip-mining.

The tribe wanted more "because the lease that existed was unconscionable," McDonald said. The new arrangement ties the royalty to the consumer price of coal, which has risen considerably since the first lease, and makes environmental and reclamation allowances.

It means a total of $250 million over the next 25 years, which McDonald would like to go into education and long-term economic development. And the tribe is seeking renegotiation of other contracts involving coal and uranium.

Several other recent cases indicate how seriously Indians are taking what they view as threats to their resources.

—In Maine, in perhaps the most celebrated case, a group of tribes is demanding 12.5 million acres they claim was unjustly taken from them — land including large forests and a major copper and zinc deposit.

—In Washington state, the Colville Indians are seeking other development partners after breaking off negotiations with a unit of Kennecott Copper Co. over development of a large deposit of minerals.

Consumers learn to band together

A growing number of consumers are learning that it pays to organize and the government is trying to help buyers band together for their rights.

No one knows how many consumer groups — public and private — have been formed in recent years. There are several hundred state and local consumer units alone. The 11-year-old Consumer Federation of America, one of the nation's largest consumer organizations, has 215 member groups.

According to the Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, one of the first steps to take is incorporation. "The act of incorporation often gives a group an important psychological benefit, a sense of continuity."

Consumer organizations usually apply for incorporation under Section 501 of the Internal Revenue Code; that's the section for non-profit groups. They generally apply for C-3 or C-4 status, depending on how much lobbying they want to do. Lobbying by C-3 groups is more restricted and contributions to these groups are tax deductible.

An Internal Revenue Service booklet, "How to Apply for Recognition of Exemption for an Organization," Publication 557, explains the forms and procedures to follow to gain non-profit status. The booklet costs 40 cents and is available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402.

Crippled woman not sure what's next

MIAMI (AP) — Suzanne Bohannon left a Florida mental hospital five months ago, ready for a new life after 23 years in the wrong place.

But being free is not easy for a crippled 39-year-old who grew to maturity in a mental institution. The Rehabilitation Center at Jackson Memorial Hospital provided a temporary home, but now center officials say it is time for Miss Bohannon to go.

But officials and Miss Bohannon are not sure what is next.

"We have places for people who are very independent, and for people who are very dependent," says Isilia Rosado, the center social worker who is trying to find a home for Miss Bohannon. "But we don't have many places for people who are someplace in between."

Born with a spinal tumor that left her legs withered, Suzanne Bohannon was not wanted by her parents, and she wound up in a mental hospital.

She tried to tell attendants she was not crazy. "A few times I got laughed at," she says. "Other times I got extra Thorazine ... I was drugged most of the time."

Books provided a sanctuary. "I read, read, read," she says. "I think reading saved my sanity, partially. That and my faith in God." Books are stacked about her hospital bed now. A statue of the Madonna sits nearby.

Freed in early April, Miss Bohannon found new life at the county-run Jackson Center.

She dropped Suzanne, and came to be called by her middle name — Gloria. She took field trips with other patients, sipped cold beer, saw harbor lights from a cruise ship and squealed through "Jaws II."

And there was daily physical therapy, which she says she loves, but some hospital workers say she often skips. "She was using the hospital as a hotel," said one official who declined to be named.

And three weeks ago a hospital committee told her she no longer qualified for Medicare benefits.

Fund-raising is another necessary step on the road to organization. Grants awarded by public and private foundations are an important source of money, but they are often overlooked by people who lack experience in the field. To find out where the money is, HEW suggests subscribing to "The Grantsmanship Center News," published six times a year by Grantsmanship Center, 1015 Olympic Boulevard, Los Angeles, California, 90015. The annual fee is $15.

Consumer groups also are eligible for federal funds under the Consumers' Education Program, established in 1972. Congress provided $4 million for program grants in fiscal 1978. Further information is available from Director, Office of Consumers' Education, U.S. Office of Education, Washington, D.C., 20202.

Any new organization faces some pitfalls and you can avoid trouble by following a few basic rules. Leaders of well-established consumer groups, polled by HEW, offer these do's and don't's.

—DO build a dues-paying membership. The fees need not be large, but it is important to establish your group as being worth an investment.

—DO publish a newsletter. A simple mimeographed sheet is enough to keep members in touch with what's happening.

—DON'T speak out on issues without preparation. One slip can undo months of work by causing a loss of credibility.

—DO involve new members in projects right after they have joined. Don't let them lose their enthusiasm.

Ford Company assembles television show

DETROIT (AP) — Ethel Merman can belt out a song, but can she make America forget about the Ford Pinto fuel tank?

The singer is part of a star-studded cast assembled by Ford Motor Co. for a multimillion-dollar television special commemorating a 75th anniversary year that so far has been bittersweet.

It has been a year of sparkling performance in the marketplace for Ford — and of unprecedented attacks.

Strictly speaking, the network variety show — to be aired Oct. 5 on CBS — has nothing to do with the avalanche of difficulties that has recently struck the No. 2 automaker.

But Ford aches for some upbeat music — perhaps Miss Merman's "On With The Show" — as the company launches its 1979 models, which will be officially introduced the day after the TV show.

Industry analysts say Ford is big and rich enough to weather its latest difficulties. But some warn the company will be hardpressed to keep its current sales momentum if troubles continue to pile up.

The anniversary year has featured: —The recall of about 1.5 million 1971-76 Pintos and 1975-76 Mercury Bobcats to fix an allegedly dangerous fuel tank. While Ford trumpeted its contributions to the world since 1903, Pinto owners began driving around with warning signs on the backs of their cars.

—More than 4 million recalled vehicles and the threat of the biggest recall in automotive history — 9 million Fords — because the automatic transmission might inadvertently slip from park into reverse. Such a recall could dwarf the Pinto case in cost.

The highly publicized firing of President Lee Iacocca by Chairman Henry Ford II. It split the board of directors, angered some Ford dealers and other Iacocca loyalists and fouled up the unveiling of the 1979 Mustang four days later.

—A federal grand jury investigation into an alleged Ford bribe to Indonesian officials in return for a Ford contract, also denied.

—A bitter divorce fight between Henry and his estranged second wife, Cristina, highlighted by a public dispute between the couple over his sale of family furniture at a New York auction.

American businessman on trial in Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — American businessman Francis J. Crawford went on trial today on Soviet charges of currency speculation. Sources close to the case said the Soviet government was eager to get the trial over with quickly and swap Crawford for two Soviet U.N. employees accused of spying in the United States.

American oil magnate Armand Hammer, after a recent meeting with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, said he believed Crawford would get a light sentence and then be allowed to leave the country. Other sources said this was a "good analysis" of the situation.

Crawford, the Moscow representative of International Harvester, was arrested June 12, apparently in retaliation for the arrest of the two alleged Soviet spies. Denying that he had broken any Soviet laws, Crawford said he was a "pawn in a political chess game."

The two Russians are scheduled to go on trial in Newark, N.J. on Sept. 12. In contrast to the trials of Soviet dissidents, four Western reporters were admitted to the courtroom today along with Crawford's American fiancée, Virginia Olbrish of the U.S. Embassy staff; his American legal adviser, Peter Maggs; U.S. consular official Robert W.

Pringle and U.S. commercial attache Stephen Sind.

Miss Olbrish, a secretary in the embassy commercial office, said Crawford, a 37-year-old native of Mobile, Ala., is "worn out" by weeks of frequent interrogation that preceded the trial.

Crawford also is accused of illegally purchasing six samovars.

He is being tried with three Russians accused of major currency manipulations: Vladimir Kiselev, his seamstress wife, Ludmila, and a cashier at a souvenir shop for foreigners, Alla Solovoyov.

Although Crawford is liable to a maximum sentence of eight years if convicted, Kiselev could get the death penalty.

Crawford has said he knew the Kiselevs only slightly after meeting them through a summer worker in his office. He said he gave Mrs. Kiselev some small sewing jobs to do and paid her with inexpensive Western goods.

The three Russians were expected to plead guilty to large-scale dealings in currency and other contraband with foreigners in Moscow. At least four businessmen and seven other foreigners linked to the Kiselevs were quietly expelled or told to leave the country recently, informed sources say.

Carter making no predictions

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Carter prepared a quiet welcome today for his partners in a Mideast summit conference, pressing for compromise but admitting the dangers in disagreement and making no predictions.

"We will do the best we can," Carter pledged, although he noted the summit issues are complex and the differences between his guests — Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt — are deep.

Sadat was arriving first, being formally greeted at an air base near Washington by Vice President Walter Mondale and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance before proceeding by helicopter to this presidential hide-away.

