Khomeini forces rescue hostages

Guerrillas storm U.S. Embassy

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Scores of guerrillas firing automatic weapons stormed the U.S. Embassy in downtown Tehran today, wounded two Marine guards and took the ambassador and 101 other Americans hostage before rival guerrillas rescued them in a 3½-hour gun battle.

Guerrillas loyal to the new government said those who attacked the embassy were communists. One of the attackers also said communists participated in the assault.

Heavy fighting also was reported in Tabriz, 330 miles northwest of Tehran. Spokesmen for the new government named by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said there had been many casualties, but the toll could not be confirmed. There were conflicting accounts of clashes among forces faithful to the army, leftist or Marxist bands, and SAVAK, the shah's secret police.

The fighting here and in Tabriz may signal a brewing confrontation between the generally conservative supporters of the Moslem holy man Khomeini and radical leftists.

U.S. officials said 11 Americans were still in Tabriz.

After the attack on the embassy here, a shaken U.S. official, his eyes stinging from tear gas fired during the melee, told reporters outside the heavily damaged embassy complex that he believed the attackers were left-wing urban guerrillas.

Thousands of heavy weapons seized from military posts fell into the hands of militant civilians both before and after the collapse of the shah-appointed government last Sunday. Since then bands of armed men have roamed the streets, creating a vigilante atmosphere, ignoring pleas from revolutionary leaders to give up their weapons.

Lt. Col. Leland Holland, the embassy's security chief, later told reporters gathered outside the building that the Americans had been placed under the protection of guerrillas loyal to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's government. He said staff members were free to go but were remaining inside the embassy on the guerrillas' advice.

Holland said the 3½-hour battle for control of the embassy began at about 10:30 a.m. when snipers opened up with heavy rifle fire from the roof of a hotel across the street from the embassy. The attackers then penetrated the city-block square compound and began pulling down the American flag.

"Marines at the embassy started shooting in the air and also firing tear-gas canisters," said George B. Lambrakis, an embassy staffer.

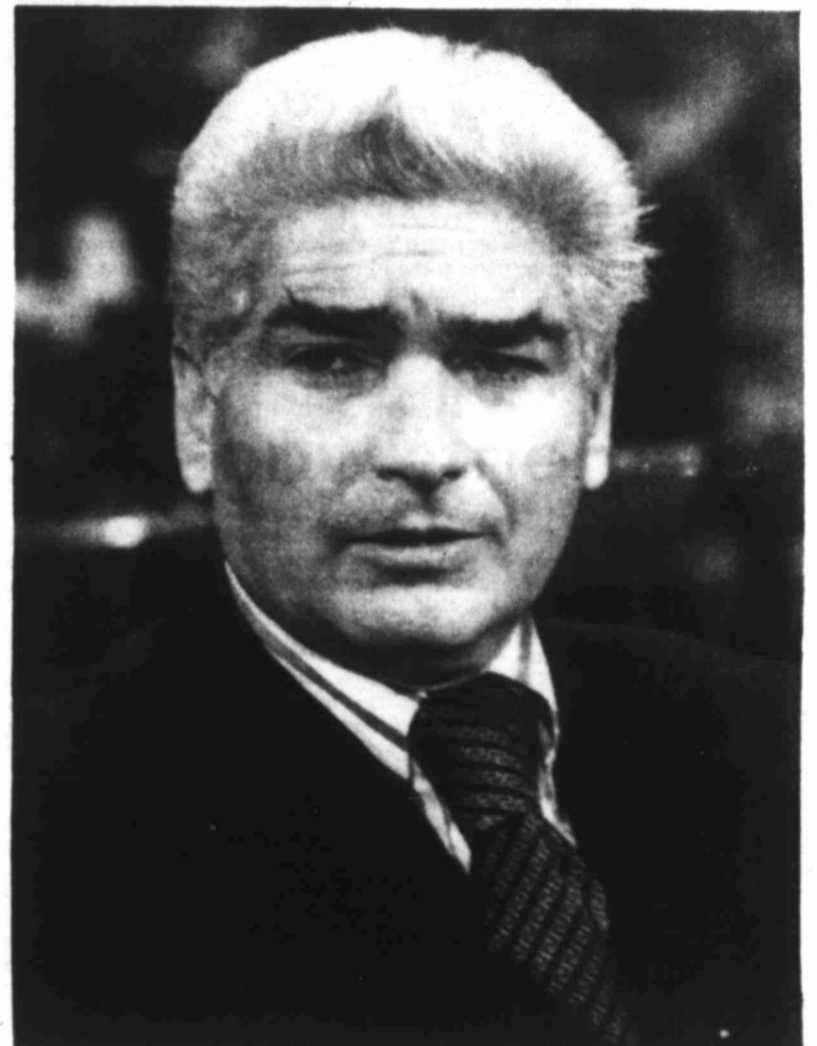

Ambassador William Sullivan ordered the embassy's 20 Marine guards to cease resistance and to surrender with the rest of the staff. They all were taken hostage inside the building.

Khomeini guerrillas rushed to the scene and announced they had moved into the embassy to protect the compound from the attackers. The firing died down for a while then resumed.

Sullivan told a reporter, "Later on, all the embassy personnel gathered in my office and we started phoning out to various people we knew who are connected with Khomeini asking them for urgent help."

He said Deputy Prime Minister Ibrahim Yazdi soon arrived on the scene and "told us we are all safe and our welfare will be looked after under his custody."

A U.S. military spokesman reported one of the Marines and another American were wounded. A nearby hospital said five wounded Iranians were received there, and a press photographer said he saw a body he could not identify carried from the compound.

AMBASSADOR CAPTURED — The American ambassador to Iran William Sullivan, was reported captured today by Iranians who stormed the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

U.S. ambassador to Afghanistan killed in police-Moslem shoot-out

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The U.S. ambassador to Afghanistan, Adolph Dubs, was kidnapped by Moslem gunmen today and then was killed in a shoot-out between his abductors and police backed by soldiers, U.S. officials reported.

An eyewitness said he saw three bodies carried away from the Kabul Hotel, scene of the gunfight, and that one of the two or three kidnapers was reported captured. The gunmen had demanded freedom for three jailed Moslem clergymen.

In Washington, American officials sharply criticized the Afghan government's decision to storm the building rather than negotiate for the life of the 58-year-old Dubs.

U.S. officials in New Delhi and Pakistan gave this account of what happened:

Two or three men driven Dubs' automobile, which was stopped by an Afghan chauffeur, as the ambassador was riding to work at about 8:45 local time. They opened the door and told Dubs they were "arresting" him.

The kidnapers took him to the Kabul Hotel in the heart of the city, took over a guest room and demanded the release of three Shiite Moslem mullahs, or religious teachers, recently arrested by Afghanistan's leftist government.

The government refused to negotiate, and police and soldiers wearing bullet-proof vests stormed the building.

U.S. officials at the embassies in New Delhi and in Islamabad, Pakistan, said Dubs was found dead after the attack. But the Soviet news agency Tass, in a dispatch from Kabul, said Dubs "was found gravely wounded" after the attack and died in a local hospital. Tass also said several of the unidentified kidnapers were killed.

An eyewitness, American Mayer Stiebel of Highland Park, Ill., told The Associated Press he saw three covered bodies carried from the hotel, presumably one of which was the ambassador's. He said he was informed that one of the kidnapers had been captured alive.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter was critical of the way the Afghan government handled the crisis. "The (American) embassy repeatedly urged the Afghan government to exercise patience and to attempt to obtain the ambassador's release without recourse to force," he said.

"The Afghan authorities disregarded this advice, which we conveyed to them in the strongest possible terms," Carter said.

President Carter issued a statement declaring, "The act of brutality... has deprived our nation of one of its most able public servants." He said Dubs' death "redoubles our dedication to the struggle against the kind of senseless violence which took his life."

The embassy here did not know why the mullahs were arrested or how many were being held. "Our information is very sketchy at this point," said Lefkowitz.

Coahoma councilmen approve 11.2 percent gas rate boost

COAHOMA — Coahoma Councilmen approved an 11.2 percent gas rate increase from the Pioneer Gas Company Tuesday night at a special meeting of the council. They had previously suspended the ordinance at a Feb. 6 meeting with Pioneer Gas District Manager Dearl Pittman.

Two other ordinances regarding service charges were also passed. One raised cost of meter setting, gas turn on and turn off costs from $3.50 to $8 and $12 for after five service. The other lowered the distance Pioneer would run gas lines from the main line outside of city limits. The distance was cut from 150 feet to 75 feet. Additional pipe length will cost $2 to $2.25 a foot.

The 11.2 percent increase represents an average for all area users. The overall increase for the Pioneer Gas system is an average of 14.88 percent.

Pioneer representatives met with Railroad Commissioners Monday, winning approval on rate hikes for all residents outside of city limits in the Pioneer Gas system.

Seagraves, Lake Ransom, Floydada, and Forsan city councils also met with Pioneer representatives Tuesday night. All four councils approved the increase uniting all Pioneer Gas users in approval of the increase.

$16 million refund to TESCO customers urged by PUC staff

By JIM DAVIS
Harris-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Public Utility Commission staff says Texas Electric Service Company customers are entitled to a $16 million refund because a 1976 agreement with Texas Power and Light Company was not proper.

A staff recommendation filed here Tuesday would:

—Proportion another $3.59 million refund to TESCO, TP&L and Dallas Power and Light customers because of an alleged improper interest rate increase charged by an affiliate. TESCO's share of that amount would total $1.7 million.

—Prevent use of accelerated depreciation by a service affiliate of the three power companies and thereby lower the fuel pass-through which can be charged customers.

The recommendations will be presented to utility commissioner examiner Phil Ricketts next Tuesday when Ricketts opens a hearing on the relationship of the three companies and other affiliates of the giant Texas Utilities Co. The commission will later make a ruling based on that hearing's testimony and Ricketts' findings.

The 1976 agreement being examined in the hearing involves an exchange between TESCO, TP&L and Dallas

Community center exec post vacant

The city is seeking a replacement for Barry Stephens, manager of the Figure Seven Tennis Center, who was asked by city officials to resign last week.

"We are looking for someone who will develop that community center. The emphasis will be on management," said City Manager Harry Nagel. "I am sure that we have many capable people in the community who could do the job and also give lessons," he added.

The city hopes to find someone with some small business management experience who will live on the premises at the center. For more information, one can call the City Hall Personnel Office.

P&L or ownership of the Martin Lake power plant in East Texas.

TP&L sold Dallas P&L an extra five percent share at book value. Texas Electric got an increase from 20 to 45 percent at book value but had to agree to sell TP&L cheap electricity produced from a natural gas-burning plant.

The refund, estimated at $16,029,338 through December last year, would be for the extra fuel cost paid by TESCO customers because of the low-cost electricity transferred to the other affiliate.

John F. Bell Jr., commission general counsel, said in an interview that the commission does not have the power to abrogate the 1976 agreement but can disallow it.

That means Texas Electric apparently would have to bear the cost of the refund without repayment from Texas Power & Light.

The $3.59 million refund to customers of all the power companies would come from a Jan. 1, 1977, boost in interest charged by the three on advances to Texas Utilities Generating Co.

Americans had been warned by the embassy to stay off Tehran's streets.

The crisis caught Defense Secretary Harold Brown and Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, thousands of miles from Washington on official visits. Brown was in Israel and Jones in the Philippines.

Army Gen. Bernard Rogers, acting chairman of the Joint Chiefs in the absence of Jones, hurried to the Pentagon's command center before dawn for an appraisal of the situation.

Medical center battle under way

The State Appropriative Subcommittee on Higher Education met today in Austin with officials of Texas Tech University to discuss funding for the new Texas Tech Medical Center.

Reports sent to the city today stated that the university requested $500,000 for operating expenses and $1,480,000 for the building over a two-year period. The Texas Tech Board of Regents decided last year to locate the center in Odessa.

Odessa was chosen as a site for the center over both Big Spring and Midland. According to City Manager Harry Nagel, however, Big Spring's desirability as a site has been enhanced by the location of the 500-inmate prison here.

"State Representative Mike Ezzell will meet here Saturday with those who drew up our original proposal, to get information to take back to Austin. There is still a chance, especially with the new prison here, that the choice will be reconsidered," said Nagel.

Valentine's Day hot summer daze

There's a saying in West Texas, "If you don't like the weather, stick around for five minutes — it'll change."

In one week, Big Spring's temperatures soared from a cold low in the 20s Feb. 6 to a hot high in the 80s Tuesday.

If you hallucinated about summer Tuesday, it was with good reason. According to the Experiment Station, a high of 82 degrees was recorded — only three degrees short of a record 85 in 1962.

But no one's complaining.

Clements wages war on drugs

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements declared "all-out war" against drug traffickers and has named Dallas computer magnate H. Ross Perot to command the campaign to eradicate the $7 billion a year illegal trade in Texas.

The governor announced Tuesday the creation of what he called a "blue-ribbon citizens' committee" made up of 10 members that will represent the state geographically.

"I am extremely serious about this situation," said Clements, who said he will issue an executive order to create the committee he dubbed "Texans' War Against Drugs."

