Krueger, Hill requesting recounts

By CARLA WALKER

Howard County Commissioners had a busy afternoon Monday, so busy that they were unable to complete the agenda. As a result, the group recessed until 10 a.m. today when they began canvassing the results of the election in all but two races, the U.S. Senate contest and the governor's race.

Democratic candidates Bob Krueger and John Hill have asked for recounts in 42 Texas counties which use electronic voting systems, of which Howard County is one.

County Commissioners set the cost of executing the recount at a total of $500-$250 for labor, $150 for use of the computer, and $100 for supplies.

District Judge Ralph Caton signed an order allowing a representative of the two candidates to view the program, the materials used in the test run and the voting devices. However, Caton refused to sign the recount order until the candidates put up the required $500 fee.

According to County Clerk Margaret Ray, should the election reverse the original count for the county in favor of either of the petitioners, the $500 fee would be refunded to the candidates. However, should the outcome remain the same the County keeps the fee even if there are a few votes difference.

The last recount in Howard County was in 1974, when there was a one vote difference between Peggy Crittenden and Fern Cox, who were then vying for the office of District Clerk. The election was on paper ballots, prior to the advent of electronic voting in Howard County, and the one-vote difference remained after the recount, with each candidate gaining six votes.

Prior to that, Bill Crocker contested the apparent election of May Haden in 1968, and a mistake was located in that election, changing the outcome. Crocker, now in his third term on the Commission, won the race by over 160 votes in the recount.

"There may be a few changes where the wear and tear on punch ballots has weakened them, but those will be very few. The chances of the vote changing more than a few ballots over the County are almost nonexistent," said Mrs. Ray.

According to the Associated Press, the Hill-Krueger recount requests met with stiff resistance in counties such as Harris, Randall and Bee, and ran into some problems in Dallas.

Officials in Harris Houston County, the most populous, canvassed votes Thursday and say they have "no intention" of recounting unless ordered to do so.

The canvass was also complete in Bee and Randall counties where officials also turned down the request for another count.

In Dallas County officials will conduct an official recount of the Hill-Clements race, but only an informal audit of the Krueger-Tower contest.

State District Judge Leonard Hoffman Monday denied a request by Krueger for a recount in Dallas County. Tower's lawyers objected to the request because it was not filed before the canvass and was not signed by either the candidate for 25 citizens.

Most other counties, like Howard, are waiting for authorization or guidelines from Austin before setting dates for new counts. A few counties, however, including Wichita, Gregg, Nacogdoches and Galveston have tentatively scheduled recounts.

In Monday afternoon's session, commissioners extended their contract with Prichard Abbott, the firm which figures the County Tax roll. The fees that will be paid to the company will be 4.5 cents per $100 valuation and 25 cents per item of property appearing on the tax roll.

Bids were awarded for office supplies and equipment for county offices. Big Spring was awarded a $1,176 bid for three tables, two typewriter desks and two steno desks, as well as a $2,140.57 bid for office supplies.

Five typewriters will be purchased from Marlon Office Machines on their bid of $3,505.50, and the business was also awarded the bid on a dictating machine. The Marlon bid was $1,294 for the machine and $108 for the service contract.

Hester Office Supply successfully bid to supply the county with seven file cabinets at a total of $1,025. Commissioners asked for a rebid on roller shelf units for the offices of the County Treasurer and the County Clerk.

Librarian John Deats appeared before the Commissioners concerning requested renovations of the County Library. The Commissioners noted that $135,000 to $140,000, the expected cost of the work, was a lot to spend at one time, and asked Deats to see about breaking the work into four stages so the funds could be spent over a longer period of time.

In the continuation of the Commissioners Court this afternoon, the group hopes to conclude canvassing of the uncontested races in the election, and plan to discuss a contract with Alert Ambulance Service.

Big Spring gets new taxi service

By JAMES WERRELL

Big Spring now has a new taxi service which will begin official operations immediately.

The contract for the service was awarded to Billy G. Lee, who runs a similar operation in Midland, during today's regular meeting of the city council. A second applicant, Milton Lozano, was denied a permit after telling council members that it would take 45 days to purchase cars, and begin operating.

Lee presently operates in the city with four cabs and hopes to raise the number to five when operations reach full swing.

The council also approved on an emergency basis a change in cab rates. Under the new rate system, a passenger will be charged 95 cents for the first quarter mile, and 10 cents for each additional fifth of a mile.

Cost of an additional passenger is 25 cents, and waiting time will cost $10 per hour. Each mile driven outside city limits will cost 70 cents.

Council members decided to pay Alert Ambulance Service a flat monthly subsidy instead of a fee based on the number of emergency calls per month. The city will also grant Alert an 18-month contract on the condition that Howard County goes along on a joint contract.

The subsidy per month was set at $2,000, and will be paid retroactively for November. At a meeting Monday, Howard County Commissioners agreed to raise their subsidy of the service from $25 to $35 per call outside city limits.

The council depended on the recommendation of City Manager Harry Nagel to make its decision, and Nagel had been confused by actions taken by Alert's manager Wayne Kohlenberg.

Kohlenberg had called Nagel Monday, and sent the city a letter informing them that he would end service and terminate his contract on Dec. 15. Kohlenberg then appeared at today's meeting with the $2,000 subsidy proposal.

"I really haven't had a chance to think this over. You've caught me unaware. I thought you (Kohlenberg) told me you were leaving," said Nagel.

Then, after a phone call to County Judge Bill Tune, Nagel recommended the temporary subsidy arrangement with the stipulation that the county must go along before it is extended.

"We have a joint contract with the county, and I would hate to preempt them, and form a separate agreement. If the county rejects the agreement, then we (the city) can reconsider," he said.

County Commissioners had scheduled a meeting for 1 p.m. today to discuss a proposal from another ambulance company to provide service to the city and county.

A bid for the purchase of 10 cars for the police department was awarded to the Bob Brock Ford Dealership, and will total $60,926.57. The city will purchase nine cars for patrol work, and one for Chief of Police Stanley Bogard.

All will be LTD IIs, with customized patrol cars estimated to cost $6,164.49 apiece. Bids from the Dewey Ray Chrysler Dealership for $64,326.80, and from the Pollard Chevrolet Dealership for $63,852, were rejected.

In passing minutes of the minutes of the meeting of the Big Spring Traffic Commission, the council approved the installation of a traffic light at the intersection of 17th and Lancaster. The light will begin operating Thursday morning.

The council also approved the sale of a lot in the Monticello Addition, south of Howard College, to Monroe Godwin. He will pay $750 for the property, which the city "will be glad to get back on the tax rolls," according to Nagel.

During the meeting, Mayor Wade Choate was authorized to executive a maintenance agreement with the Texas Highway Department for traffic signals in the city. The lights are located at both sides of the intersection of U.S. Highway 87 and FM 700, at Third and Birdwell and at Fourth and Birdwell.

In other business, council members:

—Approved payment of $733.06 to Adolfo G. Saldivar, 1108 N. Nolan, for damages to his car which was hit by a city vehicle.

—Appointed C.R. Crim Engineering as the firm to handle additions and improvements to the city's wastewater treatment plant. This is the formal adoption of actions taken approximately one-and-a-half years ago, according to Mayor Pro Tem Polly Mays.

—Accepted minutes of meetings of the Big Spring Steering Committee, the Tourist Development Council, the Traffic Commission, the Structural Standards Board and the City Council.

—Awarded a contract for the purchase of 25 sanitary containers to low-bidder EMCO Corporation at a cost of $6,304.

—Awarded money to Modesta's Inc., 602 Main, for damages incurred when a sewer backed up during a rain storm.

—Approved the second and final reading of the ordinance changing rates for pro rata water and sewer extensions.

37,000 striking oil workers returning to jobs in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Some 37,000 striking oil workers were reported flocking back to Iran's oilfield and refineries today, ending a two-week walkout that cut production more than half, cost the treasury an estimated $750 million in oil revenues and bolstered the foes of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

The strike leaders agreed to call off the walkout after meeting with officials of the state oil monopoly, the National Iranian Oil Co., company spokesman Nezammuddin Mezeyeni said. The end of the strike bolstered a belief that the shah had weathered the recent serious challenge to his 37-year reign.

The strikers' committee claimed in a statement that "the shah has pledged to meet our political demands," but there was no confirmation of this. The demands included an end to martial law, declared Sept. 8 amid nationwide turmoil; restoration of civilian government and the release of all political prisoners.

The ruler approved a 22.5 percent pay increase for the workers last week.

The oil company reported strikers thronging back to work all over the southwestern Kuzestan oil fields and at the giant refinery complex at Abadan, on the Persian Gulf.

"We expect a 100 percent turnout," Mezeyeni said.

He said production at Abadan, the world's biggest refinery, should return to the prestrike level of 500,000 barrels a day by midnight. But he said it would take five or six days for production of crude from the oil fields to be brought up to the normal 6 million barrels a day from production Monday of 2.7 million barrels. Well-head output was cut back during the strike and has to be phased back slowly to avoid damaging equipment.

Iran is the world's second biggest exporter of oil, after Saudi Arabia. Half a million barrels a day is used domestically, and the rest is exported, including 900,000 barrels to the United States.

As the workers streamed back, George Link, a key American oil executive, narrowly escaped an attempt to blow him up. A bomb planted in his car exploded as Link, the American director of Oil Services Co., was getting into the vehicle in Ahwaz, in the heart of the southwest oil fields, officials reported. The driver was seriously injured.

Oil Services Co. operates the oil fields on contract for the national oil company. It is a consortium composed of Exxon, British Petroleum, Royal Dutch Shell, the French petroleum company and seven smaller U.S. firms.

Scores of Americans have received death threats in the past two weeks of heightened opposition to the shah's rule and foreign support of his government. About 250 U.S. nationals, most of them women and children, left Ahwaz, but most Americans interviewed said they would ignore the threats.

At the start of the strike on Oct. 31, the output of crude oil dropped to 950,000 barrels a day. Production was partially restored by foreign experts and military technicians and reached 2.7 million barrels Monday. Four supertankers were already waiting at a Persian Gulf jetty for loading.

Two votes per precinct will change two top races

By WALT FINLEY

A difference of two votes per precinct will change the election results in the governor's race between Democrat John Hill and Republican Bill Clements.

In the U.S. Senate contest between Democrat Bob Krueger and Republican John Tower a difference of 1 1/2 votes per precinct will change the outcome.

John Rogers, state campaign manager for Hill, said today that "we just want to make sure every vote Hill got was counted. All we are looking for is to make sure there are no mistakes. The race is too close to leave to chance."

Hill and Krueger, hoping to flip last Tuesday's Republican wins, joined Monday in asking for recounts of their votes in 42 Texas counties that use machine or punch-card voting methods and that count for 70 percent of the total 2.3 million votes cast in the state.

Campaign aides in both Democratic camps denied they suspect voter fraud but said the recounts were being requested because of the closeness of the vote.

Hill lost by 18,437 votes, while lost a bid to unseat Tower, according to an informal canvass made by Secretary of State Steve Oaks.

West Texas counties included in the recount request are Howard, Andrews, Tom Green, Ector, Reeves and Midland.

Monday was the last day for official recount requests of machine or computer totals. Machine ballots could have been destroyed Thursday had it not been for the recount plea.

A call for paper ballot recount can be made any time within the next 30 days. Paper ballot recounts must include all counties in the state, according to the Texas Election Code.

At last there's a Republican governor in Texas, maybe. The Republicans get a governor every 105 years whether they're entitled to one or not.

