Lands Biggest Cat- fish of the Season

Dad Baker Hangs and Lands
37 Pounder. Is Now In The City Fountain

W. K. Wylie, Dad Baker and Jerry Ashworth were fishing this week about Riverton, and they must have really been fishing at that. Dad swung a thirty-seven and a half pound cat, while Wylie and Ashworth were seining for minnows, and calling for help had no response from his colleagues, they thinking it was only a cow bellowing. Dad thinks they were probably right for he had all he could handle without doing much along the yelling line.

Mr. Baker remarked to the editor that just as he was making the effort of his life the last time for help to get the big fish out of the water the cat made another effort to release himself and pulled the hollow out of him in a way that might have sounded like a cow bellowing.

This is probably the largest fish yet brought to Pecos this season and can now be seen in the fountain swimming placidly and peacefully around. Besides this big fellow they got several other of a very good size, making a total weight of something like eighty pounds.

J. Brinker of Santa Fe Railway Is Promoted.

Announcement is made that J. Brinker has been appointed Express and Mail Traffic Manager, with office in the Railway Exchange in Chicago. In other words he has been placed in charge of matters which pertain to express and mail traffic. Heretofore the Santa Fe Railway gave no attention to the details of the traffic carried over its lines by the express company and the post office department. Hereafter the character of the mail and express traffic will receive close attention.

For more than seven years Mr. Brinker was the general freight and passenger agent of the Amarillo district, for the Santa Fe Railway. During this period this territory developed very remarkably and Mr. Brinker took an active part in bringing about this development. More than a year ago Mr. Brinker was transferred to Chicago to investigate the mail and express traffic carried by the road. As a result a new department has been established with Mr. Brinker in full charge.

Complimentary Dance.

The Pecos young people who "trip the light fantastic toe," gave a delightful dance at the court house Tuesday evening, complimentary to the Barstow young people. Beautiful music was furnished by Messrs. Jack Hubbs and Ben Briscoe. Delicious ice cold punch was served throughout the evening and after the last number was tripped off all gathered on the beautiful grass-covered lawn of Mrs. G. T. Looby and enjoyed a picnic supper which consisted of all manner of good things to eat. After supper the Barstow crowd wended their way homeward, declaring the Pecos people to be most charming entertainers.

The honorees were Misses Zoda Briggs, Marian Moore, Jessie Dresser and Messrs. Earl Stall, Geo. Briggs, Ray Neeley, Putnam Barstow, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Jensen.

The hosts and hostesses were Messrs. Henry Floyd, Burette Hefner, David Tudor, Joe Glover, Milton Wadley, Chas. Parker, Cicero Dyer, Ren Camps, and Hayden Patten, and Misses Leota Beauchamp, Julia Davis, Maud Christian, Gladys Prewitt, Jane Looby, Dorothy Hyatt, Florence Johnson and Dorothy Somes, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Levy.

Navey Fared Sumptuously On Fourth of July

As all the people of Reeves county who read The Enterprise know, Vernon Hicks, son of R. P. Hicks, is now in the Naval Training Camp at San Francisco, having joined the navy recruits some time back.

He writes that he is becoming more reconciled since he has, in a way, become "weaned" from home. In a letter to his father the other day he enclosed the bill of fare which they had in camp for the 4th of July dinner, and it shows conclusively that they are not starving in his camp for the present: The bill of fare is as follows:

Radishes, Sweet Pickles, Green Onions, Iced Cantaloupes
Cream of Tomato Soup...
CROUTONS
Fricandeau of Lamb, Green Garden Peas, Baked Spiced Ham
Roast Young Chicken, Oyster Dressing
Giblet Gravy, Mashed Potatoes
Asparagus on Buttered Toast
Hearts of Lettuce Salad
French Dressing
Neapolitan Ice Cream
Pumpkin Pie, Apple Pie
Full Cream Cheese, Toasted Crackers.
Marble Cake Oranges Bananas
Mixed Nuts and Raisins
Cigars Coffee

Letter From Pecos Boy in U. S. Army

Ray Harrison Writes Interestingly of Life in the Military Camp at Chicago.

Municipal Pier, 6-29-17.
Dear Bakers:

Your very welcome letter came this a. m. and was very glad to hear from you. Am sorry I did not send you the picture; had only one, but will see if I cannot get another one, and if I have any luck will sure send you one. Am going to have some pictures made of myself and will send you one of them.

