NEW TERRITORY TO COVER — Two Oak Park, Ill., policemen make their way across giant mountain of snow on the village's mall area on Sunday. Saturday's 20.5-inch snowstorm inundated large areas of the Midwest, closed airports and made vehicular traffic nearly impossible.

'Killer storm' takes 29 lives

CHICAGO (AP) — The nation's second largest city was digging out from its second-worst blizzard in history today with a special army of 2,500 workers. But the forecast was for possibly more snow by midweek.

Helicopters were used today to take sick and injured to Chicago-area hospitals because ambulances could not get through the 30 inches of snow, 20.9 inches of it from the weekend storm that hit the Midwest and left at least 29 persons dead — seven in Chicago alone.

O'Hare International Airport, the world's busiest, was closed to all flights due to snow-covered runways. Officials said they hoped to re-open the facility at early today.

Seven of 11 emergency centers set up in the city to distribute food reported their supplies were exhausted by Sunday, and requests for emergency fuel supplies depleted the reserves at two city storage facilities, officials said.

Elsewhere in the Midwest, the snow combined with subfreezing temperatures to cause traffic accidents, break weather records, strand travelers and leave thousands without electricity.

The temperature plummeted throughout the Midwest with South

Woodcock gets

China post nod

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced Monday he is nominating Leonard Woodcock, former president of the United Auto Workers union, to be the first U.S. ambassador to the People's Republic of China.

Carter's move was expected because Woodcock has served as head of the U.S. liaison office in Peking since June 1977 and played an important role in negotiating the agreement that led to U.S. diplomatic recognition of mainland China on Jan. 1.

The 67-year-old Woodcock will be accompanying Chinese Vice President Teng Hsiao Ping when Teng visits Washington Jan. 29 and later makes a cross-country tour. Woodcock will fly here from Peking in advance so he will be able to join Carter in welcoming the Chinese leader.

A native of Providence, R.I., Woodcock was with the auto workers union from 1940 until 1977. He was president of the union for seven years, starting in 1970 when former president Walter P. Reuther was killed in an airplane crash.

Reelection to city post to be sought by Polly Mays

Mrs. Floyd (Polly) Mays has announced she will be a candidate for reelection to the position of city councilwoman, Place 3, subject to action in the April 7 election.

Mrs. Mays, now serving as mayor pro-tem, will be seeking her fourth term. In revealing her plans, Mrs. Mays issued the following statement:

"I am asking for another term on the Big Spring city council. I have been a part of the team that is working for Big Spring's economic progress, its beautification and its efficient operation.

"It is necessary for the council to work in harmony with the city administration and I have enjoyed a fine working relationship with these officers and staff members.

"I am very optimistic about the future of Big Spring and would like to continue working for its growth and development."

The term of Ralph Brooks, Place 4,

Bend, Ind., reporting a record low of 50 degrees at 4 a.m. today. It was 13 in Chicago.

Northern Illinois, Kansas and eastern Iowa were under states of emergency.

There were 11 weather-related deaths in Illinois, two in Iowa, five in Kansas and two in Missouri, where the National Guard was called out over the weekend to rescue motorists. Kansas deactivated its guardsmen today.

Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana all struggled with more than a foot of new snow following the weekend storm. There were eight deaths in Wisconsin and one in Indiana.

The forecast for the snow-buried areas was grim. The National Weather Service said another major storm could be in store for the Midwest by mid-week. Chicago faced a 40 percent chance of more snow by tonight.

Most deaths were attributed to exposure. Travelers died attempting to walk from stranded automobiles to safety, and some pedestrians who slipped and fell were unable to get up due to their injuries. Others died in traffic accidents or of heart attacks.

The National Weather Service said a 23-inch snowstorm in 1967 was Chicago's worst, but that there had never before been more than 29 inches of snow on the ground.

Chicago Mayor Michael A. Bilandic toured the city by helicopter Sunday, and 2,500 city workers were ordered to begin the massive snow removal effort today.

Motorists who dared to venture out were warned to be prepared for long delays, and the mayor asked businessmen to order staggered work shifts to minimize congestion.

The roofs of several buildings collapsed under the snow, authorities said. But there were no reported injuries.

Russell Burchett heads

all-state selections

This has been another banner year for choral director Jack Bowers and members of the Big Spring High School choral department.

No fewer than six members of this year's choir were named to the All-State Choir in competition at Midland over the weekend.

As such, they will blend their voices with other members of the elite group during the Texas Music Educators Association convention in Fort Worth Feb. 7-9-10.

Chosen from Big Spring were Lorinda Lee, second alto; Cindy Cowan, first soprano; Rhonda Willbanks, second soprano; Mark Warren, first tenor; Larry Wheat, first tenor; and Russell Burchett, second base.

Burchett was named All-State for the third straight year, the first Big Spring student to be so honored. Big Spring had only two All-State selections last year.

The all-state choir will be made up of approximately 200 students.

Only two involved

in shootout here

Autopsies performed on the bodies of Elmer Green and Eugene Vanderbilt, fatalities in a double shooting Friday, revealed that the two men were the only ones involved in the exchange of gunfire, according to Detective David Spilman.

The autopsies, performed Saturday in Abilene, determined that Green, 54, died as the result of a bullet to the liver. Cause of death for Vanderbilt, 35, was a bullet lodged in the pulmonary artery.

The incident occurred at Dickie's Lounge, 314 N.W. 4th, around 10:30 p.m. The case is still under investigation for violation of laws other than homicide, Spilman said.

also expires this year but Brooks has not indicated whether he will be a candidate for reelection.

Mrs. Mays is the first person to declare for the race this year.

On way to United States

Shah leaving Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, his 37-year rule rocked by months of mass protest and bloodshed, will leave Iran on Tuesday for Aswan, Egypt, on his way to the United States, informed sources reported today. Many here believe he may never return.

New political violence flared across the country, and it was reported that 20 persons had been killed Sunday and today, including a former U.S. Air Force colonel in the southeastern city of Kerman.

U.S. Embassy officials identified him as Martin Bzrkowitz, 53, of San Francisco. The embassy gave no further details, but the newspaper Khayan reported Bzrkowitz was apparently stabbed Sunday night in killers had not yet been identified.

The sources here confirmed an earlier report by Egyptian officials that the beleaguered 59-year-old shah would travel to Aswan. The Cairo officials said he would meet with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in the southern Egyptian town. The shah had been a guest of Sadat's in Aswan last January.

Before departing, the shah is scheduled to hold a rare news conference late Tuesday morning at his palace outside Tehran.

The Iranian Senate today hurriedly gave its endorsement to the new civilian government of Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar.

Khayan said Berkowitz was head of the Parson-Jordan Co., a copper-mining concern. The paper said his

Texaco oil strike averted by bargaining

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — A late-night bargaining session by company and union negotiators averted a threatened walkout by 7,000 workers at a Texaco refinery today, but a final agreement has not been reached.

Contract talks between Texaco and the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union were to reopen later today after union and company negotiators reached an early morning agreement on non-monetary issues that had bogged down negotiations.

The OCAW had threatened to strike over reported reductions in lump sum retirement benefits and demands for the right to strike over non-arbitrable issues during the term of the new two-year agreement.

"I think we are in ballpark for negotiating the national program now," said OCAW negotiator Larry Steffen, referring to an agreement reached last week between the OCAW and Gulf Oil in Denver.

NEW CITY ATTORNEY — Elliott Mitchell, named last week to succeed Jim Gregg as City Attorney for Big Spring, arrived in town the past weekend to assume his duties. A native of Longview, where he was born 26 years ago, Mitchell has resided in Austin since 1962. He is a graduate of St. Mary's School of Law. He is married to the former Linda Rae Thyberg of Sioux Falls, N. Dakota.

Q. What has happened to the printing of the "Public Records" that we used to get so regularly? Isn't Don Woods our correspondent to the court house now? Most people like it about as well as the "Police Beat."

A. Woods turns in some Public Records every week. If they didn't run one week it is probably because we had a space problem.

Final motions expected

Bizzare, expensive trial winding down

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys, after months of pre-trial hearings, selection of a jury, and presentation of testimony, were to appear in state district court today to make their final motions before the murder conspiracy case of Cullen Davis goes to the jury.

Not so, said defense attorney Phil Burleson. "I think the jurors will find Cullen innocent. I believe the evidence showed there were other people who had something to gain by framing Cullen Davis."

FTC to protect used car buyers?

By The Associated Press
Used cars and used car salesmen rank close to mothers-in-law as a target for comedians, but the subject is no laughing matter for the consumer who gets stuck with a clunker.
The Federal Trade

Commission is considering a staff proposal for new regulations to protect buyers by requiring dealers to provide more information about the vehicles they are selling, but the rules would not remove all the risks.
The FTC plan would affect sales made by dealers only; it would not cover the private transactions in which half or more of all used cars change hands every year.

It would not require dealers to repair defects in the cars they sell; it would only force them to disclose the existence of such problems—in writing.

