

The Plainview News

Published Tuesday and Friday at Plainview, Hale County, Texas.
 J. M. ADAMS, Editor and Owner

Entered as second-class matter, May 23, 1906 at the Postoffice at Plainview, Texas, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The labor unions are opposed to "government by injunction." They are in favor of government by intimidation.

Our opinion is that if Bailey runs for Governor he will not gain much strength by his opposition to the league of nations, woman's suffrage and prohibition. The people of Texas are not going to vote into office a chronic grouch or a man of Bailey's reputation.

The men with heavy underwear, heavy outer wear and overcoats appear to be the shining marks the flu lives to alight on. The girl with the exposed wishbone, the peekaboo waist and all but bare ankles appears to have become too tough for the germ to gnaw upon.

The American Federation of Labor has begun a nation wide campaign to elect a congress that will carry out its radical demands. The farmers of the country should see to it that the Federation is defeated, for practically every demand of organized labor is against the interest of the farmers.

Capt. L. Milligan, was elected to congress from the Third Missouri district Saturday over a republican in a special election. The issue was on the League of Nations, which Milligan favors. In nearly every special election where this has been the issue it has won out. The people are for the league.

"Drinkers of bootleg alcohol are advised to see their undertaker before drinking," is the hint given by Editor Astroy of the Blanket Signal. And then he tells whether the cheap whiskey you drink has wood alcohol instead of grain alcohol it is to wait and see if you die. If whiskey doesn't kill you it is made of grain alcohol. If it kills you the undertaker does the rest.

A preacher in Oklahoma City had a widow arrested for displaying the wax figure of a woman, adorned only in a pair of silk hose and a few other garments worn by women only. The preacher claimed such things are not "for the upbuilding of young manhood," and Colonel James H. Lowery of the Honey Grove Signal returned this verdict: "The preacher is right. They are for the upbuilding of young womanhood."

Leading newspapers of London are displeased with the King's method of expressing himself. In a pointed editorial, the Daily Express protests against the recurring use of the word "my" in the King's speech from the throne, such as "my army," "my navy," "my people," "my possessions." The Express says the word is contrary to the democratic spirit of the age and ought to be dropped with the other archaisms which serve no useful purpose and only irritate.

Joe Bailey and Ferguson may now haul down their storm signals. They are false prophets, as proven by the record. In their argument against the right of women to vote both of these gentlemen have laid great stress on the statement that with suffrage granted to the women we would find negroes crowding the white ladies off the earth. It so happens, that very few negro women paid their poll taxes. At Seguin, only one paid, and in some counties none secured their voting certificates, while the number of Mexican women registering was negligible. Thus is another great argument, if argument it may be styled, against equal suffrage knocked out—hoist by its own petard.

The editor of the Lubbock Avalanche has recently seen fit to go out of his way in a very unethical, not to say untruthful, attack on the editors of the News and the Lockney Beacon. It was in each case a strictly butinsky act, which showed the grouchy makeup of the Avalanche man. The Beacon last week took Editor Dow to a nice trimming, which he richly deserved. What the Beacon said about Editor Dow will also apply to Editor Haynes of the Tahoka News, which is owned by Dow, for he like a cuckoo repeated about the same thing. Editors Dow and Haynes should remember the old proverb, that people never lose anything by attending to their own affairs and letting other people's business alone.

PROPER CLOTHING AND STAYING OUT OF CROWDS URGED

Influenza Germ Declared to Be Easily Killed by Sunlight and Fresh Air

Following the recent appearance of the influenza in epidemic form in Chicago, Southwestern divisional headquarters of the Red Cross at St. Louis today sent the following influenza warning, prepared by the Red Cross health experts.

The instructions explain how to avoid needless exposure to the disease. They follow:

The essential idea to keep in mind with reference to influenza is that it is an infectious disease which involve the respiratory tract and that it is acquired by direct exposure to one having influenza.

