PLAINVIEW MAY GET CO-OPERATIVE CHEESE FACTORY

WOULD PAY $225 PER DAY TO FARMERS FOR MILK DE-CLARE PROMOTERS

Plainview may have a cheese factory at an early date, with a capacity of 900 pounds of cheese per day for which the farmers who supply the milk will receive about $225 a day.

H. F. Tanner and A. F. Knapp of Amarillo are here promoting the organization of a co-operative stock company with $15,000 capital, for the installation of machinery and operation of the plant. A meeting will be held at the court house Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and all farmers are urged to attend.

Mr. Tanner lived for sixteen years in the dairying section of Wisconsin, and has had much experience in the cheese-making business. He is an old time friend of D. A. Redding of Plainview.

The proposition of the promoters is as about as follows: A co-operative stock company be organized with a capital of $15,000. Ten per cent of this amount is to go to the promoters, who will organize the company, build the plant, install the machinery and furnish a competent cheese maker; $9,000 will be used to erect the building; $3,500 for the machinery, and $4,000 to be used as surplus to start off the operation of the business, buy milk, etc. They hope to place 60 per cent of the stock in the country and 40 per cent in town. The plant can be operated very economically, as only the cheese-maker and one helper can handle it.

Mr. Tanner says he is promoting plants at Amarillo and Hereford, and maybe other points on the Plains.

He claims that the plant will have a capacity of $225 to $300 worth of milk per day, and will furnish farmers double the price for their unseparated milk that they now secure for their separated cream, and without the work of operating a separator. The whey will be returned to the farmers, and can be fed to their hogs and chickens. Wherever there is a cheese factory the hog and poultry-raising industry grows into large proportions. The outlay for milk to the farmers will be about $80,000 annually, and with addition of another vat the capacity of the plant can be doubled.

A cold storage plant is maintained in connection with the factory, and can be used to store eggs and other farm produce.

Wants New Rural Mail Route

R. C. Lang of Kress was in the news office yesterday. He is promoting the creation of a rural mail route out of Kress to the west and southwest, and is getting signers to a petition to the postal department.

The route would cover a distance of 30 miles. It would run west from Kress to Hart, then south to Roomers and back then east to house keepers. 407 Hard families and 39-11-est and ask for help him. He wants to see his petition as possible.

Clyde Wise has sold the Watkins business to J. R. Turner, who will take charge in about six weeks. Mr. Wise has been traveling in this territory for the Watkins firm for two years. He does not know what he will do. Mr. Turner's son will conduct the business.

AMERICAN LEGION TO HOLD REUNION IN AMARILLO

Ex-Service Men of Northwest Texas To Celebrate Armistice Day—Special Train

Amarillo, Oct. 13.—Vari-colored lights, bunting and banners will supplement the glories of the United States flag in the decorative scheme carried out throughout Amarillo in honor of the World War veterans in their first annual reunion in this city, on the occasion of the third anniversary of the placing of the signatures of the various powers to the Armistice agreement, Friday, Nov. 11.

The boys who immortalized themselves and added lustre to American history are to be honored to the fullest degree. They are to have their own way, so to speak, with all civilian citizens doing their utmost to make them know that they are prominently placed in the hearts of all loyal Americans.

There will be a regular mess dinner, a supper of the same variety, with bands, parades, with short, inspirational speeches, with theatrical programs, with everything that can make for the enjoyment of the boys who did not hesitate to be offered as sacrifice of the world's greatest war altar.

One and one-third fare will be given on all railroads, and a special train is to be operated out of Slaton for the accommodation of the men along that line of the Santa Fe and the various branch line connections. It is anticipated that the parade being arranged for the occasion will be by far the greatest ever seen in Amarillo.

All American Legion Posts are joining Hanson Post in Amarillo in the arrangement for the entertainment and general celebration, in which at least two thousand World War veterans will participate, according to the estimate of those in charge.

Another Cut in Wages

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Railroad executives again plan to slash the wages of 2,000,000 rail workers, the United Press was reliably informed today.

The executives of the leading carriers of the country who meet here Friday have definitely decided upon this step. The amount to be cut from the payroll will be decided at the conference.

Railroad officials today believed they would be successful in trimming wages. They pointed to the attitude of the administration which recommended to the employment conference a cut in rail wages and a reduction in freight rates.

Will Conduct Candy Shop

Mrs. L. T. Mayhugh and Miss Rebecca Ansley will open a candy shop, and sell home-made candies, by the pound in fancy boxes. They will conduct the business at the home of Mrs. Mayhugh at the present, but expect to soon widen out into larger quarters and have a place of business down town. They have a trade name for their products, which will be advertised extensively.

Petersburg Cotton Is Good

Commissioner E. B. Shankle of the Petersburg district has been here this week for the meeting of the section of the county and it is being about a half-halo to the acre. The growers are getting $150 a bale and more out of it, hence there is good money in the crop.

John R. Ralls Stricken

News came the first of the week that John R. Ralls, founder of the town of Ralls, was stricken Saturday with paralysis. At last report he was resting easier. Just how serious the stroke was we have not learned. He has many friends in Plainview and all over the Plains. He has been one of the greatest developers in Northwest Texas.

School Bonds are Sold

The Plainview independent school board has sold the $50,000 in bonds voter in February to a Dallas party at 92 on the dollar.

The money is to be used to erect a small brick school building in Seth Ward addition and to make repairs and improvements on Central and Lamar buildings.

New York Giants Win

The New York Giants won the championship in the base ball league, yesterday, by defeating the New York Yankees five out of eight games in the series. The score yesterday was 1 to 0.

K. K. K. Wizard Faints

W. J. Simmons, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, fainted while on the witness stand in the congressional investigation of the Klan in Washington yesterday.

JACOBS STORE AGAIN BURGLARIZED:

$2,000 WORTH WOMEN'S WEAR TAKEN

Enter Store Through Rear Window and Take Women's Suits, Dresses, Furs, Blouses, Hose—Left No Clues.

