

Treaty approved; violence mounts

By the Associated Press

The Egyptian Cabinet today approved the proposed Egypt-Israel treaty, but as a peace pact neared, violence mounted on the West Bank of the Jordan River where Israeli troops killed two Arab student protesters in the week's bloodiest clash.

In Israel, Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan disclosed that under terms of the compromise engineered by President Carter, Egypt will take early control of the Sinai capital of El Arish, a Dayan spokesman said.

The Israeli minister also reportedly disclosed that Egypt has demanded further "goodwill gestures" from Israel, but for now has dropped its demand that Egyptian officers be stationed in the Gaza Strip to oversee autonomy.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said he thinks "we have achieved peace thanks to Jimmy" and he praised President Carter for his "marvelous" job of peacemaking.

The Egyptian Cabinet's approval of the treaty had been expected. Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil announced the 32-member body had voted unanimously in favor of it after a four-hour debate.

The Egyptian Parliament's approval is considered certain. The Israeli Cabinet is expected to endorse the full treaty Sunday, and the Israeli Parliament soon afterward.

In announcing the Cabinet approval today, Khalil said he hoped that soon "the past enmity between the two nations will be something of a memory."

But he added, "The Palestinian question can never be ignored." Palestinians in Israeli-occupied territories fear that their chances for statehood will be eclipsed by the proposed treaty.

Arab protesters demonstrated today in Halhoul and five other towns in the occupied West Bank. The military command said Israeli troops opened fire when "a group of soldiers and civilians was caught in a violent outburst by hundreds of students on the main road in Halhoul," 20 miles south of Jerusalem.

A 21-year-old Palestinian man and a 17-year-old schoolgirl were killed and another Palestinian was wounded, it said.

It was the second day of demonstrations against the peace treaty in the West Bank.

Dayan briefed ambassadors to Jerusalem on details of the negotiations during Carter's dramatic Mideast trip, and a spokesman then reported his remarks to foreign correspondents.

The Israeli foreign minister did not say when Israel would pull out of El Arish, a town of 30,000 some 100 miles east of the Suez Canal and 30 miles west of the Israeli border, his spokesman said.

The agreement to evacuate El Arish and northern Sinai in the first phase of the Israeli withdrawal was included in a timetable Israel granted Egypt in return for Cairo's acceptance of an early exchange of ambassadors, Dayan was quoted as saying.

Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman flew to Washington today to work out the details of the timetable with his Egyptian counterpart, Kamal Hassan Ali.

Dayan also was quoted as saying the Egyptians had demanded a series of gestures from Israel to improve the atmosphere — the release of political prisoners held without trial, freedom of movement for Palestinians in the West Bank and the Israeli-occupied Gaza, the right for Palestinians to hold political assemblies, and the shifting of Israeli military government headquarters in Gaza out of Gaza city.

The spokesman said the Israelis replied that the Palestinians already have freedom of movement. The Israeli Cabinet made no decision on the other requests.

Dayan was quoted as saying a problem over the Gaza Strip was resolved during Carter's final meeting in Cairo with Sadat Tuesday. Until then Egypt had demanded Israel's agreement to carry out the plan for Palestinian autonomy in Gaza first if snags developed in implementing the self-rule plan in the West Bank.

Dayan reportedly said Israel did not object to the Gaza-first idea, but it refused Egypt's demand to station liaison officers in Gaza to oversee the plan. Sadat decided to drop the Gaza issue for the time being, the Dayan spokesman said.

Sadat, meeting with reporters on the lawn of his country villa north of Cairo today, said he hopes the treaty can be signed in Washington next week.

"My dear friend President Carter ... we owe him a lot, so I think it is quite natural that we make the main celebration there in Washington, especially after the man has done the whole thing, really, in such a marvelous way," Sadat said.

Egyptian Defense Minister Ali is to leave for Washington Friday. The two defense ministers are expected to spend about two days in Washington winding up the military annex spelling out such specifics as the lines to which Israeli troops will fall back in the Sinai.

The Israeli Cabinet on Wednesday approved the last two compromises proposed by Carter for the treaty draft. This along with support voiced previously by leaders of the opposition Labor Party ensured the treaty's approval next week by the Knesset, the Israeli Parliament.

Radio Israel said the Cabinet also told Weizman to discuss U.S. financial aid and political commitments to Israel.

U.S. congressional leaders briefed by Carter said the pact will cost American taxpayers $4 billion to $5 billion in additional aid to Israel and Egypt.

Sadat drafted messages to moderate Arab leaders to try to convince them a treaty with Israel would not be a sell-out of the Palestinians.

But Algeria called the proposed pact "an act of treason." Iraq, Jordan, Syria and Kuwait called for sanctions against Egypt — presumably including a cutoff of Arab trade and oil — if Sadat signed the peace treaty.

Vietnam harasses China

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam's troops were reported harassing withdrawing Chinese troops today as Hanoi accused the Chinese of moving border markers south into Vietnamese territory to alter the frontier.

Kyodo, the Japanese news service, said a Chinese official in Peking told it the bulk of the Chinese invasion force has withdrawn from Vietnam, and the pullout "will take another day or so" to complete.

Xinhua (Hsinhua), the official Chinese news agency, said the withdrawing forces were fighting off harassing attacks by Vietnamese troops.

"Part of the enemy troops were wiped out and the rest scuttled," said Xinhua.

Analysts in Bangkok said the Vietnamese were trailing the withdrawing Chinese and attacking them in some areas along the frontier. But one diplomat said the Vietnamese attacks apparently were not serious enough to warrant major Chinese counterattacks.

Nhan Dan, the Vietnamese Communist Party's Hanoi newspaper, said Vietnam "with sincerity and humane policy let the Chinese withdraw without chasing or attacking them. But the Chinese not only delayed the withdrawal but also plundered, looted, shelled and burned Vietnamese houses.

"In many areas, Chinese troops moved (border) marker posts deep inside Vietnamese territory with the aim to change the historical boundary of the two countries."

Radio Hanoi said its correspondent saw Chinese troops building emplacements in the past few days to entrench themselves in border areas.

Four Mexicans die in earthquake

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The powerful earthquake and aftershocks that jolted Mexico left four persons reported dead, 32 injured, 400 treated for hysteria and widespread damage, including 150 toppled homes, officials said today.

The Seismological Institute said the quake hit shortly after 5 a.m. Wednesday, registered 7.0 on the Richter scale and was centered near Acapulco. Eighteen aftershocks registering as high as 5.0 continued for hours and lesser ones lasted into the night.

Police said a 14-year-old girl was killed by falling debris in Mexico City.

Ham radio operators reported two deaths in remote areas, and a girl was reported crushed to death by a crumbling wall near the center of the quake.

Twenty-six persons were treated as out-patients and six required hospitalization, the Red Cross said. Police said 400 persons were treated for hysteria, adding more would have been hurt had the tremor struck during a busy hour.

At the Ibero-American University in southern Mexico City a three-story administrative and classroom building collapsed and five more buildings were condemned, police said.

Serious damage was reported in many other towns and there were numerous reports of collapsed tile roofs. In the city of Petatlan, Guerrero state, officials said 150 adobe houses were toppled.

Two-thirds of the capital's 13 million residents lost electrical power for up to four hours. Water and sewage lines broke, flooding houses in some areas.

Without power for traffic lights, the capital's morning rush hour turned into traffic jams that lasted into the afternoon.

Peace to cost United States about $5 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter estimates an Egyptian-Israeli treaty will cost American taxpayers about $5 billion. Key members of Congress say that's a small price to pay for peace.

Both Republicans and Democrats said Wednesday they foresee little trouble in approving new military and economic aid requests associated with the treaty.

Carter, who planned to begin a long weekend at Camp David today, briefed about 50 members of the Senate and House on his peace mission Wednesday at the White House.

Afterward, Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said, "We are talking about something in the range of four to five billion dollars" in U.S. aid over the next three or four years.

Carter was deliberately vague in his estimates to the legislators, stressing that costs could go up if, for example, oil-rich Saudi Arabia withdraws its military aid to Egypt to punish it for signing a treaty with Israel.

Military aid under the treaty is now estimated to cost the United States about $4 billion, divided about equally between Israel and Egypt. There would be an additional $1 billion in economic aid to bolster Egypt's relatively backward economy.

"I think it's worth it," Baker said. "I think if this is a fair estimate of cost it's a good buy." One participant in the briefing, who requested anonymity, said Congress would not be asked to approve the bulk of the aid package until 1981 and 1982.

Baker and others said the United States made neither a commitment to a defense treaty with Israel nor a commitment to use U.S. forces to guarantee that the two nations abide by the treaty.

The Israeli Cabinet approved key sections of the treaty Wednesday and will meet Sunday to vote on the pact as a whole. It must still win approval from the Israeli Parliament, the Knesset, but Israeli political analysts said that was a foregone conclusion.

There were indications the treaty could be signed as early as next week.

Although refusing to discuss cost figures, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said the additional aid requests stand "an excellent chance of being approved by Congress."

Action / reaction: Fog lights

Q. When you're driving a car in a fog, which lights are the safest to use?
A. Under most adverse driving conditions, including those when the fog is heavy, low beam headlights should be used. Bright lights only serve to hinder your visibility more. Fog reflects bright or high beams almost like a mirror.

American Petrofina announces sale pact

American Petrofina Company of Texas, a wholly-owned subsidiary of American Petrofina, Incorporated, today announced the signing of a letter of agreement covering the sale of assets for its trucking operations to TIC Industries, Inc., of Dallas. Tentative closing of the sale is scheduled for April 1. No terms were disclosed.

Assets involved in the sale include the Big Spring truck terminal, all transportation equipment involved in transporting motor fuels, diesel, asphalt and other refined products, and certain petrochemicals. The transportation assets include approximately 75 tractors, 85 asphalt trailers and 35 light oil trailers.

Chemical Express Carriers, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of TIC Industries, Inc., will operate the acquired assets. Chemical Express, formed in 1968 and headquartered in Dallas, is one of the largest specialized motor carriers in the Southwest, currently operating over 1,000 transports. The acquisition represents a significant expansion of operations in West Texas for Chemical Express.

ARRESTED AFTER SUBWAY SLAYING — A New York Transit patrolman, left, escorts Henry Bell, 63, no known address, after Bell was arrested early Thursday for allegedly slaying the throat of a deaf-mute on a Flushing line subway train. Police said that Bell had apparently gotten into a dispute with a group of deaf-mute passengers on the train.

Mortician offers funeral for $150

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Maverick mortician Ken Timlick, who says he's been searching 20 years for ways to cut funeral costs, is offering burials for as low as $150. Part of his formula is a $6 cardboard coffin.

The coffin is made by Mac-Millan Bloedel Ltd., a locally-based wood products company which produces cardboard boxes for $3 each. Timlick's wife, Jean, sews pillows and linings for the boxes, using a satin-like fabric, for another $3.

"Those are all my costs for labor and materials," said Timlick, 54. "It's clearly a triumph. It is a $6 coffin."

Since some people might object to being encased in a cardboard box, Timlick came up with a solution. Last year, he acquired the Canadian franchise of a Florida company that markets catafalques.

A catafalque is a fancy "bottomless coffin," sort of a reusable shell which is placed over the coffins. The bereaved family buys only the cardboard coffin and rents the catafalque.

Timlick said the catafalque, which resembles some of the more expensive coffins priced at $1,500 or more, stays in place through viewings, processions and services but is removed after the ceremony.

The B.C. Funeral Service Association is unhappy about Timlick's new system. Brian Winther, association vice-president and head of the ethics committee, said the catafalque is deception.

"It doesn't make sense for a person to fool all his friends into thinking he has spent a wad on mother," he said. "It's like renting a limo for the night and trying to pretend that you own it."

Executive director Brian Fondrick said the association maintains that anything that goes to the cemetery should stay there.

"I don't know if a cardboard box reflects an appropriate degree of success for a life that has been lived."

Timlick disagrees: "Those lily-white puritans are afraid of losing sales of their high priced units."