With a little knowledge, you can protect yourself against problems. If you are shopping at a dealer, check his reputation in the community with friends and the Better Business Bureau. Inspect the car carefully; if you don't know anything about automobiles, bring along someone who does. Take the car for a test drive. And ask about the details of any warranty that is offered.
To get a rough idea of costs, check the Used Car Guide of the National Automobile Dealers Association or the Kelly Blue Book, remember that individual prices vary widely depending on the condition and mileage of the car.
There are three basic sources of used cars: the private individual, the dealer who handles only used cars and the new-car dealer, who also sells autos that have been traded in.
You will probably spend the least if you buy from an individual, but you may have to pay a price for your savings. Individuals usually sell cars "as is." You may have to put added money for repairs into the auto you select. You will not get a warranty and will have no recourse if something goes wrong.
The used-car dealer will offer a wider selection of cars and will probably provide a limited warranty. He also may be able to help you finance your purchase, although not necessarily at the lowest rate.
The new-car dealer probably will have the newest used cars; the older, less-desirable cars he gets as trade-ins are usually sold to used-car dealers. The new-car dealer also will, as a rule, give you the most complete warranty. In exchange for the service, you may pay a higher price.

Jury selection begins in Rep. Flood's trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Selection of a jury to try veteran U.S. Rep. Daniel J. Flood on perjury, bribery and conspiracy charges began today shortly before the Pennsylvania Democrat was to begin his 16th term in Congress.
The jury selection process, being conducted by U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch, was to be interrupted at noon so the 75-year-old Flood could go to the Capitol for the swearing-in ceremonies.
"I'm a little hoarse," Flood told a reporter, pointing to his throat, after he sat down at the defense table in the courtroom.
"I think the hoarseness has something to do with the cancer operation I had 15 years ago," said the usually flamboyant Flood, who wore a navy-blue vested gardsine suit and matching suede shoes. His moustache was waxed daggersharp.

Gasch told the panel of about 120 prospective jurors, "The first order of business is to select a jury who will be completely objective and impartial."
A jury of 12 persons and six alternates will be chosen before testimony in the trial begins. The jury will be sequestered.
Flood is accused of conspiring to collect $65,000 cash and 100 shares of bank stock in exchange for contracts, grants and others favors. Indictments were handed down last year by federal grand juries in Los Angeles and Washington.

He could be sentenced to 155 years in prison and fined $220,000 if convicted on all counts — 9 bribery, 3 perjury and 1 conspiracy.
The 13 counts, which were produced after an investigation by more than 100 FBI agents, were consolidated for a single trial in the nation's capital.
"I deny all these allegations totally and unequivocally," Flood said when he pleaded innocent.
"Those absurd charges (were) brought by desperate men," said the flamboyant congressman, who is known as "Dapper Dan" for his fancy white silk suits and fur-lined capes.
Gasch has ruled that the 12 jurors and six alternates chosen for the trial will be sequestered — placed in the custody of federal marshals and locked up until the trial is complete.
Flood is a skilled orator, and left the stage to pursue a law career as a student at Harvard University. He got his law degree from Dickinson School of Law, and has served 15 terms in the House since 1944. He lost re-election bids in 1946 and 1952, but has not been defeated since.
Flood is accused of improperly trading his influence as chairman of a House Appropriations subcommittee that oversees about $75 billion for hospitals, schools, labor, welfare and defense.
The FBI began investigating Flood's activities in mid-1977 after his former administrative assistant, Stephen B. Elko, was accused of influence peddling.
Elko, who has since been convicted of bribery and is serving a three-year term, is Flood's chief accuser. The indictments naming Flood listed Elko as a co-conspirator.

Before you buy, check the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to find out if the model you are considering is currently or ever has been the subject of a recall. The agency's toll-free hotline number is 800-424-9393. You must provide the make, model number and year of the car.
If you learn the auto has been involved in a recall, ask the administration for a vehicle identification card. By sending the card to the manufacturer, you can learn whether the previous owner had the car repaired.

On the light side

Pull over that train

STANLEY, Va. (AP) — Engineers, beware. The Stanley Town Council has ordered police to use radar to check the speed of Norfolk & Western Railway trains passing through town.
In giving the instructions Saturday night to Police Chief E. M. "Pat" Sedwick, however, the council did not say how he was to give tickets to speeding trains.
Nor did it make public the speed limit for trains.
The speed check was triggered by the derailment of 18 cars here in early December. One of the derailed cars almost struck a liquefied petroleum tank.

Committee's committee

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana University officials have decided there are too many committees on campus — so they're forming a committee to handle the problem.
Vice President Robert M. O'Neil said within two weeks he will create a Committee on Committees, authorized to streamline the school's committee system.
The new committee, made up of three or four members, will decide which committees are necessary, which are inactive, which should be consolidated and which should get the axe.
Nobody knows how many committees there are at the university, but officials estimate there are as many as 100 with more than 700 volunteer members from the staff, faculty and student body.
"The real cost to the university is a hidden drain on manpower," O'Neil said. "Some professors may find they have to attend several long meetings a week or each month, reducing the time they have for teaching, research and public service."
Another problem is confusion. Sometimes several committees study different aspects of the same topic, he said.

Stolen T-shirts

CLEVELAND (AP) — Edward Heckman knows it can be tough to live in Cleveland.
Thieves broke a plate glass window over the weekend at his small eastside store and made off with 50 T-shirts. Most were imprinted with a decal of Cleveland's skyline and the words, "You Gotta Be Tough To Live In Cleveland."
Heckman estimated the uninsured loss at about $500 and said: "I don't see anything humorous in this. It's $500 worth of non-humor."
"But we're gonna stay there and sell T-shirts. You gotta be tough to live in Cleveland," the 40-year-old storeowner added.

Cleveland care package

CLEVELAND (AP) — When word of Cleveland's financial difficulties reached San Diego, Calif., it triggered Richard K. Stacer's mercy instinct.
Stacer, an attorney, began to worry about his U.S. Naval Reserve friend, Morton Leavitt, after the city defaulted on bank loans.
So he sent Leavitt, and architect, a package, filled with aspirin, cookies, candles and other emergency items. A note inside read:
"I've heard so many desperate things about Cleveland on television, the radio and in the newspapers that I became fearful that you may not survive without outside help."
There was an envelope in the package, which said on the outside: "Open when banks close."
Leavitt couldn't refrain, however. Inside, he found a crisp, new $1 bill.

City's share of local option sales tax down

The City of Big Spring's January allocation of the local option one percent sales tax for the period ending Dec. 29, 1978, amounted to $25,051.66.
That represents a decrease of 17 percent from the same period a year ago, when the city's share amounted to $30,490.58.
Statewide, this month's rebate is about $300,000 less than the state paid to some 900 cities during the same one-month period a year ago.
Coahoma's rebate dropped 20 percent, to $1,160.52 while Colorado City's collection skidded 21 percent to $5,254.98.
Lamesa's rebate showed an even more significant drop — 24 percent. Lamesa's share of the tax came to $11,480.98, compared to $15,156.05 a year ago.
State Comptroller Bob Bullock's records did not credit Stanton for the month, whereas a year ago Stanton's share of the sales tax money totaled $92.44.
Bullock said the January allocation of the local option one percent sales tax to cities will exceed $18.1 million.

Texas cities received a record $424.8 million during 1978 as their share of the city sales tax, an increase of 17 per cent over the previous year, Bullock said.
Houston will receive $3.5 million for this reporting period, an 11 percent drop compared to the city's 1978 payment for January.
Dallas will get a check for $2.2 million, which is one percent less than the amount paid during the same period last year.
Fort Worth's check for January will be $756,596 compared to $761,375 received by the city during the first month last year.
Austin will get $641,992 this year, compared to a payment of $600,346 for the same period last year.
The sales tax is collected by merchants and other sales tax permit holders along with the state sales tax and is rebated monthly to cities in which it is collected by the Comptroller's Office.

Dawson's bale count, 93,500

LAMESA — Recent bad weather all but halted the harvest of the Dawson County cotton crop. The bale count has edged a little above 93,500 bales.
Twenty six gins in the county have been handling the crop.

For the record

An 18-wheeler truck was mistakenly reported in Sunday's Herald to have been stuck at the site of the new Churches Fried Chicken Restaurant. The mishap actually occurred at the site of a new pharmacy being built by the Ventura Construction Company. Church's will be going up soon at 1100 Gregg.

Research program is being cut back

Many colleges across the land, including our own Howard College, are becoming increasingly aware of the ravages of inflation. The problem of maintaining multitudinous research programs in universities becomes increasingly costly, with the result that some programs have to be cut back, if not eliminated entirely.

THE COMPLEX campus research structure is, in effect, a marriage with the government that got its roots during World War II. Since that time, when technology became a part of everyone's life, the research has been expanding. All is threatened, however, by the value of the plunging dollar. The situation likely will get worse. Dr. Charles G. Overberger, vice president for research at the University of Michigan, noted recently that already some support features considered essential are being trimmed. Unless ways are found to counter the funding erosion, we will no longer be making effective use of the great natural resource represented by the universities. The inflationary threat was one of several problems in the state of the national research effort singled out by Overberger recently in accepting the American Chemical Society's Charles Lathrop Parsons Award for outstanding public service. OVERBERGER ALSO noted needs for simplification of support procedures, improved arrangements for financing basic research, development of scientific manpower policies and encouragement of greater cooperation between industry and the universities in research projects. Without a thoroughgoing review and updating of the research effort, the schools will not be getting the money they need to conduct research programs and the public will not be getting full research value for its investment. What kind of money is involved? A lot of it, he stated. Federal funding, as noted by Overberger, is currently running at about $2.9 billion a year as university research which conduct 54 percent of the nation's total basic research.