The panel will report to Clements, who will make their findings available to several different agencies, both state and federal.

"We feel this (committee) will serve the purpose of rallying behind all of the Texans who have manifested to me they want something done about this drug traffic," said Clements.

The governor said he expects the panel to be privy to intelligence that might not be available to law enforcement agencies.

"It's not a criticism of anyone. I imagine several of you have access to intelligence that isn't available to police," Clements said to participants at a news conference.

Clements, in Dallas to address the annual meeting of the Greater Dallas Crime Commission, assured that group the committee would help "develop an effective plan to combat this menace which, for too long, has taken a terrible toll of ruined lives in Texas and throughout the nation."

The governor, a supporter of the death penalty, also focused his remarks on the proliferation of crime.

"What we're talking about, and what most people really understand, is the desire to walk our neighborhoods at night without being mugged," said Clements. "The desire to return home from vacation and not find our home ransacked or vandalized."

And he said he also was talking about "the desire to operate a business without worrying about when an armed robber will come in ... to park our car at a shopping center and not have it stolen ... to protect our children from illicit drugs ... and to protect women from rapist

Clements recently returned from Mexico, where he held wide-ranging discussions with President Jose Lopez Portillo. He said the Mexican government supports his anti-drug drive and that the United States-Mexico border will be a focal point for the commission's work.

He said he expected no budgetary problems with the new commission, since he expects most work to be voluntary.

Concerning recent speculation that he might be a favorite son candidate for president in the Texas Republican primary, Clements said he hadn't considered the matter. "My plate is full," he said. "I have no plans in that regard."

Clements also said he did not believe reports that President Carter's trip to Mexico this week would include no discussions about energy.

He said Texas is a "natural market" for Mexican oil and gas and that he expected an oil-gas arrangement between Mexico and the United States

Shauna Hill named editor of 'The University Daily'

LUBBOCK — Shauna T. Hill of Big Spring has been named editor of "The University Daily," Texas Tech University's campus newspaper, for the 1979-80 academic year. The Tech Student Publications Committee made the selection in February instead of later in the year so the new editor could have input on the proposed budget. Editors previously were named later in the spring.

Hill said she wants "The University Daily" to be a professional newspaper, reflecting the university and the students. All kinds of news should be reported, but it should be relevant to the students," she said.

Hill currently is working part-time at the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal and worked last semester as a reporter for "The University Daily." She was a "Megaphone" reporter for the Big Spring Herald and associate editor of the "The Corral" at Big Spring High School.

A 1976 graduate of Big Spring High School, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan J. Hill, 1706 Runnels, and a senior journalism major at Tech.

NOTICE TO TELEPHONE CUSTOMERS

We are planning changes that will increase some rates to five countries and introduce a lower international dial rate to sixteen countries.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Company (AT&T) has filed a new schedule of overseas rates with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) which accomplishes the introduction of international dialing to 17 additional countries. This brings the total of internationally dialable countries to 64. The scheduled changes include substantial rate decreases for 16 countries and selective rate increases in 5 of those 16 countries for calls billed on the United States mainland. There will be no rate changes for the 17th country, the Netherlands Antilles.

The decreases are scheduled to become effective on February 17, 1979, and the increases are scheduled to become effective May 15, 1979.

Increases and decreases of rates to five countries.

The increases, which are limited to the initial period rates and are scheduled to become effective on May 15, 1979, will raise the Sunday Operator Station and Person-to-Person rates to Argentina; the Sunday Person-to-Person rate to Colombia; the night and Sunday Person-to-Person rate to Haiti; and the night and Sunday Operator Station and Person-to-Person rates to Honduras and Nicaragua. For example, the rate for Argentina goes from $6.50 to $8.00 for Operator Station and from $9.00 to $12.00 for Person-to-Person; for Colombia, from $8.25 to $12.00 for Person-to-Person; for Haiti, from $9.00 to $12.00 for Person-to-Person; and for Honduras and Nicaragua, from $5.00 to $6.00 for Operator Station and from $6.00 to $9.00 for Person-to-Person. There are no increases in the additional minute charges. These increases will make the initial period charge for these calls the same as the existing daytime rates.

The new International Dial rates, which are lower than all rates presently in effect, will become effective February 17, 1979.

International Dial rates.

With the introduction of International Dial rates on February 17, 1979, customers can save from 10% to 42% compared with the current lowest cost day call.

For example, a three-minute daytime call to Iran, Iraq, Malaysia, Saudi Arabia, Tahiti, Turkey or Yugoslavia, which now costs $9.00 at the Operator Station rate, would cost $7.80 if dialed. Similarly, an $8.10 call to Kenya would be $7.20, the $8.00 call to Argentina would be $7.05, a $6.75 call to German Democratic Republic would be $6.00, and a $6.00 call to Honduras or Nicaragua would be $5.40.

New Operator Station and International Dial rates for countries.

AT&T's proposal includes introducing both International Dial and Operator Station rates to four countries—Bahrain, Belize, Colombia, and Haiti. These rates will be lower than current daytime rates. A three-minute daytime call to Bahrain, if dialed, would cost $9.00; to Belize, the rate would vary from $3.45 to $5.40; to Colombia, from $4.50 to $7.05; and to Haiti, from $3.45 to $7.05, depending on which state you're calling from.

It is important to note that customers calling from areas not presently equipped for International Dial would benefit from the lower dial rates even though the call would have to be completed by the operator. However, if the customer requests special operator assistance or special billing, the Operator Station rate would apply.

Carter vows to listen and learn in Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, vowing to "listen and learn," flew to Mexico City today in search of "a new sense of partnership" that could ease cross-border differences over oil, trade and immigration.

The president was awakened during the night to be informed of the armed assault on the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, but the Iranian developments caused no change of plans for the trip to Mexico.

Carter told a Mexican television audience last week he believes a new relationship has flourished since he entertained Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo as the Carter administration's first state visitor two years ago.

But perceptions are quite different in Mexico, where many officials still feel they are treated as a junior partner of the United States.

What has changed in two years, all agree, is Mexico's economic potential, with its oil resources now calculated to approach and perhaps rival those of Saudi Arabia.

Armed with this economic trump card, Lopez Portillo wants to discuss a possible oil deal with the U.S. as part of a package embracing trade and immigration.

Carter will try to reach an agreement on a U.S. purchase of natural gas, but it would be only a general agreement, said John Ferch, the U.S. embassy's deputy chief of mission.

"Presidents don't talk about prices," he said.

Negotiations for the purchase of Mexican natural gas have been stalled more than a year because Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger balked at Mexico's asking price — $2.61 per thousand cubic feet compared with the $2.16 charged by Canada.

Demonstrators shouting, "Carter is coming to rob us of oil and gas," marched in Mexico City last Wednesday. Police estimated 5,000 people turned out for the protest, called by telephone workers seeking higher wages.

"We are showing our support for the government in its negotiations with Carter," said a marcher.

One sign called for "respect for human rights and workers' rights for all migrant workers in the United States."

At a Washington news conference Monday, Carter said, with illegal immigrants from Mexico in mind, "I want to make sure that when people are in our country, whether they are here as citizens or not, that we protect their basic human rights."

Mexico, with 40 percent unemployment, objects to U.S. efforts to cut the flow of illegal immigrants, estimated at more than 500,000 a year.

WRONG MAN — Nathaniel LaFleur, 48, of Miami, Fla., sits on the bed in a ransacked room following a raid by police officers who kicked and beat the teacher, he says. Police later said they went to the wrong house to serve a warrant.

Houston may become third art capital in U.S.

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas artist predicts Houston will take its place soon as the third major art capital in the United States.

Sculptor James Surls hopes to prove his point by turning guest curator for the Houston Contemporary Art Museum's winter show — an exhibit called "Fire," consisting of one work by each of 100 Texas artists.

"Fire" is a philosophic representation of what the 1980s will be," Surls said in an interview.

Surls said he feels New York and Los Angeles — long the dominant U.S. cities as far as art is concerned — may soon give way to what he calls the Southern romantic impulse.

"While mainstream art has been reductive and abstract, the southern region has been more romantic," he continued. "It's been more human, more personal than a blue line or a red circle or a box on the floor."

Surls said artists are tired of the "cool calculatedness" of the abstract and are abandoning the "intellectual" of the past decade for more humanism and romance.

"I think that at the end of any era, there has to be a new beginning. Nothing just ends abruptly," he said. "We're at a natural time shift, and I think the '80s will belong to Texas. It will come into its own culturally."

"This show won't hail the new art form of the '80s, but it will show its high-spirited, romantic nature," the artist predicted.

Surls, who lives in Splendora and is known for his large-scale wooden carved works, had six weeks to organize the show, a short time for such a big production.

He picked the artists and told each to choose the work he wanted to show. Although the artists are all Texans, the art is not of the regional, cowboys-and-Indians nature usually associated with the state.

"We were not interested in minor, regional art," Surls said. "Most of these artists speak a language of a more universal nature that transcends region."

That doesn't mean some important Western artists aren't included, Surls added. Although not usually among the aesthetes, Buck Schwiertz and Jim Thomas will be in the show. Thomas was named state sculptor by former Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

"I'm trying to cross as many different strata as possible in the show — Western, realist, abstract, ethnic," he said. "This show will present the broad range of our cultural resource.

"Most of the artists will come from Houston — about 40 of them," he said. "From East Texas we will have Velox Ward and Ansel Nunn. Otis Dozier will be here from Dallas, along with a lot of others."

Opening night is Friday, with the first full day on Saturday. It runs through April 16.

Former presidential adviser says

All-out energy effort needed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Former presidential adviser Walt Rostow says the United States has wasted nearly six years while its energy supplies have declined and now — at last — must gear up for all-out production.

Rostow says countries such as Mexico, China and Saudi Arabia have huge crude oil reserves but will not produce fast enough to meet the United States' energy requirements.

General counsel Lynn Coleman of the U.S. Department of Energy said the Carter administration will submit a gasoline rationing plan to Congress within about two weeks.

Rostow, a University of Texas history and economics professor who was the late President Lyndon Johnson's national security adviser, and Coleman addressed the Texas Energy Advisory Council on Tuesday.

The council — consisting of top elected officials — unanimously adopted a resolution calling on President Carter, Congress and the American people to launch an all-out energy effort.

The national effort would include elimination of price controls on crude oil and natural gas; accelerated granting of exploration leases and production licenses in such areas as Alaska and the North Sea; an easing of environmental restrictions; and financial incentives to use more sophisticated recovery techniques.

The resolution was offered by Mack Wallace of the railroad commission, which regulates oil and gas in Texas.

Rostow said the Central Intelligence Agency predicted in 1977 global crude oil demand would exceed production in 1983. The oil crisis predicted for the 1980s, however, "is closer to us" because the revolution in Iran has disrupted oil exports to the United States.

Rostow said Iranian production had fallen in six weeks from six million barrels to 650,000 barrels a day, or merely enough to meet its domestic needs.

He predicted a possible slight decline in 1979 oil and gas production in this country, which would result in the United States' importing an additional one million barrels a day.

Director William Fisher of the University of Texas Bureau of Economic Geology estimated oil reserves in Mexico and China at 60 billion barrels each.

Fisher said, however, Mexico produces only 1.5 million barrels of oil a day, and its goal is 2.25 million barrels by 1980. China produces two million barrels and has a goal of eight million barrels by 1990.

"If the Iranian crisis persists, the world economy is confronted now with the crisis predicted for sometime in the 1980s," Rostow said. He added that even "if the Iranian crisis is quickly resolved, it is virtually certain that Iran's production will not return to six million barrels per day."

"We must now at last face the task of all-out energy production," said Rostow.

Coleman said the mandatory rationing of gasoline is a contingency plan but would require approval of both houses of Congress.

"We see the situation as serious, though not critical," said Coleman. "We're going along reasonably well."

He said the United States is drawing 500,000 barrels a day from its crude oil stocks, but added, "If production is restored in Iran, we might not have to resort" to severe conservation measures.

He said the administration is urging compliance with the 55 mile-an-hour speed limit, less driving and setting thermostats at 65 degrees in the winter and 80 in the summer.

Should mandatory measures prove necessary, Coleman said, the administration is considering closing service stations on Sunday and requiring specific thermostat settings in large buildings, including apartment complexes.

He said more drastic measures, such as gasoline rationing, would be sent to Congress by the end of the month but would be "placed on the shelf for standby capacity."

No dirty bird in backyard

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — There is no such thing as a dirty bird, in Moody Garwood's neighborhood.

Moody has in his backyard a birdbath big enough to accommodate an entire flock at one time. Not only that, the birdbath cleans and refills itself.

The mechanism involves a three-inch piston, a cylinder and a metering tube that controls the rate of lift and return, and water pressure does the rest. "There is absolutely no electricity. Who needs to get electrocuted in a birdbath?" he asks.

Weather

Texans experiencing spring temperatures

By The Associated Press

The calendar said today was Valentine's Day, but the weather was more like late spring or early summer across most of Texas.

Highs were to range from the lower 70s in the northern half of the state to the 80s in South and Southwest Texas.

Forecasts called for skies to be partly cloudy to cloudy over the eastern half and mostly clear over the western half. There was no mention of precipitation.