I am rather tired today, as they have certainly been putting us through. Was out on a long drill this a. m. and this afternoon had one hour's practice in pitching and putting up tent shelters—a small place for two soldiers to sleep, and it is real small, too. After that went out to the drill grounds and had review; they certainly kept us busy, too. Have guard mount and retreat yet today and then nothing to do until tomorrow. And tomorrow a. m. we have pay roll muster, and all go out on regimental parade; that means that everyone will be plenty tired upon their return. Had the same thing last Monday. It is all very interesting but real hard work. It is very likely that we will get away from here Monday or Tuesday, and understand we will sail right away. Of course this isn't authentic, but merely talk around camp. In fact, the Major says we will go then. Am getting anxious to get started, this laying around Chicago is getting tiresome—money doesn't last long enough. I don't see any difference in prices of things here and in that country, and eating is some cheaper.

You have to dig up for everything else you get. A person can enjoy himself a while on the pier here, but that gets old pretty quick. There will be a big blow-out here tonight, will be probably six or seven thousand people out and the pleasure steamers will do a big business. There were ten big liners anchored here this a. m., there are three now. They are all pleasure boats and look like palaces, and they really are. Saw an interesting sight here a while ago; there was a big red racer boat out near the pier trying out; she certainly could get through the water, was making at least 50 miles per hour, and there was a line of foam back of her for 300 yards. Saw a big hydro-airplane out near here yesterday. She was some machine, too. I saw her light on the water and skim along for a couple of miles. A person can see some interesting sights here. For instance, the fair bathers in the latest modes of fashion. Some suits they are, too. It wouldn't do for a married man to be here, he might forget his wife—so many do around here.

Well, I must close and go to retreat. Will write you a long letter soon. You can get my address from mother.

Love to all,
RAY HARRISON.

Serial Numbers Given Those Who Registered

Full List With Official Serial Number of Each Man Appear in This Issue

Those who registered under the draft system for the U. S. army are again printed in The Enterprise this week with their serial number attached. Some have been led to believe that the number on the card is the same as the serial number from which the draft will be made, but such is not the case. Your card may be number one and your serial number 200, or any other number. Better save this paper and watch your number.

Mrs. Scharff Arrested Here Second Time.

Mrs. Minnie Scharff, who is said to be wanted in two states escaped from officers by climbing through the transom of a Terminal hotel room 2 months ago. Friday morning she literally walked into the arms of Detective LeGett at the Santa Fe station.

"Good morning," smilingly spoke the officer. Haughty disdain was her answer. He stepped closed and proffered his hand. Finally she accepted it. "I want you to come with me Mrs. Scharff," LeGett said.

"Why, I'd go any place with you," the woman answered, and the pair left for the county attorney's office.

Complaints and indictments charging swindling are pending against her at Fort Worth, Waxahachie, Abilene, Pecos, Canyon City, Amarillo and I. Hunta, Colo. A perjury case against her in Buena Vista, Colo., requires her appearance there on July 9.

She was then taken to the police station where she was photographed and searched by the police matron.

Mrs. Scharff told LeGett and Parker that she has spent most of the time since her flight in Colorado. She recently went to Oklahoma City and was enroute to Houston when arrested. She stated that she was going there to confront a Houston man who is said to have been involved in the alleged transactions of the Commonwealth Trust Company. She stated that it was this man who had sold her the certificates of deposit which she disposed of. He also sold them to other operators, she said.

"He double-crossed me and I am going to get him," she said.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

The following letter was received this week by county clerk, S. C. Vaughan, from the Land Commissioner, which is of interest to owners of school lands. It follows:

Please make this known to your banks, land owners and other interested parties.

"Joan the Woman" To be Shown in Pecos

Historical Accuracy Feature of Motion Picture. Geraldine Farrar as "Joan"

The motion picture has opened up an entirely new and unlimited field for the presentation of great historical events in the form of most stirring dramas, is the opinion of those who were acquainted with the preparatory work on "Joan the Woman," in which Geraldine Farrar appears as the star and which was produced by Cecil B. DeMille. It will be shown at the Music Hall Pecos, Texas on July 20 and 21.

There is a vast difference between motion picture productions, the stories of which have modern and fairly modern backgrounds, and a great cinema story of the early 15th century. Even before Miss Farrar went to California three months ago to devote her entire summer exclusively to a characterization of Joan of Arc, the most careful preparations had been made to abide by the best authorities, not only in the telling of the story, but in the customs, manners, dress and details of the period.

According to the late Mark Twain, whose book about Joan of Arc is one of the finest things he ever wrote, the life of the Maid of Orleans is very unique in human history as having been recorded under sworn testimony. During the great trial when Joan of Arc was called upon to prove she was not a heretic, every incident and detail of her life was revealed. These records are preserved to the present day.

