A. B. Cooksey For Assessor.

A. B. (Albert) Cooksey who has announced as a candidate for the office of Assessor of Reeves and Loving Counties, is one of Reeves County's prominent young cattlemen, and is well and most favorably known to nearly everyone in this section of the country.

Albert was born in Reeves county, and grew to manhood, spending his thirty years in and around Pecos and Toyah. He is a hustler at whatever he goes at, has many sterling qualifications which fit him for caring for the duties of the office to which he aspires. If elected, we are sure he will fill the office with credit to himself, and to the people of the counties.

He will make a special endeavor to see every voter before election day, but should he not see some, he begs us tell them not to feel slighted nor take it as an indication that he does not want your vote and support, for he does, but the time between his announcement and the election is so short, and the territory to cover so large, that he will hardly have time to see all.

New School Superintendent.

Prof. and Mrs. T. J. Yoe and sons, Sam and T. J. Jr., arrived in Pecos last week from El Paso, their former home, and will soon be at home in the J. T. H. Lipscomb residence in the southwestern portion of Pecos.

Prof. Yoe comes to us highly recommended as a gentleman as well as an instructor of ability. We have had the pleasure of meeting him and found him to be easy to get acquainted with and most pleasant in every way. We have no hesitancy in predicting that if the people—the patrons of the school especially—will cooperate as they should, we will have one of the best and most profitable school years ever known in the city's history.

The Times heartily joins the citizens in extending to these worthy people a most cordial welcome.

Attended "Wild West Day."

Clay Cooke, accompanied by Mrs. Cooke, left last Thursday for Rankin where they attended the "Wild West Day" picnic in that city Saturday. They went via their Metz car.

There was goat roping and horse racing, etc., and lots of good things to satisfy the inner man. They report a pretty good crowd present and had a very nice time.

They returned via Upland, Grandfalls, Pyote, and Barstow, arriving home Monday. Mr. Cooke reports that the trip did him lots of good in his race for District Attorney.

C. L. Maeyes of Sweetwater, was a Sunday visitor in Pecos.

Bitten By A Rattler.

Ed Starks, in company with several friends, were down in the vicinity of the old cemetery Sunday morning and killed, as he supposed, a rattlesnake. He then put his foot on the snake's tail and was about to grab it near its head with the intention of securing the rattles as a souvenir of the exploit, when the snake fastened his fangs into the back of his hand.

Leaving everything, he started running towards town, and met Charley Tudor, whom he asked to go after a doctor but Charley invited him on his horse saying he could take him in, but the boy said he could not ride. Charley then told him not to run as his blood circulation would become more rapid and cause fatal results. He procured a buggy for the young man and he was hurried to town where medical aid was rendered.

He suffered a great deal at first, and there was grave fears that he might lose his arm, but the bite responded to the treatment and he now out of danger, free from pain and it is only a matter of time until he will be O. K. again. The young man is a brother of Mrs. W. E. Hamilton, about 19 years of age, and has made good many friends during his short stay in Pecos. We trust that his recovery may be rapid.

Judge Jas. F. Ross at Midland.

At the commencement exercises of the Midland College, held in that city last week, the principal speaker of the occasion was Judge Ross, of Pecos. In commenting on the affair, the Midland Reporter, had the following to say in regard to the judge and his address:

"Judge Isaacs introduced Judge James F. Ross, of Pecos, who was the speaker of the evening. It is not the privilege of a Midland audience to be favored on every occasion with addresses which carry with them so much of feeling, of pathos, and of inspiration as did his address. While the subject was 'The Common Things of Life,' it was no common speaker or speech. The close attention and hearty applause bespoke the sincere appreciation of every one who heard Judge Ross.

"Competent judges pronounce this one of the best addresses ever delivered in the city."

Miss Nellie Willcock left Saturday for Weatherford for a visit with her mother and sister, Miss Beatrice. The latter was taken there for the benefit of her health, and we are glad to state that she is improving nicely.