Dense fog reduced visibility to near zero across a vast portion of the state during the pre-dawn hours. Some of the most dense fog was along the Red River from Childress eastward into Northeast Texas. Some patchy fog was also reported in Southeast Texas and along the coast.

Practicing politics, not statemanship

United States senators can get downright petulant at times. They are members of the most exclusive club in the world and sometimes they are prone to act like it.

When China's vice premier, Teng Hsiao-ping, visited Houston recently, the two members of the upper legislative house from Texas, GOP John Tower and Democrat Lloyd Bentsen, saw fit to exclude themselves from the party that greeted Teng.

THE NEWS MEDIA mentioned their absence only in passing but their decision made both the state of Texas, noted for its hospitality, and the Carter administration look to disadvantage.

The Tower-Bentsen vanishing act becomes even more churlish in light of the feeble explanations both offered for their absences. Bentsen insisted he couldn't break a speaking engagement before the Chamber of Commerce in Waxahachie. Tower begged off, stating he had a strategy session to attend in Maryland.

Bentsen is ordinarily more urbane and gracious than Tower but both were guilty of bad manners.

What the Texas solons did was snub a leader of a nation which could take its place as one of the most influential and powerful in the world. The ideologies of China and the United States are a world apart but we face the prospect of having to try to get along with China. And China seems to prefer the company of the United States to that of another Communist nation, Russia.

China seems certain to become one of America's leading customers, one that could help restore the balance of payments for the United States. The Chinese especially appear interested in the oil field equipment manufactured in Texas.

OUR NATIONAL interest, not to mentioned global policy aims, occasionally require that we seek out friends in unlikely quarters.

Through their actions, the two senators from Texas have made it clear that they put back-home politics ahead of the foreign policy objectives of the current administration.

That, of course, was their own prerogative, but in the eyes of many their image was tarnished by their decision to stay out of welcoming lines for Teng.

Sooner or later, U.S. senators touch every part of call throughout the world. Each develops wanderlust and each travels widely at taxpayers' expense. It's going to be interesting to see how Tower and Bentsen are greeted when they set down at one of the airports in China.

Accuracy confirmed

Don Woods

William F. Albright, eminent archaeologist, has said, "There can be no doubt that archaeology has confirmed the substantial historicity of Old Testament tradition." Contrary to the thinking of many, including my own at one time, archaeology actually confirms the Bible's accuracy, rather than contradicting it.

Albright continues, "The excessive skepticism shown toward the Bible by important historical schools of the eighteenth century... has been progressively discredited. Discovery after discovery has established the accuracy of innumerable details, and has brought increased recognition to the value of the Bible as a source of history."

reason he gave was that the name "Abraham" was a common name in Babylonia in the same time period that the Bible puts him in.

Another reason for accepting the historical credibility of the Bible is that the social customs in the stories about the Old Testament patriarchs match up with the customs of other social groups in the same geographical region and time period that the patriarchs are said to have lived in.

JULIUS WELHAUSEN, Bible critic of the 19th century, questioned the accuracy of scripture on the basis of the mention of the brass mirrors used in the tabernacle. He said that there weren't any mirrors in the period. Since then, however, archaeologists have uncovered evidence of the existence of bronze mirrors from the Empire Period in the history of Egypt. These mirrors are identical to those mentioned in the Bible and are from the same time period, 1500 to 1200 B.C.

Bible critics are often confronted with new evidence contradicting their former stance and the critics are silenced. It's exciting to see scripture backed by scientific fact in the area of archaeology and this article only breaks the surface. Even archaeologists are strengthened by the findings. Burrows said, "More than one archaeologist has found his respect for the Bible increased by the experience of excavation in Palestine."

IT SHOULD BE remembered that Albright's statements aren't related to the accuracy of the theology of the Bible but to the accuracy of the Bible as history. His unbiased posture toward the doctrine of the book really lends credence to the accuracy of its historical statements. And I think the fact of its historical accuracy supports the Bible's statements about God and Christians' actions.

Archaeological findings show that the patriarchs, Abraham and his sons, moved out of Mesopotamia, the same place the Bible says they arrived from Genesis. These archaeological finds trace the origin of the Patriarchs to the Balikh Mesopotamia.

Millar Burrows, a professor at Yale University, said that he believes that Abraham was a historical person. One

Impasse

William F. Buckley, Jr.

The impasse in Iran poses age-old problems of profound political interest. The problem is the reconciliation of several forces. One of these is the existing constitution. The second, the Ayatollah, who is in effective command of the majority of the people. The third is the existing government.

THE CLOSEST parallel in recent times is of course the crisis that brought General De Gaulle to power in 1958. For De Gaulle the question of legitimacy was hugely important. For that reason he adroitly played, with a perfect sense of timing, two forces. The first of these was that of the people, who were overwhelmingly disgusted with the Fourth Republic, a disgust catalyzed by the hideous war in Algeria. The second was retroactive democratic vindication. So De Gaulle waited until the people's will was writ clear and the incumbent governors resigned. He then took office but only on the understanding that he would promulgate a fresh constitution: a brand new republic. Under the proposed republic, whose democratic validation he would insist on, he would occupy the post of president, but the president this time around would exercise formidable executive power.

The Ayatollah is the De Gaulle in the existing situation, with the singular disadvantage of not being a De Gaulle. This one is a fanatic. His tactics are more nearly Leninist than Gaullist. That is to say, he is ruthless in his perseverance, and is prepared to promote civil chaos if necessary to achieve power. There are few indications that the power he seeks, once achieved, would submit to a superintending constitution. The kind of constitution the Ayatollah would consent to live under is the kind of constitution that would give him, so to speak, the kind of power formerly possessed by the Shah: i.e., total power.

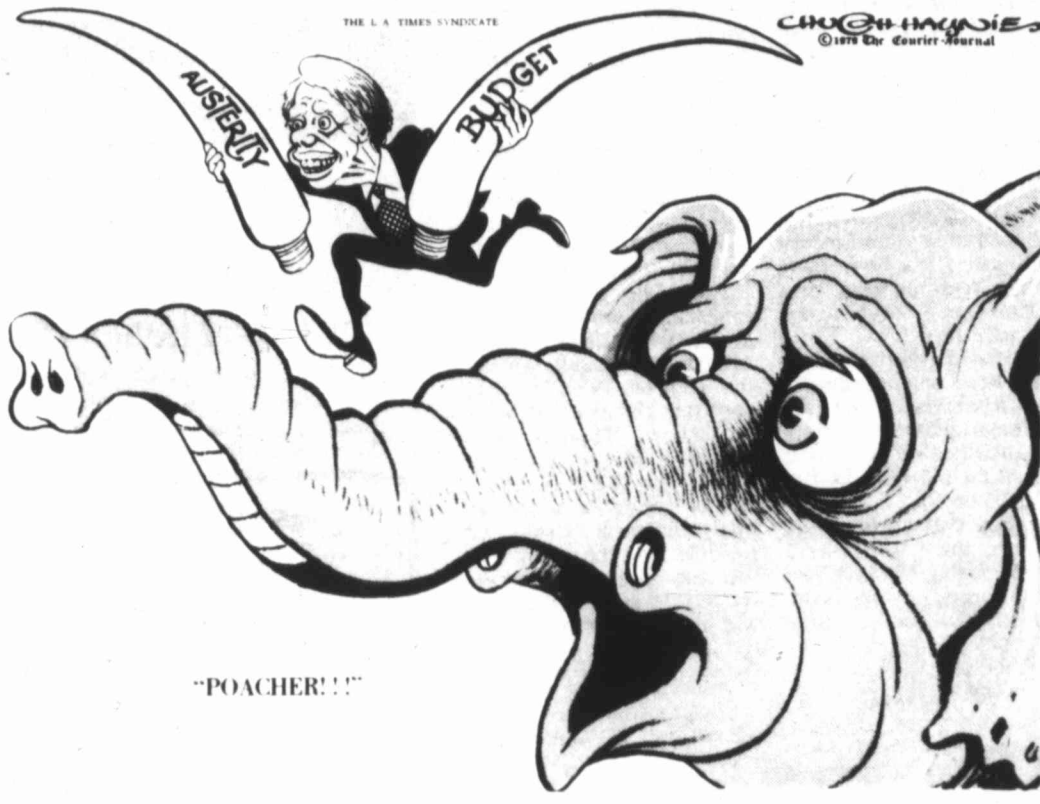

Bakhtiar is the Kerensky in the situation. He is driven (at this writing) to talk about a possible plebiscite. Indeed, under the existing constitution, a fresh premier requires validation by general election within six months. However, Bakhtiar qualifies his offer: he will not call an election in disruptive circumstances. That is to say, he believes that any fresh government needs to be responsibly organized. Mobs do not mediate. Bakhtiar, and all level-headed men, can at this point be certain of only one thing, and that is that an Iran governed by the Ayatollah would in very short order bring on general misery.

What to do?

WHAT WOULD be ideal is what isn't easy to accomplish. That is to turn Iran over to the Ayatollah for one year, and then rescue the country from him. But how? How could Russia have been rescued from Lenin, after Lenin's coup? It is highly unlikely that the Ayatollah would deign to submit to mundane secular restraints like elections.

The army? Armies can be very useful — for instance, in rescuing Argentina from Peron, twice in a generation. But the very first thing in the army those independent and patriotic men disposed to stand in the way of this visionary, whose dreams of a return to the life of the Middle Ages sometimes sounds horribly close to the vision of Pol Pot. Should the army, then, act preemptively? Should it do so at the explicit urging of Bakhtiar?

When one is troubled by profound questions of democratic fury, time is never wasted in rereading the Federalist Papers.

Some tips on bran supplements

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Please tell me how much raw bran I should eat each day to keep my bowels normal. I heard something about three tablespoons per day. Is this OK? I am 74 and my bowels are fair — missing a day or so a week. What I am worried about is overdoing the bran. — F.M.L.

Bran is the outer covering of grain that's removed in the manufacture of flour. Its chief value is in the bulk it provides. Cereal companies coat it with malt, sugar or molasses, mix it up with other ingredients and sell it in grocery stores. However, the bran you refer to, I presume, is the unprocessed kind sold largely in health food stores. It is reasonably cheap and can help keep bowels operating efficiently, especially for those, like the elderly, who may not get sufficient bulk in an ordinary diet.

The usual amount needed is about an ounce a day — a heaping tablespoon. You can mix it with yogurt, fruit, cottage cheese, or anything else you like. No matter what you do with it, look for some increased bulk in stool, also increased movements, and perhaps some gas. When you get used to such changes (perhaps in a couple of weeks) you can increase the amount of bran to suit yourself. A tablespoon twice a day might suit you, and that should be ample.

In this sense bran acts like a medicine and should not be overdone. Any serious blockage — to say nothing of diverticulosis (bowel pockets) or a condition like spastic colon — should be evaluated before launching into any bulk-producing program. Sometimes increased bulk is undesirable.

On the whole, though, I think a moderate amount of bran can be a good idea for older persons, especially, if they become irregular. I should add, though, that many other foods on the supermarket shelves are equally helpful if eaten in proper amounts. These include beans, peas, celery, lettuce and fruits, particularly apples.

Dear Dr. Ruble: About 18 months ago I had surgery for a blocked carotid artery. Since then I have been on a low-cholesterol, no-sugar diet, and I feel fine. Physically, that is,

However, I have also been depressed and can't seem to concentrate very well. I am forgetful and noticed that my handwriting is not as good as it used to be. I am only 55 years old. Is it possible that there was some brain damage done from this? — E.J.F.

Your surgery was to improve circulation to the brain in hopes of preventing a stroke. The result should be an improvement of blood supply to the brain, so it would not result in brain damage. While the symptoms you mention usually mean a deficiency in brain circulation, I suspect it might have been worse at this point without the surgery.

Your low-cholesterol and low-sugar diet is to prevent, as much as diet can, any further circulation impairment. Those substances are among the ones associated with the well-known plaque development on artery walls. You are still young enough to try anything that might help your future circulation. Depression is not uncommon following surgery, but you should mention your symptoms to your doctor. Are you on any medication?

Dear Dr. Ruble: Does dry, non-fat milk contain more calcium than whole milk? What about eggs? — Mrs. K.D.

Dry non-fat milk contains considerably more calcium for its volume than does whole milk. A cup of reconstituted dry milk has between 850 and 900 milligrams of calcium. A cup of whole (3.5 percent fat) milk contains about 280 milligrams. The reason for this is that the processing leaves the mineral in higher concentration. One whole egg contains about 27 milligrams of calcium. Most of the calcium in an egg is in the shell.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I was told that we have hair on our tongues. I am using a peroxide preparation (prescribed) for my gums. I was told that by using this wash the hair would grow and I would end up with a mouthful of hair. Is this true? — D.P.

It's not hair, but tiny thread-like projections on the tongue surface — called papillae. Some antibiotics and some mouthwashes, such as the one you are using, can cause the papillae to become enlarged. This is called (incorrectly) "hairy tongue." You won't wake up some morning with a "mouthful of hair." But if you have mouth discomfort you should abandon the mouthwash and seek dental treatment for your gum problem.

