BAILEY SPEAKS TO HALE COUNTY PEOPLE

CRITICISES NEFF AND SAYS HE IS TOO WEAK FOR GOVERNOR OF TEXAS

Joseph Weldon Bailey spoke in Plainview yesterday afternoon in behalf of his candidacy for governor. A platform was erected at the south entrance to the court house and seats were put out on the lawn. There were about 800 people seated and about as many more stood up, his audience being composed of approximately 1,600.

Mr. Bailey spoke in Lubbock Wednesday, coming to Plainview on Thursday morning's train. He was met at the depot by a number of supporters wearing large "Reception" badges on their coats and cards bearing the words "Bailey for Governor" on their hats. He was escorted to the Ware hotel, where many people called upon him.

The speaking was scheduled to begin at 3 o'clock. The Tulsa band played several pieces, after which H. E. Skaggs in introduced J. E. Willis, who introduced Mr. Bailey.

Mr. Bailey declared that the present campaign was one of misrepresentation against him, but that no one can say he has misrepresented his opponents.

He denounced as a lie the statement made by a speaker at a recent meeting of the local Neff club that he was sent to Texas by the Standard Oil Co. to run for governor. He said all such stories are being told against him to cheat people out of their votes.

He declared some say he is trying to bring whiskey back into Texas, but that as both the federal and state constitutions forbid liquor he "could not bring whiskey back to Texas if he would, and would not if he could." This story, he said, is being told in order to fool the women to vote against him.

He said he is opposed to national prohibition because it is against state's rights—and there is no other kind of a democrat than a state's rights democrat. That he don't want Kansas, Pennsylvania, New York and other states to tell Texas what she must do. He derided Kansas for having mixed schools and allowing negroes and whites to marry. All thru his address he derided Kansas and at one time said he thanked God He had put Oklahoma between Kansas and Texas.

He declared that congress may pass a law permitting the sale of beer and wine, and force Texas to permit it.

Bailey spoke bitterly of Thos. B. Love, national committeeman for this state, saying many years ago when he became a member of the legislature, he borrowed money from a liquor dealer to get to Austin.

The speaker romped on the Texas delegation to the San Francisco convention, and charged that the delegates did not carry out the instructions of the people at home. He said the delegation "was dry in Texas and wet in San Francisco," because they voted against Bryan's dry plank.

Several times in his address Mr. Bailey denounced his opponents as ignorant fools, and once said a smart rascal was less dangerous than an honest fool.

He dwelt for a half-hour in discussion of Neff's land plank, and denounced it as socialistic. He said such a policy means the dividing up of big estates, then another and still another division until finally no man will be permitted to own more than ten acres of land. He said that Neff's land plank means increased production of farm products, which would mean reduced prices.

He referred to the result in Hale county in the July primary, his vote being third, and hoped this county will do better for him August 28.

Mr. Bailey said there is a deal of rot about "what we owe to the old countries," and spoke derisively of the continual begging of Armenia for help, and that he "would never give a dollar to Europe so long as there is a hungry or destitute widow or orphan in this country."

He criticised congress for refusing aid to West Texas during the drouthy years, and then voting a hundred million dollars for the starving European people. (See Mr. Thomas' correction of this statement in another column).

Next, Mr. Bailey discussed the claim that he is not a citizen of Texas, and therefore is not eligible to serve as governor. He declared they wished he was not, and that they would raise $100,000 to give him to leave the state and never come back—but that he would not take ten times ten million dollars to do so; that "I am going to be elected governor, and am going to take my seat."

Union labor was next taken up and Mr. Bailey discussed it for more than a half-hour. He denounced organized labor for opposing him, and declared it is seeking to dominate the state. He said he does not oppose labor, that he is for it when it is right and oppos-

PLAINVIEW ELKS DEFEATED AMARILLO ELKS YESTERDAY

Mitchell Holds Visitors to Three Hits and Strikes Out Twelve Men— Muddy Field

Plainview won yesterday's game with Amarillo by a score of 7 to 3. The game was played on a muddy field and was called after the eighth inning on account of darkness.

Plainview got to Merrill for nine hits while Mitchell held Amarillo to three and struck out twelve men. McDaniel got a home run in the seventh inning with two men on bases. Amarillo's battery was Merrill and Klopner, while Mitchell tossed to Payne for the locals. Cawrey umpired the game.

ed to it when it is wrong. He played especially upon a circular purported to have been issued by a Dallas union and an article in a Houston labor paper, urging all union men to vote against Bailey. He declared that "I do not believe that labor, capital or the Baptist church ought to rule Texas." He said organized labor in Texas constitutes only one-fourth of all laborers, one-eighth of the population, and pays only three per cent of the taxes—hence, if we must have a class government, let's select the largest class to rule. He declared that the women and not union labor defeated him in the May conventions.

Mr. Bailey said he is for the open shop—for the open shop in an American shop, and the closed shop makes union labor a monopoly.

hour day, and said, it takes eight hours day, and said, it takes eight hours to make a living and then extra hours each day so a person can accumulate for the rainy day that is to come. He said union labor has already come out for a six hour day, and if it gets that will then ask for a four-hour day. He said he is opposed to labor having an eight-hour day because all workers and professions cannot have it, and mentioned housewives, doctors, merchants and farmers.

He declared that "wages are too high." He said the union laborers who are always "demanding higher wages and shorter hours, are crying loudest against the high cost of living—that they always demand that all the reducing of prices come from the farm. The speaker seemingly tried to play on the prejudice of the farmers against the laborers, and pictured the high wages, short hours and easy time organized labor enjoys, and the long hours, poor pay and hard time of the farmers. He ridiculed the daylight saving law of last year. He declared if the eight-hour day becomes universal it will mean less production and high prices.

At times Mr. Bailey was rather bitter in his denunciation of certain of his opponents, especially Mr. Crane, Love, Thomas, Campbell and Wolfe, whom he dubbed as an oligarchy. He declared Neff is not capable of becoming a governor.

In his peroration he declared himself a Jeffersonian democrat, and eloquently spoke of the old songs, the old principles and the good old times. He also spoke of the need of heroes to fight for the things that are right.

At the close Miss Dell Speed presented Mr. Bailey with a large and beautiful bouquet. Many persons gathered about him and congratulated him upon his speech.

Mr. Bailey's voice was husky, and he did not make a fiery speech like he used to. The applause was not very generous, and at time quite weak. He was given a close and respectful hearing.

He was billed to speak at points in the Panhandle, but cancelled them and left on the 11:05 train for Central Texas.

CULLEN F. THOMAS DELIVERS ADDRESS FOR NEFF

ANSWERS BAILEY'S SPEECH, AND SAYS HE IS NOT A REAL DEMOCRAT

Undoubtedly the most enthusiastic political meeting held in Plainview during the nine years the editor of the News has lived here was held this afternoon, when Cullen F. Thomas of Dallas delivered an address to about fourteen hundred people on the south side of the court house in answer to Mr. Bailey, who spoke from the same platform yesterday afternoon. Mr. Thomas is a very able speaker and as district attorney many years ago prosecuted H. Clay Pierce, the oil magnate and friend of Bailey, for violating the laws of Texas.

Mr. Thomas came to Plainview on the morning train from Lubbock, where he spoke last night. He was met at the depot by supporters of Mr. Neff and taken to the Wayland hotel. The Tulsa concert band, every member of which is a Neff supporter, so we are told, played several selections, including "Dixie," and when the speaker came toward the platform played "America," while the audience stood.

W. A. Nash, chairman of the Hale County Neff-for-Governor Club, called the audience to order, and introduced Meade Griffin, former supporter of Mr. Looney, who in turn introduced W. W. Kirk, former supporter of Thomas. Each of the speakers pledged his earnest support to Neff, declaring the principles of Neff, Thomas and Looney to be practically the same. Mr. Kirk introduced Mr. Thomas, who was enthusiastically applauded as he began his address at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Thomas complimented the Plains people and said in this campaign some of the best men are on both sides, that all the goodness and virtue is not under one banner. He said he is for Neff for governor, and this brought loud applause. The man who seeks the highest office in the state should be a democrat; that he had known Pat Neff for more than a quarter-century and he knew him to be the kind of a democrat and man he should be; that he had never known a man of cleaner personal or political life, and if he is elected no person will ever blush for any act Neff does when in the gubernatorial chair. Neff stands four-square on the democratic platform. Then, he asked, how does Neff's opponent stand?