Leg And Collarbone Broken.

Jim Baker, who for several weeks past, has been in the employ of Seth Lewis, looking after the latter's cattle along the Pecos north of here, had the misfortune, while pulling a cow out of bog, last Tuesday morning early, to have his horse jerked backwards, and in falling caught him underneath, breaking his leg near the hip, and fracturing his collarbone.

Jim says that the rope, by the sudden turn of the horse, practically tied him in the saddle so that he could not jump clear. The damage, of course, was done in the fall, but another and graver danger bobbed up, namely, being gored and trampled to death by the enraged cow. Only punchers who have had experience with this phase of the work can appreciate the danger there is in cattle after helping one up or pulling them out of bog. To put it in the venacular of the range, "they sure get on the prod." Well, Jim decided to move from between the rearing horse and the the enraged cow, and in doing so, displayed, to our mind, a rare instance of western pluck: dragging the now useless leg after him out of the water to a place higher on the bank.

For ten long, weary hours he lay there suffering tortures from his injuries, the hot sun, and an aching thirst. He stated that he figured the pain in moving would be greater than the thirst for awhile, but if no one showed up before night, he would have water whether or no.

About six in the evening, Sterling Price, who was working the river with Jim, passed that way, saw what happened, and making Jim as comfortable as possible, went after help.

Stock Ingle's auto was had, and the party started on the 17-mile trip to Pecos.

Jim, when asked if he had ever lost consciousness during the long hours said: "No, I suppose I had too much to think about: how long I was going to lay there, and tried to formulate some plan by which I might possibly travel, but every time I moved my leg the pain was such that I abandoned the idea of travel: again the antics of the horse and cow, securely tied together, amused me. No, sir, I didn't have the time to spare fainting."

Mr. Price was on the way to a ranch to get some phonograph records, and happened to think of Jim, so decided he would go and get him to go with him. Had he went to a regular crossing, he would not have passed within a mile of where the accident occurred, and no telling how long Jim would have lain there.

He was brought to Pecos, and is now as comfortable as kind and loving hands can possibly make him at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. H. Baker.

Cattle Shipped.

Frank Kelton, Association inspector, report the following cattle movements the past few days in this vicinity:

From Kent the Reynolds Cattle Company shipped 26 cars of steer yearlings to Will and Joe Reynolds, at Campo, Texas, receiving $32.50 a round.

Tom McKenzie who has had quite a herd up the Pecos river, moved ten cars from there to his Pecos County ranch, loading them at Riverton on the Santa Fe.

Mrs. Wylie Cole left last week for Lubbock, accompanied by her daughters, Annie Lou and Wylie Sue. She will visit there with the children's grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Cole for a few days, and leaving the children there she will go on to Canyon City and attend the Summer Normal at that place. Mrs. Cole is studying hard in order to do her very best at her chosen labor of teaching, at which she has given splendid satisfaction by her careful, painstaking work in the Pecos schools.

Verhalen - Cameron.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized this morning when Miss Jennie Elaine Cameron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Cameron and Mr. Raymond Patrick Verhalen, of Verhalen Ranch, Texas, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Verhalen, of Marshall were married at St. Joseph's Catholic church, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. L. Granger, officiating. The church was beautifully decorated with an abundance of roses.

The wedding, march was played by Miss Hanna May Linehan, and Mrs. Wm. Nolan sang.

The bride was attired in blue taffeta traveling suit and wore a corsage bouquet of sunburst roses. She was attended by Miss Ruth Verhalen, sister of the groom, who wore a pink flowered voile dress with picture hat to match and a corsage bouquet of My Maryland roses. The brother of the groom, George Verhalen, acted as best man.

The happy couple left on the Sunshine Special for the west, and will be at home at Verhalen Ranch near Pecos, Texas, after June 15th, 1916. —Marshall Messenger.

