TRAVEL IN JAPAN

Hotel Customs Somewhat Embarrassing to Europeans.

Taking Bath in Public, in Water That Would Boil a Lobster, Is, or Used to Be, in the Nature of Torture.

With the advent of the "modern hotel" in Japan the old inns; or resthouses, have been to a large extent relegated to obscurity, but some still survive in parts where European travelers seldom penetrate. The kind of welcome accorded to visitors in one of the village inns is very far removed from western ideas of hospitality. Here is the interesting experience of a traveler as related in The Caterer and Hotelkeepers' Gazette:

"As soon as I arrived I was conducted by the polite hostess into the chief guestroom, which looked out upon the cool orchard of a temple.

"Cushions were brought in, and bright kimonos. I took off my dusty English clothes, and put on first the lower kimona, made of cotton; and colors of the hotel.

"The room, like all Japanese rooms, was bare except for a single decoration. There is always a special corner for the room's ornament, which is have in the course of ages been shorn sometimes a vase of flowers, some of their appendages. times a piece of china, sometimes simply a painting upon silk or a woodcut. The subjects are not seldom such as bring a blush to the European cheek, but they have no such effect on the Japanese, who seem more concerned with the arrangement than the subject of the ornaments. There are sict rules for decoration; it is laid down, for example, that flowers of die ferent colors should not be mixed in one vase.

"At length, because I was famishing. a low table and a brazier were brought in and set in front of me and my

"Every time I thought I had finished, the hostess or one of the maids would trip in with another tray of dishes and put them before me on the table. Had I not been able to use chopsticks before, I should certainly have become expert by the end of that meal.

"A little while after the meal-for It did end at last-I was told that the bath was ready. I was taken to the open courtyard and introduced to the arrangements there.

Husbands Are Hoping.

Recently an Irvington woman invited a few of her friends to play cards during the afternoon. There was a strong intimation that the highest score would be rewarded with a prize. That stimulated interest to a degree.

The women had visions of the ordinary prizes given for card proficiency. One of them thought of a nicely hemmed towel, another saw visions of a cut-glass tumbler, and still another dreamed of something else. There was but one table and as the hostess was barred the contest was wholly between the remaining three. Finally the games were over and the scores tabulated, Then the hostess came in with a big glass of current jelly and presented it as the prize of the afternoon. She picked the currants in her own garden and had made the

There is hope in the hearts of some Irvington husbands that the fad of giving real food as prizes will grow. Then, if their wives are good enough bridge players there may be something to eat when husbands come home in the evening.-Indianapolis News.

No Jugo-Slav Race.

There is in strictness no such thing as a Jugo-Slav. There are Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, all of whom speak the same language, with variations, and are now of the same nationality. There is a religious question among Jugo-Slavs, which has, on occasion, been stressed by the intriguing imperialist politicians on the borders who have been anxious to prevent national unity, the Serbs being of the Greek, or Orthodox church, and the Croats and Slovenes of the Roman church. There are no more than 12,-000,000 of them altogether, but the of the army, while the standard of territory of the new nation is larger the Turks was a horse's tall. than that of Great Britain.

EARTHS IN SOLAR SYSTEM

Thousands of Asteroids, Mostly Small, Known to Be Swinging Around the Sun.

Swinging around the sun between the planets Mars and Jupiter there are more than a thousand little earths ranging in diameter from three to 485 miles. These are known as the aster oids, and although they pursue their individual ways in the solar system much like our own globe they are too small to support any sort of life, being unable to hold an atmosphere.

From time to time new asteroids are discovered, not by astronomers patiently peering at the heavens through a telescope, but by means of the photographic plate. A thousand have already been found, but it is likely that thousands of smaller asteroids remain to be discovered.