Mr. Thomas told of himself being a delegate from Texas to the San Francisco convention, and of the scene when the bands played and the portrait of President Wilson was let down before the delegates and they cheered. He said if Bailey had been there, in the light of his past utterances, he would have at once introduced a resolution to turn the president's picture to the wall.

Neff stands on every plank of the national platform; Joe Bailey can't get one big toe on a plank of that platform.

He declared that Bailey turned a somersault over night for Cox, but that it was for political effect, as Cox is a Woodrow Wilson democrat. Bailey says he is a "Cox Democrat," but it is safe to say that Cox is not a "Joe Bailey Democrat." Mr. Thomas said he calls such Bailey men who are swinging on to Cox's coat as "coat-tail democrats," and some of the thirty ones might be called "Cox-tail democrats."

Mr. Thomas defended the Texas delegation to San Francisco, declared that in the Texas caucus he and twelve others voted for the Bryan boneyard amendment, that all the Texas delegation voted for the Hobson boneyard amendment and against the Bourke Cochrane wet plank.

The speaker attacked Bailey's prohibition record, declaring that he is no pro, that in 1908 overnight in order to get the liquor and anti vote he flopped and since then he has not uttered one word or encouragement to the people of Texas as they fought the liquor traffic. That in the senate he made a speech against the bill to abolish the saloon in the capital basement. That only recently, at Beeville, he declared in a speech each family should have a right to make its own liquor. In San Antonio April 8th, Bailey declared he was in favor of repealing the federal prohibition amendment, and let every state say whether or not it wanted liquor.

Mr. Thomas said, in discussing Bailey's charge that he, Wolfe, Crane, Love and Cone Johnson are a political oligarchy, said it was better to be an oligarchy than to be an oil-oligarchy, and that his crowd was better than that composed of Joe Bailey, John Kirby, Rienza Johnson, Quintus Watson and other warmongers, as they were political bosses; that he and others have worked until we have rid the state of this liquorplunderbund. There were cheers when Mr. Thomas declared that in the August 28th primary we will rid Texas forever of the curse

Gink Is Too Much For Plainview Base Ball Team

The gink got his clutches on the Plainview base ball team this afternoon, and walloped it good and strong.

Today is Friday, the 13th, and the game played this afternoon with Amarillo was the thirteenth game the Plainview Elks teams have played this season. They got defeated the worst of any game this season.

The Amarillo team, which suffered a defeat yesterday afternoon, came back with a vengeance, and defeated Plainview by a score of 9 to 2.

of Baileyism.

He said that when measured by the democratic yardstick we don't want Bailey for governor. Bailey claims to be a Jeffersonian democrat. We know what Bailey says about Jefferson; we would like to know what Jefferson thinks about Bailey. If Bailey is a successor to Jefferson's mantle, what kind of "oil" was he anointed with.

At this place the speaker asked all in the audience who were for Bailey to say "Hurrah for Bailey," and several did. He laughed and said "Good, but I have a poor opinion of your judgment."

He said Bailey voted with Alrich and the republicans on the tariff schedules on certain important articles, was the chum of Sibley, the republican stool of the Standard Oil Co., voted for Lorimer to retain his seat in the senate, and has assisted the republicans in many other ways.

If Bailey should go into the doubtful states to make speeches for Cox, he will have joint debates with himself, as he has in every speech he makes. When has Bailey fought the republicans? The Republican Councilor and the Texas Republic, the only republican newspapers in Texas, are championing Bailey and in a way urging republicans to go into the democratic primary and vote for him.

At Orange a year ago Mr. Bailey came back to Texas and made a speech thundering against democracy and declaring the time had come to organize a new party; he made another such speech at Covington, and then he and his crowd and Jim Ferguson on the same day—and Jim beat him to the new party.

The Cox speech of acceptance is the best anti-Bailey speech ever uttered. Mention of the League of Nations was cheered loudly, and the speaker made a defense of the issue.

"What about the open shop was called from the audience, and the speaker said the open and closed shop is a matter of private contract, and the governor cannot affect it in any way, except to see that the law is enforced during strikes. If Neff is elected governor his program calls for peace and compromise between labor and capital. That while Bailey denounced union labor, he had not a word of censure for the profiteers nor the capitalists. He gave instances of great profits being made by profiteers. As to the eight-hour day, nobody is asking for such a law.

The Neff land plank was then called for, and Thomas said it applies to nobody in this country, and only to the big non-resident land holders who are holding immense tracts of land off the market for speculation, until the smaller land owners develop the country and enhance the value of all lands. He read a letter written by Jefferson endorsing a graduated land tax.

In regard to the statement of Bailey that the government had turned down West Texas people when they asked for aid during the drouth, he said this was untrue, that the federal war board loaned millions to the cattlemen of West Texas, the emergency board also loaned millions and the federal treasury deposited millions of dollars in West Texas banks under an agreement that it would be loaned to farmers and ranchmen. That Bailey in the senate was not a friend of the farmers as he voted for the Aldrich bill which sought to loan money to the big eastern banks at 1 1/2 per cent, and that every Southern democratic senator voted against the bill, and Senator Morgan, the great Southern democrat, declared it the worst bill that had ever been before congress.

The woman's suffrage question was next called for, and Thomas said Bailey declared in a banquet in 1917 that "I prefer the saloon in politics rather than the women."

Bailey's war record was then called for, and Thomas said "Bailey is a fighter in the time of peace and a pacifist in the time of war." He contrasted Bailey with Taft and Roosevelt, and said those republicans put their hands in those of the president and went over the country helping him win the war, while Bailey sulked in his tent. That during the seven years the president has been in the White House Bailey has never seen the face of the president; that none of the war activities had Bailey's support;

FIFTH ADDED TO RAIL TRAVEL ON AUGUST 26

Pullman Rates Increased One-Half— Tickets Bought Before August 26th at Old Rate

Advance information relative to the increase in passenger freight rates effective August 26 has been given out by T. B. Gallaher, general freight and passenger agent of the Panhandle and Santa Fe at Amarillo.

"It is a general flat increase of 20 per cent all along the line and effects not only ticket sales, but also the summer tourists rates. All are raised just 20 per cent," stated Mr. Gallaher.

According to a circular issued by the traffic official, "one-way tickets purchased prior to August 26 on which journey has been commenced, will be honored through to destination and in like manner round-trip tickets will be honored through to destination and return starting point without collection of the 20 per cent increase. If the journey is not commenced before August 26, passengers of course will be required to pay the increase."

"Extra fares on extra fare trains will be increased and collected in accordance with the new tariff regulations. There will be no change in the current minimum number of passage tickets required for exclusive occupancy of drawing rooms, compartments or sections.

"Excess baggage rates will automatically increase 20 per cent. Parking, storage and baggage storage charges will be increased 20 per cent.

"Surcharge for occupancy of sleeping cars and parlor cars will be 50 per cent of the Pullman or parlor car charges for the space occupied and not on the per capita basis. The surcharge will be collected by the Pullman Company on Pullman tickets sold for use on or after August 26 regardless of the date of sale of the Pullman or railroad tickets. The surcharge will also be collected by the Pullman Company on all outstanding Pullman tickets sold for use on or after August 26, before the tickets will be honored.

"Pullman tickets on which the journey has been commenced prior to August 26 will be honored through to destination, but if stop-over is made on railroad tickets carrying stop-over privileges, surcharge will be collected on Pullman tickets sold on and after August 26, regardless of the date the railroad ticket is sold."

According to the local Santa Fe traffic officials all freight rates between points in the territory defined as that between an imaginary line drawn from Chicago to the Gulf of Mexico and a line from El Paso thru Denver, Colo., north to the Canadian boundary will be increased thirty-five per cent. All freight rates west of this territory will be increased 25 per cent. Freight rates from Chicago to New York and other eastern territory is increased 40 per cent and all rates between points in the southeastern territory is increased 25 per cent. Inter-territorial freight rates will be increased 33 1/3 per cent.

Grain rates from common points in Texas are increased from 24 cents to 32 1/2 cents, whereas the current rates from Kansas City to Galveston range from 34 cents upward, making the increase from Kansas City range from 12 cents upward over the Texas rate.

