Finance Committee weighs new income-tax break bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee is weighing a proposal that would give middle-income families a greater income-tax break than the one already approved by the House.

It could mean an extra $211 a year to a couple with two children and an income of $10,000 a year. The same couple with a $25,000 income would get $53 more than in the House version.

Generally, the measure under consideration on the Senate side would offset for one-earner families making $20,000 or less the Social Security tax increase that goes into effect next Jan. 1. That increase will cost a $10,000 earner $8, a $20,000 worker $15 and those earning $23,000 or more $33.

In most cases in which family income is under $20,000, there also would be enough relief in the Senate package to offset the tax effects of inflation, which pushes workers into higher brackets even though their real buying power has not risen.

But it would do little to help neutralize inflation for those earning more than $20,000 a year.

The committee may vote today on the proposal, which was drafted by staff aides after Sen. Russell Long, who chairs the panel, asked for options on giving more tax relief than the House had voted for couples and individuals earning less than $50,000 a year.

The Carter administration has criticized the $16.3-billion House-passed bill on grounds that too big a share of the benefits would go to those above the $50,000 income level. More than 59 percent of the $3.7-billion addition being considered for individuals by the Finance Committee would go to those with incomes of $15,000 or less.

Neither the House bill nor the Senate proposal would cut taxes as deeply as the Republican-backed Roth-Kemp plan for a reduction reaching 33 percent over three years. But the Finance Committee decided by a 10-8 vote Monday that the Republican proposal carries too great a risk for the economy.

Sen. William V. Roth, R-DeL., who helped write the GOP proposal, hailed it as long-overdue tax relief for the middle classes.

Opponents said the cost of the tax cut would be paid by all Americans through another round of inflation. They said it would be unwise now to commit the government to new tax cuts two and three years in advance, although it is generally agreed Congress is likely to vote new reductions in 1979 and 1980.

'Daddy, he's going to fall'

Magic of circus continues

By MARJ CARPENTER

The magic of the circus has not dimmed for a generation of young parents raised on television.

Their children still attended the circus en masse Monday night as the crowd swelled to what was estimated at 8,000 at the circus.

The rodeo bowl was completely filled except for a small area behind their band stand where it was difficult to see.

Blowing sand failed to dim the enthusiasm of the crowd, who ate lots of cotton candy, hot dogs and popcorn and purchased whistling birds, and circus coloring books.

Charles Tompkins and D. A. Brazel, circus co-chairmen for the local Shrine Circus, said this was the 22nd annual event here.

The parking lot posed some problems as patrons parked in any little space they could find and it was like a giant crazy quilt, with no passages out.

Whenever somebody decided to leave early either from the circus or the fair, they were in real trouble unless they happened to be parked on the edge of the mass.

The cars were parked all the way back past Airport Elementary and down in front of the homes on the "Bird" streets.

A favorite of the children at the circus was again the little clown on the trampoline, although they enjoyed all clowns and also the trapeze artists the most.

This is partly because the rodeo bowl makes it difficult to see animal acts, such as the lion tamer, down on one end of the arena.

COTTON CANDY, THE CIRCUS AND KIDS — Make for lots of laughs and lots of mess. One of the acts in the Shrine Circus Monday was so funny that Becky Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ryan Walker, had to cover her mouth to laugh. The only problem was that she forgot about the cotton candy — sticky from being licked — being in her hand. The result was a pink sticky face but Becky didn't seem to mind as long as she could still watch the clowns and the animals.

A few lost children were quickly restored to parents who didn't know they were lost, and no real tragedies occurred.

"Daddy, he's going to fall," one small lad remarked during the trapeze act. And the possibility that somebody might, kept the adults watching as close as the children.

The magic of the circus has been handed down from generation to generation for 200 years and as the crowd watched a small boy participating with his family on a high wire act, they realized that circus tradition will be handed down for yet another generation.

And the crowd, as well as the performers, hands down the tradition of the "magic of going to the circus."

Hise slams TEA's handling of former coach's appeal

By BOB BURTON

Big Spring Superintendent Lynn Hise was critical today of the Texas Education Agency's handling of ex-coach James Griffin's appeal.

"We will file an exception," Hise said. "I am surprised at the findings. Based on the testimony we presented, I don't understand how the finding was made."

"From a management standpoint, the credibility of the TEA certainly has to be questioned in that it took 10 months to handle this appeal, plus the release of their findings to the media before the school district was notified. It is a deplorable situation when the media's importance is placed before that of the principal's."

In a seven-page document, hearing officer John R. Guemple, Assistant Deputy Commissioner of Education said that the Big Spring school district's refusal to renew Griffin's contract for last year was the result of "impermissible racial discrimination."

The findings of fact will go to Commissioner of Education M. L. Brockette, along with the district's exception. Brockette will hand down his decision, and either party can then appeal to the state commission.

Guemple's findings of fact dismiss the school board of trustee's action in not renewing the contract, saying the district "attempted to justify the non-renewal of Petitioner's (Griffin's) contract by citing instances which the Hearing Officer finds to be mere pretexts, and for which Petitioner has offered sufficient evidence in his defense."

The General Services Administration has refused to sell only half of the Capehart Housing units at the Big Spring Industrial Park as requested by the Big Spring Steering Committee. The steering committee had requested, Sept. 1, that only half the units be sold in order to give the committee time to gauge the impact of the sale on the local housing market. The GSA refused the request, citing

"Of necessity, proof of racial discrimination often rests on circumstantial evidence. Invidious discrimination is frequently masked in subtleties and seldom is so blatant as to submit ease of proof. Such difficulties of proof will not hinder efforts to extinguish remnants of such regrettable conduct, where evidence has been brought forward which is competent to support a claim of impermissible discrimination."

GSA refuses to sell only half of Capehart Housing units

the U.S. Air Force analysis of the economic impact of the sale made before Webb AFB closed.

"Also it is necessary that we eliminate the high protection and maintenance costs now being paid by the government," wrote James K. Winsor, director of the Real Property Division of the Federal Property Resources Service of the GSA, in a letter to Mayor Wade Choate.

"They (the GSA) have final word on this, and that's about all there is to it," said Choate at a special meeting of the Big Spring City Council today.

Plans have been set to open bids on the housing complex, Nov. 16.

During the same meeting, council members authorized Mayor Choate to request that most of the property at the former Webb AFB be turned over to the city. All except those properties slated for a federal prison and the former base hospital are expected to be deeded to the city sometime next week.

Also during this morning's gathering, a meeting of the Big Spring Steering Committee was scheduled to discuss negotiations with Lockheed Aircraft Corporation and possible further measures to delay housing sales by the GSA.

Story about all-woman security facility at Big Spring spiked

The Federal Bureau of Prisons office in Washington, D.C., has spiked a story being circulated in Texas that the minimum security correctional institution in Big Spring will be an all-woman facility.

A federal magistrate in Fort Worth, otherwise unidentified, said he had been told upon good authority that such a prison was being planned here. Bob Mossmyer of the bureau's office in Washington categorically denied the story, however, adding that the facility here would house men exclusively, although government practices will be observed in hiring personnel to supervise the facility.

Mossmyer also said that government plans for the security complex here were moving along on schedule and the bureau would be in a position to act when the government's new fiscal year starts Oct. 1.

Target date for the arrival of the first prisoners here is still July 1.

Ex-officer Choate, officer Meek sued following chase, shooting

A suit filed Friday in 118th District Court names the city of Big Spring, former policeman Dusty Choate, and officer Ray Meek as defendants in the shooting of Paul Merrell, 25.

In an Aug. 19 incident, Merrell was wounded by Choate as he fled on a motorcycle from officers. The suit alleges pursuit without probable cause, that the officers fired at Merrell at least twice, and that Choate had a history of violations of police policy and should not have been on the force.

The suit also cites police policy which states that under no circumstances is shooting justified in a misdemeanor arrest.

The suit, filed by Attorney Allen McFall, asks $200,000 in damages.

Israel makes intentions known to Congress today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin told Congress today that Israel has no intention of giving up its claim to sovereignty or its right to station troops in disputed areas of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Begin told leaders of the House in a breakfast meeting that they should not misinterpret the Camp David accords to mean that Israel has committed itself to restoring Arab sovereignty to those lands, which it captured in the 1967 war.

Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat were meeting today with congressional leaders to talk about the recently concluded summit.

The two leaders planned to meet separately with President Carter at the White House this afternoon.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance added Syrian President Hafez Assad to the list of Arab leaders he will visit to explain the Camp David agreements and seek support. He previously had scheduled stops in Jordan and Saudi Arabia on the trip, which begins tonight.

Sadat told members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee he thinks Jordan and Saudi Arabia eventually will support the accords.

Later, he told reporters he plans to fly Wednesday from Washington to Rabat, Morocco, to meet with King Hassan. Then, he said, he will fly home to Cairo and make contact with Jordan's King Hussein.

Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, ranking Democratic member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said Sadat told the private breakfast meeting that he hopes Hussein will "play the role that must be played by Jordan if the issues of the West Bank are ever to be resolved."

Sadat told reporters, "Whenever there is any agreement that will permit the establishment of peace so that no one encroaches on the other's land or sovereignty, then all Arabs will be behind it."

The Egyptian leader expressed confidence that the remaining issues between Egypt and Israel will be resolved so that "we can be good neighbors." And he said he has been assured the United States will remain "a full partner" in the search for Middle East peace.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: No request

Q: Two of our children are members of the Big Spring High School band which furnished music during the visit of former President Gerald Ford here Wednesday. However, we (the parents) had to furnish transportation to and from the events for them. Is the school district so broke that it couldn't provide a bus to carry the kids?

A: According to Superintendent Larry Hise, no buses were requested by the band director. If the request had been made, said Hise, it would have been honored as with any other field trip. However, the band director felt that the private transportation available was better suited to the job, according to Hise.

Calendar: Fair features

TODAY Exhibits in the main building at the Howard County Fair can be viewed from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. with the Agri-Business Appreciation Barbecue at 5 p.m.; the barrow show premium sale at 7:30 p.m.; the high school bands — Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan — giving a concert from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.; and the fiddlers contest beginning at 9 p.m.

Band Booster meeting and concert at Runnels Junior High auditorium, 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

Howard County Foster Parents Association meets at 7:15 p.m. at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center. Important that all members attend this first meeting of the new club year.

The Booster Club will meet tonight at 7:00 in the Big Spring High School cafeteria.