Prince's calendar jammed

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles, the bachelor heir to Britain's throne, is 30 years old today, but the birthday party won't be until Wednesday night.

The prince's calendar today was too crammed with official duties for much celebrating. After receiving gifts from his family at breakfast, he was to sit for a portrait, welcome visiting President Antonio Ramalho Eanes of Portugal, turn on the Christmas lights in Regent Street and attend a state banquet for Eanes.

But Wednesday night will be Charles' night at Buckingham Palace. His parents, Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh, invited 20 for dinner and 350 to a birthday ball afterward.

"Tiaras will not be worn," said the invitations. Charles, whose taste in music usually runs to Berlioz and similar composers, invited his favorite American pop group, The Three Degrees, and a West Indian steel band to entertain.

The guest list for the dinner included the former king and queen of Greece, Princess Elizabeth of Yugoslavia, Prince and Princess George of Hanover and Crown Princess Beatrix of Holland and Prince Claus.

Dancing into the night with his latest girlfriends, including Lady Sarah Spencer and Lady Camilla Fane, polishes the prince's image as a dashing jet-setter and the world's most eligible bachelor.

Whether doing the samba into the early hours in Rio, skiing the Swiss Alps or charging about on a polo pony, the Prince of Wales is known as a fun-loving, man of action.

Same old tune

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The truth is out. Residents of other states, surveyed about Nashville, say they think of country music or something similar when they hear Nashville mentioned.

A Nashville firm, Shockley Research Inc., polled 900 persons in Dallas, Chicago and Cincinnati this summer for the local Chamber of Commerce. The survey, made public Monday, was designed to help locals determine the image Nashville should present to tourists.

"We want to keep that image," Terry Clements, Chamber of Commerce tourism director, said Monday, "but we want to expand on that image as well."

"The whole reason that the thing was done was to determine where we should advertise and what the thrust of that advertising should be. We tried to choose markets that were good tourist markets for Nashville."

The home of former President Andrew Jackson, local scenery and Civil War battlefields are items that may get more attention on the billboards.

Pollsters questioned 300 persons in each city, asking them to associate Nashville's name with something. Officials said the persons polled had never visited Nashville.

Of the respondents, 28 percent said they thought of country music, 23 percent said the Grand Ole Opry, 12 percent said country and western music, 12 percent said Tennessee, 4 percent said entertainment and 1 percent said Opryland, recording studios, the movie "Nashville," mountains or scenery.

$243,000 ingots caper

NEW YORK (AP) — The FBI and local police are searching for three men who hijacked a tractor-trailer truck and made off with its cargo of $243,000 worth of tin ingots after abandoning the vehicle.

Police said the truck, owned by the Hughes Bros. Transportation Co. of Brooklyn, was hijacked Monday while stopped at an intersection on Staten Island. Two men forced the driver out of the cab and ordered him into a car carrying a third man. The driver of the truck was later released unharmed, authorities said. Police said they had no suspects.

One disputed ballot

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The race for one Rhode Island state Senate seat is to be decided by one disputed ballot. When paper absentee ballots were counted Monday for the 29th state Senate district, incumbent Democrat F. Daniel Russell and Republican Michael Flynn each had 4,109 votes.

But the way one ballot is marked is causing controversy. Russell's lawyer said the mark over the Republican column is an "H" and should be disqualified because the letter might identify the person who cast the ballot. But Flynn's lawyer says the mark is a double "X," and should be counted. The Board of Elections will decide Thursday whether to declare a winner or hold a special election.

Carter separation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Neither White House officials nor relatives are saying whether President Carter's son Chip and his wife Caron are planning a divorce. But the couple has separated.

"I don't know if it's a divorce or legal separation or what," Rosalynn Carter's press secretary, Mary Hoyt, said Monday in announcing the separation.

She said Caron Carter and the couple's 20-month-old son, James Earl Carter IV, have returned to Georgia. Chip, 28, will continue to live in the White House and work at the Democratic National Committee.

The statement announcing the split added that the young couple "know that their friends respect their decision to make no further public comment."

Harra looks, sings like Elvis

Johnny Harra, the Elvis look alike who will be singing at the Dorothy Garrett coliseum Saturday night at 8 p.m. not only looks like Elvis, he sings like Elvis.

And he was doing his Presley imitation for 15 years long before "The King was Dead."

Harra appeared at the Brass Nail to a packed house in 1977 shortly after Elvis died his sudden death.

He went from Big Spring to Las Vegas where he has had a year long successful tour at the Silverbird Casino. He was really packing them in.

Harra will tell you quickly, "There will never be another Elvis. All I'm trying to do is bring back a few memories for people."

When he appeared before 20,000 at the Cotton Bowl a few weeks after Elvis death, a fight broke out between 15 girls fighting over a scarf he threw into the crowd.

Harra copies Presley's mannerisms and really brings back the memories. His costumes are made by a West Texas lady who was earlier an Elvis fan. And they really are reminiscent of the king.

But Harra's "Tribute to Elvis" is more than just a man trying to imitate a legend. It is an entertainer doing what comes naturally.

Johnny is an entertainer in every respect. He captivates his audiences much like the great entertainers of the past — including Elvis. Like Elvis, Johnny is known to forget a word or two of a certain song and will improvise.

Like Elvis, Harra will drape a scarf over a woman's neck and bend over to receive a kiss in return.

National sales conference

Aggressive production stressed in speech

By MARJ CARPENTER

"Petro Fina employees, including the Cosden Refinery, are expected to be aggressively pursuing the production of Poly Styrene during the coming year," Ken Naumann, vice president for American PetroFina Chemical sales division, said.

Naumann said at the national sales conference being held at the Brass Nail in Big Spring, "We'll also be making more unleaded gasoline as the demand increases."

He said that there is going to be a tight supply due to the availability of feeder stock and that this will cause higher prices for such products as Styrene Monomer and Poly Styrene.

However, at the dinner meeting at the Big Spring Country Club Monday night, Rm Medley challenged the sales people and offered optimism that "1979 may be one of Petro Fina's top years."

Naumann pointed out Monday afternoon that new cars are calling for more and more unleaded gasolines and that the company will be making more unleaded gasoline as the demand increases. They also plan to make more pyro Styrene products. These are the styrenes used for insulation board, coffee cups, and other products.

The group attending the conference here come from Canada, New Jersey, California, Georgia, Illinois, Louisiana, Tennessee, New York and other states.

They include plant managers, region managers, distributors, salesmen, credit managers, and others.

Main speaker at the dinner was James (Doc) Blakely, humorist for Wharton.

He changes accents at the drop of a hat and imitates, Irish, English, Germans, Italians, Japanese and others as he keeps the crowd laughing.

His message is basically on all races working together for success, but he gets it across with a lot of laughter.

Paul Meek, PetroFina president from Dallas, said, "It's good to be back in Big Spring" and also welcomed the employees attending.

Smoking has another ill

DALLAS (AP) — Cigarette smoke seems to dramatically speed the natural deterioration of tiny arteries inside the heart and greatly increase the risk of sudden death, says a Pennsylvania researcher.

Progressive hardening of arteries that feed blood to muscles in the heart may explain why "people who smoke have several times the rate of sudden death—of just falling over dead in the street—than nonsmokers," said Dr. Richard Naeye, who heads the pathology department at the Hershey College of Medicine.

"These small arteries in a 40-year-old person who's been smoking for 20 years look like the arteries of a 70-year-old nonsmoker," he told a news conference Monday during an American Heart Association conference here.

Naeye said the small interior arteries are seldom studied but his research indicates they may be far more important than had been suspected.

More than a quarter-million Americans each year are victims of sudden death—a heart attack that comes without warning and kills within moments, according to the heart association. Although there are other possibilities, the stiffening of arteries inside the heart "is certainly an attractive (potential) explanation for some sudden deaths," Naeye said.

He said a six-year laboratory study of hearts removed from more than 200 human bodies shows the degeneration continues throughout life and may be part of the natural aging process. He said the problem is virtually impossible to diagnose before the damage is done and, in any event, "it's probably an irreversible change."

Naeye said most research has concerned the major arteries outside the heart and their role in heart attacks is well-documented. The much smaller interior arteries have been mostly ignored, he said, because they are extremely difficult to study.

"This disease inside the wall of the heart," he said, "is completely different from diseases in the major arteries outside the heart." The small arteries fuel muscles that drive the heart, causing it to pump blood rhythmically throughout the body. They also supply oxygen to a series of fibers that carry electrical impulses to govern heart beat.

If the fibers are deprived of blood and the oxygen it contains, they begin to die. The incident, alleged by some as an attempted mercy killing, occurred last July 29 at the Johnson County Memorial Hospital in Cleburne. Rains' mother died last month in a nursing home from cancer.

If convicted, Rains could be sentenced to prison for 2 to 20 years and fined up to $10,000. Attorneys said they expect the trial to end by this weekend. District Judge E. Byron Crosier is presiding.

Doctors and nurses who saw a West Texas doctor putting tape over his mother's mouth as she lay in a heavily sedated state were the leadoff witnesses in an attempted murder trial that began today.

An eight-man, four-woman jury was chosen Monday afternoon to decide the fate of Dr. Milton Rains, 51, of Littlefield, Texas. He said the tape he put over his mother's mouth was to hold a moistened piece of tissue intended to relieve her chapped lips.

SNOOPY TO FLY AGAIN — Snoopy, the 50-foot tall Goodyear figure balloon, will be back this year in Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade to do battle with the Red Baron. Snoopy started as an aviator in the 1968 parade, but was changed to an astronaut in 1969. For this year's parade, he was converted back to an aviator, the way he looks here in a test flight over a make-believe soap with camel.

Government getting tough about illegal trash bins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly half the nation's bulk trash bins are unstable traps that have crushed three children to death since they were declared illegal last summer, a federal agency says.

The death toll over the past seven years: at least 21 children. Cost to make them safe: about $25 to $75 each.

Armed with those facts from a report by the Consumer Product Safety Commission, government investigators said today they will be tramping through alleys and parking lots looking for illegal trash bins in a crackdown on collection firms still using them.

A nationwide survey by the commission found that about 40 percent of the country's half-million refuse bins "appear to be dangerously unstable and illegally in use."

The problem is especially acute in innercity neighborhoods, where many children swing from the handles of trash bins while playing.

The June 13 ban covers certain types of bins with slanted sides that can allow the center of gravity to shift under the weight of a child and possibly pin him or her underneath.

As opposed to the truck-sized bins often used around demolition or construction sites, the questionable containers are smaller types often found around apartment parking lots or small businesses.

Sometimes mounted on rollers, they normally range from waist-high to chest-high to an adult and frequently are no more than four feet to eight feet long and about half that deep.

The federal ban prohibits manufacture, sale, rental or other distribution in commerce of unstable bins having a volume of at least one cubic yard.

The commission said its investigators so far have found 2,700 unstable bins in the San Francisco area, 1,250 in Minneapolis and 1,000 in Miami. Inspections in the Seattle, Chicago, New York, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Dallas and Denver areas also have found violations and additional inspections are planned in other areas, officials said.

"Legal action is planned," a commission source said. Violators could be fined up to $2,000 per unsafe bin and further violation could lead to criminal penalties up to $50,000 and one year in jail, the commission said.

The commission says it knows of 21 deaths since 1971 from broken necks, crushed skulls and crushed chests as a result of tipsy trash bins.

The three children the commission says were killed in trash bin accidents during the five months since the ban went into effect ranged in age from 5 to 8 and lived in Georgia, New Jersey and Ohio.

