FORMING STOCK COMPANY FOR AMUSEMENT PARK

WILL TAKE OVER LAKE PLAINVIEW, IMPROVE AND CONDUCT IT FOR PEOPLE

A stock company of $25,000 capital is being formed of well known local people, for the purpose of taking over the Lake Plainview property, improving same, and conducting it as a public park.

P. R. Hauck is circulating the stock subscription list, and the following citizens have signed for $1,000 each—P. R. Hauck, A. G. Hinn, P. J. Woodriddle, J. H. Slaton, L. A. Knight, E. H. Humphreys, J. P. Crawford, R. W. O'Keefe, and Cobb and Cox signed for $500. The list will be circulated until the entire amount is secured.

It is proposed to put a pump in the irrigation well, which has a capacity of about 1,500 gallons of water a minute; the lake will be improved and beautified, a swimming pool arranged, boats and gasoline launches provided, a pavilion erected, and other necessities and amusements added, and the people of the community will be able to take advantage of the attractions.

The concessions, etc., will furnish a revenue for the owners, but it is understood that the city will have an option to take over the property at any time it so desires.

Plainview needs a public park and it is hoped that the people will encourage the organization of the proposed company.

Threshers Are Running

The wheat in the Plainview country is now about all cut, and the threshers are working full time. The yields are averaging well, some reporting above forty bushels, and very few less than twenty bushels to the acre.

Jarvis & Barber have 800 acres near Plainview. They have threshed 200 acres, which averaged thirty-three bushels to the acre, and they sold same for above $13,000. They say the other six hundred acres will average as much, and if so they will get more than $52,000 off the eight hundred acres.

May Stop Oil Drilling

R. C. Ware came in Saturday from the Burkburnett oil fields. He says oil wells are being brought in very close to the holdings of the R. C. Ware Oil Co.

The proposition of the state forbidding further drilling for thirty days of oil wells in that pool in order to allow the pipe lines and other transportation facilities to be extended to take care of the oil, is interesting to the oil people, and it is thought that such a rule would be a good thing, as so much oil is being wasted as the carriers are unable to handle it.

Amarillo Elks Win Game

In a very fast game of baseball at Lamar park in Plainview Sunday afternoon, the Amarillo Elks defeated the Plainview Elks, the score being three to two, thus evening up for the Plainview team won in the game played the Sunday before at Amarillo.

Brought in Big Well

Dr. J. A. Ferguson, who is at Santa Anna looking after the drilling of a well on the lands held by a Plainview syndicate, wired yesterday morning that a well had been brought in near by which was throwing oil fifty feet over the derrick, it being the biggest well in the Santa Anna district.

Form Land Agency

E. H. Perry and Matt Cram have formed a co-partnership in the land and oil lease agency business, and will pay special attention to encouraging people from the oil regions to buy land in the Plainview country.

Going Over Renditions

The commissioners' court is in session going over the renditions and property assessments, and notifying those whose renditions are considered too low to come in and show reason why same should not be increased.

Expect a Boom for Cider

New York apple growers believe national prohibition is going to create a large demand for home-made cider. Sweet cider is a wholesome drink and a fine regulator, beating all the other laxatives on the market.

STATE AND FEDERAL ROAD MONEY IS EXHAUSTED

Highway Engineer Says Government Co-operates With Counties on 25 Per Cent Basis

Capt. Fauntelroy, engineer of the state highway department, was here Friday, and was in conference with the roads committee of the City Board of Development and the commissioners' court. He told the local people that no bond issues for road improvement would be approved or co-operation extended except on roads that are permanent, and expected to last the life of the bond issue. On such roads the government co-operates on a 25 per cent basis. However, just now the federal and state road funds are exhausted, and none can be secured until congress makes another appropriation, or the proposed $75,000,000 state road bond issue to be voted on in November is authorized.

County Judge Clements has a letter from the state highway department saying Hale county has been apportioned $150,000, on a contingency that $500,000 in bonds be issued, but this is evidently a mistake, and most likely it is Hall and not Hale county that is referred to, as no such apportionment has been made from this county.

Capt. Fauntelroy made an investigation of the standpits here, and said that the sand would do in making concrete cushion for brick paved roads. He said he would assist Hale county in every way he could to put a good road movement over.

Airplane to Patrol Border

San Diego, Calif., July 10.—The Mexican border from the Pacific Ocean to the Gulf of Mexico will be patrolled from dawn to dusk by military airplanes traveling at an average height of 4,000 feet; it was announced today by Colonel Henry H. Arnold, aeronautical officer of the Western Department of the army. The aerial patrol will begin as soon as the squadrons can be organized.

Aviators from Rockwell and Ream fields near here will patrol the border from Juana to Yuma, and aviators from Ellington and Kelly fields, Texas, will watch the border from Yuma to Brownsville.

Austria Will Be Admitted

Paris, July 9.—Austria will be admitted to membership in the League of Nations as soon as the allied and associated powers consider that she possesses a responsible government with both the will and the power to fulfill its international obligations. The Austrian delegation has been so informed in a reply by the supreme council of the peace conference to an Austrian plea for immediate admission to the league.

Vetoes "Daylight" Repeal Bill

President Wilson disappointed thousands of people Saturday when he vetoed the repeal of the so-called "daylight-saving" bill, which had been adopted by congress. Influence of Sam Gompers and union labor seem to dominate the president these days. On Monday an effort was made to pass the bill over the veto, but the necessary two-thirds was lacking by a few votes.

Lumbermen are Busy

On account of so much building in the way of granaries, feed bins and pens, the lumbermen are very busy putting out material these days.

The lumbermen expect a great building movement to begin in this section as soon as the grain is sold.

Wheat Averages 25 Bushels

The wheat in the Lockney section is averaging about twenty-five bushels to the acres, says the Beacon. Some crops are making as much as forty bushels to the acre. The oats crop is yielding well.

Grocery and Market

F. D. Barnes has opened a grocery store in the building next to the Texas Utilities Co. office, and will in a few days add a meat market to the business.

Many Harvest Hands Arriving

Every day quite a number of harvest hands arrive from down the state and go to work in the fields in the Plainview country.