Western Drifters Camping Club, business meeting and potluck supper, at 6 p.m. in the Pioneer Gas Co. Flame Room. All members are urged to attend.

Offbeat: Legal at Last

TURLOCK, Calif. (AP) — The fire department here is finally legal — just 28 years late.

Fire Chief Larry Hughes says the department never received official authority to put out fires when it switched from an all-volunteer force to a mixture of paid and volunteer firefighters 28 years ago.

The City Council put it right this week, adopting an ordinance to establish the Turlock Fire Department.

Tops on TV: 'The Paper Chase'

Premieres again! "Grandpa Goes To Washington," starring Jack Albertson, airs at 7 p.m. on NBC. Grandpa goes after those gut issues, such as elaborate Presidential birthday parties. A better bet might be the premiere of "The Paper Chase," about the ins and outs of going to law school. This one competes with "Grandpa" on CBS. Also, two recently released movies, "The Shootist" featuring John Wayne and a host of others, and "Airport '77" with Jack Lemmon and a cast of thousands, air at 8 p.m. The Duke's on CBS; Jack is on NBC.

Eyewitness puts Powell at scene of shooting

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An eyewitness said Monday he clearly saw David Lee Powell through the shattered rear window of a car from which came the AK-47 automatic rifle shots that killed Patrolman Ralph Ablanedo on May 18.

Powell and Sheila Meinert, both 27, are charged with capital murder in the slaying of Ablanedo and could be sentenced to death by injection with a lethal drug.

Miss Meinert will be tried separately at her own request.

There was a possibility the automatic rifle, an Iron Curtain weapon used by Communist forces in the Vietnam War, would be introduced in Powell's trial today.

Bob Bullard testified Monday he was driving toward his home about 12:30 a.m. on May 18 when he saw a police car, lights flashing, parked behind a red Mustang.

He said the officer — Ablanedo — was walking between the two cars toward the Mustang's passenger side when several single shots rang out. Ablanedo dropped to the ground, Bullard said. The officer got up but was felled by a burst of automatic fire, Oullard said.

"It sounded like a machine gun to you?" asked prosecutor Phil Nelson.

"Yes, sir," Bullard said. He told Nelson he could see muzzle flashes over the back seat of the Mustang.

Marsalis invited

Denton Marsalis, D&C Sales, and president of the Big Spring Chapter of Texas Manufactured Housing Association, has been invited to attend and participate in a very unique seminar for the mobile home, recreational vehicle and marine dealers in Texas, Mississippi, Louisiana and Colorado.

The seminar to be held in Arlington, starting Oct. 12, is being held by Citicorp-Nationwide Financial Corporation.

Dealer selection was based on dealer contribution to the industry, sales capacity and influential capability to carry the message from the seminar to their respective dealer groups.

Marsalis, who is currently attending meetings in Dallas for the TMHA legislative board, education committee and education task force, is looking forward to attending this seminar.

Digest

(AP WIREPHOTO) PLO OBSERVER ON 'TODAY' — Zehdi Terzi, the Palestine Liberation Organization's permanent observer to the United Nations, makes a point during an interview on the NBC-TV "Today" show today in New York. Terzi discussed agreements reached at the Camp David Mideast Summit talks.

State officials agreeing

WASHINGTON (AP) — California and Nevada officials have tentatively agreed to construction of gambling casinos along Lake Tahoe, the largest high-mountain lake in North America.

Charles Warren, chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality, said Monday the construction ban is designed to "assure the preservation and enhancement of Lake Tahoe as one of the world's great natural assets."

Located on the California-Nevada border, Lake Tahoe is nestled in the Sierra Nevada mountains.

Auto chairman retires

DETROIT (AP) — Roy D. Chapin Jr., 62, chairman of American Motors Corp. since 1967, will retire from active management of the firm on Sept. 30 but will retain the position of chairman.

Chapin's retirement had been expected since last year, when he was replaced as chief executive officer by Gerald C. Meyers, AMC president.

Guard undergoes surgery

CRANSTON, R.I. (AP) — A guard at Rhode Island's maximum security prison has undergone surgery after being stabbed five times in an apparently unprovoked attack, corrections officials said.

Dana K. Lassy, 24, of West Warwick, R.I., was listed in critical condition at Rhode Island Hospital, a hospital spokesman said. Corrections Director John J. Moran said Lassy was struck on the head Monday in the South State Wing of the Adult Correctional Institutions and then stabbed in the abdomen.

Preliminary trials over

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The last of three preliminary hearings for 12 persons seized in a bloody raid by police on headquarters of the radical group MOVE has ended with the dismissal of charges against one defendant and the holding for trial of three others.

A total of six women and five men face court action on charges of murder and attempted murder, Deputy District Attorney William Knauer said. Police officer James Ramp died in the exchange of gunfire which erupted Aug. 8 when police moved to oust the group from its Philadelphia headquarters. Several police and firefighters were wounded during the confrontation.

Prior conduct excluded

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Evidence of a woman's prior sexual conduct may be excluded in a rape trial, the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled in affirming the rape conviction of a South Dakota man.

The court Monday overturned an earlier 8th Circuit opinion, handed down in 1953, which held such evidence was necessary to reasonably test the credibility of a woman testifying she had been raped. Abraham Kasto, an Indian who received a life sentence for the rape of a university student living on the Cheyenne River Indian Reservation as part of a cultural exchange program, had relied on the 1953 decision in his appeal.

(AP WIREPHOTO) SHE WASN'T NERVOUS — A single-engine plane carrying President Carter's 80-year-old mother landed safely Monday night at Mid-Continent Airport after its pilot thought the aircraft had a landing gear problem. Lillian Carter "wasn't nervous at all," said pilot James Smith. She is greeted after getting off the plane. Behind her is Don Allegrucci, a Democratic congressional candidate, for whom Mrs. Carter was making several campaign appearances in Kansas.

Welder's widow receives $500,000 in damages

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Before welder Acie Nobles died last year from a paralyzing nerve disorder that made it impossible to breathe, he contended that some of the equipment he used in his job had caused the disease.

A federal court jury in Beaumont agreed with Nobles and his widow Monday and recommended that five welding supply companies pay Mrs. Nobles $500,000 in damages.

Nobles and his wife, Bernice, filed suit against the companies in 1973 after he contracted lower motor neuron disease. The action sought $5 million in exemplary and compensatory damages.

The six-member decided Monday that use of the companies' supplies — especially stick electrodes — had caused Nobles to contract the fatal disease.

Police beat Local vandals strike

Burglars and vandals struck in several parts of the city Monday.

Intruders broke the glass out of the back door of the Phillips Tire Company, 311 Johnson, and snatched between $100 and $125 from the company safe. The incident occurred late Monday night.

Burglars also entered the home of Lisa Borden, 1610 Lark, sometime between 5:30 and 8:30 p.m. Monday. Stolen were two stereo speakers, a turntable, an amplifier, and a water jug containing $50 in change.

Total loss was estimated at $250.

The passenger side window on a pickup belonging to Edward Merrick, 301 E. 15th, was broken while the truck was parked at Jo-Boy's Restaurant, between 1 and 7 p.m. Monday. Once the culprit has muscled open the window, he stole a color television set inside the pickup.

Loss was estimated at $290.

A combination eight track tape player — CB radio was stolen from a car belonging to Jimmie Jones, 1415 Tucson, between 1 and 6 p.m. Saturday. The car was parked in the lot of Newsom's Grocery Store when the theft occurred.

Loss was estimated at $154.

Vandals pushed over two gasoline pumps at Randy's Fine Station, 3101 West Highway 80, 2:50 a.m. today. Damage was estimated at over $200.

Four mishaps were reported Monday.

Vehicles driven by Stanley A. Post, Midland, and Ronald L. Logback, Gail Route, collided at Highway 350 and IS 20, 10:06 p.m.

A parked vehicle belonging to Cheryl Harper, 311 Edwards, was struck by a vehicle driven by Mae M. Henry, 306 E. 20th, in front of the Edwards home, 4:57 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Fredrick W. Johnson, 1115 Lloyd, and Earnest Jara, 502 N.W. 10th, collided at North-west 10th and N. Lancaster, 5:16 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Anita Chesworth, Gail Route, and Rebecca Brooks, 2911 W. 80, collided at 705 W. Marcy, 12:40 p.m.

Deaths

James Simmons
James Lewis Simmons, 85, of Baird, father of Mrs. Bill (Marjorie) Shaffer of Big Spring, died at 5:45 a.m. Monday in the Callahan General Hospital in Baird following an extended illness.

Services are scheduled for 2 p.m. today at the Bailey Funeral Home in Clyde. Burial will occur in the Clyde Cemetery. Mr. Simmons was a retired farmer.

Man is killed in auto wreck
STANTON — Michael Thomas Ellison, 24, was apparently killed instantly when he lost control of his vehicle while headed south on State Highway 349 24 miles north of Midland in the early morning hours Sunday.

He was found at daylight and the highway patrol was notified at 8:30 a.m.

Champions in barrow division exhibited

Brad Byrd was the exhibitor of the grand champion barrow for the 1978 Howard County Fair. The heavyweight barrow was the breed champion in the Duroc division.

Reserve grand champion in the Monday evening show was also a heavyweight Duroc, the reserve champion in that class. It was exhibited by Tammy Peugh, who also exhibited the reserve champion Crossbred barrow. It took first place in the heavyweight Cross division.

Champion Crossbred was a mediumweight barrow shown by Van Gaskins.

In the other Pure Breeds (OPB) class, champion was a heavyweight shown by Rory Buchanan, with reserve champion honors going to a mediumweight OPB shown by Mike Crenshaw.

The showmanship award, given to the exhibitor who does the best job of handling his or her barrow and stays aware of the location of the judge, went to Lyle Grantham.

Audio-visual firm sale completed
W.R. Grace & Co., and Siboney Corp., have jointly announced the completion of the sale of the Southwest Region of Grace's Educational Products Division to Miller's Visual Aids, Inc., a Fort Worth-based wholly-owned subsidiary of Siboney.

The former Grace Region is headquartered in Bryan, Texas, with sales and service locations also in Dallas, Houston, San Antonio and Corpus Christi. The former Grace business is involved in the sale and service of audio-visual equipment to education and industry.

Siboney is engaged in diversified lines of business including audio-visual products, natural resources, asphalt and tar emulsions, educational equipment and supplies, sheet plastic, lighting fixture lenses and ceiling panels, arts and crafts and hobby products.

Harold Davis of Big Spring, president of GAMCO, formerly served Miller's Visual Aids Inc., as its president and is still a member of the board of directors.

