Brown Gets Seventy-Five Dollars from State Fair

J. O. Brown, of the Green Valley Farm, has just received official receipts entitling him to money for the five first premiums won by him at the Texas State Fair this year. Mr. Brown also has one second and one third premium to his credit. In all, the prizes won by him amounted to seventy-five dollars cash.

Prizes were awarded him for the best half bushel of kaffir corn; best one-four bushel of wheat (Nicaragua); best one-fourth bushel sorghum seed; best milo maize, red; best milo maize, white; second best dozen stalks broom corn; third best individual farm display.

Plainview Band Boys Give Director Handsome Trombone

Last July the Plainview Concert Band found itself without a director. Z. E. Jenkins was a member of the band. At the solicitation of the fellows, Z. E. undertook to direct the band, devoting his spare time to it. His services have been efficient and the fellows appreciate his work. Last night the band boys surprised Mr. Jenkins by presenting him with a King double-bearing, quadruple gold plate trombone, valued at $125.

The band boys plan to give two concerts at the opera house during the winter. At this time they are practicing a dozen new scores. They have about twenty selections which have been worked up since July. Most of these have never been given in public and are new to Plainview people. The first concert will be given during January.

Frank Bone spent Saturday in Amarillo.

: Origin of Thanksgiving :

After the first harvest of the New England colonists, in 1621, Governor Bradford made provision for their rejoicing specially together with praise and prayer. In 1623 a day of fasting and prayer in the midst of drouth was changed into thanksgiving by the coming of rain during the prayers; gradually the custom prevailed of appointing thanksgiving annually after harvest. These appointments were by proclamation of the governors of the several New England colonies. During the Revolution a day of national thanksgiving was annually recommended by Congress. Since 1863 the President has appointed a day of thanksgiving (usually the last Thursday of November), and his proclamation has generally been followed by similar proclamations from the Governors of several states. The credit of this change belongs to Mrs. Sarah Josepha Hale, editress of Godey's Lady Book (Philadelphia), and the first President to adopt it was Abraham Lincoln.

SETH WARD CLOSES FIRST TERM '14-'15 THANKSGIVING

Enrollment for Term Two Hundred Twenty-Five; President McDonald Pleased With Work of Students.

Seth Ward students are finishing their examinations for the first term of 1914-15.

"We've had a most excellent term," said President C. L. McDonald to a Herald representative this morning. "Our student body is the largest we have ever had. As a whole, the work has been entirely satisfactory. We have great hopes for the new term. We have enrolled two students this week for the new term. We are expecting more daily for the term, enrollment for which begins Friday and Saturday, November 27 and 28. The term continues until February 22. The close of the term will be celebrated on Washington's birthday, as the close of this term will be on Thanksgiving. "We are very optimistic over the possibilities of a speedy completion of the new boys' dormitory," he continued.

Seth Ward has enrolled two hundred twenty-five students during the past term. This number represents individuals enrolled. If the double enrollments, that is, those taking both academic and fine arts courses, were counted, the enrollment would exceed three hundred. In the Fine Arts Department alone 100 enrollments have been made. "This is the largest in all Northwest Texas this year," said Mr. McDonald.

"ABILENE CONVENTION WAS EPOCH-MAKING"—REV. HAILEY

Pastor of Plainview Baptist Church Elected to Membership on Executive Board of Convention.

Rev. O. L. Hailey is very enthusiastic over the work of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, which has recently adjourned in Abilene.

"We had a fine Convention," said Brother Hailey to a Herald representative this afternoon. "I believe the convention was an epoch-marking one. Dr. S. P. Brook, president of Baylor University, was elected president of the convention.

"One of the noteworthy incidents of the convention was the donation of the property of the Buckner Orphans' Home, at Dallas, to the convention. The property is indeed valuable. There are thirteen hundred acres of land adjoining the city of Dallas, workshops, farms and equipment, deep wells, etc. The home now has 625 inmates.

"The convention abolished the Mission Board and Education Board, forming a new board with the functions of both, naming it the Executive Board. It is composed of the officers of the convention and forty-five elected members, making a total of fifty-one. The members of the board will convene December 15 to complete organization and elect officers."

Brother Hailey, incidentally, is a member of this board.

Daniels Has Rescinded Order to American Cruisers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Secretary Daniels has cabled Captain Decker, of the cruiser Tennessee, and Captain Oman, of the cruiser North Carolina, in the Eastern Mediterranean, to take whatever steps were necessary to protect American life and property in Turkey. The order prohibiting their taking any action, unless ordered from Washington pending the investigation of the firing on the launch from the Tennessee while attempting to enter the port at Smyrna, has been rescinded.

J. O. Brown has just returned from Jasper County, where he went to visit relatives after leaving the Dallas Fair.

GENERAL FUNSTON HAS EVACUATED VERA CRUZ

Troops Under Command of General Funston Are Being Transferred to Texas on Transports.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 24.—General Agullar's men have assumed charge of Vera Cruz. The American troops, six thousand in number, under the command of General Funston, have departed. Funston and his men have been in Vera Cruz since April 30. Now the Mexican flag flies over Vera Cruz. The soldiers under Funston are being returned to Texas on transports.

General Carranza is much displeased with the evacuation of Vera Cruz by the Americans, insisting that there should have been a formal transfer of the city and posts.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 24.—The French and British ambassadors to the United States have called at the Department of State to ascertain the condition of affairs of interest to their governments in Mexico. The French ambassador has been informed that General Funston retired from Vera Cruz with over a million dollars in customs receipts in his possession. Sixty-two per cent of the collections are owned by French bond holders, who have a lien on the receipts. No decision has yet been made as to the disposition of the funds.

Turkey Fired Shot to Warn Launch from U. S. Cruiser

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 23.—The shots fired toward the launch from the United States cruiser Tennessee from Turkish forts at the port of Smyrna, Monday, Nov. 14, were intended merely as the customary warning that the port was mined and closed to navigation. This is the voluntary explanation of the incident to the United States Government through Ambassador Morgenthau.

Although the explanation is informal and the United States Government still is awaiting a reply to formal representations, which Ambassador Morgenthau was instructed to make to the Turkish Foreign Office, it was generally admitted at the White House, State and Navy Departments that all danger of serious complications over the incident had been removed.

Man Held as Spy Claims El Paso, Texas, is His Home

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The intense public interest in the case of Carl Hans Lody, the German spy, recently executed in the Tower of London, is being paralleled in less degree by the attention given the trial of the man who claims to be Bridgman Taylor.

In the Bow Street police court today the prisoner, who has an American passport in the name of Bridgman Taylor, but who Scotland Yards insists is Horst von der Goltz, was remanded for further hearing. It is intimated that the next hearing will be before another court, presumably a court martial.

The only charge against the prisoner is that he has not registered as an alien. It is alleged, however, that the circumstances of the case in some particulars are similar to those of the Lody trial.

The prisoner arrived in London on November 3, and registered at a hotel as B. H. Taylor, of El Paso, Texas. According to the stamps on his passport he had just come from Germany. He is said to have boasted of Germany's great prowess.

GEORGE SAIGLING TO AUSTIN FOR BRIDE, MISS MAGEE.

George Saigling left Friday for Austin, Texas, where he will be married to-morrow, the 25th inst., to Miss Anna Magee, of that city.

Miss Magee was teacher of Spanish in the Plainview High School last winter.

Mr. Saigling will return with his bride about the first of December. They will be at home with Mrs. J. L. Vaughn, 600 Highland Avenue.

GERMAN FORCES AGAIN THREATENING WARSAW

FOR A SECOND TIME GERMANS ARE ENTERING POLAND AND AGAIN NEAR WARSAW.

CENSORSHIP TIGHTENING

Almost Inevitable Defeat Stares Servians In Face; Austrians Concentrate Against Them.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Although the strictest censorship is being exercised over the news from the war zone, it is rumored from several sources that Warsaw is threatened for the second time. General von Hindenburg's army has advanced as far as the Lowicz-Skiernewice line, which means that the Germans have covered two-thirds of the ground to the Polish capital, from which they are now only forty miles distant. Farther south in Poland, however, the Teuton allies are said to have been repulsed between Radom and Kielce.

The battle in East Prussia seems to have died down, but the Russians continue to advance in Galicia and are still fighting on the Czenstochowa-Cracow front.

Expect Russian Victory.

The battle in Poland in the direction of Lowicz is the most critical one, and while the Germans have the greatest confidence in General von Hindenburg since his defeat of the Russian General, Von Rennenkampf, in East Prussia, here and in Petrograd military observers express the opinion that Russia's overwhelming superiority in numbers of men against most tell, as was the case when the Germans made their first attack on Warsaw.

In Flanders and in France the armies seem to be enjoying a long-deserved rest, for the only remaining evidence that the belligerents are facing each other is an occasional bombardment with heavy guns. Infantry attacks have temporarily ceased, and while the generals are laying their plans for the next move, the men are getting a chance to rest and tidy themselves up, after a month in the water-soaked trenches.

