Federal agents tracking down dozen ex-Big Springers

11 arrested here in tax checks scheme

By JAMES WERRELL

Eleven Big Springers have been arrested in connection with a Federal Income Tax scheme, and federal warrants for the arrest of another 12 involved ex-Big Springers have also been issued.

The 11 locals were rounded up Tuesday night and this morning by Detectives Mike Kelly and Avery Falkner and five Internal Revenue Service Criminal Investigation Agents. When the arrests began here, 5 p.m. Tuesday, federal agents were also busy tracking down 12 other ex-Big Springers who had moved to various parts of the country.

"We have been piecing this thing together for two-and-a-half years. We think as many as 60 people here were involved, but the IRS went with its strongest cases, and only 23 indictments were handed down," said Kelly, this morning.

The technical charges against the 23 are for conspiracy and filing false claims with the Treasury Department.

As the scam was explained by investigators, a number of Big Springers used blank W-2 forms to file claims using false names and false earned incomes. The claims would then be submitted to what is known as a "discountor."

"The discountor could be a finance company or a pawn shop. As an example, the suspect would take a claim for $500 to the discountor, and get $450 for it without waiting for payment by the government. The federal check would then be signed over to the discountor, and he would make a $50 profit," said Kelly. "It's perfectly legal as long as the claim is legitimate," he added.

The scam was first discovered by ex-Big Spring Detective Richard Cantwell over two years ago. Each false return had to be run down manually, and the paperwork and investigation time were enormous.

The results of the investigation were eventually turned over to Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger McRoberts in Lubbock. In September over 30 Big Springers were subpoenaed by McRoberts to testify in the case, resulting in the 23 sealed indictments handed down Tuesday.

Neither IRS agents nor local investigators were able to come up with an estimate of how much illegal money was netted by those involved in the conspiracy.

Ten of the suspects were arrested between 5 and 10:15 p.m. Tuesday. The final local suspect was picked up around 9 a.m. today.

Those arrested and charged were:

J.C. Woodard, 37, 1013 Nolan; James W. Brown, 51, 1301 Lindberg; Luann Hatfield, 37, Route 2, Box 28N; Danya J. Broyles, 19, 510 Donley; Jennie Dee Nix, 19, 1301 Lindberg; Terri McCartney, 20, 510 Donley; Brenda Jo Ramsey, 26, Route 1, Box 162; Dolly McNew, 34, 1301 Lindberg; Nathan H. Baker, 24, 1108 E. 5th; Cathy Glass, 29, 107 W. 15th; and Douglas W. Smith, 44, 1323 Utah.

The names of those involved who have moved away from the city are in sealed indictments, and are unknown by local investigators.

Carter holds to pledge

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is holding to his pledge to slash deficit spending to below $30 billion in the new budget, while still finding money for increased defense outlays.

Although the federal budget will be in the red for the 19th time in the last 20 years, the cover will be green, possibly reflecting the president's optimism that he can balance the budget in the next year or two.

The budget for fiscal 1980, which begins next Oct. 1, was going to press at the Government Printing Office today and will be presented to Congress, along with an accompanying presidential message, Monday.

The president told congressional leaders Tuesday it will be "a tight, spare budget." He has repeatedly said the budget is small enough to help restrain inflation, but large enough to discourage a recession.

Administration sources confirmed Tuesday that Carter will propose total spending of about $532 billion for 1980, up about $40 billion from this year. Virtually all of the increase is the result of inflation, however.

With revenues estimated at about $503 billion, the administration will project a 1980 deficit of $29 billion. That would be the smallest federal deficit since 1973, when it was $14.8 billion.

The deficit in the current 1979 fiscal year is projected at about $40 billion. Defense spending would be increased in the new budget. But there would be cutbacks in other areas, including some trimming of jobs, welfare and education programs, administration officials have said.

Two helicopters collide; 5 Coast Guardsmen killed

OPA-LOCKA, Fla. (AP) — Two helicopters collided 200 feet over a busy suburban Miami airport today, strewing the field with bodies and debris, officials said. Police said all five persons aboard both helicopters were killed.

"There's all dead people out there," said a dispatcher for Randle-Eastern ambulance. "They're lying on the field like rag dolls."

One of the helicopters, belonging to the Coast Guard, carried two officers and two enlisted men, according to Coast Guard spokesman Lt. Bob Allen. The second helicopter, which was owned by the Burnside-Ott flying school, carried only a student, said Bob Ott, the school's owner.

Police and airport officials said there were no survivors. Identities were withheld pending notification of relatives.

"He (the student pilot) was going up and we were going down, and there was a mid-air collision," said Allen.

He said he flew over the airfield moments after the 10:17 a.m. EST crash.

"It looked like there was nothing left," he said. "I couldn't even tell what was down there. It was just a mess."

Ott said the student was on "a supervised solo," practicing take-offs and landings with an instructor watching from the ground.

"As he rose to 200 feet, the Coast Guard helicopter descended down on top of him," Ott said.

Fire officials extinguished a blaze that erupted as the debris fell to the ground.

Mary Dudley named assistant to president at Howard College

The board of trustees approved Howard College President Charles Hays' proposal to name Mary Dudley to the position of assistant to the president at the regular board meeting here Tuesday.

Mrs. Dudley has been serving as head of the Psychology Department at the school. Her salary was set at $16,000 per annum.

In other changes announced by Dr. Hays, Dr. Bobby Wright becomes vice president of instruction, Mike Bruner vice president of business affairs, Don Melton director of counseling and guidance while Dr. Wayne Bonner was named a full-time teacher of psychology.

Mrs. Dudley is the wife of Jerry Dudley, chairman of the Health and Physical Education Department at the college. She succeeds Johnnie Lou Avery, who resigned late last year to devote herself to civic endeavors. Mrs. Avery is the incoming president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Born in Rockwall County, where she attended public schools, Mrs. Dudley undertook the study of journalism at East Texas State University in Commerce. She switched her major, however, and earned her degree in Elementary Education, with a minor in English.

After her husband received and accepted an offer in 1963 to join the faculty at Howard College, Mrs. Dudley taught third grade at Kentwood Elementary here for two years.

Jerry and Mary managed the men's dormitory at the college for four years, living in an apartment there. She earned her master's degree by enrolling in summer courses at East Texas State, graduating in 1968.

She was hired as a full-time instructor at Howard College in September 1969, serving as a student counselor and teaching two psychology classes. She became a full-time psychology teacher in 1971.

She and her husband are the parents of two daughters, Julie 13, a student at Runnels Junior High, and Lee Ann 9, who is enrolled at Kentwood Elementary.

The family makes its home at 2510 Lynn Street. The Dudleys attend the First United Methodist Church.

Dr. Hays said that the administrative staff at the college would do with one less position for the time being. Two bids to reroof the Art Building at the college, which once served as the Student Union Building, were entertained by the board.

The contract was awarded to West Texas Roofing Co., on a bid of $4,125. The contract calls for asphalt shingles over a layer of felt. The second bid in the amount of $4,288 was received from Coffman Roofing Co.

It was disclosed that the college was withholding $230,000 in payments to the contractor on the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum until some problems can be corrected. Some roof leaks developed during the recent ice storm in areas not evident before. Parts of the structure have been without heat during the coldest weather and Dr. Hays said he was at a loss to explain why.

Dr. Hays also told the board that he expected spring enrollment to just about meet expectations. He added that enrollment through last Friday had totaled 900 and upwards to 200 more could be expected before the deadline. The college had 1,140 students during the fall term.

A trophy case for the coliseum was also discussed. Dr. Hays said that trophy cases, which contain aluminum and shatter-proof glass, are expensive and the college wanted to get the best deal for the investment.

Clements' inauguration

National overtones

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The inauguration of Dallas oil millionaire Bill Clements as Texas' first Republican governor in 105 years had overtones of national importance.

Two probable GOP presidential candidates — John Connally and George Bush — sat behind the inaugural platform Tuesday, and Clements himself has been mentioned as a possible contender.

Such a suggestion might seem premature as Clements, 61, has never before held elective public office, but his defeat of former Democratic Attorney General John Hill was a major upset.

Clements also gained national political experience as Richard Nixon's Texas campaign manager in 1972. He served as deputy secretary of defense in 1973-77 as Nixon's appointee.

Regardless of his political future, Clements has pledged to "do everything I can" to prevent President Jimmy Carter from capturing Texas' 26 electoral votes in 1980.

Hill, who spent inaugural day fishing off Nassau, plans to campaign for Carter.

Outgoing Gov. Dolph Briscoe also was absent as Republicans whooped and holed through the 35-minute inaugural ceremony that included the swearing-in of Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby to his third term.

Hill defeated Briscoe in the Democratic primary, and Briscoe insists he could have beaten Clements.

Demos use humor to ease pain of losing governor's mansion

(Harte Hanks Austin Bureau)

AUSTIN — In tuxedos and full-length formal, blue jeans and body shirts, Republican, Democrats and Independents toasted Gov. Bill Clements' inauguration until Wednesday morning's early hours.

With military precision, the inaugural party hit five Capital City events Tuesday night.

It made one to-the-second arrival at Austin's historic Driskill Hotel so that live television cameras would catch Clements departing from an elevator.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby shared in the celebration honors but had to settle for a fraction of the spotlight.

As the first Texas Republican governor in more than a century, Clements drew the most attention. Republicans cheered. Democrats applauded politely.

The three $50 per person formal dances drew far better crowds than a free country western party and a $10-a-person "All-Texas Ball."

Sen. W.E. (Pete) Snelson, D-Mid., quoted a friend as saying "no self respecting Republican would go to a free party when he could pay $50 for another party."

Democrats apparently used humor to ease the pain at losing the governor's mansion.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Garbage song

Q. Who popularized a kooky old-time song, "Stick Out Your Can, Here Comes the Garbage Man"?

A. The "Emperor of Hi-De Ho," Cab Calloway, sang it with many verses at the original Cotton Club in Harlem in the '30s, later doing a repeat when the club moved downtown to the site of the Hollywood Cafe of Broadway. Before that, in the '20s, those lines were recorded by the Luis Russell band on "Call of the Freaks."

Calendar: Closed meeting

THURSDAY

City councilmen meet at 9 a.m. in closed session with attorneys to discuss an upcoming suit against the city.

Big Spring State Hospital Volunteer Services Council will host the annual awards luncheon for volunteers Thursday noon in the Allred Building on the hospital campus.

Big Spring Association of Life Underwriters will hear Harold Jones, insurance executive, Thursday noon at Brass Nail.

The National Association of Retired and Veteran Railway Employees will meet at Kentwood Older Activity Center for a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. A business meeting will be included.

Regular meeting of Big Spring Chapter of Texas Manufactured Housing Association at noon at the Brass Nail. Members and guests are invited to hear Dr. Bobby Wright, Howard College, guest speaker.

Tops on TV: Out of this world?

Face it, it's a weak night on the tube. But fans of "One Day At A Time" won't want to miss the special two-parter, at 8 p.m. on CBS. In which Ann becomes seriously involved with a man, and has to question her most intimate feelings. And, who knows, the NBC special, "The Amazing World Of Psychic Phenomena," at 8:50 p.m., may be out of this world.

Vietnamese, Cambodian naval units battling

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Fighting is reported continuing around Kompong Som, Cambodia's only deep-water port, and Thai sources say the ousted government's forces still hold the city.