Nicaraguan forces prepare stronghold

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza's troops are massing for an assault on the last major rebel stronghold, the northwest town of Esteli.

Observers said the national guard, Somoza's army, flew combat-toughened troops to Somoto, 40 miles north of Esteli, in a flanking movement Monday.

Informed sources said the guard probably would push into Esteli from the south and north while bottling the city up with ambushes on three rural roads that wind up into the surrounding hills. This could prevent the rebels escaping as they did when the guard recaptured Masaya in the south and Leon and Chinandega in the northwest.

The Sandinistas and the men in Esteli who have joined their fight appear better armed and organized than those in any of the other cities, however, and observers believe the battle could be far bloodier than the previous assaults.

Barricades of paving stones and sandbags chest high and four feet thick stretch across many streets. One major road into the city is blocked by no fewer than 10 massive barricades, one after the other.

In addition, the rebels have cut trenches across some streets and set up sandbagged sniper posts on rooftops.

South Plains Music Festival set Oct. 7

DENVER CITY — The sixth annual South Plains Music Festival and Old Settlers Reunion, sponsored by the South Plains Gospel Music Association, has been scheduled Saturday, Oct. 7, in the Community Building here.

A full days activities are being planned for the event, with entertainment from 10 a.m. to 10:30 p.m.

The Music Festival will include Country-Western, Gospel and Blue Grass Music, with a number of groups already scheduled.

Another feature of the get-together will be the annual Old Time Fiddlers contest set for 3 p.m. Prizes totaling over $200 are being offered, with a $100 first prize. An added attraction this year will be prizes of over $100 going to the best bands, with $50 in cash for first place. Prizes will also be given to the oldest and youngest persons in attendance at the Festival as well as to the person who travels the greatest distance to attend.

RAY TRENT

The days activities are set to kick off at 10 a.m. led by the Plains and Denver City High School marching bands. Area clubs and organizations, as well as the Queen candidates and their sponsors are invited and urged to enter cars for floats in the parade. Anyone interested in further information do so by contacting Sheriff Joe Deaton, Parade Marshal or Ray Trent, head of the SPGMA.

Following the parade, Country-western music by various groups will be the order of the day until noon at the Community Building on 15th Street. The program will recess at noon, and Country and Blue Grass music will prevail until 3 p.m.

The Old Time Fiddlers contest is scheduled from 3 to 5 p.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. is set aside for informal visiting and refreshments.

Gospel Music takes over from 6 to 8 p.m. and the Queen coronation and drawing for a TV set will be 8 to 8:30 p.m. Another round of gospel music will close out the day's activities.

Young ladies from the ages of 15 through 18 are eligible to compete for queen

Castro calls Cuban plot to kill Kennedy insanity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro says it would have been "a tremendous insanity" for Cuba to have plotted the murder of President John F. Kennedy, the House Assassinations Committee reported today.

"I am going to tell you here that nobody, nobody, ever had the idea of such things," Castro said during a four-hour interview with committee members and investigators last April. The committee played portions of the tape-recorded interview during its hearings today.

Repeating his consistent denials of Cuban involvement in the assassination of Kennedy, Castro said:

"Never, in 20 years of revolution, I never heard anyone suggest nor even speculate about a measure of that sort, because who could think of the idea of organizing the death of the president of the United States."

"That would have been the most perfect pretext for the United States to invade our country, which is what I have tried to prevent for all these years, in every possible sense."

"From the ideological point of view, it was insane. And from the political point of view, it was a tremendous insanity."

Castro said he knew nothing about Lee Harvey Oswald and Oswald's visits to the Cuban consulate in Mexico City until after Kennedy was slain and Oswald was identified as the killer.

The committee is weighing the merits of a mysterious intelligence report suggesting that Oswald was assassinated in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

Questioned about the account, Castro said he never granted Clark an interview and called the story absurd.

"I didn't say that," Castro asserted. "It has been invented from the beginning until the end. It's a lie. If this man (Oswald) would have done something like that, it would have been our moral duty to inform the United States."

In a written report, committee counsel Robert Blakey said investigators "made an effort to explore Mr. Clark's background and reputation for veracity. Frankly, it was not good. Apparently he wrote extensively for the sensational press."

In a written report, Blakey said investigators "made an effort to explore Mr. Clark's background and reputation for veracity. Frankly, it was

But Blakey continued, "Even though there may be doubts as to the fact of Clark's interview with President Castro, the committee has been informed that the substance of

Judge disqualifies himself in case

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — State District Judge Tom Cave today disqualifies himself from presiding over a change of venue hearing for millionaire industrialist Cullen Davis, saying he really didn't have to do so but that "discretion is the better part of valor."

Retired Judge Author Tipps of Wichita Falls was appointed to hear the venue case for Davis, charged in a murder-for-hire scheme, and Tipps immediately began the hearing.

Cave cited numerous cases which he said clearly indicated no basis for him to disqualify himself, but that "common sense and prudence" dictated that he step down. He said he wants no hint of impropriety.

Lawyers for Davis had argued Cave should not preside over the hearing because of previous statements he has made about the case.

Prosecutors contend Cave is one of 15 persons on an alleged "hit list," and the judge had said he felt it would be "improper" under the circumstances "for him to make the decision on where to move the hearing."

Later, acting on his own, Cave filed a motion for a change of venue in the case.

It was Cave who presided over an early attempt to try Davis in Fort Worth when the industrialist was charged with murder and attempted murder arising from shootings at his palatial mansion in August 1976. That attempt ended in a mistrial and the case was moved to Amarillo, where Davis was acquitted of one count of murder.

He was then arrested Aug. 20 and in a bond hearing, the state produced tape recordings and video tapes which show state witness David McCrory and Davis together. The voices on the tape, identified as Davis and McCrory, discuss the killing of several persons involved with Davis in his ongoing divorce and his Amarillo trial.

Anybody with a horse is invited to gallop into the Howard County Fair at 9 a.m. Saturday and sign up for the horse show.

A lot of confusion has arisen on the fact that some people believed it was only for youth. There is also an open horse show with 52 classes as well as riding events.

It is also open to both registered and non-registered horses, according to Wanda Driver, horse show chairman.

Cotton modules discussed during agriculture breakfast

A group of 26 farmers attended the monthly agriculture breakfast today and heard Jerry Scoggin discuss cotton modules. Scoggin is plant manager for the Cotton Manufacturing Corp. in the Big Spring Industrial Park.

Almost all farmers now use cotton modules in addition to trailers when they harvest their crop.

This year's crop will be light, with an approximate 25,000 bales compared to 91,000 last season according to estimates by Bruce Griffith, county agent.

Some think the late rains may make the crop bring around 35,000 bales. Some few crops have already been plowed up but the majority of the farmers are waiting until harvest time to make a decision as to whether to apply for disaster payments.

Worried About How You'll Look With A Hearing Aid?

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

True, all hearing problems are not alike... and some cannot be helped, but many can. So, send for this free model now, and wear it in the privacy of your own home. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 9147, Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, Illinois 60646

Cyclists should wear crash helmets

It's reassuring to notice that many motorcyclists around Big Spring still use safety helmets when they use their bikes. The law says it's a matter of choice in some states but the experienced riders know those who don't avail themselves of the helmets are taking grave risks.

Word comes now from the University of Michigan Highway Safety Research Institute that American automobile riders really should wear crash helmets, simply because their odds to live improve if they are involved in serious wrecks.

EVEN THOSE vain people who think a helmet would detract from their physical appearance would have to concede that helmets would make driving safer.

It would be safer still to outlaw all vehicular traffic but that is unthinkable. Many regard the automobile as an extension of their physical being. In short, they wouldn't be seen anywhere without it.

Head injuries, as everyone knows, are the leading causes of deaths in auto crashes — even though many of the victims had seat belts in place at the time. The use of seat belts and harnesses improve one's chances in major accidents but those odds would improve still more if occupants would take the time to don head gear, too.

Experts have been working on the problem of reducing the injury ratio for years. They've recommended greater padding in the dashboard area, breakaway steering columns and air bags, the kind that inflate instantly upon contact.

Helmets, in fact, were suggested years ago. It is impossible, however, to make the use of helmets mandatory.

AS VOLUNTARY equipment, one would be safe in assuming that not many would bother using the equipment. Congress wouldn't be of much help, either. The legislators know such a law would never be popular, realizing a throaty protest went up when motorcyclists were told to don helmets.

People are going to go right on dying on the nation's highways simply because of their vanity. We all think helmets would be just dandy for everyone else but they're not for us. Risk ruining a hair-do, or looking like a football player — never!! Besides, most people say, accidents happen to someone else, never to me.

Ron, Jerry Show

Evans, Novak

HOUSTON — Driving back to his hotel from a Republican rally in the Albert Thomas Convention Center Aug. 11, Ronald Reagan confided his concern about indisputable evidence of a widening breach between him and former President Ford and asked plaintively: how do we deal with it?

The question poses a central problem of Reagan's 1980 presidential campaign. A Jerry Ford determined to undermine Reagan's second full-fledged quest for the Republican nomination could do great, conceivably irreparable damage, if Ford himself decides not to run — a strong probability — and actively tries to block Reagan in favor of somebody else. That is most likely to be George Bush, in the opinion of the Reagan camp.

Musing out loud, Reagan said the problem had to be confronted, and that he felt Ford himself was less responsible for the anti-Reagan campaign than "people around him." The next evening, in Dallas, with Ford sitting near him at a Texas fundraising dinner (for Republican governor nominee William Clements), Reagan made his move.

LOOKING AT Ford, he quoted President Carter's encomium in the inaugural address ("I want to thank (Ford) for all he has done to heal our land") and added his own graceful compliment: "History will record that Gerald Ford healed our land and by his example reminded us that this nation deserves our love and demands our courage."

Whether those words will terminate this latest in a century of Republican feuds, they place Reagan in an unassailable posture: proud and sensitive. Reagan has made his peace offering without groveling or begging. But one cynical Ford Republican, listening to Reagan's new-found praise of the man he almost upset in 1976, asked: "Why didn't Reagan say that in 1976?" The Ford camp, including the former president, still fumes over what it considers Reagan's lukewarm post-convention support.

Reagan's appeal to let bygones be bygones followed leaks from the Ford camp that the former president's memoirs, due in bookstores next spring, will blame Reagan for Ford's defeat by Mr. Carter. Ford cautions friends that he has not yet finished late chapters of his book dealing with the 1976 campaign, but insiders are sure that just such a rebuke was all but certain — at least until Dallas.