The Servians are making a stand against the Austrians in well-chosen fortified positions on the Kalumbara River, but as the Austrians command superior forces and Servia is without allies near enough to offer her assistance, it seems apparent that unless other Balkan States come into the war Servia is faced with defeat.

"Messages from North Holland state that unusual activity prevails at Emden," says a dispatch from the Exchange Telegraph Company correspondent at The Hague. The telegram continues:

"Fishermen, who daily cruise near the German waters, say that the German fleet is preparing for decisive action in the North Sea. Prince Henry of Prussia was at Emden yesterday for an inspection of the torpedo and submarine craft."

The Germans have been violently bombarding Ypres, in Flanders, and Soissons, in the Aisne Valley, and Rheims, while making attacks in force in the Argonne. The French make claims that the assaults in the last-named region were repulsed, while the Germans say they have been gaining ground.

Colorado Will Now Assume Control of Mining District

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 24.—That the strike zone can be controlled by the State of Colorado is the opinion of the legislative commission appointed at the extra session of the General Assembly, in May, to act in an advisory capacity to the Governor, Ammons.

During the four months since the coal miners' strike was called the committee declares "no Governor of any State in this Union since the Civil War has been confronted with as serious problems as which you have faced." It recalls that at the time President Wilson sent Federal troops to the mining district he made it clear that they should remain "only until such time as the State could properly reassert its authority," and continues, "we believe that the State is now in that position."

LET US BE THANKFUL.

"It has been vouchsafed to us to remain at peace, with honor, and in some part to succor the suffering and supply the needs of those who are in want."—From the Thanksgiving Proclamation of the President of the United States.

The American people are doubly blessed in their isolation and detachment from the vortex of horrors and bloodshed and agony of the battlefields in Europe. We should be thankful that we are in a position to aid the needy of Europe.

In Belgium alone it is estimated that close upon two million people with breaking hearts have fled from their country, leaving scattered homes and hopes behind. The flight of the innocent, the unfortunate, the women and children, the aged and blind, the helpless from their Fatherland presents one of the most agonizing and appalling pictures of human misery in the annals of history, ancient or modern. Despite the aid that has been rendered this helpless nation by the English, the Americans, and others, there are thousands who are helplessly suffering from exposure to winter and the ravages of disease attendant thereupon. While our Nation is blessed with bountiful crops, prosperity, plenty and the promise of the most prosperous era in her history, nations of Europe are suffering from the ravages of war, the culmination of those national sins, racial hatred and national jealousy.

While we are enjoying the blessings of peace and are giving thanks to the Almighty, we cannot escape the immeasurable pathos of the Belgian tragedy. The poignant sorrow of the situation is not lessened by the thought that the sum total of all the funds collected here and in Europe can only in a very small part—so vast and increasing is the need—assuage the sufferings of Belgium's unhappy people, while no money contribution whatever can atone for the loss of Louvain and a score of fair Belgian cities lately radiant with the splendor and glory of centuries.

The loss in material things, in homes, in industrial undertakings, which represent the life work of the people, in cathedrals and museums, old tradition, dear in sentiment, and the pride of the people, who were constantly adding to these institutions as a memorial to their civilization, the life of which memorials they fondly expected to be terminated by nothing less than the end of time, has weighed heavily upon the little nation. Physical suffering demands immediate alleviation. Atonement to the world for outraged institutions and oppressed civilization cannot be had.

We who are blessed with peace and prosperity, can find some portion of our wealth that can be spared to make the burdens of war lighter on this naive people. Love and sympathy of man to man demands such action. The dire necessity of human beings directs our attention to this particular nation, even though in tribal affiliations, and national ideals, we are of different schools. No little nation in the world's history has been more grievously stricken, yet no people can raise their heads more proudly from the dust. Their winter has just begun. Our ef-

LESSON OF THE FRENCH LOAN.

(From the Memphis Commercial-Appeal.)

It is generally admitted that banking accommodations have and always will control trade.

The announcement that one banking concern in New York will finance a loan of $10,000,000 for France is accompanied by the further statement that this same bank has increased its banking facilities in Brazil and Argentina.

There is no question that the foundations of a sure growth of American commerce must be laid to a large extent by the establishment of better banking opportunities in South America.

We have much to look for in this section of the world, little in European countries, beyond the supply of foodstuffs, until after the tragedy of war has abated.

To those who have followed the Pan-American reports issued in Washington it can be understood how difficult it is for an American concern to enter the fields of commercial activity in any South American country, especially in Brazil and Argentina, and induce a merchant who is furnished with British and German banking support to buy American goods.

Banking accommodations control trade.

The French loan referred to above, while not one of such great amount, its influence upon American trade is shown. The money will be held in the United States. It is only to finance France's credit to this amount and to be expended for goods of various sorts grown and manufactured in this country.

The money is on deposit, held subject to the check of the French government, and it cannot be withdrawn and expended in other countries.

The lesson of this one loan shows how potential the influence of the bank is in controlling trade. The loan will be reciprocal in its effect. France will obtain what the nation most needs, American merchants and exporters will profit by trades and the bank is indemnified by the government and will receive a legitimate business profit on its loan.

Here the three ends of the triangle will be greatly benefited and should be mutually satisfied.

Banking accommodations assuredly control trade. This fact is nothing new. We can clearly see the close connection between banks and the benefit to the country it is to established banks. In this particular instance we glimpse the great value of banks as promoters of foreign commerce.

BETTER PARCEL MAIL SERVICE.

Washington Post Office Collects Packages from House to House.

From the Washington Herald.

Collection of parcel post mail weighing ten pounds or more from house to house in the downtown section is to be made by the city post office in the future, according to announcement by Postmaster Praeger. Hereafter to send a parcel post package it will only be necessary to call the post office, give your name and address, and a motor truck will call for your mail and take it to the city post office. The limitation of ten pounds in the use of the service is construed to include packages aggregating ten pounds or one package of ten pounds.

Another innovation announced by Postmaster Praeger is that purchases of stamps—not less than one thousand or more than five thousand—or envelopes of any denomination will be delivered to business establishments and may be ordered by telephone.

A Prayer for Thanksgiving

God to whom my father prayed, teach me humility, give me a thankful heart. I go my way among men, accepting as my due the rewards that come to me, the helpfulness of friends, the love of wife and children.

I live in a happy land; no man is my master whom I do not choose to serve; if I wish to render homage unto Thee I can do so in my own way; there is no class or caste to bar my way to any achievement; in myself is the measure of my success.

These things are the common lot of a people who declare their trust in Thee; I profit from the faith of the builders of the Nation. I eat and drink from the fields over which Thy hand is held, giving and withholding rain, sprinkling the warmth of sunshine, leading the cloud that casts the cooling shadow.

And so in my selfishness I stand forth as one small and mean, almost to be condemned for making so little of such rich endowment. Therefore do I come to Thee, unto whom is thanksgiving, begging for the gift of a sense of thankfulness, that praise may be given where it belongs; asking to be made glad because of blessings, and to be led into the path of humbleness, at whose end is mercy.

Amen!

MONEY FOR THE RURAL SCHOOLS.

One farmer with a cheap automobile has more invested in that one piece of mechanism than the average rural community as a whole has in its school plant; and the owner of the auto frequently spends as much on the upkeep of his one car as the community spends for the total maintenance of the school, including the teacher's salary. This is one of a number of significant comparisons brought out by the Hon. W. F. Feagin, State Superintendent of Education for Alabama, in a survey reported to the United States Bureau of Education.

To illustrate further the plight of the schools, Superintendent Feagin shows a dilapidated rural school in contrast with the handsomely constructed jail in the same county, costing several thousand dollars. "This jail," he says, "has sanitary drinking fountains, shower baths, clean floors, plenty of light, good ventilation, and is otherwise attractive. Could a person from the district in which this school is located be blamed for preferring the jail?"

Naturally, country schools make little appeal either to pupils or teachers, under existing conditions. Pupils drop out and teachers move. Out of 5,423 pupils entering the first grade in the schools inspected in the Alabama survey, only sixty completed the work of the fourth year of the high school. Of the teachers, 76 per cent are holding their present positions for the first time. Of the remainder, 18 per cent are teaching their second session in their first school, and only 19 per cent have stayed more than two years in the same place.

The Alabama survey was an attempt to provide a definite background of facts on which to base a campaign for improvement. The controlling purpose of the investigation was not to establish an opinion or theory, but to find out the truth. The survey was not made by outside specialists imported for the occasion, but by regular officials of the State education department, who selected three typical counties and personally visited the schools. The results will be used for definite improvement in the schools of the State.

"The conditions found are by no means peculiar to Alabama," declares Dr. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education. "They can be duplicated anywhere. In Tennessee a few years ago, for instance, inquiry revealed that in several counties the cost of the county jail was greater than the total cost of all the school houses in the county, and in more than half the counties of the State the cost of court houses and jails together was greater than that of all the school houses, while in a majority of the counties the average annual salary of the teacher was less than the cost of feeding a prisoner in jail."