The four largest asteroids, Ceres, Pallas, Vesta and Juno, are respectively 485, 304, 243 and 118 miles in diameter. A few more asteroids may exceed 100 miles in diameter, but the great majority are simply huge rocks five miles or less in diameter. Unlike the major planets, the asteroids are not spheres, but simply jagged rocks, buge mountains hurtling through space, whirling round and round on then a gaudy silk one, bright with the their axis as they journey about the Busbecq was a collector, and, when he was sent by the Emperor Ferdinand as ambassador to the Sultan Suleiman the Magnificent, on his Graduate of Michigan State Normal return brought manuscript and coins and plants home to Vienna. And among these plants was the lilac.

ERRONEOUS STATEMENT CORRECTED

We have had it reported to us that statements had been made to the effect that the trac chain on the Cleveland tractor would last but a few weeks and that new ones cost $240. This report has been circulated evidently through ignorance, as we do not think that any one would ever reknowingly peat this kind of a report.

These machines will give any man who owns one satisfactory service, and the policy of the factory as well as the state distributors is to make good free of charge any part of the machine which proves to be unsatisfactory.

The tracks in this engine will last in farm work from two to three years and at present the new tracks cost $60 each.

The Cleveland Tractor Co. is a ten million dollar corporation which makes nothing but this one tractor and in one size only-if this machine failed the whole business would fail. But, inasmuch as they have been in the market four years and the demand for them having increased to such an extent that the company is now building a duplicate factory, and the further fact that wherever the Cletrac gets started it meets with a great success, it is not likely that such reports can be true. If you want to get a tractor buy a Cletrac and be pleased.

ACID TEST OF POLITENESS

Small Girl's Act Might Almost Be Said to Come Under the Head of Heroism.

Frances was spending the day with ber friend, Jane Watkins. She had taken one spoonful of the soup, says Harper's Magazine, when something floating on top caught her eye. Was it black pepper or was it a black ant? What should she do with it?

At that moment Frances' close scrutiny of her soup attracted the attention of Jane. In a stage whisper, plainly heard round the table, came Jane's "Oh, mother! There's an ant in Frances' soup !"

That was it, an ant. Of course Mrs. Watkins would take the soup away. How relieved Frances was!

"The very idea! An ant in her soup! I am surprised at you, Jane! It is pepper!" said Mrs. Watkins severely, and she looked reproachfully at both girls.

Through Frances' mind flashed all the instructions on politeness she had ever heard; never contradict your elders; in all circumstances, be polite; table manners show one's breeding. What must she do? "Never contradict your elders!" She spoke up at once. trying her best to make her tone posi-"Oh, yes! I think it is pepper."

"Of course it is," said Mrs. Watkins. Frances stirred her soup, hoping Jane's attention would be called away. that she might catch the swimmer and transfer it to the dinner plate. But there was no such luck. Up came the speck more like an ant than ever. Pepper was one speck; here were two specks close together. It was an ant, and Jane, persistency itself, leaned over for one more look, and said: "It is an ant."

Frances glanced hopefully at the head of the table; but Mrs. Watkins had not changed her opinion; it was pepper: "Be polite," ran through her brain egain, and taking up the spoonful of soup upon which that suspicious double fleck floated, Frances settled the question forever before saying. faintly:

"It was pepper. I know by the

TYPICAL OF GOLDEN WEST

Little Montana Town of Willow Creek Has Something of Which East Cannot Boast.

Willow Creek is the ordinary name of an ordinary small town in Montana. Bear Creek, Roundup and Sloux Pass have more of the Western flavor, but Willow Creek is a typical little Western town in spite of its name. It is so in the midst of a vast tract of clean prairie land that it cannot be measured by the yard-wide rule of cities. In distance towering mountains keep a paternal watch over it.

Even when the early morning mists hide the mountains and prairies, Willow Creek stands out spunkily-a definite spot on the landscape. The station near the railroad tracks is very small, quite square and very red. Luxuriant groves of trees fill the spaces between the pretty little white, frame houses. A road that looks cleanswept shows to all comers a straight and narrow way ranchward. Several large willows dip their fingers in the current of the little creek that runs behind the white houses.