Brown as Cassandra

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Without apparent success so far, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown has privately warned President Carter of "disastrous consequences" if he pursues his present course of abandoning the nation's land-based intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) capability. Brown's warning echoes the position that Carter's defense critics have been derided for: if the Soviets "are structuring" their forces to fight an extended nuclear war and know that the U.S. is not, there is deep trouble ahead. The blunt warning, so out of character for the low-keyed Brown as to be passionate, was provoked by Jimmy Carter himself. Meeting with senior officials on the defense budget last Sept. 29, the president asked: "Why do we need the Triad?" In other words, why can't the U.S. dispense with land-based ICBMs, and rely on the other two legs of the Triad — manned bombers and missile-firing submarines?

OVER A MONTH elapsed before Brown completed an answer for the president's eyes. Brown's "top secret" memorandum of Dec. 1 contained this chilling message:

"The effect of the U.S. giving up, under successful Soviet pressure, a military capability of considerable value which the Soviet Union retains would, in my view, have disastrous consequences both internationally and domestically."

While State Department policymakers flatly disagree, even Brown himself does not talk that way in public. Nuclear physicist Brown is a private man, a cool scientist who avoids cold war rhetoric. Unlike predecessors Melvin Laird and James Schlesinger, Brown has shunned the Cassandra role of "pointing to the Soviet menace. He has, in the process, become one of Carter's favorite cabinet members.

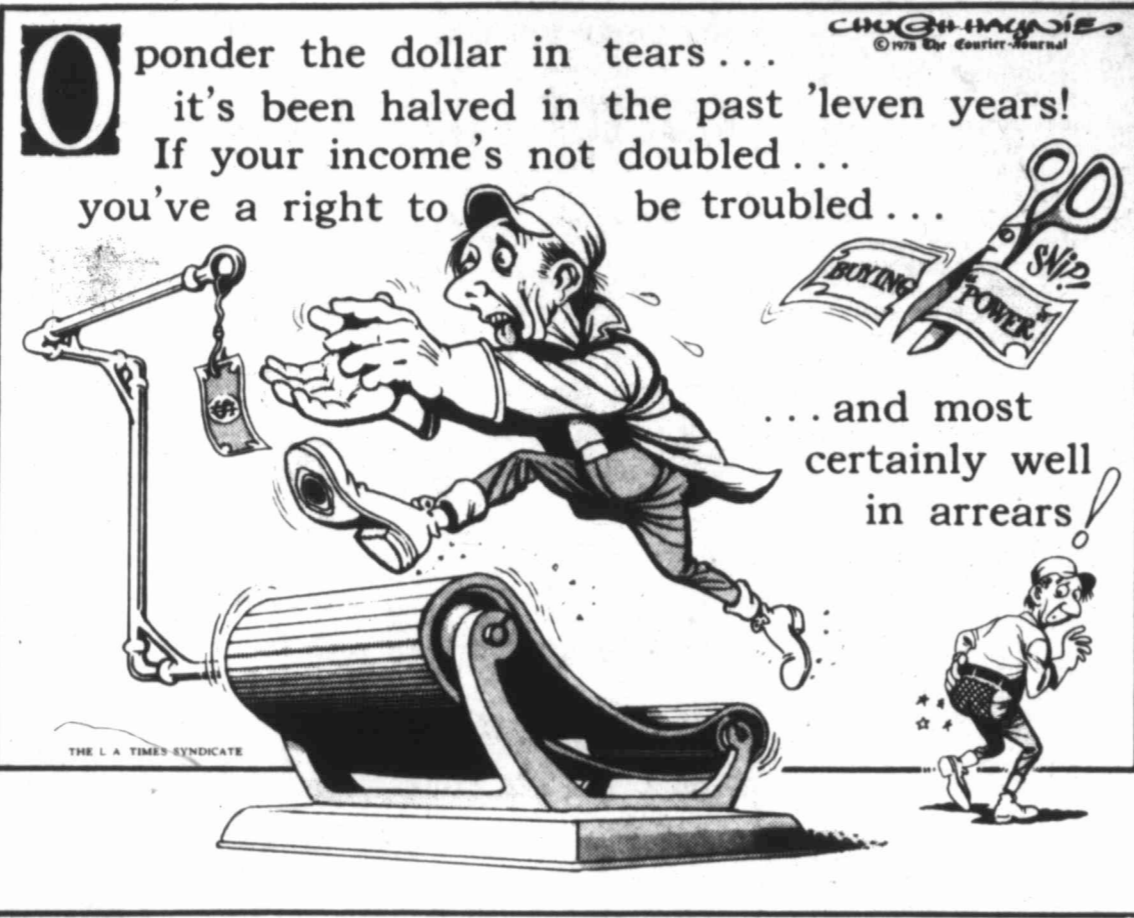

Yet, there is no sign of presidential response to Brown's warning. Nothing in writing from Carter has been received at the Pentagon. The gloomy consensus there is that he is determined, for arms control's sake, to reject the Defense Department's proposals to preserve the land-based ICBM and the Triad.

Specifically at issue is whether the president will approve a mobile-based system on land for the new MX missile to replace the fixed-base Minuteman, which is becoming vulnerable to Soviet attack. But mobile basing in viewed by arms controllers as destabilizing on grounds it would force Moscow to respond (while also violating the new SALT II arms control treaty). Consequently, presidential science adviser Frank Press and other White House aides want to base the MX aboard aircraft.

Carter leans this way, an inclination signalled by him while still president-elect on Jan. 12, 1977, when he suggested reducing the U.S. arsenal to 200-250 ICBMs. Nearly two years in office did not change his mindset. That was shown at the Sept. 29 meeting, when Carter again questioned the need for the ICBM.

The Dec. 1 response, personally written by Brown, after its warning of "disaster" discussed why a land-based missile is needed. Brown insisted on retaliatory capability "come what may, in the face of new and unexpected Soviet developments." He further stressed the need "to maintain some capability after an initial (nuclear) exchange — perhaps for days, or weeks, or even a few months."

THIS NOTION OF a nuclear war that would not be completed in one apocalyptic spasm has been rejected by arms control advocates rampant in the administration.

Abuse increases in hectic seasons

By Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: About three months ago I was beaten about my shoulders and head. It was my husband. I feel uneasy about going to a doctor, but I have had an earache since. Could external blows have caused inner-ear damage? This may not be an entirely medical question, but I would like your opinion about my husband. We have been married more than 30 years and he always has had these temper tantrums. He does not seem aware of the seriousness of the beatings and seems surprised at the bruises. I feel he needs medical attention, but he refuses to believe it. Do you have any suggestions? I still love him, but I believe he is dangerous at times. — M.E.T.

The earache is your immediate problem. It is possible your ear drum was perforated. See an otologist (ear doctor) and also have your hearing tested.

Your husband is obviously the other immediate problem. He may need psychological help as much as you do medical attention. Reported wife-beatings are on the increase simply because many women, who used to be reluctant about such things, are bringing cases to the attention of authorities. Police departments and social agencies are taking a new view of this, from both a legal and psychiatric standpoint. Mate-abuse tends to occur at highly emotional times. Reports increase sharply during holiday seasons. Alcohol is often a catalyst. Sometimes economic factors are involved.

The encouraging point in your letter is that you and your husband have at least discussed the matter, apparently with some calmness. That is a major step, and if a word here will help him decide to get the help he obviously needs, so much the better. There are clinics that deal with such situations. See if one is near you. An attitude of forbearance will not help either of you. Check with a social service agency — on your way back from the doctor.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have a terrible problem. I am 30 pounds overweight and have stretchmarks on my legs, hips and breasts. I am only 14. My mother says they will disappear if I tighten up my skin. Well, every change I get I do exercise, but they only make things look worse. Any advice for me? — Help!

I don't think you want to "tighten" your skin at this point. Your overweight is contributing to the marks, which are breaks in the tissue. At your age you do have a good chance of having the marks fade with time — if you shed the extra 30 pounds.

You'll do that by continuing your exercises while you cut back on total calories. Then hope for the best.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My seven-year-old daughter has diabetes insipidus. We learned of it recently. I am very concerned and confused about it. I have talked with several doctors and I take her in for X-rays scans every six months. One doctor says it is not serious. Another says it is. So is it or isn't it?

She is on pitressin tannate and I give her injections. When I give a shot in the leg or rear, some of it drains out. I'm wondering why. Can you help? — D.F.

Diabetes insipidus is rare. It can occur at any age and is due to a deficiency in the pituitary gland, which produces a hormone that controls water release. The drug you are using replaces this hormone.

In about half the cases the cause cannot be found. In others it may be traced to disorders within the pituitary, such as a tumor. The periodic scans are part of a continuing search for a cause. It may be temporary or persist, and is not considered serious unless the patient becomes dehydrated, usually from inadequate treatment. Features of this are great thirst and urination.

The leaking can be avoided if you draw the skin firmly aside before making the injection. The skin will avoid the penetration point and close leakage.

Diabetes insipidus has nothing to do with diabetes mellitus (sugar diabetes).

Dear Dr. Ruble: Why is the term "pulmonary emphysema" used? I thought all emphysema was pulmonary, having to do with lungs. Can you explain? — J.V.

Emphysema means "air in the tissue." The term is almost always used in connection with the lung disorder. However, air in tissue can occur in other ways, such as in the chest wall from a stab wound.