Some Ford intimates, including ex-White House aide Robert Hartmann and Dean Burch, agree that the drumbeat of undercurrent propaganda against Reagan does not come directly from Gerald Ford. Supporting that judgment was a curious incident last spring involving Ford's office.

After President Carter turned down an invitation to make the dedication speech at the new Herbert Hoover memorial library at Stanford University, library officials — many of them Reaganites — invited Ford instead. Ford was carefully informed that Reagan would be there. The two had not met since the Kansas City shootout.

FORD'S OFFICE gave a speedy answer: no. But one library official refused to accept that no. Ford himself, he speculated, might never have seen the invitation; send an agent to Ford and ask him personally. That was the course taken and Ford then said yes, he would be delighted. They met in Stanford but the ice was broken.

No chances were taken in persuading Ford to appear twice with Reagan here in Texas for his close friend and former deputy defense secretary, Bill Clements.

Helping epileptic: Calmness a must

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What should be done for a person having an epileptic seizure? — C.R.

A grand mal epileptic seizure can be a startling sight to the observer. The person suddenly falls to the ground and twitches, often grotesquely for from two to five minutes.

The chief role of the observer is not to panic. First aid consists, first of all, in moving the victim to a position where he will not hurt himself — away from a hot radiator or from the top of a stairway. A pillow should be placed under the head and clothing about the neck loosened. Something soft, such as small towel, should be inserted between teeth to avoid tongue injury. Small or hard objects should not be used.

There is little else you can do until the attack subsides. Then the victim may be quite drowsy and even fall asleep. The main thought of the observer should be that the attack will be of short duration and his role is to prevent the person from injuring himself in that time.

After the attack the person might be eased onto a side so he can remove any mucus that may have collected. Since the epileptic will not recall the events during the attack, an observer should gently explain what has transpired and what was done for him. He may require medicine and should be asked about this. If the epileptic should go into a second seizure before he is fully recovered from the first, the physician should be contacted IMMEDIATELY for instructions. Most commonly, however, the victim is ready to resume activity after a brief rest.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am taking Quinamm for leg cramps at night. I also have arthritis. Aside from the fact that it is expensive, it has given me many side effects. Is there another drug I could take? — Mrs. E.C.G.

Quinamm is a commercial mixture of quinine sulfate and aminophylline. It is especially helpful for night leg cramps associated with arthritis. However the aminophylline can produce the discomfort some people experience with it, especially intestinal distress. You might try plain quinine (two or five grains at dinner and at bedtime) in place of the Quinamm. Also, calcium, either from milk or in tablet form, can be tried. Exercise, as an evening walk, or some mild calisthenics, can help nighttime leg cramps. My booklet on leg cramps would take the time to don head gear, too.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I seem to recall reading a couple of years back in your column about exercises that are good for varicose veins. Can you give them for me? I am developing them. Are exercises better than the elastic hose? — Mrs. T.G.

Properly fitted elastic stockings help ease the discomfort of those who can be up and around. It is also helpful to keep the foot of the bed elevated. This reduces the fluid accumulation overnight. The person with V.V. should avoid long uninterrupted periods of sitting or standing or crossing of legs during the day.

The stockings, exercises and sensible activity during the day all work together in non-surgical treatment of varicose veins. I can't stress too strongly the importance of properly fitted elastic hose. The stress should be applied evenly along the leg rather than have the hose overly tight in one spot and loose in another.

Walking is an excellent exercise for those with varicose veins. I think the specific exercise to which you refer is the "Buerger's exercise." In this you lie at the edge of a firm bed, placing one foot on the floor. That leg is then raised and rested at bed level. Then it is raised and rested on an elevated area (such as a rolled-up blanket). The process is reversed, with the leg placed down on the bed, then lowered to the floor again. Repeat on the other side of the bed with the other leg. Do this several times at a few sessions daily, beginning in the morning upon rising.

Confidential to Mrs. R.R. — The swelling in the neck might be thyroid enlargement or swollen lymph nodes. The latter seems most likely at this point since you do not mention a sore throat. In any event, I seriously question the "nerves" diagnosis, and agree that you should consult another doctor.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure you are doing all you can, write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Deal with Varicose Veins." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Eternal snack

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The federal trough is so deep and free-flowing, and the bureaucrats who shovel out taxpayers' money so disorganized, that a determined entrepreneur can skip from one lucrative contract to the next no matter how dismal his performance record.

One contractor with just such a knack is Dr. Raymond Thabet, the county coroner in Mansfield, Ohio. Government investigators are trying to figure out how he has managed to keep the federal dollars flowing for six years, despite a history of costly and often questionable work for Uncle Sam.

Thabet's laboratory, Automated Medical Services, is a million-dollar-a-year operation based in a rundown house in Mansfield. Investigations by the FBI, the Justice Department, the General Accounting Office and local officials have somehow failed to interrupt its steady diet of government contracts.

THABET'S FIRST federal snack was in 1972, when his modest laboratory was awarded a $20,000 contract to analyze blood samples of air traffic controllers for the Federal Aviation Administration. The agency was studying the stress experienced by the men who make split-second, life-or-death decisions for millions of air travelers.

After a year and a half, recalls FAA attorney R. Bruce Carter, "we determined that this group was not going to produce." He said Thabet complained that the work was impossible to perform, though the Navy had been conducting such analyses for years.

The case was eventually settled out of court. But when the FAA retrieved the frozen blood samples, Carter said, it turned out that they had been thawed out and re-frozen. They were about as useful as defrosted popsicles. "We just had to drop the whole project," Carter said.

Undeterred by this minor setback, Thabet plucked an even juicier plum from the federal money tree in 1975: a $175,000 contract from the Environmental Protection Agency to test the levels of pesticides in fetal tissues. Evidently unaware of Thabet's prior record, EPA stuck with him for two years, to the tune of $319,000. To this day, the agency says it hasn't gotten an acceptable final report from Thabet's lab.

Complaints that mothers being tested in the delicate research program had not been asked for their consent prompted Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Mo., to order a federal probe. The investigators are checking the accuracy of the county coroner's lab work. Local officials have also started digging into the case.

'Music we like'

Around the rim

Marie Homeyer

Midland College's new coliseum, the Chapparral Center, was the setting for the Captain and Tennille concert Friday night. The concert was also the event marking the grand opening of the newly-constructed facility.

Having the Captain and Tennille as the main attraction to mark the beginning of activity in the coliseum was a wise decision. The group's variety of music appeals to the young and old alike. And that is what the make-up of the audience was Friday night. There were people from the junior high age group to the senior citizen age group. All appeared to enjoy the performance of the husband-wife team.

THE COLISEUM itself is well-designed for concerts. The Captain and Tennille kept commenting about how good the acoustics in the building were. They said that with such a good facility it would not be hard to get well-known groups to perform there. The building is not large in comparison to most coliseums but it is large enough to accommodate the audiences Midland College usually would draw.

The lead-in act to the concert was not what I would have imagined for the Captain and Tennille. He was a comedian and not very good. His jokes were dull and at times very crude. He offended a large part of the audience with his brand of humor. And, it seemed rather odd that every girl he talked about going out with was either from Midland or Odessa.

After sitting through the dedication ceremonies and the bad comedian I was becoming quite bored with the whole affair. Then they hit us with a 15 minute intermission. I wasn't too thrilled with that aspect but at least it signaled a change of pace. I knew that the best of the evening was almost there.

And, it was the best of the evening. The concert was very good once the preliminaries were history. The husband-wife duo opened the show with a Chicago tune. Then Toni donned a cowboy hat that she said she had a right to wear since her mother was raised in the Dallas-Ft. Worth area.

Some of the songs they performed were: "Muskrat Love", "You've Never Don It Like That", "Lonely Nights" (for this song the back-drop was lit up like a jungle), and their biggest hit, "Love Will Keep Us Together" (the song that brought the most hand-clapping and foot-stomping from the audience).

Intermingled in the selections of their hits were gospel songs, 1940 classics and songs written by Neil Sedaka.

THE SONG that I enjoyed the most was "Song for My Father". The entire melody had The Captain at his keyboards. I was in awe of his ability to play all the different instruments and the different sounds that he can get out of them. I have always wanted to be able to play a piano and organ like he does.

After about two hours of music the couple made their exit and the audience gave them a standing ovation. They returned, introduced their band and back-up vocalists, sang two more songs and made their final exit. End of concert.

As I was leaving the building, one thing Toni said during the concert stood out in my mind: "Daryl and I love music and we only do the music that we like and that's the way we're going to keep on doing it for a long time."

Big Spring Herald

Mailbag

Dear Editor:

How many accidents, maiming, and/or deaths have to occur before some kind of traffic signal is installed at an intersection in Big Spring? This question, I'm sure, is in the minds of many people today as they travel through one particular intersection in town.

A two-way stop is presently located on the north and south corners of 17th and Lancaster Streets. Seventeenth Street, running east and west, has the right-of-way. This is an extremely dangerous corner, and traffic cannot be seen from the west when you are at the south corner of the intersection; primarily due to the construction presently under way in the southwest corner of this intersection. Even once this construction is completed and the construction buildings removed, visibility at this point of the intersection will still be such as to create a very definite traffic hazard.

A four-way stop at this intersection is imperative. The traffic at Lancaster and 17th Streets is heavy at all times during the day, but during the peak hours between 7:00 and 8:00 a.m., the noon hour, and between 5:00 and 6:00 p.m., it becomes exceedingly dangerous.

I realize installation expense of a traffic signal is prohibitive. However, installation of stop signs on the east and west corners of this intersection should prove to be a nominal expense. And the probability of the prevention of accidents should more than offset whatever costs would arise.

Further, I am of the opinion that there are numerous stop signs presently located around the city of Big Spring which do not share the critical needs of the subject intersection.

Dear Editor:

I thank Eileen McGuire for her Sept. 13 "Rim" in defense of the lives of the unborn.

Abortion on demand is a frightening part of contemporary life. More than 3000 innocent lives are deliberately ended each day! The Washington, D.C. abortion rate exceeds its birth rate. Millions of federal dollars are spent for abortions. Tax dollars have paid for Peace Corps volunteers' abortions, ($45,000 in a single year). Planned Parenthood Federation of America, Inc. gets enormous sums from federal sources and subsidizes abortion.

Life begins at conception. (The test tube baby born recently in England should have settled that question for everyone if there were ever any doubts.)