Begin was not due at Camp David until late this afternoon, after getting a similar welcome by Mondale and Vance at Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

Before leaving the White House Monday for Camp David, Carter said the summit comes at a time "when the political consequences of failure might be very severe and when the prospects for complete success are very remote."

Sadat sounded the same theme, saying before leaving for the summit, "Failure at Camp David means an endless conflict."

Carter prayed at a Baptist Sunday school session Sunday: "Let every heart involved be cleansed of selfishness and personal pride. Let us all turn to thee, God our father, for true guidance, wisdom, forgiveness of others in the search for common ground."

Issues long debated — and sometimes fought over — include Israeli occupation of land seized during the 1967 Mideast war and the fate of 1.1 million Palestinians living on the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Having promised Sadat and Begin a secluded setting for private talks without a fixed time limit, the U.S. president said before boarding a helicopter for the 30-minute flight here: "Compromises will be mandatory. Without them no progress can be expected. Flexibility will be the essence of our hopes."

Carter studied summit briefing books at Camp David in advance of the arrival of his guests, and he played a round of tennis Monday afternoon. He brought along a trout rod but has yet to use it.

Mrs. Carter, who was campaigning for Democratic candidates in Texas on Monday, was expected to join her husband here by Tuesday evening. Mrs. Begin is expected Thursday, but Mrs. Sadat is remaining in Egypt.

Hostility rises due to series, study shows

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The 1977 television series "Roots" made American blacks proud of their heritage, but it also increased their resentment toward whites, according to two Texas AM University sociologists.

After 15 months of interviewing black women in rural East Texas, Bill Stanley and Dr. William Kuvlesky said the series created a link between black cultures of today and yesterday. Stanley also said there was temporary negative reaction against whites.

The university's "Roots" study was part of a larger project initiated in 1970 to investigate changes in blacks' attitudes toward interracial relations with whites residing in the same area.

The interviews were conducted in Shelby County. The researchers said three out of four people interviewed said the series brought on increased feelings of racial pride. And a little more than half said "Roots" caused them to have more negative feelings toward whites.

Did officers break the law?

The dialogue established by the Memphis police in the recent labor disputes that have enveloped the department and city officials makes one wonder if the police ever took a pledge to uphold the law as it is written or whether they apply the law only as they interpret it and when they feel like it.

Both the police and the firefighters in the Tennessee city exposed a distressing loss of their sense of personal responsibility by participating in illegal strikes in defiance of court orders to get back to work.

INvariably, this is what happens when public employees are vested with the privilege of collective bargaining. State and federal legislative bodies can pass all the "no strike" laws they want, but union mob psychology negates their effect.

When workers in the public sector, especially policemen and firemen, put their own wage demands ahead of the public safety and welfare, it is time to replace them. The police and firemen took solemn oaths to shoulder the responsibility of protecting human lives before they were sworn in.

National guardsmen in Tennessee were called to duty when the police walked off the job recently, just as they had been when Memphis firemen staged a three-day strike in July. The firemen quickly rallied behind the police when the peace officers decided to remain off the job and carry their fight to the people.

In each instance, the Guardsmen found themselves not only trying to do the strikers' job for them but even having to deal with the strikers as the lawbreakers they are, on occasions.

Memphis Mayor Wyeth Chandler, who seemed to respond well to the challenge he was faced with in the crisis, issued an ultimatum for the police to return to work or face suspension. Chandler, however, may have been hamstrung by a vacillating council behind him.

THE CITY HAD offered a $104 a month across-the-board raise to the patrolman's pay to $1,244. In addition, the officers were told they could expect two other raises within a period of 15 months. They turned down the proposals.

When an individual takes a job, he should know what the salary, benefits and working conditions are. If it is a job vital to the public health and safety, he shirks his responsibility if he walks off in concert with fellow employees and leaves the public vulnerable and unprotected.

In San Antonio recently, city officials gained the respect and admiration of the nation by summarily firing sanitation workers who defiantly violated state laws by going out on strike.

There should be no other way to deal with law breakers. The Memphis police didn't exactly set themselves up as models for dissidents in other business when they behaved as they did when the talks didn't go to suit them.

Some changes

Around the rim

Marie Homeyer

After hearing about the changes that were going to be made and reading about the "NEW BOGARTS" in the advertisements, I was surprised to discover how little changes had really been made.

My first impression after walking in the door Thursday night, the first night after the new management had taken over, was that nothing had changed. The dance floor was still the same, the furniture was the same, and the wallpaper hadn't changed and the carpet looked the same.

with the sound quality.

But I was not so pleased with the selection of music. They were trying to put too much variety into the night. They should play either all disco or all country. Not two of this, two of that, then two of another. The method they used before was better — a special night for country-western music and the rest of the time disco music. That way people would not be subject to an overdose of music that they didn't come to hear.

THE LOUNGE was the only part that looked somewhat different. More pool tables have been added, less wicker furniture is apparent and new wallpaper has been hung.

The best expression that I have heard for the change was: "Bogart's has gone mild."

I would like to take the time now to wish our departing sports editor good luck at his new job. Although he has given my name in vain in his columns, taken me constant kidding about being an Aggie and pulled various pranks on me, I think he will make an excellent sports information director. He's a great person and a good writer. I'll miss him. Good luck Danny.

Great grabber

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Three years ago, we nominated Nicaragua's embattled Anastasio Somoza as "the world's greediest ruler." We concluded from the available evidence that he was "the most grasping of the world's great grabbers."

We described the Somoza family's extensive fortune in "farms, factories, banks, newspapers, radio-TV stations, ships, planes and yachts." Their real estate portfolio, we revealed, includes "coffee, cacao, tobacco, banana, sugar cane and pineapple plantations; corn, bean, rice, sorghum, sesame, fruit and vegetable farms; and vast grazing land for cattle."

OUR INFORMATION came from Nicaraguan documents, which we cross-checked against U.S. studies. We had access, we wrote, to secret economic profiles of Somoza, which had been compiled by the U.S. government.

Our articles created an international furor, which still hasn't died down. Somoza's emboldened critics still cite our columns as they demonstrate against him in Managua.

We worked closely with the brave journalist Pedro Chamorro, who was gunned down on Jan. 10 for daring to criticize Somoza. Chamorro's assassination precipitated the first serious challenge to the family dictatorship since the U.S. Marines installed his father in power in 1937.

Somoza was furious over our economic expose. He sent word to us through intermediaries that we were picking on his family and thus were "going too far." His minions in this country began to raise a howl over the articles.

Leading the protest was his farcical ambassador and brother-in-law, Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa, who dispatched a five-page denunciation to our editors. Our charges were largely a "litany of distortions," he said.

He was most upset that the U.S. government was keeping economic profiles on Somoza. This "curious statement," he wrote, could "raise an issue of potential concern to other foreign missions in Washington and elsewhere."

THE STATE DEPARTMENT felt compelled to issue an equivocation. "Neither the Department of State nor any other agency of the United States government," a spokesman assured the Nicaraguan ambassador, "provided official documents or any classified information" to us.

We are now free to quote from the classified documents that we could only cite three years ago. A Sept. 1973 airmail from the U.S. embassy in Managua, for example, described the Somoza family as "the wealthiest in the country and perhaps Central America."

Estimates of their wealth, states the confidential document, "range from thirty million to several hundred million dollars." The report continues:

"Family investments in Nicaragua... include major holdings in agriculture, manufacturing, fishing, food processing, transportation, communications, retailing, banking, insurance and real estate. Most recently, General Anastasio Somoza... has formed a joint-venture construction company with U.S. investor, D.K. Ludwig."

A 1967 document, stamped "Confidential," suggested that "President Somoza's great influence has been used in a heavy-handed way to advance his own business interest in the mining field."

But perhaps most interesting is a 17-page confidential airmail from the U.S. embassy dated Aug. 10, 1963. Although the document is laden with qualifiers and its information is now 15 years old, it is extraordinarily revealing.

"The Somozas own, control or have a voice in a wide variety of economic assets within Nicaragua," the document reveals, "the value of which the embassy estimates to be approximately US $38,810,929." They "also have an undetermined quantity of assets abroad, estimated to be worth between $15 (million) and $20 million. All these figures," the embassy added, "are deliberately conservative."

The State Department's secret economic profiles, in short, show that the Somozas owned a bare minimum of $4 million. This was 15 years ago before they acquired many of their present holdings.

Alliance of necessity

Evans, Novak

BOSTON — The grudging truce arranged here between Democratic governors and President Carter may be temporary, but it signifies a departure from bloodletting of the past 19 months and a new consensus among the governors that there are more rewards in loving than leaving the White House.

This strictly-for-business national governors' conference, stripped of the frills and social diversions of the past, suffered from collective fear of a breakdown in the political process that threatens all institutions of government, most particularly the presidency. As Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California told us: "There is a feeling here" that the presidency is becoming an impossible job.