You can lose weight if you really want to! The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Ruble in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I had a miscarriage recently. Should I become pregnant again soon, or should I wait a while? — T.N.

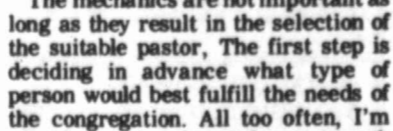

It is best to wait for a while to allow your uterus to return to normal before becoming pregnant again. You should ask your doctor about the advisability of having a D & C (dilation and curettage) to remove any remaining miscarriage debris.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am 73 years old and have had a backache for some time. Last week I passed two stones, which the doctor called "urates." What does that mean? — Mrs. E.Z.

It means the stones (calculi) were made of crystals of uric acid, which had collected to form solid masses. In the upper urinary tract, as in the kidneys, such stones may cause backache which usually radiates down to the groin. You may, in fact, now find your backache relieved if the stones were causing it. Next step? Finding the cause of the uric acid problem and treating that.

Even a tendency to deep sleep can contribute.

My answer

My answer

Dear Billy Graham: How should a church go about choosing a pastor? I know he should be a godly man, but what procedure should our church follow? — S.C.

Dear S.C.: I am sure the procedure will differ from church to church. In some denominations there are regular guidelines to follow when a congregation seeks a pastor; in others, the governing body of the congregation (such as the deacons or elders) may make this decision. The mechanics are not important as long as they result in the selection of the suitable pastor. The first step is deciding in advance what type of person would best fulfill the needs of the congregation. All too often, I'm afraid, churches do not devote enough time to this question, or else they set up standards that are either unrealistic or unspiritual. Any group seeking a pastor should spend time studying the Bible to see what it says about pastoral qualifications. First and Second

Timothy and Titus would be good places to start. A pastor, for example, should be above reproach in his personal life — including his family life, his handling of his finances and his relationships with people. After all, he is to be a model for other Christians. He also should be a person who knows and loves the Word of God; he should be a diligent student of the Bible. (This means, incidentally, that the congregation should allow him time to study, and not expect him to be going to meetings all the time.) Many other qualifications could be listed. Most of all, he should have a love for Christ and a burden for the spiritual needs of people.

One other thing: As a congregation searches for a pastor, it should study what responsibilities God has given to the congregation as well. All too often congregations hire a pastor expecting him to do all the work. But the members of the congregation should all be just as busy, seeking to work for Christ under the pastor's leadership.

Memories

Around the rim

Carla Walker

Spending Thursday evening at the Howard County Livestock show brought back all kinds of forgotten experiences for me. It hasn't been very long since I was out in the show ring. I remember getting dragged all over the arena during the show by a wild lamb when I was about 10 years old, and doing a repeat performance at the premium sale the next evening. Needless to say, I didn't win the showmanship award.

The first year I showed a lamb, I remember placing 31st out of a class of 31. At the age of nine, I wasn't too old to cry.

BUT, MORE than anything else, this year's show made me remember all the help I got from County Extension Agents, my parents, the parents of other 4-H kids, and, as much as I hate to admit it, from my brother.

Getting a lamb or steer ready for the show requires a lot of work. My uncle, March Schafer, raises Rambouillet sheep and we always bought our lambs from him.

There were feeding chores in the morning and evening, and the animals had to be exercised, which involved running them over hurdles and around the enclosure where we kept them.

There were many cold mornings when it was my turn to feed, that either my parents or my brother took care of the job. And, on the evening exercising, I got to skip the chore sometimes because I was staying with a friend, or it was cold or...

I did a lot of the work myself, but without my family, their actual work as well as their advice and supervision, I'd have never made it to the show ring.

After the months of work, the lambs must be given final preparations before they enter the show ring. Although most of the lambs are sheared now, we had to "block" them when I was in 4-H.

Blocking is a term describing the way the lamb's wool is sheared. The effect, looking head-on at a lamb, would ideally be a square block with the wool being left at the top and sides to make the corners of the "box."

My father did most of the blocking, clipping and shearing on my lambs, but there were always the County agents and other kids' parents willing to help. Even though competition was the name of the game, youth and adults alike worked just as hard on another exhibitor's animal as they did on their own.

AND, PEOPLE like them, Loy Acuff, who gives $100 savings bond to the exhibitor of the top County-bred Hereford steer and the buyers — local businessmen and individuals who give what amounts to cash incentives to the youth — make the show work.

There is no way that with feeding animals, working with it and transporting it to the show, the exhibitor can make a profit, or even break even unless he wins a major show like Houston or San Antonio.

However, local buyers make up some of the difference to give the exhibitors the needed incentive and give less fortunate kids the opportunity to show livestock.

The animals are actually sold as a group at the present per-pound price for livestock. The bidders at the premium sale get nothing but a thanks and a picture of the exhibitor and his animal for the money they give the youth.

Seeing adults work together to help their children and others learn the responsibility of daily care of an animal, learn about the methods of judging the quality of the animals, and experience the joys as well as accept the sorrows that competition can bring, makes me realize all over again — 4-H is a great program.

Man on the run

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The aging activist, once a headline figure who shouted defiance at the police, is now on the run from the police. He talked to us about the 1960s and the shaggy-haired generation, with flashes of his old truculence. He also spoke about the 1970s and his flight from the past, with traces of sadness. Once he had to choke back tears.

He's about 40, average size, with dark hair and brown eyes. His CB handle is "Red Runner" and in his car he yammers constantly into the microphone in a sort of twangy Boston poolhall patter. He lives with a willowy woman he calls Angel who is a little taller and younger than he is.

His friends know him perhaps as Billy, or Mark, or Joe, or any of a dozen other names. He is, in fact, Abbie Hoffman, America's most flamboyant fugitive. And he expects to be captured.

FOR FIVE YEARS now, Abbie Hoffman has been hiding out after jumping bail. He faces a New York drug conspiracy charge that could, if he is convicted, bury him in Attica prison for 15 years to life. He has attempted to portray the arrest in the light of a political frameup but the fact is he was caught red-handed selling $36,000 worth of cocaine to an undercover police officer.

The man whose political liberalism and violent rhetoric launched a thousand protest demonstrations and helped fuel a decade of social disruption is now little more than a common criminal, reduced to scatological diatribes and reliving old glories in articles he writes for men's magazines and counterculture publications.

He has had plastic surgery to change his appearance. He has suffered two nervous breakdowns brought on by the pressures of being a fugitive and the strain of juggling his various identities. He has been arrested and jailed but was released without being identified. "I had to eat my address book on that occasion," he said, meaning it literally.

He has been offered asylum in Cuba, but he rejected it because: "I'm an American, and I'm much more content living here and doing what I'm doing than I would be living in Cuba as Abbie. Israel has a law of return, and I am Jewish, but I think they'd trade me for a phantom jet. So here I stay."

HE HAS WORKED as an English teacher, as a chef in a restaurant, as a cook in a greasy spoon, as a laborer and a construction worker. People have spotted him as an Abbie Hoffman look-alike but no one has challenged him as his true identity. It has been a decade since Hoffman helped foment the street riots at the Chicago Democratic convention and later turn the riot-conspiracy trial of the Chicago Seven into a shambles. Pranks, like showering dollar bills from the visitor's gallery onto the floor of the New York stock exchange and watching the brokers scramble for the money, bolstered his image as the Clown Prince of the New Left. But other actions — such as wearing a shirt made from the American flag, characterizing the United States in his books as "Amerika, the Pig Nation," extolling drug usage and walking around with four-letter words painted on his forehead — made him a hated figure for many.

He has mellowed considerably, meanwhile, along with the times. Jimmy Carter, he thinks, is "an honest man working in a dishonest system." Today's villains? "It used to be: 'Hey, multinational corporations, and it makes me mad because I don't even know their names. The same people who were making napalm for Vietnam are now busily poisoning the environment."

The hardest part of his life on the run, Hoffman said, is being separated from his family. Fugitive status has meant the forced end of his marriage to wife Anita although they correspond regularly and remain "brother-and-sister friends."

His 8-YEAR-OLD son America — named with a small "a" as a symbol of the counterculture into which he was born — has seen his father only at fleeting secret meetings arranged at great risk. And Hoffman has two teenage sons by a previous marriage. Discussing his family, he came close to tears at one point and abruptly left the room to regain his composure.

"It's very, very hard... very painful," he said. "I would never give myself up. People say: 'What do you want to go back for, you're doing better than most of your friends.' Would you believe me if I said I'd do it for my mother? She's had a hard time understanding all of this."

We were brought together with Hoffman in Buffalo, N.Y., after elaborate security precautions. Angel drove us to a small diner where we sat down. Suddenly from the rear, a long-haired cowboy figure wearing jeans, leather boots, sunglasses, a bandanna and a cowboy hat appeared. "Hey," he said. "I'm Billy," — using an agreed-upon code name.

Industry may be taking a hint

The people who have been getting a mail box full of junk mail are getting some good news.

The industry, worried about possible federal regulation, is trying to clean up its own act.

At its annual convention in Washington recently, the Direct Mail-Marketing Association urged member firms to participate in its service allowing recipients of junk mail to get their names taken off all commercial mailing lists.

According to the Washington-based "Privacy Journal," association of officers admitted fewer than ten percent of its member firms now participate in the voluntary name-removal program. They are mounting a campaign to get more to sign up before the government decides to police the industry.

