BETTER BABIES FOR WEST TEXAS HOMES

Women of the Neighborhood and Adjoining Town Attend the Meeting.

Women interested in the Better Babies Contest, met at the Library last week to outline the preliminary work necessarily attendant upon such an undertaking. Mrs. John Hibdon of Toyah, and Mrs. J. L. Moore of Brogado were present in the interests of Better Babies.

Mrs. J. W. Parker, chairman of the enrollment committee will send you an enrollment blank on request. Appointments for examination will be made in the order in which they are received. All the questions on the enrollment blanks submitted to the parents must be answered. Notice of the date and hour of your appointment will be mailed in ample time before the contest opens. In order to be of scientific value, the information concerning each child must be recorded in uniform blanks. The Woman's Home Companion furnishes these blanks as well as the other literature used in the conduct of the work, and the editors stipulate that the contest be conducted according to uniform rules. The questions asked are for the benefit of judging physicians only; after the contest a copy of the score card will be returned to the mother and one will be sent to the editors of the Woman's Home Companion. The mother will follow her child through the various examinations, and will have the advice of the examining physician who knows what a 100 per cent baby ought to be.

Remember that this is not a pretty baby show, but an educational nation-wide movement for the betterment of the babies of the country. Many babies are already enrolled, and as the contest is limited to 100 entries, application for blanks should be made at once. The entries will close several days before the fair to permit those having the contest in charge, to make preparation for the examinations. Register your baby with Mrs. J. W. Parker, now.

TELEGRAM FROM JAS. F. ROSS.

Following is an excerpt from a telegram to W. W. Hubbard, dated August 19, 1915:

'Left hospital today. Dr. McReynolds says: 'Best results he ever saw one week after operation.' I read part of newspaper today. And sight will improve.'

The above is certainly good news to the many friends of the Judge, one and all are in deepest sympathy with him and trust his eyesight will be fully recovered.

PUTTING IN THE WATER PIPES.

Work on putting in the water pipes through the alleys back of the business houses is progressing rapidly and the stores and others will soon be connected up.

We are sure glad to see this being done and trust that the mains can soon be strung all over the entire city.

TOYAH VALLEY HERALD ITEMS

Born—On Wednesday, August 11th, to Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bradley, a girl. Mother and child doing nicely.

Elder T. W. Head, of Rising Star, will be here the fifth Sunday in August and will conduct a series of services the week following. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

Oats Brothers, Harbert and W. Chandler, from Saragosa, the Beautiful, were Balmorhea visitors last Tuesday. Oats said that if they did not cut out this "cash" business he would have to quit coming up here.

Messrs. Buck and Starley the legal lights for the Reeves County Irrigation District No. 1, were out Wednesday evening attending the meeting of the board of directors. Among other things the semi-annual report of the directors was made up and the contract to let an Illinois firm do the lithographing of the bonds.

Just take a vacation and come out to Balmorhea and help us devour some of these delicious grapes that are now beginning to get ripe, with a few canteloupes and Elbertas on the side.

An immense lot of alfalfa seed has been harvested the past two weeks and as soon as the thrasher can get amongst the big stacks in different parts of the valley, we can tell how the yield is going to turn out.

Remember that every dollar that you invest in permanent improvements in Balmorhea and Toyah Valley is that much money put out at interest, and helps that much in building up your town and community.

CARD OF THANKS.

Having disposed of my opera house and moving picture business to Mr. J. S. Johnson, I take this method of thanking my friends and patrons (especially the children, God bless them, they are all my friends) of Pecos for their liberal patronage during the five and a half years that I have been managing the business. I assure you one and all that it was highly appreciated. I have endeavored at all times to merit your patronage by giving you the very best that the business would admit in the way of service and courteous treatment and feel in a measure, that I have made good. In conclusion allow me to plead for the same liberal patronage and consideration for my successor that you have seen fit to bestow upon me. I feel confident that he will fully merit it in every way.

Respectfully, G. B. LANDRUM.

NOTICE.

To Whom it May Concern: Notice is hereby given that the copartnership known as the La Mode Millinery Parlor, composed of Mrs. W. R. Glascock and Bernice Richburg, has been dissolved, and said copartnership no longer exists.

REPETITION OF GALVESTON HORROR NARROWLY AVERTED

Cut Off From Rest of World, Nothing Definite can Be Learned Concerning Real Extent of Loss of Life or Property.—Rumor is That Loss of Life is Less at Galveston Than Elsewhere.

What came near being a repetition of the horrible catastrophe of September 8, 1900, was averted only by the sturdy sea-wall that now protects the City of Galveston. It can be truly said that the builders of this wall done their work well, for, had it been defective in any way, the toll of life, in the opinion of many would have been greater than that of fifteen years ago.

Time after time did the hurricane winds dash the mountainous waves against the wall but after the combat of nature against the work of man's hands, the waves lacked the death-rush, and only succeeded in flooding the lower end of the city, undermining the light and telegraph systems, leaving the city in darkness, and severed from communication with the rest of the world.

There is no doubt that suffering from lack of food and exposure will be in evidence, but, in comparison with the storm of 1900, this situation will seem insignificant. All reports so far are of an unconfirmed nature, and if any semblance of truth attaches to them, the suffering and loss of life and property in other town and cities will total far in excess to that of Galveston.

The storm extended over the entire southeastern portion of Texas, and its force felt far into the inland towns. At Houston, the damage to property alone is estimated at $5,000,000.

Every assistance is being tendered the stricken cities, and, as the force of the storm is now spent, it will not be long until the exact extent of the damage, to life and property, will be known. At present, no faith can be placed in rumors that abound.

BEEN DOING GOOD WORK THE PAST WEEKS.

During the past two weeks Frank Joplin has had charge of a gang of "Bos" and has trimmed up the shade trees all over town and also cleaned the streets from weeds and other trash.

This is a splendid work and is a fine thing to do with the tramps or any prisoners that the city may have serving time. It fills a long felt want in both ways. Let the good work go on.

"You never miss the water, etc." Our merchants certainly know better now how to appreciate the street sprinkler since Mr. Joplin has been working at tree trimming and cleaning.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

To the Ladies of Pecos and Vicinity:

I take this method to announce that I have opened a millinery business in Pecos. I am located at the Pecos Dry Goods Store. I have a nice selection of hats and other headwear, and will be pleased to show you my stock. Call and see me when in town. Thanking you for past favors and in advance for future favors, I am Very respectfully, BERNICE RICHBURG.

Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Magee left last week on a combined pleasure and business trip to Chicago, and may extend their trip up into Canada.

KERMIT ITEMS

Good rains have fallen over this section of the country, which will liven up the grass and weeds and put the stock in good condition for the winter.

Mrs. Bus Estes, who has been operated upon for appendicitis has returned home, and is looking fine. Since our last communication, the young folks enjoyed an ice cream festival and all night dance at the court house.

Mr. Magee of Odessa has leased the John Wadsworth ranch and has brought over his cattle and horses, also his family.

The young people last week enjoyed a watermelon and ice cream supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Halley. They danced until the wee sma' hours and all expressed themselves as having had a good time, but some of them looked like 30 cents.

W. A. Priest and H. M. Smith, have gone to Abilene on business, and we will not be surprised if W. A. returns with a "Honk, Honk."

W. E. Baird, Jr., has just returned from Pecos where he went to learn more about the changes of the moon and other necessities.

W. A. Vest was over yesterday, and stated that he had lost, during the past week, six calves with the black leg.

Hugh Campbell and family have returned from an extended visit to old friends and kin folks. They came back satisfied to make Winkler County their home.

OFF TO MARKET

W. R. Glascock, buyer for the Pecos Dry Goods Company, left today for the St. Louis markets, to purchase the fall and winter stock of dry goods for this concern.