That fear underlines the shift by the Democratic governors away from open season on Jimmy Carter toward a more benign mood of toleration. Whether the new mood lasts will depend on the president's response, and some of the evidence here is that Mr. Carter has gotten the message.

A case in point was the White House reversal of a tentative decision to gut the federal-state Regional Development Commissions so dear to the hearts of the governors. The plan, first outlined three weeks ago to 12 Western governors in Vail, Colo., by low-level administration aides, would have centralized authority over these commissions in Washington, drastically reduced the power of the governors and choked off budgetary support.

ANGRY WESTERN governors led by Montana's Thomas L. Judge were prepared for a counterattack against the White House that would have spilled political blood here. But top-level White House aides, headed by Anne Wexler and Jack Watson, persuaded Mr. Carter to retreat and announced the decision on Monday.

There never has been much love between the Democratic governors and their former colleague from Plains, Ga. Not a single Democrat among the 17 who were elected for the first time in 1970 along with Jimmy Carter supported his pre-convention bid for president. They perceived him as distant, selfish and a loner, never one of them. Most of the 38 present Democratic governors feel the same way today, but their need for Oval Office support in coping with what Brown calls the "tidal wave" of the taxpayers' revolt and the awesome new veto power of special interest groups makes union with the White House indispensable.

In addition, there was the first faint murmur of something like sympathy for the troubled presidency of Jimmy Carter and the man himself. Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale of Missouri called it "the swing of the pendulum." "We have begun to rally around Carter," he told us. "Whether you call it sympathy, there is an important mutual interest we have with the president — preventing the dangerous failure of government in this nation."

But so low has the estate of the president fallen that the single act of recording formal support for him by the Democratic governors here was an acute embarrassment. The resolution of support was spontaneously popped out by West Virginia's Gov. Jay Rockefeller at a closed-door breakfast during which national Democratic chairman John White appealed to the governors to back Mr. Carter and take command of their state political parties for the 1980 presidential campaign.

When Rockefeller offered his pro-Carter resolution, New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne said out loud what many others were thinking: finding it necessary to go on record supporting a new president only 19 months in office is leading from weakness and reminding the country how low he has sunk.

"It's a show about the U.S. government."

Potassium deficiency is rare

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes potassium deficiency and what are the dangers? What is the remedy and how can one guard against it? — H.G.

You needn't worry about getting enough potassium in the diet. Almost all food contains it. When a deficiency in the body does occur it is usually because too much is being lost. Probably the most common cause of potassium deficiency today is long-term use of potent diuretics (water pills). Severe and prolonged vomiting or diarrhea can also remove too much of it and cause a deficiency. Deficiency can also occur with diabetes, cystic fibrosis and other system-wide illnesses.

Potassium seems to have its greatest importance in maintaining the health of muscle tissue. For this reason a deficiency may produce weakness, muscle paralysis, disorders of the heart action and low blood pressure. If the heart is involved there is a characteristic reading on the electrocardiogram.

There are various preparations to correct a potassium deficiency, and fruits (as bananas and oranges) are comparatively rich in it. But, as I have mentioned, there is no need for the average person to worry about getting sufficient potassium in the diet.

And another related letter: Dear Dr. Thosteson: Regarding the problem of leg cramping. My husband and I have cured this simply by eating a half of a banana daily. Why not recommend this instead of medicines? It is cheaper, more pleasant, and has no side effects. — Mrs. H.D.A.

I seriously doubt whether the half a banana a day is having all that effect on yours and your husband's leg cramps. Bananas are relatively high in potassium and potassium lack may produce various muscle symptoms. However, I would be the last to argue with apparent success, and I agree that the half a banana is certainly cheaper and more pleasant than medicines. There's an old medical adage that says anything that helps and cannot hurt is OK. You might gain a better understand of such cramps from my booklet, "Leg Cramps." For a copy send 35 cents and a stamped self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald. Dear Dr. Thosteson: Six months ago I had an operation for complete removal of my thyroid gland. I had a partial removal 10 years ago. I am relatively young, but my doctor tells me I must take medication for the rest of my life. I would like to know more about the thyroid and lack of it. — T.M.

It's certainly correct that you will need medication (thyroid replacement hormones) the rest of your life. There's just no other structure to take over for the thyroid when it is removed. You apparently had an overactive gland. The goal of the earlier surgery to remove a portion was to cut down on the hormone production. It didn't work for you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You won't think this is an important problem, but I am bothered by mosquitoes that seem to attack my scalp right through the hair. Why does this happen and what can one do for it? — J.D.

No reason why mosquitoes should find your scalp any more attractive than the rest of your body. Sometimes hair sprays and lotions will send off a scent that is attractive to the pesky things.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I agree with you that the word "senile" is a medical term that has been greatly misused. Don't you agree that, medically at least, a person is only as "old as he feels"? — J.W.

Couldn't agree more. In fact, one older writer informs me that he uses the metric figure "23 Celsius" to indicate his 75 years, because, he says, he "only feels about 23."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes warts? — L.G.

The common wart is caused by a virus (verruca vulgaris).

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of Dr. Thosteson's booklet, explaining what sinus trouble really is and what can be done about it. For a copy write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Big Spring Herald

Mailbag

Dear Editor: I cut this out of the Big Spring Herald about 15 years ago. It is still relevant today:

WHY ROME FELL (Lakeland, Fla. Ledger) Edward Gibbon, historian, gives these five reasons:

1. The rapid increase of divorce; the undermining of the dignity and sanctity of the home, which is the basis of human society.
2. Higher and higher taxes and the spending of public money for free bread and circuses for the populace.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My wife of 27 years is leaving me because she says I am a workaholic and am only interested in making money. I am so lonely I don't know what to do. Can God help me? — L.C.S.

DEAR L.C.S.: Yes, but that does not mean He will necessarily restore things just the way they were. For example, is there any truth in the accusations your wife has made? Have you been spending your time making money, and neglecting your family in the process? If so, you need to honestly face your responsibilities. You also need to honestly face your goals in life. This can be a painful process, but in the long run it may be the most important thing you ever do.

The Bible warns us against being too preoccupied with money and possessions. It tells us: "People who want to get rich fall into temptation and a trap and into many foolish and harmful desires that plunge men into ruin and destruction. For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil" (1 Timothy 6:9-10, New International Version). One of the Ten Commandments says, "Thou shalt not covet" (Exodus 20:17). Proverbs 15:27 says pointedly, "He that is greedy of gain troubleth his own house."

What steps should you take? First, I urge you to invite Jesus Christ into your life as Saviour and Lord. He died on the cross to forgive you of your sins, and He wants to come into your life and change your ambitions and habits. I know that may sound painful right now, because you have probably become set in your ways. But Christ can help you and can give you a new love for others.

I also urge you to become involved in a church where Christ is preached. It will probably be helpful for you to share your problem with the pastor or someone else in the church. They can help you explore the issue in depth in light of God's Word.

"For the one-thousand-nine-hundred-and-seventy-eighth time, I repeat..."

Plane may have been shot down

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — A survivor's story indicates the airliner that crashed in northwest Rhodesia may have been shot down by the black nationalist guerrillas who murdered 10 of the 18 survivors.

"There was a tremendous explosion," said Anthony Hill, 39. "Then flames started shooting past the window on the starboard wing."

"The captain told everyone to keep calm ... to brace for the impact. The plane came down at a hell of a speed, then it crashed."

There was speculation that the Air Rhodesia four-engine Viscount might have been hit by a ground-to-air missile. Investigators were examining the wreckage at the crash site 35 miles southeast of Kariba. A military communique said "a starboard engine appeared to have exploded, and the starboard external side of the plane was heavily scorched."

Guerrillas of Joshua Nkomo's Zimbabwe African People's Union operate in the area from bases in Zambia. In June 1977, they fired a missile at a private plane near the border, missed it and hit a hotel, causing heavy damage.

The airliner, with 56 people aboard, crashed Sunday night shortly after taking off for Salisbury from Kariba, a lake resort on the Zambian border. The 52 passengers included 42 white Rhodesians and South Africans, two white Scots and eight Asian Rhodesians who had been holidaying at the lake.

Hill told reporters at a hospital in Kariba the plane broke in two. The front portion burst into flames, and the survivors, among the last five rows of seats, wormed their way out of the tail section.

Many were injured, but five were able to go for help. Hans Hansen, 35, said about an hour after the crash nine guerrillas emerged from the bush.

"When they first approached us," Hansen reported, "they said they were going to give us water and help. Then when they gathered us together, they said, 'You have taken our land! We are going to kill you!' and they started shooting."