Live stock rates from Amarillo to Kansas City will be increased about $30 per car, said the Santa Fe officials. From South Texas the live stock rates are increased about $40 per car and upward.—Amarillo Tribune.

that "a man who does not make a four minute speech for his country during war, should not make a four hours' political speech after the war." That Bailey has no word of praise for the American heroes. That Emma Goldman, Victor Berger, Eugene Debs and Bailey all opposed the war, and while the first three have been punished for their opposition, should Bailey be lectured governor.

Mr. Thomas said, that while peace now prevails, it is possible that next year or the next there may be war in which this country is involved, and that if so we cannot afford a man like Bailey as governor. That possibly one of the Texas senators might die, and then if the congress is in session the governor would appoint a man to fill the vacancy until the people could elect a man; possibly the league of nation treaty would be up for a vote, and Bailey would from his opposition to the league appoint a man who would vote against it, and the one vote might decide the matter. Every person in the audience opposed to the League of Nations was asked to hold up his or her hand; no hand was held up.

After the speaker closed the people crowded about him to shake his hand; the band played "Dixie," and other airs.

The speaker was soon taken into a car and the start was made for Canyon, where he will speak tonight.

POLES ARE FIGHTING DESPERATELY FOR WARSAW

BATTLE RAGING THIRTY MILES OF CAPITAL—POLES THROWING RUSSIANS OUT

London, Aug. 13.—Polish and Bolshevik armies have met in battle at a point thirty miles north of Warsaw and the result was still in doubt when the last dispatches were filed from the Polish capital.

The Poles are offering bitter resistance, repeatedly throwing the Russians out of defenses where a foothold had been gained, according to advices from the front. Much of the fighting was hand to hand.

A considerable force of Poles was being held back of the lines as a mobile reserve, the staff fearing the Russian attack on the north might be a feint, and that the main drive for Warsaw would materialize elsewhere.

CULBERTSON HEADS STATE REPUBLICAN TICKET

Other Candidates Put In Nomination At Texas Convention— Open Shop Endorsed

Dallas, Texas, Aug. 11.—With John Culbertson, Wichita Falls, as gubernatorial standard bearer, Texas republicans today placed a full state ticket in the field as the result of their state convention here yesterday. A platform adopted prior to nominations declared for open shop in industry, control of Texas Republicanism by white men but was silent upon prohibition and suffrage.

The ticket chosen by the convention: Lieutenant governor—Howard W. Smith, Port Arthur.

Attorney General—Earl Wharton, Houston.

State Treasurer—Frank C. Gross, San Antonio.

Court of Criminal Appeals—C. W. Sterling, Dallas.

Comptroller—E. N. Mulkey, Sherman.

Vice State Chairman—R. B. Creager, Brownville.

T. J. Braidfoot, Pioneer, Dies
T. J. Braidfoot, age 74 years, pioneer of the Plains and one of the organizers of Briscoe county, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Otus Reeves, in this city Monday night. Burial was at Silverton Tuesday.

The deceased came to the Plains from Kaufman county. His wife died about four years ago. He leaves two sons, Harry and Fred Braidfoot, who are New Mexico ranchmen, and two daughters, Mrs. Arnold of Silverton, and Mrs. Reeves.

Potter 2 to 1 for Neff
Editor Ramsey of the Amarillo Bailey News is here this afternoon to hear Mr. Cullen F. Thomas speak and then carry him in a car to Canyon and Amarillo.

Mr. Ramsey declared that Potter county will vote two to one for Neff August 28, as practically all the former supporters of Thomason and Looney are now for Neff.

Tennessee to Vote Today
The Tennessee legislature will today vote on ratification of the woman's suffrage amendment. It is claimed that the amendment will be ratified, and thus become effective, as only the vote of one more state is needed.

The North Carolina legislature is also in session for the purpose, but the result is doubtful.

Two Rains This Week
A .36-inch rain fell Tuesday night and another of .69-inch Wednesday night. These rains were not needed, in fact damaged wheat in the stacks and stopped the threshers.

So far 3.37 inches of rain has fallen since August 1st.

Callahan County Man Buys Farm
L. O. Payne from Callahan county has bought the G. H. Stovall eighty-acre farm in the Stoneback community and will occupy it with his family.

County Tax Rate 65c
The commissioners' court has set the county tax rate at 65c, divided as follows: Ad valorem 35c, road and bridge, 15c, court house and jail, 10c, jury 5c.

WHERE THE RIO GRANDE IS FLOWING.

(Air: "Where the River Shannon Flows.")

There's a promised land in Texas
Where cool sea breezes blow;
It's a land of milk and honey,
Where fruits and flowers grow.
'Tis a land of health and sunshine
where sweetest dreams come true,
And I'm sure there is no other
That could ever, ever do.

Chorus.
Where the Rio Grande is flowing,
And the green alfalfa grows;
Where my heart is I am going,
For with joy it overflows.
There the mocking birds will greet me
With songs of this fair land;
In the fertile Magic Valley
On the Lower Rio Grande.

You can see Dame Nature smiling,
Her handiwork complete;
You can hear the bees a-humming
'Mid the fields of clover sweet.
There is rest for all who labor,
And wealth for all in store;
When we settle down forever
On the Rio Grande shore.

Each color of "Old Glory" stands for something. The national colors symbolize strength and courage in red; purity of ideals and honor in white; and truth and fidelity in blue.

Every four years we hear that the country is going straight to Hell if the other Political Party is elected. But the old country manages to keep afloat somehow or other.

A farmer of the Runningwater community, who heard Mr. Bailey speak yesterday afternoon, remarked at the close, "Not once did he criticize or denounce organized capital. Why?" Neither, did he denounce the profiteers.

The federal reserve act is admitted to be the most constructive monetary legislation in history.—Governor James M. Cox. Joseph Weldon Bailey dismissed the federal reserve act with a shrug and a sneer, as cumbersome, faulty and crude legislation.

Charles Ponzi of Boston is the champion get-rich-quick artist. Two years ago he was a $15 a week clerk in Wichita Falls. Now he has $8,500,000, and his sudden wealth by a slick scheme is puzzling the world. Money is easy to accumulate—if you know how. However, work and economy beat in the longrun.

The incomes from war-made fortunes, those of non-producers and from industries that exist from an unfair privilege may be able to carry their present load, but taxes on the earnings of the wage earner, the salaried and professional man, of the agricultural producer and on the small tradesman should be sharply modified.—Governor James M. Cox.

According to the Dallas News, a Marlin man sold a hide weighing fifty-one pounds for $4.16. He then ordered a pair of shoes sent to his house which was accompanied by a bill for $18. He was wrathful for the reason that he considered four cowhides for one pair of shoes in the nature of extortion and he is mad about it. This may be true, but how is he going to help himself?

Will history repeat itself? In 1916 five candidates were in the race for U. S. Senator. In the first primary Colquitt led Culberson by a plurality of 35,000, with Brooks, Campbell and Henry trailing behind. In the second primary Culberson beat Colquitt by 70,000 majority. Brooks and Campbell and their supporters rallied to Culberson; Henry didn't have many supporters. In the primary last month Bailey and Neff almost tied. Thomason at once announced for Neff, Looney is now making speeches for Neff. No effort is being made to "deliver" the Thomason and Looney vote to Neff, but the greater per cent of it is naturally going to Neff. In the first primary it was Bailey against the field, and Bailey only got one-third of the votes cast. Bailey will on August 28 suffer the same fate Colquitt did in the second primary. Some voters may not love Neff more, but they love Bailey a lot less, for they cannot forget his unsavory record of years past.

Plainview has heard all four of this year's gubernatorial candidates—Thomason, Looney, Neff and Bailey in the order in which they came. Each was given a cordial reception and a respectful hearing. That is the way with Plains people; they are hospitable, they are courteous, they give every man a hearing—then vote as they please.

HAS LOST HIS FIRE

The editor of the News has known Mr. Bailey for many years, and has heard him speak several times. We were greatly disappointed in his address yesterday afternoon, and the weak enthusiasm with which it was received. Mr. Bailey has lost his old-time pep, and he fails to make his admirers perform as he did in days of years ago.

In the campaigns thirteen and more years ago, there was a great noise from the time he entered the places where he spoke until after he had closed. There were fervent demonstrations at most everything he said.

But, not so now. He has not the same magnetism, nor does he impart much life to his hearers. His voice yesterday, it is true, was rather husky, and was not at its best, but that was not all that was the matter with him. He looked grouchy, and his speech was in opposition to most everything that has happened and is happening. These days the sun is shining, and the man who does not turn his face to the sun is shunned by other men. It is the optimist and not the pessimist who gets the applause today.