G. M. Armstrong of Floydada has taken the Oldsmobile agency for nine counties in this section, including Hale county. His headquarters will be at Floydada.

Senatorial Election Yesterday

There was but little interest in the special election held yesterday to elect a state senator to succeed W. S. Bell, deceased. There were two candidates, Bledsoe of Lubbock and Templeton of Wellington, and in Hale county Bledsoe won by a decided majority. So far no returns have been received to find out who won in the district, as the reports are slow in coming in.

Arrested for Operating Distillery

Earnest Barth, a farmer living near Hale Center, was arrested Saturday and lodged in jail here, on a charge of operating the home made distillery found last week in a wheat field in that community. The arrest was made by a federal deputy marshal from Dallas.

Suits Filed on Paving Contract

J. N. Jordan et al have filed suits in district court against Harp & Wilkins, for something more than $3,200, alleging that the defendants have failed and refused to pay them for street paving alongside their property on North Broadway and North Ash streets in the fall of 1917. It will be remembered that there was considerable contention at the time over the matter.

Shipments of Wheat

The movement of wheat is beginning in earnest. Six or seven carloads are being shipped out each day.

Claude B. Hurlbut of Lubbock was here yesterday, and went on to Hereford.

PROMPT ACTION NEEDED TO HALT FOOD COMBINE

Would Dominate Principal Food Product of the Country

Washington, July 11.—An approaching packer domination of all important foods in the United States and an international control of meat products with foreign companies seems a certainty unless fundamental action is taken to prevent it, the federal trade commission declared today in part one of its report to President Wilson on "the extent and growth of power of the five packers in meat and other industries."

"A fair consideration of the course the five packers have followed and the position they have already reached," said the report, "must lead to the conclusion that they threaten the freedom of the market of the country's food industries and of the by-products of the industries linked therewith. The meat packer control of other foods will not require long in developing."

Declaring "the history of the packers' growth is interwoven with illegal commissions, rebates and with undisclosed control of corporations," the report urged the importance of full publicity of corporate ownership for all industries.

Will Erect Memorial Fountain

The citizens of Randall county will erect a monument in honor of the ten men who gave their lives for their country during the great war.

The monument decided upon is a beautiful marble fountain, standing 6 feet high, which will be placed in the Court House. On the side of it in bronze raised letters will appear the names of the ten men who gave their lives to their country.

It has been further decided to place upon the wall of the court house a bronze Hero Tablet, containing the names of the 210 men who went into service from Randall county.

The total cost of both of these memorials will be one thousand dollars.

PRAIRIEVIEW

July 15.—People are very busy threshing this week. The wheat is averaging from 20 to 35 bushels per acre.

The feed crops are beginning to need rain.

Wedding bells have again chimed in our neighborhood. Sunday morning Mr. Clay G. Williams of this community, and Miss Eleanor Brice of near Fort Worth were quietly married in Plainview. The bride came in on the 8 o'clock train and was met by the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Raper. They were driven to the home of Rev. A. B. Roberts, where the ceremony was performed at 9:00 o'clock.

Mr. Williams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Williams, who lives northeast of Plainview. It will be remembered by many that the bride taught the Prairieview school four years ago and is a very amiable young lady. The entire community joins the writer in wishing them a long and prosperous life. They will make their home six miles northeast of town.

The committee reported it had secured the half-block across the street southwest of the Methodist church, from L. G. Wilson, and it was decided to put four tennis and two croquet courts on the property, for the use of the young people of the town. Also, a basket ball ground was secured at the high school.

The committees in charge of the proposed community house and the public swimming pool were continued, and will make an effort to put these propositions into actualities.

From now on the work of the association will be conducted by the executive committee, composed of the officers and the chairmen of the four or five standing committees, and reports will be made to them. If at any time public meeting are necessary, they will be held.

Not Guilty.

The Silkeston Herald says that when a negro left a train at Charleston recently carrying a heavy suitcase very carefully and acting suspiciously, the authorities thought they had caught a bootlegger redhanded. Large Amount of Pine Delivered.

Deliveries of Southern pine to the United States government from July 1, 1917, to May 28, 1918, were 2,600,000,000 feet, which, it is estimated, would require a solid train of cars extending from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian border, and would make a board-walk three feet wide extending six times around the world, or build a solid board fence 50 feet high that would circle the geographical borders of the United States.

An Insistent Insult

When Barbara reached the station in Lucca the train was almost clanking out.

"Pronti!" yelled the little-legged conductor, and the engine began its penny-whistle toot.

There was no time to hunt for a compartment reserved for women only. Barbara dashed for the nearest door and climbed in just as the wheels creaked starting. She waved a hand to the Partridges, the friends whom she left behind.

There was a question ventured from them relative to women traveling alone.

"I guess an American girl can take care of herself," Barbara answered jauntily. "But you may telegraph the Bensons to meet the train in Florence. I forgot that."

Then distance reduced her to "By-by" and another wave of the hand. The compartment was empty, anyway, except that in the farther corner was an Italian, come from Pisa, doubtless. But he was asleep and didn't matter.

She slipped open the Ruskin that had been the cause of the Partridges' discomfiture.

"Mornings in Florence" it was, and she read "Before the Soldan" in anticipation of a new visit to Santa Croce.

Oh, dear, there was so much to see! She hoped she would remember most of it when she got back to Detroit. Her woman's club wanted her to talk on the history of Italian art; she talked very well for a girl of twenty-four, if she did thank it herself.

At Pistoia a man climbed in at the door opposite, without jolting the Italian. Barbara slapped open her book again, and read "The Golden Gate." She must remember that Ghirlandajo wasn't great, after all; Ruskin said so. She didn't deign to notice the intruder who sat down opposite the sleeper.

But the intruder apparently deigned to notice her. She could catch a hint of a sight of him out of the corner of her eye, enough to know, well, he had reason; though Barbara only half admitted to herself she admitted it.

Now, however, the newcomer actually dared to move over and sit opposite her. She was too deep in Ruskin to care, of course, but it was queer. And, well—I never! Was he speaking to her?

"Lel parla inglese, signorina?" Barbara looked up blankly. She skimmed details; brown hair and eyes, good eyebrows, clean-cut face; thirty-five, she thought, perhaps a little more.