When we, as a nation, legalized abortion on demand, we declared that certain designated lives were of no value and could, therefore, be terminated. When a society allows its government to designate which lives are deserving of protection, a sickening trend is in progress.

More to the point, what government or society can be better than its people? Quoting Clare Boothe Luce, "all history bears witness to the fact that there can be no public virtue without private morality."

What is wrong with us that a million women a year choose to have their children killed before birth rather than allow them to be cared for afterward?

Rosemary Mathews,

Dear Editor:

This letter is written in response to a letter printed in the Herald, September 15, 1978.

In reference to a statement made in the letter, "We will survive. There aren't enough bigots. Let's show those snobs that they cannot have their way. They are doing it with racial hatred." Also, other statements, "I have worked and sweated to pay city taxes etc. and I will take advantage of what is rightfully mine," and yet another, "Chicanos, we must not let them do this to us. We must unite to win this struggle at the park," "Who are the people you refer to as 'they'?" Please, tell me, what is your definition of racial hatred?

Racial hatred is not a one way street. It is true that your people were shamed, ridiculed and rejected, but there were times, we were all treated in the same fashion. Racial hatred cannot be fought with racial hatred. In the end, we are all the losers.

If laws were made to prohibit alcoholic beverages, weapons and any unnecessary violence in the park, then they are there to protect the individuals, not infringe on their rights. These laws apply to everyone, not just Chicanos. You are right in that it is time for us to unite, not just Chicanos, but all peoples. It is time to make the city park a pleasant, safe place for all the citizens of Big Spring, especially the children.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: During the Second World War, I was almost killed, and I promised God I would follow Him if He spared my life. Later I forgot about it, and have lived a very bad life. Do you think it is too late to come back to God? — S.C.R.

DEAR S.C.R.: That you ask the question indicates that it is not too late. The person in the most dangerous position is the person unconcerned about eternity and the things of God. That you are interested in coming to Christ is a hopeful sign. It may well be the first step in your spiritual pilgrimage.

I am reminded of the words of 2 Peter 3:9 (New International Version), which tell us that God "is patient with you, not wanting anyone to perish, but everyone to come to repentance." Almost all your life you have neglected God and disobeyed Him, even though He has been very gracious to you in preserving your life. But God still loves you, and wants you to become His child by faith in Christ.

What must you do? First, you must realize that you are a sinner. You must be willing to confess your sins and repent of them — actually turn from them, and seek (with God's help) to live for Christ.

From Iran's earthquake

Death toll expected at 16,000

TABAS, Iran (AP) — The casualty toll from the giant earthquake that hit Iran three nights ago is expected to reach 16,000 dead and injured, the Red Cross said today.

Officials put the quake's epicenter at the village of Korit, 15 miles from Tabas, and said 3,500 of its 4,000 inhabitants were either dead or injured.

In Tehran, a C-130 transport landing to pick up earthquake relief supplies crashed, killing nine of its occupants and seriously injuring four others, authorities said.

Water tank trucks moved through the hardest hit villages near Tabas to alleviate an acute water shortage. The main water lines in the area were either completely demolished or badly damaged.

About 5,000 earthquake dead in Tabas have been buried, some in mass graves, and a relief official said, "We've stopped counting the dead. We find it easier to count the living."

The cloth-wrapped bodies stretched out in rows amid the ruins of ancient Tabas, where two-thirds of its 13,000 residents were killed or injured.

The bodies, some frozen in grotesque postures of sudden death, were lined up under palm trees, wrapped in white sheets or colorful handwoven cloth, while the gravediggers worked, unable to keep ahead of the steady stream of dead.

A Moslem clergyman prayed over the wrapped corpses.

Friends and relatives identified the dead as workers pulled the bodies from the rubble. The living slapped and struck themselves in the ritual of grief.

"Where is the army? Why doesn't someone help me?" an old man said as he wandered through the ruins in the city square searching for bodies of his family. Only one of the 10 had been found, he said.

Some 10,000 of Tabas' 13,000 population were estimated killed by the quake. Thousands more were believed buried in surrounding villages, and rescue workers feared the toll would pass 15,000.

The quake, the world's strongest so far this year, hit Saturday evening, crumbling minarets, mosques and mudbrick houses in this oasis city 400 miles southeast of Tehran. Tabas looked like a flattened sand castle.

It demolished 40 villages in northeast Iran, badly damaged 60 others and shook two-thirds of the rest of the country as well, including the capital. Aftershocks continue, fueling the fears of the survivors.

"I was sitting in front of my house by the pond," said a man named Hassan. "It was dark. Then all of a sudden I fell to the ground and there was a great roar and screams."

Hassan's family escaped injury, too, and they sat on the sidewalk, eating watermelon and waiting for the army to help them recover their valuables from the pile of mud and brick they once called home.

The Iranian army sent 700 soldiers, four medical teams and numerous rescue workers to help in relief operations. They set up tents for about 1,000 survivors along Tabas' dirt airstrip.

Air force C-130 Hercules transports were bringing in blankets, food, water and medical supplies.

Empress Farah, wife of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, toured the Tabas area for two hours in an army jeep, stopping occasionally to console survivors, then flew back to Tehran.

The quake Saturday registered 7.7 on the Richter scale. A 6.5 quake hit the same area 10 years ago, killing 12,000 persons. The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs, and a quake with a reading of 7 is classified as a "major" earthquake while a reading of 8 means a "great" quake.

Physician fights for health aid program with stethoscope

NEW YORK (AP) — She is in the front line of the federal government's attack on a problem in cities, and her weapon is a stethoscope.

Dr. Patricia Salomon works for the burgeoning National Health Service Corps, which expanded its medical care this year beyond rural areas to some 100 urban neighborhoods from New Orleans to Seattle.

For next year, the 5-year-old agency has requested $62.9 million for its programs, more than double its budget when it served only rural areas. Its rolls also have more than doubled, to 1,350 doctors, physicians' assistants, nurse practitioners and dentists.

Where only a handful of these were offering the urban poor an alternative to traditional health care two years ago, the number this year has increased to one in five. Typical is Mrs. Salomon, a pediatrician in a community program in Manhattan's Lower East Side.

"We help our patients take a more active role in their health care," says the jeans-clad Mrs. Salomon, who greets the parents of some patients with an affectionate buss. "We know who they are."

A physicians' assistant and a nurse practitioner, both paid by the corps, work with her in the gaily painted townhouse operated by the Betances Health Unit for roughly 800 patients so far. Complex cases are referred to a visiting internist or elsewhere.

Unhurriedly and sympathetically, in Spanish or in English, the team extracts medical histories, performs tests that have been neglected or feared over the years and examines white, black and Hispanic patients long used to shutting from one nameless face to the next.

They are billed what they can afford, $2-$34 a visit. Most are charged less than $6, and no one is ever dunned.

"It is much more convenient for all of us," Miladros Huth observes as her three boys are examined. "I would get very upset when I went to Bellevue hospital. It was just too much. It was a big hassle."

Besides, Mrs. Huth continues, the city's huge Bellevue hospital charged her $10 a visit, compared with $6 at Betances. And there was no one like Mrs. Salomon at the hospital, "someone I could ask questions."

Mrs. Salomon, a 38-year-old mother of two children, remembers "not only the names of Mrs. Hugh's children but their ailments as well."

She looks with special care, for example, at Daniel's ear drum because of his history of infections. And she decides against another blood test because, she says, "once a year is more than enough." Then she asks the mother when she plans to have her own physical.

"We sort of involve patients in a much more active way in controlling health care," Mrs. Salomon says, maintaining that the community facility can provide understanding and education and inspire confidence unlike anywhere else her patients might go.

"I think patients like to come here because it's friendlier," remarks Patricia Gleaton, a nurse practitioner. "It's the atmosphere and the time we can spend. A lot of patients don't like to wait for three hours and see a doctor for five minutes."

The third member of the corps medical team, Anna Paez, proves the point with a toothless Bowery delinquent who would have tuberculosis.

When the 57-year-old man says he has sworn off alcohol since May, the physicians' assistant asks whether he has a job. When he replies that he doesn't, she offers to help him get into a training program.

Then she closely questions him about the numbness on one side of his face, the pains in his joints and a past hospitalization.

SHE FIGHTS WITH A STETHOSCOPE — Dr. Patricia Salomon works for the burgeoning National Health Service Corps, a five-year-old agency which has expanded its medical care this year beyond rural areas to some 100 urban neighborhoods from New Orleans to Seattle. Here Dr. Salomon, 38, examines a patient at New York's Betances Health Unit Monday.

Enthusiasm for Camp David triumph was overwhelming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The security was predictably tight but one thing remained unguarded and unbridled when Jimmy Carter, Anwar Sadat and Menachem Begin strode into the House of Representatives: the incredible enthusiasm for their Camp David triumph.

Over and over came the cries: "Bravo! Bravo!"

They came from the House floor and gallery alike; from Republicans and Democrats; from conservatives and liberals. Many wept as they shouted their salutes.

While President Carter basked at the podium, Israel's Begin and Egypt's Sadat took it all in from their front-row balcony seats beside his wife, Rosalynn.

Thomas Duncan of the House parliamentarian's office said he could find no precedent for even two world leaders attending a joint session of Congress, much less three.

But what was more remarkable Monday night was the intensity of the welcome accorded them.

There was none of that so-called polite but reserved applause. This time it was all out, profoundly unreserved, punctuated by whistles and cheers.

For security reasons, only invited guests were allowed even within the capitol grounds and many of them found they had to repeatedly display their credentials as they walked through corridors of police.

But that restrictive air dissipated as soon as Sadat strode down the balcony steps with Begin and Mrs. Carter close behind. When the two men shook hands, they triggered an ovation that ended only when Doorkeeper James T. Malloy announced: "Mr. Speaker, the President of the United States."

And Jimmy Carter never had it like this, not even in his first "honeymoon" address to the Congress. It was a speech obviously finished at the last minute, with his teleprompter operator madly scribbling in changes as the sheets were fed into the machine. At that, the president ad-libbed at length, and still, it seemed, he could say no wrong.

You can do it!

Regular maintenance around your house can stop energy leaks.

A dripping hot water faucet can waste 200 gallons a month—plus the energy it took to heat it. But not if you do something about it.

Texas Electric's free booklet on maintenance is one of a series we're offering to energy-conscious homeowners who want to make their homes energy efficient. It tells you just what to look for to keep your house in top shape through hot weather, cold weather, year-round. Even unhandy people can follow the checklists to keep their homes comfortable and minimize energy bills.