Mr. Verhalen, the groom, is one of Reeves County's most prominent pump irrigation farmers, living at Verhalen. He is a young man of many fine qualities and is well and favorably known to every one in this section. He is a hustler at work, and his labors are bringing him deserved success. He numbers his friends by the extent of his acquaintances, and The Times most heartily join these in extending congratulations to the happy couple and wish them the many good things they are worthy of.

Mr. and Mrs. Verhalen arrived home yesterday morning after visiting in Dallas.

Observe Wedding Anniversary.

Last Sunday was the ninth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Smothers, and the eighth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Hanson's wedding, so they joined forces and celebrated both occasions at the pleasant home of the Smothers.

Those present were the two couples above named, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Churchill, father and mother of Mrs. Smothers, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Yoe—Mr. Yoe was "best man at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Smothers—Miss Roberta Nell Smothers, James Hanson, Sam and T. J. Yoe, Jr.

The first named were married at Big Springs and the latter at Colorado City.

After partaking of a most bountiful feast, consisting of fried chicken, with the proper trimmings, etc., ice cream and cake were served, after which they spent the afternoon in visiting and living over the past few year of happiness.

Reading and Rest Room.

Through the cooperation of Ray Magill, the proprietor, and the Ladies Aid and Christian Endeavor Society of the Christian church, a fine reading and rest room has been opened at the New Cafe. The ladies provided the furniture, the Endeavorers will keep suitable books, papers and magazines on the table, and Mr. Magill will supervise it.

This will meet a long-felt need in Pecos. It provides a downtown place for visitors especially, to spend their time comfortably and profitably. It will be open from early morning until near the midnight hour, and the public is invited to make use of it and feel perfectly at home. The daily papers, a few short story books, magazines, and other wholesome literature will always be found on the table.

Edgar Patterson, candidate for the office of County and District Clerk, came up from Balmorhea and perambulated among the voters in the city this week.

J. V. (Vol) Stevens Dead.

Word was received here on Tuesday morning that J. V. Stevens had died at his home at Jal, N. M., about 8:30 that morning. Mr. Stevens had been ailing for some several months but it was not thought that his demise would occur so soon. Heart trouble was the direct cause of his death.

Mr. Stevens lived in Pecos and vicinity for several years, and was known as an honest, upright man, and had the respect of all.

Jim Bryant, his son-in-law, was in Pecos Tuesday evening and carried out the casket and the remains were interred in the cemetery not far from Jal, Wednesday. Mrs. Clay Slack, a daughter residing here, went out, and was present at the funeral.

A further account, with an obituary has been promised us for the next issue. We join the many friends in extending sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

Erecting Neat Bungalow.

Mrs. Jo Camp is having a neat, comfortable bungalow erected on the site of her cottage recently destroyed by fire.

It will be modern in every respect, with many up-to-date features for convenience, but simplicity will be the main idea throughout. It will contain 5 ample rooms, and bath, with built-in closets. A screened in sleeping porch will be one of the features on the east. The house, over all, will be about 60 x 35 feet.

Joe Miller, Geo. Easterbrook and Hubert Buchanan are the artisans in charge of its erection.

Contracts With Sulphur Co.

John F. Grogan, one of Pecos' best well drillers, left Wednesday for the Dancy & Hines Jumbo placer sulphur mines, in the Cooksey range north of Toyah. Mr. Grogan has contracted for several 100-foot test holes.

Mr. Grogan thoroughly understands his business and will give these gentlemen the very best of satisfaction.

We are indeed glad to see this new work going on and if the results are even half what they have so far proven by examinations, it will be a big bonanza for this section of the great West Texas.

Dr. Jim Camp returned home Monday from his visit to many places of interest. He first went to Galveston to attend the State Medical Association, after which he proceeded to New Orleans, and then up to Rochester, Minn., at which place is located the celebrated Mayo Clinic, and from there he went to Chicago. The doctor's numerous friends are glad that he is home again. He reports a very pleasant and profitable time while gone.

A Heavy Wind Storm.