The store of Jacobs Bros. Co. was entered by thieves some time between Tuesday evening and Thursday morning and nearly $2,000 worth of goods stolen. Entrance was made by tearing away a screen on a back window, raising the window, and somebody crawling under the iron bars across the window.

Just when the burglary happened is not known, nor has any clue been found to the thieves. The store was closed Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock, and remained closed all day Wednesday on account of Rosh Hoshanna, the Jewish New Year, and the theft was not discovered until early Thursday morning, when the store was opened.

Something more than a year ago the Jacobs store was burglarized and about $1,000 worth of women's clothing stolen, the burglars that time removing a pane of glass in the skylight and going down into the store from the roof. They escaped in a Ford car stolen from Clay Barrow. The car was found near Happy several days later, but the goods were never recovered nor the thieves arrested.

In the burglary of this week the thieves took maybe a dozen women fine suits, a score of fine dresses, many women's blouses, sweaters, petticoats, bloomers, boxes of silk hose, and several fine furs. The dresses and blouses were kept in cases and on racks in the rear of the store and the other articles in the front part, so the thieves evidently knew the lay of the store and took their time to get what they wanted.

An electric light was burning in the alley behind the store, and the night-watchman makes his rounds at night. It seems that several thieves were on the job and doubtless spotted the night-watchman, and made the entry and exit while he was in some other part of the town.

Jacobs Bros. Co. has offered a reward of $100 for the recovery of the goods, and a larger reward can be secured for the capture of the thieves.

Many Thieves at Work

There seems to have been a wave of thievery in and about Plainview this week. Last night somebody went to the home of E. G. Duncan, two miles west of town, jacked his Dodge car up, stole the two front wheels, all the four red top Fisk tires and tubes on the car, and also the motor meter.

The night before Lee Stephens lost a spare tire and tube from his car and Marvin Garner lost an extra tire and tube from his car. The cars were at their homes in this city.

Every effort should be made to break up this thievery, and the city and county should appoint enough special deputies to parole the whole town if necessary, as was done last spring when there was a wave of crime prevailing over the state.

MAIL CLOSED TO GAMING DEVICES

Amendment Extends Application of Bill Barring Gaming Information from Mails

Washington, Oct. 13.—Following a speech by Representative Parrish of Texas, in which he declared in favor of denying the use of the mails to newspapers and other publications giving accounts of "odds laid on horse racing, prize fighting and gambling schemes as directly lead the young men of our country into gambling," the house today adopted an amendment to a bill under consideration tightening restrictions on the use of mails for gambling paraphernalia. The amendment was offered by Representative Walsh of Massachusetts.

As explained by Parrish, who is a member of the subcommittee which framed it, the bill would prohibit the use of the mails for sending gambling paraphernalia, such as slot machines and punch board; prohibit the sending loaded dice, marked or trick cards or other unfair or fraudulent gambling schemes through the mail; would authorize the postmaster general to issue fraud orders against manufacturing concerns violating existing laws in this respect, and would authorize him to deny the payment for gambling paraphernalia.

"Under existing law," Parrish said, "in the rural sections the people who sell this gambling paraphernalia go to the merchants and induce them to buy their schemes. The merchant buys, and because it comes to him through the mails he believes that he has a right to use it in selling merchandise so he puts an advertisement in the country paper.

"The advertisement of the device in operation, however, is prohibited by law and the newspaper finds that he government denies him the right to send his paper through the mails, thus causing considerable loss and much inconvenience."

TWO ARRESTS MADE

ATTEMPTED HOLD-UP

BROTHER IDENTIFIES VICTIM OF ATTEMPTED HOLD-UP NEAR POST

Post, Texas, Oct. 13.—The body of Geo. Pruitt, victim of an attempted hold-up, which took place Sunday night, three miles northwest of Post on the Lubbock road, when three men attempted to hold up Luther Hughes, a farmer, was buried here today. The dead man was identified Monday afternoon by his brother, M. B. Pruitt, of this place.

Monday morning officers trailed the car several miles west and south on the Plains, and found the dead body buried near the public road southwest of town. The body had evidently been dragged some little distance, under a wire fence.

The Ford car in which the three men were riding was also found and identified as belonging to T. R. (Tot) Rutledge, also of Post, officers say.

Immediately after recovery of the car, and identification of the dead man, M. B. Pruitt and Tot Rutledge were arrested by the authorities and placed in jail. They were taken to Lubbock and placed in jail there for safe keeping. Rutledge had been living in Post for some time, but the Pruitt brothers had been here only a short time, the one killed having been here only two or three days.

It is the theory that the men believed Hughes to have considerable money on his person, and driving out the road ahead of him, tried to hold him up. Hughes, however, was too quick for them, and applying more power to his car and drove rapidly past, firing at the men, and saw one drop. A few minutes later a car passed and saw two men lifting another into the car. Officers found only a pool of blood where the shooting occurred. Hughes said the men fired at him, and all were masked.

notice to Land Owners

We are beginning to have a few calls for real bargains in farms of various sizes. The man with the money is determined to get full value, and anything sold during the money stringency must be a real bargain. If you will put your price where it will be attractive now, give us full details.

Our advice to those who do not have to sell is to maintain a reasonable price and not sacrifice, for our lands will be in demand when money gets easy, but there are some who cannot wait, and we will do our best to help them cash out if prices are made low.

We have constant offers for trade and can get good values and if you will trade for other property, give us the details.

PANHANDLE-PLAINS FARM EMPIRE SETS NEW RECORD

INCREASE OF 50 PER CENT IS SHOWN DURING LAST DECADE

Washington, Oct. 6.—Uncle Sam today wrote the story of his newest farming empire, the Texas Plains, the only section of any considerable size where there was not a drift from the farm to the city between 1910 and 1920, but where, on the other hand, farming increased more than 50 per cent.

The story was in the form of census returns for thirty-six Texas Panhandle counties. The census was taken in January, 1920, but the tabulation for these counties were not completed until to-day.