You may also want the other booklets in the series covering such specific areas as insulation, storm windows, caulking, weatherstripping, and ductwork. Just call us, or ask for the booklets on the comments section of your electric bill. You'll see how easy it is to make your home energy efficient.

More keep sales tax than those repealing it

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — More Texas cities have decided to keep the local sales tax on utility bills than have voted to repeal the levy on residential gas and electric bills, says Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Bullock said Monday that a total of 125 cities have notified his office they will repeal the one percent local sales tax while another 127 cities have notified him they will retain the tax.

A total of about 900 cities levy the one percent city sales tax. The cities had until Sept. 10 to notify the comptroller they wanted it repealed.

Bullock said all homeowners and renters will enjoy an additional $150 million tax break when the state's four percent sales tax on utility bills is repealed, effective Oct. 1.

The one percent local sales tax on utilities will be automatically repealed in all Texas cities effective Oct. 1, 1979, unless they vote by May 1, 1979, to continue the tax.

Bullock said San Antonio, Dallas, Fort Worth and Austin have voted to repeal the local tax on this Oct. 1. Houston refused to repeal the tax, but has not yet notified the comptroller of its decision.

Heart monitoring equipment on display

Malone-Hogan Hospital is giving a live demonstration of heart monitoring equipment, as a part of its exhibit at Booth 35 at the Howard County Fair this week.

The public will see the actual heart pattern traced and explained during the demonstration hours from 5 to 9 each evening, when hospital personnel will act as patients, while trauma teams will explain the patterns and answer questions of on-lookers.

During the hours prior to 5 p.m., an artificial heart will stimulate a heart pattern on the monitor, and mannikins will portray the patient.

"We would like to bring out the entire ICU-CCU monitoring console for the public to see," Nursing Director Jean Connelly said recently, because many will recognize it as being the same as that in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock." But the console unit will remain in ICU.

Instead, the team will demonstrate a portable unit called a Cardiac-Pac, which operates on the same principle as the one in ICU-CCU, but without the broad capabilities of perimeter settings, recording and print-out, and alert systems, Ms. Connelly said. Connected to the patient through electrodes, the monitor traces a vivid heart rate pattern, and can be stopped at any point for further study.

Heads of the various department will host the booth throughout the day. The public is invited to stop by the booth to visit, pick up the free booklets on health related issues, and to view the demonstration after 5 p.m.

Cowboys and Indians to perform Wednesday

Ray Darby, a Kiowa Indian, will present Hunting Horse and the Real Americans in an Indian show on Wednesday at 8 p.m.

The show will be in the rodeo arena for the Indian who has been appearing in state and county fairs, movies, on television, at Pow-Wows, Indian schools, on the Hee Haw Show and the Grand Ol Opry.

Hunting Horse, as he is known, is an Indian painter and musician who resides in Lawton, Okla. and is a direct descendant of many famous Kiowa chiefs and artists.

Among them was his paternal great-grandfather, the first Hunting Horse, who served as a guide and scout for General Custer. He was ill and did not make the trip where the Indians were massed at Little Big Horn.

Shortly before his death in 1952, he bestowed his name on his favorite great-grandson, Ray.

Another of Darby's ancestors was Able Big Bow. Darby has performed for crowds throughout America and most recently on a tour in Australia.

The show will feature cowboys and Indians, a singing show and a country-gospel singing family known as Jerry Short and the Countrymen. Tickets are available at the gate.

Girl's father found after tornado tragedy

GRINNELL, Iowa (AP) — The deadly twister killed 6-year-old Melaine Rau's mother, brother and sister, and authorities believed her father died too when the tornado smashed a rest stop near Interstate 80.

But hours after a three-day search for Lothar Rau ended Monday night, he was discovered in fair condition at University Hospitals in Iowa City, the same hospital where Melaine was recovering from injuries. She also was listed in fair condition.

Police had searched for the 28-year-old Rau since Saturday night when the tornado devastated a complex of buildings near the Grinnell interchange on Interstate 80, about 50 miles east of Des Moines.

Rau had been at the hospital since late Saturday night, registered under the name of Alberto Phonito of Grinnell. Authorities had thought Phonito was a transient until he was in-law who was at the hospital to see her granddaughter.

University Hospitals officials said Rau was brought in late Saturday night with a group of persons critically injured by the tornado.

There was no immediate official explanation from authorities on why Rau was registered under a different name, but a hospital source, who asked not to be identified, said he was found near a motorcycle at the rest stop and misidentified through registration found on the vehicle.

There also was no word on Phonito's fate.

The tornado killed Rau's wife Rosemary, 26, and their other children, Alexander, 4, and Belinda Ann, 7.

An ambulance attendant said Mrs. Rau's body was found under the steering wheel of the family car and the bodies of the two dead children were found in and around the wreckage of a service station at the interchange site.

Poweshiek County Sheriff Max Allen had said the only information they had that placed Rau at the scene was a statement from Melaine.

"I was holding Daddy's hand when the wind blew Mom away," she had told authorities from her hospital bed before her father was found.

"But how much weight do you give to a 6-year-old who has been through an experience like that?" Allen had asked.

Allen had said he was not convinced that Rau of Alstead Center, N.H., was at the scene of the mishap.

Commission for the Blind an accounting disaster

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Auditor George McNeil says the $8 million-a-year State Commission for the Blind was a disaster in 1975 and 1976 from an accounting standpoint.

McNeil's audit report said the commission's books were so full of errors and improper accounting practices that he could not vouch for them.

He said the same basic problems had been pointed out in the commission's previous audit.

He said the commission had hired a new accountant in September 1977 "and began attempts to implement and adhere to accounting policies and procedures which are generally acceptable for governmental units. We anticipate that subsequent examinations will disclose considerable success met by these endeavors."

The agency's chief source of funds —

$12.4 million over the two-year period — is federal grant money.

McNeil said the best he could tell was that during the two-year period, the commission had spent $73,725 over its income.

Among his criticisms were:

- Individual funds were internally out of balance.
- A high rate of accounting errors.
- Reconciliations of cash and appropriation balances were not done on time. When attempted later, the result was numerous differences between the commission's recorded transactions and those reported to the state comptroller.
- We were unable to satisfy ourselves that all differences were satisfactorily resolved," McNeil said.
- Inadequate or missing documentation to back up the commission's financial transactions.

Despite study by DISD Integrated classes better

DALLAS (AP) — Despite figures which show some black pupils learn more in all-black schools in Dallas, Superintendent Nolan Estes says that students attending integrated classes are better off overall.

Estes revealed Monday that an extensive study by the Dallas Independent School District showed, among other things, that second grade pupils in all-black schools in South Dallas are achieving "slightly higher" than black pupils in integrated classrooms.

But Estes said black pupils in integrated classrooms are still better off "attitudinally" than those in all-black schools.

"At the present time, our students (in integrated schools) are showing a major improvement in multicultural attitudes," said Estes.

"It occurs to me that if we're going to train young people not only to live efficiently in the 20th century, but also to contribute to society, then we have to develop an understanding of ethnic groups other than our own."

The study reported Monday was conducted by the DISD's research and evaluation department between 1972 and 1978. It is to be presented to the school board this week.

Achievement levels of middle-class whites do not decrease as a result of integration, Estes said.

"There has been no decrease in achievement among any group of students," the superintendent said.

He attributed the higher achievement among blacks to more intensive back-to-basics curriculum changes in the South Dallas sub-district, established in 1976 as part of Dallas' desegregation plan.

Estes said the district's research would "disagree" with the findings of sociologist James Coleman.

It was Coleman's studies in the mid 1960s that were used to support desegregation.

Career forces them to be around it

Alcohol a problem for diplomats

MOSCOW (AP) — Hal Marley positioned his tall frame in the center of the darkening room as late afternoon edged toward cocktail time and another evening of well-oiled diplomatic receptions.

Marley was here to talk about a problem that is not much discussed — alcoholism among State Department employees, men and women whose job representing America abroad often calls for them to attend parties and receptions at which booze is almost pressed upon them.

Scanning the audience of U.S. Embassy officers gathered around him, Marley recounted how his own alcoholism — resulting in his ouster from the Air Force more than a decade ago — put him and his family through "a living hell."

But, he declared firmly: "There's no reason for anyone in this room to become an alcoholic."

Marley, 63, is head of the State Department's Alcohol Awareness Program, designed to provide treatment for incipient alcoholics before their condition has progressed to an acute stage.

"If you're a potential alcoholic and you don't nip it in the bud, your career is going to be ruined because this is a progressive disease — it never gets better by itself, it only gets worse," he told one Embassy group during a Moscow visit this week.

Referring to acute alcohol addiction, Marley added: "I've seen basket cases from all over the world."

Marley said in an interview that so far, the alcohol program — begun in the early 1970s — has treated only a fraction of the overall number of State Department employees, both in Washington and abroad, who are believed to suffer from alcohol-related problems.

He noted that according to U.S. Civil Service guidelines, "roughly 6 percent of the adult working population who use alcohol develop problems."

"On the basis of that, we say there are roughly 1,500 alcoholics — these are all just guesstimates — in the State Department," Marley said. "Last year we treated a little over 150. So it's just the tip of the iceberg."

The State Department program was set up under federal legislation defining alcoholism as a disease and mandating that all federal departments and agencies set up medical programs for treating it.

The program involves a 28-day basic treatment period — for alcohol detoxification in a hospital, plus psychotherapy and family counseling — followed by additional counseling as needed.

Marley said a statistical evaluation had shown that about 90 percent of employees who go through the program remain free of alcohol problems for at least one year afterward.

"We don't say you graduate from it, or finish it," he said. "Our program is a way of life."

Employees who take part in the program, Marley said, "find that they can do everything they ever did in their life better without booze than with it — and

Dear Abby
Says Old Roosters Like Young Chicks

DEAR ABBY: Why do all 50- and 60-year-old men want 20- and 30-year-old women, when we 50-year-old women would be so much better for them?

FIFTY AND LONELY

DEAR FIFTY: First, not ALL 50- and 60-year-old men want 25- and 30-year-old women, but who's to say what's "better" for those who do?

As for those May-December marriages, they are usually a trade-off, and all that is necessary for a marriage to succeed is two people who need each other. It matters little what each needs from the other, as long as the need is real and fulfilled.

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl, 16, and I am dating boys who have cars. Sometimes we'll come home from a movie or somewhere and we'll sit in his car for a while. We sit right in front of my house, Abby. If we wanted to make out, we could easily go park on a lonely road.