As the train from the west stops a few minutes at Willow Creek, in the early dawn, a middle-aged man swings off and starts down the road at a good pace. One would know him anywhere for a mining man.

The metropolitan doing the transcontinental trip may smile at little Willow Creek from his comfortable Pullman, but there is one thing here of which the East cannot boast-elbow room. The great reaches of space are something unknown and bewildering to the Eastern strap-hanger and cliff-dweller. As the mining man swaggers down the road toward his great outdoors, there is something about him which spells

Beethoven's Courage.

Ludwig von Beethoven, the eminent composer planist who was born at Bonn, Austria, in 1770, was perhaps one of the greatest examples of patience ever known. At the age of thirty he was afflicted with deafness, yet struggled on, completing masterpieces and living exclusively in his art "Until a Raphael be struck with blindness in the full freshness of his powers, Beethoven is without a compeer in the history of all ages, either in misery or in bliss." So said his dearest friend, who knew him during his years of affliction and also success, the latter of which came to him mostly in Austria's capital.

Humorous Lapses.

Not every commencement speaker has said precisely what he wished to say to the young people before him. One was tripped by a most unhappy lapsus linguae at a young ladies' semi-

He meant to say: "But I have talked too long, and I do not wish to speak to weary benches." Instead of which he said "beery wenches." Thereby reminding us of Tutor Spooner of Oxford, who thus addressed a meeting of farmers: "It is gratifying to me to behold so many tons of soil."

But a university lecturer lately matched these infelicities when he said: "I'm not going to talk very long, but if you get what I'm going to say in your heads you'll have the whole thing in a nutshell." There's many a true word spoken in

How One Man Acquired Knowledge by His Habit of Asking "Why?" and "What?"

His youth knew full well the pinch of poverty and he learned not only what the dollar will buy, but, more important, what it will not buy. "So it happens," writes Bruce Barton in "The Best Educated Man I Know," in the Red Cross magazine, "that while I have heard much talk of books in his home and of social problems and international affairs, I have never yet heard a member of the family mention money. Which, in itself, is enough to confirm me in my judgment that he is, altogether, the best educated man I know."

"He went to Europe one summer with a party of people," the writer continues. "One of the ladies brought back a very confused notion of what Europe contains. She was sure of only two things; she had seen Ventce and Vesuvius, but she was very hazy as to which is which. My friend, whose means have not permitted him to make a second journey, knows Europe like a man who had lived there for years. He prepared for the journey before he sailed; he asked questions unceasingly at every point; he formed friendships with learned men in various countries and has kept up correspondence with them ever since. Confined as he is to a comparatively small city, he is none the less a citizen of the world; and nothing that happens in it, no experience or chance acquaintance fails to yield its full measure of interest and added wisdom to him.

"A knowledge of the value of time, a love of books, a fine habit of asking 'why' and 'what'-these are the chief stones on which my friend's education is builded. And to them I should add one final and most important itemhis unflagging interest in people."

Perhaps They're Still Digging.

There is a legend among the negroes of South Carolina that back in the old pirate days Captain Kidd and Captain Morgan and the others used to sail up the Savannah river and bury their stolen doubloons and pieces of eight in the sands of the cypress swamps. A fortune teller once came through and for a consideration of $25 each agreed to tell the negroes just where the gold was buried. He collected several hundred dollars, and then with a great deal of ceremony staked out as many locations in the that spot in the light of the moon, stand directly over the stake and dig at the end of their shadow. Then he sailed away on a river steamer. And he never came back.

"PICKED UP" HIS EDUCATION BORN OF EMPRESS' DREAN

Persian Legend Concerning the Design and Construction of the Beautiful Taj Mahal.

A beautiful story, which is not gen erally known of the creation of the Taj Mahal is hidden away in the pages of the Persian manuscripts. The emperor wished to commemorate his undying devotion and esteem for his beloved consort, but nothing satisfied his ambition, until one day Arjumand told him that in a dream she had seer the noblest and most perfect of monuments, which if actualized, would be unparalleled in the whole world for its matchless beauty. The emperor sent for experts from all over the empire and commanded them to design the architecture of the dream. They labored to no effect; they could not vis ualize the dream. At last one day an old venerable Pir' ascetic presented himself, who said: "I can help you to obtain what you seek."