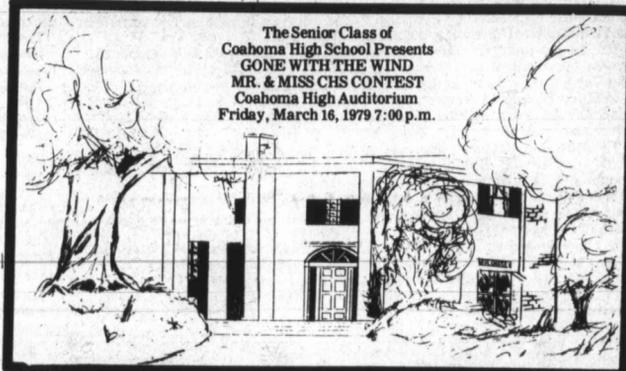

In the last four months, he said, the catafalques have been used about 100 times in five funeral parlors, four in British Columbia and one in Winnipeg. One Vancouver funeral director said they constitute nearly one-third of his business.

Catafalque renters in British Columbia have been able to cut the average $1,000 cost of a funeral by almost half, Timlick says, and he maintains he can further undercut funeral costs. He has just opened his own funeral parlor to prove it. Using the cardboard coffin and the catafalque, he said, he can offer a full funeral for as little as $150.

Human beings may become 'slave of things,' Pope John Paul II says

VATICAN CITY (AP) — In his first encyclical, Pope John Paul II warned today that technologically advanced, consumer societies threaten to make human beings "the slave of things."

He also assailed nations that give "only a form of citizenship," pledged the church to defend human freedom and dignity, the widening gap between rich and poor, and denounced the arms race.

"We all know well," he said, "that the areas of misery and hunger on our globe could have been made fertile in a short time if the gigantic investments for armaments at the service of war and destruction had been changed into investments for food at the service of life."

The 18,000-word encyclical, an authoritative form of papal teaching, was addressed to the world's Roman Catholics and also to "all men and women of good will."

In it, the pope from Communist Poland specified no nations by name, but he said "the curtailment and violation of religious freedoms are in contrast with man's dignity and his objective rights."

It is therefore difficult, even from a "purely human" point of view, to accept a position that gives only "a form of citizenship" the right of citizenship in public and social life, while believers are... barely tolerated or are treated as second-class citizens or are even — and this has already happened — entirely deprived of the rights of citizenship.

In the "name of all believers," he appealed to governments everywhere to "respect the rights of religion and of the church's activity. No privilege is asked for, but only respect for an elementary right."

The pope said the modern age has brought "a time of great progress" but also "a time of threat in many forms for man."

Already, he said, there is a "real perceptible danger" of man losing "his dominion" and becoming "subject to manipulation in many ways" by organizational, production and communication systems.

"Man cannot relinquish himself or the place in the visible world that belongs to him," the pope said. "He cannot become the slave of things, the slave of economic systems, the slave of production, the slave of his own products."

"A civilization purely materialistic in outline condemns man to such slavery. It is a matter of the whole dynamism of life and civilization."

Car mileage boosts could be disastrous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major automakers say the government's schedule for boosting car mileage could trigger an economic disaster for the industry and consumers while saving little or no gasoline.

Industry spokesmen told the House Commerce subcommittee on energy Wednesday that they can meet the overall goal of producing cars that average 27.5 miles per gallon by 1985. But they quarreled heatedly with the Transportation Department's step-by-step schedule to meet the target.

The department administers a 1975 statute which established a decade-long goal of doubling auto mileage from the 1974 average of less than 14 mpg. The automakers are on schedule so far, having boosted that figure to about 19 mpg.

But the industry is upset that the department's recently-established schedule for the 1981-85 model years were "front-loaded" — meaning the biggest increases are required early. The program calls for averages of 22 mpg in 1981, 24 mpg in 1982, 26 mpg in 1983, 27 mpg in 1984 and 27.5 in 1985.

"The American automobile industry will invest nearly $80 billion in new plants, tools, equipment and technology" to meet the front-loaded schedule, said S.L. Terry, Chrysler vice president for public affairs. Terry and other industry spokesmen said the standards should increase by a steady 1.5 mpg annually.

Lockhart is named Coahoma police chief

James Lockhart, longtime area resident, was appointed police chief of the Coahoma Police Department by the Coahoma City Council Tuesday night in a regular meeting.

Lockhart, brother of Highway Patrolman Ben Lockhart, follows former Coahoma Police Chief Benny Fishback. Fishback resigned Jan. 26 after accepting a higher paying job in the Midland Sheriff's Office. Fishback's salary was $11,520. Lockhart will receive $10,000.

Lockhart was a patrolman on the Big Spring police force for four years. He is currently employed by Smith's Automatic Transmissions in Sand Springs.

He grew up north of Luther and attended grammar school there. He graduated from high school in Gail. He went to college for two years at Howard College. He has earned his certificate in basic law enforcement.

He said he expects to be sworn in this weekend and assume duties sometime next week.

"I plan to work with all the people in the Coahoma area, get a better image and work with the children in the public schools to get the police department back in order and have a little bit of harmony in the town," he said.

Lockhart and his wife live at 1300 Monmouth, Big Spring. They will move near Coahoma when they find an acre of land to put their trailer home on.

Why doesn't Washington set example?

It's not easy to accept as honest currency the claim that America has an energy crisis when you see racing cars getting no more than three or four miles a gallon entered in 500-mile events, when the great lights of athletic stadiums burn until after midnight, when trucks travel all the way across country to deliver merchandise and then, by the whackiest of legal reasoning, return to their base of operations with no cargo at all in the hold.

Neither is it easy to justify the rationale of a country which allows perhaps four cars in the driveway of a three-member family.

PRESIDENT JIMMY CARTER and the energy experts says it is so, however, and we are never to hear anything to the contrary in our lifetime. The feds want us to develop neighborhood car pools. That makes sense — it is an utter waste of gasoline to hop into one's gas buggy and travel all alone two miles to and from work.

They want us to cut down on unnecessary trips. That may be the guilt our neighbors have to bear. Not so with us. They want us to trade in our petrol-guzzling runabouts for putt-putts that we can feed with eyedroppers. We'll buy that, as long as we don't have to give up our auto air conditioners, power steering and the ability to roar away at the stop light before Old Lead Foot in the next lane can stomp on his accelerator.

We might be inclined to make all sorts of sacrifices if only Washington would set the example. To be frank about it, the bureaucrats who grind out all that publicity about the crises this country faces offer lip service, nothing more.

The federal government operates one of the biggest energy-consuming fleets of motor vehicles the world has ever known.

SINCE THE Arab oil embargo six years ago — now hear this — the federal automotive armada has grown by 8,000 cars, and the average annual mileage covered by these vehicles in the last four years has increased from 8,700 to 9,073 miles. With 780,000 cars, buses and trucks bearing United States insignias, the federal government now has one vehicle for every six employees.

A great hue and cry went up in Washington a few years ago to get rid of chauffeur-driven limosines but they are still to be seen all over Washington.

Instead of holding those cleverly written energy-conservation slogans high for everyone to read, the tollers in the federal vineyards perhaps should set them down, then back off and study them.

The small economic cars are sold in Washington the same as they are all over the country, but you wouldn't know it.

One gets the idea that the Washington crowd, deep down, doesn't believe there is a cause for alarm. If it did, it lacks the will to practice what it preaches.

Envious Around the rim

Those of you who bowl 160 or better, may the holes of your bowling ball be filled with quick-drying cement.

Why the derogatory remark against the alley experts? Probably because I'm not one. But I'm getting better, thanks to Coach Jerry Dudley.

Coach Dudley is presently the director of physical education at Howard College and I took several P.E. classes under his instruction.

HE'S LIKE no other teacher. He was (and probably still is) just as concerned with those of us not blessed with perfect muscle coordination, ball control or volleyball serving ability as he was with the Chris Everts and Bjorn Borgs of the class. In fact, he encouraged the greats to give us not-so-greats the chance to become great.

I remember spending many hours after class with my best friend, Susan Andrews Allen, learning badminton strategy from him so we could compete in the conference extramural competition in Levelland.

Coach Dudley is a fantastic badminton player. Believe me, there's more to the game than just dinking a birdie back and forth across the net.

Now, back to bowling. This all-around athlete (golfer, racquetball player, badminton expert, and fisherman) also taught a bowling class I was enrolled in at Howard College.

He changed my whole approach.

Before, I had just walked up to the line and let go of the ball. If I hit the pins fine and if I didn't fine. My game was one of luck, not skill.

Even though I became discouraged due to the fact my average fell a little lower, he consistently explained to me, "The more you practice this bowling technique, the better and more consistent bowler you'll become in the longrun."

HE WAS right. Now don't get me wrong, I still rarely bowl over 150, but at least I know what I'm supposed to be doing and what to do to get a strike.

More often than not, if I use the proper approach taught me by Coach Dudley, I get good results. Recently, I managed to roll three strikes in a row. Big deal, right? It is for me. Aren't you proud, coach?

At present, I am active in a bowling league. Even though we're fighting for next to the last place, I still think of Coach Dudley every time it's my turn to bowl. (Thumb at 11 o'clock; keep your eye on your mark, stand with left foot two boards to the left of second dot; and follow through.)

It's possible I could've left out a few minor things, but it works for me (when I utilize it, that is).

So all of you bowlers out there who bowl like Mary Poppins with a hangover, there's hope for you yet. If I can bowl halfway decent, anyone can.

Medicine flackers

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — An Associated Press item says now that doctors have been given permission to advertise, they have gone one step further and are hiring press agents to get their names in newspapers and to arrange interviews on radio and television. One plastic surgeon mentioned in the news story said he knew at least 25 physicians who had retained publicity agents and he insisted there were hundreds more who had hired someone to flack for them.

I don't see anything wrong with it.

MY FRIEND, Carl Bromberg, whom I consider one of the best press agents in the business, thinks that publicizing doctors will not only be financially rewarding for anyone in the public relations business but will also be challenging and exciting work. He told me:

"This is big stuff. We're going to have to think up items that the gossip columnists will take."

"Such as?"

"Something like, 'What well-known movie queen has stars in her eyes, thanks to Hollywood's new hot plastic surgeon, Dr. Cromley Barton, who, when last seen at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, was lifting everything belonging to the wife of a top studio producer?' or 'Everyone at the UCLA Medical Center is still talking about the standing ovation Dr. George Catheter got last week on his smash kidney stone operation in the main UCLA Hospital Theater.'

"EVERYONE WHO is anyone in the urology world was at the sellout opening. At a post-operation party at the Beverly Hills, Dr. Catheter said he thought it was the best thing he'd ever done, but he hoped he wouldn't be typed as just another kidney stone surgeon.

"I'm getting a lot of offers, but I really have my heart set on removing a prostate."

"That's good," I said, "even Rona Barrett would use that one."

"Wait," Bromberg said, taking notes out of his pocket, "I've got more. Listen, Dr. Clem Dumbarton, the multi-millionaire orthopedist, has just bought a 120-foot yacht which he says he hopes, for tax reasons, to turn into a hospital ship. 'I plan to do all my slipped disc and tennis elbow operations at sea, outside the three-mile limit, so no one can sue me for malpractice,'" Dr. Dumbarton told friends.

"And here's one you'll like," continued Bromberg, "it's in the form of a press release:

"Dr. Rudolf Koenig, the jet set's favorite psychiatrist, announced at a press conference at Studio 54 that he would no longer take patients who want to tell him their dreams. 'It takes too much time,' said Dr. Koenig, 'and if you've heard one dream, you've heard them all.'

"DR. KOENIG, who gets $150 for a half-hour session, also said that because of the heavy demands on his time he would no longer take neurotic or psychotic patients.

"It's a question of priorities, and as a doctor I want to devote more time to appearing on television talk shows."

"Dr. Koenig won an Emmy for his outstanding performance on the Today Show, and he has been honored by the American Psychiatric Assn. for a recent profile done on him in People Magazine."

"That's a beautiful press release," I told Bromberg.

"Medicine is a whole new ball game," he said. "I know many doctors, good people in their fields, who don't think they need a press agent. But they're finding out that when people have an appendectomy they want a name."

