Chinese launch 'large scale war' on Vietnam

TOKYO (AP)— Chinese infantry units backed by artillery, tanks and fighter planes launched a "large scale war" against Vietnam on Saturday, crossing the Sino-Vietnamese frontier along a 450-mile front after shelling densely populated villages near the border, Radio Hanoi reported.

Peking's official Hsinhua news agency confirmed the fighting but called it a "counterattack to defend the country's borders" against repeated "armed incursions" into China by Vietnamese forces.

"After counterattacking the Vietnamese aggressors as they deserve, the Chinese frontier troops will strictly keep within the border of their own country," Hsinhua said. "We believe this Chinese position will enjoy the sympathy and support of all the countries and people who love peace and uphold justice."

Radio Hanoi said Vietnamese troops "fought back and killed many Chinese, destroying many tanks," but did not mention the size of the Chinese invasion force.

In a dispatch from Bangkok, Japan's Kyodo news agency quoted a Thai military source as saying Vietnam has about 100,000 troops on the Chinese border while China had concentrated 200,000 men and 700 warplanes along the frontier.

Kyodo, quoting an unnamed Chinese government source, said China had not declared war on Vietnam.

The Soviet Union, which signed a mutual defense pact with Hanoi last year, reported the Chinese invasion in its official press but there was no indication it would go to Vietnam's defense. Moscow warned Peking on Feb. 8 against "overstepping the forbidden line."

The broadcast said Vietnam had asked the U.N. Security Council to "intercede and stop the Chinese invasion immediately."

Late Saturday, Vietnam called on Moscow to "support and provide assistance to the Vietnamese people in the defense of their country."

Vietnam and China have been involved for the past year in escalating border skirmishes that started in response to Peking's claims that ethnic Chinese were being mistreated in Vietnam. The border fighting has intensified since the first of the year because of a Vietnamese-led invasion of Cambodia in which the Chinese-backed government in Phnom Penh was ousted and replaced by pro-Vietnamese Communist rebels.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the United States had called for the Chinese to withdraw from Vietnam immediately and urged restraint to keep the conflict from spreading. He also said Vietnamese troops should withdraw immediately from Cambodia.

"... We are opposed both to the Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia and to the Chinese invasion of Vietnam," he said.

He said the United States has been in contact with China, Vietnam and the Soviet Union, urging restraint by each nation.

Vietnam said the Chinese attacks were mounted along "the whole of the Vietnamese-Chinese frontier," from Lang Son, near the Gulf of Tonkin in the east, to Lai Chau, near Laos, in the west.

The Soviet news agency Tass said "fierce fighting is going on in all places" in Vietnam and that the Chinese attacked from "14 directions." Tass published a Vietnamese statement that said the Chinese were "deep in the territory of Vietnam" and had captured more than a dozen Vietnamese towns and villages.

Radio Hanoi said the Chinese invaders had "caused heavy losses to the property and life of the Vietnamese people" and that Vietnam's army "fought back in self-defense." It said the Chinese penetrated more than 30 miles in some areas and inflicted "heavy casualties" on the Vietnamese defenders.

Kyodo quoted a Western military source in Peking as saying the Chinese invasion apparently was aimed at seizing part of Vietnam's northern territory that Peking claims belongs to China.

Hsinhua, however, said China does "not want a single inch of Vietnamese territory, but neither will we tolerate wanton incursions into Chinese territory. All we want is a peaceful and stable border."

The Chinese government issued a demand for Vietnam to "at once cease all incursions and all acts of provocation and sabotage in Chinese border areas, withdraw all their armed personnel from Chinese territory they have illegally occupied and respect China's sovereignty and territorial integrity."

China proposed "that the two sides speedily hold negotiations at any mutually agreed upon place between representatives of an appropriate level" to "ensure peace and tranquility along the border..."

Kyodo said in a dispatch from Peking that the Chinese Communist Party had formally decided on Wednesday to launch the "attack of self defense" and that the decision was approved by all members of the Standing Committee of the National Peoples' Congress. It said all Chinese troops were put on battle alert Friday.

The Chinese supported the North Vietnamese communists against the U.S.-backed South Vietnamese government in the Vietnam War. But old border and ethnic tensions between the two countries flared anew after the North Vietnamese toppled the Saigon government and reunited the country in 1975.

U.S. calls for withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States called on Peking Saturday to withdraw its invading army from Vietnam, adding that it deplores both the Chinese action and the recent Vietnamese thrust into Cambodia.

Within hours of the receipt here of news accounts of the Chinese penetration of Vietnamese territory, the State Department contacted China and Vietnam, said department spokesman Hodding Carter.

At a hastily called midday briefing, he announced that the United States has urged Vietnam to withdraw its forces from Cambodia, a Chinese ally. Spokesman Carter also said the United States has urged restraint on the Soviet Union, an ally of Vietnam.

Rhodesians blast guerrilla camps

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesian warplanes streaked into neighboring Zambia at dawn Saturday, blasting black guerrilla camps five days after the guerrillas shot down a civilian airliner.

A Rhodesian military spokesman denied the raid was in retaliation for the crash last Monday near the Zambian border of an Air Rhodesia civilian airliner, and said the raid was "... part of a continuing operation which will continue as and when necessary."

All 59 aboard the airliner died. On Wednesday, guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo claimed his guerrillas downed the four-engine Viscount turboprop.

But many Rhodesians saw the raids as retaliation.

The screech of the returning jets interrupted a memorial service at a Salisbury police chapel for crash victims. Some of the 150 mourners scrambled to windows to catch a glimpse of the brown-and-green camouflaged aircraft.

"We knew that retribution was being exacted," a relative of one of the victims said later. "It made us much less sorrowful."

The four-sentence communique gave few details. It said Rhodesian jets carried out "a number of strikes" against guerrilla bases near Livingstone, which is near the Zambian side of scenic Victoria Falls between Zambia and Rhodesia.

"Recent intelligence showed that a buildup of terrorists was taking place preparatory to infiltrating into Rhodesia," the communique said.

The communique said all the Rhodesian planes returned safely. The latest raids were expected after Monday's airliner crash, the worst aviation disaster in Rhodesian history.

Zambia, formerly Northern Rhodesia, became independent in 1964. Rhodesia unilaterally declared its independence from Britain the next year rather than give way to black majority rule. The government of Rhodesia is not recognized by any foreign government.

Last September, Nkomo, leader of the Zimbabwe African People's Union, claimed responsibility for downing another Rhodesian airliner with a Soviet-made SAM-7 missile.

Summit's low expectations fully realized

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's 48-hour summit with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo can be counted a success: low expectations were fully realized.

Carter knew before flying to Mexico City Wednesday that there was no realistic hope of resolving, in such a brief visit, such long-festering, cross-border issues as oil and gas dealings, trade and immigration.

But Carter and Lopez Portillo managed nonetheless to set in motion a process that could lead to eventual solutions.

The need for a more meaningful dialogue between the two neighboring nations was made manifest by the Mexican leader, who repeatedly and publicly directed sharp criticism of the United States at his guest.

Carter was depicted by aides as surprised and irritated at the blunt shock treatment administered by Lopez Portillo. But Carter did not permit evident animosities to derail the summit.

Nevertheless, the atmospherics which marked the Carter visit vied for attention with the limited substance of the affair.

Veteran White House reporters could recall no visit by a U.S. president to any country that produced such pointed lecturing of the visitor. Indeed, some thought Lopez Portillo's conduct bordered on rudeness.

"Everything I said about the United States, I'm willing to have said about Mexico," Lopez Portillo told a news conference. "I do not believe my words could frighten the Americans."

In essence, the Mexico City meeting produced a series of agreements in which each country will establish working groups to tackle most of the issues in dispute.

Although modest in scope, the outcome was coupled with a Carter-Lopez Portillo agreement to meet again in late spring or early summer on U.S. soil.

The meeting is intended to put pressure on the working groups. Perhaps the first issue to be resolved will be the anticipated purchase of Mexican natural gas by private U.S. firms.

Much of the pique evidenced by Lopez Portillo stemmed from last year's veto by the U.S. government of a privately-negotiated gas deal. The Energy Department decided that Mexico's asking price was too high.

In Mexico City last week, Lopez Portillo agreed to reopen negotiations on gas, with government officials from both countries starting the process by drafting guidelines on prices.

TRAIN CRASH VICTIM — Fire fighters from suburban Wauwatosa work to free Marsha Aschenbrenner, 49, from the wreckage of her car after it was hit by a train Friday afternoon. It took them half an hour to get her out. She was listed in satisfactory condition at a hospital Saturday. Her son, Mark, 17, who was driving the car, was treated and released.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Car taxes hassel

Q. Why can a new car or used car dealer take his cars off his lot to his ranch in Glascock or somewhere else on Dec. 31, and then bring them back to Big Spring on Jan. 2 to sell to the public and not have to pay taxes on them?

A. According to Earl Dean, county tax appraiser, car dealers are able to because of the way the tax is structured. He said that it isn't legal but it is hard to catch them doing it.

Emergency evacuation delivers 882 to U.S.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Machine gun-toting revolutionary police stood guard Saturday as 882 weary Americans were herded onto three jets to be shuttled to safety in the U.S.

As the U.S. emergency evacuation plan was in its fourth day, leaders of Iran's Islamic revolution continued a whirlwind purge of remnants of the deposed regime of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

The shah's elite 12,000-man Imperial Guards were ordered dissolved, 26 air force generals were dismissed and arrests of those considered supporters of the old regime reportedly mounted.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Moslem holy man who inspired the revolution, issued a special call for Iran's oil workers to end their strike. Some workers were reported to have returned to the fields.

State radio reported that Palestine guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat flew to Tehran and met with Khomeini.

Most of the American evacuees departed aboard two Pan Am 747 jumbo jets for Rome and Frankfurt.

Weather

Winter storm leaves most Texas roads icy

By The Associated Press

A winter storm left roads glazed and treacherous over much of Texas Saturday, with more frigid weather and cloudiness forecast for the rest of the weekend.

The storm brought a foot of snow to parts of West Texas, glazed bridges and overpasses as far south as Victoria and claimed at least six lives in weather-related traffic fatalities since Friday night.

The National Weather Service issued an ice storm warning and travelers' advisory for eastern and central North Texas Saturday afternoon and evening, with predicted accumulations of 1 to 3 inches of ice or snow. Roads in the area already were hazardous.

Snow fell Saturday from southwest of Fort Worth across West Texas to the San Angelo-Fort Stockton area. Accumulations of 2 to 4 inches were forecast before Saturday evening.

Heavy snow across the Panhandle and South Plains since late Friday left 12 inches on the ground at Abilene, and 10-inch accumulations in other areas.

Freezing drizzle and sleet were reported as far south as San Antonio, Victoria, and just north of Corpus Christi, extending eastward to College Station and Lufkin and into Louisiana. Fog and cloudiness were reported in many areas, with light rain falling along the upper Texas coast from Palacios to Beaumont.

Highway conditions were hazardous over a wide area. The Texas Department of Public Safety reported ice on bridges and overpasses as far south as Victoria, Mathis, San Antonio and Kerrville. The DPS said roads were snow-packed in much of Northwest Texas; some impassible in the northern Panhandle.

At least six weather-related traffic fatalities were reported by law enforcement agencies across the state since Friday night when the storm struck.

Temperatures ranged Saturday from the lower 40s in South Texas to the teens in the Panhandle. Sunday's forecast called for cloudy and cold weather statewide.

WEATHER FORECAST — The frigid air over the Northeast portion of the nation is expected to prevail Sunday, according to the National Weather Service. Snow is predicted for a band extending from northern Minnesota to northern Texas and for the Pacific Northwest. Rain is seen for most of Texas and western Louisiana and showers are forecast for parts of the Pacific Northwest.

Concern over mortgage ceilings is expressed

WASHINGTON D.C. — Concern about the effect of usury ceilings, enforced by several states, on housing was expressed by Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wisc.), chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, at the Jan. 30-31 Legislative Conference of Mortgage Bankers Association of America (MBA).

Members of the MBA Legislative Committee met in Washington to initiate and to discuss legislative policies with members of Congress. Principal topics of discussion were simplification of the nation's housing laws, revitalization of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), and the need for an increase of the interest rate ceiling set by the Secretary of HUD and the Administrator of the Veterans Administration (VA) for their housing programs.

In addition to Proxmire, Congress was addressed by democratic Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. (D-N.J.), chairman of the Senate Housing Subcommittee, on the decline of the role FHA is playing in helping to provide the nation's housing.

Prospective presidential candidate Rep. John B. Anderson (R-Ill.) addressed his remarks to the necessity of bringing inflation under control. Rep. Henry S. Reuss (D-Wis.) outlined Congressional interest in consolidating and simplifying housing laws.

According to MBA president Claude E. Pope, mortgage bankers are concerned about the low interest rate on FHA-VA mortgage loans.

A policy statement issued by MBA challenges HUD to increase the interest rate ceiling to bring it into line with conventional rates. Though the rate has been adjusted four times since May, 1977, the present 9.5 percent ceiling is not adequate for today's mortgage market, says MBA.

"HUD has not only refused to adjust the rate," states the report, "but has indicated that it must be 'stabilized' for a period of time in order to dampen the market for existing housing somewhat, and to relax demand."

MBA argues that "this is neither good economics nor social policy and should be remedied immediately." According to Dr. Thomas R. Harter, chief economist of MBA, a substantial decline in VA loan guarantee activity was observed during the latter quarter of 1978.

"The decline is largely attributable to the administered rate of FHA and VA mortgages holding them at 9.5 percent while the market rate on conventional loans hover near, or above, 10.5 percent," he said.

Recommendations made by MBA to modernize the nation's housing laws and revitalize FHA include:

- Flexible property improvement loan limits;
- Lowering the downpayment requirement to 3 percent of entire mortgage amount;
- Simplification of insurance claim provisions and authority to include lost interest at the mortgage rate rather than the debenture rate in the principal amount of debentures issued to pay insurance claims;

—Raising FHA maximum mortgage amount of $70,000;

—Allowing secretarial discretion to increase maximum mortgage amounts up to 10 percent a year;

—Elimination of the mutuality feature of mortgage insurance funds that could result in a lower mortgage insurance premium.

State hearing on embalming is postponed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Board of Health decided Saturday to postpone indefinitely a scheduled hearing on the health department's proposal to repeal its requirement that bodies be embalmed within 24 hours of death.

A spokesman said the board postponed the Feb. 23 hearing to "give the Legislature time to act."

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said earlier, however, that two measures relating to the funeral industry do not affect the embalming issue.

The board's executive committee recommended canceling the February hearing, and the board accepted that recommendation Saturday.

Sparkman, who retired from the Senate in January, was admitted to the hospital Feb. 7 with chest pains. He was moved from the coronary unit to a private room Wednesday.

Vernon Presley released

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Vernon Presley, father of the late Elvis Presley, has been released from Baptist Hospital, a month after suffering a heart attack.

But Maurice Elliott, a vice president of the hospital, said Friday Presley's condition remains serious, and he will remain under a physician's care at his home.

Marine reward system a reminder

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — His name is Henry Gilmore and his title is sergeant major. But you can just call him "sir."

The gravel-voiced Gilmore is undeniably a Marine drill instructor. For 31 years the Mississippi native was one of the few good men.

Gilmore is retired now but he still proudly wears his uniform and still barks orders at his troops.

The difference now, however, is that some of the troops are as young as 11 years old.

"It's not that hard here," says Gilmore as a dozen errant Marine Military Academy cadets go through pre-veille punishment pushups.

"It's an instant reminder based on the Marine Corps system of reward and punishment. You do it right and you get rewarded. Do it wrong and you get punished," Gilmore says.

That, basically, is the backbone of life for the 330 young cadets at this unique South Texas military school. MMA bills itself as the only academy based on the rigorous standards of the U.S. Marine Corps.