Foreign accounts out of balance

The richer get richer, and the poor get poorer. That old adage applies to nations as well as individuals.

The OPEC nations continue to fatten up while the United States, which has a voracious appetite for oil and the energy it supplies, continues to watch its dollar deteriorate in value.

In short, our foreign trade accounts are afloat in a sea of red ink. In 1978, we used more of it than ever before. During the year, the U.S. compiled a trade deficit of $28.45 billion. Because the value of the dollar continued to go down, American goods became cheaper to foreign consumers.

Imports of oil were down by 6.8 percent, it is true, but still cost $39.5 billion, or $10 billion more than the total balance of payments deficit.

Once again, our most unfavorable trade balance was that with Japan — $11.6 billion.

Two things are needed to pull America out of its economic tailspin — we must cut back on the use of imported oil and we must market more of our products overseas.

Trying to get the country to use less foreign oil might be like attempting to get a lover of the purple grape to switch to milk.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I grew up in a strong Christian family, and have always loved God and trusted Jesus Christ. Should I feel guilty because I can't point to the moment of my conversion? — Mrs. D.M.

DEAR MRS. D.M.: As long as you trust Christ for your salvation and seek to live for Him each day, you can rejoice that you are God's child. There are many strong Christians who had backgrounds similar to your own (including my wife) and yet do not know exactly when Jesus Christ first entered their hearts by faith.

People come to Christ in all sorts of ways. For some, conversion is sudden and dramatic, just as Saul of Tarsus was dramatically converted on the road to Damascus. For others, it may be difficult to pinpoint the moment. The apostle Peter had many struggles before he fully understood what it meant to trust Christ, and he even turned against Christ for a time.

The important thing is not how or when we came to Christ, but that we have firmly come to Him and trust Him for our salvation by faith. At the same time, we must remember that we do not become Christians just because we have been born into a Christian home. We become Christians by personally and individually accepting Christ as our Savior and Lord.

Connally's boast

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Big John Connally, his Stetson dominating the other hats in the presidential ring, has sought to turn his bribery trial into a political asset. With characteristic bluff, he has proclaimed that he is the only presidential contender who has been "certified innocent" by a jury.

He had every reason to believe the jurors would not be available to dispute his contention. Judge George L. Hart, a past Republican committeeman, sealed the names of the jurors four years ago. He has no intention of changing his ruling, he told us, to permit them to be cross-examined about their opinions of Candidate Connally.

The judge defied all precedents to protect the jurors from being "bothered and heckled by the news media," he said. But some court sources suspect it was Connally whom the judge really wanted to protect.

DESPITE THE secrecy, our associate Gary Cohn obtained the sealed jury list long ago. The 12 jurors themselves made a pact never to discuss their deliberations. Nevertheless, we located most of them and persuaded several of them to discuss the historic trial.

It would be safe to say that most of the jurors, who voted to acquit Connally, would not vote to put him in the White House. "Our verdict meant that we had found necessarily that John Connally was innocent but, rather, not guilty based on the case presented to us," explained foreman Dennis O'Toole.

Big John is a vain and vibrant man, with a booming voice, a take-charge manner and a presidential aura. He so much resembles the late Lyndon B. Johnson that some politicians swear Connally is cloned. Like the late president, Connally is loquacious, headstrong, homespun, filled with Texan flamboyance. But he also has the wheeler-dealer image of Lyndon Johnson, who brought him to Washington as an impressionable young man and turned him into a chip of the old block.

O'Toole, summarizing his impression of the trial, told us he heard "a lot of Texas wheeling and dealing." Some jurors expressed concern about the cozy relationship between Connally and the milk producers who allegedly put up the bribe money. A couple of jurors feared this might hamper Connally if he should ever become president.

A lawyer-lobbyist for the milk producers, Jake Jacobsen, testified that he delivered $10,000 in cash to Connally at the Treasury Department. Big John was then serving as Richard Nixon's Treasury secretary.

The FBI established that Jacobsen had visited his safe deposit box in a Washington bank just before his appointment with Connally. The prosecution also produced 35 witnesses who corroborated Jacobsen's story of travels to meet Connally, of visits to safe deposit boxes, of dealings at various banks.

BUT NO witness ever saw Jacobsen pass any money to Connally. And Big John, his voice never wavering, denied that he had taken the money. His able attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, charged that Jacobsen was a liar and an embezzler. Williams tried to persuade the jury that Jacobsen had framed an unsuspecting Connally to save himself.

One juror was influenced by the contrast between Connally and his accuser. She said that Connally always looked Jacobsen in the eye but that Jacobsen looked away. She was impressed favorably by Connally's straightforward manner, unfavorably by Jacobsen's "shady" appearance.

But it was probably evangelist Billy Graham, according to jury sources, who helped Connally the most. The evangelist's testimony as a character witness for Connally impressed some of the jurors deeply.

It took the jurors more than five hours to agree upon Connally's innocence. They sat around a rectangular table in a bare, windowless room. One by one, they expressed their views. Then they took the first vote.

A slight majority voted for acquittal. A few had doubts and remained undecided. Only one juror felt Connally was guilty.

In the discussions that followed, several jurors wanted to review the financial testimony.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

I noted with interest today the editorial "We report, don't create the news," — while on the front page of the same edition, in reporting the proceedings and passage of the increase of water rates by the City, nowhere in such article does Mr. Werrell mention:

(a) Such ordinance was read, the Mayor asked for a motion for its approval, and it was seconded, and then he opened the floor for discussion. If this isn't illegal, it's certainly backwards and lends itself to further discourage interested citizens from appearing before the Council. Then after such "discussion" Mr. Henkel made a motion to increase the water rates by $1.10 (in lieu of the $1.50 in the proposed ordinance), and the Mayor told him there was already a motion on the floor — and it was thus passed. Why have any discussion at all?

(b) I asked Mayor Choate if, as had been the policy of the City in the past, they still transferred amounts from $150,000 to $250,000 from the Water & Sewer Fund into the General Fund, and he said they did. I asked if such transfers were not made, would the Water & Sewer Fund be self-sustaining, and he said "probably so." Therefore, in light of the transfers from one fund to another, they can't actually justify a raise of revenues to meet the raise of charges by CRMWD and the deficit in the water and sewer fund. This is just a way of raising money without raising taxes.

Other than the above it occurs to me that it should be up to CRMWD to supply us with potable water. They raise our monthly rates each year, and our water gets worse and worse. Why should the citizens have to pay $15 million (according to Nagel) for equipment to remove chlorides from the water? If the cost of water from CRMWD to the City went up $142,000 in a 12-month period, what are we getting for our money? What extra costs are being incurred by CRMWD to justify such raises?

So your editorial "We report, don't create the news," — isn't completely untrue — you just "omit" a lot of it that the people have a right to know.

FITTING CONCLUSION — Andrews artists Roland Rose, left, and Delbert Brewster will conclude Big Spring's first Fine Arts Week, Feb. 25-March 3, with a two-man art show at the Heritage Museum, March 3-4. Both noted Southwestern artists, Rose specializes in clay sculpture while Brewster has revived the art of Western scrimshaw.

TEDIOUS WORK — It takes long hours of tedious cutting, inking and refining to produce perfect handmade scrimshaw designs on powder horns. Made by Delbert Brewster, the designs on these horns are representative of the kind of Southwestern pieces he turns out. His work is sold throughout the United States.

By EILEEN MCGUIRE — music and art lovers. Fine Arts Week, a novelty for Big Spring, is beginning to shape up into an agenda of interesting activities for Being planned by the Fine Arts Subcommittee of the Cultural Committee of the Colorado City to discuss firing nine to save funds

COLORADO CITY — The Colorado City city council has approved plans by acting city manager Brenda Tarter to dismiss nine city employees as part of an austerity program to get the city out of a financial bind. Mrs. Tarter will meet with heads of city departments this evening to elaborate on the plan, which she says will save the municipality $4,000 a month. The economy move, Mrs. Tarter said, should bring the city's income in line with expenditures. Mrs. Tarter also gave councilpersons a preliminary budget which she says will hold expenditures to about $1 million annually — about the same as in 1978. She called it a "no tax or service increase budget and would dictate strict economy in administration. Three members of the council have indicated they would favor a tax increase. They are Mayor Marion Bassham and councilmen Rick Perkin and Buddy Hertenberger. The terms of four council members expire this year. They are Jody Neff, Perkin, J.O. Dockery and Hertenberger. The election takes place April 7.

Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, the week of Feb. 25-March 3 will feature a number of artistic interests, including a two-man art show at Heritage Museum. The show is slated for 10 a.m.-6 p.m. March 3 and 1-5 p.m. March 4. On display will be works of art by Andrews artists Delbert Brewster and Roland Rose. Brewster is best known for his revival of the art of Western scrimshaw, a method of cutting, inking and refining designs on non-porous surfaces such as bone or ivory. A perfect design is created only through many hours of tedious work. The methods used by Brewster in producing his jewelry, powder horns and knives are borrowed from the Eskimo, Indian, American settler and the English and American sailor. Each piece of jewelry is handmade and set in an original setting of sterling silver or gold. No two pieces are ever alike. His works, particularly that representative of the Southwest, are sought after and sold throughout the United States. A Brewster knife features a blade of stainless steel and a hilt and butt cap of spun brass. One of his most popular knives displays a scrimshawed design on an Indian Stag handle. Designs used by Brewster in his powder horns might be a trophy mount, copied from a photograph, or something treasured by a family, such as a family crest. He also carves horns, leaving them in their natural colors. Rose, a good friend of Brewster's, specializes in clay sculpture. An instructor in the Andrews Public Schools, Rose says there are three basic steps in his process or creation: observation, reflection and interpretation. Through his sculptures, he attempts to recreate a point of time that was and is observed in rural life. He calls his process "sit for a spell". The two men often display their work together. Recently, they were featured at Andrew's annual Round-up Art Show and Sale to benefit the Buffalo Trail Council Boy Scout Ranch in the Davis Mountains. Together they will provide Big Spring with a fitting conclusion to its first Fine Arts Week.

Acupuncture practiced only by physicians

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court today agreed with lower courts that acupuncture can only be practiced by licensed physicians. It upheld action by the state Board of Medical Examiners putting two Dallas-area physicians on 10-year probation for allowing non-licensed employees to perform acupuncture on their patients. Drs. Raul Baptista Mascarenhas of Dallas and Oliver H. Thompson of Carrollton had appealed the board action, contending acupuncture was not medical practice and could not legally be regulated by the board. A Dallas trial court and the Tyler Court of Civil Appeals upheld the board's action. Without writing a new opinion, the Supreme Court said it found "no reversible error" in the Tyler court's ruling. Citing decisions of appellate courts in New York, Ohio, Oregon and the District of Columbia, the appeals court said, "In our opinion, acupuncture is properly included within the practice of medicine." "By requiring only licensed physicians to administer acupuncture treatments, the board fulfilled its duty to the people of this state to insure as best it can the competency of those practicing medicine," the appeals court added. The board issued a policy statement on Dec. 2, 1974, asserting that acupuncture was the practice of medicine and could be performed only by licensed physicians. In July 1975, board investigator John Richter went to the offices of Thompson and Mascarenhas, faking bursitis. He testified that in Mascarenhas' office, an Oriental woman called Pechi Ping inserted several needles into his shoulder and beside the little finger of his right hand. Richter said he received similar treatment in Thompson's office from a "Dr. Hsu."

Catholic bishops vow vigorous efforts for poor

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — Latin America's Roman Catholic bishops ended their conference setting their policy for the next 10 years with a promise of increasingly vigorous efforts on behalf of the poor.

The document released Tuesday condemned both materialistic capitalism and atheistic Marxism, saying neither is a solution to the grinding poverty of Latin America, where nearly half the world's 750 million Roman Catholics live.

It called for action to end oppression exercised in the name of "national security" and vigorously denounced persecution, torture and other repressive tactics to control the poor and illiterate.

It also called for a return to the church's pastoral role, as demanded by conservatives, but within a larger framework demanded by activist clergy of the "liberation" school. It said the church "will give importance to urban ministry, rural ministry, the importance of the laity, recognize the validity of basic communities, give greater importance to the means of social communication and become involved for the sake of evangelization."

Bishop Nevin Hayes of Chicago said the document "in no way" conflicts with Pope John Paul II's instructions to the conference Jan. 27 when he inaugurated the session at the Palofoxian Seminary on the outskirts of Puebla.

Militant priests and lay people who feared a retreat from the activism generated by the bishops' 1968 conference held a counter-conference in a Puebla hotel but also approved the bishops' long declaration.

"It is doubtful that the military regimes will be able to take advantage of the document," the counter-conference said. "On the other hand, it will allow the church to continue its work in favor of the poor and oppressed."

The conference secretary, conservative Archbishop Alfonso Lopez Trujillo of Colombia, said there was unity in the conference on the document. But an Argentine delegate said the counter-conference's criticism of conservatism within the church was a "mosquito bite" compared to the debate inside the seminary.

The conference, held behind closed doors, ended with a secret vote on the document. The vote count was not released.

LOOSE BALL — Houston Rockets' Mike Newlin (14) with teammate Robert Reid (50) search for the ball as Indiana Pacers' Len Elmore (41) cannot find the handle in the first period of the NBA game played in Houston Tuesday night.