"Suppose I do?" Barbara answered pettily.

"Well, then—perhaps—you will allow me to talk to you?" the man replied, in the intonation of the British Isle.

"Why should I?" said Barbara. "We're both English."

"I'm not, and you know it. I suppose you think that you can talk to me because I'm an American. You English always think us unconventional. So we are, but—" Barbara paused, breathless. She was taking care of herself.

"I didn't mean to offend you—really. I beg your pardon."

He said it like a gentleman. Barbara felt she had been rude.

"I'm not offended," she said amiably. "It's just my way."

"American?" quizzically. Seeing his eyes, she liked him for the snap.

"Perhaps; but I'm too patriotic to admit it."

He looked at her.

"You must forgive me for speaking to you. I have a reason."

Barbara did not blurt the "Well, I never!" but it thumped inside of her. Then she fell to glancing at the only reason conceivable, and was pleased.

"You may talk if you wish. What do you want to talk about?"

He cast a half-glance at the Ruskin in her lap.

"You are interested in painting?" he suggested.

"Yes, I'm looking it up. Been to Lucca to see the Fra Bartolommeos—interesting influence on Raphael."

She poured the phrases headlong. The stranger smiled.

"You Americans are very energetic," he said.

"Don't you care about pictures?"

"Oh, yes," he answered, "in a lazy way. I have a few at home—old family Vandykes, you know, and some portraits of the eighteenth century. I'm looking a bit about me here. Been to Pistoia for a few days, looking for a Lorenzo di Credi; staying now at Prato for a few days—the elder Lippi at his best, you know, all over the choir."

"Yes, I know. I haven't seen the Prato frescos yet; but I'm going to run out to them from Florence."

"Why don't you stop off now at Prato? We'll soon be there. I'd like to show the pictures to you. There's another train for Florence in two hours."

This time Barbara did blurt out: "Well, I never!"

Then she added, with pert, offended dignity: "My friends will meet me in Florence station."

She italicized the sentence as she spoke it, to show the man that she was well protected.

"I shall read my Ruskin till I get there," she added saucily, ripping the book open upside down.

"I want you not to consider me rude," he answered.

"I'm not considering you at all." Barbara snapped, her eyes riveted on the topsyturvy volume. "You can wake up that Italian and talk to him if you still feel in need of conversation."

She noticed with exasperation what was wrong with Ruskin, and turned the book about.

"I should not continue to bother you if I didn't have a reason. It is really necessary that I should talk to you."

Barbara studied Ruskin. "What my reason is I cannot explain; but it is very serious."

Still she studied.

"I must insist that you listen to me."

She raised her hand toward a little brass ring above her head. Then she darted at him:

"Do you want me to yank that danger signal and stop the train?"

"No! Stop!" he shouted, starting nervously.

Barbara revealed in that nervous start of his.

"You're afraid, are you? Well, be quiet, or I'll do it."

Then she ground her teeth, determined.

He was silent for some minutes. Then he tried her on another tack.

"We may have mutual acquaintances," he ventured. "I haven't told you my name. It is Crosby." He paused. "Carroll Crosby."

"What! The painter? I don't believe you."

He drew forth a card.

"Please," he said pleadingly.

She was intent on being intent upon her book, but he had her now. She couldn't help being curious. She read R. A. upon the card. Her rudeness came over her with a quiver.

"I—I've heard about you from the Bensons," she said humbly. "I'm so sorry."

"Sorry that you've heard about me?" He laughed to put her at her ease. "You mean the Hyland Bensons, I suppose. I know his landscapes."

"They're the people that used to meet me at Florence," Barbara whispered. "I've been rude. You'll think me awful. But"—here her spirit sprang to self-defense—"you know what you suggested."

"You believe me now to be a gentleman of honor?"

"Oh, don't! That isn't kind. It hurts."

"Forgive me," Crosby said. "But I want you to understand me. I had, and still have, a very good reason for asking you to stop off with me at Prato. The Fra Filippo Lippis were only an excuse."

"The reason?"

There was a flurry in Barbara's breast. Was he going to be foolish, after all? Other men had been foolish; they had even praised her turned-up nose. But she knew she wasn't pretty; at least, she didn't think so.

"It is not a personal one," Crosby answered.

And Barbara—she didn't know why—was a little hurt.

"What is it, then?"

"I cannot tell you; but it is a very potent one. I beg you to believe me when I say that it is necessary—really necessary—that you leave this train with me at Prato."

"I don't see why."

"Then I shall go with you to Florence."

Barbara wondered.

"But that wouldn't do as well," he added gravely. "If you will get out with me at Prato—and you must—I shall tell you the reason as soon as the train has left the station."

"Why not now?"

"I have told you that I cannot. The next train for Florence will be along in a couple of hours. I will telegraph the Partridges. While you are waiting I shall stay with you, or leave you, just as you choose. My purpose will then be fulfilled."

His purpose!

Are you trying to see if you can command me?" Barbara asked him sharply. "Men are strong; but women are stubborn."

"I don't command; I beg. You will thank me. The Partridges will thank me. A gentleman would never be as rude as I have been unless he had good reason."

The word "rude" stung her.

"Here's Prato now. Will you trust me?" His eyes joined his voice in pleading with her.

Barbara had never yet been beaten by a man. Her pride still bristled up when the train put on the brakes.

"Won't you trust me?" He asked it as a favor.

She wondered now if she would yield. The train clattered to a full stop. Crosby opened the door of the compartment.

"Come," he said, commanding.

Barbara followed him. He said nothing till the train had gone.

"Will you tell me why I'm here?" Barbara asked him pettily.

"Yes, but I want to compliment you first upon your fortitude. An English girl would have acted differently. If I had known you from the first, I might have decided not to speak to you, after all."

"You don't like me?" said Barbara.

"That's too bad."

"I like you very much," he answered.

"Did you make me get out just to tell me that?"

"No."

"Why, then?"

"Did you notice that Italian in the car?"

"It is not my custom to notice strangers." Then she added, to soothe away the sting: "Especially when they are foreigners asleep."

"He wasn't asleep," said Crosby.

