

To support battered dollar

Administration may take new measures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless the dollar does a surprising about-face on world money markets, and does it quickly, it seems likely the Carter administration will be compelled to take new measures to try to support the battered greenback.

But there is considerable skepticism among monetary experts here that there is anything more the administration reasonably can do that would help the U.S. currency, which again fell to record lows Monday on world money markets.

Carter promised foreign dollar-holders an energy bill. He got that. He promised an antiinflation program. He's announced that. But neither caused more than a wiggle in the steady downward trend of the dollar.

If dollar traders took either measure into account at all, they apparently discounted them as inadequate. Markets are volatile, however, and while a reversal of the trend one day soon is not regarded here as impossible, no one seems willing to bet on it.

The latest plunge in the dollar was set off by the report last Friday that consumer prices increased 0.8 percent in September alone, pointing to a possible worsening inflation rate, which appears to be the chief worry of foreign dollar-holders at the present time.

Lloyd Atkinson, chief staff economist for the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, said foreign dollar-holders apparently now want the administration to bring on a recession to try to slow inflation, although they don't come right out and say so.

"They clearly are calling for much tighter fiscal and monetary policies than the Carter administration or the Federal Reserve Board are willing to pursue," he said in an interview Monday.

Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, said Monday in New York that if progress isn't made against inflation within six months to a year, a worse recession than the 1975 economic collapse could result. "And that, in turn, was the worst recession of the post-war period," he said.

The slide in the dollar in the past week has shown foreign dollar-holders do not believe Carter's new anti-inflation program can be successful in significantly slowing the inflation that undermines the purchasing power of the dollar and therefore makes it less attractive to hold.

It also could be further indication that foreigners are skeptical that Carter's energy program will achieve its goal of encouraging fuel conservation so as to cut purchases of foreign oil and help reduce the U.S. trade deficit that is now pushing more dollars into foreign hands.

So now there's pressure to look at new choices or adjust old ones. The administration is considering some of them and some are just ideas being attributed to anonymous foreign dollar-holders.

—Buy back billions of dollars on world money markets in an attempt to counter momentum toward selling off dollars — a choice clearly under consideration but one that some officials say could backfire.

—Tighten the money supply by raising interest rates and using other maneuvers just enough to cause what economists refer to as a "pause" in the economy without causing it to slide into a recession — a touchy strategy already partly in force.

—Tighten the economy real tight. All but close it down. Bring on that recession with its staggered national economy and high unemployment, anything to halt inflation. This is what Atkinson says some foreign dollar-holders want, but there is no indication such a drastic step is even being considered by the White House.

Foreign exchange dealers in London are quoted as saying only weighty intervention by the United States to buy up dollars in world money markets can stem the slide now. They said it should borrow from the International Monetary Fund for that purpose.

That could be done fairly easily, but might not be desirable.

The United States can unconditionally borrow up to $4.4 billion from the IMF, and the U.S. Federal Reserve Board has agreements with central banks of other major nations under which it could borrow up to $22 billion in foreign currencies for dollar-support operations.

Country-living residential area being developed

A 160-acre tract along Country Club Road is being developed as a country-living residential area by Roger Brown and W.L. Wilson.

The project is under the name of Campestre Estates, Inc., and several of the three to five acre plots have already been sold, according to Brown.

"We believe there is not a development of this sort anywhere in Big Spring. It is right between the country club and the city. It is a unique location and opportunity."

The area will have restrictions on the building there, governed by an architectural committee and with a 1,400 square foot minimum building size.

No building has yet started on the area.

Refinery workers strike in Iran shuts off exports

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A strike by more than 37,000 refinery workers today shut off Iran's petroleum exports of 5 million barrels a day and Prime Minister Jaafar Sharif-Emani said the nation faces "dangerous problems" because of the walkout.

Meanwhile, thousands of protesters staged anti-government demonstrations in at least two Iranian cities, but no injuries were reported.

Iran is a major supplier of oil to the United States. In Washington, energy officials said it was too early to determine what impact the strike will have on the United States.

Sharif-Emani told the lower house of the Iranian parliament the nation will lose $60 million every day the strike lasts. Tanks and armored vehicles patrolled the capital and several hundred soldiers surrounded the Majlis, or parliament, as he spoke.

Mideast peace talks on rise again today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Middle East peace talks, on a roller coaster for more than a week, were on the rise again today.

With progress reported from both Egypt and Israel, three-way, top-level negotiations were held for the first time in 10 days.

The goal is to complete the text of a peace treaty, a task now complicated by differences over linking the document to the future status of the Palestinians.

Ashraf Ghorbal, the Egyptian ambassador, predicted Monday night that the treaty would be signed "very soon," perhaps Dec. 10 in Oslo, Norway, when Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin receive the Nobel peace prize.

"That is one of the ideas floating around," Ghorbal said at a news conference in Detroit.

Minimizing recent difficulties, he said "we still have a bit of road to cover but I think we have passed the point of no return in the peace negotiations."

The three-way negotiating session at Blair House, across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House, marked an upswing from a clash between Israel and the United States over expansion of Jewish settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

The session was preceded by a U.S.-Egyptian meeting at the State Department.

The resumption of trilateral talks does not mean differences over the "linkage" issue has melted away.

Assessing prospects for a peace treaty, Israel's Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan told reporters Monday: "I still think it is visible and obtainable and that we can reach an agreement within a short time."

Action / reaction: Abandoned car

Q. An old, beat-up car has been on the street in front of my house for a couple of weeks now. I'd like to get the thing moved because it offends the eye. What can I do about it?

A. You can contact the local police department. They will investigate and possibly will declare the vehicle a public nuisance if, indeed, it has been abandoned. The owner, once notified, will be given a reasonable amount of time to remove the vehicle. After that, officials have the right to tow it away.

Art show sales exceed half million dollars

Sales from the second annual Big Spring Arts and Crafts Festival, held recently in the Howard County Coliseum, likely exceeded a half million dollars, Mel Prather of the Cultural Affairs Committee of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce

Prather said he knew of one artist whose works sold for $6,500, another who received for $4,500 in sales and two others who each accounted for sales of $3,000 or more.

Prather estimated the attendance for the two-day event, despite inclement weather or perhaps because of it, reached 35,000. That included people who paid repeat visits to the coliseum.

Prather said the idea of viewing the variety of works of the artists and craftsmen, together with the chance to visit the new $3 million coliseum, proved irresistible to many of the callers.

Tremendously impressed with the public's reaction to the festival were the artists who displayed samples of their work here. Invariably, they said the event was one of the best of its kind held in Texas and the Southwest.

The demand for booths in the 1979 festival, which will be held the third weekend in October, is already tremendous. A total of 87 booths have already been leased, 12 of them representing new clients.

City has new taxi service

Sometime today, two telephone lines for Yellow and Checker Cab should be operational completing the final steps in providing Big Spring with a taxi service to replace Yellow Cab Company that closed last week.

The new service, which is an extension of Yellow and Checker Cab of Midland, is being operated by Bill Lee and will provide 24-hour service.

Lee began the service late last week operating out of the Big Spring Greyhound Bus Terminal, according to Greyhound manager Jim Owens.

"They have been using our telephone lines to take calls for taxi service, and seems to be providing fast, punctual service with adequate number of cabs," Owens said.

The cabs can be requested by calling the Greyhound terminal until the telephones for the business are installed. The phone numbers at that time will be 263-1254 and 263-1255.

HC Rodeo team riding high, roping awards

By MARJ CARPENTER The Howard College rodeo team is riding high nowadays with the boys team out front after the end of four rodeos in the region and the girl's team sitting in second place.

In steer wrestling, Wes Smith of Carlsbad won third in the short go with nine flat and third in the average with 17.97 on two. In team roping, Wes and his brother Ken collected fourth in the short go with 16.72.

At Texas Tech, last weekend, at the largest inside intercollegiate rodeo, the girls team emerged in the lead behind Becky Meek who also got high individual girl honors.

Hank Adams of Forsan split third, fourth and fifth in the bulldogging on the first go with a mark of 70. Skipper Driver, rodeo coach, said, "We're aiming at both teams coming out tops in the region and going back to national."

Becky is from Monahans and she had a great day in Lubbock winning fourth in the first go-round of breakaway with a time of 4.81; second in the short go and finals with a 5.12 and first in the average with 9.93 on two.

She also collected third in goat tying in the first go with 1.89; third in the short go with 12.71 and second in the average with 23.60. The other two girls on the Howard College girls team are Pam Mitchell of Alamo and Sherry Altizer of Del Rio.

The boys team were second to Eastern New Mexico. Mack Altizer, Del Rio won the short go in calf roping with 8.87 and was second in the average on two with 19.92.

Jess Knight of South Dakota split second and third in the first go on Saddle Broncs, marking 69 and won the short go with 71 and the average with 140 onto.

Bruce Griffith, county agent, will act as master of ceremonies with the Rev. Wm. F. Henning, pastor of First Presbyterian Church.

His brother, Jeff won the short go with a 76, highest individual marking in the rodeo and was third in the average on two broncs with 133.

Soash was an Iowa land salesman who developed several little communities and decided that the town of Soash would be named after him and become a great city. It didn't work out that way because of the drought. Soash first came to Texas in 1906 to participate in the sale of the vast XIT Ranch and organized the Soash Land Company.

The city of Soash came out of the land holdings of Col. C.C. Slaughter. In 1909, new buildings included a con-

VA organizes Pink Puffers Club here

"Many times, doctors cannot spend a lot of time talking with a patient about their medical condition," said Dr. Samuel M. Sepuya, pulmonary physician at the Veterans Administration Medical Center. "That is the purpose of organizing the Pink Puffers Club — to educate the victims of respiratory illnesses and their families about their disease and what they can do for themselves."

Included in those needs would not only be educational programs, but open question-answer sessions with physicians, and an organized attempt to locate and define all services and benefits available to victims from such groups as the ALA and Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

There is no such organization serving the Big Spring-Midland-Odessa area according to Sepuya.

"Our first meeting will be Nov. 13 at 6:30 p.m. in the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center and we hope to get a large attendance. As a doctor in Canada, I saw first hand the benefits of teaching patients how to help themselves. Doctors can better treat a patient who knows safeguards to take and better understands his own illness," Sepuya said. "Education and working together — doctors with patients — are the main goals."

"Speakers, programs, films, and other methods will be used to educate respiratory disease victims. The name 'Pink Puffers' was chosen because it is a fairly descriptive term for victims of such illnesses as bronchitis, asthma, emphysema and others," Sepuya explained.

The club is co-sponsored by the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center and the Big Spring chapter of the American Lung Association.

