

AGRICULTURAL NEWS
FROM THE CAPITAL.

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 10.—Vital statistics on glass milk bottles brought to Mrs. American Housewives' front stoop every morning is a new "stunt" of investigation by the Department of Agriculture. Milk bottles are short-lived, according to the results of the inquiry. Figures furnished by fifty dairymen indicate that the "life" of a milk bottle is from 6 to 50 trips. The average is only 22½ trips.

"If these figures represent the average condition," the Department states, "the average dairyman would have to obtain a new supply of bottles every 22½ days. If he delivered 10,000 bottles daily and they cost him 3½ cents each, his daily expense for bottles would be around $15—over $5,000 a year." Query—What would become of the profits in the crash of glass?

"These bottles are not lost or broken," the Federal investigators reported. "Many of them are merely strayed." The hunt for the lost, stolen or strayed bottles is one of the busiest experiences of modern high-power dairying, according to the conclusions of the Department.

"Some of the bottles get into the hands of other dealers," the official statement of the Department naively opined. "Some are dumped into ash barrels by persons careless or ignorant of their value. One million five hundred thousand bottles were rescued from city dumps during three years by the milk dealers clearing house of one city."

Many bottle "clearing houses" have done a great deal to reduce the losses in bottles. The clearing house helps the dealer to recover his own bottles. Ashmen and others are paid one-fourth to one-half a cent for each bottle returned.

The devastating career of the "gypsy" and "brown-tail" moths are the subject of an interesting investigation recently completed by Dr. L. O. Howard, of the National Geographic Society. That the entrance of the gypsy moth into this country is the only case on record where a pest was deliberately imported was stated by Dr. Howard. According to his information, the gypsy moth was brought to this country for experimental purposes by a French professor of astronomy in a New England university.

The brown-tail moth came to this country in the ordinary course of commerce. From 1892 to 1900 both species were confined to Massachusetts, where a bitter fight was waged against them by the state. For five years thereafter they were apparently unnoted except by private individuals. Since 1905, however, Massachusetts has been joined in an anti-moth campaign of extermination by boards of New Hampshire, Maine, Rhode Island and Connecticut, into which states the moths migrated.

To-day the United States Government is aiding in the campaign. Removal of trees favored by the moths is the drastic "cure" being applied in many localities. The brown-tail moth is principally obnoxious because of its presence in the New England summer resorts. The moths cause what is known as "brown-tail rash." The hairs of the brown-tail caterpillar are finely barbed and bristle. Where they come in contact with human skin they enter the pores, break off, and cause severe irritation. Parasites which attack the moths infested have been imported from South and Central America in the attack.

Instructions to farmers on how to select good crimson clover seed are available to-day as a result of endeavors of the Department of Agriculture. The official advice is to select only seed which is free from any brownish color, although old seed shows varying degrees of brown, according to age and storage conditions. The brownish tinge is an indication of poor germination—the darker the color the poorer the germination. Seeds which show a light brown hue should be tested before planting, and no brown seed should be used at all unless it shows well in germinating tests.

Clover seed loses its vitality rapidly, and imported seed is not regarded highly by the Department, because of its age before getting into agricultural channels here. Native seed should be secured whenever possible, the Department experts declare. Since November 1, 1913, three million three hundred and twenty-nine thousand pounds of crimson clover seed have been imported, mostly from France and Austria, where the harvest is the same as in this country. That the war will cut off this source of foreign supply is believed by Department heads, but is not expected to cause any seed shortage.

ILLINOIS PRIMARIES
ARE GOING ON TO-DAY.

By United Press.
CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 9.—Roger C. Sullivan's fight for the Democratic Senatorial nomination overshadowed every other element in the State-wide primaries when Illinois voters went to the polls to-day. Other parties were to nominate their Senatorial candidates, Congressional nominees and nominees for several state and for legislative offices were to be picked, but the fight within the Democratic ranks was of National interest.

Backed by a majority of the state organization and 18 of the 28 Presidential electors that voted for Woodrow Wilson, Sullivan conducted a strenuous speaking campaign, that reached into nearly every county of the state. Lawrence B. Stringer, present Congressman-at-Large from Illinois, and Sullivan's principal opponent for the nomination, has the endorsement of Secretary of State Bryan, Governor Dunne, Senator Lewis, Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, and Senator Owens, of Oklahoma, who spoke against Sullivan early in the spring. Despite these odds, the former National Committeeman to-day confidently predicted his nomination. Neither Secretary of State Harry Woods, Lieutenant-Governor Barrett O'Hara, nor James Traynor, the other three Democrats who want the toga, are conceded a chance by the Sullivan and Stringer Democrats.