He then presented a mysterious potion to one of the architects, before whose dazed eyes the lovely monument in all its glory was revealed. The magic of the potion lasted while he drew the plan in all its detail, then he fell back exhausted. The empress. seeing the design of her vision realized, was full of joy and the emperor at once set to work to have this edifice constructed. The impossibility of laying a firm foundation next presented itself. The swampy character of the banks of the silvery Jumna made it impossible to erect any construction that would stand, until, in another dream, it was revealed that the basis must be of silver. Today the Taj stands, like an ethereal drop of flawless pearl, on its foundation of solid silver-breathing forth the poetry of Its conception:

REMEDIES CALL FOR FAITH PRINCE'S MEMORY WAS GOOD

Heir to British Throne Had One Quality That Is Indispensable to Politician.

On one occasion Mr. Louis Sterne, an engineer and inventor, and a friend of Charles Dickens, showed the late Edward VII, then prince of Wales, his exhibits at South Kensington and the Crystal palace.

"The next time I met the prince," said Mr. Sterne, "I was crossing Picadilly, at the top of St. James street. In trying to escape being run down I ran directly into the arms of his royal highness. He at once recognized me and said: 'Mr. Sterne, you should give this traffic time and never cross the bows.' I expressed surprise that he should recognize me. to which he replied that he never forgot either face or name if associated with any matter of interest."

Mr. Sterne met the prince again at a picture exhibition where a portrait of the late W. H. Smith was hung. Turning to the princess, his royal highness said: "Hallo, there's Smith!"

At once a man standing near turned around and acknowledged the recognition, offering his hand, which the prince unhesitatingly accepted. When this man, whose name happened to be Smith, recognized the prince, he became embarrassed and, with the lady who accompanied him, made his exit as soon as possible.

How Word "Booze" Originated.

In the Pennsylvania museum, Memoriel hall in Fairmount park. Philadelphia, can be seen a collection of highly decorated old bottles, and the one which attracts most attention is the log cabin whisky bottle, molded in the shape of a house. On one end is the inscription "120 Walnut street, Philadelphia," together with the date, which is "1840," on the front of the roof. On the back is stamped in bold letters, "E. G. Booz's old cabin whisky."

This erstwhile vendor of spirituous liquor is said to be responsible for the use in America of the slang appellation "booze," by which all kinds of intoxicating drinks are known today. Although some etymologists give it as being derived from the Hindustant word "booza," meaning to drink, while others claim it is from the Dutch "buyzen" to tipple. The term was good English in the fourteenth century.

Confectionery of Ancient Egypt.

The invention of confectionery, an English writer guesses, is due to Noah, who "first hit on the idea of boiling down the starch of the wheat and the juice of the grape. The result was a paste, said to be the original of our present day 'Turkish delight.' Among the ancient Egyptians whole fruits, particularly figs and dates, were used for flavoring purposes, the latter especially for preserves and cakes. In old tombs date sweetmeats have been found, also records of honey jellies. The making of confectionery, in fact, goes back 3,400 years, proof of which is to be found on the walls of Egyptian tombs."

EZRA PROVED TRUE PROPHET

His Prediction That Funeral and Mar. riage Were Before Him Turned Out to Be Exact.

Last week a friend drifted in from the Old Home Town, now 20 years back of me, and we had a season of gossip about the old acquaintances which was soul satisfying. Some of the stories were pathetic, some were sordid, some were humorous, but all of them illustrated phases of life in a country town. Perhaps this one about Ezra was the best.

When I left the Old Home Town Ezra was the possessor of a wife whom he had had for 25 years or more, and who was in fairly good condition, although a little deaf, as might well be, for no woman ever talked more fluently or more willingly than did her husband. For some reason she was taken ill and died, and Ezra mourned her for a time, not an exceedingly long time, and then he began to take notice and presently married again.