"This Alabama survey is conspicuous because it is a carefully drawn picture of the traditional public indifference to the problem of adequate

THE FIRST THANKSGIVING.

Once upon a time, a long time ago, were a band of people who did not want any one to tell them how they must worship God, and so they came to this country, America. These people were called Pilgrims, because they made pilgrimages to different countries trying to find a place where they would be let alone. They landed in our country at a place now called Plymouth Rock. There were no other white people here at that time, and the Pilgrims had to learn from the Indians how to live in this new country.

They went into the forests and cut down the trees and made their log houses that they lived in. From the Indians they learned how to plant corn and care for it and how to put it away, so as to have it for food in the winter time. The Indians taught them how to kill the deer and how to catch the fish.

It took the pilgrims sometime to learn these new ways, but after several years they had a very successful season, and were all very thankful that they were now prepared to stand the cold winter, so the governor of the land said they should have a time for giving thanks to God for His goodness to them. So he set the time, and the good Pilgrim women cooked all the good things they knew how to cook, and the men went out into the woods and killed all the rabbits and birds they thought they would need, and dressed these and the women cooked them.

When the feast was ready they invited the Indians who had been so very friendly to them to come and eat with them. This the Indians did. Then some of the Indians went into the woods and killed some deer and brought them to the feast.

The feasting and good time continued for most a week, and all were very happy, and all thanked the Giver of all Good for His blessings. Every year after this the Pilgrims had a week of feasting and prayer in the fall, to which the Indians were always there.

Several times during the Revolutionary War George Washington issued proclamations for a time of thanksgiving. The first time was in 1777, and the next time it was in 1778. This latter time was just after they had passed that terrible winter of Valley Forge. While Washington was President, in the year 1795, he issued a proclamation for a Thanksgiving Day in January.

We did not have a Thanksgiving Day every year after this; just once in a while, until about 1863, when Lincoln—then the President—issued a Thanksgiving proclamation. And every year since a day has been set each year by proclamation by the President.

This is our one national religious festival that is for all the people of America, and is observed by all, with-

Spicy Talks on Co-operation

Cheaper Money for Texas Farmers.

As might have been expected, Jewish farmers have made greatest progress in the United States in the matter of organizing co-operative credit unions. Their accomplishments in this direction, and their methods, are detailed at some length in the last chapter of Bulletin No. 355 issued for free distribution by the Extension Department of the State University. Professor Austin, one of the authors of this little book, spent several months in Europe studying this very matter of rural credits, among the most perfect unions of the kind in the world. He is, therefore, especially well qualified to speak upon the subject. A very practical section of the treatment of the subject is outlined, telling just how to go about forming a rural credit association under the Texas law; the object of all such associations being, of course, to secure cheaper money for Texas farmers.

out regard to their religious beliefs. It is the one day of all the year when every one wants to get home, to see mother and father and all the family. No matter how old we are, we all like to visit grandfather and grandmother and see the cupboard full of good things to eat and hear how "they did things when grandfather was a little boy."

HELP TENANTS BUY LIVE STOCK.

Land Owners Would Profit in Many Ways by Assisting Tenants to Secure Stock for Farms.

From the Breeder's Gazette.
A farmer in Illinois makes the suggestion that land owners renting their land to tenants should help finance the acquisition of live stock. This, he points out, would give the land owner a net profit from the interest paid him, profit from increased fertility of his land with live stock on it and profit from developing a class of tenantry of the highest order and ability to pay good rentals.

This seems a fair and reasonable proposition, provided the tenant is to be trusted with the handling of the funds. The land owner nowadays commonly has a rather large rental from his land, paid usually in cash. It is often difficult for the tenant to pay this rental and have any capital left with which to purchase live stock. He is thus forced to sell his grain on the open market, and there follows the most destructive form of agriculture possible—tillage with the removal of crops.

Stock farming, rightly managed, is constructive agriculture. The splendid system of farming in Great Britain is built on a tenantry that keeps much live stock. Doubtless the tenant system of farming in America is with us to remain and to be even more extended. It is, therefore, desirable that some way be found to develop a system of tenantry that embraces a long term of land holding with live stock of some sort as the foundation of its agricultural scheme. Landlords derive from such a system much advantage in increasing values in land, so naturally they should be the men to aid tenants to acquire live stock suited to their land and environment.

FED HIS HOGS ON ALFALFA.

Idaho Farmer Fed Grain for Finishing Hogs Only Five Weeks Before Time He Marketed.

C. J. Lisle, in the Country Gentleman.
I was brought up on a farm in "The Lord's Own Hog Country," Iowa. You couldn't have told me or anyone else who ever lived there and saw what that black soil would produce, that hogs could be produced anywhere else in the world as cheaply or as satisfactorily as right there in the Hawkeye State, though I have found on careful investigation that the same belief prevails in several other states.
But only recently I saw something that made me wonder if I hadn't been just a little bit prejudiced. A neighbor of mine in Idaho brought in ninety hogs which he sold to the local buyer for $1,367 in cash. The hogs were the last of his last year's crop; he had sold twice, earlier in the year, and these were mostly the fall pigs or the runts of the earlier crop. Possibly two or three of them, the early runts, were a year old; most of them were only about 10 or 11 months old. They were not big—indeed, as hogs go, back in the corn states, they were rather undersized.

The one thing, however, that marked this drove from any other ordinary drove of hogs was the feeding record. When the pigs were farrowed their dams were running out in the alfalfa pasture. They never received a pound of grain or meal or anything but alfalfa during nursing time. And then they went into the bigger alfalfa pasture, where they stayed until snow came and covered the fields. After that they went into the big feed lot, where they fed on alfalfa hay, and that alone, until ten weeks before marketing, when they went into the pasture again. Five weeks before marketing they were given grain in addition to their pasture feed. Hardly one pig in ten—and that one as a runaway and a thief—ever had a single bite of grain of any kind until the lot was given grain to finish them off for market. Alfalfa, green and dry, on the stalk and in the bin, alfalfa tall or short, dry or wet, fresh or over-bleached—but always alfalfa.

MUSICIANS WANT GOOD STREETS.

From the Ohio State Journal.
The musicians' union is appealing to the Philadelphia Council for the repair of the highways, on the ground that holes in the pavement were extremely dangerous to the members engaged to march through the streets at the head of parades. The appeal describes divers injuries to the band members, "because of falling into the slightest holes, or by having a musical instrument jammed into them, or by being compelled to watch such places, and be unable to render the same volume of music."

Rev. and Mrs. S. J. Upton returned Friday from a visit to relatives in Hall County.

FOREST NOTES.

The town forest of Baden-Baden, Germany, yields an annual profit of $5.25 per acre, or a total net profit of nearly $67,500.

Outside of its use for fence posts, black locust finds its principal utilization in insulator pins and brackets for telegraph and telephone lines.

One hundred shade trees will be planted by the Massachusetts forestry asplanted by the Massachusetts Forestry Association in cities or towns of four population classes which win prize contests for excellence in street tree planting.

The Russian government has placed an embargo on all kinds of lumber, to prevent its exportation; walnut lumber, including Circassian walnut, much prized by American furniture makers, is specifically mentioned.

Experiences with forest fires on the National forests this year show that automobiles, where they can be used, furnish the quickest and cheapest transportation for crews of fire fighters. Motor rates are higher than those for teams for the actual time employed, but the total cost per distance traveled and in wages paid to men in getting to fires is much less. The time saving is self-evident; trips which ordinarily require two days' time by team have been made by automobile in a few hours.

FAMOUS REPARTEE.

From Harper's Weekly.
Recently we have been confessing to a liking for special repartees. Here are a few more that meet our personal notion of that kind of wit:
When Sydney Smith was advised to have his portrait painted by Landseer, he asked:
"Is thy servant a dog, that he should do this thing?"
The same Sydney Smith, who, you will remember, was a clergyman, was in an argument. His opponent, provoked, cried out: "If I had a son who was an idiot, I would make him a parson."
"Your father," replied Smith, "was of a different opinion."

A story is told of Henry Clay that is also applied in earlier history to a member of Parliament. A long-winded member of Congress said: "You, sir, speak for the present generation, but I speak for posterity."
"It seems," replied Clay, "that you are resolved to speak until your audience arrives."

Also in this connection the following comes to mind:
The Duchess of Gordon—"Have you been talking as much nonsense as usual, Mr. Pitt?"
Pitt—"I am not sure, but I think that since I saw your grace I have not heard so much."

REAPING BENEFIT

From the Experience of Plainview People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Plainview residents on the following subject will interest and benefit many of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had:

Mrs. C. Reven, Plainview, Texas, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills for backache and other kidney troubles. They gave me wonderful relief when I was so stiff and lame that I could hardly stoop. It is now two months since I got this remedy from the Long Drug Co. Judging from my own experience with Doan's Kidney Pills, I can recommend them for trouble from the back and kidneys."

Re-Endorsement.

On January 2, 1912, Mrs. Reven said: "You are at liberty to publish my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. They have always given me wonderful relief whenever I have used them."

One Dinner For All

A Community That Said Thanksgiving
Grace Together

By GERTRUDE ALLEN, in Country
Gentleman.