Life at the palm tree-laden campus is simple for the cadets — who range from seventh graders through high school graduates preparing for entry to a service academy. Follow the rules and you can benefit from a staff including retired Marines and highly qualified civilian instructors.

Disobey and Gilmore is on your back.

"The DI is like a house mother. Gee, I hate to use that word for a Marine," said retired Maj. Gen. Ralph Spanjer, a 36-year Marine who is superintendent here.

"The cadets are scared of the DI. Unless they are they are not really going to jump. The DIs are awfully tough in appearance and intensity. Even the new teachers say, 'Do the DIs really grab the boys?'" The DIs never let the boys touch the boys but the impression the new teachers get is just what we want," Spanjer said.

The superintendent sees the academy as a unique opportunity to mold leaders. "A military school is not a concentration camp or return school," he says. Indeed, an admissions waiting list here allows officials to choose boys who want to be here and who want to learn — Marine-style.

"I'd say 50 percent know what they are getting into. The other 50 percent they know but they don't realize how tough it really is," Spanjer said.

The day starts at 6 a.m., the cadets having 10 minutes to get up, into the uniform of the day and outside for physical training.

Cadet leaders take charge of the five companies. Gilmore stands back and watches. Clad in Marine sweat suits, the youths look like gray ghosts through the haze of a border dawn.

"I'd say well over 60 percent enjoy it," Gilmore said. "Thirty percent don't mind it and 10 percent don't particularly care for it.

"It's not Parris Island here. It's a cutdown version. We're not trying to make Marines here."

What they are trying to do is make college students. While many of the cadets have an eye on Annapolis or another service academy, others are here because they think the strict discipline will serve them well in other fields.

Bill Maltzberger, a 17-year-old cadet from Cotulla, Texas, wants to be an artist.

"I was scared here at first. Now I enjoy it more and more every day because that's one less day I have to do here," Maltzberger said with the knowing smile of a youth swallowing distasteful medicine.

Tom Segel, a retired 26-year Marine who runs the public information office here, says Maltzberger's attitude is common.

"Enjoy is the wrong word. I don't know if a kid really enjoys it. But they know it's good for them. It's like going to the dentist," Segel said.

Academy rules require that boys express a desire to enroll here. But officials here know that some of the "volunteers" were influenced by parental pressure. Parents are free to withdraw their children at any time.

After morning ceremonies, it's off to military classes.

Gunnery Sgt. Thomas Martin, who spent 23 years in the Marines before coming here, teaches about Marine life on the high seas.

"This is not something I pulled out of a book," the blade-thin instructor tells the troops. "I was a seagoing Marine."

In here the cadets gather a cornucopia of information: the high collars on Marine uniforms are to protect against sabers, a lighted match on board ship can be seen for 10 miles and "boot camp was a snap compared to sea school."

Then there's the academic classes where more than half the staff have master's degrees. Some never served in the military.

Ken Green, a history teacher and basketball coach who once taught in public schools, said teaching here is a pleasure. The cadets want to learn.

Each cadet gets a haircut once a week — whether he wants it or needs it.

Tim Seybert, 17, is the current battalion commander at the $3,500-a-year school. He remembers it was a bit rough when he came here as a 10th grader. He has three brothers who went through MMA before him.

"My brothers didn't teach me very much before I came here," the Deming, N.M., native said. "They tried but I just laughed and wouldn't listen. I wish I would've listened. I didn't like the idea of kids younger than me telling me what to do all the time when I got here."

Rank is important here. Higher-ranking cadets can order pushups and other punishments for breaking the rules. Seybert recalled that one of his brothers once authorized 20 minutes of jumping jacks for him.

Joaquin Arguelles, a Cuban-born battalion staff member who came here from Mexico City, places himself among those who view the academy as a trip to the dentist.

"I cried all the time at first. I hated it," the thickly-muscled 17-year-old said. "I still don't enjoy it. But it's good for me."

After lunch it's back to the academic classes. There's some activity time later in the afternoon — like a jaunt through the obstacle course.

The academy also offers a full line of extracurricular activities including athletics and clubs.

But after dinner all cadets head for the barracks for COQ — close call to quarters.

"You're not really forced to study," said Seybert. "But you're made to sit at your desk for an hour and 45 minutes and you're not supposed to get up except to go to the head. So you really have no alternative."

Diplomatically, why do we always blunder?

Perhaps the cause lies in the fact that we train no one in the field of diplomacy, that invariably we go to the snob orchards of the Ivy League schools for the people we name for our Intelligence missions.

Whatever the causes, we have a very poor batting average in foreign affairs. Even Fidel Castro and his weakness for denim uniforms comes off better in most sections of the world.

FOR SOMEONE who is as well intended as we are, we take our lumps in diplomatic circles around the globe. It could be that we cast an image as an insufferable man of means, one who refuses to master any language other than his own, who has long reasoned he can buy anything and anybody he wants.

Those days appear to be gone forever, if they ever existed at all. Now it is a case of devoting every waking hour to the unpleasant task of competing.

Look at our track record over the past several years:

— We invest billions of dollars and the flower of our youth over a 12-year period in Vietnam. Now we wonder why? Bad advice? Who gave it, and why? The benefits were nil. The cost is something our children and our children's children will long be paying for. Inflicted upon us was a drug culture, complete with music, that seems to grow worse with time.

— In Iran, we bet everything we have on a Shah who wasn't particularly friendly to us in the first place but who needed our muscle to keep the dragons away. Jimmy Carter and his advisors professed to be shocked when the Shah caved in, although others not in favor reasoned he was a loser from the start. Because American investments in Iran are so heavy, our losses here bid fair to run into the billions of dollars.

— Governments in Angola in South-west Africa and Ethiopia in East Africa, far from being entranced by our sales pitch, were enchanted instead by the Russian approach. Result: The Muscovites find themselves in a position to expand their military influence into both countries.

— We get Red China to smile at us, but only because the Chinese are distrustful of what the Russian bear might do. China finds itself too vulnerable along much of the vast China-Siberia frontier, so it looks this way for help. In embracing Red China, we had to yield formal relations with an old ally, Taiwan. Taiwan was founded by a corrupt regime, one which had numerous princelings flee to Switzerland with embezzled loot, but was a friend nonetheless.

— We really don't know how we stand with Egypt and Israel. We know Egypt's friends in the Arab world do not want accord with Israel and Israel does not appear ready to dance to anyone's tune, least of all America's.

AT ONE TIME, it appeared President Carter was on the brink of a great achievement in the Middle East. Since then, things have deteriorated to the extent that Uncle Sam has become the whipping boy for both factions.

Will we blunder matters in Mexico? It's likely. We wrote the book on colossal blunders in international diplomacy. Why change the script now?

Roughing it

Around the rim

Walt Finley

One of the really important issues in the 1980 presidential campaign will be honesty in government. Several candidates are already considering endorsing it.

The excited cynic at Bogart's can't bear to think of the frustration that 100 percent honest government would bring to reformers, commentators and editorial writers.

EX-HERALD SPORTS EDITOR and man-about-town, Danny Reagan, now sports information director at University of Arkansas at Little Rock, writes:

"On my third day of work up here, Little Rock experienced the worst flood in 100 years (Sept. 13, 1978). I was washed off the road, my auto's right axle was damaged and eight days later it fell out, causing me $250 worth of repairs.

"Things settled down for a couple of months until Little Rock experienced the worst ice storm in recorded history in January. Not only that, the month of January was the coldest January on record, ever for Arkansas.

"Then, earlier this week, we get the third worst snowfall in Arkansas history, 9.2 inches in Little Rock. Last night, another record was broken when the thermometer got down to 5 degrees, add the wind chill factor to that and you get about a minus 1 or 2 million.

"So far, the tornadoes and earthquakes have barely eluded me, but I just heard a rumor that there's a plague of locust headed this way. That's it.

"It's really not that bad, although we have to park two blocks away from our apartment because the parking lot is built at such an incline that anyone who's unlucky enough to get stuck in there when it snows won't get out until the spring thaw. Still, the hills and trees are nice."

HERALD WORD CHASER, Lee Fought, says: "Talk is cheap because the supply is great and the demand small."

Soft underbelly

WASHINGTON — There has been a great deal of recrimination over the change of governments in Iran. One of the biggest questions being asked is why no one in this town knew the shah was in trouble. Some of the credit for this must go to Ambassador Ardeshir Zahedi, and Washington's unquenchable appetite for good caviar.

BEFORE IT IS published by the new regime at the Iranian Embassy, I wish to confess that my wife and I were on Ambassador Zahedi's special caviar list, which meant that every Christmas Eve we would find a nice plump can of it on our doorstep when we went out to light the Christmas tree. The first time there was no message with the can except for a card attached, which said "Long live the shah."

"I wonder who it's from?" my wife asked.

"It beats me," I said, salvaging. "All it says on the can is 'Golden pearls from the Caspian Sea.'"

"Well, that rules out the Dominican Republic," my wife said as she started making toast.

"Wait a minute," I warned her. "This could be a bribe. People don't just leave caviar on your doorstep unless they want something in exchange."

"What could anyone want in exchange for can of delicious caviar?"

"My Redskin tickets," I said. "But they're not going to get them — not for all the caviar in Zambia."

"I didn't know Zambia had any caviar," she said.

"That's just my code name for the country where I think it came from. I believe the first thing to do is call one of the editors at the Washington Post and ask him if it's all right to accept the gift."

I made the call.

"IS IT ETHICAL to accept a can of Golden Iranian caviar from an anonymous embassy in Washington?" I said.

"It all depends," the editor replied. "How much caviar is there?"

"Enough for four people," I said.

"My wife and I will be right over," he said.

"I knew I shouldn't have called. Now we have to share the stuff," I told my wife.

A half-hour later the phone rang. The editor said, "Never mind. We found a can of caviar on our doorstep with a peacock throne on it."

"Then that means it comes from Switzerland," I said.

"No, you dummy. The Swiss ambassador only sends chocolates."

On Christmas Day we went to visit friends who worked in the State Department on the Middle East desk. "Have some caviar," the former ambassador said.

"No, thanks," I said. "We're going over to Adm. Pinkerton's tonight for caviar and baked potato and we don't want to spoil our appetites."

The day after Christmas our son, who plays with a boy whose father is in the CIA, said, "If you think we have caviar you should see the Dinkham's fridge. It's loaded with fish eggs."

"That's too bad. I thought we'd share ours with them since I figured by being government employees they probably never got to eat any."

"Mr. Dinkham says you're nothing if you don't have a caviar source at the CIA."

Whatever else you want to say about Ambassador Zahedi he certainly was lavish with his country's edibles. Almost everyone I knew of importance in the capital was up to his hips in sturgeon eggs. Zahedi had penetrated the soft underbelly of Washington, and as long as the stuff kept coming no one was really interested in how the shah was doing.

When potassium is needed

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble, I noticed in a column a reply to a question about the requirements for potassium. You said the average person needn't worry about getting enough. I am concerned. I have been taking a tablespoon a day of a 10 percent potassium solution for about nine months. When I mentioned my concern about this medicine, my doctor brushed it off with the statement that if I get too much I will pass it off in my urine. It seems to me I have also read about potassium poisoning. I am also taking medicine for my blood pressure (Regroton and Pronesty). I would be interested in hearing your opinion about this potassium business in my case. — A.S.

The average HEALTHY person needs no potassium supplements. There is a world of difference, though, between deciding from something you read or heard that you "need" potassium and having a doctor tell you you do based on tests or because of certain medicines you're taking. The people who tend to get into trouble are those who prescribe such things for themselves for no valid reason.

The medicines you are taking are for your blood pressure and are known to lower the body's normal potassium levels. They can cause the body to get rid of too much of it. A serious deficiency can result. Replacement doses are given by mouth, but for some they may not be necessary even when using the other medicines. Patients with certain kidney diseases may not lose as much potassium as others, so supplements would not be used. Also, some high blood pressure medicines have ingredients in them to prevent excess potassium loss.

Potassium excess is always dangerous. Symptoms of it are chiefly muscular, including the muscles of the heart. The same symptoms may be noted in potassium deficiency.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have a problem with bad breath. I am a 31-year-old female. I developed the problem a couple of years ago. My husband tactfully brought it to my attention since it is difficult to detect by oneself. It is noticeable, even after brushing and using mouthwashes — especially in the morning. I use mints, which just don't help. My dentist and doctor can find nothing wrong. Diet as a cause was ruled out. I have heard of a lung condition that can cause the problem. Can you tell me about it? — C.S.

Having ruled out the more common causes, such as tooth decay and others of the mouth and digestive system, a check of the more rare conditions might be in order. One of these is called "bronchiectasis." In this the bronchial tubes are extra dilated (expanded) allowing a puddling of mucus. A severe bacterial respiratory infection can bring it on. However, it is seen far less today with the use of antibiotics to fight such infections early and effectively. Also, a breath odor would not be the only symptom you'd have. You would probably have a cough.

If your doctor has suggested this possibility, you might ask him about it. But your odor is probably caused by less ominous problems, perhaps something as simple as mouth breathing. This would be pronounced upon arising in the morning and such odors can linger. I trust you have had your sinuses checked, as they can be involved in breath odor. Often, a mild problem with milk digestion can be present with only minor breath odor as the only symptom. An odor can originate deep in the mouth unrelated to teeth, but to tiny crypts (folds) in the tonsils where bits of decaying food can be lodged.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What does the Bible mean when it says that God has "chosen us in him before the foundation of the world" (Ephesians 1:4)? Does this mean we don't have to respond to God because He has already chosen us? — A.S.

DEAR A.S.: No, the Bible makes it very clear that we are responsible before God to respond to His Word. The Bible says, "There is a judge for the one who rejects me and does not accept my words; that very word which I spoke will condemn him at the last day" (John 12:48, New International Version). Failure to respond to the Gospel is the most serious matter imaginable, and eventually will separate a person from God throughout eternity.

The Bible does, however, show us another side to the picture. It tells us that God is in control ultimately and is sovereign. It also tells us that His purposes will not be thwarted or turned aside by Satan. It tells us (in passages such as the one you have quoted) that God has even chosen those who will belong to Him. Jesus said, "No one can come to me unless the Father who sent me draws him" (John 6:44, NIV).

Most breath odor can be tracked down, and it should be because it is not a normal state of affairs.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am 59 years old. Is it possible for a woman to become PG if she hasn't had a period for eight years? — Mrs. R.C.

After a year of no menstrual periods, most women are safe from pregnancy. At your age the odds against a pregnancy are astronomical.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have sluggish digestion and have constipation. I have found that a cup of nutmeg tea alleviates this. Why would two or three teaspoons of nutmeg mixed with my tea cure my constipation? Also, are there any possible bad effects from it? — Mrs. J.B.

Nutmeg tea is not a "sovereign remedy" for constipation, but if it helps you, fine. Often all that's needed for constipation is a mild stimulation of the gut. Your tea might serve that purpose as easily as a number of other concoctions. No harm in it, certainly.

"Bad Breath Can Be Corrected" is the title of a booklet explaining the causes and cures of bad breath. For a copy write to Dr. Ruble in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Voice censored

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The Voice of America is supposed to provide accurate, unsolicited news to listeners in countries where government censorship turns news reports into propaganda. But there is increasing evidence that the Voice is itself being censored for propaganda purposes — a situation that will ultimately destroy its effectiveness.

Six months ago we reported that the Voice had seissored out of a broadcast to the Soviet orbit a reference to the World War II massacre of thousands of Polish officers by Soviet troops. The official explanation was that the deletion was simply an error of editorial judgment, but our associate Howard Rosenberg has obtained written evidence that belies the official alibi.

THE KATYN FOREST massacre in 1940 has been a source of embarrassment to the Soviet government for years. The Russians blamed the atrocity on the Germans, but most objective observers refused to buy this line. The evidence of Soviet guilt was overwhelming to any but a blind apologist for the Kremlin.