It was a surprisingly small number of people who applauded him yesterday, and not one time did the applause rise to anything much more than prefatory. The old Bailey yell was lacking.

Bailey showed a little of his old-time eloquence in his peroration, when he spoke of the good old ways, and the good old ways, but it was merely pretty language he used, and was not argument to urge a return to the old days except in sentiment—and we all love to think of the halcyon days and the heart-moving songs of our youth—but we wouldn't for a moment wish to again live under the conditions that we then lived.

Yes, Bailey has lost his old force. He has lost his brilliancy. He is passing out as a factor in politics. He cannot come back. He will be defeated August 28th.

Bailey many years ago flashed across the political horizon as a bright meteor. He was a man of winning through egotistical personality. He was a charming and somewhat forceful speaker. While not of a constructive mind, yet he became a leader in congress, and was promoted to the senate. He then proved his weakness. When at the peak of his career he listened to the tempter's enticing words, and bartered his influence. He was seduced by D. R. Francis, H. Clay Pierce, John Kirby, the Standard Oil trust—and no telling how many others who had selfish desires upon legislation or politics. Instead of cleaving to the people, he loved money—and you know that the Bible itself declares no man "can serve God and mammon." The fall of Bailey is pathetic. But, such is the record of all men who follow the same path that he trod. The trail of the serpent leads across the life of any man who does as Bailey has done.

Bailey's record is such that the people of Texas cannot afford to elect him to be their governor. It would be too risky. They are not going to elect him. That is written in the skies.

The thermometer is these mornings ranging as low as 57 degrees in Plainview, and the days are fine and bracing. Is there anywhere a more delightful climate or a pleasanter section to live in than the Plains country?

Boost for the Northwest Texas Fair, to be held in Plainview the last week in September. It is going to be a hum-dinger.

Those Amarillo trade excursionists declared Plainview the best town they had visited. There is no question but that what they said is true.

Plainview and Silverton must be connected with a railroad. The road can be built if the people will get under the proposition in the proper way.

Land values in the Plainview country are rapidly advancing. New people are coming in and buying lands, opening farms. Hale county land is better than an interest-bearing certificate on a bank.

Mr. Meade Griffin in his introductory speech at the Thomas speaking Friday said progressive democracy is not a departure from the democracy of Jefferson and Jackson, but is merely a modern application of true democracy to the needs of the present time. Could other words explain it better? Hardly.

Mr. Bailey in his speech yesterday declared that the old songs of our parents are not being sung these days. The dealers in sheet music and phonograph records dispute this, and say that never before was there such a demand for old songs and old-fashioned music, including sacred. These old songs will never die, and like the Bible, they appeal more strongly to each succeeding generation.

WARSAW SITUATION REMAINS CRITICAL FOR POLES

Russians Are Demolishing Defenses, and Drawing Closer to Capital City

Paris, Aug. 12.—The situation at Warsaw continues critical. The Russian campaign, which is proving most effective, consists of delivering successive blows at different points which tend to disorganize the Polish defense, compelling the Poles to rush reserves to widely separated points. The Red northern forces have been heavily reinforced and pushed to within thirty miles of the capital. The Poles are making a desperate stand on defense around Pulnusk, and although badly equipped, half trained and not well supplied with ammunition, they are holding their own, according to the latest news. The battle is swaying to and fro and the issue is still in the balance.

There is little change in the remainder of the front, except in the south, where the activity of the Balshéviki Bulgenni is creating a new danger. The operations of General Wrangel, the anti-Balshéviki commander in South Russia, can do nothing to relieve the pressure on the Poles, according to French military opinion. Wrangel is marching out of the Crimea to find on the continent a means for feeding the hordes of refugees who followed his retreat last year.

Machinery Demand Growing

In six years' time the exports of American machinery have trebled in value. In 1913 the total exports of machinery were valued at $127,980,000 while in 1919 they reached a total value of $378,425,000. This information is gleaned from the World's Markets, published by K. G. Dun & Co. According to the Dun writer, that the total in the latter year was not greater was due to the urgent home demands for machinery of almost every description, which limited the amount available for export. One large manufacturer declared recently that his foreign orders for the first six months of the present year were more than 60 per cent greater than during the same period last year.

This tremendous increase in the demand for American machinery may be traced to three causes: (1) the worldwide need of labor-saving machinery, (2) the adaptability of American machinery for almost every purpose and, (3) its low cost, due to American methods of quantity production.

No Friend of Farmer

Many good farmers are supporting Bailey who has never known to champion a piece of legislation favorable to the farmer. His candidacy has the backing of the great financial interests and the big corporations of Texas and for this reason alone the farmers should lay off of him.—Quanah Observer.

Do You Want to Live

Where the climate is ideal, never having reached a higher temperature than 99 degrees and never colder than 28 degrees, according to your own government reports.

Where every day is a planting and a harvesting day.
Where you raise three crops a year.
Where drouth or crop failures are never known.
Where health is the very best.
Where there are practically no flies or mosquitoes.
Where social conditions are the best.
Where the school systems are the best in the South.
Where you can get a maid to do the housework for the wife for from $3.00 to $4.50 per week.
Where you can get all the first-class farm labor desired for from $1.25 to $1.50 per day.
Where you can supervise your farm and have others do the work at a figure enabling you to make a large amount of money.
Where rheumatism, asthma, hay fever, stomach troubles and catarrh disappear.
Where people live longer, love each other better, make more money and are happier than perhaps any other place in the United States.

Where you can raise a crop of cabbage, onions or lettuce in the winter time while your lands elsewhere are idle and at a time when such things command the very highest price, bringing from $300 to $1,000 per acre and where you can follow either of these crops with a crop of corn which will average 75 bushels to the acre all over the valley and coming on at a time when the north has no corn and brings the very highest price, or a crop of broom corn which makes around a ton per acre and has been bringing for a year or so, from $300 to $450 per ton.

Where you can raise alfalfa and cut it from 8 to 11 times per year.

Where you can have a pasture of the wonderful Rhodes grass, which will carry 5 head of grown cattle per acre all the year around, or a proportionate number of hogs, furnishing green pasturage from one year's end to the other.

Where hog diseases are unknown and where hogs do the best.

Where dairying has reached perfection because of the green pasturage of Rhodes grass and other green feeds the year around.

Where you can raise from one to three bales of cotton per acre, and which can be gathered for around $1.00 per hundred.

Where all kind of trucking has reached the point of perfection.

Where you can raise sorghum cane, millet, sudan, in fact, practically nearly anything else grown in the South with the exception of small grain.

Where Citrus fruit industry is fast coming into the forefront, producing the best Grape Fruit in the United States, also lemon and oranges in abundance. This is perhaps the only portion of the United States where Citrus fruit can be grown without fertilizer. These fruits come into bearing the third year and reach full bearing about the 7th or 8th year, when each acre of Citrus fruit returns to the owner from $750 to $2,000 per acre, and pays a nice dividend from the third year on. It is said the life of a citrus orchard is about 50 years. When you get a nice Citrus orchard in bearing, you have a real pension.

Where you have an abundance of water for irrigation and can get it at a nominal price when you want it and as much as you want. This is the best crop insurance in the world.

Where the land does not bake from irrigation.

Where the soil is the richest on the American continent.

Where the cool sea breeze blows practically all the time.

Where hunting and fishing is ideal.

Where you can have the most beautiful yards and driveways covered with roses, oleanders, cannas, the stately palm and the many dozens of other kinds of shrubs and flowers.

Where life is really worth living, away from the bizzards, snow and sand storms.

Where the winter is as nice as May.

If a country of the kind just described appeals to you, come and talk with us or drop us a line and let us come and tell you of this most wonderful country and arrange for a trip on one of our excursions and see for yourself. If your judgment tells you that these lands are the best investment you have ever seen and the Lower Rio Grande Valley the best place to live, then buy, and if you do not find this the case, then don't buy.

OKLAHOMA WOMAN ROBBED AND THROWN FROM CAR

A young woman from Pauls Valley, Oklahoma, was robbed and thrown from a car on the outskirts of Fort Worth Sunday night, she reported to the police. No wonder if her story is true.