The sources reported fighting near the naval base at Ream and along sections of Highway 4, which connects Phnom Penh, the capital, with Kompong Som, 136 miles to the southwest. Vietnamese and Cambodian naval units also were reported battling northwest of Kompong Som around offshore islands to which troops of the routed Cambodian army fled from the three-week-old Vietnamese invasion.

The retreating forces recaptured Kompong Som on Monday, the sources said.

The Vietnamese invaders installed a pro-Hanoi provisional government of Cambodian Communists in Phnom Penh on Jan. 7, replacing Prime Minister Pol Pot and the other Khmer Rouge leaders who had ruled Cambodia since the Communist victory in 1975. The ousted government has pledged to carry on a guerrilla war, and there are unconfirmed reports that its leaders have set up headquarters in the mountains of southwest Cambodia or on some of the offshore islands.

China, the ousted government's only important ally during its years in power, has promised to aid the fugitive forces with military supplies, but analysts in Bangkok say getting them past the Vietnamese navy and air force would be difficult even if Kompong Som is held.

The new government in Phnom Penh announced that all representatives abroad of the former government have "completely lost their representative character and must cease their activities." But it said diplomats should stay at their posts until further orders.

FHA offices will be combined

COLORADO CITY — The Mitchell County and Scurry County Farmers Home Administration offices will be combined effective Jan. 29.

Scheduled to become supervisor of the office is David Marion of Colorado City.

The supervisor of the Scurry County FmHA office has been transferred to Kaufman to serve as supervisor there.

Marion said the decision regarding the location of the office has not yet been made. Both offices will remain open, however, one as a sub-office. A full-time assistant will be appointed to man the sub-office.

A state reorganization of the FmHA is now under way. Purpose of the reorganization, Marion explained, is to align the FmHA district with the same counties that the West Texas Council of Governments covers. The district headquarters is located in Abilene.

Under the new alignment, local county offices will be dealing with individual type loans, farming loans and housing loans.

Big Spring Association of Life Underwriters to hear executive

Harold Jones, personal producing agent for Northwestern Life of Milwaukee, Wis., will be the guest speaker at the Thursday noon luncheon of the Big Spring Association of Life Underwriters at the Brass Nail.

A resident of Lubbock, Jones, C.L.U., has earned numerous honors for his expertise in life insurance.

After graduating from Sulphur Springs High School in 1948, he majored in Junior Management at the University of Texas Extension Service, 1954-1958. He received his Chartered Life Underwriter designation in 1962 from American College of Life Underwriters of Bryan Mawr, Pa.

Before entering the life insurance business, Jones' career was banking. He served as Assistant National Bank Examiner for the U.S. Treasury Dept. after which he was an officer for a Lubbock bank for nine years. Prior to entering his present position, he was a personal producing agent for Southwestern Life from 1962 to 1971.

His professional credits include serving as president of the 120-member South Plains Estate and Trust Council 1976-1977. He is a life and qualifying member of Million Dollar Round Table and of Texas Leaders Round Table.

He is a 10-year member of National Quality Award and a five-year member of LUPAC Century Club. He is also a charter and qualifying member of National Sales Achievement Award.

Jones served as president of Lubbock Area Association of Life Underwriters 1970-71 and as president of Lubbock Chapter Charter Life Underwriters 1971-72. He was co-chairman of the 1970 TALU State Convention in Lubbock and served as the 1971-74 legislative chairman. He has served as the regional director of Texas Association of Life Underwriters since 1976.

Originally from Greenville, Jones married the SHARED GOALS — Michelle Triola Marvin leaves court during a recess Tuesday in Los Angeles. She testified Tuesday that her love affair with actor Lee Marvin began as a passionate fling and mellowed into a relationship of shared goals.

PROPERTY RIGHTS TRIAL — Actor Lee Marvin gestures while talking with reporters during a recess of a landmark property rights trial in Los Angeles Tuesday. Marvin has filed a countersuit of $1 million charging Michelle Triola Marvin failed to provide companionship during their six year relationship.

Michelle Triola Marvin testifies Support for life expected

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michelle Triola Marvin says she became Lee Marvin's live-in lover only after she believed he would support her for life, promising "Michelle, don't worry. You will be taken care of."

"I took that to mean if we were no longer together and I was an old bag, he would take care of me," Miss Marvin testified Tuesday in the landmark property rights trial.

She was to resume testifying today.

Miss Marvin told Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall in the non-jury trial how her romance with Marvin began as a passionate affair during filming of a movie, then deepened to involve joint living quarters, bank accounts and foreign journeys.

"I thought he wanted to spend the rest of his life with me," she testified in a voice barely above a whisper.

The 46-year-old Miss Marvin, who lived with the Oscar-winning actor for six years, is suing for $1 million plus a share of his income during their liaison, contending she gave up her show business career to concentrate on his.

Marvin contends the couple did not sign a formal agreement on property rights and since they did not marry, she is not entitled to a portion of his income.

The trial is the first to test a 1976 California Supreme Court ruling that unmarried partners could sue for property settlement. The ruling came in an appeal by Miss Marvin's attorney, Marvin Mitchelson.

The trial is expected to set a precedent for payment of "alimony" in cases of unmarried cohabitants.

At Tuesday's session, Miss Marvin told her version of the Hollywood-style romance which began under the klieg lights and ended on the beach at Malibu.

She sat in the witness box with her hands folded and occasionally glanced across the courtroom where the 54-year-old Marvin sat with his lawyers. His current wife, Pamela, shifted nervously in her frontrow seat.

Marvin never wanted marriage, she conceded. "He said when two people loved each other there was no need for a piece of paper," she recalled.

They took a romantic vacation together to San Blas, Mexico where Marvin convinced her to move in with him, she said.

Under Mitchelson's questioning, Miss Marvin stressed that the actor introduced her as "Mrs. Marvin" to his friends. She had her name legally changed from Triola to Marvin shortly before they broke up.

The judge admitted as exhibits nine love letters Marvin wrote to Miss Marvin and numerous pictures of the apparently loving couple hugging and smiling in Hawaii, Palau, Japan and Malibu.

Our habits change in inflationary times

Benjamin Franklin would have been appalled. Americans are spending their money as never before, operating on the assumption that the dollar will be worth less tomorrow than it is today and even less the day after tomorrow than it is tomorrow.

Furthermore, when they don't have it to spend, they're going out and borrowing it.

Many economic experts are unable to explain why Americans keep borrowing and buying, when the fever charts of inflation indicate they should pull back.

THE ECONOMIC enigma of this era, one which confuses political decision-making, is the paradox of prosperity amid the general pain. New money and new suffering are being distributed through the American society by inflation in uneven ways, which serve to make a jumble of old assumptions of class and status.

People in middle income groups are buying $60,000 and $70,000 houses, even where the monthly payments escalate to $400 and more. With the value of real estate rising as rapidly as it is, couples figure their investment can only increase in value and, that if worse comes to worst, they can always move out and make a tidy profit on the deal.

In many instances, couples are buying new automobiles with a price tag that runs into five figures whereas before they shuddered at the thought of trying to retire a debt on any vehicle where the total charge ran over $5,000.

A jeweler in New York says working girls earning $250 to $300 a week are spending a lot of it on jewelry. Apparently, many people reason that diamonds will increase in value and they cannot lose in such investments.

If the children of the 1960s learned one thing, it is to be good consumers. Inflation doesn't seem to worry them. They don't hesitate to go into debt to get what they want. Many couples have postponed having children but they do not postpone buying.

THEY HAVE been assisted and inspired by liberalized rules for borrowing which their parents did not enjoy if both husband and wife work, both incomes can now be counted to support a home mortgage. The standard car loan used to run three years, now it is four years.

The younger person has adopted a new inflation outlook and sees it differently, according to the Washington Post. They've grown up in a time of persistent inflation, the only economy condition they've known.

The business community courts their attention for that very reason, which is why you see so many young and beautiful people in TV and newspaper ads.

The older people, many of whom have known harsher times, utter words of caution about the "bust" they say will follow the "boom."

When and if the "bust" does come, however, if indeed it does, chances are they will be hurt as badly as the young. The ravages of inflation spare no one and often those with a little money put aside are penalized more severely than those who have been living on credit.

Friend affronted

Around the rim

Don Woods

On Dec. 15 Carter made history by recognizing a Communist nation at the expense of negating the recognition of an old ally. The important thing about this is that, even though Carter claims that "the interest of Taiwan has been protected", we have affronted a friend and possibly damaged the cause of democracy.

TAIWAN IS IN A bind, according to the island's officials, because of Red China's intent to reinstate Taiwan as part of the mainland. Peking says it feels it has the right to "liberate" Taiwan and they say that it will use peaceable means to slowly obtain reunification. One can't help but wonder, however, how trustworthy the nation is in view of the conflict this nation has had with China in the past and the "stop at nothing" dedication of communist countries to world domination.

Though most of Taiwanese agree that invasion is not a threat, many Taiwanese fear the possibility of a Red China submarine blockade on major ports. This would prevent the island from getting food they need from other nations.

Another problem with breaking ties with Taiwan is that we have created a possibility that Taiwan will not be able to borrow money from the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund. U.S. sponsorship allowed Taiwan membership in these organizations.

Taiwan's prosperous foreign trade—$17.9 billion in 1977—was in part due to its membership in key financial organizations. The Dec. 25 Time reports that when American defense is withdrawn in 1980 the whole business climate may be in danger.

The U.S., in ending recognition of Taiwan as the Chinese nation, has followed the lead of nearly 50 other nations who have made the switch from Taiwan to China. Only 22 nations now recognize Taiwan's government. Saudi Arabia is the last major country which recognizes the democracy of Taiwan.

THIS BRINGS up another problem with recognition of China. Communist nations are involved in take-over of nations of Africa, South America, and Indochina. Communist activities are probably under way in many other places that we don't know about. The U.S. needs to be very supportive of other nations committed to the democratic form of government. We can't risk offending the few friends we have.

Besides, something like this makes other small nations wonder how reliable an ally the U.S. is. With Russia's rising popularity in Western ports and shipping lanes, ambitious young nations may have growing interest in the hammer and sickle flag.

Though the president has taken steps to insure that the "interests of Taiwan have been protected" the feeling remains in my mind that if dissolving diplomatic ties hurts Taiwan even a little it isn't right.

Pentagon and Iran

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Simmering resentment among top U.S. military officials over President Carter's effort to persuade Iran's powerful armed forces to back the new civilian government almost boiled in early January.

The cause of the near-crisis: Carter's decision to send a U.S. Air Force general with no political or diplomatic experience to Tehran. Gen. Robert Huyser, a deputy NATO commander, was assigned to talk the Iranian army into supporting what the U.S. military regards as a left-wing government with anti-American sentiments.

Huyser failed in his mission, but that is not the cause of anger among U.S. generals; they criticize the Carter administration for ordering it. Gen. Alexander Haig, the supreme NATO commander and Huyser's boss, was one of the unhappiest of the U.S. military officers. However, the incident had nothing to do with the timing of his long-planned resignation from the NATO post and retirement from the Army.

BEHIND THIS ANGER, kept under wraps, was dismay among the military over the administration's inability to decide whether and how much to support the beleaguered Shah. Then Carter ordered a carrier task force to steam toward the Arabian Sea — only to stop it at Singapore because the State Department did not like that show of force.