This wife No. 2 was, of course, & later model, but she, too, fell ill, and the physician advised an operation. Ezra hired an automobile and went with her to the hospital, where the physicians told him that there was little hope that she would recover. He went home sorrowfully, and finally he broke out to the driver in this way: "Good Lord, I've got to go through it all again-bury this wife and then get another one!"

And he was a true prophet for things happened just as he predicted. -Hartford Courant.

ANY FOOL CAN FIND FAULT

Practically Impossible for Any Proposition, However Good, to Be Absolutely Without Flaw.

There is nothing however good but a person may find some fault in it if he is determined to do so. There is nothing perfect that is of man's making. There is nothing that man originates or performs but what contains more or less of his weakness. Worth, like water, must stay below the level of its source. It is quite natural that a person should dissent. The scientists dispute as much as the theologians. Every time one obtains a new standpoint he changes his opinion. Everytime he meets a friend he finds that he differs.

So we must make up our minds to disagree in the right spirit, observes the Ohio State Journal. If we don't do that and our disagreement falls into ill will and anxiety, then we become enemies of the truth and social pests besides. The person we earnestly and candidly disagree with may be right and ourselves wholly wrong. It would make us feel very absurd sometimes in the midst of a violent controversy, to have a sudden light let in on the controversy and show our adversary entirely right. The safest thing, so far as one's conduct toward him is concerned is to remember he may be right and treat him accordingly.

Markings of Horse's Coat.

It is found that there is a very definite connection between the coat color of horses and the frequency with which white markings occur. Thus the latter are by far the most commonly associated with the chestnut color. And not only are they the most prevalent in chestnut horses, but it is also, of course, a well-known fact that the markings are apt to be more extended in fature in the case of this color than in that of any other. Chestnut, therefore, apparently possesses so to speak, a special affinity for these markings. Bay ranks next as regards the degree of frequency with which white markings appear in horses of this color, although it comes a good way behind chestnut in this respect. Then follows brown, while the white marks are met with less frequently among black and roan colored horses.

Why Strike Collapsed.

Two telegraph operators worked in the office of the Milwaukee Free Press. Both were employed by the press association and not by the paper. They came soused one Sunday night, decided to strike, making demands for more pay and shorter hours from the managing editor of the newspaper, They were told to make their petition to their employers. The telegraphers retired for a council of war, put the strike into effect and decided to picket the office. The office had but one entrance, but there must be strategy; so one of the strikers posted himself directly in front of the office and the other around the corner, the in in ing out of sight at each other.

Then each had the same I not of getting another drink. They left their posts and that was the end of the strike. Other operators were called in and the wires buzzed merrily on .-

WOMAN'S RIGHT TO PROPOSE

British Girl Claims That Conditions Following War Have Made Old Ideas Look Foolish.

Among the last rights of women to be fought is the right to propose.

It is the inevitable consequence of the vote and of the war. The position of woman with regard to marriage has entirely changed, and the sooner it is recognized the better. Up till now nice women have properly not proposed, because it meant virtually: "Will you keep me?"

Now that a woman can be as independent as a man she need have no scruples on that score. "A Girl From the War" writes in the continental edition of the London Mail.

In every other direction the position of men and women, with regard to marriage, is equal. It is quite ridiculous that it should be an honorable thing in a man to love a woman who does not return his affection, and yet be a disgrace to a woman to love unasked. A proposal from the man clears the air, and it would be the same with one from the woman.

In the present condition of things a woman often wastes the best years of her life on a hope. It would be much better if she could say in the beginning: "I like you, and if you like me as much as I like you, let us spend our lives together." It would be quite simple for the man to reply, if he were of a different mind: "I am sorry. Of going into partnership."

The woman would then put him out of her mind and go about her business. Broken hearts heal in time, and it is possible that hearts would never get beyond the wounded stage if this plan were adopted.