Poss hits 33

Aroused Steers brand Bobcats

SAN ANGELO — The San Angelo Bobcats excited the home crowd with an impressive display of jumping prowess in warmups as more than a handful of the Bobcats repeatedly dunked the basketball. On the Big Spring side, only reserve center John Fleckenstein could manage a stuff. As Big Spring head coach Tommy Collins later said, "We looked more like a Gra-Y team coming in to play."

But the Big Spring Steers, led by Mark Poss, James Cooper, James Magers and many others, quickly dispelled any notions of inferiority, racing to a 22-8 lead at the end of the first stanza on their way to most gratifying 70-57 win over San Angelo in the last game of the year for both teams in boys District 5-AAAA basketball.

It also marked the end of a personal jinx versus the Bobcats for Collins. Collins had previously lost six baseball games to San Angelo by a combined total of seven runs and two basketball games by three points.

The Steers gave the Bobcats a training session on team basketball in the first quarter, forcing eight turnovers with their tenacious defense and converting their opportunities by connecting on 78 percent of their field goal tries. Every Big Spring starter scored in this stanza.

The Steers increased the lead to 28-12 early in the second period before what could have been a change in momentum occurred. Big Spring's Ysa Rubio, who played an outstanding defensive game, was flagged for a technical for faking a charge. Collins arose from the bench to question the call, but before he could the official charged him with a T, also.

San Angelo's Greg Evans sank all three free throws to seemingly give the Bobcats some much needed change of momentum, but it was not to be, as this only seemed to motivate the Steers even more.

Rubio and Poss picked off room at halftime with a comfortable 40-21 lead.

Big Spring remained in control of the game with a 46-27 lead midway in the third quarter when San Angelo began a most physical rally with the aid of a full-court press.

The press did not bother the Steers as much as their inability to score at this time. Poss drew his fourth personal foul with 3:30 remaining in the quarter, and the Steers could not score inside despite numerous attempts.

San Angelo, behind the shooting of guard Darrell Pearson, reeled off 10 straight points to cut the lead to 46-37 with less than a minute remaining. Big Spring's Cooper, who earned his first start because of an injury to Robert Lara, canned a short jumper to break the dry spell and give the Bobcats and 11-point advantage.

San Angelo rallied to within seven at 52-45 early in the final period, but Poss scored five points in a span of thirty seconds with his twisting moves to give the Steers a 12-point lead with five minutes remaining.

Big Spring's Wilbert Grant fouled out at this time, and San Angelo made one final rally, closing the gap to 59-53.

But Grant's replacement, senior Cesar Espinosa, sank four straight crucial free throws off one and one situations, and Poss added two more charity shots as Big Spring iced the game with two minutes remaining.

Collins was then able to empty the benches in the final minute, something that he had not been able to do thus far in district play.

The Steers played their best game of the year in the win. San Angelo had a much bigger team, but Big Spring's 19-8 edge in rebounding in the first half says something for the Steers effort.

Poss and Cooper played their best games of the year, not only in scoring but in floor play. The other starters, Grant, Magers and Ysa Rubio, also ended the season with outstanding performances, as did Espinosa and Tony Rubio coming off the bench.

Besides Poss' 33 points, Cooper hit 12 and Magers 10 for Big Spring. Pearson led San Angelo with 21, with Evans and Ken Sullivan hitting 11. The Steers tenacious defense limited the Bobcats leading scorer, Rene DeLeon, to 10 points.

It was the last game for Big Spring seniors Ysa Rubio, Magers, Grant, Cooper, Poss, John Fleckenstein, Mike Evans and Espinosa.

The Big Spring Junior Varsity suffered a 63-49 loss to a talented San Angelo JV squad.

Mike Domino led the Shortorns with 11 points, while Greg Stephens added 10.

NBA Roundup

By The Associated Press

Phil Chenier was around for the first time in a long time — and he was around at the right time, too.

Washington's veteran guard, who hadn't played in a National Basketball Association game since Jan. 8, 1978, and had undergone back surgery last September, was activated Tuesday, before the Bullets' game in San Diego.

He wound up playing 21 minutes, scoring six points and collecting a pair of assists, a rebound and a steal in the Bullets' 138-136 double-overtime victory over the Clippers. More important, he was in the game when it meant something, playing in both overtimes.

"I didn't know how things were going to turn out. It was nice to be left in at a crucial time," said Chenier. "I still have a way to go. I have to get some quickness back."

Nets 111, Kings 102

When Ralph Simpson moved up the road a piece from Philadelphia to Piscataway, N.J., last week, he also moved up in the eyes of the guy calling the shots from the bench on which he sat.

"I thought I was playing well enough to merit more time, but I'm not one to question the coach," he said of his days as a little-used reserve on Billy Cunningham's 76ers. He spent 16 minutes in action for New Jersey Tuesday night and scored 14 points, eight of them midway in the final period when the Nets pulled away from Kansas City.

Cavaliers 117, Lakers 111

Campy Russell, who is expected to pump in the points for Cleveland, scored 24 of them. And Jim Chones, who is not, went him four better with 28. And they also combined for 26 rebounds to pace the victory over Los Angeles that snapped the Cavaliers' three-game tailspin. Jamaal Wilkes and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 25 points apiece for the Lakers.

Nuggets 104, Bulls 94

Chicago Coach Larry Costello was distraught after the Bulls, with the Western Conference's worst record, lost their third in a row. Costello moaned after David Thompson's 28 points and George McGinnis' 24 topped the Nuggets, who turned a 51-48 halftime deficit into a 75-63 lead in the third period.

Pacers 124, Rockets 120

Johnny Davis hit half of his 28 points in the fourth quarter of the Pacers' first victory ever in Houston. It was also Indiana's seventh triumph in 10 games. The game was tight from start to finish with the teams tied 34-34 after one period and 60-60 at the half and Indiana up by two points heading into the final quarter.

Blazers 120, Jazz 101

Portland, riding Lionel Hollins' 28 points and Maurice Lucas' 20, made it five in a row with its victory over the Jazz, leading from the opening minute. New Orleans, which has managed just three victories in 29 road games, was led by James McElroy's 27 points.

Aggies lose Dickerson SMU signs blue chippers

By The Associated Press

Southern Methodist bagged bluechipper after bluechipper today on South-west Conference schoolboy football signing day, but the biggest shock was applied to the Texas Aggies, who apparently have lost the top running back in the state, Eric Dickerson of Sealy.

Such high-powered talent as backs Craig James of Houston Stratford and Charles Waggoner of Dallas Carter committed to "Mustang Mania" under dynamic Coach Ron Meyer.

Big Billy Ray Smith, a lineman from Plano, went to Arkansas.

Baylor signed bluechip quarterback Kyle Money of Dallas Samuel.

Dickerson, seen driving a new gold-colored sports car and apparently the target of an NCAA investigation, told the Aggies he couldn't make up his mind. There were reports the Aggies were no longer on Dickerson's mind.

James had said he wanted to wait a week but called Meyer after sleeping on it with his decision.

"I wanted to get it over," said James, who led Houston Stratford to the Class 4A state title.

Texas A&M announced 19 signings, including highly sought quarterback Gary Kubiak of Houston St. Plus.

Dickerson under NCAA investigation

HOUSTON (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association is investigating blue chip running back Eric Dickerson, seen driving a 1979 automobile believed to have been purchased by a member of his family.

Bird giving ISU national exposure

The investigation of Dickerson is an attempt by the NCAA to increase monitoring of alleged illegal recruiting practices among member schools. The NCAA has sent staffers out to check on various top recruits.

By STEVE HERMAN

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Indiana State University's rise from virtual obscurity to national prominence in basketball began with the arrival of Larry Bird three years ago. But what happens when the 6-foot-9 All-American graduates this spring?

"A super player always helps your program," says Athletic Director Bob King, who doesn't expect a dramatic backslide when Bird departs.

"Anytime you have someone that good, he's going to draw a lot of attention. Not only from the fans, but from the media as well," said King, who signed Bird four years ago, re-shirted him one season and coached him two years before stepping down because of illness.

"As far as recruiting, we can talk with the best now. We don't have to compete with Bobby Knight or any of them."

"Sometimes, you could have fired a shotgun at the stands and not hit anybody," said sports information director Ed McKee.

King, who came here as athletic director and basketball coach in 1974 after 12 years at the University of New Mexico, inherited a program that had produced just one winning season in the previous four years. Attendance at home games averaged barely over 2,000 in the 10,000-seat Hulman Center.

The caliber of basketball "had been a 500 situation," King recalled. "They had just moved to (NCAA) Division I a few years earlier, and our biggest problem was the schedule, getting a major schedule."

"My first job as athletic director was to get us into a good major league. We were able to move into the Missouri Valley Conference, and this was a big help to our program."

SYCAMORE SURGE — The Indiana State University basketball team rallies around All-American Larry Bird inside a packed Hulman Center in Terre Haute recently for the game that clinched the Sycamores first Missouri Valley Conference championship. Indiana State rose from obscurity to the top ranked team in the nation behind Bird (center).

POSS SHOWS FORM — Big Spring's Mark Poss watches a free throw attempt head skyward in fourth quarter action against San Angelo last night. San Angelo's Ken Sullivan and Big Spring's Cesar Espinosa watch and wait for a possible miss.

Bubba Smith loses suit against NFL

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — "I can't believe this," said former All Pro star Bubba Smith after a jury found the National Football League and two game officials in no way responsible for a knee injury he suffered in a 1972 preseason game played here.

Smith had sued the NFL for $2.5 million, claiming his career came to a premature end because he slammed into a metal sideline marker which should have been removed.

But after two hours of deliberation Tuesday, the four-man, two-woman federal court jury found no negligence on the part of the NFL or game officials Ed Marion and Robert Lastra.

A previous trial had ended in a mistrial when the jury couldn't reach a decision.

The league contended Smith's right knee was injured not by colliding with the marker, but when he ran into Pittsburgh Steeler Franco Harris.

"I do know that I wasn't hit on the field," said Smith, who played for the Baltimore Colts at the time of his injury. "I came down here with the truth," he said as he left the courthouse.

Tony Cunningham, Smith's attorney, said, "I don't know how many more football players we would have had to call in to testify that Bubba didn't come in contact with Harris."

"Harris couldn't remember the play, which was additional proof that no contact was made," said Cunningham.

During closing arguments earlier in the day, one of Smith's attorneys told the jury that the NFL had not produced a single eyewitness who disputed Smith's claim about the sideline marker.

"That stadium had lots of people in it, but they (the league) didn't bring you one other person who said that's what happened," said attorney Roger Vaughn.

Lauderdale, Fla., gets set for the two-handed backhand return against Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia during the first-round action of a $150,000 women's tennis tournament Tuesday in Los Angeles. The second-seeded Chris Evert defeated Marsikova 6-3, 6-3.

Paralyzed athletes meet in Dallas

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — The jockey who electrified the racing world when he rode Secretariat to the Triple Crown in 1974 journeyed to Texas in a wheelchair to meet another former athlete similarly afflicted.

Ron Turcotte, paralyzed from the waist down when he was thrown from a mount, flew to Dallas-Fort Worth Airport Tuesday to talk with Kent Waldrep about the former TCU running back's recent spinal cord injury treatment in the Soviet Union.

Waldrep has been confined to a wheelchair since his neck was broken in a 1974 football game in Alabama. "We kind of struck off a friendship over the phone," Waldrep said. He said Turcotte called him about the Soviet treatment methods.

"He had to go out to California and he wanted to stop here on his way back to New York," Waldrep said. Turcotte and Waldrep had dinner together to discuss their common problems and the Russian treatments.

Waldrep has been an outspoken critic of the American doctors and their methods of dealing with the paralyzed victims of spinal cord injuries.

Waldrep underwent special medical treatments at the Polesovsky Neurological Institute at Leningrad, utilizing enzymes and oxygen, and physical therapy, unavailable in the United States.

And since his return, Waldrep has heaped nothing but praise on the attitude and methods of Soviet physicians he said are dedicated to getting paralyzed patients back on their feet.

Turcotte, who was given a cowboy hat during a reception at the airport, wants to study the Soviet physical therapy techniques to see if they can be beneficial to him.

Spinks to fight Kallie Knoetze

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — He wore a full-length wolf-fur coat and a black derby hat. Gold chains dangled at his throat. Diamonds winked from his fingers. Store-bought teeth glistened in the glare of the lights — rows of ivory that could make a president jealous.

Even with all the trappings, there is a refreshing honesty and simplicity about Leon Spinks, the young Olympic gladiator who beat the great Muhammad Ali for the WBA heavyweight ring title and lost it before the gloves got cold.

He is an intriguing personality, this product of the St. Louis ghetto — uneducated but street wise, bull strong and bulldog tough, a survivor of the neighborhood jungle yet, like Ali, a man who cuts through the thick layer of hype and hypocrisy with disarming candor.

"You are a black man and you are going to fight an ex-cop from South Africa," a reporter told him. "Jesse Jackson (the black civil rights activist) has urged that you don't go through with it. Others are exerting political pressure. Have you thought about how the public might feel?"

