CATTLE SALES BEING MADE

Have Another Bunch of Stock News this Week—Both Coming and Going.

Sunday, the Santa Fe brought down by special train a train load of cars—of cattle which belonged to C. M. Armstrong, which were loaded at Riverton and the Texas Pacific train carried them over to Odessa, where they will be passed this summer.

On Monday, Mr. Armstrong shipped out from the same place 16 cars of cattle which were also taken to Odessa.

Monday the Santa Fe brought down a car load of range horses from Riverton which had been sold to L. B. Edwards by W. L. Ross from his New Mexico ranch. We are not at liberty to state the price, but it is not far from the 100 mark.

Albert Tinnin sold 465 head of his ranch cattle to Messrs. Johnson and Browning, which were delivered in Pecos last Saturday, all in good condition. The main thing that makes good times is for those that have anything to sell, sell it when they can find a buyer.

H. F. Anthony was in Pecos Tuesday to receive the shipment of stock cattle which he had purchased from Sid Kyle. They were loaded at Riverton, and the Santa Fe transferred them to the Pecos Valley Southern train which carried them out to Saragosa and Mr. Anthony will unload them there and drive them over to his ranch. There were 140 head of cows, calves and bulls, and are all purebred Herefords. This will make an addition to Mr. Anthony's herd and he intends to add to them as fast as he can find the kind and quality that suits him. He believes in improving the value of his cattle as fast as possible.

W. D. Hudson sold to Lee Russell, of Fort Worth, 1200 steer yearlings and received the top price for them. They are to be delivered this month.

CALENDAR FOR MONTH OF JUNE

Leaking Drain Pipe May Ooze Typhoid Germs—Look After Plumbing.

During June housewives should make house cleaning count for health.

Danger lurks in drains, damp and dust.

Have your plumbing over hauled. A leaking drain pipe may ooze typhoid germs.

If spring rains have seeped into your cellar, use chloride of lime freely, whitewash the walls and, if possible, have a cement floor laid.

Avoid dry sweeping and dusting. Be sure to dampen broom, brush and cloth.

Prof. H. G. Cogdell, of Plainview, was a visitor in Pecos for a few days the past week. He is vice president of Seth Ward College at Plainview and also is one of the instructors.

Last night while Mrs. Chris Ritz was standing in front of one of the show tents, she was taken suddenly ill, having fainted and it was a long time before she became conscious, in fact, not until after she had been taken home. We are pleased to state that she is much better today and will undoubtedly be herself again in a few days.

Tod Baker returned to Pecos yesterday from his auto trip down to South Texas, where he has been for the past three weeks.

Mrs. Chas. Oedeke and daughters Ina and Charlie Lee left last week for an extended stay out in California. She is with Mrs. Geo. Landrum, who had expected to stay at Long Beach but they were unable to get a cottage so went to Venice. Mr. Goedeke who had been home on a visit accompanied them as far as Phoenix, where he went on his way to Tucson.

BOARD OF EQUALIZATION MEETS

The Commissioners' Court met in adjourned session Monday the 14th, as a Final Board of equalization and to transact other business, which might come before them.

The Commissioners were all present and Tom Harrison, Sheriff, called the meeting to order. In the absence of Judge Ben Randals, A. W. Hosie was unanimously elected to act as presiding judge for this session.

As to the equalization of the taxes, a number were left as raised at their regular meeting, while others were placed back as they were originally rendered.

The amount of $79.19 was transferred from the Court House and Jail Fund to the Road and Bridge Fund. The reason for this transfer was that the C. H. & J. Bonds have been paid off and this amount is delinquent taxes which have been collected since the paying off of the bonds.

In the matter of the 25 cent maintenance levy in School District No. 4, it appearing that they do not need this amount for the coming year's school the levy was cancelled and a new levy of 12 1-2 cents on the $100.00 was made.

On account of the shortage of funds in the Road and Bridge Fund the amount of $1200.00 was transferred from the General County Fund to the R. and B. Fund, same to be returned to the G. C. Fund as soon as it is paid into the R. and B. Fund.

Upon the motion carrying, the Court ordered that the Assessor in compiling his rolls of said county leave off the following townsites: Arno, Orla, Dixieland, Termandale, Sargent, San Martine, Mt. Davis, and that the Tax Collector of Reeves County in making up and preparing his compiled delinquent list of delinquent property in said county, not to include therein the following named town sites: Arno, Orla, Dixieland, Termandale, Sargent, San Martine, Mt. Davis Angeles and Riverton.

The above action was taken because of it appearing to the Court that the said town sites as they now exist are a burden and expense to said Reeves County, in that the amount of taxes due on each lot is too insignificant and small to justify a suit being brought thereon to collect said taxes.

On account of there not having been any lots sold in the townsite of Angeles and the Hoban ad Besire addition to Toyah, it was moved and carried that they be placed upon the tax rolls as acreage property instead of town lots and blocks, the Tax Collector being so ordered.

BIRTHS IN MAY AND JUNE

Below we give a list of the births in Reeves county during the months of May and June of this year, so far:

- May 4th, to M. and Mrs. Max Ritz, Pecos, a son.
- May 6th, to Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Calaway, Hoban, a daughter.
- May 15, to Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Barnett, Barilla, a son.
- May 25, to Mr. and Mrs. Nick Ritz, Pecos, a daughter.
- May 24, to Mr. and Mrs. Morris Green, negro, Pecos, a son.
- May 27, to Mr. and Mrs. V. D. Havis, Pecos, a son.
- May 4th, to Mr. and Mrs. Melter Lara, Mexican, Pecos, a daughter.
- June 4th, to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bly, Pecos, a son.
- June 8th, to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ligon, Crystal Water, a son.

There were more births in the county than the above, but they have not as yet been reported to the County Clerk.

We are also informed that Pecos City now has no registry for births, so all must be registreted at the Court House, according to law.