The thirty-six counties, census officials said, are the purest Caucasian farming communities in the nation. Out of 17,821 farmers, only seventeen are negroes. The seventeen negro farmers are located as follows; Lubbock county, three; Crosby county, twelve, and Dickens county, two.

Many Counties Included
The counties included in the report give us today are Potter, Randall, Armstrong, Carson, Lubbock, Dickens, Hansford, Briscoe, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Dallam, Sherman, Bailey, Hall, Childress, Moore, Deaf Smith, Cottle, Foard, Lamb, Hemphill, Gray, Wheeler, Oldham, Hardeman, Floyd, Hale, Motley, Hockley, Cochran, Roberts, Hartley, Collingsworth and Hutchinson.

The total number of farms in these counties in 1920 was 17,821, as compared with 12,842 in 1910. Floyd county is now the banner Texas Panhandle farming county, having increased its number of farms from 620 in 1910 to 1,289 last year. Following Floyd comes Collingsworth, with 1,139 farms, Hardeman with 1,077, Hall with 1,051, Hale with 1,031 with Wheeler just under the 1,000 mark with 997.

In addition to the number of farms the report gave a complete census of the number of acres under cultivation in each county, farm values, the number of horses, mules, cattle, sheep and goats in each county, the number of acres of corn, wheat, cotton, oats, kaffir and milo in each county and the quantity of each harvested in 1919.

Values Amazing
In many cases the value of the crops raised was amazing. Texas members of congress from all sections were frankly pleased with the statistics from Texas' newest farming section. Senator Culbertson predicted that the next ten years would see a similar big increase in that section.

Congressmen Briggs, Box and Garrett, representing Texas seaport districts, saw in it an argument for better port facilities at Galveston, Houston, Beaumont and Port Arthur to handle the big crops.

Farm values in all of the counties showed great increases. Values in Lubbock county jumped from $4,890,386 in 1910 to $16,112,928 in 1920, or an increase of 229.5 per cent. Other counties showing large gain in values were: Collingsworth, 1910, $6,065,135 and 1920, $15,603,207 or 157.2 per cent; Crosby, 1910, $4,383,443, and 1920, $15,770,659, or 190.2 per cent; a percentage gain of 235.6 per cent; Hansford, 1010, $2,704,228 and 1920 $7,937,705, a gain of 193.5 per cent; Ochiltree, 1910, $3,168,673, and 1920 $10,651,541, a gain of 236.4 per cent; Dallam, 1910, $5,616,685, and 1920, $13,960,866, a gain of 184.6 per cent; Hall, 1910, $6,746,547, and 1920 $14,304,230, or 111.4 per cent gain; Deaf Smith, 1910, $6,311,810, and 1920, $13,443,071, or 113 per cent gain; Hemphill, 1910, $3,914,224, and 1920, $10,969,359, or 180.2 per cent; Gray 1910, $5,147,945 and 1920, $14,071,155.9 per cent; Wheeler, 1910, 107,559, and 1920, $14,560,938 or 102 per cent gain; Carson, 1910, $6,989,357, and 1920, $14,114,910, or 131.8 per cent; Floyd, 1910, $6,609,105, and 1920, $26,258,837, a gain of 297.3 per cent; Hale, 1910, $9,706,085, and 1920, $25,930,722 a gain of 167.2 per cent; Potter, 1910, $4,123,595, and 1920, $8,610,965, a gain of 106.4 per cent; Roberts, 1910, $4,081,012, and 1920, $11,491,667, or 181.6 per cent; Hartley, 1910, $4,164,013, and 1920, $9,156,810, or 119.9 per cent; and Hutchinson, 1910, $2,503,807, and 1920, $5,690,968, a gain of 122.3 per cent.

All Sections Gain
All of the counties gained in farm values the percentages for the others being: Briscoe, 76.4; Lipscomb, 97.1; Sherman, 59.5; Bailey, 41.7; Childress, 82.6; Moore, 92.6; Randall, 52.1; Cottle, 94.2; Foard, 67.8; Lamb, 46.3; Oldham, 67.6; Motley, 66.9; Cochran, 62.7; and Armstrong, 85.1.

Floyd county led in the number of acres actually being tilled with 243,822 acres, followed by Hale with 235,880; Dallam with 218,850; Wheeler with 188,326; Gray with 168,645 and Hardeman with 166,331. Farmers owned more land in Dallam than any other county—781,841, followed by Motley with 726,741; Deaf Smith with 693,077; Hemphill, 674,104; Roberts 607,605; Hale, 581,713; Potter, 595,380; Hartley, 540,380; Lamb, 543,687 and Lipscomb, 528,580.

Perhaps the most sensational of the gains in crop growing in the Texas Panhandle was in wheat. Practically every county became a wheat growing county in the decade, while none of them raised any considerable amount of wheat in 1910.

Gray, the present banner raising wheat county of the section, raised 1,461,766 bushels in 1920, as compared with 82,869 in 1910. Other large wheat growing counties showed the following gains.

Carson, 1920, 1,277,629 bushels and 1910, 36,187; Floyd, 1920, 962,272 and 1910, 98,922; Foard, 1920, 941,670 and 1910, 63,104; Hale, 1920, 926,167 and 1910, 16,518; Hardeman, 1920, 871,123 and 1910, 76,922; Randall, 1920, 603,042 and 1910, 17,766; Armstrong, 1920, 593,983 and 1910, 15,185; Ochiltree, 1920, 653,758 and 1910, 80,833; Robertson, 1920, 545,484 and 1910, 11,112; Potter, 1920, 256,170 and 1910, 10,701; Cottle, 1920, 212,853 and 1910, none.

