Many states are already expending vast sums to eliminate the worst of these crossings and railroads, always facing damage suits as a result of them, are spending millions of dollars to get rid of them wherever possible. Now that the government is to co-operate it will mean a speeding up of the program.

Motorists should remember, however, that these crossings are not going to be wiped out over night. They still exsist, and those of our citizens who are driving in strange territory this spring and summer should bear in mind that fact. Also remember that last year one out of every 9,000 autoists were killed at deadly grade-crossings. That may serve to bring about a greater fear of them, and fear of them is sure to cut down the toll of Oil, Target For Taxgathers.

"Oil is taxed from the time it reaches the surface until it comes out of the exhaust pipe of automitive or stationary engines as expended energy," says D. H. Bancroft, in the El Dorado, Arkansas, News.

"It is taxed with a severance tax, a storage tax, a property tax and a gasoline tax and the machines that use it are levied upon with property tax and license tax, road tax and school tax, state tax and city tax. Wherever there has been a hook to hang a new tax on it has been so decorated, and whenever there weren't hooks enough they have manufactured for the occasion, to meet the need of a new source of revenue."

Over 400 measures affecting the oil industry were introduced in the legislatures of practically very state in the Union, during their recent sessions. Of these only two proposed to reduce the tax on gasoline.

So at midnight they were going to have a dance, and all of them came to the dance.

There was the Queen of Fairles and Fairy Ybab and Fairy Twilight Bell. Old Mr. Giant came and sat at the top of the hill under the pine trees and his feet were way down by the geranium bed.

Old Witty Witch came, and so did the Elves and the Gnomes and the members of the Bogey family and of the Oaf family.

Stanchions Will Prove

Useful in Raising Calf Stanchions for calves not only insure that each animal will get the feed required but it also keeps them from sucking one another's ears after they are through drinking their milk. For these reasons most people who make a practice of raising their calves calf barn.

Calf stanchions may be from 36 to 42 inches in height, and 28 inches in width. A space about 41/2 inches in width is about right for the neck of the average calf. The feed trough should not be too wide, about 14 inches generally proving satisfactory. Stanchions and feed troughs of this kind can be constructed the same as many of the cow stanchions, except that the material will not need to be so heavy.

Calves should never be fed milk in a trough. Some will drink much more rapidly than others and get more thon they should have for best results, while others will not get the amount needed. Separate buckets should be furnished for each calf. After the calves are through with their milk they can be given grain in the trough. If the trough is partitioned it will give better results for the same reason that favors separate pails for the milk.

Temperature Variations

Cause Digestive Ills

The milk which is given to the calf should be the same temperature as when it comes from the cow. Variations in temperature, especially the feeding of cold milk, will very often cause digestive troubles. For the first five or six days a quart of milk three times daily will generally prove sufficient. Then the amount can be gradually increased until the calf is taking two quarts, three times daily. When the calf is about ten days to two weeks old some whole grain can be added to the milk. A handful will be sufficient so as to get the calf started. At this time it is possible to change to two feedings a day. The calves should also have access to hay. Bright clover hay is good, providing there are no symptoms of scours. If scours are noticeable then it is better to give the calves access to wild hay until their bowels are normal. Calves should have all of the pure water that they wish to drink.

Dehorning Calves

When the calf is young and the beginning horn growth is small, the horn button and matrix from which it grows may be removed with a small chisel or strong-bladed knife. Or the hair may be clipped around the button or small horn and the skin around the base of the horn covered with lard or tallow. Then wet the button or horn with water and rub the end of a stick of caustic potash all over the button or horn. In a short time the button or little horn will slough off.

Increase Milk Flow

A lack of plenty of drinking water cuts down the milk flow, as every dairyman knows. Having plenty of good water to drink at all times increases the milk flow and makes the water system a paying proposition from a purely dollar-and-cents standpoint. When there is water under pressure a length of garden hose and a nozzle yield a stream of water which is fine for flushing out stable gutters and washing down cement floors and pavements.

Forgot Year Zero

Whether the year 1930 or the year 1931 A. D. is the two thousandth anniversary of the year 70 B. C. is a subject that has been agitating the British press. The Times says 1930 but one of its correspondents, Doctor Glover by name, maintains that it is

The latter view is based on the theory that, among other errors, historians have mistakenly omitted the time on an A. D. and B. C. basis. The system now is that the morning after December 31 B. C. was January 1 A. D. But astronomers know better and insist on inserting a zero year at this some of the Pacific islands it forms point.-Living Age.

TELLS OF FINDING RUM CACHED IN 1594

Found 310 Years After Being Left in Arctics.

New York.-The tale of nine bottles of rum, cached in the Arctic in 1594 by the Dutch explorer Barents, which finally ended their adventurous career as four ounces, 310 years later, is told by Robert H. Davis in the New York

The story, says Mr. Davis, was told him by Dr. John C. Vaughan, a practicing surgeon in New York city, who in 1903-1905 was physician on the America, of the Ziegler north pole expedition under Anthony Fiala.