Mention of the Katyn Forest massacre is taboo behind the Iron Curtain. But last April at a writers' congress, Polish poet Andrzej Braun had the temerity to speak up about state censorship and mentioned the Katyn Forest cover-up as a case in point. A Voice of America reporter sent a story to Washington saying Braun "cited the murder of Polish officers by the Soviet Union at Katyn Forest in 1940."

The phrase was deleted from the final broadcast script. Our disclosure of this censorship led Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., to ask the Voice for an explanation.

John E. Reinhardt, head of the International Communication Agency which runs the Voice, conceded that our column was "literally correct," but argued that our implication was unfair. Elimination of words that would offend the Soviet government was not a matter of policy, he assured Dole. The editing was an error of judgment by a middle-echelon editor after policy-level officials had left for the day, Reinhardt said.

But we have seen the original copy of the controversial dispatch from the VOA correspondent. It shoots Reinhardt's explanation down in flames.

Scrawled across the bottom of the original cable is a handwritten note initiated by Feliks Broniecki, deputy chief of the agency's Polish desk. It reads: "Mr. Holzapfel gave his OK and asked to change the sentence regarding Katyn."

Holzapfel is chief of the VOA's European broadcast division; he is certainly not a middle-echelon editor. The message is signed off at 4:45 p.m.

THIS IS not the first time the Voice of America has been silent on the Katyn Forest. In 1950, Jozef Czapalski, a survivor of the massacre, was invited to make a VOA broadcast for Polish listeners. He later told a congressional committee that he watched in disbelief as all references to the atrocity were expunged from his script.

VOA Director Peter Strauss has taken a complacent view of the affair, calling it "an error in judgment by the news editor, hardly a federal case."

Strauss shrugged off a similar incident we reported recently, when the Voice spiked an interview with Mihajlo Mihajlov, a Serbo-Croatian author who had just arrived here after years in Marshal Tito's prisons. Mihajlov, sniffed Strauss, was no more interesting than "a Serbo-Croatian cab driver in Chicago."

Following our first Katyn Forest story, Sen. Dole inserted a "sense of the Senate" resolution in the VOA appropriations bill, abjuring the Voice to be "accurate, objective and comprehensive."

And the senator has sent an urgent personal letter to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, asking him to "let me know if State Department pressure was applied in any way to influence the content of Voice of America broadcasts, and if such practice constitutes official policy."

Footnote: Sources inside the VOA tell us the incidents we reported are just the tip of the iceberg; some top officials unabashedly use the Voice as a propaganda tool.

WATCH ON WASTE: Jimmy Carter is making amends for a broken campaign promise, and it's costing the taxpayers a bundle.

In 1976, vice presidential candidate Walter Mondale promised Philadelphia voters that a Carter administration would keep the city's Frankford Arsenal open, assuring the facility's 1,200 jobs. The city's heavy Democratic vote carried Pennsylvania for Carter.

But contrary to the election promise, the Frankford Arsenal was subsequently closed. This necessitated some quick fence mending if Carter hoped to carry Philadelphia by the same margin in 1980.

Fortunately, the Navy's aging carrier USS Saratoga was in need of major overhaul. Mondale told the city last spring that the $500 million contract would go to the Philadelphia shipyard "to alleviate the closing of the Frankford Arsenal."

SISTER AND FATHER OF MISSING MAN — Silvia Munoz (left) and V.E. Jordan discuss the fate of George Jordan, whose skeletal remains were identified Thursday.

Parents held out hope until very last for son

"What hurts is that after all those years being in that pasture, you know, we didn't know whether he was alive," V.E. Jordan said here last week shortly after a skeleton found in a remote section of a ranch southeast of Big Spring last month had been identified as that of his son, George.

GEORGE JORDAN

where he was going. They never saw him alive again.

The younger Jordan, age 26, had disappeared four years ago. Since that time, his parents have checked out a succession of stories about his whereabouts that led nowhere.

V.E. Jordan said his son was a man with few interests beyond daily attendance at his church, St. Thomas Catholic. The son didn't go to dances, didn't smoke or drink.

Despite physical impairments, he graduated from high school. He would stay home from school for a time to recover from seizures, but invariably would return to classes.

When he was around 20 he worked for a plant making neon signs but was dismissed because of his physical problems. Jordan received government disability checks because he couldn't work most of the time. He stayed at his parents' home.

George's 22-year-old brother, Raymond, was a member of the National Guard. Raymond's death in April 1974 was attributed to natural causes. The tragedy affected the family deeply and George's condition worsened. His diet was usually confined to carrots and tomato juice, the father recalls. He usually could be found sitting outside the modest Jordan home, staring in the direction of the sun.

Ultimately, he walked off without telling his parents

He was spotted sitting below the FM 700-15 20 overpass around the time of his disappearance. Reports say he later walked in a southerly direction wearing the pajamas and robe he left home in. City police reports say that on June 9 he was seen by patrolmen at the city garbage dump at 3:50 p.m. He had long hair and a beard and, according to the reports, he did not have complete command of his faculties.

Jordan apparently died in a pasture belonging to Woody Robinson sometime between the time of his disappearance and Jan. 19, 1979, when his remains were found by Lyn Carpenter and his father, two hunters who were looking for an animal they had shot the night before.

The bones were located two miles from the Robinson ranch house. The skull was under some trees and the other bones washed down a slope as far as 200 feet. There were some fragments of the robe and pajamas near the bones. The crucifix that was later to become the key to the month-long investigation into the identity of the skeleton was also found nearby.

The right hand of the figure of Christ was attached to the cross, as were the feet. The main body of the figure, however, was missing.

After sheriff's deputies started their investigation, they raised the possibility that the remains were those of George Jordan. The elder Mr. Jordan and his wife, Juanita, came forward, offering to help with the identification, if possible.

The mother's subsequent search of her son's jackets turned up a small figure of Christ, one that had the right hand and feet missing. Justice of the Peace Bobby West said the discovery clinched their decision as to the skeleton's identity.

A tooth that Jordan had been missing for several years was also missing from the skeleton's jaw. The sex, height, 5 feet 5 inches, age, 24, and nationality of the skeleton were also the same as Jordan's. The information was provided by the Department of Public Safety Forensic Science Center in Austin.

"We can't believe it. We believe it is him alright," said the father. The parents had some question that the skeleton was their son before the cross was identified. "All the proof we needed was that cross he was wearing," said Mr. Jordan.

The death certificate said he died in June, 1974.

Walking: Better than drugs, good even in rain

NEW YORK (AP) — One book says it'll help you lose weight. Another says it's better than drugs for treating insomnia. And still another says it's good even in the rain.

These are among seven forthcoming books on a single subject — walking — and publishers are gambling that it will overtake running this year as the new American fad.

Odds on the gamble are helped because the books come hard on the heels of "The Non-Runner's Book," a best-selling paean to sedentary pleasures.

Predictably, "The Complete Book of Walking," "The Walking Book," "Walk! It Could Change Your Life," "Walking!" "The Wonderful World of Walking," "Walk Your Way to Good Health" and "Dr. Marchetti's Walking Book" offer little sympathy to runners.

"For the dedicated runner, pain is an acceptable part of the regimen," John Man claims in "Walk!" "It is the latter-day equivalent of the hair shirt and flagellation." The potential drawbacks, he says, run the gamut from death to ingrown toenails.

According to most of the authors, walking can cure everything from anxiety to angina. Even a brisk half-hour walk a day can result in the loss of 15 pounds in a year, one of the books claims.

"Walking is what makes us human, separates us from our primate ancestors," John Davis maintains in "Walking!" It will strengthen heart and lungs, tranquilize better than drugs, ward off lower back problems, enhance appearance, encourage clear and creative thinking and open up new worlds to explore, he says.

"The Complete Book of Walking" notes that one Eula Weaver had a bad heart attack at the age of 77 and was told, in effect, to just wait for the fatal one. Instead, she started walking. Now 89, she walks regularly and — the heresy notwithstanding — jogs as well.

Although there are a number of similar success stories in "The Complete Book," it urges persons with heart conditions to consult their doctors first.

Walking may come naturally, but this book outlines how to do it.

"It is good to keep your spine straight and hold your head high," it declares. "Don't exaggerate your arm motion. Allow your arms to hang loosely at your sides."

"Each foot should strike the ground at your heel. Then you should push off with your toes to complete the foot strike patterns. As you move from heel to toe, you will get a rolling motion."

And the authors of these books say the chief advantage of walking is that anyone can do it.

But Vic Ziegel and Lewis Grossberger, in "The Non-Runner's Book," caution "never try to imitate anyone else's nonrunning style."

Among other things, they suggest this style: "Lock your wrists, flex your biceps, flatten your tendons, and put your left foot slightly in front of your right. Your toes should be relaxed and your fists clenched, but calm. Your lip should be curled."

These books note that there's more to walking than just walking. There are charts and tables to help the novice schedule walks and guides on where to walk. Sections are devoted to apparel and whole chapters to shoes — which "The Complete Book of Walking" says "spell the difference between pain and comfort."

Insurance Board recommends rate reductions

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — For the first time in more than six years, State Insurance Board actuaries are recommending a statewide average cut in homeowners insurance rates. The cut is largely the by-product of new requirements the board laid on insurance companies in 1975 for disclosing their premiums and claims. Board actuaries will recommend a statewide average cut of 4.1 percent — $38 million — in rates for all forms of property insurance, effective July 1. The board's annual property insurance hearing

Wednesday also will include company recommendations expected to be slightly less favorable to the policy holder than the staff's. The last overall rate decrease was on Jan. 1, 1973, when homeowners rates fell 12 percent. They have risen 32.5 percent since then. Last year the board increased rates on houses worth $15,000 to $42,000 but offset them with cuts for both cheaper and more expensive houses, so the average statewide change was zero. Staff recommendations call for a 2.3 percent reduction in the cost of homeowners coverage, which accounts for more than half the $936.3 million in property insurance premiums paid by Texans. Not all homeowners will get the reduction. The staff said rates should drop 7.5 percent in the Seacoast territory — the two tiers of counties along the Gulf Coast — and 5.7 percent in the North-Northwest territory. But Texans in the Central territory would suffer a 3.3 percent increase. The territory has the lowest rates in Texas and includes Dallas, Fort Worth, Austin, San Antonio and El Paso — five of the state's top six cities in population. Staff recommendations would reduce the annual cost of insuring a $40,000 brick veneer home by $26.70 in Houston, $30.67 in Corpus Christi and $29.07 in Lubbock, Wichita Falls, Amarillo and San Angelo. It would rise $9.44 in Dallas and Fort Worth. The staff also recommended these rate changes for other forms of property insurance: Tenant homeowners — Seacoast down .3 percent, Central up 5.2 percent and North-Northwest down 3.7 percent. Farm and ranch owners — Seacoast down 13.5 percent, Central down 7.8 percent and North-Northwest down 10.5 percent. Fire (statewide) — dwellings down 1.9 percent, farms up 3.1 percent and "all other" up 3.8 percent. Extended coverage — Seacoast down 23.4 percent, Central down 8.5 percent and North-Northwest down 6.6 percent.

Legislators will likely ignore recommendations Honeymoon over?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' month-long honeymoon with the Texas Legislature — or armistice as some call it — may be over this coming week.

On Wednesday the Republican governor tells a joint session, which will include 27 Democratic senators and 127 Democratic House members, how he thinks the state should spend over $20 billion the next two years.

Texas legislatures normally have ignored gubernatorial financial recommendations, preferring to listen to hometown money pleas, along with urgings from lobbyists and agency heads.

There are indications the trend will continue. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, are already at odds with Clements over state spending. Both prefer the Legislative Budget Board bill that proposes $20.76 billion spending from all funds and would leave about $319 million for additional spending or tax relief.

The LBB bill was drawn up by Senate and House leaders after hearing requests from all state agencies.

Clements has promised frequently his budget will allow about $1 billion for tax relief, in addition to the $1 billion authorized by a special legislative session last summer and contained in the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment.

Jones has challenged Clements to show where he could produce $1 billion tax relief without harming state operations. "Governor Clements has been talking in generalities," Jones told a news conference. "I'm afraid that the necessities of his campaign led him to say things about the state budget that are not borne out by close study."

Clements has called the LBB budget a "letter to Santa Claus" that is 22 percent over the 1978-79 budget. "That is excessive," he told a news conference. "My budget will show an increase but not 22 percent."

Speaker Bill Clayton has proposed his own budget that is 2 percent below the LBB figure and would leave about $700 million for additional spending or tax relief. He has expressed doubt that $1 billion in tax relief would be possible.

Hobby and Clements also have clashed over proposals to shift primary elections from May and June to July and August.

Clements said he would veto any bill changing the primary election dates, saying the present five-month lapse between the primaries and the November election helped him get elected.

"I would think that in the final stages, he would do what he thinks the people of Texas want," said Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, author of the election change.

So far, in Clements' monthlong administration there has been little controversy involving his upset victory over Democrat John Hill to become the first Republican governor in 105 years.

The Clements regime began with one of the most festive inaugural celebrations in recent political history, that even the Democrats enjoyed.

Shortly afterwards he made an unusual move for a new governor by flying to Mexico for a talk with President Jose Lopez Portillo about mutual border problems.

Lopez Portillo had no comment later but Clements claimed they were in general agreement on sharing Mexico's oil and gas discoveries, on the need for regulation of undocumented farm workers and on stemming the border drug traffic.

Some Democrats claimed Clements tried to upstage President Carter who has just returned from talks with Lopez Portillo about some of the same problems.

Clements held a news conference in Washington where he took President Carter and Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger to task for their handling of the nation's energy crisis. He also called for the resignation of Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland for his handling of farm problems and protesting farmers.

Clements made points the past week by his appointment of a blue-ribbon committee, headed by Dallas computer magnate Ross Perot, to lead an all-out war against the drug traffic.

His appointments to state agencies and boards have not caused any disputes so far.

ERA, interest boost, speed limit

Vote-for-but-don't-pass bills proving popular

By SCOTT CARPENTER
JIM DAVIS

Most people judge the legislature by what it passes or rejects.

But legislators, avoiding a vote on an issue can be more important.

Legislators are politicians, and casting a vote on an issue where ideological lines are strongly drawn can be politically disastrous.

For several sessions measures to repeal Texas ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment have been introduced, heard in committee and stopped before a vote was taken.

Thus, most legislators have avoided taking a stand on this sensitive issue.

Ideological lines are drawn on the ERA, and avoiding voting means avoiding upsetting either side and avoiding negative reaction at the next election.

"Everyone wants you to be a statesman on his bill," Sen. Jack Ogg of Houston observed. What went unsaid was being a statesman can keep you from being re-elected.

While there are bills legislators don't want to vote on, there is another group they'd love to vote for, but don't want enacted.

For years the House and Senate took turns passing an ethics bill and letting the other legislative body fail to act on it.

By using the alternating system, legislators could say they voted for an ethics code, even though there was no law.

They would blame the time limit on legislative action for the failure to get meaningful ethics legislation passed.

But along came a major state scandal in 1971, and an aroused public demanded an ethics law. Finally, the 1973 legislature passed such a law, with the help of top state officials elected on a reform platform.

The current vote-for-but-don't-pass bill would raise the speed limit from 55 to 70 mph. It is politically smarter to oppose the unpopular 55 mph law. But raising the speed limit could cut off federal highway construction funds and cause more highway deaths.

Legislators might choose to leave this bill in committee, getting political points from endorsing it, or bring it to a vote in one house, while killing it in the other.

Savings and loan executives who want to increase the ceiling on mortgage interest rates fear their bill might be destined for a similar grave.

One state senator advised: "We don't vote on what's right or wrong, so don't tell us the good business reasons for voting for your bill. We vote for political reasons. Tell us how we can vote to increase home mortgage payments and get re-elected."