"His hat was down. You couldn't see. I sat opposite. His throat was cut from ear to ear."

SAVING CEREALS FROM SMUT LOSS

Simple Seed Treatment Will Prevent Injury to Different Kinds of Grain Crops.

FUNGUS PARASITE IS CAUSE

Wheat Crop of 1918 Suffered to Amount of 25,500,000 Bushels—No Justification for Growing Smutted Grain.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There are a number of different kinds of smuts which attack the different cereals—wheat, oats, barley, and rye. The most striking feature of these diseases is the appearance of a fine, dark-colored dusty material which replaces the seed or heads of the grain. This dusty material is the spores or seed of the fungus parasite which causes the disease. Perhaps the most serious of these grain smuts is the stinking smut or bunt of wheat. When the wheat matures it is found that the grains are replaced by false kernels or smut balls. These are easily broken up in a fine dusty material—the smut spores. These have a disagreeable odor, hence the common name of this smut. This odor can readily be detected on the leeward side of a ripening wheat field. It is also very evident during thrashing and on stored grain.

Estimated National Loss.

It is estimated that the national loss due to wheat smuts—principally the stinking smut—in the 1918 crop amounted to 25,500,000 bushels. The two states of Minnesota and Nebraska lost 8,000,000 bushels of wheat from stinking smut. The estimated loss from oat smuts in 1918 is 110,000,000 bushels, and the estimated loss from barley smuts is 6,000,000 bushels—a total of 141,500,000 bushels of the three grains.

Loss Is Preventable. And practically all of that loss could have been prevented—easily prevented. There is no justification for growing Smutted Wheat.

Smutted grain, specialists declare. Smut is borne on the seed. Clean grain becomes contaminated in thrashing, sacking, storing and drilling. The preventive is to treat all seed wheat before it is sown—either soak it in or sprinkle it with a formaldehyde solution in the proportion of 1 pound of commercial formaldehyde to 40 gallons of water. That is true, at least, for practically all of the country. In Oregon, Washington, Idaho and California the soil is infested and absolute prevention cannot be attained by seed treatment. But that is due to local climatic conditions and, apparently, soil infestation does not occur throughout the rest of the country, and seed treatment is all that is necessary to prevent smut.

FATTEN CATTLE ON ALFALFA

Iowa State College Says It Is Cheap Form of Roughage Even at $30 Per Ton.

In reply to inquiries as to whether an attempt should be made to fatten cattle without alfalfa, on account of its scarcity and high price, the animal husbandry department of Iowa State college says alfalfa, even at $30 a ton, is still a comparatively cheap form of roughage, and it will pay to feed it, at least in limited quantities. Fattening cattle do not need alfalfa for all their roughage, however. Cattle fed corn with half of their roughage alfalfa and the other half well cured corn fodder without ears should make almost as great gains as cattle receiving corn and alfalfa for all their roughage.

CULLING PUREBRED FLOCKS

Just as Rigid Work Needed to Insure Vigor as Would Be Practical on Lot of Mongrels.

The purebred flock needs just as rigid culling to insure vigor as you would practice on a flock of mongrels which are being culled for the same purpose. As a usual thing the farmer with grade stock will only keep the best grades, while the farmer with purebreds may be less energetic in his culling and save everything that possesses the slightest resemblance to a good specimen of the breed represented.

MENACE TO ONION GROWING

Small Insect Causes Big Loss to Crop Annually—It Also Preys on Other Garden Crops.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The onion thrips is an insect so small that it is almost invisible to the unaided eye, but it is prolific, and the most serious menace to the onion growing industry of this country. I causes an annual loss to this crop alone estimated to be at least $2,250,000. Though the insect has a particular liking for onions, it preys upon other garden and truck crops, such as cabbage, cauliflower, cucumbers and melons, and also has a ravenous appetite for greenhouse and many ornamental plants, particularly roses.

A Spraying Outfit Suitable for Garden Use.

The first indication that an onion field has been attacked by thrips is shown by the leaves, which become whitened. In advanced attacks the leaves are curled, crinkled and twisted, and finally die down permanently. To control this pest, begin spraying each routine siphoning of soil as soon as there is any evidence of the insect. If spraying is delayed until hundreds of young thrips are present the crop will be seriously injured. The spray material is made by the following formula: Three-eighths of a pint of nicotine sulphate (40 per cent), 4 pounds of dissolved soap and 50 gallons of water. Spraying should be done thoroughly and applied as a fine mist.

It is not advisable to plant other crops, such as early cabbage and cauliflower, upon which the thrips feed, near the onion fields. After onions, cabbage and related crops are harvested, the field should be cleaned up to destroy any breeding places of the insect. They will continue to thrive on any portion of these plants or weeds that might remain in the field. It is a good practice to plow as deeply as possible and harrow the ground after harvest. Much of the injury can be avoided by planting as early as possible and by using quick-acting fertilizers after the onions are well set or the bulbs have begun to form. Onion fields should be watched constantly and the plants should be kept growing thriftily, since once the plants become checked in their growth from any cause the thrips will multiply more rapidly than ever and it will be a hard fight to save the crop.

CORN MOST IMPORTANT CROP

Farmers Having Live Stock of Any Kind Should Plant Liberally—Plant on Time.

Corn is one of our most important grains that should have attention this year. It is hoped that more care will be given to the preparation of the soil and planting on time than is some times given. Those who have hogs, work teams a few beef calves and in fact animals of most any kind should plant liberally, provided, of course, their land and the seasons ordinarily favor corn. The meat supply next year will depend very largely upon the grain crop this year.

In case of fire you will find a home-grown barn is very convenient means of replacing the loss and a great saving in money. Keep the home woodland growing.

When there is a strike in the coal mines you will find it very comfortable to have plenty of home-grown wood. Keep the home fires burning.

When you need extra money to pay off a mortgage, a doctor's bill, or for a college education for the children, you will find a reserve fund in the woodland handy. Keep the home folks protected.

PUT FENCE AROUND CHICKENS

Either That or One Around Garden for Proper Protection of Various Plants.

When farmers have chickens and a garden, as all should, it is best to have a fence around the garden or the chickens. Usually the chickens are fenced out of the garden but allowed to glean over the fields and forest near by. Care should be taken to have a chicken-proof fence around the garden so the plants will be protected.