He said the guerrillas killed seven women, two children and a man and bayoneted one of the women after they shot her.

The bullets missed Hansen, his 31-year-old wife, Diana, and Hill. They escaped into the undergrowth and hid through the night. Rescue teams found them and the five who had gone for aid, a total of eight survivors from the crash and the massacre.

The government said the guerrillas looted the wreckage and the bodies.

The eight survivors were reported in good condition at the hospital in Kariba.

Postal service, unions negotiate at a distance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postal Service and union officials negotiated at a distance Labor Day, setting the stage for today's face-to-face talks. They're trying to resolve a contract dispute and avoid a nationwide mail strike.

The two sides talked separately with mediator James Healy on Monday when scheduled today's joint session. There was no word concerning possible progress in those talks, part of a 15-day round of meetings begun last Friday.

Three big postal unions voted nearly two weeks ago to strike rather than accept a tentative contract agreement of July 21, pressing for resumption of negotiations. The Postal Service resisted but then agreed to return to the bargaining table. Healy, a Harvard professor with long experience in labor-management mediation, was called in to help.

U.S. District Judge John Pratt has extended until Sept. 18 his temporary restraining order barring a postal strike by the two largest unions. Strikes by postal employees are illegal, and the court order is intended to strengthen enforcement of that law.

Under ground rules of the present negotiations, if no agreement is reached by Sept. 16, the arbitrator would decide disputed issues if he believed a negotiated settlement was not near.

No matter what he decided, however, a mail strike would still be possible since any new agreement would be subject to ratification by union members, the same hurdle the earlier agreement failed to clear.

State leaders of the 38,000-member National Rural Letter Carriers Association approved the earlier contract agreement.

Weather — Thunderstorm causes damage in Dallas

By the Associated Press

A thunderstorm accompanied by devastating winds blew through a section of Dallas, leaving no one seriously injured but causing damage estimated in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The short-lived storm, believed to be packing gusts of from 50 to 100 mph, struck about 5 p.m. Monday.

Elsewhere in Texas, scattered thunderstorms spun off several funnel clouds, dumped heavy rains and caused flash flood warnings to be issued once more for parts of far West Texas.

Two funnel clouds were sighted in the Slaton area of West Texas, but they did not touch ground and no damage was reported. Police in Cleburne, south of Fort Worth, reported a funnel cloud that did not touch ground.

Equal pay suits not enough

'Women's work' to be upgraded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carter administration officials says. Alexis Herman, head of the Women's Bureau in the Labor Department, noted that nothing has been more dramatic in the past decade than the huge influx of women into the work force.

More than 42.1 million women held paying jobs as of July, which is a 129 percent increase from a decade earlier, she said, adding that the number of married women who work is five times that of the 1940 figures.

Despite this, Ms. Herman said in an interview today, most women remain clustered in clerical, service and sales jobs and their pay is less than 60 percent that of men.

"We've got to be just as concerned about the occupational stereotyping of women into low-paid jobs as we are about getting women into non-traditional jobs," she said.

Ms. Herman helped shape federal regulations that will open more blue-collar jobs to women. The regulations, issued earlier this year, require construction companies with federal contracts to hire at least 3 percent women. And apprenticeship programs registered through the Labor Department are required to recruit at least 20 percent women.

Because most women work only alongside other women, the move to require "equal pay for equal work" is of little concrete value to them, Ms. Herman said. She said there is an urgent need to go beyond the traditional equal pay suits with data that will compare "women's work" with similar jobs characterized as "men's work."

Some Labor Department studies show that women doing jobs comparable to those done by men are paid dramatically less, indicating women may be paid less simply because they are in "women's jobs," Ms. Herman said.

The Labor Department recently resolved a complaint against the Dallas, Tex., school system by finding that women cleaning up the schools were paid far lower than men doing virtually the same work. The system was redesigned, with persons doing comparable work being paid the same.

Ms. Herman said her department plans to analyze the sexstereotyping of federally financed public service jobs as the next step in attempting to stop sex discrimination in the work force.

Waiters Resist Separate Checks

DEAR ABBY: It's obvious that you were never a waitress or you never would have given MIFFED IN MASS. the answer you did. (MIFFED asked for separated checks and was told it wasn't the policy of the restaurant. And you said, "Complain to the management, and if that doesn't help, next time take your business elsewhere.")

Abby, you have no idea how much time it takes to write up eight different checks and to collect from eight different people!

Also, when the chef gets eight separate orders, he thinks they're all singles and it creates confusion in the kitchen. Please be fair and tell both sides of the story. BETTY IN K.C.

DEAR BETTY: OK, color me "fair." I received a good number of complaints about my answer. Here's another:

DEAR ABBY: Please don't start crusading for separate checks! I'm a waiter, and I can tell you that when a group of people come in together during the rush hour and demand separate checks, it's easy for one or two to walk out without paying. It happens often, and guess who gets stuck? TONY IN JERSEY

DEAR TONY: What you say makes sense. I surrender, dear.

DEAR ABBY: My sister brought her 5-year-old daughter to spend a few weeks with us this summer. We have a 7-year-old son who is an only child.

The youngsters spent a lot of time together and were very compatible. One afternoon they were exceptionally quiet, so I went to check on them. I was horrified to find them in the bedroom playing "doctor."

I won't go into detail here, but the little girl was the "patient" and my son was the "doctor," and he was "examining" her, if you know what I mean.

How would you have handled this situation? My sister and I don't agree. FULLERTON, CALIF.

DEAR FULLERTON: I would have kept my cool and not made a big deal out of it.

All kids are naturally curious about the bodies of the opposite sex, and "playing doctor" is one way to satisfy that curiosity. It's not serious—as long as they don't "operate."

Grandparents Day founded

West Virginia women have been the key in the development of three major holidays, says Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins.

Grandparents Day, which will be celebrated for the first time nationally on Sept. 10, was conceived by Mrs. Marian McQuade, a West Virginia mother of 15 children, who began her labors in behalf of the observance in 1973.

Anna M. Jarvis, another native West Virginian, suggested and helped plan the first Mother's Day service on May 10, 1908 in Grafton, W. Va. She later campaigned vigorously for a national holiday honoring mothers. Congress designated the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day on May 7, 1914.

The earliest recorded Father's Day service was conducted on July 5, 1908 in the Central Church of Fairmont, Virginia, at the request of Mrs. Charles Clayton.

Recipe party honors bride

A recipe and pounding party honored Gayla Kerby at the Midway Beauty Shop where she is employed on Thursday.

The event preceded the Saturday marriage of Miss Kerby and Reggie Coleman. Hostesses for the all-day coffee were Mrs. A.E.

Lendermon, Mrs. Glen Addy and Mrs. Bill Hipp. Attending were friends of the honoree and patrons of the shop.

Miss Kerby was presented a number of recipes as well as some food with which to prepare them, including some home canned goods.

Lucy Dubuis, Texas Electric Information Dept.: "Check your air conditioner's filter monthly to make sure it's not blocking the air flow."

"Now that temperatures and electric bills are up, your air conditioner needs all the help it can get!"

"Hot summer temperatures make your air conditioner work longer and harder. That's what drives up your electric bill.

But there are some things you can do to help. Change or clean your air conditioner's filter to let air flow freely. And trim grass and weeds from around the outside unit for good air circulation.

Inside, close blinds and drapes to help keep out the heat. And try to cut down on the number of times you open doors—an open door lets hot air rush in.

Keep your thermostat set at 78° or higher. To feel cool at this temperature, use a small portable fan to circulate air in the room.

For more ways to cut down high summer electric bills, get Texas Electric's free energy tips booklet.

Just call Texas Electric or ask for the booklet on the comment portion of your bill."

TOO TALL, TOO MUCH — Starting his first game in the pro's, Baltimore Colt's quarterback Mike Kirkland finds himself looking at Dallas Cowboys defensive end Ed 'To Tall' Jones in the eye during third quarter action Monday night at Texas Stadium. The Super Bowl Champion Cowboys not only broke up this play but went on to run over the Colts 38-0 in their regular season opener.

3-D (Dallas, Dorsett, defense) tames Colts

DALLAS (AP) — It was the second most explosive offensive show in the 18-year history of the Dallas Cowboys, but quarterback Roger Staubach was more puffed than pleased. Staubach destroyed Baltimore's "sack pack" with four touchdown passes as Dallas opened defense of its world championship with a 38-0 nationally televised rout of the Baltimore Colts Monday night.

