Republicans praying for rain?

Votes keyed to weather

By the Associated Press
Texas voters bombarded by sophisticated media campaigns and cleverly assembled data aimed at influencing choices today watched something all the computers in the state can't control — the weather.

The all-important turnout is often decided by how much discomfort voters must put up with in making their way to the booths.

Tradition holds that Democrats profit from a big turnout, and the Democrats were hoping that a predicted clear and cool day materialized.

Presumably, Republicans prayed for rain.

Voters had a lot of choices to make today, but a pair of statewide races stuck out from the rest.

Democrat John Hill, who has said there is no way he can lose, faces Republican Bill Clements in a battle to see whose millions were better spent. They're running for the governor's office.

And, once again, Republican Sen. John Tower is trying to fend off another challenge to add to his 17 years in the Upper Chamber. This year's Democrat is Rep. Bob Krueger, who says he's ahead in all the polls.

In the House, Texans will try to fill an enormous power vacuum left by retirements and other reasons.

The 24 Texas congressional seats also are at stake, and only two incumbents are unopposed.

There are good races for attorney general, where former Secretary of State Mark White has a strong Republican challenger, Jim Baker, and for railroad commissioner, where Democrat John Poerner is opposed by Republican James W. Lacy.

Lieutenant Gov. Bill Hobby faces less formidable Republican opposition in Gaylord Marshall.

La Raza Unida Party has nominees for governor and U.S. senator — Mario Compean and Luis A. Diaz DeLeon, respectively.

Running unopposed this year are Democrats Bob Bullock, comptroller; Warren G. Harding, state treasurer; Bob Armstrong, land commissioner; Reagan Brown, agriculture commissioner; and Mack Wallace, railroad commissioner.

Eight judges are running statewide but are unopposed. They are Joe R. Greenhill, chief justice, Supreme Court; Franklin Spears, Sam Johnson, Charles Barrow and Robert Campbell, associate justices to the Supreme Court; and Wendell Odom, Sam Houston Clinton and W.C. "Bill" Davis, judges on the Court of Criminal Appeals.

Eight newcomers will be among the 24 representatives elected to the U.S. House as Texas loses a lot of seniority because of retirement.

Reps. Olin Teague, 68, of College Station; George Mahon, 77, of Lubbock; Bob Poage, 78, of Waco; Omar Burleson, 72, of Anson; and Barbara Jordan of Houston, called it quits this year.

Freshmen congressmen also will be chosen to replace Krueger, leaving after four years to seek the Senate, and Dale Milford of Arlington and John Young of Corpus Christi, both defeated in the Democratic primary.

Reps. Jim Collins, a Republican from Dallas, and Henry B. Gonzalez, a Democrat from San Antonio, are the only candidates unopposed.

AMERICAN FREEDOM — Mr. and Mrs. Dan McRae were among the early voters in Big Spring today and are exercising their right to vote and help choose the leaders of the land. Both were very carefully and intently filing casting ballots. Election officials reported a light turnout during the morning hours. Polls will remain open until 7 p.m.

For theft of $10.2 million

Computer expert held

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A balding 32-year-old computer expert, held on $6 million bail in the theft of $10.2 million in bank funds for a Soviet diamond deal, worked alone on the sophisticated scheme, the FBI says.

Stanley Mark Rifkin was arraigned Monday before U.S. Magistrate Harry McCue on a charge of interstate transportation of stolen property in what has been described by officials as one of the largest theft-by-wire schemes ever.

The charge carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. But Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael Lippman said a federal grand jury in Los Angeles may indict Rifkin on other charges. A hearing on the stolen property charge was set for Nov. 17.

The FBI said Rifkin, in a scheme involving bank computers and secret codes, transferred $10.2 million from a Security Pacific Bank in Los Angeles to the Swiss bank account of "Russalmaz," a branch of the Soviet government that handles diamond exports.

"It does appear as though the entire scheme was conceived and perpetrated by Rifkin himself," said Roger Young, FBI agent in San Diego.

Young said there was no indication the Soviets knew the money for the diamonds had been stolen. "The Russians had to be cooperative," Young said. "They deal in cash and cash was offered."

The FBI agent said Rifkin used a phony passport to go to Switzerland to pick up the diamonds, which were bought from the Soviets at the wholesale price of $8.1 million.

Bank officials said earlier that about $2 million of the transferred money had been located in bank channels, and the bank was in the process of recovering that money. They said the diamonds would become bank property.

When Rifkin was arrested Sunday in Carlsbad, Calif., Young said, he had $12,000 in cash and diamonds with a retail value of $13 million.

Rifkin's attorney, Howard Frank, said his client had returned from the East Coast to give himself up after learning he was being sought, but "was arrested before he had a chance to surrender."

U.S. could experience adverse effects

Iranian turmoil continues

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The installation of Iran's first military government in 25 years triggered more rioting, and there were fears that strikes and other political turmoil in this oil-rich nation may soon be felt at the gasoline pumps in America and other big consuming nations.

One person died and two were wounded Monday night when troops dispersed rioters protesting the 37-year rule of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi and the appointment of his chief of staff, Gen. Gholam Reza Azhari, to head Iran's new regime.

Mobs burned and looted bank branches and liquor stores near Tehran University and in a town near the railroad station just outside the capital. Demonstrations also were staged in Abadan, in the heart of the oil-producing region in southern Iran.

Exiled Shiite Moslem leader Ayatollah Khomeini said in a CBS TV interview in Paris that while he hopes the shah can be overthrown by strikes and demonstrations he does not rule out armed violence.

The religious leader also said the Islamic government he envisions for Iran would try the shah and sentence him to "a minimum of life imprisonment" on grounds of ordering people killed.

The State Department, long a supporter of the shah, expressed support for the change to military rule on grounds the restoration of law and order is essential if the shah is to carry out his plan to hold elections for a civilian government.

Other Washington officials, however, expressed despair that the shah has not been able to win popular backing despite attempts at reform.

About 11,000 Americans live in Iran, and American officials advised them to stay indoors when possible. There were no outward signs of American evacuation plans in the face of the continuing violence, which has claimed more than 1,000 lives since January.

Orthodox Moslems are demanding an end to the shah's westernizing reforms which they say are contrary to the teachings of the Koran, the Moslem holy book. Political activists and hundreds of thousands of strikers want an end to martial law and other concessions.

More than 90 percent of Iran's 34 million residents, including the shah, belong to the Shiite sect. The last prime minister, Jaafar Sharif-Emami, a devout Moslem, was appointed Aug. 27 in an attempt by the shah to ease Moslem opposition to his rule.

Ferry crashes while trying to dock in fog

NEW YORK (AP) — A Staten Island ferry crashed against a concrete seawall at the lower tip of Manhattan today as it tried to dock in heavy fog. Police said as many as 170 of the 2,000 persons aboard were injured.

Authorities said the ferry was never in danger of sinking.

Five to seven feet of the half-inch steel deck peeled back and passengers were thrown about like rag dolls. "It looked like it was opened by a giant can opener," said one passenger.

Police said at least 30 of those aboard suffered serious injuries and 140 others were said to have suffered bruises and cuts in the crash off Battery Park about 7:30 a.m.

There were broken arms, broken legs and lacerated faces from broken glass in the cabin windows, police said. Most of the injured were standing near the bow, according to harbor police.

Barry Sternstein, a passenger who received a minor leg bruise, said he saw pandemonium and some screaming. He said police commandeered a city bus, in addition to ambulances, to get the injured to hospitals.

Marion Payne, of Staten Island, said, "No one knew what was going on. There was so much blood."

One passenger on board the radar-equipped ferry, American Legion, said the boat was in a heavy fog bank as it neared the shore and a deckhand saw it was about 100 yards west of its docking slip.

"Back down! Back down!" the deckhand was reported to have cried.

The witness said the engines were backing down when it hit the wall but had not begun to reverse the vessel's momentum. One estimate was that it hit the seawall at about 10 knots, or about 10 miles an hour.

Edward Hillis, mate of the ferry, said, "I was up at the front of the boat. It was running half speed. The captain gave it 'full astern' — put the brakes on, reverse — and the wheel didn't grab."

Asked if anything was wrong with the engines or propeller, he said: "It's just one of those things. It happens very rarely. It's one out of a thousand, but it happens."

The captain, Irving Satler, a 30-year veteran, was not injured.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Cheerleaders

Q. Why didn't the ABC cameras focus on the Dallas Cowboy cheerleaders on the Thursday night football game between the Cowboys and Minnesota? They weren't even mentioned.

The word is that the National Football League has told the networks to "cool it" as far as the cheerleaders of all the teams are concerned, that it had reached the point that more attention was being paid to the girls than to the players on the field. Quite likely, the shots of the cheerleaders are likely to become fewer and fewer from now on.

A Beat Colorado City Party will be held, 7:30 p.m., by the Coahoma Boosters Club in the Coahoma High School cafeteria. All parents are urged to attend. Refreshments will be served, and a game film of last weekend's game will be shown.

The Goliad Middle School Choirs will present a program, 7:30 p.m., in the Big Spring High School Auditorium. Admission is free.

WEDNESDAY

Offbeat: Tis the season

Deck the halls with boughs of holly, tis the season to be jolly. Some shopping centers in Fort Worth are going to be decked out quite well this Christmas season if the two giant 85-foot Christmas trees sighted in Big Spring Monday were any indication.