The management informs us that he has instruction to go the limit in securing the best and latest designs, and as Will has had vast experience in this particular line, the public can soon look for one of the best ladies' ready-to-wear assortment of Dry goods ever shown in Pecos.

LUNCHES WITH HUERTA.

E. W. Clayton left last Sunday night for El Paso, and returned yesterday.

While in the Pass City, Ed had the distinction of lunching at the same table with Victoriano Huerta the notorious Mexican exile.

The general seems to be pretty liberal with his remarks on the situation across the border, and is always to be found expressing them whenever he can secure an audience.

On this particular instance, in a conversation with Ed the general declared that the remedy for the situation now existing would be to go into Mexico with an armful of good ropes and hang Villa, Carranza & Co. higher than Hamon. Of course, an expression different than this would be a decided surprise to those who have kept posted on the events of the Mexican outrage.

But methods of reformation recommended by this arch villain are not likely to be acted upon by this government. So, let him rave.

The Reeves County Fair is to be held September 15, 16, 17 and 18.

AIRDOME CHANGED MANAGEMENT MONDAY

On last Monday the local picture Show business changed hands, J. S. Johnson assuming control. G. B. Landrum retiring.

Under the old management the business was up to every standard required by the most fastidious. No show of questionable character was ever allowed with George at the helm. During the six years he had control, never was there a disturbance of any kind; no accidents occasioned by carelessness which, as a common thing, are associated with picture shows. The disappointment of the patrons of the Airdome were far and few between and these can be classed as unavoidable. We feel that we can say nothing better to cover the case than that he ran an up-to-now house, where anyone, no matter what their ideas concerning show places were, could go and pass a pleasant and profitable hour.

J. S. Johnson, who is now in charge, is known to all our people. Though only one week has passed under his supervision, we feel justified in predicting that the standard set up by Mr. Landrum will be carried on to the letter, namely: "Nothing too good for my patrons." Mrs. Johnson, is taking an active part with her husband in the management, and, as all good women in every household do, is looking after the box office results.

The Times, and we feel sure, all the good people of Pecos wish them success beyond their highest expectations.

MORE CATTLE SHIPPED

Another carload of fine cows and heifers were shipped out to the Toyah Valley country the first of the week.

They were purchased in Fort Worth by Lee Harbert and shipped out to his ranch near Saragosa.

The Pecos Valley Southern train brought in today three cars of fat cows which were shipped from the U ranch for Al Popham. They were sent on via the Santa Fe to Amarillo.

REEVES COUNTY BONDS

TO PAY FOR 25 MILES OF ROADS.

Austin, Texas, Aug. 20th.—R. N. Couch, county commissioner of Reeves County, was here from his home at Pecos City, and obtained the approval of the attorney general's department to an issue of $100,000 Reeves County road improvement bonds of road district No. 1, bearing 5 per cent and maturing in 40 years, with an option of 20 years. The proceeds from the sale of these bonds, Mr. Couch said, was to be used for the construction of about 25 miles of gravel road.

Mrs. W. E. Sutphin son Melvin, and daughter, Gladys, returned home last week from their two months visit with the home-folks at Des Moines and Fontanelle, Iowa, and this accounts for the happy expression on W. E.'s countenance the past week.

THE BUSINESS SITUATION REVIVED.

Most remarkable has been the recovery in general business during the year in which the European war has been in progress. When it is recalled that a year ago financial and commercial conditions were chaotic to express it mildly, the wonderful recuperation that has taken place in twelve months will be the more appreciated.

Commodity prices generally are advancing, which indicates a much more active situation. Labor is becoming scarcer and wages have been increased. So further evidence of the general business expansion is seen in the larger bank clearances. Railroad earnings are more than they have been for a long time.

The war has upset all calculations and predictions economically speaking, and it is difficult to forecast the future, but it looks very much as if capital would be in great demand and interest rates high. The warring nations have already spent about $15,000,000,000 since hostilities began.

THE CLERK GUARANTEED IT.

"A customer came into my store the other day and said to one of my clerks, 'have you anything that will cure diarrhoea?' and my clerk went and got him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and said to him, 'If this does not cure you I will not charge you a cent for it.' So he took it home and came back in a day or two and said he was cured!" writes J. H. Berry & Co. of Salt Creek, Va. Obtainable everywhere.

CHILDREN'S SUMMER COLDS.

It is wrong to neglect a cold at any time because it weakens the system and lays the sufferer open to attack from other diseases. Wet feet, sudden changes in atmosphere and sleeping uncovered at night cause many children's colds in summer.

EDUCATORS OPEN 13-DAY SESSION.

Ten Thousand Are on Hand For The First Session at Oakland, Calif.

Oakland, Cal., Aug 16.—Every incoming train and steamer continues today to increase the hosts of delegates that have gathered here for the 53 annual Convention of the National Education Association and 10,000 were on hand for the opening session.

Representatives from twenty-seven foreign countries will participate in the thirteen day convention. The National Council of Education, the International Kindergarten Union, the American Peace School League and numerous allied organizations will meet in conjunction with the parent body.

Politics, it was apparent today, would claim the interest of many of the delegates until the fight for the presidency of the association is settled next Thursday.

A nominating committee was appointed today. For the next convention place, Atlantic City, New Jersey is being boomed.

Governor Hiram W. Johnson welcomed the association.

IMMIGRATION TO FOLLOW THE WAR.