"No matter how the public feels, no matter how I feel, if I am going after the title I am going after it," Spinks responded. "It's not a racial thing. It's not a hate thing. It's just that I am trying to make a living. This man is in the way."

Spinks is uncomfortable on a dais, facing a battery of reporters, TV, radio men and flashing cameras, but anyone who can stand up to Ali for 30 rounds should be able to hold his own under the most trying circumstances. The 25-year-old heavyweight was brought out of temporary seclusion by Top Rank's Bob Arum, announcing that Spinks' quest to regain the championship would begin against Kallie Knoetze, the terror of Johannesburg, some time in May.

Opponents of South Africa's apartheid (separation of the races) policy have sought to have the South African fighter barred. Spinks was pressed to commit himself on the matter.

"How do I know?" Spinks replied logically. "How could I feel like somebody I'm not? We are not at war. He is an individual. I am an individual. If you can't fight for a world title, you can't prove anything."

Spinks acknowledged that he had been caught up in the euphoria of his overnight success — from Olympic gold medalist to world champion in less than two years — and he couldn't cope.

Ali to fight Ellis in March exhibition

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Muhammad Ali has agreed to fight an exhibition match with Jimmy Ellis at the Civic Center on March 12 as part of what is billed as the heavyweight champion's farewell tour.

Mike Striar of Millis, Mass., owner of Konkert King promotions, said Tuesday four or five bouts will also be featured on the card. He said he is negotiating with ranking fighters, although no commitments have been made.

Ali, who regained his crown for an unprecedented third time last year, also has signed for five-round exhibition bouts in Hartford, Conn., and Buffalo next month.

Ellis, once Ali's sparring partner, formerly held the World Boxing Association title. Ali is recognized as champ by the WBA.

Holmes to meet Ocasio?

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — If one detail can be worked out, promoter Don King says Larry Holmes will defend his World Boxing Council heavyweight title against Puerto Rico's Osvaldo Ocasio at the Las Vegas Hilton on March 23.

King announced at a news conference Tuesday night that Holmes and Ocasio would meet in a nationally televised (ABC) championship bout if Nevada tax laws can be changed in time.

Holmes has a 29-0 record while Ocasio, the WBC's No. 2 contender, is 13-0. The Puerto Rican defeated Jimmy Young in his most recent action.

Feedlot inventories higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — Feedlot inventories of cattle are slightly higher than a year ago but the bitter cold winter has slowed down the business considerably, according to the latest government figures.

Some 8.73 million head of cattle were in feedlots in the major beef states on Feb. 1, an increase of 1 percent from a year ago, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

Sales of beef cattle for slaughter last month, at 1.89 million head, were an all-time high for February and were up 8 percent from a year ago, the department said.

The report included inventories in seven major feedlot states. Those account for about 75 percent of the national beef.

But placements of new cattle in feeding pens, at 1.59 million head, dropped 4 percent from February of last year, the report showed. Severe winter weather is a major reason for the cut-back.

Although production of "fed" cattle by farmers and feedlot operators has picked up significantly the past year or so — prompted by higher cattle prices and some easing of feed costs — the overall beef supply is expected to decline this year.

Producers have continued reducing herds, and cattle inventories as of Jan. 1 totaled about 110.9 million head, 16 percent below the peak of 132 million four years ago.

Thus, as fewer cows and other "non-fed" animals go to market, the overall beef supply will be down in 1979.

The seven states and their Feb. 1 feedlot cattle inventories included these increases from a year ago:

Arizona, 453,000 head on Feb. 1 and up 14 percent from a year earlier; California, 701,000 and 5 percent; Colorado, 1,035,000 and 6 percent; and Texas, 1,900,000 and 3 percent.

Feedlot cattle held steady in Nebraska on Feb. 1 compared to a year earlier at 1,700,000 head, the report showed.

Declines were reported in Iowa at 1,580,000 head, down 4 percent and in Kansas, which had 1,360,000 in feedlots, down 1 percent, it said.

Howard W. Hjort, the department's chief economist, told a House appropriations subcommittee Tuesday that rebuilding of the nation's cattle herd "is expected to begin this year, but it will take two years or more before the inventory is back to the 1978 level."

Market prices of cattle have been at record levels this winter. For example, Choice-grade steers last month averaged more than $60 per 100 pounds, compared to less than $44 a year ago.

But prices of lighter-weight feeder cattle, while of benefit to ranchers and other cow-calf producers, also are high, meaning that some feedlot operators are thinking twice about replenishing their pens, at least until warmer weather.

New loan to be used

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new loan guarantee by the Agriculture Department is expected to help a North Dakota electric cooperative build a new generating plant that will serve one million people in an eight state area.

The guarantee, for $1.4 billion, was announced Tuesday by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland.

Bergland said the guarantee, handled by the Rural Electrification Administration, was approved for Basin Electric Power Cooperative, Bismarck, N.D.

About 1 million people from 300,000 rural families, farms, ranches and businesses will benefit from the project, Bergland said.

The money, which will be borrowed from private lenders with the USDA agency as the guarantor, will be used to finance construction of the Antelope Valley Station in Mercer County, N.D.

The guarantee equals a record $1.4 billion provided last month to another cooperative in Springfield, Mo., officials said.

More than 100 systems financed by the REA are members of Basin Electric. They provide service in parts of North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and Montana.

Basin Electric was organized in 1961 and is a wholesaler of electric power to the other cooperatives.

Construction of the Antelope Valley facility — which will have two 455 megawatt generating units operated by lignite-fired steam — is about 5 percent completed and has been financed until now by interim loans from the St. Paul Bank for Cooperatives, St. Paul, Minn.

Bergland said the facility is expected to be operating by April 1982.

President of Chad

Ouster gaining force

PARIS (AP) — Premier Hissene Habre's forces are reported gaining ground in Africa's newest war, to oust President Felix Malloum of Chad, and France is seeking a cease-fire in its former colony.

Before communications were lost Tuesday with the capital of N'Djamena, the city of 400,000 was said to be divided into opposing camps and numerous casualties were reported.

Gen. Louis Forrest, commander of French troops in the former colony in north central Africa, was said to be trying to arrange the truce as the fighting moved into its third day.

Chad gained independence from France in 1960. The French government said Tuesday its forces in Chad were not involved in the latest fighting, which it called an internal matter.

Pierre Hunt, spokesman for French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, said France "is only a sad observer to the situation in Chad, in which we have no right to intervene."

culminating a long-standing feud between the two leaders over national policy.

Authorities said the student clash followed arguments over whether to obey a strike call by Habre followers. Government soldiers fired in the air to disperse an angry crowd of students and Habre's men fired on the regulars, AFP said.

Soon after, government forces reportedly attacked Habre's residence with rocket and mortar fire, but he was reported to have escaped and fled the capital. Reports said his troops then took over the hospital and the capital's radio station.

Malloum's residence was not attacked Tuesday, but was struck by mortar fire Monday.

The dispute between the leaders began last year, not long after Habre, a former guerrilla leader, broke with the Libyan-backed northern-based National Liberation Front — FROLINAT — and accepted Malloum's invitation to take part in the government.

When Habre joined the government on Aug. 29, he brought with him a small army of his minority faction in the group that had taken three-fourths of the country during a 12-year civil war.

It's Her Own Affair

DEAR ABBY: A woman I work with asked me if I had ever had an affair. I was dumbfounded and didn't answer one way or the other because I felt it wasn't any of her business.

She took my refusal to answer to mean "yes" — saying, "If the answer had been 'no,' you would have said 'no.'"

Abby, can you suggest a snappy or clever comeback for a question I don't want to answer?

TONGUE-TIED IN TORRANCE

DEAR TIED: Don't feel obligated to provide a snappy or clever comeback for a rude and insolent question. Silence is golden, but not necessarily guilt.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday was our ninth anniversary and my husband didn't remember it. I was heart sick all day. I suppose I should be over it by now, but I'm not.

Dick is a good provider, a considerate husband and father, but he's not at all sentimental. Birthdays, anniversaries and most holidays are overlooked. If the children didn't make such a big fuss about Christmas, I'm sure he'd forget that too.

Last year I tried giving Dick a taste of his own medicine, so I "forgot" his birthday, but it didn't work because he forgot it too. I can't help feeling hurt and resentful. Any suggestions?

DICK'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Yes. Create a festive mood by planning in advance to celebrate occasions. On HIS birthday, bake a cake and invite friends in. Or make plans to go out to celebrate. On YOURS, do the same.

Repeat on Mother's Day, Father's Day, anniversaries and any other day you're sentimental about. If you suffer in silence, feeling sorry for yourself, you have no one to blame but yourself.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the mother whose 8-year-old was sulking because her mother wouldn't buy her a brassiere brought back a lot of memories.

My now lovely 28-year-old (I'll call her Sally) was 11 when she gave me the same fit. A neighbor had given Sally some bras her daughter had outgrown, and I carried on the way most mothers do when faced with that kind of situation. I said, "You don't NEED a bra yet — it's silly. I'll tell you when you're ready for one!"

Then I asked myself a few questions. "Am I just trying to show my daughter who's boss? (I was.) Also, "Who will she be hurting if she wears a bra?" (No one.) And, "How much will it cost me?" (Nothing.)

Then I told myself that I had better save my "absolutely not" for more important things. So, I gave Sally a big hug and told her she could wear a bra to school the next day!

I could hardly wait for her to get home from school. When she walked through the door, I asked if any of her friends had told her how much better she looked in a bra.

Her reply, "Oh, gee, I forgot to wear it."

"THANKS FOR THE MEMORIES"

DEAR THANKS: Thanks for a delightful day-brightener.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Roman festival honors Juno

Valentine's Day, one of the oldest holidays celebrated in the western world, can be traced from a Roman festival honoring Juno, goddess of women and marriage, and the pastoral god, Lupercus, says Hallmark Cards researcher Sally Hopkins. Pope Gelasius, in A.D. 496, ordered that Feb. 14 — eve of the Roman observance — be set aside as St. Valentine's Day in memory of Valentine, a priest martyred on that day in A.D. 264 for refusing to renounce Christianity.

IT'S OPEN SEASON for love as proclaimed by these greeting cards, marking the arrival of Valentine's Day.

A quiz for Valentine's Day

A celebration of love

Valentine's Day is here, that annual celebration of love and affection, when Cupid joins the postal service in dispatching love notes by the thousands.

Today is the target date. It's a day in which Valentine's greetings may be sweet and sentimental, wry, whimsical, lighthearted, gay, happy, funny, warmly nostalgic or wildly romantic.

If love — as it has been said — is "many splendors", its expression has taken a turn over the years. Here is a quiz on love and lovers as compiled from the archives of the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers. Let's see how well you do on matters of the heart.

- (1) Who disputed the notion that "love conquers all"? (2) Who believed that love meant "not ever having to say you're sorry"? (3) What man, popular with the ladies, was known as "Mon Cher Papa"? (4) Who said that love makes the world go 'round? (5) Who renounced a throne for the love of his life? (6) Who was St. Valentine? (7) Who described marriage as a web "fashioned of love"? (8) Love eluded what tempestuous southern couple at the climax of the Civil War? (9) Who became a princess for the love of her life? (10) What sport uses "love" in scoring?
- Answers: (1) Writer Emily Hahn whose book, "Love Conquers Nothing", makes the point that ambition is "forever slamming doors in love's face." (2) Jenny, doomed to die after falling in love with Oliver in Erich Segal's book, "Love Story." (3) Benjamin Franklin, when ambassador to France, as he was known to Mme. Brillou, 40 years his junior, in the late 1700s. (4) The Duchess in Alice in Wonderland. (5) Edward VIII, to marry the former Wallis Warfield Simpson of Baltimore. (6) A young priest, executed in 270 A.D., for refusing to renounce Christianity. He left a note of cheer to his jailer's daughter, signed "From your Valentine". (7) Anne Morrow Lindbergh after her marriage to the intrepid aviator, Charles. (8) Rhett Butler and Scarlett O'Hara whose love, like the estate Tara, was gone with the wind. (9) Grace Kelly of Mainline Philadelphia who joined Prince Rainier and the House of Grimaldi, Monaco. (10) Tennis, where "love" means "zero".

TWEEN 12 and 20

Second fight draws threats

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I am a girl 15 who needs a quick answer. About a week ago, I got into a fight at school and I hit another girl in the nose and broke it.

Honestly, it was in self-defense.

Now her parents are taking me to court for assault and battery. There were no witnesses to the fight. I'm sorry for what happened and I've never been in trouble before. I'm scared and don't know what to do. Please help. — Julie, Weirton, W.Va.

Julie: Your best friends in this case are mom and dad. Tell them what happened.

A schoolyard scrap such as yours will never reach the courts, but still tell your parents what happened.

Dr. Wallace: I always read your column and guess what? I've got a problem for you.

I'm going with a super-slice 17-year-old boy that I love very much. We have been going together for a year now, and I will admit it has been the best year of my life.

My problem is that my mom's fiancé only allows me to see him on Friday and Saturday nights. I would also like to see him on Sunday but the answer is always no.

Mom loves my boyfriend like her own son and we both love his parents.