On last Sunday afternoon this section of Texas was visited by what was considered by old timers the worst wind and dust storm ever known. At times it was impossible to see across the street. At the Experimental Station the wind gauge registered a velocity of 25 miles an hour.

The damage done in town was comparatively light, but our streets, next morning had the appearance of being visited with an amateur cyclone during the night—branches of trees being liberally strewn along the streets and walks.

The greatest damage was to the cotton crop, which was literally burned to the ground by the hot wind. Among the principal losers from damage to crops are: R. N. Couch, 75 to 100 acres; W. O. Womack, 60 acres; W. G. Padlock, 20 acres; Dickey & Williamson, 35 acres; Geo. Brown, 30 acres. Others reported to us losses, smaller than those recorded above, adding, possibly 50 more acres than have been damaged.

Off On A Fishing Trip.

A fishing party, headed by the "big fishing chief," Dad Baker, with R. E. L. Kite, W. K. Wylie, and Eugene Kite trailing, are up in the deep water section of the Pecos, near Riverton, angling for the "big blue cats", their principal pastime.

R. E. L. Kite and Mr. Wylie left Tuesday morning in the jitney of the former while Dad and Eugene Kite loaded with bedding, camp utensils and the grub came up in the afternoon on the Santa Fe train and, if we are to judge from the ample supply of the latter item, they will not starve even should they catch no fish. They expect to return about Saturday evening, and if we are not mistaken they will bring lots of fish with them.

Later: Dad Baker received word by courier Wednesday morning of the accident to his son, Jim, and returned poste haste to town to help take care of him.

Ed Flowers, a former Pecosite, but now located down near Terlingua, surprised his scores of friends by dropping in on them Friday and was kept busy shaking hands. He left on the return trip Saturday afternoon. He informed us that he had been down in Mexico until recently when he preferred staying in the United States at least until things become somewhat more civilized and quieted down.

E. Hall, one of the best citizens of Porterville, was transacting business in Pecos Tuesday, and while here made The Times office a pleasant call, ordering his paper sent up to Porterville from the Barstow list, where he had been receiving it in the past.

SAILING TO WIN

"What was the matter with you fellows in the race?" asked the man at the clubhouse who made it his business to hold down the big armchair reserved for the rocking-chair fleet.

The young man who had just jerked a big dinghy out of the water and landed it right up on the dock dropped wearily into the bow seat and looked at the speaker.

"Say, this yachting business isn't what it's cracked up to be, especially when you take everyone's advice," he declared, bitterly. "When I bought the Nancy all the wise fellows dropped around one at a time and in bunches and suggested that I'd better get Dudley to sail my boat for me the first season. They pointed out that I was new to the game and it wouldn't look well for me to lose all the big silver cups, especially when I had a fast boat."

"So you got Dudley to do the stick work, eh?"

"Well, I admit I was easy. I had never sailed a big boat before, and I didn't want to make any bad breaks. Dudley is a fine sailor. He would let me come down and get everything ready for him—just so many reefs in the mainsail, all the big kites put in stops, so they would break out at the right time—and when he came aboard all he had to do was to make suggestions and kicks."

"Today we were to sail for the Johnson cup. It's a beauty and I wanted to take it out to Austin and show it to my landlubber friends. So I got Dudley to sail the boat for me. It was blowing pretty hard and we had in two reefs and the staysail. The way we tore down the harbor toward the line made me wish I was ashore, so I could telephone to my friends that the cup was a cinch for my yacht. Before the starting gun was fired we nearly ran clear through another yacht that was jockeying near the line. I didn't like the way the boat was being sailed, but thought it was because I didn't understand the fine points of the game. I thought that perhaps the stunt was to disable as many of the boats in our class as possible—then it would be easier for us to win. It looked that way, for we luffed into another yacht and nearly lost our own bowsprit. When we crossed the line I could almost see that cup sitting on my dresser, for we were first and we kept first—in fact, we went so fast that the other yachts seemed to be anchored."

"So you won the race?"