It was Mrs. Williams, of Richland Corners, who inaugurated the Twentieth Century Thanksgiving in that thriving farming community last year. The idea came to her when she went out one bright October morning to feed the turkeys, and saw, over on the next rise of land, her neighbor, Mrs. Hall, starting out from her kitchen to feed her turkeys too.

"There was something," said Mrs. Williams, "about the sight of her up on her farm feeding her birds all alone, and me down on my farm feeding mine, and the beautiful, friendly country all about us, and the warm sunshine sparkling everywhere, that made me think: 'There ought to be more in Thanksgiving than Ellen Hall's fat, brown turkey on her table, and my fat, brown turkey on my table. Your own cranberries and pumpkin pies aren't everything—there's Ellen's pies, too, and Mrs. Horace Leggett's, and the new minister's. You can't feel that your duty is done to-day if you're thankful for just your own blessings.'"

"And, besides, Ellen is one of my greatest blessings! I'd give every turkey I've got twice over for her, and she for me! And we'd both of us be right ready with sacrifice for the minister and even for Mrs. Horace! It seemed to me we ought to find a way to get that into the Thanksgiving dinner right alongside of the turkeys."

"Well, we did. I found Ellen thought just as I did. I went up that afternoon and spoke to her about it. 'When I looked down this morning and saw you out with your fowls,' she said, 'I thought to myself: 'Our grandmothers used to go out and feed their turkeys for Thanksgiving just as Laura Williams and I are doing this morning. And then each one of them cooked for a week before Thanksgiving and washed dishes for a week afterward.' And it struck me that in nearly three hundred years we ought to have found some new way of celebrating."

"And the minister said: 'What about a community Thanksgiving dinner in the school house and a harvest-home celebration in the church? Do you think the people would respond to that?'"

All Had a Hand in It.

"It was a great innovation, and it took plenty of persuasion to get it through. It seemed to Ellen and me as if each family we went to had a new objection. But we had thought out our plans pretty thoroughly, and so were ready for any opposition."

"We planned the dinner so that each woman would have about an equal share of preparation—in work and materials. For instance, one woman contributed the celery, another the cranberry jelly, another the cauliflower, another the cider, Ellen the pumpkin pies, and I the bread and the coffee. We tried to allot the things that would take the least labor to the busiest or the frailest of the women, and the more troublesome or expensive things to those more sturdy in body and purse. The minister's wife volunteered to cook the turkeys and to deliver them hot in the school house, which was next door. This left us the stoves in the school house for our vegetables and coffee. "We wanted everybody to do something, no matter how little. So we asked the children to decorate the building. The idea just suited the children—it was like an indoor picnic to them, and they couldn't do enough in getting ready. They gathered autumn leaves, pressed them, shaved a little paraffin over each leaf and ran an iron over it so that the leaves were as brilliant and as pliable as if just gathered when the children were ready to use them. They gave just the bright touch that the greens needed—pumpkins and American flags did the rest.

"Everybody in Richland Corners came, first to church and then over to the school house to dinner. We had three long tables, the length of the building, two for the elders and one for the children. And the tables groaned, as they say, under the weight of good things—such good things, for every woman took a special pride in making her contribution a testimonial to her cookery. We had turkey, cranberries, celery and apple sauce, cashed potatoes and pea timbales and baked cauliflower with grated cheese, baked Indian pudding, pumpkin pie, nuts and apples, cider and coffee."

Old Songs and Games.

"And we had singing—patriotic songs and old favorites that everybody knows and loves. And the minister made a speech, and so did the school teacher, and so did Ellen—a very short one that went right to every one's heart and made all feel they wanted to come again next year, and that this was the finest Thanksgiving they had ever had."

"Then the minister's wife invited the older people over to her home, and they sat by the fire and exchanged reminiscences or played cards or checkers. The teacher and two other young women took the children outdoors and played games with them. In three-quarters of an hour the rest of us had everything cleared up. Then the children came back, and some of the older people too—those who weren't too deep in checkers or casino —and we had impromptu charades and tableaux, played indoor games and wound up with the Virginia Reel. We served sandwiches, sweet cider, hot chocolate and cake, and then we all drove home in the moonlight.

"And what was the result? First and foremost, Richland Corners had found something to be thankful for that it had quite overlooked before—neighbors, and the spirit of friendliness and co-operation that makes so many good things possible to-day that were not possible a few generations ago. Second, that spirit was not only recognized as a part of our welfare, but it was given an impetus by the fact that we shared our Thanksgiving preparations and enjoyed our dinner all together. Third, though our careful dividing of the contributions there was about one-fifth as much work for each woman and the expense for each family was considerably reduced. And last, we all, from the minister down to Baby Hall, had more genuine fun than we had ever had before at Thanksgiving, and everybody voted to repeat the good time this year."

FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE DID NOT HURT MEATS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 23.—To reassure consumers who fear to eat meats because of the live stock foot-and-mouth disease, the Department of Agriculture issued a statement to-night explaining that if properly cooked even the meat of an infected animal was not dangerous.

"In the case of meat, as in the case of milk," the statement said, "it must be remembered that all herds which actually show the disease are quarantined, and neither milk nor meat from the sick animals can be sold. Sixty per cent of the meat used in this country is produced in the nearly 900 federally inspected slaughtering and packing establishments located in 240 cities. In these establishments no animal is slaughtered until it has passed an ante-mortem inspection and also a most rigid post-mortem inspection by a veterinarian at time of slaughter. After slaughter its meat cannot leave the establishment until it has been carefully examined and stamped 'U. S. Inspected and Passed.'"

THE FIRST "MOVIES" IN 1870.

Henry R. Heyl Gave an Exhibition of His Invention in Philadelphia.

From the Philadelphia Evening Ledger.

"Who invented moving pictures and where were they first shown? The answer is easy if you were at the Academy of Music on the evening of February 5, 1870, for it was there that Henry R. Heyl gave the first exhibition of his invention, 'the phasmatrope.' He also exhibited it before the Franklin Institute, March 16, making the first exhibition of photographs to represent in motion living objects projected by a lantern upon a screen. The following paragraph appeared in the program:

"This is a recent scientific invention, designed to give to various objects and figures upon the screen the most graceful and life-like movements. The effects in the familiar Zoetrope, where men are seen walking, running and performing various feats in most perfect imitation of real life. This instrument is destined to become a most valuable auxiliary to the appliances for illustration, and we have the pleasure of having the first opportunity of presenting its merits to an audience."

At this time the flexible ribbon films and instantaneous exposures were unknown, and it was necessary to limit the views to those that could be taken by time exposure upon wet plates, which plates were afterward reproduced as positives on very thin glass plates. The device for holding them consisted of a skeleton steel wheel divided into eighteen parts, into which the plates were fastened and the wheel then revolved before the lantern's rays causing each picture to register exactly with the position just left by the preceding one. The wheel was revolved by hand and controlled by a ratchet and pawl mechanism, enabling the operator to control the movements of the waltzing figure, so as to synchronize with the music played by the orchestra, and when showing those of an acrobat he would come to a full stop, when the acrobat would complete a somersault."

ABOUT THE BAROMETER.

Alexander Deussen, instructor in geology in the University of Texas, furnishes the following guide to weather predictions in Texas in reading the barometer:

The rise or fall of a barometer rather than its absolute height at any time is the best index to an approaching change in the weather. For this reason the words "fair," "change," etc., that appear on common barometers or "weather glasses" cannot always be depended upon. A barometer that gives a continuous trace of the air pressure is superior to an ordinary barometer, because by means of it the change that is taking place can be told at a glance without reading and recording the instrument every hour or so.

The barometer in Texas invariably rises when a "norther" blows. A steady rise with a norther indicates that fine weather may be expected, and, in winter, frost. A very rapid rise in winter indicates unsettled weather. Fine weather immediately after a rise must not be expected to last. A rapid rise indicates the approach of a storm, and along the coast of a hurricane. A fall with a low barometer foretells rain or snow; with a rising thermometer, rain. A fall in winter indicates warmer weather; in summer a fall often is followed by thunder showers. Fine weather may occur with a low barometer, but it usually precedes rain. During periods of drought or of excessive wet spells, as long as the barometer shows no marked change from day to day, the drought or the wet spell, as the case may be, will continue.

LOOKS LIKE A LARGER CROP BOTH FOR TEXAS AND U. S.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 23.—The latest ginning report issued by the Federal Census Bureau shows that the total ginnings in Texas up to 10 a. m. November 9th to be 3,170,025 bales. Comparative figures for previous years are: 1913, 2,950,444; 1912, 3,709,725 bales; 1911, 3,211,572 bales. The total for the United States is 9,828,695, or nearly a million bales more than for the same period of last year.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Over the river and through the wood,
To grandfather's house we go;
The horse knows the way
To carry the sleigh
Through the white and drifted snow.

Over the river and through the wood,
Oh, how the wind does blow!
It stings the toes
And bites the nose,
As over the ground we go.