Finally came the dispatch of Huyser to Tehran. A deputy commander of U.S. forces in Europe, he is highly regarded as a military technician with broad logistical — but no political — experience.

Thus, it was an outrage to the military brass here and in NATO to send Huyser to proselytize Iran's top leadership in the delicate matter of supporting a left-of-center government that could end up tipping the scales toward the Soviet Union.

President Carter's hopes appear doomed, thanks to the refusal of responsible Iranian army commanders to join the new government.

Tiny prostate causes many problems

By Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is blood in the urine a sign of prostate gland infection? Would urine also be clouded? Can you explain more about this gland? I know you refer to it from time to time, but I'd like to know why it is the source of so much trouble in men. I assume females do not get it, but do they have a structure similar to it? My husband is 51, and is beginning to have decreased sexual desires. Could that be a sign of beginning prostate trouble? — Mrs. R.T.

Desire is in the mind. That is not to say that physical problems, especially those of the genital area, can't contribute to waning sexual desire. That would include the prostate gland. However, this need not affect his ability to perform. Let's take a closer look at this troublesome part of the male anatomy.

It is a so-called "accessory" sex gland. Sperm, as you know, is produced in the testes. From there, ducts carry it to a kind of "holding" area located near the prostate gland. The prostate is a chestnut-shaped, three-lobed structure that surrounds the neck of the urinary bladder and the urethra, which ultimately passes to the penis. The prostate produces a mucus that also empties into the urethra. The combination of prostate material and sperm is semen. This is released upon ejaculation (orgasm). You are correct in saying that females have no comparable structure. The prostate and its troubles are strictly in the male domain.

The same holds for clouded urine. Blood may be present at the beginning or end of urination. About two thirds of males between 60 and 70 have some degree of enlargement, the odds increasing gradually after 40.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is it all right for a pregnant woman to travel by air? — K.F.

Air travel is undoubtedly less physically taxing, and beats the jouncing a woman's body might take with car or rail travel. However, there are situations where any long trips are ruled out. Some women should stay close to their obstetricians, who are familiar with their present and past pregnancies.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My doctor just put me on a diet. I was found to have hypoglycemia. I have already lost more than five pounds. I have tried to follow the diet, but cheese and peanut butter constipate me. I have tried to eat more fruit. Is that wise? My diet involves itemized snacks along with regular meals. — Mrs. T.D.

You can't call any single food constipating. Overdoing low bulk foods may be. Fresh fruits and green vegetables are fine for bulk and should help you. Another thought: folks often become constipated when bowel habits change, which may happen when they change eating habits. Are you getting sufficient liquids? Cheese and peanut butter snacks help give you a steady intake of high-protein food, but there are other protein foods that might provide more liquid than those two. Skim milk, for example.

You may find your constipation is a temporary problem that will disappear when your system catches up with your new eating style.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My doctor told me I have gastritis. I find my neck and face breaking out in a rash. What is causing this, and is there something I can do to stop this awful rash? I am on a bland diet. I am female, 44 years of age. — C.E.

The strained fruits and vegetables and the refined cereals often included in formal bland diets may be deficient in certain vitamins. Vitamin supplements are usually needed when on such a diet. If you are lacking vitamins that may be a cause of your skin symptoms. You should mention this to your doctor, who can advise you after inspection of rash, which must be seen to be evaluated.

To learn about the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — read the booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to Dr. Ruble in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

May hurt

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Still smarting from our disastrous intervention in Vietnam, as well as other botched attempts by the CIA to engineer the overthrow of foreign rulers, the United States has become understandably leery of meddling in the internal affairs of other countries.

This hands-off policy, though a preferable way of conducting foreign affairs in most cases, can also lead to missed opportunities when followed too strictly. For example, the striped pants set back off a recent, risk-free opportunity to rid the world of President Idi Amin, the bloody-handed dictator of Uganda.

U.S. OFFICIALS were approached by Ugandan dissidents who wanted help to overthrow Amin. The State Department refused, and the story was buried in Foggy Bottom's secret files until now. Here are the facts:

Last Nov. 3, Israel Mayengo of the Uganda Nationalists Organization approached U.S. embassy officials in Nairobi, Kenya, with information about a promising anti-Amin plot and two modest requests for U.S. help.

At that time, Amin was undertaking an invasion of neighboring Tanzania, and had transferred most of his military force from the capital city of Kampala to the Tanzanian border. To the Ugandan dissidents, it looked like a golden opportunity to strike down the hated dictator.

The uprising was to start with the seizure of whatever arms were left in Kampala and the capture of Entebbe, the airport outside the capital. The rebels' expectation was that they could hold out until weapons and other supplies could be flown in to solidify their coup. The rebels figured they would have enough ammunition to hold Entebbe for only four to six hours without reinforcements.

Mayengo asked that the United States provide arms and supplies, but no manpower, in the event the rebels succeeded in seizing Entebbe.

If Washington would not supply arms, Mayengo wanted the United States at least to help influence the Kenyan government not to interfere with the rebels' receiving aid from another country. Israel reportedly had agreed to help the anti-Amin forces. Kenya's acquiescence was needed because the supplies would have to be flown in through Kenyan airspace.

Embassy officials in Nairobi immediately sent off a secret cable to Washington detailing Mayengo's alternative requests. A few days later, they informed the exiled leader that he had been turned down.

INSIDE SOURCES told our associate Gary Cohn, however, that the U.S. embassy did in fact notify the Kenyans of Mayengo's approach but did not seek to exercise any influence on their decision. This was actually a disservice, as it tipped off the Kenyan government to the rebels' plans and provided a pretext for further harassment of Ugandan exiles in Kenya.

State Department sources told us the rebels' requests were rejected because "the United States will not involve itself in the removal of Idi Amin by force." But one source who was unhappy with the decision commented: "One only wonders how many Ugandans have died in the past few weeks while the U.S. acquiesced in Amin's hold on power."

The U.S. refusal to become involved in such a risk-free situation is puzzling in light of President Carter's decision on Nov. 21, 1977 to take a tougher stand against Idi Amin. According to secret Cabinet minutes, Housing and Urban Development Secretary Patricia Harris raised the subject, expressing hope the U.S. "will do everything in its power to isolate the Ugandan government." She noted the "astronomical number of blacks who have been murdered" by Amin (estimates run from 150,000 to 300,000).

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Associates are worried that President Carter is working too hard.

RESCUING DICK CLARK

Confidential negotiations now underway are aimed at a drastic cut-back of Assistant Secretary of State Patricia Derian's powers over human rights and refugee affairs in favor of defeated Democratic Sen. Dick Clark of Iowa.

Of all Democrats defeated in last November's election, Clark — a liberal foreign policy activist specializing in Africa — is the one Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is most eager to help out with a new job.

The problem: with no top jobs open or about to open, how can Clark be fitted in? The answer: by chopping Ms. Derian's job in half, leaving human rights (now only a shadow of its early self) to her and giving refugees to Clark.

The refugee business is booming, a particularly fertile field for an ambitious new bureaucrat. The tragic plight of the "boat people" from South Vietnam is the most dramatic example. But Clark undoubtedly would wish to broaden this jurisdiction to such other refugee-connected problems as illegal Mexican immigration and Jewish emigration from the Soviet Union.

From this you can see why the tiny gland causes so many complaints. It lies midway between the urethra opening and the bladder, so is subject to various infections. It also has a tendency to enlarge somewhat as men get older. When that happens the opening to the bladder may be narrowed, since the gland surrounds the opening. Therefore, a chief symptom of prostate trouble is difficulty in urination. If your husband has this he should be examined.

Blood in the urine can be due to prostate irritation, but it also may be due to kidney or bladder infection.

My answer

Billy Graham

Dear Dr. Graham: Does the Bible really say that money is evil? I want to be successful in business and make lots of money, and I wonder if this is wrong? — H.T.S.

Dear H.T.S.: The Bible does not say there is anything inherently evil about money. In fact, some of the godliest people in the Bible (such as Abraham and Jacob) were people of great wealth. During the time of New Testament, the church had its share of people who were quite wealthy, and many of them let their large homes be used as places of worship for their fellow Christians.

However, the Bible does warn us very pointedly about the dangers of covetousness and greed. I believe you should take its warning very seriously. I gather from your letter that you are young, and it would be tragic for you to make a wrong decision that will bring you grief in years to come. Listen to what the Bible says, for example, in 1 Timothy 6:9-10: "People who want to get rich fall into temptation and a trap and into many foolish and harmful desires that plunge men into ruin and destruction. For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil."

You need to ask yourself why you are interested in being successful in business. Is it because of the security it will bring you? Or the prestige? Or the material possessions? These can be very selfish goals that are far removed from God's will for your life. If you have never given your life to Christ, I hope you will do so now. Then seek His will for your life.

I've known many wealthy people in my life, and some of them were the most miserable people I'd ever met. If you leave God out of your life, you will never know the full meaning of joy.

But I also have been privileged to know men and women who took their wealth as a gift from God, to be used for Him. They have come to know the joy of using what they have to help further God's Kingdom. Christ is the key. Let Him rule your life and you can say with Paul, "I have learned to be content, whatever the circumstances" (Philippians 4:11, New International Version).

Dear Editor:

Some time back I wrote to this paper and stated that the EPA, along with its associates, were making a grab for a large portion of Alaskan land and planning to declare it a national wilderness or public domain lands. They have now achieved that goal. This what happens when only a few people are concerned enough to put down the can of beer or take their eyes off the boob tube long enough to write or call their legislators and advise them of their ideas or what steps should be taken to keep this nation on the honor roll of respect and prosperity.

So, after the legislature adjourned last fall the EPA pressured Carter into going ahead with the declaration putting approximately 20 to 25 percent of the whole state of Alaska off limits to everything except unarmed backpackers. Yes, Carter signed the order using the same tactics that he did in giving away the Panama Canal and signing the normal relations order with Communist China. All of these without first clearing with the Senate and House of Representatives. This bill means that now no vehicles of any type, no one with a firearm can enter those areas.

This act has caused many men to lose their source of a livelihood for their families. That includes trappers, hunting and fishing guides, timber for lumber sources, mineral resources and many others to numerous to set down here.

At the time of my previous writing I stated that the EPA should be cut back to a controllable size. Very few took the time or effort to advise their legislators to head off this EPA takeover. Those are the fruits of being more interested in one's personal entertainment than one is in the survival of the American Way of Life.

Continued excessive interest in all forms of recreation and entertainment, to the extent that it interferes with one's obligations to this nation will result in the total loss of any choice to choose and the downfall and destruction of the American Way of Life.

If people want this nation to go the way of the Babylonians also the way of the Romans then they can keep on their apathetic, selfish attitude and let their children and grandchildren pay the price of their folly. It has happened several times in the past and it is well on the road to happening here in the U.S.A. Are our children going to be slaves to Communism? Only the present generation has a chance to turn it around.

He refuses to say what jobs will be eliminated

Clements says incoming governor is 'lame goose'

By JOHN WOLZ
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
Copyright, Harte-Hanks
Communications, Inc., 1979

AUSTIN — When Bill Clements comes up with a goal for Texas — like a $1 billion tax cut — he isn't the kind of man who dots the "i's" or crosses the "t's."