The senator was giving good advice for those dealing with the legislature, but it's sad that we don't have more statesmen who vote based on what's right or wrong.

Cawthon guilty on tax charge

He was the third defendant convicted on criminal tax violations in the court within a week.

Installing Gas air conditioning now is a squirrely idea . . .

One you'll be nuts about this summer!

Some things are better planned ahead — ask any squirrel. Like gathering nuts. Or, getting your home ready in winter for summer's swelter. Install Gas air conditioning now, and you'll beat the rush that always comes with the first hot, dusty day. Then, while everybody else is all steamed up, waiting for overworked installers, you'll be cool, calm and collected . . . enjoying the comfort of efficient Gas air conditioning and the security of its full ten-year, no-sweat warranty.

Gas air conditioning lasts and lasts with no loss of cooling capacity. That's because it's built with fewer moving parts and no compressor to break down or wear out. Heat from the steady blue flame circulates a refrigerant through the system to cool the air. It's this simple principle that gives Gas air conditioning its long life and easy maintenance.

Take a tip from the smart little squirrel. Plan ahead. Install Gas air conditioning this winter. You'll be nuts about it this summer.

Call Pioneer Natural Gas for a free survey and cost estimate. There's no obligation.

*Manufacturer's ten-year limited warranty covers all defects in material and workmanship on the sealed refrigeration unit for ten years from date of installation of the air conditioner when it is installed in a single family residence. All other parts are warranted for one year from date of installation.

Dismissals prevailing in TDCA

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Employees of the Texas Department of Community Affairs — who have watched 67 workers lose their jobs recently — say they anticipate more dismissals.

Fifty-five employees left their offices Friday, with termination slips in hand, while the new boss, Omar Harvey, was out of town.

Among those dismissed was Ernest Nieto, executive assistant to the director. Ironically, Nieto had served on a four-member reorganization team that oversaw the dismissals.

Harvey, reached in Dallas by the Austin American-Statesman, said he left town because he did not want to talk to people in an "emotional upheaval."

"A vote for Clements cost me my job," said Robert Brooking, a training coordinator for the department's housing division.

Gov. Bill Clements named Harvey to take over the agency.

The American-Statesman quoted high-level sources as saying only five of the nine division directors who fired people Friday will still have their jobs by mid-March.

Another unnamed employee said the department will "in no way be able to monitor the millions of dollars worth of programs it's funding" in the wake of the mass cuts in personnel.

The department had 260 employees and is now under 200.

"The real tragedy is, we are losing some good people in these cutbacks, but that doesn't alter the fact that the agency was overstaffed — it was the fattest department in state government," said Harvey.

The dismissals represent $1.3 million in salaries, he said.

Brooking said, "In 40 years in business, I've never experienced anything so degrading in my whole life."

Two Capitol security guards were stationed in the hallway and checked personal possessions of the fired employees as they left.

Among those dismissed Friday were several high-ranking employees, including Ernie Nieto, executive assistant to the director.

The Manpower Services Division, which processes and evaluates grants under the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA), lost 12 employees, including Camille Dvorsky, assistant director; Fred Buchanan, director of state services; and J. Willard Parks, manager of administrative and financial services.

In Stacy Lake case

Final arguments heard

The immediate fate of the application of the Colorado River Municipal Water District for a 554,000-ac. ft. lake near Stacy, 25 miles southeast of Ballinger, is now in the hands of the three members of the Texas Water Commission.

A battery of attorneys made final arguments Friday in Austin on questions posed by Chairman Felix McDonald. Armed with this and briefs from the Lower Colorado River Authority, several other opponents, and the CRMWD, the commission took the case under advisement at 11:44 a.m. Friday, ending the year-long hearing that shattered all records for length and expense on an application for a water permit in Texas.

The Texas Department of Water Resources itself recommended granting of the permit, but Jack Cox, the public interest advocate, a new position in hearing procedures, stopped short of "recommending the permit now."

There was no indication when the commission will reach a decision in the matter. Chairman McDonald, without committing the commission to any particular decision, asked attorneys to submit suggested language for a permit if one should be granted. In this event, either side has 10 days to ask for a rehearing, and then 30 days in which to perfect an appeal to District Court, based only on the hearing record.

There is unappropriated water in the Colorado River sufficient to satisfy the Stacy project without impairing any downstream rights, declared Frank Booth, CRMWD counsel. Fred Werkenthin and Lawrence Smith, representing LCRA, argued that the inventory of the river evidence showed only 3,100-acre feet of unappropriated water. In their brief, they claimed that CRMWD became interested in applying for Stacy only after it "drummed up a trade" with Texas Utilities Services, Inc. which wants to construct a major coal-fired steam generating electric plant at the site and use up to 25,000 acre feet of water annually. Booth countered that this volume represents only about 20 percent of the total permit sought — 88,000-ac. ft. municipal and domestic, 25,000 industrial.

Smith declared the only court test on the matter of water appropriations held that all prior claims should be added and anything left would be unappropriated water.

Fence a sign of domestication for West Virginia retired nomad

SETH, W.Va. (AP) — Omehaw Kessinger, retired nomad, built a fence in front of the one-bedroom house he and his wife, Flora, moved into five years ago, a sure sign he had become domesticated.

One morning, mowing the lawn, he came upon some little plastic soldiers, eight of them, toys long lost and forgotten by some previous occupant of the house.

Eight cedar posts supported his new fence. Aha. Just for kicks, he nailed one soldier to the top of each post. Sentinels.

"That was the start of it," he said. "From then on, anything I picked up I hung on the fence. Now people, especially children, bring me things for the fence. You can see what has happened."

It is a 110-foot-long, 10-foot-high collage, a marvelous midden, a wide-screen panorama of the detritus of three generations of life on the banks of the Big Coal River:

Coffee pots, dippers, miners' lamps, hubcaps, flashlights, bowling pins, rattlesnake rattles, wrist-watches, harness hames, lanterns, paint scrapers, bathtub plugs, wrenches, combs, light bulbs, eyeglasses, hacksaws, dolls, horseshoes, radios, golf trophies...

"I tried to count the items once," Kessinger said. "Got to 4,200 before I got tired and quit and I wasn't nearly done."

"Now there is no more room on the fence, but I have an idea. I'm going to start hanging things on that elm tree at the end of the fence." Branching out, you might say.

For her part, Flora, not to mention some of the neighbors, suspected her husband might be a bit tetchy, as they say hereabouts, when he started his project. It grew. And grew. And grew.

"I had thought flowers would be nice along the fence," she said.

Passers-by began to stop — tourists, truckers — to find out what manner of man would construct such a thing. They found a remarkable person indeed.

Omehaw Kessinger was born a few miles from here in 1904. Like others of artistic bent, he had an itch to travel, to see things.

"I became a hobo and I loved it. It's a wonderful life," he said wistfully. "Here one day, there the next. In jail, out of jail. Then they began getting strict. In Georgia, you could get 40 days on the rock pile for hobbing. Wasn't worth it."

"So I became a truck driver, still on the go. Never did settle down until my knees went bad, back in about 1960."

Said Flora: "I swear I don't know why I went for that rambling man, but I found out 10 years ago. For the past 10 years I've been ailing pretty bad, arthritis, bad eyes. He sees to everything, takes care of everything. He cares for me."

"He has his faults, but that's all right. The other day I said, 'Omey, do you know what day this is?' He said, 'Groundhog Day, ain't it?' I said, 'Yes, and also our 46th wedding anniversary.'

"If that fence is what makes him happy, it's all right with me."

"I'll tell you, I like the fence. Some people call it junk, some people call it pretty. I like it."

A debate you could hear in any art gallery, Flora. Stick by that rambling man.

Austin hosts 'winter social'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — When the throbbing sounds of Brazilian "carnaval" start in Rio de Janeiro, an accompanying beat will be heard Saturday night in a spot better known for the country twang of a steel guitar.

A carnival celebration, part of Austin's informal winter social season for about nine years, is moving to its largest quarters yet through the efforts of a proselytizing novice promoter.

"I'm just trying to make Austin aware of Brazil and the potential fun," said Mike Quinn. "Brazilian music is something to me that's new, and to the United States it's still new."

Most observers insist that Brazilian carnival makes New Orleans' Mardi Gras look tame. It kicks off Saturday and lasts until Wednesday, at least.

The Texas version, scaled down substantially, started about nine years ago when a woman who had lived in Brazil decided to host "a little carnival party."

Although Austin's Carnaval Brasileiro has had some slow years since, there have been enough memorable celebrations to make it a tradition.

Quinn took over last year and moved the event from a rented hall to a medium-sized club. "We had to turn people away just for lack of room," he recalled.

Saturday's party will be at Austin's country-rock palace, the Armadillo World Headquarters.

"There are probably five or six people who've been thinking about costumes for five or six months at least," Quinn said.

Black beans — "feijao" — and rice will be available for authenticity's sake, but Quinn expects the music to be the main attraction.

MRS. JERRY IDEN

MRS. JAN MORGAN

Jan Iden is new Gala chairperson

Mrs. Kent (Jan) Morgan, chairman of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center Gala for the past four years, announced the appointment of Mrs. Jerry (Jan) Iden as chairman of the 1979 Gala. In making the announcement Mrs. Morgan said "Jan has graciously accepted the position and looks forward to the challenge with the same zeal and optimistic attitude that marks her past work with other charities and activities."

Talking about the highly successful 1978 Gala, which featured comedian Foster Brooks, Mrs. Morgan said "we cleared over $20,000 on the Gala." This represents an increase of $5,000 over the $15,000 the Gala committee had expected to raise during the event.

Founder of the Gala, Mrs. Morgan, said "I feel that it is time for me to step down and give someone else the opportunity to inject new life and ideas into the Gala. You can be in charge of an event too long and keep on repeating the same thing over and over until everyone gets tired of it."

"We've had very successful Galas during the past four years, and I am sure the ones ahead will be equally successful. And I plan to work with the Gala committee and provide whatever assistance I can in their preparations for the Galas."

In a letter to hosts of the 1978 Gala, Mrs. Morgan said "I want to thank each supporter of the Gala for all of your help and for believing in the Gala. After all, the Gala is not just another social event, but rather it is a statement of human compassion for the fortunate to the less fortunate." She also asked their continued support of the Gala and for their assistance to Mrs. Iden during the 1979 Gala.

Fund raising dance is scheduled for May 18

The Howard-Glasscock Unit of the American Cancer Society met at Alberto's Crystal Cafe, 116 East 2nd, recently.

Plans were discussed for an upcoming fund-raising dance, to be held May 18. The dance has been scheduled for 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. at the Howard County Fair Barn. It will feature the music of Fiddling Frenchie Burke.

Members of the dance committee are now working on arrangements for the dance. Members are: Jane Thomas, Sharon Anderson, Kay Clark, Joyce Phillips, Mike McCracken, John Brooks, Sherrie Bordofake and Nell Wilson. Pam Wilson will chair the committee.

At the February 7 meeting, the group discussed other items, including an offer from Dr. P.W. Malone. Dr. Malone offered his help in getting funds from the Malone-Hogan Foundation for transportation assistance to cancer patients.

Jane Thomas told the group that she had obtained transportation for a local cancer patient to go to M.D. Anderson Hospital, cancer specialty facility in Houston.

Members present at the February meeting included Wayne Henry, Sandra Rhodes, John Brooks, Belva Harrington, Laura Erhardt, Jane Thomas, Joyce Phillips, Suzanne Bordofake, DEDICATED VOLUNTEER — Ice Skating champion Dorothy Hamill, the 1976 U.S. Olympic Gold Medal winner now with the Ice Capades, also is a dedicated American Cancer Society volunteer. "Contribute now," she says, "we want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime."

Jeanne Lockhart, Nell Wilson, Pam Wilson, Dr. P.W. Malone, Margie Wilson, Kay Clark, Mike McCracken and Ellen Brooks.

Next meeting of the Howard-Glasscock Unit of the American Cancer Society is set for March 7 at Alberto's Crystal Cafe.

Coke always gets her man

TAVARES, Fla. (AP) — Coke, the Leesburg Police Department's 3-year-old German shepherd, has a court record that would be envied by many prosecutors — 29 straight convictions.

Her 29th guilty plea came Friday in Lake County Judge Roy Caldwell's court when Fred Nelans succumbed to Coke's exceptional nose and pleaded guilty to charges of careless driving.

The Nelans episode began Dec. 6 near Leesburg, Fla., when a state trooper chased a speeder. The car stopped and the driver fled the scene. But along came Coke who was on duty with her trainer, Patrolman Steve Kelly.

The dog sniffed around the car, went into a crowd of people standing nearby and sat down in front of Nelans indicating: "This is our man."

When the case came to court Friday, Assistant State Attorney Mark Hill called Kelly and Coke into the courtroom to demonstrate the dog's ability.

When asked to identify the culprit, Coke walked right over to Nelans. The defendant relented and accepted a state offer of a $250 fine and 30 days in jail in exchange for a guilty plea.

House calls

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — Ever try to get a television repairman to make a quick service call? How about a piano tuner, organist or painter? Charles Wilson and his wife, Shirley, didn't need any of them, but they all showed up Thursday and Friday.

The pranks started Thursday when a piano tuner showed up to repair the Wilsons' piano. They don't have a piano. Then an organ player showed up for work. They don't have an organ either.

Then came auto repairmen, painters, television repairmen, a janitorial service and someone with a rental TV.

"It's funny that when I want a repairman I can't get one," he said, Wilson said Friday.

Wilson says he has no idea who has been calling service shops around Salina for him, but he noted that he works with a lot of young people at a restaurant.

"I imagine what we're dealing with is somebody I fired ..., but maybe not," he said.

Cookbook poet

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., may become known as the poet laureate of the Senate, and his New Year's correspondence to his colleagues might help him get the title.

Zorinsky sent his fellow senators a "Nebraskaland Wild Game Cookbook" in early January with the following poem:

"To help you, when you want to tame Your hunger, even though your game Is wild, I send you this book of dishes And spice it with my New Year's wishes!"

Amusement park greets two millionth guest

HOUSTON — 1978 — A year when fashion, disco, and world events made the headlines; and the year when Astroworld saw its two-millionth guest.

For the three and a-half years that Astroworld has operated under the Six Flags management, the Houston theme park has witnessed an astounding 100 percent increase in attendance, gaining the prestigious title of "fastest growing major theme park in the country", says Vice President and General Manager Bill Crandall.

"Each year since Six Flags has managed the park, Astroworld has grown in distinct areas," Crandall explains.

Additions, like the Texas Cyclone roller coaster, Greased Lightning, extended operating hours, and the ten-fold expansion of the live entertainment package to name just a few, have contributed to the park's total entertainment experience and have been a major influence in Astroworld's rapid growth, he goes on to say.

"And it's only just begun. The year 1979 is destined to be another record-breaker at Astroworld in more ways than one," Crandall adds.

Utilizing a multi-million dollar budget, Crandall says that guest comfort and convenience will be top priorities in 1979 as Astroworld will experience a massive face lifting.

"Extensive architectural landscaping, highlighted by increased shade arbors, giant planter boxes, trees, and massive greenery throughout the park, is first on the agenda in creating a new ambience at Astroworld," Crandall says.

He adds that one of many improvements will be a new 30-foot circular fountain to act as centerpiece of a new flagstone patio that will serve as a guest rest area as well as a picturesque addition to the park's Coney Island section. Expansion of various food service centers, boutiques, restroom facilities, and parking lanes will also contribute to guest convenience.

Another area set to undergo a new look is the park's Lagoon Theatre, where the largest fireworks show in the Southwest is conducted every night of the summer as well as various aquatic revues.

HEAD OVER HEELS — Fun-seeking enthusiasts from across the Southwest are flipping over the multitude of entertainment experiences that have placed Houston's Astroworld as the fastest growing theme park in the country.