Over the river and through the wood,
Trot fast, my dapple-gray!
Spring over the ground
Like a hunting-hound!
For this is Thanksgiving day.

Over the river and through the wood,
And straight through the barnyard gate,
We seem to go
Extremely slow—
It is so hard to wait.

Over the river and through the wood,
Now grandmother's cap I spy!
Hurrah for the fun!
Is the pudding done?
Hurrah for the chicken pie!

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 23.—After months of careful investigation, the Bureau of Animal Industry has come to the conclusion that vaccine is not effective in rendering horses immune from glanders. The bureau recommends a discontinuance of the serum and advises that all attention be concentrated on the disinfection and destruction of the diseased horses. A thorough disinfection of water troughs, buildings, mangers, etc., which the diseased animals have come in contact with should be made, in order to successfully check the spread of the malady.

The type of education which the College of Industrial Arts is offering to the women of the State is becoming better and better understood as they are beginning to appreciate the fact that there are arts and science of the well-ordered home which should be studied for its intelligent management.

MRS. LONGSTRETH WILL LEAD COUNTY FEDERATION OF CLUBS.

Club Women of Hale County Hold Enthusiastic Meeting at Hale Center; County Organization Effected.

The club rally at Hale Center on Saturday was a complete success in attendance, enthusiasm and cordial hospitality on the part of the Hale Center citizens.

The delegates and visiting club women were met at Hale Center's beautiful new school building by a number of the prominent women of the town, and were ushered immediately into one of the rooms, where stood a table arranged as if for a wedding feast, glistening with snowy napery, silver and delicate china. Even the flowers were there. A bowl of "panisies for remembrance" was placed in the center of the table.

After a sumptuous and well-appointed dinner, the program for the day was begun.

Mrs. D. F. Johnson made the address of welcome on behalf of Hale Center. Nor was it merely a cold and formal wording. Her thoughts, beautifully expressed, were full of love and genuine welcome for the visitors.

Mrs. W. L. Harrington responded on behalf of the visitors.

The program was varied by music and excellent papers interspersed with talks. Mrs. Robert Alley gave a vocal selection, and her little daughter also sang in a charming manner.

During the business session, Mrs. J. W. Longstreth was elected chairman of the County Federation; Mrs.

D. F. Johnson, vice president, and Miss Rebecca Longmire, secretary and treasurer. The federation will hold a meeting once every twelve months. Various committees were appointed, which in the meantime will be at work for the good of the organization.

The presidents of each club represented gave a history and resume of her club.

There were twenty-five who went from Plainview, and the Priscilla Club, our progressive neighbor on the north, was well represented. The visitors came back enthused over the Hale Center Mothers' Club and its well-equipped and furnished club room in the main school building. The teachers, including superintendent S. L. Rives, took an active part in Saturday's program, and are instrumental in the work of the club.

GERMAN SETTLERS HAVE ARRIVED AT LITTLEFIELD.

LITTLEFIELD, Lamb County, Tex., Nov. 23.—Johann K. Esau, Peter B. Loewen and Cornelius G. Loewen have arrived in Littlefield and begun making their improvements on their farms recently purchased here. These three gentlemen are the forerunners here of the large German Mennonite colony which has chosen Littlefield for their homes. These people have been coming down and buying this land for several months, and they will move in during the coming winter and spring. They have been for several years looking for a location for a colony for their young men. They are overcrowded in their present location, where they have lived for many years, and an overflow became necessary.

The fact that they are probably the most successful class of farmers in America to-day, and that they are good judges of climate and soil and the conditions which conduce to successful agricultural pursuits, make it very gratifying to people of Littlefield and the Plains country that this locality has been chosen for their colony. The present prospects are that some 150 to 200 families will locate here during the next two years.

Forbach, Germany, is said to have the most profitable town forest known. It yields an annual net gain of $12.14 an acre.

Direct Air Cooling as Emphasized in the Franklin Gives Greater Efficiency

It Costs Less, Saves Trouble and Cannot Break Down

Direct air cooling is the simple, rugged way to accomplish the necessary cooling for gas engine.

Simplicity in itself generally produces efficiency. The less mechanism involved in any device, the less the energy required to operate it. This efficiency, added to the efficiency that comes from working the engine at a higher mean temperature, results in a very material increase in total efficiency and thus gives results to the owner in gasoline mileage and total cost of operation very materially better than the average water-cooled car. It costs less because it is efficient; it saves trouble because there is nothing to look after, nothing to oil, adjust or replace.

Direct air cooling cannot break down because there is nothing to clog, freeze, leak or get out of order. The flywheel is a natural part of any gas engine and it is probably its most rugged part.

You'll learn another lesson about cars if you'll ask us or any Franklin owner to weigh a Franklin car for you.

How to Prepare Thanksgiving Bird

The incomparable American turkey, if it is to sustain its reputation, must be selected with great care. If for roasting, buy a young hen turkey, plump, with a whitish skin that is clean and soft, the legs black, the breast broad and the neck short. The flesh of an old hen is usually covered with long hairs, the legs are rough and of a reddish purple color.

Capons, which may once in a while be obtained, are very choice, as they are juicy and extremely tender. They are also high priced. Gobblers have a stronger flavor than the female bird and are not so plump. The spurs are long, and the flesh often of a reddish color. There are so many devices nowadays for preserving food an inconceivable time that it is best to buy of a reputable dealer. The appearance of the head and feet in dressed poultry shows something of its age and condition. In good stock the feet will be soft and flexible; the eyes full and bright and the flesh white. In that which has been kept too long the feet are dry and hard, flesh dark colored and eyes sunken and dull.

Old turkeys are best boiled or cooked in the kettle until nearly tender, then stuffed and browned in the oven.

When the bird is ready to cook, first singe the skin. A small alcohol lamp is most convenient for this. Pass the turkey quickly over it. Do not try to handle the lamp. Wipe with a damp towel. If not drawn, do this so carefully that the intestines are not broken. They sometimes give a taste of bitterness to the fowl. The remedy is to wash out the inside carefully with cooking soda and water.

The most famous filling for a roast turkey, and also the most costly, is of truffles. In France, their native soil, they are at their best. American cooks must use canned ones, and in spite of its reputation, many Americans only pretend to like truffled turkey. As the flavor is positive, truffles are usually mixed with mushrooms, ham or bacon. Whatever dressing may be used in poultry, do not pack it, for then it acts as a sponge to absorb the juices of the fowl, and becomes heavy.

An approved truffle filling is made from one can of the truffles, six next to the smallest, and one can of mushrooms. Chop both fine, add to them an ounce of chopped parsley and one-half teaspoonful of powdered thyme. Next place an ounce of chopped onion in a saucepan with two ounces or a tablespoonful of butter. When a faint yellow, add the mixture. Season with a level teaspoonful of white pepper and a teaspoonful of salt. Cook over a moderate fire four minutes. Stir all the time. Cool, then pack it lightly into the crop and body of the turkey. Save a little of it to put under the skin on the breast in the form of a thin layer, taking care not to break the skin. Hang in a cool place two or three days at least before cooking. The given quantity of dressing is sufficient for a turkey weighing ten or twelve pounds.

If bacon is mixed with the truffles, use an equal quantity of that which is fat and white. Chop or pound it very fine. Season with salt and pepper.

Force-Meat of oyster Filling.—A turkey filled with a force-meat of oysters has also its delights. Make a dressing from one quart of oysters, and enough stale bread in very fine crumbs to fill the bird. Use the juice from the oysters to moisten. Season to taste with salt and pepper and a stalk of celery chopped very fine. Add the oysters and mix well. A tablespoonful of chopped parsley, a bay leaf and a grated onion may be used instead of the celery. The quantity of seasoning given is for every two cups of bread crumbs used.

Chestnuts make such an appetizing and inexpensive dressing for poultry that they should be more frequently used. For this dressing, roast or boil two quarts of chestnuts, and wash them. Shell and mix with two tablespoonfuls of butter, salt and red pepper to taste. Set aside one quart of the chestnut pulp to use in the gravy. Cooked meat, veal or lamb minced is sometimes used with the chestnuts, a pint of meat to four dozen chestnuts. A third very good mixture consists of bread crumbs and chestnuts in equal quantities, well seasoned.

Mashed Potato Dressing.—Mashed white potatoes, well seasoned with herbs, salt and pepper and plenty of butter, is a dressing much liked by some families. A dressing that creates a hunger for more, whether used for turkeys, ducks or geese, is made from four cups of hot mashed potatoes, two teaspoonfuls of onion juice, eight tablespoonfuls of sweet cream, the yolks of four eggs well beaten, two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley and salt and pepper to taste. Mix thoroughly and beat until light before using. Half this quantity may be used for chicken.

A favorite plain stuffing consists of a quart of grated bread crumbs and a cupful of milk or cold water. After standing an hour or more, it is seasoned with two beaten eggs, three ounces of butter, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, a tablespoonful of onion juice and half a teaspoonful of powdered thyme, summer savory and pepper. Sometimes the herbs are omitted and only nutmeg, salt and pepper and onion juice used.