"Won nothing! When we got out to the four-mile crib, which was the first buoy we were to round, we passed it to port and went sailing north. Then we looked back to give the other fellows the happy smile, and what do you think! Every blamed boat went sailing gracefully around that crib, passing it to starboard, and was off on the southern course. We had the balloon up and my expert sailor, instead of giving the boys up forward time to get it in, as I would have done luffed. The next minute I saw myself paying out $25 for a new sail."

"Caught on the spreader?"

"I should say it did—it ripped from head to foot. We all talked at once. I insisted that the course was the way the other boats went and Dudley finally admitted that he didn't really know what the race was—just kind of supposed that the course was the way we started to sail it."

"When we got the balloon in and staysail up the other boats were so far ahead that I said we might as well go in. What was the use of racing, anyhow, if you couldn't win? But I'll sail my own boat after this."

"Someone wants me at the telephone? Wants to know whether I won? Say, steward, just tell her there wasn't any race—that the lake was too rough."

Burns Manuscript Sold.

A Burns manuscript was the feature sale at a recent auction, for the benefit of the Red Cross, held in Edinburgh. The manuscript "To the Unco Guid," set in a glazed case shows some variations in the poem as printed. It is in good preservation, and is an excellent specimen of the national poet's bold handwriting. Tacked on to it are two separate lines, also in the same hand—"Farewell old Golla's hills and dales, Her heathy moors and winding vales." Bidding for the manuscript opened at sixty guineas. Eventually, however, it was knocked down at 124 guineas. The manuscript was gifted by two ladies whose grandfather acquired it in 1824.

Unhappy Remark.

A celebrated lawyer was having his head measured at a fashionable hat store the other day. The man remarked, "Why, how long your head is, sir!" "Yes," said the lawyer, "we lawyers must have long heads." The man went on with his work and soon exclaimed: "And it is as thick as it is long, sir!"

In every home where there is a baby there should also be a bottle of McGEE'S BABY ELIXIR. It may be needed at any time to correct sour stomach, wind colic, diarrhoea or summer complaint. Impossible To Get So Much Motor Car Value For The Money

WE FIND this is the attitude of many people who come into our salesroom—before they know anything about the Maxwell.

Not until the Maxwell is shown and demonstrated to them—until they sit in it and examine the finish—until they ride in it—or perhaps not until they drive it themselves, do they realize what a tremendous value is offered in the Maxwell car.

It is not unusual that Maxwell value should not be known to everyone, because it is uncommon to find such a car for a good margin more than the Maxwell price.

The Maxwell stands absolutely alone in a highly competitive field, for the amount of value it offers for the price.

Appearance—The lines of the Maxwell are decidedly attractive. There is no break in the contour from the radiator to the back of the car. The fenders are gracefully shaped. All metal parts are enameled or nickel-plated. The upholstery is deep and well-finished. From any angle it is a car that the owner can be proud of.

Motor—The engine in the Maxwell car is not equalled by any other four-cylinder engine of its size. And we know of larger and more expensive cars that have less able power plants. The Maxwell engine carries its load through mud and sand or over the steepest grades without a falter.

Quality—The materials in the Maxwell car are the best that can be bought and the workmanship that turns them into finished parts is no less excellent. It is only the large production of the Maxwell factories that makes it possible to put such quality of materials and workmanship into a car selling at the Maxwell price.

Economy—With its other attractive features, the Maxwell is a most economical car to own. Owners get 22 to 25 miles per gallon of gasoline and 3,000 to 12,000 miles per set of tires. And the car is so durably built that repair expense is negligible.

We are sure you want a car such as we have described the Maxwell to be. If you will give us a few minutes of your time we are sure we can convince you that the Maxwell Car is an exceptional value. Come in today.

One of the troubles of operating heavy machinery is the rapidity with which gears wear out.

We have developed a lubricant which will protect the heaviest gears under the greatest pressure.

