LOCAL HAY MEN TO MEET MAY 23

A call has been issued by the Pecos Commercial Club, for a meeting of the alfalfa growers of the vicinity of Pecos, to meet Saturday afternoon, May 23, at 3:15 o'clock, for the purpose of considering the advisability of organizing a local association. The manifest advantages to be gained by the hay grower from such an organization as the Southwestern Federation of Alfalfa Growers and Shippers, has appealed to so many of the local farmers, that they have asked the Commercial Club to call this meeting.

A local association will be in a much better position to become acquainted with, and to take advantage of the benefits of the federation. At the same time, it is a matter that should be of immense benefit to local hay men, even though there were no such thing as a federation. Toyah Creek farmers far out at Hoban, have signified their desire to join such an association, and Floyd Goodrich, who will ship a hundred cars from Porterville this season, is most anxious that the organization be effected. It is hoped that Howard Russell of Almorhea, president of the federation, and Secretary of the Toyah Valley Co-operative Society, will be the meeting Saturday. An invitation has been sent, too, to Col. S. Waskom, the father of co-operation in the Pecos country, and to Messrs. H. J. Gray of Clint, Texas, and J. C. McNary of Berino, New Mexico, to be present. The presence of any of these men will mean much for the stability of the organization, and the success of the meeting.

ADVERTISING PECOS AND TOYAH VALLEYS

The new Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain folder for May, 1914, is in press and now being placed in circulation, with one of its principal features a page advertisement of Pecos and Toyah Valleys of West Texas. The ad is well written, circulating as it does, through a large portion of the North and West, will undoubtedly do much to bring this section a merited publicity.

The Pecos Commercial Club has received copies of the folder, both from Geo. D. Hunter, general passenger agent, and from T. C. Kimber, general immigration agent. In the development and exploitation of this country, the Texas and Pacific, with the "Joint Immigration Bureau" of its affiliated roads, has no small share. Mr. Kimber and Mr. Hunter especially are doing good work, Mr. Kimber's efforts being those of one who is personally interested through acquaintance with the local advantages offered.

NOT SEEN FOR 37 YEARS

J. W. Scott, chief engineer of the West Texas Electric company, arrived here Monday from Sweetwater for a week's stop to visit his sisters. Mrs. Seth Ferrell and family and other relatives.

Uncle Seth brought him in to the Times office this morning and informed us that this is the first time he has seen him in 37 years.

Mr. Scott says that Sweetwater vicinity is looking up, that they have had better prospects for summer crop, also that they have commenced work on their reservoir and new waterworks system.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to sincerely thank all of my friends who helped me to win the piano. So many sent ballots in which I was unable to answer to them personally, so I take the method of thanking them also. Especially thank the managers of the W. T. Read Mercantile Company for their kindness and courtesies also the other contestants who so cheerfully congratulated me.

MUSICAL PECOS

To begin with, the very name is musical. It was the name of a great and powerful race of Pueblo Indians, the remnants of whose extensive civilization still dots northern New Mexico. Then the river itself flows with glad, gurgling songs and low-voiced litanies to the sounding sea. The wavering notes of wind-sung symphonies through the leafy cedars makes melody as sweet and low as lullabies chanted by "The winds of the Western Sea."

But the beauty and harmony of Nature abides not within itself, but communicates spiritual values to character and personality. The Highlander is as rugged and unmovable and liberty-loving as the great peaks and beetling buttes of his native heath. The sailor becomes like his wild, impulsive, rollicking, ungoverned wave and his very speech is "thick with the brine of the surf." So it is no wonder that Pecos, home of flowing fountains and sylvan shade and whispering winds and clear, cloudless skies,—should produce poets and musicians.

One splendid proof of the fact that much time is being given to the higher and holier things of heart and sentiment in our town, is the presence of an unusual number of gifted young people, whose mastery of the shining ivory keys and whose control of the marvelous human voice, make melody for all, and cheer us by the way. Three splendidly trained, earnest, art-loving young ladies are giving their time and talent to train and teach the younger generation the worth and potency of harmonious sound and well-measured time and tone.

In no spirit of partiality, but with deep and due appreciation of the talent and training of the other two of these excellent young women, I wish to say a word of the work of Miss Julia Davis, as manifested in her recital, given this week at the First Baptist church. This is entirely of my own volition and purely as an appreciation of those things worth while.

It is no little thing to train a nervous, self-conscious child to have such control of hands and head, that they will render a worthy and more or less difficult task, without hesitation or embarrassment. Yet, in all the number who took part in the program last Tuesday night, no one showed the least trace of self-consciousness that mars so much of even grown people's public service. All of the piano work was, without doubt first class for children of the age and opportunity of those who took part in the recital. Whether their competent and conscientious instructors ever becomes widely known in her chosen profession or not, she has accomplished the great thing of giving an impetus for clean and beautiful work to a large number of young minds and hearts. Which can be said, with equal truth of all our lovers and teachers of this sublime art. Perhaps as winsome and "taking" a thing as has been given lately in Pecos was the "Japanese Drill" by a number of little tots in the costume of that Flowery Kingdom, who might have fooled a homesick Jap into believing that he was looking on the sports of his far-away island home. The vocal number, "Playmates," by two little ladies—one dressed as a boy, was certainly well-rendered and warmly received by the audience.

May the blessings of the Master Musician of the Universe, whose majestic melodies sound in the oratorio of the stormy sea, and before whom the "morning stars, together sang for very joy"—may his blessing come to all those who have trained and will train our children away from the gross materialism of this age, into the sweeter and stronger life of the coming age, where love instead of lust shall rule, "And all shall hear the voice of God,

And haste to heed his holy will."
—Joel Frank Hedgpeth.

"THE TEST OF LIFE"

Synopsis of sermon preached in the First Baptist church, Pecos, Tex., Sunday, May 17, 1914, at 11 o'clock a. m., to the graduating class of the Pecos City High School.

Promptly at 11 a. m. Miss Florence McCarver played the graduation march and the juniors and seniors, quiet and orderly in manner, and fresh and winsome in appearance, took their places.

The Baptist choir rendered the music under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Link. Miss Vernon McCarver rendered a high class sacred solo in her charming and effective manner. Mr. and Mrs. Link gave a splendid vocal duet and the choir and congregation joined heartily in the singing of appropriate hymns.

Rev. C. B. Boyles of the Presbyterian church read the 19th Psalm. Rev. J. B. Cole of the Baptist church read a lesson from the 11th chapter of Mark. Rev. J. F. Hedgpeth of the Methodist church pronounced the invocation and Rev. Homer Magee of the Christian church led the prayer before the sermon.

A large crowd overflowed the main auditorium and partly filled the galleries. The weather was ideal: while the flowers and ferns and pot-plants banked about the platform, and the presence of an unusual number of bright young people, made the occasion, in itself, one that was pleasing and helpful.

As had been announced for some time, Rev. Joel Frank Hedgpeth of the Methodist church, preached the sermon to the young people, and through them to us all.

He took as his text the 21st verse of the fifth chapter of Thessalonians: "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good." Making plain that the text was not an admonition to prove the poison and wrong of sin by testing the sin, and showing how deadly and dangerous such a doctrine would be, and had been—the preacher proceeded to show in what manner and under what conditions we were to "prove all things" by testing life and making our own, only those things really "worth while."

The speaker spoke first of the relation of the outward material world to real life, showing how we must test the worth of this tangible, present world, not by how much of it we gained, owned or controlled, but by making the circumstances of life; its riches and its poverty; its joys and its sorrow ministers of God to test and train our lives for service. He emphasized strongly the fact that this present world, with all its wealth and opportunity was to be taken only as a trust, to be wisely administered for the good of others.

Our attention was next called to the relation existing between time and life. The young people were reminded of their debt to the past. They were told that they were the sons and scions, the daughters and queens, the heirs and inheritors of all that was best in the past. The important place that memory plays in shaping character or destiny was brought forth, as an argument in favor of keeping and using the best of the past. The rosy plans of the future were not condemned. The speaker, however, warned them that they must live, not in the glorious achievements of the past, nor idly dream of the prospects of the future, but,

"Act, act in the living present—
H'art within and God o'erhead."
In conclusion, the preacher showed how that the "personal touch": the potent presence of a living personality was the supreme thing in the universe. He told us that any test of life that left out personal relationships was shallow and idle indeed. There were three personal relationships, he said, that must receive our attention and occupy our mind and heart if we would really test life to its depths and find and keep the best. These three, he told the young people, were the test of their own powers. The trying of themselves. The test of companionship and touch with their fellows. He admonished them to consider closely and carefully all that good and wise men had said, but in the last analysis to think and act for themselves, in the light of their understanding of God's word and their own conscience and judgment. He gave them, as his final warning and advice, to keep in touch with God, to believe that the greatest possession is the consciousness of His presence and favor, and that the greatest loss is the loss of His conscious presence and the withdrawal of His spirit and grace. He related the scene of Jesus weeping over Jerusalem, and said His tears were caused because they had forgotten God and driven Him from their hearts and homes. He applied this with solemn warning to our own hearts and homes.

THIRTY-THREE EXECUTIONS FOLLOW CAPTURE.

Federal General Osorno and his staff of 32 officers, fleeing towards Saltillo from the battlefield of Paredon, were captured at Zertuche by the rebels Tuesday afternoon and immediately executed, according to messages received this morning at the Juecaez information office from Pancho Villa's private secretary, Luis Aguirre Benavides.

Three trains and some artillery were left behind at Zertuche by the federals and fell into rebel hands. Four rebel brigades, the message said, detoured around the 5000 federals at Paredon and took positions on the railway at Zertuche, 15 miles south of the battleground and close to Saltillo. When the retreating Huertistas approached they attacked them.