The biggest Christmas trees apparently do not come from Texas, but New Mexico. A man named Tom Rich had them loaded on a truck and got as far as Big Spring from the Cloudcroft area Monday night.

The truck was parked at the College Park Shopping Center while the driver rested for the night in the Holiday Inn. A flurry of excitement by passers-by was quickly squelched when they discovered the trees were not for the local shopping center but for Fort Worth.

State races 'hot' for some candidates

By MARJ CARPENTER

The political pot is not boiling very hot in Big Spring today because there are no local contested races.

However, on the back burner keeping the race warm is a Congressional battle to see who will replace 32-year incumbent Omar Burleson as 17th District Congressman — Charles Stenholm of Stamford or Bill Fisher of Abilene.

Stenholm, a 40-year-old Democrat, has been rated as the favorite-based party on the months of intensity of his campaign and partly on the past history of the sprawling 33-county district.

However, Fisher, a 35-year-old Republican, has conducted the only serious challenge his party has ever made for the seat since the district was created in 1917.

In Dawson and Martin Counties, either Sen. Kent Hance of Lubbock or George Bush Jr. of Midland will replace George Mahon.

All indications here this morning continued to be that the voter turnout in Howard County will be light. A total of 510 ballots had been cast in the office of Howard County Clerk Margaret Ray, with 142 ballots mailed out. Of that number, 104 had been returned to the office by mid-morning with one more mail to arrive before the 1 p.m. deadline.

Of six big local boxes and one in Coahoma, the voter turnout by 10:45 a.m. today was only 82%.

This include total counts at 18th and Main of 126; Washington Elementary, around 200; Central Fire Station, around 100; Wasson Road Fire Station, 210; 11th and Birdwell, 95; Northside Fire Station, 30; and Coahoma 60.

There were poll watchers at the polls today, watching the procedure.

Only write-ins which have been officially declared will be accepted. The only declared write-ins are Louis John Pappas and Gordon Ohlhausen for U.S. Senator; Louis John Pappas and Allan Vogel for governor; Gregory Iiams Goodwin for lieutenant governor; Bob Garrett Kunta Kinte for state treasurer and David W. Hutzelman, for railroad commissioner. None of them have mounted a very serious campaign.

Other write-ins will not be counted but they will not keep the ballot from being counted.

The polls remain open until 7 p.m. today.

Suspects in local rape case released

Local police have released all suspects in the case of the rape of a local woman which occurred early in the morning of Oct. 31.

"We are pretty much back where we started on this thing," said Lt. Claude Morris. "We haven't dropped the charges, and we are still working on it, but we have no one in custody at this time," he added.

The original suspect in the case, a 17-year-old local man, was cleared and released after taking a lie detector test in Midland, Friday afternoon. Another suspect, a 16-year-old juvenile, was arrested that same day.

According to Morris, the new suspect implicated another 16-year-old juvenile in the rape, who was arrested Saturday afternoon.

"We think that two people were involved, because when the rapist left the home, he sped away in a car. We think someone was waiting for him outside," said Morris.

According to the police lieutenant, one of the juveniles "wouldn't stick by his story," and the cases against both failed to jell. Due to limitations under the law of how long juveniles may be kept in custody, both suspects were released Monday, according to Morris.

"They have been released for the time being. They could be picked up again in the future," said Morris.

Dawson County sheriff quits

LAMESA — Guy Kinnison has resigned as Dawson County sheriff effective Nov. 15.

Kinnison cited 'economic reasons' for his decision to quit. He revealed he had accepted a job outside of law enforcement work but will continue to live in Lamesa.

Kinnison's present term in office would have extended until 1980. County commissioners will pick someone to fill Kinnison's unexpired term.

Kinnison urged commissioners to take a new look at the pay scale of county peace officers and use their influence to alter the financial plight the officers are now in.

"Who ever the next sheriff is, and whoever are the next deputies," Kinnison told the commissioners, "they deserve your support and they deserve to be paid a living wage commensurate with the risks they are taking and with their duties."

Politicians shooting from lip

'Vote her straight!', Demos urged

"Vote her straight!" That's the message the Democrats are spreading in Howard County and the rest of Texas.

The Democrats smell blood. With the polls showing them ahead in the general election with less than four hours remaining before the polls close, Democrats are preaching the "gospel."

"The word is always the same: 'Get out the vote.' Cosden employe, Johnnie Hooper, a strong 'Hill yes' supporter, summed up the feelings of the local partisans.

"The Republicans can't beat us. We can only beat ourselves," he said.

"Stamp that rooster and let it scratch for you," Knott farmer Larry Shaw, a delegate to the national mini-Democratic convention in Memphis, Tenn., starting Dec. 15, urged voters today. If young voters do not understand the rooster remark feel free to contact Shaw at Democratic headquarters.

Write or wrong, more "hot shots."

Texas Democrats are caught up in the Party Harmony campaign. They can hardly wait until after the polls close at 7 p.m. today so they can go back to fighting among themselves as God intended.

As the national political campaign moves along, Republicans refuse to be bullied into overconfidence.

If you have any opportunity to work on political questionnaires try to be assigned to think up the questions. They're always so much simpler than the answers.

It was a scary Halloween for Texas Republicans. They found the whole state haunted by the one-party system.

After he went out trick-or-treating, Bill Fisher opened his sack and found all sorts of goodies — everything but votes.

There have been so many door-to-door visits by avoid electing officers.

In the course of the political battles across the country, candidates have been accused of being too old, too young, too inexperienced and too crooked. But not one has been accused of being too modest.

It's small comfort to Republican Bill Clements when people tell him they'd certainly vote for him if John Hill weren't running.

Not to pass judgments on the Carter administration, but I wouldn't want the people running the anti-inflation program to be in charge of collecting our garbage.

"Never blame a legislative body for not doing something. When they do nothing, they don't hurt anybody. When they do something is when they become dangerous."

PRECINCT CHAIRMAN and Cosden employe, James Baird, defines a political campaign as when everyone shoots from the lip.

And the bunkhouse, James adds, is a political headquarters.

After 17 years in the Senate, John Tower is about ready to retire — as soon as he finds a successor who has as much seniority as he has.

Some Democrats are convinced the only way Tower will be taken out of Congress is defeat first.

John Hill still doesn't understand how Bill Clements could spend $6.3 million without being hailed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe as a new state industry.

Election day is the time when millions of voters do their duty as informed citizens by going to the polls and voting in races they've paid no attention to.

Poll-takers report a discouraging trend. When they ask people how they feel about political apathy, there's a big Undecided vote.

Digest

Detector worse hazard?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of defective smoke detectors could turn into "blow torches" and burn down houses instead, the government says. The manufacturer, which has recalled many of the devices, now has agreed to pay a $100,000 fine. Pittway Corp. of Northbrook, Ill., facing the alternative of federal legal action, has agreed to pay the monetary penalty in connection with the smoke detectors, the Consumer Product Safety Commission said Monday.

Legal question still open

WASHINGTON (AP) — The legal question still is open, but the nation's highest court has given at least tentative approval to the idea that cities have a right to spend taxpayers' money for political lobbying.

The Supreme Court left intact Monday an order freeing Boston to spend public funds urging Massachusetts voters to approve a proposal to prevent higher residential property taxes.

Lynching attempted

SHAMOKIN, Pa. (AP) — Retired policeman Charles Marcinek says he probably is alive today because one of the four men who tried to lynch him panicked at the last minute. As three men strung up Marcinek, 58, a fourth, standing on a nearby road, shouted, "Let him go, let him go before you kill him." Said Marcinek, "The heavy-set guy took the rope off my neck and they ran for their car and took off. That guy who panicked probably saved my life."

Easter Seal Child named

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Seven-year-old Claire Huckel has been named the 1979 National Easter Seal Child at the Society's annual convention here. A first grader at the Pen Ryn School in Cornwells Heights, Pa., Claire's disease was diagnosed by a neurologist as cerebral palsy when she was 15 months old. Claire had been spastic and unable even to roll over. But after three years of therapy at an Easter Seal special education pre-school, she can walk with braces. As the National Easter Seal Child, she will make personal appearances throughout the country from March 1 through April 15.

Liver disease rising killer

CHICAGO (AP) — The fastest-rising killer in the nation today is liver disease, aggravated by higher consumption of alcohol, according to a University of Pennsylvania physician. Dr. John Senior told a meeting of the American Association for the Study of Liver Diseases Tuesday that the liver disease death rate has even surpassed the coronary death rate. He said eight out of every 10 liver-related deaths in the country are caused by alcohol.

Woman admitted to hospital following wreck in Coahoma

COAHOMA — Josephine Rivera, a passenger in the Volkswagon, struck the windshield with her forehead. She sustained a cut on the forehead, and a bruise on the right knee, but is reported by hospital officials to be in good condition. Her sister, Sandra Ann Martinez, who had been a passenger in the back seat of the car, was examined and released from the hospital with minor bruises. No one else was injured in the collision.