One county raised more than two million bushels of kaffir and milo and seven each raised upwards of a million bushels of these crops. Several others raised nearly a million bushels and many raised more than a half million bushels. The figures for the leading kaffir and milo counties were:

Floyd, 1920, 2,501,175 bushels and 1910, 98,292; Hale, 1920, 1,966,744 and 1910, 123,514; Crosby, 1920, 1,299,468 and 1910, 37,530; Donley 1920, 1,170,000 and 1910, 134,563; Hall 1920, 1,167,076 and 1910, 104,873; Lubbock, 1920, 1,073,297 and 1910, 15,335; Wheeler, 1920, 1,023,036 and 1910, 66,916; Collingsworth, 1920, 1,151,611 and 1910 32,353.

Cotton growing also made rapid strides, fifteen of the thirty-six Panhandle counties given, now being listed as cotton growing counties. Lubbock county which raised thirty-five bales in 1910, in 1920 raised 17,603; Crosby county jumped from twenty-nine bales in 1910, to 17,127 in 1920, and Hale went from fifteen bales in 1910, to 2,079 in 1920.

Hall Gets Banner

Hall continued the banner Panhandle county, raising 36,773 bales of cotton in 1920, compared with 8,283 in 1910. Figures on cotton for other Panhandle counties are: Childress, 1920, 29,456 bales and 1910, 7,484; Cottle, 1920, 22,694 and 1910, 3,374; Collingsworth, 1920, 25,572 and 1910, 2,866; Hardeman, 1920, 19,347 and 1910, 8,137; Motley, 1920, 11,071 and 1910, 225; Floyd, 1920, 13,978 and 1910, 430; Donley, 1920, 10,211 and 1910, 1,197; Foard, 1920, 9,143 and 1910, 4,337; Wheeler, 1920, 19,247 and 1910, 513; Briscoe, 1920, 3,658 bales and 1910, 586.

In corn raising the Panhandle section also made giant forward strides. Wheeler county took the lead with 647,073 bushels, nearly doubling its 1910 output of 344,644. Hardeman, the 1910 leader has changed from a corn-growing to a wheat growing county, and now is in seventh place with 168,477 bushels. The only other Panhandle county to show a decrease in corn growing was Lipscomb, which fell from 73,890 in 1910 to 42,090 in 1920.

Collingsworth ranked just below Wheeler in corn growing, with 400,660 bushels in 1920 as compared with 219,454 in 1910; other leading Panhandle counties were Hemphill, 1920, 222,336 and 1910, 67,631; Donley, 1920, 208,761 and 1910, 160,321; Gray, 1920, 178,086 and 1910, 136,681; Lubbock, 1920, 153,282 and 1910, 8,023; Cottle, 1920, 95,046 and 1910, 36,070; Motley, 1920, 83,378 and 1910, 25,441. Other Panhandle corn growing counties to advance were Crosby, Dickens, Dallam, Bailey, Moore, Lamb, and Armstrong.

Hemphill, with 8,853 tons was the leading hay county in the Panhandle and the other hay growing counties were Lubbock, Dallam, Bailey, Deaf Smith, Lamb, Hale Hockley, Roberts and Hartley.

Many Raise Oats

Nineteen of the thirty-six Panhandle counties now rank as oat raisers, the census bureau statement today shows. Of those Carson is the premier, it raising 781,502 bushels in 1920 as compared with 83,439 in 1920.

Leading oat raising counties were Carson, 1920, 781,502 and 1910, 83,439; Gray, 1920, 515,775 and 1910, 106,664; Randall, 1920, 391,039 and 1910, 10,664; Randall, 1920, 348,241 and 1910, 9,838; Potter, 1920, 193,999 and 1910, 15,603. Other counties whose aggregate increased the Panhandle wheat yield by millions of bushels were Hutchinson, Hansford, Briscoe, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Dallam, Sherman, Bailey, Moore, Deaf Smith, Foard, Oldham and Roberts.

Ochiltree with 323,357 bushels of barley in 1920 as compared with 30,400 in 1920 was the Panhandle leader in that crop and was followed in order by Carson, Hansford, Hutchinson, Randall and Sherman, with Potter also having some acreage.

WEAK, NERVOUS, ALL RUN-DOWN

Missouri Lady Suffered Until She Tried Cardui.—Says "Result Was Surprising."—Got Along Fine, Became Normal and Healthy.

Springfield Mo.—"My back was so weak I could hardly stand up, and I would have bearing-down pains and was not well at any time," says Mrs. D. V. Williams, wife of a well-known farmer on Route 6, this place. "I kept getting headaches and having to go to bed," continues Mrs. Williams describing the troubles from which she obtained relief through the use of Cardui. "My husband, having heard of Cardui, proposed getting it for me. I saw after taking some Cardui that I was improving. The result was surprising. I felt like a different person."

"Later I suffered from weakness and weak back, and felt all run-down. I did not rest well at night, I was so nervous and cross. My husband said he would get me some Cardui, which he did. It strengthened me. My doctor said I got along fine. I was in good healthy condition. I cannot say too much for it."

"Thousands of women have suffered as Mrs. Williams describes, until they found relief from the use of Cardui. Since it has helped so many, you should not hesitate to try Cardui if troubled with womanly ailments. For sale everywhere. E.83

The Evidence is at Your Door
Plainview proof is what you want and the statement of this highly respected resident will banish all doubt.

L. J. Akers, farmer, Plainview, says: "Some years ago my back was all out of whack and caused me a lot of trouble. My back was weak, sore and lame and ached most all the time. When I stooped over, sharp pains would catch me in the small of my back so I could hardly straighten up. In fact, my back bothered me all the time and mornings when I got up it was so sore and lame, I could hardly get around. My kidneys were weak and irregular in action and bothered me a great deal. A neighbor advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I used one box of this medicine and they relieved the pain in my back and fixed my kidneys up in good shape. I use Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally to keep my kidneys in good condition."

STATEMENT

of the ownership, management, etc., required by the act of congress of Aug. 24th, 1912, of the Plainview News, published semi-weekly at Plainview, Texas, for Oct. 1st, 1921:

Publisher, editor, managing editor, business manager, J. M. Adams, Plainview, Texas.