The two federal generals killed in the fighting at Paredon were Miguel Alvarez and E. Ignacio Munoz. Eight hundred federal prisoners were captured, together with nine cannon, a number of machine guns, 600,000 rounds of ammunition and all the transportation wagons of the column. Villa telegraphed an official report of the battle to Carranza at Durango and stated that his officers and men departed themselves with their usual valor. His own losses, he said, were relatively small.

PROHIBITION IS COMING TO THE FRONT.

(Christian Science Monitor.)

It is probable that only the liquor interests of the United States possess to the full an understanding of the rapidity with which the movement for prohibition has spread from the township to the county, from the county to the state and from the state to the nation in the last few years. There is a reason for believing that even in the front ranks of the prohibitionists the strength that may now be arrayed against the traffic in intoxicants is only partly appreciated. The Monitor believes it would be putting the matter fairly to say the prohibition movement is about to take the country with a surprise somewhat akin to that occasioned lately by the magnitude and force of the equal suffrage movement.

One incident just come to light seems to be illustrative of the general situation. The judiciary committee of the house of representatives at Washington had in hand the proposed amendment to the constitution for the prohibition of the liquor traffic. Until recently the chairman of that committee was Representative Clayton of Alabama. He has been nominated by President Wilson to a United States judgeship for the middle district of his state. Under the rule of seniority Representative Webb of North Carolina will in all likelihood succeed to the chairmanship. He is a strong advocate of "dry" legislation, and for this reason his elevation is not desired by the anti-prohibitionists; yet they hesitate to oppose it because they might by doing so raise a political issue that could be used to their disadvantage.

The prohibition cause, as may be inferred, has strong advocates in influential quarters, and this is made evident further by the fact that attempts to sidetrack the prohibition amendment are almost certain to fail. The committee on Judiciary, as expected, has taken up and reported the proposed amendment, and it is predicted that a vote upon it will be reached in the house before adjournment. A fact of great importance in this matter is the pronounced disposition of members of congress to array themselves openly against further interstate commerce in liquor. There no longer seems to be any shrinking from alignment with prohibition due to political intimidation; on the contrary, those members who are sensitive to public opinion at home are rather desirous than otherwise of getting into harmony with the anti-saloon element. From all appearances, legislatures of the states will have opportunity in the near future of voting upon the proposed amend-

MEXICAN SHOT AT SARAGOSA

The Mexicans out on the creek near Saragosa got tangled up in a drunken row last Saturday and one got shot through the lower part of his leg, shattering the shin bone, and one was bruised up with rocks and clubs, disfiguring him.

Pink Harbert, deputy sheriff, went after them Monday and made a lucky drive, bagging the entire bunch. Pink knows how to work the greasers, and returned to the city yesterday evening, bringing with him two of the gang. He brought in the one that done the shooting and the one that was so handy with the club and rocks and landed them in jail. The man that was shot was not able to be moved, so was left at home for the present. A preliminary hearing is set for this evening at the court house to be heard by Max Krauskopf, justice of the peace.

COLLIER BUYS CARLOAD SOWS

Howard Collier was in Pecos yesterday afternoon, with a carload of Duroc-Jersey sows that he had purchased at Artesia, and on the farms surrounding that town. Mr. Collier also had a fine registered boar that he had purchased from C. M. Trotter, who was himself recently through Pecos with a carload of fat stuff for the Fort Worth market. A number of Pecos stock fanciers saw Mr. Collier's stuff, and all agree that, for a graded shipment of unregistered hogs, this is as pretty a lot as one would be likely to find anywhere.

Mr. Collier has five of the fine registered sows purchased from the Fort Worth Stockyards Company to top his herd, and, with the employment of his usual energy and forethought, will within the year have one of the finest hog farms in all the state. The Artesia sows were picked up, four or five at a time, from the best herds around the Pecos Valley town. Mr. Collier left this morning with his car over the Pecos Valley Southern for his farm at Hoban. He is taking an additional boar from the Hillcrest farm through the Fort Worth Stockyards Company. This animal will cost Mr. Collier $45 and express, and was ordered by wire through the Commercial Club this morning.

It is not known, at this writing, just when the next car of unregistered gilts will be received from Fort Worth, but it is hoped that it will be soon.

KERMIT HAPPENINGS.

The Monahans and Kermit baseball teams crossed bats on the Blue Goose diamond and played nine innings. It was a hard contested battle, but the Monahans boys came out victors, the score being 9 to 4 in favor of Monahans.

Since our last communication this country has been blessed with several good rains and all kinds of vegetation is looking fine.

Our efficient tax assessor, W. F. Stewart, has been quite busy for the past few days assessing taxes. Will says that the man who beats him for the office this year will simply have to get more votes than he.

Ben Dawson and Arthur Tannahill, autoed to Monahans and returned home today. Arthur says riding in a car beats riding behind Old Pete and Beck.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Mitchell have gone to Des Moines, Iowa, where Frank will enter school and complete his course in civil engineering.

H. B. Lovett has just returned from Pyote, where he purchased lumber to finish up his residence in west Kermit.

Mrs. J. A. Leeman and Mrs. Stewart have returned from Pecos and Mrs. G. C. Dawson from Odessa where they have been visiting.

Quite a crowd came in from the country today to church, but were very much disappointed as Brother Beauchamp did not show up. However, they all joined in an old fashioned singing and Sunday school.

Grass and candle flies have taken the place of sandstorms. The continued damp weather with occasional rains are putting this section of the country in fine condition and some of the people are planting feed stuff and other farm products.

Saturday morning about 3 o'clock rain began falling and in a few minutes it turned into a regular hail storm set in and largest ever seen in this country. Some of the hail stones were as large as turkey eggs in some places. There was hail on the ground until noon the following day. A. H. Neil said the hail broke out eighteen window panes on the north side of his house and bursted shingles on the roof, making holes that he could put his double fists through. Has gone after shingles to recover his entire roof. The storm was of a cyclonic nature, only about two miles wide, and where it struck it left nothing in the way of fruit, grapes and garden stuff. The main sufferers were Neil, Crawford, Vest and Campbell brothers.

A Mexican woman was brought in from Toyah Creek yesterday and tried for lunacy and found was to be insane. It is an uncommon thing for a member of the Mexican tribe to be adjudged crazy.

SUPERINTENDENT G. C. JONES' ADDRESS TO GRADUATING CLASS

By special request of the Times and a large number of the school patrons we are permitted to print the address which follows:

WHAT CAREER.

Friends, Ladies and Gentlemen:

This duty this evening is a very great pleasure as every duty should be.

No man was born into this world whose work was not born with him. It is your duty if you would succeed to find your work. I believe it is the crowning fortune of man to be born to some pursuit which finds him employment and happiness, whether that pursuit be to make baskets; hold the plow handles, or administer the law. Whatever you are by nature keep to it; never desert your line of talent. Be what nature intended you for and you will succeed; be anything else and you will be ten thousand times worse than nothing. Your success will be commensurate with your attempt to do your duty. But what is your duty? This is the is the interrogation of the century.

Your talent is your call, your legitimate destiny speaks in your character. If possible, choose that occupation which focuses the largest amount of your experience and tastes. You will then have not only a congenial vocation, but you will utilize largely your skill and business knowledge, which is your true capital. If you have found your place, your vocation has the consent of every faculty of your being. You can not long fight successfully against your aspirations.

Parents, friends, or misfortune may stifle and suppress the longings of the heart, by compelling you to perform unwelcome tasks; but like a volcano, the inner fire will burn the crusts which confine it and pour forth its pent-up genius in eloquence, in song, in art, or in some favorite industry. Beware of a talent which you can not hope to practice in perfection. Nature hates all botches and half-finished work and will pronounce her curse upon it.

You had better be the Napoleon of boot-blacks, or the Alexander of chimney-sweeps than a shallow-brained jurist who knows no law. Many people have found congenial occupations. A servant girl is trying to teach, and a natural teacher is tending store. Good farmers are murdering the law, while Choates and Websters are running down farms, each tortured by the consciousness of unfulfilled destiny. Behind counters stand clerks who hate the yard-stick and neglect their work to dream of other occupations. Laymen are murdering sermons while Beechers and Whitefields are failing as merchants, and people are wondering what can be the cause of empty pews. Real surgeons are handling the meat saw and cleaver, while butchers are amputating human limbs.

Every one has a special aptitude for something, your duty is to find it if you would enjoy the greatest measure of success. Your business will do more to make you than anything else. It will harden your muscles, strengthen your body, quicken your blood, sharpen your mind, correct your judgment, wake up your inventive genius, put your wits to work, start you in the race for life arouse your ambition, make you feel that you are a man and must fill a man's place, and do a man's work, bear a man's part in life and show yourself a man in that part. No man feels himself a man who is not doing a man's business. If you are without employment and remain without it you are not a man. One hundred fifty pounds of bone and muscle do not make a man, a good cranium full of brains is not a man. The bone and muscle and brain must know how to do a man's work, think a man's thoughts, mark out a man's path, and bear a man's weight of character and duty before they constitute a man.

You are not fit to win in life's race till you have sat alone and thought, and have come forth with purpose in your eye, with white cheeks and set lips, and clinched palms, able to say: I am resolved what to do. After you have made this determination, go-at-it-iveness is the first requisite for success; stick-to-it-iveness is the second. Under ordinary circumstances, and with practical common sense as a guide, you can not fail.