Police beat Check forgery case clearing

Officer Joseph Diliberto arrested Doris Moten at 1100 N. Main on a warrant for felony check forgery. The $125 check was stolen several months ago from an instructor at Howard College. We think there may be a man involved who we have a line on now," said Detective Tony Lujan, who is in charge of the investigation of the case. Lujan hopes that two other cases, one for forgery, the other for theft, can be cleared with the arrest of the man. Burglars broke into the home of Scott Terry, 1408 E. 6th, sometime between 3:15 p.m. Monday and 3 a.m. today. Stolen were a television set, a watch, a gold ring, five boxes of .22 caliber bullets, three radios, two cameras and a hair dryer. Total loss was estimated at $1,002. Terry Carter, Gail Route, told police of a weird occurrence, 9:30 p.m. Monday. Carter said that he spotted a 1968 Chevrolet stopped along the side of Hearn. He stopped to see what was wrong, and as he did so a male juvenile carrying a machete emerged from the stopped car and threatened to kill Carter if he didn't leave. Carter left, and immediately contacted police. A Hollyhill, Fla. couple called police, 9:20 p.m. Monday, to report that the wife had been attacked by an unidentified man in the parking lot of the Dairy Queen Drive-in. When officers arrived, the woman decided that she did not want to file a complaint, but the officers had become suspicious of the out-of-town couple. Running a check on the Floridians' 1978 Chevrolet Monte Carlo, they found that it had been stolen in Daytona, Fla., and promptly arrested the couple on suspicion of auto theft. A hand-held, quartz halogen spotlight belonging to John Dever III, Coahoma, was stolen from his car while it was parked in the lot of the Quick Stop, 410 March, Monday night. The light was valued at $16.95. Burglars lifted a portable AM-FM radio from the home of Calvin Daughtry, 106 Scurry, around 3:30 p.m. Monday. The radio was valued at $40. Vandals broke a plate glass window in Warehouse 615 in the Big Spring Industrial Park, sometime Sunday. Cost of the damage has not been estimated. Charles B. Norris, Lamesa, was admitted for observation to the Big Spring Veterans Administration Hospital after a two-car collision, 10:37 a.m. Monday. According to reports, Norris' car collided with a car driven by Rita F. Aragon, Gardén City Route, at the intersection of Sixth and Scurry. Ms. Aragon was treated and released at Hall Bennett Hospital. According to hospital officials, Norris is expected to be released sometime Wednesday. Only one other mishap was reported Monday. Vehicles driven by Matthew Burns, Bob 467, and Beulah Webb, 611 Steakley, collided at 900 E. 3rd, 4:12 p.m.

Trespass charges remain 'locked up'

Charges of criminal trespass filed against property owner Francis Hock will not be examined for at least two weeks, according to Municipal Judge John Coffee.

The charges had been pressed by Big Spring Police Dispatcher Robert Howle, 103 W. 14th. He claimed that Mrs. Hock, his landlady, entered his residence while he was at home, then refused to leave.

Mrs. Hock alleges that Howle owed her rent, and that she at one point padlocked the door to the residence. She was later arrested on a warrant issued by Peace Justice Bob West. A hearing for the purpose of allowing Mrs. Hock to plead to the charge was held Monday, but she left before the hearing began.

"When the person doesn't plead, we immediately assume that the plea is not guilty, and it becomes a contested case. The city attorney (James Gregg) tries all contested cases, and he will be out of town when the next two trials would have been scheduled," said Coffee.

Trials of this sort are customarily held 1:30 p.m. every Wednesday, according to the judge.

The incident piqued the interest of a number of other Big Spring property owners, who attended Mrs. Hock's preliminary hearing Monday to observe the proceedings. The situation raises the question of what their rights are when it comes to entering their tenants' premises.

"We didn't go down to the city to protest anything," said one local landlady. "We just wanted to see where we stand on this. None of us wants to get arrested."

Craddock has been a member of the Industrial Team since it was organized in the 1960s. No successor was immediately named. Eddie Piland will replace Craddock as secretary-treasurer of the Industrial Team.

Trustees to nullify resignations

New business to be discussed by the Big Spring board of school trustees at their 5:15 p.m. meeting Thursday include the employment and resignation of personnel, the annual appointment of the local textbook committee and the review of administrative recommendation on student suspensions.

The trustees will also hear a report from the assistant superintendent for business on an analysis of collection of taxes and the collection of delinquent taxes.

An attendance report from the superintendent will be offered. Board members will also see a budget statement, grand audiences from individuals or groups and pay bills.

Forgery charged

Doris Louise Moten was charged with forgery by passing Monday. Bond of $10,000 was set by Justice of the Peace Bobby West.

Johnie Walker has surgery

So what?

with Marj Carpenter

Here I am struggling with the weather out at the dedication of the Soash Historical Marker.

At this point, I was wanting to say, "So what, Soash?" The history of Soash definitely tells you that the community failed because it did not rain.

But on the morning of the marker dedication, it rained brother. Note the water running in the ditch behind this damp (I said damp) speaker.

This is me folks, with a borrowed raincoat from Polly Mays, who originally came from Kansas and owns three raincoats.

The Soash son, George Soash and his wife came from Lubbock for the occasion and had to walk around the mud to get to the unveiling of the marker. Mary Stipp, who wrote the history for the marker, came prepared in knee boots and raincoat.

Those who know West Texas know that if you don't like the weather — stick around and it will change.

But I wanted to comment here on the Historical Survey Commission. They are a great bunch of dedicated people who spend hours and hours checking out historical information about early things in Howard County.

They don't just throw up a marker for anybody who happens to want one. They turn in pages and pages of authenticated information on possible markers.

The thanks they get is either apathy from people who could care less about history or criticism from people who think their ancestors are probably the bestest and the mostest.

It's kind of like the newspaper business. Everybody is either wanting their name in or their name out of the paper. If they committed a crime, they want out. If they solved the crime, they want in.

If they get married, they want in, if they are getting a divorce they want out. They want every bit of information about everybody else's wrecks, lawsuits, fires and trouble. They want no information on their wrecks, lawsuits, fires and trouble unless it helps with the insurance.

But back to the original subject. I, like the weather, sometimes, wander. The Howard County Historical Survey group and people like Polly Mays, Agnes Currie, Helen Early, Hubert and Mary Stipp and others do a good job and a lot of work.

Polly is currently in the process of writing every fire department in Texas in an attempt to prove that the first mechanized fire truck was here in Big Spring. Knowing it is one thing and proving it is hours and hours and hours and hours of work. So when those folks have some wordy idiot like yours truly standing out in the rain reading history for a marker, they have already done lots and lots of work ahead of time.

And I admire them for it. Hang on to your heritage and your history around here, because it is something special — out where I ride fence.

McDonald's restaurant groundbreaking booked

A new McDonald's restaurant is planned for Big Spring. In making the announcement, Vic Moore, the new restaurant owner, stated that groundbreaking will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday. Construction will begin at the site, I-20 and Lamesa Highway, later this week.

"McDonald's restaurants are known for their quality, service, cleanliness, and value," said Moore. "We plan not only to maintain those standards of operation, but to become involved in this community as a good neighbor and friend."

Moore who also owns and operates the McDonald's in Midland, stated he has been planning the expansion to Big Spring for almost two years.

The new McDonald's planned for Big Spring is part of an international family of restaurants. McDonald's has some 5,000 restaurants throughout the United States and international markets. This newest addition has indoor seating for 126, a drive-thru window, and parking for nearly 100 cars. The decor will be western and will depict much of early Big Spring history.

Below-freezing temps experienced by some

Residents of the Texas Panhandle and the South Plains shivered in below-freezing weather this morning as a cold front maintained its grip on the region.

Government can be held liable

Where does the responsibility of a municipality or a county end? From all indications, certainly not at a pothole.

According to a Texas Supreme Court decision made public recently, a pothole becomes more than a pothole when it figures in an automobile accident resulting in an injury to four people and total damage to a new vehicle.

The court ruled that Harris County, whose officials were direct in repairing a damaged road, was liable to the extent of $11,000 to the people involved in the accident.

THIS, NO doubt, was an imposing pothole. Witnesses testified it was more like a trench. It was anywhere from six to ten inches deep. It spanned nine-tenths of the width of the road in question. While the cavity was visible from a distance of 200 feet, the court ruled that its depths could not be judged. For that reason, it constituted a "special defect." The Supreme Court ruled that the county was remiss in not warning passing motorists about its perils.

The court wasn't making an issue over this pothole, nor the $11,000 award it approved to the plaintiffs. The real point of the principle involved here is the idea that governmental entities can be held liable for not offering promised and expected services to the public they are supposed to serve.

Up to now, it has been every man and woman for himself or herself. Due in part to the Tort Claims Act, which eases the way for individuals to file claims against governments, a measure of relief is available.

All things considered, this seems fitting and proper, certainly an improvement over the old theory that no one could sue a government on any level.

GRANTED, IT is one more headache for municipal, county and state agencies, it also signals a new awareness of the individual's rights to expect a certain minimum level of performance and responsibility from an agency supported in the while by the tax dollar.

The decision could cost various government agencies, and for that reason, the tax payers, a great deal of money, but there is no reason it should. The ruling should serve to increase the diligence of the highway departments to be more zealous than ever about maintaining thoroughfares.

The ruling will become deeply significant if the edict saves human lives, as it is almost certain to do.

Glad to get home

Around the rim

Marie Homeyer

Several weekends ago I went home to visit my family and to see the A&M-Baylor football game. I flew from Midland to Houston and my family picked me up at the airport there. It was then that I realized just how much I really dislike being in Houston. I can't take the traffic congestion.