"We will not be running the show," Sepuya emphasized. "We want folks to come to the meeting with ideas of what they want. We would like for the organization to serve their needs — that is the whole aim."

Bush, Hance race lures cash

Huge sums of money are being donated and spent in the District 19 congressional race, which pits Democrat Kent Hance against Republican George Bush Jr. The two men are competing for the right to succeed the veteran George Mahon as congressman in the U.S. House of Representatives.

The Hance and Bush forces spent a total of $579,000 in the race before the reporting deadline of Sept. 30.

Bush reported he raised $347,269 prior to Sept. 30 while Hance reported contributions of $231,809. The GOP hopeful reported expenses of $309,892 while his opponent said he spent $168,709.

Prominent names in the fields of sports, finance and politics are listed among contributors to the Bush cause.

Among those are James McDonnell of St. Louis, president of McDonnell Corp., which produces jet fighter aircraft and space ships, $1,000; Hollywood producer Jerry Weintraub, $1,000; Bowie Kuhn, commissioner of baseball; Peter O'Malley, owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers; Bud Wilkerson, coach of the St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL; Winston Blount, postmaster general in the Nixon administration; and Lowell Thomas, a former network newscaster, now living in retirement in Pawling, N.Y.

Among contributors to the Hance campaign are Lone Star Steel, Dallas; American Sugar Cane League, New Orleans; Marathon Employees PAC, Findlay, Ohio; McDonald Political Action Committee; Oak Brook, Ill.; Texas Educators' Political Action Committee, Austin; American Agriculture, Wolforth, Tex.; Donald Bocher, San Juan, Puerto Rico; W.D. Noel, Odessa; Charles R. Perry, Odessa; and Roy Furr, Lubbock.

Bush, who is 33, comes from a politically oriented family. His father, George Bush Sr., is the former head of the CIA, now regarded as a series contender for the top spot on the 1980 GOP presidential ticket.

Hance, 35, claims strong ties with the state Democratic party. Bush is a graduate of both Harvard University and Yale. An independent oil man, he is making his first political race.

Hance holds a BBA degree from Texas Tech and is a 1968 graduate of the University of Texas School of Law. He was elected to his first political office four years ago when he became a State Senator.

Hance said he had received 90 per cent of his campaign contributions from within the 19th Congressional District. Of Bush, Hance said recently:

"My opponent is a Rockefeller-type Republican with Eastern ties. He has received the majority of his campaign contributions from the Republican party and his campaign financial report shows at least 64 per cent of his contributions and support has come from outside the district and from the Northeast, an area which has been trying to get Texas oil and gas for years."

Bush sees the campaign in a different light. Says he: "I think the real difference in the campaign is which candidate can go to Washington and stand on the issues in the campaign and not have to abandon the West Texas philosophy because of party pressures. If the people want a change in the direction of the country, they are going to have to send someone to Washington who will battle against the majority. The people are listening, and I believe they realize that a real balance is needed.

Bush charges his opponent with running his campaign on non-issues. The Republican predicted he would carry both Ector and Midland counties by a large majority and, in addition, would do well enough in Lubbock County to triumph.

Hance said he had lived in this area all his life and, for that reason, is familiar with its problems. Bush, on the other hand, has resided in Midland only four years, he pointed out.

Mrs. Tower says in Big Spring

'My husband stands for Texas'

A little breathless from the pace of the campaign but bubbling with enthusiasm, Mrs. John (Lilla) Tower made a whirlwind stop in Big Spring Monday afternoon on behalf of her husband's drive to gain re-election as a U.S. Senator from Texas.

A native of Philadelphia who worked her way through law school in Washington, Mrs. Tower says she is now unabashedly a Texan.

The Towers maintain a residence in Wichita Falls but, faced with a rugged and often bitter fight with a tenacious Democratic opponent, Bob Krueger, they have rarely been able to relax at home.

"I don't know what my husband's opponent stands for," Mrs. Tower said here Monday, "but my husband stands for Texas. He loves the state and its people."

Tower has been mentioned frequently for the second spot on the GOP presidential ticket in 1980 but his wife said the senator is not looking beyond this race, which culminates with the general election a week from today.

Mrs. Tower was especially critical of Krueger's support of legislation which would have given the District of Columbia two United States senators, pointing out that it would have provided an area supported almost exclusively by a government payroll the same voting strength in the Congress as Texas has.

She said she found it difficult to understand Krueger's rationale in the decision. (The legislation was defeated).

Mrs. Tower was accompanied here by Ray Estrada, a member of Tower's staff in Austin. Ben Bancroft, head of the Howard County Committee for John Tower, met the two at the Big Spring airport and served as their guide around town.

The Big Spring stop was the fourth of the day for Mrs. Tower and she flew on to Snyder for additional visitations before calling it a day.

She said she plans to stay active, soliciting support for her husband right up until election day. Sen. and Mrs. Tower plan to receive the results of the election from within the confines of their home in Wichita Falls.

She said she had every confidence in the ability of Texans to study the issues and to make the right decision come Tuesday.

Tower's plane put down here briefly last week, allowing the senator to meet with local supporters. In addition, Tower's daughter, Jeannie, was a recent visitor to Big Spring.

City officials attending confab in Fort Worth

Big Spring city officials will return Wednesday from the annual Texas Municipal League Conference held in Fort Worth.

"This conference gives us a chance to get together with other city police and compare notes. It is usually a very valuable experience," said City Manager Harry Nagel. Nagel, James Gregg, city attorney, Bill Brown and Paul Feazelle, assistant city manager's, Tom Ferguson, city finance director, and Stanley Bogard, police chief, attended the meeting.

A holiday gift-wrapping and decorating class will be held at Howard College. The course is designed to instruct employees of gift stores, potential part-time holiday workers, and interested home decorators in the art of holiday gift-wrapping and decorating. The course will be on Monday nights from 7-9 p.m. beginning Nov. 6. The course will be held in the lounge of the Horace Garrett Applied Science Building.

The course will end on Nov. 20. The cost of the course is $8 which includes supplies for the first night. The instructor will discuss additional supplies with the students during the initial meeting.

The instructor for the course is Kelly Draper, a well known decorator in the Big Spring area. Draper is a member of a well-established family in the florist business that specializes in holiday decorations and wrapping.

Interested people may preregister at the office of Continuing Education located in the Administration Building. For further information, call 267-6311, ext. 66.

'Not guilty' is jury's decision

SWEETWATER — A Nolan County jury returned a verdict of "not guilty" in the misapplication-of-funds trial of Gladys Gerst here Friday after deliberating about 17 hours.

The case was heard in 32nd District Court. Mrs. Gerst had been accused of misusing $225 in funds belonging to the Sweetwater Independent School District. The defendant is director of the Sweetwater Community Action Center.

Weather - Corpus Christi visibility near zero

By The Associated Press Dense fog reduced visibility to near zero at Corpus Christi early today and fog was reported over much of the Texas coast.

Across the state a weak cold front, accompanied by light shower activity and only slightly cooler temperatures, moved into the Texas Panhandle.

Forecasts called for cloudy skies, slightly cooler temperatures and widely scattered showers in association with the cold front in the Panhandle and in Northwest Texas. The remainder of the state was to have clear to partly cloudy skies and continued mild temperatures. Highs were to range from the 60s in the Panhandle to the 80s along the coast with most of the state to have readings in the 70s.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 40s and 50s with extremes ranging from a chilly 45 at Dalhart and Junction to a mild, pleasant 69 reading at Galveston on the coast.

FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Fair through Saturday with a slow warming trend. Highs 60s and 70s Thursday warming to 70s and 80s by Saturday. Lows in 30s north to 40s south.
EXTENDED FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Mostly cloudy and cooler with widely scattered showers north partly cloudy south today. Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday with widely scattered showers, extreme southwest. Highs 60s north and mountains to 70s south. Lows upper 30s Panhandle and mountains to near 50 extreme south.

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm weather is expected to continue in the forecast period, Tuesday until Wednesday morning for the Southeast and Southwest but most of the country is expected to be cooler. Showers are forecast in the Southwest. Rain is expected for the mid-Atlantic region.

U.S., Red China strengthen ties

The strengthening ties between the United States and Red China offers proof that two political ideologies can co-exist.

Since former President Richard Nixon extended the hand of fellowship to the Chinese six years past, the relationship of the nations and their people has grown cordial if not warm. In short, the diplomatic deep freeze is melting.

AMERICANS, BOTH officials and those whose curiosity got the better of them, are swarming all over China. The Chinese haven't yet let the bars completely down, otherwise the influx of people from the West might be more than the people of Old Cathay could handle.

China wants to promote tourism and is seeking American firms for help that may include construction of hotels and tourist-related transportation facilities.

The best indication that China has become an "in" place to be is the regularity with which politicians book flights to and from the country. Some of those same politicians are bypassing such cities as Moscow and Jerusalem in order to participate in a mission to Peking, Canton or some other city within the Chinese borders.

The Chinese are coming our way in ever increasing numbers, too, some to study, some to firm up business contracts and more than a few just to see what the American life is all about.

In the not too distant future, Chinese students may be coming to these shores by the thousands, because the leaders in that country have great respect and appreciation for the Western intellect.

OF COURSE, many drummers in the U.S. see the potential in China as an untapped gold mine. The old companies are stumbling over each other in anticipation of dealing themselves into exploration for possible Chinese reserves. The next great oil pools could well be discovered in China's good earth.

The trade exchanges between the two nations should top $1 billion this year — not much when compared to the $55.1 billion in annual sales involving the United States and Canada and the $39.1 billion between Japan and the U.S. With China, the potential for many times $1 billion in trade is there, though.

Diplomatically, the two governments are either tacitly cooperating or carefully not opposing each other in a number of areas.

China, ever suspicious of the Russian mind, wants the United States as a friend. No doubt, Nixon never lost sight of the fact that there had long been a relationship between the countries that spanned centuries.

The difference today is prompting a classic demonstration of that most durable of alliances: The enemy of my enemy is my friend.

The late Chou En-Lai had a dream of transforming China into the world's most powerful socialist state by the year 2000. The job will come easier with America's help and encouragement.

Worth the money

Around the rim

Marie Homeyer

Sunday night I laughed as I have not laughed in a long, long time.

The youth organization of my church had put together a spook house to raise money for a skiing trip they will be taking later on in the season. I, along with some of the other adults that were at the church for a supper, decided to go through it to lend support to their effort.

There were about nine or ten of us and we all wanted to go through together. But they wouldn't let us. Only four at a time they told us.