"We'll begin by increasing the viewing capacity of the Lagoon to 5,000 guests, almost a 100 percent increase over 1978."

"And we'll be creating an old Mississippi riverboat aura throughout the area," he says.

A crescent-shaped wooden boardwalk, adorned by roped-off dock posts and permanent seating will add to the viewing comfort of the park's two-million-plus guests.

"And the island stage will resemble an old New Orleans riverboat for the special type of 'jambalaya' show atmosphere," Crandall grins.

Increased show packages in what Crandall refers to as "the year of shows", will be additional features in 1979.

"This year Astroworld promises a show for everyday that the park is open," he explains.

Featuring unique and different shows for every month of the season, including invigorating rock 'n' roll groups like Tom Slick, and Ron Furrer's "A Touch of Elvis", coupled with teen rock concerts and various musical variety and aquatic revues, Astroworld's live entertainment schedule is designed to delight every family member, Crandall says.

"We're bringing back the best of everything, the real favorites of our guests to please every member of our crowd."

Crandall boasts that 1979 is destined to be the year when "the best of Astroworld will bloom."

Foreign students' low tuition gets once-over

Harle Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Budget-conscious legislators are casting suspicious looks at low tuitions paid by foreign students, but some educators think they are being short-sighted.

Sen. R.R. "Babe" Schwartz of Galveston told the Senate Finance Committee recently he suspects some state institutions are recruiting foreign students to keep up enrollment totals.

Several campuses are experiencing enrollment decreases. That can be a critical problem for a school because the number of students affects state funding.

The Texas College Coordinating Board reports about 16,600 foreigners attended Texas public colleges and universities in the 1977-78 school year. No figures are available for the current year, but undoubtedly the number has grown.

The year-old figure for Howard College is nine. Schwartz said he is concerned because tuition charged at state institutions covers only part of the actual higher education cost.

The effect, he said, is that Texas taxpayers are subsidizing foreign students. Current tuition rates even give a special break to many foreign students.

Texas residents pay $4 per semester credit hour at state colleges and universities. Out-of-state and foreign students pay $40.

But students from countries that grant tuition breaks to Texas students pay as little as $14 per semester credit hours. Most countries with large numbers of citizens studying in Texas — including Iran, Nigeria and Mexico — have such reciprocal agreements.

A report from the Texas College Coordinating Board says: "Concern has been expressed over the lower rates for foreign students than for out-of-state American students, and the reciprocity clause presently is open for discussion."

Sens. Oscar Mauzy of Dallas and Bill Moore of Bryan have introduced bills to increase tuition rates for foreigners.

Mauzy's bill would carry out a Coordinating Board recommendation to wipe out the special deals available under reciprocal agreements. This would mean a $40 per semester credit hour for all non-Texans.

Moore's bill would push foreign student rates to $75 while leaving the rate for out-of-state students at $40.

Dr. Joe Neal, director of the International Center at the University of Texas at Austin, says either proposal could decrease the number of foreign students on Texas campuses and that would be bad.

"It is generally understood and accepted nationwide that international students are an asset and desirable factor in higher education," Neal said.

"International students really are a window on the world."

Reciprocal agreements also help many Texas students study abroad, particularly in Mexico, Neal said.

He thinks this is an especially bad time for any action that would limit student exchanges between Mexico and Texas. Many international experts expect Mexico's recent oil and natural gas discoveries to kick off an economic boom there — one in which U.S. businesses will be interested.

Undoubtedly, the legislative interest in foreign students stems in part from

Neal, who has been involved with international students since 1941, said studying here actually can help foreigners become a stabilizing influence in their home countries.

"The Iranian students (studying here) are going to have a moderating influence when they go back," Neal said. "I've seen it happen before, as violent and revolutionary as any appear to be in their student days here."

Sen. Mauzy says he is not trying to penalize foreign students but rather to set up what he considers a fairer approach to tuition.

"I think it is a good healthy thing to attract both out-of-state and foreign students here, but I don't want to be subsidizing people who don't need the subsidy," he said.

Mauzy, chairman of the Senate Education Committee that will consider both bills on Feb. 28, said he thinks his version is a fair compromise.

"My first priority always has been to make a college education available to Texans first," he said.

There has been pressure for general tuition increase, he said, "but this seems to me the best approach."

Texas nips Tech

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ron Baxter, the only non-senior in Texas' starting lineup, stuffed a shot and hit six consecutive free throws in overtime Saturday and No. 12 Texas clinched a Southwest Conference championship in basketball by defeating Texas Tech 63-56.

The dramatic victory in the 5-minute extra period raised Texas' SWC record to 13-2. Texas closes its season at Southern Methodist next week.

Tech erased a 14-point Texas lead in the second half but missed two shots in the final few seconds of regulation play that would have won the game. The loss dropped Tech to 9-6 in the SWC.

Actually Baxter, a 6-4 junior, did not start Saturday but it was only because Coach Abe Lemons wanted five seniors in the starting lineup for possibly their final home game.

Baxter led all scorers with 17 points but his most crucial scores came in the last 2 1/2 minutes. He soared high to stuff a shot and insured the victory with his string of free throws as Tech was forced to foul to try to get the ball.

Texas led 40-26 with about 5 minutes gone in the second half of the regionally televised game, but a follow shot by Ben Hill tied the score at 52-52. Texas' Tyrone Branan then lost the ball and Tech called two time-outs in the final 53 seconds to set up a possible winning shot.

Freshman David Little threw up an off-balance shot from the baseline, which missed, but Tech got the ball back with one second remaining. A desperation shot from near mid-court by Kent Williams bounced high off the glass backboard, however, and the game went into overtime.

John Moore hit a go-ahead jumper for Texas and also came up with a loose ball on a missed shot by Tech to set up Baxter's scoring effort that put the game out of reach.

Seniors Branan and Phillip Stroud had 13 points for Texas, Jim Krivacs, 9, and Moore, 8.

Williams led Tech with 14. Geoff Huston scored 12 and Ralph Brewster and Hill tallied 10 each for Tech.

Crayton's FT gives Tigers 3-AAA crown

Snyder squeaks by Lamesa

By NATHAN POSS
Richard Crayton connected on both ends of a one and one situation with two seconds remaining to boost the Snyder Tigers to a pulsating 51-49 victory over the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes in the battle for the District 3-AAA championship held Friday night in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Snyder led nearly the entire game, played before an estimated 2200 people, but Lamesa rallied in the final half behind the inside play of Ruben Steinbronn to tie the game and take a momentary lead.

Snyder jumped out to an 18-12 lead at the end of the first quarter, then increased it to 32-25 at the halftime. 6'3" senior Greg Hinton scored 17 of his game high 23 points in the first half to give the Tigers a halftime cushion.

Lamesa forward Pepe Lucio scored 10 points in the first half, all of them on mid-range jumpers, to keep the Tornadoes within striking distance.

Lamesa, behind the intense play of Steinbronn and the sound fundamental basketball that is its trademark, stormed back in the third stanza to tie the game with one minute left at 39.

But Snyder sophomore Brad Richardson connected on two field goals in the final minute of the stanza to give the Tigers a 43-39 lead entering the payoff period.

Snyder slowed the tempo in the final period, leading 47-43 with 2:40 remaining. But Lucio connected on a field goal and two free throws to tie the score at 47 with 1:30 remaining.

Lamesa then took the lead with 57 seconds remaining on a short hook by Steinbronn. But Richardson tied the game with a 15-foot jumper with 30 seconds left. Lamesa, waiting for the final shot, was not patient, as they pushed a shot with 12 seconds remaining, with a herd of Snyder Tigers converging on the rebound.

Snyder quickly brought the ball down the court, with Crayton penetrating the lane and drawing a foul as he drove for the basket with two seconds showing on the clock.

After Crayton calmly sank both free throws, Lamesa tried a last gasp pass down the court for a tying basket, but could not control the ball as the clock ran out.

Hinton's 23 points led Snyder, while Richardson chipped in with 11, all in the second half. Steinbronn led Lamesa with 21, 14 of them in the second half. Lucio added 15 for the Golden Tornadoes.

Snyder advances into Class AAA playoff competition with a record of 26-4, while Lamesa finished at 21-8.

UT signs ace kicker

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — All-American high school kicker Jeff Guy of Aurora, Colo., and tackle Rick Benson of Chillicothe, Mo., have signed to play football with the Texas Longhorns.

Guy, 6-foot-1 and 175 pounds, reportedly is regarded by many as the top kicking prospect in the nation.

He has kicked a 55-yard field goal and averaged 43.5 yards punting as a junior and 40.5 yards last year, when he played four games with a hip injury.

Guy also was a wide receiver, free safety and backup quarterback but will only kick at UT.

He has high jumped, 7-0 1/4, however, and will continue jumping in college.

Benson, 6-4 and 240, was an all-state offensive tackle and also played defense.

Sands whips Dawson

SANDS — The Sands Mustangs girls basketball team won the second half of district competition Friday night when they took a 53-29 decision over Dawson.

Jill Floyd led the Mustang charge with 22 points, followed by Tammy Nichols with 10 and Leslie Guitar with seven. Coors was high for Dawson with 12.

The victory gave Sands the second half championship, while Dawson won first half honors. The two squads will meet for all the marbles on Thursday, February 22 in the Lamesa Middle Gym at 7:00.

Tate bombs Bobick early

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Undefeated John Tate stopped Duane Bobick in the first round of a nationally televised heavy-weight fight Saturday to boost his hopes for a shot at the World

Boxing Association championship.

Tate, 18-0, came out swinging and quickly had Bobick reeling on the ropes. Midway in the round, Bobick was rocked to the canvas with a right and took the mandatory eight count. Bobick got up, but Tate then stormed back in, hammering Bobick into a neutral corner with a series of rights and lefts until referee George DeFabis stepped in and stopped the contest.

The loss was the third in 51 fights for Bobick, once regarded as "The Great White Hope" for the heavyweight championship. He had won eight straight fights since a loss to Kallie Knoetze in South Africa early in 1978.

The victory puts Tate in line for a May fight with Gerri Coetze of South Africa in what promoter Bob Arum said will be an elimination fight to determine the WBA champion if Muhammad Ali renounces the title. Former champion Leon Spinks and Knoetze also are scheduled for the elimination tournament. Larry Holmes is recognized as champion by the World Boxing Council.

SMU-TCU cancelled

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Icy road conditions in the Dallas-Fort Worth area have forced cancellation of Saturday night's Southwest Conference basketball game between Southern Methodist and Texas Christian.

The game has been rescheduled for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 21, at Daniel Meyer Coliseum here. An earlier SWC basketball game between the Horned Frogs and the Mustangs was postponed by icy weather Jan. 6. That game was finally played Feb. 8 in Dallas.

Paul Brown seeks changes

CINCINNATI (AP) — Paul Brown, vice president and general manager of the Cincinnati Bengals, wants the National Football League to change rules to reduce penalties and abuse of the injured reserve clause.

Brown, a member of the NFL competition committee, said he will take up the issues at the league's upcoming winter meetings in Hawaii.

"One thing I'm really pushing for is to cut down on the fouls," Brown said. "There are entirely too many as far as I'm concerned."

Brown said numerous team officials have indicated they would like to see something done to reduce the number of penalties.

Notre Dame rallies

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — Third-ranked Notre Dame, sparked by Bill Hanzlik's 14 points, overcame a three-point halftime deficit and the largest basketball crowd in state history Saturday night to defeat West Virginia 70-54.

Tracy Jackson scored 12 points and Rich Branning scored 11 for the Fighting Irish, who held West Virginia without a field goal for the first 5 1/2 minutes of the second half to overcome a 28-25 deficit.

Moncrief, Hogs whip UH

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Sidney Moncrief scored 29 points and U.S. Reed added 19 points to lead 11th-ranked Arkansas to a 78-58 Southwest Conference basketball victory over Houston Saturday.

Ken Williams scored 17 points and George Walker added 10 points and 10 rebounds for Houston, which closed its regular season with a 6-10 SWC record and a 14-14 overall mark. It was the ninth consecutive victory for the Razorbacks, who are 12-3 in the league and 20-4 on the season with one SWC game remaining. The victory gave Arkansas its third consecutive 20-or-more-victories campaign.

Moncrief scored 15 of his points in the first half as Arkansas grabbed a 40-28 lead.

The game was close for the first 17 minutes and was tied at 28-all with 3:37 left in the half on a rebound shot by the Cougars' Ralph Hamilton.

But Alan Zahn hit a pair of free throws and Reed converted a three-point play on a drive for a 35-28 advantage with 1:33 left in the half. After Williams and Hamilton each missed free throw opportunities, Keith Peterson hit a 12-foot jumper and a free throw before Moncrief closed the half with a steal and a two-handed slam dunk shortly before the buzzer.

Lietzke maintains Tucson Open lead

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Bruce Lietzke surrendered 5 strokes of a once-commanding lead but, with a struggling 68, retained a 2-shot advantage after Saturday's third round of the $250,000 Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

"Well," sighed Lietzke, who bogeyed his last two holes, "at least we got 18 more holes out of the way."

He had a 54-hole total of 197, 13 shots under par on the 6,708-yard Randolph Municipal course that has yielded some extremely low scores.

Baylor edges Rice

HOUSTON (AP) — Sophomore guard Pat Nunley calmly hit two free throws with one second left in the game to give the Baylor Bears a 70-69 Southwest Conference basketball victory over the Rice Owls Saturday night.

Nunley had given the Bears a one-point lead, 68-67, when he hit a 20-foot jumper with seven seconds left. Rice got the ball to Willis Wilson, who drove down-court and fired a 35-foot jumper through the net, giving Rice the lead at 70-69 with one second left.

Wilson was called for charging Nunley after releasing the ball, setting up the game-winning points. Baylor lifted its overall record to 14-11 and its conference mark to 8-7. Rice fell to 7-18 and 4-11.

Rice effectively bottled up Baylor's top scorer, Vinnie Johnson, who collected only four points. But Wendell Mayes popped in 26 markers and Terry Teagle chipped in 15.

Rice's Elbert Darden led all scorers with 32, but only had nine of those points in the second half.

Hawk Queens win

BORGER — The Howard College Hawk Queens jumped out to a 44-22 halftime lead and breezed on to a 95-75 victory over Frank Phillips in a Western Junior Conference game played here Saturday afternoon.

Jeanne LeFridge scored 27 points to lead the Hawk Queens onslaught, with Sherrie Coals and Karen Schulte adding 17 and 12, respectively. Debra Wesley led Frank Phillips with 17.

The win gives the Howard College a conference record of five wins and four losses, and keeps them in the running for a berth in the Region V Tournament. The Hawk Queens have a season record of 20-7.

Howard College's women's team will return to action this Tuesday when they host Clarendon. The game time has been moved from its original 7:00 starting time to 6:30 due to a high school playoff game to be played later in the evening.

HOWARD COLLEGE SCORING: Susan Martin 21.5, Beverly Strickland 24.8, Coals 7.3, LeFridge 9.9, Schulte 4.4, Young 2.4, Jones 3.0, Freeman 0.5, Smith 2.6, Meyer 1.3. TOTALS 52.21 vs.

Johnson leads Michigan St.

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Playmaker Earvin Johnson scored 21 points — 15 in the first half — and Gregory Kelsner added 20 as eighth-ranked Michigan State routed archrival Michigan 80-57 Saturday to keep the Spartans in the thick of the Big Ten basketball title race.

The defending Big Ten champs blew Michigan off the court in the first half, opening up a 22-point bulge at intermission, 38-16. While the resurgent Spartan attack ran smoothly for Michigan State's seventh consecutive triumph, the Wolverines were cold from the floor and committed 20 turnovers in the first half.

The victory left Michigan State at 10-4 in the conference and 18-5 overall. Michigan is 7-7 and 13-9.