My parents parked in a special lot about a mile or two from the terminal itself and rode on a special bus so as to avoid the traffic around the terminal. And this was at nine in the evening.

THEN WE HAD to drive on the interstate for about 30 minutes before we got out of Houston. It was only when we took a slight detour that we missed most of the traffic.

Little did we know at the time that when we made our return trip to the airport that the traffic would be immeasurably worse.

After a disappointing weekend (the Aggies lost and I missed seeing some very special friends) I did not need to be caught in a traffic jam. But I was.

We had decided to leave an hour early so that we could stop in Conroe to eat. But when we got to Conroe the traffic on the interstate was bumper to bumper and moving about 30 miles per hour. And, we had no way of telling how far back it went or how far forward it went. So as not to risk being late for my plane, we decided not to stop and eat but go on ahead. From the conversation on the C.B. we learned that the traffic was like that all the way into Houston. My dad, the eternal optimist, thought that it just couldn't be like that all the way into Houston. That was about 30 miles away.

INSTEAD of getting on the interstate we stayed on the service road for as far as we could go. But about twice the road would end because of a waterway or something like that. Then we would have to fight our way into the traffic and the first chance we could get we would get back out of it again. Even if it meant crossing over to the service road when there wasn't an exit. And, from the worn grass, I could tell that we weren't the only ones taking that way out.

Then to top things off, my plane was an hour late in taking off. I could have taken the time and eaten in Conroe as planned and still have had plenty of time to catch my plane.

I usually learn from my mistakes. And certainly I have from this one. I will never again schedule a plane flight from Houston late on a Sunday night.

I was glad to get back to Big Spring where the only traffic problem I have to worry about is trying to get across Gregg Street from the Herald at noon and five o'clock.

New Confidence

Evans, Novak

EN ROUTE WITH CARTER — A hint that Jimmy Carter's self-confidence is now approaching spill-over levels after dangerous depletion last summer came in a presidential bull session in the VIP cabin of Air Force One returning from an all-day campaign swing.

Usually when Mr. Carter boards the presidential plane, he quickly takes refuge in his private quarters. Not so on the night of Oct. 28. Buoyed by good crowds and his own above-normal rhetoric, the president felt the urge for company and political gossip with Democratic national chairman John White, political aide Tim Kraft and others.

The uncommon act of shooting a little bull with the boys on the long way home — uncommon for Jimmy Carter — was a subtle signal that Mr. Carter now feels he has weathered a period of grave danger to his presidency. Ten weeks ago Dr. George Gallup's national poll found only 36 per cent crediting the president with "strong leadership qualities."

WHETHER THIS new confidence is a false dawn, or represents what one aide calls the president's "feeling that he finally has his hands on the levers," time will tell. But in these final days of the 1978 election campaign, Mr. Carter exudes an image of presidentiality not visible in the darker days of summer.

He brushed aside worried liberal Democrats in Massachusetts who did not want their hostility for Edward J. King, the conservative Democrat candidate for governor, to be tainted by a presidential blessing for King. Mr. Carter wisely insisted that the Democratic tent is broad enough for a King or two. His decision was more than vindicated in City Hall Square in the town of Lynn, when one of the most exuberant crowds of the campaign season gave him louder, longer applause than it gave Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Likewise, that same evening he passed up an easy chance to milk a partisan dinner crowd in Portland's Steven Street Amusey. Stopped three times by applause during his opening six sentences, he shocked his political aides by saying: "I want to talk soberly and frankly tonight. I don't care whether you applaud. I don't come up here to waste my time."

There followed a long, extemporaneous talk on the "compassion" of the Democratic party, more sermon than stump talk, centering on the uphill reelection campaign of Sen. William Hathaway. Hathaway is a likely loser on Nov. 7 to Republican Rep. William Cohen. The rhetoric, echoing Mr. Carter's early presidential campaign themes of 1975 and 1976, was stripped of applause lines but the packed crowd clearly accepted the switch of mood from stump to pulpit. "He's really cooking tonight," one often-caustic White House aide muttered.

Here was a benchmark for the restoration of Mr. Carter, a return to the old political evangelism with enough self-confidence, as one party operative told us, "to bring the crowd down from exuberance instead of building it up even higher, and make them like it."

A SIMILAR confidence has been on display recently inside the Oval Office. Three days before his Oct. 24 anti-inflation speech, the president rebuked his economic advisers for letting him publicly promise quick inflation relief from his proposed wage-price guidelines while these same advisers were privately warning that quick relief was impossible.

"So? Why the big flap over 'Don Duck' being on the payroll over at HUD?"

Bone scans have it over X-rays

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What are bone scans and are they as effective as X-rays? — J. S.

Scanning is a relatively new and highly sensitive means of examining bones. It picks up phosphorus, irregularities. Tests show that between 15 and 20 per cent of patients with negative X-rays have positive bone scans. Some conditions, as osteomyelitis, may not show up in X-rays, yet are detected in bone scans. The area to be scanned is injected with a material that adheres to the bone mineral and shows up on the pictures. It is more expensive, so the cheaper X-rays are normally used and are reliable in most cases.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When we were kids Mom used to insist we have a laxative every so often, because she read that it cleaned out our system. I never had any ill effects from it and I am in perfect health today. I'm wondering about doing this with my own children. My doctor advises against it. What is your view? — Mrs. M. V.

Will this idea ever die? The normally-functioning digestive tract does not need to be "cleaned out." In fact, there is nothing in it that is dirty or unhealthy. Its chief role is to digest the food we eat and the liquids we drink and to extract the vital nutrients from both. Many people would be far better off if they would allow it to perform these functions without interference.

It is unlikely that the occasional dosing with laxative did any harm, since you enjoy good health today. But that doesn't mean it did any good. It is the continuing use of laxatives that plays havoc with digestion. I agree with your doctor and advise against your taking up where your mother left off. Laxatives have a very limited role in health. Read my booklet "The Way to Stop Constipation," which discusses natural ways to be regular. For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard of two supposed risks in taking birth control pills. One is that it will cause abnormal hair loss. The other is that it causes profuse bleeding in case of injury. Any truth in either statement? — K. W.

Hair reactions, either excessive body hair or loss of scalp hair, have been reported by users, but no certain connection has been established. As to the bleeding, quite the opposite is true. The use of the Pill may cause increased blood clotting rather than excessive bleeding. For this reason, women with vein problems (such as varicose veins) should consider other methods of birth control.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: It's no fun competing with breakfast cereal, yet my body snaps, crackles, and pops from head to toe. I am an active 62-year-old man and not overweight. I haven't been able to discover the source of this dryness, and hope you can tell me how to lubricate my cartilage or joints. No pain, just clicking. — J. A. K.

Sounds like you need a grease job. Unfortunately, the human body has been likened to a wonderful machine, it lacks convenient grease cups, so bone crackers have to grin and bear it. The cause is thinning of cartilage between bones, resulting in a clicking as it passes over bone surfaces. Absolutely nothing to do about it, nor any harm from it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What exactly is a Zenker's diverticulum and what is the treatment for it? — N. C.

It is a pocket in the upper part of the gullet. Food particles may accumulate in this pouch. That would account for a difficulty in swallowing. The treatment is surgical removal of the pocket if it causes difficulty.

Note to Readers: I have an updated address for the National Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. It is 3379 Peachtree Road, N.E., Atlanta, Ga., 30326.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure you are doing all you can, write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of this newspaper, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Deal with Varicose Veins." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If an 18-year-old male in good health sniffs model glue six times a week (for two years) to get high what is happening to his body? — D. P.

Breathing volatile substances, whether in tubes or cans, is a vicious habit. Despite warnings, such practices die slowly, which is exactly what you are doing, if you are the sniffer referred to. No need to repeat all the gory details. Suffice it to say that it not only irritates the lungs and bronchial tubes, but can damage the liver and blood system. Aplastic anemia can result. That is a disturbance of the bone marrow's blood production. I doubt that a person who has done this for two years could be considered in "good health." A thorough physical would total up the cost of this cheap, but dangerous, "high."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that if a person takes large doses of vitamins he will not suffer from hangover from drinking? — K. L.

Not true.

Vaginitis can strike any woman at any time in her life. You can find out about the causes — and the cures — for this troublesome complaint in Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment." To get your copy, write to him in care of The Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

To S.S. — The bunions should not recur after surgery. The chief cause of bunion is pressure on the foot, usually from too tight shoes worn for long periods. Your surgeon can estimate the length of time you will be incapacitated, which I assume would be fairly lengthy since you intend to have surgery on both feet at the same time.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have been in and out of mental institutions for years, but only recently have I experienced real progress. I have come to know Christ, and have come into the fellowship of some concerned Christians who work with people like me and surround us with love. Why don't more Christians love people with mental problems, instead of rejecting them? — Mrs. P. A. W.

DEAR MRS. P. A. W.: There may be several reasons why some Christians in your past have not been as loving as they should have been. But the important thing is that you are on the road to recovery and God has led you to some who surround you with the love of Christ.

Your letter reminds that Jesus Christ is concerned about all kinds of people, including those who may have emotional problems. One of the hardest things for any person to accept is the feeling that he or she is alone in the world. But God loves us, even when, as sometimes happens, we find it difficult to love ourselves. I don't believe anyone can be the same once they have understood the fact that God loves them.