 County Clerk, Hale County, Texas.

A Chicago woman has been granted a divorce because her husband placed a live mouse in her bed.

The complaint is that the state is being overrun by agents organizing farmers' associations of various kinds. Oh, you initiation fee.

The advance in the price of cotton and crude oil is bringing Central Texas and the oil districts some prosperity that they are needing badly.

The new battleship Tennessee costs $42,000,000; enough money to erect 840 high school buildings costing $50,000 each, or 2,220 rural brick school buildings costing $10,000 each. And her annual upkeep costs enough money to pay the salaries of the teachers for this number of schools. Aren't we Americans a bunch of colossal fools.

We had a hunch all the time that's where they both came from. Mrs. Obendorfer, chairman of the music division of the National Federation of Woman's clubs, has discovered that the Incas of Peru invented jazz music to drive off their enemies and tried it out on Pizarro and his troops, and that the "shimmy" dance was handed down to this generation from the ceremonial dances of the North American Indians.

There are different sorts of men as officers. The Fort Worth sheriff one night last week permitted a committee of six leaders of a mob to search the jail for a prisoner he had already sent to Dallas, but the Dallas sheriff refused to permit even a committee to come into the jail, informing them: "nothing doing, boys; go on back home." In each case the sheriff should have booted the whole bunch off the jail yard. The Fort Worth sheriff showed a yellow streak by permitting a committee to come into his jail.

Only about twenty-five newspapermen and a few members of their families were present on "press day" at the Dallas fair Monday. The Fair association has treated the newspapermen of the state so shabby by trying to "work" them out of advertising space that they "have it in" for the fair, and no longer care much about it. Considerable space in the Texas Press Association Bulletin, issued Oct. 1, was used in criticizing the fair association, and urging newspapermen not to give the fair any free publicity. Newspapers that give free publicity to the fair are yellow-streaked and are not treating newspapermen fairly.

The democratic national executive committee has been called to meet in St. Louis Nov. 1, to thresh out a lot of disputes among its members and discuss the party policy in the congressional campaign of next year. Some interesting scuffling is in prospect. It was Mr. Dooley who said "a republican national convention held in a clothes meeting cannot be held on a 40-acre block. The trouble with democrats is that they let their scraps affect them on election day—which is something the republicans never do. President Grant once declared that the "democrats always act the fool at the proper time."

The big packeries have declared for "open shop", and the labor union men have voted to strike rather than submit. The packeries are "sitting tight" and will welcome a strike. During the past months they have been buying cattle, hogs and sheep at very low prices; they have killed and filled every cold storage plant they have with meat. If a strike comes the price of meat will naturally increase in price, and they will make many millions of dollars in profits. The employees are handicapped for the winter is coming on—and jobs are very scarce. The person who has a job these days had better stick to it, union or no union. The "open shop" system is going to grow rapidly within the next few months. Organized labor leaders are facing the greatest crises in their lives in order to hold their power.

It is estimated that 82 per cent of the Texas wheat crop has been marketed.

Science today is almost miraculous. It is announced that Ex-Senator Thos. P. Gore of Oklahoma may regain his sight. He has been blind for thirty-three years. Of late he has been taking treatment from a Boston eye specialist, and is now able to distinguish between light and darkness. The editor of the News has known Mr. Gore for more than twenty-five years. He is the most remarkable man we ever knew. We have read long columns of statistics and figures to him, and several hours later he would in a speech repeat them as we read them. We sincerely pray that his sight will be restored, for he is one of the smartest men in the nation. Poor, blind, obscure he labored and fought his way upward to the United States senate and one of its leaders. Then, because he didn't bow down to the war jingoes in the democratic party they slaughtered him, and in return their candidate was defeated by the republicans.

Gov. Neff has offered the entire civil and military power of the State of Texas to help the grand jury and peace officers of McLennan county in their endeavor to uphold the law and find the truth in the grand jury's investigation of certain violations of the law in that county. This tender was made Tuesday by Governor Neff in a communication sent to the judge of the Fifty-fourth district court, the prosecuting attorney and the members of the McLennan county grand jury. He declared in a letter "The law can and should be enforced only through the duly constituted authorities of the government. No individual and no organization, however large, should be above the law. The strong arm of the law should reach up and down and all round and bring to the bar of justice without fear or favor, all those who trample the law under their feet. To this end the law-enforcing power of the state is at your command."

The Travels Protective Association (traveling salesmen) has sent out a letter reciting to the hotel men of the state that since other things have been reduced 35 to 50 per cent, it is time the hotels and boarding houses rates come down accordingly, as they should not continue at war-time prices, and unless there is a reduction many wholesale houses propose to call their men off the road. Over 500 letters have been received from hotel men promising reductions. Here in Plainview there is a general complaint among people who board that the prices of rooms, board and meal tickets are still the same as at peak times following the war, yet the prices of food and most everything else has been cut from one-fourth to one-half. The continued high rates for board is keeping up wages and salaries, for workers declare they can not reduce their pay and "make both ends meet" until the boarding houses and restaurants "find out the war is over."

The railroad executives have agreed to reduce freight rates—if the wages of railway workers are reduced accordingly. And, the workers are not going to stand for any reduction in wages—unless they have to. And the commercial and agricultural interests are not going to ship any more freight than they have to until the rate are reduced—for they can not afford to do so. This causes dull business and a big loss to the railroads, and much idleness for the railway workers. There must be an adjustment all the way round—the railroads will have to reduce rates and the workers will have to reduce their wages—for it is more profitable to move a greater volume of freight at lower rates and it is better to work full time at less wages.

IN A MINOR STRAIN

A girl living near Wayland college is just at the age where her mother is afraid she will get married and the girl is afraid she will not.

Speaking of shock-absorbers—sometimes we are shocked.

Introspection often makes a man morbid; nevertheless, he should examine his character at least as often as the merchant takes a balance sheet and for the same reason—to be sure he is not losing ground.

