'I'D WALK A MILE TO THE CIRCUS' — Camels were busy eating lunch and talking over the Shrine Circus due to perform here at 3:15 p.m. and 8 p.m. Said one camel to the other, "It hasn't rained here much this year because the hay is dry. Surely it won't rain today."

Baum endorses Stenholm

By MARJ CARPENTER

Charles Stenholm, Democratic candidate for Congressman of the sprawling 17th District, was endorsed here today by Jim Baum, who opposed him in the bid for the Democrat nomination in the Primary.

Baum, who carried 75 per cent of Howard County in the Democratic Primary in a field of seven candidates, said here today, "I strongly endorse and will vote for Charles Stenholm for Congress."

Baum gave as his reasons, "He is a hard worker, which I can well attest to since I ran into him so often during the Primaries. He has addressed well the issues in the campaign during the 14 months he has been campaigning."

"But more than that, I find him a good man, and a shy-but-forceful man who would make us a good representative in Congress. I predict that he will have a long and fruitful career — that he will be a leader in Congress and not just a voice and a vote — and that he will represent well our many diversified interests — especially in agriculture, and this is a strong agriculture district."

Baum was accompanied by his wife, Margaret, to the Chamber of Commerce office today where he stated, "I would like to thank my supporters from the primary and urge everyone of them to support Charles Stenholm as our best choice for Congress."

Stenholm spoke first, stating, "I am glad to be back in Howard County again so soon. I spoke this morning at a breakfast in Gail and came in here today, particularly happy because of the announcement that is to be made here."

Stenholm stated, "Jim Baum is my good friend and a good opponent and we were constantly crossing each other's paths during the campaign.

"One thing that I like about the Democratic Party is that it usually offers a choice in the Primaries and certainly with seven candidates, the Democrats in the 17th District had a choice. We addressed the issues for months as we campaigned," he added.

"My opponent, on the other hand, had no opponent until after the primary run-off. He has been hollering a lot around the district that I am hiding out and not addressing the issues. I have been talking about the issues for months."

Stenholm went on to point out that the main domestic issue remains inflation and that the main foreign issue is defense.

He spoke "prayerfully of the decisions made at Camp David" and said, "We must pray and hope for peace. But we also must keep a strong defense and be number two to no nation."

Israel casts doubt on Mideast settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cracks began to appear today in the fragile structure of Mideast peace fashioned at Camp David, as Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed I. Kamel resigned and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin differed with U.S. officials about Israel's right to put new settlements on the West Bank.

Reports of Kamel's resignation were confirmed by knowledgeable American officials, who expressed fear it was an indication that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat could not sell the agreement to the Arab world.

Kamel became foreign minister after Ismail Fahmy resigned last year in protest of Sadat's initial peace overture to Israel.

Begin, speaking in Hebrew to an audience limited to Israeli reporters, cast more doubt on the durability of the agreement when he said Israel had made no commitment to establish no new settlements on the West Bank during the five-year transition period envisaged by the agreement.

After Begin, Sadat and President Carter signed the agreement Sunday night, American officials told reporters that Israel had committed itself to establishing no new settlements during the negotiations for Palestinian autonomy in the region.

Begin also told the Israeli press that Israel planned to maintain a military presence in the West Bank area even after the transition period to insure Israeli security.

He also disclosed that the United States had promised to build Israel two new airbases in the Negev Desert to replace those in the Sinai being returned to Egyptian control.

There was no immediate explanation of the apparent discrepancy between Begin's version of the agreement and that of the U.S. officials.

Meanwhile, Carter, claiming success "far beyond any expectations" at his Camp David summit, plans to solicit support from Congress for the peace framework he signed with Begin and Sadat.

Carter was to address Congress tonight in joint session at 8 p.m. EDT. The ABC, NBC and CBS networks all said they would televise the speech live.

At an emotion-packed White House ceremony, Carter joined Prime Minister Begin and President Sadat in formally adopting a wide-ranging accord Sunday that Carter said "will provide that Israel may live in peace within secure borders."

Also initialed was a companion document that envisions the negotiation of a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel within three months.

The summit agreements won immediate and nearly unanimous praise from Democrats and Republicans on Capitol Hill. Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., chairman of the Middle East subcommittee, called them "an excellent beginning."

But Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., one of a small group of senators invited to the White House for the signing ceremony, expressed concern over possible criticism from Egypt's enemies who he said "will do everything they can to torpedo" the accords.

Although the Congress has no direct role in implementation of the agreements, Carter and his summit partners are seeking moral support for their efforts.

American officials said Carter, Sadat and Begin agreed to nothing that would call for American military involvement in carrying out the Camp David accords.

The dramatic proposal for an Egyptian-Israeli treaty may not sit well with Egypt's Arab neighbors because it would involve a separate peace that would leave unsettled Israel's historic conflict with other Arab neighbors — Jordan, Syria and Lebanon.

Ignoring this and other uncertainties, Begin turned to Sadat and proposed, "Let us promise each other we shall do it earlier than within three months."

Although sharp differences remain, the prospect of peace between Egypt and Israel by Christmas was a major surprise, made more dramatic by the deep secrecy imposed during the negotiations.

Carter, who was flanked by the two Mideast leaders, acknowledged "there are still great difficulties that remain and many hard issues to be settled."

In sketching one of the key agreements, Carter said Israel would end its military rule of the West Bank of the Jordan River over a five-year period, while retaining some military outposts.

The Palestinian Arabs now living under Israeli occupation there and in the Gaza Strip would choose their own "self-governing authority" and participate in negotiations to determine their future.

A major question left unresolved was whether concessions offered by Israel to the Palestinian Arabs will draw Jordan's King Hussein into the peace process.

Carter said he hoped "the foresight and wisdom" demonstrated by Sadat and Begin will guide all nations "as they continue to strive toward peace."

On the Sinai front, Carter said Israel would withdraw its forces more quickly, under terms of the proposed treaty that would make Egypt the first Arab nation to grant formal diplomatic recognition to the 30-year-old Jewish state.

On leaving Camp David at the end of 12 days of marathon talks that often stretched into the small hours of morning, Begin and Sadat beamed and waved toward reporters and photographers as Carter escorted them to a waiting helicopter.

The trio flew direct to the White House, where Rosalynn Carter greeted each of them with a kiss.

At the East Room ceremony, broadcast live to the nation, the three men sat together before a gathering of dignitaries at a small table, the flags of their countries behind them.

Carter conceded the arduous summit produced moments when "there was a danger that human energy would fail, or patience would be exhausted, or good will would run out."

Council will meet at 9 a.m. Tuesday

A special meeting of the Big Spring City Council will be held 9 a.m. Tuesday in council chambers to discuss transfer of Industrial Park property to the city.

The council will consider a resolution authorizing Mayor Wade Choate to make a formal application to the General Services Administration for most former Webb AFB properties.

"This will be the formal dedication of these properties from the GSA to Big Spring," said Choate. "We will request all properties except those required for the prison, and the hospital," he added.

This, according to the mayor, will include all industrial property and all Federal Aviation Administration property at the park.

Griffin backed by TEA

By BOB BURTON

The Big Spring School District practiced "impermissible racial prejudice" in June, 1977, when it did not renew black teacher-coach James Griffin's contract, according to a Texas Education Agency (TEA) announcement in Austin.

In a release from the TEA today, hearing officer John R. Guemple, Deputy Assistant Commissioner of Education, has recommended to Commissioner of Education M. L. Brockette that Griffin's petition over the non-renewal of his 77-78 contract be granted. The TEA hearing on the petition took place December 8, 1977.

A formal letter notifying the school district of the action has not yet been received in Big Spring Superintendent Lynn Hise declined to comment until formal notice was received.