Dallas didn't even punt as it charged up and down the field for a 583-yard offense for coach Tom Landry's 14th consecutive season-opening victory. "I was good in some spots and bad in others...I wasn't particularly pleased," said Staubach, who had started the night with two interceptions early in the game. Staubach's touchdown passes covered 91 yards to Tony Dorsett, eight yards to Billy Joe Dupree, 38 yards to Drew Pearson and 36 inches to Jay Saldi. Completing his last 11 passes, Staubach finished with 16 completions in 22 attempts for 280 yards. Dorsett, the flashy tailback who was NFL rookie of the year in 1977, did something no other Cowboy has ever accomplished. He rushed for 147 yards and caught passes for 107 steps. No Cowboy had ever rushed and received for 100 yards or more in each category in one game. Dorsett wasn't overly pleased. "I feel receiving is one of my weakest points and I need a chance to get accustomed to it," said Dorsett.

Dorsett left three Colt tacklers in his wake for the second Cowboy touchdown after he caught a batted pass which was intended for a wide receiver. He was so alone on his touchdown jaunt that he slapped hands with Drew Pearson and Tony Hill before he crossed the goal line.

Baltimore played without injured No. 1 quarterback Bert Jones and halfback Lydell Mitchell, who was traded to San Diego in a dispute with management. "Once we broke it open, it was hard for Baltimore to come back with Jones out," said Cowboy coach Tom Landry. "Baltimore is a very solid football team and they will regroup as the season moves on, with or without Jones."

Dallas' most prolific offensive day was 652 yards against Philadelphia in 1966 when Don Meredith was the Cowboy quarterback.

Reserve Mike Kirkland, starting his first National Football League game, was sacked five times by the Cowboy "doomsday defense." It was Baltimore's worst loss since 1973 when the Colts fell 44-0 to Miami.

Colt Coach Ted Marchibroda said, "We thought we could beat them if we didn't give them anything, but we gave them two easy ones. It was a loss you could blame on any one player. It was something all 45 had a part in."

"Jones' condition is a week to week thing. I really can't say when he will be back."

Jones and second string quarterback Bill Troup each suffered shoulder injuries last week. Marchibroda said, "The other teams in our division (Miami and New England) lost games they should have won, so I don't think we are any farther behind than when we started the week. We were just beaten by a better team."

Dallas Cowboy strong safety Charlie Waters said, "Our defense played well. But it would have been different if Bert Jones had been in there. That's the way we should have beaten them without Bert in there. He is the heartbeat of the Colts. He is definitely one of the best." Waters said, "We are also not naive enough to think every game is going to be like that."

Free safety Cliff Harris said, "We really did play good defense, and our offense exploded. Kirkland is a good quarterback and they have some good receivers, but their intensity was down because Jones was gone."

Linebacker D.D. Lewis said, "Without Jones in there, we just teed off on their running game wiped them out."

Colt fullback Roosevelt Leaks said, "A lot of teams are going to lose to Dallas."

Baltimore linebacker Darrell Luce said, "We just didn't tackle. On almost any of their long runs, we had a shot at them. Sometimes two or three of us had a chance but missed the tackle. We just missed too many tackles. We certainly didn't expect them to score 38 points against us, but you can see why they did."

Baltimore blew two early scoring chances against the Cowboys and then seemed to wilt after Dorsett's long touchdown gallop through the Colt team.

Marchibroda said, "The main thing wrong with our defense was that we just missed a lot of tackles."

Landry was already thinking about having to play the New York Giants on the road in Dallas' second game of the year.

Vilas upset in Open

NEW YORK (AP) — "If I were him, I wouldn't come back here," said Ion Tiriac, who watched helplessly Monday night while his protegee, Guillermo Vilas, lost to Butch Walts in his bid for a second straight men's singles title at the U.S. Open tennis championships.

"It's not worth the aggravation," Tiriac admitted. Walts played magnificently, but felt that the American's home-court advantage had ultimately done in Vilas, the Argentine clay-court specialist.

By home court, Tiriac meant the Deco Turf II surface, the hard, slick covering that is best suited for America's serve and volleyers at the U.S. Open, which is being held for the first time at Flushing Meadow Park.

"The English have grass, the French have clay, and the Americans had to discover something," Tiriac said. "We'll have to make a decision whether to take it or leave it, and a lot of guys are going to leave it." "On clay (last year the Open was played on a synthetic clay surface) he probably would have worn me out in the first set," said Walts after he forged the biggest triumph of his career, a 6-4, 7-6, 4-6, 6-7, 6-2 testament to power and net play that took four hours.

"If I was gonna beat him, this was my best surface," said the 23-year-old cannonball server from Atherton, Calif., who ranks 53rd in world rankings.

Top-ranked Bjorn Borg, who was on the brink of elimination in his last match and has also complained about the surface, was scheduled to play No. 12 Harold Solomon today. Also scheduled were second-seeded Jimmy Connors against Italy's Adriano Panatta and, in the women's bracket, No. 2 Chris Evert against Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia.

Moon Lark wins 1/2 mil at Futurity

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — It was one of those days when Sam Howard needed to be two places at once. His wife was in Coppell, Texas, where she was expecting to give birth to their third child. And his horse was at Ruidoso Downs running in the "World's Richest Horse Race."

"I've got a lot on my mind today," Sam said Monday, after watching his colt, Moon Lark, win nearly half-a-million dollars in the All-American Futurity at Ruidoso Downs.

"I started not to come," he said. "My wife may be having a baby right now. But she's been patient with me through this whole deal and she told me to come."

Sam, along with his uncles, James and Paul Howard, who each own one-third shares in the colt, had spent just about all the money they could scrape up or borrow over the past two years on Moon Lark. All three were in the stands Monday to watch their colt reward them with a three-quarter-length victory in the final leg of the Triple Crown for two-year-old quarter horses.

"We all have to work so we don't make a lot of money," said the 25-year-old truck driver for a Dallas, Texas, area freight line. "We haven't been going hungry, but I've been investing everything on the side I could. My wife has gone along with it because she believed in the colt too. She's a great woman."

Moon Lark claimed $437,500 out of the gross purse of $1.28 million by blazing past Osage Juana down the final 200 yards of the 440-yard scramble. The winning time was 21.84 seconds.

The nationally televised race had been expected to be a battle between Moon Lark, the second-favorite at 9-5, and Vespero, the favorite at 8-5.

Osage Juana held off Holme Maid to take second by a nose, while Vespero was fourth.

College results right on mark (well almost)

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Like the song says, two out of three ain't bad, and that was the weekend score for The Associated Press' Top Ten college football teams.

Of course, something had to give because No. 1-rated Alabama played 10th-ranked Nebraska, and the Crimson Tide rolled to a 20-3 victory. The only other Top Ten team in action was Penn State and the third-ranked Nittany Lions needed Matt Bahr's 23-yard field goal to edge Temple 10-7.

Trailing 3-0, Alabama wilted Nebraska with a 99-yard second-period drive that used up almost seven minutes and culminated in a four-yard scoring pass from Jeff Rutledge to Major Ogilvie.

Tony Nathan scored from the two in the third quarter after Don McNeal intercepted a pass at his 39 and a three-yard run by Rutledge with 2:17 left clinched the victory.

Only 10 major college games were played on the opening weekend of the season. Other scores: Mississippi State 28, West Texas State 0; North Texas State 49, Texas-EI Paso 0; East Carolina 14, Western Carolina 6; Utah State 10, Idaho State 0; Southern Mississippi 10, Richmond 7; Tulsa 21, Arkansas State 20; Drake 25, Texas-Arlington 23; Northern Michigan 30, Eastern Michigan 3.

Even though Alabama lived up to its No. 1 pre-season ranking by trimming Nebraska and outgaining the Cornhuskers 264 yards to 110 on the ground and 318-164 overall, Bear Bryant needs more convincing that the Crimson Tide is a true No. 1-type club.

"We're still nowhere near where we were at the end of last year," he said. "We're much better on defense, but we're just as far behind on offense."

"We had the ball much more than they did but didn't score that much, which speaks highly of their defense. Our defense gave us the ball enough to win a lot of games."

It was sweet revenge for both Alabama — its only 1977 loss was to Nebraska — and Rutledge, who suffered his only five interceptions of the season in last year's meeting. Nathan and sophomore Billy Jackson produced some strong running — Jackson's 14-yard burst dug Alabama out of a hole and ignited the 99-yard march — while the defense had heroes galore in tackle Marty Lyons, nose guard Curtis McGriff, ends E.J. Junior and Wayne Hamilton, and linebackers Barry Krauss, Rich Wingo and Rickey Gilliland.

"I'm proud of all our players, particularly the defense because they didn't give up a touchdown," Bryant said. "I was surprised they didn't score."