He expects the other players in the state governmental process to iron out the specifics to achieve the goal.

And after an uncomfortable transition status, Clements is anxious to go to work.

As governor-elect, Clements has had no state funds to pay a staff. He had to raise money to pay for transition offices in a downtown office building four blocks from the capitol, and he doesn't think that is right.

Incumbents leaving office are called "lame ducks" and Clements said an incoming governor is a "lame goose."

"You're neither fish nor fowl. You're not in office and you're really not out of office," Clements said. "You can talk a lot...but you're not really operational."

Tuesday Clements changed status when he took oath as the first Republican governor of Texas in 106 years.

He will start "with a goal and a concept and let the different players make contributions," Clements said in an exclusive interview with Harte-Hanks reporters.

Flanked by Texas and U.S. flags in his 10th-floor transition office with another Texas flag on his desk, Clements talked about players to indicate he realizes the need to work with the Democratic-dominated legislature.

The players, including his staff and legislators, have ideas on how goals should be accomplished, Clements said.

The more players that participate, the better the plan will be, he believes.

"And I've seen it work that way not only in government, but also in business," the 61-year-old founder and chief executive officer of SEDCO, an international oil drilling firm based in Dallas, said.

Clements, dressed in a bulky grey-tweed sport coat, spoke confidently of legislative support for his goals. He said he has met with about 140 of the 181

GOV. WILLIAM P. CLEMENTS
... at inauguration Tuesday

legislators, and each understands his goal of a $1 billion tax cut over a two-year period.

Legislators will be hearing from special interest groups wanting spending hikes in particular areas but they also will be hearing from taxpayers, "who incidentally are also voters," Clements said.

Clements wouldn't cite numbers, but he said some of the 25,000 state jobs he wants to eliminate during the next four years will come from the governor's office.

He wouldn't say what jobs will be eliminated. "The result will speak for itself. We've already started with our plans of certain areas, certain delegated responsibilities of shrinking those offices," he said.

The measure is not just in numbers of workers, Clements said as he looked directly into his listeners' eyes.

"I would rather have fewer people, perhaps somewhat higher paid, and significantly better qualified."

Clements also plans to make use of volunteers such as his talent scout, Tobin Armstrong, and temporary legislative liaison, Ray Hutchison.

But Clements said volunteers will not be just roaming Capitol halls. "I want them to operate within the framework of an organization, and I want them to be subject to the same kind of discipline that a regular employee would be."

Clement's goals-and-players system extends to more than budget issues.

He has set the groundwork for dealing with illegal aliens but is leaving a specific plan up to an inter-state task force.

He has called President Carter's amnesty program for aliens who have lived in the United States "unacceptable."

But Clements acknowledges the problem of dealing with those aliens who have established their lives in the United States.

"They are citizens in the true sense within the framework of the Texas environment and culture. We have to be very careful with what we do with these people," he said.

Clements intends to appoint a group to work with local agencies to identify these people and "have tutoring classes where we teach them what they need to be taught in order to pass their immigration tests."

Clements calls for improvements in education and points to specific areas.

Discipline, proficiency tests, and teacher education curriculum and certification top the list he ticks off.

Again, stressing agreement with legislators, he said he "cannot find a single legislator who doesn't agree with all this." He predicts education may be one of the most difficult of his priority items. "You're going to see lots of bills that will attack this in different ways," Clements said. Implementation is not simple because results won't be available for several years, he said.

Foreign buyers 'insignificant'

EXPLOSION INVESTIGATION — Allied Telephone Company officials of Harrison, Ark. firemen poke through the rubble of the telephone office that was leveled by an explosion early Tuesday morning. A gas leak was thought to be the cause of the blast today. There were no fatalities from the explosion although windows were shattered 10 miles away.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although foreign investors bought 93,000 acres of Texas farmland last year — including "some of the best soil in the state" — an Agriculture Department report concludes that the purchases were "insignificant."

But a congressman in whose Northeast Texas district most of the land acquisitions occurred said Tuesday the foreign buyers have sparked "quite a bit of discussion among our farmers and ranchers."

"They are quite concerned over the increased land prices," continued Rep. Sam Hall, D-Texas. "They are in a state of apprehension because most of the property is being sold to foreigners."

The Texas Agriculture Extension Service compiled the state figures included in a nationwide report requested by Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Georgia, chairman of the Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry Committee.

The extension service noted that the "concentrated" purchases of cropland in Texas included "some of the best soil in the state." But the report also noted that the purchases represent "an insignificant portion of total agricultural acreage in the state."

If foreign purchasers continued buying land at last year's rate, it would take 25 years before one percent of Texas' 157.9 million farm, ranch and forest acres would be under foreign control.

The Prince of Liechtenstein was identified by the extension service report as the largest single foreign buyer last year, purchasing more than 40,000 acres.

By comparison, Prince Francis Joseph II's country covers only 39,040 acres.

The prince's purchases last year included 17,000 acres in Hopkins County, 2,000 acres in Lamar County and a contract to buy 1,400 acres in Denton County.

Prior to the survey period,

Joseph had bought 20,000 acres in Red River County.

Other significant foreign buys included: —West German investor Adolph Scherer, 8,884 acres in Red River, Delta and Lamar counties plus a "reported" interest in 2,500 acres in Bowie County;

—Scandinavian investor Ulrike Schwerdtferger, 5,120 acres in Presidio County; —and a group of Menonites from Mexico, 6,400 acres in Gaines County.

The Texas Agriculture Extension Service said that foreigners were involved in 42 transactions in 26 Texas counties from Jan. 1, 1977 through June 30, 1978. The average purchase involved 2,219 acres.

The largest single group of foreign investors "would appear to be the West Germans," said the report that added "there is little or no indication that petrodollars are the source of current purchases."

The largest concentration of foreign buying centered from "Dallas, northeast to the Red River."

Other conclusions reported cooperative, making owners out of would-be renters. by the Texas Agriculture Extension Service were: —no indication that foreign buying accelerated during the survey period;

—most purchases involved financing by U.S. institutions;

—more rumors of foreign activity were identified than were actually verified;

—little or no indication existed that petrodollars were the source of purchases —and 59 transactions were identified during the survey involving 48,799 acres being sold to 18 U.S. corporations.

Customers from El Paso to New Orleans

Cake lady makes lots of dough

JACKSBORO, Texas (AP) — When 63-year-old Ida Mae Stark begins her baking, the house fills with the sweet smell of icing and dough — a lot of icing and up to $7,100 in dough.

She may look like a sweet little old lady who'd reach out and pinch your cheek with a smile and a "hello there, Sonny."

But this little old lady sells her cakes, fills orders from El Paso to New Orleans — and doesn't have time to pinch cheeks, Sonny.

"We deliver most of them by vans or station wagons, but we have used our airplane to make some deliveries," says Mrs. Stark, the grande dame of wedding cakes in this town 60 miles northwest of Fort Worth.

Actually, though, most of her business comes from out-of-town customers. Her cakes have been served in the governor's mansion for weddings of the daughters of Preston Smith and Dolph Briscoe, she does a lot of business in Dallas and Fort Worth, and occasionally she sends cakes to customers in El Paso, Midland, Galveston, and McAllen, Texas, as well as to points in Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

One customer drove in from Tennessee to pick up his cake.

"The price depends on two things — the looks of the cake and how many people you want it to serve," said Mrs. Stark, who sells only four to 12 cakes a week. Her least expensive wedding cake is a "two-story" cake for $95. It will serve 75 persons. Prices for cakes with five levels, big enough to serve 1,050 guests, start at $2,000. Delivery is extra.

The one that sold for $7,100 was used in a Dallas wedding in 1974. It stood 14 feet tall and included electric lights.

"They were those tiny low-voltage lights, and we covered each one with icing so they glowed through," Mrs. Stark said. She said the electric wires were strong so that no one would slice into them.

"Only the back two-thirds of the cake is served at the wedding anyway," she said. "The front of the cake is for decoration only. It is never eaten (until later)."

Mrs. Stark, operating out of a converted house which serves as her bakery and office, said she started decorating cakes as a hobby more than 20 years ago.

"It was just for fun. I had studied cake decorating in

Farrow named med director

Warren A. Farrow of Big Spring has been appointed to the board of directors of the New Mexico Heart Institute at Presbyterian Hospital Center in Albuquerque, N.M.

The Institute is a regional center for medical and surgical treatment of heart disease. It serves the entire state of New Mexico and portions of surrounding states for diagnosis, treatment, clinical and basic research, rehabilitation and the dissemination of medical information to both the professional and lay communities.

Farrow is a former Civilian Personnel Officer at Webb Air Force Base.

Oklahoma City. At first I didn't do any baking — customers would bring their own cakes to me to decorate in my home."

But her reputation grew, and her business was launched.

"I'm a prime example of what you can do when you're middle-aged," said Mrs. Stark, who was in her early 40s when she turned professional. But she admitted the growth of her business has been gradual and the venture has been anything but a piece of cake.

"Twice I've made cakes for weddings that were called off at the last minute," she said. On one occasion "500 guests had already arrived and another 500 were at the gates about to come in when this little girl just decided she wasn't going to get married that day. And she didn't."

"I had worked my heart out on it and then I had to dismantle it. I could have cried. I left it with the family. I imagine they ate it later — I don't know," said the silver-haired lady as she squeezed a "leaf" from a tube containing green-colored icing onto the side of a cake as big as a No. 2 washtub.

Other workers bustled from room to room in the brightly lit, steamy house, making sugar-dough flowers, answering the phones, spreading white icing on huge wheels of cake and grinding pecans.

"This is no one-woman operation," said Mrs. Stark. "We employ eight people."

Two of them, Jerry Hadderton, 38, and his wife Wanda, 34, are being groomed to take over the business from Mrs. Stark later this year, but Mrs. Stark said she is not retiring. "I'll be working for them then," she said. "I just want to get away from the responsibility of running the business."

For one thing, it would leave her more time to invent gadgets used in her kitchen, to work on recipes, which are guarded secrets, and to spend more time with her husband, who owns the Jacksboro National Bank. She has patented her method of holding the levels of a big wedding cake together by using three metal pillars later decorated with sugar-dough to look like Grecian columns.

And the frosting on her cakes is mixed so that it does not acquire a crusty surface overnight.

"Feel that icing," she said. "See? Soft. It'll stay that way up to four days. How we do it is a secret — I wouldn't dare divulge it. But it has fresh fruit in it."

Doesn't a bakery of this size ever resort to a commercial cake mix?

"Oh no! Heavens no!" Mrs. Stark said. "No, indeed, no, young man." She said her basic white cake recipe has evolved over several years of improvising and experimenting with different ingredients and even different brands of ingredients. As in her icing, the cake itself also includes fresh fruit.

Another subject Mrs. Stark has strong opinions on is the use of small statues of the bride and groom atop wedding cakes.

"They're tacky," she said. Instead, her cakes are capped by realistic bouquets made of sugar-dough flowers that can be eaten — "I don't like to put anything on my cakes that is not edible," Mrs. Stark said. With the possible exception of those electric lights.