Abdominal pain may be epilepsy

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Please discuss abdominal epilepsy. My doctor thinks I have it. Yet I can't find anything written on the subject. My symptoms are abdominal pain and headaches. — Ms. E.H.

It's probably just as well you were not able to find material on this, because you might have become more confused. There isn't a great deal written on this subject, which should tell you one thing — that we know little about it.

We know these pain attacks occur, and that they may be brief or last several hours. They may be associated with attacks of standard epilepsy (convulsions) and they may precede the common type of epileptic seizure. Nausea, vomiting or a sense of dizziness may occur, and there may be a headache.

In any event, it appears to be a neurological (nerve-related) problem. In abdominal epilepsy the stomach is entirely normal. Electroencephalograms (brainwaves) may show a slight abnormality.

Similar symptoms can occur in what is called "abdominal migraine." They may begin with or come before the traditional migraine headaches along with nausea and vomiting. You give me only sketchy information. A condition called abdominal angina may enter the picture (more confusion). That is abdominal pain caused by impaired circulation to the area. Here, there would be other signs of stomach and intestinal disorder.

For all these reasons your doctor only "thinks" you have abdominal epilepsy. If further tests convince him, he may want to try anticonvulsant drugs, which sometimes are effective in controlling it, according to recent studies.

Special brainwave tests done while a person is sleeping have helped doctors confirm this unusual condition, and you may want to ask about them. A gastroenterologist might help pinpoint other trouble spots.

Dear Dr. Ruble: In writing about diverticulosis, you say the pockets in the bowel can be present and not give a person trouble. You also say that if they become infected they must be treated. How frequently does this happen, and what would the signs of infection be? — Mrs. T.Y.

Knowing they have these little pockets worries folks. In most cases it shouldn't. Most people find out about them only after X-rays reveal them incidentally during examinations for other problems. Yet my mail on the subject is large.

Most people with them (and most get them to some degree) live out their lives without symptoms. Usually, all that's needed are measures people should be taking with or without the pockets. Adequate bulk in the diet is in order to keep bowels active and to prevent enlargement of the pockets. In fact, it may be that a deficiency of bulk, which seems to occur with age, causes them.

Now, what about infection of them (diverticulitis)? Some of these pockets are deeper than others. Some protrude only through the first layer of bowel lining, others deeper into other layers that are richer in blood vessels. These are called "true diverticula," and are the ones most prone to infection. From statistics I've seen, about 20 percent of these will become infected at some time. If this happens, diet needs are switched and low residue is called for.

Abdominal pain (especially in the left lower abdomen) is a sign along with constipation. In about 20 percent of persons there may be blood in the stool. To avoid having to repeat well-worn information about this subject, I have available a booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," which says an awful lot for a title. For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of Big Spring Herald if you have further questions.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Our son is now 18 and is small for his age. He is 5 feet, 2 inches, and we know this gives him a complex. Is there something medical we can do for him? Some have told us there are pills or injections for growth. Is that true? — T.C.

He is admittedly short in a 5-foot, 10-inch world, but not short enough to constitute a medical problem. The injections (human growth hormones) are for youngsters whose growth has been arrested early because of proven pituitary gland abnormalities. This gland produces bone growth hormones. The only way to get it otherwise is to extract it from glands of deceased persons, which limits the supply. The key is to detect the abnormality before the child's long bones have been "closed off" to normal linear growth (height). At 19 your son has probably attained most of his growth and hormones won't help. The world is full of short people who have risen to heights off the basketball courts. The best help is the psychological kind you can offer him along this line.

Do you often have a "stomach ache"? If so, your stomach may not be the real trouble spot. The booklet, "Stomach and Other Abdominal Pains: A Checklist," tells you why. For a copy, write to Dr. Ruble in care of The Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Reader's questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

WASHINGTON — The military-munitions complex has grown fat on defense contracts, yet it is unwilling to spare a dime for the struggling small businessman.

Typical of the Pentagon brass hats' public-be-damned attitude has been their stubborn refusal to heed Congress' orders to give a bigger slice of the Defense Department's immense budgetary pie to small businessmen and minority contractors.

Less than 1 percent of Defense's largesse goes to minority businessmen. Small business' share of Pentagon contracts has actually been declining in recent years despite repeated pressure from Congress.

FED UP WITH the military's foot-dragging, Congress last year passed a law requiring that all government departments create a special office for minority and small business contracts, reporting directly to the Cabinet level. The law was designed to overcome bureaucratic regulations that were so steeped in gobbledegook they left small businessmen at the mercy of the individual procurement officers.

We have obtained internal Defense Department documents that show the Pentagon was scheming to dodge the new law even before President Carter signed it last October. The memos were prepared for Deputy Under-Secretary of Defense for Acquisition Policy Dale Church, whose personal authority would be reduced by creation of the new small business and minority office.

The memos, cleverly couched in legalese, note that the individual services — Army, Navy, and Air Force — handle their own procurement. Therefore, they conclude, the special offices for small business and minority contracts should set up under each service branch rather than under the secretary of defense.

Though the memos were carefully worded, the message was clear: Congress' intent to protect small business could be thwarted by side-stepping the order. This infuriated Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., who made his displeasure known in a private letter to Defense Secretary Harold Brown.

Cut off at the press, Pentagon obfuscators then tried another end-around play, agreeing to create the special office at the department level, but making its director none other than Dale Church, the very official who was responsible for the roadblock in the first place.

Church told our associate Peter Grant that he would oversee the new office in addition to his other duties, since a full-time official "wouldn't have enough to do." There is, he explained, one small-business and one minority-enterprise official reporting to him already.

After the determined Addabbo wrote to President Carter, budget boss James McIntyre finally promised the congressman that the Executive Branch would soon order the creation of the special small business advocacy office under the direct control of Secretary Brown.

PLASTIC PROPAGANDA? "Quincy," the popular television show about a tough Los Angeles medical examiner, was more than just entertainment in a recent episode. It became a guided missile in the propaganda war between a small group of plastic surgeons and the Federal Trade Commission.

Years ago, the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons set up a certification body, the American Board of Plastic Surgeons, to pass on the professional qualifications for practitioners in the field. The society claims it was an essential step to keep incompetents from scarring and mutilating patients.

THE FTC STAFF takes a different view, however. The regulators don't buy the society's claim that only surgeons certified by the board are qualified. Any claim of competency based solely on the certification by the board is seen by the FTC as a possible ploy to restrain trade.

For its part, the society is furious at the FTC for not cracking down on the advertisements of incompetent surgeons.

Enter Quincy. In a January episode, the hero, portrayed by veteran actor Jack Klugman, goes after a Beverly Hills doctor who falsely claims in an advertisement to be "board certified" in plastic surgery. Quincy buys an ad next to the doctor's to warn the public to check the credentials of their physicians.

Quincy is then visited by what the script describes as "a stuffy man in his mid-40s (with) the look and smell of a hardcore bureaucrat." He's from the fictional Sacramento office of the FTC, and he hands Quincy an injunction to stop his ads, "which we find restrictive of certain people's right to free trade."

You mean, asks Quincy, it's restraint of trade to tell people they should be sure of their doctor's medical qualifications? "Yes," replied the stuffy, hardcore bureaucrat. "These sort of ads have been found detrimental to our society." He adds callously that quality medical care "isn't our concern; free and unobstructed trade is."

Dear Editor: Members of Brownie Girl Scout Troop 156 want to take this opportunity to thank you and your staff and our community as a whole for the support given our troop during the annual West Texas Girl Scout Council Cookie Sale.

Cookie sales help in three ways (1) increase troop treasuries, (2) gives individual girls a way to pay her way to camp by earning various types of camperships or camp currency (which older scouts use in the "Wider Opportunities Travel Program"), and (3) to maintain and subsidize our councils' resident camp, Camp Booth Oaks, located near Sweetwater, Texas.

While selling cookies is something the girls enjoy and look forward to with eagerness each year, the weekly troop meeting is where girls have the opportunity to make new friends, learn new skills and participate in citizenship training by practicing the basic principles of Girl Scouting.

Our cookie sale success is sending 8 of our 12 members to camp.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Our baby only lived several weeks. We had looked forward so much to a child, and this has been a great shock to us. How could God have let this happen to us? — Mrs. R.M.

DEAR MRS. R.M.: I know this has been a difficult time for you. It is natural for you to ask why God has allowed this to happen. In all honesty, when we face something like this we do not necessarily know all the reasons why God has permitted it. You may remember that Job, who underwent enormous suffering, was never given a complete and logical answer why God had allowed his suffering. But Job was shown that God could be trusted because He is far greater than we and has purposes which we may not always be able to see.

So don't let this be a time when your disappointment festers and eventually makes you bitter against God. God loves you, and at this time you should seek to draw near to Him. You can commit this whole matter to Him, knowing that He is all-wise and in His providence and design He has permitted this to happen.

It is hard for us, when troubles come, to realize that God has not abandoned us but that He still loves us. That does not mean He directly causes the problems that come our way. He may permit them, but we live in a fallen world which shows the terrible effects of sin on every hand. The important thing is that we learn to trust God, regardless of the circumstances. "I remember my affliction and my wandering, the bitterness and the gall. . . Yet this I call to mind and therefore I have hope: Because of the Lord's great love we are not consumed, for his compassions never fail. They are new every morning; great is your faithfulness." (Lamentations 3:19, 21-23, NIV).

My prayer is that this will be your discovery and confidence also.

BSHS band members perform at concert

Several members of the Big Spring High School Band's brass section performed on stage with B.J. Thomas, and they said they enjoyed the experience.

"The promoter called and asked for five 'exceptional sight-readers,'" said Carl McMillan, coliseum director. "I called Big Spring Band Director Steve Waggoner, and he got these names for me."

From the high school band were Larry Wheat, Sherri Rogers, Dale Sterling and Scott Shortes. Beverly Jolson, a band instructor from Odessa was also in the performing group.

The group was informed of the selection two weeks in advance, and told that the performance would be entirely sight-reading.

"We got the music about an hour beforehand, and had time to read through it once," said one of the band members.

"We were scared — especially before the concert — and weren't sure we were ready, but I'm glad we got to do it. I have never had the chance to do anything like that before."

Born-again B.J. Thomas quits $3,000-a-week cocaine habit

By MARIE HOMEYER
A musician who God saved.

That's how singer B.J. Thomas described himself to a crowd of reporters Wednesday night prior to his performance at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

"People like to treat me like a minister," Thomas said in response to a question about how people have reacted to him since his conversion to Christianity. "I'm not a blatant, upfront, 'Jesus Christ, praise The Lord' type," he said. "But I don't pull back from the subject and I'm not ashamed of it."

Since being "born again" three years ago, Thomas has concentrated more on gospel music than on pop. He is in the process of making his third album with Words recording company. After that he will be concentrating on co-producing two or three gospel albums with MCA. "This is the first time that a producing company the size of MCA has agreed to produce a gospel album," Thomas said.

His Christian music is special to him. "I have sold more gospel music in the short time that I have been doing it than my pop music ever did," he said. "I'm not trying to neglect my pop music, but, gospel songs are going to be the new music and I'm trying to be on the ground floor."

His sincerity about his conversion was evident in the way he talked and the way he sang. He gave an outstanding performance to a sparsely-populated coliseum audience.

He selected some of his "moldy-olies" such as

"Mighty Clouds of Joy," "Raindrops Keep Falling on my Head," "Most of all," (his favorite) and "Somebody Done Somebody Wrong Song." "Home Where I Belong," and "Happy Man," title songs from his two grammy-winning albums were among the selection of new music that he sang for the enthusiastic audience.

One of the songs he sang was dedicated to his adopted daughter, Jerry Paige. Thomas and his wife, Gloria, who reside in Arlington, are expecting another child soon.

During the concert Thomas offered his testimony to God. He told about how he had been on drugs for 12 years and that by December of 1975 his cocaine addiction alone cost him $3,000 a week. He went on to say that his wife and friends loved him but were just standing by watching him die. Then, he said, Jesus Christ entered his heart and turned him from his destructive ways. For the past three years he has devoted his life to Christ and telling others about how God has saved him. He gives that testimony mainly through his music.