The first ingredient in conversation is truth; the next, good sense; the third, good humor.

It is most important for a man to have a persistent purpose running through his life; he must not waver from hour to hour.

There is much satisfaction and benefit in all labor that is honest and true. New things bring greater contentment, few things give more peace of mind.

Man's Head Shot Off

Amarillo, Oct. 13.—With the side of his head blown off, and his brains scattered, R. E. Logbe, 59, prominent grain man of Washburn, was found dead at 9 o'clock Thursday morning in his room in that town. The body was lying on the bed, fully dressed, a shot gun by its side. Inquest proceedings held Thursday morning indicated accidental death, it is said. The coroner's verdict has not yet been made public.

Mr. Logbe was single, and is said to have been financially well fixed.

Three Nations Consolidate

A new nation having approximately 100,000 square miles of territory came into existence yesterday, when the governments of Honduras, Guatemala and Salvador ceased to exist, and the provisional federal council of the Central American federation, composed of those countries, took charge.

The new republic lies between Mexico and Nicaragua, with Tegucigalpa as its capital.

The pact of the union was signed early in January of this year at San Jose, Costa Rica, by the three mentioned states and Costa Rica, whose national assembly rejected it later by a vote of 19 to 20.

Nicaragua refused to sign the pact on account of differences with its neighbor states about the interpretation of the Bryan-Chamorro treaty, which gave to the United States special right for the construction of a new interoceanic canal through its territory.

It is hoped in time that these two countries will also merge into the federation.

Europe Can Not Pay

Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon, who received authority from congress in the spring to see about collecting or refunding the $10,000,000 owed to this country by the allied powers, told the house way and means committee Thursday that it was utterly impossible to make any schedule of payment because of conditions in each of the creditor nations. He recommended refunding the debt at the earliest time into longer term obligations. He reported that the prospect of collecting from Russia "seems hopeless". This country lent many millions to Russia before the czar was overthrown and the Red government has repudiated all debts owed by the former imperial government.

A mob of possibly five hundred men stormed the jail at Mt. Pleasant Monday night and took a negro, who had attempted an eight-year-old white girl at Leesville Sunday, and carried him back to Leesville, where he was burned on the street. He confessed before the fire was lighted.

One of the novelties of the Dallas fair this year is the "Bell Loud Speaker," a contrivance by which the human voice, band music or any other sounds may be magnified to almost any extent, even to the point of making a speaker's voice easily heard and understood for a distance of four miles.

THE LAST BUFFALO HUNT IN TEXAS

(By Annie Dyer Nunn)
It was June of 1887 when Tahausen, Lone Bluff, sun-dance chief of the Kiawas, and five of his intrepid braves silently folded their tents on the reservation and stole away—on, on, on—beyond the waters of many rivers. Had the government agent known of their project, he would have stopped them—but the government agent did not know. How was he likely to know haing none of the nomad's blood in him, nor a heart for the wilderness? Tahausen and his companions were in quest of a buffalo, in order that there might be one more sun-dance,—One more night of flaring fires, painted faces, and beating tom-toms before the white man's civilization pinned them down to forests stripped of deer. The sun-dance was marked off by rectangular in Washington, roads. For some condition of servitude which a ponder tery resented. Their desire for the sun-dance was the "call of the wild," or perhaps a mild eruption from the volcano of untamed longings,—longings that will always smolder in the hearts of the old-time warriors.

Tahausen had given his word that he would find a buffalo, for without one there could be no sun-dance. His complacency in making this promise was amazing in view of the fact that wild buffaloes were only a memory, but Tahausen didn't know it. Over plains and meadows where, just a few years before, they roamed in herds of countless thousands, were scattered their bleaching bones, grim tributes to the prowess of bloodthirsty hunters. Two hundred miles west of Fort Sill, Okla. where the Kiawas were posted, is a Texas canyon known as the Palo Duro. In the shadow of the cliffs of this picturesque canyon Indians in former days had built their wigwams. There by day and by night, through immemorial years, they had heard the incessant roar from the mighty herds of buffaloes; there they had hunted them, killing thousands in wanton waste, without seeming to reduce their amazing numbers. This was a natural than that week the party had been quest to nesses for some sign of a buffalo, but none was found. They could hardly bring themselves to the truth—it is difficult for the pioneer Indians to reckon on the changes of even a decade—that the buffaloes were all gone, except a few tame ones, owned by Charles Goodnight, whose ranch was in the canyon. They camped on his premises; determined, if possible, to secure from him the coveted animal. Mr. Goodnight, however, had other plans for these remnants of a race verging on extinction, and could not be induced to part with any of them. Undaunted, old Tahausen decided to cross to the plains beyond. Mr. Goodnight tried to dissuade him, arguing that it was impossible to find a buffalo and that pursuance of the search could only end disastrously, for the settlers would not take kindly to a band of prowling Indians; but Tahausen was insistent—he must find a buffalo; his honor was at stake. Suddenly affairs took an unexpected turn. The night before they were cyclone that did considerable damage. The next morning the Indians were presented with a two-year-old buffalo bull, the kind required for the sun-dance. Tahausen had no trouble in agreement, had sent the mystery. The sun-dance was a parting gift from Mr. Goodnight.

the animal. The truth of the matter was that Mrs. Goodnight, perceiving the motive of the Indians in coming to the ranch, and being apprehensive of danger should they venture farther, persuaded her husband to make his valuable gift.

That day the buffalo was killed in the regular way, the sachel doing all the work, no hands but his being pure enough to touch the sacred animal. His braves were allowed to witness the slaughter; but the presence of any white person would have desecrated the animal, so that it could not have been used for the sun-dance. After the hide and head were taken they turned their faces toward Fort Sill, leaving the carcass to decay as part of their sacrifice to the Sun Father. It must be remembered that the festival from beginning to end, was based on the sacrifice of a buffalo.