The methods of care and prevention of this disease will become perfectly obvious to you if you understand the meaning of the previous paragraph. Since influenza attacks the respiratory tract, at a time like this when we are in danger of having an epidemic, it should cause us to use every method known to us and at our disposal toward the maintenance of a perfectly healthy and vigorous respiratory tract and to keep at its highest point any natural immunity or natural resistance which we may have. The preservation of a healthy and sound respiratory tract can be maintained by watching ventilation, guarding against colds, exposure, crowd, and poorly ventilated buildings and vehicles. It is well at all times to have one or several windows open in the office, home or street car so that an abundance of fresh air may be had in these places. It is far more judicious to have an abundance of fresh, cool air in the rooms and to have on heavier garments than to be lightly dressed and have the temperature of the room high.

Influenza probably originated in the army camps because a great number of men were brought together which in turn caused the rapid distribution of the micro-organisms of influenza from one person to another, thereby building up the virulence of these organisms until they attained the power which when delivered in the air passages of an individual cause the extreme and violent symptoms commonly known to influenza.

It has at times been called "crowd disease," probably because when distributed from one to another in masses, its virulence became greater. Realizing the significance of this point, it would be well if we were to avoid crowds in so far as we can, particularly masses of people in closed rooms where the ventilation is poor.

It is definitely known that the germs of influenza are very delicate and that exposure to air and light kills them in a very short period of time. Recognizing this fact, we should permit of all of the exposure possible to these germs of influenza so as to facilitate their destruction.

The general resistance of the body should be at its highest point. This can be done by general hygienic and dietetic methods. Food should be properly selected and taken in quantities that will fully insure proper nutrition. Proper rest should be had at night. Outside walking, exercise and sports are conducive to the general upbuilding of the vitality of the individual. Sunshine is a valuable medicine to the human body in that it stimulates all of the functions of the body.

An individual with a cold should exercise every care that this infection will not be transmitted to some one else. If a cold is severe, one should voluntarily quarantine himself from other members of the family or office. Individuals with influenza should be completely quarantined. When coughing or sneezing be sure to cover the mouth or nose with a handkerchief. If possible, avoid all public conveyances and to walk to and from home. Avoid public gatherings and particularly those gatherings where the light is poor and where ventilation is bad. In many places in the city where large numbers of people congregate several times in the day, no sunlight ever enters and ventilation is very poor.

In so far as we know there is no medicine or drug which one could take which is of value in the prevention of influenza. It has been quite definitely proven that inoculations against influenza and they do prevent a great many infections of influenza, but not all. Statistics at hand are clear in showing that the people injected against influenza are less liable to the infection and if they do acquire the infection, it usually is not so violent.

At the onset of any symptom indicating a severe cold or influenza, call your physician.

"America is to Blame"

Before taking passage for the other side Sir George Paish said: "The bottom is dropping out of the world; America is to blame." Sir George is said to be the greatest British economist. A New York editor handed the distressed economist this bit of advice: "If Europe produces it can obtain our products in exchange. There is no doubt of this and further there is no doubt that Europe can produce a very large percentage of her necessities. The trouble seems to be that her people, her peasants particularly, believe that with political emancipation comes a license to idle, work and idleness will restore the waste places. Nothing else can."

During the progress of the war Americans fed them. Americans financed them. Americans bridged the Atlantic with ships. Americans mobilized, 4,000,000 soldiers and sailors to help fight their battles and yet "America is to blame." Self-preservation is the first law of nature.

These allies of Uncle Sam owe him $11,000,000,000. He has deferred interest payments for three years. He is doing the best he can to feed millions who are hungry over there, to provide raw materials for those who have the collaterals or the credit over there. Now just why should Uncle Sam go broke for the convenience or comfort of European nations that are to be his trade rivals in the near future.

FLOW OF WET GAS IN WELL NEAR AMARILLO INCREASING

Amarillo, Feb. 15.—Very favorable reports have been prevalent during the last week concerning the Tuck-Trigg test north of this city. The well is approximately 3,600 feet deep and the drillers are at this time going through a very heavy black shale. The flow of wet gas is increasing daily.