Not only didn't Alabama's veteran defense yield a touchdown — Billy Todd's 48-yard field goal was Nebraska's only scoring — but it held I.M. Hipp to 54 yards on 14 carries and Rick Berns to 42 yards on 12 attempts. And the Hipp-Berns duo is supposed to be among the nation's best.

Andrews rebuilding in '78

ANDREWS — The job of rebuilding the Andrews Mustangs this fall may not be easy for new coach Bill Shipman but the former District 5-AAAA mentor has pulled off miracles before.

The Ponies, who open their 1978 campaign at home Friday night against Big Spring, must get along without quarterback Booger Brooks, regarded as one of the finest signal callers in the state over two seasons.

Only three starters are back with the Ponies. They are led by mammoth Steve Kolb, a senior tackle who combines speed with heft. The college scouts are apt to follow the exploits of the Mustangs closely this year just to keep tabs on Kolb's development.

John Hotchkin, a regular a year ago, will play guard again this year. Randy Bartley, who played one of the guard positions last year, has been shifted to tackle where he figures to bolster the Pony line.

Coach Shipman, who used to coach at Abilene High School, says the Mustangs are real inexperienced this year, but adds:

"We've very aggressive, and the kids played real hard in our recent scrimmage with San Angelo Lake View."

"We have a lot to learn — especially about the offense. We've still got to shore up some things. The offensive line and the linebackers are two areas where we've been taking a lot of thought and doing a lot of work."

The Andrews quarterbacking chores will be handled this year by Jay McWilliams, who backed up Brooks in 1977. McWilliams, a senior, was at the controls when Andrews lost to Perryton in bi-district competition last year, Brooks having been forced to the sidelines by an injury.

The rest of the Mustangs backfield could have Van Pearey at tailback, Johnny Lopez at fullback and Ronnie Bohannon at wingback. All three chalked up enough playing time last year to earn letters.

Depth figures to be one of Andrews' big problems. For that reason, the Mustangs can't afford to get anybody hurt.

With a little luck, however, Shipman figures his team can challenge Fort Stockton and Pecos for the district championship.

Kite sails to BC victory

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — This time, Tom Kite could have penalized himself one stroke — as he had done a week earlier — and it wouldn't have made any difference.

Kite completed a front-running victory in the $225,000 B.C. Open Monday with a five-stroke advantage over runner-up Mark Hayes.

Last week, Kite had finished one stroke behind winner Tom Watson in the Hall of Fame Classic at Pinehurst, N.C. where he penalized himself one stroke in the final round for an infraction that no one else witnessed.

Had he not called the penalty on himself — for nicking the ball while trying to line up a six-inch putt on the fifth hole — Kite would have finished in a tie with Watson and gone into a playoff for the $50,000 first prize.

"I've never had anything like that happen," Kite said after his costly penalty. "That cost me the tournament."

He made few costly mistakes in the B.C. Open, over the En-Joie Golf Club.

Kite never trailed in the tourney's four rounds in earning the $45,000 top prize.

After sharing the first round lead with Tom Purtzer.

Kite pulled away from the field and had stretched his lead to five strokes going into the final round over the 6,915-yard, par-71 course.

His biggest challenge came Monday when Hayes eagled the third hole and Kite bogeyed the fourth hole, cutting the deficit to two strokes.

But Kite carded four straight birdies and went on to finish the 72-hole tournament with a 17-under-par score of 267, one stroke above the B.C. Open record held by Hubert Green.

Hayes closed with a 68 for 272 and little-known Peter Jacobsen of Portland, Ore., finished third at 275 after a final-round 69.

The victory was Kite's second since joining the pro tour in 1972. He has earned $149,737 this year, with second-place finishes in the Hall of Fame Classic and the British Open.

Hayes received $25,650 and Jacobsen collected $15,975. Dr. Gil Morgan, the defending champion, tied with Ed Sneed and PGA champion John Mahaffey for fourth place at 276.

OH NO, NOT THAT! — Second base umpire Greg Koeck leaves no doubt in the mind of Detroit Tiger Ron LeFlore Monday that he is out after an attempted steal in the front inning. The Tigers were at Yankee Stadium to battle the New York Yankees.

Guidry notches 20th

NEW YORK (AP) — The count on Lance Parrish, the Detroit batter, was no balls and two strikes. Ron Guidry, the New York pitcher, stood behind the mound, a slight smile playing across his features. The Yankee Stadium crowd of 46,896 began the rhythmic applause that starts every time Guidry gets two strikes on a hitter, but this time they added a little something extra — a long and loud standing ovation. Parrish, who had struck out twice and singled, grounded a foul past third base, prolonging the inevitable. More applause. He took a pitch for a ball. More cheers. Then he swung and missed a blazing fast ball and the Yankees had a 9-1 victory in the opener of Monday's double-header, making Guidry the major leagues' first 20-game winner.

'Geraldine' the quarterback?

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — It will be "Geraldine" against the Aggies — almost. Comedian Flip Wilson is on the University of Kansas campus this week to film a special in which he plays a backup quarterback for the Jayhawks. The filming today was scheduled for Memorial Stadium, where the Kansas football team will simulate a Kansas-Texas A&M game in which Wilson replaces the KU starting quarterback and leads the Jayhawks to a touchdown. Wilson will try out for the Kansas pompon squad Thursday as Geraldine. Wilson's special, "Flip Wilson's Salute to Football," also has him drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals and then leading them to the Super Bowl. Kansas sophomore quarterback Harry Sydney was selected to be Wilson's double for the show and Bob Marcum, Kansas athletic director, has a speaking role in the special as a football trainer.

Are pennant races still on? Ask Yankees

By FRANK BROWN AP Sports Writer Of course the pennant races are still on. The New York Yankees have pulled within five games of the Boston Red Sox in the American League's East Division, and the California Angels still are one game behind AL West-leading Kansas City. But there were other developments Monday that had little or nothing to do with baseball. —In Toronto, the Blue Jays' Willie Horton allegedly was struck by a mounted policeman and one of his children was stepped on by a policeman's horse during an altercation in the Exhibition Stadium parking lot before a game against the Cleveland Indians. —In Bloomington, Minn., White Sox Manager Larry Doby alleged first base umpire Joe Brinkman made a "racial slur" while arguing with Doby during Chicago's 2-1 loss to the Minnesota Twins. —In Baltimore, both benches cleared after Boston pitcher Dennis Eckersley knocked down Baltimore's Larry Harlow with a double-fouling arm shove after Harlow had been tagged out in a play at the plate. Harlow had to be restrained by an umpire from going after Eckersley and there was more wrestling before order was restored. The games. Oh yes. Cleveland topped Toronto 5-4; Minnesota nipped Chicago 2-1; the Orioles beat the Red Sox 5-3; the Yankees beat Detroit 9-1 for Ron Guidry's 20th victory before the Tigers won the nightcap 5-4; Seattle beat Milwaukee 4-3 before the Brewers won 5-0; California beat Texas 8-7 and Kansas City bested Oakland 5-3. Indians 5, Blue Jays 4 Gary Alexander hit a two-run double and scored on a double by Ted Cox in the three-run sixth that carried Cleveland past Toronto. Twins 2, White Sox 1 Roy Smalley and Mike Cabbage knocked in the runs that backed Geoff Zahn's four-hitter and lifted Minnesota over Chicago in the contest that saw four White Sox players ejected. Orioles 5, Red Sox 3 Lee May's two-run double in the sixth inning put Baltimore ahead to stay before the fracas at home plate. Yankees 9-4, Tigers 1-5 A three-run triple by Chris Chambliss capped an eight-run New York seventh and made Ron Guidry the major leagues' first 20-game winner.

The Tigers won the nightcap after a two-out error by Yankee left fielder Gary Thomsom in the eighth. Mariners 4-0, Brewers 3-5 Homers by Gorman Thomas and Ben Ogilvie carried Milwaukee in the nightcap after Seattle had taken the opener on Lee Stanton's ninth-inning RBI single. Royals 5, A's 3 Amos Otis drove in four runs and Al Hrabosky provided clutch relief to help Kansas City beat Oakland and keep the Royals a game ahead.