His "testimony" was greeted with hearty rounds of applause. When the end of the concert came, Thomas began shaking hands with the swarms of fans that lined the front of the stage. He then sang three more songs before he finally left the stage.

B.J. Thomas is truly a renewed person. His testimony and his singing were sincere evidence.

Artificial insemination practices

Study warns of accidental incest

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors who practice artificial insemination sometimes use the sperm of one man to impregnate dozens of women, raising the danger of accidental incest among offspring who unknowingly have the same father, a study warns.

The report also chastises doctors for failing to ensure that the men who donate sperm are genetically healthy so that the risk of birth defects will be as low as possible.

The study, prepared by researchers at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, estimates that between 6,000 and 10,000 children are born in the United States each year to women who are made pregnant with sperm from anonymous donors.

The investigators surveyed 379 doctors who practice artificial insemination. Their results were published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine. The researchers said their survey was the first major one on artificial insemination since 1941.

The study found that over 95 percent of the women who receive artificial insemination do so because their husbands are sterile. However, 10 percent of the doctors said they also provide the service for single women.

Three-quarters of the doctors said they never use the sperm of one man to father more than six babies. However, 6 percent said they had used one donor for 15 or more pregnancies, and one doctor replied that one man had produced 50 children.

Congressional comment

Campaign financing idea blasted

By CHARLES STENHOLM,
17th District, Texas

WASHINGTON, D.C. — On March 15 the House Administration Committee will begin hearings on a proposal to allow public financing of Congressional campaigns. It appears that once again we are being led down that long, treacherous road of more government regulation, higher government spending, and less individual freedom. This is another example of an idea that sounds good on the surface, but, if implemented, will radically alter our political system for the worse.

Advocates of this proposal point to the fact that the high cost of running for office is discouraging people from becoming candidates. Also they believe that the majority of the Congress is being "bought" off by means of campaign support they receive from various interests. This is very shallow and superficial reasoning. People have always selected lawmakers they believe will be most representative of their beliefs. They form groups to receive recognition on a collective basis and seek out candidates who agree with their political philosophy.

Nearly every American belongs to some organization that is active politically, whether it be a political party, business association, a labor union, or a church group. All these interests are active in the election process. In our system of government, competing groups seek to influence their destiny through the legislative process. There is nothing sinister about this procedure, in fact it has served America very well for over 200 years.

Certainly the high cost of running for office is an ever increasing problem. The difficulty is that politicians are required to spend a large portion of our time campaigning and thus have to disburse large amounts of funds. This problem could be alleviated by shortening the election period.

Nixon grandson born

NEW YORK (AP) — One thing is perfectly clear — former President Richard Nixon will have to come up with another crib at San Clemente if his two daughters visit at the same time.

Tricia Nixon Cox gave birth at 2:58 a.m. to a 7-pound, 5 1/4-ounce boy Wednesday at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center. Both mother and baby — named Christopher Nixon Cox — were reported doing well.

Nixon's younger daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, had a 9-pound, 4-ounce girl — named Jennifer — last Aug. 15. Nixon told reporters at the hospital that "Jennie is almost talking — at least she thinks she's talking."

He said his grandson is "a very handsome lad" and that Mrs. Cox was doing well despite

"somewhat of a difficult time" with the birth by Caesarean section.

Affairs mishandled?

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Johnny Paycheck says his business affairs were mishandled and has asked a court to dissolve his management contract with city official Glenn Paycheck, best known for his 1978 hit, "Take This Job and Shove It," also said Ferguson oversaw his affairs for six years during city office hours and through the use of city employees.

Grant Smith, Paycheck's lawyer, said the singer's statements are included in an answer and counterclaim filed Wednesday in response to a Chancery Court lawsuit Ferguson filed against Paycheck last January.

Paying for free ride

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Tidewater Regional Transit is $2 richer and a World War II veteran from Pennsylvania has a clear conscience. An anonymous letter addressed to the "Norfolk Bus Company" arrived at the TRT offices here late last month. Inside were two $1 bills. "While stationed in Norfolk during World War II, I cheated the bus company out of a fare by showing my pass to the driver, then passing the pass to my friend to use," the letter said. "I haven't been able to forget it. "Will the enclosed pay my debt?" "There was no name and no return address," Lee Carlson, finance manager for the TRT and Tidewater Transportation District Commission, said Wednesday.

Don't dump the dump

DUNBARTON, N.H. (AP) — Dunbarton voters have decided not to dump their dump, saying it is a social institution.

"The dump is a meeting place. It's a spot where we get a chance to see other people," said resident Walter Smith. Fellow resident William Zeller said he enjoys meeting people at the dump as well, but he said the dump was even more to him. "I find that I often bring back more things than I leave off," Zeller said. Town selectmen recommended house-to-house garbage pickup, fearing injuries and possible lawsuits from the dump. But they faced about an hour of opposition from residents who attended the Tuesday night town meeting.

Boy Scout Fun-O-Ree gets under way Friday

A Boy Scout Fun-O-Ree will be held in the Silver Heels Campground off Country Club Road just past the VFW Hall from 7 p.m. Friday until 9:30 p.m., Saturday and all boys in the fifth grade or above and their fathers are invited to attend. Scouting skills will be stressed during the Fun-O-Ree. Those planning to attend should bring their sleeping gear with them. The use of tents is strongly recommended. Food will be needed for breakfast and lunch along with a can of vegetables for a mystery stew which will be prepared for the Saturday evening supper. No fee will be charged for those attending — this is an event planned to boost interest in the scout movement. Registration fee for those entering the Boy Scouts is $2. Those desiring to subscribe to Boys Life Magazine will be charged $3.60 annually. Phil Corbin, the local scout executive, is urging that boys sign up now for summer camp.

Pilot dies in flight

DALLAS (AP) — Capt. Lloyd G. Wilcox, two months away from retirement and the end of a distinguished 35-year career, locked the gleaming orange Boeing 747 into automatic pilot as it cruised 33,000 feet over the Pacific Ocean, about an hour west of Los Angeles. Hours later, the 331 passengers on the Honolulu-Dallas flight and many of the Braniff International crew were still unaware of the drama that had taken place — the unexpected, death of a critical member of the flight crew.

Wilcox, 59, suffered a heart attack about 3 a.m. Wednesday as Braniff's "Great Pumpkin," with its orange body, white tail and black nose, was about a half hour west of Los Angeles. Not even Wilcox's wife of three years, Theresa, who supervised Flight 502's team of 16 stewardesses, was aware her husband was dead until shortly before the plane landed in Dallas.

Co-pilot James Cunningham and 2nd Officer Robert Barnes landed the plane without incident at 6:19 a.m., 19 minutes behind schedule at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

As passengers drifted into sleep or followed the disco gyrations of John Travolta in "Saturday Night Fever," Wilcox chatted with Cunningham and watched the computerized controls guide the 747. Small talk gave way to silence, and a stewardess poked her head into the darkened cockpit to ask the captain if he wanted anything.

Wilcox, his chin resting on his chest, didn't reply, and Cunningham nudged him. When nothing happened, Cunningham nudged again, then rose and shook him.

"It was then that I became concerned," said Cunningham, himself a veteran of 21 years flying for Braniff. He reached for an overhead mask, fastened it over Wilcox' face and ordered a flight attendant to inquire if a doctor was aboard.

Dr. Ronald Stockstill and his wife, Dr. Dianne Beach, both pathologists at a Dallas hospital, were on their way home after a week's vacation. But it was too late.

"By the time we got upstairs, his eyes weren't reacting to light," Dr. Beach said.

They administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation while massaging the captain's heart. They took turn for 40 minutes as stewardess Deborah Head wiped the sweat from their foreheads.

Finally, it was no use. The decision was made to keep the news from Wilcox' wife.

Just minutes before the plane landed, Dr. Stockstill, accompanied by another stewardess told Terry Wilcox her husband had died of a heart attack.

"She obviously was very much in love with him," the doctor said.

He said it probably would have made little difference if Wilcox' attack had occurred on the ground.

"It was so fast and so massive. There was just no response out of him at all," Stockstill said.

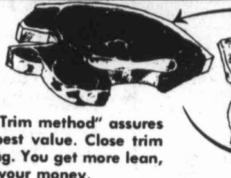

Wilcox had complained of chest pain the day before the flight, but when his wife asked him to see a doctor he said it was probably indigestion.

The restaurant which contributes the most will receive a plaque to keep for a year. Sandra Davis and Susie Welch are in charge of distributing canisters to local business establishments about the event.

Then on Lily Day, March 31, local high school athletes will work on street corners throughout the city, soliciting contributions.

Gertrude McCann is the president of the local East Seals Chapter which raises funds to help in the treatment of crippled children and adults in Howard County. She has stated that, except for annual national membership dues, all money donated in Howard County will remain in the county.

Borden County tests continue

A discovery was finalized and a confirmer was assured in another field in Glasscock County and a Borden wildcat continued to test.

Belco Petroleum Corp., Midland, No. 3 Edwards, Glasscock County Wolfcamp oil discovery, one location west of the opener of the Deadwood (Fusselman oil) field, nine miles north of Garden City, was finalized for 30 barrels of 44 gravity oil, plus seven barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 380-1.

Production was through a 16-64-inch choke and perforations at 8,425-85 feet, which had been fractured with 200,000 gallons and 405,000 pounds of sand.

The following tops were picked on evaluation of 2,696 feet: Yates, 1,722 feet; Seven Rivers, 1,820 feet; and San Andres, 2,322 feet. Top of the Wolfcamp was not reported.

Drilled to 10,158 feet, where 5 1/2-inch casing was set, it is plugged back to 9,997 feet.

Location is 660 feet from the south and 2,790 feet from the east lines of 4-33-25-T&P.

Champlin Petroleum Co., Midland, No. 1 Dooley, in 62-2-T&P, Glasscock County wildcat, 3/4-mile southwest of its No. 1 Terry, recently completed Canyon sand oil discovery in Sterling County and 22 miles southwest of Sterling City, has indicated production in the Canyon sand with the recovery of 1,400 feet of gas, 10 feet of free oil and 1,390 feet of slightly oil- and gas-cut mud on a drillstem test. Tool was open an unreported time on the test taken at 8,152-209 feet.

The project was drilling below 8,361 feet on a 9,900-foot contract.

The Canyon sand discovery was finalized March 5 for 80 barrels of oil, with gas-oil ratio of 3,221-1, through a 20-64-inch choke and perforations at 8,112-34 feet.

Harvey E. Yates Co., Roswell, N.M., No. 1-23 Key, in 23-30-5n-T&P, Borden County unidentified prospect, one location northeast of the re-opener and lone producer of the Rafter Cross, South (Ellenburger) field, six miles northeast of Gail, has indicated production in another unidentified zone, probably Pennsylvanian, with the swabbing of 30 barrels of oil, no water, in seven hours.

Recovery was through perforations at 7,082-090 feet, which had been acidized with 3,000 gallons. Testing continued.

Earlier, it swabbed 12 barrels of oil and 16 barrels of water in three hours, through unidentified perforations at 8,224-38 feet.

The Rafter Cross, South reopener, H & M Co. No. 1 Key, was finalized Feb. 26, 1971 to pump 112.32 barrels of 39 gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio of 25-1, from open hole at 8,467-475 feet, however, it shows not to be producing at this time.

County 4-H'ers making plans for method demonstrations

Howard County 4-H'ers began making plans for the County Method Demonstration Contest, set for April 27 in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Gas Company.

A demonstration is a method of teaching. The demonstrator teaches by showing how and explaining what and why. An effective demonstration is perhaps the best way of teaching someone how to do something or how to acquire a skill.

You are gathering information about their topics, and they will develop a speech and prepare posters and other visuals to show and tell what they have learned.

There are many benefits in preparing a method demonstration. Youth learn to improve public speaking skills, they develop confidence, they are able to present ideas more clearly and they gain knowledge about subject matter.