Do you think I should be able to see him on Sundays? — S.S., Mount Vernon, Ohio

S.S.: I think Sundays would be an excellent day to spend time with your boyfriend and your family once a month and his family once a month in family-related recreation.

That's only my thoughts. — Remember, you mother has final say.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 12 and I never want to go to school again. Yesterday we were playing quiz games out loud in social science and the teacher asked me who was buried in Grant's tomb. All of a sudden my mind went blank and I told her that I didn't know.

My last name is Witt and the teacher said, "With a little more brains, Brian, you'd be a half-Witt."

The class started laughing at me, and I was so embarrassed I almost cried. After class the kids were calling me all kinds of names such as stupid, half-brain and half-bright.

I'm afraid to tell my parents what happened, but I don't want to see that teacher again. What can I do? — Brian, Seattle, Wash.

Brian: The teacher made a mistake. She should not have made that mistake. Share what happened with your parents and have them make an appointment to talk with her.

It appears to me, young man, that a public apology from the teacher might be in order.

Wagon boss selected

Don Henderson was selected by the Colorado City Kiwanis Club as Wagon Boss for Mitchell county drive to assist the West Texas Boys Ranch at San Angelo.

Henderson lives near Westbrook and is accepting donations of any kind for the Boys Ranch. Persons wishing to donate should contact him at 644-2652 or contact any member of the Kiwanis. Donations will be accepted the year round.

First Valentines were expensive

More men buy greeting cards on Valentine's Day than on any other occasion except Mother's Day, says Sally Hopkins, Hallmark Cards researcher. Men buy between 25 and 30 percent of the valentine cards and they tend to buy the more expensive variety, she says.

Colby presents telethon facts

Billy Colby, Regional Director of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, presented a program on telethon to the Board of Directors of the Howard County Easter Seal Society, Feb. 12 at a noon meeting.

The meeting was held in the conference room of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

Colby, from San Angelo, presented an outline showing how a telethon should be carried out and the requirements needed to be met for a successful one. He then showed a film depicting visually what can be accomplished and the effects thereof.

The Big Spring chapter voted to join Odessa-Midland and area towns in their Easter Seal Telethon this year. It will be broadcast over KOSA-TV, Channel 7, in Odessa the latter part of March for 19 hours. Ron Killough is the chairman of the telecast this year.

Gertrude McCann, president, presided over the business meeting. Mrs. Pat Highley had been voted on to replace Mrs. Mary Newell, who resigned as secretary-treasurer, at a previous meeting. Mrs. Highley said that she felt the two offices should be separated because of the workload. The group elected Mrs. Mamie Roberts to the treasurer's post by acclamation. Mrs. Michelle Hunter was appointed publicity chairman.

Members attending the meeting were Larry Bristo, director; Gertrude McCann, president; Pat Highley, secretary; Mamie Roberts, treasurer; Ron Killough, vice president; Michelle Hunter, Callie Bennett; Lynn Hise, Mrs. T.A. Welch, Margaret Barnett, Charlie Merritt and Mattie Wren.

The next meeting will be Thursday noon at the Rehabilitation Center.

Cupid's cookies

How can a group of young cupids be entertained this Valentine's Day? Let the children entertain themselves with Valentine cookie cutters, sugar cookies, decorating utensils and a warm festive atmosphere, says Hallmark party consultant Marie Smith. First, decorate the party area with red and white streamers, Valentine posters and heart shapes. Then set aside another area for the children to decorate the cookies. Use cookie cutters in a variety of Valentine's shapes. A wide selection is available at Hallmark card shops. Give each child two or three cookies and have several tubes of icing available. When the children are finished, let them enjoy one of their creations with a glass of milk and have them take their other works of art home to those special Valentines.

Together we can make it happen!

Democratic convention threat

Clayton shows no concern

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton says he is not worried by a threat that Texas' delegation to the 1980 Democratic national convention will be challenged if the state separates presidential primaries from the regular primary elections.

Democratic National Committee woman Billie Carr raised the threat at a news conference Tuesday.

"If they don't want us, we'll secede," Clayton laughed when asked about Ms. Carr's warning.

The speaker and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby favor separating presidential primaries from the regular primary elections. Hobby's latest plan would set the next presidential primary on March 11, 1978, almost two months before the regular primary to nominate party candidates for Congress, the Legislature and county offices.

This would let conservative Democrats vote for former Gov. John Connally in the GOP presidential primary, then take part in the regular primary elections.

When Ronald Reagan's candidacy drew thousands of conservative Democrats into the 1976 GOP presidential primary, several legislators who were close to Clayton were defeated.

Ms. Carr said Hobby's plan would violate a national Democratic party purity rule by allowing Republicans unrestricted access to the Democratic presidential nominating process.

"And if the different day primary bill is passed, you can rest assured that we will have another challenge before the (Democratic) Compliance Review Commission and, if necessary, a challenge of delegates selected at the national convention," she said.

Clayton said he believed any state should set up its presidential primary system as it wishes.

"If it conflicts with national party rules, the (national) party ought to be more flexible," he said.

He said he doubted attempts to rid party nominating processes of influence from other parties had ever worked.

"I expect we've had mixed delegations before. I don't know how you could ever keep that from happening and I don't know that you'd want to. One year a person might want to be one thing, another year he might want to be something else," Clayton said.

Ms. Carr said she could not understand why Hobby was working for the split primary — "I can't believe he is interested in helping John Connally."

"I really can't understand why Lieutenant Governor Hobby is on this program, because he is a potential candidate for governor. He is being hurt more than any other person in the state by this, and he is going to take the heat from this," she said.

Hobby had no comment.

Clayton was asked if the "different day" primary could backfire on conservatives by handing a large bloc of Texas convention votes to Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., a possible presidential candidate.

Baker AME Church planning barbecue

The Baker AME Church, located at NW 10th and Lancaster Streets, is planning another barbecue for Saturday.

Proceeds from the sale go into the church's building fund. The fund's deficit has been steadily reduced the past several years, thanks largely to fund raising drives of this kind.

Beef, pork ribs or chicken will be offered, as will red beans, potato salad, pickles and onions. Plates sell for $2.75 each.

The meat itself will sell for $2.85 a pound. Phone orders will be accepted. Customers can dial 7-2940. Free delivery is available.

FIDDLE MAKER — David Caron of Dallas does some intricate work on one of the violins he makes. Caron abandoned concert aspirations as a promising young cellist to take up the art of violin making. His instruments sell for $3,000 to $4,000 each and he turns out about a dozen a year.

Violin maker doesn't fiddle around with art

By TERRY LEONARD
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) — Fingers that coaxed Mozart and Bach from stozing now guide woodcutters' tools across aged spruce and maple. But David Caron, a once promising young cellist, still doesn't play second fiddle.

Caron abandoned concert aspirations to become one of just a handful of professional violin makers.

He calls it "fiddle making," but the quality of his craft, instruments that sell for $3,000 to $4,000, can hardly be called fiddling around.

"For me it's an art first and then a craft," said Caron. "For an awful lot of violin makers it's just a craft. They take a pattern that came from someone else and try to duplicate it.

"I do it to please myself. If I did it to please everybody else I would go crazy."

But if Caron steps to the beat of a different drummer, he does so in tune with some of classical music's giants.

Elmar Oliveira, the first American gold medalist in Moscow, played a Caron violin in concert for nine months.

"He finally returned it because he decided the shoulder was too square. But he ordered a matched violin and viola," said Caron.

And Ruggiero Ricci, who he said "fiddle players consider a minor diety," also has drawn his bow across a Caron instrument.

Economics more than art lured Caron from the concert hall to a sunlit workbench in his north Dallas home.

"Even a very good cellist was out of work alot. A symphony season usually lasted 20 to 24 weeks, so everybody had a second job," said Caron.

"I thought repair would be a good job since I already was handy with wood."

From instrument repair, "fiddle making" was just a natural progression for the Chicago native working under the guiding eye of Vienna-trained violin maker Franz Kingburg.

It took three years for Caron, 37, to finish his first violin. And now, 17 years, later he turns them out at the rate of a dozen a year.

"Assuming you know how to make a good violin, there are three basic things you need," Caron explained. "Very good wood, which is hard to find, a good design and a good varnish."

"A minor change in the arching or the hardness of the wood causes a large change in the sound. A good fiddle maker is supposed to know this — most of them don't."

Caron has an artist's eye, a craftsman's feel for the wood, a musician's ear for its resonance, a gypsy's zeal for the violin and a surgeon's dexterity.

Using tiny planes and chisels he carves the components to an exact thickness and applying his experience and knowledge hones the precise sound he wants for each violin.

"Changes in the top alter the basic sound, changes in the back adds color or timbre," explained Caron.

"I know how my customers play and I make each instrument to suit that person. I once had six of my customers together at one time.

Popeye Valentine special airs today

NEW YORK (AP) — "I yam what I yam an' tha's all that I yam!"

Peel away the celluloid exterior, the extraordinary image of a one-eyed, banananoosed, corn-cob pipe-smoking sailor man, and meet Jack Mercer.

Mercer, in 45 years, has done as much with his voice to establish this bit of popular American history called "Popeye" as any man living or dead. He remembers the beginning this way:

"I was working at Fleischer's as an in-between. You know what that is: the animator would do the extremes of the action and the in-between filled in the rest.

"For my own amusement, I'd do the voices for the characters I was doing, chickens and so on (and he imitates). They'd introduced 'Popeye' about this time, someone else doing the voice.

"Well, somebody heard me doing 'Popeye' and suggested I audition for the part. I didn't think I could do it.

"But I kept trying, and one night at home, I hit this peculiar tone, way down, and I said, 'My God, I've got it!'"

That was 1934, and Mercer has been "Popeye" ever since — more than 500 short films for Max Fleischer, King Features Syndicate and, now, Hanna-Barbera.

His latest, "The Popeye Valentine Special: Sweethearts at Sea," will be Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. EST on CBS.

Elzie Segar's "Popeye" will be 50 years old later this month, one of the world's most popular and enduring cartoon characters.

"Popeye" was introduced in Segar's "Thimble Theater" Feb. 17, 1929, "a comic forerunner of 'Superman,'" says Jerry Robinson in his book, "The Comics." "He dives out of planes and lands safely on his ample chin; impervious to bullets, he calmly coughs them up if shot in the chest; knocks out gorillas, human and otherwise; and lifts houses and most anything else."

"This was a time when prizefighting was popular," Mercer recalls, "and 'Popeye' was a hard character. I wanted a tough guy, but I didn't want him to be belligerent.

"The first guy who'd done the voice, he was kind of gruff," Mercer says. "I lightened it up a bit, made him sort of a comedian rather than a rough-tough sailor.

"Everyone asks me why he's stayed so popular," Mercer says. "It seems that can be answered by saying he's an unusual hero, a champion, always saving unfortunate 'Olive Oyl' from 'Brutus.'"

Fleischer produced 234 "Popeye" films in 25 years, and King Features, which has owned the character through the years, did 220 between 1960 and 1962. Hanna-Barbera leased "Popeye" for 64 shorts and the Valentine special, all done in the last year.

Federal government pressure

Dentists slow to compete

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Dentures $129 each. Free consultation. All insurance programs accepted."

The price quoted in the advertisement by a Silver Spring, Md., dentist is hundreds of dollars lower than is usually charged by suburban Washington dentists for dentures.

The newspaper ad is one of a growing number across the country quoting prices for dental work. Dentists, under pressure by the federal government, are slowly moving to competition over prices, and the result is that consumers can shop for low-cost dental work.

The American Dental Association, slapped in 1977 with a Federal Trade Commission price-fixing charge, has been moving to lower its restrictions against advertising by dentists.

The association, which represents most of the nation's dentists, first removed a bar on membership to anyone who advertised his prices. Then, last fall, the ADA changed its code of ethics to say it was acceptable for dentists to advertise their fees.

Local dental boards in many areas have joined the movement by ending legal prohibitions on dental advertising.

Now the FTC and the ADA are ready to settle the two-year-old case. The government and dental association lawyers have agreed in principle to settle out of court, sources on both sides say. The terms, which have not been revealed, are still subject to approval by the five-member commission.

The original FTC complaint said the ADA restricted competition among dentists by declaring price advertising to be unethical.

ADA officials feel the change in the ethical code makes the case moot. FTC lawyers don't agree with this, indicating that settlement in the case may make the dental association go still further in encouraging advertising.

Price advertising by dentists is one of a variety of areas where the government is trying to promote competition among professionals. In 1975, the Supreme Court prohibited bar associations from setting minimum fees. The same year the FTC brought a case against the American Medical Association on price advertising. The FTC won a victory in the AMA case last year but the decision is on appeal.

Since the 1975 Supreme Court decision and another in 1977 on price advertising by lawyers, low-cost legal clinics have proliferated. In these clinics, relatively simple cases such as uncontested divorces have been handled at a fraction of what they used to cost.

While almost all physicians still resist price advertising, dentists are seen by some observers as more likely to advertise prices. Most dental work is elective, meaning consumers will probably comparison shop for it than in the case of a medical emergency.

However, there remains strong resistance in dental groups, as with other professions. They fear misleading salesmanship that may be in poor taste.