The big suffrage vote that played such an important part in the spring municipal and local option elections will not be felt in any of the important contests to-day. Women obtained "half-rights" in Illinois by legislative enactment, but while they may vote for Presidential electors and for municipal officers, they have not yet achieved the privilege of voting for offices created under the State constitution.

The Senatorial fight in the Republican primaries to-day was very tame, and Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman was generally conceded the nomination to succeed himself over William E. Mason, former Senator, who has not conducted an active campaign. Raymond Robins, the Progressive candidate, is unopposed. The Progressive interest to-day lay largely in the Democratic primaries, because of the prevailing opinion that the nomination of Sullivan will throw the support of many Progressive Democrats to the Bull Moose candidate in November.

A whole army of candidates are pursuing the nominations for State, Congressional and state legislative offices. Twenty Democrats, for example, have filed for state treasurer, and nearly that number for clerk of the Supreme Court. For state superintendent of public instruction, the only other state executive office to be filled, each of the three leading parties has a woman candidate.

The state will not have to seek new timber for the National House of Representatives. More present and former Congressmen are in to-day's fight for nomination than there are seats to fill. With the exception of George E. Gorman, of the Third District, and Stephen A. Hoxworth, of the Fifteenth District, both Democrats, every present member of the Illinois delegation is striving to come back.

In the Eighteenth District "Uncle Joe" Cannon's efforts to win the Republican nomination and eventually oust Congressman O'Hair, Democrat, from his seat was opposed by Elmer B. Cooley, also of Danville, who wants the chance at O'Hair's scalp, in the Fourth District, in Chicago. James T. McDermott, who resigned his seat under fire after the Mulhall investigation, is seeking "vindication" by contending again for the Democratic nomination against the flock of ambitious stockyards Democrats. Representative James R. Mann, Republican floor leader in the House, has no opposition for the Republican nomination in the Second District, but will have a stiff fight in November.

In the Nineteenth District, William B. McKinley, Taft leader and former Congressman, is the sole aspirant for the Republican nomination to oppose Congressman Borchers, Democrat, in the November elections.

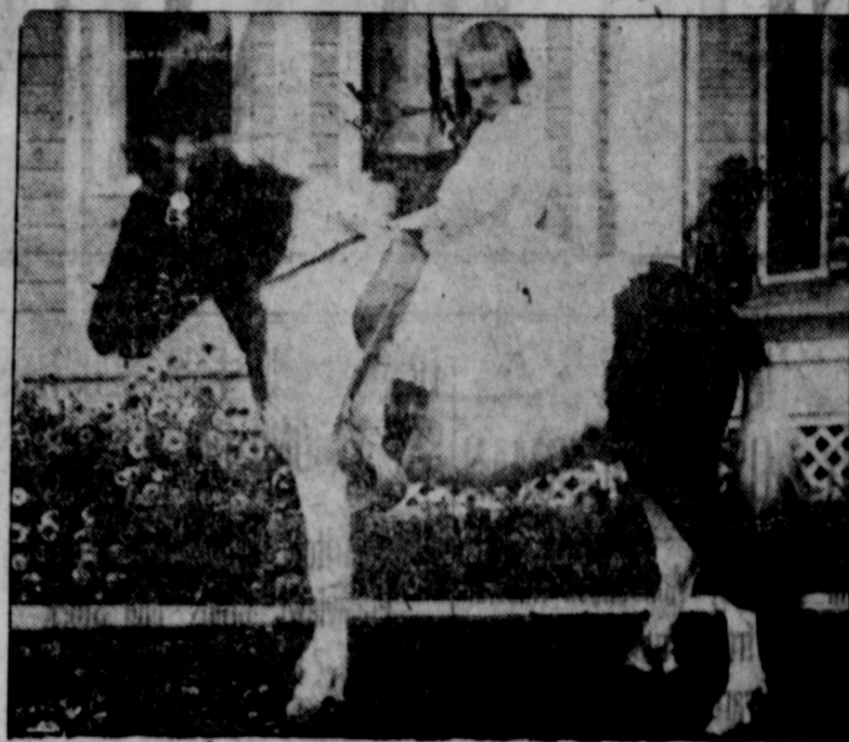

Democratic, Republican, Progressive and Socialist parties all have candidates in every district in the State. This keen competition for nomination is also carried into the scrap for legislative offices and for many of the minor places to be filled in city and county tickets.