SO WE MUSTERED our courage and went through four at a time. I was the third in line and most of the "scare" was wasted on me because I was laughing so hard at the reactions of the two in front of me to be scared by anything. It was not that the stunts were not scary, they were. The two in front of me were startled several times. It was just that I was not in the right frame of mind.

From the tales related to me from others that went through before, the youth had succeeded in their attempt to "scare the living daylights out of you."

We crawled through cardboard boxes, were assaulted by monsters, witnessed a guillotining, and the rising of a dead person. And much, much more.

It is the Spook House at 803 Scurry Street next to St. Paul's Lutheran Church. If you find the church you will find the Spook House. There will be monsters there to entice you in.

The Spook House is open from 7 until 9 and admission is 25 cents for small children and 50 cents for school-age children and older.

It is really worth the money and there is no reference to witchcraft or the occult. It is just good, clean, scary fun.

Wonders of TV

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Have you ever wondered how a political television commercial is made? Probably not, but I'm going to tell you anyway.

"Okay, everybody quiet on the set. Where's Sen. Nobody? All right, this commercial will show what a great family man you are. Put on that cardigan sweater and sit in that stuffed chair by the fireplace... Lady, you'll have to get out of here, I'm shooting a commercial."

"I'm the senator's wife."

OH YEH, well, we'll need you in this one. You can stay. Let's see, why don't we sit you next to the senator, looking at him with adoring eyes?"

"I've never done any acting before."

"Well, just pretend you're sitting next to Robert Redford or Paul Newman."

"Should I say anything to him in the commercial?"

"What do you want to say?"

"I just want to ask when I'll see him again. This is the first time I've had a chance to talk to him in two months."

"No, don't ask that. Just look at him as if he's the greatest guy in the world."

"It's not going to be easy."

"Well, fake it! Now where are the kids?"

"I could only get two of the four. Marsha and Larry wouldn't come."

"Why not?"

"Marsha's mad at her father, and Larry ran away from home two weeks ago."

"ALL RIGHT, we'll have to make do with two of the four. Put the kids on the rug at their Daddy's feet. Each kid could hug a leg."

"Children, the man wants you to sit at Daddy's feet and hug him."

"Which one's our Daddy?"

"The man sitting in the large chair wearing the cardigan sweater."

"If we hug him will he hurt us?"

"No, children. This is for a TV commercial. He won't get mad at all."

"Quiet on the set. Where's the dog? I thought we were going to have the senator's pet dog in this commercial."

"Our dog ran away with Larry."

"Good grief. Somebody go out on the street and drag in a dog."

"What kind of dog, boss?"

"Who cares what kind of dog? Just so it will hold still till we get this thing shot. Okay, lady, now look at the senator. Please no scowling... Could I have a smile? Not a bitter smile — a loving wife smile. Try to think of all the happiness you'll have when your husband gets elected. You're scowling again. All right then, think how nice it will be if he gets defeated... That's better... Now you've got it. Kids, start hugging your Daddy's knees."

"I got the dog, boss."

"OKAY, throw him down by the fireplace. Senator, pretend this is what you do every night when you get home. You gather your family around you and read to them from the Constitution... Then look up and read whatever is on the teleprompter. You got it? Roll the cameras."

"Hi, I'm Sen. Nobody and this is my family. And this is my dog Laddie. You may think politicians are different from other people, but we're just plain folks like each one of you out there. We laugh, we cry, and we worry about the future of the country. I care about my family and my dog Laddie, and that's why I want you to vote for me on Election Day."

"Cut. We're going to have to do it again. Go out and find another dog that won't chew up the Constitution of the United States."

"As your representative in the great 95th Congress, it gives me true pleasure to present you with these crisp, new bills!"

Still's disease: Arthritis in kids

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What does the medical term "Still's disease" mean, and what are its symptoms? Will it lead to crippling conditions later? Is there a cure for it? — M. L. B.

When rheumatoid arthritis occurs in infants or children it is called Still's disease (after the physician who first described it). It is similar to the adult version. Rash, fever, iritis (inflammation of the iris of the eye), enlarged spleen and lymph node disorders often accompany it. Sometimes they appear before the arthritis. In some, an enlarged liver is present (Feltz's syndrome). The telltale "rheumatoid factor," a particular type of protein found in adult arthritis, except that some of the helpful drugs cannot be used — hydroxychloroquine and indomethacin, for example. Aspirin can be used in carefully-rising doses. Frequent eye examinations should be made. Exercises that can be tolerated are helpful.

The future depends in any individual case on which parts of the total picture are present. The outlook is much better than in the arthritis that appears at adulthood. Complete recovery occurs in from 75 to 80 percent of the cases.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been taking Colbenemid for more than 10 years for my gout. I have only had a few tests for uric acid. I am not having such a feeling of heat and itching in my arms, face and back. I can tolerate it during the day, but my nights are miserable. Could my medicine be causing it? Can I get blood tests done without going through my doctor? He is a fine man, but the few times I have had to go see him he always writes down "gout." Can you tell me anything about this medicine? — L. B.

Colbenemid is the manufacturer's name for a pill that contains two drugs — probenecid and colchicine. The combination is effective in controlling gout. The first (probenecid) helps the kidneys rid the body of uric acid, which causes the gout deposits. The other helps relieve the pain.

There are many possible reactions to the medicine, and itching can be one. If you have had no gout symptoms over the years, I would say the medicine is doing the job for you. You should report the itching to your doctor. He may adjust the dosage.

You can have blood tests on your own, but I doubt they would tell you much, except that the uric acid level is or is not acceptable. That is why the doctor is there — to interpret the results. You may be interested in my booklet, "Gout, The Modern Way to Control It." For a copy, send 50 cents to me in care of The Big Spring Herald along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Two other points about your medicine. Aspirin should not be used with it, because it interferes with its action. Also be sure you are getting adequate fluids.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain what causes a person's ears to crackle when on high ground, also when in a high apartment. Is it harmful? — T. P.

Thinning of the atmosphere creates a difference in pressure from "inside" to the ear, causing the noises. The same thing that happens when taking off or landing in an airplane. The ears usually adjust well to the conditions you mention — high ground or high-level apartments.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does cirrhosis of the liver always indicate a person has been a heavy drinker? — B. D.

No, it doesn't. A figure I saw on this recently indicates that as many as half the people who have cirrhosis do not have any alcohol-related problem. The scarring of cirrhosis can occur with hepatitis or any condition that irritates the organ. It is true, however, that most alcoholics do end up with cirrhosis.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can injury to a joint cause arthritis in that joint later in life? — A. L.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: While studying for an examination I am trusting in the promise that we can do all things through Christ who strengthens us (Philippians 4:13). To what extent is my success in this examination dependent upon my studying or dependent upon my faith in his promise? — D. J.

DEAR D. J.: The greatest test of faith is obedience. If you have truly committed your life to God's hands, and if He has led you to sit for this examination, then your faith is shown by the diligence with which you have prepared yourself for the examination. The promise in which you are so rightly trusting is one of strength from the Lord. Sometimes you will need the strength of will to enable you to study when you do not feel like it. Other times you will need the strength of mind to retain all the facts you have to memorize. In whatever way the strength is needed, the Lord will provide as you commit each day to Him.

Your faith in the promise and your diligence in studying go hand in hand. Neither is more important than the other. "Faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone" (James 2:17). Put your faith in the promise and use the strength that Christ gives to be successful in your studies.

Not averse

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — A secret FBI file on Roy Innis lends additional credibility to charges that the controversial head of the Congress of Racial Equality ordered the shooting and beating of former CORE employees.

Innis has vehemently denied the allegations. But our associates Gary Cohn and Tony Capaccio obtained a signed confession from the trigger man in the shooting and a verbal admission from one of the participants in the beating. Both men insisted they acted on explicit orders from Innis.

NOW WE HAVE seen part of Innis' FBI dossier, which reveals that the idea of violent action was not exactly alien to his character. According to the file, an FBI informant "advised that on Oct. 28, 1966, Roy Innis spoke at a forum of Workers Action Committee ... (and) allegedly said that kids in ghetto schools must be taught to riot, and that the proper kids must be chosen and trained for this purpose."

In response to a question, Innis advised that there was no suggestion that such people should be done away with, stating that effort should be made to bring them back to the movement."

The FBI's informant then added: "It might be noted again that most people did appear to be conscious of earlier remarks that the conference could possibly be 'bugged,' and source felt that this awareness might have had some effect on qualifying remarks made by some speakers."

This, of course, was a no-win situation for Innis and any other speakers who counseled moderation: If they advocated violence, their words would be reported by the FBI spy; if they advocated non-violence, their words would be discounted as attempted deception of the FBI.

In those days, the FBI filled its files with a smorgasbord of information about black leaders. They were all suspicious to the late FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover. He grew up in Washington when it was still a small Southern town, where segregation was the law as well as the custom. To Hoover, the struggle for equal rights by blacks smacked the rebellion. And he used his enormous power as FBI director to uphold his viewpoints.

At any rate, the charges against Innis — that he ordered retribution, which was undeniably committed on former CORE workers — are being investigated by the FBI and police agencies in Washington, D.C., and the West Coast.

INNIS IS also a principal target of a "very active investigation" by the New York state attorney general into charges that CORE funds have been diverted for personal use.

A source who has been in constant contact with investigators told us that they have been reviewing "page after page of checks made out for dummy programs." We have also learned that, except for a school in the Bronx, the investigators have been unable to find any programs that have "hit the streets."

THE INVESTIGATION, the results of which will soon be made public, centers on CORE's finances during 1975 and 1976, when the organization took in more than $7 million. Canceled checks, as well as airline and credit card records, have been subpoenaed in the search for improperly used funds.

Investigators are also probing allegations that secret Bahamian bank accounts were established by CORE officials. Records are being sought from the Bank of London and South American Ltd., a Bahamas subsidiary of Lloyds of London.

Some of the CORE money allegedly was spent for luxurious apartments, wild parties, expensive furniture and junkets to Africa and Europe.

New York state investigators are also looking into payments of CORE funds to an African woman, described as a close friend of Innis, who fled Uganda after Idi Amin accused Innis of being a CIA agent. Innis acknowledged that CORE sent the woman money and described her as a "refugee."

In the past, authorities in Alaska and New Jersey have filed civil suits against CORE. They charged that telephone solicitors passed themselves off as government employees, that the organization billed businessmen for ads they never ordered and that CORE threatened businessmen who declined to buy ads or otherwise support the organization.

At the present time, CORE has been forbidden to raise funds in New York. Innis told us this is because CORE's auditing firm was late with its annual report. It has been filed, he said, and CORE is seeking permission to resume fund-raising activities in the state.

Innis told us he has not been contacted by any law enforcement agency, either on the charges of violence or on the alleged diversion of funds.