Trash collection firms and manufacturers had a one-year warning before the ban went into effect.

Ball said it will be 1980 or 1981 before cattle growers can replenish their herds enough to increase the number of cattle available for slaughter.

Food prices to rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers can expect retail food prices to rise at least 6 percent next year and maybe by as much as 10 percent if farmers get bad weather and inflation worsens, the Agriculture Department said today.

J. Dawson Ahalt, head of the department's outlook board, said it "seems most likely" food prices will go up "somewhere between the two extremes" in 1979.

Food prices have risen about 10 percent this year, the steepest climb since 1974, when they shot up 14.5 percent. They were up about 6.3 percent last year.

Ahalt also said farmers' net incomes this year will be around $26 billion, up about 30 percent from $20.1 billion in 1977 which was the highest in four years. Another record year for exports of farm commodities, a mainstay of farm income, is in prospect, he said.

Despite rising expenses, Ahalt said farmers' net income next year may equal this year's level. Ahalt's food price forecast was included in a speech prepared for the annual World Food and Agricultural Outlook Conference which opened Monday.

At a similar conference a year ago, the department forecast that 1978 food prices would go up an average of 4 percent to 6 percent, about half the actual rise of some 10 percent.

President Carter predicted last week that food prices will not go up as fast next year and will be "much more stable than in the past."

Payroll tax reduction will be given some employers

Some Texas employers will receive a 1979 reduction in their payroll tax rate, because of the healthy state of the trust fund that pays benefits to the qualified jobless workers of the state.

The rate reduction will amount to two-tenths of one per cent," said Ernie W. Tullis, administrator of the Texas Employment Commission.

"Employers who are already paying the minimum tax rate will not be affected by the reduction," Tullis added. "Neither will certain other employers such as political subdivisions and those who have elected to reimburse the state for benefits paid out."

A rate reduction is required when the unemployment insurance trust fund exceeds $325 million. At the October 1978 computation date, the fund stood at $330,257,448.37.

Tullis said that employers will be notified of the rate reduction in a letter regularly mailed to them each January.

An estimated 65.1 per cent of 236,000 Texas covered employers are already paying the minimum tax rate.

A NEW MAN AT NIGHT!

teachers are growing more militant

Militancy among school teachers is increasing and the trend is unsettling. This year, when classes took up across the land, almost a million of the country's children were told either not to come to school or were told to go home after they arrived there. The reason: No teachers.

In all, more than 50 school districts — ranging from multi-school systems in the big cities to small towns — were the objects of teacher strikes.

THE NOVELTY of a teachers' strike has long since passed. It's happening so often now that such unrest rarely is carried on the front-page and often goes unnoticed. The incidence is increasing. Invariably, the teachers simply are saying: "We're not making enough to live on. All too often, they are right."

The situation could worsen next year, as the cost of inflation goes up and up. Texas will, no doubt, have its share of teacher unrest.

Teachers aren't alone in the sullenness expressed among the working masses. Public employees generally are becoming more abrasive, more outspoken in their demands for money and better working conditions. The deterrent effect of state laws barring public employee strikes has become virtually nil.

Teachers, though, remain a special case, because the effect of a teacher strike is immediate and costly. The effect falls on youngsters, who are deprived of the opportunity to learn. That may have an immediate healthy effect on the humor of the children but even they know they will suffer if the problem endures.

If a strike lasts only a few days, the effect may be minimal, of course, but while it lasts the disruption can be painful.

Even beyond that, the increased militancy of teachers, including the penchant for going on strike, represents a subtle change in education which is far from welcome.

TEACHING HAS been regarded as a profession, a calling. The more labor unrest there is among teachers, the less claim to professional status can be made. That, in turn, is likely to discourage the dedication important to really inspire teaching performance. It becomes a 9-to-5 job like any other, regarded as such both by the public and the practitioners.

We must do more than lament the results. The root of the problem is simple. The teachers have a right to regard themselves as professional people, yet compared to private sector employees of similar training and demands for professionalism and commitment, teachers are invariably and universally worse off financially.

The fact that they feel they're underpaid is what has given teacher unionism its impetus.

Adjustments are going to have to be made by a tax-paying public that is in no mood to ante up more money, or the acceleration toward rebellion will continue — to the detriment, ultimately, of education itself.

Most exacting

Around the rim

Marie Homeyer

Being the only daughter and for a time, the only granddaughter, has its advantages and disadvantages.

Until I was eight years old, my dad's parents only had one granddaughter — me. The extra attention was very nice. But, there was one drawback. I had to wear a dress every time I went to visit my grandparents.

THIS WAS A drawback for several reasons. When I was young I was a tomboy. Since I had no brothers, I played what they played or I played by myself. And, as I didn't like playing by myself, I played football, baseball, climbed trees and (my mother swears) came home with more bumps and bruises than my brothers.

The second reason was that my grandparents lived on a farm. It was rather difficult to ride horses, play with the animals, and all the other things that can be done on a farm — difficult, that is, in a dress.

But my grandmother insisted that her granddaughter "look" like a granddaughter. Therefore, my mother would dress me in what was supposedly "girls'" clothing — dresses. But, she was careful not to put a good dress on me. Although I was encumbered, I did all those things mentioned above.

Despite the dress business, I loved to visit my grandparents.

I loved the wide open land, with trees and green pastures spotted with cows, chickens, horses and a vegetable garden.

I loved to listen to them talk in German. I was filled with enchantment at the mystical sound of their voices. I regret that I never learned very much of the language from them. They never spoke it to us (their grandchildren); only to our parents (my dad and his brothers and sisters were raised with German).

I REMEMBER riding a horse that was being led by my grandfather because I was too young to ride by myself; walking to town on Saturday afternoon with him to buy groceries; collecting eggs late in the afternoon; helping my grandmother in the kitchen as she prepared supper; romping through the pastures with my brothers; chasing the chickens for spite; seeing my brother thrown from an otherwise gentle horse because he did what my grandfather told him not to do — ride through the chickens while they were eating; watching my grandmother churn butter; and watching my grandfather milk the cow (using no modern machinery).

But the best part of the whole visit was sitting down to eat. My grandmother made the best homemade German sausage that I have ever eaten. She knew we liked it by the way we devoured it. She made it every time we came for a visit.

My grandparents are dead now but they will always be alive in my memories.

He won't concede

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Almost every losing candidate who ran for office last week has conceded, except for Mogulthorpe. I found him sitting alone in the "Mogulthorpe for Congress" headquarters.

MOGULTHORPE, I said, "it's been a week since you lost the election by 30 percentage points. Don't you think it's time to concede?"

"Where does it say in the Constitution that a person who loses an election has to concede?"

"There's nothing in the Constitution," I admitted, "but it's just fair play. If you don't concede, your opponent can't make a victory statement."

"Aha," said Mogulthorpe, "that's just the point. I've cheated Zinnsler out of making a patronizing speech congratulating me on the great campaign I waged. Is Zinnsler still at his headquarters waiting to go on television to accept his victory?"

"Yes, and he's getting pretty angry. He's been standing in front of the microphone surrounded by his family and loyal supporters, waiting for you to throw in the towel for a week now. Tempers are short over there."

"Good," said Mogulthorpe, "it will serve Zinnsler right for calling me a carpetbagger."

"It isn't just Zinnsler," I told him, "Walter Cronkite, John Chancellor, David Brinkley, Frank Reynolds and Barbara Walters are all standing by for your concession speech. They can't officially close out their 1978 election coverage unless you admit Zinnsler won."

"BIG DEAL. They gave my election to Zinnsler two minutes after they went on the air last Tuesday, before even one box of ballots had been counted. Why should I care if they're still stuck in their studios?"

"It wasn't Walter, John, David, Frank or Barbara," I said. "It was their computers. You were just a born loser, and the computers knew it before any of the votes were tallied."

"I'm not conceding until the absentee ballots are counted," Mogulthorpe said.

"They have been counted. Zinnsler got 6003 votes and you got only one from a sailor on a nuclear submarine in the Arctic Ocean."

"I knew I should have spent more time campaigning on nuclear submarines," Mogulthorpe said.

"It wouldn't have made any difference. You just weren't meant to be a congressman."

"My wife didn't help me by running off with my campaign manager two weeks before the election," he said.

"You can't blame other people for your loss," I warned him.

"But they took all my television commercials with them."

"Now you're being picky. The point is that Zinnsler beat you fair and square and you owe it to him to concede defeat."

"I don't owe him anything. Why should I congratulate him for humiliating me in front of the entire country?"

"Because we have to close the chapter on the 1978 elections. None of us can start writing about 1980 unless you admit Zinnsler beat you. Are you just going to sit here for the next two years?"

"The rent has been paid on this place until June of 1979."

"But Mogulthorpe," I said, "there is more at stake than your own vanity. The whole nation is watching what you do. If you don't concede the election, it could start a trend and politicians all over the country may decide to refuse to admit they were licked. It could make for a very messy television coverage. You owe it to your country to go on national television and say that you wish Zinnsler all the luck in the world."

Fast pulse doesn't always mean hypertension

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What does pulse rate have to do with blood pressure? — N.A.

No simple answer to this one. The best way to understand it is to know what the doctor is trying to determine when he measures each — pulse rate and the blood pressure.

The pulse rate tells him how fast the heart is contracting, sending surges of fresh blood into the arteries. Normally, this is approximately five ounces of blood about 72 times a minute. Blood pressure tells how efficiently the artery walls are withstanding the volume of blood. One person may have a normal pulse, but because of poor arteries have high blood pressure. Another may have a fast pulse with normal pressure.

Pulse and blood pressure are not always directly related. An overactive thyroid gland may cause fast pulse and be accompanied by high blood pressure. An infant has a fast heart rate, but blood pressure is usually normal. But an elderly person may have a slow pulse with high blood pressure. The combinations are many.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In your booklet on bad breath you say it can be corrected "most of the time." Am I one of the exceptions? I am a 21-year-old male in good health who has not been able to track down the cause of an especially obnoxious bad breath. Can it be caused by an individual's metabolism? As an infant I suffered from lactose intolerance. — J.N.

Who says you have outgrown your lactose intolerance (milk sugar allergy)? One allergy authority I consulted had some interesting things to say about this. He may have hit the mark in your case.

You're never too old to react allergically to cow's milk, and the persistence of a childhood allergy into adult life is not unusual. The puzzling aspect of this is that the symptoms may change with the years. As an infant, yoursymptom might have been diarrhea, for example. In adulthood this might have switched to rhinitis (inflammation of the nasal membranes) — which can cause bad breath. Note, though, that in my booklet I say that most bad breath originates pretty close to the mouth. Cut down on your present milk consumption and have your nose examined. You may not be one of the exceptions at all. Other readers interested in the bad breath booklet ("Bad Breath Can Be Corrected") can have a copy by sending a quarter and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

There are two specific fields of endeavor that I feel need to be brought to the minds of the local public and our public servants.

1. I would like to know why the law does not abide by the laws. I am speaking specifically of the local police. Now and then county officers driving by a school bus and failed to stop when the lights are flashing. I have been driving the school bus for a number of years, and I have witnessed this scene so many times it is disgusting. It has not been more than two weeks since I saw this very thing. They are not on call; they do not have their lights flashing; they are only leisurely passing by. Then within a few hours of doing this they stop a car and issue a ticket in another vicinity for the same incident.