If you care to remove your name from commercial mailing lists, you can write to Mail Preference Service, 6 East 43rd St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Advice sought to improve air travel for disabled

Currently, there are 7,440,000 disabled adults in the United States who travel for business, pleasure and medical aid. You have seen them on buses, trains and sometimes even planes. Now, Rehabilitation, USA (RIUSA), a national voluntary agency dedicated to providing services to disabled people throughout the world, is working to give more handicapped individuals access to the skies. Of all the travel vehicles, the airplane presents the most formidable barrier for the handicapped travelers. The obstacles they face in flight include inaccessible lavatories, narrow aisles, lack of wheelchair space, inadequate space for seeing-eye dogs and immovable arm rests on aisle seats. Changes are also the most costly to incorporate.

RIUSA has discussed possible solutions with representatives from Pan Am, Eastern, Delta, United, TWA, Northwest Orient, El Al, British Airways and Laker. Boeing, McDonnell and Lockheed have formed a committee to explore the accessibility problem. While talks with these airlines and manufacturers have been genuinely encouraging, RIUSA said it needs input from the handicapped community to insure that the best possible modifications are incorporated into the new plane designs. Room's color can cause moody blues

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Feeling blue? Maybe it's the color of your walls! January's Seventeen Magazine reports that your room's color can have a great deal to do with how you feel.

Deep sky blue paint on your bedroom walls could look great all summer, yet make you uncomfortable in the fall. Why? Color can create a psychological room "temperature," with green, blue and purple considered cool colors, and red, yellow and orange considered warm. So the room that seems cool and refreshing in hot weather may "feel" chilly during cold months. By the same token, the "institutional green" color often seen on school walls can make students feel sluggish in class. "Green is a tranquil, relaxing color," says Ms. Fox. "Why use it in a learning situation? The whole point is to stimulate. A light, neutral color, with bright, chromatic teaching aids, is much better."

So it's no coincidence that we associate red with rage, yellow with cowardice and purple with passion. "All these clichés," Ms. Fox observes, "have a basis in reality."

TWEEN 12 and 20 Thanks from a happy pen pal

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dear Dr. Wallace: I am writing to thank you so very much. You once printed the address of a pen pal organization in Kansas. I had never had a pen pal before, so I eagerly wrote to get one. They sent me the name of a girl from East Germany named Christine. I have exchanged letters with her for over a year now. I have learned all about a different political system; the German language; and all about the life of a truly wonderful person. This summer I have gained permission to enter her country to meet Christine for the first time. She and I can hardly wait until that time. Thank you for enriching my life. — Sincerely, Ellen Steinhauer

Ellen: I'm thrilled about your forthcoming trip. Thanks for taking time to share your happy experience with us.

Dr. Wallace: I want to be a movie star. My mother said she would take me to a talent scout but we don't know where to find one. Help! — L.M., Petaluma, Calif.

L.M.: Actually there is no such person as a "talent scout." Your best bet would be to get involved in school and community drama productions. It might also help to take professional acting lessons.

Don't give up. Dedication and hard work make many dreams come true.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace in care of this newspaper.

Reverend Raps Title Dropper

DEAR ABBY: I take strong exception to the writer who took you to task for addressing a clergyman as "Reverend So and So."

She wrote, "Reverend is an adjective, meaning honorable. You may say, 'The Reverend Mr. Blank,' or 'The Reverend Dr. Blank,' but, Abby, please do not address a clergyman as 'Reverend Anybody.' It's simply not done!"

How wrong! As a minister of the United Methodist Church I have always been addressed as "Reverend"—same as my father and father-in-law, and I love it. I would object vigorously were members of my congregation to address me as "Mister."

Our Episcopal friends address their bishop as "Right Reverend." I maintain that common usage by countless thousands makes it OK to call a pastor "Reverend."

If it's correct for our Catholic friends to call their priest "Father," or for our Jewish friends to call their clergyman "Rabbi," then it should be OK for my parishioners (and others) to call me "Reverend."

Sign me...

REVEREND H. IN ILLINOIS

DEAR REVEREND H.: The English language purists will probably shoot me down, but adjectives serve well in addressing people. However:

The hassle over the use of Reverend Will neverend.

DEAR ABBY: K IN PONTIAC wrote to say that during a job interview she was asked if she had plans to start a family in the near future. She said, "I never dreamed that such an inquiry would be made in this day of equal rights." Then she asked if you thought that was a proper question to ask a woman applicant.

You replied, "When a new employee is hired, the employer makes an investment in time and training. He therefore has a right to know if the applicant plans to have a family—and, if so, when. Some women take a leave of absence from their jobs to have and raise children. Men do not."

Abby, your response may sound reasonable, but unless an employer asks the same question of men applicants, he is in violation of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 for sex discrimination.

DEAR L: My response was valid as far as it went, but I should have added, "However, employers must ask the same question of men applicants in order to stay within the law. Since that is a difficult rule to follow, most personnel directors now advise that questions about family plans not be asked."

DEAR ABBY: I see by your column that chastity belts are making a comeback.

Do you know of an orthopedic surgeon-blacksmith team who could design a combination neck brace and side-blinders for my husband?

When we walk down the street, he practically twists his neck off every time he sees a pretty girl.

LOLLIE IN PHOENIX

DEAR LOLLIE: Let him look. When he's through looking, he's through.

East meets West and business is business

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stanley Young says the telephones never stop ringing and he's looking for more help and office space at the National Council for U.S.-China Trade. "Everyone's come out of the woodwork who thinks that China is for them," says Young, who is vice president of the association that often acts as a go-between for American companies seeking to sell to the Chinese. It is not that the council objects to the new business and interest. But even to veteran watchers of China trade, the avalanche of inquiries since Dec. 15 when President Carter announced normalization of diplomatic relations with China has been mind boggling. "There's a China mania. It seems to be sweeping the business world," says a State Department official who is helping to plan a special China seminar for business leaders today. The seminar is by invitation only and is expected to be attended by more than 500 executives from the country's giant as well as small corporations. But says the official, "We've got companies calling up and saying 'Why weren't we invited?'"

The Commerce Department says exports to China rose to $653 million in the first 11 months of 1978 from $171 million in all of 1977. With the U.S.-Chinese normalization and a growing desire by the Chinese to industrialize, 1979 exports are expected to be about $1.2 billion. A number of American companies have already arranged big deals. U.S. Steel will build a $1-billion iron-ore processing complex and Fluor Corp., an $800-million copper mining-processing facility. Coca Cola Co. soon will sell Coke to the Chinese and Pan American World Airways is seeking direct flights to China where it plans to build hotels.

Smaller firms selling anything from electronics equipment to drill bits are also seeking out the Chinese. And American bank officials, who have seen their Japanese and European competitors get the jump, are anticipating large-scale loan transactions. China, which not long ago avoided extensive business dealings with any non-Communist country, already is firmly imbedded in trade with Japan and Western Europe, though until very recently it has largely ignored the United States except for timely grain purchases.

But, says Robert Strauss, the president's special trade negotiator, it is hoped that exports to China will greatly help reduce the United States' $30-billion balance of trade deficit. CIA analysts suggest that before 1985 China will import more than $150 billion in goods and services if Peking's leaders stick to their anticipated 15 to 20 percent yearly increase in industrial output. Some private sources say the China connection will not be one-way.

"In 10 years' time, China could grow to rival Japan in exports of radios, TV sets, and other consumer electronics products," says Christopher H. Phillips, president of the National Council for U.S.-China Trade, which has 45 U.S. business members.

GETTING ORIENTED — Stanley Young, vice-president of the National Council for U.S.-China Trade, is looking for more help and office space as the facilities of his organization come under increasing demand from companies who believe China trade is for them. Young is shown in his Washington office recently with a map of China on the wall behind him.

The Chinese attitude toward trade has changed much in the past few years. Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping is determined to put China's great leap toward the West on firm footing as soon as possible. "In the past, there was a taboo on borrowing in general," says a China trade expert. "Self reliance was the key word. Now China is seeking out loans, even government loans."

A consortium of British banks recently agreed to lend China $1.2 billion over five years and Japanese banks also have been dealing with the Chinese. At the same time, the shortage of Chinese capital and questions on whether China may be overextending itself have some U.S. bankers concerned, one government source says.

China trade experts both in and out of government are apprehensive about the speed and magnitude of developments and about whether the push toward industrialization under the 74-year-old Teng will maintain its momentum after his departure.

"China has had many pendulum swings in the course of its history. This may be just another pendulum swing," one source said, while agreeing with others that Teng's policies seem to have broad support.

Although Carter's decision to establish full diplomatic relations gave U.S.-China trade its biggest boost, barriers remain. Foremost is the so-called "frozen assets issue" stemming from the Korean War when

Man injured near here

Chinese assets in the United States were frozen and the Chinese reciprocated, leaving claims from both countries.

Government and private trade experts predict the problem will be resolved when Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and Commerce Secretary Juanita M. Kreps visit China in the next few months.

There is also uncertainty over China being given most favored nation status, which would allow China tariff advantages and clear the way for low-interest U.S. Export-Import Bank loans.

A White House official said the administration is seriously considering pushing for most favored status for China — but this would involve congressional action.