According to the TEA, the district has 20 days to file an "exception" to the recommendation with Brockette. Following that, the commissioner will make his decision, which can then be appealed to the State Board of Education for final TEA ruling. After that, appeal would be into civil court.

But while the preliminary recommendation is not final, the TEA has apparently come down on the side of the black coach who alleged racial discrimination against former athletic director Don Robbins.

Robbins, now a vice principal at Big Spring high school, said, "I just did my job as athletic director. I'm not involved in that program any more; I'm just going to do the job I have facing me now."

When asked if Griffin's potential return to the high school's teaching or coaching ranks would cause him any problems, Robbins replied only, "No."

Griffin, who was basketball coach for the Steers from 75 through 77, and was the only black head coach in District 5-4A, said today he would accept a position in the Big Spring school system if it was offered to him.

Griffin, who also had not yet received formal word of the TEA action, declined further comment.

The school district decided not to renew Griffin's contract in June, 1977. Griffin had coached the Steer basketball team for two years and taught at the high school for four years prior to the non-renewal. According to Superintendent Hise, the decision not to rehire Griffin at that time was based on the recommendation of high school principal John Smith and athletic director Robbins. And according to officials, Griffin had been closeted with former superintendent Emmet McKenzie four times during the 76-77 school year for discussions on his performance.

But Griffin, who has cited two quotes using derogatory terms for blacks and attributed them to Robbins, said at the June meeting, "If there are just reasons for my contract not being renewed, I'd like to know them. My coaching was the best I could do, and I felt my teaching was improving."

Griffin is represented by Odessa attorney Gerald Fugit. The school district is represented by Mike McKinney, local attorney.

Action / reaction: Is it required?

Q. About stopping for a funeral procession. Courtesy or law?
A. Texas law does not require motorists to stop for funeral processions. However, some other states have laws granting funerals the right of way. Allowing members of a funeral procession to pass uninterrupted is considered a gesture of courtesy. Motorists approaching a funeral procession from the opposite direction would probably be provoking better safety habits by continuing on their way.

Offbeat: They're covering themselves

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans City Council is going under cover.
Noting citizens were "becoming increasingly belligerent and hostile toward elected officials," the City Council passed a resolution requiring councilmen to wear helmets during council meetings.
The helmets are intended as protection from disgruntled voters and flying barbs, aspersions and vilifications, the tongue-in-cheek resolution said.
After Councilman Frank Friedler read his resolution, the seven councilmen solemnly donned hard hats.

Tops on TV: Competition

It's another night for premieres. "Welcome Back, Kotter" has competition in a new show, "WKRP in Cincinnati," about a wacky radio station. It starts at 7 p.m. This one's on CBS. At 8 p.m. the New England Patriots meet a weakened Baltimore Colt team on "ABC's Monday Night Football." The movie "Audrey Rose," appearing at the same time on NBC, bombed only last year on the big screen, and hasn't gotten any better.

Iran suffers Activity intensifies as aftershocks Fair opening nears from quake

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A series of aftershocks rumbled through northeastern Iran today where 15,000 people were reported dead or injured from an earthquake that demolished 40 villages and badly damaged 60 others on Saturday. Officials said they feared the death toll from the quake, which measured 7.7 on the Richter scale and was the strongest recorded this year, would rise when reports were received from the more remote areas. The new tremors caused panic in the region about 400 miles southeast of Tehran and fears of another major quake. The official Pars news agency said two-thirds of the 12,000 residents of the city of Tabas died and most of the survivors were injured seriously. It said several thousand people in villages surrounding Tabas, epicenter of the quake, were believed buried in the rubble of their homes. The area is an agricultural region noted for dates, oranges and grain and is located on the edge of the Kaveer Desert. Carnivals could be seen pushing their mechanical arms toward the sky above the roofs of the county fair barns, an indicator of the almost frantic activity going on inside the exhibit and livestock buildings. In preparation for the 3 p.m. opening of the Howard County Fair, exhibit booths were being constructed and decorated and fair officials were taking entries to the various contests, displaying items of every description on tables, shelves and walls in the main exhibit building. There seemed to be contest for almost everybody, with exhibitors bringing pickled okra, garden vegetables, cotton stalks, cooked items, handmade clothing and craft items, paintings, photographs, pets and more to enter in hopes of taking home awards for their efforts. Official judging of the divisions began at 2 p.m., with the fair barn opening to the general public at 3 p.m. In the livestock building, 4-H and FFA exhibitors were bringing in their barrows to be weighed and tagged by fair officials. Then came the time-consuming task of rearing the animals for the show. Approximately 60 were expected to enter the event, and arena. Barrow judging is set for 7 p.m. tonight, with the premium sale to begin at 7 p.m. Tuesday. The Shrine Circus will provide an additional attraction, with 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. performances in the rodeo bowl tonight. Tickets are available from any Lion Club member. Tickets for the Agri-Business Appreciation Barbecue, free to farm and ranch families in the county, are still available at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce. The barbecue begins at 5 p.m. in the center barn. Individuals wishing to enter the county domino championship tournament can contact A. A. Cooper or Roy Bennett. For entering the horse show or barrel race, scheduled for Saturday, contact Wanda Driver. Those wishing to enter the county roping should contact Robert Ragan or Skipper Driver, while entries in the washer pitching and tobacco chewing contests can be made by contacting Bruce Nichols, 353-4565, or any other member of the Four County Young Farmers.

A major accident at 3rd and Birdwell at 7:30 a.m. today sent Frank James Moore, Rt. 1, to the Malone Hogan Hospital emergency room where he was treated and released for bruises and lacerations. Moore was the driver of a pickup, while Jack Marion Boyd, 3701 W. Hwy. 80, driver of construction vehicle involved in the accident was not injured. The truck belonged to M&M Contractors.

Whitton jailed here for rape

Gene Swafford Whitton, 33, Chaparral Trailer Park, is being held in the Howard County jail under $15,000 bond on charges of rape. The bond was set by Justice of the Peace Gus Ochotorena after charges were filed in his office alleging that Swafford had molested a 12-year-old relative. He apparently turned himself in to authorities after he learned of the charges Friday night.

Odessans seek U.S. probe

ODESSA — Three Odessa residents are in Washington today where they planned to press for federal prosecution in the Larry Lozano death. Their visit coincided with a reception planned for some 600 Hispanic guests at the White House by Mrs. Rosalynn Carter, wife of the president. The Odessans making the trip were Leonard Garcia and Tino Sanchez, both of the Committee for Justice, and Joe Delgado of the Brown Berets, Odessa chapter. Lozano died while a prisoner in an Ector County jail cell, the result of multiple head wounds. Sheriff's deputies claimed Lozano injured himself by beating his head against a cell door.

Hill approves resolutions

Yarborough sniping cheered

The "old war horse" former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough captured repeated cheers at the state Democratic convention in Fort Worth Saturday as he lashed Republicans. Seventy-five-year-old Yarborough, obviously enjoying his role as elder statesman for the party, fired his first acid tongue shots at U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas; GOP gubernatorial nominee Bill Clements and Republican attorney general nominee Jim Baker.

"A bunch of fugitives from Watergate," Yarborough, who looks like 50 and bounces around like a teenager. "They are trying to take over and if they can take over Texas, they'll get the White House next time," he shouted. "They came out of 'Watergate' and Washington," Yarborough said of political alliances in which each of the Republicans have been involved under the Nixon and Ford administration. (Tower was an advisor to both former presidents. Clements was appointed deputy secretary of defense by Nixon and served in that job until Ford lost his 1976 election attempt. Baker, a deputy secretary of commerce under both, served Ford in 1976 as his national campaign manager.)