Montana takes top spots in Western Rodeo

DENVER (AP) — Montana cowboys held the top spots in saddle bronc riding as the first round ended Tuesday at the National Western Rodeo. Bud Pauley of Miles City, the 1978 saddle bronc rookie of the year, took top money of $1,789 for his 81-point ride on "Half Velvet." Second money went to 1977 world champion J.C. Bonine of Hysham, Mont. He earned $1,450 for his 80-point ride. Four-time world champion bull rider Don Gay of Mesquite, Texas, pocketed $1,965 for winning the first round of his event with 87 points. Second and third in bull riding went to Terry Holland of Carthage, Texas, and Tom Solberg of Karlstad, Minn. Larry Ferguson of Miami, Okla., moved into a tie for third place in the second round of steer wrestling with 4.7 seconds Tuesday night.

Bishops' meeting termed 'crucial'

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — Roman Catholic bishops meet here next week in what is already being talked about as a crucial gathering that will chart the course of the Roman Catholic Church in Latin America.

The meeting could set the church on a collision course with repressive South American governments or anger those pushing for change in an area where two-thirds of the people live in poverty.

At the least, the conference will provide some fireworks between liberal and conservative elements in the church. Its importance is underlined by the presence of Pope John Paul II, who will open the meeting on his first trip abroad since becoming pope.

The Jan. 27-Feb. 12 Third General Conference of the Latin American Episcopate — popularly called Celam III — will gather 350 Latin American bishops who have prepared for the meeting for over two years.

The theme is "Evangelization in the Present and Future of Latin America" and lines are already drawn between those who want the church to take a stronger, more involved role in helping the poor and those who feel the church can best help through traditional methods.

"Celam III, the third meeting of the bishops of Latin America... must make decisions that will have crucial, transcendental importance for the church in Latin America and beyond," wrote theologian Gary Maceoin in the U.S. quarterly "Cross Currents."

"What the bishops decide may not resolve the issues. It will, however, have a major bearing on the survival of the closer relationships with the poor.

However, some more conservative theologians think the documents did not reflect calm, mature deliberation and that the bishops that wrote them were influenced by widespread rioting and unrest prevalent throughout the world at the time.

Even more, bishops and priests who tried to put the Medellin concepts into practice were often accused of being communist and ran into conflicts with conservative and military governments.

An estimated 300 million of the world's 900 million Roman Catholics live in Latin America and two-thirds of them live in extreme poverty. Their lives are not ones of free choice but controlled strongly by economic need and in some countries by political oppression as well.

Against this background, those who see the need for change in Roman Catholic policy feel only the church can help these people get a better share of land, income, dignity and basic human rights.

Organizers of the coming conference wrote a preparatory document that many claim was strongly influenced by conservative, traditional elements. It has been widely criticized as "a subtle rejection of Medellin."

However, lay groups and clergy have met several times in regional sessions and out of these meetings has come a preliminary draft — more liberal and socially inclined — that may well become the basic working document at Puebla.

Now, two main schools of thought prevail. One is the conservatives, who range from those who think social work should be combined with a strong evangelical effort to the "ultras" who decry the lack of masses in Latin. The other group is made up of the followers of the so-called "theology of liberation."

The "liberationists" generally argue that the poor and the oppressed can only be liberated through change. How these changes are to be carried out is a matter of some very furious polemics.

Some claim all the social structures should be smashed and rebuilt, even that of the church hierarchy. Others advocate more moderate means of change. And others still want "a Marxist interpretation" placed on the church's thinking and its actions.

Some theologians also see the influence of the conference stretching beyond Catholicism in Latin America.

Robert McAfee Brown, a Presbyterian theologian, in the magazine "Christianity and Crisis" recently criticized the efforts to "return the Latin American Catholic Church to pre-Medellin status."

"If Puebla marks a reactionary turn, that development will stimulate similar moves elsewhere in Roman Catholicism and will give impetus to increasingly visible conservative tendencies emerging in Protestantism as well," Brown wrote.

TO OPEN CELAM III — Pope John Paul II will open the Third General Conference of the Latin American Episcopate.

institutional church, either facilitating or complicating the struggle of the people of Latin America to free themselves from the oppressions under which they have long groaned," Maceoin added.

The Puebla conference is a direct descendant of what was called Celam II in Medellin, Colombia, in 1968 which emphasized the Vatican II results and put them within a Latin American framework.

"In the documents of Medellin, we find the church, for the first time, taking note of the common people, of the popular classes," J.B. Libanio of Brazil wrote in the magazine "Convergencia."

The documents that came out of the Medellin conference were widely described as liberal, socially aware guides for leading the Roman Catholic church into

If people want him, shah's son vows to return to rule

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi, son of the Shah of Iran and heir-apparent to the throne, says he would return to rule his country one day "if the people want me."
"If they want me and they think I could help them — the 35 million people of Iran — then I would be ruler," said the 18-year-old prince who is receiving supersonic pilot training at Reese Air Force Base near Lubbock.
"This is what I have been studying for — economics, military and things like that — to help. If the people want me, I hope it will work out."
Prince Reza, who cannot legally ascend to the throne until he is 21, commented Tuesday during an informal news conference outside his home in this West Texas city.
He said he believes his father "probably will return to Iran" despite speculation the shah has gone into exile.
Earlier Tuesday, the shah and Empress Farah flew to Cairo on what was officially termed a vacation, although many called it the beginning of exile for the beleaguered monarch. It was speculated the shah and his wife would continue to the United States from Egypt.
"I hope everything will get better very soon," Prince Reza said. "I don't know if my father will ever regain power. The new government is basically taking care of everything."

(AP WIREPHOTO)
GREETS PRESS — Iranian Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi, center, is flanked by unidentified security personnel at his home in Lubbock, Texas, Tuesday afternoon as he talked to the press. At the conference the Prince commented that he doubted his father, the Shah, would come to Lubbock. Other members of the family arrived at Reese Air Force Base Tuesday morning and were brought to the Prince's home in western Lubbock.

The prince said he knew little more of the events in Iran than what has been reported in local newspapers and on television.
Prince Reza said he knew of no plans for the shah to visit Lubbock, although the U.S. State Department said it was possible the shah would stop here to stay with his family or pick them up en route to another destination.

Prince Reza said he believed any stay by his father in the United States would be only temporary.
Meanwhile, the presence of three children and the mother-in-law of the Shah of Iran stirred little reaction in Lubbock as the party took up residence Tuesday at the prince's plush, western-style home.
Lubbock residents went about their business. A group of Iranian students attending nearby Texas Tech University, numbering about 500, were also quiet, although they had staged a protest march against the shah last summer.

An attorney for Lubbock Legal Services, which has represented the students in the past, said he knew of no plans to protest the presence of the shah's mother-in-law, Farideh Diva, and Princess Farahnaz, 15; Prince Alireza, 12, and Princess Layla, 8.
They arrived at Reese Air Force Base in predawn darkness Tuesday aboard an Imperial Iranian 707 jet that left McGuire Air Force Base, N.J., Monday night.

Big Spring couple files petition for bankruptcy

Elmer D. and Willie Mae Carter of Big Spring has filed a petition for bankruptcy in the U.S. District Court in Abilene.
The couple listed secured claims of $36,797.81 and unsecured claims without priority of $13,704.47 for total liabilities of $50,502.28.
Total assets of $32,367.43 were listed, including $8,300 in exempt property.
Carter listed himself as a mechanic who is not presently employed.
Notes of vehicles were the main items in the secured claims category. Included were notes on a Mack truck, $10,232.31; a 1962 Chevrolet pickup, $6,700; a 1956 parts truck, $1,618.18; a 1976 Datsun pickup, $5,173.34; and a 1972 Grand Prix automobile, $1,287.20.

Listed unsecured creditors totaled 52. Coleman Machine Shop led the list in money due, $2,126.81; while at the bottom of the list was Cable TV, $11.80.
Exempt property listed was a mobile home, valued at $5,000; the 1976 Datsun, $1,800; a one-acre tract of land identified as a homestead, $500; household goods, $500; and wearing apparel, $500.
The Carters are being represented in the petition by Foy Clement, Abilene attorney.

Albany school trustees delaying renewal of superintendent's pact

ALBANY — The Albany board of school trustees has decided against extending the contract of Supt. Harry Holder.
The contract now expires in July 1981 and will come up for consideration again next January.
Holder, who came here five years ago from O'Brien, said he did not feel he was "being run off."
School board president

R.P. Mitchell said he knew of no problems in the school system and he regarded Holder as "an excellent administrator."
Although he confessed to no problems with the board, Holder did say he would take a job in a larger system if it was offered to him.
Holder refused to hazard a guess as to whether he would remain in Albany another year.

Song leader, assistant to VA chaplain needed

The Big Spring Veterans Administration Medical Center needs volunteers to fill two positions in the VAMC Chaplain Service. Volunteers may work one night a month or more if they wish.
A song leader is needed for the Wednesday evening service to lead congregational singing and often make arrangements for special music. The volunteer would need to be at the chapel at 6:15 p.m. on Wednesday evening monthly. Services begin at 6:45 p.m., lasting until approximately 7:30 p.m.

An assistant to the chaplain is also needed to aid in conducting the Wednesday evening Bible study. Again, the time can be arranged for one or more nights monthly, as the volunteer wishes.

Duties of the volunteer would involve setting up a projector, adjusting the lights and screen, making sure books in the chapel are properly distributed, going to all wards and the Nursing Home Care Unit on sixth floor to remind patients that it is time for the service to begin, and seeing if any assistance will be needed for the patients to get to the service.
Once the study begins, the volunteer would be responsible for operating the projector and assisting patients with any problem they may have. Should the chaplain be unable to attend the service, the volunteer would be responsible to see that the service continues in the proper order. At the close of the service, the volunteer would help patients return to their wards and restore the chapel its normal arrangement. The duties require from approximately 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.
Anyone interested in the positions should go by the VAMC Volunteer Services office or talk to Chaplain Clayton Hicks.

More women in government

Texas First Lady's views

By DAN MALONE
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Unlike her outspoken husband, Rita Clements seems uncomfortable with controversy.

The trim brunette monitors her words as she answers questions about her role in state government, political issues and political beliefs.

Sitting behind a desk in the cluttered Clements transition office, she spoke cautiously about Gov.-elect Bill Clements' upcoming tenure. Her clothing, like her politics, is conservative and rich.

She has made few plans as Texas First Lady after her husband assumed the governorship Tuesday.

"But I don't want to spend my days going to teas and coffees," she told Harte-Hanks reporters in an exclusive interview.

Discussion of state policy and politics with her husband are informal, she says.

"Bill and I exchange ideas and he certainly has asked my opinion about what he's involved in, but it's on a very informal basis," she explains.

She plans at least one day a week with her husband. The family will spend Sundays together, alone in Dallas.

"We're not going to accept any functions on Sunday. It's important to have one day of rest," she says.

One opinion she shares regularly with him is the need to appoint more women to governmental positions.

"I've talked about that daily. He is all for it," she says.

For some positions — she cited budget director as an example — the pool of qualified men is larger than the pool of women.

With the number of women in Texas who have administrative talent, she hopes her husband will appoint more women as heads of state agencies.

"He's going to use quality as his first criterion, over party affiliation, color or anything else," she says.

She plans to pursue a family interest in historical preservation by refurbishing the Governor's Mansion in 19th Century decor. "What we really have in mind is to ultimately have the Governor's Mansion furnished just like it would have been if you had walked into it in 1853 when it was constructed," she says.