Short Human Interest Stories of the Great European War

By United Press

THE HAGUE, Sept. 1.—(By mail to New York.)—Human nature prevailed even in the stress of excitement, amidst the outbursts of patriotism and the preparation for fighting when war was declared in Berlin. The story is told here to-day of a druggist with a store near Alexanderplatz who had compounded a lotion to produce "artificial sunburn." Sunburn is fashionable in Berlin, and before the mobilization orders were issued posters advertising the Artificial Sunburn were pasted on pillars in the west end. When the white proclamation of martial law were pasted up, the sunburn advertisements were covered, along with many others.

The druggist was overcome with grief. Claiming that he bore an important message, he gained admission to General von Kessel's office. Falling upon his knees, he begged the general that the few remaining sunburn posters be spared.

On the Sunday following mobilization there were 2,000 "Need Marriages," or hasty weddings of officers and soldiers which may be solemnized without bans. The Kaiser's son Prince Oscar was married to Countess Ina von Bassewitz on mobilization day. Prince Adelbert, his naval brother, and Princess Adelheid of Saxe-Meiningen were married under similar circumstances.

Included among the bridegrooms of the Sunday following mobilization were a Moltke, a Bulow, a Blucher, a Bismark, a Delbruck and other names famous in history. One bride, in the Toltow Trinity Church, fell dead as the wedding ring was being placed upon her finger. The bridegroom was due to report to his command within fifteen minutes, and could only walk from the church and hasten to the barracks.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—(By mail to New York.)—Typical of the spirit in which the native rulers of India offered military aid to Great Britain was the urgent telegrams dispatched to the Viceroy by the fiery Rajah of Rewa, which has been reported here. The message reads:

"What orders from His Majesty for me and my troops?"

LONDON, Sept. 1.—(By mail to New York.)—"My father was a Pole, my mother was a Dane. I was born in Germany, but have lived in England for thirty years. Am I liable?" This was the porer put to a South London magistrate by a man who was making inquiries respecting his liability for army service under the Aliens' Restriction order.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Englishmen are wondering whether Kaiser Wilhelm is wearing the famous Hohenzollern luck stone. It is said that upon the accession of Frederick the Great he found among the possessions of his father a box containing a ring set with a peculiar black stone. A note written by Frederick stated that the ring had been given him by his father with the injunction that the Hohenzollerns would prosper so long as it remained in the family.

The ring was stolen from Frederick William II by his mistress, Countess Lichtenau; hence, it is declared, the disasters of the Napoleonic wars. In 1813, the year of Prussian liberation, the ring was restored. The biographer of William I declared he saw the ring on the monarch's hand during the Franco-Prussian War of 1870.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Imprisoned for two years for his connection with the famous "Don't Shoot" circular distributed among British soldiers who were on strike duty, George Neeson, a Syndicalist, was one of the first to be accepted for service with the expeditionary army in Belgium.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—All Boy Scouts on active semi-military service have been excused from school attendance during the war.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—The "fog motif" is a strong favorite with English editorial writers. Here are the opening sentences of the "leaders" in three London morning papers:

"To-day's news does not lift the fog over Belgium."

"The war still goes on in the dark."

"The latest moves of the war are grounded in the mist of secrecy."

PETROGRAD, Sept. 9.—Emulating the deeds of the Fourteenth Century during the Tartar invasion, M. Bulatovitch, a former guard officer and more recently head of the Mont Athos Monastery, applied for a commission while at the same time retaining his monkhood. According to the ancient Russian custom, he will head the troops in a uniform covered with a cowl, and will challenge his opponents to single combat.

EARNING A HUNDRED THOUSAND.

There are many men who have annual incomes over one hundred thousand dollars. Many capitalists realize money far in excess of that amount from investments of capital. But there are few men whose salaries for personal services reach the one-hundred-thousand mark.

In the big business of America competition is keen, and men who have given their lives to the study of the tedious problems of production and distribution of special products, and who can accurately interpret the pulse of trade, are greatly in demand, and no price limit is fixed if only the right man is secured.

At first thought, a salary of one hundred thousand dollars to one man seems exorbitant, when you consider that the per capita wealth of inhabitants of the country is $1,310.11 and the per capita earnings less than fifty per cent of that amount. But when considered on a basis of the earning capacity, these salaries are just and equitable, really economical to the Nation.