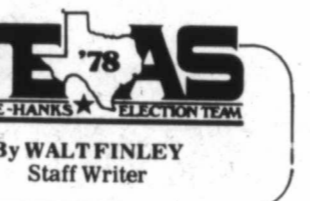

The former senator, who was voted out of office in 1970 after a bitter primary campaign in which U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, assailed him for being a spendthrift liberal, jabbed Republican fiscal policy again and again.

Uncle Sam's debt, he said, skyrocketed under the deficit spending policies of Nixon and Ford administrations, feeding inflation that President Carter is trying to cope with at the present time. Waving his arms as only Yarborough can, he screamed "The Republican Party is the party of the rich and 'feeding fat cats is the most expensive government program in America."

He warned the delegates to be on the watch for secret GOP "agents" dressed and talking like "plain old Joes," but paid to infiltrate Democratic campaigns. Yarborough said also that for the first time in some years, he could vote a straight Democratic ticket.

For the record. A story in Friday's Herald mistakenly reported the results of the referendum taken Tuesday among school district employees. The story reported 243 employees in favor of the present Social Security system and 255 against. The story intended to say 243 voted in favor of withdrawing from the present Social Security system and 255 against.

The Herald regrets any inconvenience caused by this omission.

By WALT FINLEY Staff Writer

Without "worrying," "I always voted the straight ticket," he said, "but I had to look me up in many of them because I didn't trust (former governors) Allan Shives and John Connally and sure enough, they turned around." Even several ex-foes of Yarborough admitted it was Attorney General John Hill's convention, but Yarborough received the greatest reception accorded a speaker. Yarborough offered to speak in Howard County "anytime I'm invited." "After all, Howard County has been good to me," he added. "I've always carried Howard County."

GUBERNATORIAL candidate Hill's hand-picked successor to outgoing party chairman Calvin Guest, Billy Goldberg of Houston, was elected by acclamation as the new state chairman.

Darlyn Davis of Fort Worth, the incumbent vice chairman, faced a threat to the party tradition that sets aside the vice chairman ship for a black woman, but trounced her white opponents. Mrs. Billie Marie Veach of Burnet, by a vote of 2,041 to 1,106. (The chairmanship goes traditionally to a white male.)

Despite the fact the Davis-Veach contest had been heralded in advance as a test of strength for both conservatives and liberals, an earlier vote on a controversial resolution dulled the edge before the convention decided the vice chairmanship contest.

The "really big" test came earlier Saturday afternoon on a move to get the party to encourage union organization and collective bargaining by public employees, an action Hill said

No new taxes, property tax relief and reform to achieve equity and fairness. Equal educational opportunity, more state aid to poor districts, higher teacher salaries and lower teacher-student ratios. Better state budget management, including review power for the governor, and reduction in the state payroll. Higher professional standards and higher pay for state law officers and counseling for rape victims. Agricultural use taxation of farmland, 100 per cent parity and reduction of foreign food products. Deregulation of oil and gas prices and opposition to mandatory allocation of intrastate oil. Strict enforcement of nursing home care laws. Local industrial development bonds. Crackdowns on welfare fraud and a cut in welfare administrative costs. Requirement for financial disclosure by all elected public officials.

Two killed in collision

STEELE, Ala. (AP) — Two people were killed and seven others were injured when a car trying to pass in a no-passing zone in foggy weather hit a motorcycle, then crashed head-on into a van, police said. State police Sgt. Jim Vinson said three of the injured were in critical condition after the crash Sunday on Interstate 59.

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — An official of the Iowa Southern Baptist Fellowship says Southern Baptists should not buy religious books, records and music from WORD Inc. — a subsidiary of ABC. "It seems the height of audacity to us that the same company that produced 'Soap' and now is planning to fill the 1979 season with 'girlie shows' is also in the Christian publishing business," the Rev. Mike McCrocklin wrote in his fellowship's newspaper. WORD officials say they don't like the television series "Soap" either. But they said ABC gives them a free hand with their products — as long as WORD makes a profit.

Long-term position pays

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Women who see work as a long-term commitment are higher paid than women who view their jobs as a waystation before marriage or childbirth, Ohio State University researchers say. Women who intend to stay at work tend to seek more education and on-the-job training, and get better jobs, says the U.S. Labor Department-funded study by economics Professors Steven H. Sandell and David Shapiro.

Jail escapee captured

COLDWATER, Mich. (AP) — A jail escapee was captured by sheriff's deputies who found him wrapped in a bedspread, hiding in the closet of a home just three blocks from the jail from which he and another prisoner fled last week. Deputy Gary Abbott said a police informant directed deputies to the home Sunday and residents allowed them to search the premises. Abbott said authorities found Fred Harter, 35, of Coldwater, huddled on the floor of an upstairs closet, hiding under a bedspread. "I stuck my gun in his face and I think it scared him," Abbott said. Harter did not resist arrest, officers said.

For the record

A story in Friday's Herald mistakenly reported the results of the referendum taken Tuesday among school district employees. The story reported 243 employees in favor of the present Social Security system and 255 against. The story intended to say 243 voted in favor of withdrawing from the present Social Security system and 255 against. The Herald regrets any inconvenience caused by this omission.

Confucius upgraded in home country

The Communist countries have a way of projecting their international figures either as supermen or super ogres. There's no happy medium.

Josef Stalin was deified during his lifetime by the Politburo, then scourged by some who succeeded him as the top man in the party. More recently, Russian historians have been told to treat his image more benignly.

THE CHINESE REDS are no different. Take Confucius, for example. He has long been regarded as the sagest Chinese of them all.

However, a few years ago, someone in China started an intense campaign against the celebrated philosopher. The People's Daily went so far as to characterize Confucius as "an arch-reactionary spokesman for the stinking aristocracy."

In recent months, however, criticism of Confucius is out and praise is in. The campaign to defile his good name was blamed on the "Gang of Four," which ultimately fell from grace in the eyes of the Chinese.

Someone of high rank obviously talked to the editors of People's Daily. The news periodical now is prone to recall that the late, great Chairman

Mao (who up to now could do no wrong) often quoted from the philosopher and found particular merit in his attitude of inquiring into everything.

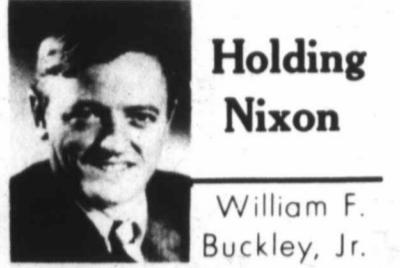

The notorious "Gang of Four," which included Mao's widow, Chang Ching, actually was trying to get at the late premier, Chou En-lai, so the story goes. Chou was a Mandarin who personified the Confucian ideal of an educated, aristocratic ruler.

IT IS NO coincidence that the polishing of the Confucius reputation dovetails into the People Republic's interest in education.

Peking is modernizing its own educational system and wants to send thousands of young Chinese for advanced study in Western Europe and the U.S.

The great contribution of Confucius to Chinese culture was the inculcation of respect for learning and the creation of an educated elite from which the Chinese administrators, the world's first bureaucracy, have been drawn for more than two thousand years.

What it amounts to is recognition again that a little knowledge is by no means as dangerous a thing as too little.

Holding Nixon

William F. Buckley, Jr.

Anyone with a mortician's interest in the decomposition of socialist thought should have a look at an essay in the current New Republic by Professor Irving Howe, who struggles mightily to give artificial respiration to all the old clichés, and ends by reciting a child's garden of socialist verses, as if nothing had happened all these years to stimulate his mind. Reading him is like reading Beatrice and Sidney Webb. If we do not succeed in restoring capital punishment for particularly sadistic murderers, I will settle for sentencing them to read the collected work of Beatrice and Sidney, though most people would go gratefully to the chair instead.