The importance of the sun-dance to the old Indians cannot be overestimated, since it was believed that participation in its ceremonies insured long life, power, victory in war, and continual supply of food and raiment. The buffalo was the animal chosen for this sacrifice because it was regarded as a direct gift from the Sun Father to his chosen people, the Indians, who believed it to be supernaturally sustained in order that they might live, flourish, and multiply.

They were not without natural reasons for this belief, for the buffalo possesses a most remarkable hardihood. It can exist on ranges where other animals must perish from starvation; the eighty-mile blizzard has no terrors for it, for with shaggy wool covering its massive head and shoulders to the depth of two inches, it can face the bitterest storm in security. Thus, when all other game has disappeared from the frozen Plains, the buffalo was still there, the sole sustainer of the Indians.

Historians of Coronado's march inform us that as far back as 1542, even before the Indian met his friend, the horse, there were roving tribes following the buffalo herds.

Speaking of the value of the buffalo to the Indian, and old frontiersman recently said:

"Long as buffaloes roamed the range there were Injuns. When buffaloes begun to disappear, Mr. Injun went too. Buffaloes was his stand-by for food, and when you took his food you took the Injun."

Not only did the buffaloes furnish good meat, and plenty of it—it was called "aun kau peah", (our own God-given meat)—they also furnished clothing and shelter; the hides being used as blankets to wear and to sleep on, as well as for making tepees.

It is obvious, therefore, that no other animal could have taken the place of the buffalo as a sacrificial offering. The prayers offered during the course of the sun-dance, after the buffalo hide and head had been surrounded with gifts, are significant:

"Look at us, Sun. Let our women and children live good and buffaloes cover the earth. Let sickness be put away."

"Let us attain to the way-off person's road (old age)."

No higher honor could be accorded an Indian who had died than that of giving him a buffalo hide as a burial robe. Only great chiefs and medicine men were deemed worthy of this mark of respect. I have it from good authority that this custom still prevails among the Pueblos. Where they obtain these hides is a mystery. We can only guess that they have been kept since the days when buffaloes were plentiful.

A story related to me by Satanka's son-in-law shows clearly the high esteem in which one of the most powerful of all the great Kiawa chiefs held the buffalo hide.

Old Satanka lost his favorite son. He loved his son better than most Indian fathers love their children. In the words of his son-in-law, "He loved him so well that he didn't bury him at all." The young man was killed in battle and had been dead a year before his father heard of it. Then the old man found his bones, which had lain all that time on the Texas Plains greatly, and he buried them in a sack and hid them in the top of his house, and remained there.

If we but stop to consider just what the buffalo means to the Indian, that it stands to-day as a symbol of departed happiness, associated in his memory with those wild, romantic years when, unmolested by civilization, he lived his life in his own free way, it does not seem strange that he should entertain for the sacred animal a feeling akin to reverence.

It is to be feared that real sentiment as an attribute of the Indian has not been given the place in our regard that it merits. Some time ago an unusual opportunity to study at first hand this most interesting phase of Indian nature came to me.

Though the night was bitter cold and the Indian camp presented a formidable picture in the cold moonlight, I was determined, if possible, to spend a short time in one of the tepees. Since the young Indians are too modern to be very interesting, I was anxious to visit the old ones. I could tell by the sounds that came from within the tepees which one the old Indians were occupying, for they talked and sang only in Indian language, while the young ones used English as much as they did their own.

I stopped at the door of this tepee and called the name of squaw whom I knew quite well. There was instant silence. I told the squaw who I was and asked if I might come in.

"We very busy," she answered reluctantly, "but take you this time."

Delighted to receive even so much of an invitation, I entered the tepee. The scene was weirdly impressive, so typical was it of days that the Indian has lost forever. Against the walls of the tent hung war-bonnets, and bow and arrows. Suspended high above the fire was hung a string of fresh buffalo meat, drying. Near the door were stacked the bones of the animal, and beside them, its hide. The Indians sat in a circle around the fire, their swarthy faces looking unduly austere in its uncertain light. Clearly I was just in time for a celebration of some kind, for little Pony, a charming papoose, was hopping about holding two buffalo horns against his head. He was doing the buffalo dance. I was later informed. As I took my seat, the bucks began a loud beating on the tom-toms, while they chanted with solemnity of which only an Indian is capable. The chant meant, "We have killed a buffalo and will eat him for supper."

This entertainment was in honor of the kill that had been made that day. The killing of this buffalo was to them indeed a momentous event, for it had been done by the Indians in the old-time way, with bow and arrows, in order that a motion-picture maker might visualize some of the ancient customs.

"All this meat," said of the squaws—the only one who spoke good English—"will be sent to Oklahoma and distributed among the tribe. These bones also will be given to them, as souvenirs of the hunt. They will be prized above any other possession. "This," she continued, holding up a shoulder blade for inspection, "is very, very valuable. It goes to an old chief, the oldest man in the tribe. When he receives this he will hug it to his breast and cry over it. It will be hung on the walls of his lodge, and Indians from far and near will come to look at it. He will try to make the young ones understand—the old ones already know—how their forbears loved the buffalo."

The other Indians watched her intently during the course of her explanation, and when they had caught the drift of what she was saying they began grunting and gesticulating in an apparent effort to corroborate her words. The dead earnestness of these people impressed me greatly. Back of it, unquestionably, was deep feeling. I looked from one countenance to another, so earnest, so solemn, with the growing conviction that there is more in the heart of an Indian than I had dreamed, and with clever understanding I recalled the events of the day's hunt.

Much interest as to how the Indians were behaving on this most extraordinary occasion, I had come to their camp early that morning. It was a scene of great activity. The women were silent, and, as usual, hard at work, tending camp. The men were saddling horses, sharpening arrows, or talking earnestly in little groups. Through it all there was an undercurrent of suppressed excitement that told more plainly than words how keen was their anticipation.

Old Horse, a veteran hunter, who was regarded as the tribe's best marksman, was energetically practicing with his bow and arrow.