Barents, after whom the Barents sea was named, says Davis, cached the rum with his stores and records when his ship was frozen in at Ice Haven, off the coast of Spitzbergen. Barents and four companions perished, while the others of the party were picked up in Lapland.

Liquor Cache la Found. The rum, together with the other stores, remained undisturbed until 1894, when the old Barents camp was visited by the yacht Iris of the Leigh Smith expedition.

"Smith, being an Englishman," says the story, "was a stickler for the unwritten laws that protect one explorer's cache from the hand of another except in extremity. "The temptation to annex the nine bottles was strong indeed, but he issued an order that two bottles, for medicinal purposes only, be taken.

"The Iris then salled to Franz Josef land, where she was nipped in the ice at Cape Flora and went down in a few minutes. The doctor dragged the medicine chest ashore. The next spring the party left everything behind them, got away in a whaleboat and reached England."

Bottles Encased in Ice.

The Ziegler party came to Cape Flora in the summer of 1904, after they had lost their ship at Teplitz bay. The following spring when the ice melted they found a few torn pages of a diary kept by the Iris' doctor. These told of the finding of Barents' rum.

Pierre le Roya, a seaman, and a friend determined to find the ancient rum. Finally, when hope was about abandoned, the chest was found, a solid cake of ice. This was melted. Most of the vials had burst, but one

"The four ounces were equally divided," says the story; "Pierre le Roya and his friend drank it on the spot." And the "friend," says Mr. Davis, was Doctor Vaughan, who vouches for the tale and the quality of the rum.

Nonsinking Torpedo Is

Developed by Navy Washington.-Development of a new torpedo, which will float high and vertically if it fails to hit its target, is revealed in the annual report of the chief of naval ordinance. By means of this device, termed an airblowing head, it is hoped that many spent torpedoes can be recovered. A new periscope target has been invented by the bureau during the year which it is expected, will greatly increase the navy's efficiency in submarine warfare. This target is released from a submerged position, rises slowly to the surface of the water, where it remains for a short time before sinking again.

Experiments have also been carried out for improvement of powders, high explosives, aircraft bombs, and smokeproducing devices, with a view to replacing antiquated paraphernalia in use in the navy.

Russia to Send Moslems

on Pilgrimage to Mecca Odessa.-Although the soviet government is avowedly atheistic, the authorities have decided to facilitate pilgrimages of devout Mussulman residents of Russia to Mecca, Jeddah and other holy places. The move is intended frankly as a measure to win the favor of this section of the population, which numbers about 15,000,-000. The first group of pilgrims will sail early in March, and provision has been made to transport 1,000 monthly.

Not a Mechanical Ailment Recently, a rather nervous young man entered a downtown typewriter establishment. When asked by the office girl what he desired, he replied, "There's something wrong with my typewriter, and I wish you would send some one over to fix it." The girl called the service manager who inquired as to what the trouble might be so the repair man would have an idea as to what to look for.

With an earnest look on his face, the young man replied, "I am not sure, sir, but it doesn't seem to spell right.'

BANKERS HELPING

Three banks in South Carolina have inaugurated a plan to provide free of rent for two years a centrally located place to be used by the farmers of Greenville and neighboring counties for the purpose of establishing a creamery, a canning factory and a farm woman's club. The idea is to get the farmers to raise livestock, to raise their own food and feed and to have something extra to sell. The canning factory is intended to utilize the surplus garden and fruit products, and he club rooms for getting the support and co-operation of the farm women.

Georgia bankers have made great strides in furthering a diversified farming program the past year. They induced farmers to sow fifty-five carloads of vetch seed, furnished local prizes in eighty counties for the corn contest, the state prize of $1,000 being of Labor.

fernished by a bank in Atlanta. banker-farmer alfalfa demonstration was held at the college and attended by 250 bankers and farmers. Alfalfa acreage has increased from 1,800 to 5,000, the demonstration being credited with 50 per cent of this increase. This year the state has produced 12.-000,000 more bushels of corn than last year, has sold 50 cars of truck, $2,000. 000 worth of pecans, and has produced 150,000,000 pounds of meat and enough corn and hay for its own use.

Now two thousand FRIGIDAIRES a day!

Two thousand Frigidaires a day are now required to supply the enormous demand—a demand that has already placed more Frigidaires in use than all other electric refrigerators combined.

Two thousand more Frigidaires to provide carefree economical refrigeration for homes and stores—to bring two thousand more users of refrigeration a new independence of outside ice supply.

The amazing growth in popularity of Frigidaire is conclusive proof that it is filling a real need-a need for better, more economical food preservation. Modern homes and stores find that Frigidaire pays for itself many times over in better refrigeration at low costs.

If you are not among the thousands of Frigidaire users, visit our salesroom and see Frigidaire demonstrated. Ask about prices, terms, and operating costs.