SYSTEM THAT WAS USED IN MUSTERING OUT OUR ARMY MEN

Chief of Staff Says Home Folks Do Not Understand Methods.

BIG PROBLEMS TO SOLVE

Why the Old Draft Boards Could Not Be Used—Provision Supplied for All Those in Distress—Bonus Given to Discharged Men.

Washington.—The war department authorizes the following statement from the office of the chief of staff: The present system of demobilization does not seem to be understood by the people of the country. As a fundamental starting point, let us assume that all the selected service men who have been inducted into the service during the war were removed from their home communities at one time, and that upon their departure, and until their return conditions of labor and industry did not change in the slightest respect in any portion of the country. Again let us assume that the conditions of labor and industry having remained exactly the same, all those selected service men were returned at the same moment to the niches previously held by them in civil life. Under such assumptions the entire operation would have been performed without the slightest jar to the industrial conditions of the country.

This would be an ideal condition, but it is based on an utterly absurd hypothesis. The selected service men were not all inducted into the service at one time. Nor did the conditions of labor and industry remain unchanged after their departure from their home districts.

Tremendous Problem. Could the history of each particular job from which employed men had been withdrawn be traced, could it be discovered whether the job remained open to him or whether A's job had been filled by B; could it be definitely ascertained that B left a job which remains open to A; it might be possible, were these returning men so many spare parts of a machine, to assign each returning man a definite job. But they are not spare parts of a machine. They are human beings, influenced on the one hand by home ties, and on the other by varying desires and ambitions; and if no positions which they want are immediately open to them, they, as well as the original unemployed, must be gradually absorbed in the industrial life of the nation.

This, then, is the tremendous problem that confronts us—to return to a country whose digestion for labor is not now of the best hundreds of thousands of men without employment, not forgetting that they and their families deserve the grateful thanks of the nation, and remaining keenly aware that their patriotism and sacrifice demand that they be given every possible recognition and favor.

Certain Specific Laws. As certain specific laws govern the discharge of soldiers, and their interests as well as those of the government must be jealously guarded, the use of local draft boards for the entire demobilization of the army would, among other things, involve the following: Necessary commissioned and enlisted personnel for the preparation of all records of each man discharged; for the reception, storing, care and shipment of all government equipment turned in by him; for his physical examination and final payment. There would also be needed facilities for housing and feeding men, including hospital treatment, while awaiting discharge.

The machinery necessary at each one of the local draft boards would depend upon the amount of work which it would be required to do. About 4,680 local draft boards would have to be provided with this necessary personnel and other facilities mentioned above. The machinery of each local draft board would have to be maintained intact as long as there were in the service men from the particular district involved, and would have to be kept at such strength as to be able to handle such men as were sent to it for discharge at any time.

The difficulties of transportation from the port to local draft boards, assuming the abandonment of the present demobilization camps, would be materially increased.

The question then arises: If local draft boards cannot be used for complete discharge of the soldier, cannot they be used in conjunction with present camps? And the answer is that it is not feasible.

The present system of demobilization is that certain camps and cantonments throughout the country have been designated as demobilization centers. These centers are provided with personnel, temporarily retained in the service, for the operation of the machinery of discharge. This system of demobilization necessitates the splitting up of organizations upon arrival from overseas and their distribution in small groups to the various demobilization centers.

Experience of Other Nations. The suggestion has been made that we pattern our demobilization system after that of Great Britain. The United States, in formulating its plans for mobilization, was fortunate enough to have profited by some of the costly experiences of others, and by a systematic classification prevented men from being sent to the trenches who later had to be withdrawn and returned to industries essential to the prosecution of the war. In carrying out its systematic draft system, the tendency was to retain in the industrial world the pivotal or key men, the return of whom to their normal activities in the industrial world appears to be one of the outstanding principles in the British demobilization system. The war department has consistently declined to discharge our selected service men by classes, the needs of industry having been recognized in the selective service law.

In many families distress exists. Certain men are indispensable to industry. To enable such men to be released, the war department has issued a circular to all commanders covering their cases.

The secretary of war has also recommended to congress that a man be paid an additional month's pay and allowance on discharge in order to tide him over the interim between his discharge and the date he obtains employment; and congress has now passed a bill authorizing a $100 bonus to be paid on discharge to each officer and man who is honorably separated from the service.

Some Dissatisfaction.

Some dissatisfaction has arisen because families find it difficult to immediately see their sons and relatives on their arrival at the port of debarkation. This is due to the fact that public health demands that these men be segregated until they can be disinfected, in order to prevent the spread of diseases, such as typhus, trench fever and influenza, in the country. Also practical conditions connected with the handling and discharge of large bodies of men demand that they be sent after their discharge direct to their demobilization points.

This all seems hard, and being a difficult practical problem, is of necessity entirely devoid of sentiment, which is, however, continually impelling those entrusted with the carrying out of these measures to devise some way of showing the soldier the esteem in which he is held by the country, and of satisfying the just pride which his family possesses in his exploits.

There is a general belief that the emergency has passed, that the war is over, and that there is no reason for keeping troops in France. The war is not over until a treaty of peace ends it.

The emergency cannot be considered over until the last of our troops arrive from France. What could we say to these men and their families if we demobilized all troops in this country and were powerless to care for and return to their home districts the men remaining from overseas?

Troops must be kept in France for such army of occupation as may be decreed by the treaty of peace, and for every division held there to clinch the fruits of victory must be kept a certain proportion of men for their supply, to provide measures for their comfort and for their final embarkation.

DESCRIBES HUNS' LAST OFFENSIVE

Correspondent Reveals How "Beaten" Troops Turned Tide Against Foe.

SIDE LIGHTS ON MARCH 'SHOW'

Allied Troops Believed Retreat Was "Part of Some Blooming Strategy," "Cos the Chaps Next Door Couldn't Hold On."

By PERCY M. SARRL.

(United Press Staff Correspondent) London.—"Woo-oosh! Bang!" I looked out of my tent on the morning of March 21, 1918, imagining that some aerial humorist was bombing us. But it was a long-range, ten-inch, high-velocity gun, and a couple more in quick succession, the second shell landing about fifty yards from me, showed that it was no stray round. I realized that the great German offensive had started.