NBA Roundup

Chicago guard John Mengelt wasn't surprised his team's coach, Larry Costello, got fired.

"We all knew something would happen, and it sure did," said Mengelt. "Someone has to be blamed and somebody has to pay for it. That's the axiom in the sports world and that's the lesson of life."

Mengelt's big surprise came later Friday night — with six seconds remaining in the Bulls' game against the New York Knicks. Chicago's five-point lead had been trimmed to one and New York had the ball when Knicks guard Ray Williams tried a court-length drive, only to be called for charging.

Mengelt said he was "really shocked" at the call. "I didn't see Williams touch anybody. The referee held up his fingers indicating 24 had committed a foul and the only 24 is on the Bulls' Reggie Theus."

But the call went the other way, and after Wilbur Holland sank a pair of free throws two seconds later, the Bulls — in their first game under interim coach Scotty Robertson, formerly Costello's assistant — had a 107-104 victory over the Knicks.

In other National Basketball Association games, the Golden State Warriors beat the Washington Bullets 109-103, the Seattle SuperSonics defeated the Phoenix Suns 119-104, the Milwaukee Bucks edged the Los Angeles Lakers 99-98, the Kansas City Kings topped the Philadelphia 76ers 119-104, the San Antonio Spurs nipped the Portland Trail Blazers 121-120 in overtime, the Detroit Pistons downed the Houston Rockets 110-96, the Indiana Pacers beat the New Jersey Nets 105-100 and the San Diego Clippers defeated the Denver Nuggets 118-104.

Warriors 109, Bullets 103
Rookie forward Wayne Cooper scored 10 points in a fourth-quarter comeback which gave the Warriors a costly victory over Washington.

The Bullets took an 83-72 lead into the last period, but the Warriors went ahead to stay 103-101 with 2:56 remaining on a three-point play by center Robert Parish. In the last minute, five technical fouls were called against Washington. Bullets Coach Dick Motta and his assistant, Bernie Bickerstaff, were ejected for their protests over a foul call.

Sonics 119, Suns 104
Dennis Johnson scored a career-high 30 points on 13-for-18 shooting for the Sonics and also did the job at the other end, holding Paul Westphal, the Suns' all-star guard, to 17 points on 6-for-17 shooting. Phoenix' other all-star, forward Walter Davis, was held to seven points, the first time in his 138 regular season NBA games that he has failed to reach double figures. He got into early foul trouble and played only 16 minutes.

Bucks 99, Lakers 98
Marques Johnson moved behind a pick set by Kent Benson and sank a jumper from the left of the foul line with four seconds left to lift Milwaukee to its fourth consecutive victory.

Spurs 121, Blazers 120, OT
George Gervin scored six of his 29 points in overtime as San Antonio, playing before a record home crowd of 15,523, beat Portland.

Kings 119, 76ers 104
Guards Phil Ford and Otis Birdsong triggered a 13-1 spurt late in the first quarter that put Kansas City ahead of Philadelphia to stay before a crowd of 19,606 at the Checkerdome in St. Louis.

Paralyzed Stingley shows improvement

BOSTON (AP) — Paralyzed wide receiver Darryl Stingley recalls watching his New England Patriots on television, thinking: "I could almost feel myself down there playing."

"I was just coming into my own as a player. I was just learning about the game," Stingley said Thursday in his first news conference since suffering a spinal cord injury late in a 1978 National Football League exhibition game.

Speaking to reporters in Boston by telephone from the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago, Stingley said he has had no communication — "none whatsoever" — from Jack Tatum, the Oakland Raiders safety who smashed into the Patriots receiver on a pass play last Aug. 12.

Stingley's doctor praised the player's rehabilitation. But when asked if Stingley will ever walk, Dr. Vin Sahgal said, "No comment."

But the doctor said "the sky is the limit" for Stingley's recovery, adding, "You never say there's something (a patient) can never do. Ignorance in this field is colossal."

"He can now feel touch and pressure in his lower extremities," Sahgal said. "It means that part of the spinal cord may be intact. He can hope to use his legs for something functional."

The conference call was held in the office of Stingley's lawyer, Jack Sands of Boston. Sands and the player's wife, Tina, announced the establishment of a trust fund that will accept donations to pay for the education of Stingley's two boys, ages 10 and 7.

NFL players and New England fans already have donated more than $25,000 to Stingley. Patriots insurance covers his medical bills. This month, he will begin receiving an NFL pension of $2,000 per month, retroactive to Aug. 12, and Social Security payments.

Sands was unable to provide a dollar total for the injured player's medical bills.

Stingley has some use of his right hand and can feed himself with aid from mechanical devices.

"I'm doing pretty good, surprisingly," said the 27-year-old former Purdue star in a voice at times barely audible.

Pete Rose named in paternity suit

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose, who signed a multi-million dollar contract with the Philadelphia Phillies, has been named in a paternity suit by a Tampa, Fla., woman who said she is seeking support for her child.

"I have no comment," said Rose, contacted at his Cincinnati home on Friday.

Rose was named in the suit by Terry L. Rubio, 25, which was filed Tuesday in Hamilton County Juvenile Court in Cincinnati on behalf of her 10-month-old daughter.

Miss Rubio contends in an affidavit that the former Cincinnati Reds' All-Star third baseman is the father of her daughter, Morgan Erin Rubio, born in Women's Hospital, Tampa, Fla., March 24, 1978.

The affidavit, filed in Hillsborough County, Fla., dated Dec. 27, 1978, was forwarded to the Cincinnati court by Edward Benson, a Cincinnati attorney.

BSHS female golfers shine in San Antonio

The tournament was called off after 27 holes due to the bad weather, with Big Spring finishing with a total of 602. Mitzi Sanderson led the Big Spring ladies with a 27-hole total of 147. Other BSHS golfers and their scores were Tanya Cain with a 150; Jackie Roach-150; Tammie Tonn-156; and Lavoy Moore-159.

San Antonio Alamo Heights took a 16-stroke victory over San Antonio MacArthur, finishing with a total of 534. Midland Lee finished third with a 573 total.

The 39-year-old McDonnell, a native of Ireland, served a five-year apprenticeship as cross country coach before he succeeded Ed Renfrow in 1977.

McDonnell had led the Razorbacks to five consecutive SWC cross country titles.

In long distance races were the Razorback's forte Friday although they showed good balance in piling up 92 points compared with 71 for runnerup and defending champion Houston.

Mike Clark, the only senior point maker on the team, won the mile and anchored the first place medal winning two-mile relay and distance medley relay teams.

Clark was the high scorer in the meet with 15 points although freshman Tony Kastl of Blue Mound, Kansas brought the house down with a meet record 7-2 high jump.

McDonnell wasn't surprised by the victory.

"Really, I thought we would win," said the Irishman. "I figured we'd score 104 points."

McDonnell added "Our big problem in the past was that the runners on the team that didn't run cross country felt inferior to Texas teams. Well, we brought in some new blood and now they've got it in their heads that when they can get on the track they are the best."

Arkansas won seven first places while no other team could claim more than two first place ribbons.

Arkansas won three relays, the mile run, the 440, the three-mile and the 800-yard dash.

Texas A&M finished third with 62 points followed by Baylor at 61, Texas 59, SMU 46, Rice 35 and TCU and Texas Tech with 16 points each.

Houston had won the last two indoor meets and was favored.

The long-awaited 60-yard dash by Texas A&M's Curtis Dickey developed into a photo finish. The Aggie football star nipped Houston's Rick Edwards although it took officials almost ten minutes to decide who won the dash to the tape.

Dickey said "I was terrible...I feel strong, but my start isn't as quick as it was last year."

Man arrested in Stabler case

GULF SHORES, Ala. (AP) — The case of a sportswriter apparently framed for a cocaine arrest while trying to interview Ken Stabler has led investigators to Randall Watson, who is charged with blackmail in another county.

Watson, described by Stabler associates as a friend of the Oakland Raiders quarterback, reportedly was with Stabler at times when Sacramento (Calif.) Bee sportswriter Bob Padecky had his ill-fated interview with Stabler here Jan. 22.

Alabama Attorney General Charles Graddick says Watson allegedly had a waitress purchase "the same kind of key case" used later in the apparent framing of Padecky.

Police say someone apparently planted a magnetic key case on a fender of Padecky's car and then called police with anonymous tips saying cocaine was on the automobile. Police dropped charges when it became apparent that Padecky was the victim of what looked like a frameup.

Graddick said Monday investigators want to talk to Watson, who is from Monroeville, about 100 miles north of Gulf Shores.

He said a waitress has told investigators that, prior to Padecky's arrest, Watson told her to buy a key case and she did. He said investigators were unable to take fingerprints from the key case found on Padecky's car.

Henry Pitts, a Selma attorney who represents Stabler, said Monday that Watson is a friend of Stabler's. Stabler wasn't available for comment.

Watson was scheduled to stand trial today on a blackmail charge in Monroeville, but the trial was postponed because a witness had a medical operation.

John Yung, an assistant state attorney general in Montgomery, said Watson and Watson's wife, Elaine, and a man named Thomas "Tank" Andrews are charged with trying to blackmail M.M. Kennedy Jr., the president of Monroeville Telephone Co., where Watson once worked.

Yung said the indictment accused the three of demanding $75,000 and the bill of sale to a four-wheel-drive vehicle under a threat of claiming that Kennedy committed adultery with Watson's wife. He said that Watson is free on $750 bond.

Watson was unavailable for comment Monday.

Grier taking giant step to kids

By WILL GRIMSLEY
NEW YORK (AP) — Roosevelt "Rosie" Grier pointed with pride at the rose patches that decorated the arm and leg of his blue denim jeans.

"Needlepoint — I did it myself," said the hulking, bearded Goliath, once, at 320 pounds, the terror of the New York Giants in the National Football League. He was notorious in his day as the crusher who didn't indulge in individual tackles. He simply grabbed an armful of the enemy and peeled them off — as he might a banana — until he came to the man with the ball.

The practice became one of the sport's hallowed cliches.

Now he is involved in gentler pursuits. His priorities, in order, are: kids, love, understanding, kids, old people, communication, kids.

"Look at national budgets all over the world," he says. "The United States, Russia, China — billions for defense. Billions for destruction. Less and less for education, recreation, human things. That's why I'm so hepped on kids. They're our only hope."

Rosie flew across country from his home in Los Angeles Wednesday to attend the Pre-American Toy Fair, featuring among other items strategy football games promoted by a pair of the NFL's current stars, quarterback Steve Grogan of the New England Patriots and punter Ray Guy of the Oakland Raiders.

The massive defensive tackle of the 1950s and 1960s agreed to attend only if allowed to say a few words in behalf of his pet project, the United Nations International Children's Appeal, which shares in the proceeds of every game sold.

Two dozen people showed up.

Grier said his life took on new meaning after he saw Robert Kennedy gunned down in a Los Angeles hotel in June 1968. He and Olympic decathlon champion Rafer Johnson were instrumental in apprehending the assassin, Sirhan Sirhan.

'HEPPED ON KIDS' — Roosevelt Grier, who was once notorious as the New York Giants crusher who just grabbed an armful of enemy players instead of making tackles, looks over a game at the Pre-American Toy Fair in New York City. Looking on center is Grier's son, Spike, and Steve Grogan of the New England Patriots. Grogan is promoting the strategy football game. Grier says he is now involved in gentler pursuits, that start with children. He says he is "hepped on kids" because they are our only hope.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Applying the Golden Rule today will give you the peace of mind you need. Let others know that you value and appreciate the relationship. Engage in activities you really enjoy.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Try to reconcile small differences with your mate. Use your intuition more and get excellent results. Improve your appearance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Think a course of action that could give you greater success in the days ahead. Show more consideration for loved one.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Attend to those small accumulated duties you have neglected lately. Strive for increased harmony with family members.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): A new project needs more study before putting it in operation. Plan just how to stretch your finances.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 23): Do nothing to risk those 11 hours and avoid trouble. Show others that you are the soul of discretion. Make this a worthwhile day.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): A good day to engage in the finest philosophy around you carefully and to be with persons who are inspiring.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Study your financial position well so that you know where you stand. Show more affection for loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21): You may want to make some changes now but it's best you first consult with others who are involved. Think constructively!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Study conditions around you carefully and know where and how to make improvements. Strive for more harmony at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): A good time to make positive plans for the days ahead. Study facts and figures, and take nothing for granted.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Do nothing that could jeopardize the enviable position you now have in your community. Handle a public matter wisely.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): A good day to take over lofty principles with an expert and one you admire, and reach time conclusions for the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a tremendous amount of vitality and it should be channeled in the right direction. There is much ability here at handling details. Teach to complete whatever has been started since that is the key to success here.

The Stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to you!

'Bracero' program no solution

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Hispanic leaders meeting here say a revival of the "Bracero" work program of the 1960s is not the answer to the problem of illegal aliens in the United States.

The League of United Latin American Citizens' Board of Directors said Friday that a stepped-up program of economic development in Latin American countries would do more to solve the problem.

The LULAC leaders are attending a two-day "emergency" conference here to urge government leaders to make sure Americans had first chance at jobs. They said Bracero program were used in the past only during labor shortages, adding that there is no labor shortage at this time.

And the directors called on the Carter Administration to step up programs influencing the economic development of Latin America, which they said was at the heart of the illegal alien problem. "Why would people come 6,000 miles to work if they could find dignity and make a living in their home?" said LULAC President Eduardo Pena.

The directors' meeting was called to reiterate opposition to the proposed revival of the work program that would issue temporary work permits to Mexican nationals.

Gov. Bill Clements proposed the revival of such a program after he discussed it with Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo in a recent trip to the Mexican capital.

President Carter and the Mexican leader also have examined resumption of such a program as a possible way to stem the tide of undocumented workers flowing into the country.

If the program was implemented, American workers should be given first chance at the jobs, said board members. But they said any laborers imported from Mexico should be given due process and be paid the federal minimum wage.

The group also passed resolutions condemning the so-called "Tortilla Curtain," and any other type of fence between the U. S. and Mexico.

Cuevas' attorneys planning change in retrial approach

HOUSTON (AP)—Defense attorneys say they plan a different approach and unlike the last time will call several witnesses in the retrial of Ignacio Cuevas, a state prison convict accused of capital murder during an escape attempt in August 1974.

Will Gray, who defended Cuevas in the first trial in 1975, said there would be some changes made but refused to disclose what he planned.

Gray, who rested his case without a witness taking the stand in the earlier trial, said, "We will have some witnesses this time. We will take a somewhat different approach."

Cuevas was convicted and sentenced to death for slaying of a hostage, prison librarian Mrs. Julia Standley.

He spent almost four years on death row before the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ordered a new trial.

The high court said the trial judge had erred by refusing to grant a defense challenge to a prospective juror. The juror had said he would vote for death penalty in any case where the accused was convicted of capital murder.

The selection of a jury began in State District Judge Miron A. Love's court Monday, a process that the prosecution says will take three weeks while the defense predicts at least six weeks.

Cuevas was the only surviving convict of the longest penal siege in U.S. history. Two other inmates were killed and two he-ges slain during a bloody attempt to escape from the Walls, a state prison unit near downtown Huntsville.

The Cuevas trial was moved on a change of venue from Huntsville to nearby Houston. The retrial is being held once again in Houston.

Gray said in selecting a jury he would look for those persons "who are open-minded on the punishment phase, if nothing else."

Mark Ward, Walker County district attorney for the past two months and handling his first major case since taking the office, said he wanted jurors "who believe when a person is guilty he should be convicted."

Disaster loans still available

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Charles W. Stenholm advises of the March 6, 1979, deadline for submitting applications for the Physical Disaster Loan Program through the Small Business Administration. This program is available to farmers and ranchers who suffered financial hardship due to drought losses on 1978 crops.