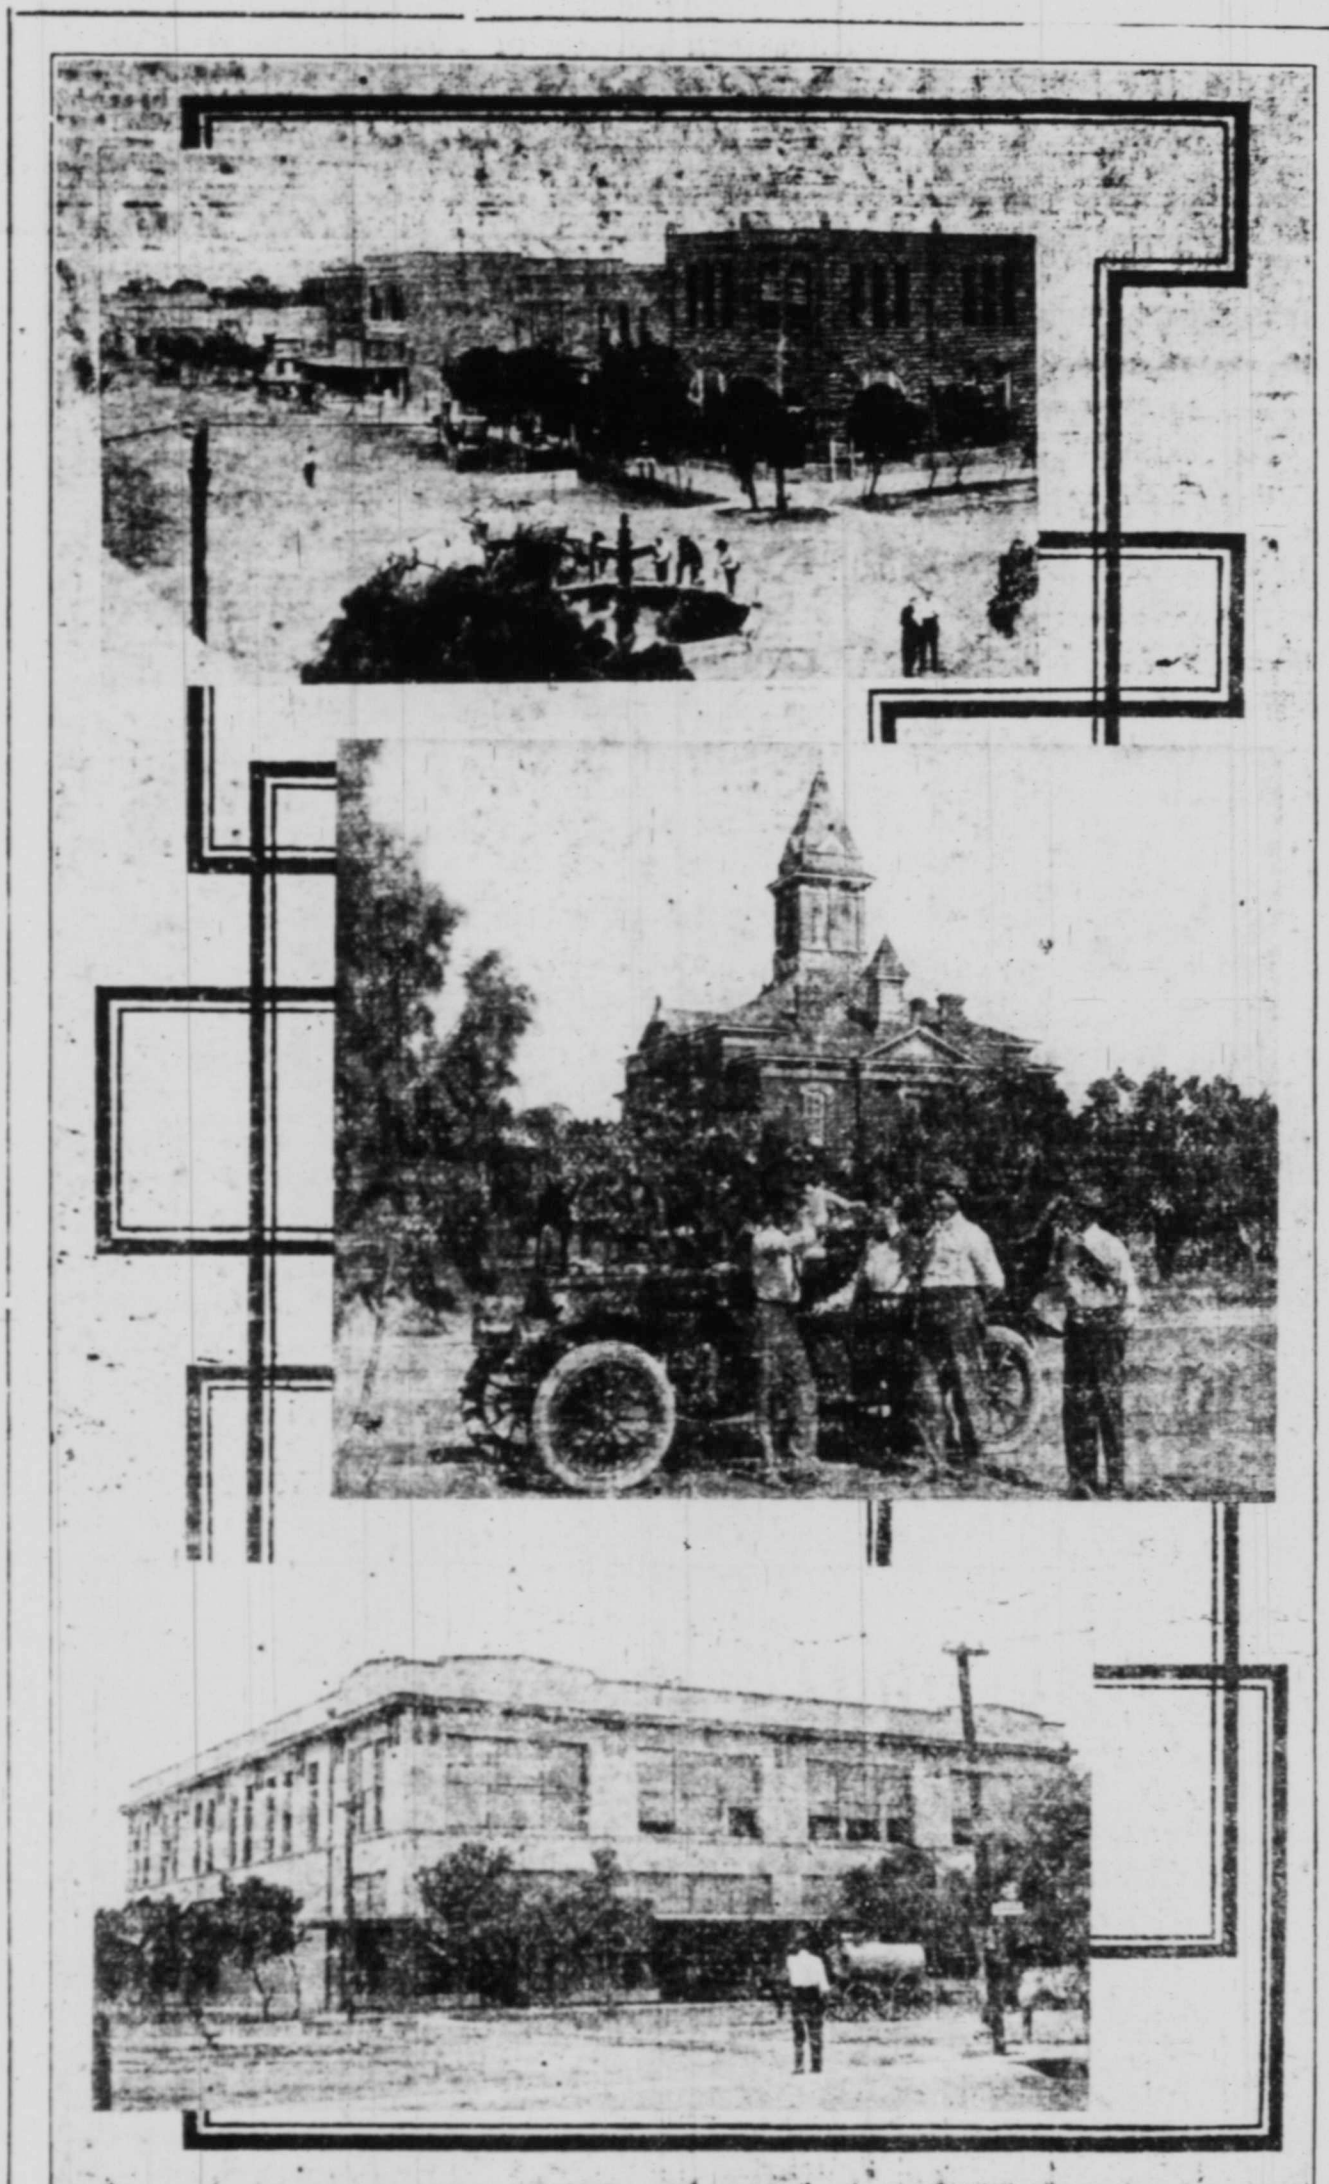

The great nations of the day are struggling fearfully in a causeless war, the misery of which will not be erased in a century, and the debts of which will remain unpaid for many a long decade. We do not dare select the winners, for in such a struggle even the winner is loser. Sometime the straggling remnant, starved and naked and wounded, of the choicest manhood of all the land, will be marching home again.

Will they immigrate? Yes, and by thousands, and from all the nations at war. They will come to the Southwest to seek in a new land to build their habitations, far from the disconsolate clamor of the war and away from the land of the newly made graves.

FAIR AND CLEAR—that's the way your skin will be, if you'll take Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

There are thousand of acres untilled throughout the Southwest, and many a colonization scheme, no doubtless, will be undertaken. It is also expected that widows and orphans will seek asylums in the fine textile arts districts of America, and it behooves the Southwest to keep a steadfast eye upon the wonderful possibilities of this great industry.—Industrial Record.