Dr. Montague Cashman, secretary of the District of Columbia Board of Dental Examiners, said most dentists resent advertising. "It's against tradition. It's unbecoming to the conduct of a professional man," he said. "We just don't feel you should get your patients by advertising your fees."

Consumer groups disagree, saying professionals should compete a step they feel will lead to lower fees. Price advertising will allow consumers to shop for professional services just as they do for specials at grocery stores, consumer advocates argue.

A small number of professionals agree, including Dr. Daniel Lee Maloof, the Silver Spring, Md., dentist who advertised his prices for dentures and other services.

"I used to charge $300 for those dentures that I now advertise for $129. I make more money by charging less and seeing more people. I don't sit around as much as I used to," he said.

"Some dentists will charge $200 for some work and then sit around for a while. I might charge $100 and see one patient after another," Dr. Maloof said. "I make almost twice as much as I used to but I work harder, too."

Dr. Maloof, who said he was the first dentist to advertise prices in Maryland, has had his problems with dentists that he undersells. "A case against me was taken to the (state) attorney general, but he found in my favor," he said.

He said he also cuts costs by buying his supplies in greater bulk and by running a no-frills office. "We don't have 10 girls running around or any fancy waiting room."

In Chicago, Pete Goulding, spokesman for the ADA, said price advertising "has broken out in pockets, mainly on the East Coast and the West Coast." He said dentist advertising is most frequent in California because it has been legal there for years.

"We now are seeing more clinics and group practice. Dentists are forming group practices in places like Sears stores and discount stores," Goulding said. "The movement toward advertising is leading to changes in the way dentists practice."

Nevada residents worry about radiation dosage

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Nearly 4,300 sheep grazing downwind from Nevada nuclear tests died in the spring of 1953 after absorbing up to 1,000 times the maximum amount of radioactive iodine allowed for humans, government documents show.

"If that happened to sheep out here, what about the people that lived in Cedar City, who got a higher dose?" said Michael Zimmerman, a member of Gov. Scott Matheson's radiation committee, which released the papers Tuesday. Cedar City, Utah, is about 100 miles east of the test site in neighboring Nevada.

The 400 documents — most of them from the federal government — were released the same day the Desert News revealed a study concluding that southern Utah children born during the 1950s nuclear tests have died from leukemia 2½ times more often than those born before and after the tests.

Zimmerman told reporters that some of the documents show radiation contributed to the sheep deaths. Despite evidence of high levels of radiation exposure however, he said, the Atomic Energy Commission concluded in late 1953 that radiation had not actually caused the sheep deaths.

Zimmerman said the documents indicate "a willful refusal" by the AEC to investigate the deaths and to determine if high radiation levels may also have affected human health.

Between March 17 and June 4, 1953, the AEC conducted 11 atmospheric nuclear tests at the Nevada Test Site, according to the documents. Such tests ended in 1962.

The documents, discovered in the state archives late last year, show that Utah ranchers in November 1952 placed about 18,000 sheep on winter grazing land in Lincoln County, Nev. The grazing areas were between a few miles and about 120 miles north and east of Nevada Proving Grounds borders.

When the sheep were returned to Utah in the spring of 1953, ranchers noted many were sick and dying. Ewes had spontaneous abortions and showed burn-like lesions on the face, neck and ears. The majority of lambs were born dead and stunted, and ewes died either during lambing or within a few days, the documents show.

A U.S. Public Health Service report said that June 9 autopsies on two ewes showed the concentration of iodine 131 in their thyroid glands "exceeds by a factor of 250 to 1,000 the maximum permissible concentration of radioactive iodine for humans."

Carter's administration

Loyalty still the rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — With President Carter, as with his predecessors, the bottom line is loyalty to the administration once the president has set its course. Presidents never have taken kindly to public disclosure of the private debates that shape policy, or to public dissent within the official family. "Once I make that decision, I expect my policy to be carried out, with loyalty and with enthusiasm," Carter said Monday.

Enthusiasm may be a bit much to expect from an aide who has seen his counsel rejected, but a president certainly is entitled to expect loyalty from his advisers even if they don't agree with something he has decided to do.

In that situation, loyalty can simply mean silence. All of this came up after Carter lectured his top aides in three White House meetings, telling them to be careful what they say to reporters.

Carter was quoted as saying that "those of us in responsible positions ought to be very careful about making public comments which could contribute to a misapprehension about what our policy was."

The subject is a difficult one because Richard M. Nixon gave confidentiality a bad name by invoking national security and the privacy of White House conversations in the attempted Watergate cover-up.

But the excesses of the Nixon administration don't change the fact that a president couldn't function if everything he and his staff said to each other was available for publication.

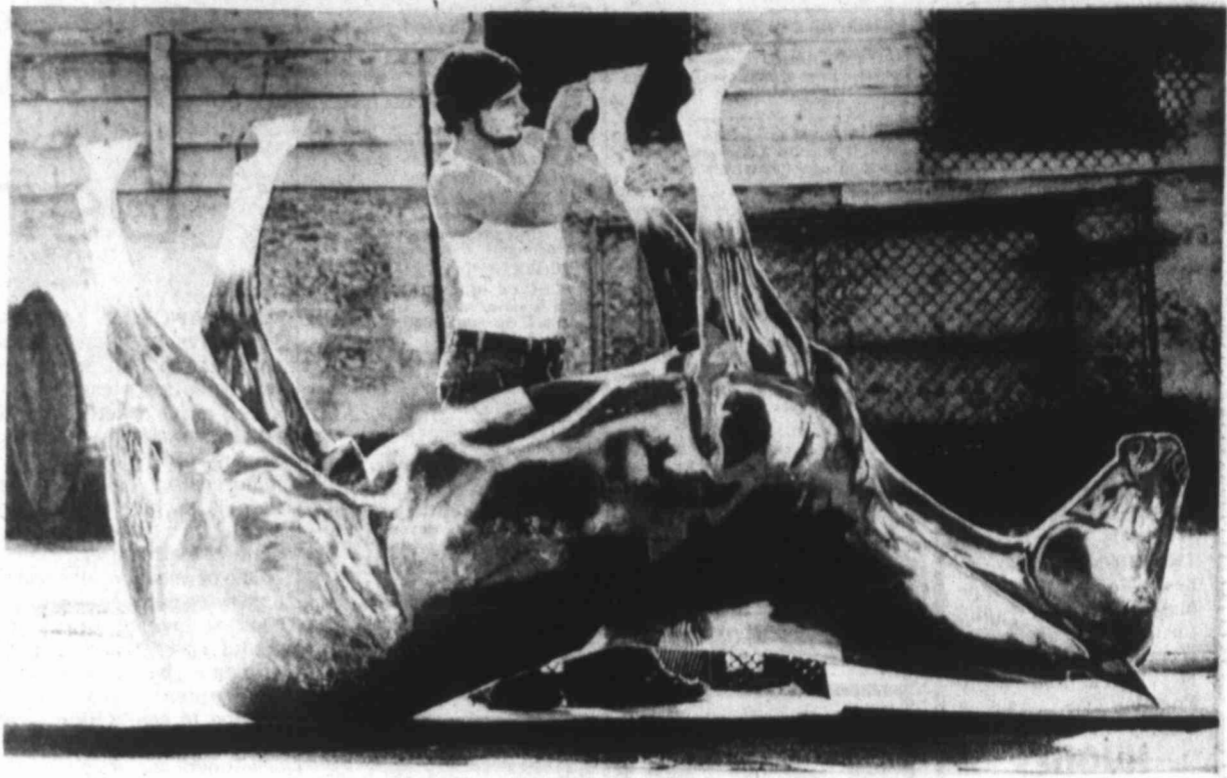

Carter came to office promising an open administration, and suggesting at one point that even the meetings of his Cabinet might be open to coverage by newsmen. He dropped the latter idea, but not the commitment to openness.

The question becomes how open. An administration in which every adviser was free to recount every conversation would be a free-for-all in which debate would substitute for policy.

Carter said he never told his aides to stop talking to reporters. "I do, however, have to insist upon a degree of teamwork once a decision is made that relates to a sensitive issue, like the Middle East, or like SALT negotiations or like the relationships with Iran in recent months," he said at his news conference. "That's what I have admonished them to do, to have a free expression of opinion and to let me have their individual opinions up to the time that I make a decision. Once I make a decision, to comply with it."

Carter said he wasn't ordering his advisers to clam up, but neither was he issuing "a blanket permit" for his aides to express publicly their personal views on his policies.

'From here to eternity' Eternity'

Movie remake better

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There's a television remake of a movie classic tonight that is not a cheap, clumsy embarrassment. In fact, it's good, and in many ways better than the original.

"From Here to Eternity," a six-hour mini-series beginning tonight on NBC, is not so much a remake of the 1953 Montgomery Clift-Deborah Kerr-Burt Lancaster film as it is a new version of the James Jones novel.

Curiously, Jones' novel of passion, principles and infidelity seems better suited for a 1979 television adaptation than it was for a theatrical film adaptation 26 years ago. It is a story of lust and physical and emotional cruelty in the Army just prior to World War II, themes that Hollywood had to skirt back in the 1950s.

Contemporary television, though, has shown itself adept at steamy, suggestive productions. True, these are usually trashy, "soft porn" numbers; but in this case, the story requires a kind of restrained titillation, more suggestive than was allowed in the movies 26 years ago, less explicit than would be allowed in the movies today.

It's an approach television uses all the time, though usually on behalf of less worthy causes.

William Devane is a little too loud and a little too smug in Burt Lancaster's role, Sgt. Milt Warden, but Devane has an inner appeal as an actor that can make you overlook the shortcomings of his performance.

Steve Railsback is fine in the pivotal role of Pvt. Robert E. Lee Prewitt, the principled small-town kid who refused to box because he once blinded an opponent. Railsback, who was brilliant as Charles Manson in the TV movie "Helter Skelter" a couple of years ago, lacks Montgomery Clift's palpable air of mystery, but then, so does every actor. A strong performance here.

Peter Boyle is perfect as Fatsio Judson, the sadistic sarge who runs the stockade, a horrifying den of meanness. The stockade scenes, by the way, constituted one of the key sections of the book, consuming one third of the text. But the stockade was not seen in the original movie because of Army objections.

Then there is Natalie Wood. If cars aged like this, there'd be no such thing as depreciation. At 40, she is more beautiful and sensuous than she was 10 years ago, and more polished an actress.

She plays Karen Holmes, the fetching wife of a jackass Army captain, who drums out the hatred in her bitter life with a torrid affair with Sgt. Warden. The relationship is handled nicely; erotic, but not pornographic.

One of the strengths of this TV version of "From Here to Eternity" is that it is more than reasonably true to the text and spirit of Jones' novel, which the first film version was not.

Pipelining forecast bright during 1979

The most active year in the history of pipelining is forecast for the next 12 months, according to the recently published "Worldwide Pipe Line Outlook — 1979 and Beyond" issued by Pipe Line Industry magazine.

Editors of the Houston-based international trade magazine estimate that global pipe line construction in 1979 will reach a record 39,548 miles, up 19.4 percent over last year. These figures exclude U.S.S.R. and People's Republic of China construction estimates.

U.S. construction is expected to total 7,845 miles, an increase of 12.9 percent over 1978. Increases in gas transmission and gas gathering pipe line mileage account for the higher U.S. 1979 construction forecast.

The Pipe Line Industry editors' long range projections for the next seven years (1979-1985) indicate more than $30 billion will be spent in the U.S. and Canada on cross-country lines, with the U.S. spending $15 billion of that amount. At least $100 billion has been, or will be, allocated for pipe lines and related facilities in other countries.

These predictions are based on Pipe Line Industry's annual survey of more than 300 companies. Pipe Line Industry, published monthly by Gulf Publishing Company in Houston, has circulation throughout the world.

Alaska the highest

Kansas has lowest jobless rate in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kansas had the lowest unemployment rate and Alaska the highest jobless rate among the 50 states at the end of 1978, the federal government reports.

Unemployment estimates released this week by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed that Kansas had a jobless rate of 2.7 percent in December, while unemployment in Alaska stood at 11.4 percent.

Nationally, the unemployment rate was 5.8 percent in December. However, the national figure is adjusted for seasonal variations in employment patterns, while the state figures are not. Thus, state jobless rates cannot be compared directly to the national rate.

Kansas was among eight states with unemployment rates estimated to be under 4 percent at the end of 1978. The others were South Dakota, 3.0 percent; Nebraska, 3.1; Oklahoma, 3.2; Wyoming, 3.5; New Hampshire, 3.6; Utah, 3.7, and Minnesota, 3.9.

Ten other states besides Alaska had unemployment rates of 6.5 percent or more. They were Arkansas, 7.8; Hawaii, 7.2; New Jersey, 6.9; Michigan and Washington, 6.7; Mississippi and New York, 6.6, and Idaho, Oregon and West Virginia, 6.5.

The government said jobless rates declined from December 1977 levels in 34 states, rose in 12 states and remained unchanged in four states.

The states where unemployment rates rose were Alaska, Arkansas, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, North Dakota, Tennessee, Virginia and Wisconsin. Unchanged were Maryland, New Jersey, South Dakota and Texas.