Think it over. Does our police have a right to run over a child any more so than our regular citizens? On the west end of town, I often unload 25 to 30 in one place, and I hold them there until all are unloaded rather than straggling them across the road one at a time. I watch for oncoming traffic to stop, then give them the signal to cross.

Several times, a county car will come wheeling right down through the middle of these children and even though these might be out-of-town officers, if the lights of the bus are flashing, and they are Texas officers they are setting an example for our future officers and citizens who yell, 'hey, can't you see us?'

It is the same when they go through a red light and then ticket someone else for that same light.

2. I would like to know why it is so hard for the library to obtain the necessary funds to update its floor space. I am a genealogical researcher and teacher, and I would like to know what the hold-up is on having to debate and wonder how to allocate the money just recently stated that needs to be spent but can't decide who needs it.

The library has almost 15,000 more books than it had 8 years ago, but it is still cramming them into the original space. There isn't much walking or sitting space left. We have a great library, and outstanding people who staff it. Yet they are expected to perform miracles with what they have and keep everybody happy.

As large a town as we are, and as much activity that goes on in that library, (free decent movies and books for your children) it seems to me that this wholesale baby-sitting job should be given a little priority, and have space made available to them. There is plenty of room in the basement of the present building to really have a blue ribbon library.

I have been to smaller towns that really have outstanding libraries, and make this one look a little sad in comparison of sizes of the towns. Their equipment is updated, and they have more working space, plus they have the interest of the people.

County and city officials take a broader view of the needs of a library, because movies are not the best entertainment for our youth these days, TV is swiftly joining the same quality, and we are beginning to wake up to the fact that our young people can not read or comprehend when they do read.

Books and library equipment are the basic foundation of our country if we are to have a good future for tomorrow's leaders. Where else can you get such good training for our youth, and almost for free? I was raised on "Bobby's Twins, Understood Betsy, Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm, and Pollyanna." If a few more books of this nature were read to our children of today, they might not have time to get out and chunk rocks through the merchant's picture window.

Modern literature now, and I keep up with the times pretty well through our news media, but I do believe we need to give our children a love for our library and all the treasures within its walls. I firmly believe it needs to be overhauled, updated, and made into the kind of library that we would be proud to show to the people of the new industries we encourage to locate here.

I would also like to say, we could use a completely updated, genealogical section. In towns, smaller than this, they have a microfilm section of the United States census, microfiche records, readers that have the attachment that makes copies of the census sheet, hundreds of research books on other states, family histories, and many other records available to the public that puts our section in a very dim light.

When other researchers come here and see the building and think "Oh boy, with a library this size, it should prove helpful," and when they get inside and find everything on one floor, they are really disappointed. When I have a phone call from out-of-town guests who want to see our library, I hesitate to brag.

Modern equipment cannot be purchased, or more books that are much in demand can not be ordered if there is no space to put them when they get here.

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter's "good ole boys" from rural Georgia are supposed to be the political operators of the Administration. But the most patrician member of the circle, Attorney General Griffin Bell, is also no slouch at slick, down-home politics.

He "mediated" — to use the word of a Justice Department official — a squabble which helped his buddies in Savannah pull off a scheme that effectively reduces black representation on the city council. By a curious coincidence, the attorney general's intervention came shortly after his son was appointed to a $40,000 job by the Savannah city fathers.

The interesting sequence of events began last April 17, when Savannah voters approved the annexation of a neighboring township. The new city boundaries meant that voting districts had to be redrawn.

the city attorney submitted some allegedly "new" data to get Days to reconsider. The data was four years old, and under Justice Department regulations, reconsideration must be based solely on information not previously available.

Not only that, the spurious new data consisted of planning commission projections on population trends. A federal court ruling in the 1960s held that such guesstimates cannot be used as a basis for redistricting. That ruling still stands.

But department regulations and legal precedent went out the window. Under the personal guidance of their old Oglethorpe Club buddy, Savannah's white establishment got a complete reinterpretation of the civil rights laws to allow their redistricting to stand.

On Oct. 2, the repentant Days sent a second, much shorter letter to Savannah officials. "On behalf of the Attorney General, I am withdrawing the objection," he wrote.

Whether Days' change of heart was the result of Savannah's "new" data or pressure from on high, we do not know for sure. In a carefully monitored interview with our reporter Bob Ourlin, he gave us the official department line. Our sources in Georgia, however, insist that Days was strongly in favor of Justice Department action to stop the discriminatory redistricting.

Footnote: A Justice Department spokesman denied that the appointment of Griffin Bell's son had anything to do with the department's position on Savannah's redistricting plan. The spokesman also denied that Bell had pressured subordinates to rule in favor of Savannah city officials. The matter came to the attorney general's attention, said the spokesman, when a disagreement arose between Drew Days and Associate Attorney General Michael Egan. Bell "mediated" the squabble, said the spokesman, but the final ruling was worked out by the subordinates.

BLACKS MADE UP 40 percent of Savannah's population. Yet they are already underrepresented on the city council, with only two of six members. After the redistricting, they wound up with two out of eight council seats.

Redistricting that dilutes minority representation has been declared illegal under civil rights statutes by federal court decisions. The Justice Department had conscientiously enforced this interpretation until a town in which the attorney general once lived became involved in such a situation.

Three weeks after the annexation vote, while the fight over redistricting was going on, Griffin Bell Jr. was appointed attorney for the Savannah school system at $40,000 a year.

There is nothing more than coincidence and suspicion to suggest that the junior Bell's appointment might be a quid pro quo for Justice Department approval of the questionable redistricting. Indeed, the assistant attorney general for civil rights, Drew Days III, fired off a scathing letter to Savannah officials, informing them that he could not permit such "dilutive annexation."

AT THAT POINT, Savannah Mayor John Rousakis began making trips to Washington to lobby with the Justice Department. He must have expected a sympathetic reception. For Griffin Bell practiced law in Savannah for several years, and belonged to the exclusive Oglethorpe Club, a white establishment hangout. He was obliged to give up his membership when he was appointed attorney general, because the club admits neither blacks nor women.

The mayor's Washington connection soon paid off. For form's sake, the city attorney submitted some allegedly "new" data to get Days to reconsider. The data was four years old, and under Justice Department regulations, reconsideration must be based solely on information not previously available.

GREEDY PRISONERS: The phenomenal success of "Midnight Express" — the book and movie about a young American's escape from a Turkish prison — has apparently given some other American prisoners in Turkey dubbings of grandeur.

Robert Hubbard, JoAnn McDaniel and Katherine Zenz are serving 24-year prison terms in Turkey for trying to smuggle 264 pounds of hashish into the country six years ago. They are known as the "Antakya Three" — after the city in which they were arrested — and their plight has stirred widespread sympathy in this country.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a teenager, and the world seems like it is in such bad shape that I don't see any reason even to make plans for the future. I think the world will destroy itself before long, don't you? — P.O.

DEAR P.O.: Yes, the world seems sometimes to be out of control. Never in the history of the human race has mankind had such a terrifying capacity to destroy itself.

But you have left God out of the picture. God is still in control ultimately, even if it seems as if evil forces have gained the day. This world will not come to an end one second before God has planned it.

And since you and I do not know when that will be, we are to keep busy. The Christian keeps two things in balance. On one hand, he knows that some day "the present heavens and earth are reserved for fire, being kept for the day of judgment and destruction of ungodly men" (2 Peter 3:7, New International Version). On the other hand, he knows that he is to be faithful in his God-given responsibilities. No matter what the future may hold, we are to be busy in the work of the Lord.

I urge you to yield yourself to Christ. Then you not only will know God is with you, whatever the future may hold, but you also can know His guidance in your life in the future.

Ridin' fence

Sixty years and three days

with Marj Carpenter

It was the silence that got them. World War I was a noisy war.

My Dad said the sound of the shells in the trenches was something hard to imagine.

"Shell shock" was a word devised in World War I.

Suddenly on Nov. 11, 1918 at 11 a.m., the guns were suddenly stilled.

It was the first time in the history of America that Americans had gone on European soil to defend the cause of freedom.

It was supposed to be the War to end all wars and it turned out to be the First World War. The second was bigger and more complicated and more disastrous.

The songs of the two different wars reflect the different tones of the wars.

In World War I, "Over There, Over There, send the word, send the word to beware. We'll be over, we're coming over and we won't come back til it's over over there."

In World War II, there was "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition. Praise the Lord we're all between perdition and the deep blue sea."

It sounded a little more desperate in World War II.

Both wars had their funny songs. World War I had one called, "Good Bye Maw. Goodbye Paw. Goodbye mule with your old bee haw. I may not know what the war's about. But I betcha by golly I'll soon find out. And oh my sweetheart don't you fear. I'll get you a king for a souvenier. I'll get you a Turk and a Kaiser too and that's about all one feller can do."

World War II had a light song that was very popular, and peppy and had a happy lift. "There's gonna be, a certain party at the station. Satin and lace. I used to call Funny Face." That, of course, was " Chattanooga Choo Choo."

In World War I, there was "Oh How I hate to get up in the morning. Oh how I'd love to remain in bed. The hardest blow of all is to hear the bugle call, 'You've got to get up, you've got to get up, you've got to get up this morning." Or in World War II, "Don't sit under the Apple Tree with anyone else but me. Anyone else but me — la, la, la; Don't sit under the apple tree with anyone else but me, till I come marching home."

And there were the really nostalgic ones. In World War I, "Nights are long since you went away. I think about you all through the day."

And in World War II, "Saturday night is the loneliest night of the week. Cause that's the night when my honey and I used to dance cheek to cheek..."

Those who protested the Vietnam conflict thought those were romantic wars. There's nothing romantic about war. If your buddy was blown apart in the trenches of World War I or the foxholes of World War II, each was equally horrible.

Right here in town are men who were prisoners of war under terrible conditions. Here in town are men who were injured for life. Here in town are parents of boys who were killed.

We've passed another Armistice Day and once again, take a moment of silence — like the moment of silence at 11 a.m. Nov. 11, 1918 and remember how it was... for those who died and those who saw them die.

My hats are off to the veterans — all of them — out through the years where I have ridden fence.

By disappearance of Hillside Strangler

Police baffled one year later

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Hillside Strangler, who terrorized this city for months, killed 13 women between September 1977 and last February. Then nothing. Why not? Is he dead? Lying low? Perhaps somewhere else?

They're tough questions, and the detectives who have been chasing the strangler for a year are just as baffled as anyone.

"You got 20 investigators, you got 20 theories," said Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department investigator Frank Salerno, who has been on the case more than a year.

Of the 13 Hillside Strangler killings, police list one in September, two in October, eight in November and one in December, all of last year, and one last February.

It was a year ago this month that police set up the Hillside Strangler Task Force to track down whoever was strangling young women and leaving their nude bodies on the city's hillsides. At its peak last winter the Task Force had 140 members and occupied a large room where phones were ringing off the hooks with tips from citizens.

Rewards totaling $125,000 were offered by the city and the county, but they have since been withdrawn. Gradually the phones stopped ringing, the tips dried up and the Task Force, reduced to 18 investigators, was moved to a smaller room.

The failure to solve this case has been a sore point with police officials for a long time. Last December, Assistant Police Chief Daryl Gates, who headed the investigation, said, "I'm embarrassed every time I look at myself in the mirror."

Gates, who has since been promoted to chief, has insisted all along that his men would solve the case. The department's top spokesman, Cmdr. William Booth, says the chief still feels the case will be solved. "He does, I do and the investigators do," Booth said.

According to Booth, the Task Force is now "sharpening its focus, separating the wheat from the chaff as to what is a valuable lead and what is not."