Interest rates on SBA physical disaster loans are 3 percent the first $250,000 and 6.58 percent on remaining amounts. Further information may be obtained from the Abilene SBA office located in the U.S. Post Office Building, 300 Pine Street, Suite 2211, telephone 915-762-7459.

Resident founder of boys' home declares

Foster parenting rewarding

By MICKIE DICKSON
"It is better to build boys than to mend men," declares Rev. Alan Tinnerstet and his wife, Gwen, foster parents of three teenage foster boys and three boys of their own.

Early in life Tinnerstet was afflicted with polio. He was in the hospital five months and missed the first semester of school in the fifth grade. The doctors told his mother that he would never walk. The rest of his school days were spent on crutches. The March of Dimes chose him as the poster boy at Gray's Harbour, Wash. in 1951.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy L. Bilow, members of the First Church of God in Montesano, Wash., and neighbors of the Tinnerstets, started taking young Alan to Sunday School and church in a rickety yellow bus. Through their ministry Tinnerstet became interested in the things of God. He began ministering to troubled youngsters as a senior in high school.

Tinnerstet's career as a speaker began when he won a trip across the United States and Canada with a speech about the United Nations.

While a student at Warner Pacific College, Portland, Ore., he served as youth director of a Baptist church for two years.

One summer while serving as a counselor in a day camp in Blacksburg, Va., he met Lloyd Moore, 10, who was destined to become his first foster child. Lloyd's father was deceased and his mother was an alcoholic.

He worked as an assistant parole officer in the county when he was a student at Gray's Harbour Jr. College in Aberdeen, Wash. He was a champion debater at the college, where he was a member of the student council.

Tinnerstet married Gwen Kretlow in 1962 at Vancouver, Wash.

He and Gwen served as youth ministers for the First Church of God at Roanoke, Va. in 1963. At that time Lloyd Moore, now 14, moved in as the first foster child. Gwen taught in the Church Court Kindergarten which had 55 students until they moved to Saltville, Va. in 1964.

Jon and Jay were born while the Tinnerstet's pastored in Saltville. Lloyd Moore completed high school there and they welcomed into their home Dawn, a three-year-old girl, as their second foster child. Dawn remained with them three years.

Mrs. Tinnerstet directed a private kindergarten in the First Church of God in Saltville with 20 students.

The Tinnerstets established a new congregation of the Church of God in 1966 at Marion, Virginia. The original congregation was composed of 13 people. The church now serves 150.

Gwen Tinnerstet was chosen "mother of the year" in Saltville, 1968. Jeffrey was born in Vancouver, Wash. in 1969.

The Tinnerstets moved to Huntington, Ind. in 1970 where they served the East State St. Church of God as pastors. Gwen served as director and head teacher in the day care center and kindergarten in the church with 75 students.

Lloyd entered Warner Pacific

College from which he graduated in 1972. He married and now has two children, Jennifer, seven, and Christopher, four. He works as an assistant manager of a large grocery store in Vancouver.

Rev. Tinnerstet saw the need for additional housing for unfortunate boys and established Huntington House, Inc. in Nov., 1973, with a group of business and professional men from East State St. Church of God. The corporation was separate from the church and the board of directors included members from other religious fellowships. It served in the same way as half-way houses across the country, and was similar in its operation and function.

Houseparents served to provide a home-like atmosphere where the family experienced love, genuine concern and discipline necessary to normal living.

Spread out on eight acres, Huntington House consisted of a large well-kept two-story house, capable of providing a home for ten boys. A huge cattle barn, hay barn, chicken coop, garage and recreation room were on the grounds.

The type of boys served by Huntington House were determined to be delinquent, pre-delinquent or neglected. They were there as a result of their inability to adjust to society, or the victim of unfit parents. The boys had not had trouble with the law. Because of environmental or other circumstances they had become wards of the court as "dependent boys." They were placed where they might experience home family life and participate in activities of school and community.

Huntington House provided a home with love and "Christian guidance" provided by caring house parents. Its function was to provide guidance for young boys (generally between the ages of 11 and 16) who are wards of the courts.

The first eight boys to occupy Huntington House were Tom, Kevin, Tim, Dennis, Danny, Chris, Steve and David. Four were in high school, three in junior high and one in grade school. Two boys were 16 year olds, three were 15, two were 14 and one was 12.

Some of the boys had summer employment in Huntington. School activities in which they participated included basketball, swimming, wrestling, drama and band. Livestock housed in the barn included a pony named "Trigger" and a white faced heifer, both gifts to the house. The boys also took care of 31 rabbits and about 30 chickens. Tom had 15 rabbits, including young ones. The House supplied feed which he repaid when he sold the stock.

An acre of ground on the five and a half acres of the Huntington House plot, was planted in garden produce. The boys cultivated the crops and the harvest supplied a quantity of canned and frozen food for winter use. The boys had smaller plots if they wished, and sold the produce for their own gain. A number of dwarf fruit trees were planted.

A farm building formerly used for storage and as a tool shed was remodeled for storage below and a basketball court on the upper floor.

Volunteer labor by members of a local civic club converted another former outbuilding into a workshop, recreation area and garage. Local industries gave a ping pong table, pool table, TV set and radio.

"The basic philosophy of the House was one of trying to get long-term boys so that they would have time to work with them," Dave Fulkerson, Huntington House Administrator said. It was difficult to take a kid for just a short time, try to work with him and then send him back to a bad environment that's not necessarily his making."

A boy left Huntington House after either his family situation improved to meet court requirements, or legal jurisdiction ended when he became 18 years old.

The atmosphere at the home was quiet and relaxed. The boys had their responsibilities to the home and some of the boys held jobs in Huntington.

When asked how they felt about Huntington House, the boys all said, "It's okay."

Jim, who looked at his life at Huntington House objectively, said, "It's good for me. They taught me manners and responsibility. They got me a job."

Gary Jewel, a seventh grader, came to live with the Tinnerstets in 1973. He is now a senior in Big Spring High School and works at Newsom's grocery as a distributive education student.

The Tinnerstet's were called to First Church of God, 2009 Main, as pastors in August, 1975 when Gary was a freshman.

November 20, 1975, Tinnerstet broke his leg in two places while making a pastoral call. He missed only one Sunday preaching. He sat on a high stool behind the pulpit for five or six months.

In 1974 Rev. Tinnerstet started publishing a magazine called Reformation Witness for ministers, laymen and church leaders in the Church of God. The publication has grown from 2,000 circulation to 16,000 copies distributed in five or six different countries as well as the United States. It re-emphasizes the pioneer teaching in the Church of God Reformation Movement. This publishing company distributes pamphlets, books and cassette tapes. Tinnerstet has aided in the re-publishing and distribution of a number of books by original Church of God authors.

Tinnerstet met Ricky Patton of the Church of God Hope Hill Children's Home in Oct., 1977, when he was holding a revival in Paris, Kentucky. After corresponding with the children's home, Ricky and his brother, Scott, came to spend the summer with the Tinnerstets in June, 1978. They returned to the Home the first of August and came back to live in Big Spring the last of August, in time for school. Ricky is 15 years old and Scott is 13.

Gwen Tinnerstet works at the Big Spring State Hospital as an attendant from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. so she can be with her family in the day time.

Jon was on the all star teams in football, baseball and basketball in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

Jay was chosen best all around defensive player in the Big Spring all star game in the sixth grade. Jay and Jon played for the Cowboys in the city championship game.

Gary has been on the cross country team and the track team at Big Spring High School.

Jay, Jon and Scott sing in the boys' choir at Goliad Junior High School. Rick played football at Runnels Junior High School.

Rev. Tinnerstet is now the chairman of the Texas Camp Meeting Program Committee of the Church of God responsible for the annual camp meetings at Eastland. In 1976 he served as chairman of the Texas Camp Meeting Association. He has served on the West Texas Board of Christian Education.

Pastor Tinnerstet counsels with many families with children, declaring that patience and love in addition to a belief that time will prove the value of what you are doing, are the necessary ingredients to successfully raising foster children.

He will be happy to talk to anyone out of his years of experience who either are foster parents of teenage children, or are interested in becoming foster parents to teens.

Two weeks ago Rev. Tinnerstet received a long distance call from Tom, one of the original inhabitants of Huntington House, reporting on his progress. He's out of school now, working and living at home, doing very well.

"This is just one of the rewards of foster parenting, seeing young men living constructive lives in which you've invested time, effort and love," Pastor Tinnerstet said.

Wedding vows solemnized during Baptist ceremony

The wedding vows of Dana Suzanne Brasher and William Leon Langley were solemnized Saturday evening in the Ackerly Baptist Church. The Rev. Jim Mosley officiated the 7 p.m. ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Dan Brasher, Ackerly. The groom's parents are Mrs. Helene Langley, Big Spring, and the late W.B. Langley.

The ceremony was performed before an altar enhanced by a white iron archway and columns adorned with daisies and pink bows. Wicker wedding bells topped the archway. Completing the scene were white wicker baskets with pink gladiolus and white daisies. Pews were adorned with pink checked butterflies and pink rosebuds. Bridal lace streamers accentuated the arrangements.

Providing the wedding music for the couple were Mrs. Bill Hambrick, pianist; Mrs. Jerry Hall, organist; and Brad Ingram, guitarist. Buddy Dyer of Ackerly served as vocalist.

The bride was presented down the aisle wearing a bridal original of Jacksons, San Angelo. The gown was of white silk organza over tulle taffeta fashioned in princess design, featuring a full skirt and chapel-length train. Flowered pearl-encrusted Alencon lace embellished the neckline, waist and hemline ruffle. The veil, made by her mother, fell from a Juliet cap overlaid with lace and adorned with pearls and white silk flowers. The three tiers completed to a chapel-length train.

She wore a blue garter, her mother's wedding penny, a borrowed white lace handkerchief from Mrs. Alfred Herren, and a new diamond pendant which was a gift from the groom. A colonial bouquet of white daisies, pink roses and a single white orchid accented the bridal ensemble. Pink and white lace streamers decorated the bouquet.

Jill Floyd, Ackerly, served the bride as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Diana Newton, Dalhart, sister of the groom; and Cindy Brasher, Ackerly, sister of the bride. They were attired in pink and white checked floor-length gowns featuring white eyelet aprons. Each attendant carried wicker baskets with white daisies. Pink silk flowers adorned their hair.

Serving the groom as best man was Gary Posey, Lubbock. Groomsman included Willie Wells, Stanton; and Nicky Hood, Snyder. Rickey Jackson, Ackerly; Stan Blagrove, Ackerly; and Jody Nix, Big Spring, were ushers.

Attired in a gown similar to the bridesmaids, Erica Jackson, Ackerly, was flower girl for the ceremony. She carried a wicker basket designed with wedding bells and pearl streamers. The First Baptist Church of Ackerly was the setting for a reception in honor of the newlyweds. Tammy Nichols, Knott, registered guests from a table covered with a cloth of pink and white checks. Pink roses and white daisies enhanced the table.

The bride's table was laid with white lace featuring a four-tiered cake of pink and white roses, white daisies and flowing fountain. Pink silk flowers and white doves were placed atop the cake. A silver candelabrum with pink tapers holding the bride's bouquet enhanced the table as centerpiece. Serving at the table were Mrs. Alfred Herren, Mrs. Cecil Allred and Mrs. Derwood Blagrove, all of Ackerly. Silver appointments were used.

The groom's table was covered in blue denim. A ceramic boot and brass stalk of cotton served as centerpiece. Cake and coffee were served by Mrs. Willie Wells, cousin of the groom; and Mrs. Buster Haggard, aunt of the groom, both of Stanton.

Members of the house party included Mrs. Ralph Rogers, Mrs. Dee Anderson, Mrs. Lon McDonald, Mrs. Tommy Horton, Mrs. Jim Mosley and Mrs. David Davidson, all of Ackerly; Mrs. Vernon Langley, Mrs. Wheeler Meek and Ms. Lee Hans, all of Big Spring; and Mrs. Bill Shockley, Knott.

The bride graduated from Sands High School and has attended Texas Tech University. Graduating from Big Spring High School, the groom has attended Howard College and is a graduate of Texas Tech with a BS degree. He is now engaged in farming in the Fairview community.

The couple will leave today from Midland and fly to Las Vegas for their wedding trip. Upon returning, they will reside in the Fairview community.

Homosexuality only a threat

Dr. Wallace: Last year, in the 7th grade, I met a very intelligent Chinese boy who was a great trumpet player. I wasn't sure I liked him, but he threatened to become a homosexual if I didn't go with him.

Of course, I couldn't let that happen so I gave it a chance. After two days, I broke his heart when I broke up with him.

Later in the year, we became very hateful to each other.

Now, this year, I like this guy but he still is very hateful to me. Just recently he wrote on the chalkboard, "I hate Nancy's guts, so stay out of my life."

My friends all hate him and think he is a creep. Please give me some advice. I think I really love this guy. — Nancy, Modesto, Calif.

Nancy: It appears you are chasing this guy and he doesn't want to be caught. Leave him entirely alone. Later in the school year, if things have cooled down, have a talk with him, but don't have great expectations.

Incidentally, his threat to become a homosexual was only a threat.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 16-year-old guy and my mother still treats me like her baby. I used to ask if I could drive the car, but she said not until I get my license.

Now I've got my license and she still says no.

My dad says he will let me drive alone when I learn to drive without speeding.

I think I'm getting "ripped off." Don't you? — Kenneth, Wahpeton, N.D.

Kenneth: If I read in your letter that you are known as a "lead foot on the gas pedal," I agree with mom.

If not, you should be allowed to drive alone if you have a valid driver's license and you are a conscientious mature young man.

Incidentally, you will always be mother's baby.

Home demonstration clubs adopt new name

By JANET ROGERS
County Extension Agent
A new name for "home demonstration" clubs — Extension Homemakers Clubs — went into effect Jan. 1, across Texas, and Howard County clubs will join the effort.

For their new names, Howard County Clubs changed the words "home demonstration" to "Extension Homemakers." These include the Airport Extension Homemakers Club, the Centerpoint Extension Homemakers Club, and the City Extension Homemakers Club. Also, the Coahoma Extension Homemakers Club, the Creative Extension Homemakers Club and the Elbow Extension Homemakers club. Also, the Fairview Extension Homemakers Club and the new Spring City Gals Extension Homemakers Club.

This change is affecting the statewide network of Extension Homemakers Clubs at all organizational levels — including community, county, district and state, according to Mrs. James Johnston, Howard County Extension Homemakers Council Chairman.

To create the new name, members of the statewide Texas Home Demonstration Association recently voted to change the state organization's name to Texas Extension Homemakers Association — a 20,678 member organization of community club members from across Texas.

Each club and county council has considered a local name change to coincide with the state organization name. The new name reflects the state association's affiliation with the National Extension Homemakers Council, Mrs. Johnston added.

MRS. PAUL SHAFFER JR.

Shaffers take trip to Ruidoso

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lester Shaffer Jr. are on a trip to Ruidoso, N.M., following their Saturday evening wedding in the Golf Course Road Church of Christ in Midland. Max Leach, minister of Tarzan Church of Christ, officiated the 7 p.m. ceremony.

Mrs. Shaffer, the former Darlynn Jo Stewart of Midland, is the daughter of Mrs. Woodrow W. Stewart, 3604 W. Storey, Midland, and the late Woodrow W. Stewart. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Shaffer, 611 Highland, Big Spring.

The ceremony was performed before a heart-shaped archway enhanced by arrangements of blue and white flowers. Flanking either side was a seven-branch fan-shaped candelabrum. A candle of life completed the altar scene.

Wedding music was presented by members of the Golf Course Road Church of Christ Choir and Mrs. Jeff Robinson, Midland.

The bride chose to wear a formal gown of white chiffon and Venice lace. The bodice featured a natural waist. A sheer yolk and chiffon ruffle accented the neckline. The full Bishop sleeves ended in wide cuffs embellished with ruffles. Her A-line skirt fell to a chapel-length train.