FURTHER INFORMATION ABOUT LEVY

In last weeks paper we stated that the tax levy had been reduced 22 1-2 cents. This levy applied only to District No. 1, and not to all the county. There is no further lowering of levy in a part of the county in this issue. See Commissioners' Court proceedings.

M. L. RODDY KILLS JUAN LUJUAN

The Shooting Occurred Thursday Night in Front of the Pecos Auto Company's Building --Three Shots Were Fired

Last Night about 11:20 M. L. Roddy shot and killed Juan Lujan, a Mexican, in front of the Pecos Auto Company's building. Three shots were fired, the first striking the Mexican a little to the left of the center of the breast, killing him almost instantly, the other two missed him.

The examining trial took place this morning at 10 o'clock in the Court House, before F. P. Richburg, Justice of the Peace. Mr. Roddy waived examination.

Only two witnesses were sworn, Tom Harrison, Sheriff, who testified that sometime between eleven and twelve o'clock Thursday night, M. L. Roddy came to the jail and called him up, saying that he had killed Juan Lujan, gave up his gun, which was a 308 automatic, and then Mr. Harrison arrested him and locked him up, after which he went out where the body was, found him dead, examined and searched him, but only found a deck of cards and a small amount of money upon the deceased, finding no weapon.

Taylor Gardner's testimony was about as follows: He and Mr. Roddy started around the garage and just as they came in front of it he saw the Mexican make a move as to get a gun, murmuring something which he could not understand and Mr. Roddy pulled down upon him, shooting three times, and that the Mexican fell as soon as the first shot was fired. He accompanied Roddy to the Jail immediately, and Mr. Harrison placed Roddy in the same.

As far as we can learn it is reported that Juan, who has been considered somewhat of a tough citizen, had made threats against Roddy's life.

After hearing the evidence Judge Richburg placed the bail bond at $1000, which was given, and Mr. Roddy was given his liberty until the Grand Jury meets to investigate the killing.

SOUTHERN AMUSEMENT IS IN TOWN THIS WEEK

The Southern Amusement Company is holding forth here this week on the vacant lots in front of the Airdome, under the auspices of the Pecos Volunteer Fire Department, and are receiving a pretty fair attendance, under the existing hard times.

Among the main features is the "Wild West Show," "Song Land", "The Plantation Negro Vaudeville", "Snakes", "The Ferris Wheel", and last but not least—the children see it, "The Merry Go Round", also they have stands for selling ice cream, sandwiches, "Cotton" and homemade candy, etc.

The performances as a rule are above the average Carnival shows, and are giving good satisfaction.

The fortune wheels, throwing for knives and the like, were cut out because they refused to pay the state and county license which they considered too excessive.

ADVALOREM TAX RATE TO BE INCREASED

Austin, Tex., June 16.—According to present calculations, the state advalorem tax rate is to be increased by the state tax board when it meets in July, from 12 to 28 1-4 cents, this being an increase of over 16 cents for 1915, and is close to the constitutional limit. This increase becomes necessary because of the appropriation by the Thirty-fourth legislature of approximately $18,000,000 for the next fiscal year. Of this amount $9,000,000 becomes available and is for use during the coming fiscal year which commences in September 1, 1915. It is figured out that the resources of the state will be about $3,000,000 a year, this revenue coming from franchise taxes, liquor dealers taxes, occupation taxes from insurance companies and other sources; that $6,000,000 will have to be raised for this year from advalorem taxes.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAIL SERVICE STILL IN FORCE

Letters are permitted to be exchanged between Germany and the U. S. W. W. Camp, one of our fellow townsmen, received a letter from a friend of his that belongs to the German army, and is now a soldier of the present army invading France. He reports that they are getting along well and that they have plenty to eat, but expecting to receive marching orders to move forward within a few days.

HAVE MOVED TO DEMING,

Pecos lost two good families from her midst the past week, both having moved to Deming, New Mexico.

Mrs. W. H. Benway and children left last week Friday to join the Dr. who has been up there for some weeks, and they will make that their new home in the future.

Sunday morning Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Watson and children left for Deming, where they will reside in the future.

These splendid people will be greatly missed by their numerous friends in Pecos and vicinity, and one and all heartily join in wishing them the greatest degree of success in their new home.

SPRAINED HIS WRIST

Last Friday evening while Troy Hicks was assisting to unload some sugar from the dray wagon, he stepped back with a sack, slipped from a sack which he stepped upon and in falling sprained his right wrist quite severely, and is now carrying it in a sling. We trust that he may soon fully recover the use of his wrist.

PROMINENT GERMAN FOR PEACE

Berlin Anzeiger Prints Conciliatory Article By Its General Director

Berlin, via London, June 14.—The Lokal Anzeiger prints a noteworthy article of German-American relations by its general director, Eugene Zimmerman, which, on the heels of Friday's conciliatory article is taken to mean that influential representatives of politics and business are behind this paper, exerting efforts for a German-American understanding.

"President Wilson," says Herr Zimmerman, "desires nothing more and nothing less than an understanding between Germany and England concerning the form of maritime warfare which, at the same time, will insure the safety of American passengers. The task is not light, considering the development of naval warfare, but it can be solved if all interested display good will."

A new form might be given to naval warfare, Herr Zimmerman continues, on the basis that passengers on ships with special marks the Government guarantee they the Government guarantee that they are unarmed, should receive proper consideration at the hands of submarine commanders. The compromise must also involve the withdrawal of the British Admiralty's instructions to merchantmen to ram submarines on sight.

The article ventures to indicate for the first time to the German public that there may be a second side to the question of arms on which the press has been for months harping. Herr Zimmerman pays his respects to what he terms typewriter heroes, who, far from the front, are preaching war to the knife against everybody and concludes:

"We wish to act and write with blood and iron, but just because we are fearless and determined, we may look for possible ways by which to arrive at an understanding with America. We need not close up our department of incoming and outgoing declarations of war, which heretofore has worked nobly, but it seems to me that we can curtail the output somewhat without incurring a reputation for excessive caution."

