Clements victory sinks in 'It really happened'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bill Clements walked under the vast rotunda of Texas' pink granite Capitol and it hit him for the first time that he would be the state's first Republican governor in 105 years.

"It brought home for the very first time that it really happened," the 61-year-old multi-millionaire who was once an oil field roughneck, told a Capitol news conference Wednesday.

Clements, who had never made a political race before, was declared surprise winner over Democrat John Hill, attorney general and former secretary of state, by 16,000 votes.

The latest vote totals from all 254 counties, 245 complete, showed Clements with 1,181,562 and Hill 1,165,863.

"I will be governor for all Texans, including those who voted for Mr. Hill," he told the news conference. "The future of Texas needs all of us working together. My campaign isn't over. It's just beginning because now I have the duty to put into practice my ideas and your ideas for making our state even greater."

Clements repeated that "I am a Texan down to the toenails, and I suspect that is why I was elected."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, whose third-term plans were thwarted by Hill in the May primary, congratulated Clements and promised to work for "a smooth and orderly transition."

Clements visited Briscoe at the Governor's Mansion late Wednesday, posing for pictures at the back door.

Briscoe said the results of the election should be a signal to Texas Democrats that "we need to begin now to rebuild the Democratic Party of Texas and to infuse a new spirit of vitality in our party." He said he would dedicate himself to "return the Democratic Party of Texas to dominance in this state."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who won easy re-election, said he did not see party differences as a "big deal" in the 1979 Legislature where Clements will face 25 Republicans and 126 Democratic lawmakers.

Hill told a news conference "there's nothing to cry about. We've run a real strong race... It was just the other side got more votes, they got the people out and they won the election."

Hill did say that he did not get the vote expected in Bexar (San Antonio) and Tarrant (Fort Worth) counties. "In Midland-Odessa we didn't run very well."

Hill said he would step out of public life and become an Austin lawyer. Before being appointed secretary of state by Gov. John Connally, Hill was a successful plaintiff's attorney in Houston.

Earlier, Clements said he sees no problems in working with a predominantly Democratic state legislature.

"The legislature has essentially the same outlook I do, and they are essentially conservative," Clements said shortly after being declared the winner.

Clements said much of the credit for his win went to the 25,000 volunteer workers who worked long hours in his headquarters. He called his good-looking brunette wife, Rita, his "secret weapon," because she campaigned constantly, either with him or in separate tours.

Clements said he was "most happy with the results and deeply honored," but he was taking every effort to insure the returns reported unofficially will be preserved for Monday's official canvass in the 254 counties. He said he had no specific example of vote handling irregularities, "but this is a just a precaution."

Texas' last Republican governor was Edmund Jackson Davis, who held office from mid-December 1869 until mid-January of 1874 when he was removed both by defeat in an election and by an order of President U.S. Grant. He was elected by a margin of only 906 votes in an election held under military rule of Reconstruction days. A Union general supervised the election and there were no

Democratic Party candidates in the race.

Davis, a brigadier general of two regiments of Texas loyalists in the Union Army, was defeated by a margin of 50,000 votes in the 1873 election by Richard Coke, a Waco Democrat. Coke was installed as governor by the legislature on the second floor of the Capitol. However, Davis refused to evacuate his offices on the first floor, guarded by black militia. President Grant broke the deadlock with a terse order to "Vacate your office."

Davis died in 1883 and his monument is the tallest in the State Cemetery at Austin.

Clements, who pitted his business skills against Hill's political expertise, overtook Hill in the counting early Wednesday after the pair waged a see-saw battle through Tuesday night.

Observers credited Clements' win largely to his $6.4 million campaign and the border-to-border organization of paid professional and volunteers.

New energy bill lacking many of tough proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is signing a diluted energy bill that is a far cry from the original plan he submitted to Congress 18 months ago as the "moral equivalent of war."

After signing the measure into law at a White House ceremony today, Carter planned to fly to Kansas City, Mo., to address a Future Farmers convention and hold a news conference.

The 95th Congress completed work on the energy package just before adjourning Oct. 15.

Although it was a big domestic victory for the president, the compromise legislation omitted many of the tough proposals in his original package.

Among items scuttled along the way were stiff new taxes on gasoline, crude oil and industrial fuels.

While the bill provides tax credits to consumers for various energy conservation steps, it also is expected to increase costs for natural gas users.

Individuals who use gas for heating and cooking will be affected directly, and everyone is likely to feel indirect effects from higher costs passed on by industrial users, who will bear the brunt of the price increases.

Natural gas prices will be allowed to rise by about 10 percent annually until 1985 when price lids will be removed from most natural gas. In the meantime, price controls will be extended for the first time to intrastate gas — that used in the state where it is produced.

There has been no clear resolution of what the new pricing plan will cost consumers. Various opponents of deregulation have claimed it will transfer $200 billion from consumers to producers over the next seven years. That could mean increases averaging $100 to $200 a year for typical families who heat with natural gas.

Deregulation supporters concede gas prices will go up, but say the additional cost attributable to deregulation will be closer to $20 a year for the average family. And they say it will mean more gas in the long run.

Well-known artist, illustrator

Norman Rockwell dies at age 84

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Artist Norman Rockwell, whose freckled-faced boys, pigtailed girls, kindly doctors and small town scenes mirrored Americana on Saturday Evening Post covers and Boy Scout calendars in a career spanning six decades, is dead at age 84.

The pale, lean-limbed, pipesmoking illustrator worked seven days a week — with a half-day off for Christmas — to produce a canvas mirror of the nation he loved, but once described himself as "a hack illustrator."

He should be remembered, his wife, Molly, said after his death late Wednesday at his Stockbridge home as "an artist and illustrator... well-known artist and illustrator."

Mrs. Rockwell said her husband's death was not unexpected, and that he "had been ill a long time."

Funeral arrangements were incomplete early today.

Rockwell's America was a nation of rough-hewn but gentle workingmen, prim grandmothers and soldiers home from the great war. In the turbulent 1960s, it was a nation torn by Vietnam and divided by race.

It was an America of the Four Freedoms, a series of paintings for the Post taken from a speech to Congress by Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1941. The paintings became part of the nation's war effort and its rallying cry.

But always it was an America depicted with a passion for visual truth — he worked invariably from live models and props, even to posing a chicken, which he said would "stand just as you've placed him for four or five minutes."

Perhaps the most popular artist in the United States, Rockwell died without attaining status in the world of "real art."

Critics found his work simplistic, corny and superficially photographic — however much he touched and delighted millions.

Rockwell never claimed to be anything more than an illustrator who made a lot of money. "I just do the things, and people pay me very high prices," he told The Associated Press in 1974.

His labors, which began when he left high school at 16, produced uncounted works — including more than covers for the magazine. He died at his home in Stockbridge, Mass., late Wednesday night. He was 84.

360 covers for the Post, which first bought his illustrations when he was 22. He later switched to Look magazine when the ownership of the Post changed hands.

Although much of his work was nostalgic, he was also an illustrator of his times: he spent 26 straight hours on a Post cover saluting the historic flight of Charles Lindbergh, and depicted Neil Armstrong's footprint on the dusty surface of the moon after the first moonwalk in 1969.

Late in his life, he was often ill and confined to a wheelchair. But in late 1977, he still made occasional journeys to his studio in a barn next to the white colonial home he shared with his third wife, Molly.

"It's hell to grow old," he said then. Mrs. Rockwell, 82, a retired teacher who married the illustrator in 1961, said shortly after his death that her husband's "work was his passion." His "greatest delight," she said, were his Post covers.

"He was very happy and he was devoted to his work," she told the AP. Stockbridge, the small western Massachusetts community in the Berkshires that was Rockwell's home and supplied his models for many years, also holds his prime achievements: at the Old Corner House run by the historical society.

There is Norman Rockwell — his originals, appearing larger, wiser, funnier, richer than on the covers of magazines or the 30 years of Boy Scout calendars.

And there, Police Chief William Obanhein was one of the first of many to recall the town's No. 1 citizen. "It's sad," said the police chief. "It's going to be a great loss... He was a well-respected man... a nice guy. He was a great man and everybody loved him."

Rockwell loved America, on his terms. "I paint life as I would like it to be," he once said. "If there was sadness in this created world of mine, it was a pleasant sadness. If there were problems, they were humorous problems. The people in my pictures aren't mentally ill or deformed. The situations they get into are commonplace, not the agonizing crises and tangles of life."

But Rockwell touched on the crises of life: one memorable painting showed a tiny black girl walking with two husky white policemen.

"I went to Russia and they had it in the newspaper that these guards were taking her to prison," he once said. "I meant they were trying to take her to school."

Rockwell painted the famous — Dwight D. Eisenhower, Richard Nixon, John Wayne, and John F. Kennedy.

He said his favorite president was Eisenhower. "When Ike gave you that grin he was an artist's delight," he once said.

Born in New York City, he had his only formal art training as a teen-ager in the Manhattan Art Students League. He later lived for many years in Arlington, Vt., before moving to Stockbridge.

His first marriage ended in divorce. His second wife, Mary, who died in 1959, was the mother of his three sons.

At 76, Rockwell told an interviewer his work was always improving: "Someone once asked Picasso his favorite of all the pictures he ever painted and he replied, 'The next one.' 'I'll echo the master.'"

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Citizen's arrest

Q. Is there such a thing as a citizen's arrest? If so, how is it exercised and under what circumstances? I've seen numerous cases where "somebody" should have done "something."

A. A citizen's arrest is technically possible in the event you witness a felony crime. But law officers and attorneys agree that you are running a serious risk to your physical safety and your legal security if you try to make one. You could be hurt, or you could be successfully sued. Better by far to call in the pros than to dream that your "somebody" will be effective doing his "something."

SERIOUS ACCIDENT — Big Spring Patrolman Troy Hogue examines a car that was involved in a wreck at the intersection of Highway 350 and the North Service Road of IS 20, early this morning. The car's driver, Wendy Lou Stephens, 18, Gail Route, was seriously injured in the accident, and is in the intensive care unit of Malone-Hogan Hospital.

Police beat Accused coins thief nabbed

Police have arrested one suspect, and will search for another in connection with the theft of coins from vending machines in Malone-Hogan and Big Spring Veterans Administration hospitals.

Llewellyn McGavic, Pasadena, was arrested on FM 700 just east of Malone-Hogan Hospital, Tuesday night, just after the theft was discovered.

According to reports, witnesses saw two men in the hospital's concession room acting suspiciously, and notified a police officer who happened to be visiting a patient at the time. The policeman questioned the two men, but since a makeshift key had been used to get inside the vending machines, the theft hadn't yet been discovered, and the men left.

Shortly thereafter, the coins were found to be missing, and an alert on the two suspects was sounded. McGavic was arrested a few hundred yards from the hospital, according to Detective Avery Falkner, and $58 in assorted change was recovered from the road where the suspect had attempted to make his getaway.

Investigators will use descriptions provided by witnesses to try to track down the partner of the culprit.

A local woman was seriously injured in a two-vehicle collision that occurred at the intersection of Highway 350 and the North Service Road of IS 20, 8:34 a.m. today.

The accident occurred when a pickup driven north on Highway 350 by Gerald McMillan, 700 Johnson, and a car turning south onto the highway, driven by Wendy Lou Stephens, Gail Route, collided. The driver's side of the Stephens' car received the main impact in the collision, and Ms. Stephens, 18, sustained internal injuries at impact. She was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital by Alert Ambulance, where she is in serious but stable condition in the intensive care unit.

Her brother, Gregg Stephens, 15, a passenger in the car, and McMillan were both treated and released from the hospital.

Two mishaps were reported Wednesday. Vehicles driven by Hallie Hoyle, Snyder, and James Chapman, 1407 E. 19th, collided at West Fourth and Runnels, 2:06 p.m.

A vehicle driven by Lyndon T. Frailey, 1506 Stadium, struck a parked vehicle belonging to Jack Little, 6 Highland Cove, on the 700 block of E. 11th, 11:03 p.m.

Memorial services for 'heroes' held

By MARJ CARPENTER
"Freedom is a light for which many men have died," Mike Evans, first vice president of the high school student council, re-emphasized this morning at memorial services at the marker in the high school hall honoring deceased war veterans.

The plaque was placed at the high school as a token remembrance of past Big Spring High students who gave the ultimate sacrifice for their country in the major conflicts in American history.

The student council annually holds a memorial service, on or near Armistice Day honoring the war dead. A wreath was placed at the foot of the plaque. Evans said, "In some small way, we have noted those who cannot speak for themselves today, noted their sacrifice to our great nation and noted their spirit in standing for those things that are American."