For every Skin, Scalp, and Scrofulous affection, no matter how it came, the "Discovery" cleanses, builds up, strengthens, and invigorates every part of the system. Eczema, Erysipelas, Salt-rheum, Tetter, Boils, Carbuncles, Enlarged Glands, and the worst Scrofulous Sores and Swellings are completely and permanently cured by it.

LUCKY FOR THE BABIES.

A tourist, traveling in the Rocky Mountains, was introduced to an old hunter who claimed to have killed no fewer than four hundred bears. "Bill," he said "this feller wants to hear some narrow escapes a fearful struggle in opposing camps. They will hardly have the heart to again rear a family, to be devoured until the very doors of war have satiated an appetite of voracious proportions.

The very sensibility of pity has been dulled, and the eyes of those who weep are dry. In these war-torn lands the light of life has been dimmed and hope shattered by the disappearance of loved ones. Already friends and relatives in this country are planning to help these in war swept Europe. They are invited to come at the first favorable opportunity. They will make desirable citizens. They will be as patriotic to the Stars and Stripes as they have been to their own respective lands.

It is for the United States to refrain from harshness as much as possible, exercising due patience and kindness, which are the greatest weapons a nation can possess. Let us remember that away down beneath the awful depravity of war, covered by gloom and anger and hatred, there are human hearts, contorted to be sure, but human, nevertheless, and that beat with the tenderest emotion that ever stirred

HE KNEW A SUBSTITUTE.

Robert, the 4-year old son of a scientific man, had lived in the country most of his short life. One day a caller wishing to make friends with the little fellow took him on his knee and asked, "Are there any fairies in your woods, Robert?" "No," responded Robert promptly, "but there are plenty of edible fungi."—Youth's Companion.

THE WORD HELL.

A Little Book That Contains Some Startling Information. A little book selling at only five cents, postpaid, is having a very wide circulation—running up into the millions. It contains some very startling information respecting the meaning of the word Hell. It claims to demonstrate, both from the Hebrew and the Greek of our Bible, that Hell is not a place of eternal torment, but merely another name for the Tomb. The grave, the State of Death. It affects to show that man was not redeemed from a far-off place of eternal torture, but quotes the Scriptures proving that he was redeemed from the Grave at the cost of his Redeemer's life and that the Scriptural Hope, both for the Church and the World, is a resurrection hope based upon the death and resurrection of Jesus. The book is certainly worth the reading. The information it furnishes is certainly valuable, far beyond its trifling cost. PROTECTION FOR THE GAME BIRDS.

With the hunting season about to open hunters will do well to post themselves on the Federal regulations, for in many instances, Federal and State regulatory measures overlap and in many others, there is a great lack of conformity. The man accustomed to observing the State law is likely to get into trouble, for the United States government has issued a bulletin stating that "while it is unfortunate that the State and Federal regulations do not always conform," the government must insist upon the observance of the Federal regulations.

These Federal laws have been made necessary by the needless and wanton slaughter of birds and other game by pot hunters, and the failure of the State game wardens to properly enforce the State laws. The government found itself compelled to take over the protection of game birds or witness their extermination entirely. States have had game

ADD EGG AND CHEESE TO THE DAILY MENU.

Omelet Made in the Usual Way. Added to Cup of Grated English Cheese, Good Dinner Dish.

Egg and cheese dishes seem excellent substitutes for meats, and combined with each other in different ways varied by odd sauces, they are valuable additions to the daily menu. Every woman is anxious to have the recipes of other women to try, especially if they are good cooks, and if those tried are successful then they add them to their own assortment; in this way there is always a variety to choose from for all occasions, says the Christian Science Monitor.

Baked Eggs.—Boil eight eggs hard, and when cold shell them and cut lengthwise; remove the yolks and make a paste of them with butter, cream, grated onion, pepper-salt and a little chopped parsley. Fill the egg whites with the mixture and tie the halves together with kitchen tape; dip each in rice, then roll in crumbs and grated cheese that have been salted and a little sugar mixed with it. Lay the eggs in a buttered baking dish and bake to a delicate brown, basting with melted butter that has a little lemon juice and a half teaspoonful of fennel seed in it. Serve in the dish they have been baked in.

Tomato Eggs.—Boil six eggs until hard, shell and cut them in half. Have ready boiled one calf's tongue and after it has been skinned dip it. Make a good savory tomato sauce, by using a can of tomatoes to pieces of toast, buttered, over each pour a little of the hot cream. This is an excellent breakfast dish.

Cheese Omelet.—Make a good omelet in the usual way, allowing 1 egg to the person. Have ready the whites of two eggs stiffly beaten, and add to them a half cup of finely grated English cheese, a dish of pepper and salt. When the omelet is ready to fold lay the cheese and egg mixture between and by the time the omelet is turned to brown the other side the filling will be done.

Cheese Blocks.—Take one package of cream cheese and add to it a half cup of sweet cream; work to a paste. Chop fine one dozen seeded raisins, a small strip of citron, six candied cherries, and one candied apricot, a grating of orange peel and a grating of nutmeg, a teaspoonful of vanilla flavoring. Mix all into a smooth paste then pack in a small square mold lined with waxed paper, put the packet mold in salt and ice and chill to freezing point. Remove from the mold, cut into blocks and serve with toasted muffins or crackers with a sweet salad course.

Eggs With Broiled Tomatoes.—Select large, firm tomatoes and cut them in thick slices without peeling, dip them in melted butter then in crumbs, pepper salt and a little sugar. Lay them on a close mesh boiler, and broil them a delicate brown. Lay each on a toast round and noach an egg to lay on top, dusting with pepper and salt, and turning over it a sweet cream dressing.

Savory Eggs.—Fry in butter as many bread rounds as there are eggs to be served. Also fry the same

It gives complete instructions in making the dipping vat and mixing and using the various dips. The dipping vat or the sanitary wallowing vat should be provided whenever hogs are kept in numbers to justify and when the number of hogs is small substitutes should be supplied, for lice do a great deal of injury to hogs that are not protected in some way.

Next to cholera, lice and worms do the most serious injury to the health of the hogs and the pocket-books of their owners. This bulletin treats with the worm problem as well as dealing with lice and the dipping vats to kill them.

The water supply and methods of housing are also of tremendous importance to the successful production of hogs, and are also in a brief way discussed in this bulletin.

EARLY FALL-SOWN OATS

FAR THE BEST YIELDERS.

It is worth while to again call attention to the superiority of early fall-sown oats over spring oats and over late fall sowing.

In the Cotton Belt the superior yields of early-sown fall oats are so regular that too much stress cannot be placed on the necessity for the early fall seeding.

Even as far north as Tennessee, and even though late fall-seeded oats are frequently winter-killed, early fall seeding—September—has given good yield and better than following results from five years tests show:

protective measures for years, but their enforcement has been so lax that the slaughter of birds and fowl has gone forward as if there was no protection. Federal statutes are usually enforced with less show of favor and with mere rigidity and in this instance it is well they are, for the American game bird is rapidly becoming extinct as a direct result of the game hog.

Legitimate sportsmen have not depleted the bird supply it has been the game hog and the pot hunter. These will now have to answer to a higher authority than that of the State or Country, and the protection of the birds is more secure. However, many innocent hunters, true sportsmen, may fall afoul of the Federal law if not posted.

Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, are in what is classed by the department as zone two, and the open season for the various birds is announced as follows:

Water fowl.—Arizona, California and Texas, Oct. 15 to Feb. 1, New Mexico, Oct. 1 to Jan. 18.

Rails, coots and gallinules.—Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, Oct. 1 to Jan. 16, with the exception of coots that can be shot only in Arizona from Oct. 15 to Feb. 1.

Woodcock.—Oct. 1 to Jan. 16. Black breasted and golden plover, jack-nipe, yellow legs—Oct. 1 to Jan. 16, except that the season in Arizona is Oct. 15 to Feb. 1.