When Miss Farrar was in France as a student of the operatic stage, she became an enthusiastic disciple of Joan of Arc. In order to gratify this enthusiasm she traveled over the entire section of France sacred to the French people as being the soil on which Joan of Arc achieved triumphs. During the taking of the picture, in which she plays the title role, Miss Farrar was invaluable in supplying details of historic accuracy.

The cast which appears in support of Miss Farrar includes Wallace Reid, Theodore Roberts, Hobart Bosworth, Raymond Hatton, Tully Marshall, James Neill, Majorie Daw, Lillian Leighton, Hugh Koch, Billy Elmer, Charles Clary, and many others.

The politician who is long-headed enough to play safe with the man in overalls or the banker who gets the patronage of the wage-earner, is the one who stands longest. Why should it not be true of newspapers also? Let the people be convinced that their home paper is run as a mouthpiece for the entire population and that it can at all times be depended upon to look out that their rights are not infringed upon, and they will support it loyally, while the upper classes must force support it or fail of having their representation before the element from which they draw their sustenance.—Odessa Herald.

OFF WITH FINGERS

Tells How to Loosen a Tender
 Corn or Callous So it Lifts
 Out Without Pain.

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called freezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn or callous the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn or callous, root and all, lifts off with the fingers.

Freezone dries the moment it is applied, and simply shrivels the corn or callous without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but will positively rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or hardened callous. If your druggist hasn't any freezone he can get it at any wholesale drug house for you.—Advt.

One Example of Economic Waste.

Dallas, Tex., July 6th, President Wilson in his proclamation of April 15th, warned the nation that the country's food supplies are running dangerously low, and impressive upon our minds the imperative necessity for the conservation of foods of all kinds. It is said the government is now considering the advisability of inaugurating meatless days on account of the scarcity of meat. Under such conditions, it is not too much to say that the wastage of food is, to say the least, unpatriotic.

During the fiscal year, ended June 30th, 1917, the Texas & Pacific Railway killed on its right of way 1027 cattle, 552 hogs and sheep, and 165 horses and mules. A total loss and absolute waste.

These are times for thrift and service. We must feed and supply not only our own people, but millions of our allies in Europe. Estimating the average weight in cattle killed at 700 pounds each, hogs and sheep at 100 pounds each, we have the startling total of 774-100 lbs.—sufficient to feed an army of 50,000 men twenty days, 100,000 men ten days. Many of the cattle were milch cows, the loss of which entailed a corresponding loss of milk and butter. This frightful and preventable waste is a National reproach and unpardonable extravagance.

Our armies are clamoring for horses and mules. Thousands and hundreds of thousands are required. In order to raise more food, we need more horses and mules.

We have done everything we can to prevent killing this stock, spent large sums in the building and repairing of fences and tried to educate our employes (and we think have succeeded) to do their utmost at all times and under all circumstances to prevent the killing of stock. Nevertheless the killing and wastage continues.

The only thing that can and will stop it is the full and hearty co-operation of the public, and the owners of stock. Much of the stock is killed inside station limits where railroads cannot build fences. Hundreds of head are killed because gates are negligently left open.

The simple and practical way to eliminate this appalling waste is for the citizens of the various towns to bring about the passage of laws prohibiting live stock running at large. Farmers should co-operate with the railroad companies in keeping gates closed. One who under present conditions will leave a gate open, exposing live stock to the danger of being killed by trains is guilty of an unpatriotic act.

Every man, woman and child living along the Texas & Pacific Railway, employee or non-employee alike, is appealed to, to co-operate with the Railroad Company in wiping out this wastage. Every person who fails to do his part in the saving of a single animal is guilty of helping the country's enemies to reduce food supplies, and reducing the food supplies is the thing relied upon to ultimately defeat us in this war.

You can show your thrift and patriotism in no more convincing way than by combating the National tendency to just squander the country's wonderful resources.

Summer Feed Crops.

Feed crops are just as important as food crops in this section. Every acre possible therefore, should be planted in feed crops after the winter grains are harvested. The late planted feed crops may not have time to mature, yet they will make hay or help to fill the silo and thereby be a means of producing more beef, mutton, pork or butter.

Whatever is planted this late in the season, be it milo, sorghum, or other forage, must be of short season varieties. The county agent will be glad to advise in the matter. The farmer must decide for himself whether moisture conditions are satisfactory for planting.

In localities it is worth while to plant such root crops as the stock beets, red beets, turnips, rutabagoes, and others as late as in August if the moisture conditions are good.