BUT PROFESSOR HOWE inadvertently makes one interesting point. In his pursuit of Irving Kristol, Howe fires his Big Bertha. And you can tell, it isn't an attack fueled entirely by ideological differences. You see, Irving Howe and Irving Kristol were students together at CCNY and Irving Howe recruited Irving Kristol into the Young People's Socialist League in the late thirties. Subsequently, Irving Kristol grew up, and Irving Howe, understandably, resents this.

So Howe writes about Kristol, generally accepted as the leader of the neo-conservative movement, author of "Two Cheers for Capitalism," and editor of and founder of The Public Interest: "Kristol...imprudently endorsed Richard Nixon as the candidate of 'prudence.' I assume that conservative thinkers drawn to theories of Guilt can yield to the smaller experience of shame."

It is appropriate, I think, to make a general statement at this point about Richard Nixon. It is everywhere acknowledged that Nixon is a tempter, a "comeback" man. What is meant by "a comeback" isn't that he intends to run for president, or even for alderman. It means that he feels that his confinement in San Clemente is over, and that if he desires to travel to Kentucky, or to New York City, he should feel free to do so without previously asking the permission of Irving Howe or even the Washington Post. If the government of Australia does not desire Mr. Nixon to travel there, that is a matter between Australia and Mr. Nixon. The fact that Australia should recognize that Nixon is other than merely a U.S. citizen is itself indirect acknowledgment that he is still a considerable political presence.

NOW THE POINT Mr. Howe is seeking to make is that anybody who voted for Nixon in 1972, in preference to George McGovern, should be at least ashamed, preferably guilty. This is a venture in retroactive ideological opportunism appropriate to people who defend the positions Irving Howe defends.

One must assume that Irving Kristol did not know, when he voted for Nixon in November 1972, that Nixon was implicated in Watergate. But, one would think it would be at the very least "prudent" to vote for Nixon in November, 1972 — even if one had had secret information that he had attempted to rifle the headquarters of the Democratic Party, the alternative being to vote for McGovern. What Nixon did he should not have done, and few men have suffered more acutely for their sins. To suggest that anyone should have been ashamed of voting for Nixon in 1972 is on the order of saying that Mr. and Mrs. Borden should have known better than to breed Lizzie.

The shamelessly seductive Shana Alexander, last Sunday on CBS's 60 Minutes, spoke most uncharitably about Mr. Nixon's leaving San Clemente. Exactly three days later, she attended a party celebrating the 15th anniversary of 60 Minutes. And guess who one of the guests at that party was? Gordon Liddy, chief executive of Watergate.

"Hold on! Wait! Surely you're not serious-s-s-s-s-s-s!"

Most epileptics gain good control

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you please write about epilepsy? My son has it and has experienced prejudice in school and employment. He is normal in every way except when he has seizures, which are controlled by his pills. Hopefully people will be more informed about this in the future. —D.D.

Epilepsy is a neurologic disorder featured by varying degrees of seizures or convulsions. Likewise the frequency of attacks vary widely and may last a few seconds to several minutes. Mild (petit mal) seizures are usually found in children, who improve at adolescence. Some never have them again. Other epileptics must use controls all their lives.

Much of the ancient superstition about epilepsy has been overcome, although, as you know, vestiges remain to make life difficult for the epileptic. It is not a sign of mental illness, and no longer need be relegated to the closet.

Statistics indicate that 85 per cent can be controlled to the point of ending their seizures with strict adherence to their medication therapy.

The honor roll of epileptics who have attained prominence in the professions would dispel most of the prejudices about their abilities to perform. People are still shocked to learn that a well-known athlete or other performer is an epileptic. They should not be. The only occupations barred to them are obvious ones in which attacks would pose a public danger — i.e. airplane pilot, bus driver. This is just a matter of common sense, and epileptics do not usually seek such employment.

Several national organizations are dedicated to improving public understanding of epilepsy and the telephone directory of any large city lists local chapters. Employers can get any information they need as to the employability of epileptics. More should do so.

Tomorrow, I'll discuss how an observer of a "grand mal" epileptic seizure can be of most help.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have your material on emphysema. Nowhere in it do I find reference to surgery on the vagus nerve to keep the bronchial tubes open without use of medicine. Haven't you heard of it? —F.M.Y.

I haven't heard of it, and wonder where you have.

The vagus nerve has to do with (among other things) regulation of normal breathing, but it is not involved in the emphysema problem. That is the inability of tiny bronchioles (air tubes) to contract properly. In emphysema they have lost their elasticity. As a result, the lung's air sacs fill up, but cannot be emptied. Breathing becomes difficult.

Cutting of nerves will not reverse this deterioration. In fact, nothing will. Breathing exercises help make the most of what elasticity remains. I hope this clarifies the matter for you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My wife and I have just been married and we plan to have children. We are going to the doctor for fertility tests. How will the doctor do such a test? How does he bring about an ejaculation? Does he use massage, drugs, or what? —K.G.

Semen specimens are obtained in two ways. In one, the couple refrains from sexual intercourse (for about five days) prior to the test. The husband masturbates to obtain the necessary ejaculate. Prostate massage or drugs are not necessary. In the other, where the female is also involved, the couple engages in sexual intercourse, preferably at the woman's mid-cycle. At that time cervical mucus is highest and most receptive to the sperm. The mucus is analyzed as soon as possible to determine the quantity and quality of sperm present.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Explain the difference between a simple and compound fracture, please. —J.M.

A simple fracture is also called a "closed" fracture. It means the bone is damaged but the skin is not punctured. In a compound fracture a fragment of bone has pierced the skin.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son's little toe on one foot has turned under the toe next to it since birth. Is it true that as long as it doesn't make the child uncomfortable there is nothing to worry about? Is this inherited? I understand my aunt's toe turned under this way. —Mrs. K.M.

Although it is giving him no trouble now, this matter should be corrected,

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have real problems with the miracles, especially in the Old Testament. I don't really understand how God could do such things, and wonder if they are just fables. —J.B.

DEAR J.B.: We have no grounds for calling them fables — the case is quite the opposite. I think the real problem is that our modern, scientific way of looking at things says everything that happens must have some natural explanations. There seems to be no room for miracles.

The Bible takes a different view. It tells us first of all that God created the universe — including all the so-called scientific laws that usually govern it. "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth" (Genesis 1:1). Think of that — think how all-powerful God must be if He could create the whole world! The Bible tells us that "since the creation of the World God's invisible qualities — his eternal power and divine nature — have been clearly seen, being understood from what has been made" (Romans 1:20, New International Version).

The Bible also tells us that when unusual circumstances require it, God may set aside temporarily the very laws of nature He created. If you understand how powerful God is, this will be no problem to you. Whenever this happens in the Bible, it always happens for a purpose.

But the greatest miracle is that God loves us. He sent His son into the world to show us that love, and to pay the price for our sins so we could be forgiven and restored into a right relationship with God. In His wonderful love, He comes into our lives when we come in faith and trust to Christ, and He changes us. If you have never come to know the God of the Universe personally, I invite you to come to Christ right now.

Denim is better

Around the rim

James Werrell

My wife swore that she would hang tenaciously onto her Vermont roots, and not become Texanized when we moved down here.

But I think she is slipping. The other day I asked her what she thought about all the brouhaha about the problems in the Far East. "You better believe it," she said, "The Yankees are closing on the Red Sox, and I'm at my wits' end."

IT'S ALL RELATIVE, I guess. When you're plunked down inside the borders of the gargantuan state that we call home, the whole rest of the world seems just a little farther away. As the old saying goes: East is East and West is West, and the twain doesn't meet except in a certain Chicago suburb, and you should see the troubles they have there.