He says that even now, nine months after the latest killing, investigators "have a number of good leads." But sheriff's investigator Salerno tells a different story. "At this point we have no tangible leads," he said. The sheriff has jurisdiction in two of the murders and works closely with the police Task Force.

About a year ago women here were scared. Many wouldn't venture out alone, especially after dark. Self-defense classes sprang up at colleges and high schools.

But time has dimmed the fears and interest. There have been other things to think about — heavy rains and mudslides, Proposition 13, mandatory school busing, brushfires that burned 200 homes, the San Diego air collision, the election, a new series of killings but this time with victims less worrisome to the public — derelicts, not young women.

Around town today, you won't hear talk of the strangler. That was yesterday's problem.

The case isn't solved, but the killing ended.

As Booth put it: "The fire, so to speak, was put out. For whatever reason, this series of crimes was stopped."

From oil-producing nations

Carter wants moderation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal is heading for the Middle East, where he is expected to appeal to oil-exporting nations to keep price increases next year to a minimum.

The Carter administration hopes its new measures to support the dollar and control inflation will convince oil-exporting nations to be moderate in their price demands.

U.S. officials fear a big increase in the price of oil could add to inflationary pressures and also increase the risk of a new recession.

The administration already is resigned to an increase in the world price of oil of at least 5 percent, and one official said Monday that a 10 percent increase would not be surprising.

"People are now talking about 10 percent as being more likely," Van Doorn Ooms, assistant director of the Office of Management and Budget for economic policy, told reporters.

An increase of 10 percent, $1.27 on top of the current price of $12.70 per barrel, could bring an increase in gasoline and home heating oil prices of between 1 cent and 2 cents per gallon.

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department said today consumers can expect retail food prices to rise at least 6 percent next year and maybe by as much as 10 percent if farmers get bad weather and inflation causes their production costs to rise more than expected. Retail food costs have been rising this year at a rate of about 10 percent.

Blumenthal, who leaves Thursday, will spend three days in Saudi Arabia, from Friday to Sunday, and also will visit Iran, Kuwait and Abu Dhabi, three other key oil-exporting nations. The trip will take place just a few weeks before members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meet in Abu Dhabi in mid-December to set prices for 1979.

There were these economic developments Monday:

—The stock market had a bad day in response to a variety of adverse economic news, with the Dow Jones industrial average giving up 15 points to close at 792.01.

—The dollar was little changed against other major currencies, gaining slightly in value against the Japanese yen and German mark, while losing slightly against the Swiss franc.

—Some major banks increased their prime lending rate again — from 10.75 percent to 11 percent. The increase reflects the steady upward rise in interest rates that has resulted from government efforts to slow inflation.

—Director Barry Bosworth of the Council on Wage and Price Stability said the least painful way to control inflation may be to tolerate a slow-down in the economy next year.

—Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said an 8.3 percent rate increase sought by the nation's railroads is too high, and revealed the administration's will seek an end to economic regulation of the railroad and trucking industries.

—The Commerce Department said retail sales declined 0.5 percent in October, reflecting sluggish consumer spending during the month.

—The nation's trade deficit could decline to $25 billion next year from the record $35 billion deficit this year, the result of a better all-around economic performance in the industrial world, said Assistant Treasury Secretary C. Fred Bergsten.

—U.S. Steel President David M. Roderick said in Cleveland his firm should be able to live within President Carter's voluntary pricing guidelines if the corporation's suppliers do the same. "Fifty percent of our costs come from things purchased from others," said Roderick. "If they all stay down, we will have a chance."

Blumenthal's trip to the Middle East was scheduled before the recent outbreak of violence in Iran and the strikes that have sharply curtailed its oil output. However, he unquestionably will try to learn how serious the situation is since a prolonged interruption of oil exports by Iran would put additional upward pressure on world prices.

"If Iran closes down, you're in a different ballgame" with respect to oil prices and the economic outlook, Ooms said Monday.

The stated purpose of Blumenthal's trip to Saudi Arabia, the world's number one oil exporter, is to attend the annual meeting of the U.S.-Saudi Joint Commission, which was established in 1974 to develop closer economic ties between the two countries.

Veto will mean higher beef prices?

FORT WORTH — President Carter's "pocket veto" of the Meat Import Act of 1978 Saturday night virtually assures higher beef prices for American consumers for several years, says John B. Armstrong, president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, representing 14,000 cow-calf producers in Texas and surrounding states.

"Retail beef prices will remain high for years to come," Armstrong said, "because farmers and ranchers have very little incentive to rebuild their herds and their confidence in the government has been shaken severely by the President's action."

Current domestic cattle numbers are down because producers have been forced to sell off their herds in recent years as the cattle industry went through a financial bloodbath.

"This legislation would have given cattlemen and consumers much-needed market stability.

Beverly Nicholson, Home Economist for Texas Electric, is trained and experienced in the efficient use of electric appliances.

"For every way to use electricity in the kitchen, there's a way to use it more efficiently."

"Keeping your heating and cooling costs down are the biggest ways to save electricity, but there are lots of little ways, too.

Part of my job is finding the most economical way to use your kitchen appliances. Here are some ideas I've found useful:

Use flat-bottomed pans. The flatter the pan the better its contact with the cooking unit. A tight-fitting lid on your pan will reduce cooking time.

Use less water. By cooking vegetables with the least amount of water possible, you'll improve their appearance, nutritive value, and save electricity.

Reduce cooking time. Thaw meats before cooking them. This will save cooking time and energy.

Use your oven timer. Opening your oven door unnecessarily causes heat loss and extended cooking time.

Friends and relatives of

Hubby Can't Put On Heirs

DEAR ABBY: Gary and I have been married for a year, during which time he's been a perfect husband. I'm 24 and he's 26.

Last week I learned that Gary had a vasectomy before we were married. He didn't tell me. I found out accidentally when I came across his medical records.

Before we were married he promised me a family. How should this be handled?

WANTS CHILDREN

DEAR ABBY: Unfortunately, your husband's credibility is consistent with his fertility. (Imagine promising you a rose garden when he knew he had no seeds!)

I need more information. Why did Gary have a vasectomy? (If he dislikes children, he'd probably make a poor father.)

Is his vasectomy irreversible? (Some are not.) If his is, and he now wants a family, there are children to adopt, you know.

This world needs responsible parents more than it needs more children.

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago a man we employed for many years in our retail business left us to open his own store—in competition with us. No particular ill will was involved, but we were not overjoyed since we had taught him the business from the ground up.

We continue to do well, but this man has done even better because he has a better location.

A friend of ours seems to take a perverse pleasure in constantly pointing out our competitor's ads in the newspaper, and talking endlessly about what a fantastic success he has made in such a short time. We are bewildered and somewhat hurt.

Are we overly sensitive? We feel very uncomfortable having to listen to this subtle form of needing every time we're in this person's company.

Any suggestions?

Glasscock 4-H Food Show winners named

Thirty-four Glasscock County youths vied for the winning places at the Glasscock County 4-H Food Show Friday. This is the largest show that has taken place in the county in at least five years.

With a theme of "Cooking Good, Looking Great," the 4-Hers centered their thoughts around low-calorie nutritious foods.

First-place winners in the Senior Division include Debbie Beasley, who prepared Wheat Loaf; Elaine Schwartz, whose specialty was Chicken

Bunwiches; and Sandra Schwartz who made Beef Zucchini the main dish of the day. Denise Schwartz won with a side dish of Summer Squash Casserole.

First-place winners in the junior division are Brenda Havlak, who took top honors with a Low Calorie Fruit Salad entered in Breads and Desserts. Carol Hoelscher made a very nutritious snack of egg dip, and Michele Pechacek made Tuna Stuffed Eggs for her main dish. If hot is what you like, then Stephanie Frerich's Jalapeno Rice will be your favorite.

The girls were judged on their nutritional information, the quality of the food they prepared and their learning experiences.

The 4-H Food Show is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Morrison Milling Company and the Co-op Gin.

In the Junior Man Dish division Mariann Hoelscher was the alternate winner. Blue ribbon winners were Debbie Bednar, Charlee Schraeder, Tavia Murphy and Robyn McDaniel. Red ribbon winners were Lynn Sparks and Cecelia Hirt.

Woman chooses life at sea

CLEARWATER BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Men do the most fishing, but women catch the most fish, says Rosalie Mulder.

And it has nothing to do with skill, she says. It's because the women—and children too—follow instructions better.

Mrs. Mulder is the skipper of a charter fishing boat. For the past seven years she has been taking groups out into Gulf waters on daily fishing excursions.

"In my peak years when the fish were running, I made 300 trips," Mrs. Mulder says. "Today you have a lot of private boats that have just as good equipment as charter boats do."

"Five years ago, you could catch a decent amount of fish. Ten years ago, you didn't have to worry at all. But today, fishing is getting very hard and you have to keep up with the latest equipment to stop right over where they are."

She captains a 40-foot, twin-engine craft equipped with sophisticated gear including a depth recorder and fish finder, and a scope that scans the waters below and flashes back pictures to show what fish are beneath the vessel.

She fishes the offshore waters between Cedar Key and Sarasota, taking groups of six on a full day excursion for $225 or a half day for $150.

The divorced mother of four grown children had been secretary for years when she decided she wanted to get away from the business world.

She had always liked fishing. "I went fishing every available moment, even in the middle of the night. I became fanatical. It was my thing," she says.

She was on an outing with friends when a charter boat crew caught her attention. She left a note for the skipper, Ernie Berger, asking for a job and was hired a few days later. Mrs. Mulder started out as Berger's first mate and 18 months later began studying to get her own charter license. She found the business was fiercely competitive. But it's worth it, she says. "Your mind rests when you are out there. There really is nothing any better for you. It's wonderful therapy."

Brother needs help

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

It's guest writer time and Jay Allen, 16, of Scranton, Pa., and Nelda Peterson of Modesto, Calif., will assist Linda of Joliet, Ill., with a serious family problem.

Doctor Wallace: I'm 12 years old and believe my older brother, 18, is on drugs. Yesterday, I overheard him asking one of his friends for a couple of "downers." I know they are drugs but I never heard of them before. What effect do they have on the person taking them? Should I tell my mother? — Linda.

Linda: "Downers" are a depressant and the symptoms are slurring of speech, slow movement of the body and extreme lethargy. When on "downers" the person can become angry at the slightest provocation. Driving an automobile is very dangerous because of a loss of coordination. To sum it up, it's a bad scene.

In your case, I would share it with mother. Your brother needs help. Hi Linda: I know you don't like to be a tattletale, but you should tell your parents. Drugs are nothing to play around with. It's better that he "takes his lumps" now than later. The later could be a prison sentence or worse than that — death! — Nelda, Modesto, Calif.

Hello Linda: I think you are a wise young lady by showing concern for your big brother. In almost every case I would say not to tell your parents but to discuss the problem with your brother, but not this time. Inform your parents and I hope and pray your brother goes clean and finds peace and happiness through love. — Jay, Scranton, Pa.

In Davis' murder-for-hire trial

McCrory to testify today

VICTIMS OF JET LAG — Twin brothers Curtis Wayne Bennington (left) and Donald Lee Bennington, aged 20 months, took a collective nap during a layover at New York's LaGuardia Airport. The youngsters and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bennington, were on their way home to Radcliff, Ky., from Balumholder, Germany.

HOUSTON (AP) — FBI informant David McCrory emerges from protective custody today to tell of a murder-for-hire scheme allegedly masterminded by oil heir Cullen Davis.