These root crops are not affected by the ordinary late fall and in mild winters will grow throughout the season.

Any way feed crops are so important in this country, so well adapted to live stock that every possible acre should be made to produce feed. It is also time to decide to build or dig a silo to save the feed crops that are planted. The Santa Fe Railway has issued a practical bulletin on the silo. H. M. Bainer, Topeka, Kansas, or L. L. Johnson, Amarillo, Texas, will be glad to send you a copy.

The demand for beef, mutton, pork and butter will continue strong. The feed crops and the silo will be useful in producing these more cheaply and efficiently and add to the farmers' bank accounts.

General Scott, in praise of the Russian army, said: "Every man was in his place and there was not the slightest sign of insubordination or reluctance among the men. Each officer and soldier did eagerly and unhesitatingly what he was told. The spirit of the men themselves was in favor of an advance."

Denial is made by I. W. W. leaders that German influence is behind the movement. Matters little whether or not German influence is behind the movement, since Germany is the sole beneficiary of every move made thus far by these agitators. Any class of people who would seek to disturb the industrial conditions of the country at a time like this, should be severely dealt with.

Gen. Hugh L. Scott, chief of the general staff of the United States Army, witnessed a battle on June 30th, between the Russians and Austrians, in which the former won a decisive victory and captured 7,000 prisoners. General Scott said the Austrians came on a run to surrender to the Russians. He also stated that the precision and exquisite working of the Russian machinery was a marvel to him.

The Russians have come back and are driving the Germans and Austrians before them in Galicia. In one battle recently the Russians captured several villages, 7,000 prisoners, and 48 guns, including twelve of large size, and many machine guns. Germany has not considered Russia as a strong factor in the war for a year, but there is now likely to be a change of opinion in Berlin if the Russians keep up their present movements on the eastern front.

The I. W. W.'s have caused the copper mines in Arizona to shut down, and treason against the government by the leaders may be charged. If a lot of flannel mouth, red flaggers, who won't work think this government will stand for any foolishness during the war they will have another think coming when some of the rantankerous leaders face a firing squad. Any man or set of men or women that seeks to embarrass the government during the war are traitors.—Baird Star.

On July 11, 1864, Major Thomas H. Bomar of Pecos was a member of the advance guard of Gen. Jubal A. Early's division of the Confederate Army which marched onto Washington City and succeeded in getting between the president's summer home and the capital, and could have captured the city, but after investigating the surroundings, Gen. Early decided that his force was not strong enough to hold the city and ordered a retreat. Major Bomar says that all the soldiers that were on the sick list were ordered to remain behind when the advance was made on Washington, he being one of the number ordered to report to the surgeon, but he did not appear at the hospital and went with the expedition, which had to wade the Potomac River twice in making the sortie.

While making no claims to being a war expert we do read some of the news that the Censor passes and allows to reach the United States. It seems to us that President Wilson was correct in saying the war has begun to go against Germany. There is not a great break in the German machine, of course but there are signs of losing. The Kaiser will hold out many months, perhaps two years—long enough to cause Uncle Sam to be compelled to place two or three millions of men on the firing line—but American strength is being felt much at this time by Germany. The Kaiser makes the boast that the war will be won before we get to fighting. He knows better, but hopes that some turn will come to save his government. The cost of victory will be great. Uncle Sam is the key to the situation and has assumed a gigantic task. No man will be allowed to shirk, but victory will finally come.—Abilene Reporter.

The new West Texas A. & M. College will be a cavalry institution of the first-class. Good! The young men of West Texas know how to ride, and West Texas is the empire of the bronco and the saddle. The art of riding should be kept alive, and a cavalry institution of the first class is the thing to do it.

If the United States, as a nation, takes advantage of present opportunities, if the men in public life, in the majority, prove capable of taking statesmanlike measures, there is no reason why, in time, we cannot be three times as prosperous as we have ever been before. American securities are the best in the world. There is only one danger which can seriously undermine the values. That is demagogic legislation.—James J. Hill.

When Peace Will Be Possible.

Events during recent weeks give greater encouragement for peace in the near future. The Russian people are struggling with revolution, but they apparently have re-entered the war with a determination to do their part for the safety and security of the world. Greece is reported as having entered upon the side of humanity, with Spain, Brazil, Argentina and even Mexico showing greater interest in the allied cause.

But the people of the United States must give their hearty support to President Wilson and the army and navy. Suffering Europe expects us to help. In order that our assistance may be promptly given, every individual in this country must do his duty. It will require an united country to bring relief to the world and the closer cooperation among the people the sooner will there be peace and good will.—Farm and Ranch.