John Smith, high school principal, introduced representatives from the various local veterans organizations. They included Mr. and Mrs. T.A. Trevino, representing Post 355 of the American Legion; Mrs. Ethel Knapp representing the auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Spivey, representing the Disabled American Veterans; Benjamin Deando, GI Forum; Mr. and Mrs. Marion Irland, the World War I Barracks; C.D. ## Digest

Woman sues village

NEW YORK (AP) — A Long Island mother has filed a $500,000 damage suit against the village of Williston Park, charging that she was thrown out of the community swimming pool for breast-feeding her infant son in public.

Barbara Damon of Mineola said in her Brooklyn federal court complaint that her civil rights were violated and that she was subjected to humiliation and embarrassment by officials of the community-operated pool. She said the incident occurred July 21, 1977, when she breast-fed her 3-month-old son, Michael.

Saturday classes in Ohio?

CLEVELAND (AP) — Students in the financially strapped Cleveland school system may have to attend classes on Saturday next spring and their teachers face the loss of a 6 percent pay raise.

Superintendent Peter Carlin told the school board Wednesday that three Saturday classes, one each in April, May and June, will have to be held to make up days lost during a five-week teacher strike. The classes will cost $200,000 per Saturday in employee overtime pay, he said. Board President John Gallagher Jr. said the system cannot fund any further employee raises since a school levy that would have raised $8.5 million for employee raises failed to win approval Tuesday.

Crews cleaning oil spill

FARMINGTON, Utah (AP) — Amoco Co. crews were working around the clock to clean up a 42,000-gallon oil spill in marshy grasslands along the Great Salt Lake, an Amoco spokesman said.

Spokesman Richard Murphy said the oil, equivalent to 1,000 barrels, spilled Wednesday when an Amoco pipeline ruptured. He said the oil did not spill into the Great Salt Lake. State and Amoco officials were able to contain the oil shortly after the spill. Although some of the oil spilled into the Farmington Bay Waterfowl Management Area, no birds were believed to have been hurt.

SECOND TOURNEY — The first Arancia-Hardesty Handball Invitational was so good that the YMCA decided to stage a second one. UW WORKERS STILL HAVE LONG WAY TO GO

United Way campaign moving at slow pace

The 1978 Howard County United Way campaign is moving at a snail's pace toward its $145,600 objective but UW officials remain confident that the plateau will be reached.

When UW workers met Wednesday at the Holiday Inn, they were told by General Chairman Daryle Hohertz that $64,879.06 had been raised or pledged. That represents only 45 per cent of the goal.

Hohertz asked workers to renew their efforts by working old cards and petitioning members of their team to get their signed cards in to the UW office.

The Professional Division, captained by Ron Coborn and Jimmy Anderson, leads all other units in collections, having realized 86 per cent of its $6,600 goal.

The Metropolitan division isn't far behind. Its goal is $4,800 and it is within 23 per cent of that figure. Gene Bear and Curt Mullins head that group.

The committee will meet again next Wednesday to update reports but the site of the meeting has not been determined.

Glasscock 4-H

Food Show is set for Friday

The Glasscock County 4-H Food Show has been scheduled for Friday at the Garden City school cafeteria.

It's really tough to lose

I had spent hours writing and rewriting a speech for my boss at the time, Gene McGill, chairman of the Oklahoma Democratic Party.

It was the sort of speech one looks forward to about as much as a toothache.

We figured John F. Kennedy would be elected president, but his and our chances of capturing Oklahoma for JFK were about as good as the Steers upsetting Mojo.

Writing the speech was double tough, because we were pretty sure U.S. Sen. Bob Kerr would be re-elected and Democrats would win all but one of the Congressional races.

I waited until two days before the election to hand my "polished gem" to Gene, who had entered politics after making a bundle of money by buying and selling wheat.

I nervously watched as he read the speech. Silence.

Finally, I asked: "Is it alright?"

"Yeah Walt. It's fine," he replied.

However, when the votes rolled in and Sooners voted 533,039 for Nixon and 370,011 for JFK — a majority of 162,928, Gene became surrounded by newsmen.

As TV cameras whirled,

Gene shoved my "fine" speech, that stressed party unity, aside.

He placed the blame for Kennedy's defeat in Oklahoma on the late Democratic Gov. Howard Edmondson. Howard, a classmate of mine at OU and one-time "pal," never forgave me for the blistering attack.

This episode convinced me there is no such thing as a good concession speech.

There's no such thing as a good loser, just bad and worse. Some just put a better face on it.

Perhaps concession speeches are better left ignored. There are darn few good ones. Still, on occasion a man rises to the moment with a note of grace, perhaps even a touch of humor.

Remember newsman Jimmy Breslin's last campaign for the New York School Committee? After the loss, Breslin told his audience, "I am ashamed to have participated in a process which kept the bars of the city closed for an entire day."

Dick Tuck, the Democratic political prankster, once ran for office in a small Colorado town and is reported to have explained his loss thus: "The people have spoken. The bastards."

Or how about George McGovern, a man whose wit is generally thought to be as dry as a South Dakota prairie in mid-drought. Said McGovern after his devastating loss to Richard Nixon in 1972: "I wanted to run for president in the worst way. So I did."

I noticed while serving as state publicity director of the Democratic Party that Okies voiced a few memorable concessions.

When George Mizer lost to U.S. Rep. James R. Jones in 1976, he was contacted by a red-haired, eager reporter who asked if he was conceding. "We're not conceding anything except I'm not going to Washington in January," shouted Mizer.

I recall a concession by Carmen Moe Marcus who lost a crowded primary race for governor.

Publisher Leland Gourley, another loser in that race, offered a lengthy list of reasons why he had been unsuccessful: not enough money, not enough time, not enough volunteers. In making his concession, Marcus noted Gourley's reasons for losing and then explained his own. "Not enough votes."

Most concession speeches aren't so straightforward. In many, the loser claims at least moral victory — victory of principles if not of votes.

Analysis of concession speeches shows three basic types. The categories are based on the interest of the speech and the audience addressed.

First, there's the rhetoric of reconciliation. Here the audience is usually the winning candidate. It's a case of the loser admitting defeat and offering to work with his opponent for a common goal. This type is most often heard after primary losses when the party is trying to pull together to do battle with the opposing party.

Second, there's the rhetoric of redefinition. Here the loser addresses his own

HILL CONCEDES IN TEXAS GOVERNOR'S RACE — Democrat John Hill at a news conference in Austin Wednesday as he conceded defeat to Republican Bill Clements in the governor's race in Texas. Clements, when inaugurated, will be the first Republican governor of Texas in more than 100 years. Hill, smiling even in unexpected defeat, said "The Republicans apparently were a little bit more determined than we were."

supporters and redefines victory so he comes out a winner. "We've won a moral victory."

Third, there is the rhetoric of blame-fixing. Here the loser addresses an ill-defined audience and tells them, "We wuz robbed."

In spite of the fact most concession speeches disappear in a vast void seconds after their delivery, the concession speech may make or break a politician's career.

Richard Nixon's famous "You won't hear Dick Nixon to kick around anymore," delivered in 1962, haunted him for years afterward. Not only was it considered ungracious, it was untrue.

Nixon's performance went unimitated until it was echoed this year by former State Sen. Bob Shatwell, Tulsa, charged with sex capers, who told reporters the media would not have old Bob to kick around anymore.

Stephen Jones, an Enid, Okla., lawyer who lost a race for congress in 1976, may be the only candidate to have researched past concession speeches in order to prepare his own.

Jones had two speeches ready that election night.

One for victory, one for defeat, in preparing the latter. Jones read Adlai Stevenson's concessions and noted their humor. He admired the grace of Stephen Douglas' concession to Abraham Lincoln in 1860. He liked elements of John W. Davis' concession to Calvin Coolidge in 1924.

But the speech he liked best and quoted in his own was that offered by Lincoln after he lost his bid for Congress in 1858: "It hurts too much to laugh and I'm too big to cry."

The speech which hit me the hardest was Lyndon Johnson's announcement in 1968 that he would not seek re-election. It was a concession to the Vietnam War and the riots.

One of the best concessions I remember was never delivered.

"A candidate — who shall remain nameless — lost in a West Texas Congressional primary to old-what's-his-name? He wrote out a telegram and said, "Let me try this on you. To ———: Congratulations, you ran a remarkable race. You worked hard, campaigned hard and pulled more votes than I did. And I think you're a dirty SOB."

The eyes of Lions International to be on District 2A-1 this year

District 2A-1 will have the eyes of Lions International on it this year. H.B. Brancel, San Angelo, district governor, told the Noon Lions Club at its meeting Wednesday at Howard College.

Ebb Grindstaff, Ballinger, a past governor of this district, is to be a candidate for third vice president at the convention in Montreal, Canada in July, and if elected, he eventually will ascend to the presidency of Lions International. The district, said Brancel, must go all out to elect him, not only with financial support but also with a maximum attendance at the convention.

Brancel also appealed for support of Lions International Foundation an organization committed to helping in catastrophic situations; also to the CARE program. There are 35,000 individuals who could have their sight restored by corrective measures if Lions would contribute as much as $5 each, he added.

The governor said membership in the district has stabilized and now is growing. Brancel was introduced by Jim Lemons, past district governor.

Bush blames defeat on 'provincialism'

MIDLAND — George Bush Jr., beaten in a close vote in the race for U.S. Congressman, 19th District, attributed his loss to "provincialism."

The Midland oil man, visibly shaken by his narrow defeat at the hands of Democrat Kent Hance, added he was "not going to shut the door to politics."

Bush, in analyzing the results of the spirited race, said he had been unable to convince the voters a race for Congress is a national, not local, contest.

Bush said voters "decided they wanted a person from Lubbock" to represent them in Washington, adding "that, to me, is provincialism."

The 32-year-old Bush said that Hance successfully hung an "outsider" label on him. Bush won only in Andrews, Ector, and Midland counties.

In Lubbock County, Hance won by a margin of 5,379. In Midland County, Bush prevailed, 14,159 to 4,285. In Martin County, the voters went for Hance, 640 to 385.

In Dawson County, the voters favored Hance, 2,216 to 1,371.

The car: Now you see it, now you don't

Chop shops: Most lucrative illegitimate business

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the time it takes to read three paragraphs of this story, an automobile will have been stolen somewhere in the United States. Chances are one in 143 that it will be yours.

A car is stolen every 32 seconds. That's 2,700 a day, 985,500 a year. The cost is $4 billion annually, including the cars, higher auto insurance premiums, police and trials.

For years, auto theft was one of the most frequently solved crimes, but now that has changed dramatically. If your car is stolen the chance of recovering it has dropped from 86 percent in 1967 to 59 percent and the chance of the case being solved has dropped from 24.3 percent to 14.1 percent.

In fact, if your car is stolen, there is a growing chance that within 48 hours it will be chopped into untraceable parts and sold to a salvage yard.

Once primarily committed by teen-age joy-riders, auto theft has increasingly drawn professionals. The FBI calls it "the most lucrative, illegitimate business today."

Organized crime has refined it by establishing smoothly operated "chop shops."

Operating with pit-stop efficiency, chop shops dismantle a car in two to three hours, dispose of the engine, dashboard and transmission, which carry vehicle identification numbers, and quickly market the rest. Secretive as spy agencies, chop shops don't allow thieves, chopping crews, or marketers to know one another.

This picture emerges from a four-month investigation by Illinois Republican Sen. Charles Percy's staff on the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations. Made available to The Associated Press, the staff report shows that chop shops have grabbed much of the market and extended operations across state lines.

In Chicago, for instance, police say 25 to 40 percent of stolen vehicles end up in chop shops. The parts end up across town or as far away as Los Angeles, Dallas or San Antonio. Texas officials suspect Midwest chop shops supply salvage yards along Texas highways that have late model front ends stacked up four and five deep.

With organized crime has come violence. Percy's staff linked 11 unsolved murders in the Chicago area and four in New York City to auto theft rackets.

Outside Chicago, Senate investigators found chop shops in Baltimore, Boston, Cincinnati, Detroit, Indianapolis, Miami, New York City, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Hammonilton, N.J., and rural North Carolina. But the racket has victimized virtually every automobile owner.

It contributed to a 52.4 percent rise over three years in the cost of automobile insurance. Because chop shops target their area for thefts, Chicago central city residents pay an average of $138 for theft insurance compared to $30 for suburban residents, according to State Farm Insurance. Ironically, while chop shops inflate insurance prices, inflation in the cost of new parts contributes to chop shop success.

For instance, investigators were told a new nose for a 1975 Chevrolet Monte Carlo costs $1,607 with labor. A used nose from a legitimate salvage yard would cost $1,290, but a chop shop could provide it for $690-$890.

And service is faster. Automaker delays can range up to two months. But chop shops deliver overnight and can provide assembled front ends, which come from Detroit in 12 pieces.