Angel Grich turns Rangers around

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — It hadn't been a good couple of months for the California Angel's Bobby Grich. In July, the three-time All-Star selection and four-time winner of a Golden Glove for fielding excellence drove in three runs. He added five more in August and had so much trouble in the field that he had to ask manager Jim Fregosi to bench him for a rest. But Monday night, Grich turned his season around as he slammed a three-run homer and a run-scoring single off Dock Ellis to give the Angels an 8-7 victory over Texas. The Angels remain a game behind Kansas City. Bobby Bonds hit a pair of home runs for the Rangers, Jim Sundberg added a third and Don Baylor hit his 28th for California. Grich underwent back surgery on July 3, 1977 to remove a herniated disc. "The doctor told me, 'next year is going to be a rough year — be patient with yourself,'" Grich said. "He said, 'Don't expect too much from yourself.' As a ball player you don't want to believe it. He examined me a little while ago and said, 'You are doing better than I expected.'" Monday's victory was the Angels' fourth in succession, matching the club's longest winning streak of the season. "We know we are in a pennant fight," said Grich. "We are one game behind and we know it is up for grabs. Everyone else has had an eight-game or a 10-game winning streak. Hopefully, we timed our eight or 10-game streak at the right time." Errors by third baseman Kurt Bevacqua and second baseman Bump Wills helped California to four runs in the fifth inning with Ellis aiso hitting a batter. "Ellis deserved a better fate," said Texas manager Bill Hunter. "Errors are going to happen and they ended up killing us. We have to start winning now. The fact we don't play Kansas City any more makes it even more important we win now. They have a lot of games left at home and they play very well there." Before the game Hunter said, "We have to win three out of four, not only here but everywhere. The next 10 days will tell for us. I hope we are in contention by the time we leave Anaheim." Nolan Ryan, 6-11, who has been out for two weeks with a rib injury, pitched for the Angels tonight against the Rangers' Steve Comer, 7-3.

Pirates making their move now

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer Three weeks ago, the Philadelphia Phillies were making playoff plans and the Pittsburgh Pirates were thinking about October vacations. Three weeks from now, it may be the other way around. "Our best baseball is yet to come," said Philadelphia's Bake McBride after the Phillies, who've been playing anything but their best lately, split a doubleheader Monday with St. Louis, closing the opener 3-2, then bombing the Cardinals 10-2 in the nightcap. "This is as good as we can play," said Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner after Pittsburgh swept a pair from the

Serious baseball begins

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer Welcome to September and the start of baseball's serious season. There is less than a month left before the playoffs begin and the games, to borrow a phrase, are dwindling down to a precious few for contenders in all four major league divisions. Happily for the sport and its fans, we've got pennant races to deal with in each division, crucial games with contenders going head-to-head down the stretch. This week's pulse-pounding began last night when San Francisco opened a two-game series against the Los Angeles Dodgers with first place in the National League West at stake. It would have been a dandy, dramatic showdown between the West Coast rivals for ABC's Monday Night Baseball series, except that it occurred on the night the network kicked off its Monday Night Football series. So, after a summer of covering some meaningless baseball games, ABC has swapped sports just at a time when the drama of baseball will be at its best. But that's okay because some of the major domos in baseball are thinking of switching formats to water down that last month drama themselves.

Reds top Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — In many ways, the 1978 baseball season has been a nightmarish one for Cincinnati second baseman Joe Morgan. The 14-year veteran, saddled with numerous injuries throughout the year, has seen his batting average plummet to its lowest level in nine years. But, if his latest two games are any indication, Morgan's nightmares may be over. "It feels great to make things happen like that," said Morgan, who collected three hits for the second straight game and drove in a run as the Reds topped the Houston Astros 6-3 Monday night. "I've been asleep for so long, it's about time I woke up. We've got our backs against the wall, but anything can happen," he added. Bill Bonham, 10-4, hurled the first six innings for the Reds to notch his first triumph since July 7. Doug Bair pitched the final 1 1/3 innings to record his 24th save of the season as Cincinnati remained 6 1/2 games behind first place Los Angeles in the National League West. The Reds took a 2-0 lead against losing pitcher Joe Niekro, 11-12, on a run-scoring single by Bonham and a bases-loaded walk to Pete Rose. Dave Bergman's third inning throwing error and Morgan's fifth inning RBI single helped the Reds build their lead to 4-0. A seventh-inning solo homer by Johnny Bench and Cesar Geronimo's run-producing double in the same inning accounted for Cincinnati's final two runs. Houston scored a fourth inning run on an RBI single by Terry Puhl and added single runs in the seventh and eighth innings on a home run by Dennis Walling and an RBI single by Jose Cruz. "We're in no position to be watching the scoreboard," said Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson. "We've just got to keep winning and beat the leading teams when we play them head on. If we can't do that, then it's adios."

Golf tourney is postponed

The Big Spring Invitational golf tournament finals were postponed Monday afternoon after a heavy shower fell shortly after lunch. The tournament will be completed next Sunday afternoon. "Since all the contestants were from Big Spring, it didn't work a hardship on anyone," C.G. Griffin, golf pro stated. He added, "And the golf course sure needed the rain."

To talk about GSA investigations

Carter calls surprise meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jay Solomon was on a hiking trip in the Shenandoah Mountains when he got the call that President Carter wanted to know what was going on in the widening scandal at the General Services Administration.

So GSA Administrator Solomon — in blue jeans and a sweater — came down from a mountain lodge to join Deputy Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti for a Labor Day meeting in the Oval Office to brief Carter on the investigations.

Civiletti, Solomon and a spokesman for Carter said the surprise meeting was held to brief Carter on the investigations before the president left for nearby Camp David, Md., and the Middle East summit.

"We wanted just to appraise him of everything that was going on... no specifics, just in generalities and so he would feel comfortable that we were pursuing the investigation," said Solomon.

The message that came out of the meeting was clear: Carter is giving his full support to the multiple investigations wherever they might lead.

"No one is exempt from the investigation at all — either inside or outside of the government," said Civiletti, who was dressed in a blue pinstripe suit, in contrast to Solomon.

The FBI, grand juries and U.S. attorneys in several cities and an internal GSA task force are looking into allegations of bribery, fraud, corruption and theft at the $5 billion-a-year agency that is the federal government's main landlord and supply house.

Solomon, a Carter appointee, has said that at least 50 indictments are expected in the first wave of grand jury actions on GSA scandals. The first indictments are expected to be handed down within a month.

He emphasized that the GSA probe had the full support of the president. "I think it's very important to have the backing of the White House. I've had it all the time," Solomon said.

The investigations are apparently now reaching a crucial point, reaching beyond low-level employees and officials and relatively small-scale corruption.

A White House official who asked not to be named said Carter wanted to encourage all those with knowledge of the scandals to be willing to name all those involved.

"This thing is getting to the point where some high officials are involved, and some people are uncertain whether to name the bigger fish," the official said. "Some people apparently thought that this was all going to go away, and they could keep their mouths shut. Well, it's not going to go away."

Civiletti said that the investigators would not be afraid to probe the activities of anyone, including Robert Griffin, fired by Solomon as deputy GSA administrator and then given a job by Carter in the office of Special Trade Negotiator Robert Strauss.

Congress poses crucial test for administration policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is returning from its Labor Day recess to face showdowns on natural gas deregulation and on a $2 billion nuclear-powered aircraft carrier President Carter does not want built.

Both issues pose crucial tests for the president's policies and his ability to deal with Congress.

Senators coming back to town are sure to find themselves heavily lobbied on the gas-pricing bill, both from the administration, which supports it, and from opponents. Most of the opposition is coming from consumer groups and some segments of the oil and gas industry.

A large group of undecided senators still appears to be the key to the measure that took more than eight months for House-Senate negotiators to work out — and both camps are out to win over these wavering members.

Senate leaders hope to begin debating the bill on Thursday — although there remains a chance that action will be put over until the following week.

The White House is depicting the legislation — which would remove large quantities of natural gas from federal price controls by 1985 — as critical to the success of Carter's long-stalled energy program and to U.S. prestige abroad.

It is being opposed by an unusual coalition of Senate liberals who see it as too costly to consumers and conservatives who do not think it would deregulate enough gas.

Once the bill is brought up, opponents plan to offer a motion to recommitt the legislation to the conference committee that drafted it and to bring up instead a short bill that would give the president certain emergency powers during natural gas shortages.

This motion would have the effect of killing the compromise.

If the motion fails, a filibuster is expected — but Senate leaders say they have enough votes to block it.

The House, meanwhile, has scheduled a vote for Thursday on the president's veto of a $37 billion defense bill containing the authorization to build the nuclear carrier.

Carter claims another nuclear carrier is unnecessary and would be wasteful.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill predicts that the veto will be sustained. But supporters of the carrier are well organized and are expected to put up a heavy fight.

A two-thirds vote in both chambers is required to override a veto.

When it convenes on Wednesday, the Senate is to take up a proposed $489.5 billion federal budget for the fiscal year that begins Oct.

while the House is to consider plans to carry out federal aid to fiscally struggling New York City.

The basic legislation — for $1.8 billion, principally in guarantees to help the city borrow money — already has been enacted.