You are a living witness to the importance of Christian love. Love should be the hallmark of the Christian. Jesus said: "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another" (John 13:35).

May God bless you as you continue your recovery and learn more of what it means to live in Christ.

Somoza report

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza tells anyone who will listen that the Sandinista rebels are left-wing, Cuban-trained terrorists who would lead his country down the primrose path to communism.

Disguising his shaky position with bombast, the Big Banana of Central America has now begun castigating his democratic neighbors for giving shelter to the "Nicaraguan Sandino Communists."

Somoza figures, correctly, that the most important outside support he needs to maintain his dictatorship is that of the United States, which put his father in power 46 years ago and has kept the Somozas in control ever since with military and economic aid. But Somoza's ruthless tactics are proving an embarrassment to the Carter administration, and the State Department is quietly trying to get a "line" on the rebels, to determine their background and politics.

WE SENT reporter Bob Sherman to Central America for a first-hand look at the Sandinista National Liberation Front. He spent several days in a remote, secret guerrilla training camp, where he ate and slept with the rebels and watched them train. He went underground and met sources and contacts in the anti-Somoza movement at "safe houses" and in out-of-the-way restaurants, after hair-raising taxi rides designed to throw off the dictator's ubiquitous spies.

He came away with these conclusions:

— The Sandinistas are, as they claim, a politico-military organization that cuts across all classes and ideologies. The cement that holds this unlikely structure together is the determination of all its components to get rid of Somoza and his satraps.

— The guerrilla group has agreed to support the establishment of a democratic provisional government once Somoza is kicked out.

— The Sandinistas do not seek an official position for themselves in a provisional government. Instead, they have put their trust in the so-called "Group of 12," an inter-party coalition of 12 prominent Nicaraguans, many of them longtime exiles from their native land. Risking arrest, they returned to managua last year to lend their prestige to the anti-Somoza movement.

— So white-hot does the anti-Somoza flame burn in the Sandinista camp that the rebels recently withdrew their support from the Broad Opposition Front, a coalition of 15 political parties that was supposedly unwavering in its opposition to the dictator. What caused the Sandinista's disenchantment with the coalition was its agreement during recent negotiations to put two Somoza loyalists on a proposed three-member junta that would set up a provisional government. The Group of 12, meanwhile, withdrew from the negotiations and sought refuge in the Mexican embassy.

— Left-wing influence on the Sandinistas is minimal. Of the three main political groups that make up the rebel camp, the only avowedly leftist group — the Proletariat — appears to have little or no influence among either the guerrillas or the population at large.

— The dominant political group in the Sandinista movement calls itself the "Third Party." It is pledged to establish a free, democratic government, and has so informed President Carter.

— The Sandinista training camps are located in remote areas near the Honduran and Costa Rican borders, not in Cuba, as Somoza suggests.

— There is no evidence that any communist country is supplying arms to the guerrillas. Their American and European-made weapons are purchased from arms merchants.

Although even Somoza acknowledges he has something less than a majority of Nicaraguans behind him — more objective estimates put his support at about 10 per cent of the population — the guerrilla leaders now believe that nothing short of an all-out war will dislodge him. Negotiations will not do the trick, they feel.

FOR THIS reason, they are trying to convert their forces from an undisciplined guerrilla band into a more conventional army capable of fighting Somoza's National Guard on its own terms.

The Sandinistas believe that their biggest obstacle to victory is the United States. They do not believe the congressional ban on direct military support is effective; Somoza, they contend, is buying arms from nations like Israel, which obtain them originally from the United States.

They also feel the cutback on U.S. economic aid to Somoza is inadequate. They want the United States to impose an all-out blockade like that thrown up around Cuba in the early 1960s.

Thus far, rebel leaders and anti-Somoza businessmen agree, the left wing has had little influence in Nicaragua. But they warn that a swing to the left is inevitable if Somoza is not deposed soon. The longer he remains in power and milks the Nicaraguan economy for himself and his cronies, the wider the gap will become between the haves and the have-nots — a situation that can only encourage support for leftist solutions.

Big Spring Herald

Mailbag

Dear Editor:

The Herald is losing an excellent reporter when Bob Burton returns to his home town in 'Yankeeland.' His 'Rims' and his local coverage will be missed.

In nearly 30 years as a Texan I've noticed that these transplanted Yankees have a way of becoming true-blue Texans. Burton is one of these, and he'll continue to be for the rest of his journalistic career. (Even home-grown Texans complain about their allergies). How can he possibly forget the 'Cowboys', the 'Tool-Pushers' and the 'Skoal set', as well as our City Hall and the 'Cop Shop'.

His Texas drawl will eventually disappear, but I'll predict that Bob Burton will achieve renown in the journalistic field in years to come.

We will miss his unofficial and unwritten staff room comradeship and his broad outlook and knowledge of world events, trivia, old movies and TV shows.

Burton won't "freeze" with the other Yankees. His spark of intellectual warmth and humor will always keep him warm.

Kremlin journalist denounces discos

MOSCOW (AP) — A Kremlin journalist is denouncing New York discos as havens of decadence and loneliness where dancers snort cocaine in the bathrooms and "spend a whole night shaking with the lights and dreaming of fame, success and money."

America's young people are stupefied by these distractions, a sort of "nirvana for lonely people who don't want to have contact with anyone and who couldn't anyway," Genrikh Borovic of the official Soviet news agency Tass wrote in Monday's edition of Literary Gazette.

He claimed clever disco operators are exploiting the special sound and light systems, the allure of talented movie stars and an exclusive admissions policy in order to make a fortune off the unsuspecting young.

"How many lonely people are there in America? Very many!" Borovic said. "In any case the numbers are sufficient that in two years' time the multibillion-dollar disco industry founded on loneliness has spread rapidly through the country."

Discotheques are practically non-existent in the Soviet Union.

Moscow's underground disco, the Blue Bird, attracts young sons and daughters from among the Soviet Union's government elite. They enter at 5 p.m. leave by 10 p.m. and feast on such goodies as cucumbers, tomatoes, fruit juices and other non-alcoholic drinks.

Studio 54, therefore, was quite an eye for Borovic. Calling it "the most famous discotheque in New York," Borovic ridiculed the huge crowds waiting anxiously outside hoping to be noticed in their "outrageous clothes" or let in to dance.

Only a "privileged few" can enter, the journalist said. "Long black limousines with tinted windshields pull up and the golden fishes of both sexes come out and go serenely through the doors."

Borovic said he got inside because he was accompanied by Rod McKuen, the American poet-singer who recently visited the Soviet Union to record an album.

Borovic did have praise for the "first-class" audio system that cost $300,000, and the electronic lighting effects synchronized with the music.

But the lounges were a different matter.

"...in the men's toilet on the second floor a man in a bright red velvet smoking jacket was attentively looking at his features in the mirror," Borovic wrote. "Unhurriedly he poured out of a yellow box a pinch of white powder, placed it on his thumbnail and snorted it. Everything was done calmly, without any hurrying, without looking at any doorways, very openly, in front of everyone."

Visiting another Manhattan discotheque called Eternity, Borovic said he was disturbed by the multitude of mirrors around the dance floor that permitted young people to have themselves as a partner.

"Seeing yourself in the surroundings of a crowd, the colorful lights, it is easy to forget a dull job and to feel yourself the star of some gigantic Broadway musical costing thousands of dollars," Borovic wrote. "One can spend a whole night hallucinating."

Davis trial starts with a big bang

HOUSTON (AP) — The murder-for-hire trial of Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis got off to a bang.

After one day of testimony, there were these developments, in and out of court in Houston and at Austin:

—An FBI agent confirmed an extortion attempt was made on Davis.

—A defense attorney contended the defendant's estranged wife, Priscilla, tried to hire someone to kill Davis.

—A prosecutor imposed a gag rule on the prosecution.

—Both sides raised conspiracy arguments.

—The presiding judge recessed court until 1 p.m. today, permitting jurors to vote and a defense lawyer to argue in Austin for Davis' release on bond.

The million-dollar defense team suggested Monday that Davis himself was a target not only of an extortion attempt but also a potential contract killing.

Chief defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, cross-examining FBI Agent Ron Jannings, said: "Did you know Priscilla Lee Davis tried to hire David Binyon to kill Cullen Davis?"

Prosecutor Tolly Wilson objected to the question and Judge Wallace Moore sustained it.

But outside the courtroom, defense lawyer Phil Burlison said: "We contend that David Binyon is the person Priscilla Davis attempted to hire to kill Cullen."

Burlison identified Binyon only as a Houston man involved with a car dealership. When Agent Jannings was asked in court if Binyon was a confidential informant, he replied:

"I respectfully decline to answer."

Almost as puzzling was the disclosure by Jannings that the FBI had been involved late last year and in early 1978 in the investigation of an extortion attempt directed at Davis.

Again outside the courtroom, defense lawyer Steve Sumner said: "The extortion came in the form of a letter and then there were subsequent phone calls."

"...the FBI was called in and put recording devices on the phone, but nobody was ever caught. The extortion went to his (Davis) being killed if he didn't pay the money."

Sumner said Davis was more than a little distressed at the unsuccessful effort by federal agents to identify and apprehend the extortionist.

Haynes questioned Jannings at length about a series of meetings among three principals in the Davis saga — Priscilla, her husband's chief accuser David McCrory and karate expert Pat Burlison.