We call it

It is a rich, heavy lubricant which cannot be squeezed out from between the teeth. The pinions run on this heavy film—cutting and wear are stopped.

"Crater" resists weather, water, heat, and dust. It is particularly adapted for gears on oil mills, cotton compresses, tractors—wherever large gears need protection.

THE TIMES, ever progressive, has added a feature that we feel sure will interest those of our readers who contemplate building a home. On this page will appear, each week, The illustration of a home, and, occasionally an interior. A wide range will be covered, so no matter what your taste regarding how a home should be, you will find just what you want. The reading matter, too, will be of a nature that has to do with the home.

Plan No. 284.

Good bungalow lines with simplicity the keynote, makes this modern five-room, bath, and screened porch home an exceptionally good design to select, where first cost is a factor. The deep front porch offers ample room for a porch swing and chairs, and from the porch you enter directly into the living room and immediately back of this is the dining room, the two separated by a cased opening, making it possible to throw both rooms together for entertainment. The open mat fireplace is located in the dining room with built-in buffet on one side and the double acting door leading to the kitchen on the other. The kitchen is equipped with all the modern built-in features and labor-saving devices, and it is complete in every detail. On the opposite side of the house are the two large bed rooms with closets for each and bathroom separating the two.

The home builder of today demands the more modern of ideas in architecture, those that combine the elements of convenience and attractiveness, at the same time marked with simplicity. In arrangement and designs these homes are as varied as the requirements of many thousand home builders have made them. However in each the pleasing exterior lines in keeping with the surroundings, the convenient interior room arrangement, the proper ventilation, etc., are essential features to be considered. When possible the bed rooms and bath should be included in a section of the home by themselves, with the bath convenient to other parts of the building and independent of the bed rooms. An important detail is the arrangement of the kitchen so as to prevent the heat and fumes of cooking penetrating through the other rooms of the house. The interior finish should be plain throughout straight lines predominant, makes most the general suggestion. A very important factor in interior finish, and one which is valueless is the exposure of rooms, as the colors depend largely on the amount of light afforded. Exterior finish is, of course, a matter of individual taste.

The Possibilities of Beef.

While prices vary according to locality, an average sized shank of beef costs about 40c to 50c and contains, besides the narrow bone, about 5 pounds of solid meat, measured after cooking, and a pint of fat, after trying out, that can be used for shortening and cooking. Having purchased a good sized shank, cut out all the best and lean meat, taking care to remove the stringy pieces and dig the marrow from the bone. Chop meat and marrow and you will have a quantity of delicious steak, tender and well formed. Season slightly with salt and pepper, make into patties and put into a cool place until needed for cooking.

Nose Bleed Among Children.

Nose bleed is common with children and while it seldom reaches an alarming state, nevertheless children are often greatly frightened by it. In treating this complaint try applying a cold cloth at the base of the brain. Stand back of the child and press your hands firmly on the large arteries that run along the edges of the cheek bones. Do not stop the nostrils with cloth or cotton, but allow the blood to flow until naturally checked.

Often adults are afflicted also, with excessive nose bleeding. This is often caused by a severe cold in the head or by exposure to the sun. Worry will often cause it, and in a great many diseases, such as fever, the nose will bleed. If the blood is black that flows from the nostrils, the trouble is probably due to cold or to congestion, and sometimes it is not best to check the flow at once. Drowsy headaches are often relieved by nose bleed. But be careful when children noses bleed, and do not show that you are the least alarmed. By being yourself calm you

"Not yet, Jim," answered his sister, smiling. "Besides, you know, Jim, I am never going to get married any way until you do, because there will be nobody to look after you then."

Jim smiled. "I've been looking after myself a good deal since I came to New York," he answered.

"But anyway, I'm going to stay with you long enough to put your household affairs in order and—sew on all your buttons," replied the girl.

Since Jim left the little town to take up a position in the big city Rita had worried constantly about him, and at last she had left her mother and gone to spend a couple of weeks with Jim. He was taking her for a round of gaiety. As they entered the big roof-garden hotel Jim looked fondly at his sister. How pretty she was, and how fortunate the man would be who got her! He hoped it would be someone worthy of her.