"Look, I'm here," he said. "I'm not running anyplace. They can come to me any time and I'll tell them the same thing I'm telling you. And I'll tell them at the end of the discussion to take their best — ing shot."

Footnote: As we have continually emphasized in our columns on Innis, he is in the thick of a bitter feud with CORE founder James Farmer and others who want to get rid of him. This raises questions about the accuracy of some of the charges against Innis, and we have confined our reports solely to those charges that are serious enough to warrant FBI and police attention.

Wants to change city's 'two-term' charter

Philadelphia mayor working for next year

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frank Rizzo's name is not on the ballot but he is campaigning hard to make sure it will be next year.

The controversial and embattled mayor wants voters to change the city charter by wiping out the present two-term limit. This would allow mayors to be elected for as long as the people want them.

Rizzo, nearing the end of his second term, has concentrated his campaign in the city's white neighborhoods and at one point bluntly urged supporters to "vote white" to counter his heavy black opposition. He later changed his pitch to "vote Rizzo" as a way to push the charter change question on next Tuesday's ballot.

The 58-year-old mayor, a Democrat who made his name here as a tough police commissioner, tells voters Philadelphia would be in trouble if he had to leave City Hall.

know what to do and how to do it," he declares on daily visits to working-class neighborhoods. "I've been trained to make decisions and how to lead. I don't do everything right. Even God didn't do everything right — he selected a guy who betrayed him."

A locally commissioned Gallup Poll shows charter change losing by a 3-1 margin, which the former police commissioner charges is "a deliberate attempt... to sway the election."

The mayor, in his daily swipes at what he calls the prejudiced press, urges people to switch from the television channel that paid for the Gallup poll to the city's two other commercial stations.

In denouncing Gallup's poll, he said, "When the election is over he'll go out of business, no one would hire him again."

Rizzo supporters claim their own polls show the charter change passing.

One poll, allegedly taken by a California organization, shows "yes" on the charter has a slight edge. But the pollster they quoted said the figures Rizzo relied on were non-existent and never came from his firm.

And Rizzo said Monday that a poll taken by his workers showed the referendum passing by 48 percent to 28 percent, with 24 percent undecided.

That poll, while featuring a large sampling — 78,000 persons interviewed between September and Oct. 26 — reportedly did not feature the scientific weighting designed to give an accurate cross section of public opinion.

"I will not be able to appear on next year's ballot if charter reform loses, and we all know the alternatives spell disaster for Philadelphia," Rizzo said in a letter mailed to voters in predominantly white neighborhoods. "I need your support more than ever (in) the most important campaign in my life."

His personal appearances also skirt those areas in Pennsylvania's biggest city where blacks, who comprise nearly 40 percent of the population, are concentrated — and Rizzo shrugs this off by contending he goes where his strength is.

The emotional issue of changing the 27-year-old charter overshadows everything else on the ballot, including the fight for a new governor of Pennsylvania, to replace Democrat Milton Shapp who also isn't eligible to seek a third term under state law.

It resulted in a record 204,849 new registered voters, making more than one million eligible.

The city's Republican Party, out of power since 1950, has taken no official position on the charter but last week it adopted a resolution censuring Rizzo for "bringing the city to its knees — economically, politically and psychologically."

guilty by a jury of his peers."

Both major party gubernatorial candidates oppose the charter change. Republican Richard Thornburgh denounced "racially divisive and inflammatory statements," and Democrat Peter Flaherty said he was against "anyone using racial tactics which would polarize or divide blacks against whites."

Rizzo's reply is: "I'm no racist. The black man has done better under me than all of the liberal mayors before me. I'm more liberal than most of the fakers when it comes to human rights."

Lately Rizzo has been campaigning with another embattled politician, Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., who has been indicted on charges of receiving compensation for helping a Philadelphia hospital get federal funds.

"The news media is trying to make it appear that I'm supporting someone who broke the law," Rizzo says. "Well, Josh Eilberg is no criminal unless he is proven

He also criticizes the federal government for indicting Eilberg just before the election. "They have no stake in the community and they are trying to dictate what's best," he says.

The mayor says the present city charter denies voters the right to choose, arguing that "almost every other major city in this country trusts the people to pick their mayor without any such limit."

Rizzo's opponents contend such a restriction doesn't hurt the president of the United States and insist eight years is time and power enough for anyone.

Everywhere he goes Rizzo boasts how his administration has made Philadelphia succeed where other cities in America are failing. And also how he got the job because he was a tough cop.

In 1968, after the assassination of Martin Luther King, many cities had riots and violence, but not Philadelphia, Rizzo points out.

RIZZO WANTS CHARTER CHANGE — Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo's name is not on this November's city ballot, but he is campaigning hard to change the city's charter to allow his name to be placed on the next ballot. At present, a mayor in Philadelphia cannot serve a third consecutive four-year term.

Dealers will not speculate

LONDON (AP) Currency dealers won't say how much farther the nosediving dollar might fall on foreign money markets. "I haven't heard of anyone talking about a recovery in the wind," said one dealer.

The dollar took one of its worst beatings ever Monday, dropping 2 percent against the West German mark and French franc and more than 1 percent against most other currencies.

In Tokyo, the dollar opened today at 176.50 yen, its fifth postwar low in seven trading days. One trader said the Japanese central bank stepped in to buy dollars and stop the slide.

Gold, the traditional refuge of speculators in times of economic uncertainty, shot up as much as $11 an ounce Monday, closing at $245.25 in London and $242.875 in Zurich, Switzerland.

The dollar dropped more than a yen Monday in Tokyo and was in trouble on European exchanges from the minute they opened.

Massive dollar sales triggered more sales, and the price plunged as buyers for the once mighty currency were hard to find.

Lack of confidence in American economic leadership triggered the recent rush to sell dollars and buy more stable currencies or gold.

The dollar's rapid slide over the past week reflects statements by foreign monetary dealers that President Carter's voluntary anti-inflation program is inadequate and unworkable.

Monday, some said reduced American oil imports, a tighter money supply in the United States and reduced government spending might help prop up the dollar.

Others suggested the U.S. Federal Reserve may have to take out billions of dollars in credits from the International Monetary Fund to buy up the unwanted dollars and bolster the rate.

Part of the IMF's function is to supervise the international exchange rate system with an eye toward maintaining stability.

Gold, which sold at $169.50 at the start of the year, has gone up in value 45 percent since then.

For Americans abroad, the dollar's decline means more expensive food, lodging and travel as dollars buy less of the local currency. But it makes the United States a cheaper place for foreigners to visit and lowers the costs of some American goods sold abroad.

Imported goods sold in the United States become more expensive. This worries some foreign nations such as Japan, which export heavily, and is one reason why the Japanese central bank has often intervened to prop up the price of the dollar.

In West Germany, about 170 Berlin-based Pan Am flight officers are demanding a higher allowance to make up for the drop of the dollar against the mark.

They receive allowances to offset the living cost in West Germany, which is higher for them than it is in the United States.

BLOOD ON THE STAIRS? — Are the dark and ugly blotches that stain the marble treads of a Capitol stairway under this ghostly figure really the blood of a mortally wounded ex-congressman? An 88-year-old Washington legend says they are. On Feb. 28, 1890, Kentucky ex-congressman William Preston Taulbee was shot on these stairs by Charles Kincaid, a reporter for the Louisville Times. Generations of janitors have scrubbed the stains where Taulbee was shot. The blotches will not rub out.

Chicago ticketing ordinance upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chicago isn't the only city that collects parking fines from rent-a-car companies. It just tries harder. The Supreme Court rewarded the effort Monday by deciding not to tamper with the Windy City ordinance that makes rental companies responsible for the tickets their customers get. The decision could mean millions of dollars in fines for Hertz, Avis and Chrysler Leasing Corp., who challenged the Chicago law. It also could mean a new revenue source for cities that haven't been going after the companies to collect for tickets accumulated by their cars.

Hertz and Avis worried privately that their customers would misinterpret the court's action and park with impunity. "This decision does not alter the fact that the customer is still liable for his parking violation," said William Schechter, vice president for public relations of Avis. "We will vigorously attempt to collect such fines." Hertz called the decision "solely a technical interpretation of a local ordinance," with no national implications. An Associated Press survey shows cities around the country differing widely in the way they handle collection of fines from motorists who usually live elsewhere.

Many cities place the responsibility on the registered owner of the cars — the rental company. Others try to collect first from the driver, then turn to the renter. The Florida legislature last year removed all responsibility from companies such as Avis and Hertz. And some cities just shrug and write off the tickets. "For parking violations, the violation is both on the vehicle and the driver," said Police Chief Harold Eberhard of Pierre, S.D. "If we don't have the driver, the vehicle is always there. So we send it to the owner, Avis, Hertz or whoever and they come in and pay it."

There is no law in South Dakota that requires the firms to pay, he said. "It's been an informal thing with the company. They just told us they'd rather come in and pay the tickets than look up all those drivers."

But in Detroit, chief traffic court clerk Dentzel T. Harvey said few rental companies pay the fines.

Minority groups hit campaign trail

Black and Mexican-American groups will be hitting the campaign trail in support of Texas candidates before voters get to the polls in the Nov. 7 general election. More than 20 Mexican-Americans in the Texas Legislature announced Monday a campaign tour to back Democratic gubernatorial candidate John Hill and Senate hopeful Bob Krueger. The campaigners will travel to seven cities.

The Texas Legislative Black Caucus in Austin said it was stepping up its support of Hill for governor with a "Campaign Stamp" through Texas. The six-day tour will take the caucus and supporters to 10 cities. Meanwhile, three state representatives who are supporters of Democrat Mark White for attorney general asked Republican candidate Jim Baker of Houston to withdraw a Spanish radio advertisement. State Reps. Hugo Berlanga and Arnold Gonzales of Corpus Christi and Irma Rangel of Kingsville said the ad incorrectly alleges that the Democratic Party formed a committee in the primary election to stop support for White.

Baker said in Sherman if anyone had doubt about differences between the two attorney general candidates they should look at the latest list of contributions. "The bulk of my opponent's contributions have come from special interest groups," Baker said. "Many of the groups are directly affected by the attorney general's actions or powers and to me that spells a clear conflict of interest." White said in Austin he was taking nothing for granted and would campaign as hard the final week as he has previously. He said he planned to visit 47 cities during the week. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said in Waco Monday that the visit of Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Patricia Harris to Texas was "the latest in a long parade of administration officials to come to Texas and try to tell Texans how to vote in the Senate race."