The night before I had joined the Fortieth division artillery, which was lying in "close reserve," just south of Arras. I was hoping for a recuperative period on what was reckoned a fairly "quiet" front.

"Stand by your horses!" brought us all onto the lines. Fortunately, the Boche was shooting by the map and not from observation, or we should have taken little further interest in the "March show." As it was, he dropped about sixty rounds right in the midst of us without doing much damage. The enemy had broken through at Bellecourt and was coming on fast.

Blazing Away at Foe. "The divisional artillery will come into action at—so-and-so 'map spotting,'" and we were off. But when we got there—well, the cupboard wasn't exactly bare, because just before we reached our objective we came across an 18-pounder section squatting in the open and blazing away over open sights at the oncoming hordes of Boches.

We dropped back and found a less conspicuous place from which to declare war. Then we had one solid week's hares, such as General Sherman never thought of, or he would have used stronger language about "war." The Germans brought their field guns on so rapidly, and in such numbers, that we were shelled from pillar to post. Our infantry hung on doggedly, and were wiped out, battalion after battalion. Each batch of reserves found their predecessors' positions untenable and were compelled to try to dig a line a bit farther back.

Always in the open, for there was no time to dig oneself in; and when one hillside became too hot for comfort we shifted, either to flank or slightly to the rear. I never saw soldiers so cheerful or determined. Dog-tired, they hung on; and while the great game of "tactics" went on, the whole line having to conform to some unknown situation many miles to a flank, the Third army grumblingly wondered what it was falling back for.

"All Part of Strategy." If the pessimists who conceded a German victory last March could have seen those "beaten" soldiers retreating, they might have taken heart, because it never occurred to the troops themselves that they were being beaten. The retreat, to them, was all part of "some blooming strategy 'cos the chaps next door couldn't hold on."

Back through Mory, Ervillers, St. Leger, Gommecourt, Courvelles and Bucquoy fell my part of the line, and then we stopped them. March 30 saw about the end of the nightmare as far as we were concerned, and the Fortieth divisional artillery pulled off a regular "boy stood on the burning deck" stunt. My own brigade, the One Hundred and Seventy-eighth brigade royal field artillery, composed of London citizen soldiers mostly, came into action in the open, under heavy fire directed by hostile airplanes and smashed up an attack of three battalions which had been on the front held by a company of the British guards. One battery was practically wiped out, gun after gun being knocked out by concentrations of enemy artillery. I was thankful to find myself when the "Cease fire" order came through.

There were many weary weeks of routine warfare and night alarms. It was between Boisieux-au-Mont and Boiry-St. Martin, about 400 yards from the place where that first ten-inch shell landed on March 21, we stopped the Boche.

There we refitted and planned and prepared for the final triumphal advance of the allies in the ensuing summer and fall.

The ATHENS of GERMANY

The National Theater, Weimar.

WEIMAR, the little city which is the capital of the duchy of Saxe-Weimar and which was selected as the meeting place for the German national assembly, has long been denominated the "Athens of Germany." It stands for what was the best in German life. For Weimar was once a great capital in the world of letters; around it cluster many of the finest recollections and traditions of the Germany that was.

Goethe and Schiller, topmost among the German poets, lived and died there. Some of the finest compositions of Liszt and Mendelssohn were conceived in Weimar. In this quaint old town Schopenhauer dwelt in the unutterable gloom that permeates his philosophy. To its restful solitude and its greatest memories came Nietzsche, apostle of dreadfulness, to die. And it drew George Eliot, Thackeray, Bayard Taylor and many other notable of other lands who sought inspiration in this spot which had lured the immortals of an earlier day, remarks the Kansas City Star.

Where Famous Women Lived.

Weimar it was which produced two of the best remembered of German women, the Grand Duchess Anna Amalie, whose efforts gave Germany its first real standing in art and letters, and Charlotte von Stein, the gifted, brilliant woman whom Goethe loved long and in vain. All Germany has laid homage at the feet of Duchess Anna Amalie. And of Charlotte von Stein it has been said that no other woman, not even Dante's Beatrice or Petrarch's Laura, has been so honored in song.

All the glory of Weimar belongs to the time before the Prussian arch-militarist and materialist. With the ascendancy of the Hohenzollerns and the elevation of force and greed above the things of the mind and spirit Weimar faded into a background memory. Its selection by the new government as a seat for deliberation may serve to bring back to it some of its departed glory.

The beginning of Weimar's greatness came about 1756, when Anna Amalie, niece of Frederick the Great, went there as a bride of the duke. She summoned Wieland, poet and student, to act as tutor for her boys. Three years later young Goethe went to Weimar. Others followed. Einsiedel, the poet, musician and actor; Bode, the translator of Smollett and Cervantes; Knebel, the classicist; Corona Schroter, the brilliant and beautiful actress and singer; Herder, the preacher poet and father of German folk song, and finally Schiller, who eventually was to take rank with Goethe.

Goethe the Master There.

The names of Goethe and Schiller dominate Weimar. The former lived in the town fifty-six years. He was all things to Weimar, the adviser of its rulers, architect of its chief structures, dictator of its thought, and finally its greatest and best loved memory. His house on the Goethe Platz is one of the town's "sights," and monuments of him occupy the most prominent positions. Even his garden house has been preserved in reverent memory.

An indication of the way in which Goethe was regarded in old Weimar is gleaned from an oft told incident. The poet coveted the house that later was to be his. Its owner would not sell to him, however. So Duke Karl August went forth one day and unceremoniously took charge of the house.

"But me no buts," he replied to the reluctant owner. "Goethe wants it and we must give it to him or we shall not keep him." The thousands of letters the adoring Goethe wrote to Charlotte von Stein all are kept in the building that houses the Goethe and Schiller archives. For ten years he paid devoted court to her, but she was the wife of another man and, although she valued the homage of this man, who was one of the handsomest and most distinguished in Europe, it is generally believed that she did not in any way return his affections.

Carlyle's Tribute to Schiller.