The question of right aim in life has become exceedingly perplexing in this complicated age. It would not be a difficult problem to solve, if you were the son of a Zulu or the daughter of a Bedowin. The condition of the savage admits of but one choice; but as you rise higher in the scale of civilization and creep nearer the great centers of activity, the difficulty of correct decision increases with its importance. In proportion as you are hard pressed in competition, it is of the sternest necessity for you to choose the right aim, so as to be able to throw your whole energy and enthusiasm into the struggle for success. The dissipation of strength or hope is fatal to prosperity in the most attractive field. There is a limit to the work you can get out of your body or brain and you are a wise young man or woman if you waste no energy on pursuits for which you are not fitted and never can be fitted.

In choosing an occupation do not ask yourself how you can make the most money or gain the most notoriety, but choose the work which will call out all your powers and develop your manhood into the greatest strength and symmetry. Not money, not notoriety, not fame even, but power is what you want. Manhood is greater than wealth, grander than fame. Character is greater than any career. Each faculty must be educated, and any deficiency in its training will appear in whatever you do. The hand must be educated to be graceful, steady, and strong. The eye must be educated to be alert, discriminating, and microscopic. The heart must be educated to be tender, sympathetic, and true. The memory must be drilled for years in accuracy, retention, and comprehensiveness. The world does not demand that you be a lawyer, a doctor, a minister, a scientist or a merchant. It does not dictate what you shall be, but it does require that you be a master in whatever you undertake, if you would reap the full measure of your success.

Whoever is well educated to discharge the duties of a man cannot be badly prepared to fill any of those offices that have relation to him. In the great race of life common sense has the right of way. Wealth, a diploma, a pedigree, talent, or genius without tact and common sense cut but a small figure. The incapable and the impracticable, though loaded with diplomas and degrees are left behind. Not what you know or what you are, but what you can do, what can you excel in, is the burning question of the age.

What you are is much more than what you do. An aim that carries in it the least element of doubt as to its justice or honor or right should be abandoned at once. The art of dishing up the wrong so as to make it look and taste like the right has never been more extensively cultivated than now. It is a curious fact that reason will on pressure, overcome a man's instinct of right. An eminent psychologist has said that a man can soon reason himself out of the instinct of decency, if he would only take pains and work hard enough. So when a doubtful but attractive future is placed before you, there is a great temptation to juggle with the wrong till it seems the right, just as Hermann or Keller apparently changed a rabbit into an omelet. Yet an aim that is immoral carries in itself the germ of certain failure. Temper every act and thought of your lives with honor and justice. I mean by honor and justice not the vague uncertain imaginings of men, but I mean natural honor and natural justice, such as was interpreted by the written oracles and read by the revelations of nature's God.

As to the responsibility of your environments which has troubled great minds in all ages, and as to what you should do: I shall boldly say that you are not responsible for your parentage, or grand-parentage. You are not responsible for any of the cranks who may have lived in your ancestral line, and who a hundred years before you were born may have lived a style of life that more or less affects you today. You are not responsible for the fact that your temperament is sanguine, or melancholic, or lymphatic, or nervous. Neither are you responsible for the place of your nativity, whether it was among the granite hills of New England, or the cotton plantations of Louisiana, or the irrigated farms and alfalfa patches of the Pecos Valley. Neither are you responsible for the religion taught in your father's house, or his religion. Do not bother yourselves about things you can not help, or about circumstances that you did not decree. You are responsible only for what you are and the life you live. Take things as they are and decide the question so that you shall be able to say: to this end was I born.

The best way for you to begin life, if you are without friends, or influence, is first get a position, second, keep your mouth shut; third, observe closely; fourth, be faithful; fifth, make your employer think he would be lost without you; and sixth, be polite.

Do well that which is assigned you and you cannot hope too much or dare too much.

Close application, integrity, attention to details and discreet advertising were given as the four steps to success by John Wanamaker whose motto was do the next thing.

Whatever you do in life, be greater than your calling. Most people look upon an occupation or calling as a mere expedient for making a living. This is a mean, narrow view to take of what was intended for the great school of life, the great man-developer, the great character-builder; your occupation should be such as would broaden, deepen, heighten, and round out into symmetry, harmony, and beauty all the God-given faculties within you. You must not shrink from the ask and evade the lessons which are intended for the unfolding of life's great possibilities into usefulness and power, as the sun unfolds into beauty and fragrance the petals of the flower.

The Christian factor should enter into all professions and businesses. It will not interfere with the success of any honest business or calling, but contribute materially to it. You should not be concerned as much with choosing your parts in life as you are with your simple duty of playing them well.

Class of 1914, it now becomes my duty as Superintendent of Pecos Public School, on behalf of the faculty to give you a parting word. I make it one of council. You are young. You do not know all that is to be known. It is hoped that knowledge will not die with any of you. The world calls for growing men and women, never for men and women that are full grown. The world is in darkness as to many a problem. It will call loudly for your help. In your effort to answer the call you will never be able to sever at a single stroke the world from its sin and sorrow and suffering. You will never bridge difficulties nor produce wealth nor bless mankind by mere ipse dixits. You are to depend more on works than words.

I admonish that you are not only to preach truths to the world and to teach the world, but you are to live for the world. Your theories of life are not half so important as your conduct in life. Your faith in yourself will enlarge your faith in others. Faith in others will develop love for others.

I charge you that society has more claim on you than you have on society. You are the product of others. You must now live for others and for the betterment of mankind.

You are to make homes for yourselves. You are to emulate the virtues of your fathers, mothers, and friends, if those virtues be worthy of emulation.

You are not to be ignorant of nor keep aloof from public affairs. Home has its sphere. The church calls for service. Private employment brings private gains. Home, the church, private business, all depend upon the virtue of the public. Who is ignorant of this does not deserve a diploma. Who takes a high school course and then turns over civic affairs to those who would change public office into gold is an arrant snob unworthy the name graduate, unworthy the citizen.

If you are now ignorant of the fundamental problems of the municipalities and of the states, you ought not to remain so.

If you now can't think a thought that takes in the whole world, you need a graduate course in some high school or college that is better than this.

I do not call upon you to smash the images of the past, but I do urge you to turn your faces from them to that which is before.

Don't be bound by the mere form of politics or religion. Grasp the essence of both and work for the good of both.

What a field before you! Three facts stand out: First, the cities grapple anew with new forms of government. Steam having supplanted the animal force concentrates power and thus draws humanity together; electricity succeeding steam disbursts power and scatters population. Laws and systems of government made for people living in a steam age cannot meet the requirements of the electric age. It is not only yours to understand this fact and to adjust yourselves to it, but you are actively to help others to see it; second, the states that make up the federal union are not what they were when they entered into the compact. They have yielded some of their constitutional rights at the point of the sword. They have yielded other rights through the rule of reason and the judge-made law. Whether we like it or not they must yield even more if by so doing they can aid the nation in taking its rightful place in the world. You ought to help solve the problems of state in its relation to education, religion, morals, and government, but you are not to be on both sides of any question; third, the United States has come into her own. She has won the respect of the entire world. The period of national isolation for her is past. She is a leader in many of the problems that confront the nations. To maintain her leadership she must have intelligent respect for the laws of other people. To you, just on the threshold of life, the new nationalism is not so important as the new internationalism with its budding international law under the influence of arbitration and national diplomacy.

The world needs captains of industry and not of war, preachers of life and hope and not of death and despair. It needs practitioners of the art of service for others throughout the world and not mere philosophers like spiders backed up in the sunshine spinning webs to catch flies.

HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNI BANQUET

The Alumni association of the Pecos high school honored the new members, the class of '14' with a banquet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Collings, immediately after the graduating exercises Friday evening, May 15.

The table was artistically decorated with the class colors, purple and gold, with center pieces of sweet peas and carnations.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH STATE CONVENTION.

Rev. Homer L. Magee returned home yesterday from Gainesville, where he has been attending the state convention of the Christian churches, which convened last week.

It is reported to be the greatest convention of this church ever held in the state of Texas. All delegates went there filled with the spirit of their Master and all business was done in order and harmony, and in the closing exercises they sang the song "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

They, in parting, all bid farewell to each other, returning home to enter upon their work with renewed energy and zeal.

SESSION OF 1913-14 PECOS HIGH SCHOOL CLOSED.

The commencement program, the closing exercises of the 1913-14 session of the Pecos High School was rendered at the First Baptist church last night to one of the largest audiences ever gathered in Pecos. The church was nearly full and it was also one of the most attentive and appreciative audiences.

The graduates were Misses Mildred McCarver, Ruth Copelin, Artie Day and Edith Hall; Messrs. Fred Cole and Earl Easterbrook, and they had seats in the choir balcony.

The six front seats in the center sections were reserved for the alumni association members, school board, parents of the graduates and those on the program.

Rev. Charles B. Boyles spoke the words of invocation; Miss Florence McCarver then played Hungarian Rhapsody No. 6 in a most pleasing manner; Superintendent G.C. Jones then made the main address, "What Career," being his subject, which was one of the most interesting addresses of the kind that has been given at our high school commencements. We publish it elsewhere in this issue; the duet which was next rendered, "Slumber Song," by Mrs. Sam Means and Miss Vernon McCarver was ably and beautifully rendered; the presentation of the diplomas by Hon. James F. Ross was next and Mr. Ross at this time, as well as in the past, gave a most pleasing, helpful, timely talk; the violin solo, "Grandma," rendered by Prof. Carl Beck, was most certainly well done and was greatly appreciated by the large audience, and Miss Lillian Pruett presided most ably at the piano and played the accompaniment; the chorus, "We Shepherds Sing," was rendered in a most delightful manner by the large class of girls and young ladies. Rev. J. B. Cole pronounced the benediction.

OFF FOR WACO AND ROGERS.

D. W. Bozeman and family, Prof. G. C. Jones of Pecos, and Samuel D. Jones and family of Balmorhea are on their way to Waco and Rogers in their autos.