Many 4-H'ers have already signed up to give demonstrations, but there are many more topics to be selected. Youth are urged to sign up for a topic they want to learn about, prepare a demonstration, practice it, and present it at the County method demonstration contest on April 27 at 6:30 p.m. The District eliminations will be on May 5 at Sul Ross in Alpine. Those winning at District in the Senior division will have the opportunity to compete in the State 4-H Roundup in Texas A&M University the first week in June.

Anyone between the ages of 9-19 from all ethnic, racial, cultural and economic groups regardless of geographic location are welcome to participate in 4-H. For more information, call the County Extension Office (basement of the County Courthouse) at 267-8469 or 267-6671.

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Police officials have threatened three representatives of Iran's new revolutionary government with arrest for criminal trespassing if they try to occupy the former residence of Iranian Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi.

The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, in a copyright story in today's editions, reported the three were ordered by officials of the Islamic Republic to confiscate all property left behind by the prince.

The son of the deposed shah reportedly flew to Morocco Sunday to join his family living in exile. Assistant Police Chief C.G. Bartley told the newspaper Wednesday that the men, who asked not to be identified, informed him of their intentions when they arrived Tuesday night.

He said the trio presented him with a letter of introduction signed by Hassan Ali Hanji, the revolutionary government's consulate general in Houston. Bartley said according to the letter, the trio was appointed to travel to Lubbock to "confiscate all property left by former Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi."

Hanji declined to comment on the Lubbock delegation or its purpose Wednesday, and the newspaper reported Iranian embassy officials in Washington were unavailable for comment.

The prince reportedly paid cash for the $256,000 ranch-style house, which was extensively redecored for his stay in this West Texas city while he was a student pilot at nearby Reese Air Force base.

Bartley said he understands the title to the house is in the name of Lubbock realtor Stephen Von Phul. He said the Iranians would require either a court order or permission from Von Phul to enter the house. Neither Von Phul, or his attorney Elgin Conner, would comment to the newspaper on the ownership of the house or the request of the three men.

However, the newspaper reported that while the deed is in the name of the realtor, a former Iranian military official is the overseer of the house.

The Avalanche-Journal said that official reportedly was en route from New York to Lubbock on Wednesday.

Capt. Robert A. Brus, chief of the Reese Air Force base information division, said Wednesday his office had been informed of the arrival of the Iranian delegation. But he said the Air Force is not involved in the matter because the prince has completed his flight training.

Inmate's attorney fights death law

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — While Death Row inmate David Lee Powell awaits the outcome of his appeal in criminal court, his attorney is taking another avenue to challenge the state's death by injection law.

J.P. Darrouzet says W.J. Estelle Jr., director of the Texas Department of Corrections, violated the Administrative Procedure Act by failing to publish in the Texas Register the procedures for death by injection.

Darrouzet, of Austin, presented his case Wednesday to a 3-judge panel of the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals.

"This is a civil case and we're getting to you first," he said when asked why he was not leaving the question up to the criminal courts.

The civil appeals court will not hand down a decision immediately but advised Darrouzet that in a similar case it ruled there was no civil jurisdiction over a case pending in criminal court.

"This is a matter ongoing in the criminal courts of the state of Texas," said Assistant Attorney General Stephen Nagle, representing Estelle.

Darrouzet said he filed a motion for a reversal Tuesday in the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals because a trial transcript has not been made available yet.

Capital murder convictions are automatically appealed. Powell was convicted in September of the machine gun slaying of Austin police officer Ralph Ablanado last May. He has since gone on intermittent hunger strikes and was at one point transferred to Rusk State Hospital.

Motorcycle training may be taught

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The popular driver education course in Texas schools could be expanded to include motorcycle training under a bill approved by a Senate committee.

The 10-0 vote of the state affairs committee Wednesday indicates the bill should easily clear the full Senate.

Students would pay a fee to take the motorcycle course, just as they do to learn how to drive a car at school.

The course would permit riders as young as 15 to obtain a restricted $7 operator's license after completing the course. The license would be good only for motorcycles with piston displacement of 125 cubic centimeters or less.

At age 16, however, the youth could drive any size motorcycle.

Presently, riders must merely pass the Department of Public Safety test to get a motorcycle license.

"We do believe there is some need" for the course, said Walter Roberts of the DPS.

The DPS would certify the instructors, and the Texas Education Agency would administer the motorcycle course.

The sponsor, Sen. Gene Jones, D-Houston, said the bill represents an effort to save lives and recognizes the fact that as a result of rising gasoline prices, more people will be riding motorcycles.

Several motorcycle associations endorsed Jones' bill, and the Texas Motorcycle Coalition also has urged that motorcycle license fees be increased to pay for the driver training.

Jones said earlier a report by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation showed 25 percent of all motorcycle accidents involve riders with less than six years riding experience. A 23-hour course developed by the foundation could be a model for the school program, Jones said.

There are an estimated 300,000 registered motorcycles in Texas and 270,000 unregistered motorcycles, according to the Texas Motorcycle Roadriders Association.

"The state is willing to teach our kids to guide a 4,000-pound vehicle on our roads, but we have left youngsters on motorcycles to learn through trial and error," said Jones.

"Hopefully," he said, "we will save some youngster's life."

A Life in Need Of a Hope-Buoy

DEAR ABBY: I am 40 and my life is worth absolutely nothing. This is not just middle-age depression. I've been this way all my life. I have failed in every relationship I've ever had, beginning with my family while growing up. I was a complete failure as a wife, too. (I cannot have children, but I probably would have failed as a mother, too.) I have failed in the business world also. I can't seem to succeed in anything.

I have really tried, Abby, but everything I do ends in failure. Suicide seems to be the only solution. Please don't tell me I need a psychiatrist. I have been going to the same one every week for 14 years, and he hasn't helped me. If he had, I wouldn't feel this way.

Other than suicide, is there any answer for someone who is so hopelessly miserable?

I guess maybe I'm trying to find some reason to go on living because I'm really afraid to die. Please help me.

DISCOURAGED IN ARLINGTON

DEAR DISCOURAGED: Your letter tells me that you DO have hope and WANT to live. If your doctor hasn't been able to help you after 14 years of weekly treatment, ask him to refer you to another therapist. Please write again in two weeks, and tell me how you feel. I care.

DEAR ABBY: My husband had too much to drink last night and confessed that the reason he bought me a lovely overnight bag for Valentine's Day was because he'd bought one for his girlfriend, and he felt guilty. Now I don't even want the bag.

What do you think?

B.J. IN WASHINGTON, N.C.

DEAR B.J.: I think your husband should quit drinking and looking at bags.

DEAR ABBY: My mother recently remarried and told us she was selling the family farm. Because my sisters and brothers (and I) loved the farm so much, we asked her to sell it to us to keep it in the family.

Without telling any of us, my mother sold the farm to a total stranger!

Abby, we are all so hurt that we are going out of our way to avoid seeing or talking to our mother.

I feel guilty about avoiding my own mother, but I just can't bring myself to forgive her. The others feel the same way.

Can you or one of your readers who has experienced the same situation help us?

Right now, I don't care if I never talk to my mother again.

DEAR DAUGHTER: See your mother and ask her to explain her actions and talk about her feelings frankly. Don't judge her until you have all the facts.

Wedding bells in your future? Whether your lifestyle is bridal gown or blue jeans, Abby lays it all out for you in her booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding."

People teens admire

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Proving once again that humor knows no generation gap, 75-year-old comedian Bob Hope and perennial funny girl Barbra Streisand took top honors as the man and woman admired most by teen-age girls in a recent Seventeen Magazine poll.

Runners-up in the poll were "Grease" star John Travolta and TV entertainer Carol Burnett.

Entertainers, in fact, took the top four spots in both the "most admired male" and "most admired female" categories of the poll, conducted among a national cross-section of over 1,000 teen girls. "Grease" heroine Olivia Newton-John and actress Kate Jackson captured third and fourth place, respectively, among females, while film stars Robert Redford and Burt Reynolds placed third and fourth among males. In fifth place were Olympics champion Bruce Jenner and model Cheryl Tiegs.

Few political figures made the "Top 30" lists of either sex, and those that did are largely from the Ford regime.

Both former President Gerald Ford and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger are among the top 20 most-admired men, while former first lady Betty Ford ranks sixth among women. The Carters, however, were not listed among the top 30. Among the sports figures who were mentioned most in the "Most Admired" poll are Jenner, as previously noted, and gymnast Nadia Comaneci, 11th among women.

The new study showed that teen interests have shifted since the last poll, taken in 1974, in which readers chose tennis pro Billie Jean King as their most admired woman. This time, she was not even ranked among the top 30 winners.

Interestingly, a similar poll in 1978 of teen-age girls who read TwEEN 12 and 20 placed Anita Bryant and John Wayne first as the most admired female and male.

In the Seventeen poll, Anita placed 13th while John ranked ninth.

Send questions to Dr. Robert Wallace, TwEEN 12 AND 20 in care of this newspaper.

Stroller is gift

A baby shower honoring Mrs. Darrell Blagrave was held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Walter Beauchamp.

Other hostesses were Jeanie Knocke, Linda Lu Cathey, Sara Fryar, Jane Knox and Laura McEwen.

The honoree was presented a corsage of yellow and white baby socks. The hostess gift was an umbrella stroller.

The 30 guests attending brought their favorite baby names and discussed them.

The table was covered with a white cloth and a centerpiece of a yellow bassinet filled with baby's breath, with yellow gingham streamers with baby things pinned to the end of them flowing from the centerpiece.

NORMAN ROCKWELL COLLECTION — Bill Reed proudly holds his favorite statuette from the famous "Four Seasons" scenes, "A Boy and his Dog." Displayed behind him are Spring, "Sweet Serenade," Winter, "Gay Blades," Fall: "Ghostly Gourds," Summer: "Flowers in Tender Bloom," Summer: "Sheer Agony," Spring: "Young Man's Fancy," Winter: "A lickin' Good Bath," Fall: "Pilgrimage," Summer: "Goin' Fishin'," Winter: "Gaily Sharing Vintage Times," Winter: "Chilling Chores," Fall: "A Scholarly Pace," Spring: "Beguiling Buttercup," and Summer: "Flying Fish."

By MICKIE DICKSON

Calling all Norman Rockwell fans. Bill Reed, president of the Coahoma State Bank, and Marshallene, his wife, owner of Marshallene Real Estate, Coahoma, have a fine collection of Norman Rockwell hand painted porcelain figurines and dinner plates.

Reed's collection may be seen in a handsome cabinet in his office at the bank.

His favorite statuette, "A Boy and his Dog," has quite a story. Rockwell did four paintings in a related series beginning with "Winter — A boy meets his dog," when Jared bought a dog. This shows an adoring puppy gazing at his new master while Jared gingerly pets the top of his head.

The next one depicts Jared dozing in the sun with a can of worms, a fishing pole, and the dog, now named Charlie, keeping watch by his side.

Charlie loved a lot of things, including yellow cheese, ginger snaps, and new shoes. Charlie also loved to sleep in Jared's bed. In fact, whenever you saw Jared you were bound to see Charlie; they followed each other everywhere.

When the ground was still frozen, the skunk cabbage, the first flower of the year, bloomed.

Jared showed it to Charlie. Charlie loved the skunk cabbage.

Charlie loved to go visiting. The town dump, the red squirrels in the woods, the school yard, the firehouse, Crowe's bakery, Shoop's Hill. Then when spring was over and summer had arrived, Charlie suddenly tired of visiting and just lay around, and Jared grew worried.

"I think Charlie has spring fever a little late in the season," decided Jared.

Charlie would not budge an inch, just lying in patches of sunlight, soaking it up.

"Charlie, get up!" Charlie wouldn't.

Jared tried giving Charlie vinegar mixed with molasses. Which, it turned out, Charlie did not love.

The third picture Rockwell painted was of Jared painstakingly measuring out a dose of vinegar and molasses in a spoon while Charlie rested on in a box. This one is entitled Summer-The Mysterious Malady.

Charlie just lay there and grew fatter and fatter. Charlie slept and snored. "Charlie cannot be going to the icebox," reasoned Jared. Charlie grew fatter and fatter yet, and lazier and sleepier.

"This is the worst case of spring fever I have ever heard of," said Jared. "Charlie — what is the matter?"