I'm not saying I've never exchanged a kiss or two with a guy in his car, but it's never a big make-out session. We talk mostly.

I don't do anything in the car I wouldn't do in the house, but my mother says she doesn't want me sitting out there—even talking. She says the neighbors are getting their eyes full, and I'm ruining my reputation. I couldn't care less what the neighbors say, as my conscience is clear. I would like your opinion.

NOTHING TO HIDE

DEAR NOTHING: As long as you don't do anything in the car that you wouldn't do in the house, do it in the house. A girl has only one reputation, so take care that yours is as clear as your conscience.

DEAR ABBY: I am a young widow. (Under 30) My husband died less than a year ago in a tragic accident, and I'm still not over it.

I've always been very close to my in-laws, and since my husband's death I have had dinner at their place once a week.

Now my problem: Three weeks ago, when I went to my in-law's home for dinner, my mother-in-law wasn't home yet, but my father-in-law was. Well, he made improper advances toward me. At first I thought he was just being affectionate in a fatherly way, but he started holding me tight and kissing me. I realized that he had something else in mind. I was totally stunned when he started to unbutton my blouse! I freed myself, ran to my car and drove home.

Since that night I haven't been back there. My mother-in-law keeps asking me when I'm coming, but I don't want to face my father-in-law again. What do I tell my mother-in-law? Just thinking about that incident turns my stomach. Help me, please.

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Go back to your in-laws and try to resume your former good relationship. At the very first opportunity tell your father-in-law privately that if he ever makes another pass at you, you will tell his wife. I doubt if you'll have any trouble with him after that.

A personal question

By Robert Wallace Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I wonder if I could ask you a personal question. You are the only syndicated writer that I feel comfortable asking such a question.

Please, don't think I am nosy but how much money does a syndicated writer get for every paper his column appears in?

I think you have the best job in the world and someday I would like to be a syndicated writer writing humorous articles. Thanks — Brenda, Athens, Tenn.

Brenda: Syndicated writers are normally paid so much a newspaper with a 5,000 daily circulation could pay $3.00 per week. A large daily newspaper with a daily circulation of one million could pay $75 to $100 per week.

A syndicated writer's salary then depends on the number of newspapers carrying the column and the size (circulation) of each paper.

Brenda, the only way to find out many things is to ask.

B & PW sponsors picnic for state hospital

The annual State Hospital Picnic, sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Club, was held Sept. 12 at the Old Settlers Pavilion, Comanche Trail Park.

Guests were entertained with western music provided by Dr. J. Gale Kilgore. Some enjoyed dancing. About 86 attended the event.

Hospital personnel who coordinated the picnic were Genie Crooks, Anna Emerson, Rowena Matingly and Shirley Shroyer.

Kip Bracy, president of the local club, welcomed the guests and Edith Gray gave the invocation. Food was prepared and served by club members. General chairman was Mamie Roberts.

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs remind the community that club objectives are to elevate the standard for women in business and in the professions; to promote the interest of business and professional women; to bring about a spirit of cooperation among business and professional women of the United States; and to extend opportunities to business and professional women through education along the lines of industrial, scientific and vocational activities.

Colts explode past Patriots

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP)—The National Football League has a new triple threat in Joe Washington, and the injury-riddled Baltimore Colts have a new life.

"It's one of the greatest upsets in pro football history," said Baltimore Coach Ted Marchbroda after the Colts exploded for 27 fourth-quarter points Monday night and shocked the New England Patriots 34-27.

Penn St. advances

Bama sits tight

SCHIEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer Penn State has moved into a third-place tie with Oklahoma in The Associated Press college football poll, thanks to a 19-0 triumph over Ohio State that dropped the losers from sixth place to 16th.

Meanwhile, Alabama and Arkansas remained in the 1-2 spots where they have been since the preseason poll.

Alabama, a 38-20 winner over Missouri, received 50 first-place votes and 1,207 of a possible 1,220 points from a nationwide panel of 61 sports writers and broadcasters.

Arkansas, which trounced Vanderbilt 48-17, received six first-place votes and 1,124 points. Last week's margin, with 63 voters sending in their ballots, was 1,247-1,128.

Both Oklahoma, which walloped West Virginia 52-10, and Penn State received 1,053 points. Four panelists voted Penn State No. 1, while the other first-place ballot went to Oklahoma.

Penn State's climb from fifth place a week ago dropped Michigan from fourth to fifth with 969 points even though the Wolverines blanked Illinois 31-0.

Texas, Southern California, UCLA and Texas A&M each moved up one position to the 6-7-8-9 spots.

Texas hammered Rice 34-0, Southern Cal whipped Oregon 37-10, UCLA downed Tennessee 13-0 and Texas A&M was idle. Louisiana State, 13th a week ago, cracked the Top Ten with a 24-17 victory over Indiana.

The Second Ten consists of Pitt, Nebraska, Florida State, Notre Dame, Washington, Ohio State, Missouri, Maryland, Colorado and Iowa State.

Last week, it was Missouri, Nebraska, LSU, Pitt, Notre Dame, Florida State, Kentucky, Washington, Iowa State and Maryland.

Colorado, which defeated Miami, Fla., 17-7, replaced Kentucky in the Top Twenty. The Wildcats were held to a 14-14 tie by South Carolina.

Washington, obtained in a trade with San Diego for recalcitrant running back Lydell Mitchell, accounted for three of the touchdowns — on a halfback pass, a 23-yard reception, and a 90-yard gallop with a kickoff return.

The touchdown run broke a 27-27 tie with 1:18 left in the nationally televised game, as Baltimore won its first NFL contest of the season and dropped the heavily favored Patriots to 1-2.

"It reminds me of my days in college at Oklahoma when things looked really bleak, but we always came back and won," said Washington. "I took the kickoff on a good bounce; the wedge was right there. I could see a crease. When I ran outside I knew it was a touchdown."

Earlier in the quarter Washington had given Baltimore a 14-13 lead on his 54-yard pass to wide receiver Roger Carr. He then caught a touchdown pass from quarterback Bill Troup.

New England led 13-7 at halftime and took that margin into the fourth quarter before the fireworks started.

After Washington's touchdown pass and reception, Carr caught a 67-yard strike from Troup and the Colts hung on.

New England stormed back with 14 points on a 4-yard touchdown run by quarterback Steve Grogan and Sam Cunningham's 1-yard plunge.

Washington's stunning dash up the right sideline with the kickoff return provided the final Baltimore margin as a last-ditch New England drive ended with safety Lyle Blackwood's interception in the end zone with 23 seconds left.

"I've always had a good arm," Washington said of his touchdown pass. "I threw a touchdown for Oklahoma against Texas and in the NFL for San Diego against Denver."

"But it's the first kickoff I've ever run back for a touchdown and now I think our team is like a boat crossing the Atlantic. It hit some bad storms but now we have clear sailing."

MVP? Guidry or Rice

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer Stand next to Ron Guidry and he looks like your kid brother. He is a wisp of a man and to call him slender is to give him the benefit of the doubt. Skinny would be a more appropriate adjective.

Despite his size, no man is more responsible for the New York Yankees sitting in first place right now in the American League's East Division than the left-hander from Louisiana, whose voice still retains traces of his Bayou upbringing.

Guidry is 22-2, a .917 winning percentage which becomes particularly significant when you consider that no 20-game winner has ever finished a season with a percentage of better than .900. The closest was Lefty Grove, who went 31-4 for an .886 percentage in 1931.

He has won nine of his last 10 decisions and six of those victories have been shutouts, the last two consecutive two-hitters against the Boston Red Sox. Guidry now has eight shutouts for the season and a 1.71 earned run average. Only five times since 1920 has a pitcher finished with an ERA lower than that, and two of those were in 1968 when major league hitters went on a season-long sojourn.

Those eight shutouts tie Guidry for the Yankee single season club record set by Hall of Famer Whitey Ford in 1964 and his 225 strikeouts are second only in Yankee club history to the 239 achieved by another Hall of Famer, Jack Chesbro, in 1904.

Add this season's 22-2 record on to the 8-1 mark he posted down the stretch a year ago and Guidry has won 30 of his last 33 regular season decisions as well as one playoff game and one World Series game. In the 31 starts Guidry has made this season, New York has won 27 games. In the four Guidry games they have lost — two charged against his record and two charged to other pitchers — the Yankees have scored six runs.

What this all adds up to, of course, is that Guidry is having a remarkable season and he is a virtual shoo-in for the American League Cy Young award. He could very well be a unanimous winner and you'd hear very little argument if that happened.

But what about Most Valuable Player? Guidry's credentials also seem to qualify him for that honor as well, and he could be the first pitcher since Vida Blue in 1971 to win both awards.

Ballots are in the mail today to the members of the Baseball Writers Association of America serving on the separate Cy Young and MVP committees and these men will have to weigh carefully the dominant year Guidry is enjoying. For the Cy Young voters, it won't be a problem. He has no logical competition in the American League this season. For the MVP voters, however, it's quite another question.

When Commissioner Ford Frick decided in 1956 that the voters were ignoring pitchers in MVP balloting, the Cy Young award was born. Since then, only five pitchers have won MVPs—Don Newcombe in 1956, Sandy Koufax in 1963, Bob Gibson and Denny McLain in 1968 and Blue in 1971. All, of course, also were Cy Young winners.

Some MVP voters feel that pitchers have their own award and that the MVP should be reserved for other players. But there is no such restriction on the ballot.

For most of this season, it looked like Jim Rice would be a cinch for the AL MVP award because, quite simply, he is having a frightening year at the plate. Rice is leading the majors in home runs, runs batted in, hits, and triples, and is second in runs scored and batting average. He has clearly been as dominant in his departments as Guidry has been in his. But Rice's team is in second place and if it stays there, that could make the difference with the voters.

The instructions that accompany MVP ballots say, "There is no clear definition for 'Most Valuable Player.'" Last year's winners, Rod Carew and George Foster, played with teams that did not finish first in their divisions. But their seasons were so awesome that they almost had to win the awards.

In another year, Rice would be in the same situation and a likely MVP despite the swoon the Red Sox have suffered through. But with the option of voting for Guidry instead, that Red Sox coma could cost their slugger that award.

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers put together two picture-perfect drives to salvage a 20-19 victory over San Francisco and Oiler Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips says it will take more of the same if the Oilers intend to beat the hot Los Angeles Rams Sunday.