The editor of the Tageblatt, Theodor Wolff, also published an article in favor of a policy aimed at the avoidance of new conflicts and the bringing in of new adversaries.

MAIL YOUR PACKAGES AND LETTERS TOGETHER

Postoffice officials Friday called attention to a communication just received from the department at Washington, explaining a feature of the postal service which is being little used at present.

It is a ruling which permits letters to be attached to packages, the former going first-class mail, and the latter as fourth-class. This plan, it is pointed out, averts confusion, which sometimes results when a package and a letter, mailed at the same time, fail to reach their destination simultaneously—a confusion that can be eliminated by use of the attachment system.

TEXAS SCHOOL LANDS SOON TO GO ON MARKET

Approximately 60,000 Acres Will Be Offered to Actual Settlers For Agricultural Purposes

Austin, Texas, June 9.—Lists of the school land for sale under the terms of an act passed by the regular session of the Thirty-Fourth Legislature will be ready for distribution about July 1, according to J. T. Robison, Commissioner of the General Land Office. There will be approximately 60,000 acres of this class. Commissioner Robison has issued the following statement:

"This statement is being sent to the newspapers so that the public may have the information herein contained to the end that each one shall have an equal opportunity to secure public school land under the terms of an act passed by the regular session of the last Legislature.

"Lists of the school lands for sale will be ready for distribution about July 1. As the land will be for sale September 1, this will allow prospective purchasers two months in which to decide which tracts they may desire to purchase. One who wants a list may obtain it by writing to me at Austin.

"Land that is situated in the rough, mountainous portion of the western counties may be purchased without condition of living on it. Such land is unfit for agricultural purposes and is generally so broken by mountains, rocky hills, canyons and gorges as to be unfit for human habitation. The smooth land there has been sold. It may be that some would want it for trading purposes. Sale with or without settlement is fixed by counties.

"Such land as is supposed to be susceptible of agriculture will be for sale to those only who will become actual settlers on it. There will be some 60,000 acres of this class. This is the chance for one without a home. Heretofore those who lived within five miles of the land could buy it by living on his other land. Not so now. The purchaser must live on the land he buys when it is situated in a county where such tract of land must be sold on condition of settlement. The settlement purchaser pays one-fortieth cash and 3 per cent interest; the purchaser without settlement pays one-tenth cash and 5 per cent interest. Each has forty years to pay the balance. This is the home builder favored.

"The list of lands will give more information and will be ready about July 1."

KERMIT ITEMS

(Last Week's Letter.) Dr. J. A. Leeman has just returned from his brother, M. M. Leeman's ranch, where he had been to visit Grandma Leeman, who has since died.

Dawsons-Bairds-Looets, all have just returned from a fishing trip over the Pecos river. From appearances they got more bites out of the water than in it.

Mr. Conner and family, of Paradise, spent the Sabbath in Kermit. Mrs. W. A. Priest came over to preaching Sunday, but owing to the absence of the preacher there was no services.

No rain in this immediate vicinity for some 35 days. We are getting dry. Good rains in some of the adjoining counties, tho.

The jolly, ever affable Dr. Moore, of Pecos, has been perigranating the streets of Kermit recently. The tonsorial appendage of his levator-labii-superioris-ale-que-nosi, has so changed the contour of his profile that Mrs. M. refuses to recognise him, hence the curtailment of said appendage is now in order.

Frank Waddel's new residence was struck by lightning last Sunday. The house and contents were completely destroyed by fire. He and his family were absent from home at the time.

Mr. Acuff, of Howard county, stopped over a short time on his way home from New Mexico, where he has filed on some land.

Dr. Ira Lane has returned home after an absence of 3 weeks.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY COUNCIL (The Missionary Bulletin.)

"The Lord giveth the word: the women that publish the tidings are a great host." (Ps. lxxviii. 1.) The Woman's Missionary Council has inaugurated a Church-wide campaign.

The object of this campaign is an Auxiliary in every Church and every woman and child a member.

There are nineteen thousand Churches in Southern Methodism. Twelve thousand have no missionary organization. There are one million three hundred thousand women and children in our Church. Only two hundred thousand of these belong to the Missionary Society.

The Woman's Missionary Society has a right to claim the loyalty of the women and girls of the Church. It affords an opportunity to help bring the knowledge of Jesus Christ as a personal Savior and the blessings of his gospel to the women and children of non-Christian lands. It enables us, as Christians, to have a part in the Christianization of our own land such as no other organization affords. No woman or girl of the Church can afford to slight the opportunity presented by the Woman's Missionary Society.

We must go forward. Every mission station is needing enlargement and reinforcements. Every field calls for more workers. Numberless doors are open into which we could enter. We cannot answer their calls; we cannot meet the demands of the hour nor measure up to the opportunity of today unless we increase our membership funds. Every member gained will aid in strengthening the work already established and in enlarging our field of service. An increase in members will bring an increase of offerings, and this will make possible the advance which we must make now if we maintain worthily the work already established and enlarge our field of service by entering the open doors.

Other organizations of less importance are engaging the interest of these women and children. Shall we not press upon their attention these higher and holier interests and seek to win them for that which is altogether worth while—that for which the Church of Christ exists and for which they stand as members of that Church?

We must endeavor to win these uninterested ones and to occupy this organization territory by sermons and addresses from the pulpits, by all-day meetings for instruction and education, by visits of enthusiastic, well-informed women to Churches where there are no societies, and by personal, prayerful presentation of the claims of the Missionary Society.

Many of these unenlightened women and girls are in your own Church, and they are your neighbors and friends. Will you not put forth a special effort at this time to press home to their consciences their responsibility and privilege in regard to this great cause? This is a part of the campaign that can be undertaken by every woman and child who loves the Woman's Missionary Society as an organization for the redemption of the world. Christ. If you will do this, it will be a real service for His cause.