There is a serious reason why it should be adopted. Some badly wounded men are feelin, much as if they had changed pla .. with the women. They do not have to say "Will you keep me?" when they propose, but what to them is almost as bad, "Will you keep yourself?"

It would be a great relief to many a crippled man in love if proposals were taken out of men's hands.

In the present-circumstances no nice girl could bring herself to propose, however willing she is to keep herself, however much she loves the man.

There is no need to fear that the new right would give added license to the other kind of girl. She proposes now, although not in so many words.

The question as to whether or not trout will rise to flies by moonlight is one that has long been discussed in the Adirondacks. Some fishermen claim to have taken them that way, while others say it is merely a fish story. Apparently about the only way one can prove it to his own satisfaction is to go some moonlight night to waters where they know trout are and try it for themselves.

There is, however, no doubt regarding brown trout taking flies at night, at least not in some waters. Arthur Munsil Malone recently secured seven fine brown trout from Salmon river, whose waters were bathed in moonlight at the time.—Saranac Lake Daily

Honor for the Cowbell.

Never again can the cowbell be looked upon as something merely bucolic, commonplace and utilitarian, connoting at best for the city man memories of idling away a summer holiday in the country. What the cowbell has meant to the country boy in early rising to do stable chores, and tedious hunting through swampy bottom lands for the heifer who appears to have no homing instinct it is rather difficult to express politely. But now the despised cowbell has achieved its apotheosis, for thanks to the ingenuity of a California composer, a set of fearful contemporary misuse of an honorable if lowly instrument by jazz.

Our Holdings

We own a six hundred acre lease, known as the Kingsbery and Henderson tracts, six miles South of Santa Anna, in Coleman county.

This is proven territory. There are from ten to fifteen wells in this immediate section, the nearest on the North being the Slick well, about one and one-half miles from our well, the Texas Company well on the East about two and one-half miles and the Trickham well about five miles South and East.

This lease was not taken by survey lines but was taken by Major Ottley out of about 3600 acres of land in irregular shape to cover certain structures selected by him as the best territory.

We are capitalized at $75,000.00, and this is your last chance to secure stock at par. Come at once, we have not time to see you, so if you want stock you must see us.

Below is a verbatum report of Major Jno. Ottley, geologist, on our holdings.

JNO W. OTTLEY, Geologist. Marietta, Okla.

Forty Years in the Service, Twenty-Five Years in Petroleum in all parts of Canada, United States and Old Mexico.

GEQLOGY, Petroleum Engineering.

Coleman, Texas, December 12, 1918. Special Geological report on acreage in Coleman County, Texas, about six miles South of Santa Anna, Texas, and owned by Upton Henderson and H. W. Kingsberry, respectively.

The surface geology in Pennsylvania, the formation is "Cisco," one of the uppermost members of the Pennsylvania formation.

The portion of this acreage relative to production is a few miles North of Trickham and about four miles South of the Turner production, which properties have been holding up in production for several years. The depth of drilling is about 1450 feet.

The dome covered by this report is about 2 miles long and one mile wide in its extreme limits as so shown on the plane table sheets. The structure of this dome is eminently fittest I have so far discovered in this county and hardly second to none with which I have had to da in my experience of 40 years active service. The plane table sheets accompanying this report shows the acreage under consideration and in conclusion class it as an ideal oil proposition. JNO. W. OTTLEY,

We are banking greatly on the report of Major Ottley, as he has located more of the heavy producing fields in the United States and Old Mexico than any other living geologist. The first Oil Camp in the Texas Coastal field was established by him in 1895, he located the fields of Sour Lake, Batson, Spindle Top, Humble and Markham in Texas. It was due to his report on Spindle Top that this wonderfield was discovered. Major Ottley stakes his reputation as a Geologist that we get paying production in our first well, and he has an interest in our Company. We believe this a chance to get quick returns on your investment, as our baring unavoidables) promise us a well within about ten days. r informat