Congress, to ease the emigration plight of Soviet Jews, last year passed legislation prohibiting such trade status to any Communist country that inhibits free emigration of its citizens.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, a co-sponsor of the bill, has said that Congress may go along with exempting China and the Soviet Union from the prohibition.

A pick-up truck driven by Todd Newton Bates, N.C., struck a mass of concrete and steel cable on IH-20 west of town Sunday morning and became airborne, turned around and landed on a girder of the bridge under construction. Bates, a staff sergeant in the Army's Special Forces Division, is in satisfactory condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital with an injury to his left ankle.

Bates was westbound around midnight Saturday on his way to Fort Huachuca, Arizona, for a temporary duty assignment.

After pulling over in a rest area and sleeping he pulled back into the westbound lanes of IH-20 but headed east the wrong way in the inside lane. His truck struck the bridge construction and landed on the girder by its front and rear bumpers.

Bates crawled from a window of his precariously balanced truck and made his way along a girder to get out. He was taken to Malone-Hogan by Alert Ambulance.

Bates was stationed in Fayetteville, N.C. The wreck occurred at 12:48 a.m. Sunday.

Arson slaying arrest

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Police have arrested a 28-year-old Haltom City man in connection with the arson-slaying of a 24-year-old woman who was held hostage with her son and two friends who lived with her.

Officers said they arrested the man early Sunday on a capital murder warrant in the death of Jayne Lynn Markham, who died Saturday in a fire police said was set at the house where she lived with her son Jon Nixi, and two friends, Mary Crutcher and Steve Renick.

Officers said no bond was set for the arrested man, who was apprehended at a friend's apartment in Arlington early Sunday morning. Police said the man was named in a warrant issued Saturday.

Police said a gunman tied up and held Mrs. Markham, her son, Renick and Ms. Crutcher hostage in their home late Friday and early Saturday. Ms. Crutcher was stabbed in the stomach during the episode and was in critical condition Sunday night.

Early Sunday, the gunman doused the house with gasoline and set it afire, Renick told police. Renick said he was able to free himself and pulled the boy out of the burning house. Ms. Crutcher managed to crawl from the flaming home.

Police said Mrs. Markham apparently died of smoke inhalation but an autopsy has been ordered to pinpoint the cause of death.

Singer leaps to death

NEW YORK (AP) — Singersongwriter Donny Hathaway bolted the door to his hotel room and leaped 13 stories to his death in an apparent suicide, police said.

Hathaway, 33, jumped from the 15th floor of the Essex House Hotel on Central Park South around midnight Saturday following dinner and a recording session with singer Roberta Flack.

Police said Hathaway plummeted to a second-floor ledge. He and Ms. Flack shared a Grammy Award in 1973 for the song "Where is the Love." The hit sold more than a million copies.

"He was in good spirits, having just written new music and having performed with Roberta all day," said Edward Howard, a vice president of David M. Franklin & Associates, the Atlanta company that managed Hathaway's affairs.

Howard said Hathaway had not been drinking or using drugs. The death occurred shortly after the two men returned to the hotel from Ms. Flack's apartment, he said.

Test-baby born

LONDON (AP) — Britain's second test-tube baby has been born in Glasgow to a 32-year-old cooking teacher, the Daily Mail reported today in a copyrighted story.

The newspaper said the baby, a 5-pounded, 12-ounce boy named Alastair James Lauchan Montgomery, was born Sunday to Grace Montgomery.

It reported that Dr. Patrick Steptoe fertilized one of the woman's ova in the laboratory with her husband's sperm and then implanted the egg in her womb to mature normally.

Steptoe, one of Britain's leading gynecologists, and physiologist Robert Edwards developed the technique and first used it successfully on Lesley Brown, who gave birth last July 25 in Oldham, England, to a girl. It was the first authenticated birth of a baby conceived outside the mother's body.

The Mail reported Mrs. Montgomery, like Mrs. Brown, was unable to conceive normally because her fallopian tubes were blocked.

Doctors in Calcutta, India, reported that another test-tube baby, a girl, was born last Oct. 3 to the wife of an Indian businessman, but a state committee said the doctors submitted an "unconvincing and disappointing" report on their technique.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Marvin Mandel said today he will reclaim his powers as governor of Maryland for the last 45 1/2 hours of a four-year term that was interrupted by illness and a political corruption conviction.

Mandel said he would reclaim the office at 2:30 p.m. today. His second full four-year term as Maryland's chief executive expires at noon Wednesday.

At a news conference in the State House here, Mandel said he had delayed the announcement to make sure he was doing the right thing.

The way was cleared for Mandel to resume power last Friday when the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned his conviction on mail fraud and racketeering charges.

Super putt breaks tie

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — John Mahaffey was talking to himself as he surveyed the 15-foot birdie putt he had to make to win the Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

"You've been here before," he told himself. "Make up your mind, get the line and hit a good, solid putt."

He did just that.

"It's as good a putt as I've ever made," Mahaffey said Sunday. "I knew it was in."

The putt broke a tie with Lee Trevino, completed the first PGA Tour event of the season and vaulted Mahaffey to his fourth victory in his last 10 American starts.

"I'm surprised," said Mahaffey, who capped one of golf's more dramatic comebacks with victories in the PGA national championship and the World Cup late last year.

"Nobody expects to be playing well in the first tournament of the year. It's a carry-over from last season, I guess," he said.

And it was a carry-over for Trevino, too — but a less happy one.

Playing immediately in front of Mahaffey, the leader through four of the five rounds of this unique event, Trevino finally caught him with a birdie on the 90th hole. He could do nothing but chomp an apple, throw a one-liner at Arnold Palmer and watch while Mahaffey matched his birdie to win by a stroke.

It was the sixth time in less than 12 months that Trevino had been a runnerup. And it kept intact his California jinx: He has yet to win in this state.

Mahaffey won this one with a final-round 69, 3 under par at the Indian Wells Country Club — one of four desert layouts used for this marathon five-day event. He had a 90-hole total of 343, 17 under par.

Trevino, who chased him all over the resort area, had a closing 69 and a 344.

Mrk Hayes got in the chase with a no-bogey, 6-under-par 66 in the last round an took third at 345. He was followed at 346 by Grier Jones, who had a 68. Larry Wadkins and Keith Fergus were at 348, Wadkins with a 68, Fergus a 69.

Jack Nicklaus scored his third competitive hole in one, dropping a 146-yard 8-iron shot on the sixth hole. He finished with a 69 and a tie for 11th at 350.

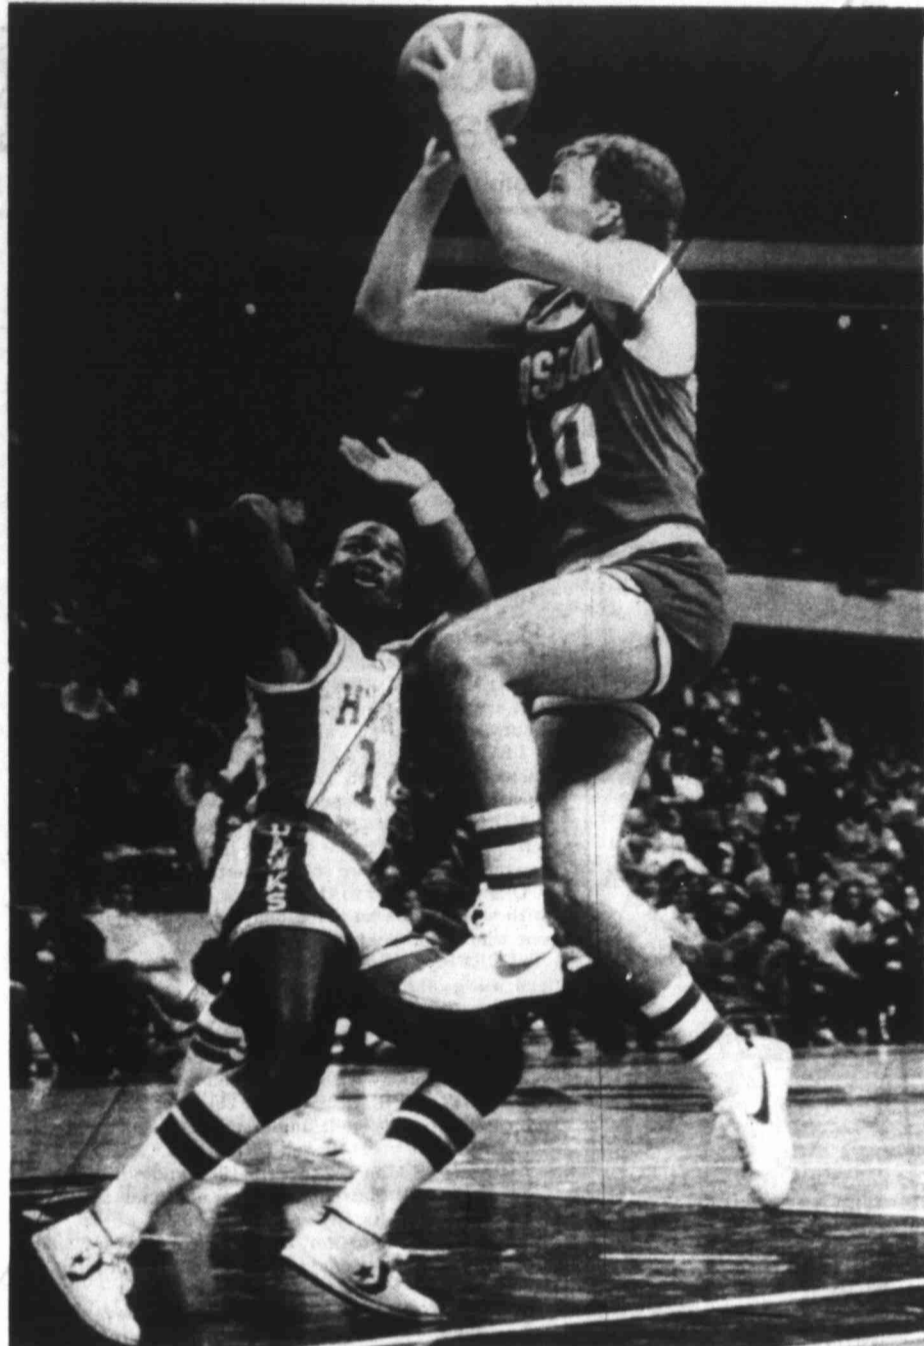

Mahaffey, who had a 1-shot lead when play started Sunday, built it to two at the turn. But Trevino kept chipping away and finally caught him with a birdie on the par-5 18th.