The statuette Reed is holding proves that Charlie should have been named Arlene, and is captioned Fall — Pride of Parenthood. It pictures "Charlie" with five new puppies, proud as Punch as is Jared, and Read.

Rockwell must have been a dog lover, for out of the 32 statuettes owned by Reed, all but two includes at least one dog. One of the other two has a cat and the other one has rabbits and ducks.

The Reads started their collection in 1976.

They receive a statuette and piece of china four times a year, making a 32 piece set of each. In addition, Mrs. Read has some Norman Rockwell dinner bells and small pie plates. They receive their collection of hand painted porcelain groupings from The Gift World of Gorham.

America lost a great storyteller in art form when Norman Rockwell went to his reward last year. Rockwell's Century of the Common Man began in 1916 when at 21 he was drawing the cover of a boys' magazine for $50 a month.

He had a harness maker build a case for his paintings which he covered with black oilcloth and took off for the Post's offices in New York. The case looked like a child's casket. After his paintings were accepted, Irvin S. Cobb accosted him as he was leaving the office, check in pocket, with "Young man, is that a coffin?"

Rockwell mumbled that it wasn't. "That's good," said Cobb, "We were afraid you had a body in it."

It was love at first sight between Rockwell and the "Post," and the affair was going strong until his death. The first Rockwell cover appeared on the Post of May 20, 1916, and more than 200 had appeared up to the publication of the book, "Norman Rockwell — Illustrator" by Arthur L. Gupitil.

The Read's collection is from Rockwell's Four Seasons Series.

The Bill Reads moved to Coahoma April 1, 1961, when the bank charter was approved.

Mrs. Read opened the Marshallene Read Real Estate Office next door to what was then the Coahoma Drug Store Sept. 1, 1961. She got her local recording insurance license in May, 1961, and her group 1 and 2 Real Estate License in 1962.

The business is now housed in the former Orr grocery store and filling station building, which has been extensively remodeled and redecorated.

Mrs. Read handles all kinds of insurance and real estate with the help of four capable assistants. Wanda Bristo is the office manager. Laura New does the accounting and Patsy Shaw and Ann Bingham serve as clerk typists.

The office is partly furnished with some interesting antique pieces from the old Sterling City Bank. The furniture and fixtures were stored in the train depot when Mrs. Read discovered them. She paid $100 for two roll top desks, counters of solid wood with marble inlaid footing and a library table plus what they used in their home.

The Reads used the etched glass from the bank teller's cages in a china cabinet they had built for their home at 312 N. Main in Coahoma. The lobby table with check racks they had remodeled into a desk.

A second, glass front bookcase from Midland is another of the accessories. The glass is to raise up.

Mrs. Read says that meeting and working with people is the most enjoyable aspect of her business.

The Reads have two married children, Eddie and Mischa Harris, and two grandchildren, Eddie and his wife, Sandy, live in Lubbock with their two children Doug, 8 and Nicole, 4. Don and Mischa Harris live in Garland where she teaches homemaking at Ferris.

The staff of the Marshallene Read Real Estate and Insurance Agency wish to share their favorite recipes with you.

Hangin' Out

by Nathan Poss

You can call it coincidence, but it does appear that the Sports Illustrated jinx is up to its infamous tricks. This past week's cover had a picture of North Carolina's Dudley Bradley dunking a basketball in the Wolfpacks ACC championship victory over Duke.

So, what happens? Both North Carolina and Duke, ranked last week in the top six in the nation, were defeated by non-ranked teams when it counted the most — in the NCAA Tournament.

To make matters worse for the prestigious ACC, it's three representatives to the NIT (Maryland, Virginia and Clemson) were all defeated in Monday night's action.

Annually proclaiming themselves as the top college basketball league in the land, the cries of the ACC could be heard Tuesday proclaiming that their rugged post-season tournament had drained their players.

But if you look around, that's really not a legitimate gripe. The Southeastern, Southwest, Big Eight and Missouri Valley Conferences all had post-season tournaments, plus a few more not so big leagues.

And the winners of these four conferences didn't show any signs of being "drained." LSU had an easy time with Appalachian State, Oklahoma bombed Texas, Arkansas whipped Weber State, and Indiana State dominated Virginia Tech.

The toughest overall conference this year appears to be the Big Ten. Their champion, Michigan State, is one of the top four favorites for the national crown with Purdue, Ohio State and Indiana still among the six teams remaining in the NIT. Only loop runner-up Iowa has lost, that a 74-72 loss to Toledo in NCAA Tourney play.

The Region V Tournament was filled with talented performers, and those basketball fans that did not attend missed out a great chance to witness some outstanding action.

The tourney, organized basically through the efforts of Harold Davis and sponsored by the ABC Club, also lured recruiters from throughout the nation.

In all, there were 42 senior colleges represented by coaches and or scouts. Such names as the University of Houston's Guy Lewis and Gerald Myers, among others, were in attendance.

Of the 42 coaches, three had teams in the NCAA playoffs and three more were included in this year's NIT field. Coaches from as far away as Wisconsin to Alabama to Washington were in attendance.

Spike Dykes, the last Big Spring Steer head football coach to leave here with a winning record, recently joined the staff at Mississippi State University. The MSU Bulldogs, who recently hired Emory Bellard to guide their program, are members of the always powerful Southeastern Conference.

Coach Dykes had previously coached with Bellard at San Angelo Central as an assistant in 1963-64. He then moved on to head coaching jobs at Conhoma, Belton, Big Spring and Alice before moving on to the college ranks. Dykes coached at the University of Texas under Darrell Royal from 1970 to 1976, before moving on to the University of New Mexico the past two seasons.

Dykes never had a losing season in his local stint, leading Big Spring to a 16-14 record in the 68-69-70 seasons.

He is one of two former Big Spring bosses serving on a major staff at this time. Clovis Hale is currently a member of Hayden Fry's staff at the University of Iowa.

The Dallas Morning News recently announced the names of 47 high school basketball players on the ballot list for the Class AAAA All-State team. 31 were on the ballot list for the three inside spots, with the other 16 on the list for the two outside positions. There were two players nominated from the West Texas area, with both of them coming from District 5-AAAA.

The nominees from West Texas were Big Spring's Mark Poss, a 6'3" forward, at an inside position, and Odessa's lightning quick Danny Wright at an outside spot.

Both Poss and Wright averaged over 21 points per game in district play.

The nominees from around the state reported a big city look, with the Dallas-Fort Worth area having 20 nominees, Houston nine, San Antonio five and Austin four. State champion Lufkin had two, with Odessa, Big Spring, Nederland, Beaumont, Alice and Conroe having one nominee each.

Jerry West: 'We are really terrible'

Spurs, Gervin rout Lakers

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Los Angeles Lakers Coach Jerry West is using words like "really terrible" and "atrocious" to describe his team's recent efforts. In fact, the Lakers are playing so awful lately that he says he can hardly recognize the team anymore.

"We are really terrible. . . atrocious," West said Wednesday night after the San Antonio Spurs thrashed Los Angeles 125-112 to hand the Lakers their fifth consecutive National Basketball Association defeat.

"I can hardly recognize this team in the last four or five games. I think it's mostly mental. The team is low," he said.

"Tonight was just about as bad as any game we've played in a while. When you play poorly, I think you compound it by thinking negatively. You get to the point where you hesitate on shots and don't take the good shots."

"I think maybe just getting home will be the tonic we need," added West, whose Lakers lost all three games on this road trip and their last two at home.

The loss, coupled with victories Wednesday night by Seattle and Phoenix, dropped the Lakers to third place in the NBA's Pacific Division, two games behind first place Seattle and a game behind the Suns.

The Lakers shot only 47 percent against the blistering, Central Division-leading Spurs, whose victory was the 10th in their last 12 games. Los Angeles had 24 turnovers, 14 in the first half when San Antonio built a 60-51 lead.

U.S. SKATING pair Tai Babilonia of Mission Hills, Calif., and Randy Gardner of Los Angeles, Calif., perform at pairs' World Figure Skating Championships in Vienna Wednesday night where the U.S. skaters placed first and became new World Champion.

US duo take world skating title

VIENNA (AP) — They started skating together as small kids. Now they are the world champions. "And we haven't finished yet," said dark-eyed Tai Babilonia after she and Randy Gardner had brought the world figure skating pairs title to the United States for the first time in 29 years.

"We want to win the Olympic gold medal next year. We hope Irina Rodnina and Alexander Zaitsev will be back then, and we shall still hope to win."

The legendary Russian pair, champions for six years in a row, missed the current world championships in Vienna because Rodnina took a break from skating to have a baby. It gave the young Los Angeles pair its chance — and they seized it amid feverish scenes of excitement at Vienna's Stadthalle.

About 200 Americans were in the crowd, waving the Stars and Stripes and cheering every graceful figure. Babilonia and Gardner totaled 144.54 points and were way ahead of Marina Cherasova and Sergei Shakhrai of the Soviet Union, second with 142.22.

Tai was 11 and Randy was nine when they first went shyly on to the ice together and learned to be partners. John Nicks, former English star who won the Olympic title himself with his sister Jennifer in 1953, coached them.

They first got into the world championships in 1975 and finished 10th. The next year they finished fifth, and in 1977 and 1978 they were third.

All that time Rodnina and Zaitsev continued their mastery over the world. When news came that Rodnina was temporarily retiring, the California pair stepped up its ambition.

"We have worked harder and harder to build up our fitness," Babilonia said. "We have done jogging and weightlifting, and we have added new elements to our skating."

Gardner said they plan to add a few triple moves to their skating before the Olympics at Lake Placid, N.Y., next year.

"We could have done a double axel tonight, but it wasn't necessary," Gardner said.

Both agreed they reached a peak in their free skating Wednesday night.

As they finished, the crowd did not need to wait for the result. Everyone knew the Americans had won and stood cheering — and the Stars and Stripes were being waved in every corner of the hall.

One judge, from West Germany, gave the Californians the maximum 6.0 points for artistic presentation. Four others, including a Russian judge, gave them 5.9.

Sabine Baesz and Tassilo Thierbach of East Germany were third. The next Americans in the final placings were two more Californians, Vicki Heasley of West Covina and Robert Wagenhoffer of Fontana, who were sixth.

Charros sign 263-7331

Randy Johnson

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Randy Johnson, who played 11 National Football League seasons with four teams before retiring after the 1977 season, has signed as a player-coach of the San Antonio Charros of the American Football Association.

The signing was announced Wednesday by the Charros, one of 10 teams in the professional league.

Johnson, 34, a former NAIA All-American at Texas A&I, is an account executive for a local car-truck leasing agency. He retired after spending the 1977 season with the Green Bay Packers.

Johnson was a first-round draft choice by the Atlanta Falcons in 1966 and spent five seasons with the Falcons. He quarterbacked the New York Giants for three seasons before spending the 1974 season with Hawaii in the World Football League.

He returned to the NFL to spend two seasons with the Washington Redskins before going to Green Bay.

Johnson will also serve as an assistant coach for the Charros, but said, "I'll do more playing than coaching."

Female reporters admitted to Oriole locker room

MIAMI (AP) — Baltimore Orioles Manager Earl Weaver says before women are allowed in the team's locker room they should have to have a letter from their parents.

But General Manager Hank Peters said Wednesday that since Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn lifted his guidelines which barred women from the clubhouse, female reporters will be allowed in the team's dressing quarters as of opening day.

"As long as they have proper press credentials, women will be given free access to our clubhouse with no time limit," Peters said. "The only thing we're doing is installing a wall several feet in front of the door leading from the locker room to the shower."

Pitching coach Ray Miller said: "They all talk about how embarrassed the women will be. Well, I know I'm going to be embarrassed."

Evert wins again

BOSTON — Top-seeded Chris Evert eliminated Kathy Teacher 6-3, 6-0 and second-seeded Dianne Fromholz trounced Betty Stove of the Netherlands 6-3, 6-1, advancing to the quarter-finals of a $150,000 women's tennis tournament.

In an opening-round match delayed to give Virginia Wade two days rest after four weeks of tournament play, the British star routed Mary Lou Piatek 6-1, 6-2.