High Mortality Among Fowls.

There is always much loss on farms every year in the mortality of young fowls. This year when prices are high and when farmers are anxious to raise as large per cent of the fowls hatched off as possible it will be especially desirable to take pains with them, with a view of saving as many as possible. It is a very easy matter for the farmer and his wife to get so busy with pressing duties in farming and keeping the home in order that the fowls are neglected. This happens so often that most of us may acknowledge with regret that it is a part of our own experience.

Since the cost of provisions for the home has increased the poultry products will be worth more than ever. The cost of producing fowls and eggs has also increased and every fowl lost means wasted energy and loss of profit. The summer months are rather trying on fowls. It will pay, this year, to take greater pains than ever to protect the fowls from the hot sun and also from their enemies among diseases and parasites. To do this, eternal vigilance will be the price of success. But it will be worth the effort.—Farm and Ranch.

On last Sunday Ed Stuckler treated about thirty-five of his friends to a regular old-fashioned barbecue at their camp up the river. He had killed and barbecued the fatted calf and the ladies cooked pies and cakes. Besides this they had pickles, black Java, iced tea, and all things else Ed could think of and find in the local markets. They had plenty and to spare as is evidenced by the fact that many of his guests remained there for supper in order to "fill up" and clean up what was left from the dinner repeat. Ed is a "good Indian" and knows how to make friends of the general public—through the stomach—and that will catch the most of us.

happened today in the gap I thought you ought to know it now. Gale and Duke quarreled yesterday over the way things turned out; they were pretty bitter. This afternoon Gale took it up again with his uncle, and it ended in Duke's driving him clean out of the gap. "Where has he gone?" "Nobody knows yet. Ed Wickwire told me once that your father was shot from ambush a good many years ago. It was north of Medicine Bend, on a ranch near the Peace river; that you never found out who killed him, and that one reason why you came up into this country was to keep an eye out for a clue."

Pecos Ice Cream Company

Pecos, Texas, July 12, 1917.

Dear Sir:--

On account of the high price of all raw materials, we are forced to again raise the price on ice cream. This move is inevitable if we wish to remain in business. We realize the fact that this move will probably lose us some customers, and, though we regret this phase very much, we feel sure that they appreciate our position, and would not want us to continue the business at the scant margin of profit accruing.

It was our aim to take advantage of the low price of feed in the middle of the summer and hold to our former prices on cream, but everything has continued to go higher. Take hay, for instance: Last summer we were able to get it per ton from $12 to $16; this year hay is from $23 to $30. All other things necessary in the business are proportionately high. By this, you will see that an adherence to the old prices would be a losing proposition.

Three propositions are left us: They are to go up on the price, go down on the grade, or go out of business. We have decided on the first, as many of our customers often remarked that they would rather have a small portion of cream rich and luscious, as we make, than much of an inferior grade.

We trust that you realize our position in this matter, and hope that we may have your continued patronage in the future.

On and after the 16th day of July, 1917, our price will be Fifteen Cents per gallon on all classes and grades of cream over our former prices.

Yours very truly,

JIM PAYNE, Manager

"What about it?" asked De Spain, his tone hardening.

"I was riding home one night about a month ago from Calabasas with Sassoon. He'd been drinking. I let him do the talking. He began cussing you out, and talked pretty hard about what you'd done, and what he'd done, and what he was going to do— Nothing, it seemed, would hurry the story. "Finally, Sassoon says: 'That hound don't know yet who got his dad. It was Duke Morgan; that's who got him. I was with Duke when he turned the trick. We rode down to De Spain's ranch one night to look up a rustler.' That," concluded Pardaloe, "was all Sassoon would say."

He stopped. He seemed to wait. There was no word of answer, none of comment from the man sitting near him. But, for one, at least, who heard the passionless, monotonous recital of a murder of the long ago, there followed a silence as relentless as fate, a silence shrouded in the mystery of the darkness and striking despair into two hearts—a silence more fearful than any word.

Pardaloe shuffled his feet. He coughed, but he evoked no response. "I thought you was entitled to know," he said finally. "Now that Sassoon will never talk any more."

De Spain moistened his lips. When he spoke his voice was cracked and harsh, as if with what he had heard he had suddenly grown old.

"You are right, Pardaloe. I thank you. I—when I—in the morning, Pardaloe, for the present, go back to the gap. I will talk with Wickwire—tomorrow."

"Good night, Mr. de Spain."

"Good night, Pardaloe."