As an example, Woods, the American wool manufacturer, stands out prominently. Forty years ago there were a number of woolen mills operating in the New England States and nearly all of them were in a bankrupt condition. European wars had played havoc with financial conditions. Woods started in as a textile worker and clerk. He began to study costs of production and figured it on a yard basis. He learned the details of the trade, and in the course of a few years could accurately calculate the cost of producing a given number of yards of cloth. He studied the markets and found that he could create a demand for the goods of his factory. He studied the staple demands of the market.

As the superintendent of a mill he made good in his cost calculations and proved a successful salesman. When a vacancy occurred, he was made manager. Other mills, whose managers had hooted at his ideas, were shutting down. Woods conceived the idea that if one mill could be operated successfully and fail to supply the demand, a chain of mills could be successfully handled. With this in view, he chose men he thought suited for the work of managers and superintendents, and, after using them in the home mill, began to spread out. As a result, to-day he has a compact organization throughout his chain of mills. When legislation aimed at big business disconcerted his competitors, Woods, anticipating the legislation, framed his policies to meet the change.

To-day his mills are underselling all European competitors, and have reduced the price of woollens in America, thus meaning a saving to the consumer on expenditures for clothing. The saving, in large production, thus more than pays his princely salary.

The captains of industry, who by increased production and economical distribution, decrease the ultimate cost to the consumer, deserve remuneration in proportion to their savings. They are earning their handsome salaries.

GIVES OUT A TENNYSON POEM.

Unpublished Verse of the Laureate
Dealt with Britain at War.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Lord Tennyson, son of the famous poet, at a patriotic meeting held at Portchester last night, quoted these lines, written by his father, which never were published, but preserved in the present peer's memory. The poem, he said, seemed to be written for the present crisis. Here it is:

"Oh, who is he, the simple fool,
Who says that wars are over?
What bloody portent flashes there
Across the Straits of Dover?
Are you ready, Britons all,
To answer foes with thunder?
Arm, arm, arm."

"Nine hundred thousand slaves in arms,
They seek to bring us under;
But England lives and still will live,
For we'll crush the despot yonder.
Are you ready, Britons all,
To answer foes with thunder?
Arm, arm, arm."

When Peary, then a commander, was laying the foundation of the series of explorations which ended with the attainment of the Pole, "A Nighto" (Esquimo) was born at Anniversary Lodge, the winter quarters of the Peary party on Bowdoin Bay, and lived the first six months of her life in Arctic darkness.

I take the true definition of exercise to be labor without weariness.—Johnston.

THE FLAG.

News from abroad may obscure the important celebration just taken place at Baltimore, where the centenary of the writing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" was observed with a fitting and elaborate program. For many reasons it should not. The National emblem has become in a century the Banner of Peace. It has taken on newer, loftier, broader meaning since the morning when Francis Scott Key caught sight of its colors from the deck where he was held prisoner, and penned that deathless poem which has become a peoples treasure. It is especially fitting at this hour that tribute should be paid to the flag and to the author of the immortal song. The occasion appealed to the highest patriotic impulse of the people. All should join in the celebration with Baltimore, if not in the flesh, in spirit. All should share the spirit of reverence which is voiced in a later tribute by Henry Holcomb Bennett:

"Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums.
A flash of color beneath the sky:
Hats off!
The Flag is passing by!"

"Blue and crimson and white it shines,
Over the steel-tipped, orderly lines.
Hats off!
The Colors before us fly:
But more than the Flag is passing by!"

"Sign of a Nation, great and strong
To ward her people from foreign wrong:
Pride and glory and honor—all
Lives in the Colors to stand or fall."

"Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a fuffle of drums;
And loyal hearts are beating high:
Hats off!
The Flag is passing by!"

HOGS OR DOGS—WHICH?

"We raise dogs," says Prof. W. S. Taylor, of the Department of Agricultural Education, University of Texas, "when we should raise hogs." He then proceeds to give us a few startling figures.

The farmers of the South spend more than $3,000,000 annually while producing the cotton crop. Texas spends her part of this. Is there any reason why this condition should exist? Last year the estimated population of Texas was 4,208,265, showing an approximate gain of 100,000 over 1912. The cattle census showed 6,056,000 head in the State, with a loss of 155,000 from the preceding year. We had 2,493,000 hogs in the State last year, which was 51,000 less than the year before. The statistics showed an increase of 41,000 sheep, but sheep are not raised essentially for meat purposes. Texas has almost an unlimited capacity for growing and producing meat and dairy products, but with all our possibilities we have only one hog to every 67.3 acres of land; one head of cattle for 27.7 acres; and we import annually more than $10,000,000 worth of feed stuff to aid in growing a cotton crop, not to mention that we spend yearly more than $10,000,000 for butter alone. About 69.7 per cent, or approximately 3,033,000 of our population live on farms. There were slaughtered for meat on farms last year 885,260 hogs, 86,476 cattle, 9,396 sheep, and 28,423 goats, or a total of 1,009,555 animals. This allows one animal for every three people, which is not as much meat as the average rural person consumes.