The defense contends the trio conspired to frame Davis on charges that he solicited a gunman to kill Joe Eidson, the presiding judge in his long and bitter divorce case.

The state said Davis, 45, tried to draw McCrory into a scheme to kill Eidson and others, including three witnesses who testified against him last year in an Amarillo murder trial. Davis was acquitted there in the shooting death of his young step-daughter.

And finally, state attorney Wilson imposed a "gag rule" on his younger colleagues, to which prosecutor Jack Strickland quipped: "I think it's very appropriate. I've gagged several time today."

IT TAKES LOTS OF EQUIPMENT for telephone service

West-Tex Telephone serves many countries

West-Tex Telephone serves over eight counties in this part of the state.

Back when the West-Tex system went into being, there were many rural areas that had no telephone service at all. Some of the early ones simply had a telephone line running along a barbed wire fence.

But now West-Tex, which headquarters in Stanton, has miles and miles of telephone lines and they serve portions of Martin, Howard, Glasscock, Dawson, Borden, Midland, and other counties.

They now offer a selection of telephones in colors and styles. They have done away with their old six and eight party lines although there are two still on several by choice.

They offer alarms that ring outside if a telephone rings in the house and long extension lines. They have a very complete service which has developed through the years from the struggling beginning years.

Many rural areas went without telephones at all, until West-Tex looped out into their part of the world.

They constantly try to update and improve both their equipment and their service at West-Tex Telephone Coop. Like other larger telephone companies, they have some problems, but they work constantly to improve their facilities and most of all their service to their patrons.

Specialist distinguishes between 'active', 'hyperactive' children

COLLEGE STATION — do not expect him to." By nature, most children are active. They have a great deal of energy, the specialist explains. They learn by doing, moving, touching and exploring. For them, parents and teachers must allow for stimulation, activity and physical movement, she stresses. A hyperactive child is continually in motion, cannot concentrate for more than a moment, acts and speaks on impulse, is impatient and is easily upset — in excess or beyond the normal range of his age and sex, Ms. Lamson says. "If a child cannot sit still for long periods of time,

"hyperactive," a recent study looked at children in preschool programs. Goals for the study were to identify teachers' perceptions about hyperactivity and how these children were managed. Findings show that those teachers who were interviewed feel that "hyperactive" children do cause problems within the classroom. However, only 44 per cent of the so-called "hyperactive" children these teachers worked with actually had been diagnosed as hyperactive by medical personnel.

Young Homemakers plan December tasting tea

The Big Spring Chapter of Young Homemakers met at the high school homemaking department Nov. 2 for a program entitled "Operation: Tighten UP". The program was presented by Sandra Killough, home economist for the Texas Electric Service Company, and dealt with ways to keep electric bills reasonable. She distributed pamphlets for the "unhandy" person said that 13.5 per cent of all energy used in the home is used to operate miscellaneous objects. Attending the program were 13 members, three guests and chapter advisor Virginia Martin. The group is planning a Recipe Tasting Tea for the Dec. 7 meeting. At that time, a recipe book compiled from members' family favorites will be presented.

He Goes Bananas When She Peels

DEAR ABBY: Please permit me to write on behalf of wives who prefer to undress in the closet. I've been married for 20 years to a man who gets turned on if I start removing my watch. Regardless of the time of day, if he sees me start to remove one piece of clothing, he wants me to jump into bed that very minute! No loving conversation or affectionate preliminaries to put me in a responsive mood. (All he ever talks about is his job and his health.) I believe sex would be more enjoyable if men would act like men instead of animals.

DEAR COOL: Animals can be trained (as well as constrained). Why do less for your husband than you'd do for a pet?

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing to reply to OLD TIMER, who complained about the casual clothes people wear around the office these days. I work in an office where the boss wears T-shirts, jeans and old sneakers; most of the women wear pants (and some of them wear T-shirts with no bras). Everyone here says this is the best place they've ever worked. Because we can be casual, we can also be friendly. There's no backstabbing, competition or petty jealousy.

If a boss wants the employees to dress like robots, it's a fair bet he (or she) wants them to act and think like robots, too. It's a lot easier to get the job done quickly and efficiently if people trust you to be yourself. As long as you're doing a good job, how you dress should be nobody's business but your own.

DEAR CASUAL: I'll buy the casual, comfortable, non-competitive office attire. And I'll even go along with a trim little "30 A" in a T-shirt sans bra. But a lot of man-hours could be lost in an office where a braless babe in a T-shirt could fill a "38 D"—but doesn't.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are having a disagreement which we hope you can settle. Our 11-year-old son hurt another boy wrestling, and the other boy may have to wear a neck brace for a month or so. I say our son should be punished because wrestling is dangerous and should be avoided. My husband says that wrestling between boys of this age is normal, and our son should not be punished.

DEAR CLEVELANDER: I say, "Listen to your husband, dear. He's been a boy."

Thinks it's crazy

Frustrated artist tattoos teeth

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Stephen Wolner says he gave up watercolor painting because it was "incredibly difficult," but when his dental patients ask, he'll still tattoo teeth.

"It's strange — who wants to put a ring through their nose. But all sorts of people do this. I can't imagine why," the dentist says. "It's not something that I push with my patients."

Wolner's specialty is setting a diamond into a cap — an elaborate procedure he perfected in consultation with a jeweler. More common, however, is a colorful "painting" on the tooth. Flowers are a big favorite, he says.

"It started about four years ago when I was making a cap for a patient who wondered if we couldn't do something a little different or something artistic," Wolner says. "Together we came up with a gold mosaic on the face of the cap."

This artistic coup disappeared behind cheek and jaw, located as it was on a lower tooth in the back. But word got around. A magazine mentioned Wolner's tattooing and the rush was on.

He won't set a diamond unless the cap is necessary, but he says he paints tattoos on "perfectly good teeth." Wolner figures he's tattooed some 20 teeth so far, at a price he won't specify.

The tattoo is "bonded" to the tooth with non-toxic dental plastic. It lasts about two years. It can be polished off if the owner decides that, in the fleeting glimpse we get of most folks' teeth, it looks too much like a leftover piece of spinach.

An eclectic mix of people want Wolner to tattoo teeth.

He set diamonds in caps, for instance, for a well-to-do suburban housewife and for an offbeat young woman who owns a Manhattan shop.

Though Wolner once taught dentistry at New York University, he hardly zooks professional. With his unruly brown Afro, wire-rimmed spectacles and jeans-and-sneakers style, the 40-year-old dentist more closely resembles a Greenwich Village bohemian.

The kick in tooth tattooing, says Wolner, is figuring out how to accomplish the decorative goal, "because the materials weren't developed for this purpose." He calls the final product "an anticlimax."

Now, four years after the first gold mosaic, the demand for tooth tattoos is slackening, Wolner says he's glad:

"I'm a frustrated artist, but I don't do this for art's sake. I only do it when they ask. I think it's crazy to decorate your body."

TWEEN 12 and 20 — Young marriage not advisable

By Robert Wallace Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I just want to tell you that I disagree with you when you say people should graduate or at least be 18 before they get married.

I am now 16 and I have been married 2 years to a 22-year-old guy who doesn't drink, goes to church and has a good factory job. He is a sweet husband and good father to our 15-month-old daughter.

I've seen people marry when they are 30 and not make it, so "lay off" people who marry young. — Happy, Elizabethtown, Ky.

Happy: Many "young marriages" are successful, but I still feel teens should enjoy being teens without having the responsibility of having a spouse and children.

Dr. Wallace: I am 14 years old and will be baby-sitting for the first time in two weeks. I am really thrilled about this opportunity but I would appreciate it very much if you could give me a few suggestions for baby-sitting.

I am sure there are many girls who are in the same predicament that I am in. Thank you very much. — Deborah W., Longview, Washington

Deborah: When making a list or giving suggestions one always leaves out something that he should mention, but I will list a few things I feel are of utmost importance. (1) Check often to see that the children are safe and comfortable. Never leave the home until properly relieved. (2) Do not open the door to anyone unless the parents have left their approval. (3) Do not take undue advantage of your employer such as making too much noise, eating more food than was suggested, cluttering up the house, or having friends to visit you. Do not stay on the phone too long and make sure the call was necessary. (4) Check the telephone numbers with parents before they leave to see that they are correct and last but not least, do your homework, that is if you are not watching "The Fonz."

Dr. Wallace: I wash my face at least five times a day and I still have blackheads. I don't know where the dirt comes from but somehow it works into my skin. Is there any way I can get rid of this dirt so they won't form a blackhead? — Tom C., Little Rock, Arkansas

Tom: The black color in a blackhead is not caused by dirt. When a pore clogs near the surface of the skin, exposure to the air turns it black.

It's the same chemical reaction that turns a half eaten apple brown when exposed to the air for a period of time.

TWO OF 26... Hawk guard Robby Randolph (20) scores two of game high 26 points in last night's 97-91 victory over Texas Wesleyan.

Hawks press by Texas Wesleyan

The Howard College Hawks broke open a tight game with an effective press with five minutes remaining to defeat the Texas Wesleyan JV's by a score of 97-91. It was Coach Harold Wilder's 19th win as the Howard College coach.