Howard College handball courts open to public

Handball, racketball, and squash enthusiasts will now have an opportunity to enjoy the new facilities within the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum beginning Monday, November 6.

That's according to Coliseum Director Carl McMillen, who said the three handball courts will be opened to the general public on a first come, first serve basis. McMillen said, "As a part of Howard College's continuing effort to serve the community as a whole, the three handball courts will be made available between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, except on holidays."

Already scheduled in the coliseum handball courts are college classes, generally between the hours of 9:00 and 11:00 each weekday morning. Partners may reserve one of the three handball courts for one hour each week by calling the college switchboard at 267-6311. Reservations may be made by an individual only once during a one-week period, therefore allowing as many people as possible to use the facilities.

The Coliseum Director also asked that all athletes exercise courtesy when making arrangements, and sportsmanlike conduct when utilizing the courts in order that all may have fair and equal use. It is also expected that those who utilize the courts will be able to respect college facilities by avoiding damage through using the proper equipment.

well set," said Dewey Byers, building inspector.

The Safeway Store will grow to the north, according to Byers. It will be adjacent to the new TG&Y Store, which will be located near the intersection of Fourth and Birdwell.

"The old TG&Y will probably revert back to rental property," said Byers.

Two more movie screening rooms will be added to the five already in Big Spring. This will make three choices available for Cinema Theater patrons.

College Park Shopping additions mapped

Major construction will soon change the appearance of the entire College Park Shopping Center, according to officials at the Big Spring Building Department.

Though no permits have yet been signed, preliminary plans have been completed for the construction of a new TG&Y Store building; the expansion of the Safeway Grocery Store there; addition of two new theaters to the present Cinema Theater and possible relocation of a major chain store.

"We haven't signed any permits, but it appears as if all these projects are pretty

Barrier wouldn't solve the problem

A plan, drawn up by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, calls for erection of two fences — one, stretching 6.7 miles between El Paso and Juarez.

The barrier would block the most popular routes of the illegal aliens headed in the direction of Texas and the United States.

The plan has caught some deserving flak.

The fence at El Paso has been dubbed the "tortilla curtain" by Texas wits. Another, stretching 5.96 miles in length, will run from the Pacific Ocean to Airport Mesa near Chula Vista, Cal.

The upright would be composed of concrete, galvanized steel grating and tightly woven chain links. Estimated cost is $2.015 million and it likely would be higher, considering the cost-overrun factor authorized by the government.

Leave it to a group of Texans to make light of any situation. Almost as soon as the immigration service unveiled plans for a fence, some of the fun-loving people in this state announced plans to include a fence climbing contest in their annual chili cooking observation in Terlingua.

An eight-foot long section of fencing will be thrown up at the end of a 100-mile walking contest. The object will be to either climb over, dig under or cut through.

The obvious option would be to walk eight feet around the barrier, but that would be too easy.

It stands to reason that, as shallow as the Rio Grande is, the fiasco to be built there will allow that option. Those who can't climb (it's said that is dangerous because of the sharp quality of the fencing material) can cut it or even drive a car through it.

If upwards to 13 miles of the border is going to be fenced off, what about the thousands of other miles which offer no such challenge? Most aliens bent on crossing the border wouldn't hesitate to walk a few extra miles to get where they're going. How could a fence as tall as the Tower of Babel, if no longer than 13 miles, stop anyone from illegally entering the country if they were so amind?

The barrier's only real purpose would be to further alienate the people of both countries and improve the incomes of those dishonest people who thrive on transporting illegal aliens for a price.

There is no question that problems exist in controlling the flow of human traffic across the border. A ridiculous $2 million fence isn't the answer, however.

Welcome relief

Around the rim

James Werrell

I am glad that the elections are over if only because we can now stop putting people in boxes.

These boxes have labels such as "liberal," "conservative," "Mexican-American voter," "black voter," "non-voter," and several others, the least significant of which are the names of the two major political parties.

This particular election offered a hodgepodge of box labels unique to the time and place in which we now find ourselves. "Tax revolutionary," "anti-smoker," "pro-lifer," and "tolerator of homosexuals," come immediately to mind.

This may be a necessary evil, and one that is perpetrated by the various news media, but in a way it is subversive. It obscures the issues that are really important to people.

This is not to say that a whole other order of "real" issues, along the lines of inflation or deregulation, exists. That type of issue is merely part of the boxing process.

What is vital is that a humanization of the process needs to take place before it can become clear what's going on out there.

Walker Percy, the novelist, put it succinctly when he wrote about a man who had been packaged as a typical member of the upper-middle class:

"Let us not forget that this same class-member may have saved a comrade's life in battle, suffers from sinusitis, has a sick wife, and works like a dog to pay his debts.

"He cannot really be understood by a sociology of motivations but only by a larger view of man which takes account of what a man is capable of and what he can fall prey to. There is not really such a thing as a consumer or a public or a mass man except only as they exist as constructs in the minds of sociologists, and men and opinion pollsters."

I was told during this election that, according to highly-regarded surveys, the main concern as I entered the polling booth was inflation. In actuality I give inflation about 16 seconds of hard thought a week.

My primary concern in the voting booth was whether I had remembered the grocery list my wife had given me that morning. Now there is a correlation between the two: inflation has driven the price of groceries sky high. But I rarely draw this correlation consciously as I step up to pay for this or that week's bountiful repast.

The talk of inflation is almost identical to the lip service given several years ago to the issue of "law and order." That, too, was first on everybody's list of concerns.

But what has happened to the state of law and order in this country? If it has not remained the same as it was 10 years ago, it has worsened.

Yet if law and order made the top-20 on the national worry list this year, I would be very surprised. It makes me wonder what the "real" issue was 10 years ago.

I have come to the conclusion that the only issues worth considering are whether we resist the temptation to blow ourselves off the face of the earth with atomic weapons; whether we can keep this planet in working order to the extent that it will sustain life; and whether we can make sense of our lives and peace with our various gods before the flame is extinguished.

The issue of inflation pales in comparison.

Lesson of '78

Evans, Novak

CHICAGO — The lesson of the murky 1978 campaign is being flashed repeatedly on television screens across Illinois when Sen. Charles H. Percy appears digging his own grave, paid for courtesy of Democratic challenger Alex Seith.

In a tape from the Percy-Seith debates, the senator declares the American taxpayer is paying a smaller percentage of his income in federal taxes than when Percy was first elected to the Senate in 1966. "Isn't that incredible?" asks an off-stage voice in the Seith commercial. Not only incredible but, according to Internal Revenue Service figures, wrong.

Just such "negative" advertising — attacking the other guy — propelled the anonymous Seith into a stunning lead over the supposedly unbeatable two-term. This is the year when speaking ill of your opponent is smarter than saying well of yourself. Beyond tactics, Chuck Percy's plight shows the immense but largely untapped potential of the tax revolt.

Ironically, obsessive calls for tax-cutting composed the national blueprint for Republican victory, but it was Democrat Seith who followed that blueprint. Not until Percy's frantic managers shifted the spotlight from taxes to Seith's campaign tactics did the tide turn in the polls, pointing toward a cliff-hanger.

PERCY. A major figure in his party for two decades, was wedded to the time-tested liberal Republican formula: vote liberal enough to attract Democratic support — 13 out of 18 correct votes in 1977 as measured by the liberal Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) — and count on a Democratic foe unacceptable to Republicans. This year, Percy won endorsements from the AFL-CIO, the United Auto Workers and the Illinois branch of the ADA, while retaining big business support.

Percy was warned early by Doug Bailey (Deardourff-Bailey campaign consultants) of tax fever in the air. But Percy is a "problem-solving" Republican not congenial to meatax cuts; he delayed publication of a "Taxpayer's Agenda" brochure, intended to show Percy as a tax-cutter.

Passage of California's Proposition 13 changed that. Percy called campaign aides the next morning, asking: "How's that taxpayer's agenda coming along?" He next endorsed the Kemp-Roth tax reduction bill, but when meeting with the super-liberal independent Precinct Organization in August, confided: "There will never be a Kemp-Roth bill, you know that. It will never be enacted into law."

Percy's ambivalence seemingly did not matter. Seith's own Labor Day poll put him 30 percentage points behind. Percy's consultants advised that unless Seith — abandoned by his party and by labor — poured in a half-million dollars, Percy was home free. That sum and more came out of corporation lawyer Seith's and his heiress wife's fortune.

Beginning in mid-September, radio and television spots began assailing Percy's record (including his 1975 vote against Sen. William Roth's first tax reduction). Seith was so intent on establishing his fiscal conservative credentials that he later wondered whether Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's endorsement of him had spoiled everything.

Seith's anti-Percy barrage was a match to the dry timber of disgruntled Republicans. At a Chicago business establishment breakfast for Percy, Seith executive greeted us with these words: "Welcome to the wake." Supposedly a Percy booster, he was delighted that "Chuck's finally catching it for playing the liberal game all these years."

"You can step down now, good buddy... I need y'help!"

Sleep paralysis, narcolepsy linked

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is "sleep paralysis"? My husband occasionally awakens and isn't able to move for a while. Could you discuss narcolepsy? How can one tell if this is his problem? — Mrs. P. E.

In sleep paralysis, a person upon awakening tries to move and cannot. It can be mighty scary, and can be part of the overall picture in narcolepsy. Narcolepsy is not a common ailment but it occurs about four times more frequently in men than women.

The symptoms your husband has (sleep paralysis and inability to stay awake during the day) are usually sufficient to make the diagnosis. It can be confirmed by observing how he does sleep. In normal sleep there is a period (of about 60 minutes) called the "NREM" phase (non-rapid eye movement phase). This precedes the so-called "REM" phase (rapid eye movement). Narcoleptics lapse into the rapid eye movement phase almost instantaneously. Brainwave tests will rule out other non-narcolepsy causes of his "hypersomnolism" — literally, over sleepiness.

Stimulant drugs are the only treatment for narcolepsy. For most narcoleptics they are all that is needed. If your husband has attacks of muscle weakness (cataplex) during the day other drugs can help that.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 25 years old. I have lost all my hair, everywhere. I haven't a bit of hair on my legs and arms, and only fuzz on my head. I had a baby several months ago. The birth was normal. What can you advise? — Mrs. N.M.

I might speculate that this is related to pregnancy. If so, the hair will regrow in time. It goes through cycles taking several months, going from a "resting" to a "growing" phase. Pregnancy can disturb this cycle. Some women experience the problem, but rarely to the degree you describe. Excessive doses of vitamin A can cause hair loss also.

Unless you have a serious disease affecting the follicles, you should notice improvement soon. Get a full diet, adequate rest, and bide your time a little longer. My booklet "Hair and Health" is a kind of primer on how hair is affected by various physical disturbances. For a copy, send 35 cents for printing and handling to me in care of the Big Spring Herald. Include a stamped envelope with your return address on it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm married and have been on birth control pills for two years. Should I go off them for a while? What would be the reason? How long should one be off the pill before getting pregnant? — R. L.

Many doctors insist on a break from the Pill, some on a once-a-year basis, others, within two years of use. The idea is to allow ovaries to "do their thing" for a while. This may be more important for the young woman who has never become pregnant. As to your other question, one study showed that 75 per cent of women who go off the Pill become pregnant within three menstrual cycles. It's impossible to predict. Conception can be immediate, so if you don't want to get pregnant, you should use other contraceptives immediately upon stopping.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What do the initials "ACTH" mean? — J. S.

Shorthand for a tongue-twister — adrenocorticotropic hormone, a hormone produced by the pituitary gland. It acts on the outer layer (cortex) of the adrenal gland, which in turn produces cortisone-like hormones. That's saying a lot with four little letters, isn't it?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The difference, please, between chloasma and the "mask of pregnancy." — K. G.

Both refer to skin blotches caused by increased hormone production. The term "mask of pregnancy" refers specifically to that caused by pregnancy-connected hormone production.

Birth control is a highly relevant topic in today's society. Find out what you should know about it in Dr. Thosteson's easy to read booklet, "The Twelve Birth Control Methods." For a copy, write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Many funerals turn me off. Do you think a Christian should even have a funeral service? — S. A. T.

DEAR S. A. T.: I believe a Christian funeral should be a time of witness and triumph. O, yes, there will be tears because it is natural for us to weep over the loss of a loved one, knowing we will never see them again on this earth. But the Christian knows death does not end it all. He knows there is hope. He does not weep for the one who has died, because he knows the person is now with the Lord, if he was a true believer. We are called to "sorrow not, even as others which have no hope" (I Thessalonians 4:13). Therefore I believe it is perfectly appropriate for Christians to have funerals; they know there is hope in Jesus Christ.

The Christian hope of life after death is not based just on wishful thinking. It is based instead on fact — the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.