W. T. Read Merc. Co., Pecos, Texas

Will not, auxiliary officers and leaders volunteer for service in this campaign? You can greatly aid the district secretaries by going into the unorganized Churches and presenting the work to the women and children of those congregations. A short journey by train or automobile will bring you to these Churches. A day of your time, as a farewell offering for this service, will be a beautiful gift to your Master.

The Memphis conference inaugurated the campaign by naming the third Sunday in June as the day on which they will ask the pastors to present the Woman's Work from every pulpit in the Conference. Surely the pastors everywhere will be glad to give this encouragement to the Woman's Work and to make this opportunity for an appeal to the women of their congregations.

Much enthusiasm and strength will be injected into the campaign if every Conference would follow this inspiring example and name a day for the presentation of the work. If it cannot be done on the same day throughout the Whole conference, each district secretary could name the most convenient day for her district and use every effort to secure an appeal to every congregation on that day.

With great joy and abounding faith we enter upon this campaign in the name of and for the sake of Him whose we are and whom we serve. Let a mighty volume of prayer go up from the hearts of the women who love Jesus Christ and desire the coming of His kingdom, that He may take the leadership of this movement and bring it to a glorious victory.

KNOW THY COUNTRY

III—Telegraph and Telephone

Our transportation facilities are the most perfect product of this great commercial age and the telegraph and telephone systems of this nation crown the industrial achievements of the whole world. These twin messengers of modern civilization, born in the skies, stand today the most faithful and efficient public servants that ever toiled for the human race.

They are of American nativity and while warm from the mind of the inventive genius have, under American supervision, spun a net-work of wires across the earth and under the seas. Telegraphy, in its early youth, mastered the known world and the telephone has already conquered the earth's surface, and now stands at the seashore ready to leap across the ocean.

No industry in the history of the world has ever made such rapid strides in development and usefulness, and none has ever exerted a more powerful influence upon the civilization of its day than the Telegraph and Telephone. Their achievement demonstrates the supremacy of two distinct types of American genius—invention and organization.

The industry was peculiarly fortunate in having powerful inventive intellect at its source and tremendous minds to direct its organization and growth. It is the most perfect fruit of the tree of American industry and when compared with its European contemporaries, it thrills every patriotic American with pride.

Ambitious youth can find no more inspiring company than the fellowship of the giant intellects that constructed this marvelous industry and a journey along the pathway of its development, illuminated at every mile-post of its progress by the lightning-flashes of brilliant minds, will be taken at a very early date.

A brief statistical review of the industry brings out its growth and magnitude in a most convincing and unforgettable manner.

The telephone service of the United States is the most popular and efficient and its rates are the cheapest of the telephone systems of the world.

We are the greatest talkers on earth. We send 60 per cent of our communications over the telephone. The world has about 15,000,000 telephones and of this number the United States has approximately 9,540,000, Europe 4,020,000 and other countries 1,300,000. According to the latest world telephone census, the total telephone investment is $1,906,000,000 and of this amount $1,095,000,000 was credited to the United States, $636,000,000 in Europe and $175,000,000 in other countries. The annual telephone conversations total 24,800,000,000 divided as follows: United States 15,600,000,000; Europe 6,800,000,000, and other countries 2,200,000,000. The total world wire telephone mileage is 33,262,000 miles divided as follows: United States 20,248,000, Europe 10,335,000, and other countries 2,679,000. About six per cent of the world's population and sixty-one per cent of the telephone wire mileage is in the United States.

FEDERAL LAW ON BAGGAGE CHECKS

You Must Pay Extra if Baggage is Worth More than $100, Says U. S. Ruling.

The new federal baggage law, which went into effect June 1, is expected to increase the revenue of the railroad companies by several million dollars annually, despite the fact that it greatly increases their liability as common carriers. Railroad officials would not admit the increase would run into the millions, but said that it would bring increase in revenue which would be partly offset by hiring extra help.

There is some little delay in checking baggage in cities as a result of the new law, because the general public has not yet become acquainted with its provisions. In El Paso the law has not yet gone into effect, owing to failure of the tariff to arrive.

An illustration of the delay due to unfamiliarity with the law's provisions is given where a woman and her daughter, with two trunks, missed a train because they were unable to agree as to the value of the contents of the trunks. The daughter said $300 and the mother $400 and they started to estimate the value of the contents, naming each gown and piece of lingerie. The mother got nervous when the baggaman reminded them that it was near train time and the daughter grew excited. The train pulled out before they were able to agree.

The new law declares that for every $100 or fraction thereof of value over the $100 worth carried free, the railroads are to collect 10 cents. This means if your trunk and its contents are valued at say $300 you will pay the baggage man 20 cents for over value; if valued at $1,000 you would have to pay 90 cents for overvalue, and so on. The limit of value you can place on your baggage is $2,500.

This is the procedure as you enter the baggage room of the railway station to check your baggage: You show your tickets and the baggage clerk requests you to fill out a little slip of paper which he hands you and which reads as follows:

 * Railroad Company *
 * DECLARATION OF VALUE *
 * The value of the property *
 * covered by checks numbered *
 * is no more than $100. *
 * No. of passengers *
 * Signed *
 * Signed *
 * Shipper *

If your baggage is valued at not more than $100 you simply sign your name; if it is valued at more you fill in the amount, then sign it. If the clerk is not busy he may fill in the numbers of your checks; if he is, you may facilitate matters by doing it yourself. The number of passengers for the lot of baggage is filled in. If the valuation is over $100 you pay the clerk at the rate of ten cents each one hundred dollars or part of that amount, and he gives you a receipt for the payment. The new law does not affect the weight of baggage which the railroads carry free—150 lbs. in most states—it is based entirely on valuation. Excess weight is estimated at so much per hundred, according to distance.