The game was a tight affair from the beginning. The taller Texas Wesleyan crew used the early bombs of Mike Ray and Cecil Friday to take the biggest lead of the night by either squad midway through the first half at 26-15. Coach Harold Wilder had hoped to force Ken Carter's crew to gun from the outside, but the game seemed to backfire early. However, as the game progressed the visitors cooled off, with Howard College rallying for a slim 50-49 half-time lead.

The second half was a nip and tuck affair, with neither squad being able to ease to a sizable margin. The Hawks would go on spurts throughout the night, scoring six and eight unanswered points on numerous occasions. But the Wesleyan team would hurt the Hawks enough in between scoring spurts to keep the game tight.

With five minutes remaining, Wesleyan guard Ray, adept ball handler and good shooter, had to leave the game due to a recurring back injury. With Ray gone, the Howard College press quickly took advantage of the Wesleyan disadvantage to storm to a convincing nine point lead with two minutes remaining. From that point, it was just a matter of running down the clock.

Hawk Coach Harold Wilder felt that the press with five minutes remaining was the definite key to the win. Wesleyan Coach Carter agreed, adding that the inability of Ray to continue was very costly to his team's chances. Carter was somewhat disappointed in this team's performance. We never ran our offense all night and didn't screen out. I felt that our height would be an advantage, but we didn't box out. We played two nights ago in East Texas, and the travel might have worn the kids out. But I can't blame them for that."

The Hawks will return to action this Thursday night when they host Cisco Junior College in an 8:00 affair. The Hawks are now 2-0 on the year, while Wesleyan dropped to 1-1.

Seaver signs 5-year pact

NAGOYA, Japan (AP) — Tom Seaver, three-time National League Cy Young award winner, has signed a five-year contract with the Cincinnati Reds, Dick Wagner, executive vice president, announced today.

The terms of the 1979-1983 contract were not disclosed.

The 33-year-old right-handed pitcher, who won 16 games and lost 14 last season, has a career record of 219-117.

"The club is extremely pleased that we have been able to sign one of the premier pitchers in baseball to a long-term contract," said Wagner, who is with the team on its current 17-game Japanese tour. "This assures us of a stabilizing veteran to lead our club over the years ahead. Tom will assume a large leadership role for the team, especially the young pitchers."

Seaver said, "I am very happy with the contract and I'm looking forward to very productive years with the Reds."

"I don't normally set numerical goals, but if I can maintain the consistency I have enjoyed the last 12 years and stay healthy, I could reach 300 victories in the five-year period. It was exciting for me to get 200 victories and if I am fortunate enough to get 300, it will be a big thrill for me."

Seaver, who has one loss and no victories in Japan, will pitch his last game of the tour Thursday against the Yomiuri Giants in Toyama City, northern Japan, before he leaves for the United States, the club announced.

The Reds won their eighth game on the tour, 8-3, over a combined Yomiuri Giants-Chunichi Dragons team at Nagoya Stadium today.

Colts upset 'Skins

BALTIMORE (AP) — It would be easy to compare Bert Jones with a military commander who leads his forces to victory despite serious battle wounds.

Oilers prep for rugged Patriots

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips had trouble picking out a defensive player to praise after the Oilers held Cleveland to 28 yards rushing and sacked the quarterback seven times.

"Everybody had a chance to make some big plays and everybody made them," Phillips told his weekly news conference Monday. "So it's hard to pick out any one player but if I had to, I'd say Curley Culp played his best game."

Phillips said Houston's defensive effort was not the result of any pre-game comments made by Browns Coach Sam Rutigliano about Houston having a weak rush.

"It's kind of hard to pep up a 32-year-old fella," Phillips said. "I don't think anything they might have said made the defense go out and play harder."

"They were going to play hard anyway. They had been beaten the week before and they wanted to make up for that. And they did."

Phillips said adjustments will be needed this week however before the Oilers play the New England Patriots and Steve Grogan, their run-happy quarterback.

"You have to attack New England from the outside and not from the inside like Cleveland," Phillips said. "Grogan will put the ball on his hip and bootleg and run with it."

The Oilers go into the game with a 6-4 record and still in strong contention for a playoff berth.

Just don't let the injury-plagued quarterback of the Baltimore Colts hear you making that comparison.

"I don't want to be a martyr; I want to play football and contribute to the team," said Jones after coming back from yet another shoulder injury to rally the Colts to a 21-17 victory over the Washington Redskins Monday night.

Jones, who missed the first six games of the National Football League season with a shoulder separation and then played only a few minutes before being hurt again three weeks ago, was injured on the same right shoulder during a scramble in the third quarter.

Pain creased his face and he labored to throw on the sidelines. But when the Colts regained possession after a 1-yard run by John Riggins had put the Redskins ahead 17-14, Jones was back in the game.

"I asked the doctor if Bert could play, and he said yes," recalled Coach Ted Marchbroda. "I asked Bert if he could go back. He said it hurt a little bit. I told him that if it got to the point where it hurt too bad, to take himself out."

"But that's leadership. The team knows he's out there to win."

With Jones at the helm and his teammates seeming to play with renewed vigor, the Colts marched into Redskin territory three times in the final quarter.

Twice, field goal attempts by Toni Linhart failed. On the third drive, Jones fired a strike to wide receiver Roger Carr for a 27-yard touchdown that gave Baltimore its fourth victory of the season in the nationally televised game.

"Bert's coming back meant a lot to the whole team," said Carr, who had teamed with Jones on a 78-yard TD pass in the second quarter. "He makes us go. It's a dreadful thing when he gets hurt. He moves this team."

Jones, who has gained the nickname of "The Franchise," said he was merely doing his job, his latest injury notwithstanding.

"We have a good football team and I think I complement the team," he said, "and as long as I can contribute, I'll play."

The shoulder still hurt, Jones said, but not enough to keep him from shaving with his right hand after the game or keep him out of the Colts' next contest, against Seattle.

Sands hosts Klondike in Homecoming

ACKERLY — Rugged Klondike will help Sands wind up its 1978 football season in the Mustangs' annual Homecoming contest Friday night.

Sands is now 2-5-1 on the year and has lost several close ones.

The tie came against Dawson last week. Final score was 22-22. Sands scored the tying TD in the final minute when David Mosley ran 20 yards. The Ponies then tried to run the two extra points but failed.

Sands scored twice in the first period, Van Gaskins going over for both tallies. In addition, he ran for two extra points on a run. Jesse Ybarra managed to convert successfully for the Mustangs after Gaskins' second TD.

Dawson scored once in the first and another in the second but left the field trailing at half time, 16-14.

Dawson went ahead in the fourth with a touchdown, 22-16, and seemed on its way to victory until Mosley broke loose.

Sands made 21 first downs to nine for Dawson, picked up 200 yards rushing the ball and 80 passing. Each team lost one fumble. Penetrations were even, 4-4.

COME ON REF! — Baltimore Colts head coach Ted Marchbroda argues with referees on a controversial play involving Washington Redskins wide receiver Danny Buggs in the third quarter of their NFL game in Baltimore Monday night. The referees called Buggs pass reception in bounds, only to reverse the call after the argument with Marchbroda. Baltimore won the game 21-17.

"Thanks, boss!"

Almost three million Texans are grateful and happy that their companies provide Blue Cross and Blue Shield insurance.

Why? Because they know it's the best group health insurance coverage... and the best group health insurance value. They know it offers a complete insurance package—not just health care coverage. They know that claims filing is easy, and that claims are paid promptly. And they know their familiar I.D. card is instantly recognized by doctors and hospitals everywhere.

Best of all, almost three million Texans know their companies think enough of them to provide the best health care insurance.

That's something they can be really thankful for. And their companies can feel really good about.

American League MVP ballots cast today

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The loser in today's Baseball Writers Association of America election for the American League's Most Valuable Player had the consolation of knowing that not many second-place finishers had the kind of year he did.

And that went for both Boston's Jim Rice and New York's Ron Guidry.

Rice's credentials centered on one of the best slugging seasons in modern baseball history. The Boston bomber batted .315, walloped 46 home runs, drove in 139 runs and became the first player in 40 years to accumulate more than 400 total bases.

Those certainly would seem to be MVP qualifications, and in an ordinary year, Rice would have had little problem claiming the award.

But 1978 was no ordinary year, certainly not for Guidry.

The slender New York left-hander posted a 25-3 record that included nine shutouts and a 1.74 earned run average last season.

Now the question is, which set of dazzling numbers is more worthy of the MVP award?

One opinion is that because Guidry is a pitcher and usually performed his magic once every fifth day, his production was not quite as awesome as the day-in, day-out pounding Rice turned out.

Packers cleared by NFL

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers have announced they have been cleared by the National Football League of any rule violation in their handling of a tryout for former all-pro running back Duane Thomas.

Coach Bart Starr also said Monday he would ease his restrictions on media coverage of the Packers, but remained reticent when asked what he had told the NFL concerning the Thomas affair, which sportswriters had publicized.

He said Green Bay's letter to the NFL "was accepted as a satisfactory explanation of the matter, and I have no further comment."

In New York, NFL spokesman Jim Heffernan similarly declined to detail the league's exchanges with Starr.

"This is something strictly between the commissioner and the Green Bay Packers," Heffernan said.

Having said he received an all-clear letter from Commissioner Pete Rozelle, Starr said he would relax the restrictions he had imposed last week after four sportswriters wrote that the NFL was investigating a possible violation of the NFL's "stashing rule" in the Thomas matter.