The young woman was en route home from Mineral Wells, where she had spent her vacation and stopped in Fort Worth a few hours. At the Santa Fe depot Sunday night, while waiting for her train, she engaged in conversation with a nice appearing young man, according to the story she told the police.

He suggested an automobile ride to pass away the time and she accepted. A friend of his who had a car was called and the trio started out. The driver drove for some time on the outskirts of town. The girl began to suspect that her acquaintances were undesirable and at a good opportunity slipped her bills from her purse into her stocking.

The two attempted to assault her when the car reached a lonely neighborhood and threw her from the car. They tossed her hat, which she had lost in the struggle, after her, but kept her purse which contained several dollars in silver, her baggage checks and railroad ticket.

With the aid of the police, the girl secured her baggage Monday morning and departed for Pauls Valley.

TULIA

Aug. 6.—Miss Euna Scott of Tulia, and Mr. Andrew Glover, of Mineral Wells, were united in marriage Wednesday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Lonnie Townsend, in Northwest Tulia. Rev. T. C. Willett, pastor of the Methodist church, spoke the words which united the lives of these young people.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Pearson and their little daughter, Lois, of Lorenzo, were guests at the Methodist parsonage, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

W. H. Donaldson has resigned his duties as cashier of the First National Bank of Tulia. Mr. Donaldson has been connected with this splendid bank for many years.

Fire damaged the residence of J. R. Stephen on Akard street Friday night, to about $600. The flame was soon put out.—Herald.

This is the place where you get service, all work guaranteed to be first class. We have nothing but first class mechanics and will not employ any other kind; only a short time is necessary to tell whether or not they can deliver the goods. I have a large machine shop and we are prepared to do any kind of automobile, tractor or lathe work, it does not matter how large or how small it may be it will receive our prompt attention. We have a large acetylene welding plant and a man that can weld anything but the break of day.

We are agents for the Vulcan tires and tubes that wear like iron, we are prepared to give you a nice discount and when you equip your car with Vulcan tires you can say with pride that you have the very best that is in the market.

We have the agency for the Paige and Dort cars covering Hale, Floyd, Briscoe and Swisher counties. The Paige is one of the most durable and beautiful cars made. If you want a real automobile get a Paige. If you want the easiest riding car the market get a Paige; if you want a car that will give real satisfaction get a Paige; if you want a car that will tickle the fancy of the most fastidious get a Paige; if you want a car for comfort and real pleasure get a Paige.

The Dort is the most wonderful little car made for the money it looks like a real automobile and is; it is a nice looking car, well built, easy riding and has the most powerful engine of any car of its size; it retails for $1235, we have just received a carload of these cars and if you want a medium priced car do not buy until you have investigated the Dort, there is no other car in its class for the money.

We handle accessories of all kind. This business receives my personal attention and I will see that you are treated right, all that I ask is that you give us a trial and if we cannot serve you as well or better than anyone else, we are not entitled to your business "We are not setting the world on fire, but we are making things red hot in our shop."

Reports from Fort Worth say Mrs. G. I. Britain, who is there for treatment for blood-poisoning in one of her feet, is not doing well.

Mr. Huddleston of the Barton-Huddleston Furniture Co. went to Ralls yesterday to pack up and move his household goods to Plainview.

Albert Carlson of the Barton site community was here yesterday. He says a big rain fell in his section of the county Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Price went to Amarillo this morning, to drive back two Overland cars. Mr. Price is now with R. S. Beard, selling Overlands.

F. M. Morris, Homer Smith, Miss Viola Day of Whitesboro, who have been visiting Will Akers and family will leave tomorrow for their home.

John J. Dillard of Lubbock was here yesterday. He was founder of the Lubbock Avalanche and about ten years ago legislator from that district.

Miss Ray Davis, who has been the pleasant guest of her sister, Mrs. W. T. Covington on West Seventh, returned to her home in Sonora Wednesday.

W. M. Thornton and Silliman Evans, staff correspondents of the Dallas News and Fort Worth Star-Telegram, respectively, were here yesterday to report the speech of Mr. Bailey.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hunsaker and children of Dallas are here visiting. He has informed us that he is doing well in that city.

B. M. Johnson of Hale Center was here Wednesday en route to Canyon. He informed us that he and his family will soon move to Canyon, so the children may attend the Normal.

Hugh Lacy and daughter of Comanche, S. E. Lacy, Mrs. Vellie Jackson and son of Blanket were here Wednesday, en route to Lockney to attend the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Dobson.

Judge L. S. Kinder and family are now in Wyoming, so a card to relatives here says. They are traveling through to the Pacific states in a car. They spent several weeks in the Colorado mountains.

Rev. J. H. Bone of Miami was here yesterday. He informed us that he baptized Evangelist L. L. Evans of Muskogee, Okla., who is conducting the Methodist-Presbyterian revival, when Evans was a boy.

Prof. Roger Burgess, superintendent of the public school in Merkel, is here visiting friends. He was principal of Plainview high school several years ago. He is spending the summer with his parents in Lubbock.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lash, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Winn and children returned this week from an extended stay in and about Los Angeles, Calif. They came in a Ford and were en route eight days, stopping at several places.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. S. Hill, who have been spending the past two months on their farm near Lockney, will return tomorrow to their home in Fort Worth. He is also a member of the partnership which recently bought the Fitz Hudgins ranch near Abernathy.

Miss Mary Preston of Tahoka was in the city Tuesday securing rooms for light housekeeping. Being a graduate of Baylor College at Belton, Miss Preston appreciates the advantages of Christian education, and hence will bring a brother and three sisters to enjoy the privileges of Plainview's college.

PROVIDENCE

Aug. 10.—A fisherwoman fell here Monday evening.

FAMOUS ST. PAUL'S

Historic Edifice Beloved by All Londoners.

In its Architecture the Building, the Largest Protestant Church in the World, Embodies Ideas of Many Periods.

"Even the war could not stop work on St. Paul's cathedral in London. The famous church, like the English constitution, represents a growth of centuries and not a definite period of construction."

This statement is made in a bulletin of the National Geographic society in connection with a London dispatch, which notes a request for additional funds to complete repair work on St. Paul's.

"England's esteem for the historic edifice is shown by the continuation of the restoration work throughout the war, despite the interruption to practically all other building," the bulletin says. "Still fresh in public memory is the notable service of consecration, attended by royalty and distinguished Americans then in London, held in St. Paul's April 20, 1917, to commemorate the entry of the United States into the war."

"St. Paul's is the largest Protestant church in the world. Its dome is one of the most beautiful. The church embodies architectural ideas of many periods, because it is not the product of a generation, or even a century. True, Sir Christopher Wren is credited with the structure as it stands today, but he embodied many features of the famous 'Old St. Paul's,' razed in the great London fire, 1666. Wren did not wish the restoration to be after the 'Gothick Rudeness of the Old Design.' But he was compelled to modify his own plans to a considerable extent. Said he, of the belatedly added over his tomb: 'Let this building speak without an edging.'"

"To this famous mathematician, astronomer and architect the London fire blew much good. He had commissions to draw plans for rebuilding half a hundred churches. From these were modeled many of the American colonial days. For his master, Paul's, Sir Christopher have received less than $1,000 a year, an amount which might engage the attention of his standard-bearer's consultation, paid for by a tax on London."

"Accounts do not state whether the dog was still going strong or whether he might have taken the fox back to Mr. Crannell, but simply that identification of the dog was made by the conservation commission license tag and that Mr. Crannell went after the dog."

"The moral of all this is that if one owns a dog good enough to run a fox through two counties she should surely be protected by an identification disk."—New York Times.

Salute. Some clever Englishmen, commenting on French politeness, once remarked that when a Frenchman bows, two-thirds of the bow is to himself. That may be true, and we have to admit that even the other third is quite a fraction more than most Anglo-Saxons offer.

Saluting is the same proposition. A snappy salute pulled by a buck to the most second of second lieutenants draws heavy interest; and the colonel who jerks his hand a few centimeters from his still affixed cigar is only insulting himself and the army.

If some privates were a little more polite to themselves, the saluting trap never would be sprung and the joke would all be on the other side of the military fence.—Stars and Stripes.

Something Worth While. Rankin—I never was so disappointed in my life! Phyle—What's the trouble? "In the city the other day I saw an aquatic exhibition advertised—" "Yes—" "And I immediately bought tickets." "You were disappointed?" "Yes, all I saw was a lot of men in diving suits."