Bending forward, limp, in his chair, supporting his head vacantly on his hands, trying to think and fearing to think, De Spain heard Pardaloe's measured tread on the descending steps, and listened mechanically to the retreating echoes of his footsteps down the shaded street. Minute after minute passed. De Spain made no move. A step so light that it could only have been the step of a delicate girlhood, a step free as the footfall of youth, poised as the tread of womanhood and beauty, came down the stairs. Slight as she was, and silent as he was, she walked straight to him in the darkness, and, sinking between his feet, wound her hands through his two arms. "I heard everything, Henry," she murmured, looking up. An involuntary start of protest was his only response. "I was afraid of a plot against you. I stayed at the head of the stairs. Henry, I told you long ago some dreadful thing would come between us—something not our fault. And now it comes to dash our cup of happiness when it is filling."

She stopped, hoping perhaps he would say some little word, that he would even pat her head, or press her hand, but he sat like one stunned. "If it could have been anything but this!" she pleaded, low and sorrowfully. "Oh, why did you not listen to me before we were engaged! My dear Henry! You who've given me all the happiness I have ever had—that the blood of my own should come against you and yours!" The emotion she struggled with, and fought back with all the strength of her nature, rose in a resistless tide that swept her on, in the face of his ominous silence, to despair. Her breath, no longer controlled, came brokenly, and her voice trembled. "You have been very kind to me, Henry—you've been the only man I've ever known that always, everywhere thought of me first. I told you I didn't deserve it, I wasn't worthy of it—"

His hands slipped silently over her hands. He gathered her close into his arms, and his tears fell on her upturned face.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Hope Forlorn.

There were hours in that night that each had reason long to remember; a night that seemed to bring them, in spite of their devotion, to the end of their dream. They parted late, each trying to soften the blow as it fell on the other, each professing a courage which, in the face of the revelation, neither could clearly feel.

In the morning Jeffries brought down to De Spain, who had spent a sleepless night at the office, a letter from Nan.

De Spain opened it with acute misgivings. Hardly able to believe his eyes, he slowly read:

"Dearest—A wild hope has come to me. Perhaps we don't know the truth of this terrible story as it really is. Suppose should be condemning poor Uncle Duke without having the real facts? Sassoon was a wretch, Henry, if ever one lived—a curse to everyone. What purpose he could serve by repeating this story, which he must have kept very secret till now, I don't know; but there was some reason I must know the whole truth—I feel that I, alone, can get hold of it, and that you would approve what I am doing if you were here with me in this little room where I am writing at daylight to show you my heart."

Long before you get this I shall be speeding toward the gap. I am going to Uncle Duke to get from him the exact truth. Uncle Duke is breaking—has broken—and now that the very worst has come, and we must face it, he will tell me what I ask. Whether I can get him to repeat this to you, to come to you, to throw himself on your pity, my dearest one, I don't know. But it is for this I am going to try, and for this I beg of your love—the love of which I have been so proud—that you will let me stay with him until I at least learn everything and can bring the whole story to you. If I can bring him, I will. And I shall be safe with him—perfectly safe. Gale has been driven away. Pardaloe, I know I can trust, and he will be under the roof with me. Please do not try to come to me. It might ruin everything. Only forgive me, and I shall be back with what I hope for our dear, dear, very, very, soon. Not till then can I bear to look into your eyes. But you a better right than anyone in the world to know the whole truth, cost what it may. Be patient for only a little while with me—"

It was Jeffries who said, afterward, he hoped never again to be the bearer of a letter such as that. Never again he had read and grasped the contents of Nan's note had Jeffries seen the bundle of resource and nerve and sinew, that man called Henry de Spain, go to pieces. For only a little while overbore him.

When he was able to speak he told Jeffries everything. "It is as you said, he said hopefully. 'I was so stunned, so stunned, she must have had—I see it now—that I was unable to get to ride out by daylight. I would have done down on sight, to my dear Henry, but you must pay, Jeffries, for my ability to defend himself against a bunch of holdup men and assassins. Because they can't get me, I'm a gunman—'"

"No, you're not a 'gunman'!" "A gunman and nothing else. That's what everybody, friends and enemies reckon me—a gunman. You put me here to clean out this Calabasas gap, not because of my good looks, but because I've been, so far, a fraction of a second quicker on a trigger than these double-d—d crooks."

Jeffries, from behind his pipe, regarded De Spain's random talk calmly.

"I do feel hard over my father's death," he went on moodily. "Who wouldn't? If God meant me to forget it, why did he put this mark on my face, Jeff? I did talk pretty strong to Nan about it on Music Mountain."