Long, busy sessions are expected throughout the month as the lawmakers race to try to finish by Oct. 7 so those up for re-election — and this includes the entire House — can go home to campaign.

List of expenses sobering

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sobering fact of life for farmers, many of them enjoying substantially higher prices than a year ago, is their list of expenses for producing the nation's food and fiber.

Despite two successive months of decline in prices farmers get for commodities they produce, the Agriculture Department says those prices in August were still 20 percent above their year-ago mark.

Further, USDA said last week in a monthly price report, costs of items farmers buy to produce leveled off in August. Compared with Aug. 1977, however, production items were up about 9.7 percent.

A closer look at the report shows that only two farm production items cost less last month than they did a year ago — fertilizer and agricultural chemicals such as pesticides and weedkillers.

The costs of other items listed in the production category were up from a year ago. Those included feed, feeder livestock, seed, fuels and energy, farm and motor supplies, cars and trucks, tractors and self-propelled machinery, building and fencing materials and farm services and cash rent.

Examination of some of the less-obvious items farmers buy illustrates why many of them who patch up old tractors, make do with battered pickup trucks and grain harvesters still complain of rising production costs.

Although steel fence posts still cost $2.33 each, for example, a roll of barbed wire now costs an average of $28 a roll against $26.90 a year ago, the report said.

An aluminum scoop shovel that cost $14.50 a year ago now is $16.30.

One 10-inch adjustable end wrench is about $7.69 against $7.12 in August last year, and a heavy-duty soldering iron is $17.30, compared with $15.40.

Farmers who raise produce and other commodities that require bagging and packaging also have felt the pinch.

A dozen one-bushel waste baskets now cost $12.70 against $11.60 a year ago, and burlap bags are $33.70 per 100, up from $31 last year.

Feeder livestock represent a mixed sort of expense for farmers since those animals also are produced by some who sell to others. Thus, higher prices are welcomed by the cow-calf producer but not so eagerly by farmers and feedlot operators who buy the stock.

Feeder cattle and calves in August averaged $56 per 100 pounds against $37.50 a year earlier. Feeder pigs on the average brought about $109 per 100 pounds, compared with $85 a year ago.

Electric boot for diet watching

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're really serious about dieting and keeping track of weight loss or gain, maybe a new electronic boot being used on cows is just the thing.

The Agriculture Department says that the special boots are being worn by cows in experiments in Oklahoma where researchers are checking on their weights and their response to different diets.

Worn on all four feet, the boots contain a measuring device that can transmit at any moment the cow's weight with a margin of error of one pound in a thousand.

The boot experiments are described in the September issue of "Agricultural Research" published by the department's Science and Education Administration.

Dr. Floyd Horn of the Southwestern Livestock and Forage Research Station, El Reno, Okla., said the boots enable scientists "to study, at a distance, forage intake, small weight changes, and other aspects of the animal's metabolism."

How do the cows feel about the boots?

"Like most new shoes, they seem awkward and uncomfortable at first, but they break in nicely in a few hours," the report said. "After that, this intricate scientific system is just old shoe to the cattle."

America still leads in grain production

WASHINGTON (AP) — American farmers continue to maintain a lead in terms of grain produced per unit of land, according to recent figures by the Agriculture Department.

Using the international metric system of evaluating grain production this year in selected countries, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said that on the average 3.91 metric tons of grain is being produced in the United States on each hectare expected to be harvested.

A metric ton is 2,205 pounds and a hectare is equal to about 2.47 acres. The report did not provide a breakdown by kinds of grain or conversions into bushels and acres.

The main intent of the tables was to show relative production among the selected countries.

The 3.91 metric tons per hectare for the United States compared with a "world" average production of 1.95 metric tons. Last year the U.S. average was 3.66 metric tons and the world average 1.87 metric tons.

Ridin' fence

On going to school

with Marj Carpenter

A lot is being said recently about kids needing a bus to get them to school. There have been persons concerned about children in the Crestview area insisting children need a ride across Gregg Street.

And from time to time, there have been parents in the Highland South area insisting that children need a ride across FM 700.

I don't exactly understand how we have reached such a point. When you and I grew up — all of you out there in your 50s and over, we just got to school the best way we could.

There wasn't even a bus from the country in my school district. There was one man named Schwarz who had 42 grandchildren going to school who went and bought a bus and hauled his grandchildren. We walked home in the evening and if we got up early enough, we rode to school with Dad as he went to work.

This usually meant we got there about 7:30 a.m. It was about a mile and three quarters to our house. There were kids who walked much further.

I did not milk a cow and walk eight miles in the snow, but with all the joking about it — this has been done by children whose parents were quite serious about education.

I realize that this was in the days prior to heavy traffic. And the state finally passed a mandate that kids who lived over two miles from their school should be bused.

Now when my own children came along, I ran into the traffic problem. When they started to kindergarten, I used to walk them across the heavy traffic streets and let them walk the balance of the way, teaching them to watch for traffic.

When my son was in the third grade, he had to cross the main highway in Andrews. He had a bike. His instructions were, "Ride to the highway, get off and look, push the bike across and then get back on. If I catch you riding across, you get a spanking." He understood the instructions perfectly.

I know there are problems. But I don't know how we got off on a direction that we think the school owes children a ride to school, breakfast after they get there, lunch at noon, and extra help with all of their problems.

What ever became of the responsibility of the parents who had the children to start with? Maybe that's old-fashioned. However, I think the parents owe their children some type of guidance, help, transportation or accompaniment walking, time and effort of some kind.

As I have written stories on old timers and old time schools, I constantly ran across stories where they traveled for miles on foot and on horseback.

Now everybody drives. And this makes the "on foot" portion more dangerous.

But why have we written off parents and big brothers and sisters? An older child going to high school or junior high can accompany a little brother or sister across a busy street — whether they like to do it or not. And I certainly think junior high kids can make it across the street. They make it up and down all the streets in town to do things they like to do — play ball, go to the show, buy candy or soda pop or hang around with the other kids. Why can't they make it across the street to school?

Just tell them, that's what the old grouch said — when she was out ridin' fence.

Reagan stumps for candidate

HOUSTON (AP) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan is coming to Houston Monday to speak at a rally for fellow Republican Ron Paul, who is running for the seat of Rep. Bob Gammage, D-Texas.

Reagan, who ran for the United States presidency in 1976, is to speak in the Albert Thomas Convention Center's west hall at 7:30 p.m., Paul said Friday in a news release.

Texas meat supplies have stayed in step

AUSTIN — Texas meat supplies have stayed in step with brisk consumer demand so far this year, thanks mainly to an increased cattle slaughter, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has noted.

"Red meat production for the first seven months of 1978 was down in all categories except beef," Brown said. "But because more cattle have been going to slaughter, total meat production rose three per cent to 2.24 billion pounds, up one per cent from last year."

Brown pointed out that dry pastures and improving prices have increased the movement of cattle into feedlots and slaughterhouses, thus temporarily stimulating beef supplies. However, this liquidation has cut cattle herds by over 1.5 million head since last year.

Combined with steady consumer demand, the result has been higher retail beef prices.

"Cattle and beef prices are at the mercy of the laws of supply and demand," Brown stated. "If beef prices have risen recently because of shrinking herds, they will just as surely come down again when these herds are rebuilt.

"What some people fail to remember is that many cattlemen were forced out of business due to rock bottom prices during the past four years," he stressed. "Others are just now starting to make up the financial losses they suffered. During that period, beef was one of the lowest-priced food items available."

Brown pointed out that during the first seven months of this year there has been a 21-per-cent drop in the number of calves slaughtered. This is because, with Texas cattle herds down, calves are needed for feeding and restocking and are becoming more valuable for these purposes.

He added that the hog slaughter thus far this year, at 622,600 head, is down by two per cent. For July alone, the number of hogs slaughtered dropped by 400.

Cities have until Sept. 10 to repeal tax

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock today reminded city governments that they have until Sept. 10 to notify his office if they wish to repeal the one per cent city tax on residential gas and electric bills Oct. 1.

"It's absolutely essential that we be notified by that date if the tax break is to become effective on Oct. 1, the earliest possible date under the new law," Bullock said.

Bullock said those cities that repeal the tax after that date will have to wait a full calendar quarter before the tax break goes into effect.

The Texas Legislature passed a law during its recent special session repealing the four per cent state tax on residential utility bills effective Oct. 1.

That law also automatically repeals the one per cent city tax on residential utilities Oct. 1, 1979, unless the city government votes to continue the tax.

Cities that wish, however, can by majority vote of the council repeal the city tax effective Oct. 1, 1978 — the same day the state tax exemption becomes effective.

Bullock said that 39 cities have informed his office that they intend to repeal the city tax, while another 45 said they will retain it.