There are few words in all the Bible that are as comforting as those Jesus spoke at the grave of Lazarus (and which are often spoken at Christian funerals): "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: And whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?" (John 11:25-26).

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: We are brokenhearted. Our son has just come home from college for a few days, and he has rejected his faith in Christ. He has all sorts of intellectual arguments which we can't answer, and we just don't know what to do. — G. T.

DEAR G. T.: Unfortunately, this happens all too often. Today's secular campus is often a challenge to a student who professes faith in Christ. Sometimes, only a few faculty members are Christian believers, and students get the impression that no intellectual would seriously consider being a Christian.

I reject the idea for several reasons. For one thing, I know many intellectuals who are sincere and active Christians. They have heard all the arguments, and yet they still believe. Why? Many of them have experienced the love and joy that only Christ can bring. They know there is no other source for this. For another thing, they have looked honestly at the questions, and they know there are answers. I have often found that some of those who reject the Christian faith with such an air of intellectual superiority have never taken the time to investigate the claims of Christianity seriously.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

This is just a note to express my sincere appreciation for the outstanding conference the community of Big Spring hosted for the owners and operators of former Federal Installations.

The responsiveness and hospitality shown by the mayor, members of his staff and all of those associated with this conference from the City of Big Spring are to be commended. If this attitude is prevalent with all other outside interests, the future of Big Spring is indeed bright.

Again, congratulations on a job well done and hope to have the opportunity to visit your fine community again in the future.

Rebekah Lodge shares Thanksgiving recipes

By DUSTY RICHARD
Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284 is making preparations for a Thanksgiving dinner to take place Nov. 18 at which each member will bring her favorite holiday dish. With 168 members, that's a lot of turkey!

The Rebekahs were organized in 1819 along with the Odd Fellow Fraternity, and today the order is the largest fraternity in the world under a single leader.

Helping others and benefitting youth are two causes that the Odd Fellows and their sister Rebekahs work hand in hand on.

In addition to sponsoring an annual youth pilgrimage to the United Nations, the benevolent organizations help students further their educations through loans, encourage and motivate young people through junior lodges, combat the use of drugs through a preventive drug program and have established 15 recreational camps, with more on the way, to give urban youths a break from the city.

Locally, the organization has begun collecting canned food with which to prepare a Christmas basket for a needy family.

The only requirements for membership in the Rebekah Lodge are to be 18 years old or older, to believe in a Supreme Being and to have good moral standing in the community.

Anyone interested in becoming a member should call Sheri Wilson at 263-2906. The lodge meets every Thursday night at 7:30.

Here are some of the lodge members' favorite Thanksgiving recipes, including a beef pie that makes a welcome change for a family tired of turkey!

Rebekahs plan party

Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 2284 met at 7:30 Tuesday night in the I.O.O.F. Hall at 9th and San Antonio Streets with Noble Grand, June Wiggins, presiding.

There were 29 members present, 18 of whom were past noble grands. They reported that 10 visits to the sick had been made.

Chances were taken on a gift and Leona Hughes won.

Members voted to bring cans of food each Tuesday with which to prepare a basket for a needy family at Christmas time.

Plans for a party Nov. 18 were discussed. Each member is asked to bring a Thanksgiving dish. The party will begin at 7 p.m. Named on a committee for the party were Marion Savell, Malinda Blackburn and Rosa Lee Hill.

Lodge members who will participate in a skit to be presented at the party are reminded to be at the lodge at 2:30 p.m. Sunday for a rehearsal.

Members were asked to remember to attend a joint school of instruction at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at which light refreshments will be served. Sherri Wilson, Gay Smith and Sarah Griffith will serve on a committee for this session.

Mrs. Wiggins announced that a cleanup day will take place at 1 p.m. Monday. She urged everyone to come and help.

Mrs. Wilson asked that those in attendance for her school on the 14th come dressed in formal attire.

Members were reminded to bring men's gifts to be taken to Big Spring State Hospital. Gifts need not be wrapped and should not be placed in glass containers.

A program was presented entitled "Thanksgiving-Why Only Once a Year." Six members participated in readings. Norma Newton and Ms. Savell sang "O God Our Help in Ages Past," accompanied by Ms. Blackburn at the piano. Then Ms. Blackburn played and whistled "Whispering Hope." The prayer was worded by Ms. Smith.

Since this was birthday night, members retired to the recreation hall for cake and punch. Those honored for having birthdays in November were Ms. Griffith and Minnie Unger.

Tween 12 and 20 Should girl tell where brother is?

By Robert Wallace Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 14 and my girlfriend's older brother, 16, has run away from home. His parents are really worried and are looking for him. In fact, so are the police. My girlfriend knows where her brother is but won't "fink" on him. She told me where he is but told me to keep my mouth shut.

It breaks my heart to know where he is and not be able to tell his parents. Last night his mother cried for the entire time I was in my friend's house. My girlfriend just acts as if she could care less. What should I do? — Brenda, Superior, Wis.

Brenda: Tell your parents what you know and encourage them to contact the boy's parents. (Chances are you won't have to do much encouraging.) There are a few times when mouths are not meant to be shut — this is one of them.

How to select accessories

By JANET ROGERS, County Extension Agent
The choice of accessories is an individual matter. Selections should reflect the interests and taste of family members and contribute to the beauty of a room. A few well chosen accessories are far better than too many carelessly placed.

Brownies celebrate founder's birthday

"Daisy, Daisy, Happy Birthday to you!" rang through the rafters of the Bud Summers' home in Forsan Nov. 1, as the Brownie Girl Scout Troop No. 49 celebrated the birth of the Girl Scout founder. Shortly after the birth of Juliette Gordon Low, Oct. 31, 1860, in Savannah, Ga., an uncle said, "I bet she's going to be a daisy!" This nickname of Daisy remained as she traveled and shared her ideas and dreams with millions of girls everywhere. When Daisy died in 1927, the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund was started to honor her and her vision of worldwide friendship. This fund is used to send American Girl Scouts to other countries and to bring Girl Guides to the United States. As first-grade Brownies, Troop No. 49 made paper Girl Guide uniforms to clothe paper dolls. These dolls were place cards at the birthday table. A great big "Brownie Smile" appeared as each Scout viewed her creation from two years ago. Streamers and balloons floated above the daisy flower design cake with each guest's name on a petal, daisy design favor cups and plate, punch and ice cream. The cake was baked and decorated by Carolyn Mills, assistant leader. In the Brownie Ring, Jackie Hancock, West Texas field director, taught the troop four new friendship songs. Angela Cannon, Vanessa Gaston, Donna Mills, Wendy Mills and Sonnet Summers presented "Brownie Gold" from dues to the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund, and Shirley Summers, troop leader, took pictures of the activities.

Mum's the Word For Son's Wife

DEAR ABBY: My daughter-in-law and I are separated by 3,000 miles. I never visit unless she invites me. She and my son have been married for 10 years and I'm invited for one week every year. A half hour after my arrival, my daughter-in-law goes into her bedroom and leaves me with her two children, 7 and 8. Two hours later my son comes home and inform me that his wife has a headache. I prepare the evening meal and my son takes his wife hers on a tray. This goes on every day until I leave. There is never any communication between us. She stays locked up in her room until I leave. She hardly says hello, and she never says goodbye. She doesn't even talk to her children. She acts as though they aren't there. How can anyone be so hateful? She has a beautiful home, new car, money, clothes, jewelry—everything a woman could ask for. This "sick" routine is a fake. If she doesn't want me to visit, why does she invite me? Her letters are so sweet. What is your opinion?

TEARS IN NEW MEXICO

DEAR TEARS: It's obvious that your daughter-in-law feels unable to handle any kind of communication with you, and she refuses to try. Before condemning her, ask your son what's going on. (She could be in therapy.) For you to have tolerated her disappearing act for 10 years without asking for an explanation seems strange. I can't blame you for shedding tears, but take comfort in the French philosophy: "To know all is to forgive all."

DEAR ABBY: Today's generation seems to think it's necessary to advertise EVERYTHING on television and radio in order to sell it. We are two teenagers who happen to feel that personal hygiene products should NOT be advertised on radio and television.

For example: Your boyfriend comes over and you are watching TV together. Then one of those embarrassing commercials comes on, and there's nothing you can do about it but just sit there while your face gets red.

I don't know of anyone who appreciates these commercials. People who need these products don't need television to show them what the items look like. Everybody knows, so what's the point?

Is there any way to put a stop to these embarrassing commercials?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Write to the TV station and voice your complaint. Then write to the company whose products are advertised, and inform them that you will NOT buy their product because their advertising offends you. (P.S. I, too, find that type of advertising offensive. Some products should be advertised in newspapers and magazines only.)

But Congress still largely Democratic

Elections indicate trouble for Carter

By the Associated Press
President Carter can celebrate the prospect of two more years of large Democratic majorities in Congress, but results of the 1978 mid-term elections also could indicate trouble ahead for the White House.

Voters turned out five Democratic senators who were considered likely backers of the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty that Carter hopes to send the Senate for approval next year.

And the House of Representatives will have 75 new faces, continuing the youth movement that made the 95th Congress often unpredictable.

The election results also fed presidential ambitions of several potential Carter rivals in 1980.

With all but a handful of votes counted, the results showed the Republicans picked up three Senate seats and nine House seats and added six governors to their nationwide total.

But those GOP gains weren't nearly enough to reverse Democratic majorities on Capitol Hill and in statehouses around the nation.

The new Senate lineup apparently will be 58 Democrats, 41 Republicans and one Independent, Harry F. Byrd of Virginia. However, Democrat Andrew Miller has not conceded to Republican John Warner who led by a tiny margin in unofficial returns in their Virginia race.

With one House race undecided, the Democrats hold 277 seats to 157 for the Republicans. Still out was the result of a race in South Dakota between Democrat Tom Daschle and Republican Leo K. Thorness for the seat vacated by GOP Rep. Larry Pressler, who was elected to the Senate.

The party lineup among the nation's governors stands at 32 Democrats and 18 Republicans.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell judged the voters "very much inclined to support the president's efforts next year to hold the deficit down."

But he added, "I think it is very difficult to assess what the combined attitude of the next Congress will be as opposed to the combined attitude of the last one."

The overall victory sought by both parties was claimed by chairmen of both their national committees.

"It's safe to say the Republican Party is back," said GOP chairman Bill Brock. "We have re-established our momentum."

Brock pointed to Republican victories in governors' races in Tennessee, Texas, Nebraska and Wisconsin as signs the party has strengthened its traditional Midwestern base and resumed its growth in the South. Republican Rep. Thad Cochran also gave the GOP its first popularly elected senator from Mississippi.

Political punch weakens in Texas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas was left without 196 years of seniority and much of its political punch in the House following Tuesday's elections.

Until Tuesday, the Texas delegation averaged 56.8 years of age with 15.9 years of House experience.

When the 96th Congress convenes in January, the average Texas congressman will be 47-years old and have almost eight years of House experience.

The 24-man Texas delegation roster will contain eight rookies and one man (Ron Paul) with less than a year of House experience.

But, more importantly, since the legislation controlling committee and subcommittee chairmanships are still determined largely by seniority, Texas' pull in key committees was dramatically weakened.

Old age, failing health and ambition pillaged most of the experience but voting Texans also took a toll, forcing three more members into retirement.

Collectively, the nine retiring members represent 196 years of House experience, two committee chairmanships and four subcommittee chairmanships.

Texas lost two of its four committee chairmanships and four of its 11 subcommittee chairmanships.

The Texas losses are dramatically displayed in the House Science and Technology Committee, which oversees the space program.

Committee chairman Olin E. "Tiger" Teague of College Station retired for health reasons; Rep. Bob Krueger vacated his office for an ill-fated run at Sen. John Tower's seat; Rep. Bob Gammage of Houston was beaten by Republican Ron Paul; and Rep. Dale Millford of Grand Prairie, who chaired the subcommittee on transportation, aviation and weather, was retired by fellow Democrats in the primary.

Thus Texas, which had profited from the committee's handiwork in the form of the LBJ Space Center in Houston and millions of dollars in grants to Texas universities for research projects, lost every member the state had on the crucial committee.

Rep. George Mahon, the dean of the House with 44 years of service, also retired, vacating the chairmanship of the powerful House Appropriations Committee and its defense appropriation subcommittee.

The number two man in House seniority, W. R. "Bob" Poage, a Texan with 42 years experience, also retired, leaving the agriculture committee's livestock and grains subcommittee to a representative from another state.

And Rep. Omar Burleson's retirement cost the state one of its votes on the House Ways and Means Committee, which handles tax bills. The same applies for Rep. John Young's post on the rules committee and Rep. Barbara Jordan's seat on the judiciary committee.

But even with the retirements, Texas isn't exactly barren political wasteland.