"As many Texans may recall, Mrs. Harris has consistently opposed housing and urban development programs designed to help the cities of Texas," the Republican Senate candidate said. "Now she is trying to tell the people of Texas to support my opponent." In Marlin, students and about 100 other persons listened to Tower say he favored the two-party system. Krueger announced in Pasadena that the mayors of 76 Texas cities have endorsed his race for the Senate.

"We feel that he is a young man on the move and can best serve the interests of the state," said a statement signed by the mayors. "The bureaucratic system is creating more agencies and red tape than municipalities can bear. We feel that Bob Krueger will help us in Washington to see that this bureaucratic red tape is eliminated and by this serve the cities of Texas in a beneficial way."

Energy conservation without expense, haste

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Everyone wants energy conservation but not at undue expense or haste, electric companies told the Texas Public Utility Commission staff Monday.

Companies criticized and questioned the staff's 266-page report to the commission on how future electric rates should be set.

"There's such a thing as wrongful incentives to conservation," agreed Bill Avera, director of commission economic research. "You might conserve electricity but force more people to use gas."

Cecil Johnson of Gulf States Utilities Co. told Avera that companies are wary of using the word "conservation" loosely since some methods of saving energy only create other problems.

Among the report's key recommendations were:

—Direct state grants to utilities to subsidize bills of the poor and elderly.

—Further study of automatic fuel cost adjustments which raise bills without formal hearing.

—Gradual implementation of residential rates based on what time energy is consumed, similar to long distance phone charges.

Gary Burch of the Texas Electric Cooperatives questioned how fast time-of-day rates should be implemented and who should pay for special equipment required the rate method.

"If the company envisions experimenting with time-of-day rates to develop information that would benefit all service classes," Avera said, "then all customers should share costs of the metering equipment."

Residents of a now-Mexican town are ruled U.S. citizens

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — To most people living in the border outpost of Rio Rico, the matter of their citizenship has never been a complicated question.

And now the U.S. Board of Immigration Appeals agrees with them and has ruled that many of the residents of the now-Mexican town are U.S. citizens.

The residents have long claimed that when they were born in the river community south of Donna, Texas, it had not yet been traded to Mexico. It was American soil when they were born, they claim, and that makes them U.S. citizens.

But to U.S. Immigration officials it was a bit more complicated. There was the matter of an illegal re-routing of the Rio Grande in 1906. That left Rio Rico south of the U.S.-Mexico border.

There was also the compounding matter of Mexican rule in the community of about 300. There have long been Mexican-run schools, roads and police.

The lack of U.S. jurisdiction made the Rio Ricans citizens of Mexico, the officials argued.

But the appeals board recently ruled that it was, as the Rio Ricans claimed, a simple question with a simple answer: "From 1884 on, the Rio Rico area was clearly a part of the United States. Whatever lack of attention was paid to the small and remote area ... There is little question that those persons born in it were citizens of the United States ... Why then is there an issue as to their citizenship thereafter?" the ruling stated.

Before 1906, there was no question that Rio Rico was north of the river and in U.S. territory. But in that year a U.S. land firm improperly rerouted the Rio Grande and left the hamlet in a loop technically south of the river. In effect, Rio Rico was in the Mexican loop of a two-loop configuration. The U.S. was to the north and to the south.

Edinburg attorney Laurier McDonald, who represented the Rio Ricans seeking citizenship, said the area was later re-surveyed but no boundary markers were erected.

The Rio Rico area boomed in the prohibition era. Thirsty Americans flocked to the night clubs and dog track in the community. The area remained technically in U.S. territory but the Mexican government gradually began providing a few scant services.

When the bridge from Rio Rico across the river was washed out in 1940, the town was stranded.

Immigration officials claim that there remained nothing American in Rio Rico. The residents had not fulfilled the obligations — including taxes and military service — of a citizen.

An immigration judge agreed in 1976, saying that since 1906 "no county, state or United States official exercised authority" in Rio Rico.

"There is not the allegiance and obedience to the United States element of jurisdiction," the judge ruled.

On May 26, 1977, the de facto Mexican rule was made official as U.S. and Mexican officials swapped land along the Rio Grande.

In its recent ruling, the immigration appeals board stated that the apparent lack of U.S. jurisdiction could not be blamed on the residents of Rio Rico.

McDonald said, "The government claimed the Rio Ricans never paid taxes down there and there was nothing American. My contention is, 'so what.'"

The appeals board agreed. "That the debt may not have been called in does not mean it did not exist," the ruling stated.

McDonald said the ruling means that anyone born in Rio Rico before the 1977 land swap is a U.S. citizen. The ruling had come on an appeal of deportation proceedings against a former Rio Rico resident.

McDonald added that many of the Rio Ricans seeking citizenship now reside in the U.S. as resident aleins. As for the Rio Ricans who have been isolated for years in their little town — many still may not have heard the news.

A weekend rain has left the town stranded in a sea of useless, muddy roads.

Judge hopes sentencing will serve as warning

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The federal judge who meted out 50-year prison sentences to two Soviet spies who worked at the United Nations says he hopes the punishment will be a warning to U.N. officials to screen employees more carefully in the future.

The Soviet Union, said U.S. District Court Judge Frederick Lacey, "was fully and completely" behind the conspiracy to acquire U.S. defense secrets.

But Lacey, in sentencing Valdik Enger, 39, and Rudolf Chernyayev, 43, bowed to diplomatic considerations Monday in allowing the pair to remain free pending appeal. He ordered the two men confined to a small area surrounding the Soviet residential complex in the Bronx.

The judge said he hoped the convictions would serve as a warning to the United Nations to "screen the background of each and every person assigned to the United Nations in the future."

Lacey stressed that he wanted to "secure the nation against the danger to the community these people pose at large."

The charges against the two Soviets, who worked for the United Nations when they were arrested in May, said they conspired with a Soviet diplomat to pass U.S. secrets to their homeland. The diplomat Vladimir Zinyakin, was immune from prosecution, and has since left the United States.

In sentencing the two men, Lacey agreed with U.S. Attorney Robert Del Tufo, who sought lengthy prison terms because "these defendants are part of a larger espionage network which is in existence and operates in this country." The pair could have been sentenced to life in prison.

Enger and Chernyayev were also sentenced to 10-year terms to be served concurrently for related espionage convictions. Pending appeal, they were ordered to surrender their drivers' licenses. Lacey said they would be required to obtain court permission to leave the Soviet complex in the Bronx except in medical emergencies.

Lacey said it was apparent through trial testimony that the Soviet Union had been behind the spying.

"Certainly it is clear that at a very high level an assignment was made," the judge said.

Hurst man is charged with murder

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A 23-year-old Hurst man has been charged with capital murder in the shooting deaths of a Fort Worth businessman and his wife.

Raymond Lynn Eaton was held without bond Monday in the Tarrant County jail following his arraignment before Justice of the Peace Bob Ashmore.

Homicide Lt. Coy Martin said Sunday that investigators had determined John P. Muller III, 50, and Virginia Muller, 53, were shot to death during a burglary at their fashionable East Fort Worth home.

Many Hearing Problems Can Be Helped

Chicago, Ill. — A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given free to anyone answering this advertisement.

Send for this non-operating model, put it on and wear it in the privacy of your own home. It is not a real hearing aid, but will show you how tiny hearing help can be, and it's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 9148, Beltone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, IL 60646.

Grey Fox takes 1st NFL win

By the Associated Press
They call him the "Grey Fox."

Silver-haired, tall and slim for his 62 years and so low-key he rarely talks above a whisper, Bud Wilkinson looked like raw meat for the wolves when he came out of retirement this year to coach the professional St. Louis Cardinals.

"Sheer suicide," said cynical observers. "Wilkinson may have been a fine college coach but it's a different scene in the pros and, besides, he's been out of touch too long."

The prophets of doom continued their bleak warnings as Wilkinson's teams lost Sunday after Sunday, compiling an 0-8 record in the National Football League.

Did the one-time architect of championship teams at the University of Oklahoma ever despair?
"Never," said the soft-spoken disciplinarian, reflecting Monday on the Cardinals' first victory of the season — a 16-10 upset triumph Sunday over the Eagles in Philadelphia.

"This bunch of fellows never gave up. Neither did I. Everything seemed to go wrong earlier in the season. We had an uncommon rash of injuries. Our offensive line was shattered."

"Against Philadelphia, we had our offensive line functioning for the first time. That made the difference."

Despite forebodings, Wilkinson never doubted that a man with a good football mind and ability to relate to other human beings could succeed in the pros as well as in college ranks.

He hasn't proved his point yet. The road ahead is all uphill. But those familiar with Wilkinson the man as well as Wilkinson the coach have no doubts that he — as John McKay of the expansion Tampa Bay Buccaneers, formerly of Southern California, has done — will soon make the Cardinals competitive. His boss, Card's owner Bill

Bidwell, envisions the Super Bowl.

"The principles of coaching are the same in the NFL as in the NCAA, or for that matter, high school or sandlots," Wilkinson says. "The idea is to stop the opposition, get the football and score. You don't win many games receiving kickoffs."

Wilkinson lettered twice as a guard and once as a quarterback at Minnesota in the mid-1930s, meanwhile absorbing the wisdom of the conservative yet innovative perfectionist, Bernie Bierman.

As Bierma did, he stresses a simple formula: 1. Alertness. 2. Speed. 3. Precision. 4. Thoroughness.

"Quick reaction is one of the most important ingredients of winning football," Wilkinson always has insisted.

Wilkinson has radiated success. His Oklahoma teams scored 145 victories against 29 defeats and four ties over a 17-year period, winning three national championships and a record 47 consecutive games.

He retired after the 1963 season, headed President Kennedy's Council on Physical Fitness, ran unsuccessfully for the U.S. Senate in 1964 and did a turn at network broadcasting.

CARDINALS WIN ONE — St. Louis Cardinals coach Bud Wilkinson wears broad grin as he leaves the field Sunday after beating the Eagles, 16-10, at game in Philadelphia. This was the first victory this season after eight straight defeats for Wilkinson's Cardinals.

Skins Thomas to return

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Redskins running back Mike Thomas says he intends to return to action next week against the Baltimore Colts after missing the last three games because of a foot injury.

Thomas said Monday, "The foot's a whole lot better and I'm ready to roll."

Some people in the Redskins organization had said privately that the star running back's injury — a small crack in a bone in his foot — was not as serious as Thomas contended it was.

Brownwood vaults to top ranking

By The Associated Press
Brownwood, a perennial Class 3A playoff entry, leapfrogged once-tied Beaumont Hebert into the No. 1 position in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll this week following New Braunfels' upset of former No. 1 Gonzales.