OU, Penn St. retain top rankings

Their lead in the Associated Press college football poll slightly diminished, the top-ranked Oklahoma Sooners head into a weekend clash with No. 4 Nebraska that will determine the Big Eight champion and, almost certainly, who enters the bowl games as No. 1.

The 9-0 Sooners, 28-7 victors over Colorado last Saturday, received 50 first-place votes and 1,247 of a possible 1,260 points from a nationwide panel of 63 sports writers and broadcasters.

But No. 2 Penn State, also 9-0 and the only other unbeaten-untied team in the country, mauling previously undefeated Maryland 27-3. The Nittany Lions received the other 13 first-place votes and 1,193 points. Penn State gained six points on Oklahoma in this week's poll.

The top two teams could be headed for a national championship showdown in the Orange Bowl. First, however, Oklahoma must get by 8-1 Nebraska at Lincoln this weekend.

Alabama and Nebraska remained 3-4 after the Crimson Tide stopped Mississippi State 35-14 and the Cornhuskers belted Kansas 63-21. Alabama received 1,110 points while Nebraska totaled 1,072 points.

Maryland dropped from fifth to 13th, thus clearing the way for Southern California, Texas and Michigan to move up a notch to fifth, sixth and seventh, respectively. Southern Cal received 993 points for a 13-7 decision over Stanford, idle Texas earned 889 points and Michigan got 855 following a 34-0 rout of Iowa.

Blind hockey owner Gund relies on radio, crowd

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

While thousands view the maneuvers of the Minnesota North Stars hockey team on the stadium ice and others enjoy the action on TV, co-owner Gordon Gund must follow his whirling, stick-wielding athletes by sound and on his own invisible screen.

Gund's screen lies in his head. He gets his thrills from the roars and reactions of the crowd, the radio commentary and the visions he can conjure up only in his imagination.

"Sometimes, I think I have a better conception of the game than those who see it with their eyes," says the 39-year-old financier from Princeton, N.J., a former Harvard varsity man in hockey and rowing, Navy lieutenant, flier and bank executive.

"I attend about 20 games a season. When I cannot attend, I try to have a private tie-in to the broadcast. I can visualize the ice. I know where the players' proper position should be. I know where the wings and defense are at all times.

"So from the broadcast and the sounds of the crowd, I am able to get a very good idea of the action. In my mind, I am able to erase extraneous and insignificant things that might distract the viewing spectator."

Gund's brother, George, was a minority stockholder in the old California Seals, who merged with the Cleveland Barons. When the Barons fell upon lean times, George Gund approached Gordon with the idea of purchasing the franchise and moving it to another city.

"George said we didn't want to beat a dead horse," Gordon recalled. "He asked was I interested in joining him in the venture. I agreed. So we talked the National Hockey League into merging the Cleveland and Minnesota franchises and keeping the team in the Twin Cities area — which is a hotbed for hockey activity in the United States.

"We wound up with 60 players, but we were convinced we had the nucleus for one of the most successful sports franchises in the country. George handles the operations, I attend to the business end."

Gordon Gund majored in physical sciences and sociology at Harvard, served as department head of two Navy destroyers in the Pacific, later entered upon a successful banking career, specializing in corporate finance.

His sight began failing him eight years ago.

Hawk Queens fly past HSU Cowgirls

The Howard College Hawk Queens used six players in double figures to completely dominate the Hardin Simmons Cowgirls by a score of 110-49.

The Queens jumped off to a 49-17 halftime lead, then used an even more explosive second half to cruise to an easy win. It was their second win in as many contests.

Van Phillips and Cathey Meyer scored 16 each to lead the balanced Queen attack. Shawn Smith was the rebounding leader, garnering 10 caroms.

Coach Don Stevens was extremely pleased with the performance of the ladies. "We finally showed our potential. We shot well, and did a good job of getting the ball up and down the floor. We played our game, instead of letting Hardin Simmons play theirs. I was encouraged by the fact that we had six players in double figures. We playon, so every player only played one-half of the game."

Stevens also mentioned that he was extremely proud of the play of Cathey Meyer, a 5'10" freshman from San Antonio. One major factor in the game was that the Queens took a 61-27 advantage in the rebounding department.

The Queens, now 2-0, will enter the McLennan Classical in Waco starting this Thursday. They will meet San Antonio College in the opening round at 7:00.

Yeoman: 'Home field advantage overrated'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Five freshmen may start on offense for Texas when it meets Houston Saturday in a Southwest Conference football game that is expected to produce the SWC champion and Cotton Bowl representative.

Texas Coach Fred Akers disclosed Monday that senior captain Jim Yarbrough had nerve damage in his neck and would miss the next two games.

Replacing Yarbrough will be freshman Mike Babb, one of Texas' highly touted first-year class.

Guard Joe Shearin and tackle Terry Tausch also are freshmen.

Also, Akers told a news conference, freshmen A.J. "Jam" Jones and Brad Beck may start in the Texas backfield. Senior co-captain Johnny "Ham" Jones and junior Leroy King, as well as Beck, have been hurt.

A sellout crowd of 80,000 is expected for the 2 p.m. game. Houston is 5-0 in the SWC and defending champion Texas 4-0.

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman said Texas' home-field advantage is overrated, but Akers responded, "It is more comfortable for a team to play in its own surroundings. ... Given a choice, anytime I would rather play at home."

Houston broke Texas' 42-game home winning streak by beating Texas, 30-0, in 1976. Texas has since won 11 in a row and 53 of its last 56 games at Memorial Stadium.

Akers said Jones should be an All-American. "You can't name me one I would trade him for," said Akers.

Jones leads Texas in scoring with 42 points. He has returned a kickoff 100 yards for a score, run for a touchdown on a reverse and caught five scoring passes.

Researchers challenge Valley Forge

Setting history straight

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) — As the story goes, George Washington chopped down the cherry tree, then when confronted by his father fessed up, saying, "I cannot tell a lie."

Almost every school boy who ever fibbed heard that one.

But the foundation of that great lesson in honesty has long been questioned, and now stories from Washington's encampment at Valley Forge are being challenged by researchers bent on setting history straight.

An abundance of fresh information has been uncovered on the Continental Army's stay here over 200 years ago — so much the National Park Service says brochures and handbooks will have to be revamped.

"They will be rewritten on the basis of new and very clear documentary evidence," says Wayne Bodle, a Park Service historian taking part in the study. "It should take another six months."

The Valley Forge project is being coordinated by Jacqueline Thibaut, another Park Service historian who's in Europe examining British and French archives for old Revolutionary-War era documents.

She says that research so far shows that contrary to last year's Christmas stamp and the report of Isaac Potts, a contemporary of Washington, the future president did not kneel in prayer for his troops here during Christmas week of 1777.

That story, she says, and the one about the Cherry tree, are "myth—part of the 19th century beatification of Washington."

Bodle said in an interview, "We have found that some things commonly believed to be true, can't be proved one way or the other—like Washington kneeling in prayer, or the stories of the bloody footprints in the snow."

"We do know that thousands of soldiers did not have shoes, that the roads were covered with frozen ruts, so it's probably safe to assume some feet did bleed, but bloody footprints?" "Very little research was ever done on the park, so we've really had to start from scratch. So many historical documents are scattered in private collections."

The research, costing $230,000, was begun shortly after Pennsylvania turned the 2,250-acre park over to the Park Service two years ago.

History books, including ones still sold here, describe the Continental Army that entered Valley Forge on Dec. 19, 1777, as a ragged, freezing, half-starved collection of men who were untrained and undisciplined.

But Miss Thibaut and Bodle say the latest research shows the soldiers were able enough to build sturdy fortifications, and that throughout the winter they gave the British troops fits.

"From the latest research, it seems the conditions were probably as bad as the history books paint, but it's also clear they weren't just hibernating out here for the winter," said Bodle. "And the notion the British sat warm and toasty in Philadelphia also clearly isn't the case.

"Washington's army was harassing the British army throughout the winter, sending out raiding parties at regular intervals. It's quite clear they really gave the British a hard time."

"Washington not only had tremendous military ability, but the ability to simply get things done. He was a politician in the best sense of the word."

"He could take what he saw with his eyes and make very vivid images on paper, in letters, for instance begging Congress for supplies. It was Washington who wrote you could track the course of the army by the bloody footprints in the snow. He created some of the enduring images that have stayed with us when we think of Valley Forge."

The archeologists have found soldiers' trash pits, one filled with animal bones and nut shells, some musket balls, and a button or two.

AFRAID OF THE RAIN — Lynsey Mitchel, 1 year old seems to have been frightened by the oncoming rain. Either that or the thought of having to use her large umbrella which could prove more hazardous. The rain is predicted to continue through today before the south plains sees a chance for dry weather. Lynsey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Mitchel of Lubbock.

Train derailment exposes potentially explosive gas

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — Railroad workers scrambled for seven hours to plug a potentially explosive liquid propane gas leak after 27 cars of a 72-car Missouri Pacific freight train derailed early Monday east of here.

Sheriff's deputies evacuated a nearby residence and the nearby Gardner-Denver plant.

Railroad workers were trying to learn what caused the accident, which occurred about 2:45 a.m. Monday. The leak was plugged at 9:50 a.m. Most of the cars which left the track were empty, but a tank car filled with liquid propane gas also derailed.