The two former left here this morning and were joined by the latter at Fort Stockton. They are going via Stockton, San Angelo, Brady and Temple, and will undoubtedly have a fine trip and a great deal of new experiences in their cross country drive.

Mr. Bozeman and family will make a visit at Waco with relatives and friends, and Messrs. Jones will go on to Rogers, where they will enter the mercantile business.

Pecos is the loser and will greatly miss Prof. Jones and family, but the Times joins all in wishing them success in their new location.

PECOS GIRL WINS HONORS.

Miss Anna Zimmer, daughter of H. C. Zimmer of this city, who is attending school at the North Texas State Normal College of Denton, has won many honors this term, among which the most recent is the distinction of exemption from all examinations in a class of over 600 seniors. Miss Zimmer received a diploma from the college, a permanent teacher's certificate and many compliments from the faculty. Miss Zimmer was one of the teachers in the Pecos school last year and her many friends will be glad to hear of her success in college. She will return home shortly after her graduating exercises are completed.

DIED FROM FRIGHT.

Mrs. Moorhead lost her old favorite horse yesterday evening. M. L. Clark & Sons combined shows were taking their elephants to water and Mrs. Moorhead's horse raised his head, looking at the elephants, becoming frightened and whirling around and then crouching down, falling over on his side and within a few minutes he was dead. Mrs. Moorhead had just been driving the horse and returned home and had unhitched him and turned him in the lot when this happened. It is generally conceded that he died from fright. This occurred about 6:30 p. m. yesterday.

WEDDINGS.

Cupid is somewhat busy lately in our quiet little city. Saturday evening at 9 o'clock Mr. Theodore Siedemann and Miss Emily Disque, of Pecos, called at the residence of Homer L. Magee and in the presence of a few relatives were united for life's journey.

Yesterday, just as the preacher reached the clerk's office to record the license for this marriage, he was "recalled," and on return to his home found Mr. J. C. Ashby and Miss Evelyn Fulgim, of Barstow, with proper papers and several witnesses, waiting to have spoken the magic words that would make of them "one till death shall separate."

All of these young people are well known in their respective communities. All join in wishing them the riches of blessings and the realization of their happy dreams of married life.

A GOOD PERFORMANCE.

The W. L. Clark & Sons combined menagerie and circus were here yesterday and gave two performances, and we hear many very favorable reports of the show, especially the acrobatic feats, that they were exceptionally good. They have a couple of the largest elephants we have seen with a small show.

They left this morning for a trip up the Pecos valley to Loving, Carlsbad and other New Mexico towns.

APPEAL MADE TO GOVERNOR

Leon Martinez went upon the hangman's scaffold last Monday at 12 o'clock to pay the death penalty which had been justly passed upon him for murdering Miss Emma Brown, the 22d of July, 1911. Leon conversed freely up to the time of his execution, when he walked upon the scaffold the sheriff asked him if he had anything to say, and he stated that he had said all that he had to say, unless somebody wanted to know something special. When the black cap was placed over his face and the noose adjusted around his neck the sheriff asked him if he was ready. He stated that he was. The sheriff then touched the trigger and the drop came and in fourteen minutes he was pronounced to be dead. He was then cut down and turned over to the Pecos Mercantile company's undertaking department. They dressed and embalmed the body and the father of the deceased was notified that his son was dead and they awaited instructions. He then wired for the body to be shipped to him at Waco, whereupon the undertaker wired back his charges, which was considered to be reasonable. But we have here a clipping from a Waco paper in which it appears that some of the Wacoans have unjustly accused the undertaker of making exorbitant charges for his services. Mr. Collins, the undertaker, has submitted to the public what he charged and stated that he had not charged any more for his services in this case than he charges other people.

For embalming $50.00 Suit of clothes 21.10 Telegrams 2.60 Casket 60.00 $133.70

These are the unheard of prices charged, so the Waco people say. The father refused to pay the price charged and made application to the governor to have him order the body turned over to him, contending that the casket should be furnished by the county in which the hanging was, but failing in this, the expenses were paid by the friends of the Martinez family and the body was shipped out to Waco Thursday evening.

The writer of the clipping taken from the Waco paper evidently was not familiar with the facts in the case, neither does he know what would be a reasonable charge for such service. It is not an unnatural thing for the father of the condemned son to try to save his son's life. But it was unreasonable for the publisher of the paper to have published this erroneous charge against the Pecos people. The law in all cases where a person is hanged and the body unclaimed by their friends the county in which the person was hanged should give them a decent burial, but when the body is claimed by friends then the obligations of the county in which the hanging was done ceases.

may prevent the removal of the body of Leon Martinez from Pecos to Waco for burial. When Leon Cardenas Martinez, father of the boy who was hanged, wired yesterday through the John Fall Undertaking company for the body to be shipped to Waco right away, a reply was received that $133 for coffin and embalming and $20 railroad fare would have to be sent before the body would be shipped.

On learning that he could not get the body of his son without paying such a large amount of money, Mr. Martinez wired Gov. Colquitt of the matter. In cases where persons are hanged, the county in which the hanging occurs is supposed to pay for the coffin. But the Pecos undertakers wired Mr. Martinez that the cheapest coffin they could furnish and the embalming would come to a total of $133 and that they also wanted the railroad fare guaranteed before the body would be released.

Local undertakers say they have never before heard of such a case as the one that has arisen over the removal of the Martinez body. In the first place they say the coffin, which could be furnished for a few dollars, is supposed to be paid for by the county and the embalming cost is only a matter of a reasonable fee. In order to avoid complications Mr. Martinez wired that he would pay as much as $60, but the Pecos people want $133. Now that he has been at such an enormous expense in the legal fight to save his son's life, he is confronted by the serious problem of paying what he has been informed is an exorbitant fee to get the body of his son. Unless Gov. Colquitt comes to his aid he does not know that he can have the body removed to Waco.—Waco Morning News, May 13.

THE MARTINEZ FUNERAL EXERCISES.

(Editorial in Waco Tribune.) It is a weird and greswome story we are printing today, of the funeral exercises held in Waco Saturday night in memory of Leon Cardenas Martinez, Jr., who paid the death penalty at Pecos, Texas, May 11. The Tribune felt some sympathy in that case. We doubted the wisdom and justice of exacting the boy's life and said as much in these columns. Had this editor possessed the power and authority he would have commuted the death sentence to life imprisonment. Then, if the future had revealed the innocence of the youth he could have been given freedom and opportunity. But we doubt the wisdom of his father in adopting the means and methods he did to proclaim his dead son a "martyr." In what respect did he undergo martyrdom? He may have been a victim of the law, his life exacted through lack of knowledge of the true occurrences. The law aims to be just. It may err, but it does not propose to inflict cruel or unusual or wanton suffering, as a result of which men do become martyrs.

In some communities the father of the dead boy would incur the charge of inciting sedition, to say the least, because of the methods he employed to voice his protest against the fate of his son and his rebuke of the spirit and operations of Texas and United States law. We can make large allowance for the surviving Martinez. It is his boy who is dead. In those words is the whole story of his attitude and procedure. He is of alien training, too, with ideas and ideals of widely divergent nature than those of the people among whom he dwells. One can extend much tolerant judgment to the father, all the circumstances considered.

But we cannot afford to lose sight of the fact that it is the genius and the letter of Texas and American law and institutions that permits Mr. Martinez to live here in peace, to enjoy protection of his person, his property, and to pursue the ways he hopes will bring him content and a livelihood. The laws and the institutions he arraigns, which he challenged in measure in the exercises of last Saturday night give him what he has today—life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Mr. Martinez should keep that in mind and bear his grief as manfully as may be. His procedure has not been wise. But we do not repress sympathy for him or for any man with a great sorrow and thus condone his sensational procedure. Commutation of sentence would have been commendable, but Leon Martinez was not the victim of mob violence. He died by due process of law—the same law that protects his father today.

The foregoing clipping which was taken from an editorial of the Waco Semi-Weekly Tribune of Wednesday of this week, we read with admiration. The feminine sentiment expressed in said editorial we attribute it to the fact that the editor was not familiar with the facts in the case. We are sure had he have known the truth of the charges by feelings and sympathy would have been different. We admit that Leon Cardenas Martinez Jr. was a victim, but not a martyr of the law, neither of mob violence, but was a victim of the folly of his own wicked and hellish desires, was condemned by the words of his own mouth, corroborated by all the circumstances connected with the deed. The sympathy of the law was and is with and for the living Martinez. Was not denied the right of a fair and impartial trial of all the courts. But Miss Brown had to die alone out on the lonely prairie with none but the eyes of the angels to behold her lifeless form, while the night was made more dreary by the hideous howling of the coyote around her lifeless body.

THE STRIKE IN COLORADO.

(Christian Science Monitor.) Probably the lowest type of human consciousness is expressed in anarchy, because wherever anarchy exists there is a belief that neither divine nor human justice is operative. It is to meet conditions of anarchy that the Governor of Colorado asked aid from Washington. We believe the President of the United States displayed rare tact in his prompt response to the call for help by the Governor of the strike-ridden commonwealth, by sending armed troops to suppress disturbances among the mine workers, striking members of the union, and the state militia. It is to be hoped the presence of the federal troops will be recognized as evidence of the law of the land, and that to this all will become obedient. But what of the conditions that underlie this situation?

When a river is swollen until it overflows its banks the people of the surrounding country do not, in this modern civilization of ours, permit it to rush onward in its foaming madness unchecked. The river in its wildness may be simply the result of the heavy rains upon its watershed which have given it thrice what its channel can carry; yet though it be through no fault of its own, the river has become a menace to society, and as such it must be controlled.