"Glad to kill the buffalo?" I asked curiously.

He went right ahead with his marksmanship, and for a moment I thought he was not going to answer; but finally he smiled gravely and replied:

"No. No like a kill las' buffalo. Buffaloes soon all gone. Injun no see 'em no more."

"Why do you do it, then?"

"To please the cl' man," meaning Mr. Goodnight, who is a great friend of the Indians.

Here one of the squaws, who had been bending over a fire, stirring something in a pot, looked up with smoldering eyes, and muttered:

"It's mean, mean to kill las' buffalo."

At the time I had thought it mere talk. But, now that I understand more of tribal customs and what tradition means to the Indians, it bears out the truth.

By this time we were out of the camp and rode with the sun to the pasture where the hunt was to take place. The Indians arrived a little later, looking altogether picturesque in native costume. Though the men were old, they were as hard as rawhide, and sat on their prancing ponies with the lithe grace peculiar to their kind.

They drew rein on the rim of the canyon, gesticulating and talking in their own natural language; but presently they became silent, their attention attracted by the scene that lay before them. For a few minutes they gazed upon it, and it must have stirred tender memories of vanished days, for more than one dark eye glistened with tears.

A rugged world, sublime in its loneliness, stretched into the distance. Far to the south the haze of the hills, blue as indigo, formed a striking background for the nearer view, bringing each cliffside and hill into just pictorial relief. In the valley, just below, two hundred buffaloes peacefully grazed, occasionally lifting their massive heads as they munched grass and flicked off flies.

Attended Red Cross Meeting

Tenth Grade Elects Officers

The tenth grade at high school has organized with the election of the following officers: Class president, Harry Stone; secretary and treasurer, Marie Graves; Historian Roscoe Keith vice president, J. D. Monk; junior assistant business manager, Bob Peace; for High School Annual; junior editor in chief, Roberta Tudor; senior editor in chief, Lewis Thompson.—High School Reporter.

Mr. and Mrs. Roden Gave Dinner Yesterday

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Roden gave a dinner yesterday at noon honoring his mother, Mrs. Roden, and sister, Mrs. Adams, of Lone Wolf, Okla., who are their guests, and will leave for their home Saturday.

Covers were laid for the honorees, and host and hostess, Mrs. E. F. Williams. Mrs. Lou Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Gilliland, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Gilliland, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Gilliland, Mrs. Geo. Linn and Mrs. Lalla Davis.

Eastern Stars Give Handkerchief Shower for Mrs. Israel

Members of the Plainview chapter of the Eastern Star met at the home of Mrs. J. A. Peret Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and then went in a body to the home of Mrs. J. W. Israel for a social hour. Mrs. Israel was much surprised to see so many "Stars" entering her home. When all were seated Mrs. Peret said, "We have come to bring you some little token of esteem and love." Mrs. Israel was placed in the seat of honor and each member marched by her and presented her with a package, and when she opened them she found each contained a beautiful handkerchief.

Mrs. Israel has been an active member of the Plainview chapter for the past year, and the members regret very much to lose her and feel that their loss will be another chapter's gain. Rev. and Mrs. Israel are moving to Eastern Oklahoma.

Wednesday Bridge Club

Mrs. Guy Jacob entertained the Wednesday Bridge club.

Mrs. Chas. Saigling made high score for the club and Mrs. Heflinger for the guests.

The guests were Mesdames Dennis Heflinger, Joseph Buck, owner, C. D. Powell, L. C. Wayland, and A. C. McClelland and Miss Dell Speed.

Where Has the Money Gone?

The Guyton Tribune asks what has become of the Wheat Growers' Association, of which there was so much talk some months ago, and that paper states, that many farmers paid in $10 each to become members of a proposition which was to have a membership of 4,000,000. And the question is raised as to what have become of the men, and the money collected? And those are pertinent questions! What has become of the men who did the collecting, and the money they collected? It is likely that there are many, many farmers who are asking this question; and it would seem as though it were time some kind of a show down were made in this matter. While the proposition may have been an honest one, it is about time the profectors of the Wheat Growers' Association were coming to the front, and doing more than making mere promises.—Higgins News.

terrific, for among so many it was difficult to get a shot at the animal desired.

I watched the scene with divided interest, for I was fascinated by the expression on the face of one of the bucks standing near me, who for some reason, was not engaged in the hunt. Never had I seen such deep concern on any animal's face. During the whole performance, while the white men were hallooing and whooping, he did not open his mouth nor bat an eye; he simply stared, spellbound. Finally, when the buffalo, pierced by a dozen arrows, went reeling to the ground, the buck gave a long, low wail that chilled me through. It was a lonely, triumphant cry. I asked the excited squaw its significance, but she refused to tell me.

Everyone went scrambling and running down the bluff to where the dead buffalo lay. While the remainder of the terrified herd broke into the hills, the Indians, their faces beaming with pride, gathered round it. They insisted on dancing. So solemnly, while they chanted monotonously, they did a part of the sun-dance, which has many movements and takes days for completion.

EX-BAYLOR STUDENT IS HIGHLY HONORED

The Baylor Lariat, Waco, Texas. W. E. Matthews, '21, of Plainview, Texas, who is now in the graduate school at the University of Missouri, serving as a scholar in English, was last week elected to full membership in the American Dialect Society.

Mr. Matthews is doing research work in the field of colloquialisms and dialect used by modern American poets. He is at present preparing a dictionary of colloquialisms in Whitman's poetry, and he expects to do some similar work in the poetry of Riley and Sanburn. His interest and achievement in this field of study caused him to be honored by election to the society. Dr. Percy W. Long of Harvard University proposed his name. The American Dialect Society, of which Dr. James W. Bright of Johns Hopkins University is president, is composed of more than three hundred prominent English scholars of this country and Europe. It was organized in 1889 by James Russell Lowell, the famous poet and diplomat, and is doing much to collect material on dialect in the United States. The society publishes "Dialect Notes."