Shooting at all game birds is prohibited by Federal statute between sunrise and sunset, and all insectivorous birds are protected indefinitely by the new law; band tailed pigeons, cranes, swans, curlews, and smaller shore birds are protected until September 1, 1916.

Buck Shot

By D. J. M.

Yes, Clarice, its a little late to begin raising babies for the 1915 Fair.

Question: "Have you entered your baby in the Better Babies Contest yet?"

It may be that we could get used to them turning posts if they were not so blamed red-headed.

There will be no holding the mother of a 100 per cent baby.

Pecos and the Pecos country are at the head in quality of products grown on the soil. It will not surprise us a little tiny bit should she produce oodles of 100 per cent babies, after listening to a few of the mothers converse on the quality and doings of their offspring.

S. Ligon was on the market Tuesday with a load of fine Elberta peaches, which were raised on his irrigated farm west of town. He was showing four specimens peaches, which when placed on the scales pulled the beam past the two-lb mark. Can you beat it?—Fort Stockton Pioneer.

We, over here, are also acquainted with the Ligon quality. Not only peaches, but every kind of garden truck imaginable. It has always puzzled us how some folks can and others can't. Its in the soil, they tell you; but we have a sneaking idea that the man has just a little to do with it.

The Reporter management is willing and anxious to go its full length in publishing matter that is for the general good of Sweetwater, Nolan County, and West Texas, though it does benefit individuals to a certain extent. While this is true, we feel that when there is matter to be handed out that carries with it some remuneration we should at least be considered.

men of the town. If one would seriously consider the large part the home paper plays in the focusing of outside attention on a town, this support would not be withheld to such a large degree. Patronize the home paper, and by doing this your money is doing a three-fold function: It is helping your town, it is helping you, and it is helping the paper. So be liberal in this respect, remembering that if you pay just a little more, which is not always the case, that the paper man pays your price, always.

A party of Pecosites, composed of T. H. Beauchamp and daughters, Misses Leola and Ruby Mae, Grace White, G. C. Parker and wife, Thos. C. Parker, and Dr. Roy E. Barr, came over Sunday to get a breath of pure ozone and a drink of rich radium water. Come again neighbors, the latch string always hangs out.—Fort Stockton Pioneer.

Now here's a new one. Radium water—Say, Rose, does it come in little brown bottles.

All one needs to know about the "Public Forum" articles now furnished free to such newspapers as will print them, is to look at the names of the authors. Every man of them is a chronic political manipulator and wirepuller, and most of them are known to belong to the machine which has converted the Farmers' Union into an anti-prohibition cabal of the most corrupt grade.—Comanche Vanguard.

This is one of the most narrow views we have run against in a long time. Its not the man we hold up when quoting his ideas along certain lines. He may be a rank anti and yet one of the most successful farmers and business men of the age whose advice would be invaluable to others. Why should all the good traits of a man be set aside because we think he is wrong on one certain line. We once found a 25-cent piece in an alley lined with empty beer bottles. It looked as if nothing good could be found in that alley, but you see it had one good raise a purse half that much to catch the thieves, robbers and murderers that are working over time in that city, probably there there would be more lives saved in the same length of time than Billy could possibly save. If this great acrobatic farce must come to Texas we know of no town in the State that he could come to that there is more room for improving.—Temple Mirror.

There is no reason to believe that Dallas is worse or better than the average city of its size in the country, morally, but if it puts up $100,000 for Billy Sunday it will demonstrate that it has more than its share of saphheads. This professional mountebank who goes about over the country holding up easy marks in the name of the Almighty, is a greater scoundrel than the footpad who makes no pretension to honesty, because hypocrisy is the greatest of sins. Yet there are many people who delight in hearing billingsgate from the pulpit, although they would be disgusted with anything else. There are moral enthusiasts who hold up their hands in horror at the thought of a baseball game on a Sunday, but who sit with open mouthed admiration in a revival (?) where a clown in the pulpit regales them with such disgusting rot as that handed out to a Philadelphia audience by Billy Sunday. "I am a rube of the rubes, I am a hayseed of the hayseeds, and the malodors of the barnyard are on me yet; I have greased my hair with goose grease, and blackened my shoes with my shoes with stove blacking; I have wiped my old proboscis with a gunnysack towel; I have drunk coffee out of my saucer, and I have eaten with my knife." If Sunday goes to Dallas, there will not be much good nicking after he gets through holding up the town for the decent pickpockets.—Texas Republic.

The above are two specimens of expressions from the press in general in regard to this monumental fake that is robbing the public in the name of religion. Never was

A. & M. COLLEGE ITEMS

In speaking of rations for brood sows, says John C. Burns, professor of Animal Industry at the A. & M. College:

"One of the best rations that can be used for sucking pigs is equal parts by weight of corn and wheat shorts made into a slop with skim milk, using two pounds of milk for every pound of the grain mixture. If skim milk is not available a good ration may be formed by using the proportions by weight of 3 parts wheat shorts and one part corn, made into a thick slop by water. Another good ration may be formed by using the proportions by weight of 7 parts corn and one part tankage of meat meal. If available at lower prices, ground kafir corn, or maize, or feterita may be substituted for the corn in each of the rations. The same ration are also well suited to young pigs from the time they are old enough to eat until they are 4 or 5 months old, at this time such food as shorts and tankage may be reduced gradually, though they should not be cut off entirely, unless some other food relatively rich in protein is used to supplement the grain.

"Three or four weeks after farrowing green pasturage should constitute a portion of the ration for both sow and pigs if the best results are to be obtained."

"Carelessness in handling milk at this season of the year is most apt to result in sickness," says J. W. Ridgway, professor of Dairy Husbandry at the A. & M. College. "All care should be taken to see that the milk vessels are kept clean, for impurity in the milk leads to typhoid fever and kindred ailments.

All milk vessels should be boiled in a wash pot for thirty minutes. All milk shelves should be disinfected with one part formalin to fifty parts water. Fungus sometimes develops in milk vessels. Many instances of this kind have

The Voice of Now

It is the present, the today, the NOW in which we are interested. Shakespeare wisely says: "Tomorrow never yet. On any living mortal rose or set." It is the printed page which deals most intimately and with the greatest detail in the movements of the present. It is THE VOICE OF NOW proclaiming to the world the things that are happening today. The Government of the United States is NOW gravely concerned in certain aspects of the war in Europe and has taken on it several serious international problems which are NOW in process of solution. The American farmer is NOW interested in the titanic struggle, for his interests are being affected by it and he will be tomorrow, and he will keep in close touch with it.

"Amen, brother, amen! Neatly every country paper is up against this sort of proposition, there being few exceptions. The public as a rule is heartless; they want results the best, without an effort on their part to share the burden of expense in attaining them. How often do you hear a liberal patron of a paper criticize that paper? Seldom. The adverse comments and the scathing criticism comes from the fellow who is a perpetual paper borrower. It's true, also, that many of the business men of a town fail to realize that it is their support that makes possible the success of the average country paper. Liberal support brings the wherewithal to hire competent help and to equip the office in a manner to give them the best results. No one that we are acquainted with is running a country paper on means independent of the support of the business point, and we paid due attention to it, too. See the point.

If reputation was a sin and lack of originality a crime, paragraph writers would all be in jail. Journalism was a felony the day some editors discovered who would be in jail.

Of course you have no reference to the papers carrying syndicate "dope". But honestly, brother, during these dog days, when every is off visiting, or fishing, and those at home too darn lazy to start any excitement, how are we going to fill in without swiping everything in sight. Editorial gems or diadems of rhetoric all look alike to us; the public don't know the difference, neither do they give a whoop. So why try to fill all the jails and penitentiaries?