Then he watched while Mahaffey made his bid. Mahaffey had to hit his second shot from an awkward lie, laid up, then chipped over water to the green. Then he faced a 15-foot, uphill putt for the title and a $50,000 prize.

"You can't think about winning the tournament until it's over," he said.

"Sure, there's pressure. But that's part of the game, part of the fun. This pressure, I love it. I absolutely love it."

And he survived it, conquered it. And he won again.

CRISS CROSSED — Atlanta Hawks Charlie Criss (14) drops back as Houston Rockets Mike Dunleavy (10) goes up for a lay-up during first half action in Atlanta on Sunday. The Hawks won 115-105.

Queens vie at 6 Hawks oppose Wranglers

The Howard College Hawks and Hawk Queens get back into Western Junior College Athletic Conference action tonight when they play host to the Odessa College Wranglers.

The Hawk Queens start at 6:00, with the men's game slated for an 8:00 tipoff.

The Hawks will be hoping to improve on their season record of 7-10, but more importantly will be searching for their first conference win after four losses.

Odessa College, on the other hand, is a very respectable 8-4 on the year, but only 1-2 in conference play.

Howard College, coached by Harold Wilder, lost two important members of their squad during the Christmas holidays, Michael Wallace and Reggie Patterson. The Hawks, however, did show noticeable improvement during the ABC Olympic Classic the past weekend.

Coach Harold Wilder will start a lineup consisting of guards Robby Randolph and Rocky Rawls, forwards Linwood Hines and Allen Bonds, and center R.Q. Tolliver.

The Hawk Queens, with a season record of 11-3 and a conference mark of 1-1, face an almost must victory in Odessa College.

Odessa College, regarded by some as the favorite in the conference at this time, sports an impressive season mark of 12-1 and a conference record of 2-0. Odessa defeated Western Texas 67-50 earlier in the year, and the WTC crew dealt the Hawk Queens a heartbreaking loss in December.

Queen Coach Don Stevens is encouraged by the fact that Jan Phillips is back in action. Jayne Jones, who had been bothered by a leg muscle strain, used the vacation to fully recover.

Bucks cash in on rule

By The Associated Press

How does a 59 percent foul shooter suddenly become an 87 percent foul shooter? The Unseld rule, that's how.

That new rule, adopted by the National Basketball Association this season and informally named after Washington center Wes Unseld, helped the Milwaukee Bucks withstand a Chicago comeback and beat the Bulls 104-99 Sunday.

Under the rule, any foul away from the ball in the last two minutes is treated as a technical foul. Instead of the fouled player getting one or two free throws, his team is permitted to designate a shooter for one free throw and also keeps possession of the ball.

The rule was inspired after Seattle, trying to rally in the seventh game of the NBA playoff finals against Washington last June, attempted to make up lost ground by purposely fouling Unseld, a relatively poor free throw shooter. The idea was that he might miss and the Sonics could regain possession of the ball.

The strategy didn't work, since Unseld made his foul shots and the Bulls went on to win. But the idea of players purposely wrapping themselves around someone who is 30 feet away from the ball led to the rule change.

Sunday it was the Bulls, trailing by just two points at 101-99, who fouled Milwaukee's Qkinn Buckner away from the ball with six seconds left. But under the Unseld rule, the Bucks sent Brian Winters, an 87 percent shooter, to the line instead of Buckner, a 59 percenter.

Winters made the free throw for a three-point lead, and one second later Marques Johnson was fouled and made two free throws to clinch the victory. Johnson led all scorers with 34 points.

In other NBA games Sunday, the Denver Nuggets edged the Indiana Pacers 111-109, the New Jersey Nets beat the Boston Celtics 110-100, the Kansas City Kings whipped the New York Knicks 124-104, the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the Portland Trail Blazers 112-106, the Los Angeles Lakers topped the Seattle SuperSonics 108-99, the Atlanta Hawks beat the Houston Rockets 115-105 and the Washington Bullets clubbed the San Diego Clippers 125-91.

Ashe makes McEnroe work for win

NEW YORK (AP) — Though Arthur Ashe had dragged him through three hours of agonizingly close tennis, the final three games always in doubt, John McEnroe said he'd have preferred to play someone better.

"It would have been nicer to beat Connors or top players," said McEnroe after scoring a 67, 6-3, 7-5 triumph in Sunday's final of the $400,000 Grand Prix Masters, the richest event — if not the most prestigious — in the sport.

McEnroe received $100,000 for the victory. He and Peter Fleming won the doubles final the night before over Wojtek Fibak and Tom Okker. So the 19-year-old's haul for the weekend was $120,000, plus another $116,000 for being one of the points leaders on the Grand Prix tour last year.

Ashe won $64,000, plus a $50,000 points bonus. Brian Gottfried beat Eddie Dibbs 6-

4, 7-6 for third place and $40,000. Dibbs won $32,000.

The 35-year-old Ashe was the overwhelming favorite of the crowd of 17,000 at Madison Square Garden. He was prepared, eager, polite and well-controlled throughout, as he put McEnroe through his paces.

McEnroe, who had bad lapses in timing, judgment and concentration, was sulky, sometimes desperate, sometimes overconfident.

Ashe had double match point in the 10th game of the final set, a point of some controversy later.

Ashe hit a backhand into the net to spoil his first match point. On the second he hit a return for an apparent winner — but as he finished the rally, the service line judge uttered a late call of fault on McEnroe's serve.

"I will bet all the money I have got it was a good serve," said Ashe. "Having looked at the tape, I am still convinced it was a good serve. But the guy called a fault and it's all history."

Ashe did not make a scene at the time, though.

"I was thinking of my runner-up speech," a relieved McEnroe said of that game, smiling for the first time in hours. "I didn't know what I was going to say, but I was sure thinking about it."

McEnroe had had his shot at defending champion Jimmy Connors last week, but Connors defaulted from their second-round match with a blistered foot. McEnroe was leading 7-5, 3-0 at the time.

Compliments fly at bowl

SEATTLE (AP) — It was billed as Challenge Bowl II, but the game could have been called the "Admiration Bowl" after Washington State quarterback Jack Thompson finished exchanging compliments with receivers from Southern Cal and UCLA.

"I don't think there's a better quarterback in the nation," UCLA's Severn Reece said of Thompson, who completed 19 of 29 passes for 311 yards and a pair of touchdowns Saturday to lead the Pacific-10 Conference seniors to a 36-23 football victory over the Big Eight Conference seniors.

Reece finished the game in the Kingdome with 9 receptions for 107 yards and Calvin Sweeney of Southern Cal caught 7 for 159 yards and two touchdowns.

The 6-foot-3, 215-pound Thompson, known as the "Throwin' Samoan" while at Washington State, was voted the game's Most Valuable Player. Many pro scouts expect him to be the first quarterback selected in this spring's National Football League draft.

"We got too far behind and just couldn't catch 'em," said quarterback Tom Sorley of Nebraska.

Sorley, who completed 20 of 34 passes for 249 yards, hit Charles Green of Kansas State with an 8-yard TD pass and then found Mike Koslowski of Colorado with a 2-point conversion pass that cut the Pac-10's lead to 29-15 with 39 seconds left in the third quarter.

Known as the "Throwin' Samoan" while at WSU, Thompson finished with 19 completions in 29 attempts for 311 yards and was voted the game's most valuable player. Thompson threw three interceptions.

The game, played before a Kingdom crowd of 23,961 and a national television audience.

Mizlou Sports Network marked the second straight victory for the Pac-10. The Pac-10 defeated the Big Ten seniors 27-20 a year ago.

Quarterback Tom Sorley of Nebraska engineered a second-half comeback for the Big Eight seniors. The 6-2 Sorley hit Charles Green of Kansas State, with an 8-yard TD pass and then found Mike Koslowski of Colorado with a 2-point conversion pass that cut the Pac-10's lead to 29-15 with 39 seconds left in the third quarter.

Under Challenge Bowl rules, because the Big Eight was behind by at least eight points, the Big Eight received the ensuing kickoff. Sorley marched his squad 71 yards for another score, capped by his 10-yard pass to Thomas Lott of Oklahoma.