Corporate headquarters for Bill Clements' multinational oil-drilling company, SEDCO, occupies the old Cumberland High School Building in Dallas. He restored the building to near original condition.

She plans to finance the mansion restoration with private contributions and loans.

Her entertaining and fundraising activities will be geared more toward strengthening her husband's support among independents and conservative democrats than strengthening the Republican Party, she says.

"We want to encourage growth and development of the Republican Party, but we realize that there's no way that the 20 percent of Texans who are Republican could elect Bill Clements governor."

"What we'd really like to do, of course, is broaden the base (of support)," she says.

She says neither she nor her husband will raise money for the Republican Party or its candidates until they've retired his massive campaign debt.

She's hesitant to discuss her stand on controversial political issues, such as ratification of the ERA or federal subsidy of abortions.

But she blossoms when conversation turns to the political strategies and campaigns. She freely reels off voting percentages and the painful history of Republican politics in Texas.

She has a rich Grand Old Party background, from campaigning for President Dwight Eisenhower at the University of Texas in 1952 to serving as Republican National Committeewoman from Texas 1973-75.

Her ties to the Republican Party are stronger than her husband's. She says he considered himself an independent before he went to Washington, D.C., as Richard Nixon's undersecretary of defense in 1973.

One similarity between Rita and Bill Clements is a business-like pragmatism.

She supports the concept of equal opportunity for women while remaining non-committal on ratification of the ERA.

ERA is a moot issue in

MRS. BILL (RITA) CLEMENTS

Texas because the legislature already has ratified the amendment and placed the law in the state constitution, she says. But she doesn't hesitate to turn that moot issue to political gain.

She made sure National Republican leaders who select the 1980 convention site knew that Texas is the only state under consideration which had passed the ERA.

"That's definitely to our advantage because there's a lot of opposition to any major convention being held in a state which hasn't passed the ERA," she explains.

Modern Woman's Forum has program on heart

The Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room was the site of the Jan. 12 meeting of the Modern Woman's Forum. Mrs. Cass Hill served as hostess.

Mrs. Woody Smith, first vice president, conducted the business session. Mrs. Fred Whitaker led the club collect and Pledge of Allegiance.

Mrs. Whitaker, federation counselor reported many benefits of the Federation Club membership for the individual woman to serve and enjoy in her community. Membership means the opportunity to use talents and therefore fulfill potential. This is achieved in cooperation with other women who want to improve their community goals in education, cultural activities, philanthropy, commercial fields and spiritual growth.

Mrs. Hill presented the program entitled "New Tools in the Fight Against Heart Disease." She explained that the heart is the sturdiest, toughest muscle in the body. The basic cause of heart failure is interference with the hearts arteries.

Hardening and narrowing of the vital arteries carrying blood to the muscle tissue of the heart is called arteriosclerosis.

There are nine chief suspects in this deadly syndicate. They are known as the "risk factors." Control one of them and a step will be taken to boost chances for a longer life. Control all of them and in a few months, risks will be reduced even more.

The nine risk factors include high blood pressure, high levels of cholesterol, overweight, excessive eating of certain types of fats and cholesterol, too little exercise and physical activity, diabetes, excessive cigarette smoking, tension and heredity.

Mrs. Hill continued saying that we must protect the persons heading for a heart attack before it happens. A majority of people are susceptible in terms of the known risks.

Adults must learn to distinguish between moderation and abuse in things that cause heart attacks. The answer is discipline.

The next meeting of the forum will be Jan. 26 in the home of Mrs. Bert Affleck.

You've come a long way....

She's Looking For Unliberation

DEAR ABBY: Can you help me find a job as live-in housekeeper in a motherless home? It must be a modern house in the most desirable section of the city. (No country or farm locations, please.) The father must be between 38 and 50, no older. He must be at least 6 feet tall, single I am a well-proportioned 5 feet 7 and do not feel comfortable with shorter men around me.

I dress well, am attractive and well-groomed. I enjoy music, disco dancing and outdoor sports. I am 36, in excellent health, and can furnish references.

LOOKING IN WORCESTER, MASS.

DEAR LOOKING: You sound as though you are looking for a man, not a job. If it's a position you're after, register with an employment agency or place an ad in the classified section of this newspaper. If it's a man you're after, your approach is clever, but much too obvious.

DEAR ABBY: OFF MY CHEST IN DENVER wrote that her daughter in college sent all her bills home regularly, but never enclosed a personal note. ("It would mean so much if she just wrote 'love' and signed her name.")

May I respond to that letter?

First of all, a girl old enough to go away to college should be trusted with her own checking account and learn how to be responsible for her own bills. Perhaps the daughter is expressing (or not expressing) her resentment at so much parental control.

Second, children learn from us — their parents. If we don't tell them how we feel, then they won't tell us how they feel. If we want love and openness, we must communicate our needs to the others.

I would suggest, OFF MY CHEST, that you tell your daughter you need a point of contact with her, since you love her, and her absence after 18 years leaves a hole in your life.

Children who grow up and leave home need both roots and freedom.

I.M.: LA JOLLA, CALIF.

DEAR I.M.: U.R. an excellent psychologist. Thank you for a fine letter.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY WIDOWED READERS. Good news! Since the first of this year, widows' Social Security checks are no longer decreased because of marriage.

Cactus Chapter of ABWA to hold Boss Nite meeting

The Cactus Chapter of the American Business Women's Association met Monday at the Brass Nail with Frances Swann presiding.

Guests were Erma Ross, Tammy Lewis, Karen Cypert, and Wanda Bristow.

Larry Bristow, guest speaker, is the director of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center. A 1957 graduate of Lamesa High School and 1962 graduate from Abilene Christian College, he has a degree in speech pathology with a minor in psychology.

He holds a Master's Degree from East Texas State University in language and learning disability with a minor in psychology and speech pathology.

He has been a speech therapist in the Abilene and Big Spring public schools and Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, coordinator for special education of the Region 19 Education Service Center of El Paso, director of the Big Horn Basin Work Activity Center of Thermopolis, Wyoming, and speech therapist and administrative assistant of the West Texas Rehabilitation Center in Abilene. He and his wife Alta have two sons, James and Daniel.

His dream for the rehab center is to have adequate funds to help everyone who needs braces, a wheelchair or transportation, funds to allow the center to reach people who have needs to be met, funds to provide socialization from all the handicapped of the community and to provide physical therapy to allow the handicapped to achieve their full potential, and funds for a program for children from birth to 2 years.

Of the 150 patients at the rehab center each week, 60 percent are adults and 20 percent are stroke victims.

The vocational speaker was Peggy Morrison, beautician and cosmetologist, for Eloise's Hair Fashions. She graduated from Isabell's Beauty School with post graduate work at Jefferies Lee's. She has been beautician for 21 years, 10 years in her own shop. She finds working with people personally rewarding and working with hair an art.

The Boss Nite meeting will be held in the Nail Room of the Brass Nail, Feb. 20, with Omar Burleson as guest speaker.

The Cinderella Pageant will be April 7.

The March meeting will be the organization's enrollment tea.

TWEEN 12 and 20

Is one C grounds for grounding?

By Robert Wallace Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I am a freshman and in about a week we will get our report cards again. The first grades resulted in me being grounded because I got a "D."

This term I have kept my studies up and I have three A's, two B's and one C. For this, my mother says that I will be grounded again.

I respect your opinion, and I'm eagerly awaiting to hear what you have to say about this. — Kim, Tusculum, Ala.

Kim: I think mother is confused and could use some guidance. See your school counselor, tell him or her what's happening and ask that your mother be contacted.

Heck, when I was a school administrator, those grades would have gotten you on the dean's list.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a girl, 14, and a freshman who has an interest in boys and that just might be my problem.

Whenever I start my homework, I always put it down after about five minutes because the phone rings and then I goof off with my friends.

Now my grades are slipping and my parents are upset. What can I do to keep my mind on schoolwork and off my friends.

Luckily, this is the first marking period. — Franny, Blairtown, N.J.

Franny: Self-discipline, Franny, self-discipline.

For two hours each school evening, close yourself into your room, refuse all calls, turn your radio or stereo down low and study. Try it — it works!

Crucial committee assignments

Texas delegation gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Texas congressional delegation, revamped by the retirements and defeats of several powerful lawmakers, has regained several crucial committee assignments in the U.S. House.

The biggest news Tuesday for Texans was the appointment of freshman Rep. Martin Frost to the powerful House Rules Committee by Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill.

Two Democrats, Reps. Jack Hightower and Sam Hall were, as expected, named to fill key committee posts vacated by the retirement of George Mahon of Lubbock and the primary defeat of John Young of Corpus Christi.

Hightower moved from the House Agriculture Committee over to the Appropriations Committee. Hall, beginning his third term, joined fellow Texan Jake Pickle on the Ways and Means Committee.

Frost, a Democrat from Grand Prairie will replace Omar Burleson, one of nine Texans who retired from the House last year.

Each bill must pass through the 11-member Rules Committee before reaching the floor of the House.

"I am deeply honored that Speaker O'Neill has placed his confidence in me by nominating me for the House Rules Committee," said Frost. "To be named to the committee as a freshman Democrat is a humbling experience and I will work hard to justify the speaker's trust."

Frost won election to public office for the first time by defeating Dale Milford in the Democratic primary last year. He was aided by a strong district organization and almost $80,000 in campaign contributions from organized labor political action committees.

After being named to the committee, Frost credited his political coup to House Majority Leader Jim Wright and Rep. Jack Brooks, the dean of the Texas delegation, for "their help in obtaining this significant appointment. It could not have been accomplished without their support."

Wind damages 206,000 acres of land in northwest Texas

About 206,000 acres of land in northwest Texas were damaged by wind erosion during the last two months of 1978, the USDA Soil Conservation Service reported this week.

George C. Marks, state conservationist for SCS, said this compared with 920,200 acres damaged during a similar period last year.

Emergency tillage to reduce wind erosion was applied to 168,000 acres of cropland during November and December. Land reported to be in condition to blow later this year due to lack of protective cover was estimated to be 2.5 million acres compared to 4.4 million acres last year.

Marks said that more favorable weather conditions on the High Plains and South Plains last fall allowed farmers to grow small grain cover crops, thereby reducing wind erosion. Increased use of minimum tillage farming systems, which leave crop residues on the surface during most of the year, was also credited with reducing wind erosion.

SCS defines damaged land as that where soil removal or deposition by wind erosion has been enough to subject it to further erosion hazards, to materially lower yields, or impair inherent productive capacity. For cropland, this means surface soil removed, surface swept smooth, and depressions; and hummocks or fence row drifts formed.

PONDERING — Dallas Cowboys tight end Jackie Smith, a 16-year veteran, seems to be pondering the goings on during picture day with the Dallas Cowboys in Fort Lauderdale Tuesday. The Cowboys will meet the Pittsburgh Steelers in Miami's Orange Bowl Sunday for Super Bowl XIII.

Area basketball
Forsan wins pair

FORSAN — Forsan won two out of three games with Seagraves in District 5-A basketball games Tuesday night.

The Forsan B team girls started out the night with a 48-37 victory over Seagraves. Rhonda Gaskins and Carla Cregar led the Baby Buff charge with 14 and 12 points, respectively.