RARE ANIMALS.

Howe's Great London Shows exhibit the only great blue-faced, ribboned baboon in captivity. He is a giant in size, and is possessed of the strength of a hundred men. Decked with rare tints, with gorgeous colors and with indescribable hues, he grins at the startled thousands, a degenerate man or a redeemed brute—which is he? Scientists have not answered the question. He has passed through training school for animals, and has thrown aside many antics and notions of the brute creation, and taken on many antics and idiosyncracies of finite man. He is at once a wonder and a mystery, and his queer grimaces and wise expressions provoke smiles and serious reflections from the simple-minded and the philosophical. To see this rare freak of nature is never to forget it.

Howe's Great London Shows Consolidated, according to the general verdict, is the greatest alliance the world has ever known, and will be here September 25.

A. G. Harrison and daughter, Miss Mary, went to Canyon to-day. Miss Mary will attend the Normal this winter.

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 11.—Winding up their business sessions, the delegates to the eighth annual conference of taxation, which has been in session here since Tuesday, to-day were taken out for a sight-seeing trip of Denver and the immediate vicinity. After a trip to the Morret Road, to-morrow, the delegates will return to their homes.

"Single Taxers" had an inning at the last business session of the conference, this morning. Addresses on that form of taxation were delivered by Prof. A. B. Clark, of Manitoba University; F. J. Dixon, of Winnipeg; F. C. Wade and G. J. Knapp, of Pueblo, Colo.

TEXAS INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

Special to The Herald.

ALTA LOMA, Sept. 12.—"Communities are just like the men that form them," says S. S. Linn, who is the oldest commercial secretary in the world. Mr. Linn is 80 years old, and, besides directing the destinies of the local Business Men's League, of which he is secretary, he is a prosperous farmer.

HARLINGEN, Sept. 12.—Prospects for a publicly-owned irrigation system at an early date in this district are being received very optimistically by local citizens. Bonds in the sum of $750,000 have recently been voted for the building of a large irrigation project, and arrangements are being made to dispose of the certificates at once and start work.

GORMAN, Sept. 12.—Bountiful productions of peanuts in this section are rapidly maturing, and will soon be ready for harvest. This crop is the biggest asset of the Gorman farmers this year, and a conservative estimate places the quantity at more than 100 carloads.

McLEAN, Sept. 12.—Watermelon growers in this county established a record here last week when in three days' time they shipped to different points in and out of the State 48 solid carloads of melons. The prices were good.

HOUSTON, Sept. 12.—Local citizens are rejoicing over the final completion of the Houston Ship Channel. The removing of the last of 30,000,000 cubic yards of sand from the bottom of the channel was completed a few days ago and the project turned over to the Government.

GALVESTON, Sept. 12.—Another indication that Texas live stock is held to be superior to stock produced in other states is the recent purchase of 475 bulls and 20 stallions from Panhandle stockmen by a number of Brazil ranchmen. The animals left this port on board the British ship Earl Elgin, en route to Santos, Brazil, a few days ago. They will be used for stocking and breeding purposes.

MORAN, Sept. 12.—A well capable of producing 200 and 300 barrels of oil per day was recently brought in here by the Producers Oil Company. Other wells are being sunk in the neighborhood of the new discovery, in the hope of striking a new stratum of oil and gas.

TEMPLE, Sept. 12.—From a communication recently received by the local Chamber of Commerce from United States Senator Morris Sheppard, it is evident that he is working in the interest of a project to establish a laboratory in Temple for the manufacture of hog cholera serum in large quantities.

Books Now Open for Entries in the Hale County Fair

Surrounding counties are unitedly enthusiastic about Hale County's big fair. Expressions brought about during the boosting excursion indicate that exhibits will be here from all the counties of the South Plains. To accommodate the stranger within the gates, the homefolks are urged to call at the office of the secretary as soon as possible and make their entries. This early entry will facilitate the handling of late entries from other counties.

By mistake, the class for mare foals in the pedigreed or pure bred horse division was omitted. All who have colts in this class will be permitted to enter them. Premiums of $5.00 first and $3.00 second will be given by the association.