A three-tiered chapel-length veil, edged with matching lace, fell from a lace-covered cap, completing the bride's ensemble. She carried a cascading bouquet of cymbidium orchids, baby's breath, and white roses atop a white lace Bible. Blue and white satin streamers adorned the bouquet.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Mrs. Dee Lacy, Midland, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Buddy Stewart, Tarzan, sister-in-law of the bride; and Lella Stewart, Midland, sister of the bride.

Best man was Robert P. Shaffer, Big Spring, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Rondel Brock, Big Spring and Michael Adams, Lamesa. Ushers for the ceremony included Mike McCormick and Roddy Caffey, both of Big Spring; Bill Burchett, Arlington; David Zellars, Odessa; David Englert, San Angelo; and Dee Lacy, Midland.

The bride's niece, Jessica Stewart, attended the couple as flower girl. Jim Bob Stewart, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer. Candelighters included Stacey Parks, Big Spring; and Craig Glaze, Snyder.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shaffer Jr. were feted with a reception in the fellowship hall of the church. Serving at the bride's table were Donna Wilkerson, cousin of the bride; Lana Parks, cousins of the groom; Stacy Payne, and Reina Koonce. They served from a table covered with a blue cloth overlaid by lace. The three-tiered cake was decorated with blue rose buds and topped with traditional wedding bells. Miniature bride and groom figurines belonging to the bride's parents from their wedding accentuated the second tier. The bride's bouquet served as centerpiece. Crystal appointments were used.

Mrs. Roddy Caffey and Mrs. Rondel Brock served at the groom's table. The bride is a 1974 graduate of Stanton High School and a 1976 graduate of Western Texas College. She is presently employed by Charles R. Ervin Insurance Agency as a secretary in Midland.

The groom is a 1972 graduate of Big Spring High School and graduated from Texas A&M University in 1977. He is presently assistant superintendent for Area Builders, Incorporated, General Contractors of Odessa.

The couple will be at home at 4465 N. Garfield No. 617, Midland.

How the Other Woman Sees The 'Other Woman'

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago you had some advice in your column for a woman who was in love with a married man. It started out, "Never expect to see him on Sundays or holidays." I cut it out and stuck it in a book, but now I don't remember which book it was, and it's driving me crazy. (My husband is a college professor and we have at least 10,000 books in our library!) I need that letter to show to my daughter who is in love with a married man. Can you locate it and print it again, please?

L. IN NEW HAVEN

DEAR L.: Here it is:

Dear Abby: May I give your readers the benefit of my very valuable experience? I address this to any woman who is "in love" with a married man: Never expect to see him on Sundays or holidays. Never call him at home.

Don't ever expect him to take you out in public, but be prepared to entertain HIM at your place. He may bring a bottle or the steaks occasionally, but in actual dollars and cents you will spend more on him that he'll spend on you. Never depend on him in times of personal crisis.

Don't believe him when he tells you his wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin) and she hasn't slept with him for 10 years.

Don't ever expect his wife to divorce him—even if she catches him. She knows you are not his first, and won't be his last. Also, she is not about to give up her social status, financial security and retirement income because of you.

However, her discovery will probably terminate his affair with you, so be prepared to get some new clothes, circulate, and find another married man whose wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin) and hasn't slept with him for 10 years. Sign me...

His Wife

DEAR ABBY: I want to thank you for turning me on to what I consider the best place for a young man to meet a nice young woman. In church!

I wrote to several local churches, asking if they sponsored any social groups for young adults. The response was amazing. Within a month I had become involved in three different groups—Lutheran, Methodist and Nazarene—all interesting and well-attended.

Now my evenings are filled with a variety of activities—potluck dinners, dances, Bible studies, to name a few. I have met several eligible, intelligent and beautiful young women. (And they're not prudish, either.)

For every lonely man reading this, there are probably two lonely women wishing they could meet him. No more singles bars for me. I've got all I can handle now. In case you're wondering, I'm a 27-year-old physician.

DOC: K.C., MO.

DEAR DOC: Your prescription will send a lot of people to church. (Especially those who never had a prayer.)

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (26 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

SCENIC CHAPTER NAMES BOSS OF THE YEAR — At their annual Boss Night, the Scenic Chapter of ABWA honored Auriel La Fond, center, as Boss of the Year. He is executive vice president of Gamco Industries, Inc. Nancy White, left and Dolores Le Vier, employees of La Fond, submitted the winning letter entry.

Scenic Chapter ABWA honors Auriel La Fond on Boss Night

"Our boss is a very kind and considerate man. He always has time to listen to our problems and assist us in solving them. He also takes time to pat us on the back for a job well done. He encourages us to do our job in the manner in which we feel is best and most productive overall for the benefit of the company."

This is an excerpt from the winning entry for the Scenic Chapter ABWA Boss Night Banquet submitted by Dolores Le Vier and Nancy White in honor of their boss, Auriel La Fond, Executive vice president of Gamco Industries Inc.

The 19th annual Scenic Chapter of American Business Women held the event Feb. 15, 7:30 p.m. in the Nail Room of the Brass Nail Restaurant. Tables were decorated in red, white and blue, accented with floral arrangements of the same color.

Mrs. Otilie Van Vleet read the letter projecting La Fond. He is a native of Manitowac, Wis., and served in the U.S. Army. He taught math, physics and chemistry in high school, forming his own company which manufactured and distributed mathematical teaching aids at that time. He invented several devices used in the field of mathematics and has had numerous publications in teachers manuals related to math.

Graduating from the University of Wisconsin with a B.S. degree and receiving the M.A. degree from the University of Michigan, he did graduate work at Cornell University and received a National Science Foundation Scholarship as well as a Shell Merit Fellowship. He is married and has one daughter.

The letter concluded by stating "We believe he should be 'Boss of the Year' because to us, he is just that every day of the year." The banquet opened by Dolores Le Vier giving the invocation and leading the Pledge of Allegiance.

Toastmistress Kay Winn conducted the introductions, welcoming special guest speakers, Helen Ball and Mayor Wade Choate.

The history of ABWA was presented by Muriel Denton, stating that this was the club's 30th year. She revealed ABWA began in Kansas City, Mo. in 1949 and has grown steadily into 1600 chapters.

"The purpose of ABWA," stated Mrs. Denton, "is to promote a better employer-employee relationship."

Vocational speaker Helen Ball, wife of Brigadier General Robert S. Ball, of the Salvation Army, presented an interesting program concerning her job activities.

She stated to those in attendance "There's never a dull moment."

Explaining the various areas enlightened by the Salvation Army, Mrs. Ball said their work begins at the cradle level on up. They have an organization similar to Girl Scouts which trains young girls to be good citizens and homemakers.

She and her husband will be retiring June 10 and Mrs. Ball closed by saying "We will always hold a place in our heart for Big Spring."

Mayor Wade Choate was welcomed as guest speaker and presented an informing report on the growth and development of Big Spring. He covered such areas as the quality of life, the Canterbury Retirement Center, additions to churches and industries, expanding shopping facilities, as well as the minimum security prison and other Industrial Park possibilities.

Mayor Choate stated "These additions should enhance our ability to encourage people here and surrounding area to shop Big Spring."

Following Mayor Choate's presentation, La Fond was presented with the Boss of the Year trophy by Mrs. White and Mrs. Le Vier. He expressed his thanks to his employees, saying "They're wonderful people who make my job much easier."

Members presented Lou Thomas, active Scenic Chapter member with a going away gift. She and her family will be moving to Hobbs, N.M.

Opal Wooten closed the banquet with the benediction.

FROWNING FATHER — Col. Warner, played by Henry Fonda, right, tries to stop his son, Jim, played by Richard Thomas, left, from marrying Carrie Barden, portrayed by Fay Hauser, in ABC-TV's "Roots II: The Next Generations." First in the seven episodes of the series airs this evening.

Library to offer 'Picturepages'

By Cathye McCracken
Children's Librarian
Howard County Library

Have you ever worried over what your children are learning from the television? In the majority of the households today the T.V. set is the first and last thing we see each day. For a change, turn your channel to Channel 7 tomorrow at 8:00 a.m. and watch the Captain Kangaroo show. Most of us watched his show as children. The format is still basically the same, except for one new addition — PICTUREPAGES.

PICTUREPAGES is a daily feature, usually about 8:45 a.m., Monday through Friday, of Captain Kangaroo on CBS, Channel 7. Starting Friday, February 16, the Howard County Library will offer PICTUREPAGES booklets at no cost to the public. Through our Friends of the Library, these PICTUREPAGES have been purchased for use until June. To get your PICTUREPAGES, just come down to the Howard County Library and ask for your free booklet. Our only request is that there be only one (1) booklet per family.

Here's the way it works. While Captain Kangaroo does a PICTUREPAGE "lesson" on T.V., children and hopefully their parents actively follow along at home using their own booklet. The booklet also contains follow-up activity for parents to do with their children after the television program.

Bob Keeshan, alias Captain Kangaroo, has been trying for ten years to think of a way to get preschool children and their parents more actively involved together at home. The PICTUREPAGES program has proved to be a great success. During October, 1.6 million copies were distributed, and 120,000 more were mailed.

The game like approach to learning through the use of brightly colored, easily identifiable subjects, provides an entertaining method of learning. Each child works at his or her own pace, so there is no pressure to compete quickly for the right answers. With the help of Captain Kangaroo and you the parent, your child should find this a fun learning experience.

The Howard County Library will begin handing out the PICTUREPAGES every Friday for the next weeks' program. Captain Kangaroo starts a new booklet each Monday, so be sure to come by and get yours on time.

Know what your child is learning from T.V. Come by the Howard County Library and get your free PICTUREPAGE booklet. Turn your channel to Channel 7, 8:00 a.m., Monday through Friday, and spend time helping your child to learn the fun way.

Long-awaited 'Roots' sequel good television

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The long-anticipated and much-heralded "Roots: The Next Generations" is here at last — and easily overcomes the jinx that plagues so many sequels.

"Roots" made TV history two years ago as the most-watched series of all time, won nine Emmys and a Peabody Award. The sequel, if not a masterpiece, is brilliant television.

The show crackles with an excitement from a blend of superior performances, direction, writing, and technical virtuosity that is rarely achieved on the home screen.

The 14-hour continuation of the saga of Alex Haley's family begins on ABC Sunday, and continues in two-hour episodes each night of the week through Friday. The concluding chapter is next Sunday night.

The first episode of "Roots II" takes up the story after the descendants of Kunta Kinte, freed from slavery, had packed their meager belongings and set out for a new life in Henning, Tenn.

In the final episode, Haley makes the 12-year search for his roots that climaxes with his discovery of the link to Kunta Kinte in Africa.

The series opens in 1882, 12 years after the original "Roots" ended. Blacksmith Tom Harvey, with his wife, Irene, is Henning's leading black citizen. Chicken George, now senile and cranky, is soon to die.

The opening chapter tells two overlapping stories: Tom Harvey's refusal to allow his daughter Elizabeth to marry a light-skinned black because of his bitter memories, contrasted with his tacit approval in the face of white opposition of the marriage of a black school teacher to the son of Henning's leading white citizen.

Tom was a stern, determined man with a lot of faults," said Georg Stanford Brown. He and Lynne Moody, as Irene, are the only actors from the original cast. Chicken George, played by Ben Vereen in "Roots," is portrayed here by Avon Long.

Henry Fonda plays Col. Frederick Warner, Olivia de Havilland is his wife, and Richard Thomas is Jim, the son they disown when he marries the black teacher, Carrie, played by Fay Hauser.

Even in the first chapter, a direct link to Haley is established. His first teacher was "Sister Carrie," and young Warner became the beloved "Uncle Jim" of his youth. Elizabeth becomes Aunt Liz, one of the first to tell Haley of the old African, Kunta Kinte.

Stills remembers past to pattern musical future

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Stephen Stills is doing a lot of talking about his rock 'n' roll roots these days, and it's not for old time's sake.

"Stagnation has never been my strong suit," Stills declares. And so, at age 34, this perpetually anxious-looking pioneer of the soft rock sound is turning more and more to music with a hard beat.

As demonstrated at a recent club engagement here, that means wearing a sports coat, playing lots of fancy electric guitar licks and even spending a few energetic minutes attacking a percussion set-up.

It's certainly a far cry from the Stills of Crosby, Stills, Nash and (sometimes) Young, who wore plaid shirts, played a mellow acoustic guitar and sang soft, folksy harmonies. And sold millions and millions of records.

Stills has by no means severed his relationship with David Crosby and Graham Nash. But he makes it clear that for the time being, at least, his heart is in the more upbeat sound of his new band.

"That's where my roots are — rock 'n' roll, rhythm and blues," Stills explains. "That's the stuff I had most fun at."

"My musical career started when I was 6, and I played the drums," he adds, waxing enthusiastic. "My favorite instrument is an electric guitar with an amp. I was taught by the masters."

It turns out that one of the masters was the late Jimi Hendrix, who — along with Eric Clapton and Ringo Starr — played backup on Stills' first solo album in 1970.

At various times, Stills has also recorded with such stars as Al Kooper, Mike Bloomfield, Jim Messina and Donnie Dacus. He helped start Buffalo Springfield in 1965 and put together Manassas in 1971.

But he remains best-known and — if record sales are any indication — best-loved, for his work with CSN and CSNY.

R WHAT IS ITCHING?

Itching is often a symptom of an underlying disorder. It is very closely related to the sensation of pain and by following the natural reflex to scratch, it will after a time initiate pain — which is temporarily more comfortable!!

Itching can be caused by many conditions — local infection, allergy, nerves, nutrition, etc. Self-treatment could delay proper therapy. A persistent itching should be checked with a physician. He can find out the cause and advise the proper treatment.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we compound yours?

Treatment rules are few

By JANET ROGERS

Architectural changes, new types of glass and improved methods of heating and cooling houses have influenced windows. There are few, if any set rules for window treatment. Each window, group of windows or glass wall challenges its owner to make it contribute to the comfort, utility, and beauty of the home.

What do you want draperies to do for a particular room? Should they provide privacy, frame a beautiful view, hide an unpleasant view, protect it from glare, sun, heat or cold? Should they correct the appearance of problem windows? Should draperies be the center of interest or part of the background? How do they affect the outside of the house?

When choosing draperies, consider the room, proportions, exposure, view, walls, floors, furnishings, accessories and amount of surface to be draped.

The walls and floors form the background. Care should be taken when using several designs or prints in a room. Structural lines of architecture and furnishings create design which may make other design unnecessary.

Solid color draperies the same color as the wall seem to become a part of the walls and enlarge the background. This is especially successful in small rooms and those with many windows because the greatest possible impression of size is gained. Dark colors seem to decrease the size while light colors increase the impression of spaceousness. Solid colors slightly darker or lighter than the walls are less monotonous than those that are matched exactly.

A room's location plays an important part in the selection of color. Rooms which receive their main light from the south or west will usually be more pleasant when cool colors — blues, greens, violets, and neutral colors make up the principal color scheme.

P.E. demonstration presented to PTA

Parents who attended the 7:30 p.m. Tuesday night meeting of College Heights P.T.A. were entertained with a physical education demonstration participated in by about 30 first and second graders.

The demonstration followed a brief business meeting presided over by Diana Bailey, president.

Led by P.E. instructor Janette Lane, the children presented parents with a display of their proficiency at bending, jumping, touching toes and other exercises that are part of the school's

P.E. program. It was followed with a dance exercise.

Highlighting the evening was the presentation of a potted plant to Mrs. Bailey who was named "College Heights Sweetheart" for her many hours of work during the school year.

One of the achievements of the P.T.A., under Mrs. Bailey's direction, has been the addition of new tables to the cafeteria. The final table will soon be purchased with funds raised by the group, making the new cafeteria seating complete.