Test wells are being drilled in almost every Panhandle county. Leasing has been on the decline for the past weeks, though considerable activity is noted at present. People holding leases in this section are all renewing and few care to turn their acreage.

Plans are on foot at this time to arrange for casinghead plants in order that the gas supply may be utilized.

CHARACTER

The true worth of a man or a woman is the measure of his or her character.

Did it ever occur to you that precisely the same applies to a banking institution?

If this bank enjoys success and a high reputation; if it is a truly up-building force in this community; if it is fulfilling its highest mission as a bank, then it is all due to the Character that makes the Guaranty State the institution it is.

TREATY AGREEMENT SEEMS UNLIKELY

Compromise Negotiations Result in Very Bad Tangle at End of Day

Washington, Feb. 17.—The peace treaty compromise negotiations got into such a tangled state today that despite claims in some quarters that the lines on both sides were weakening, the treaty's best friends in the senate minimized the possibilities of agreement.

"It looks as though we might come out at the same hole we went in," said Senator Hitchcock, the democratic leader, after another effort to obtain republican aid in modifying the article ten reservation. He added that the republicans apparently had rejected all compromise proposals and that he was certain the treaty never could be ratified unless they did compromise.

At the same time some mild reservation republicans indicated their belief that the democratic proposal might command considerable republican strength, while some democrats predicted that enough democrats to insure ratification would break away and vote for the republican reservation.

HARD TO JUDGE BY SOUND

Nature Has Not Equipped All Creatures With Vocal Organs Commensurate With Their Size.

It is a very curious fact that the loudest sounds are not always made by the largest animals. The roar of the lion exceeds in sonorosity the cry of the elephant. Anyone who had only heard, without seeing, a bullfrog might well suppose that its fearful voice, breaking the silence of the night, must certainly come from the throat of an animal of formidable dimensions.

Perhaps the most remarkable case of vocal power in an animal is that encountered by a traveler in the highlands of Borneo. He was informed by some natives that they had heard a tiger roaring in the neighborhood. Such news is always startling to a stranger in the jungles, and hardly less so to the natives.

An investigation was accordingly set on foot, which resulted in the discovery that the roaring heard had been emitted by a toad! This toad of Borneo, however, was by no means an ordinary member of the family. It measured no less than 14½ inches around the body.

That the natives should not have recognized the true source of the sound shows that the existence of such roars was either unknown to them, or at any rate, they had never discovered the remarkable vocal capabilities of the animals.

In this relation Bates tells of an incident that occurred during his travels along the Amazon. Among the many sounds heard in the dense Brazilian forests was a kind of loud metallic clanking, that sometimes rang through the trees, and the origin of which the traveler was unable to discover. Whenever it was heard, the natives covered with fear, ascribing it to a supernatural origin. Possibly the noise was so loud that they missed its location by searching only for something of corresponding physical dimensions.

Where East and West Meet.

As soon as I looked him over I knew from his frank, engaging smile, his openwork countenance and his free-and-easy clothes, where he was from. "Yes," he said, "You've guessed it. I'm from the West."

"And you look down upon the East," I ventured. "You regard New York as essentially provincial—believe that the Atlantic seaboard is infested by a species of human being with increasing culture, with mock intellectualism, with narrow mentality, but with no natural, healthy, broad outlook on life."

"But I enjoy my yearly visit," he said, pleasantly.

"Certainly you do," I replied. "You are wise enough to overlook the self-satisfied stupidity of the easterner, and there are opportunities for realization not afforded in the West. You can be vibrated in New York in many keys."

He shook his head. "You haven't got me at all," he said. "There is, of course, something in what you say. But that is not why I really like the East."

"Then why?" I asked.

"Because," he replied, pleasantly, "in traveling through the East I always meet so many Westerners."—Chester-ton Todd, in Judge.