Schiller's old home has been bought by the town and converted into a museum. His rooms are almost as he left them, the floors bare, the ceiling low and the furniture scanty, plain and almost primitive. Of this place Carlyle has written:

"Who can picture Schiller's feelings in this solitude without participating in some faint reflection of their grandeur? The toll-worn but devoted soul, alone, offering up the troubled moments of existence upon the altar of eternity! For here the splendor that gleamed across the spirit of a mortal, transient as any of us, was to be made perpetual; these images and thoughts were to pass into other ages; to glow in human hearts when the heart that conceived them had long been moldered into common dust. To the lover of genius this bare little room, as becoming a sacred shrine."

NOT MATTER OF KNOWLEDGE

Person May Be Thoroughly Conversant With Facts, and Yet Remain Ignorant.

Some people think that ignorance is merely an accumulation of facts. But that hypothesis reveals a lack of imagination. Ignorance, any more than knowledge, is not concerned with facts. It is concerned quite largely with feeling, and feeling is the product of one's general intelligence.

The Huns had plenty of facts at their disposal, but they were ignorant. Their feeling was not intelligently distributed over certain areas of their national consciousness.

This is true, more or less, of all of us. Thomas L. Mason writes in the Outlook. When we are truly ignorant, it is a case of arrested development in certain directions. A man who has not brought up a family may have at his call all the statistics about families. But he is truly ignorant in the sense of not being developed in the feelings that intimate contact with one's family produces.

To have knowledge of a particular thing is simply to have come in contact with it in such a manner that one's feeling has been aroused about it.

We acquire knowledge largely by contemplation and meditation. But the thing we are learning about must impose itself upon us in such a way that we are forced to understand it through our feelings and not our minds. There is nothing harder to overcome than ignorance. It must be beaten to a standstill. We have done this to the Huns. We must now conclude our moral contract by bringing them into contact with the right things.

Carriage Day and Motor Way.

A sight along Fifth avenue that used to draw a crowd years ago was the outdoor lesson of the fashionable girls' boarding schools in how to get in and out of a carriage, says New York Evening Post. It was before socialism and amusement from the social students making up the crowd. The performance was not without interest to others who didn't have to be taught such things in public away from home. What a change today. A young woman is instructed how to run her car, but not how to get in and out of it. Unfettered by the fear that she may show what were once known as limbs, the modern girl scrambles into her little roadster and is off and away before her grandmother could have adjusted her skirts prior to placing the proper foot in the proper way on the carriage step.

Ill-Assorted Volumes.

"The stage manager of this theater is a stickler for details. Now every book in that bookcase on the stage is a real volume." By using ray glasses I note that one of those impossible volumes is a cook book and another is a newspaper directory for 1903."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

BLACK-DRAUGHT GLEANS THE LIVER

Enthusiastic Texan Tells of Bad Fix He Was In and How He Got Out by Using Black-Draught Liver Medicine.

Holland, Texas.—Mr. J. N. Messer, who lives a short distance from here out in the country, says: "Black-Draught is without doubt the best liver medicine made. I do not hesitate to say it will do all it is recommended to do and more.

I am strong and healthy, but we all need a little active medicine once in a while, and Black-Draught is good enough for me. It does the work well and cleans the liver, carrying away bile, the easiest of any purgative I have ever seen.

Once, some years ago, I had slow fever and my stomach was in a bad fix, and Black-Draught gave me relief and helped me a wonderful sight. It cured me of indigestion, and the bad feeling after eating. I keep it for my family, they use it and have for years and too, it saves doctor bills and is not expensive.

A stitch in time saves nine, and most sickness is caused by a bad liver. A few doses of Black-Draught fixes that and I don't see why people don't use it, and they would see as I have, what a help it would be."

BURK-TILLMAN OIL COMPANY

400 Acres

Only $55,000 Capital SHARES $1.00

We have 400 acres, two miles across the river in Tillman county, Okla., in a straight line with the big producers in the Burk Northwest field. We don't guarantee that we will get oil, but we do guarantee that we will sell half the acreage and protect the stock holders. This can't be done with 2 1-2 or 5 acres and a large capitalization like most of the companies in the Burk field have. We have a bond up to go 2,500 feet and the geologists say we will get oil.

If we do get a well on the 200 acres it would pay the stockholders at least $100 for every $1.00 invested, but supposing we don't—by selling 200 acres we are sure that we can pay as much as 100 per cent dividend, as this acreage has advanced nearly triple its original value since we put it in the company.

We have only 5,000 shares left. This will be offered in Plainview for the next 2 or 3 days.

This is a straight, clean proposition. Everything above board. Nothing to conceal.

Call and see me or write me at the Broahway Hotel in the next 2 or 3 days. Would be glad to answer any question about this proposition.

Carnival Party

Mrs. W. R. Blocksom entertained Saturday night with a carnival party in honor of her son, Franklin, who had just returned from a year in the camps.

The house was decorated in all the gay and bright colors of the carnival and the guests seated at the six tables played different games and stunts. Messrs. Roy Leslie and Billy Bromley winning the prizes—an Owl and a Monkey.

Pop corn balls, peanuts, stick candy, ice cream cones and red lemonade were the refreshments and more enjoyment was added in the carnival style of peddling them around.

Mrs. Blocksom was assisted in entertaining by Misses Martha McClendon and Bernard Speed.

ITCH!

A WAR-TIME ILL THAT'S SPREADING HUNT'S SALVE CURES IT!

BRED in the war trenches of Europe, a wave of ordinary ITCH is spreading over the country. This skin disease, history shows, has always prevailed, following wars and the concentration of armies. It was common during the Civil War and following that conflict. There was an epidemic of the Itch after the Spanish-American War. Now history is repeating itself after the great European struggle.

Returned soldiers and those with whom they come in contact will find a recognized remedy for the Itch in Hunt's Salve, commonly known as "Hunt's Itch Cure." Many a veteran of the late '90's will testify to its merits.

If directions are followed HUNT'S SALVE will prove a never failing cure for all forms of the Itch, and your druggist will tell you so. He sells HUNT'S SALVE under a strict guarantee to refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied user.