The National Livestock Commission Co., of Fort Worth, has asked permission to pay the premiums of $10.00 and $6.00 in Class 14, number 57. This entry is for the best sow with litter of seven or more pigs, any breeding.

WASHINGTON TAX EXPERT DISCUSSES YEAR'S LAWS.

By United Press.

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 9.—Taxation of express companies and tax legislation and important movements during the past year with reference to the leading court decisions were the two important subjects discussed at today's session of the 8th annual conference of the National Tax Association, which opened yesterday and is to continue through December 11. Professor Carl C. Plehn, of California, presided at this morning's sessions, and the discussions on a review of tax legislation during the year were led by M. N. Flannery, of the Federal Bureau of Corporations, Washington, D. C. S. T. Bledsoe, of Oklahoma City, led the afternoon discussion of taxation of express companies. J. F. Zoller discussed "Taxation of Foreign Corporations;" W. Hatsings Lyon, of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, discussed "Taxation of Securities" in a report which contained recommendations for uniformity among the states on the important question of the taxation of notes, bonds, etc. The annual address of the president, Edwin R. A. Segelman, is to be delivered at the fourth session of the conference this evening, when Edmund F. Trabue, of Louisville, Ky., will speak.

EL DORADO.—A deal has been practically closed by Mr. W. N. Kelly, a raiser of fine sheep in this county, with New Zealand sheepmen for the sale of a number of his blooded bucks to them for breeding purposes only. Inquiries from ranchmen in Ohio and other States have also been received regarding the bucks.

GERMAN PRISONERS HELD AT OLYMPIA IN LONDON.

By ED L. KEEN,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON (By mail from New York, Sept. 10.)—In the great arena of the Olympia, that monstrous stadium in Kensington where only a few weeks ago the Freddie Welsh-Willie Ritchie and Gunboat Smith-George Carpenter fights were held, strange scenes are being enacted daily now. Some two hundred odd men and youths—ranging all the way in age from 20 to 60 years—every afternoon at a set hour go through odd antics, such as running up and down the arena, jumping, rolling on the ground and other like stunts. These youths and men are Germans—held prisoners by the government of England. Their strange antics are the only exercise they are allowed to take, for a little while each afternoon. A thin line of Irish Guards, grim, silent, khaki-clad men, stand guard while the Germans go through their daily exercise.

The Olympia was seized by the government without a "by your leave" or a notice of any sort. Officials decided it was just the place they needed and they occupied it without further notice.

The German prisoners who are being held there are men who have been taken from German merchantmen, German residents of England and German "floaters," who it is feared are spies in the employ of the Kaiser.

Friends of the prisoners, by special permission, have been able to make it a little easier for them. They have provided them with bedsteads and cots, clean linen and other such conveniences. Barbers, but only English barbers, no German, are permitted to shave the prisoners if their friends send them. Parcels of food and delicacies can be sent them by friends, too, but only after being closely examined by English officers. Solicitors or relatives can interview the prisoners in the presence of English officers. They are only allowed to converse in the English language, however.

The English officers make it as pleasant for the prisoners as they can under the circumstances. The daily routine is much like that of a prison. At 7 a. m. all must arise, and those who have special bedding must "stow it away," as in barracks. Accompanied by armed guards, the prisoners, in batches, are permitted to perform ablutions. Then breakfast is served, the same as in barracks—coffee and bread and bacon, or sausage or ham and eggs. At midday hot meat and vegetables or a stew or a steak pudding, and in the evening bread and butter and tea and jam, as much as they want, form the menus.

All expense is borne by the government. Mineral water or any other non-intoxicating drink may be sent the prisoners by friends, or it will be purchased for them if they have the funds. The prisoners can not have knives or razors or anything with which they might inflict damage. Smoking is allowed only at a certain period.

Plenty of newspapers and magazines are supplied by the government, and several of the prisoners have decks of cards, which they use to while away the many weary hours.

Many of the prisoners who have been residents of England for years but who have never taken out naturalization papers have been able to secure their freedom. English friends have interceded for them. They were taken before the army officers in charge at the Olympia and closely questioned with regard to their feelings for their native land. Those who have been able to convince the officers by their testimony and the pledges of their English friends that they bear a love for their adopted country have been allowed to go free.

It is a very motley assortment of prisoners. Many clerks and traders, unable to prove their innocence, are forced to lie by the side of wretched ruffians and outcasts.