As we see it, capital and labor are, properly, confluent streams, full of possibilities for rich and happy service to mankind. They may be all that this figure implies so long as each is fed from the headwaters of industrious honesty and fair dealing. When, however, these goodly streams are swollen by the tempests of greed and passion, they rise out of all bounds, breaking through the levees of law that are so hastily thrown up, until the county, the state or the country is overswept by that ominous flood which is anarchy.

No mere levees can ever guarantee against a flood. The excesses that cause the one as well as the other must be eliminated at their source; diverted, converted, until they too shall conduce to the general good. Whatever has swollen the stream of both capital and labor to the degree where ambition for self has overswept the idea of simple justice—and justice for its own sake as well as for the rich rewards it brings to all who serve it—will surely have to be mitigated before such struggles as this between the mine owners and the mine workers organization become things of the past. Justice in the abstract we feel sure, will have to be once more held up as to some degree the ideal of both sides before either side can be satisfied or both can be at peace. The troops of the nation can doubtless restore quiet. The lawmakers of the state can decree laws that will make overt acts of injustice a punishable offense. How can peace result without justice? And how can there be justice unless each of the opposing parties can be led to appreciate somewhat of the other's trials and burdens can feel that sympathy in which only men feel their common brotherhood and recognize the practicalness of the ideal inherent in the Golden Rule?

NOT FIT FOR LADIES.

Public sentiment should be against it and we believe it is; there can be no reason why ladies should suffer with headaches and neuralgia, especially when Hunt's Lightning Oil gives such prompt relief. It is simply a question of getting the ladies to try it. All druggists sell Hunt's Lightning Oil in 25c and 50c bottles. A. B. Richards Medicine Co., Sherman, Tex. (Ad.)

TOBACCO, COCA COLA AND CHURCH SCHOOLS

(Houston Post.) The Southern Methodist conference, in session in Oklahoma City, placed the ban of prohibition upon the use of tobacco by those seeking ministerial orders of the church in the future. Those ministers already addicted to the "filthy, unnecessary and expensive habit," will be allowed to continue its indulgence, but when they pass away, there must be a tobaccoless Methodist ministry. Trinity College, Durham, N. C., was founded by the Dukes from the profits derived from the sale of tobacco. Asa G. Candler of Atlanta, head of the Coca Cola company, is said to be ready with a million dollars to build up Emory College. Perhaps Coca Cola money is less "tainted" than tobacco money.

A MARK OF DECLINING LIFE.

(Texas Farm and Fireside.) "The undue multiplication of laws is the sure mark of a declining life in the souls of men," declared Bishop Warren A. Candler of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, in a sermon preached to an overflow audience at St. Luke's church, Oklahoma City, Sunday. "There seems to be a notion among men of our day that all evils can be wiped out by making more laws," he continued; "they seem to think the undue multiplication of laws is the sure mark of a declining life in the souls of men."

Dr. Candler is perhaps the ablest among the bishops of the Southern Methodist church. The strength of his ministry has not been weakened in its power to inspire faith in the hearts of the people in the applied truths of the gospel to redeem individual man from sin and the world from the injustice that springs from the indulgence of sin. His individual faith has suffered no diminution from poison of the so-called advanced thought of the age which turns from God-made law and its suggested principles of human action to man-made law which interposes obstacles to the free working of the higher law in the effort to cure evils which have their origin in this ignoring of the true principles designed as a rule of action for human conduct, but with unshaken fidelity he adheres to the landmarks of primitive faith in its example of what is termed the "old-fashioned religion."

In this attitude Bishop Candler occupies pretty much the same relation toward the thought and activities of the religious movement that Thomas Jefferson and the fathers of the republic occupied toward the political movement of their day. Jefferson declared that the essence of good government can only be found in that system "which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned."

When government goes beyond the discharge of this function in the enactment and administration of law, it lays wide open the gap for the abuse of power, and in the dominance of selfish interests that is sure to follow, ever seeking to confuse the public mind for the more easy promotion of their schemes, its purposes, as set forth in the preamble to the constitution, "to establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity," witnesses growing impairment through both discriminatory legislation and discriminatory administration, in which the salutary principle of "equal rights for all and special privileges to none," finds small observance, as is abundantly manifest in the growing burdens that are piled upon the masses as the result of favoritism extended to the few.

In his assertion that "the undue multiplication of laws is the sure mark of a declining life in the souls of men," Bishop Candler is supported by the wisdom of that most eminent among the ancient historians, Tacitus, who declared that "when the state is most corrupt then the laws are most multiplied," for in that corrupt condition of the state it is easily to be seen that sinister influences will take advantage of the undefended situation to bring about the multiplication of statutes which in their triumph over equity and good conscience operate to the unjust privileges which they already enjoy.

PROPER HONORING OF OLD GLORY. Specific directions how to honor Old Glory are now given through the press. James H. Channon of Chicago, furnishes the following facts concerning the use and salute of the flag, in which there will be found answers to numerous questions recently asked pertaining to the treatment and mistreatment of the national emblem. Holidays when the flag should be displayed at full staff are: Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12; Washington's birthday, Feb. 22; Battle of Lexington, April 19; Memorial day, May 30; Flag day, June 14; Battle of Bunker Hill, June 17; Independence day, July 4; Battle of Saratoga, Oct. 17; Surrender of Yorktown, Oct. 19; Evacuation day, Nov. 25. On Memorial day, May 30, the flag should fly at half staff from sunrise to noon and full staff from noon to sunset. In order to show proper respect for the flag the following ceremony should be observed: It should not be hoisted before sunrise, nor allowed to remain up after sunset. At "retreat," sunset, civilian spectators should stand at "attention" and uncover during the playing of the "Star-Spangled Banner." Military spectators are required by regulation to stand at "attention" and give the military salute. During the playing of the national hymn at "retreat" the flag should be lowered, but not then allowed to touch the ground. When the national colors are passing on parade or in review the spectator should, if walking, halt, and if sitting, arise, and stand at "attention" and uncover. When the national and state or other flags fly together the national flag should be placed on the right. When the flag is flown at half staff as a sign of mourning it should be hoisted to full staff at the conclusion of the funeral. In placing the flag at half staff it should first be hoisted to the top of the staff and then lowered to position, and preliminary to lowering from half staff it should be first raised to the top. The national salute is one gun for every state. The international salute is, under the law of nations, twenty-one guns. Legislation to preserve the American flag from desecration, mutilation or improper use has been passed by thirty-one states and three territories. The statutes of the United States have also forbidden the use of flag in registration of trademarks. Send us your check and we are in the market all the time. Green's.

Overland Autos Again in Pecos! For ten days I have been unable to get Overland cars on my orders on account of the "Spring Rush" that is now on in all of the territory. I now have an auto on hand and will have a carload this week ready for delivery. Some of these cars are already sold, and I have no hopes of getting more care after these orders as this is all the cars I have contracted for until July. When You Come to Consider that the most serviceable cars that have ever been in the Pecos Country are unquestionably the OVERLAND cars. When You Come to Consider the size of a car and the general make-up—including the engine, base, horsepower, the electric source, the carburetor and the general finish of a car for $950 to $1350, the only with the most for the money is unquestionably the OVERLAND car. When You Come to Consider what you are to get from your car the one offering the most is unquestionably the OVERLAND car. When You Consider the factory building a car, and their financial strength, their position and assurance of help to buyers the one offering the most is unquestionably the OVERLAND. These Facts coupled with the fact that I have already sold in this territory more than my yearly supply; that 90 PER CENT OF ALL THE CARS SOLD THIS YEAR IN THIS CLASS IN PECOS HAVE BEEN OVERLAND CARS. All These Facts should be conclusive evidence and assurance that you need not tate no longer as to your new car, but consider YOURSELF LUCKY if you get one of this year's production. Place your order now while you can get it filled at once. Let me show you this new car. O. MITCHELL Phone 36 Pecos, Texas

Leon conversed freely up to the time of his execution, when he walked upon the scaffold the sheriff asked him if he had anything to say, and he stated that he had said all that he had to say, unless somebody wanted to know something special. They dressed and embalmed the body and the father of the deceased was notified that his son was dead and they awaited instructions. He then wired for the body to be shipped to him at Waco, whereupon the undertaker wired back his charges, which was considered to be reasonable. But we have here a clipping from a Waco paper in which it appears that some of the Wacoans have unjustly accused the undertaker of making exorbitant charges for his services. Mr. Collins, the undertaker, has submitted to the public what he charged and stated that he had not charged any more for his services in this case than he charges other people.

These are the unheard of prices charged, so the Waco people say. The father refused to pay the price charged and made application to the governor to have him order the body turned over to him, contending that the casket should be furnished by the county in which the hanging was, but failing in this, the expenses were paid by the friends of the Martinez family and the body was shipped out to Waco Thursday evening.

The writer of the clipping taken from the Waco paper evidently was not familiar with the facts in the case, neither does he know what would be a reasonable charge for such service. It is not an unnatural thing for the father of the condemned son to try to save his son's life. But it was unreasonable for the publisher of the paper to have published this erroneous charge against the Pecos people. The law in all cases where a person is hanged and the body unclaimed by their friends the county in which the person was hanged should give them a decent burial, but when the body is claimed by friends then the obligations of the county in which the hanging was done ceases.

may prevent the removal of the body of Leon Martinez from Pecos to Waco for burial. When Leon Cardenas Martinez, father of the boy who was hanged, wired yesterday through the John Fall Undertaking company for the body to be shipped to Waco right away, a reply was received that $133 for coffin and embalming and $20 railroad fare would have to be sent before the body would be shipped.

On learning that he could not get the body of his son without paying such a large amount of money, Mr. Martinez wired Gov. Colquitt of the matter. In cases where persons are hanged, the county in which the hanging occurs is supposed to pay for the coffin. But the Pecos undertakers wired Mr. Martinez that the cheapest coffin they could furnish and the embalming would come to a total of $133 and that they also wanted the railroad fare guaranteed before the body would be released.