Brownwood, third last week behind Gonzales and Hebert, lost its opening game of the season to Abilene Cooper but Cooper eventually had to forfeit the game because it used an ineligible player.

While Gonzales dropped to No. 8 this week, the other No. 1s, Temple in 4A, Newton in 2A and Farmersville in A, maintained their rankings.

Hebert, 7-0-1, remained the No. 2 team in 3A by the slimmest of margins, 184-183 in points behind Brownwood. Bay City moved up two notches to third while Fort Stockton, unscored in seven games, remained fourth.

Gainesville, No. 8, and Huntsville, No. 9, also were 3A casualties last week. Gainesville fell to ninth after a 13-6 loss to Grapevine and Huntsville, beaten on the last play of the game by Chaneyville, dropped off the list after its second loss in three weeks.

Carthage replaced Huntsville as the No. 10 team. Greenville replaced

Highland Park in the 4A rankings after upsetting the previously No. 9 ranked Scotties 28-27. Greenville, 7-0, led 28-7 at halftime.

Mount Vernon, ranked No. 2 last week and a former No. 1 rated 2A team, was embarrassed 47-7 by North Lamar and fell to the No. 10 spot this week.

There were no upsets and no new faces on the A list.

BARKEEP TO FOOTBALL HERO — Atlanta Falcons placekicker Tim Mazzetti kicked five field goals Monday night to defeat the Los Angeles Rams, 15-7. Three weeks ago, Mazzetti was a bartender in a Philadelphia pub.

Barkeep boots Falcons past LA

ATLANTA (AP) — Tim Mazzetti, an unknown barkeep in a Philadelphia pub three weeks ago, can't believe what's happened to him since he turned in his apron for an Atlanta Falcons uniform.

His teammates, however, believe. Especially after the 23-year-old placekicker booted five field goals Monday night to power the Falcons to a 15-7 National Football League victory over the Los Angeles Rams in the nationally televised game.

"Mazzetti is just super. He's the difference now," said defensive end Jeff Merrow. "He's really been a great lift for us." Fired by a crowd of 57,250, the Atlanta defense blocked a punt, intercepted two Pat Haden passes, stopped a fourth-down Los Angeles gamble at midfield and recovered a fumble, with each big play preceding a Mazzetti field goal.

Mazzetti, signed as a free agent three weeks ago after failing with three other NFL clubs, kicked a game-winning field goal against San Francisco last week with only one second remaining. "I don't know what I've done to deserve this," said Mazzetti, who tied a club record with his boots of 21, 37, 30, 26 and 37 yards. "It's too much, I can't believe it. It was just my day today."

"After I made the first two, I felt like I couldn't miss. Last week, I felt like I wasn't really in control of the situation. I was really nervous."

His kicks lifted the Falcons to a 5-4 record, their third triumph in a row, and sent the Rams to their second consecutive defeat after seven victories. Atlanta is now two games behind Los Angeles in the Western Division.

Mazzetti put the Falcons ahead to stay at 9-7 four seconds into the final quarter after the Rams gambled on fourth down, needing only a foot, and failed.

The Rams got their only score on the first play of the second quarter when Haden hit Ron Jessie on a 10-yard scoring pass.

"You can't help but get up for a Monday night game," said defensive back Rolland Lawrence, who had both Atlanta interceptions off Haden. "There's just too many people watching. And how about Mazzetti. He was just fantastic. He gives us a sense of assurance. We feel confident in him."

OU, Lions remain undefeated

The top eight teams, led by unbeaten Oklahoma and Penn State, have retained their positions in The Associated Press college football poll, while UCLA and Houston rounded out the Top Ten and Navy surged from 18th place to 11th.

Arizona State and Missouri were the biggest losers, dropping out of the ratings, while Arkansas slipped from ninth place to 17th and Michigan State made the Top Twenty for the first time this season.

Oklahoma, a 56-19 winner over Kansas State, received 52 of 62 first-place votes and 1,228 of a possible 1,240 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. The Sooners remained No. 1 for the sixth week in a row.

Penn State was the runner-up for the third consecutive week. The Nittany Lions received the other 10 first-place votes and 1,168 points following a 49-21 trouncing of West Virginia. Last week, with 64 voters submitting their ballots, Oklahoma's lead was 1,270-1,208.

Alabama, a 35-0 victor over Virginia Tech, was third with 1,074 points, followed by Nebraska with 995 points following a 22-14 victory over Oklahoma State.

Maryland, one of the nation's four unbeaten major teams — Navy is the fourth one — was fifth with 966 points for a 27-0 blanking of Duke. The Terrapins were trailed by Southern California, which downed California 42-17 and received 948 points.

Texas, which turned back Southern Methodist 22-3, received 835 points for seventh place while No. 8 Michigan earned 783 points for a 42-10 rout of Minnesota. Arkansas' 20-9 loss to Houston enabled UCLA, which beat Arizona 24-14, to move up from 10th to ninth with 761 points, while Houston went from 11th to 10th with 759 points.

The Second Ten consists of Navy, Louisiana State, Georgia, Purdue, Notre Dame, Clemson, Arkansas, Michigan State, Pittsburgh and Washington.

Duck season looks unpredictable

AUSTIN — Making predictions, whether on football games or rainfall, is a chancy business. Predicting how good the upcoming duck season will be fits into this category as well.

Judging from figures provided by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, overall duck populations will not be significantly different from last year.

However, for Texas hunters, success or failure on this year's hunts may depend on weather, location and the species of ducks normally hunted.

Dr. Harold Irby, migratory game program director for the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department, says there are several general observations which can be made about duck prospects in Texas.

"Over most of the state, except for the coastal areas, there will be fewer mallards," Irby said. "Counting all flyways, mallard numbers apparently are down about seven percent below last year, and about 13 percent below the 20-year average for the species."

Since the mallard is the dominant species for hunters in the Central, North and Eastern portions of the state, such a decline could affect the hunt. Mallards are a 25-point duck, due to this expected shortage, except in

Hawk fish add height

When the Howard College Hawks hit the floor in their season opener Thursday night against Lubbock Christian College, Coach Harold Wilder will probably try to utilize the height of three freshmen in order to make his team's debut in spacious Dorothy Garrett Coliseum a successful one.

Michael Wallace, a 6'6", 195-pounder, is an aggressive performer from Dallas Pinkston High School. Wallace is a power forward and a good jumper.

Cole Cornett, a 6-7", 215-pounder, is returning to basketball after a year's layoff. He missed his senior year in basketball at Alpine High School because of a football knee injury.

Linwood Hines, a 6'6", 210-pounder, is an intense rebounder. Hines hails from a good program at Manor High in Portsmouth, Virginia. He is sound fundamentally and will get after it.

Coach Wilder has indicated that tickets sales have been very good so far. Tickets can be purchased at the coliseum or the ticket office at Howard College.

Yearlings nab second in Snyder

The Runnels Yearlings took second place in the Snyder Tournament over the past weekend.

The Yearlings, coached by Jane Upton, won in the opening round by beating Denver City by scores of 2-15, 15-8, 13-11. The Yearlings then defeated Snyder in the semifinals by scores of 15-9, 2-15, and 15-7. Upton's crew then lost in the final round to Seminole by a score of 6-11, 3-15. High point servers for the tournament were Rhondi Rutledge with 18 and Leslie Overman with 16.

The Yearlings rebounded from the championship loss to defeat Snyder last night by scores of 15-6, 15-12.

Rutledge again was the leading scorer with 12 points. Upton also had words of praise for Shauni Woodriddle and Reneah Rybolt.

The Runnels Dogies won their first game in the Snyder Tournament before losing the remaining two. First round action saw the Dogies, coached by Nancy Reynolds, beat Snyder by a score of 16-14, 15-7. The Dogies lost the semifinal to Colorado City by scores of 1-15, 10-15. Monahans then handed the Runnels crew a loss in the battle for third place by a count of 9-15, 8-15. Melissa Blessingame and Stacy Bott shared high point honors for the tournament with 10 each.

The Dogies took a 15-3, 15-9 decision over the Snyder Black in yesterday's action.

Starr angry over NFL investigation

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Duane Thomas, described as sullen, uncooperative and unmanageable when he was a star running back with the Dallas Cowboys, is in a storm center again — this time apparently as an unwelcome partner in a controversy involving the Green Bay Packers.

Thomas recently completed a tryout with the Packers, and the way the National Football League club conducted it is under investigation by NFL headquarters.

Disclosure of the investigation Monday has Packer Coach and General Manager Bart Starr livid. His team had to forfeit a fourth-round draft choice last May and, if NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle decides they have violated another rule, could lose another pick.

Starr vented his anger Monday afternoon on the four reporters who pursued the story involving Thomas and learned of the investigation.

The former Packer quarterback said rule breaking is not uncommon as clubs seek a competitive edge. He also said that while the Packers may have erred, they are not cheaters.

"There are bloodthirsty bastards out there trying to get an edge, working out guys in pads and with their teams," Starr said. "They're cheating. We don't cheat. But we're going to go to the limit within the rules and we're going to bend them within the framework."

The running back, now 31, recently wrote the Packers and asked for a tryout. They complied, and he worked out here from a week ago Monday to Monday of this week. The NFL's so-called "stashing rule" governing such tryouts is at issue in Rozelle's investigation.

The stashing rule means free agents such as Thomas who try out with a club may work out for one day only, their expenses can't be paid for more than the one day, and they can use club equipment and facilities only on that single day.

Thomas was tested here a week ago Monday. And while he and Starr insist he has had to pay his own way for his stay here since that time and has been working out strictly on his own, Thomas was seen walking into the Packers' Lambeau Field training room Monday morning. Moreover, he said he has been using the club's weight training equipment.

An angry Starr conceded the team may have erred by allowing Thomas use of facilities and equipment beyond his official trial date. He told the four reporters who pursued the story that if they printed it, they no longer would be welcome in the Packer offices or perhaps in the locker room.

Rose, Tiant lead free agent list

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball passed the first plateau in the re-entry draft mechanism at midnight Monday, the deadline for clubs to sign players who would otherwise be eligible for Friday's draft.

Any player not signed by that deadline now moves into a three-day frozen period during which he cannot sign with his old club.

The next deadline comes at Wednesday midnight by which time players eligible for the draft — six-year veterans who are unsigned for 1979 — must declare their intention to participate in the free agent grab bag.

Pitcher Larry Gura of the Kansas City Royals, whose 16-4 record and 2.72 earned run average in 1978 made him one of the more appealing names in the list of draft eligibles, rejected a final contract offer from his old club Monday and also moved officially into the free agent market.