The Forsan varsity girls used two Valerie Stevens free throws with 20 seconds remaining to escape with an exciting 38-37 win.

Forsan trailed 24-19 at halftime, and never led in the contest until Stevens sank the charity shots. The Buffaloes were led in scoring by Christi Adams, who had 13 points. Jaylene Saunders chipped in with 10. The Forsan girls are now 5-0 in district and 12-7 on the season.

The Forsan boys, however, did not fare so well. They dropped a 65-47 decision to Seagraves. Randy Cregar and Dayton Robertson scored 13 and 11 points, respectively, for the Buffaloes. Forsan is now 3-2 in district play.

Coahoma sweeps foe

COAHOMA — The Coahoma Bulldogs boys and girls basketball team continued their winning ways Tuesday night by trouncing the Winters Blizzards in two District 6-AA games.

The Coahoma girls, led by Angela Dykes' 23 points, scored a 56-24 win over Winters. Stacy Hodnett and Andrea Fowler added 10 each for the Bulldogs.

The Coahoma boys raced to an 86-63 triumph over Winters in the final game of the evening. Mike Ritchey led the Bulldog charge with 20 points, while James Dever added 16.

Garden City, Grady split

GARDEN CITY — Garden City and Grady split their basketball games played Tuesday night.

Garden City won the girls game by a score of 37-27. Trudy Hoelscher led the winning Bearkat attack with 10 points, while Shirella Sawyer of Grady led all scorers in the contest with 12.

Grady took an exciting two overtime victory over Garden City in the boys game. The final score was 53-51. Grady's Ronald Chee scored 18 to lead all scorers. Jorge Patino was high point man for Garden City with 16.

Globetrotters tonight

One of the world's most famous basketball teams, the Harlem Globetrotters, will appear tonight in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum at 7:30. Tickets are still available at the door.

Dick Winder resigns

ODESSA — Dick Winder, head football coach and athletic director at Odessa High, resigned yesterday to become backfield coach at the University of New Mexico.

Winder, who compiled a 37-23 record while at OHS, made the move for what he felt was in the best interest of his coaching career.

Winder is the second District 5-AAAA coach to leave his position in the last two weeks. San Angelo Central coach Smitty Hill resigned under pressure on January 4.

Poised Steers nudge OHS

ODESSA — James Magers connected on a 15-foot jumper with 30 seconds remaining and Mark Poss sank two free throws with eight seconds left to propel the Big Spring Steers to a 52-50 win over the Odessa High Bronchos in a very physical District 5-AAAA game here Tuesday night.

Big Spring won the game at the free throw line, sinking 20 of 30 free throws compared to Odessa's two of five. Odessa committed 23 fouls to only nine for Big Spring. This was basically due to the fact that the bigger, but slower, Bronchos were in more cases than not getting screened off the boards by the quicker Steers, and were thus forced to climb over the backs of the Big Spring players.

JAMES MAGERS

The lead exchanged hands on four occasions in the first quarter, with Poss' canning a field goal at the buzzer to knot the score at 14.

Wilbert Grant, who scored

all of his ten points in the first half, triggered the Steers in the second quarter with his long range shooting. The Steers led at half by 30-21. The stingy Big Spring defense limited OHS to only seven second period points.

The Steers slowed down the tempo in an attempt to control the clock. Most of the third stanza scoring for Big Spring came from the free throw shooting of Mark Poss and Robert Lara, who received their charity opportunities by controlling the offensive backboards. Big Spring led 39-32 at the end of the period.

Odessa, behind the play of lightning quick guard Danny Wright, rallied to within one at 41-40 with five minutes remaining.

But Poss and Lara each sank two free throws within a span of 15 seconds, and Lara then added a field goal to give the Bovines a seemingly comfortable 47-40 lead with just under four minutes left.

Odessa rallied, however with an Alfred Rodriguez tip-in tying the score at 48 with one minute remaining.

Midland rally sinks Cooper

Midland High rallied for 30 fourth quarter points and overcame a nine-point Abilene Cooper lead in the final 1:42 to take a 70-69 victory. The win gave Midland sole possession of first place in the District 5-AAAA race with a 6-0 record, and dropped Cooper to 5-1.

Five Bulldogs scored in double figures, with Roy Jefferson leading the Purple Pack with 14. Kyle Stuard scored 37 to lead Cooper.

Abilene High broke open a close game by outscoring Midland Lee 26-6 in the final quarter on their way to a 64-37 victory.

Abilene, now 4-2 in district, was led in scoring by Mitch Gassaway who had 18 points. Ernest Merritt led Lee with 14.

Odessa Permian used the 18-point performance of Brad Kerley and a tight defense that forced San Angelo to shoot from the outside on their way to a 54-45 win Tuesday night.

The score was tied late in the third stanza, when Permian's Scott Wynne made a layup and was fouled by San Angelo's Rene DeLeon. DeLeon protested the call, drawing a technical. Wynne converted both free throws and then scored on the ensuing possession to take a six-point lead.

Shorthorns lose

ODESSA — The Big Spring Junior Varsity suffered through a very cold shooting performance and lost to the OHS JVs by a score of 51-48.

Big Spring, led by Mike

Domino, rallied late in the game but could not pull the game out. Greg Stevens led the Shorthorns with 12 points. Domino and Doss chipped in with nine and seven points, respectively.

Big Spring then took possession in what appeared to be an attempt to wait for the last second shot. Magers put an end to this strategy by calmly sinking his jump shot to give the Steers a 50-48 lead.

Odessa quickly brought the ball up the court, but could not score, with the Steers taking possession when the basketball rolled out of bounds off an Odessa player.

Big Spring broke the Odessa press, with Wright then fouling Poss with eight seconds remaining. Poss, who connected on 13 of 17 from the free throw line in the game, then sank two free throws to insure the win.

Wright scored on an uncontested shot at the buzzer for the final points of the night.

Poss led the Steers in scoring with 23, followed by Grant and Lara with 10 each. Magers scored eight and Tony Rubio did a creditable job of handling the ball in tight situations. Wright was a one man show for Odessa, scoring 25 points, many from long range.

Big Spring Coach Tommy Collins was very pleased with the play of his team when it counted most. "We finally turned the corner," Collins stated, "because we finally won a game we could have lost. We showed tremendous poise in the final minute of the game."

Big Spring is now 2-4 in district play and 7-14 on the year.

NBA Roundup

By the Associated Press

"It breaks my heart," said Detroit Coach Dick Vitale. "I'll shed some tears tonight." Vitale had just watched his Pistons blow an 18-point, third-quarter lead — and a six-point advantage in the final 1:48 — and lose to the New York Knicks 111-110 Tuesday night on a steal and stuff shot by Toby Knight with two seconds to play.

"A lot of it was anticipation," said Knight of his winning play, "but a lot of it was luck, too. The ball came my way and I just grabbed it. As I went in I wanted to be careful not to carry the ball or turn it over."

"But I slammed it in because I wanted to make sure."

For one half the Pistons made the Knicks look awful, sinking 60 percent of their shots and forcing 15 New York turnovers. Detroit led 61-45 at halftime and 69-51 after 2:08 of the third quarter.

And then, without a hint of warning, the Knicks turned it around.

With Ray Williams running the attack, the Knicks climbed back into the game with a 20-4 burst. Knight scored eight points and Williams handed out four assists as New York closed the deficit to 73-71 with 4:25 remaining in the third period.

Nuggets 104, Jazz 100

David Thompson scored 24 points and backcourtmate Charlie Scott had 21 as Denver won its sixth in a row. The Nuggets led all the way, although New Orleans pulled to within two points in the fourth quarter before Spencer Haywood, who had 19 of his 25 points in the second half, fouled out with three minutes left.

Pete Maravich, who missed the last four games because of a sore knee, led the Jazz with 29 points.

Kings 86, Cavaliers 79

Scott Wedman led a balanced attack with 14 points as Kansas City posted its sixth victory in seven games to remain three games ahead of second-place Denver in the Midwest Division.

It was Cleveland's third straight loss and its lowest point total of the season. Coach Bill Fitch called it "a strange game, a lousy, lousy offensive ballgame on our part."

One of the younger and more popular members of major league baseball's umpiring profession stopped in Big Spring last week to give a short, but interesting, talk to veterans at the local Veterans Administration Hospital.

Larry Barnett, age 34, has been an American League umpire since 1966. At the age of 23, he was one of the youngest big league arbiters in history.

The broad chested Midwesterner began thinking about umpiring while a senior in high school in his home town of Prospect, Ohio, a small community of less than 1,000. As a joke, Barnett sent in an application to an umpiring school in Florida. He was accepted, and traveled to Florida as it was a time in life that he couldn't decide which crossroad to take.

Barnett jokingly stated about his decision to enter the umpiring profession: "I didn't want to work."

He graduated out the highest in his class of 100 and was promptly sent to the Rookies

League. He then spent two years in the Midwest League and two years in the Texas League as a minor league umpire. Then, five years after he sent off the application as a prank, he advanced into the American League.

Barnett's most memorable moments were umpiring an All-Star game and an American League playoff game before the age of 30, but his most famous decision occurred in the 1975 World Series between Cincinnati and Boston. The play was on a controversial bunt by Ed Armbrister of the Reds and his alleged interference with Red Sox catcher Carlton Fish.

The young umpire won't comment on his call, but still has a sense of humor about it. "At the time it happened, it seemed really important. Looking back now, I realize that it wasn't earth shattering."

Barnett and the other three members of his umpiring crew travel together during the six-month long major league baseball season. During the season,

MAJOR LEAGUE UMPIRE...American League umpire Larry Barnett (right) stopped recently at the VA Hospital to show a film and give a talk to local patients. Pictured with Barnett is the local Disabled American Veterans Voluntary Services representative James Morrow.

he is only able to go home to Prospect and visit his wife and two daughters about 12 days. He admits that it does create a strain. "My kids don't really understand yet why I can't stay at home very often, but my wife is a great lady who is very understanding. She handles all the finances and wears the pants in the family most of the time."

In order to help each umpire's job from becoming monotonous, Barnett and his comrades switch positions every day. He admits that he enjoys being around the center of attention as a home plate judge, but is still ready for an easy afternoon whenever his day for the third base job arrives.

The topic of major league players and managers was brought up and naturally one of the subjects was Billy Martin.

"Billy wants you to cheat a little for him. In fact, he honestly acts like he expects you to, and when you don't, he doesn't seem to understand. And usually loudly!"

But Barnett still has the utmost respect for Martin's managing abilities. "If I were an owner putting together a big league team," he stated, "Martin would be the first person I would ask to be my manager. He and Baltimore Oriole boss Earl Weaver are two of the smartest managers I have ever seen."

Barnett also doesn't believe that the fiery Martin will return as the manager of the Yankees in 1980. "Although it's been announced that he will return, you and I both know not to believe everything we read." He added: "I would really be surprised if Martin does return to the Yankees. I'm sure he'll manage somewhere, though."

Barnett, who has a constant smile and is a most likable person, visits about 120 VA hospitals a year in hopes of sharing his experiences with disabled veterans of war that are avid baseball buffs. He has an agent that arranges his talks in association with National Headquarters of Disabled American Veterans. He is paid for his talks, but says that he enjoys the feeling of sharing the national pastime with those that can not be as physically active.