Local undertakers say they have never before heard of such a case as the one that has arisen over the removal of the Martinez body. In the first place they say the coffin, which could be furnished for a few dollars, is supposed to be paid for by the county and the embalming cost is only a matter of a reasonable fee. In order to avoid complications Mr. Martinez wired that he would pay as much as $60, but the Pecos people want $133. Now that he has been at such an enormous expense in the legal fight to save his son's life, he is confronted by the serious problem of paying what he has been informed is an exorbitant fee to get the body of his son. Unless Gov. Colquitt comes to his aid he does not know that he can have the body removed to Waco.—Waco Morning News, May 13.

THE MARTINEZ FUNERAL EXERCISES.

(Editorial in Waco Tribune.) A MARK OF DECLINING LIFE.

(Texas Farm and Fireside.) "The undue multiplication of laws is the sure mark of a declining life in the souls of men," declared Bishop Warren A. Candler of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, in a sermon preached to an overflowed audience at St. Luke's church, Oklahoma City, Sunday. "There seems to be a notion among men of our day that all evils can be wiped out by making more laws," he continued; "they seem to think the ballot box is the ark of the covenant. In nothing could they be more grievously mistaken."

Dr. Candler is perhaps the ablest among the bishops of the Southern Methodist church. In this attitude Bishop Candler occupies pretty much the same relation toward the thought and activities of the religious movement that Thomas Jefferson and the fathers of the republic occupied toward the political movement of their day.

Jefferson declared that the essence of good government can only be found in that system "which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned."

When government goes beyond the discharge of this function in the enactment and administration of law, it lays wide open the gap for the abuse of power, and in the dominance of selfish interests that is sure to follow, ever seeking to confuse the public mind for the more easy promotion of their schemes, its purposes, as set forth in the preamble to the constitution, "to establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity," witnesses growing impairment through both discriminatory legislation and discriminatory administration, in which the salutary principle of "equal rights for all and special privileges to none," finds small observance, as is abundantly manifest in the growing burdens that are piled upon the masses as the result of favoritism extended to the few.

In his assertion that "the undue multiplication of laws is the sure mark of a declining life in the souls of men," Bishop Candler is supported by the wisdom of that most eminent among the ancient historians, Tacitus, who declared that "when the state is most corrupt then the laws are most multiplied," for in that corrupt condition of the state it is easily to be seen that sinister influences will take advantage of the undefended situation to bring about the multiplication of statutes which in their triumph over equity and good conscience operate to the unjust privileges which they already enjoy.

NOT FIT FOR LADIES.

Public sentiment should be against it and we believe it is; there can be no reason why ladies should suffer with headaches and neuralgia, especially when Hunt's Lightning Oil gives such prompt relief. It is simply a question of getting the ladies to try it. All druggists sell Hunt's Lightning Oil in 25c and 50c bottles. A. B. Richards Medicine Co., Sherman, Tex. (Ad)

TOBACCO, COCA COLA AND CHURCH SCHOOLS

(Houston Post.) The Southern Methodist conference, in session in Oklahoma City, placed the ban of prohibition upon the use of tobacco by those seeking ministerial orders of the church in the future. Those ministers already addicted to the "filthy, unnecessary and expensive habit," will be allowed to continue its indulgence, but when they pass away, there must be a tobaccoless Methodist ministry. Trinity College, Durham, N. C., was founded by the Dukes from the profits derived from the sale of tobacco. Asa G. Candler of Atlanta, head of the Coca Cola company, is said to be ready with a million dollars to build up Emory College. Perhaps Coca Cola money is less "tainted" than tobacco money.

PROPER HONORING OF OLD GLORY.

Specific directions how to honor Old Glory are now given through the press. James H. Channon of Chicago, furnishes the following facts concerning the use and salute of the flag, in which there will be found answers to numerous questions recently asked pertaining to the treatment and mistreatment of the national emblem.

Holidays when the flag should be displayed at full staff are: Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12. Washington's birthday, Feb. 22. Battle of Lexington, April 19. Memorial day, May 30. Flag day, June 14. Battle of Bunker Hill, June 17. Independence day, July 4. Battle of Saratoga, Oct. 17. Surrender of Yorktown, Oct. 19. Evacuation day, Nov. 25.

On Memorial day, May 30, the flag should fly at half staff from sunrise to noon and full staff from noon to sunset.

In order to show proper respect for the flag the following ceremony should be observed:

It should not be hoisted before sunrise nor allowed to remain up after sunset. At "retreat," sunset, civilian spectators should stand at "attention" and uncover during the playing of the "Star-Spangled Banner." Military spectators are required by regulation to stand at "attention" and give the military salute. During the playing of the national hymn at "retreat" the flag should be lowered, but not then allowed to touch the ground.

When the national colors are passing on parade or in review the spectator should, if walking, halt, and if sitting, arise, and stand at "attention" and uncover.

When the national and state or other flags fly together the national flag should be placed on the right.

When the flag is flown at half staff as a sign of mourning it should be hoisted to full staff at the conclusion of the funeral. In placing the flag at half staff it should first be hoisted to the top of the staff and then lowered to position, and preliminary to lowering from half staff it should be first raised to the top.

The national salute is one gun for every state. The international salute is, under the law of nations, twenty-one guns.

Legislation to preserve the American flag from desecration, mutilation or improper use has been passed by thirty-one state and territories.

The statutes of the United States have also forbidden the use of the flag in registration of trademarks.

Overland Autos Again in Pecos!

For ten days I have been unable to get Overland cars in my orders on account of the "Spring Rush" that is now on in all of the territory. I now have an auto on hand and will have a carload this week ready for delivery. Some of these cars are already sold, and I have no hopes of getting more care after these orders as this is all the cars I have contracted for until July.

When You Come to Consider that the most serviceable cars that have ever been in the Pecos Country are unquestionably the OVERLAND cars.

When You Come to Consider

the size of a car and the general make-up—including the base, horsepower, the electric source, the carburetor and the general finish of a car for $950 to $1350, the one with the most money is unquestionably the OVERLAND car.

When You Come to Consider

what you are to get from your car the one offering the most is unquestionably the OVERLAND car.

When You Consider

the factory building a car, and their financial strength, their position and assurance of help to buyers the one offering the most is unquestionably the OVERLAND.

coupled with the fact that I have already sold in this territory more than my yearly supply; that 90 PER CENT OF ALL THE CARS SOLD THIS YEAR IN THIS CLASS IN PECOS HAVE BEEN OVERLAND CARS.

All These Facts

should be conclusive evidence and assurance that you need not tate no longer as to your new car, but consider YOURSELF LUCKY if you get one of this year's production. Place your order now while you can get it filled at once.

Let me show you this new car.

WHY DREAMLAND IS STATE OF BLISS.

(London Globe.)
Why do we use the word dreamland as a formula to express scenes of beauty and states of bliss? For myself, and I am sure I speak for a large proportion of humanity, dreamland is about as beautiful and blissful a place as, shall we say, Gower street. Less, for Gower street has at least two practicable ends by which you can escape to better things, whereas in dreamland the ways of escape nearly always lead to things that are worse, and, as one is frequently escaping from things in this detestable country, one is nearly always exchanging bad for worse in the attempt.

Only last night I was escaping from a steam roller which was chasing me—a way they have in dreamland—when I found my path blocked by the official end of a hippopotamus. That the hippopotamus turned into a house door was a fact in development that brought me no surprise nor indeed relief, for the house door introduced me to a company of evil people, each one far worse than the steam roller, and in escaping from them I ended the dream—stuck fast in a flue.

I do not know what inherent malice of mind sets the stage for a dream like that, but I do know that it is constructive in a feeble sort of way, and that it is the chief demon of the miserable set of demons who have, no doubt, been turned out of hades for stupidity, and let loose to amuse themselves in this misbegotten land that the poets rave about.

I count seven of these larvae as personal acquaintances, and though I have never seen them, I know them by their works, and it gives me the deepest pleasure to expose them in print.

1. There is the feeble and evil dramatist before mentioned.

2. The demon who presides over the railway stations one is always trying to reach, and the trains one is always losing, and the dreamland railway porters, who are so exactly and horribly like the real things that I believe railway porters are the only real things that ever enter dreamland without change—perhaps because they never leave it.

3. The devil who takes all my clothes away from me with the exception of a shirt, which he has carefully washed and laundered beforehand, so as to shrink it properly, and who turns me just so into a drawing room full of people, to whom a shirt, however well laundered, does not seem to appeal.

4. There is the honors distributor, who tells me that the king has made me a duke, and Mr. Rockefeller has made me his heir, and sets me hunting through the morning paper to see for myself the glorious news in print. Glimpses of the tidings are here and there, glimpses that never lead to anything but advertisements for lost dogs or leading articles about tariff reform.

5, 6, 7. You know them all perhaps as well as I do. Futile foods, malvolent, yet incapable of anything, giving but small and evil tricks with which to rob a person of his or her self-respect, comfort—and even clothing.

I had forgotten the boot demon, who runs away with one's boots in the middle of Cornhill, let him be satisfied, he is not the only one forgotten, from the barber devil who shaves one's head in mistake for one's chin to the mean beasts who dress themselves up as polar bears and purple cows, and chase unfortunate children over the delectable hills of dreamland.

The Dain Mower is the easiest running and longest life mower made. Come and see it and you are not held up on the price. Max Krauskopf, the John Deere Implement man, sells them.

THE CHURCHES

Methodist.

All the usual services at the Methodist church next Sunday. Bro. Clyde Campbell will not be here until Monday. The pastor will preach twice next Sunday.