Tart oranges, sliced and served with a little oil and a dash of cayenne form one of the best relishes to serve with roast turkey.

Giblet stuffing, flavored with sherry, is liked by those who use wine in their cooking. The giblets are simmered in stock or in water until tender. Chop them fine and heat with two cupfuls of bread crumbs, three tablespoonfuls of butter, salt, pepper and sweet majoram to taste. A small glass of sherry is added just before the dressing is packed in the bird.

LOCAL PACKERY RECEIVES SECOND ORDER FROM EUROPE.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 23.—Four carloads of fresh beef have just been loaded here by a local packing plant and sent on its way to England, where it will be used to feed the soldiers of that country. Typewriter Paper at The Herald.

GAMES TO HELP DIGEST THAT THANKSGIVING DINNER.

Cut from some black paper or cloth a large turkey without a head. Pin it up at one end of the room. Make paper heads for each person present, and give them the head and a pin. Then one at a time each person is blindfolded, taken to the other side of the room, turned around several times and told to go to the turkey and place the head in its proper place. They must pin the head to the first object they touch. To the one coming the nearest to the place where the head should go is given a gilded wishbone, tied to a pretty Thanksgiving card. To the one who is the farthest from the proper place to pin the head is given a feather from a turkey, which must be worn.

All Around Thanksgiving Story Game. All are seated in a circle and one who has a knotted handkerchief in his hand begins a story about Thanksgiving. He tells enough to get everyone interested and then throws the handkerchief to some one in the circle, who must go on with the story. Each one must tell something in his story that pertains to the Thanksgiving holidays. If anyone upon receiving the handkerchief fails to tell his part of the story, he must throw the handkerchief to someone else and drop out of the circle. The one remaining till the last is the winner and gets the prize.

Blow the Turkey Feather.

All except one are seated in a square with a sheet in the center. All those seated then take hold of the sheet and hold it level. A small turkey feather is placed on the sheet and all blow it to keep it away from them. The one standing tries to get it either in front of or on some one, and then that one is to take his place, and the fun begins again.

Peanut and Feather Race.

Place peanuts about three feet apart and give each contestant a long turkey feather and at a given signal all begin to roll the peanut with the feather. The first one across the room wins. Then let a second set of contestants try. After all have tried the winners of each game try. The winner this time is the winner of the game.

HAVE WE LOST FAITH!

From the New York Evening Sun. . . . When I follow in your paper the daily toll of the war, the thousands of lives sacrificed to the greed or vainglory of nations, unoffending women and children thrown out into the world penniless, homeless and robbed of husbands and sons, I wonder how it can be that an all powerful Being allows such a state of things to keep up. For what is all our effort at progress and our striving toward usefulness and achievement if we are to be torn to pieces and thrown into the ditches? Of what use all our millions a year and the sacrifices of good men and women to convert the heathen to our way of thinking when we in turn imitate the wild beasts in our ferocity toward our fellow man and turn the strength of our arms and the ingenuity of our brains toward annihilating one another?

Our day of prayer for peace was unavailing and our peace parades came to nothing. Is it because we asked without faith? Have we really lost faith, or are we being punished for having attained wings like the bird, for chaining the lightning and blotting out the sun with the smoke of battle?

Our President has asked us to be neutral. I think we are neutral in the way he meant. That is, the cumulative horror of the thing seems to have strangled such expressions as "I hope Germany will win" or "I have no doubt that the Allies will win." The big question is: How much longer, O Lord, is the door of this vast slaughter house of the great and brave of all nations to be kept open? We are not worrying any longer about how it started or what nation is in the lead; we are concerned only about when it shall stop. We know that the conflict has passed beyond the bounds of human intervention. Only the Father may stretch out His hand and stay the destruction, and He has apparently turned His face away.

I am groping in doubt and dismay. What do you think? That day when we all prayed for peace—do you think we asked without faith?

Have we lost faith? A MOTHER.

JAP AND CHINESE FARMERS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 23.—There are 760 Chinese and 3,502 Japanese farmers in the United States, and the majority of them are tenant farmers that pay cash rentals, according to a report issued to-day by the United States Department of Agriculture. The average size of these farms is about 65 acres. California, Texas, Colorado, Washington, Oregon, Utah, Nebraska, Idaho, New Mexico, Arizona and Montana are the states which contain the bulk of the Jap and Chinese farmers.

HIGH PRICE PAID FOR STEER CALVES AT SAN ANGELO.

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Nov. 23.—According to San Angelo stockmen, a new record has been established in price of steers per head in this section. The high-water mark was reached a few days ago, when C. W. Shield sold 150 steer calves to M. B.

Pulliam for $25 per head. This is the highest amount ever paid for this class of live stock in this territory, if not in the State.

HANDSOME BEADS.

W In Doubt Buy Them For Milady or the Young Girl.

Nothing gives a pretty matron or a young girl more pleasure than to find upon Christmas morning gifts for her personal adornment. The beads shown in the shops just before holiday time are even more exquisite than at any other time of year.

Illustrated here are only a few instances of the many bewildering varieties. Following is a formula for a string of scented beads which can be made at home with very little trouble and expense:

Spice beads may be made by first procuring 10 cents' worth of allspice at the store and soaking it in water until soft. If desired the water may be darkened by the addition of a little ink. String through the center, alternating with any colored bead you may desire.

Then there are the rose beads. The bouquet of roses or any flower, in fact, may be converted into beads by boiling up fresh flowers with some mixture that makes the product look like dough; then the beads are kneaded by hand. This may serve to call your attention to the fact that this can be done, and then you may be able to find a formula for doing it.

Gifts Made of Willow.

What could be prettier in the up to date boudoir of any one than a willow lamp to match her willow chairs and the willow table and desk that she was given for her room? And really these willow house furnishings are the prettiest things! They make a room look so summery and comfortable at all times of the year. There is a general tendency toward simplicity in all sorts of house furnishings and in no place is this so marked as in the bedrooms and dressing rooms. Nothing that is not absolutely necessary is admitted in the up to date apartment, bungalow or small house, but the table lamp in the bedroom is one of the necessities, and the person who receives a Christmas gift of a pretty lamp like this will be very happy. Of course it is an electric lamp and can be moved from room to room if so desired.

Cheap Christmas Gifts.

Here is a suggestion for the girl who has little to spend for the pleasure of gift giving: Get a yard of fine handkerchief linen, which will make nine handkerchiefs. Fifteen cents' worth of floss will work a neat scallop and a simple design in one corner of these, and you have nine hand embroidered linen handkerchiefs, and have you a friend who would not appreciate one? One evening will suffice for stamping. Then keep one where you can and will pick it up when you have nothing special to do, and you will have them finished without just knowing when you did it. Ten cents for a gift you may be proud of, too! Carefully chain stitch the scallop before embroidering. This will answer for a filling and also help to prevent fraying when the handkerchief is laundered.

NURSERY CHINA.

The Kiddies Are the Ones Who Should Be Pleased at Yuletide.

There can never be too much new china bought for the nursery. Cups, plates and bowls have a way of getting themselves smashed that is nothing short of magical.

Baby fingers are not very tenacious, and, as we all know, baby tempers are precarious, so the nursery must have its Christmas gifts.

In a quaint old street in Boston town there is a school where schoolgirls learn the potter's handicraft. They learn the entire potter's art, including designing, and often choose this for a life work. The bowl and pitcher and plate pictured here were designed by a girl in the school, the shape, decorations and coloring.

The coloring is in the wonderful petunia shades, the decorations being in a darker shade than the background. They are of the traditional folklore where the little old woman busily sweeps the cobwebs from a faintly pink sky. This would be an ideal set for the baby's luncheon. The pretty colors would distract his eyes and make him eat his bread and milk.

Cross Stitch Makes Pretty Gifts.

There appears to be a revival in favor of the old fashioned cross stitch. When well done it makes pretty foot rests, backs and seats of chairs or pretty table mats for the living room, where white does not seem appropriate. A border in cross stitch on a table runner would make a beautiful Christmas gift. Keep the colors appropriate for the room where you know it will be used, and then you will not be chagrined by never seeing your gift to your friend adorning the place where it was meant to go.

So many gifts are made and received at Yuletide that must needs be packed away in lavender and rose leaves instead of being placed where they are constant reminders of the givers.

Three Gift Suggestions.

Artificial flowers are now no less the rage in this country than they are in Paris. So true is this fact that a woman's afternoon toilet is considered in complete without a corsage of violets and orchids or at least a single rose or camellia. Wonderfully delicate looking camellias with a small spray of green leaves are shown among the newest imported flowers. Then there are the directoire roses, worn either on a muff or at the girdle. These roses are made of delicate blended tints of soft satin in the real rose colors.

Nowadays, with different colored gloves for every costume, women feel they cannot have too many gloves in their glove boxes. Heavy, plain ones are counted among the most serviceable walking gloves, and those with one clasp may be had for $1 a pair. Then there are perfectly stunning gloves made in black, white and gray, as well as in the delicate popular tones. These are especially attractive because of the broad stitching on the back.