While a clause limits baggage valuation to $2,500, there is nothing in the new law to prevent suit to recover for greater valuation than this amount, though it is a question how the courts would decide in view of the fixed limitation.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is responsible for the new law, which is viewed by railroad men from different angles. An official of one of the largest eastern lines made the following statement:

"It's just another new-fangled regulation to embarrass the railroads and confuse the public. It means more help, more red tape for the railroads, and more lost time for the public. Pretty soon the public will realize that it is time experimenting at the expense of the public and the railroads was stopped, and some of our regulating bodies will find their authority greatly curtailed.

Another railroad man, not an official, but one who has spent thirty years in the business and knows it from a to z said this:

"The railroads have had a pretty hard time the last few years, and this will give them an opportunity to increase their earnings and at the same time enable the traveling public to recover value for lost baggage without the expense of having to go to court to get the full value."

Over in the Philippines the Carabao is the general beast of burden. For all kinds of hauling this short-legged, long-horned buffalo is used.

It is more than a mere coincidence that the principal brand used with the Red-Star-Green-T oils in the Philippines is a picture of this animal with its name "Carabao."

To the native of these islands the Carabao represents service, valuable service continuously performed in many ways. What the horse was to the Texas ranchman in the early days, the Carabao is to the Philippine native.

To Texaco products are pictured to the native by the Carabao, indicating the service and its character, the quality and its usefulness. The same quality and service are available for you in your town under the Red-Star-Green-T emblem of Texaco fame. Ask for them.

SAVING THE FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.
Maryland, a little "dried-up cracklin of a state, not as big as some Texas ranchmen's cow lots, canned 6,280,000 of the 14,206,000 cases of the 1913 tomato pack. Texas, included with 26 as "other states," 203,000 cases. Wisconsin canned 3,348,000 cases of the 8,770,000 1913 pea pack. Texas with 28 "other states," 271,000 cases. Why? Backache
Miss Myrtle Cothrum, of Russellville, Ala., says: "For nearly a year, I suffered with terrible backache, pains in my limbs, and my head ached nearly all the time. Our family doctor treated me, but only gave me temporary relief. I was certainly in bad health. My school teacher advised me to TAKE Cardui The Woman's Tonic
I took two bottles, in all, and was cured. I shall always praise Cardui to sick and suffering women." If you suffer from pains peculiar to weak women, such as headache, backache, or other symptoms of womanly trouble, or if you merely need a tonic for that tired, nervous, worn-out feeling, try Cardui. perdition, Heaven is no more suitable for producing angeles than Texas soil climate is for producing fruit and vegetables.
The industry that puts the January fresh meats perfectly conserved in the July pantry, and the June garden in the January pantry, and preserves the food supply of the world in times of abundance to feed the people in times of scarcity, widens my appreciation. If he who makes two blades of grass grow where before there was but one is a benefactor, what shall we call him who conserves wasting food so keeps indefinitely to sustain, and mayhap, save the human life?
Half of the fruit and vegetables raised in Texas are lost. Texas people send out of the state many millions of dollars annually for canned goods that might better be supplied by home-grown and home-canned products.
Ten years ago we had the Elberta fever. We got over it. However, so long as they ship California canned peaches into Texas we have either not planted enough or have not learned to save what we raise as they do in California. Following the Elberta fad came the orange fever. We had it bad in the Gulf Coast country, but Jack Frost pasteurized the natives. We are due right now for two more fads and they will be the safest, sanest and most profitable. They can not be overdone because of the limited country that can produce them. I speak of figs.
The demand grows greater each year for this oldest and most wholesome fruit. Prices are always good if fruit is properly canned, crop rarely fails, trees are long-lived and almost exempt from disease. No crop more certain, none so easily grown or more profitable.
To Drive Out Malaria And Build Up The System Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS chill TONIC. You know what you are taking, as the formula is printed on every label, showing it is genuine and worth its business reputation. The Quinine drives out malaria, the Iron builds up the system. 50 cents

The growing of figs is a great industry that has been overlooked. The "Apple of the South," preserved, canned or dried, has been pronounced by experts to be the very best on the market.
Owing to destructive microbes—which can survive 140 to 150 degrees of heat—it has been found difficult to keep syrup from fermentation. Another cause is the friction top can, which do not hermetically seal the contents, and are not desirable where syrup is shipped long distances or kept for a considerable length of time. A series of experiments conducted two years prove that by heating the syrup to nearly boiling point, filling the cans immediately and soldering tight, then processing by steam pressure heat, we get a product that will keep indefinitely.
When the can flavor is desired the syrup is processed at a lower temperature. This is the flavor that we in the South prefer. For commercial purposes and shipping North, where we must find our market, and where pure cane syrup is almost unknown, the caramel flavo is preferred. This requires a higher temperature and longer processing. When samples of both were sent North, invariably the

Athletics Make for the Efficiency of a Nation

By Pauline Periwinkle

There are two seasons of the year when our educational institutions are very much in the public eye—at the beginning of the school year, and at commencement time. Then the press teems with reports of student activities, and so much of the news relates to athletic contests and social functions of various sorts that a great many persons, among them a considerable number who pride themselves on being anything but superficially minded, voice the opinion that the serious side of school life is being obscured by the glorification of the play side of school life. In reality the failure exists in the minds of the critics; they fail to perceive the serious side of play—that it is more than a means of mere physical development or mental relaxation; that it performs a most important function in preparing youth for the responsibilities of maturity and for fitting into life's social fabric without friction.

Even if one has never studied psychology, it ought not to be an excessive drain on the imagination to vision how these various student activities are calculated to develop the will, the judgment, ambition, leadership, co-operation, loyalty, fair play, social consciousness, ease of address, grace of motion, and other virtues and habits that score for personal success and value in many situations in life where academic preparedness alone would prove insufficient. Men and women must know how to get along with each other—be able to do "team work," as the language of fair play expresses it—else they will be misfits in the game of life. This is not learned in the classroom so much as on the playing-field and in school organizations where, released from the adult will and initiative, youth meets youth on equal terms in a miniature world, and learns in clash and contest and rivalry the secret of its own powers and how to adjust itself to the will and powers of others.