Jim Wright of Fort Worth is expected to maintain his House majority leadership where he is a step away from the powerful Speaker of the House post and two reigning committee chairmen — Jack Brooks and Ray Roberts — will return. Brooks chairs government operations and his 26 years of experience now makes him the Texas oddtimer. Roberts heads veterans' affairs and is the second-ranking Democrat on public works and transportation where he has a subcommittee chairmanship.

Rep. E. "Kika" de la Garza is now the number two man on the agriculture committee, where he also chairs a subcommittee. Reps. Henry B. Gonzalez, Bob Eckhardt, Abraham "Chick" Kazen and Richard White also return to head subcommittees.

However, the newcomers replacing the bulk of the state's seniority are:

— State Sen. Kent Hance, 35, who becomes only the second representative in the history of the 19th district — George Mahon being the first.

— Marvin Leath, 47, a banker from Marlin and a former aide of Poage, the man he replaces.

— Charles Stenholm, 39, a Stamford rancher who will take the seat vacated by Burleson.

— Phil Gramm, 33, who, like Tiger Teague, found that being associated with Texas A&M is a definite political plus in the sixth district. Gramm is an Aggie economics professor.

— Ron Paul, 43, the Lake Jackson physician who previously served less than a year in the House before bowing to Bob Gammage, the man he beat Tuesday.

— State Rep. Joe Wyatt, 37, who defeated scandal-plagued John Young in the Democratic primary.

— State Rep. Mickey Leland, 34, the flamboyant successor in Jordan's Houston district.

— Dallas lawyer Martin Frost, 36, whose Democratic primary victory over Milford and general election race was largely bankrolled by political action committees representing organized labor.

— And former University of Texas defensive back Tom Loeffler, 32, who broke the Democratic hold on Bob Krueger's old district.

SOMEONE TO RAISE A HAND WITH — Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt, for years the only Republican member of the Arkansas congressional delegation, joined hands with Ed Bethune, the victorious Republican candidate in the 2nd Congressional District race. Hammerschmidt won re-election to a seventh term.

Krueger carried small margin

Mexican-American pull slim

By the Associated Press
Defeated U.S. Senate candidate Bob Krueger's plans to run up big numbers in Mexican-American communities may have been foiled by a man he was not even running against, ac-ording to a Krueger worker. Mark Campos says effective phone campaigning by successful gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements got the GOP vote to the polls while the Mexican-American turnout was disappointing to the Democrats.

"The Clements phone banks got the vote out," Campos said.

And while the Republicans were at the polls they apparently also cast ballots for Krueger's opponent — U.S. Sen. John Tower.

"So once again he got in on someone's coattails," Campos said.

The Mexican-American vote was considered crucial in the senatorial race. Observers had said most of that community would probably follow tradition and vote Democratic.

The only question was the turnout in the Mexican-American communities.

While Krueger carried 13 heavily Mexican-American counties, he managed only slim victories in the more populated counties in South Texas.

In Bexar County he garnered 51.4 Percent of the vote. Campos said the Clements team apparently got out the GOP vote while the Mexican-American vote trickled in.

Returns from Nueces County showed the same trend. Krueger took 52 percent of the county vote — despite running up huge majorities (percentage-wise) — in the Mexican-American precincts.

In Nueces County boxes where Mexican-Americans make up more than 75 percent of the vote, the New Braunfels congressman ran up an impressive 81.1 percent.

But, again, Campos said that 81.1 Percent did not represent a lot of votes.

"We got upwards of 80 percent of the Mexican-American vote which is what we were hoping for," Campos said. "The percentages were there but the percent of turnout wasn't."

In Hidalgo and Cameron Counties, border areas where the Krueger camp looked for big victories, the Democrat took only small majorities.

"His problem down here," said Hidalgo County Democratic Chairman Morris Atlas, "was that he carried the counties as he should have, it was just not enough."

Hidalgo County GOP Chasman Ricardo Hinojosa was delighted at the outcome in his area.

"It's very encouraging that Tower did as well as he did. The Democrats worked it down here like crazy," he said.

Cameron County GOP Chairman Bill Perrin said Tower's 900-vote loss in the county "is the same as a win."

Krueger did run up more impressive margins in several South Texas counties including Brooks, Duval and Jim Wells. But the number of votes in those counties was not enough to overcome Tower's strength elsewhere in the state.

Both camps aggressively wooed the Mexican-American vote. Krueger, who speaks adequate Spanish, made several trips through the area. He honed in on Tower's voting record on civil rights issues and tried to convince Mexican-Americans that the incumbent was not sympathetic to their problems.

While Krueger carried 13 heavily Mexican-American counties, he managed only slim victories in the more populated counties in South Texas.

In Bexar County he garnered 51.4 Percent of the vote. Campos said the Clements team apparently got out the GOP vote while the Mexican-American vote trickled in.

Returns from Nueces County showed the same trend. Krueger took 52 percent of the county vote — despite running up huge majorities (percentage-wise) — in the Mexican-American precincts.

In Nueces County boxes where Mexican-Americans make up more than 75 percent of the vote, the New Braunfels congressman ran up an impressive 81.1 percent.

But, again, Campos said that 81.1 Percent did not represent a lot of votes.

turnout was disappointing to the Democrats.

"The Clements phone banks got the vote out," Campos said.

And while the Republicans were at the polls they apparently also cast ballots for Krueger's opponent — U.S. Sen. John Tower.

"So once again he got in on someone's coattails," Campos said.

Stamp collecting items available at post office

Postmaster Frank Hardesty today reminded holiday shoppers that the Big Spring post office has available several stamp collecting items that are suitable for Christmas gifts.

Hardesty said that the post office has the latest edition of "Stamps & Stories", the popular U.S. Postal Service guide to stamp collecting, as well as the 1978 Mint Set, which contains all 28 commemorative and special stamps issued during the year.

The 240-page "Stamps & Stories" book, priced at $3.50, relates more than 100 stories about U.S. stamps and is designed to introduce non-collectors to stamp collecting as well as to provide interesting philatelic information such as current market values to both novice and experienced collectors.

Hardesty said that many of the stories in the new edition are new or have been substantially changed since the 4th edition appeared last year.

The 1978 Mint Set, priced at $4.50, is the latest in a series of annual sets of commemorative and special stamps released by the post office each year prior to Christmas. The cover of the colorful set features a montage of artwork related to the stamps inside and dramatically wraps around all three sides of the folder. Acetate strips on the inside provide spaces in which the enclosed stamps may be mounted and displayed.

In addition to these two items Hardesty said, the post office also has a number of popular topical stamp collecting kits available for beginning collectors. The kits have topics ranging from "The World of Sports" and "Space," to "Birds and Butterflies" and "Diamonds and Triangle." Each of the $2.00 kits also includes a small 20-page album, mounting hinges, insert sheets for additional stamps, and a 32-page booklet entitled "The ABC's of Stamp Collecting."

Ridin' fence

That's not trash

with Marj Carpenter

"This receptacle is for trash, not newspapers. Do not throw newspapers here." That sign was on the Staten Island ferry when I rode it in 1964 and I stood there and chuckled to myself. When I think how many people consider newspapers trash, I thought it was singularly appropriate that they had to tuck them under their arm and throw them away somewhere else.

And you sure better not throw one overboard on the Staten Island ferry or they would fine you for sure. There were signs to that affect as well.

The good old Staten Island ferry was still just a nickel in 1964, but I suppose that by now, the ferry has bit the dust of inflation.

What made me think about the thing was the news story on Tuesday that said the ferry crashed against a concrete seawall at the lower tip of Manhattan as it tried to dock on Tuesday.

They said it opened up like it had been opened by a giant can opener and injured at least 30 people seriously and 140 others with minor injuries.

I just felt gratitude that the accident didn't happen when my three children and I were on the ferry.

Ferries are kind of an interesting experience anyway. I know one ferry ride I can remember was when I was in college. Three other girls and I spent the weekend on the Mustang Island beach across from Aransas Pass. We were properly sunburned and full of sand when we started back across the ferry.

Suddenly, Handy (that was the nickname for one of the foursome) decided she simply had to go to the restroom. We then discovered the ferry had no facilities.

After that, we all had to go. And the ferry stopped out in the middle of the channel and sat there 30 minutes for some reason known only to the ferry captain. We got tickled and didn't dare laugh. It was really wild.

I remember the Galveston ferry three summers back. Jim Bob and I were driving from the Valley, where we had visited my mother and then gone on to El Campo where we visited Pulitzer Prize winner Oscar Griffin. We were headed for Port Author to visit the Bob Burris family, the year after they left the coaching ecstasies of Big Spring.

We hurried and got on to that Galveston ferry at 11:15 a.m. on Sunday near the front of the ferry. We were bragging because we beat the crowd while they were in church. But our luck turned out to be bad. When they unloaded the thing, they took all the other rows of cars off first and we got off third to last in that long row of cars on that skinny little highway.

We were relieved when a big percentage of them turned toward Beaumont.

Another ferry I remember was north of Jacksonville, Fla. This was two years ago when Carolyn and I were coming down from Savannah and headed for St. Augustine.

We ended up on a ferry because Carolyn wanted to see Fort Caroline. We left the main highway and got off on old AIA right down along the water. That's the highway made famous by the songs of Jimmy Buffett.

Carolyn, who was hurrying to get to the fort which she considered to be her namesake, suddenly hollered out, "There's a blankety blank ferry. You didn't say there was a ferry."

"I didn't say anything," I hollered back. "You just told me to find an alternate route around the Jacksonville traffic to Fort Caroline. This is it."

Well, we lined up and rode the ferry. When you're confronted by a ferry, there usually aren't a lot of choices.

I just feel sad about the Staten Island Ferry accident. I even wondered if they have kept the price for admission so low that they can't keep it in tip-top shape.

But through the years, the accident rate on the Staten Island ferry is extremely low compared to other means of transportation.

And I hope they keep running it — out where I once couldn't ride fence and had to take the ferry.

Davis almost scuttles surveillance, agent says

HOUSTON (AP) — An FBI agent says an unidentified man almost scuttled a surveillance operation critical to the state's murder-for-hire case against millionaire Cullen Davis.

That man, agent Jerry Hubbell later learned, was Davis.

The Fort Worth industrialist is on trial, accused of masterminding a scheme to kill the judge who presided over his high-stakes divorce case. The judge was not killed.

Hubbell, the state's second witness, faced a new round of defense cross-examination today. The silver-haired Dallas agent told Wednesday how Davis stumbled the FBI unit monitoring his pivotal meeting August 20 with David McCrory, his chief accuser.

"It scared them," prosecutor Tolly Wilson said of the four agents in the van. "They thought the whole deal was blown."

Three guilty pleas accepted

Three guilty pleas were accepted in 118th District Court Tuesday by Judge Ralph Caton.

Manuel Pena, 21, pleaded guilty to burglary and was sentenced to four years in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Theodore Tovar, 22, pleaded guilty to auto theft, and his probation was revoked. He was sentenced to three years in TDC.

Morris Richard Littlejohn, 22, was given three years probation on a burglary charge to which he pled guilty.

Hubbell testified that a man he could not identify approached the unmarked FBI van that morning and that it was packed with cameras and videotape equipment.

Unknown to Davis, McCrory, 40, was wired for sound.

The state contends Davis agreed to meet McCrory there to deliver $25,000 for a "hit man" hired to kill a Fort Worth judge.

Davis, 45, is on trial accused of soliciting the murder of Joe Eidson, his divorce judge. It was a murder that never came off.

Agent Hubbell testified that he and three other agents had been at the parking lot only a short time when he heard a car drive up.

He said "blackout curtains" prevented him from identifying the driver, but that he could see his silhouette when he climbed from his car.

"I could hear the motor of the vehicle parked beside the van," he said. "I could see the shadow of an individual... from a rear window."

Asked by a prosecutor what happened next, Hubbell replied:

"I heard somebody outside knocking on the side of the van."

Q: Did you or the other agents make your presence known?
A: No, we did not.
Q: How long was the man there?

A: Less than a minute. Although Hubbell did not identify the man as Davis, other principals in the case did so. And the videotape collected that morning is among the most incriminating evidence in the case.

The first comment on a transcript of the taped encounter between Davis and McCrory alluded to Davis' suspicions about the unmarked van.

"Just paranoid," he is quoted as telling McCrory at the outset of that critical meeting.

A second FBI agent testified earlier he was told by McCrory that Davis would pay up to $80,000 to have Judge Eidson killed by the hit man. According to McCrory, the agent said, the Fort Worth industrialist was prepared to pay a contract killer hundreds of thousands of dollars to dispose of the judge and others.

A VIEW OF THE MIDWAY IN A TYPICAL K MART STORE

Selling prices competitive K mart opens Nov. 16

The Big Spring K mart store, a part of one of America's fastest growing discount department chain firms, will open its doors Thursday, Nov. 16. The local affiliate is situated at FM 700 and Birdwell Lane.