Handkerchiefs, especially in the better quality, are counted among the most suitable Christmas gifts. Though dainty and serviceable, they are especially inviting when sent in a fancy box with a pretty Christmas card. The assortment is extremely large. Among the prettiest are those made of fine linen edged with German and the somewhat coarser madras embroidery.

Dainty Boudoir Sack.

A charming little boudoir sack is being made by a young woman for all her friends this year. The sack is fashioned from a square of thin silk bordered with three inch Dresden ribbon. A circle is cut in the center of the square for a neck opening, and a slash extends from this opening down through one corner of the square, the points thus falling at front and back and over each arm. Opening and slash are bound with ribbon, and ribbon ties are added at the neck.

"GERMANS AT VALOR'S SHRINE."

Dr. Elliot Says That the War Makers Have Lost the Ideals of Righteousness.

From the Boston Transcript.

Dr. Charles W. Elliot spoke at the opening meeting of the New England Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools on "The Place of Culture."

While specifying the school, the academy or the university as a means to culture, he found opportunity to say that Germany "is suddenly making manifest to the whole world its belief in a thoroughly pagan religion of valor."

"The really cultivated man," said the speaker, "must be quick of perception, responsive but independent, self-reliant but deferential, loving truth and candor, courageous but gentle, not finished but perfected, not exclusive sectarian or partisan. All these things are to be attained, not in solitude, but in society." Commenting on deference, Doctor Elliot said that the fact that modern education does not include deference in the young is a defect, and in regard to moderation, he declared that certain newspapers are so packed with superlatives and exaggeration that cultivation is plainly lacking.

"The best atmosphere for true culture," Doctor Elliot continued, "is the school, the university or academy, where many may pursue together the ideals of truth, righteousness and love."

"We have to-day the spectacle of an entire nation, cultivated in every way in literature, in science, in art, making suddenly manifest to the whole world that it has lost these ideals of truth, love and righteousness and has substituted a thoroughly pagan religion of valor."

BLONDES HAVE HUNDRED FORTY THOUSAND HAIRS.

From the Philadelphia Record.

An old Philadelphia physician, who has a fondness for delving into unusual realms of science, has recently come forth with a statement as to the number of hairs in the average person's head. The venerable doctor says that the number of hairs varies according to the color. He has discovered in his research that light or blond hair is the most luxuriant, the average of this color being 140,000 hairs. If the hair is brown, he asserts, the number is much less, being only 110,000, while black hairs reach the average number of 103,000. The doctor taking such a keen interest in this subject, strange to say, is totally bald. His investigation has further revealed that hair which is the highest in color is also the lightest in weight, thus a lady with abundant flaxen locks carries far less weight than one whose tresses are of a raven hue.

WHY A BASEBALL CURVES.

There is an interesting bit of apparatus built in the Physical Laboratory of the University of Texas which indicates the difference in pressure on the two sides of a baseball that causes it to curve. In an article published in the Popular Science Monthly for August (1913), I. LeRoy Brown, instructor in Physics at the University, gives a scientific explanation based upon the well-known principle in physics of the curve which the baseball pitcher imparts to the ball.

The Extension Department of the University of Texas distributed above 200,000 pieces of literature during the past year. Each circular and bulletin represents thorough work on the part of a competent person addressing himself to some social, economic, or educational subject of vital concern to the people of Texas.

WHERE MOTION PICTURE FILMS ARE PRODUCED.

New York Furnishes Scenes for Any Variety of Motion Picture Play Writers' Produce.

Charles M. Seay, in the New York Sun. The motion picture, or the visualized story as we see it to-day, is scarcely five years old, and, naturally, from all points of view, it is young in many ways. The technique is hardly developed. That being so, it is to be expected that the attention to detail is not what it should be, not from indifference, but rather from lack of experience. Nevertheless, great care is exercised by the conscientious director to get his production as nearly correct as he knows how.

A hard-working director will spend a lot of time looking for the right place for his scenes. Buildings of peculiar types or those that are difficult to find for scenic purposes are generally built in the studio, and it is hard to get away from the evident artificiality. A good illustration is the imitation stone walls in "Cabiria." The real buildings are much preferred, and the reason is obvious.

Varied Scenery in New York.

New York City and its environs supply the best field in the Western World for the motion picture maker. Here a greater variety of scenery is at hand than is found in any other American city. Nearly any kind of atmosphere that is desired in the making of motion pictures can be got here. Tropical scenes, taken within New York City's limits, have been so well faked that they were very deceiving. The atmosphere of any section of the United States or of any of its cities can be duplicated around New York well enough to fool the generally wary.

In some of the new sections of Brooklyn you can find spots that are exact counterparts of cities like Denver, Chicago, Spokane or any of the new American towns. Some of the bungalow colonies of Long Island du-PLICATE Southern California. The big estates around Smithtown are used for Southern homes or English manors. The Bartow mansion on the Pell estate, now Pelham Bay Park, has been the scene of many stirring dramatic moments in the silent drama. It has been a southern plantation home, Washington's headquarters, the home of Colonel Stafford in Thomas Nelson Page's delightful "Captured Santa Claus," the palace of some great lord, etc., and each part it has played well.

The places used for motion picture scenes are called "locations." The better the knowledge of these locations the director has the better he can do his work. If you were asked by one of these gentlemen suddenly, "Where can I get a rail fence in twenty minutes?" could you tell him? Yet such a thing is to be had near New York, though rail fences are scarce articles in this section. There are a couple of them between Scarsdale and Ardsley.

Western Scenes in Jersey.

Over in Jersey, where they raise the genuine Western cow puncher, many Wild Western dramas for the motion picture have been made. The rock formation in this vicinity is all right for mining scenes. Care has to be exercised not to get the everlasting sunchance in the foliage. Down on Staten Island is a splendid location for a lumber camp. A lot of timber is being cut for some improvements that are being made and the logs are being snaked as in a regular camp and the cabins of the employees make excellent shacks for the lumberjacks.

For a picturesque mining camp and one that looks real, the shanties that the contractors left standing at Croton Dam are tumbledown enough, and when a few fake signs are put up, the result projected on the scene in a motion picture theater will fool a lot of people who think they know.

If you are a diplomat, palaces are to be had for the asking. One very rich man said he had no objection to legitimate motion picture makers using his estate, and it is a princely one, for, he explained, moving pictures were great educators and a delightful source of amusement for millions, and residences like his could not be built by the manufacturers just to make pictures around. His magnificent yacht is to be had for the same purpose, that is, if you know how to approach him.

Over in Riverdale some mansions that Royalty would not spurn are to be had by the right persons. If the wealthy are not interested, how could these beautiful places be used for the picture plays? Princesses, millionaires and the "idle rich" could not be portrayed on the screen, as the film makers could not give them the right kind of homes to live in.

Have to "Fake" Interiors.

Of course, all this refers to the outside scenes. Nearly every motion picture fan knows that as yet no negative film has been made that is fast enough to take pictures inside of houses without artificial light. To carry the necessary plant around would not be practicable. The interiors of these beautiful homes have, therefore, to be duplicated in the studios.

French and English street scenes are got by picking out spots along Fifth Avenue or any other street that has residences of the type desired and using them for a background. In the different sections of the city where certain nationalities have their communities it isn't difficult to secure any foreign atmosphere wanted.

In the big shopping centers are plenty of locations and lots of atmosphere, but the difficult thing is to get it on a film so that it will seem natural. The novice will encounter a lot of obstacles and may quit in disgust. The public at large is very much interested in pictures, and it requires skill to make the pictures without attracting attention. Ninety-nine persons out of one hundred will stop to have a look when a picture is being made, as they hope some time to see a picture made and then later to run across it in a theater.

For scenes like this the wise director will release his people beforehand. His camera man is in a limousine with his machine well hidden save for the nose of the lens. When all is ready the director will start a system of wigwagging from across the street. Then the motor car with the camera man and the actors will all assemble at a given point with as little fuss as possible. If all goes well, in about forty seconds or less the scene is made and the characters are in a motor car shooting down the street just as the crowd commences to gather. Forty-five seconds is the limit of time that a motion picture crowd can count on having to themselves, and they must be clever to fool an average crowd of New York pedestrians. Scenes have been stolen in Herald Square in front of one of the biggest department stores in the world at noon on a busy day without any of the passersby suspecting what was going on. The characters came out of the store and did what they had to and acted as if they were just customers out shopping.

KANSAS CITY RESERVE BANK GETS MORE THAN MILLION A DAY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 21.—The total received by the Federal reserve bank in Kansas City yesterday was $1,319,382.40. This is about the same amount that was received Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The tellers and checkers are working day and night receiving the heavy shipments of gold, coming both by parcels post and express. Jerome Thralls, the cashier, was at his desk until 11 o'clock last night working over the day's business.

The first payment from any of the Kansas City member banks was made yesterday, when the Southwest National Bank of Commerce turned over its required amount. The remaining local banks probably will follow with their deposits to-day or to-morrow.

KANSAS CITY STOCK MARKET IN DETAIL.