A fine example of this recently crept into the pages of that noble rag, "The Cincinnati Enquirer." In a sort-of Dear Abby for businessmen column entitled Making Good, a Mr. S.R. of Dallas writes for a bit of eastern advice.

In his letter S.R. explains that he will travel to New York within the month to discuss the financing of his company with a large and foreboding Wall Street firm. The letter states that the company has shown a definite interest in S.R., and wants to get him to the "Big Apple" to scrutinize him in the flesh.

The letter continues: "My business partner says that before I go north I should buy two or three conservative blue or gray suits and wear them with white shirts and conservative ties.

"That's not the real me," complains

S.R. "and those men would probably know it. I believe that I would be more impressive if I showed up as I am, and I intend to do just that: in a western suit, bolita tie, and my cowboy boots."

Well you'd better not, wrote the people from back east, wagging their fingers at the misguided S.R.

"If you show up in traditional cowboy garb in the Northeast, establishment bankers will not look upon it as a sign of honesty but rather as a lack of sophistication."

What's the matter? Haven't they ever heard of Gene Autry?

Although the Easterners are probably right about the reception S.R. from Dallas would receive, that's still no excuse for foisting that dreared piece of apparel, the tie, on an unsuspecting Texan.

HERE THEY are promoting, among other things, a crummy strip of cloth that has long outlived its usefulness, and their only explanation is, "That's just the way it's done, old boy."

If clothes make the man then I'd rather be made of denim than a polyester blend. It reminds me of a story about one of the members of the Coors family dynasty. This particular man was in the habit of traveling around Golden, Colorado, dressed in a pair of jeans, a work shirt and dusty boots, behind the wheel of an equally dusty pickup.

A visitor commented to one of the natives that for a wealthy man Mr. Coors sure dressed tacky.

"With all that money, why do you think he does it?" asked the visitor.

"Why, hell, he's the only guy in town who can afford to," replied the native.

Standards suffer

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The average homeowner mowing his lawn on a weekend afternoon probably doesn't realize he is pushing a piece of dangerous machinery. Power lawn mowers cause more than 150,000 injuries a year. Most of these are nasty accidents in which a person's fingers or toes are cut off by the blade of the power motor.

For years, the Consumer Product Safety Commission has been tinkering with a proposed safety standard that would make lawn mowers safer to operate. Now that the agency is about to approve the new standard, the industry has launched a last-ditch lobbying effort to knock it out.

THE COMMISSION wants manufacturers to design their lawn mowers so the blade will automatically stop when a person lets go of the machine. The government of officials also want to protect users against being hit by small flying objects propelled through the motor. These injuries have cost an estimated $350 million a year in hospital costs and lost salaries.

But insiders say the manufacturers have refused to concede that a mandatory standard is needed. "The industry has just been totally uncooperative," grumbled one commission staffer.

Now the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute is trying to convince Congress to pull the plug on the safety commission's efforts. The trade group urged its members in a confidential dispatch "to contact...your elected representative and senator in Washington, expressing your opposition to a mandatory safety standard that will be profoundly damaging to the interest of the industry."

The commission is "irresponsible," says the letter. "It is essential that we seek the assistance of senators and congressmen who represent OPEI members to ask them to intervene on our behalf...To assist you in your personal lobbying effort, I am attaching a list of key congressmen plus their phone numbers and addresses." The letter even included a sample list of questions to pose to the legislators.

Meanwhile, one manufacturer, the Toro Company, has hired a former chairman of the safety commission, Richard Simpson, to advise the firm on the safety of its lawn mowers and other products. A Toro spokesman told us that Simpson is "uniquely qualified" to handle the safety issue, but is not lobbying directly before the commission.

Footnote: An OPEI spokesman said the group opposes the new standard "because it tells the manufacturer what device he has to put on his machine. It stifles innovation and will be more costly to consumers." He also contended the new rules will increase the cost of each lawn mower by more than $30, and that there are cheaper ways to make the machines safer.

SCHOOL JUNKET: Several weeks ago, the school superintendents from all 50 states flew to South Padre Island, off the coast of Texas, for a conference on education. They met with U.S. Education Commissioner Ernest Boyer, pondered weighty issues with academic experts, and spent eight days in the sun and surf.

The taxpayers, not surprisingly, picked up the $126,000 tab for the convention, which is held every summer in places like San Diego and New Hampshire. In addition to travel and hotel expenses, each school chief was paid $100 a day in "consulting fees."

THE FEDERAL contract to run the conference, meanwhile, was awarded without competitive bidding to the school superintendents' own fraternity, the Council of Chief State School Officers. Its budget included $40,000 in consulting fees for its own members, $7,500 for a director; $10,000 for other outside consultants; $6,000 for fiscal management; and $4,500 for staff assistants and materials.

The budget attempted to justify the program as being "specifically oriented to the needs of the Chiefs...the major portion of time is devoted to interaction among the Chiefs."

A spokesman in the Office of Education told us the conference is necessary to "update the chiefs professionally and keep them intellectually alert." He said the consulting fees are justified because "they are obligated to do research, to read up on a topic and discuss it with expert speakers. I have never seen them goofing off at these things as you might expect."

The spokesman added that the school chiefs' group "is best qualified to handle this for us." To complete the cozy arrangements, incidentally, one of Commissioner Boyer's top assistants is about to become executive director of the school chiefs' organization.

BRITISH BOOST: British intelligence officers during World War II helped boost Yugoslav dictator Josip Broz Tito into power by deliberately portraying his rivals as German collaborators, according to newly declassified British documents.

Tito became safely ensconced in Belgrade when the Allies abandoned his main adversary, non-communist Gen. Draza Mihailovich, because of his alleged lack of aggression against the Nazis. In truth, the documents reveal, Mihailovich inflicted heavy casualties against the Nazis. But British intelligence officers who sympathized with Tito and the communist cause kept this information from their superiors.

The Tito-Mihailovich rivalry is examined in detail in an upcoming book entitled "Patriot or Traitor: The Case of General Mihailovich."

A short story; living longer

The shorties in this life may get short-changed in many things but they have one advantage over the long drinks of water — longevity.

According to the Science Digest Magazine, who took the measure of 750 individuals who had made their marks in history, the lifespan of the people six feet in height or more is shorter than those measuring 5-6 or less.

The short ones averaged 11 per cent longer lives than the lanky types — at least those in the public eye, like boxers, ballplayers, business men and players.

COLORADO CITY — Charges will likely be filed this week following a two-truck accident Sunday which killed two people and injured four others northwest of Colorado City.

The mishap occurred six tenths of a mile from the Scurry County line on SH 350. Dead are Christobal G. Rodriguez, 56, and Bela Bisenta, 63, both of Colorado City.

Rodriguez's late model pickup was in collision at 3:10 a.m., with one driven by George A. Wortham, 37, of Andrews.

DPS trooper James Burson, who investigated, said the two trucks were headed in opposite directions when the accident occurred. Wortham was taken to a Snyder hospital, where he is listed in fair condition.

Three other occupants of the Rodriguez vehicle were hurt. They were Daniel Rodriguez, 8, Lupe Rodriguez, 10, and Lynn Rodriguez, 7. All were taken to Root Memorial Hospital in Colorado City where they are listed in fair condition. The three children are Christobal Rodriguez's grandchildren.

Burson said that the elder Rodriguez and his grandchildren were thrown from their vehicle. Rodriguez was pronounced dead at the scene. Bisenta died at 7 a.m., Sunday in Root Memorial Hospital.

Burson declined to say exactly what kind of charges would be filed.

Hustle 3

Real leaders

By Bill Albright

Executive Vice President, Big Spring Area Ch. of Commerce Industrial Growth and Development

This week I have two stories for you. These are both TRUE stories. They might have happened in Big Spring; perhaps they did! I would hope they didn't! But, if they do occur in the future, that's up to you.