The K mart discount department store is a combination of basic principles created before the first K mart opened in 1962 and improvements resulting from more than a decade of experience and research.

The original K mart blueprint emphasized that K mart selling prices must be always competitive. Although price tags on K mart merchandise are determined by K mart Corporation International Headquarters in Troy, Mich., each K mart manager is personally responsible for keeping the store competitive.

Part of the corporation's effort to give customers quality merchandise was to be a private label program in staple assortments. A strong private label program has developed in such lines as cameras, apparel, domestics, hardware and home improvement. Private label merchandise is manufactured under strict specifications.

K mart buying representatives in European and Asian markets work closely with the home office import department. K mart Corporation buyers frequently travel abroad in search of merchandise and K mart exclusives. All imported merchandise is required to equal or surpass the quality specifications of its domestic counterpart and be available at lower selling prices.

An advertising program was to be created to gain customers' complete confidence in the integrity and credibility of K mart. The customer who goes to a K mart in response to a newspaper or television advertisement will find advertised items at advertised prices prominently displayed.

The K mart Corporation's traditional "satisfaction always" policy was to be incorporated into the operating standards of every K mart and proclaimed by signs throughout the salesfloor. The sincerity of this policy is proved by the ease with which a customer can get a refund or exchange. The K mart service desk is located at the front of the store where attendants are always available to refund shopper's money, exchange merchandise or credit charge accounts.

promotional-minded merchants. Emphasis is placed on the maintenance of consistently high standards for department heads and salespeople.

A new department often dictates a change in store layout — hardware and home improvements have been placed adjacent to building materials, providing a convenient traffic pattern for the do-it-yourselfers. Kitchen and bathroom displays let quality-minded shoppers see the appearances of finished rooms or sections of rooms.

The allocation of space is continually re-evaluated to meet customers' current demands. For instance, consumers' interests in photography has resulted in enlarged camera and accessories department.

Music buffs of all ages are installing stereo tape players in their cars. K marts today offer complete automotive sound centers where shoppers can view and buy a large assortment of tape players and tapes.

Hangin' Out
by Nathan Poss

When I woke up yesterday morning and opened up the sports page, I thought that my eyes and/or brain had not fully recovered from the night before. I mean, right before my drowsy face was an article in which Rice University Head Coach Ray Alborn was defending the officials of the Southwest Conference. What's even more amazing was that it was following a 37-7 loss to Arkansas last Saturday.

For those unaware of what I'm referring to, it's the controversy that Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz has created by not allowing the officials into his locker room before the game. Lou also made the news by stepping onto the football field and daring SWC linesman Harry Lippman to throw a flag at him. Lippman further claimed that Holtz made the dare with a word of obscenity, which the Arkansas boss denies.

What amazed me was that Alborn was defending the striped shirts. He was quoted as saying: "To me, it's asinine to drag that stuff out in the newspapers. I think it casts a bad reflection on every guy that wears a striped shirt. I know I'm a rookie, but I don't give a damn how many years you've been coaching, it's not right to say those kinds of things in a newspaper." Alborn admitted he gets upset every Saturday. "And I scream and holler and throw stuff and say things to the officials, but officials don't beat us. I don't don't think a bad call beats very many people."

Those few statements had me in near hysterical tears. Alborn is a picture of wildness every time he steps onto the sidelines during a game. Don't get me wrong, the man is one of my very best friends and like my father, but I can just imagine what the officials working his game say about him to each other before and after every Rice game. We've known many people that have played for him that have nearly fought to get within hearing distance of the Rooster (he's red headed and turns that color every Saturday afternoon) in order to hear his comments. They are serious comments, but can also be more interesting and entertaining than any movie. His one liners are legendary in the Houston area.

You could write a novel full of Alborn's unbelievable phrases, but I don't have the room. I also don't want to lose this job at present. He's usually good, however, for at least one flying foot trick per game. He has his ear phones connected to his head, which in turn are connected to a plug with a long cord. At some point in the game, he becomes enraged with an official's call or a player's mistake. At this time, he forgets about his phones and charges full speed ahead toward the accused. The only problem is that the cord runs out, which promptly throws Alborn's head back and his feet straight out.

To say the least, he usually ends up on his back. He then turns, looking both ways, and appears to be in confusion about whether to be angry with the phones, players, or officials. By this time, he usually forgets what he was mad about and walks back to the sidelines.

To get back to my original point, I was surprised he opened up and let the referees around the conference now that he is really an understanding person. I know his players realize that he is and have utmost respect for Alborn. But I can't believe he let the refs know.

And really, Lou Holtz, get serious! I can't believe that an official is going to screw your beloved Razorbacks to the wall just because they represent another state. What you said is childish and would sound appropriate from some frustrated and ignorant fan. But you can't be that naive!

Arkansas has seemed to be using such tactics in the past year in an effort to scare the rest of the Southwest Conference into believing that they want out. If you want out, leave. From most of the drift around the other conference schools, most people tend to believe that you need the other eight schools as bad as they need you. I don't think that any of the other schools are going to actually mourn if you do pack up and leave.

RIVALRY — Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer, left, and Nebraska coach Tom Osborne, right, make the same salary, became head coaches the same year, use the same defense, and both want to go to the Orange Bowl. But Osborne has never beaten Switzer, as their two teams go into battle Saturday.

Steers face OHS tomorrow

The Odessa High Broncos will be hoping to extend a seven-game winning streak dating back to 1970 against the Big Spring Steers tomorrow night when the two schools meet. The Broncos will also be hoping to break a two-game losing streak for the current season.

The Broncos will carry a season record of 3-5 and district mark of 1-4. They started district action with a heatbreaking 21-20 loss to Midland Lee, then played Cooper on near even terms until the fourth quarter before losing. The Steers, meanwhile, are 0-8. They have looked good at times against stiff competition, but have also had some very poor moments.

Odessa High, under the direction of the respected Dick Winder, have suffered in recent weeks. Following a 37-34 win over San Angelo, they have been humbled by Abilene and Midland. Injuries have been a major problem.

The Broncos have suffered from a defense that has been vulnerable to the run. They are ranked sixth in the league in total defense, and also sixth in rushing defense.

They do have their stalwarts on defense, however. Defensive tackle Don Rodgers dealt misery on some of the locals last year, and is all-district caliber. Others that perform admirably for the Red Hosses are linebacker William Allred and free safety Brian Cantrell. Allred has been scouted by college scouts for his size and ability to cover tight epass. Cantrell is an all-purpose player. He is a good athlete that also plays offense and is averaging over 40 yards a punt on 16 kicks.

The Steer offense has been very inept in recent weeks. They have failed to score in the last three games. Much of this is due to the fact that the Bovines are averaging only 67 yards rushing per contest in district play. The Big Spring offense has also suffered 11 interceptions in league play, but a sufficient ground game could help the interception rate, which is the worst in the District 5-4A.

The Odessa offense will probably be expecting to take advantage of the Big Spring run defense. The Broncos, led by their fiery tailback, Scott Caywood, have shown more tendencies to run than pass. This coincides with the Big Spring's inability to stop the run, which is worst in the loop. Caywood, is averaging over 115 yards per game rushing this year, and has accumulated over 65 percent of the Broncos' overall yardage.

Other Broncos that could deal misery to the Bovine defense include quarterback Billy Rumbaugh, wingback Cantrell and Alfred Rodriguez, a split end. Rumbaugh is a fair passer that does a good job of executing the running game.

Big Spring, as usual this year, will have the size advantage. The Steers could very easily sneak up on the injured Broncos if they are not too disheartened from last week's embarrassment to Abilene Cooper. That is a big if, however, but one that could be overcome with belief in themselves.

Holmes to hit jackpot in Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "Anytime you get over $200,000 you can call it a main event," says Ken Norton.

But Norton's scheduled 10-round against Randy Stevens Friday night at Caesars Palace is certainly not the main event. That honor, plus a purse of $1.5 million, belongs to Larry Holmes and Alfredo Evangelista, who is getting not only $150,000 but also a chance at the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship.

Holmes gained that title by scoring a split decision over Norton here June 9.

Holmes did a little gloating over that accomplishment Wednesday at a news conference when he said:

"I don't want to be like Ken Norton ... to have the title for three months and lose it. He worked hard and it's a shame that in his first defense he had to fight me."

"He has to say something," said Norton. "It doesn't bother me. I have nothing to say."

Norton had to work his way back after a two-round knockout in a title bid against George Foreman in 1974 and had to scrap his way back after a decision loss to Muhammad Ali in 1976. Now, he knows, he has to do it again.

When introduced at Wednesday's news conference, Norton said, "Well, I haven't a lot to say because I'm a supporting actor on this show."

A loss to Stevens, who has a 10-4-0 record, would probably make Norton an ex-fighter.

Norton, who has made two movies and plans to make more, wants another shot at the title, but there is a time limit on that goal.

"I plan on fighting possibly another year," he said. With or without the title, he was asked. "Hey, why punish yourself, regardless of what happens."

Switzer, Osborne renew rivalry

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — They ascended five years ago at Norman, Okla., and at Lincoln, both inheriting successful football programs, the offensive and defensive alignments their teams still use and fans with a voracious appetite for victory.

Both won much more often than they lost.

But there is a critical difference in the records of Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer and Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne, whose squads battle Saturday on national television for a share of the Big Eight Conference title and almost certainly an Orange Bowl bid.

Switzer, the winningest active coach in bigtime collegiate football among those with at least five years experience, has not lost to an Osborne-coached team since each became head coach in 1973.

Switzer, whose Sooners are undefeated and ranked No. 1 nationally, has a lifetime record of 60 wins, five losses and two ties.

He pondered his record against the Cornhuskers and Osborne this week and said, "If those games had been reversed, he (Osborne) would have been the winningest coach in major college football."

It's true. Osborne has a lifetime record of 54-14-2. If Nebraska had won all five games instead of losing them, the quiet Nebraska coach would be 59-9-2 and Switzer would be 55-10-2. Penn State's Joe Paterno would be somewhere between at 121-24-1.

"He's got the wins. I don't," said Osborne, reacting to the statistical twist.

Switzer reviewed those five years of head-to-head competition and the year before, 1972, when both were assistants at their schools and when Oklahoma started the streak. "It's simple. Of the six times I've beaten him, four of the times we were just better teams than they were, and two times, 1972 and 1976, we just lucked out in the fourth quarter."

A successful coach can be sent to the doghouse by fans because of problems with a particular team, and Osborne reflected on possible pressure. "Sure. Some. There is not much you can do about that. It doesn't bother me any."

Osborne's predecessor, the Nebraska athletic director and legend Bob Devaney, said, "He wants to win, but I don't think it is a burden he can't bear."

Said Osborne, "We are 0-5 against Oklahoma but so are a lot of other good teams. There are not very many teams that have beaten them."

Nebraska is 8-1 with a No. 4 national ranking and will be playing at home before a traditional Big Red capacity crowd. Neither coach would pinpoint a coaching key.

"We must play a complete game against Oklahoma. You can't just do one or two things well. You have to do it all well."

Both will send in a 5-2 defense. Nebraska's defensive ends will have to live up to their reputation of mobility against Switzer's Wishbone offense. Osborne will stick to the I-formation, built around a hard blocking fullback and slippery I-back.

Gervin leads Spur rout

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—Message to the rest of the National Basketball Association: Don't rile the San Antonio Spurs.

The Spurs, losers of three of their last four games by a total of seven points, came back with a vengeance Wednesday night as they blasted San Diego 163-125.

The total was the highest in the NBA this season and set a new franchise record for the Spurs. The old mark was 160 when the team was known as the Dallas Chaparrals of the American Basketball Association.

"We knew we had lost games we should have won last week," said Billy Paultz, who scored a season high 28 points. "Tonight we came out running with our heads in the right direction."

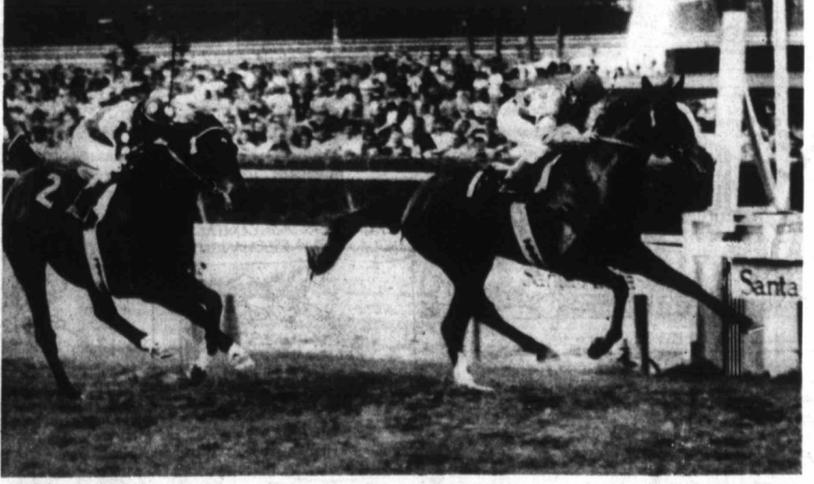

It was the Spurs' rebounding that set up their familiar fast break. For the first time in recent memory, San Antonio overwhelmed the opposition on the boards, 61-43.