Billy Sunday is coming to Dallas next year, some time in the fall, probably during the fair; he is going to stay there seven weeks, provided they raise enough money to get him and keep him that long. Dallas is going to step pretty lively to raise $100,000 for the National Homeopathic Convention and that much for Billy. If they would dealer saying that that of the late "T. Barrington." "The American public likes to be humbugged."

There is another saying of even greater force, uttered by the immortal Lincoln: "You can fool some of the people all the time, you can fool all the people some of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time." Friend Billy has had a good run, and if his nose is not feathered well, its his own fault, for he never gives a cent to any known charity. Should Dallas land Billy for a show in that burr, we feel confident that it will be one "enterprise" launched by Dallas that Fort Worth will not be envious about.

"Many instances of mildew in wheat and leaves have been called to the attention of Dr. O. M. Bill, professor of Biology at the A. & M. College. Dr. Bill says that this mildew can be prevented best by the use of flower of sulphur, which can be procured at any drug store. The sulphur should be blown into the plants early in the morning while covered with dew and may be applied with a common blow-gun. Care should be taken to reach the leaves on both sides. In case rain occurs within forty-eight hours after the application the sulphuring should be renewed.

Diversification Plans

Small Grain--Oats, Wheat, Rye and Barley

By J. F. DUGGAR IN PROGRESSIVE FARMER.

During each of the last three years the writer has urged a continuous increase in the acreage to be sown in small grains in the Southern States. As another season for sowing grain approaches, the necessity for an increase over the relatively large acreage of the years 1914-15, becomes apparent. For uncertainty in regard to the future price of cotton makes advisable so far as now can be foreseen, a further decrease in the 1916 acreage of that crop. Moreover, the scarcity and high price of the seed of crimson clover and hairy vetch make it necessary to substitute the coming winter rye, oats, and in some cases also wheat and barley, for pasturage in the place of these winter legumes, or to mix these grains with winter legumes seed to an extent not heretofore done.

Let us note too, that it will be easier for the South to sow this fall a liberal acreage in oats than heretofore, because more farmers than ever before are now in possession of oats and wheat suitable for sowing.

FERTILIZERS FOR THE SMALL GRAIN.

The best manuring for fertilizing wheat, barley and rye is practically the same as in the case of oats. All these plants make profitable response to all forms of nitrogen on raptically all poor or medium grade soils. On farms already subjected to a judicious rotation, most of this nitrogen will be supplied without a cash outlay, by plowing under the vines and stubble of cow-peas, velvet beans, and other summer grazing legumes.

But since on most farms in the Cotton Belt there is an insufficient amount of these legumes and also of stable manure, resort will usually be had to purchased nitrogen.

The general experience is that the small grain crops, making their principal growth during the cooler half of the year, prefer their nitrogen in the most available form. Nitrate of soda almost invariably affords a satisfactory profit if applied to the small grains at the proper time. Our experiments tell us that the best time for applying it is at least two months before the average date on which one expects to harvest that particular crop. Even earlier application is usually satisfactory. That is, the first half of March is the preferred date for applying nitrate of soda to fall-sown oats in the latitudes of the country around Shreveport, La., Jackson, Miss., and Macon, Ga.

On a rather stiff soil we have also sometimes had good results from applying nitrate of soda in November, but this is more risky and otherwise less advisable than is an application in March. This shows however, that any farmer located where the danger of winter-killing is slight may increase the usual amount of winter pasturage afforded by oats; and also increase the yield of grain supply by applying nitrate of soda in the early part of the winter, provided the soil be rather stiff.

Other nitrogen fertilizers also afford profitable increase in the yield of all the small grains, notably sulphate of ammonia among commercial sources of nitrogen, and remains of all legumes among the farm grown manures. If these or cottonseed meal are used as the source of nitrogen, application is to be made at or before the time for sowing. In our own experience we have obtained unsatisfactory results in using cottonseed meal and cotton seed as a top dressing for oats and wheat after growth has begun. If any considerable amount of cottonseed meal is applied at the time of planting, care should be taken that the meal does not come into immediate contact with the seed for when this occurs the stand is thinned. That is, do not sow the wheat or oats and cottonseed meal through a grain drill at the same time. It is safer first to sow the stuff broadcast or drill in the meal then sow the grain.

On most the small grains are helped by an application applied at the time of sowing the grain. An experiment coming under the writer's observation raw phosphate (ground rock phosphate) has not proved equal to acid phosphates in oats.

Fortunately for him who wishes to grow small grains under conditions arising from the present war, the small grains, on soils not very sandy are able to succeed with little or no potash. Or at least they need it less than they do nitrogen or phosphoric acid, and to a much less extent than does cotton.

PREPARATION AND METHODS OF SOWING.

Preparation of the land for that part of the small grain crop intended to be planted early should be made in ample time for the land to be fairly compacted, preferably by rain, before the grain is sown, but not so early that a fall crop of grass will spring up. In general it probably pays to make a thorough preparation for the small grains, as for most other crops. Yet reasonable rains, an abundance of vegetable matter in the soil and those conditions that favor a good stand seem to be more important than any particular method of preparing the ground or sowing the seed. At least we have secured a good yield in the same field with a great variety of methods of preparations and sowing of oats, all on the same date. For wheat very thorough preparation is believed to be more essential.

As a rule the use of the grain drill of the ordinary type has increased the yield and the resistance of the young grain plants to cold, as compared with broadcast sowing. In the northern part of the Cotton Belt the sowing of oats in the open furrow has not only proved to practically insure the oat crop against winter-killing, but also to increase the yield even in years when the weather is not severe. The chief objection to the open-furrow method, as practiced in earlier years with a one-row drill, has been removed with the invention and general use of the one horse and two horse open-furrow drills, sowing three to six rows at once, in deep furrows made either by disks or by shovels.

It is high time to give the matter of small grain planting some serious thought. It is now perfectly plain that diversification will be just as imperative next season and perhaps for many seasons, as it has been during the season we are now passing through; and to make the small grains—of which we must plant extensively—satisfactory and profitable crops they must be worked into the regular cropping plan systematically and with a definite object in view. Let us therefore, take up oats and wheat and see how they may be planted to better advantage.

On account of the productiveness of oats, their usefulness as a winter grazing crop, and the prominent place they are made to fill in the best rotation crop schemes, one-fourth to one-third of the land devoted to staple crops ought, on every farm, to be planted to oats.

And the very greatest essential to success is that they be worked into a permanent crop rotation system; that they be worked into it in a way that they can always be planted in the fall—never in the spring. Here are two rotation schemes that have been sufficiently tested to fully prove their merit, and which might be practiced successfully on almost any cotton farm in the entire South:

First Year:—Cotton; Second Year:—Corn and Peas; and the Third Year:—Fall Oats followed by Peas.

This rotation gives the land the benefit of a legume crop two years in every three, the third of the farm devoted to cotton will undoubtedly make a larger total yield than half or more of the place does under the present system of cotton growing.

A four-year rotation is here suggested:

First Year:—Cotton; the Second Year:—Peanuts; Third Year:—Corn and Peas; Fourth Year:—Fall oats followed by Peas.

This rotation would give the land a legume crop every three years, and would be especially adapted to the needs of farmers who desire to produce a smaller amount of ering will give more and better corn.

It is very doubtful if wheat will ever prove sufficiently productive in most parts of the South to come into general use as a staple crop of the farm. Yet it is entirely probable that a considerable acreage of it will be planted in wheat next season, and precautions ought to be taken to insure a better crop than has been produced the present year. In this catch-crop way of growing, wheat its inclusion into any systematic rotation plan is, of course, impracticable; but it ought certainly to be planted, if at all, on land that is capable of producing a paying crop. The heavier and more fertile land of the farm will be best for the wheat; and if it can be planted where peas are growing this year, without interfering with the regular rotation that will be the best place for it. By all means avoid the poor land—plant that to something else; for the planting of wheat on poor land is equivalent to throwing away one's time and seed.