First, an industrial prospect came to town. He was the owner of a small midwestern plant employing 350 people and manufacturing various electronic components for a very large appliance firm. His purpose in moving his plant was to escape the rigors of the harsh mid-western winter and reduce energy costs. In addition, the large appliance firm had recently established a gigantic assembly plant in the southwest and shipping costs could be reduced.

He met with the local industrial team and was provided the routine information. He was shown the available properties. You could see that he was pleased with what he saw. He asked that a contract be drawn and sent to him.

The local team was excited. One of the members thought it would be good for community morale to let the folks know that progress was being made. So the media was notified. In the course of events, the name of company was mentioned.

Somehow, either through a local contact or someone from the large appliance firm, no one will ever know, information of the proposed move reached the hometown of our industrial prospect. Naturally, that mid-western community was "up in arms". They certainly didn't want to lose 350 jobs. Various community factions went to work on the company applying pressure which included financial — labor and even public opinion. Legal suit against the company was threatened.

In the end, the company decided they couldn't afford to move. So "our" town lost 350 potential jobs. This happened a couple of years ago and since that time — the company lost its contracts because of excessive shipping costs, work stoppages due to energy cutbacks and they are now down to 75 employees.

Everyone lost because well meaning people overlooked the need and understanding of Industrial Development security.

The second story is similar in nature. Two men came to town early one morning. They asked a police officer for a good place to have breakfast. He pointed out a nearby restaurant and they headed for the place. It was open; but empty. They sat down. The tablecloth was dirty. They heard loud talk in the kitchen. Finally, a waitress came out and asked, "What do you want?" The men decided they'd better eat nothing touched by human hands, so they ordered boiled eggs. The waitress returned to the kitchen and her argument picked up where it had left off.

One man turned to the other and said, "How long will it take to get to the next town?" The second answered, "Does it matter?" They left. To this day, the Chamber Industrial Team doesn't know why it never again heard from that prospect.

The point of the story is — new business and new industry does judge a community, not only by its leaders, but also by its "leading citizens." Leading citizens are not the folks in City Hall, at the bank or the Chamber. The real leading citizens are those who meet the stranger first: service station attendants, waitresses in restaurants, clerks in motels and sales people in stores. If they are courteous, attentive and hospitable, they will attract not only customers, but visitors who will provide travel dollars and sometimes new jobs.

If you're not a leading citizen — you ought to be. Community growth is four where people attract and please other people.

These stories are not for entertainment. They are for education. They are meant to point out individual faults. They are meant to alert us to be a better process in promoting our great community. We can experience a healthy growth in direct proportion to our positive application of HUSTLE!!! HUSTLE!!! HUSTLE!!!

Amputees aid children

OTTAWA (AP) — With the number of war veterans declining, the War Amps of Canada are finding new challenges helping children who have lost a limb, often at play. As part of the Child Amputee Program, the organization produced a film called "Play Safe," to try to steer children away from situations in which they might lose a limb.

Vantage.

I just won't compromise on taste!

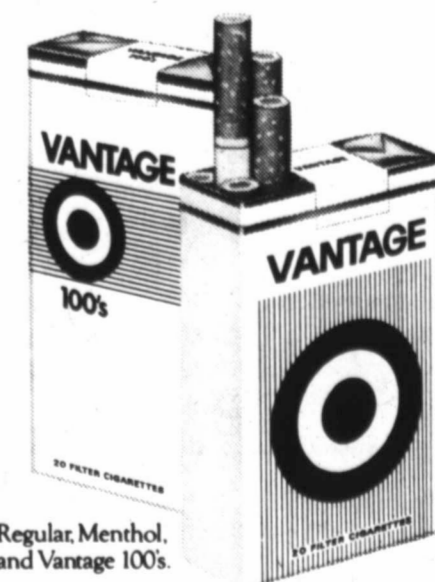

"I'm willing to make some concessions, but taste isn't one of them. Even though I've heard the tar stories, I still want a cigarette with good taste."

"That's why I'm glad I switched to Vantage. With Vantage, I get the taste I smoked for in the first place. And that wasn't easy to find in a low tar."

"For me, Vantage is the best tasting low tar cigarette there is."

Dear Abby

Where Women Can Meet Decent Men

DEAR ABBY: To get right down to the nitty-gritty, how does a reasonably intelligent, fairly attractive 26-year-old single woman meet men? I'm not frantically searching for a husband—or even a "meaningful relationship"—but I wouldn't be adverse to it either.

I don't want a man who's interested only in a one-night stand, but it would be nice to connect with a guy who shares some of my interests and could brighten up my dull, boring life. (I'm a 9-to-5 office worker.) Any ideas?

ROBIN

DEAR ROBIN: I received no less than 100 letters this week asking the same question, so I'll kill 100 "Robins" with one stone and proffer the following:

The best way to meet decent men is through one's work, church, friends and interests—out in the mainstream of life. And no matter how lonely you are, avoid those lonely hearts clubs, singles bars and the phony computer dating services. A girl who's in politics can make many new and interesting friends while gathering names for a petition, registering voters, or working on a campaign.

Don't overlook adult education classes in the evening—particularly subjects that appeal to men. (Scuba diving, aeronautics, auto mechanics, sailing.) You may find that you're the only woman in a class of 30 men. (Whoopee!!!!!!) Sports offer opportunities galore. If you're not keen on outdoor sports, try indoor sports. How about pool or billiards? If you live in a singles apartment with a pool table, pick up the cue. (Ha!) If you don't live in a singles apartment, visit a friend who does. Men hang around good pool players. (They even hang around poor ones so they can teach them. Either way, you can't lose.)

And last but not least—travel. Consider one of those affordable group tours. Get out and see the world, and the world will see YOU!

Above all, don't play games. If you find someone attractive, don't worry about who makes the first move. It's a whole new world out there. Help yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I know that most small boys have a natural aversion to soap and water, but at what age is a boy supposed to start keeping himself reasonably clean?

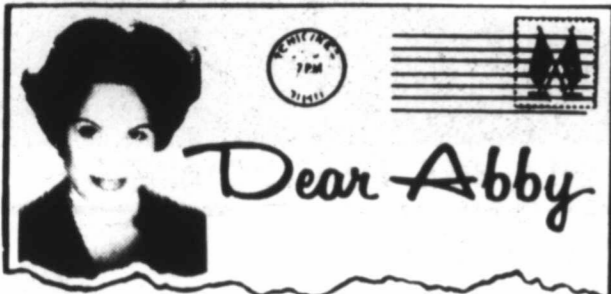

I have a son, 13, and you wouldn't believe how he detests soap and water. And to top it off, he doesn't even want to wear socks. The answer I get is, "None of the guys wear socks anymore, mom!"

When he comes home from school grimy and sweaty, and I tell him to shower before supper, he tells me he had a shower in gym, so he doesn't have to shower at home. And he climbs into bed at night, exhausted, with dirty hair and filthy feet. You should see the bed sheets! You would think he had been working in the coal mines. And he sleeps until the last minute in the morning, so he's too rushed to shower then. Please, Abby, how can I clean up this kid? I don't know how much longer I can take it.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS FAN

DEAR FAN: Cleanliness should not be optional. It should be mandatory, and if your son, at age 13, does not keep himself reasonably clean, offer to give a bath. And when you start undressing him, I'll bet he moves!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LOVES LOVING": Those who love deeply never grow old; they may die of old age, but they die young.

A girl who's in politics can make many new and interesting friends while gathering names for a petition, registering voters, or working on a campaign.