A Medford, Oklahoma man, among thousands who praise HUNT'S SALVE, says: "I had it badly. Your Hunt's Salve, however, cured me after many other remedies had totally failed. One box completed the cure—the first application afforded wonderful relief. My advice to those who have to scratch, is to use Hunt's Salve."

Hunt's Salve is especially compounded for the treatment of Itch, Eczema, Ringworm, Tetter and other itching skin diseases and is sold on our guarantee by all reliable drug stores, or it will be sent direct by mail if your local druggist cannot supply. Price 75c per box.

EASY TO CURE "NAUGHTINESS" TRIBUTE TO YANKEE FIGHTER

Common-Sense Methods of Dealing With Children Will Always Be Found Effective.

Magazine Writer Describes the "Doughboy" as All the World Has Come to Know Him.

George Pattulli, a magazine writer who has been with General Pershing's army in France, has paid a tribute to the American fighting men that is worthy of reproduction in every county in the United States. Says Mr. Pattulli: "The American soldier is about the finest human specimen on ton of the earth—rough and ready, grumbling, never giving up; always able to laugh, even at his own plight; a holy terror in a fight; ruthless to an enemy capable of resistance; generous to a fault to a beaten foe; hating nobody, fearing none; with backbone enough to storm hell, and the gentleness to win a child."

France knows this, England knows it, even Germany has a hazy idea that a Yankee doughboy is a combination of an angel from heaven and a devil from hell. Isn't it about time for Americans to realize the worth of their fighting sons?—Exchange.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule these worms or less stomach disturbance. GROWER'S BABY BOWEL MEDICINE given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or digest the worms, and the child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 50c per bottle.

ORGANIZE FOR BETTER HERDS

Farmers Forming Associations for Purpose of Introducing Bulls of Merit of Single Breed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The co-operative bull association is an effective organization for freeing a community from the exasperating experience of the scrub bull that roams at large. There is scarcely a breeder who has not experienced keen disappointment and financial loss through unrestrained scrub bulls. In the territory covered by a co-operative bull association in one state only one scrub bull was found where, prior to the organization of the association, there had been 30 scrub bulls. The 30 scrubs have been replaced with five registered bulls. The organization of farmers into an association for the purpose of introducing bulls of merit of a single breed and the elimination of the scrub bull signifies that a definite plan for community improvement has been agreed upon.

There is at present a widespread interest on the part of individual farmers in herd improvement through the use of better sires. The winter season affords an opportune time to discuss the subject with one's neighbors and to perfect the organization of such an association. Farmers' Bulletin 993, "Co-operative Bull Associations," which may be secured through application to the United States department of agriculture, gives information regarding these associations and practical methods of forming one.

TO PRODUCE BETTER HEIFERS

Carefully Select From Herd Profitable Producing Cows and Use Purebred Sire.

Proper feeding of balanced rations, elimination of unprofitable animals in the herd and increasing production by use of purebred dairy sires to produce better dairy heifers are the three important things that will decrease the cost and increase the production of dairy products, says the dairy husbandry extension man at Iowa State college.

The easiest and most practical way of obtaining cows of better dairy qualities is to select carefully from the herd those cows which are found by record to be profitable producers and use on these a purebred dairy sire. If the profitable cows are selected, then the dairyman will be able to make a profit while he is building up a dairy herd.

It pays to select and breed better animals because it means more pay for the amount of labor and feed used and also an increased production of a food which is absolutely essential.

INDICATIONS OF GOOD COW

Best Dairy Animal Has Large Middle Body, Strong Constitution and Perfect Health.

The best dairy cow has a large middle body, a strong constitution and perfect health. A large udder and good sized teats, large milk wells and prominent veins are indications of a good milkster. There are many other points to be taken into consideration when breeding for results, but in addition to milk tests, if the cow is well-bodied and built for a milkster, as may be judged from a common sense view, that ought to be sufficient evidence of dairy value.

SEPARATOR SHOULD BE CLEAN

Only Way to Secure Highest Efficiency of Machine and Best Quality of Product.

The cream separator should be kept clean if the highest efficiency of the machine and the best product is to be obtained. After each separation the bowl should be flushed out by pouring into the supply can about two quarts of lukewarm water. The parts should then be washed with warm water and rinsed in scalding water, after which they should be allowed to dry in the sun.

Control Texture of Butter. The grain or texture of the butter is affected and controlled largely by the treatment which the butter receives during the washing and working processes.

SKIN ERUPTIONS ON THE FACE

are unsightly and mar the appearance of many a woman whose face would be otherwise attractive. There is no need for this. Just get a box of Tetterine and use it regularly and you will be surprised how quickly pimples, blotches, itchy patches, etc., disappear and how soft and clear the skin becomes. Nothing better for eczema and other skin troubles than Tetterine. Sold by druggists or mailed for 50c. by Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.—Adv.

KIDNEYS WEAKENING? BETTER LOOK OUT!

Kidney and bladder troubles don't disappear of themselves. They grow upon you, slowly but steadily, undermining your health with deadly certainty, until you fall a victim to incurable disease.

Stop your troubles while there is time. Don't wait until little pains become big aches. Don't trifle with disease. To avoid future suffering begin treatment with GOLD MEDAL Harlem Oil Capsules now. Take three or four every day until you feel that you are entirely free from pain.

This well-known preparation has been one of the national remedies of Holland for centuries. In 1696 the government of the Netherlands granted a special charter authorizing its sale. The good housewife of Holland would almost as soon be without food as without her "Real Dutch Drops," as she quaintly calls GOLD MEDAL Harlem Oil Capsules. Their use restores strength and is responsible in a great measure for the sturdy, robust health of the Hollanders.

Do not delay. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with a box of GOLD MEDAL Harlem Oil Capsules. Take them as directed, and if you are not satisfied with results your druggist will gladly refund your money. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on the box and accept no other. In sealed boxes, three sizes.

How Much is 1¢

Suppose that for one cent you could insure the quality of your cake, biscuits, etc., wouldn't that be real economy?

Well, one cent is about the difference in the cost of a whole cake or a pan of biscuits made with Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder as compared with cheaper baking powders made from alum or phosphate—a trifle, indeed, to insure the quality and wholesomeness of your baking.