He was joined by two veteran players, pitcher Dave Roberts of the Chicago Cubs and infielder Bud Harrelson of the Philadelphia Phillies, who notified the Major League Players Association on Monday that they would file for free agency and wanted their names included in the re-entry draft. Roberts was 6-8 with a 5.26 earned run average in 35 games with the Cubs last season while Harrelson batted .214 in 71 games for the Phillies.

With the addition of Gura, Roberts and Harrelson, the list of players set for the draft now numbers 43. It could be expanded by Friday, depending on the decisions of about a dozen players who have until midnight Wednesday to declare their intentions.

The two deadlines do not affect unsigned players who are not interested in filing for free agency. An eligible player who has not signed and who does not notify baseball officials of his desire to participate in the draft, merely retains his unsigned status through the draft and then may resume negotiations with his club once the frozen period ends.

The draft class already includes several veteran players such as Cincinnati third baseman Pete Rose, and pitchers Luis Tiant of the Boston Red Sox and Tommy John of the Los Angeles Dodgers. John, 35, is the youngest of that trio.

Under re-entry regulations, when the pool of available players numbers between 39 and 62, each team is allowed to sign up to three free agents.

The annual Abilene Halloween Tournament was this past weekend. The (18 age) boys single draws composed of approximately fifty entries from all over Texas.

Nick Williams upset the number two seeded Lance Procter in first round of play, then continued to fight his way to the semi-final of the draw before being defeated.

Barry Fish showed his excellent tennis talent by not losing a set until he was defeated in the semi-finals.

Bum Phillips: 'We played hard'

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers seem to be passing through their National Football League season with the same malady that afflicts the Incredible Hulk.

According to the story line for the Hulk's comic book and television series, the hero is a mild-mannered scientist until something makes him angry. Then, because his body has been saturated with unpredictable gamma rays, he gains superhuman strength, turns green and screams a lot.

Similarly, the unpredictable Oilers popped the buttons off their shirts and flexed their muscles on national television eight days ago, thrashing the Pittsburgh Steelers 24-17 to wipe out the final unbeaten record in the NFL.

The Oilers still were screaming Monday but they were only green with envy following Sunday's 28-13 loss to Cincinnati, which ended the Bengal's string of eight straight losses this season.

The Oilers played more like they had been tranquilized instead of treated with gamma rays. Oiler Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips agrees the Oilers seem to play only to the level of competition but calls it tradition.

"I think every football team plays that way," Phillips said. "Everybody plays harder when they think they have to. That's part of football tradition. Everybody plays hardest when the challenge is the greatest."

The Oilers apparently had a massive dose of anger when they played Oakland off its feet earlier this year before losing in the final seconds. They were passive bystanders in a season-opening loss to Atlanta and Sunday against the Bengals.

Cincinnati, who had not scored a rushing touchdown all season, took a 21-0 lead, all on rushing touchdowns, before the Oilers ever got on the scoreboard with six minutes left in the game.

"I think it was a combination of two things," Phillips said. "We were not as sharp as we should be and they were a lot sharper than they have been."

Despite the lackluster performance, Phillips says the loss can't be blamed on lack of effort.

"I've looked at the films and I challenge anybody else to look at them and find somebody wasn't trying," Phillips said. "We didn't play good but we played hard."

Sherilyn Farmer joins Order of Rainbow Girls

Big Spring Assembly No. 60, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, held a meeting in the Masonic Temple at 7 p.m. Oct. 24 with Worthy Advisor Debby Thompson presiding.

Sherilyn Farmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Farmer, 3007 Cactus, was initiated into the assembly.

Out-of-town guests at the meeting included Kerrie Marching and Laura and Debbie McCarty, all of Midland.

Robin von Rosenburg, grand representative from New Mexico to Texas, was introduced and given grand honors.

The assembly sold programs and worked in concession booths Friday at the Big Spring High School Homecoming Football Game.

In November, with Dana Hodnett as chairman, the girls will be selling Tupperware as a money-making project.

The assembly will have a Halloween masquerade party at 7 p.m. tonight, and study classes took place Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Masonic Hall.

The next meeting will take place Nov. 14.

PATIENCE PAYS OFF — After being rained out several times last week, children at The Playhouse Day Care Center, Wasson Rd., finally got an opportunity to don their costumes for a Halloween Parade Monday.

And from the looks of it, the week of practice paid off in make-up expertise. The adult staff at the Playhouse enjoyed an afternoon of "getting weird" as much as the pre-schoolers and after-school children.

TWEEN 12 and 20 — Good parents work at it

By Robert Wallace Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: Believe it or not, I have no tragic problems that I'd like you to solve. Instead, I'd like you to print this letter which expresses how much I really love my parents.

Lately, I have been thinking about how lucky I am to have such wonderful parents. They aren't just parents, they are my friends, too. We have a relationship which I will treasure for the rest of my life.

If I were given the opportunity to be raised all over again, I would refuse the offer. No one could have done it better.

I realize sometimes (more often than not) that I take them for granted, but deep inside, I don't know what I'd do without them. — Edie, Pleasanton, Calif.

Edie: I always appreciate letters like yours. Good parents are that way because they work at it.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 17, married, but I separated from my husband almost a year ago. Now I could kick myself for doing it. I've grown up a lot since then and I want to make a go of our marriage.

But here is the problem. My husband (who is 24) is now living with a girl. To complicate things more, the girl is an enemy of mine. In fact, we had a terrible fist fight while I was still living with my husband.

Please, what shall I do? — The Purple Cat, So. Lake Tahoe, Calif.

Cat: See your husband privately and tell him the same thing you told me — that is — you love him and that you have grown up a lot since the split. If he doesn't return in a week, protect yourself by contacting a competent lawyer. See if the marriage can be annulled.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 12 years old and boys find me sexy and attractive, but my parents refuse to allow me to have a boyfriend. My friend, Sally, is even a few months younger than I, and her parents let her go steady.

Whenever a boy asks me for a date, I lie and tell him I'm on restriction. Don't you think my parents are treating me like a baby? — Franzy, Youngstown, Ohio.

Franzy: I know it's natural for 12 year old girls to be "interested" in boys, but I'll have to agree with your parents and ask that you "wait a while" before having boyfriends. It's unfortunate that Sally has unwise parents.

Marcy slates festival

The Marcy Elementary School Parent-Teacher Association is sponsoring a Fall Festival from 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday at the school.

Booths will include fortune-telling, first-aid, spook room, country store, fish pond, plant room, shuffle board and cake walk.

Also, surprise walk, gold rush, dart throw, grab bag, duck pond, treasure chest, clown ring toss and balloon man.

Tickets will be 11 for $2 in advance, and 20 cents each at the festival.

The school cafeteria, serving hot dogs, pie, cake, coffee and cokes, will be open from 5 to 9 p.m.

Everyone is invited to come out and have a good time!

Home gardens produce food

COLLEGE STATION — Today's home gardens are a far cry from "quite contrary Mary's" — to the tune of $14 billion in 1977.

Their produce value last year represents a $4 billion increase over those of 1976, according to Mary K. Sweeten, a foods and nutrition specialist.

Also, the 1977 per capita consumption of home-processed fruits and vegetables was 11 per cent of all processed fruits and vegetables, she reports.

Mrs. Sweeten is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Homemade bridal gowns economical way to wed

Twenty-five per cent of all bridal gowns are homesewn personally, by a relative or by a dressmaker. The average saving over ready-to-wear may be as much as 75 per cent, reports Beverly Rhoades, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

The French Connection

The glamorous French cradlephone has been reborn in America, where it's known as Antique Gold. Its carved gold-colored figures and rich ivory trim make it the last word in period-style decor.

And, because it's genuine Bell, you know you're getting top quality. You never have to worry about repairs, either, because the Bell System retains ownership of your phone's working components and repairs them without additional charge anytime there's a problem.

Make your French Connection at your nearest PhoneCenter Store, where you can also choose from a variety of other colorful and attractive styles. Or call your local Southwestern Bell business office. Choose a phone that's genuinely you and genuine Bell.

The Antique Gold. $24 a month for five months or a one-time charge of $120.

Prices do not include taxes or, if applicable, installation and recurring charges. If necessary, hearing aid adapters are available from your telephone company.

Big Spring Altrusans awarded at convention

More than 200 Altrusans heard a call to action from International President Letha Brown of San Diego at their Oct. 21 banquet at Austin College.

The banquet was part of a three-day conference for Texas Altrusa clubs. Attending from The Big Spring club was Frances Hendrick as delegate, Beth Kay and Mamie Roberts.

From the podium, Mrs. Brown suggested that people belong to organizations of various inborn needs. "Experts in the field," she said, "say reasons for the joining groups are six: the need to communicate, the need for worthwhile activities, for self-improvement, the need to give service, as an outlet for skills and talents, for business and professional reasons, and the urge for power."

"Membership in Altrusa meet all of these needs and it is the uniqueness of the individual which makes clubwork so rich."

District nine's new officers were installed at the banquet by Dr. Lois Norman of Sherman. Virginia Morris of Sherman was installed as the new district governor. During her acceptance speech, she outlined the theme she has adopted for her role as governor, "The Future Is Now."

"We do many things throughout our lives to prepare us for the future,"

Girl born to Speakers

Robert and Penny Speaker, 3914 Hamilton, announce the birth of a daughter, Kimberlie Marie, born at 8:01 a.m. Oct. 19 at Texas Tech Science Hospital, Lubbock.

The baby weighed 5 pounds 15 ounces and was 19 inches long at birth.

Maternal grandparents are Jim and Ruth Vineyard, 1813 Benton. Walter O. Speaker, 1316 Park, is the paternal grandfather.

Maternal great-grandparents are Nellie Ruth Vineyard and Charles Vineyard, both of Morristown, Tenn.

The infant is the Speaker's first child.

Club makes ornaments

The Newcomer's Handicraft Club met Oct. 18 at the home of Theresa Lewis to make Christmas tree ornaments out of walnut shells.

Christmas wreaths will be the project for the next meeting at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at the home of Sharon Little, 802 W. 18. Each member if requested to bring a straw wreath of a desirable size. They are available at area hobby shops.

A slide presentation will be presented by Shirley Shroyer of the Volunteer Services of the Big Spring State Hospital.

Anyone desiring more information about the club, may call Theresa Lewis, 263-6085.

she said. "But today is the someday of all our yesterdays. We now live in the world of the future, a world that would have been but fantasy to our forebearers."

Mrs. Morris presided over the Saturday awards luncheon, during which she recognized outstanding achievements in accomplishing Altrusan objectives.

Outstanding club projects winning top awards were Beaumont's literary project, Austin's project for the blind, Richardson's renovation of the YWCA, and Pampa's dental hygiene program.