Don't overlook adult education classes in the evening—particularly subjects that appeal to men. (Scuba diving, aeronautics, auto mechanics, sailing.) You may find that you're the only woman in a class of 30 men. (Whoopee!!!!!!) Sports offer opportunities galore. If you're not keen on outdoor sports, try indoor sports. How about pool or billiards? If you live in a singles apartment with a pool table, pick up the cue. (Ha!) If you don't live in a singles apartment, visit a friend who does. Men hang around good pool players. (They even hang around poor ones so they can teach them. Either way, you can't lose.)

And last but not least—travel. Consider one of those affordable group tours. Get out and see the world, and the world will see YOU!

Above all, don't play games. If you find someone attractive, don't worry about who makes the first move. It's a whole new world out there. Help yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I know that most small boys have a natural aversion to soap and water, but at what age is a boy supposed to start keeping himself reasonably clean?

I have a son, 13, and you wouldn't believe how he detests soap and water. And to top it off, he doesn't even want to wear socks. The answer I get is, "None of the guys wear socks anymore, mom!"

When he comes home from school grimy and sweaty, and I tell him to shower before supper, he tells me he had a shower in gym, so he doesn't have to shower at home. And he climbs into bed at night, exhausted, with dirty hair and filthy feet. You should see the bed sheets! You would think he had been working in the coal mines. And he sleeps until the last minute in the morning, so he's too rushed to shower then. Please, Abby, how can I clean up this kid? I don't know how much longer I can take it.

DEAR FAN: Cleanliness should not be optional. It should be mandatory, and if your son, at age 13, does not keep himself reasonably clean, offer to give a bath. And when you start undressing him, I'll bet he moves!

Lying doesn't solve problem

By Robert Wallace Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: My parents are always yelling at me, even for things that are not my fault. Because of this I now lie to them so they won't get mad and yell. I know it is bad to tell lies but I have no other choice.

Now I feel depressed but there is no other way to stop them from yelling at me. Can you help me? — Lisa, Fullerton, Calif.

Lisa: I know the temptation to lie sometimes is great, but lying most often doesn't solve the problem, it only delays and compounds it.

Be honest with your parents no matter how cheerful they yell. It's difficult, but do your best to stay truthful. Your parents' yelling is probably due to their own frustration and failure. You just happen to be the scapegoat.

Dr. Wallace: My parents are going to buy me a German shepherd puppy for my birthday, and I have assured them I will care and be responsible for it. I have never had a pet before, and I know I will love and be kind to it, but just exactly what will my responsibilities be? — Lois, Weirton, W.Va.

Lois: A pet can add companionship, loyalty and love in your life, but you must take on the major responsibilities.

You must feed and care for your dog and this costs money. Your pet must be trained not to destroy valuable property. It must be given room and time to have ample exercise.

And finally, have your pet licensed.

Rams jam Cowboys

By the Associated Press

The Dallas Cowboys are not invincible. All it takes to beat them are an aggressive, hardhitting defense and a good, little quarterback.

The Los Angeles Rams had both ingredients Sunday as they scored twice in the fourth quarter to beat the Cowboys 27-14 and knock the Super Bowl champions from the National Football League's unbeaten ranks.

"Team defense makes the difference," enthused Los Angeles defensive end Jack Youngblood after the Rams picked off four of Roger Staubach's passes and held Dallas to 96 yards rushing, including just 38 yards in 19 carries by Tony Dorsett.

"Sure, we got to No. 33 (Dorsett)," said Youngblood. "When you play like we've been playing, you can stop any one person. We didn't let him run, so that made them throw it. Our coverage was great, so they made mistakes."

And when they made mistakes, the Rams capitalized on them. An interception set up their first TD and a 43-yard interception return by Rod Perry accounted for an insurance score in the closing minutes.

As for the good, little quarterback, the Rams' Pat Haden threw for two touchdowns — a 21-yarder to Ron Jessie in the second quarter and a picturesque 43-yard bomb to Willie Miller to snap a 14-14 tie midway through the final period.

After three weeks, there are five unbeaten teams in the NFL. Besides Los Angeles, the clubs with 3-0 records are the Chicago Bears, who blanked the Detroit Lions 19-0; the Pittsburgh Steelers, who trounced the Cincinnati Bengals 28-3; the Cleveland Browns, who defeated the Atlanta Falcons 24-16, and the Washington Redskins, who beat the St. Louis Cardinals 28-10.

Dallas, aiming for its 10th straight victory, drew even at 14-14 on Staubach's 18-yard scoring pass to Tony Hill after 4:44 of the final period. But the Rams struck right back in four plays, Haden hitting Miller with a beautiful, high-arching pass for the go-ahead score.

The Cowboys tried to come back, but Perry picked off a Staubach pass and threaded his way up the right sideline for the final touchdown. Another interception, by Pat

Thomas with 41 seconds left, ended the Cowboys' last threat.

"It's just one more game, that's all it means," commented Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "It is tremendous for the Rams' confidence. They have a tremendous defense. We were not really inspired going in. They ran over us on the first drive and we didn't recover mentally until it was too late. On the big passes to Jessie, we were in man to man coverage."

"Haden is a good passer when his team is playing and his team is giving him that kind of protection. What this game came down to was the inability of our offensive line to handle their defensive personnel. The Rams put on a good rush constantly."

Rams' Coach Malavasi said, "We didn't do anything differently to contain Dorsett. We just pursued the football. I thought we had a good pass rush on Staubach and toward the end they kept their backs in to help block and that left them with fewer receivers downfield."

The Rams lost defensive back Dave Elmendorf with a chipped bone in his left ankle and he could miss next week's game against Houston.

COWBOY FUMBLE — Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett drops the ball before he reaches the line of scrimmage during second quarter action in their game Sunday at the Los Angeles Coliseum. Larry Brooks (90) Rams' defensive tackle gets set to dive on the ball, but the Cowboys recovered. Rams won 27 to 14.

Pats face injured Colts

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Opportunity knocks tonight for the New England Patriots, who can notch a National Football League victory while divisional rival Baltimore marks time while trying to recover from a series of injuries to key players.

The big question for the Colts in the AFC Eastern Division is how long players — chiefly quarterback Bert Jones — will be out of action with injuries.

"This is a very important game for us, a divisional game," said New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks, whose Patriots are heavily favored in the nationally televised contest.

The Colts were supposed to contend for the playoffs. Instead, minus Jones, they are 0-2, have been outscored 80-0 and are trying to avoid their third rout of the season.

Baltimore Coach Ted Marchibroda figures, "We'll be stronger than ever once we get healthy and the new people get familiar with our system."

Just when that will be, however, Marchibroda isn't sure. Jones, who suffered a shoulder separation in the preseason, is not expected back for two or three more games.

In the meantime, the Patriots have a chance to win a game that would have been a tossup without decimation of such Baltimore starters as offensive linemen George Kuntz and David Taylor, linebackers Stan White and Norm Thompson — and Jones.

Quarterback Bill Troup filled in for Jones in last week's 42-0 loss to Miami. In doing so, he nearly doubled his four years of passing statistics.

No. 3 signal caller Mike Kirkland played the opener, a 38-0 loss to Super Bowl champion Dallas.

New England is 1-1 and

ACU in danger

There's a clear and present danger for defending Lone Star Conference football champion Abilene Christian on the schedule this week and if you don't believe it ask East Texas State.

ACU, the No. 1 ranked NAIA defending national champions, must travel to Cameron University in Oklahoma to play a team that soundly whipped East Texas State 17-7 over the weekend.

And the unbeaten Wildcats are coming off a scare from Northern Colorado.

ACU breezed to a 16-0 lead in the third quarter on two touchdown pass receptions by tight end Kirby Jones then had to bat away a two-point conversion attempt to capture a 16-14 non-conference victory.