"This may have been the best rebounding game in my three years as coach of the Spurs," said Doug Moe. "Through the first three quarters we were playing as aggressively at both ends as we have all season."

George Gervin, the league's leading scorer, paced the Spurs with 38 points despite sitting out the entire fourth quarter. Seven Spurs hit in double figures as the club shot 59 percent from the field.

"They just beat us in every phase of the game," said Clippers Coach Gene Shue. "They run and shoot better than anyone. They are also one of the best passing teams I've seen."

FIRST AND SECOND — Amazer, a 3-year-old filly, crosses the finish line with jockey Bill Shoemaker up, to win the $150,000 Yellow Ribbon Stakes three-quarters of a length ahead of Drama Critic Saturday at Santa Anita.

Anita's Oak Tree meeting in Arcadia. The winning time of 1:59 1-5th was a new stakes record in the 1 1/4 mile turf race. For Shoemaker, it was his 136th career win in a race worth $100,000 or more.

NBA Roundup

The San Antonio Spurs took no prisoners Wednesday night.

"They just beat us in every phase of the game," said San Diego Coach Gene Shue after dropping an embarrassing 163-125 National Basketball Association decision to the Spurs. "They run and shoot better than anyone. They are also one of the best passing teams I've seen."

The total was the highest in the NBA this season and set a new franchise record for the Spurs. The old mark was 160 when the team was known as the Dallas Chaparrals of the American Basketball Association.

It was the Spurs' rebounding that set up a brilliant fastbreak. Often whipped on the boards last season and so far this season, San Antonio overwhelmed the opposition on the boards, 61-43.

In other NBA action, the Portland Trail Blazers beat the Boston Celtics 112-109; the Los Angeles Lakers turned back the Indiana Pacers 113-111; the Philadelphia 76ers whipped the New Jersey Nets 137-133 in double overtime; the Detroit Pistons crushed the Milwaukee Bucks 117-106; the New York Knicks beat the Seattle Super-Sonics 104-100; the Kansas City Kings defeated the Golden State Warriors 105-97 and the Phoenix Suns whipped the Cleveland Cavaliers 118-96.

George Gervin scored 38 points in only 26 minutes of action for the Spurs, who also got 28 points off the bench from Paultz. Gervin, the NBA's leading scorer, sat out the fourth quarter after hitting 17 of 20 field goal attempts in the first three periods. He got 19 of his points in the third quarter.

Trail Blazers 112, Celtics 109
Lionel Hollins hit two free throws with 25 seconds left to enable Portland to foil a second-half comeback by Boston. Portland opened up a 10-point halftime lead, 60-50, sparked by the inside shooting of center Tom Owens.

Boston, trailing 76-61 midway through the third period, caught the Trail Blazers and moved into a four-point lead, 98-94, with 6:25 remaining in the game. But key baskets by guard Dave Twardzik and forward Maurice Lucas helped Portland take a 110-109 lead.

With just 25 seconds left, Nate Archibald fouled Hollins, who sank two free throws to ice the game.

Lakers 113, Pacers 111
Adrian Dantley sank two free throws with 22 seconds left to lead Los Angeles over Indiana. Dantley led all scorers with 34 points, hitting all 10 attempts from the free throw line.

76ers 137, Nets 133
A jump shot by Henry Bibby with 3:14 left in the second overtime period put Philadelphia ahead to stay as the 76ers edged New Jersey.

The 76ers recovered from a 17-point deficit at the end of the first period and led by 119-117 with three seconds left in regulation. But Eric Money, who scored 37 points for the Nets, tied the game with an eight-foot jumper to send the game into overtime. The Nets had a fourpoint lead with 48 seconds left in the first extra period, but couldn't hold on.

Pistons 117, Bucks 106
Bob Lanier scored 16 of his 35 points in the final period as Detroit came from behind to beat Milwaukee. The bullish center hit Detroit's first three baskets of the closing period and added a free throw to put his team in front to stay at 95-83.

M.L. Carr followed with another three-pointer and rookie John Long with a jumper that made it 100-93 with just under seven minutes left. After the Bucks cut the gap to 104-100, two free throws by Terry Tyler and two more baskets by Lanier quickly vaulted the Pistons in front by 10 points and they coasted the rest of the way.

Knicks 104, Sonics 100
Bob McAdoo came off the bench to score 31 points and help break open a tight game in the last 3 1/2 minutes as New York beat Seattle. The Knicks trailed 93-92 with 3:33 left before McAdoo went to work. He scored eight of the Knicks' final 12 points as New York claimed its sixth victory against seven losses.

Gus Williams scored 22 points for the losers.
Kings 105, Warriors 97
Phil Ford scored 21 points and did a good defensive job on John Lucas, leading Kansas City over Golden State. The 21 points was a professional high for Ford, the All-American guard from North Carolina. Golden State's top scorer was another rookie, forward Purvis Short, who also hit his NBA high with 26 points.

Suns 118, Cavaliers 96
Ron Lee scored 24 points and Mike Bratz added a career-high 20 as the Phoenix bench tallied 66 points to lead the Suns past Cleveland. The Cavs, playing without Campy Russell, managed only 37 points in the first half as the Suns pulled away to a solid 25-points lead at intermission and coasted home.

Knee forced Orr's retirement

TOM SORLEY, former Big Spring quarterback, will lead the Nebraska Cornhuskers into action Saturday afternoon against the nation's number one team, the Oklahoma Sooners. An Orange Bowl berth awaits the winner.

CHICAGO (AP) — The surgically ravaged left knee that cost Bobby Orr so much playing time in recent seasons has claimed the career of the player-man called the greatest defenseman in hockey history.

Orr's attempted comeback from a sixth operation on the knee — the recovery period kept him off skates for more than a year — did not produce enough positive results to suit the high standards of the 30-year-old Chicago Black Hawks defenseman.

So Wednesday, he told a news conference: "I'm officially retiring as a player. I will not make another comeback attempt."

The postoperative pain would not go away, with no cartilage at all left in the joint, the stress of bone rubbing on bone was too much for Orr to bear. So after thinking the matter through, the soft-spoken superstar gave up in futility.

Orr, who will remain with the club as an assistant to Coach-General Manager Bob Pulford, said the decision was a difficult one.

"But I don't feel that I've been cheated," he maintained. "I have one of those injuries that athletes sometimes get. If any athlete came to me with the problem I have, I would recommend he do the same thing. I know I'm no longer able to play."

He managed to play in six of Chicago's first 11 games, contributing two goals and three assists. "But the more I skate," he says, "the more trouble it gives me."

In his 12-year National Hockey League career, Orr set or shared 12 individual NHL records. But because of injuries, mostly to the knee, he played every game in only two seasons.

Obtained as a free agent in June, 1976 after 10 years with the Boston Bruins, Orr played in just 20 games for Chicago in 1976-77 and sat out the entire 1977-78 season. He signed a five-year, $3 million contract with the Hawks, but never cashed a check.

Orr said the contract was for him to play hockey and he hasn't done that. The defenseman explained he is negotiating a new contract with the Hawks that will pay him less than his current pact.

After his sixth and last operation, Orr stayed off skates, but worked to strengthen his knee while helping out in the front office.

He hoped for a comeback. But on Oct. 28, the night he scored for the last time, he was on the ice for four Detroit Red Wings goals. This was an unusual occurrence for the oncespeedy, agile Orr. "I played terrible," he said afterward.

OFF THE ICE FOR GOOD — Bobby Orr, right, Chicago Black Hawks superstar, announces his retirement at press conference in Chicago on Wednesday. Orr's hopes for a comeback were dashed by a ravaged knee after dominating the game for nearly a decade with the Boston Bruins and Black Hawks. Orr will remain with the Black Hawks as an assistant coach. At left is Black Hawks president Bill Wirtz.

AP picks Nebraska

By The Associated Press

It's a proud number to wear — No. 1 — but it's as deadly as a black cat tripping under a ladder and smashing a mirror into 13 pieces. It's like making the cover of a slick magazine.

If you're No. 1, you worry about keeping it. If you're not, you play your innards out to get it.

Such are emotional factors Saturday in the game between No. 1 Oklahoma (9-0) and No. 4 Nebraska (9-1), hungry for revenge. Even if the Sooners have the muscle, the Cornhuskers should have an edge in desire. We'll see.

Last week's score: 45-12, 780. Season: 309-109, 739.

Nebraska 33, Oklahoma 30: After the race horse backs of both teams run each other out of breath, Billy Todd's FG wins it.

Penn State 27, North Carolina State 14: The Nittany Lions prolong major college football's longest winning streak.

Alabama 24, LSU 14: The Tide trumps the Tigers' ace, Charles Alexander, and leads with Tony Nathan.

Southern Cal 32, Washington 20: The Trojans refuse to be upstaged by their northern rivals in the Rose Bowl race.

Texas 18, Houston 14: It's Texas' version of the shootout in the OK corral.

Michigan 30, Northwestern 7: The Wolverines have to be looking ahead to the Purdue game.

UCLA 35, Oregon State 6: The Californians won't give the Beavers much meat to gnaw on.

Rockets sign Coleman

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets will have to waive a player Monday to make room for E.C. Coleman, a five-year forward.

Coleman signed a Rockets contract Wednesday but will not report until Monday.

The former Houston Baptist star was with the Rockets as a rookie in 1973 before he was selected in the expansion draft by New Orleans. He spent three years with the Jazz and then signed a four-year contract with Golden State, staying there one year. Coleman had been unclaimed since Golden State placed him on waivers a week ago.

"E.C. can furnish the Rockets with the one thing they seem to be lacking, defensive ability," said Thomas Vaughn, Houston lawyer and Coleman's agent.

Rudy Tomjanovich, Rockets captain, said he is thankful he now will have to face Coleman only in practice.

"He was by far the toughest defensive player I had to go up against in the four years he was away," Tomjanovich said.

Gymnasts using drugs?

NEW YORK (AP) — When Maurice Chevalier sang about little girls, he probably wasn't talking about Soviet gymnasts because, according to some officials of the sport, these little girls don't get bigger every day.

"When you look at the Russian girls and they tell you how old they are, you can't help thinking that they're taking drugs," said Ernestine Weaver, coach of the American women at last month's World Gymnastics Championships.

An Associated Press report Wednesday quoted several European officials as saying that gymnasts from the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe were using a "brake" drug that works on the pituitary gland to retard the body's development.

The result, according to the officials, is a Peter Pan of the parallel bars who isn't allowed to grow up.

"It looks like they jumped right out of the test tube," said Weaver from her home in Clarion, Pa.

To a gymnast, extra baggage can be a liability when she is trying to whip her frame through arduous maneuvers. Nadia Comaneci, the darling of the 1976 Olympics, blossomed into a 16-year-old woman, 20 pounds heavier, at the World Championships in Strasbourg, France.

"You could see the change in Nadia," said Weaver. "She had become a woman. She had a bustline. She wasn't heavy; she just had grown up."

And you could see the change in her results. Nadia finished out of the money as the Soviet girls — Elena Mukhinina, Nellie Kim and Natalia Shaposhnikova — swept the first three places in the overall standings.

Weaver said Kim was very poised and chatted with the American team about the whereabouts of retired stars Olga Korbut and Ludmilla Tourischeva.

O'Connor undecided

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — After looking at five free-agent wide receivers in a tryout session, San Francisco 49er Coach Fred O'Connor said he has not decided if any will be signed.

The National Football League team has two vacancies, created by Tuesday's release of wide receiver Elmo Boyd and kick returner Larry Jones.

"We're going to fill the spots with receivers, and all of those players can return kicks," O'Connor said after Wednesday's tryouts. "But we won't necessarily choose from those five."

The players in camp Wednesday were James Biscoe, Herman Jones, Robert Woods, Mike Shumann and Jack Steptoe.

O'Connor said two new players would be signed today.

He also was expected to announce today whether starting quarterback Steve Deberg will be replaced by Scott Bull when the 49ers play St. Louis Sunday.

Sergei sparks USSR

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Sergei Tarakanov scored 12 points in the second half to spark a touring Russian team to an 80-69 basketball victory over Kent State University Wednesday night.