The nomadic, one-time karate instructor, is expected to relate to the jury a story so strange as to almost defy belief.

The hard-drinking, pool-shooting McCrory contends Davis ordered him to hire a "hit-man" to kill his wife, stepdaughter, brother, and a dozen others.

Davis, 45, a Fort Worth millionaire, is charged specifically with soliciting the murder of a judge presiding over the divorce battle between him and his bosomy blonde wife Priscilla.

The judge was not harmed. He cooperated with the FBI in an operation that led to Davis' arrest Aug. 20.

"If we get started on time we should be through with McCrory in one day," said prosecutor Tolly Wilson, in advance of today's testimony.

Others thought that unlikely.

The state intended to use McCrory, 40, as the legal vehicle for introducing the audio and video tapes that compose the brunt of the case against Davis.

FBI agents wired McCrory for sound before pivotal meetings with Davis Aug. 18 and Aug. 20 and they also collected film of the second encounter in a restaurant parking lot.

The million-dollar defense team says Davis was framed by Priscilla, McCrory, and others.

McCrory was ticketed as witness No. 6 in the criminal solicitation trial that began here Oct. 30 after two postponements and a change of venue from Fort Worth.

The burly, dark-complected witness told a bond hearing last August that Davis first approached him earlier this year for a surveillance assignment.

He said Davis wanted him not only to keep an eye on the divorce judge but that he paid him $5,000 to also stake out the homes of three accusing witnesses in his Amarillo murder trial last year.

An Amarillo jury acquitted Davis in the slaying of his 12-year-old step-daughter, but he is still charged with shooting Priscilla and killing her bearded lover Stan Farr.

The August 1976 shooting spree at the $6 million Davis mansion also left a young friend of the Davis family paralyzed with a bullet that remains lodged in his spine.

According to McCrory, Davis told him last summer that if he did not accelerate his efforts to find a professional killer to carry out his orders, Davis would commission the murders of McCrory and his family.

It was that threat that took him to the FBI for protection, McCrory said.

In the Aug. 18 tape, Davis allegedly chastised McCrory for his inaction. "Nothing, absolutely nothing is happening. Go back to the original plan," Davis is quoted as saying.

There was this alleged exchange:

McCrory — "What do you mean the original plan?"

Davis — "Uh, get the other one, you know who we started this out with."

McCrory — "You mean Priscilla?"

Davis — "No."

McCrory — "Oh, Bev?"

Davis — "Yeah..."

FIGHT FOR A REBOUND ... Howard College Hawk Reggie Patterson (32) fights for a rebound in recent Hawk action. The Hawks registered their third win of the year and 200th of Harold Wilder's stint at the local jucu with a 94-86 win over the Sul Ross JV's.

Wilder gets 200th

Hawks struggle past Sul Ross

By NATHAN POSS
The Howard College Hawks played just good enough to win in a 94-86 victory over the Sul Ross JV's. It was Coach Harold Wilder's 200th win in his stint as the Howard College head coach. This is the beginning of Wilder's ninth season at the local junior college.

The game was a see-saw battle throughout the first fifteen minutes of play. Leads exchanged, with Sul Ross sharpshooter Raul Enriquez bombs boosting the Lobos to their biggest lead of the night, 30-25 with 6:47 remaining.

Coach Wilder called a timeout at this point, and the Hawks responded by outscoring their opponents 12-2 over the next two and a half minutes. Michael Wallace and R. Q. Tolliver were largely responsible for this surge.

The Hawks, who looked ragged at times throughout the night, upped their lead to 45-38 at halftime. The margin at this time could very easily have been much more if the Hawks had not shot only three of nine from the charity stripes, many of which were one and one situations.

The Hawks came out the second half and shot their way to the biggest lead of the night 47-38, and kept the lead at this margin throughout most of the first eight minutes. Robby Randolph's sharpshooting and a couple of leaping tip-ins by Wallace were the keys during this stretch.

With eleven minutes remaining, Sul Ross took advantage of some inept ball handling by Howard College to close the gap to four at 63-59. The Hawks quickly regrouped to jack the lead back to eight, forcing the Lobos to play desperation catch up basketball.

In the waning minutes, Howard College failed to slow the game down, giving the Lobos a chance to get even, but Sul Ross couldn't take advantage.

Though not totally pleased with his team's effort, Coach Wilder did state that "our defense did improve over the past games. R. Q. Tolliver also is improving and had a good game."

The Hawks return to action Thursday afternoon in the Odessa Tournament when they play St. Phillips.

Penn St. claims No. 1 ranking

By The Associated Press
The Nittany Lions of Penn State, often a bridesmaid but never a bride, made it to the top of The Associated Press college football poll today for the first time ever.

Penn State's 19-10 victory over North Carolina State, coupled with previously unbeaten Oklahoma's 17-14 loss to Nebraska, vaulted the Nittany Lions from runnerup to Oklahoma's last four weeks past the Sooners into the top spot.

Meanwhile, Nebraska took over second place in a tight race with Alabama, setting up the possibility of an Orange Bowl showdown between the nation's 1-2 teams. Nebraska was named Monday to represent the Big Eight in the Orange Bowl, while Penn State is expected to receive an invitation when the formal bids go out Saturday.

Silent Snake leads Oakland

CINCINNATI (AP) — Oakland Raiders quarterback Ken Stabler could have called it vindication, but he wasn't talking after tossing three touchdown passes in a nationally televised 34-21 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals Monday night.

Embittered by media criticism after throwing 23 interceptions in his first 10 games this season, Stabler continued his cold war afterwards.

"Nothing personal, I just don't have any comment," said the bewhiskered 32-year-old National Football League veteran, dismissing reporters from his cubicle. He completed nine of 19 passes for 109 yards.

Taking advantage of seven Cincinnati turnovers, the Raiders, 7-4, withstood a 388-yard aerial barrage by Ken Anderson to move into a first-place tie with Denver in the American Football Conference Western Division.

The loss plunged the mistake-prone Bengals to 1-0. "Our defense created the turnovers and our offense took advantage," said Raiders' Coach John Madden as Oakland boosted its record in Monday night games to 11-1-1 since 1970.

Stabler's teammates did the talking for him, saying he doesn't deserve the criticism from the Raiders' four losses.

"He might be having his worst year, but not to the extent the press is saying," said tight end Dave Casper, who caught a 25-yard touchdown pass as Oakland built a 27-7 lead going into the final quarter.

"The fault is always blamed on the quarterback," said Casper.

"He's got a lot of unnecessary publicity," said cornerback Neal Colzie, whose 32-yard fumble recovery return triggered a quick start. The problem, said Colzie, is "he's hurting, but nobody mentions it."

Linebacker Phil Villapiano said the victory puts Oakland in good position for a 10th playoff appearance in 12 years. The Raiders play four of their last five games at home.

State, held onto third place with four first-place votes and 1,203 points.

Oklahoma slipped to fourth place with 1,092 points, while Southern California remained in fifth place. The Trojans, who whipped Washington 28-10 and knocked the Huskies out of the Top Twenty, received the other first-place ballot and 1,071 points.

Houston climbed from eighth to sixth with 975 points following a 10-7 triumph over Texas. The loss dropped the Longhorns from sixth to ninth place behind Michigan and Georgia.

Michigan held onto seventh place with 965 points for a 59-14 rout of Northwestern, while Georgia jumped from 11th to eighth with 803 points by defeating Florida 24-22.

Rounding out the Top Ten were Texas with 733 points and defending national champion Notre Dame, a 31-14 victor over Tennessee, with 662. The Fighting Irish had been out of the Top Ten since the first week of the season when they lost to Missouri.

Penn State, 10-0 and the nation's only unbeaten major college team, winds up its regular season Nov. 24 against No. 20 Pitt.

The Nittany Lions, who finished second in the final 1968 and 1969 polls and fifth in 1971, 1973 and last year, received 55 of 66 first-place votes and 1,296 of a possible 1,320 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Nebraska received six first-place votes and 1,209 points while Alabama, a 31-10 winner over Louisiana

US, Soviets in Olympic discord

MOSCOW (AP) — Top officials of the U.S. Olympic Committee say they have been striving to persuade their Soviet counterparts to allocate more tickets to better sporting events for American tourists at the 1980 Summer Olympics.

USOC Executive Director Donald Miller told a news conference Monday: "There are still a number of problems outstanding. We want what's best for the American visitor, what best fits our needs. The host country doesn't look at it from our viewpoint."

Noting that travel publicity must soon be launched, Miller added:

"The sooner we get these things cleared up, the better."

According to the American officials, the problems still unresolved include:

—More tickets for Americans seeking to attend the Games. The Soviets have proposed 200,000 but the U.S. side wants 10 percent more.

—More U.S. tickets for the opening and closing ceremonies.

—More tickets to events most interesting for Americans, such as swimming, boxing and track and field, rather than soccer and team handball. U.S. organizers contend that the present ratio is "unacceptable."

—Better tourist accommodations. The Soviets have allotted 20,000 beds for American visitors, 60 percent in "class A" hotels and 40 percent in student quarters. The U.S. side wants an 80-20 ratio.

Yanks ink Tiant

NEW YORK (AP) — For the next two years, and another season beyond that if they decide they want him, Luis Tiant will be pitching for the New York Yankees.

After that, at the age of 40 or 41, Tiant, who signed as a free agent Monday, will turn to more dignified pursuits as the Yankees Director of Latin American Affairs.

"Sounds like a State Department post, doesn't it?" said Paul George, the Boston attorney who negotiated the unique deal that delivered the veteran right-hander to the Yankees from the Boston Red Sox.

George said Tiant signed with New York because of the long-term security the Yankees offered. "It was a very attractive proposition," the attorney said.

New York was the only club to select negotiating rights to Tiant at the free agent re-entry draft 10 days ago. That's because he will celebrate his 38th birthday at the end of this month and pitchers that age aren't in great demand, especially when they want multiyear contracts.

But the Yankees, who've been known to gamble in the free agent marketplace before, went after Tiant with an unusual offer that will keep him in their organization long after he's through pitching.

"We saw an opportunity to use a man who is as well known as anyone who has ever played this game," said Yankees President Al Rosen. "It was a natural marriage."

Tiant was 13-8 with a 3.31 earned run average for Boston last season, including a final game two-hit shutout over Toronto that gave the Red Sox a tie with New York for the American League East crown and forced a playoff. And he thinks he can help the Yankees on the mound before he switches to the front office.

FOUL FLIGHT — Houston Rockets' Mike Newlin (14) gets knocked down and draws a foul from San Diego Clippers' Kermit Washington (42) with Houston Rockets' Rudy Tomjanovich (45) standing by in the first meeting between Kermit Washington and Rudy Tomjanovich in an NBA game since Dec. 9th of last year.

Dorsett feels 'run out'

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboy running back Tony Dorsett says if the armchair quarterbacks in the press had had their way he would carry the ball right out of town.

The Heisman Trophy winner dodged and sped his way for 149 yards Sunday as the Super Bowl champions thrashed the Green Bay Packers 42-14. And after the game, Dorsett did his stepping on the Dallas press. "I feel like the press is trying to run me out of Dallas," Dorsett told reporters in the locker room.

"It seems that when things aren't going too good for us, everyone is pointing the finger at me. When you're down, they want to talk about you and write bad things about you."

Dorsett and his million-dollar legs became the darling of Dallas sports writers when he galloped into the Cowboy record book last season.

But this season the explosive Cowboy offense fizzled. Then when Dorsett reportedly slept through a practice and was benched by Coach Tom Landry, his name began to appear frequently in stories entitled "What's wrong with the Cowboys?"