Remember preaching at the Methodist church every night next week by Rev. Clyde Campbell, the pastor-evangelist and returned missionary. All are invited to attend, and bring as many friends along as possible. Let us have much prayer and earnest heart-searchings.

Church of Christ.

We earnestly desire to meet the full membership of the church at the services of the coming Lord's day. Come and bring the children to the Bible school and all remain for the preaching and the communion service. The subject of the morning sermon will be "True Worship." The C. E. prayer meeting will be held at the usual hour and the preaching service at 8:30. At this service the minister will preach an illustrated sermon on "God's Unfolding Revelation."

We extend a cordial invitation to all, to each and all of these meetings, and ask you to join us in a prayer that the coming Lord's day may be one of spiritual uplift to the whole community.

Baptist.

The services last Sunday were all enjoyed by all our people. The morning sermon by Brother Hedgepeth and the lecture in the evening were very helpful to all who attended.

Next Sunday morning the pastor will speak on "What Jesus Is to the Christians." We look for all our Sunday school folks to rally now and do their best work during vacation months. Suppose we all pass resolutions to attend every service every Sunday during the summer. The strangers coming to Pecos only need a kind word to secure their attendance at all our worship.

A NICE RAIN COMES.
Superintendent Stewart of the experimental farm reported that the government rain gage at the farm showed that there was 55-100 of an inch of water fell out there last night.

There was a nice shower fell in Pecos, and by the looks of things there was a heavy rainfall west and south and northwest of here. A report from Saragosa said that they had a fine rain down there.

A good, soaking rain followed by a "gully washer" would be of untold benefit to the range in this section of the great Southwest.

PETITION GOVERNOR TO STOP HANGING

Austin, Texas, May 19.—A petition for a commutation of the death sentence to one of life imprisonment was filed with the board of pardons today on behalf of Fernando Subia, of Reeves county.

EXPECT BAILEY TO AGAIN ENTER TEXAS POLITICS

Austin, May 18.—Former Senator J. W. Bailey may re-enter the game of democratic politics in Texas. It is reported here that he is disposed to consider favorably the supplications of many of his warm friends in this state that he become a candidate for a seat in the upper branch of congress to succeed Senator Charles A. Culberson. Although Mr. Culberson's term will not expire until 1917, the campaign for electing his successor has already started. Two avowed candidates are in the field at this time. One is Congressman Robert L. Henry of Waco, and the other is Prof. Samuel P. Brooks, head of Baylor university, also of Waco. Governor O. B. Colquitt is generally regarded as a candidate for senator, and it is expected he will soon make formal announcement to that effect. Mr. Culberson's health has been precarious for two or three years and it is thought he will not seek re-election.

STORM DAMAGE AT COTULLA

Cotulla, Tex., May 17.—Six inches of rain fell here last night in two hours. Some railroad and county bridges were washed out. Thousands of dollars' damage was done. The barn of W. B. Stanfield was struck by lightning and burned, with contents, including automobile. The rain appears to have been general. All trains on the International and Great Northern were tied up until late this evening, when bridges were temporarily repaired.

ALASKA TOWN BADLY DAMAGED BY FLOOD

Seattle, Wash., May 18.—A special cablegram to the Post-Intelligencer from Fairbanks, Alaska, says: "Reports from Circle City, Sunday say the flood caused by the breakup of the ice in the Yukon river Thursday was the worst in the history of the camp. The town was almost wiped out, all the stores, government buildings and dwellings near the waterfront being damaged by ice. The Indian village is entirely under water and ice. The loss is estimated at $25,000."

FOUR HURT IN WRECK

Shreveport, La., May 16.—Due to a switch lock being broken and the switch being left partly open, Texas and Pacific passenger train No. 53, due here early today, was wrecked last night near Gloster, La., causing the serious injury of Engineer Hunt and the slight injury of Baggage-man J. A. Mault and Mail Clerks M. C. Oglesby and Joe Johnson, all of Marshall, Tex.

None of the passengers were hurt, none of the cars having been derailed.

AIRMEN KILLED

London, Eng., May 12.—Two army airmen, Captain F. D. Anderson and a mechanic named Carter, were instantly killed and Lieutenant C. W. Wilson was gravely injured when two biplanes collided in the air at Aldershot today.

WHOOPIING COUGH

"About a year ago my three boys had whooping cough and I found Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the only one that would relieve their coughing and whooping spells. I continued this treatment and was surprised to find that it cured the disease in a very short time," writes Mrs. Archie Dalrymple, Crooksville, Ohio. For sale by all dealers. (Adv.)

SCIENTISTS PREPARE FOR ECLIPSE OF SUN

Washington, D. C. May 17.—The eclipse of the sun on August 1 next—total in part of Europe and Asia and partial in Northeastern America—is attracting the widespread attention of astronomers and scientists; various expeditions being arranged to witness this phenomena. In view of the public interest in the event Prof. C. G. Abbott, head of the astronomical branch of the Smithsonian Institution, and a recognized authority on solar phenomena, gives the following popular account of the eclipse and the scientific results sought from such events:

On Aug. 21, 1914, the moon will pass exactly between the earth and the sun and there will be a total solar eclipse. It will not be observed in America, except as a small partial eclipse at sunrise in the Northern States and Canada but in Persia Russia, and Scandinavia the full effect will be seen.

Although the moon looks about the same size as the sun, it is very much smaller and nearer. The sun is 865,000 miles in diameter and 93,000,000 miles away, while the moon is 2,163 miles in diameter and 239,000 miles away. On account of the moon's small size compared with the sun the shadow cast by the moon is a cone and the point of this cone just barely reaches the earth.

In the August eclipse the diameter of the cone at the earth's surface is only about eighty-five miles, so that the eclipse is visible as total only in a belt about eight-five miles wide stretching over the countries named above.

The important cities of Bitlis, Trebizoni, Kief, Minsk and Riga lie near the center of this belt. It passes about a hundred miles north of Stockholm and Trondheim. The eclipse will be seen as partial over a very wide area, including northeastern America, Greenland, Europe, half of Asia and half of Africa. Within this region only a portion of the sun's disk will be hidden by the moon.

Wherever the solar eclipse is seen as total, the sky will become nearly as dark as a full moonlight, and a few of the brighter stars and planets may be seen. The duration of the totality is longest near Kief in Russia, where it is two minutes and thirteen seconds.

Sometimes the moon and sun occupy such positions that although the moon passes directly between the earth and the sun the shadow cone does not quite reach the earth. Such solar eclipses are called "annular" and are nowhere total eclipses.

In the most favorable case a total eclipse may last over seven minutes at a station, but such occasions are very rare. The very long total eclipses of this century are as follows:

1919—May 25, 6.9 minutes, region, Peru, Brazil, Central Africa.
1913—June 8, 7.1 minutes, Pacific ocean, Peru.
1955—June 20, 7.2 minutes, Ceylon, Siam, Philippines.
1973—June 30, 7.2 minutes, South America, Africa.
1991—July 11, 7.1 minutes, Pacific Ocean, Hawaii, Central America.

There will be total eclipses visible in the United States on June 8, 1918; Sept. 10, 1923, and Jan. 24, 1925.

THROWN FROM HORSE

MIDLAND MAN KILLED

Midland, May 18.—Ross Brumley, who worked at his father's ranch 30 miles west of here, was killed while attempting to break a broncho. He was thrown from the animal and sustained such severe injuries that he died a few hours later.

BREAK JAIL AT AMARILLO

Amarillo May 17.—The two men arrested here last Thursday night in connection with the loss of an automobile at Dallas saved their way out of the city jail some time Saturday night. They escaped through a window after having sawed off two-inch bars. Deputy Sheriff Combs of Dallas arrived here Saturday afternoon, intending to take them to Dallas Sunday morning.

METHODISTS TO RECONSIDER VANDERBILT CASE

Oklahoma City, May 18.—Just before adjournment for the day, the Methodist Church, South, in session here, voted to reconsider the entire Vanderbilt University question. The vote upon the motion to recommit the report to the committee of fifteen was reached shortly before noon and was almost unanimous.

It instructs the committee of fifteen to follow the spirit of the majority report and the supplementary legislation submitted at today's session by Judge N. E. Harris of the Georgia conference.

After a service of prayer for the success of the mediators in their work of pacification of Mexico, the conference adjourned until nine o'clock tomorrow.

It developed in the arguments that the signers of the majority report, which was adopted by the conference, had discovered that the church held substantial, instead of "negligible" rights in Vanderbilt, despite the rulings of the Tennessee supreme court.

Judge O. H. Linebaugh, chairman of the committee of fifteen on the Vanderbilt case, contended the acceptance of the Carnegie gift by the board of trust of Vanderbilt, over the veto of the bishops, was a violation of their trust, a dishonor to the church, and had created an "irreconcilable difference." He declared the legal title of Vanderbilt was in the board of trust, but an equitable title rested in the patronizing conferences, and the majority of the committee believes the right of recovery can be exercised only by those conferences.

In reply to a question, Linebaugh said the general conference, through its board of education, cannot demand that the board of trust return the Carnegie gift, but the patronizing conferences, being owners in equity, have that right.

Rev. W. A. Christian of Virginia criticized the majority report for failing to provide for carrying out its trust during the interim between adjournment of the general conference and a meeting of the eight patronizing conferences.

Judge N. E. Harris of the Georgia conference insisted that the minority was also a full test of the church's rights to the university. He read the proposed supplementary legislation to correct the majority report to provide for the continuance of relations for the interim between adjournment of the regular body and completion of the reconvening of Vanderbilt to the patronizing conferences. This amendment gives the board of education the authority to confirm or reject trustees.