"I did feel, for a long time, I'd like to kill with my own hands the man that murdered my father, Jeff. My mother must have realized that he was, if a man-child, was doomed to a life of bloodshed. I've been trying to think most of the night what she'd want me to do now. I don't know what

"God Pity the Men That Put It Over."

I can do, or can't do, when I set eyes on the old scoundrel. He's got to tell the truth—that's all I say now. If he lies, after what he made my mother suffer, he ought to die like a dog—no matter who he is.

"I don't want to break Nan's heart. What can I do? Hanging him here in Sleepy Cat, if I could do it, wouldn't be as feeling a whole lot. It could see the fellow—" De Spain's hands, spread before him on the table, drew up tight, "if I could get my fair

The meeting Sunday afternoon was the study of the Bible. We find a good name for the Bible is "The World's One Book." We learned that testament means books. There are 66 books in the Bible. They are testaments—the Old and the New. The New Testament contains 27 books and the Old Testament contains 39 books.

The Bible societies as a whole print one Bible a second both night and day. They are printed in fifteen different languages and 700 dialects.

A Bible can be bought for 17 cents, a testament for 5c, any gospel for 1 cent.

Robert Morrison translated the Bible into Chinese, and Carey translated it into the Indian language.

David Livingston took the Bible into the heart of Africa, and worked so faithfully, and the people loved him so that when he died they kept his heart in Africa, and his body was buried in England.

These and many other interesting facts were learned.

Great Picture Shows Result of Studying Characters of Carmen, Manon Lescaut and Other Tempestuous Figures of Stage

Much has been written of the work of Geraldine Farrar in "Joan the Woman," but nothing written by any of the opera critics, who know her best as she is on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House.

One well-known music critic after seeing the picture, wrote the following article:

"About ten years ago Miss Farrar, just out of her teens was introduced to New York at the Metropolitan Opera House. She returned to her native country a full-fledged and successful singer. Even then she showed a keen dramatic sense, and her impersonations of operatic heroines made a stir as much for their human and real qualities as for their beautiful vocalism.

"When it is known that in order to assure a poignant and convincing passionate portrayal of the title role in Puccini's opera, 'Tosca,' she went to no less an authority on dramatic art than Madame Sarah Bernhardt for instruction and advice, that her thoroughness and ambition may be realized."

Is it any wonder, then, that Miss Farrar was selected as an ideal Joan, when she possesses physical beauty of a rare and lustrous type, dramatic temperament that has been developed by the greatest authorities in the world, and an understanding of gesture and of posing that make her work in the field of opera far removed from that of the usual prima donna?

The Joan of Miss Farrar may really be considered the crystallization of all her dramatic experience. One of her great characters in opera is "Carmen," that wild picturesque and fervid creature that won her way to every heart. In Joan one recognizes the susceptible, zealous, impetuous creature, riding over every impediment even to her own destruction.

Another of the unforgettable achievements of the singer-actress is "Juliet" in the operatized version of the play. And Joan is indebted to her Italian sister for her ardent, earnest and wistful nature.

The kaleidoscopic moods of Manon Lescaut are reflected in the quickly changing condition in Joan's life. From the moment of her first vision in the fields when her simple environment is hastily put aside, until she stands amid the cruel creeping flames, and dense, choking smoke at the stake, she passes through experiences that range from tenderness to tragedy, from innocence to blackest crime, and from religious sincerity to the most dastardly deceit and connivance.

Moreover, Miss Farrar utterly submerges all traces of twentieth century qualities. As Joan she is revealed as a sturdy, tireless, vigorous peasant of the far-removed past. In a measure there is a suggestion of the Valkyrie about the Farrar Joan.

The thickest of the battle attracts her. She rides, undaunted, unafraid, leading her heroic band, a maid warrior, a doer of deeds that thrill the soul, grip the heart and make one looking on want to rise and cheer.

So the argument is justified. "Joan of Arc" is the embodiment of all the characters with which Geraldine Farrar is so delightfully associated. More convincing than our telling it, is the treat in seeing the picture which will be presented at the Music Hall Friday and Saturday, July 20 and 21.

How to Address Mail to Soldiers

Postmaster Receives Instructions Governing Form for Letters to Men in France.