KANSAS CITY STOCK YARDS, Nov. 23.—The cattle market closes the week firm on nearly everything, middle grades of steers undergoing some vicissitudes last two days, considered a temporary condition. Order buyers have exhibited a strong desire for good to choice steers, and have gone into the country in search of them. The best cattle offered here sold at $10.25 to $10.75, including yearlings at $10.40. Local killers have bought cows greedily, and bulls are 25 to 40 cents higher.

Range stock is in much lighter supply, and yearlings and twos find quick sale at stronger prices. Kansas is the heaviest buyer, and together with Missouri and Nebraska is able to take everything in the stocker and feeder lines offered.

Hereford men from various parts of the country attending the annual meeting of the Association here yesterday who have been watching the fight on foot and mouth disease keenly, predict that the quarantine will be raised in two to four weeks. Until it is raised, and cattle are permitted to move without restrictions, Kansas City patrons will derive great benefit from the Eastern order trade, now centered here. Various tests with St. Joseph and St. Louis this week show prices here materially higher than at those markets.

Receipts of quarantine cattle are 100 cars less than last week, but are double the receipts of a year ago this week, 160 cars in all this week. Quality in the quarantine offerings is lacking, the best steers of the week here to-day, at $7.35, middle grade steers at $6.25 to $6.90, 15 to 25 cents above last week.

The hog market is making a quick recovery from the severe break of the middle of the week. Receipts were only 6,000 to-day, and it was the keenest kind of a market, prices up to 15 to 25 cents, order buyers taking the lead. Top was $7.85, bulk of sales $7.60 to $7.80. Top price in Chicago to-day is 25 cents under top here, and St. Louis top is 27½ cents under Kansas City, bulk of sales here ranging above the top price paid at either Chicago or St. Louis. This condition is due to the order buying trade here. The quick recovery of the market lends color to the prediction that prices will remain good under stress of the strong competition from big and little killers alike.

Sheep and lambs quit the week barely steady, the weakness due to high prevailing prices rather than to heavy supplies, as receipts have fallen below estimates each day this week. Best lambs bring $9, medium fed lambs around $8.60, fat ewes $5.75, feeding lambs $6.50 to $7. Unless receipts increase, stronger prices will be paid next week. J. A. RICKART, Market Correspondent.

HOLDING PLAN PERFECTED.

The cotton-holding plan of the Texas Bankers' Association was placed on a permanent basis at a meeting at Dallas last week, when the movement was officially endorsed by officials of the Texas Farmers' Union. This union on the part of the growers of cotton and the men who finance the crop is considered by conservative business men as the most encouraging step in the cotton-holding movement, and it is believed that the culmination of the plan in bringing together these two forces will have an immediate effect of restoring the cotton situation to a normal basis.

EXAMPLE OF CO-OPERATION.

The gradual stamping out of the hoof-and-mouth disease is another striking example of the benefits that come from co-operation. In dealing with this National peril, the officials of the Department of Agriculture have worked in co-operation with owners and shippers of cattle and with officials of state departments, and the result is that the spread of the epidemic has been stopped. Heroic measures were necessary and millions of cattle were slaughtered, entailing an enormous loss to owners, but the bright light that shines out from this great disaster is the spirit of co-operation that prevailed among the workers who were fighting this deadly malady and the forgetfulness of selfish interests which made them one in stamping it out.

Thanksgiving Hints For the Housewife

Pumpkin Custard.

Stem enough pumpkin to make one cupful of mashed pumpkin; add to it, while hot, a teaspoonful of butter, and sprinkle over it a teaspoonful of flour; mix. Beat the yolks of three eggs with four tablespoonfuls of sugar, add a saltspoonful of salt, and one pint of milk; stir the pumpkin into this. Flavor with either brandy or cinnamon, turn into a baking-dish, and bake until "set." Beat the whites to a stiff froth; add three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, and beat until fine; heap over the custard, dust with sugar, and brown in the oven. Serve warm or cold.

Halibut Steaks.

For eight people, purchase two one-pound steaks; trim off the skin and remove the bone. Cut each steak into four pieces; dust these pieces with salt and black pepper, dip them in egg beaten with a tablespoon of water, dust them with bread crumbs, and fry in deep, hot fat. Drain, dish, and garnish the dish prettily with lemon and parsley.

Ginger Sherbet.

Put six ounces of dry preserved ginger through the meat grinder. Boil one quart of water with one pound of sugar for five minutes; take from the fire, add the ground ginger and the juice of three lemons, and stand aside until very cold. Freeze until the consistency of ice cream, turning very rapidly toward the end. This will serve eight persons.

Fried Apples.

Core nice, solid, tart apples, cut them into slices a half-inch thick, dust them lightly with sugar and cinnamon, roll them in flour, and saute them in a small amount of hot suet; when one side is brown, turn them, and brown the other. Drain onto paper, dish with one slice overlapping the other, and serve.

Cranberry Tarts.

Cover the outside of small pattypans with puff-paste, and bake in a moderately quick oven until light; lift them from the patty pans, and you will have a cup or a patty-pan shell; stand them away until wanted. Put one quart of cranberries with a pound of sugar in a baking-dish, and bake until clear. At serving time, fill the cranberries into the patty shells, dust with powdered sugar, and bake sufficiently long to make them hot and to glaze the top.

Sauce Hollandaise.

Melt a half-pound of butter in a double boiler; pour it carefully into a bowl. Put four tablespoonfuls of tarragon vinegar, a slice of onion, a bit of bay leaf, and a clove into a saucepan, and boil until reduced to one-half; stand aside. Beat the yolks of four eggs in a bowl, stand it in a pan of warm water, and add gradually, beating all the while the warm, melted butter; this must be the consistency of mayonnaise dressing. Add the vinegar and stand aside in a warm place, but not near the fire; the least heating will cause the sauce to separate.

Truffle Sauce.

Put two ounces of finely-chopped, uncooked, lean ham, a slice of onion, a bay leaf, and a small blade of mace into one quart of good beef stock, and reduce it by boiling to one pint; strain. Rub together two level tablespoonfuls of butter and three of flour; add the stock, stir until boiling, add a half-can of mushrooms, sliced, and two tablespoonfuls of chopped truffles, a teaspoonful of salt, a half-saltspoonful of salt, a half-saltspoonful of black pepper; boil just a minute, take from the fire, and add two tablespoonfuls of Madeira. Serve with truffled turkey.

Truffled Turkey.

Prepare the turkey with chestnut stuffing, truss it in good shape; if you have a truffle needle, use it; if not, make several incisions with a sharp knife over the breast of the turkey, put in each incision a thin slice of truffle, and pull over the skin. At roasting time, baste the turkey with butter and roast as an ordinary turkey.

Mint Punch, Frozen.

Strip the leaves from two, dozen good stalks of mint, chop the leaves fine, and rub them to a pulp with a half-pound of sugar; add one quart of water; bring to a boil, boil for five minutes; cool, and add three drops of vegetable green coloring and the juice of two lemons; strain, and when cold freeze, turning slowly all the while. This will serve eight persons.

Deviled Oysters.

A nice Thanksgiving Day supper dish. Drain and wash fifty oysters; throw them into a hot sauce pan, shake until the gills curl, then drain, saving the liquor. Turn the oysters onto a board, and chop them fine with a silver knife. Rub together four tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour, add the oyster liquor and sufficient milk to make a pint; stir until boiling; add the oysters, the beaten yolks of two eggs, a level teaspoonful of salt, and a dash of cayenne. Reheat quickly, without boiling, and serve on squares of toasted bread. Be careful not to curdle the mixture.

Sausage Croquettes for Turkey

Garnish.

Purchase one pound of sausage meat, add to it one cupful of soft bread crumbs, form into balls the size of English walnuts, dip in beaten eggs, roll in bread crumbs, and fry in deep, hot fat.

Sweet Potato Balls.

Bake six medium-sized sweet potatoes. When done, remove the skins, press the potatoes through a sieve, add two level tablespoonfuls of butter, a teaspoonful of salt, and a dash of black pepper. Mix thoroughly, form into small balls the size of English walnuts, dip in an egg beaten with a tablespoon of water, roll in bread crumbs, and fry in deep, hot fat. These may be alternated with the sausages balls as a garnish for the turkey.

Mince Meat for Two Pies.

Put a half-pound of cold roast beef and two ounces of raw suet through the meat chopper. Shred two ounces of citron and two ounces of orange peel. Mix one pound of seeded raisins and a half pound of currants, and flour them lightly with a tablespoon of flour. Peel, quarter, and chop one pound of apples. Mix all the ingredients together; add a level teaspoonful of ground cinnamon, a half-teaspoonful of allspice, and four tablespoonfuls of sugar; add sufficient orange juice, cider or grape juice to make it the desired consistency, and stand aside for at least one week before using. When ready to use, add a half-cupful of sifted cracker crumbs, and, if you use it, four tablespoonfuls of brandy.

Vegetarian Mince Pie.

If you are not going to use this at once, do not add the cracker crumbs until baking time.