PERSISTENT THEORY OF WIRELESS PERIL

Paris, May 16.—Despite the experiments described by recent dispatches from London in the New York Times, performed by the Marconi company, showing the impossibility of wireless currents causing ship fires, or even the ignition of gasoline vapor, the French press continues to publish alarming reports of the danger from Hertzian waves.

Such stories are of three categories: First, regarding the disastrous powder magazine explosions, as, for instance, on the battleship Iena, when Cabart Denneville, a member of the Senatorial commission of inquiry, received testimony from Haudin, a harbor electrical workman, that the apparatus under his charge had been damaged by wireless messages from the fleet a little while before the explosion, the inference being that the Iena has been similarly affected; second, the coal mine explosions, which, as suggested in a recent article in L'Illustration, invariably occur at the contact point of two sets of wireless waves, the inference being that an explosion is thus caused; third, the reports of explosions artificially produced on board ships, an instance of which is offered by an article in the French weekly La Nature, of February, 1914, in which Frank Duroquier described the successful blowing up of a useless hulk by the British Admiralty by means of Hertzian vibrations.

Cabart Denneville, the latest contributor to these alarming theories, publishes an article in the Brest Telegraph of May 1, giving his personal experiences with inexplicable wireless phenomena.

No case is mentioned when the Hertzian waves were proved to be destructive. All is vague and inconclusive. The general opinion among French scientists remains unchanged; that wireless waves are perfectly harmless.

AUTOLOADING SHOTGUNS

ANY way you look at it, the Autoloader is the highest development in modern shotgun design. It puts five loads at your disposal by merely pressing the trigger. It puts the recoil to useful work—to eject the empty and slip in the fresh shell.

It saves the gunner's shoulder—rids his sport of annoyances—increases his shooting average.

Your danger is that in your enthusiasm over the autoloading principle, you may forget to insist on getting the finest embodiment of that principle—the Remington-UMC Autoloading Shotgun.

The peculiar advantages of the Remington-UMC are too many to detail here. What you want to do is to get one of the Remington-UMC dealers in this section to demonstrate them to you on the gun itself.

FLOOD CONDITIONS IN SOUTH TEXAS SERIOUS

Houston, May 14.—With the lower reaches of all streams out of banks and still rising, South and East Texas railway lines again faced serious flood conditions this morning. While trains for the most part departed on time, detouring was again necessary. The rainfall in this section has exceeded all records for the past twenty-six years, but the sun is shining intermittently this morning and hopes are that better conditions will result.

Reports show that potatoes, onions and other crops are rotting in the field and considerable gloom prevails in farming circles generally. Corn and cotton present a sickly appearance and nothing except a long period of warmth can prevent both crops being cut shorter than for years.

INSURANCE RESERVES TO EQUAL LIABILITY

Austin, May 14.—In an opinion to the commissioner of insurance and banking today, the attorney general's department held that a reserve represents what an insurance company must have in hand to meet its ultimate liabilities, upon its policies. It should have assets enough at any time, which invested at the statutory rate of interest, together with the future premiums payable to it under its policies, will enable it to meet all its policy obligations.

RETURN TO MEXICO.

Washington, May 13.—The hospital ship Solace, en route from Vera Cruz to New York, will return to Mexico after transferring 62 patients to the naval hospital at New York, with medical stores for the fleet in Mexican waters. A wireless from the Solace to the navy department early today stated that it would be necessary for the ship to undergo minor repairs before her return south. It was further stated that the Solace will take back to Mexico forty-one convalescents.

SENT UP FOR LIFE.

Chicago, May 14.—Sentence of life imprisonment for the murder of Mrs. Emma Kraft, a Cincinnati widow, was imposed on John B. Koettters, today by Judge McDonald. Koettters was found guilty of killing Mrs. Kraft with a hammer in a Chicago hotel in November, 1912. She was infatuated with him and had given him money.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Boston, May 14.—Announcement of the engagement of Junius Spencer Morgan, son of J. Pierpont Morgan, of New York, to Miss Louis E. Converse, daughter of Fred Shepperd Converse of this city, was made by the young woman's parents today.

REGULAR COMMERCE BEGUN THRU PANAMA CANAL.

Washington, May 14.—For the first time in the world's history, water-borne traffic is now passing through the Panama canal, according to the reports that have been received at the headquarters of the Panama railroad in New York, forwarded here today.

Though confirmation of the report has not yet reached the Washington office of the isthmian canal commission, it is known that ample provision had been made by Colonel Goethals for the institution of water service, limited at first strictly to barges, beginning not later than May 10.

As a matter of fact, according to the Panama railroad reports, the service actually began last Saturday and a steady stream of barges in tow is now passing through the canal.

The tremendous congestion in inter-oceanic commerce caused by suspension of service in the Tehuantepec railroad in Southern Mexico as an incident to the rebellion, brought about this opening of the canal to traffic. Several of the great freight liners, which, in conjunction with similar service on the Pacific maintains trade lines between Europe and the Far East via Tehuantepec, have recently appeared at Colon and Panama offering cargoes for transshipment overland far beyond the capacity of the Panama railroad.

Finding that Colonel Goethals was willing to assist them by clearing an adequate channel for barges, at least through the Cuarracha slide, the company obtained a lot of the barges that have been used for labor purposes at Colon and Panama and established this service as an overflow to assist the railroad in meeting the trade demands.

Colonel Goethals had not reported to Washington just when the canal will be opened to merchant shipping, but the understanding here is that the waterway is practically finished and that even now there is a sufficient channel through the Gulebra cut for almost any warship or liner and that it is only from a desire to avoid a possible serious accident through an unexpected renewal of the earth movements in the cut that Colonel Goethals has determined to allow a period for observation before actually opening the canal.

It is understood that this barge service is to be operated on about a twelve-hour schedule from the Atlantic to the Pacific, which allows one hour's delay in each of the locks.

SUICIDES AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, La., May 12.—Augusta Agnes Edwards, sentenced to life imprisonment for murder, committed suicide in her cell here late last night, by swallowing poison after being informed that the supreme court had overruled her petition for a new trial.

LONDON TIMES LAUDS PRESIDENT WILSON.

London, May 13.—The Mexico City correspondent of the Times, telegraphing from Vera Cruz, compares Mexico City to Naples under King Bomba. He says:

"Spies are everywhere and summary arrests of Americans and Mexicans are frequent. Prominent foreign residents expect the fall of Huerta through a local revolution or defeat by Gen. Villa."

In an editorial on the Mexican situation the Times says:

"There is no disposition in Great Britain to sneer at the course President Wilson has followed throughout the Mexican entanglement—a course with which his present reluctance to prepare for war is quite in keeping. He has shown, as we have always gladly acknowledged, remarkable patience, highmindedness and forbearance in pursuing his ideals."

LYNCHING TODAY.

Shreveport, La., May 12.—Ed. Hamilton, a negro, held on a charge of assaulting a 12-year-old white girl, was taken from the parish jail today and lynched.

POPE MAY TAKE INTEREST IN MEXICAN AFFAIRS

Vera Cruz, May 13.—The Rev. Jose Moreno Del Rio, archbishop of Mexico and the Rev. Jesus Maria Eschavarria, bishop of Saltillo, arrived here today on their way to Rome.

It was said the archbishop was going to Italy for a vacation, but those familiar with his efforts for peace in the federal capital regard his trip as of more significance, saying they believe he hopes to secure the active interest of the pope in Mexican affairs.

ORDNANCE BASE TO BE FORMED AT GALVESTON

Springfield, Mass., May 13.—A sergeant, a corporal and other first class privates were detached from the detail at the Springfield armory today and sent to Governor's Island, New York. It is understood that these men, with other details from ordnance stations, will be sent to Galveston to establish an ordnance base.

WILSON'S MESSAGE TO COLORADO AUTHORITIES

Washington, May 16.—President Wilson has sent Gov. Ammons of Colorado a telegram informing him that the federal troops will not be kept in the troubled mine district indefinitely.

President Wilson's telegram to Gov. Ammons read:

"Am disturbed to hear of the probability of the adjournment of your legislature and feel bound to remind you that my constitutional obligations with regard to the maintenance of order in Colorado are not to be indefinitely continued by the inaction of the state legislature. The federal forces are there only until the state of Colorado has time and opportunity to resume complete sovereignty and control in the matter. I can not conceive that the state is willing to forego her sovereignty or to throw herself entirely upon the government of the United States and I am quite clear that it has no constitutional right to do so when it is within the power of her legislature to take effective action."

"WOODROW WILSON." President Wilson expressed satisfaction with the situation after he had received Gov. Ammons' reply late tonight. Officials in close touch with the President said that Mr. Wilson was greatly pleased with what had been done after he had been informed by Gov. Ammons of the work of the Colorado legislature.

WILSON'S MESSAGE TO COLORADO AUTHORITIES

Washington, May 16.—President Wilson has sent Gov. Ammons of Colorado a telegram informing him that the federal troops will not be kept in the troubled mine district indefinitely.

President Wilson's telegram to Gov. Ammons read:

"Am disturbed to hear of the probability of the adjournment of your legislature and feel bound to remind you that my constitutional obligations with regard to the maintenance of order in Colorado are not to be indefinitely continued by the inaction of the state legislature. The federal forces are there only until the state of Colorado has time and opportunity to resume complete sovereignty and control in the matter. I can not conceive that the state is willing to forego her sovereignty or to throw herself entirely upon the government of the United States and I am quite clear that it has no constitutional right to do so when it is within the power of her legislature to take effective action."

"WOODROW WILSON." President Wilson expressed satisfaction with the situation after he had received Gov. Ammons' reply late tonight. Officials in close touch with the President said that Mr. Wilson was greatly pleased with what had been done after he had been informed by Gov. Ammons of the work of the Colorado legislature.