"We're going to have to drive like that on every series to have a chance to win," Phillips said. "We'll have to control the football and not many people have been able to do that against the Rams over the years."

The Oilers, 2-1, drove 75 yards on the first series of the game capped by Earl Campbell's four-yard touchdown run but it took a 78-yard drive and a 19-yard field goal by Toni Fritsch with 1:16 to play to win the game.

Los Angeles, 3-0 and one of five remaining unbeaten National Football League teams, continued to roll last week with a 27-14 victory over the Dallas Cowboys, the same score by which the Oilers defeated the Cowboys in an exhibition game.

The Oilers, who went into the game with the No. 1 pass defense in the American Football Conference, were deflated by 49er quarterback Steve DeBerg, who completed 20 of 32 passes for 321 yards and threw touchdown passes of 58 and eight yards in the second half.

"We didn't get it done with our pass rush," Phillips said. "On the touchdown to (Fred) Solomon (the 58-yarder) Bill Currier misjudged the guy's speed and had the wrong angle but I've never seen a football game where they didn't complete some passes and some people didn't make mistakes."

Phillips said he hopes Oiler kick return specialist Billy "White Shoes" Johnson will return to full speed against the Rams. Johnson fielded two punts against the 49ers and returned them 12 yards although he was supposed to only fair catch.

"I told the doctors he was only going to fair catch them but he didn't do it," Phillips said. "We're hoping he will be at full speed by Sunday."

Johnson was a holdout during preseason drills and suffered a knee injury in the final exhibition game.

The 49er-Oiler game had been billed as a showdown between San Francisco's O.J. Simpson and Campbell, who failed for the first time in his brief pro career to rush 100 yards in a game.

games but Simpson still was impressed.

Slew, Ali impressive in victories

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
When pollsters start ruminating in late December over the peaks and valleys of the 1978 sports season they need look no farther than a weekend in mid-September to determine "Comeback of the Year."

Here is what happened in the 42 hours between midnight Friday, Sept. 15, and 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 17:
—Muhammad Ali, at age 36, outlasted 25-year-old Leon Spinks with an unpected display of footwork and finesse and became the first man ever to win the heavyweight ring championship three times.

—Seattle Slew, horse racing's "Wonder Colt" of 1977 and bust of 1978, ran Affirmed and his celebrated kid rider, Steve Cauthen, into the ground in the Marlboro Cup in the only meeting ever of Triple Crown champions.

—The New York Yankees, 14 games out of first place on July 18, beat ex-teammate Mike Torrez Saturday for a sixth straight victory over the Boston Red Sox, moving 3½ games in front in American League East. (This was the last nail in Boston's coffin, observers insisted, although the Red Sox salvaged the final game Sunday.)

Navels unattractive?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Those exposed navels of the Washington Redskins cheerleaders are going under cover.
The Redskinettes apparently will be wearing different uniforms, or at least more conservative versions of the old ones, when they take the field Sunday for the Redskins-

New York Jets football game in RFK Stadium.
Two Sundays ago, the 36 Redskinettes, following the National Football League trend toward revealing costumes, wore large capes which were dropped to unveil new uniforms of bare backs and plunging necklines. Diamond-shaped cutouts across their midriffs bared their navels.

The crowd gave them whistles and a huge cheer, but not everyone was pleased with the new look. One of those was club President Edward Bennett Williams.
He told one upset fan, Ms. Marilyn Fausnight, "I share your feeling that the new uniforms of the Redskinettes are most inappropriate and have directed that they be replaced."

Joel Margolis, Redskins assistant general manager who is in charge of the halftime show, said there was a mistake two Sundays ago but changes will be forthcoming this weekend.
"The color of the costume will be the same and the basic design will be the same," he said. "However, the opening in the middle will be diffused."
Margolis said the uniforms arrived just 1½ hours before the first home game of the season, and the women were not able to be fitted properly, a situation that will be corrected this Sunday. He also said the Redskinettes actually have three different uniforms they can wear and may well use them alternately.

"We're not trying to sell a sex show," said Margolis. "Their uniforms will look the way they should."
In her letter to Williams, Ms. Fausnight said, "I question why a person cannot be retained who has the talent to design a sexy and chic outfit for our Redskin cheerleaders."
"The coup de grace is the diamond-shaped, navel-exposed cutout. Navels come in all shapes and sizes, none of which are particularly attractive in my estimation. It's rather like elbows; we all have a set, but who wishes to direct blatant attention to a bunch of folds in the skins... I would forego navel exposure and bring back the good, old-fashioned cleavage," she said.

COVER UP PLANNED — A Washington Redskinettes does her thing before the home crowd in the Redskins regular season opener at home last week. In upcoming games the girls will take to the field with some changes in their costumes which will include the covering of the navel area which is exposed here.

—The Pittsburgh Pirates, after falling 11½ games back of the Philadelphia Phillies on a 10-1 bombing on Aug. 12, staged their second September rally to cut the Phillies' advantage to two games. Earlier, they had sliced it to half a game only to see the Phillies spurt five ahead on Sept. 11. Sunday's victory was the sixth in a row for the Bucs, who have a home advantage over the Phillies in the final two weeks of the season.

Okay, quickly now, how do you pick 'em?
Here's one man's opinion, in order: 1, Slew; 2, Ali; 3, Yankees; 4, Pirates.
As dramatic as was Ali's comeback, as unbelievable as the late summer surges of the dissention-ent Yankees and the roller-coaster Pirates, the year's most fantastic performance came from the flying hooves of the 1977 bargain basement colt, Seattle Slew.

"He flew like an airplane," said his substitute rider, Angel Cordero, after Slew kicked dirt in Affirmed's eyes all around the Belmont track and won by an impressive three lengths.
Affirmed had built up a reputation of invincibility after beating Alydar this year in stirring head-to-head duels in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Seattle Slew, a thick-chested, gimpy-legged speed merchant who was hailed by some as the best of an inferior crop, swept the 3-year-old jewels the year before but suddenly fell upon bad times.
After winning the Triple Crown, a weary Slew was shipped to the West Coast — against the advice of trainer Billy Turner — and beaten by 16 lengths in the Swaps Stakes. Turner criticized the greed and insensitivity of the co-owners, Mickey Taylor and Jim Hill. He was promptly fired.

Slew developed "tired blood" and other nagging ailments. It appeared he might never race again. He didn't win a stakes race for 15 months. He had a couple of set-up preps, then lost his first comeback test at Meadowlands — the second defeat of his career. His regular jockey, Jean Cruguet, said the horse wasn't ready. Cruguet was fired, replaced by Cordero.

In the Marlboro Cup, Affirmed, 18-year-old Cauthen in the irons, was bet down to 1-2 odds. As an older horse, Slew had to spot him four pounds. Few gave the 1977 Cinderella colt a chance.
Cordero took Slew into the lead and the brown thunderbolt never looked back.

JUST A LITTLE ENGLISH — Donna Caponi Young wound up in this position as she urged the ball to drop on a 10-foot birdie putt Sunday on 14th at Round Hill Country Club. It didn't, but she took par five and went on to win the Sarah Country LPGA tournament for her first victory since 1976.

THIRD TIME AROUND — Muhammad Ali holds up fingers pointing out the fact that he has won the heavyweight title for a third time over the weekend in New Orleans.

Attitude concerns Lewis

DALLAS (AP) — Linebacker D.D. Lewis said today the Dallas Cowboys have lost the mental edge that made them Super Bowl XII champions.

"This year we keep saying we can get to the Super Bowl but I don't think we believe it yet," said Lewis in the wake of Dallas' 27-14 National Football League drubbing by the Los Angeles Rams.
"We are a semi-great team," said the 13-year veteran. "Last year we were so mad because LA had beaten us in the playoffs the previous year that all we could think about was the Super bowl. If we don't get with it, we could have a number of games like we had Sunday."

What happened to the Cowboys Sunday, said Lewis, was a "shock."
"It hurts when their coach (Ray Malavasi) comes out and says they are going to whip our tails then the team comes out and does it," said Lewis. "There's not a lot you can say. Maybe it will be good for us in the long haul. Maybe it will get us back to basics."
Lewis said "I'm concerned the way the Rams shut our running down. Something is wrong when we pass 45 times a game. (Coach) Tom Landry's philosophy is to run."

He said that Ram quarterback Pat Haden was largely responsible for the confusion the Cowboy defense showed.
"Haden switched to a quick count and we couldn't disguise our defense," said Lewis.

Tigers prep for Steers

SNYDER — When the Snyder Tigers host the Big Spring Steers Friday night, they will be hoping to improve on their 1-1 record in 1978 and a personal six game winning streak with their long time rival.
The Tigers, picked to finish second in District 3-AAA, return 17 lettermen from the team that beat the Steers in the last minute by a 12-7 score.

Clay Johnson, a second year all-district quarterback a year ago, is a good runner and very capable field general. Jenkins rates the quarterbacking of Johnson as a strong point in the Tiger attack this fall, along with a good offensive line and a good attitude on the squad.
The offensive line that Jenkins speaks highly of includes 220-pound Scott Crenwedge and 225-pound Baron Land. Both are returning all-district picks. Others playing in the trenches include guards Cary Welch and C.B. Edmiston.

When Johnson goes to the air, he will likely throw to either Mitch Mackey or Mike Hicks, a 6'4", 200-pound tight end.
Snyder opened the season by taking a 32-6 drubbing at the hands of the always tough Midland Lee Rebels. They were expected to be the toughest of the Steer opponents in non-district competition and will attempt to prove that Friday night against the improving Big Spring Club.

Ali ponders title defense

CHICAGO (AP) — Muhammad Ali apparently still likes the way the heavyweight crown fits.
Before regaining the title from Leon Spinks for an unprecedented third time last Friday night, Ali said he would retire the heavyweight boxing championship if he won.
But in a statement released Monday by his attorney, Charles Lomax, Ali said he has no intention of retiring without another title defense.

Any decision on when, where and whom to fight will not be made for at least eight months, Herbert Muhammad, Ali's manager, said in a statement.
"In response to the many invitations extended to Muhammad Ali from boxing promoters and others to defend his title, Herbert Muhammad announced today that there would not be a defense of the title for at least eight months," the statement read. "After that period, Mr. Ali will make the determination as to the date of the defense of his title and the name of the opponent."

Lomax said the statement was released after numerous offers were received since Ali regained his title.
Among the offers, Lomax said, was one for $8 million to fight an opponent of his choice in Iran and another for $6 million to $8 million to fight Jerry Coetzee in South Africa.