In other matches, Marita Redondo beat Betsy Nagelson 7-5, 6-2; Australian Kerry Reid whipped Linda Siegel 6-2, 7-5 and Wendy Turnbull outlasted Carrie Meyer 7-6, 7-5.

Gullikson, Smith upset

WASHINGTON — Andrew Pattison of South Africa ousted sixth-seeded Tim Gullikson 6-1, 6-1 and Marty Riessen upset eighth-seeded Stan Smith 6-2, 6-3 in the second round of a $125,000 men's pro tennis tournament.

In other matches, top-seeded Eddie Dibbs defeated Tom Gullikson 6-4, 6-2; No. 2 seed Brian Gottfried outlasted Hank Pfister 6-4, 6-7, 6-4; third-seeded Arthur Ashe overcame Francisco Gonzalez of Puerto Rico 3-6, 6-2, 7-6 and No. 7 seed Victor Amaya defeated Brian Teacher 4-6, 7-6, 7-6.

Laker star Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had only six points in the first half, but managed to finish with 20. On several occasions, the 7-3 center simply strolled to mid-court and watched his teammates play against five Spurs at the other end of the court.

Forward Adrian Dantley, averaging nearly 19 points per game, missed on all five of his field goal attempts and finished with only three free throws.

San Antonio's George Gervin, the NBA's leading scorer who is seeking his second consecutive scoring title, poured in 34 points against the Lakers to reach the 12,000-point plateau in only his seventh pro season.

He had 20 in the first half, including a 30-footer at the buzzer. The Spurs, shooting nearly 55 percent for the game, led by as many as 15 points in the third quarter and 19 in the final period.

"For whatever reason, they (the Lakers) just didn't play a good game. And we played an excellent game. I was surprised we ran on them so easy," said San Antonio Coach Doug Moe. "The Lakers are down. It happens to teams. I don't know what causes it. They're good enough that they'll snap out of it."

San Antonio's starting center, Billy Paultz, picked up three fouls in the first five minutes of the game and sat out the rest of the half and much of the second half.

With reserve center Mike Green in Mississippi to visit his ill mother, reserve forward Coby Dietrick was pressed into service at center and responded with 14 points in the game.

Aggies meet Bama

HOUSTON (AP) — Alabama basketball coach C.M. Newton has some bad news for the Texas Aggie basketball team—Reggie King is well and eager to play in tonight's National Invitation Tournament quarter-final game in the Summit.

"Reggie is fine. He'll be ready to go," Newton said of Alabama's all-time leading scorer. "I wish we had a little more time to rest but we don't. We're going to try and go out and not play tired."

The Aggies, 24-6, and the Crimson Tide, 21-10, will be battling for a spot in the semifinals of the NIT in New York Monday night against the winner of another quarter-final game between Big 10 co-champion Purdue and Old Dominion.

King sat out the pre-game warmup Monday night because of a stomach virus then went out and scored 43 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead the Tide into the quarter-finals with a 90-88 victory over Virginia.

King, the Tide's 6-6 center, will battle A&M's 6-11 All-Southwest Conference freshman Rudy Woods under the boards. Woods, 6-11, has paced the Aggies' strong inside game since becoming an instant starter this season.

"There's not a lot of time to prepare a team for a game like this one," Newton said. "We're so close. It would be awfully disappointing to come this far and lose. Still it's an honor to get this far. We're shooting for one more win to get to New York."

The Aggies, who finished third in the SWC, will be the official home team in the game in the 15,500 seat Summit. NIT officials opted for the Summit instead of A&M's 7,500 seat G. Rolfe White Coliseum on the A&M campus, deserted because of spring break.

The crowd will be mostly Aggie fans but crowd preference hasn't affected the Aggies' play this season. Thirteen of A&M's 24 victories have been on the road, including victories over New Mexico and Nevada-Reno in two earlier NIT games.

"To me, you go out and play the best you know how to play, and the crowd shouldn't bother you," said Vernon Smith, the Aggies' leading scorer. "Besides, if you knock off a good team in front of their crowd, that just proves it to people."

But Yankees aren't

Guidry, Seaver show old form

By The Associated Press
Ron Guidry and Tom Seaver are in midseason form. Unfortunately, the rest of the New York Yankees and Cincinnati Reds aren't.

Young recipient last year with a 25-3 record and a 1.74 earned run average, made his spring debut with three scoreless innings, but even that couldn't prevent the world champion Yankees, winless against major league opposition, from dropping their seventh exhibition game in a row, 3-2 to the Kansas City Royals.

Meanwhile, Seaver went five innings, allowing just three hits and no runs as the Reds edged the Toronto Blue Jays 6-5 on Mike Grace's RBI single in the 11th inning. It was their second victory in five games.

Guidry walked one, struck out two and said he had no intention of "trying to blow anyone away. I don't want to leave it down here. I just want to work on my rhythm and my release points."

The Royals scored twice off Tommy John and won the game in the bottom of the ninth on Willie Wilson's two-out single off rookie Ron Davis. Steve Busby, attempting a comeback from serious shoulder surgery, worked four innings for Kansas City, allowing one run and two hits.

Seaver, meanwhile, proclaimed himself "pretty much on schedule. I'm throwing as hard as I can. However, I'm not throwing as hard as I'll be able to throw. I'd say I'm about 80 percent. I can't move the ball as well as I'll be able to move it. My legs just aren't strong enough yet."

Eisewhere, the long ball was very much in evidence that the hitters were starting to catch up with the pitchers. Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell, Milwaukee's Ben Oglivie, Seattle's John Hale and Dan Norman of the New York Mets all had two-homer games.

Stargell hit a solo homer and a three-run blast, powering the Pirates to a 10-inning 7-6 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies. Oglivie reversed Stargell's order with a three-run homer and then a solo shot as the Brewers downed the San Francisco Giants 6-3.

Hale drove in five runs with his homers off Nolan Ryan and Ken Brett and Danny Meyer added five more RBI with a bases-loaded triple and a pair of doubles, leading the Mariners to a 17-9 rout of the California Angels.

Norman, a power-hitting rookie who is trying to win the punchless Mets' right field job, matched Hale with two homers and five RBI in a 10-7 slugfest over the Montreal Expos.

Hayes pleads guilty to cocaine traffic

DALLAS (AP) — Bob Hayes, former all-pro receiver for the Dallas Cowboys, will be sentenced next week for trafficking in cocaine.

State District Judge Richard Mays accepted Hayes' guilty plea Wednesday to the three charges against him and then delayed sentencing for a week to allow his attorneys to round up character witnesses to bolster his plea for leniency.

Hayes twice sold cocaine to an undercover police officer from Addison, a Dallas suburb, for which he could be sentenced to up to life in prison. He faces another possible sentence of 10 years for selling methaqualone to the same officer.

Hayes remains free on the same $30,000 bail set following his arrest last April.

Addison officer Dennis Kelly testified he met Hayes early last year through a secretary employed at a computer firm which Hayes served as a vice president. Kelly said he and the secretary joined Hayes and his wife for dinner and that Hayes mentioned using narcotics while playing with the Cowboys.

After dinner, they headed for the Playboy Club and Hayes noticed he was using nose drops, Kelly said. "He made the statement that he had something for my nose that was better than nose drops," the officer added.

Later in the evening, when the subject of narcotics came up again, Kelly said, he asked Hayes "if he could secure me narcotics. He said yes, he could secure me anything I wanted."

Kelly then began taping his conversations with Hayes, eventually compiling 12 tapes.

Hayes was dubbed the "world's fastest human" after winning two gold medals at the 1964 Tokyo Olympics. He went on to set records for the Cowboys during 10 seasons. He remains the Cowboys' all-time leader in scoring (75 touchdowns), receiving (358 catches for 7,177 yards) and punt returns (102 for 1,147 yards).

NBA ROUNDUP

By The Associated Press

According to Milwaukee's Junior Bridgeman, the best offense is a good defense.

"The key was our pressure defense," Bridgeman said Wednesday night after scoring 25 points and leading the Milwaukee Bucks to a club-point mark as they played a 158-102 tune on the hapless New Orleans Jazz.

"We got them down and wouldn't let up," Bridgeman added. "It became a fun sort of thing."

The Bucks scored the game's first seven points and gradually stretched their lead to 48-27, 71-47 at half-time, 115-74 after three periods and 142-92 on a fourth-quarter basket by Lloyd Walton.

Warriors 113, Hawks 98

John Lucas scored 21 points and backcourt partner JoJo White added 18 as Golden State handed Atlanta its second consecutive setback after a nine-game winning streak. The Warriors led 81-63 after three periods but the Hawks cut the lead to eight points early in the fourth quarter. Lucas then hit two driving layups and White scored on two jump shots for another comfortable lead.

Suns 126, Celtics 117

Paul Westphal scored 39 points and Walter Davis added 24 to lead Phoenix. Davis tallied 14 points and Westphal 12 in the fourth quarter as the Suns drew away following a 51-51 halftime tie. Boston, paced by Cedric Maxwell, trailed by only three points with 10:20 left but the outside shooting of Westphal and Davis led a 16-4 Phoenix spurt.

Clippers 110, Trailblazers 105

Lloyd Free scored 29 points and led San Diego to its 12th victory in 13 games. The triumph was the third in a row for San Diego, which has been the NBA's hottest team in the last two months with an 18-6 mark. Randy Smith added 18 points and Nick Weatherpoon and Kermit Washington scored 15 apiece for the Clippers, who have won nine straight home games. Rookie Mychal Thompson led the Trail Blazers with 26 points.

SuperSonics 99, 76ers 96

Gus Williams' jumper from the right corner gave Seattle the lead with 46 seconds to play and the Pacific Division leaders handed Philadelphia its third straight defeat. Williams led Seattle with 23 points in the seesaw battle in which the lead changed hands 13 times. Philadelphia's Julius Erving led all scorers with 30 points.

Nuggets 120, Nets 110

Dan Issel scored 24 points to pace Denver, which opened a 55-38 halftime lead and was never challenged in the final two periods. The Nuggets got balanced scoring from Issel, George McGinnis and Bobby Wilkerson with 22 points apiece and David Thompson with 19.

Bean has incentive for Doral Open

MIAMI (AP) — Although none is needed, Andy Bean may have a little extra incentive this week in the $250,000 Doral-Eastern Open golf tournament.

A high finish, preferably a victory, could put him in the rich World Series of Golf this fall.

The Doral event, which started today on the 7,065-yard Blue Monster course, is the last tournament on the tour's winter schedule. The top three finishers on a point list at the close of this tournament will gain a spot in the World Series.

Bean, who has had an exceptional winter without winning, is fourth on the list with 126.4 points. The three leaders — Lon Hinkle, Fuzzy Zoeller and Larry Nelson — are not competing. Bean needs only 13 points — a finish of eighth or higher — to pass Nelson.

His sights are set higher than that, however.

"Winning is the only thing you really think about," said Bean, who scored his first tour triumph here in 1977. He won three times last season and, at 26, is considered one of the tour's brightest young stars.

"I've had a chance to win three or four times this year," the enormously powerful Bean said. "It's just that I always seem to have one round that's just not quite-so-good, just not good enough to keep me from

NFL coaches shun instant replay

HONOLULU (AP) — National Football League owners planned to study instant replay television as an aide to officials today, but coaches aren't sure it will be of much value.

"I think our officials do a great job and instant replay would slow the game," said Chuck Noll, coach of the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

Jack Patena of the Seattle Seahawks seconded Noll and added, "I'd hate to see an artificial means come in there."

Tom Landry of the NFC champion Dallas Cowboys said, "Basically, I'd love to have it, but I don't think it's practical. There are different angles and judgment even on film. We look at film and even with the coaches there is a 50-50 opinion on what is right or wrong."

"Much as I hate to see an error, the officials will make them as do coaches and players. If it becomes too mechanical, it will take something from the game."

The NFL experimented with instant replay on some of the preseason games of 1978. In the Hall of Fame game, when Philadelphia beat Miami 17-3, Dick Vermeil of the Eagles asked to see one replay. Don Shula of the Dolphins did not.