Sorley then hit Guy Preston of Iowa State with a conversion pass that cut the margin to 29-23 with 12:30 left in the game.

Lynn Cain of Southern Cal scored the game's final touchdown on his 2-yard run with 1:03 to go after Kim Anderson of Arizona State returned his third interception of the game.

Anderson was voted defensive player of the game.

The winning Pac-10 players received $1,200; the Big Eight players received $800.

LSC season opens

Monday, pulled away from East Texas State, 71-65 Saturday to gain a share of the LSC lead along with Angelo State and Howard Payne.

Angelo State nipped Stephen F. Austin State 77-73, in two overtimes, and Howard Payne edged Texas A&I, 69-67 in double overtime.

In the other LSC game, Sam Houston State waltzed to an 81-75 victory over Abilene Christian University.

Knoetze looks ahead

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Heavyweight Kallie Knoetze, a no-frills power puncher, says he can whip Larry Holmes anytime and would like nothing better than to meet his idol, Muhammad Ali, in the ring.

But it will first take some fancy footwork by his attorneys to keep the South African boxer's title hopes alive.

Knoetze knocked out Bill Sharkey Saturday in the fourth round for his 17th victory, including 16 knockouts, in 19 professional matches. After overpowering the smaller Sharkey, Knoetze predicted great things for himself.

"I will be the next champion," he said. "It took

A BIRDIE HE DIDN'T MAKE — Golfer John Mahaffey watches as his ball misses the cup and fails to fall for a birdie on the 17th Sunday in the final round of the Bob Hope Desert Classic. Mahaffey, however, made a birdie on the 18th to win the tournament one stroke over Lee Trevino.

Muhammad Ali 15 years to bring boxing up to where it is now. I want to take it farther."

Asked how he would do against the quick Holmes, the World Boxing Council's champion, Knoetze said: "I can beat Holmes anytime. He has a big jaw. One bomb and he's gone. You can hit his jaw with your eyes closed."

Ali is the champion of the World Boxing Association, which ranks Knoetze as its No. 2 challenger.

"I hope my next fight is for the world championship — Muhammad Ali's championship. But my manager says I must go up the ladder," Knoetze said.

Sorley comes close

SEATTLE (AP) — Quarterback Jack Thompson of Washington State picked apart the Big Eight's defense in the first half, passing for 264 yards and a pair of touchdowns, to lead the Pacific — 10 seniors to the 36-23 victory Saturday night in the Challenge Bowl II all-star football game.

The six-foot-three, 250-pound Thompson, who this season broke the NCAA career passing yardage record, hit Ron Beyer of Arizona with a five-yard TD pass for a 19-7 Pac-10 lead with one second left in the first period, and teamed with wide receiver Calvin

Smith has a lousy birthday

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Michigan State quarterback Ed Smith broke his collarbone. It was his birthday and the North team he was playing on lost 41-21 to the South.

Smith's teammate Kirk Gibson said he went to the Senior Bowl football game to help out Smith. Gibson left with $2,200 in his wallet.

The losers each took home $1,200, but Gibson got an extra $1,000 for being named the North's outstanding offensive player Saturday.

"I really don't need the money," Gibson said. "This is my last football game. I have signed a professional baseball contract with the Detroit Tigers for $200,000."

Alabama's Jeff Rutledge led the South attack, completing eight of 12 passes for 75 yards and one touchdown and running 4 yards for another touchdown.

North Coach Walt Michaels of the New York Jets said the South "cashed in our mistakes and didn't help."

Michaels added, "Going into the game I thought the squads were about even in talent. But we couldn't hold the ball and that was the big difference."

South Coach Dick Nolan of New Orleans Saints said Rutledge "threw hard and tough."

"He showed everyone he can throw. Everybody had a big play. It'd be hard to single anybody out. I was real pleased with the way everyone went after them, but these guys who are, after all, the best in the college game today," Nolan said.

Power agreement designed to save customers money

Any action to overturn a 1976 transaction between Texas Electric Service Company and Texas Power & Light will nullify an agreement made solely to save customers money and provide them adequate fuel supplies, executives of both companies have told the Public Utility Commission.

The transaction was made for one reason only — to benefit the 1.1 million customers of the two companies. Stockholders made no profit whatsoever from the agreement, TESCO Vice President E. D. Scarth and TP&L President Robert K. Campbell said in testimony pre-filed today with the PUC.

The PUC has scheduled a hearing for Feb. 20 to look into the transaction, in which part of TP&L's share of two jointly-owned lignite generating units and lignite fuel reserves was transferred to TESCO.

Several other transactions among the subsidiary companies of Texas Utilities will be reviewed, including interest charges, settlement of a dispute with the Westinghouse Corporation involving nuclear fuel, depreciation of various facilities, transfer of research projects from one company to another and fuel costs.

TESCO repaid TP&L for its costs invested in the generating units and fuel. TESCO also agreed to transfer to TP&L a supply of electricity generated by some of TESCO's low-cost gas. The gas is to be delivered over a three-year period from 1978-1980.

Each company faced separate problems that were solved by the transaction. TESCO's two low-cost gas contracts, both signed more than 15 years ago, expire in 1980-81, Scarth said. This meant that when the two contracts terminated, TESCO's cost of fuel to replace the expiring contracts would take a substantial jump by a factor of up to 500 percent, Scarth noted.

Meanwhile, TP&L faced its own serious difficulties, posed by the financial burden in building generating plants that use lower-cost lignite fuel and by its declining financial condition.

"TP&L's financial condition was deteriorating," Campbell said. "TP&L's financial condition in 1975 was the poorest in its history."

TP&L owned 60 percent of the third and fourth lignite generating units to be built at the Martin Lake plant near Henderson. The plant is owned by TP&L, TESCO and Dallas Power & Light, all subsidiaries of the Texas Utilities Company.

"TP&L simply could not afford to continue its full 60 percent interest in these units and maintain the construction schedule then in effect," Campbell said.

On the other hand, Scarth explained, TESCO needed the energy from the lower-cost fuel available from Martin Lake to offset the impact on its customers due to the expiring gas fuel contracts.

To prevent a "significant and abrupt" increase in fuel costs to its customers, TESCO needed to avoid delaying construction of the two units and if possible obtain the additional lignite generation. Therefore, Scarth said, TESCO negotiated with TP&L to transfer 25 percent of its share of Martin Lake 3 and 4 to TESCO at cost.

However, it was agreed that to offset the effect in later years that the loss of 25 percent would have on TP&L customers, TESCO would transfer at cost a supply of electricity generated by some of its low-cost gas to TP&L, to be delivered over a three-year period.

The agreement worked to the benefit of both companies' customers, Scarth and Campbell said.

"The stockholders did not benefit or profit by the transaction at all," Campbell said. "TP&L entered into this agreement solely for the benefit of its electric customers."

TP&L customers will benefit from some of the low-cost Martin Lake electricity at an earlier date than if both units had been delayed. And the energy from the low-cost gas would offset the loss of 25 percent of the two Martin Lake units, Campbell said.

"There is no doubt," said TESCO's Scarth, "that the customers of both TESCO and TP&L will receive definite benefits from the transaction."

If no factors are changed, he said, TESCO's customers will pay somewhat higher fuel costs in 1978, 1979 and 1980. But even so, he said, their fuel charges remain among the lowest in the state. And when the company's low-cost gas contracts expire, its customers will experience less of an increase in fuel costs, he said.

"TESCO is concerned about today's rates...But TESCO's responsibilities to its customers go much further than the current cost of service," Scarth said. "TESCO...must necessarily plan for the future, not only for fuel supplies, but all needs necessary to render adequate and reliable service to customers."

This kind of planning, he said, has kept TESCO customers' fuel costs among the lowest in the state and nation.

For example, in the 1960s, TESCO paid higher than market price for gas to obtain the two long-term contracts that expire in 1980-81. As a result, Scarth said, TESCO's electricity prices "are substantially less today...than they would have been had TESCO merely continued to purchase gas on the open market as its needs arose."

"Had TESCO been prohibited from making such contracts...the substantial benefits received by TESCO's current customers from that natural gas would be non-existent," Scarth said.

"TESCO would be derelict if it did not look beyond short-sighted goals and make decisions which are in the overall best interest of these customers," Scarth said. "TESCO cannot view its responsibilities in any other way and properly discharge its continuing duty to the public."

In his testimony, Campbell said he would make all the same decisions today, even if he knew they would be criticized.

"I realize that, in this business, opinions may differ and that there are those who will criticize about any decision made.

Mass murder suspect faces sooner quiz

SAPULPA, Okla. (AP) — An Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation spokesman said Sunday he is treating the arrest of a man who resembles a mass murder composite sketch the same as more than 100 look-alikes.

Oklahoma Highway Patrol troopers and Creek County deputies arrested two men Sunday afternoon when Trooper Bill Mendenhall determined one of them apparently was driving a stolen auto.

Mendenhall saw the men, a woman and two children late in the afternoon at a restaurant on the Turner Turnpike, an OHP spokesman said. The trooper felt one of the men matched one of three composite drawings recently released by the OSBI in connection with the Lorenz and steakhouse murder cases.

When Mendenhall checked the license plates of the pickup and auto the individuals were traveling in, the auto checked out to be stolen from the Lawton Police Department, the OHP spokesman said.