"I am always so sorry for boys like you who are lonely in a great city," said Rita, slipping her hand into his.

Jim winced inwardly. He was thinking of a certain poker party of a few nights before, of which Rita would never have approved, and wondering if she suspected that he had a good many friends.

In the elevator a forlorn-looking young man was standing. He, too, was going up to the roof-garden, and he was going up alone. Rita's heart smote her.

"He looks as lonely as I imagine you must be sometimes," she whispered to Jim as the elevator stopped. "Let's ask him to join us."

Jim looked at the young man. He was certainly a presentable young fellow, a gentleman, and a stranger to the city, as Jim imagined. They happened to approach an empty table together. Jim made some casual remark.

"Plenty of room here," he said. The young fellow sat down, and soon the three were engaged in conversation. Jim was not sorry for the respite from a tete-a-tete with his sister. He was dreading the time when he would have to tell her a very natural thing from which, nevertheless, he shrank—that he was as good as engaged to a very charming girl, Miss Ida Campbell.

"By the way, Jim," said Rita, "do you remember Ida Campbell? Well, I have got her address, and I was thinking of looking her up. It is somewhere in Sixty-seventh street."

The young man started. "Why, then she must be my cousin," he said. "I am John Campbell. My uncle and aunt come from Birmingham."

"Why—I have heard of you!" stammered Rita. "How odd! Ida always used to speak of her city cousin, and hoped that some day we should meet. But you have lived in the city all your life?"

"Pretty nearly," said John, smiling. "But I thought you were so lonely, and told my brother to speak to you."

"Well, I am," said the young man, laughing. "At least, I was."

The ice was fairly broken, and soon they were all chatting like old friends, in the intervals of the performance. Rita found the young man delightful, and Jim—well, Jim was pleased, because somehow it seemed to ease his own guilty conscience. But in the midst of the mirth a thin wisp of smoke was seen to curl out of the side of the stage. A moment later a thick, black cloud drifted toward the audience.

"Fire!" shouted somebody. The stage manager appeared and held up his hand. "There is no danger," he said quietly. "Please leave your seats in an orderly manner and go toward the elevators."

The panic was checked, but as the three drew near the entrance those who were in front came running back, shrieking. The cause of the new alarm was manifest. A roaring sheet of flame shot up each elevator. The top floor of the hotel below was blazing.

Caught in the terror-stricken crowd, Rita looked at Jim in dread. She was being crushed by the seething throng that surged back from the elevators toward the parapet. But the next moment she felt herself lifted in a pair of strong arms and carried through the mob.

"There is no danger!" she heard John Campbell whisper in her ear. A minute later he had set her down in a niche in the parapet, while he himself and Jim stood guard in front of her. Around them surged the wild, uncontrollable crowd of pleasure-makers, but she rested securely.

"I don't know how we can thank you enough," said Jim to John Campbell. "I hope this is the beginning of a friendship that will last."

"I hope so," answered John. Somehow they seemed waiting for her to speak. But as she did not, Jim blurted out:

"I don't know whether our friend knows it, Rita, but I ought to tell you that Miss Ida Campbell and I—"

"I know it very well," said John, smiling.

"Jim!" exclaimed Rita. "You don't mean that—"

"Will you be very angry with me, Rita?" asked Jim.

"Why, it's wonderful!" cried Rita, catching at her breath. "Jim, you dear old boy, I am so glad. It is just like a romance."

"I was afraid—" stammered Jim. "I mean, after our always having meant so much to each other—"

Talks With the Boys

By J. L. HARBOUR, IN THE VISITOR.

The Boy Who Can "Leave It Alone."

A good many times in my life I have heard men say this of rum: "I can drink a little of it or I can leave it alone."

Every time I hear a man say this I always feel like saying to him: "Then my friend you will be wise if you let it alone, for the time will come when you will not be able to do so if you drink even a little now."