"But what did you expect in an aquatic exhibition?" "Girls in bathing suits, at least."—Youngstown Telegram.

How to Tame Hubby. Modern wives, here are a few tips on how to keep that husband of yours from becoming a wild man. Mrs. Gene Holmes of Evanston, named by Mrs. George Remus as the other woman in Chicago's latest triangle, is sponsor for the tips.

Need we explain Mrs. Remus is seeking a divorce from her husband? Here are the tips:

Give the husband all the rope he wants—he'll never hang himself. Never, never try to curb his liberty; make him happy; keep the home cozy and attractive; always appear cheerful and pretty—always; feed him well, pet him, humor him—these three things alone will keep him from causing you any trouble; never look upon him as a mere provider—they should be treated like pets.

"If," says Mrs. Holmes, "after doing all these things the husband does not want to stay at home—he isn't human, that's all."

VERMIN OLD PEST OF ARMIES

Reference to Them Found in Writings of the Romans, and in English Literature.

The newspapers have had much to say about the "delousing" of the returning troops. Philip Hale writes in the Boston Herald. The word is not a pretty one and it is not to be found in the dictionaries, but the war has brought with it many new words, some of which will disappear, some of which will soon be regarded as orthodox and of good and regular standing.

No soldier need be ashamed of necessary submission to the process. It may console him to recall the case of Thomas Otway, an Oxford man, the author of "Venice Preserved" and "The Orphan." As a cornet in a regiment of horse, he joined in 1678 the army under Monmouth in Flanders. It was reported that he came back from Flanders "mangy and covered with vermin." Rochester taunted him with this in his "Session of the Poets." It should also be remembered that when the troops were disbanded and recalled, the money voted by the commons for their payment was misappropriated. The soldiers were paid only by debentures, and the credit of these was so low that they were hardly salable.

It was observed in the sixteenth century that "lice cometh also of that cloth that is trained in the wool with the fat or grease of a horse or of a swine, and therefore the northern cloths worn of a sweating body do breed lice in 12 hours." The "humor" of an individual had much to do with the character of the pest. Lice generated of sanguine humor were red and great; of phlegmatic, white; of choleric, yellow, long, swift and sharp; of melancholic, ashen colored, lean and slow in moving. Anyone of these pests "grieveth more in the skin with the feet and with creeping, than he doth with biting." . . . And the learner that a louse is, the sharper she biteth and grieveth." There were many approved remedies even in the elder Pliny's time, thus: "The old skin or slough that snakes do cast off in the spring, whosoever drinketh in his ordinary drink, it will kill all the vermin of the body within three days."

Story of a Dog.

"Marathon races in the woods will never become universal for the reason that speed and stamina like that of Buell Crannell's dog are not universal in the four-footed hunters," says Warwick S. Carpenter, secretary of the conservation commission. "Mr. Crannell lives at West Glens Falls, and while hunting near there recently his dog picked up a fox track. The dog was picked up next day near Cranberry lake, more than seventy miles away."

"Accounts do not state whether the dog was still going strong or whether he might have taken the fox back to Mr. Crannell, but simply that identification of the dog was made by the conservation commission license tag and that Mr. Crannell went after the dog."

"The moral of all this is that if one owns a dog good enough to run a fox through two counties she should surely be protected by an identification disk."—New York Times.

Saved Venus de Milo From Hunks.

M. Haron de Villefosse, the eminent French archeologist, whose death has just taken place, was for many years head of the Greek and Roman sculpture department of the Louvre. Twice in his career he had to superintend the removal of that priceless art treasure the Venus de Milo to a place of safety—in 1870, and again in 1914. In each case the same enemy was concerned. Haron de Villefosse was seventy-four years old.

Going to Look Him Up.

"That fellow Glipping called me 'Old Silenus,'" remarked Mr. Jagshy. "He seemed to think it a great joke." "What are you going to do about it?"

"I haven't decided yet. I have forgotten about all I ever knew about Silenus, but I have an idea that he was neither a pillar in the church nor an ornament to society."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

JAP GAMES HAVE PURPOSE

Children's Pastimes in That Country Are Played With the Idea of Strengthening Character.

For centuries before America was discovered, Japanese children were playing games upon which our boys and girls considered they have a monopoly, and which are regarded as strictly modern. As a matter of fact, most of our pastimes and games have come to us from foreign lands, though they have been modified to suit our needs, and perhaps renamed.

"Pussy wants a corner" and "blind-man's bluff" are as old as Japan itself. As played across seas, however, these games are far superior to ours. Pussy, for instance, is represented as an "Owl," or devil, the corners of the room the four safe harbors of truth with certain shelter from all harm.

In "blind-man's bluff," the children wear queer little costumes made of blue and white cotton crepe, with painted eyes and queer stuffed beaks resembling birds' for noses. They look like weird little gnomes rather than children, as they dash about in a frantic endeavor to catch their victims.

A ghostly game particularly enjoyed by heroic boys requires the same costumes. Some of them plant flags in different parts of the cemetery during the day, under a lonely tree or by a hill, alleged to be haunted. At night they meet for their game of "soul examination," telling stories about ghosts, goblins and oul. At the conclusion of each tale when their imaginations are so wrought up that they are in terror, they go up the hill one at a time and bring back the flags planted there, until all are brought in. Thus do they discourage fear and foster courage, the trait of character that they most covet.

TO ALLAY PAIN OF STINGS

Use of Ammonia to Be Avoided in the Case of an Attack by an Insect Wasp.

Ammonia promptly applied when a bee stings you prevents serious consequences and allays pain. It has generally been supposed that this was true also of wasp stings; but Edward R. Speyer, an Oxford university specialist, points out in a letter to the London Times that the application of ammonia or any other alkali to a wasp sting makes it worse.

The reason is that the poison of a bee's sting is acid; that of a wasp's sting is alkaline. Hence alkalies, like ammonia, neutralize the acid of the bee's sting, but aggravate the toxic effects of the wasp's alkaline sting.

The best thing to apply to a wasp's sting is vinegar, being the nearest acid in domestic service. Onion juice, lemon juice, or any other handy acid will do as well.

The Lancet says these facts ought to be widely known, "for not uncommonly the sting proves to be not a simple puncture but the beginning of a toxic process sometimes fatal. A wasp sting on the moist mucosa, as in the mouth, invariably leads to serious inflammation, with most distressing results. If the simple gargling or washing of the attacked spot with an acid fluid in such a case keeps down the swelling lives may well be saved."

Whale's Breathing Apparatus.

An eminent naturalist says concerning the breathing apparatus of the whale: "The windpipe does not communicate with the mouth; a hole is, as it were, bored right through the back of the head. Engineers would do well to copy the action of the valve of the whale's blow-hole; a more perfect piece of structure it is impossible to imagine. Day and night, asleep or awake, the whale works its breathing apparatus in such a manner that not a drop of water ever gets down into the lungs. Again, the whale must of necessity stay a much longer period under water than seals; this alone might possibly drown it, inasmuch as the lungs can not have access to fresh air. We find that this difficulty has been anticipated and obviated by a peculiar reservoir in the venous system, which reservoir is situated at the back of the lungs."

The Eternal Feminine.

The waltz may be described to the reaction following a long and harassing war, and offers a spectacle of very scanty feminine attire. A story in a newspaper dated June 8, 1812, relates: "A young lady of rank and high condition, in the warmth of her dancing heart, thus addressed her partner at the late lord mayor's ball: 'God bless you! take care you don't tread upon my merrin gown, for you see that I have nothing under it.'"

Lady Brownlow describing feminine dress a few years earlier, says: "It consisted of a gown tree-decollete, and short waisted, with apparently only one garment under it . . . a shawl hung over the shoulders." By substituting fur stole or tulle scarf for "shawl" the description would do for the modes of 1919. La femme eternelle. —London Times.

Plainview Testimony. Remains Unshaken

Time is the best test of truth. Here is a Plainview story that has stood the test of time. It is a story with a point which will come straight home to many of us.

Mrs. J. F. Sander, Plainview, says: "Some time ago I was suffering with kidney complaint. The greatest trouble was inflammation of the bladder. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me in a short time. I advise anyone troubled in this way to get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at the R. A. Long Drug Store and use them."

OVER THREE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Sander said: "I still have the same faith in Doan's Kidney Pills as I had when I recommended them before. The cure Doan's Kidney Pills made for me at that time has been permanent."