But where wheat is to be grown permanently, and as a staple crop, it ought to be worked into some systematic plan of crop rotation. If oats be substituted for this crop in the three-year rotation and followed by peas, just as in the case of the oats. If it is desired to retain the oat crop wheat might be substituted for the peanuts in the four-year rotation. Where oats and wheat are both to be planted in a small way the small grain field in the rotation each of the years may be divided between the two, peas being planted indiscriminately after both. A limited acreage of wheat might be arranged also, in a rotation with potatoes, Irish and sweet, and other vegetables.—J. A. MARKHAM, in Progressive Farmer.

Talks With the Boys

By J. L. HARBOUR, IN THE VISITOR.

"The Boy Who 'Gets By.'"

"Well, did you get by?"

It was a boy of sixteen years who asked this question of a comrade who had taken a certain school "exam."

"Oh, yes! I got by all right. The fact is, I averaged about fifteen per cent more than I needed to get by."

"You did? Well, I can tell you that I didn't. Still, I don't care. You don't catch me pegging away, trying to get anything more than I really need to get by when it comes to an exam. I got by, and that's all I care for."

Now, the trouble with many boys is that they are just like this boy in that they are satisfied if they merely get by. They belong to a class of boys who feel that a thing is "good enough" if it will only do. Just before Christmas a robust-looking man, shabby in dress and looking as if ambition had entirely deserted him, came to my house, rang the bell. I happened to open the door myself, and the man wanted to know if I had any work that he could do. My cellar was in a good deal of disorder and I told him he could clean it up if he would. He said he would be glad to do so and I took him to the cellar and set him to work. At the end of an hour I went down in the cellar to see how he was getting along. I found him drawing on his coat.

"Are you through so soon?" said I.

"Yes," he said lazily. "I reckon it could be made spick and span, but it will do for a cellar."

I believe that I discovered in that man's remark and in the slack way in which he had cleaned that cellar the reason why he, a man of certainly forty-five years, was going from door to door seeking "odd jobs" instead of being established somewhere in life. It was because he was merely willing to "get by" in his work. The idea of making it

I cleaned off every leaf, and there will be more tomorrow, for all the leaves haven't fallen as yet. I guess the job will get by in the eyes of that man even if we don't rake off every leaf and fallen twig."

"Well, I want to more than get by when I do a thing."

Then I knew at once which of the boys I would want to employ if I were looking for a boy to work permanently for me. Now, the boy who is satisfied to merely "get by" will never give satisfaction to his employers and he will never attain any great success in life. He is in danger of degenerating into a shirk. He lacks the right motive in his work. He will always be doing a thing by halves, and the time is sure to come when he will not do his work even well enough to "get by" with. He will have none of the honest pride in his work that the man had who wrote this:

"If I were a cobbler, it would by my pride

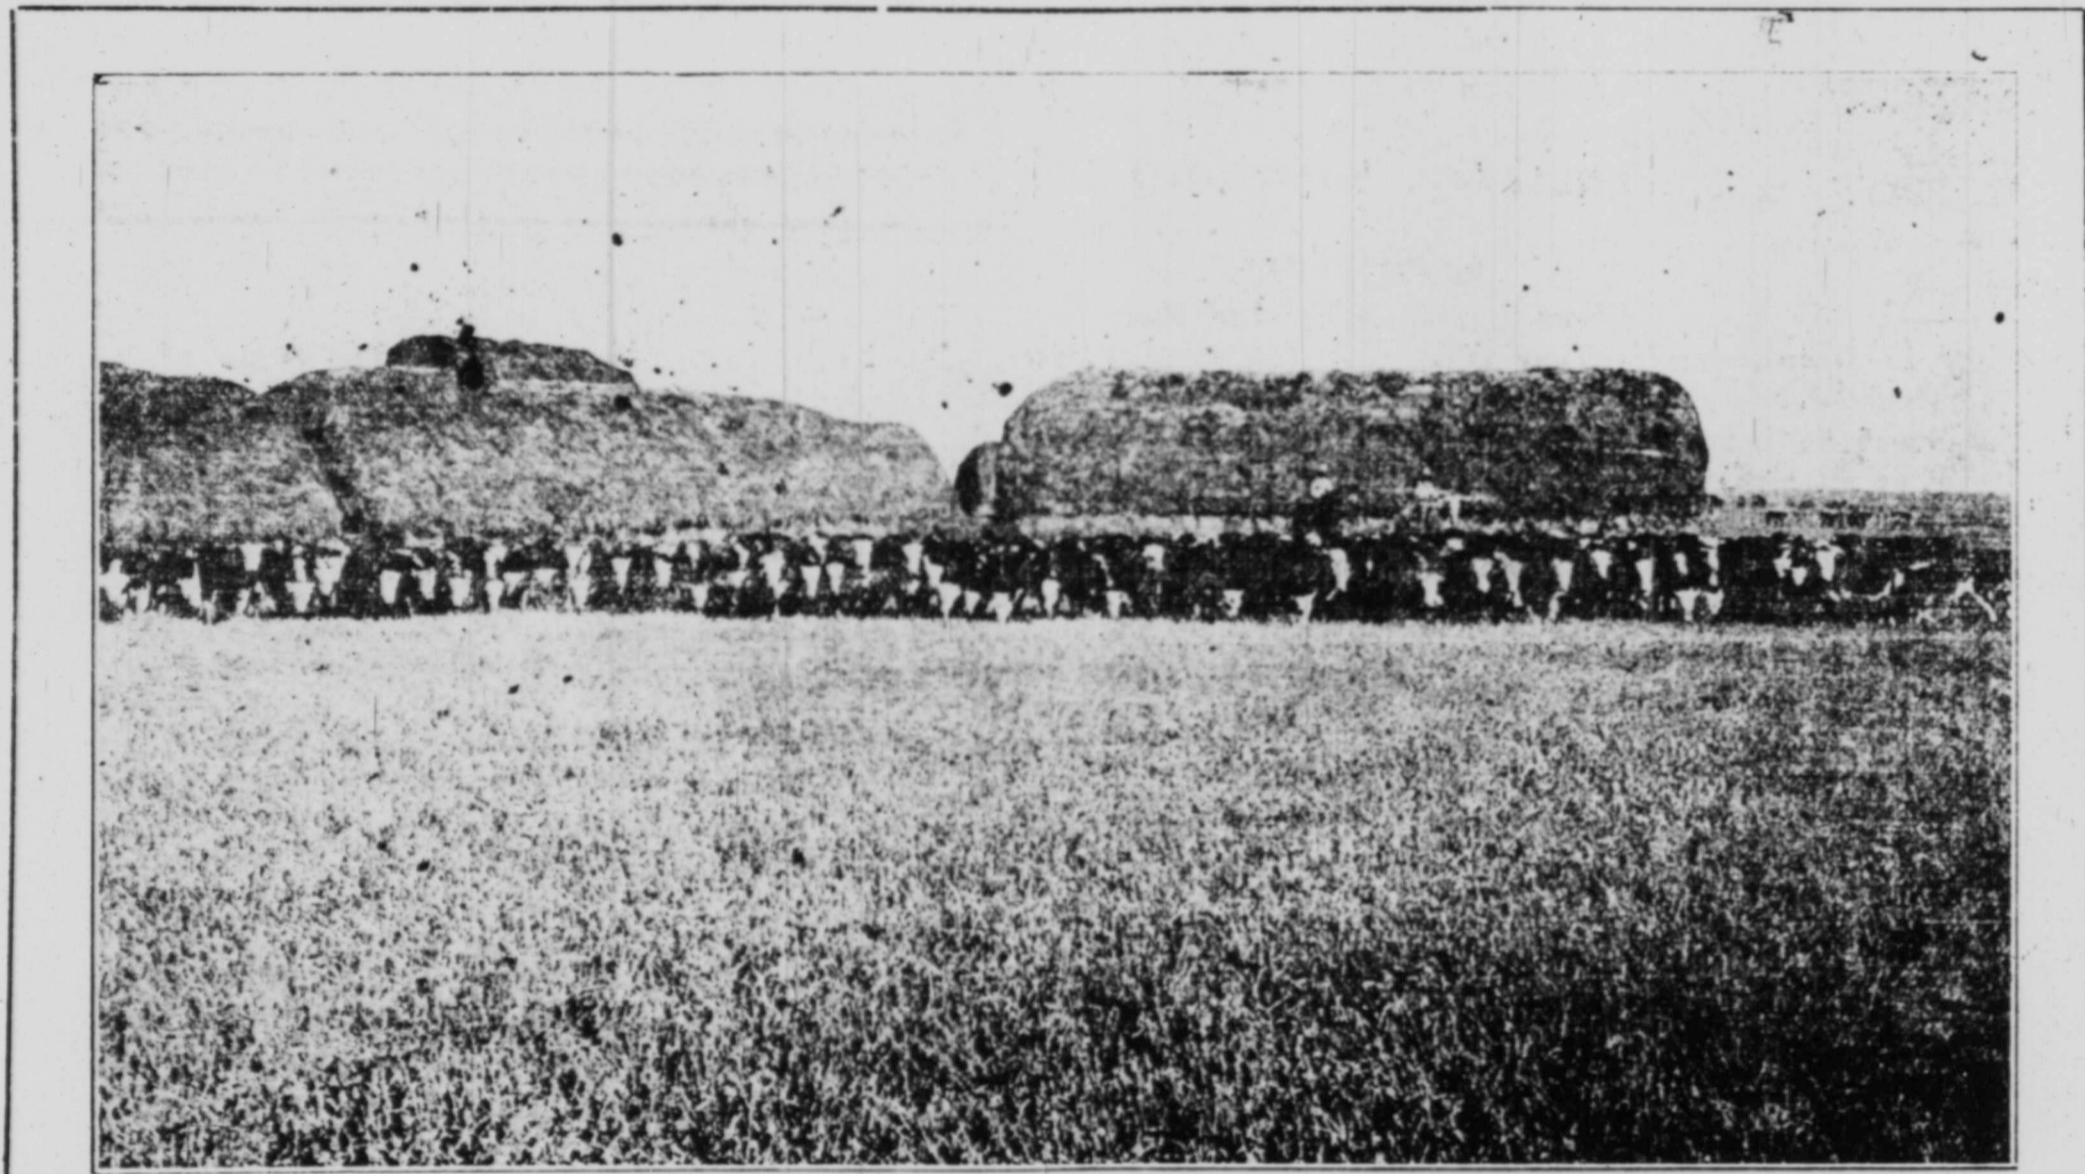

The best of all cobblers to be; If I were a tinker, no tinker beside Should mend an old kettle like me."

Emerson, the great philosopher, wrote some things it might not be easy for a boy to understand, but any ordinarily alert boy will know what Emerson meant when he penned this: "If a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mousetrap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

Those who want work of any kind done will always be looking for the man who does the best work. Employers will never be satisfied with the workman who merely "gets by" with the work he is given to do. This is a truth that every boy should learn as early as possible and forget never. Your life will be very likely to result in failure if you are satisfied merely to "get by" in your work. You are inviting habits of inaccuracy, and of slackness that will in time give you the reputation of being no good as a workman. Once a man has acquired that undesirable reputation his outlook for success in life is very poor. It may be of service to you to cut out these words written by a most successful railroad president and read them every time you are disposed to do work that will merely help you "get by."

"The accurate boy is always the favored one. Those who employ men do not wish to be on the constant lookout, as though they were rogues or fools. If a carpenter must stand at his journeyman's elbow to be sure that his work is right, or if a cashier must run over his bookkeeper's columns, he may as well do the work himself as to employ another to do it in that way; and it is certain that the employer will get rid of such a blunderer as soon as he can."

Believe me, my dear boy, your employer will be getting rid of you if you do work that will enable you to merely "get by."

SYSTEM NEEDED IN GROWING SMALL GRAIN.

Plan a System of Crop Rotation. And Stick to it. Bigger Crops Will Be the Results.

Looking at the matter retrospectively, we are now able to see that in planting our small crops of grain last season some of us made some annoying and rather expensive mistakes. Some of us waited till the spring to plant the oats on account of not having any land in suitable condition to plant them last fall. In most instances these spring planted oats have been but little better than total failures. Others planted the wheat on old run-down soil, in order to save the better land to plant the cotton on. All of such wheat is poor and some of it returned little more than the seed that was put in the ground. Others still planted both oats and wheat in a random and aimless way, anywhere that happened to be convenient and without the slightest regard to a systematic plan of cropping. This is resulting, and will result in the loss of much of the benefit which our new diversification makes it possible to derive from intelligent crop rotation.

In either of these rotations the oats would be planted this fall on the land that grew corn and peas. This would make it necessary, of course, to remove the corn from the land in time to give it a good preparation for the coming crop of oats. Where cutting and shocking of corn—the best method of harvesting a corn crop—is practiced no trouble will be encountered here; but where the corn is to be gathered in the usual way it will be necessary to gather in August or September, considerably earlier than farmers gather. However, the early gathering will itself be a decided advantage, for it will take no more time to gather it in September than in November, and the early gathering will give the land a good preparation for the coming crop of oats. as good as it could be made never occurred to him. If it would "do" that was enough for him. It is never enough if a man or a boy wants to acquire the reputation of being a good worker. One day last fall two boys came to my house and wanted to rake the dead leaves from my rather large lawn and clean it up generally. It was work that I wanted done, and I had no time to do it myself; therefore I told the boys that I would turn the task over to them and would give them fifty cents each for their time. It was a mild day in late autumn, and I was at work in an open window overlooking the lawn, but a bit of latticework on a porch kept the lads from seeing me. After a while I heard one of the boys say to the other: "There, I guess that will do. Ted. It looks well enough now. Let's go in and get our pay."

"It might look a great deal better, Jack, and we ought to make it look better."

"Oh, it will do! Come on; let's go in and get our money and go to the movies this afternoon."

"No; I'm not going until I have made this end of the lawn look better, and I can see a good many dead leaves on your part of the lawn too."

"What of it? It will do as it is.

News Shocks Washington but Official Comment is Withheld Pending Receipt of Details.

London, August 20, 12:15 a. m.—The big White Star liner Arabic, formerly a favorite ship of the Liverpool-Boston service, but which on her present trip was on the way to New York, was torpedoed by a German submarine at 9:15 o'clock Thursday morning southeast of Fastnet.

The steamer according to a report of the White Star line, was attacked without warning and went down in ten minutes. Of the 432 persons on board—181 passengers and 242 members of the crew—32 are missing and are believed to be drowned. Most of those who have not been accounted for belong to the crew. Only six of the passengers are reported missing.

Whether any of those not accounted for are Americans was not promptly determined, but there were 26 citizens of the United States on board. The survivors left the steamer in the ship's boats and were picked up later by passing vessels and arrived in Queens-town tonight.

Details of the sinking of the Arabic are lacking, but that the loss of life was not greater doubtless was due to the fact that the weather was fine and that steamers plying the German submarine zone now keep their boats swung out and are otherwise prepared for emergencies.

The torpedo that sank the Arabic struck her on the starboard side 100 feet from her stern. The vessel had left Liverpool Wednesday afternoon and taken a southerly course well off the Irish coast, doubtless with a view of avoiding submarines which frequent the waters nearer the shore.