No. 2 ranked Angelo State blasted Eastern New Mexico 40-0 behind back Jerry Aldridge's 108 yards rushing and two touchdowns.

Streck wins by stroke

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Obscure Ron Streck, who came into the $200,000 Texas Open in danger of losing his Professional Golfers Association tour card, really hasn't been himself the last couple of days. Just ask Hubert Green, Lon Hinkle and Ben Crenshaw.

Bass tourney held

Ken Sprinkle hauled in the biggest catch to win this month's Big Spring Bass Club Tournament at Twin Buttes Reservoir in San Angelo over the weekend.

A total of 20 fishermen dipped their lines hoping to lure bass. The tourney required a three-fish string each day, with a 14-inch minimum length per fish.

Anglers fished from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, and from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sunday. Although high winds hampered fishing both days, a large number of fish were caught.

Five fish weighing over five pounds were landed, along with 11 over four pounds and several over three pounds. Sprinkle caught the largest fish of the tourney weighing five pounds, 14 ounces.

Mike Ritchey, competing in his first tournament, caught Sunday's biggest fish. It weighed in at five pounds, five ounces.

Other winners included Vic Keyes, second, with a 13-pound, 14 1/2-ounce string; Maxey Ware, third, 12 pounds, 11 1/2 ounces; Mike Ritchey, 8 pounds, 14 ounces; and Howard Stewart, 7 pounds, 11 ounces.

The Bass Club meets on the first Thursday of each month, 7:30 p.m., at the Kentwood Older Adult Center. The next meeting, which will welcome any interested visitors, will be held on Oct. 5.

The program will include a discussion of "Dabbling Techniques With Jig and Lizard." Members will also discuss the Open Tournament to be held in March.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUES., SEPT. 19, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is not the time to take any chances where property and possessions are concerned. Later, you find you are able to think out and organize your various assets and reduce them to a successful long-time success.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't overdo where your special talents are concerned or you could affect your health. Work out a different system with co-workers.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take care you do not argue at home and then you can enjoy hobbies that most appeal to you. Don't take risks where fundamental affairs are concerned.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get busy at important work despite petty annoyances that may be bothering you now. Don't turn your back on sound advice.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Wait for a better time to pay bills you are not sure about. Plan how to be more productive in the days ahead. Don't spend too heavily on entertainment.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to help others with their problems and gain their goodwill. Test for accuracy where financial matters are concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take care you do not take on more than you can handle at this time. You attain personal goals if you are serious about them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Avoid a friend who wants to get mixed up in your personal affairs. Rely on the advice of an expert.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have a problem that has been worrying you but a good friend comes to your rescue. Take care of an outstanding credit matter.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Look into new interests early and then handle business and public matters wisely. Forget travel for now and keep your mind on work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take care of necessary chores and then meet with an older person who can give you good advice. Listen to what kin have to say and revise plans so they are more workable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Straighten out an unpleasant situation at home before settling down to business matters. Get rid of the obstacles in your path of progress.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Exercise care in all that you do and say now. Avoid a bigwig who is in a bad mood. Get personal matters in better order.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to handle anything of a practical nature and will be very good at financial affairs. Give an opportunity to test abilities early. A determined individual here who needs moral and spiritual training early.

Down in Johnson Co.

with Marj Carpenter

And that's a long way from here. But Mrs. Merle Hodnett told me a story about a little graveyard down in that county that is of great interest to Mrs. A. J. Cain, Haley Haynes, J. W. Haynes and Mrs. Hodnett, who all four live in Big Spring.

Because their great grandfather is buried there. She says the lonely cemetery is two and one half miles northwest of Rio Vista and the grave of their great grandfather is there. He was Capt. Thomas F. Haley.

There are only 16 graves in that little cemetery which was on the land of Lowell Smith.

In Johnson County, 2 1/2 miles northwest of Rio Vista, the abandoned cemetery was named the Haley Cemetery because Capt. Haley was the first to be buried there.

It is located in a pasture belonging to the heirs of Lowell Smith Jr. The entrance to it is across the Nolan River Bridge, on FM 916, west from SH 174 near Rio Vista.

Looking north one travels a few yards to a house near a gate and on to the cemetery which is in an open pasture with cattle grazing on it.

In this small neglected cemetery overlooking Nolan River and the Haley Branch, there is a small grave plot surrounded by an iron grillwork fence. The gate is gone but the gravestone is standing erect bearing the name of the captain born Jan. 3, 1817, died Feb. 1, 1865.

Nearby is a new chainlink fence surrounding the graves of Henry Bryden's two wives. His first wife, Lucinda, was the first woman landowner in Johnson County. Her father received Texas land grant 709.

Upon his death and when she reached 18, she heired the land, and built a log cabin. The 16 by 16 foot cabin, which was located on the east bank of the Nolan River, has now been donated to the grounds of the First State Bank of Rio Vista where it was dedicated at a Bicentennial Celebration.

Thomas Haley married Elizabeth Latham in Dec. 28, 1836 (the year of the freedom of Texas). She insisted she was the first white child born in the state of Texas. She was born July 3, 1819 at the territory then called Tenajo

Buying insulation tricky process

The start of winter is still several months away, but it's none too soon to start thinking about insulating your home against the cold.

High fuel bills and bitter temperatures prompted an estimated six million Americans to add insulation to their homes in 1977 alone.

A new government standard is designed to make at least one type of insulation safer, but buying still can be tricky. Government officials at an energy conservation conference held in Washington, D.C., earlier this year warned that consumers can easily be confused by conflicting claims of potentially large savings.

Consumers "have to be very concerned and take precautions to avoid fraud," said Samuel A. Simon of the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Consumer Protection.

Simon offered five guidelines for shoppers.

—Don't buy from door-to-door salesmen.

—Get at least three estimates of how much the job will cost.

—Check prior customers to see if they are satisfied.

—Find out if the contractor is bonded or licensed.

—Ask the Better Business Bureau about the firm's complaint record.

Fiberglass is the most common insulation used. It is a mineral fiber, made from silica and spun like cotton candy. It is sold loose, in bags, and in batts or blankets. Fiberglass itself is naturally fire resistant, but paper vapor barriers attached to batts may be flammable. Read labels carefully.

Cellulose insulation, with the second biggest share of the market, is usually made of ground or shredded paper, treated with chemicals to make it resistant to fire and vermin. If not treated properly, cellulose burns readily. All such insulation manufactured after Sept. 7 must meet federal standards. Look for a label reading: "Attention: This material meets the applicable minimum federal flammability standard. This standard is based upon laboratory tests only which do not represent actual conditions which may occur in the home."

Plastic insulation includes polystyrene (used in board form), polyurethane (used in board form or "foamed" in place between studs in the walls) and urea formaldehyde (also "foamed" in place). These materials should be installed only under the guidance of an experienced contractor since there can be problems with odor, shrinkage and flammability. Check local building codes before you buy to make sure plastic insulation is allowed.

The most important thing to consider when selecting insulation is the "R" value which provides a guide to the material's ability to reduce the flow of heat from one area to another. Do NOT compare thickness alone. Two kinds of insulation may have the same thickness, but the one with the higher "R" value will perform better.

Parchman bids for JP post

LAMESA — John Parchman, a lifelong resident of Dawson County, has announced he will be a write-in candidate for the office of Dawson County Justice of Peace.

The only candidate whose name will appear on the ballot in the general election in November is Richard Nelson, who was suspended without pay from the JP office until such time as four indictments against him have been resolved.

Barbara Harris was later appointed to the position. Harris told newsmen she had not made up her mind about offering as a write-in candidate.

Parchman, 62, was an unsuccessful candidate for the position in 1974. He is a former Lamesa businessman.