Dorsett is particularly incensed about one column he said "went into a lot of things that were untrue. Like, it said I had a chauffeur when I was 18, stuff like that."

"And it led off with something about 'before we tar and feather Tony Dorsett ... If I'm not wrong, I think that's what they used to do to black people in the old days. I think technically, there's a slander (sic) suit there.'"

All this publicity has Dorsett so upset, he said, he's given up reading newspapers and magazines.

"I'm hurt about all the articles that have been written. It hurt to read them. I don't think it is right when people use that kind of story to sell their papers."

Grimsley suggests change

By the Associated Press

Catching up on the backlog: There is no beef here on the selection of the Boston Red Sox' Jim Rice over the Yankees' Ron Guidry as the American League's Most Valuable Player of 1978 — our vote might have gone his direction, too, if we'd been on the panel. But the oneness of the vote condemns the system. There is stark need for a change in the format.

Is there a baseball authority in our midst who honestly believes the Red Sox slugger was 3-1 times more valuable to his team in the hectic AL race than was the Yankees' superb mound stopper? Such is reflected in the poll — 20 first place votes for Rice, 8 for Guidry.

The voting obviously indicates that a large number of the panel, two baseball writers in each league city, felt that Guidry, with his transcendent 25-3 record, had been properly knighted through the Cy Young Award and it would be only justice to spread the year-end laurels around to encompass Rice who, let's face it, had a terrific year.

Red Auerbach returns as Celtic coach

BOSTON (AP) — Red Auerbach, who coached the Boston Celtics to nine National Basketball Association championships and was general manager for four more, will abandon the front office to coach the staggering franchise, it was reported today.

The Boston Herald American said Auerbach, president and general manager, will take over from Tom Sanders, who resigned Monday, dejected and disillusioned over the Celtics' horrendous start — two victories in 14 games.

The Celtics called a news conference for noon today. It was reported earlier that Sanders' resignation would be announced, but the newspaper said details of a major trade also would be made public.

Co-owner John Y. Brown said Monday night that he "couldn't comment on anything now," but added that everyone would be "very happy when it (news conference) is over."

"I'm sure everyone will be pleased with the moves we plan to make," said Brown. "We're going to turn this thing around. We want the Boston fans to be proud of this team and they will after we do the things we think are necessary."

Auerbach, the winningest coach in NBA history, had rejected efforts by others to get him back on the bench.

He said as late as last week that if he were younger, he wouldn't mind returning to coaching, but added, "at my age, I'd probably have a heart attack in a week."

Sanders, who took over the club in January, replacing Tom Heinsohn, reached his decision to resign late Monday after a long meeting with Brown and Auerbach, according to the Herald.

There was earlier speculation that either Bob Cousy or Bill Sharman, two former Boston greats, might be named to replace Sanders. Both have pro coaching experience.

Sanders, who starred with Boston for several years, coached four years at Harvard before becoming an assistant coach with the Celtics last year. He was promoted to head coach in January when Heinsohn was fired by then owner Irv Levin, and compiled a 21-27 record.

Sanders was retained after Brown acquired the Celtics in a franchise swap with Levin. Levin acquired the old Buffalo Braves and moved the franchise to San Diego.

Paterno, Lions await options

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Penn State coach Joe Paterno has waited 13 years for his team to become No. 1 in college football and when it finally got there today he took the news rather stoically.

"We have two more games to play before we're really No. 1," Paterno said after learning the Nittany Lions had been voted the top team in the nation. "I feel the same way I did last week when we were No. 2."

In a telephone interview, Paterno said No. 1 or No. 2 doesn't make a lot of difference at this point as long as his team gets a chance to play for the national collegiate championship.

"I've never given much consideration to the poll until the end of the year," said the Penn State coach. "The last vote, that's the only important one."

Paterno admitted, however, that his team is thrilled by the accolade.

"I don't want to downplay the efforts of the players. I just want everyone to know that we still have some things to do," Paterno said. He referred, of course, to his team's season-ending game against Pittsburgh on national television Nov. 24 and a postseason bowl game.

Paterno said that when the bowl invitations are issued at 6 p.m. Saturday, Penn State will be ready with all its options. State is waiting to see whether second-ranked Nebraska beats tough Missouri and remains the poll runnerup.

The Lions also are awaiting the outcome of the Southeastern Conference championship race, which may end up in a tie between Alabama and Georgia.

In the event of such a deadlock, Georgia would host the Sugar Bowl because Alabama was there last year. Both teams have Auburn left on their schedules.

Hagler KOs Warren

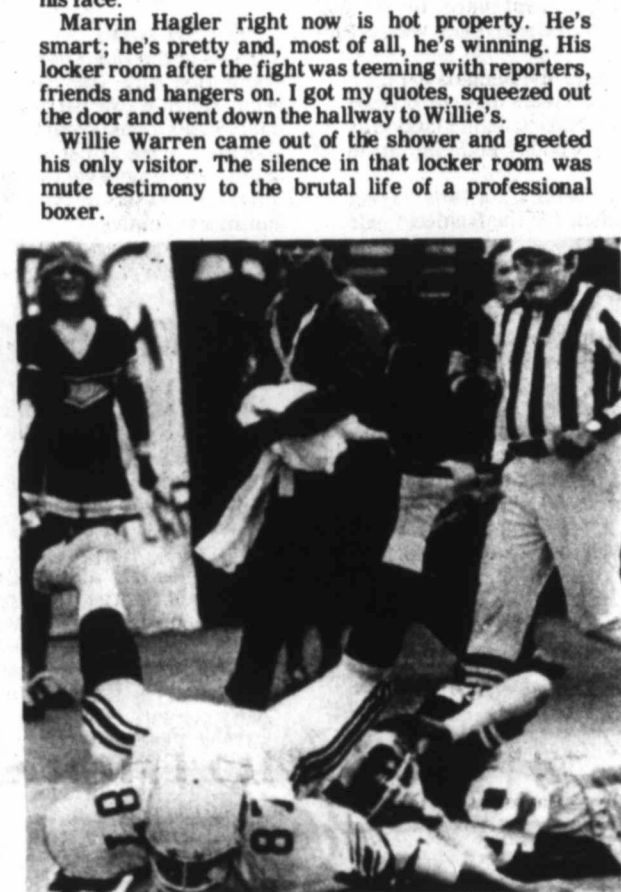

BOSTON (AP) — Willie Warren told the referee at the end of six rounds to stop the fight, he'd had enough.

Marvin Hagler, a contender for the middleweight boxing title, shot his arms up in victory, his 41st, and the hometown crowd jumped to its feet.

Willie just sat on his stool as celebrators crawled through the ropes past him. He was trying to focus his eyes, trying to organize thoughts in his brain that had just been savagely jarred by huge fists smashing into his face.

Marvin Hagler right now is hot property. He's smart; he's pretty and, most of all, he's winning. His locker room after the fight was teeming with reporters, friends and hangers on. I got my quotes, squeezed out the door and went down the hallway to Willie's.

Willie Warren came out of the shower and greeted his only visitor. The silence in that locker room was mute testimony to the brutal life of a professional boxer.

IN BY INCHES — St. Louis Cardinals tight end Al Chandler (87) barely reaches the end zone to score in the second quarter of their game with the San Francisco Forty Niners Sunday in San Francisco. Forty Niners Vern Robinson (49) had the last chance to stop Chandler's 15-yard touchdown play. St. Louis defeated San Francisco 16-10.

Forsan JHS victorious

FORSAN — Forsan Junior High swept two games from Westbrook last night.

In the girls' game, the Buffaloes won by a score of 27-19. Forsan was led by Vicki Baggett with 11 points and Teresa White with eight.

The Forsan boys took an easy 37-19 win over Westbrook. Robert Eggleston led a three man scoring show with 12 points. Raymond Miranda and Lewis Boeker chipped in with 11 and ten points, respectively.

It was the first game for both teams. Forsan will resume action next Monday at Coahoma.

McENROE WINS — John McEnroe of the United States jumps high at the Stockholm, Sweden Open Tennis Finals Monday as he returns a ball from Tim Gullikson. McEnroe defeated Gullikson 6-2, 6-2.

Akers mum on call

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas can finish the year as one of the nation's best college football teams if players don't dwell on the disappointing 10-7 loss to Houston last Saturday, says Coach Fred Akers.

Houston's victory snapped Texas' 11-game home winning streak and probably cost Texas its second consecutive Southwest Conference title and a Cotton Bowl bid.

Akers indicated at his weekly news conference Monday that officials erred on a possibly crucial clipping call but he refused to criticize them.

The clip by Texas' Ken McCune wiped out a 54-yard punt return by Johnny Johnson to the Houston 21-yard-line in the second quarter of what was then a scoreless game.

Asked if he had a comment — after watching game films — on whether the call was correct, Akers said, "Not for print."

He added, however, "It's tough being an official ... You have some calls go against you and some help you, and once in awhile you will have one go against you on what was one of the biggest plays of the year."

Akers said Texas coaches had chosen freshman halfback A.J. "Jam" Jones as the outstanding Texas offensive player and junior tackle Steve McMichael as the best defender. Jones ran for 94 yards on 22 carries and scored Texas' only touchdown. McMichael had 16 tackles, including four behind the line. He pressured the passer three times, caused a fumble and recovered a fumble.

WTCC members speak on 1977 Clean Air Act

The majority of West Texas Chamber of Commerce members responding to a recent WTCC opinion survey stated that enforcement of the 1977 Clean Air Act Amendments will have a substantial adverse effect on their particular business or industry. The survey was taken to test the reaction of WTCC members to the recent ultimatum handed the Texas Air Control Board to enforce the 1977 Clean Air Act Amendments through a State Implementation Plan in 1979.

A justifiable concern was noted by the survey respondents that enforcement of the Clean Air Act Amendments will have a detrimental effect on West Texas, including enormous capital expense for compliance, and a slowdown in future industrial development. In addition to the 64 percent who indicated that enforcement of the act would have a substantial effect on their particular business or industry, 9 percent said the impact would be "moderate", while 4 percent said they would feel "very little" effect. Enforcement of the Amendments would have no effect one way or the other according to 22 percent of those who responded to the survey.

In answer to the question, "Do you know any industries in your area which have been forced to shut down or curtail operations due to federal clean air standards?", 31 percent responded "yes," while 62 percent said "no." On a follow-up question regarding any industries that may have been prevented from locating or expanding because of the threat of clean air amendments, 9 percent of the respondents said they did know of such instances, while 69 percent declined any actual knowledge along those lines.

Five nominated for C-C posts

COLORADO CITY — Five persons have been nominated for five positions on the board of directors of the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce.

They include Drew Ballard, Travis Cathron, Barbara Gray, Bobby Lemons and Brad Rose.

Also, Mrs. Fleta Lewis was elected to complete the unexpired term of Cecil Flowers, who has resigned.

Date of the annual chamber banquet is scheduled for Jan. 18 in the Civic Center.

Don Maynard, a football star for the Colorado City Wolves in the 50s who recently received national acclaim as a receiver for the New York Jets will be the banquet speaker.

Bob Reily, who was one of Maynard's high school coaches, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Respondents of the survey took full advantage of the opportunity afforded them to explain in detail how their individual companies would be affected. Ill effects included large capital expenditures for additional equipment, and costly time delays waiting for required permits.