Not long ago, the head of one of the largest employing firms in Chicago remarked to a play leader: "We never employ a man from _____," naming certain schools. "We have found that the athletics in these schools are crooked, and that we cannot trust the men they turn out." Said the play leader: "We send children to Sunday school to learn to be good, but knowing what is right and doing what is right are different things. The children get their conception of right and wrong from what we teach them, but it is in their play that they put these conceptions into practice. It does not follow that because the child knows that it is wrong to lie that he will tell the truth."

Then he cited a number of temptations to which children will yield unless the honor habit is formed through the free agency of play. One of these habits is not confined to childhood—that of surreptitiously rolling a croquet ball to a more advantageous position in front of the wicket. "There is a similar opportunity for cheating in many other games," he adds, "and the child who has formed a habit of cheating in his play has formed a habit which goes with him into mature life. People will often say, 'You must teach the children to be honest in business.' But children do not learn to be honest in this way. They have formed a habit of cheating or of honesty long before the business period arrives."

There is an outspokenness in the attitude of youth toward each other that is drastic in corrective effect. The liar and the cheat, the coward and the quitter, is left in no doubt as to the reason of his ostracism or unpopularity. It is well that he be given the chance to learn the value of playing a straight game before the odium of dishonor is irrevocably attached to him by some mature act. "The man who hesitates to _____" is but another way of saying that the first impulse is that prompted by conscience; one yields only when he begins to dwell on temptation and magnify its lures. The quick decision and the will to act upon it is a prime essential in times of contest, and this habit, once formed, will count heavily on the right side in the emergencies of after years.

Wellington declared that the victory of Waterloo was won on the cricket fields of England. The good, clean game are no less characteristics that are released in tent in developing the efficiency of a nation than in deciding its fate. The nation is made up of individuals and to the degree that the individual fails in social team work, to the degree he is a dead weight. He not only deprives society of his motive power it has a right to demand, but impedes the progress of others. If those who doubt the value of school athletics and the multifarious societies that give play to the organizing ardors of youth, could trace with expert eye the blighting effect nationally on an educational system that makes no provision for student activities, like the scoffers of old, they would remain to pray."

An expert eye has taken note of national failures due to lack of "students life," the term under which is comprehended the athletic and social activities of our educational institutions. Edward Alsworth Ross, professor of sociology in the University of Wisconsin, has just published the results of his social studies of the people of the South American Republics, and he attributes many of the traits that are retarding their national welfare to the fact that their schools and universities do not supply any of the means for making many men out of their youth and creating in them a social consciousness and sense of responsibility. The character traits of the Latin South America as a class he enumerates as an excess of pride without ambition, self indulgence and intolerance, want of constancy and persistence, lack of initiative and co-operation, mutual distrust, resentment of criticism, and an exaggerated sense of personal dignity that makes them poor losers."

"An American," says Professor Ross, "can not but be struck by the dearth of association among the university students—no fraternities, no athletic teams, no social, literary, debating, press, dramatic, musical or scientific societies such as flourish among the youth in an American university. Most of the student activities which threaten to engulf scholarship here are unknown. Some of the young men of San Marcos (Lima) had started a university paper, but few students would buy it, although many would read a borrowed copy. It is pathetic to witness to witness disappointment of earnest young Peruvians educated in our universities when on returning home they find in the Lima student body no class feeling, no university spirit, no love of alma mater, no heart-warming reunions of alumni and, in general, none of those forms of corporate life which loosen the hard soil of natural egoism and prepare it to admit later the spreading roots of such virtues as public spirit and good citizenship.

"Some years ago Secretary Taft said at Havana that in politics the peoples to the south of us are poor losers. Not only is this true, but we have here one cause of their ready resort to revolution. Trouble will begin after an election for the same reason that student societies go to pieces on some trivial question—the losers have too much pride to submit defeat. In the society they walk out, but in the State they start a revolt. I fancy the introduction of organized athletics, by promoting the spirit of good sportsmanship, might have a salutary effect on the politics of Spanish America. In the earlier football matches between the teams of the missionary colleges in China, a team would retire from the field with great dignity when the game was going danger of losing face.' The lesson they gradually learned of taking bitter medicine with a smile is greatly needed by the young men below the quator. Not that they should have less pride, but that their pride should be set on being a sport, rather than on sulking and quitting.

"One must visit the provincial colleges of China to see students with such poor physical development as one finds in the universities. The well dressed young men on the streets fill out their clothes poorly and impress one on the whole as a weak lot. 'In Lima,' said an American doctor, 'I never see a good physical specimen of man.' Race crossing has something to do with this poverty of physique; also neglect of hygiene, bad habits and early vices. The chief factor, however, appears to be a resolute to avoid every form of bodily exercise and exertion, from labor up to athletic sports. 'It is almost impossible to get four people together for a tennis set,' complained a foreigner in 'Quito.'

Quite the most remarkable brief for organizing athletics comes from the professor of physiology in Howard University, who has recently published his researches into the function of emotional excitement. With the militarists he admits that a biological necessity exists for emotional outlet or exercise, but proves by science that all the benefits to mankind claimed for war can be obtained in athletic competition. War, says the militarist, disciplines character, sobers men, teaches them to be brave and patient, and its demand for the supreme sacrifices of life brings forth in thousands an eager response that is the crowning glory of the human spirit. Without war nations become effete, their ideals become tarnished, the people sink into self-indulgence, their wills weaken and soften in luxury.

By a series of experiments, involving chemical investigations of the physiological changes occurring under stress of all the various emotions and responses i-Itir-edar- tions, Professor Cannon demonstrates the uniformity of visceral responses to the fighting emotions. In much the same way that the action of the saliva and the gastric juices in the digestive organs were determined he developed his line of research, with apparently as much authority to approve his conclusions. As the physical substitute for warfare and as the alternative satisfaction for the fighting emotions he recommends strenuous athletic rivalries and international competition.