If anyone happens to know the location of the regiment with which a soldier relative or friend is serving, he is instructed by the government not to designate the place on any postcard or letter mailed to the one at the front. Postmaster E. A. Shelton is in receipt of the following instructions regarding the dispatching of mail to soldiers:

"Mail addressed to members of the expeditionary forces should bear the complete designation of the division, regiment, company and organization to which the addressee belongs, as well as the name and address of the sender, and be fully prepaid by postage stamps affixed. Patrons are to be instructed under no circumstances, to attempt to designate on the addressed envelope the location of the unit. The correct manner of addressing such a letter would be as follows:

"John Smith, Jr.,
"X Company, Y Infantry,
"American Expeditionary Forces."

"Postmasters shall forward all mail matter addressed 'American Expeditionary Forces' to New York."

Another order of Postmaster General A. S. Bursleson contains the information that a mail agency has been established at Bordeaux, France, or such other port in France as may be more convenient for conducting the postal service in connection with the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe, to be known as the "United States Mail Agency" in France, and Marcus H. Bunn is appointed as postal agent in charge.—El Paso Times.

A Nation Obeyed Her Command

IN THE WORLD SINCE HISTORY BEGAN.

Joan of Arc

Stands supreme as the greatest woman who ever lived. Ignorant, unlettered, she rose from a peasant's hearth until, within a short span of two years, she stood beside kings.

At seventeen years of age she was commander-in-chief of the French armies. At nineteen she was burned at the stake by the people she loved.

They Did Not Understand

It is a story that has thrilled men, women and children thru the centuries. Now it is told beautifully, wonderfully, by the marvelous moving picture.

Are You One of Them?

There are a great many people who would be benefitted very much by taking Chamberlain's Tablets for a weak or disordered stomach. Are you one of them? Mrs. M. R. Searl of Baldwinville, N. Y., relates her experience in the use of the Tablets: "I had a bad spell with my stomach about six months ago and was troubled for two or three weeks with gas and severe pains in the pit of my stomach. Our druggist advised me to take Chamberlain's Tablets. I took a bottle home and the first dose relieved me wonderfully and I kept on taking them until I was cured." These tablets do not relieve the pain but after the pain has been relieved may prevent its recurrence.—Advt.

The Home Newspaper.

A very essential factor in community building is the local newspaper. It is the real index of community growth and community team work, as the home paper reflects the community spirit. As the community is, so is the local newspaper, because the editor is himself a part of the community, and is influenced by what is about him.

The wide-awake community supports a live newspaper with full advertising columns, with bright editorials, well selected general news, and plenty of well written locals. Every week it records what is of interest, from the coming and going of people to the interesting crop story and what is being builded in the town and country.

Yet the value of the home newspaper to the community is little regarded. The editor gets but little credit, but often criticism that his paper is dry. This the editor takes good-naturedly and goes on his way to record the joys and sorrows, and activities of the community from week to week.

It takes money to conduct even a weekly newspaper and the support given the local newspaper largely determines its ability to serve the community. The well supported newspaper is able to keep in close touch with all the activities of the town and tributary territory. Much of what it prints in regard to progress finds its way into the larger dailies and when once an item finds its way into the large papers it may travel far and is the best advertising the world knows today.

The home newspaper is an important asset in development but to obtain full benefit for development, the newspaper must have the support of the community it serves.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION OF THE NEW YORK WORLD.

IN 1917.

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly. No other Newspaper in the world gives so much at so low a price

The value and need of a newspaper in the household was never greater than at the present time. The great war in Europe now half-way into its third year, and whether peace be at hand or yet be far off, it and the events to follow it are sure to be of absorbing interest to many for months to come.

These are world-shaking affairs, in which the United States, willing or unwilling, is compelled to take a part. No intelligent person can ignore such issues.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and The Pecos Times together for one year for $1.65. The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Sideache, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.—Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days... I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere... I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading its testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did not begin to improve when on the second bottle... I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today.

You Wouldn't Burn Your Bridges Before

You—Yet it Would be as Logical as Buying Tires without making sure that the mileage, the strength, the vitality are really there and have not partly disappeared at some stage of manufacture.

The Miller Tires GEARED-to-the-ROAD

are always good tires because the Miller method of vulcanizing retains all of the natural vegetable wax and oil of the cotton fabric, the backbone of the tire.

Because Miller Vulcanizing is a scientific uniform process in stead of merely educated guessing, every Miller Tire is a good tire and the Miller guarantee is something more than a basis for argument with the adjuster.

Why not profit by this?

Miller Tires are for sale by the Geared-to-the-Road dealers and distributors everywhere.

Miller "Money Saving Accessories"

have saved many expensive tires from premature ruin. Write to day for the "What To Do" Book. It's free. It illustrates and shows the cause of common tire injuries and explains how tires, though badly injured, may be saved at slight expense.
