The tacky party given by the Od Fellows and Sister Rebekahs on last Thursday evening at the Odd Fellows Hall has been pronounced a success. It was a merry party, devoid of all formality, and the sounds that greeted the ear indicated that the members were having the time of their lives, for a tacky party was in full swing with every appointment in keeping.

The hall was artistically decorated; n yellow and black, carrying out the Hallowe'en motif, and in spite! of the tacky setting lent charm to the surroundings.

Miss Hazel Williams and Misses Ruth and Mary Livingston, dressed in phantom costumes greeted the guests at the entrance with trays of chewing gum and baskets of all-day suckers for their refreshment during he evening. A motley array of costumes was noted, andadding to the fun was the manner in which guests acted out the characters they were supposed to represent. Mrs. Larkin and Mr. Bryan DeVelin won the prize in the grand march for the One-half page or more, 20c per tackiest couple, receiving a tacky clown attached to a string.