Further, Professor Canon points to the fact that the substitution of athletic rivalries for battle is not unknown, and recites what organized athletics have done in the Philippines Islands, where, until the American operation, they were unknown, having since been made a part of the educational system. "The physical development of the participants has been greatly stimulated, the spirit of fair play and sportsmanship, formerly lacking, has sprung into existence all over the islands, and the annual meets between teams from various provinces are recognized as promoting a general and friendly understanding among the different Filipino tribes. The fierce Igorots of Bontoc, once constantly at war with neighboring tribes, now show their prowess, not in head-hunting, but in baseball, wrestling, and the tug-of-war."

BILLIOUS ATTACK

When you have a billious attack your liver fails to perform its functions. You become constipated. The food you eat ferments in your stomach instead of digesting. This inflames the stomach and causes nausea, vomiting and a terrible headache. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will tone up your liver, clean out your stomach and you will soon be as well as ever. They only cost a quartet. Obtainable everywhere at all dealers. —Adv.

caramel flavor was preferred. This new field of syrup making is unlimited, and it would seem that the entire cane crop of the South manufactured into high-grade syrup and shipped North would bring a fancy price, from 75 cents to $1 per gallon, or even more, and might be more profitable than as now made into sugar. The process is simple, requiring no costly outfit. This is especially advantageous to small growers, who can put up their own syrup and market it themselves in Northern markets, having their own merchants or private customers.

I used a steam pressure canner; It had an oil burner. Ten cents worth of oil will run the canner 10 hours, and I can can 200 to 500 cans per day. I can take the canner out in the shade and there is no hot steaming or smoke, or soot or ashes blowing around, or fires to keep up or wood to cut. Just put in your time canning. Turn your burner up or down as you need more or less heat or let it alone, as it will never be above where you set the gauge. I process corn one hour and it is sterile and will keep; beans 15 minutes; tomatoes eight minutes. No family is too small or steam pressure canner. Our farmers who complain of living on "sow belly" during the summer convet themselves of shiftlessness. If they owned a cannery they can butcher a porker.

To hear some one talk about a first day cook, second day cook, third day cook reminds us of the days of ox teams and wooden mould board plows. Forty-five years ago my grandmother talked about first day cook, second day cook and third day cook. With all of our progress and opportunities we ought to be ashamed to talk such stuff to our children or allow others to do so. I am proud to advocate and assist so great a work into which I am sure the home canning movement is destined to grow. The admonition of Jesus to "gather up the fragments that nothing be lost" was a lesson in economy and a rebuke to the wanton waste of this generation. The sooner our farmers recognize it's a case of can your products or the commission man will can you, the better off we will be.

On Wednesday, March 25, 1914, two cans of squash canned 29 years ago were opened in La Crosse, Wisconsin. Frozen in winter and thawed in summer 28 years. Opened in the presence of 60 men, including hotel keepers, they all pronounced the squash in perfect condition. The above proves that canning is only in its infancy, and while it is a lusty infant we should look well to the foundation of this home industry lest it should be overtaken in the usual great mortality of infants. It was divine wisdom that enabled Joseph to interpret Pharaoh's dream and suggest to the king that during the seven years of plenty—great store houses be filled to conserve food for the seven years of famine to follow. He was a great conservationist. When canned foods will keep 29 years we can go Joseph one better and conserve food in condition to be transported to any part of the world to banish famine; we are fast becoming the Egypt whence come the Josephs of the nations for food supplies.—H. Here's a line of boys who are working their way through the University of Texas, by cleaning up tables and serving in the University Cafeteria. Manager Veazey, at the extreme left, is not a student.

Fully sixty per cent of the student body of this great educational institution is either in whole or in part self-supporting, thus emphasizing the dependence of the poor student upon state-supported institutions of higher education. Meals here average but twelve cents each, and many students get their board here on the University campus for $8.00 per month, the average is about $11.00 per month. Rooms in University Hall nearby are obtained at from $1.50 to $3.00 per month, although there are not sufficient rooms to supply the demand at these prices. Not a cent is made by the management of the cafeteria—when it is discovered that a surplus is accumulating, the price of food is cut down. Here is actually board at cost. Besides furnishing cheap meals to over four hundred students per day, a half a dozen or more students are enabled to earn their board cleaning up tables, and otherwise serving the manage-

Business Methods in Farming

Recently 75 farmers came from a distance of 1,000 miles to one of our large agricultural colleges to learn what they could about the best methods of operating their farms, the methods that could produce the largest profits. They had received their transportation at the hands of the railroad whose directing officer was foresighted enough to see the tremendous advantages that would accrue from a trip of this sort. Upon their arrival they were met by the representatives of the university, by the governor of the state, by a committee of the business men of the city and by the officials of the board of commerce. They were dined, entertained and instructed. The keynote of every speech given upon every occasion was business farming. The important trend of every conversation was business farming. Every lecture was based on the predominating thought: Profit versus loss.

No matter whether it was "The Value of Farm Manures," or "The Efforts of Community Breeders' Associations," or "Purebred Grains," every central theme was business farming. Could the richest imagination picture a similar scene a few years ago? Could the bravest heart persuade the banker of yesterday to do what the banker of today is doing of his own volition? Could the most stolid rural disposition shrug an unaffected shoulder at the application of the term "Hayseed," as used a few years ago, and shake hands now with those who teased and mocked, proving today by the methods of business farming the equality of the farmer to the business man.

"What's up?" I asked the leader of this group of farmers. He was the leading banker of the county and had left his private business to bring these men to the college. "What would you have the fellows learn in the science of business that would be of any advantage to them? Don't they know how to farm?"