The saloon and all of its resultant evils are in existence today because there are so many men who have seen the time when they could say: "I can drink it, or let it alone."

Within a week I heard the hard-working mother of five children tell me this of her husband, who is almost a common drunkard: "When we were first married he drank a very little, and he used to say that I need have no fear of him becoming a drunkard, because he could touch it or he could leave it alone, as he pleased. He cannot say that now, for the moment he sees it or smells or even passes by the wicked places in which it is sold he has to have it. He can no longer leave it alone."

This is the common story of thousands of men who once made the proud boast that they could "leave it alone." Once the drink habit gets itself thoroughly fixed in some men they seem to have no will power to "leave it alone."

The only safety lies in not touching a drop of it. Many a moderate drinker in time becomes a drunken sot and thus shortens his life by his folly and weakness.

Sir Walter Raleigh once said: "Except thou desirest to hasten thy end, take this for a general rule, that thou never add any artificial heat to thy body by wine or spice."

This artificial heat may in time become a consuming flame, destroying those who allow its flames to burn inside them. Let no boy who reads this feel so sure of himself that he allow himself to drink a little now and then as he approaches the years of manhood. No man knows his own strength when it comes to the drink habit until he has been put to the test. Then he often finds that he has over-estimated his strength and he has reason to wish that he had "let it alone."

It is so of other bad habits beside drink. The only safe rule is to "let it alone" when it comes to anything having the possibilities of evil in it. One may even harm one's self by eating too much candy. A doctor has told me that the candy habit was injuring many of our boys and girls. The first impulse of some boys and girls when they get a dime or a nickel is to run to some candy store at once. They seem unable to "let it alone," no matter whether it is good for them or not. That too much of it is not good for them any doctor will testify to. You may say that eating candy is a small matter, not to be compared to the danger there is in drinking rum. All the same a good deal of harm can come from the unchecked candy habit, and there are boys and girls who should not eat it at all.

One of the presidents of the United States, John Quincy Adams, said long years ago: "Every temptation is an opportunity for getting nearer to God."

Do you understand how that may be? Because every time we resist a temptation we grow in grace, and growing in grace means getting nearer to God. Moreover, refusing to yield to the temptations we know we should resist is an indication of force of character. It indicates real manliness in a boy. I liked much the spirit of a boy who said when he was asked to do a thing he knew he ought not to do: "I know there isn't much harm, as you say, in it, but doing the thing in which there isn't much harm is one way of getting nearer and nearer to the thing in which there is a great deal of harm."

This boy had the "let it alone" spirit in a high degree. If he maintains it all through life he will never be troubled with the things of evil that are the ruin of so many lives. No better way is there to serve God, boys, than to develop into men of character, than by steadily resisting the things of evil that constantly beset us, even though they be harmful to us only in a slight degree. Keep in mind Dryden's lines: "Better shun the bait than to struggle in the snare."

When it comes to evil associates, no boy can truthfully say that he can associate with them without danger of suffering in character. I remember that I once heard an anxious mother trying to get her boy of fifteen years not to associate with certain boys in the community who were known to be very bad boys. The boy became impatient and said to his mother: "Well, I don't have to do the things they do, just because I go with them, do I?"

Here was another instance of a boy not wise and strong enough to "let it alone" when it came to something with the possibilities of harm in it. You know the old axiom about one not being able to touch pitch without becoming defiled. Indeed one cannot put one's self in the way of temptation of any kind without becoming more or less defiled. The only absolutely safe way, boys, is to "let it alone."

Bowel Complaints in India.

In a lecture at one of the Des Moines, Iowa churches, a missionary from India told of going into the interior of India, where he was taken sick, that he had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with him, and believed that it saved his life. This remedy is used successfully in India both as a preventative and a cure for cholera. You may know from this that it can be depended upon for the milder forms of bowel complaint that occur in this country. Obtainable everywhere.—Adv't.