Barnett hopes to continue umpiring and talking to VA hospitals until the mandatory age 55 retirement set forth by major league baseball. "I really do have a fear of work, and I don't consider what I do now as work."

When I asked Barnett whether he admits his mistakes on particular plays as an umpire, he stated emphatically: "As an umpire, you should never admit a mistake. I have never made a mistake!"

Then, with a twinkle in his eyes, he facetiously said: "Well, there was one play back in 69 that was questionable."

Yeah, ok, Larry, we catch your drift.

year history, and many of those fans had never seen a basketball game until the Globetrotters came to town.

This season the Magicians of Basketball will increase to 97 the number of countries they have visited.

The Globetrotters, featuring the legendary Marques Haynes, are known for their superb ball handling, fancy dribbling, pinpoint passes behind the back and between the legs, and uncanny shooting.

Jean Claude, recognized as one of the world's leading practitioners in the art of foot juggling, will perform between the Globetrotter acts.

YOUNG IDEAS By DICK YOUNG

NEWS ITEM: OILER THREATENS TO GET EVEN
As he was being helped off the sloshy field in Pittsburgh after having been cut down savagely by Mike Wagner, Mike Barber pointed an indicating finger and cried, "I'll get you!"

After the game, the bitterness had not abated one bit. "All I know," the Houston tight end told newsmen, "is I'll get him some day, and when I do, he'll never play this game again."

This is a distinct threat to maim, and not too wise. It is the sort of thing that could backfire. Suppose, in some future Houston-Pitt game, Barber becomes entangled with Wagner, and suppose the Pitt safetyman is badly injured as a result. It could be entirely accidental, but people would remember the threat.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle intends doing something about it. Nothing dramatic, like calling Mike Barber on the carpet. Rozelle does not over-react. He intends to talk to Barber's coach, and have Bum Phillips pass the word to the player about the evils of reprisal.

Rozelle does not believe Wagner's block-tackle across Barber's knees was a cheap shot. The pass had flown far over Barber's head, but Wagner already had crouched and lunged at Barber, assuming a catch, intent on jarring the ball loose.

Bum Phillips, Barber's coach, said after seeing the films, it was not a dirty play. I'm inclined to agree. I just hope Mike Barber never has reason to regret having said, "I'll get him, and when I do he'll never play this game again."

It's like the detective story, where the cops pick up a suspect after a murder and reminds him that he said, in front of six witnesses, "I'll kill you!" The guy says it was only a figure of speech, but nobody wants to believe him.

NEWS ITEM: LINDSEY NELSON QUILTS METS
They can't blame Don Grant for this one. They can't blame anyone. There is no insidious, underlying reason. After 17 years in the same broadcast booth, Lindsey Nelson simply decided he didn't want to do it any longer.

His life has changed considerably in that time. He hasn't. His flow of words is as lucidly descriptive as ever, and the words have meaning, not the superfluous garbage of some I know. His voice, at 59, still carries the enthusiasm of youth when he describes an event. But his life has changed.

Six years ago, his wife died. His daughter, Nancy, 24, is a graduate student at USC.

"Nancy and I talked it over," says Lindsey, "and we decided it would be a good idea if I moved out there to California."

He had a year to go on his contract with the Mets. He asked to be released from it. Reluctantly, they agreed.

He has had a magnificent 17-season experience in New York, he says. "God, I wouldn't trade the Stengel years for anything in the world!"

He saw it all, the team that was a national joke rise to become World Champions under Gil Hodges in 1969, then the up-and-down Yogi years, and then the long decline.

The Mets' decline, as much as the southern California weather and his family, made his decision. It is difficult to broadcast for a loser. It is tough to write about, day after day, but it is harder to broadcast. A writer can blast away. A broadcaster must be upbeat, dissembling.

One day, he runs out of excuses. Lindsey Nelson ran out of excuses.

Already the Mets are being flooded with auditioning tapes. I'm sure Ron Swoboda, who has said some unkind things about them, will tell them he was only kidding. A guy named Howard Cosell applied 17 years ago, and was turned down. The Mets were making much better decisions in those days.

Owls, 94-81, in Houston Tuesday night to improve the SWC record to 4-1.

"I have no idea why we didn't play better before," the Texas coach said, referring to earlier losses, including one to Texas Tech in their SWC opener at Lubbock.

The defending National Invitational Tournament champion Longhorns hit on 59 percent of their field goal attempts and were paced by Jim Krivacs' 30 points and Tyrone Branyan's 24.

Rice, now 2-3 in the SWC and 5-10 for the season, was led by Elbert Darden who hit 30 points.

In other SWC action Tuesday night, Baylor beat Houston 85-77 and Southern Methodist defeated Texas Tech 69-65.

A crowd of 5,400 fans — many of them dressed in clown costumes — filled the Rice gym. The clown outfits were the result of a comment Lemons made last year when he said Rice seemed to be playing like clowns.

"It didn't bother me," said Lemons. "Besides, they didn't have much to holler about."

SMU used a balanced scoring attack — led by Brad Branson and Reggie Franklin with 14 points each — to improve its SWC record to 2-1 with the victory over Texas Tech, which fell to 3-2.

"With a break or two, we could have come out on top," said Tech Coach Gerald Myers, who saw his team drop its second straight game after upsetting Texas to start its SWC schedule.

"We've worked hard and now we're ready to really do something," said SMU Coach Sonny Allen. "We're going to shock a lot of people before this is over. It's taken a while to learn to play together. Now we have it together. What we want to do is put that ring (SWC championship) on our fingers."

Vinnie Johnson hit 30 points to lead Baylor and freshman Terry Teagle added 19 — including seven as the Bears outscored Houston 10-2 in a two-minute period near the end of the game.

WHAT BALL? — Rice University Glen Riecke (31) and University of Texas Tyrone Branyan (31) lose track of a loose ball as University of Texas' Ron Baxter (12) looks on in the first period of the Southwest Conference game at Houston Tuesday night.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JAN. 18, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An effective day for you to decide upon a detailed plan of action under which to operate in the future. Later get in touch with those whom you want to be associated with in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Go ahead with your ideas concerning those in the business world and get excellent results. Sidelstep one who is working against you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Combine your efforts with fellow workers and get much accomplished today. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Set up a social and recreational calendar for far into the future. Strive for increased harmony with family members.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you show special thought for those who dwell with you, life at home can become more ideal. Use common sense.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Have those talks and meetings with persons you want to be part of your life in the future. Show that you are a reasonable person.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can handle practical affairs very well now and gain excellent benefits. Take more interest in civic matters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are dynamic today and can go after your goals and gain them easily. Make sure you use extreme care in motion today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can handle private matters very well early in the day, so make personal decisions at that time. Relax at home tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can handle something of a community nature very well today, so don't waste time with less important matters.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A new situation arises today that requires assistance from a higher-up. Take no risks with the one you love.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be willing to make any changes that are necessary to improve your position in life. Be alert to new opportunities.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have many duties to finish before thinking about outside interests. Make long-range plans for the days ahead.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who is able to solve any problem by studying all aspects; will do so from early in life and will be far ahead of others upon reaching maturity. There is much talent in this chart. Don't neglect spiritual training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Iranian security meeting called Troops, protestors clash

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Troops clashed with thousands of anti-shah demonstrators in Ahwaz in the heart of Iran's southern oilfields today and heavy casualties were reported on the day following the monarch's departure from the strife-torn country.

The Tehran newspaper Ettelaat said the army opened fire after tens of thousands of demonstrators had gathered in front of a mosque in Ahwaz. The newspaper's initial information was that there were hundreds of casualties, but there was no independent confirmation of the toll.

An official at an Ahwaz hospital said by early afternoon 25 casualties had been brought in and some of them were dead on arrival. Prime Minister Shapour Bakhtiar, head of a shah-appointed civilian government, called an emergency national security meeting to discuss the clash. Gen. Abbas Gharabaghi, chief of staff of Iran's 430,000-man armed forces, was among those attending.

The blowup confronted the Bakhtiar government with its first serious test of its ability to maintain law and order in the absence of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who was spending his first full day abroad at Aswan, Egypt.

But the opposition, also had problems.

A spokesman in Paris for Ayatullah Khomeini, the exiled Shiite Moslem religious leader who has been the spearhead of the opposition to the shah, said the provisional Islamic government or revolutionary council which Khomeini plans to form for Iran would not include leaders of the National Front.

The liberal-progressive National Front, headed by Dr. Karim Sanjaby, headed the political side of the anti-shah movement, and spokesmen for it claimed the ayatullah's spokesman had been misunderstood by Western reporters in Paris. But there was no misunderstanding among partisans for the Front in the French capital, and they were furious.

A spokesman for the Front said two representatives had left for Paris to meet with the ayatullah and "come up with a definite result or information about the revolutionary council."

A split between the ultra-conservative, 78-year-old Khomeini and the liberal or leftist politicians had been expected once the cementing focus of their joint campaign — the shah — left the country.

The ayatullah was opposed to the shah because of the ruler's campaign to Westernize and industrialize Iran undermined Moslem traditions, including the authority of religious leaders, the church's hold on vast tracts of land and the subjugation of women.

The National Front

leaders opposed the shah because he pulled back from promised democratic political reforms and gave the secret police and the army a free hand against his opponents, and because of the alleged corruption of government officials and the royal family.

The only thing the two forces had in common was their opposition to the shah and those who supported him. Widespread strikes continued despite the shah's departure. Few trains ran. International telex and some other telecommunications services were still disrupted.

The central bank was paralyzed, with 10,000 government pay checks and remittances to contractors held up. "Nothing has changed. The shah has left, but the system is still there," said a National Front spokesman.

Oil industry sources said a representative of Khomeini approved the export of 13½ million barrels of heavy oil, or about 2½ days' normal export, but this did not mean a general resumption of oil exports. They explained that the shipment was permitted to make room for crude oil to be refined for domestic use.

The heavy oil is used primarily for tanker fuel and steam generating plants, the

Farm Hereford bulls sale set in Fort Worth

One of the most outstanding sets of Hereford herd bull prospects ever offered in one sale will sell in Fort Worth, Jan. 28 in The Texas Select Bull Sale sponsored by the Texas Hereford Association. Twenty-four bulls consigned by 18 breeders will be presented.

The offering includes blue ribbon winners in some strong shows on the Hereford circuit and includes many sons of Register of Merit and Super Register of Merit Hereford sires. Some of the most prestigious sire names in the Hereford breed appear in these bulls pedigrees.

The bulls come from a wide cross-section of the state with the 18 breeders selling having a cumulative total of 450 years in the registered Hereford business. Total registered cow numbers on the consigning ranches totals 5,500 mother cows. Extremely high standards were set by the selection committee in selecting the bulls nominated for the sale.

Jack Chastain, Secretary-Manager of the Texas Hereford Association, said that any breeder interested in a top Hereford bull should be able to find a bull of exceptional quality to add breed character and doing-ability to his breeding program. "These bulls have quality enough for the registered breeder and are modern enough for the commercial cowman," he added. The bulls will sell in single lots.

Of the 24 bulls entered, 10 different Super ROM sires, 5 different Register of Merit Show sires, and two Feedlot and Carcass Register of Merit Sires appear in the pedigrees either as a sire and/or grandsire - a total of 17 ROM sires just in the first two generations. Going back further in the pedigrees would add even more to this impressive number.