High Water Mark for the Third Time in History Is Forecast By Government

Washington, Aug. 9.—A 3,000,000,000-bushel corn crop for the third time in the history of the country was forecast today by the Department of Agriculture on the basis of conditions existing Aug. 1. Inasmuch as August is the critical month for the crop in the great corn belt of the Middle West, it is uncertain whether he promise of a crop almost equal to the enormous ones of 1912 and 1917 will be fulfilled. Improvement was reported during July in the important corn states,

AS WAR MEMENTO

Public Square of Arras Is to Be Preserved.

Just as War Left It, It Will Serve to Remind the World That Here the Marauding Huns Were Checked.

In the Little Place of Arras, where once stood the Hotel de Ville, with its belfry and its peal of bells, led by Le Joyeuse, is today a notice board in English. It says that this place is to be preserved in its ruin as war has left it.

Other places will be rebuilt again, and will forget, but this Little Place will remain empty, and one day Arras will be more proud of that emptiness and of those few broken stones than are other towns of the most beautiful things that they possess.

For so Arras will remain always, as it is today one of the rocks visible on which the great waters of invasion broke and surged and broke again, but could flow no further. There they were held. There in the center of Arras you come suddenly today on the dark line of their highest tide.

Elsewhere, across the open country, you come more gradually in the land of war, by roads where troops move, by fields where are lines and lines of brown and white trenches, ready but never used; by empty villages, with here and there a house broken; and so at last into the great No Man's land of France, uninhabited, uninhabitable, where armies fought and fought again, until all is destroyed and men live a gypsy life by the roadside. But in Arras you come to a corner of one of the little streets and it is as if a window had opened suddenly and you looked out on war.

For three years one could only enter Arras from the west, by the road from Doullens through the Amiens gate or by the road from St. Pol past Dead Man's corner, where nightly the reliefs, coming up, were shelled. Beside both those roads the trees stand, and the fields are filled and there are woods across the hills. You enter Arras today through a country unchanged by war. The change is not yet.

It is a silent town. Its houses stand, though scarcely one is quite whole. Their shutters are closed—their broken faces boarded up. The town is like a man that sleeps after long suffering.

So you pass through cobbled streets, very gray, clean, silent streets, between those exhausted houses, going down the Rue St. Aubert and by the white hospital with its green vine leaves. Then you turn up other little streets, with their narrow sky above them and come, very suddenly, on an open lane with banks on either side, where nettles and coltsfoot and leopardsfoot grow. But this that looks like a country lane is cobbled, and its banks are bays of brick.

It is as you enter this lane that you are conscious of something more unexpected and more awful than any ruined and broken things—of an enormous emptiness in the middle of that town of tall houses and narrow streets.

When the years have passed and all the country to the east of Arras has long been made whole; when the trees grow again beside the Canal and the Rapaume roads and there are cottages once more in Beaumont and Remy and Vieux-Arras, there will still be that sudden emptiness beneath the sky among the narrow streets of Arras.

Standing there, men will remember that once one could come into Arras only from the west. They will think of it then as of one of those towns, now far inland and surrounded by quick fields, which once were on the seashore. They will look at that gray ruin of the town and as at the ruins of a great rock where once the storms beat.

It Still Held Good.

George Ade was talking about the high cost of living at Palm Beach. He said:

"While a Palm Beach barber was shaving me one day, I asked him if he knew the significance of the red and white striped pole outside his shop."

"I do, sir," the barber answered. "That pole dates from the days when barbers were also surgeons. It means that the barber bleeds his customers."

"So saying, the man handed me a check for 65 cents."

"Well, well!" said I. "Sixty-five cents for a shave, eh? Whatever you do, my friend, don't take down your pole."

Defining an Impression.

"So you're on the water wagon at last?"

"Nothing so limited," replied Uncle Bill Bottletop. "Water has become so predominant wherever I look that I feel more as if I were on a steamboat."

No End to That.

"I thought more than a year ago they'd learned not to quarrel any more," he said. "But they did, but they've been wrangling about the peace terms ever since."

Some Gardening.

"Husband very fond of his garden?" "Very. He even hired a man to come once a week to keep it weeded."

HORSE HAD A TEMPERAMENT

At Least Animal Seemed to Prove That It Had the Ability to Think for Itself.

Prima donnas and high-strung artists are temperamental, but it is not often that such a trait is found in a horse, as was the case in an incident which occurred on one of the uptown streets the other afternoon, says the New York Times. The horse was attached to a delivery wagon. Mr. Horse evidently thought that he had done enough work for the day, so without further ceremony he lay down across the tracks of one of the trolley lines.

A crowd soon collected, followed by the usual excitement with a storming motorman and a call for the police. A woman who said that she knew something about horses, said the animal was overcome by hard work, and she gave instructions to the driver as to what he should do. After a few minutes had passed a veterinary stepped out of the crowd and took a look at the horse. The veterinary turned to the cop and the others and said: "There is nothing the matter with this horse. He is tired and he just made up his mind to take a rest. You know when a horse gets tired, he is not particular as to where he stretches his bones. My word for it, he will be all right in a few minutes and be on his way."

The woman did not agree with him and insisted that something be done to alleviate the animal's suffering. She and the veterinary got into a heated argument, when the horse without further ado decided that the street was not the best place in the world to stretch his bones out, so he got up on all fours and shook himself. The driver hitched him to the wagon, and Mr. Horse started off on his labors as if nothing had happened. One man in the crowd said that he'd be darned if he ever knew until then that a horse could think.

ENTERTAINERS IN HARD LUCK

But to Put It Mildly, They Were Unfortunate in Their Selection of "Enlivening" Song.

While writing a book at Northampton, Mass., and a neighbor of Professor Whitney, Raphael Pampelly tells in his reminiscences, Miss Alice Whitney told him the following at once humorous and pathetic story: "They had as guests staying with them a missionary and his wife from the south seas. The woman was tall and of stern aspect; the man, her second husband, was a small and timid creature. One evening, in an attempt to introduce a little liveliness into the solemnity, Mrs. Whitney asked her sons, just home from college, and her daughter to sing some college songs. So gathering around the piano, with their backs to the audience, the young people began 'The King of the Cannibal Islands.' As the song progressed the missionary lady grew more and more erect and severe, and when it came to the serving up of roast missionary she rose in anger, and with her black silk skirts rustling she walked solemnly out of the room, followed timidly by her shrinking little husband.

"Then Mrs. Whitney burst out with: 'Oh, children, children, what have you done? Her first husband was eaten by cannibals!'"

Arabian Nights.

The Arabian tales, like the romances of chivalry, convey us into the fairy-land, but the human personages which they introduce are very dissimilar.

These tales had their birth after the Arabians, yielding the empire of the sword to the Tartars, the Turks, and the Persians, had devoted themselves to commerce, literature, and the arts. We recognize in them the style of a mercantile people, as we do that of a warlike nation in the romances of chivalry. Riches and artificial luxuries dispute the palm with the splendid gifts of the fairies. The heroes unceasingly traverse distant realms, and the interests of merchandise excite their active curiosity, as much as the love of renown awakened the spirit of the ancient knights.—Anonymous.

Colors That Harmonize.

"You've got a blue dress on and a brown hair ribbon," remarked one girl to another as they were riding on a street car in the eastern district, says the Children's Museum News (Brooklyn). "You should not wear so many colors in your clothes."

"It's all right to wear different colors if they harmonize," was the rejoinder.

"What do you know about harmonizing?" continued the critic. "Well, I've just come from the Children's Museum," answered the defendant, "where I saw the birds and they aren't all the same color."

Confucius on Women.

Said Confucius: "Of all people, girls and servants are the most difficult to behave to. If you are familiar with them, they lose their humility. If you maintain reserve toward them, they are discontented." Chinese servants must have greatly improved since the Confucian period; at least modern times cannot parallel their excellence. As to Chinese girls, it is not safe to commit oneself concerning the girls of any nation, but they look discreet and slim and fair as flowers under their fringes of black hair, and gay as flowers, too, in their little pink and blue and violet coats buttoned straight up to their chins.—The New Republic.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

Take "Dodson's Liver Tone" Instead!

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel, just remember that your druggist sells for a few cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate. Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.