Tarakanov finished with 14 points to pace the Soviet national team's balanced offense. The Russians held a 41-36 halftime edge, but a second-half surge boosted the lead to 14 points, 66-52, with 10 minutes left in the game.

Burrell McGhee of Kent led all scorers with 22 points.

Jonak moves up

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Tour rookie Regi Jonak moved from second to first place to lead Donna Adamek by one pin after 16 games of qualifying action in a $30,000 Women's Professional Bowlers Association tournament.

Jonak, 24, averaged 200.5 for her 16 games Wednesday night, while Adamek, 21, winner of two pro titles in 1978, jumped from sixth to second place with a 1,655 series highlighted by a 267 game.

Martha McGowan, leader after eight qualifying games, dropped to third place, 27 pins back.

Following eight additional qualifying games Thursday, the field of 72 bowlers was to be trimmed to the top 24 qualifiers.

Tall Tales contest extended to Nov. 20

South Otselic, N.Y., Oct. 17, 1978... The deadline for the Gladding International Sport Fishing Museum's annual Tall Tales Contest has been extended to November 20th. The winners will receive all-expense paid trips to Ireland.

The overwhelming response to this year's contest, requests by a number of anxious anglers for more time, and the chance to fish the streams and rivers of the "Emerald Isle" have prompted museum trustees to give noble sportsmen everywhere until November 20th to submit their stories.

The 1978 contest is co-sponsored by Aer Lingus (Irish Airlines) and the Irish Tourist Board. Aer Lingus will fly the winners of both the Amateur and Professional Writers Division to Newport House, County Mayo, Ireland from the closest of its departure points: Boston, New York or Chicago.

The lucky anglers will also win an assortment of Gladding outdoor products: Invincible Fly Line, a Pearce-Simpson Depth-sounder-Fishfinder, the Gladding "Angler" fisherman's life vest, and a carry-all canvas bag. The 10 runners-up will receive their choice of Gladding fishing line and a personalized canvas bag.

There are separate categories for professional and amateur writers. Professional writers must indicate their status because they will be judged separately. No formal entry blanks necessary. Send stories to: Gladding Fishing Tall Tales Contest, P.O. Box 586, Back Bay Annex, Boston, Mass. 02117. Include name, address and telephone number.

BSHS V-ballers

The Big Spring High School girls' volleyball team put their district title hopes on the line tonight when they host the San Angelo Bobcats at 7:00 in Steer gymnasium. A victory is a must if the Steers hope to continue their quest for the district title.

BSHS is 6-0 in second half action, as are the visitors. The visitors shared the first half title with Midland Lee. If the Steers win, they would be assured of meeting the winner of the San Angelo-Lee tilt. If San Angelo wins tonight, they will represent the loop in the state playoffs.

Somalians have not lost their fighting spirit

SHILABO, Ethiopia (AP) — Mohammed Abdulahi Aden is only 12 years old.

He stood in a clearing in the bush with a French-made automatic rifle slung over his shoulders.

The rifle was almost as big as he was, but he carried it proudly, as a warrior should.

"I am a member of the Western Somali Liberation Front army," he announced.

"And I am fighting for my land."

Bloodied but still defiant, ethnic Somalis living in Ethiopia's eastern Ogaden region are continuing a war stretching back 15 years.

Aimed at freeing them from Ethiopian rule, the war is waged against an opposition that includes thousands of Cuban troops, tens of thousands of Ethiopian soldiers and sophisticated Soviet-supplied equipment.

Since the Cubans and Soviet military advisers spearheaded an Ethiopian offensive eight months ago, sweeping through the region to recapture it from the guerrillas and regular Somali troops, the Ogaden war has slipped from public view.

But a three-day trip through part of the Ogaden — the first made by foreign journalists since the March offensive — found that the ethnic Somalis who populate the area have lost none of their fighting spirit. They are determined to press forward with their "war of liberation" — one they consider no different from others that have ended colonial rule in Africa.

The mostly nomadic Ogaden Somalis — numbering between 2 million and 4 million and of the same ethnic stock as the people of neighboring Somalia — are intensely nationalistic. The region has been part of Ethiopia since its conquest in the late 19th century.

But the Somalis consider themselves to be colonized and complain that the world fails to recognize this because the colonization was by black Ethiopians rather than by white settlers from beyond Africa's shores.

Ship explodes in Manila Bay; 30 missing

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Frogmen searched the sunken wreckage of an oil tanker in Manila Bay today looking for at least 30 crewmen missing after a deafening explosion ripped the ship apart.

The underwater rescuers had penetrated the sunken stern of the 20,824-ton ship and were probing the engine room and cabins where most of the missing crewmen were believed to be.

The Philippine coast guard said five other crewmen and a security guard were known dead and another 21 crewmen were hospitalized, some with serious burns.

Newspaper reports said the crewmembers were mostly Indonesian and Hong Kong Chinese. The ship, the Feeso Sun, was based in Hong Kong and registered in Panama to Feeso Sun Tankers, S.A.

The ship had already offloaded its cargo of Chinese crude oil when the explosion erupted Wednesday.

"It was empty, and there were fumes, and there probably were sparks from some source that set it off," Coast Guard Cmdr. Simeon Balitas said.

Balitas said the ship had returned to its anchorage and was being surveyed for damage when the blast took place. The tanker was damaged earlier when it rammed the pier while docking.

Balitas said the captain, Ng Wing Sum of Hong Kong, was ashore trying to get clearance from the owners to drydock the ship when the blast shook the area.

The explosion was offshore from Limay, an industrial complex on the Bataan peninsula 30 miles west of here.

"The explosion was deafening, and it thundered through Limay," said Rene D. Herrera, fire protection supervisor at the Bataan Refinery Corp. where the ship had unloaded some 5.9 million gallons of oil.

"Black smoke rose about 1,000 feet above the ship immediately after the explosion," he said.

The blast split the hull and the bow protruded from the water about 1,000 yards offshore.

When the full-scale war ended and the regular Somali troops pulled back across the border, WSLF officials say, the guerrillas were left with no option but to pull back from their positions, disperse into the countryside and regroup for what they anticipate will be a protracted hit-and-run war.

They are now concentrating on isolating the Ethiopians and Cubans in the towns and cutting their supply lines. In this objective at least, they appear to be successful.

Shilabo is one of the few towns still held by the guerrillas, although it has been deserted for three months after a series of bombing raids by Ethiopian planes. Many of the population of 6,000 are hiding out in the bush fearing further raids. But others have regrouped nearby, building themselves a temporary village of thatched huts and loosely woven shelters of branches.

They hope the village is difficult for Ethiopian fighter planes to spot from the air. So far the village has escaped unscathed.

It is the headquarters for a WSLF committee that oversees a region embracing 100,000 people, says Hussain Muhammed Hassan, the committee's chairman. The committee is responsible for mobilizing the entire area for the war effort. Other regional committees carry on the same work throughout the Ogaden and are the keystones of the WSLF structure, say guerrilla officials.

Each regional committee is divided into sections responsible for political, economic and defense affairs. The most important is defense, said Hassan.

That section picks recruits for the regular WSLF guerrilla army fighting at the fronts, gives universal military training to civilians to enable them to protect themselves, advises on the best way to disperse camels, goats and other livestock from water wells during an air attack and provides manpower to remove the wounded from the battlefields.

"We have no problem recruiting people to fight," Hassan said. "Everybody volunteers, men and women, but the committee keeps back those like the younger children and the elderly."

Not everybody gets a gun. In the town of Jidale, a middle-aged Somali was seen haranguing senior WSLF officials. They explained that he was complaining that the regional committee was refusing to arm him.

"But we dare not do so," said one official. "He is a little unstable and we fear that if we give him a gun, he will rush off into the Ethiopian lines and get himself killed."

The Cubans and Russians have inspired more hatred than even the Ethiopians, since they came to Ethiopia's aid and turned the tide of the war against the Somalis just when they appeared about to capture the entire region.

In a guerrilla line blockading the town of Kebrri Dehara, one fighter recounted how he and a group of comrades dug up the body of a Cuban killed in a battle with the WSLF and placed a slain guerrilla in the grave.

"We wanted a man who fought for his land to be buried in the land — not a Cuban," he said. "We left the Cuban to the hyenas."

Million-dollar check for tip only a joke

DALLAS (AP) — The district attorney's office had some bad news Wednesday for a cocktail waitress who was tipped with a $1 million check from a mysterious visitor from the East. The news was just as important for two dancers at a Dallas night spot who were awarded $500,000 each by the same man, identified as F. Masood Khan, a Pakistani who first bought $75-a-bottle champagne for everybody.

"It was all just a joke," the man's bodyguard-secretary told city prosecutors.

But Craig Stultz, the manager of "elan," the night club where the incident occurred Monday night, said Khan did pay the $2,365.30 champagne and dinner tab — and added a check for $10,000 as a tip, which Stultz said the restaurant would not cash.

One of the recipients of the checks, Mike Christensen, said he had taken the check seriously and failed to see the point of the joke.

"I would like to talk with him... even if it was just for the satisfaction of telling him what a chump he is," said Christensen, 26, a liquor salesman. He said Khan announced a "dance contest" and gave Christensen and his dance partner — a woman Christensen grabbed at random to enter the "contest" — the checks as "winners."

"I've got an attorney working on it and he claims that it was a breach of promise," Christensen said. "When the man puts down $2,300 for Dom Perignon (champagne) and tacks on a $10,000 tip, I wasn't even skeptical in the least."

He said he already made a down payment on a house because of the money "and he left me hanging."

The waitress who was given the $1 million check has not been identified, but Christensen said she was in shock because she had hoped to help her father pay bills for open heart surgery he is to undergo next week.

Before arriving at the night club, Khan, who said he was president of the National Construction Co. of Pakistan and worked out of Washington, D.C., tried to buy out a jewelry store and reportedly spent $600,000 each at two department stores. But he left in each case before the stores could verify his credit.

Frank Dorn of the district attorney's special investigations department said Khan's traveling secretary and bodyguard, Chris Portugal, said stop-payment orders had been placed on the checks given the waitress and the dancers.

"Mr. Portugal told me these three checks would not be honored because they had been given as a joke," Dorn said. He said the recipients had not complained to authorities and no charges or accusations had been lodged against Khan.

Stultz said the club decided to reject a $10,000 tip — also a check — because of policy.

"The price already had a 15 percent tip built in," Stultz said. "We just thought the $10,000 was exorbitant. Pakistan is sort of a poor country, and we thought it just wouldn't be good for us."

Probe begins again

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators are renewing their probe for the truth in James Earl Ray's various confessions and denials that he killed Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

In a month-long series of public hearings opening today, the House Assassinations Committee expects to deal with conflicts in Ray's statements since he was arrested for the April 4, 1968, murder of the civil rights leader in Memphis, Tenn.

The committee hopes to answer at least some of the questions lingering from disclosure in August that a retired Scotland Yard detective contends he heard Ray boast of killing King.

Alexander Anthony Eist, who now operates a pub in Cambridge, England, has told committee investigators he was assigned to guard Ray while the American was jailed in London. Ray was arrested there in June 1968 and later was returned to Memphis where he pleaded guilty to killing King. He was sentenced to 99 years in prison.

Ray later recanted the confession and repeated his claims of innocence in testimony to the committee last August.

Describing his jail talks with Ray, Eist told committee investigators, "There isn't any doubt from the conversation that he told me that he was admitting to me that he had done the murder."

Contending Ray spoke of hating blacks, Eist continued, "He was telling me that for him to have shot a black man of note in certain parts of America would make him into a national hero."

Eist said he told his boss about Ray's statements but was advised the FBI already had the information he offered and Ray's statements to jailhouse guards would not be admissible as evidence in a trial.

He said he decided to give his account to the committee after learning of the House hearings and continuing public concern about the case in the United States.

Ray's attorney, Mark Lane, has attacked Eist's credibility and denounced him as corrupt and "a disgrace to the England police force."

Eist was charged in 1976 with two counts of conspiracy in connection with jewel robberies and was found innocent of both charges.

He retired in 1976 at the rank of detective chief inspector after 28 years on the Scotland Yard force.

Dollar takes another dip in Europe

LONDON (AP) — The dollar dipped again on European exchanges today. Gold bullion prices eased on what dealers called "technical factors."

It was the third straight day of decline for the dollar following four days of modest improvement from record lows last week.

Dealers said they were taking a wait-and-see attitude pending a new conference by President Carter later in the day and also watching to see how the U.S. Federal Reserve would react to the latest setbacks.

In Tokyo, the dollar sank to 186.70 yen from 188.40 Wednesday. That was despite a $180 million support purchase by the Bank of Japan, dealers said.

In London, the British pound was quoted at $1.9740, compared to $1.9735 Wednesday.