The English officers feel sorry for the better class of prisoners, but they are powerless to help them. They are forced by the terms of war to hold them as prisoners if they cannot prove they have no relations with their native country.

The crews of captured German merchantmen are a sullen lot. They do not mingle with anyone else in the "prison." Holding aloof by themselves, they converse in low tones, mostly talking about what their fate will be.

BALLAD OF "WETS" IS 205 YEARS OLD.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—"We Won't Go Home Until Morning," the popular "wet" ballad, was just 205 years old today. It is said to have been composed by a French soldier in a drinking bout following a victory of French arms on the battlefield. It was a popular favorite of Marie Antoinette.

PARISIANS RIDICULE KAISER.

By United Press.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—Anything anti-German or anything that ridicules or condemns Germany and the Kaiser goes in Paris. An enterprising printer made a pretty penny from the sale of "Kaiser Wilhelm's Will," which reads as follows:

"My fortune to all the widows, orphans, and others of whose bereavement I have been the cause.

"To Belgium, as a souvenir of her heroic defense of Liege, the Cross of Honor in diamonds, my sword, and the right to jeer at me.

"To France I restore by force Alsace-Lorraine, her clocks, and her billions of francs.

"To England I give back her title, which I usurped, viz: 'King of the Seas.'

"To Serbia I give Austria.

"To Russia, all my cannon, as a surety of universal peace.

"To Austria I give my last cartridge, in order that she may end the business in honorable fashion.

"To all the other countries that I have forced into mobilization and war I give the wealth that remains in my empire.

"To my family I give the nothing I have left.

"As executor of this will I choose William Deibler, to whom I regret I cannot give my head, which is claimed by all the world." (Deibler is the Paris executioner.)

LITTLEFIELD

Special to The Herald.

LITTLEFIELD, Texas, Sept. 12.—Harvesting is the order of the day here now. Every available man is busy in the fields, and many laborers have been imported. The big silos are being filled and much grain stored for home use and shipment. All crops are good, but feterita is decidedly the best, and is proving to be a favorite. Its drought-resisting qualities cannot be denied, and the grain is fine.

Sudan grass crops could not be better, and the statement is now made that if the dry-land farmer will plant feterita and Sudan grass and have a few good dairy cows, he can not only make a good living every year, but put money in the bank. The feed crops are being fed to hogs and cattle for markets, which bring good prices, so the farmers in this section are not bothered as they are in other parts of the country.

Bureau of Education to Teach Health and Morals Through Parents; Co-operates with Congress of Mothers.

Special to The Herald.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 12.—As the result of thousands of appeals from parents throughout the United States, especially in the remote rural sections, in regard to advice on the care and training of children, the Bureau of Education has announced the establishment of a home education division.

The objects of the bureau are to help parents in the home education of their children with reference to health, games and play, early mental development and formation of moral habits; to interest boys and girls who have left school and still are at home by directing their home reading and study and to furnish the constitution of the parents in the home.

Through county superintendents of schools, the bureau obtained the names of 1,593 women in many localities who could be depended on to help in the work. These women, in turn, have furnished a list of nearly forty thousand mothers who felt the need of information on child nurture and home making.

The bureau co-operates with the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations in order to reach as many homes as possible.

A GOOD MAN'S ONLY EXCUSE.

It is "I Have Done My Best and Accomplished Nothing."
From "Granite," by John Trevina, published by Mitchell Kennerley.
The deeds of good men are like candles blown out with one blast; and he is only good who gives all he can. It is not enough to give a little, he must give himself; like a bird singing in springtime, offering its whole body to the sun. The good man knows that to plead the old excuse, "I have done nothing," is to plead guilty to a crime.

"I have done my best and accomplished nothing." That he may and must say; and that man can show a better record upon earth than he who has done much; for the world loves a villain and despises the victim. Alexander and Napoleon live forever, but who thinks of those they slaughtered?

The philosophy of men and deeds may be summed up in one sentence: they whom the world can understand are great; they whom the world can not understand are rogues until they die. The maid of Domremy was a witch while she lived, Socrates was a corrupter of morals, Christ was a brawler in the temple—and all were murdered. The shedding of blood is the one act that the world does understand; therefore the title Great is given to those who have shed the most. But the good men, the Socrates who sheds light upon human folly, the little father of the birds and flowers, the chaplain of a leper-island—who gives the title Great to these? They cannot live until they are dead; not until their bones have perished are they loved, and then with the wondering kind of pity of indifference.

ATHLETICS PROBABLE PENNANT WINNERS

By United Press.