Authorizing One and One-half Per Cent Ad Valorem Tax by Cities and Towns of Five Thousand and Less Population

Senate Joint Resolution No. 12 ... Proposing an amendment to Section 4 of Article XI of the Constitution of the State of Texas, by increasing the total tax rate that may be levied and all fines, forfeitures and penalties accruing to said cities and towns shall be collectible only in current year by cities or towns having a population of five thousand or less than one-fourth of one per cent to not exceeding one and one-half per cent, and making appropriation therefor.

Be it resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas:

Section 1. That Section 4, Article XI of the Constitution be so amended as hereafter to read as follows:

Section 4. Cities and towns having a population of five thousand or less may be chartered alone by general law. They may levy, assess and collect such taxes as may be authorized by law, but no tax for any purpose shall ever be lawful for any one year which shall exceed one and one-half per cent of the taxable property of such city; and all taxes shall be collectible only in current money, and money.

such tax not to exceed in any one year one dollar on the one hundred dollars valuation of the property subject to taxation in such district, but the limitation upon the amount of school district tax herein authorized shall not apply to incorporated cities or towns constituting separate and independent school districts, nor to independent or common school districts created by general or special law.

Sec. 2. The foregoing constitutional amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of the state at an election to be held throughout the state on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1920, at which election all voters favoring said proposed amendment shall write or have printed on their ballots the words, "For the amendment to Section 3 Article VII of the Constitution of the State of Texas, providing that the limitation upon the amount of school district tax of one dollar on the one hundred dollars valuation shall not apply to independent or common school districts created by general or special law," and all those opposed to said amendment shall write or have printed on their ballots, "Against the amendment to Section 3 of Article VII of the Constitution of the State of Texas, providing that the limitation upon the amount of school district tax of one dollar on the one hundred valuation shall not apply to independent or common school districts created by general or special law."

Sec. 3. The Governor of the State is hereby directed to issue the necessary proclamation for said election, and to have the same published as required by the Constitution and existing laws of the State.

Sec. 4. That the sum of Five Thousand Dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the Treasury of the State of Texas not otherwise appropriated to pay the expense of such publication and election.

C. D. MIMS, Secretary of State.

Relating to the Manner of Compensation of Public Officials

House Joint Resolution No. 7 ... A joint resolution of the Legislature of the State of Texas, proposing an amendment to the constitution of the State by adding to Article 16 thereof a new Section, to be known as Section 60; providing for the compensation of public officials. Be it resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas:

Section 1. That there is hereby added to Article XVI of the Constitution of the State of Texas, a new section to be known as Section 60 of Article XVI of the Constitution of the State of Texas, which shall read as follows:

Section 60. Compensation of Public officials: All State, district, county and precinct officers within this State shall receive as compensation for their services a salary, the amount of which, the terms and methods of payment and the fund out of which such payments shall be made, shall be ascertained, declared and fixed by the Legislature from time to time; provided that the Legislature may make such exceptions as it may deem advisable.

This section shall supersede all other provisions by this constitution fixing and declaring the compensation of officers by salary, fees or otherwise and all provisions for salaries or other compensations for public officials, executive, legislative or judicial.

Section 2. The Governor of the State is hereby directed to cause to be issued his necessary proclamation for an election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1920, at which election this amendment shall be submitted to the qualified electors of this State for adoption or rejection and shall make the publication required by the constitution and the laws of the State. Said election shall be held under and in accordance with the General Election Laws of the State and the ballots for said election shall have printed or written thereon in plain letters, the following words:

"Official Ballot" "For the amendment to Article XVI of the Constitution of the State of Texas, adding thereto Section 60, providing for compensation of public officials." "Against the amendment to Article XVI of the Constitution of the State of Texas, adding thereto Section 60, providing for compensation of public officials."

Those voters who favor such amendment shall erase by marking through the words "Against the amendment to Article XVI of the Constitution of the State of Texas, adding thereto Section 60, providing for compensation of public officials." Those who oppose such amendment shall erase by marking a line through them, the words "For the amendment to Article XVI of the Constitution of the State of Texas, adding thereto Section 60, providing for compensation of public officials." And the result of the election shall be published and declared according to the majority of the votes cast in such election.

Section 3. The sum of Five Thousand Dollars or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the treasury not otherwise appropriated for the purpose of paying the necessary expenses of the proclamation and publication of this amendment and the election to be held hereunder.

C. D. MIMS, Secretary of State.

MAY BE TRUTH IN LEGEND

Investigation of "Enchanted Table" in New Mexico Seems to Bear Out Story Long Believed.

An isolated settlement out of a vast plain in the Southwest—a flat-topped hill 430 feet high and with sides so nearly vertical that for many centuries it was supposed to be hopelessly climb-proof, is one of the most interesting of the natural wonders of this part of the United States.

Many attempts to climb the "Enchanted Table" or "Mesa Encantada," as the first Spanish settlers called it, have been made, but Indian superstition has attributed their failure largely to a supernatural influence that balked the ascent. Hence the name "Enchanted."

According to the Indian legend, the mesa, which is three miles northeast of the well-known Acoma pueblo, in New Mexico, was very anciently the site of a prehistoric village. A frightful storm carried away part of the rock and with it the rocky staircase which offered the only path of access to the summit.

As a result, the people in the village were cut off from the plain below. They could not climb down; no help could reach them, and they starved to death. The only survivors were a few who by chance were absent from the mesa top at the time of the disaster. From them, it is explained, are sprung the present-day inhabitants of the pueblo of Acoma.

But science, while disposed to be incredulous of things unproved, is at the same time inclined to investigation. Hence an expedition which the government bureau of ethnology sent out to climb the Mesa Encantada. The party, after almost incredible efforts, arrived upon the top.

What they expected to find was—nothing. But, to their surprise, they discovered, on the summit of the mesa, plain and unmistakable evidences of ancient occupancy, such as ruined walls, and what they there afforded a measurable confirmation of the Indian legend.

Tasks for Disabled Fighters.

An outline of the efforts of the bureau of employment of the Pennsylvania department of labor and industry to find suitable industrial tasks in Pennsylvania for disabled soldiers and sailors is given in a bulletin just issued by the department. This bulletin, which may be obtained upon application to the department of labor and industry, at Harrisburg, analyzes by task and locality, the 50,000 employment opportunities offered by 900 employers in 60 counties, number of plants, kinds of firms and numbers of openings in each class of employment. One series of tables shows at what tasks several hundreds of disabled men are now employed by the Philadelphia and Reading Railway company. Another chapter on "Placement of Disabled Soldiers and Sailors in Employment" gives a general review of the placement subject, outlining conditions that may be expected and methods to be employed in locating each disabled soldier and sailor at a specified task in Pennsylvania plants. —Scientific American.

Turned From Friend.

The revolving floor in one of the dancing cabarets mystified two young lieutenants just back from France and evidently strangers in New York. They were ushered to a table on the revolving floor. Shortly afterward one of the soldiers went to the telephone booth; emerging about ten minutes later, he looked around in dazed fashion, and made several starts for the spot where he had apparently left his companion, but couldn't seem to find him. "Say, there," he huskily remarked to the head waiter. "Lend me one of your boy scouts to help me find my chow table, will you?" "What's the trouble?" inquired the headwaiter solicitously. "I left my friend at a table over yonder by the post," answered the bewildered soldier, "and now he's disappeared." As there were a number of men in uniform present the head waiter suggested that the friend be paged. "That's the idea," eagerly responded the soldier. "His name's Kennedy." And in a short time the messmates were re-united. Then the existence of the revolving floor was briefly explained to them. —New York Sun.

Yep, It Takes Practice.

For the forty-fifth time in 12 months she stood at the bridal altar and repeated the solemn words that linked her soul forever with that of the handsome man by her side. As the minister held up his hand signaling for the slow traffic to come forward and kiss the bride, the handsome man leaned over to press the first kiss on her ruby rouged lips.

As he did so, his foot caught in her train and threw him off the track. "Whattell, ya big boob," came an encouraging voice from a megaphone on the side lines as the purring of the camera ceased. "Now we'll have to make that again. You've spoiled 500 feet of perfectly good film."

Individual Cups for Cows.

The Jersey herd of Ralph Ballou is now provided with individual drinking bowls. Each stall is connected with the water system and has an automatic bowl about ten inches in diameter and six inches deep. When the cow sticks her nose in the bowl to drink she turns the water on, and as the bowl fills she raises her head and cuts the water off. This method avoids having to fill the trough or breaking ice for the cows when it is cold. —Monroe County Appeal.