Amarillo was awarded first place grants-in-aid award for their exchange-student program. Runners-up were Fort Worth's student fund and Lufkin's learning clinic for non-Americans.

Richardson and Temple were awarded the Joella Terrill Butler Membership Award while certificates of merit were awarded to Austin, Big Spring and Oak Cliff. Waco received a special award for organizing the Killen Club.

The Edith DeBusk President's Award for leadership was presented by Mrs. DeBusk to Waco for its literacy program. "The Right To Read," Dallas, Greenville and Richardson were runners-up.

READY-TO-WEAR FOR SPRING-SUMMER 1979 — Curves are back in fashion as shown earlier this week by the Yves St. Laurent form-fitting, narrow dress made of blue two-tone boucle with bold, dark blue sea shells, fringed with an orange satin band. The modified sailor's cap is also orange.

Dear Abby

Archbishop Sheen Answers a Question

DEAR ABBY: In a recent letter to you, a person wrote, "I am a Catholic and a Mason," stating further that Pope Paul VI issued a ruling in 1974 which gave Catholics permission to join the Masonic Order. The letter was signed, A CATHOLIC WHO IS ALSO A MASON. Your comment was simply, "Thank you. Now I know."

Abby, that Catholic is no longer a Catholic in good standing in the church if he joined the Masonic order. Pope Paul never issued such an order. And now you REALLY do know!

D.T. (A CATHOLIC),
 LAS CRUCES, N.M.

DEAR CATHOLIC: Would you take the word of the Most Reverend Fulton J. Sheen, titular archbishop of Newport? Read on:

DEAR ABBY: It was a joy to hear from you and I shall try to answer the question submitted: "Can a Catholic become a Mason and maintain his standing in the Catholic Church?"

Can a Catholic be a Mason? That depends. According to a letter sent to the presidents of the various National Conferences of Catholic Bishops by Cardinal Seper, Prefect of the Vatican's Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, dated July 18, 1974, membership by lay people in Masonic groups is acceptable, provided the groups are not actively hostile to the Church.

Clerics, religious and members of Secular Institutes are still forbidden in every case to join any Masonic associations.

Although Canon 2335 of the current Code of Canon Law of the Church continues to remain on the books, it is to be interpreted in the light of the abovementioned letter.

With warmest personal regards — God Love You!
 Sincerely,
 Fulton J. Sheen

DEAR ABBY: I know a guy who is so conceited it's pitiful. He carries a small mirror in his pocket along with his comb, and every few minutes checks his hair and runs a comb through it.

It think it's okay for a guy to be satisfied with his looks, but don't you think he's overdoing it?

TURNED OFF

DEAR TURNED: A guy (or a gal) who constantly pulls out a mirror is dissatisfied with his (or her) looks. That's insecurity — not conceit.

DEAR ABBY: My bachelor brother recently passed away. (We are five brothers and two sisters living.) Do you think it was proper for the family to buy flowers for his funeral and send the bill to his estate?

Well, that is what they did. I always thought that when you buy flowers for a loved one it should come out of your own pocketbook.

What do you make of this?

LIVING SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Buying flowers for a deceased loved one and then billing his estate for his own flowers is about as chintzy as one can get. It's a good thing your loved one wasn't alive to witness such cheapness. It might have killed him.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (25 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

BUTLER

Look...Out In Your Living Room.

It's A Server.

It's A Cocktail Table.

It's the Super Table from Butler Specialty Company. Able to become three tables with a single adjustment and handle all your entertaining with ease. We've disguised it, so, what appears to be a normal serving table made of beautiful handpicked solid woods is really a whole lot more. That's right. Super Table has two other secret identities. Underneath it all you'll find a cocktail table and a top that can be carried as a server. Only Butler could have come up with a table that's this functional. So, if you're short on space and long on ideas let Super Table come to your rescue. After all . . . you don't meet a table this super every day!

Sen. Jackson outraged at Sakowitz

SEATTLE (AP) - Sen. Henry M. Jackson is outraged that his name has popped up in a Texas department store Christmas catalog.
 The store, Sakowitz, listed the Washington Democrat as one of 21 celebrities available as an "ultimate gift" for a celebrity dinner, costing $94,125.
 "Disgraceful, deceptive advertising," said Jackson. "I haven't had any contact with them, my family has had no contact, and no one with any authority to schedule me has had any contact with them."
 "Outrageous," he added, "The Federal Trade Commission should take a look at this."
 Robert T. Sakowitz, president of the Houston store, objected to the use of the word "rent" in reference to the celebrities in earlier news reports of the offer.
 Instead, he said, "They are available for invitation."
 "The selection of location and date for the Ultimate Gifts will be made pending the availability and scheduling of each participant...and should be worked around their other commitments at their convenience," the ad warned.

Ridin' fence

with Marj Carpenter

That's what they tell. This is the night the spooks are out. And there are a lot of them around West Texas other than the local trick or treaters.
 If the wind is blowing around the hill near the convent in Stanton, you might listen for the cries in the night of the young student who was reported to have hung himself in the dormitory.
 One of the old tales is that he returned with the tornado that blew away that portion of the buildings in which he died. On a windy night, supposedly, you can hear his cries. There are some who believed he was murdered and there are those who still hear him crying for help in the night.
 Or, go down to Kermit, out in the sand hills, whenever there is a dust storm and you can hear an Indian maiden crying. She was tied to a tree in that area, according to legend, while her young Indian buck tried to get help during a sandstorm. When he returned, the sand had buried the tree and the maiden. Oldtimers say that during a sandstorm you can hear the cry in the wind, "Cut me freeeeeeee."
 Over at Fort Davis, Indian Emily appears on moonlight nights. She is reported to be a shadow on the mountain behind the fort, coming to warn her soldier captain that the Indians are going to attack. She died in her efforts.
 Around Marfa, the mysterious light in the mountains may move tonight. It moves around the mountains lots of nights and has for over a 100 years. Nobody has determined its source.
 In Garden City, the glowing grave may glow with a little extra shine on Halloween.
 On Lone Wolf Mountain near Colorado City, the spirit

Ghosts of West Texas

Lone Wolf roams the mountains. Some hear his Indian cries and some still see the flickers of fires on the mountain on moonlight nights.
 Lone Wolf was killed as the Comanches fled from Mexico after stealing horses. They buried the young prince on Lone Wolf Mountain and fled for their lives.
 They later returned to dig up that Indian lad and take him home to the proper burial ground.
 Even though surrounded by a park, the big spring may have a few whispers around it tonight of Captain Marcy's group who had one of their soldiers wander off and be killed by Indians.
 Or perhaps the ghosts of the settlers, trapped near the spring that were saved by a Calvary Unit coming from Fort Elizabeth down near Sterling City, will whisper tonight.
 Down on Jesse James creek, outside Sterling City, maybe the ghost of Jesse James will ride tonight. He spent some of his hideout years there breaking wild horses, before returning and being killed in Missouri.
 Or perhaps the Earl of Aylesford, who had such a good time buying the local hotel and opening the bar to everyone, will moan out in the Luther area tonight. He came from England by necessity and spent his final years partying at his home along Wild Horse Draw. You might see his ghost down the draw.
 West Texas has way more than its share of great stories. And our ghosts are just as good as anyone. In fact, I think we've got some of the classiest ghosts around - out where I ride fence.

Million-dollar budget to be topic of Baptists

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A $31 million budget and new guidelines on church-state relations will occupy some 6,000 messengers to the 93rd annual session of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, which starts tonight.
 Major business of the convention will begin Wednesday and will include the report of a special study committee on church-state relations.
 The committee will recommend that the convention oppose government restrictions "that adversely affect the ability of the (Baptist) institutions to fulfill their distinctive purposes as Christian institutions."
 The messengers, both laity and ministers, will vote on a budget for 1979 that includes $10.9 million for home and foreign missions and Christian education and $20 million for Texas Baptist missions and church growth, colleges and universities, hospitals, children's homes and other activities.
 One possible flare-up that could occur in Thursday's debate on resolutions could deal with oral sex between husband and wife.
 Houston's Union Baptist Association has adopted a resolution asking the convention to withdraw Charlie Shedd from the program of the planned statewide Family Life Conference in Dallas on March 29-31.
 The association adopted the resolution primarily on the strength of a statement by the Rev. Glynn Little of Langwood Baptist Church that Shedd said oral sex between marriage partners was permissible.
 Little said he heard Shedd make that statement on some marriage enrichment tapes to which he listened some three years ago.
 Shedd, former pastor of Memorial Drive Presbyterian Church in Houston, now lives in Georgia and is a nationally known religious writer.

Dallas reporter arrested by sheriff

DALLAS (AP) - A Dallas Morning News reporter went to the county sheriff's office in search of a story and returned with an arrest record - his own.
 Deputies arrested reporter Bruce Selcraig, 23, Monday on a criminal trespass charge after he refused to leave a waiting room outside Sheriff Carl Thomas' office. He pleaded innocent.
 Thomas said Selcraig had been given the choice of leaving or being arrested. "At his (Selcraig's) request, he was placed under arrest," the sheriff said.
 Tom J. Simmons, News executive editor, called the arrest "an outrage." He said the reporter was released about two hours after the arrest. Selcraig spent about half an hour in a jail cell.
 Selcraig wrote a copyright story published Saturday in which two unnamed Dallas police officers said the sheriff was intoxicated and caused a disturbance in a local hotel the night before the Texas-Oklahoma football game Oct. 7.
 Thomas called a news conference Saturday after the newspaper ran the article and denied the charge.
 When asked if the decision to ban Selcraig from the area was related to the story, the sheriff said, "I have no comment on the story that appeared over the weekend... I just didn't want Bruce sitting in my office area."
 Van Dunn, a sheriff's department spokesman, said Selcraig was arraigned and released on $200 bond. Simmons, however, said the reporter was released on a writ of habeas corpus and "not a penny changed hands."
 Thomas said he had banned the reporter from his office area earlier Monday. Selcraig said other reporters were allowed to stay in the area. The story he was looking for, accompanied by

"Saving hot water is one of the best ways to save energy in the home"

"Whether you wash once a week or once a day, there are lots of ways you can save energy in the laundry. It's not necessary to wash everything in hot water. Most loads will come clean in a warm wash and a cold rinse. Sort laundry according to type of fabric, color-fastness and garment construction. When possible, wash full loads or use your water level selector for smaller loads. Use hot water only for heavily soiled items. When drying clothes, you can increase efficiency and save energy by cleaning the lint filter after each load. Select the dryer time according to the type of fabric in the load. For more ways to save, send for our free energy tips booklet. Or simply request it on the comment portion of your electric service bill."