By HAL SHERIDAN.

Written for the United Press.

NEW YORK CITY, Sept. 10.—With the season but a little more than a month to run, Connie Mack's wonderful ball club—the Athletics—seem to have the American League pennant lashed to their mast. Only the greatest kind of a miracle could prevent the Mackian phalanx from annexing another flag. The Athletics are so far ahead of their nearest rivals that the fans around the circuit have lost interest. They are spending their time now figuring what will oppose Mack's bunch in the big series this fall.

George Stallings' Braves, of Boston, seem to be an almost unanimous choice for the honor of meeting the Athletics. The wonderful work of the Beantown club since July 1 has impressed all the critics around both major loops, and many are doping them to beat the Athletics if it falls to them to defend the National League in the big set-to.

In view of this it might not be amiss to scan the personnel of this Boston gang and see just exactly who's who. Of course, the main cog in the Boston machine is Johnny Evers, former Cub and rated as the premier second sacker in the game. Stallings gives Evers credit for the great playing his club has been putting up. He declares that Evers has directed the work on the field like a Napoleon, and that his courage has inspired every other member of the team.

Evers' running mate in guarding the keystone sack is Maranville, the smallest ball player in captivity. He is even more of a midget than Owale Bush, the diminutive Tiger star. With Evers coaching him along, Maranville's work this season has been a revelation. Possessing almost perfect mechanical ability, Maranville is fast developing into a brainy player as well, and when he picks up a few more finer points of the National pastime he will be the leading artist in the line. Evers waxes mightily enthusiastic over this youngster. "He's the greatest mechanical shortstop in the game right now," Evers said recently. "And it won't be long at the rate he is developing until he will be as brainy as any of them. You want to watch his smoke when he reaches the top."

"Red" Smith, erstwhile member of the Brooklyn club, is guarding the hard corner—third base—for the Braves. This position had worried Stallings all year until he landed Smith. It had been one of the weak points on the team. Smith filled the hole. Although not a finished fielder, he is more than making up for deficiency by the manner in which he is larrupping the horsehide. His hitting has played an important part in many of the Brave's victories.

Stallings fooled the wise ones around the Tener circuit by keeping Schmidt on first base. When the season opened and it was seen Stallings was going to depend on Schmidt to hold own first base, the critics began to pan the Boston manager. Schmidt wouldn't do, they said. Schmidt fooled the wise ones and proved the worth of Stallings' judgment. The big fellow has been playing a remarkably good fielding game. He was raw at the start of the season, but he improved noticeably every day, and it wasn't long until he took on a polish that stamped him as better than the ordinary. And he has been hitting a good clip right along, being one of the most consistent clubbers on the team.

Gowdy, an ex-Giant, is doing the bulk of the catching for the Braves. Whaling is his first assistant. With the loss of Bill Rariden, who jumped to the Peds, it was predicted that the Boston catching staff would be weak. On the contrary, it has been proven strong all year. Gowdy has been driving in more than his share of the Brave runs.

Boston's pitching staff is already pretty well known as the result of its great work since July 1. The staff—that is, the active staff—consists of Tyler, a southpaw, and Rudolph and James, right handers. These three have done practically all of the flinging for the Beantown club. Stallings has juggled them along and, despite the fact that they are all small men, as pitchers go, they have never shown signs of weakening under the strain.

Besides the star trio, Stallings has several classy youngsters who look mighty good. Crutcher and Strand have both taken part in several games, and look to have the makings of stars. The outfield is a well-balanced department. Devore, former Giant; Cather, former Card; Whitted and Connolly are most frequently in the line-up. Stallings uses many changes in his outfield, using left-hand batters on the day right-hand pitchers are working against his club and right-hand hitters when southpaws are good is shown by the standing of the working. That his judgment has been Braves in the percentage column.

Wayland Business College Open to All

We are in a better condition now to take care of our students as we have spent several hundred dollars in equipping our class rooms, offices, etc. We give the same courses that are given by Toby's Business Colleges, Waco, Texas, and New York City. The student that takes our courses is backed by a faculty of seventeen teachers, and by the best business college men in the United States. Ask our graduates in Plainview and other cities who are holding good positions.

Take your course in a business college that runs all the year whether we have one student or five hundred. Plainview and every town on the Plains is behind us. We have been established three years, which insures safety to you. Our rates are right, and it will pay you to see us.

If you want to see Wayland Business College you are welcome, or if you are interested in a Business education it will pay you to investigate.