"Man alive," said he, "we brought them here so that you fellows could put them next to the situation that you had to go through before your state was what it is. We've just about reached that same stage in our state that you people had to wade through some 25 years ago. You've blazed the trail and we're satisfied to follow. We want the farmer to adopt the same methods that any one would follow in any successful line of business. Take the matter of the simple inventory for an example. Why should the farmer take an inventory? Well, for a number of reasons. First of all an inventory shows the farmer's total investment. In the next place it shows his net worth, and thirdly it points out how much his net worth has increased or decreased during the year. On this investment the farmer must pay a good rate of interest before there is any return for labor.

"It is very often desirable to know how much of the total capital is invested in horses, land, buildings, etc., and by proper grouping of the farm property the annual inventory will furnish the most excellent material for such a study. By comparing the net worth of the inventory at the beginning of the year with the net worth of the inventory at the end of the year the farmer can see how much he has gone ahead or dropped behind. It is a common mistake for the farmer to look at the amount of cash on hand as the gauge of his business success without supplementing it by an inventory. A gain of $1,000 in cash at the end of the year may simply mean that some of the property on hand last year has been turned into cash. On the other hand, a decrease of $1,000 may mean that what was cash last year appears now in the form of a new building or some other improvement.

"I might go on like this all afternoon," he said to me, "but I'll tell you what," he whispered confidentially, "there's to be a banquet in our honor tonight. The fellows of the board of trade are giving it. There are going to be some crackerjack talks made—leading business men of the town are going to speak on business methods for the farmer."

By coming into contact with the business man as well as with the farmer the agricultural colleges are experiencing a wonderful change. In attracting the present generation they have been forced to make a thorough revision of their policies. The popularity of the agricultural college to which Bill is considering going is the practical institution that offers practical courses in accounting, statistics, farm management, economics and business farming in addition to its technical agricultural. The proof of the pudding is in the eating of it. These colleges are growing in their enrollment like mushrooms over night. "I won't go," says Bill, "to—college; it's too scientific and not practical enough for me. I don't want to know so much about the theory of molecular activity. I would rather be able to know how to figure what man and horse labor on the farm is worth to me in terms of dollars and cents.

"Of course I realize fully how absolutely necessary it is for me to thoroughly understand the scientific principles that underlie agriculture; but at the same time I also realize that if I am ever going to make that old farm pay, when I go back to it, there must be something supplementary to my knowledge of the physical, chemical, zoological and biological principles. I must know the science of business so that I can dovetail all of the other sciences into a harmonious working. I must top it all with the business of managing a farm. I must know what factors should be considered in selling, buying and renting. The question of the proper amount of capital and the size of the farm are subjects with which I ought to be acquainted. In what form shall I market my products? How shall I plan my farm?"

From all points of view Bill is perfectly right. He asks himself various questions because in their solution lies his only avenue of self-preservation. The labyrinth of agricultural knowledge lies before him; his only path of escape is labeled business farming. For many, many years men have been zealously studying physics, chemistry, botany and zoology for principles that could be applied to the practice of agricultural and much success has crowned their efforts. The application of these valuable sciences has done an immeasurable amount of good to increase productivity and to benefit not only farmers, but all classes of people who are directly and indirectly dependent upon and associated with the farmer. The agricultural colleges and experiment stations have been more than justified as institutions for investigating the scientific principles applicable to agriculture and teaching them, especially through the medium of extension work, to the farmers. Making the facts concerning soils, crop and livestock management common knowledge is, today, an important feature of government aid to farming. But in the science of business as applied to agriculture there has been a dearth of knowledge.

Many farm laborers and farm-bred youths have left the farm and have gone to the city to engage in other pursuits, where the possibilities of business have attracted them. Today it is a difficult problem to keep the boy and girl on the farm. The young man and the young woman who yearns for development, new ideas, new associations and broadness of scope and vision imagine that they will soon acquire all in the slums of the modern city when they come in contact with industry and business. As a matter of fact, if statistics prove anything, the truth that 79 per cent of the larger farms keep their boys at home while only 16 per cent of the smaller farms are able to afford enough diversity and business methods to keep their boys where they need them is one of the strongest arguments presented by agricultural economists and students of farm management for the introduction of business into farming.

The awakening, however, is here. The accredited relationship which one university has established with the leading and most successful farmers of the state of Wisconsin is a strong move in this direction. There is every reason in the world to believe the other universities and colleges of agriculture will soon follow this notable example, which will establish farming on the same with sister vocational industries. Where, at the present time, it is almost impossible for the instructor in farm management or farm business to secure authentic and exhaustive material on this new and exacting science, it will not be long before the rapid growth of the subject will secure a strong foothold in the college curriculum and in the practical world. Whatever instinct and thought have prompted a farm manager to record facts concerning costs, prices, sales, losses and profits on his farm, extreme success, in comparison with neighboring farms, has characterized this proceeding.

A resume of the agricultural press for the last two years will show decisively how the trend of business farming has gradually developed from mere questions and correspondence into its present important status. It is impossible to glance through any farm paper at the present time without finding many articles that try to cast some light upon the business side of farming. From all sides comes a perfect deluge of questions to the agricultural press. Editors of farm papers are asked in every issue: "What does it cost to produce an acre of corn?" "How much profit is there for an hour of labor on barley?" "What does it cost to keep a milch cow?" "What does it cost to raise a calf?" "What is the most profitable system for me to follow in riversified farming?" "What crops shall I grow and why?"

These and similar questions have indicated a growing desire, perhaps latent and unconscious, on the part of the farmer to inoculate the germ of business into his farming, to produce light where there was formerly darkness. Why should the farmer, any more than the manufacturer, the merchant or the railroad man, work in an atmosphere of tangles and knots, tripped and handicapped by a failure to thoroughly know his own business? For it is a business, isn't it? Just as the cost data tables find a profitable application in civil engineering, or as the railroad operating expense tables find a valuable place in the economical management of a railroad, so will the science of business farming find a warm place in the heart of every prosperous farmer and a definite location in his schedule of work.

Note.—This is the second of two articles by Mr. Rubinow on Business Methods in Farming in Farm and Ranch.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional means. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or impaired hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; these cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