Damage to economic bases in agricultural areas was anticipated primarily concerning cotton gins and grain elevator operations. Cutbacks in production in the oil & gas industry resulting in job layoffs and a decline in purchasing power were predicted, as well as higher energy costs for the consumer.

None of the survey respondents expressed the opinion that enforcement of the Federal Clean Air Act in Texas would be beneficial to the state's business sector.

Selection of PBHSA officers on agenda

Selection of new officers for 1979 will be one of the main topics of discussion when the PBHSA Governing Body meets on Monday. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the West Texas Education Center, Midland Air Terminal.

The draft of the revised Health Systems Plan (1979-1984) and annual implementation plan (1979-1980) will be presented to the governing body for approval for a regional public hearing to be held December 1.

Comments from this public hearing will be incorporated into the documents which will receive final approval on December 18. Also under discussion will be the PBHSA Continuation Application to DHEW for May 1979-April 1980. The agency will be requesting the minimum grant allocation for an HSA to conduct the agency business for the next fiscal year.

The PBHSA Project Review Committee will present their recommendations on a grant application from the Permian Basin Community Centers for MH-MR entitled "Mental Health Operations Grant (Midland)." Total grant request is $685,406. (171,352 Federal, $366,159 State, and $146,895 Local and Other) Final recommendation for comment on this grant application will come from the PBHSA Governing Body.

Mahon event is sellout

LAMESA — An appreciation dinner being held tonight in Lamesa honoring Congressman George Mahon has been a sellout for weeks.

There are no more tickets available for tonight's chamber banquet, which will honor the 44-year veteran Congressman.

Other business to be discussed by the governing body includes the annual rotation of governing body members and agency expenditures reports for September and October.

All meetings of the Permian Basin Health Systems Agency are open to the public and residents of the region are encouraged to attend.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, NOV. 15, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have considerably more life and force today and will be able to utilize it to advantage. Evening brings the need to sidestep arguments.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Talk over with allies how best to put creative ideas across and how to trend your efforts. Forget the social for the time being.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Consult with a trusted adviser and improve monetary matters. Get as much information as you can regarding the value of art pieces, etc.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you get in touch with bigwigs you know, you can gain personal goals more easily now. Gain the backing you need.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Quietly study into ways to have more abundance in the future, but don't be overly generous with others. Know what your true position is with a loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have good judgment about how to gain personal goals so go after them early in the day. Stay within your budget.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make plans to travel with a good friend to some new place and you can gain an important wish. Keep an eye on your pocket.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Do what you can to improve business conditions. Make new contacts who can be of assistance to you in the future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get in touch with a bigwig you know and find out how to handle a difficult matter. A talk with your mate can also bring good results. Be careful of one with a jealous streak.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Listen to a plan which partners have and it could prove to be worthwhile. Study a new proposal first before committing yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Concentrate on the work in front of you and gain more benefit from it. Inform associates of any part of plans that concerns them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Aspects are fine for accomplishing a good deal in business, but take a bigwig with you for best results. Don't squander money foolishly.

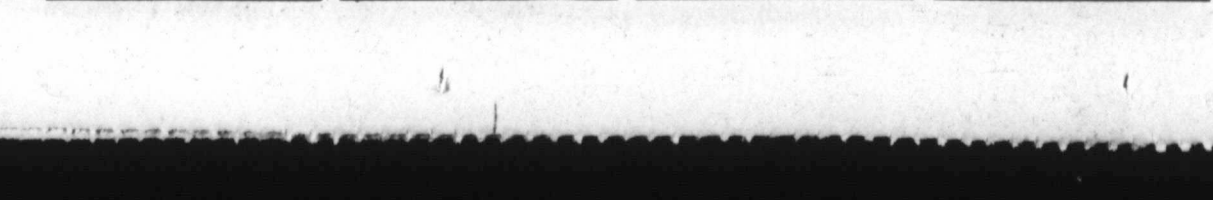

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you take time to organize your work far into the future you can then carry through on schedule profitably. Keep active and you are happy.

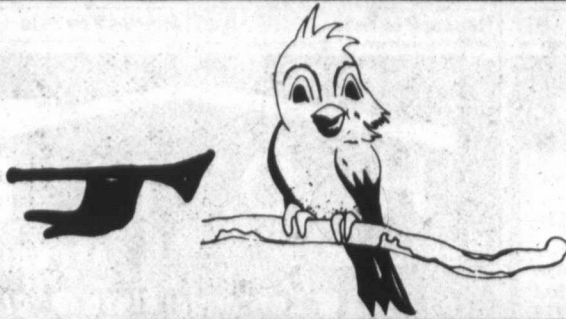

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have many talents so give an adequate education slanted toward the inventive, combinations of ideas, etc. Teach early to finish whatever is once started. Compliment your progeny for work well done.

Membership in TFB stands at 228,079

WACO — Membership in the Texas Farm Bureau now stands at 228,079, according to TFB President Carol Chaloupka.

In the membership year just ended, the state's largest farm organization recorded a gain of 13,882 member families, he said.

"This is the 26th consecutive year for the Texas Farm Bureau to show an increase in members," Chaloupka said. "The size of our increase this year indicates that farmers and ranchers are more determined than ever to work together to solve their problems."

A total of 185 counties gained in membership over last year. Two new counties — Gregg in east Texas and Kendall in southwest Texas — were organized during the year.

The top ten counties in terms of membership size are Harris, McLennan, Fort Bend, Van Zandt, Wharton, Fayette, Ellis, Hidalgo, Bell, and Nacogdoches.

The gain in members this year is larger than the total membership of all other general farm organizations in the state. Texas Farm Bureau now ranks third behind Indiana and Illinois among state Farm Bureaus.

The Texas Farm Bureau is affiliated nationally with the American Farm Bureau Federation which has a membership of almost three million member families in all states except Alaska.

The present Texas Farm Bureau dates back to 1933-1934 when it was organized as the Texas Agricultural Association. The name was changed a few years later.

Child care income must be reported

DALLAS — Again this year, working parents who claim the credit for child care on their Federal tax return are required to furnish the name, address, and social security number of their babysitter.

At the same time, providers of child or dependent care services must report amounts received as income on their Federal tax return and the IRS said it is stepping up its efforts to insure that the income reported is consistent with amounts claimed by parents who take advantage of the credit.

IRS Form 2441, "Credit for Child and Dependent Care Expenses" calls for claimants to furnish certain identifying information about the child care provider and the amount he or she was paid.

The credit for child and dependent care is 20 percent of actual child care expenses paid so parents can work. Money paid to a babysitter so the parents can go out socially does not count for purposes of the credit. The maximum credit is $400 for one child and $800 for two or more children.

The credit can be claimed by all taxpayers, regardless of income, and encompasses not only the workday care of children but certain other eligible dependents as well.

IRS has developed a free publication, "Child Care and Dependent Care," which explains this tax provision in detail. Ask for IRS Publication 503.

Farm Value of farm exports gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The value of U.S. farm exports, which soared to a record $27.3 billion last fiscal year, is expected to gain further in 1978-79, the Agriculture Department said today.

In its first official forecast for the year that began Oct. 1, the department said exports could rise 6.2 percent to about $29 billion.

Thomas R. Saylor of the department's Foreign Agricultural Service announced the export forecast in remarks prepared for a session of USDA's annual outlook conference.

He said, however, that the actual shipments could range in value between $26 billion and $32 billion.

Meanwhile, another department official says that the decline of the dollar's value abroad may be "giving false signals" about U.S. exports of agricultural products.

G. Edward Schuh, a deputy assistant secretary who helps oversee international and commodity programs, told the conference.

"But if the dollar is now undervalued, as many believe, these strong export markets may be in part an illusion," Schuh told the annual conference. "As the dollar recovers to its equilibrium level, a rather sizeable adjustment problem may be forced on the agricultural sector."

Looking at export prospects for 1978-79, Saylor said that the actual volume of commodities exported may change but little from the record 122.3 million metric tons shipped overseas last year.

But higher average prices for commodities are expected, and those could push the total value of 1978-79 exports to another new high, he said.

Foreign demand is strong, particularly for soybeans and protein meal, Saylor said. The United States will be the only major supplier of those commodities until the Brazilian soybean harvest next spring.

Saylor said that the reason for suggesting a possible range in exports of $26 billion to $32 billion is the uncertainty at the present time over crops of wheat, feed grains and soybeans in the Southern Hemisphere.

China orders soybean oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — China has ordered 60,000 metric tons of soybean oil but has specified that it could come from sources other than the United States.

The Agriculture Department said Monday that counting previous orders, China now has bought 80,000 metric tons of soybean oil for delivery in the 1978-79 marketing year, all of it designated as "optional origin."

The oil sales were reported to the department by private U.S. exporters who also frequently handle commodities which originate in other countries.

World grain stockpile figures revised upward

The Agriculture Department has revised its figures on world grain stockpiles upward to reflect recent increases in estimates of grain production in the Soviet Union.

Therefore, the department said Monday, grain supplies will be larger than projected earlier.

The department's Foreign Agricultural Service said that by next July 1, the world reserve of wheat and other coarse grains such as corn and barley will be a near-record of 201.4 million metric tons, a jump of 23.4 percent from inventories of 163.2 million this summer.

On Nov. 2, the agency in a similar report projected the mid-1979 grain stockpile at 188.4 million metric tons, a 6 percent increase from this July 1.

But a few days later, the Soviet Union announced that it produced a record grain harvest this year and the department soon followed with its own estimate that the Russian grain crop was a record 230 million metric tons, up from the previous estimate of 220 million metric tons.

GOP hunts for convention site

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Republican Party officials seeking a site for their 1980 national convention were in this tourist-hungry city today on the first leg of a six-city inspection tour.

Eleven members of the party's site selection committee, joined by about two dozen executives and technicians of the three major television networks, visited several local hotels after their arrival Monday.

Today, the group was to inspect the expanded Miami Beach Convention Center and additional hotels.

Later this month, the committee will visit Detroit and Minneapolis-St. Paul, with subsequent visits to the other three cities contending for the 1980 convention — Dallas, New Orleans and Kansas City, according to party aide Penny Crunkleton.

Dallas' chances improved with the election last week of William P. Clements as the first Republican governor of Texas in more than a century and the reelection of U.S. Sen. John Tower.

In 1972, both national parties held their conventions in Miami Beach. In 1976, neither party met here. But Ody Fish said Miami Beach "was a viable contender" in 1980.

"I have a great deal of regard for the cooperation of the people here," Fish said. "They know what our requirements are and they have the facilities."

"It certainly doesn't hurt that we've been here before."

Local officials, who also are trying to attract the Democratic national convention, estimated that each affair would cost Miami Beach about $3.5 million in security and other charges. The total bill, including county, state and national security costs, could reach $9.95 million for each convention, officials said.

But Miami Beach officials believe they would get their money's worth.

"The purpose (of seeking the conventions) is really the image," said Phil Halpern, a tourism specialist for the city. "The exposure, both national and international, is very valuable."

Local officials already have been trying to get federal help to offset some of the expenses generated by a national convention.

SAFE BUT IN SHOCK — Coast Guard medics tend to one of two men who survived a shrimp boat-tanker collision that left three others dead in the Gulf of Mexico 25 miles off the Louisiana coast. The survivors from the shrimp boat Joni Rene were plucked from the chilly Gulf Monday, about 19 hours after the collision. The Coast Guard launched an investigation to find out what tankers were in the area and which one could have rammed the 72-foot shrimper. The survivors were identified as Walter Galcik, 26, (on stretcher) and George Hadjipopov, 34, (in jumpsuit in background).