"My impression of that game was that things happened so fast that I didn't think instant replay," Vermeil said. "Maybe if we were so conditioned, we could think 'instant replay.'"

Vermeil and other coaches said the NFL has made every effort to see if instant replay can be beneficial, but so far there are some impractical areas.

Shula commented, "From everything I've seen, I can't say it's a surefire solution. I still think you can't take the human element out of our game, players, coaches or officials."

He added, "I think the addition of the seventh official last season was a big help. It enabled better positioning and there were fewer controversial calls. Baseball has an umpire over almost every play and the closer our officials are to the plays, the better."

Indiana State, UCLA face rugged challenges tonight

In case you hadn't heard, Marquette and DePaul and Louisville and Arkansas are playing basketball tonight in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament.

The problems those four teams face are the same ones that San Francisco and Oklahoma face, but in a far different way.

You see, second-ranked UCLA and No. 1 Indiana State are also playing tonight and, as might be expected, the Bruins and Sycamores are getting the lions' share of the attention.

Marquette, ranked 10th, faces sixth-ranked DePaul in the opener of the West Regional semifinals at Provo, Utah. Then San Francisco, ranked 12th, goes against a bunch of Bruins intent on proving that UCLA belongs back at the top, where it reigned for so many years.

In the Midwest Regional semifinals at Cincinnati, No. 13 Louisville opposes fifth-ranked Arkansas, then 16th-rated Oklahoma takes on the Sycamores, who are equally intent on proving that Indiana State belongs right where it is—No. 1 in the rankings.

There are eight other teams—all ranked—waiting in the wings for their chance to advance to the regional finals. On Friday night in the East semis, it's No. 8 Syracuse facing No. 14 Pennsylvania and No. 17 St.

John's playing No. 18 Rutgers at Greensboro, N.C. And on the same night, the Mideast semis at Indianapolis send No. 4 Notre Dame against No. 19 Toledo and No. 3 Michigan State against No. 7 Louisiana State.

UCLA, which had a few centers of note (Lew Alcindor, Steve Paterson, Sven Nater and Bill Walton) during its championship seasons, now must overcome San Francisco's 7-foot-1, 255-pound All-America Bill Cartwright, owner of a 24.1-point scoring average and an NCAA-leading 16 rebounds a game. Among the Dons' other starters are 6-8 Guy Williams, 6-8 Bart Bowers and 6-6 Doug Jemison.

"They are big and physical and also very quick," acknowledges Bruins Coach Gary Cunningham. "They'll be the biggest team we've played this season."

The Marquette-DePaul game is a rematch of the teams' regular-season thriller, when Gary Garland's basket just before the buzzer gave DePaul a 61-60 victory. "We always play close," says DePaul Coach Ray Meyer. "They know us. We know them. They know our style. We know their style. It should be a good game and it will go one way or the other by a point or two."

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton naturally has Louisville's Cardinals on his mind at the moment. "Anyone of their starters could have a 20-point night. They're explosive. They have as much talent as anyone we've played," he says.

But he's also looking ahead to a possible date with the unbeaten Sycamores.

"Indiana State, day in and day out, may be the better team (than his Razorbacks) but at this stage of the game anyone who's left has a shot."

Denny Crum, Louisville's coach, expressed a bit of concern over Arkansas' methodical style. He said he would have preferred to face a run-and-gun team.

"They do an excellent job of controlling the tempo," Crum said of the Razorbacks. "Personally, I don't like their tempo, but I can't argue with their results. They do what they have to do to win."

Rockets whip injured Kings

HOUSTON (AP)—Dwight Jones and the rest of the Houston Rockets know what it's like playing through an injury-riddled season.

"Look what happened to us last year," Jones said of the Rockets' unlucky 1977-78 season. "It's no fun losing players with injuries, but it's a part of the game."

Jones and the Rockets breezed to a 129-107 National Basketball Association victory over the crippled Kansas City Kings Wednesday night, with Rudy Tomjanovich's 30 points leading the way.

Kansas City, which has not won a road game since Feb. 14, played without the services of Rookie-of-the-Year candidate Phil Ford, Darnell Hillman and Richard Washington.

Starters Scott Wedman and Tom Burleson have been lost to the Kings since last month and Wedman is not expected to return for at least 10 days. Burleson will be lost for at least five more weeks.

Tomjanovich scored 19 points in the first half as the Rockets took a 58-52 lead going into the third quarter.

Houston built its advantage to 14 points, 92-78, entering the final period and led by as many as 25 points late in the contest.

Kansas City Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said the season has literally become a case of attrition for his ball club.

"We have 12 games left, and we're going to have to win some of them," Fitzsimmons said. "I don't know how, but we're going to have to. You can't play your bench all the way and win in this league."

Billy McKinney went down with an ankle injury in the fourth quarter and Fitzsimmons said he will have to wait for a further report on him to find out the full extent of the injury.

"So many things have happened to us, but we have to keep looking in the right direction," he said.

Bill Robinson led the Kings with a season-high 32 points. McKinney added 18 before leaving the game.

Coaches visit Big Spring for juco recruits

BELLEVEUE, Wash. (AP)—Big Spring, Texas, is not a place many people would choose to spend a spring weekend.

"It would be about as close to the pits as a guy could find," said University of Washington basketball coach Mary Harshman.

"It's a town of about 25,000 to 30,000 out in the desert. There's cactus, mesquite, sagebrush, a few oil wells, jackrabbits—no, I don't think the jackrabbits live there anymore."

Why, then, did Harshman take a large airplane to Denver, a smaller one to Midland-Odessa airport, then drive 70 lonely miles into the middle of nowhere last weekend to reach Big Spring?

Because that is where Anthony Lee, an explosive 6-foot-9 power forward Harshman has referred to only half-jokingly as the Huskies' prodigal son, was playing in a junior college tournament.

Lee had signed a national letter of intent to attend Washington following his senior year of high school in Tyler, Texas.

His grades wouldn't let him. So he enrolled at McClennon JC in Waco to bring the grades up, and first-semester transcripts show he has done that.

Second-semester grades aren't in yet, though.

"From what his coach tells us, he's going to class," Harshman said.

"Of course, I hear that all the time from my players, and then they have a couple of flunks."

Harshman also knows about tricks some JCs might pull to get two full seasons of service out of top prospects.

"The story is that they'll give you all incompletes, and that if you left they became Ds or Es, if you stayed they became Bs or As," he said.

"That's supposedly an old gambit of the JCs. I've not experienced it personally, but you hear a lot of those stories."

Harshman still wants Lee, wants him badly, to help prop the sagging fortunes of the Huskies, who posted a losing record (11-16) for the first time in his eight years at the school.

But last weekend was not a good time to watch Lee. His father had died two days earlier. His head and heart, understandably, were not into basketball.

Harshman went anyway. That is what basketball coaches do this time of year, with the day for athletes to sign national letters of intent less than a month away (April 11).

And back-country Texas JCs have become a stashing ground for top prospects.

Harshman said the Midwest used to be the stashing ground, but it became too easily accessible—and the players too highly visible and subject to recruitment by other schools—so while the eyes of Texas may be on them, the eyes of many recruiters may not.

This is the time of year when coaches log their 50,000 miles (a conservative estimate, according to Harshman)—flying and driving—to look at talent and let the talent know the school is interested enough to send someone to a place like Big Spring.

Harshman will be in Bozeman, Mont., this weekend.

Sinatra is No. 1 Dodger fan

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Two elderly vacationers, queuing up earlier this week for a spring faceoff of the 1978 World Series baseball rivals, were overheard in an intriguing conversation.

"The Dodgers have got more class but the Yankees always win," commented one of the gentlemen.

"Yeah, they're tougher," said the companion. "It's the soft life of these Californians—you know, all that sun and leisure, the movie crowd."

The Dodgers have come under some fire because of their affinity with the people of Hollywood's never-never land. Manager Tom Lasorda's office walls are festooned with pictures of show business friends. People whose faces are familiar on movie and TV screens wear Dodger hats, hang over the railings and have free access to the Dodger locker room.

The No. 1 Dodger supporter is of blue eyes, Frank Sinatra. He rarely misses a game. One whole wall on Lasorda's office is dedicated to the great warbler.

But don't start bad-mouthing Sinatra in front of the exuberant, emotional skipper of the Dodgers unless you want to pick hickory out of your teeth.

"Let me tell you what happened last week," Lasorda related. "Frank was doing a show at the Valley Forge Theater in Pennsylvania. He knew my mother lived in Norristown, 10 to 15 miles away."

"Mom is 71. She has been very sick, confined to a wheel chair. Without any advance notice, this big, black limousine drives up in front of the house on Buttonwood St. Out steps Frank. He goes up and knocks on the door."

"My mother is overwhelmed. Frank takes off his coat, sits down and visits for two hours. He even stays for dinner. They cooked Italian escarole."

"Neighbors heard about it and pretty soon the street was clogged with people. The police chief, who lives next door, called six patrolmen to block off the area."

That happened Thursday. On Saturday, two big limousines again drew up to the modest Lasorda home. This time a doctor and nurse were brought along.

"Mom and my four brothers were whisked away to Valley Forge," Lasorda said. "Sinatra dedicated the show to her. He introduced her as my mom and sang her favorite song, 'My Way.'"

"I'M TELLIN' YA, FRED, MY TEAM WOULD'VE MADE THE FINAL FOUR TOO IF THE NCAA HADN'T RAILROADED ME ON THOSE TRUMPED-UP CHARGES ABOUT CASH PAYOFFS!"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MAR. 16, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: It's not the right time to try and make progress in communicating and coming to an agreement with others, so sidestep attempting to do so for now. Concentrate on plans for the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Not a good day to expect associates to do what you desire, since they are concerned with their own affairs. Use care in motion.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be prepared to do your own work today without assistance from others. The use of tact can produce the right results now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have good creative ideas but you have to work hard to make them successful. Be alert at all times today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't become too concerned with the problems of others now, or you could come out the loser. Be wise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A letter that is annoying should not be answered until your temper cools off. Then you can do so intelligently. Be logical.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Not a good day to make decisions on important business matters since your thinking is not quite up to par now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A personal matter should be well thought out before doing anything about it. Show increased devotion to loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't try to obtain information you need that would require unorthodox methods. Handle a credit matter wisely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Steer clear of irate friends and avoid arguments. Know what your aims are, personal and in business. Make plans to gain them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Do nothing that could irk anyone who has power over your affairs or you could later regret it. Show that you have poise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Not a good time to start a new project. You don't need a new ally at this time, so discourage one who is pressuring you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You want to renege on some promise, but it's to your best interest to carry through. Don't lose your temper with anyone.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... ...he or she will have a pleasant disposition, plus the ability to become a peacemaker, so encourage this and your progeny could be a positive force in society. There is a fine musician in this chart. Don't neglect ethical training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Dollar-for-dollar reimbursement nixed by House

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Dollar-for-dollar reimbursement of the revenue school districts would lose to the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment was narrowly rejected by the House on Wednesday.

But a predominantly rural coalition indicated it would retol its proposal and try again today.

House members voted 68-66 Wednesday evening to table an amendment to the tax relief implementation bill (HB1060) that would require the state to repay each dollar a school district lost.

The bill as approved by the House Ways and Means Committee does provide dollar-for-dollar reimbursement in 1979-80. But in 1980-81, districts whose appraisals of homes fall below the statewide average percentage of true market value would get only 90 percent of their losses. Above average districts would get more.

"The way this bill is written, you are going to give them tax relief the first year and take it away from them the second year," said Rep. Bennie Bock II, D-New Braunfels. "It's hide the ball for the second year."

Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, said Bock's dollar-for-dollar proposal was so simple it was "like trying to build an atomic bomb with a hammer and saw."

He said Bock's approach would reward districts that under-appraise property. He said the U.S. Supreme Court had struck down a Louisiana reimbursement plan because it failed to recognize differences in local taxing practices.

The constitutional amendment automatically exempted $5,000 of the market value of each owner-occupied house from school taxes. The bill adds another $10,000 exemption for the elderly and the disabled.

School districts also would be reimbursed the difference between what they would receive from taxing agricultural land on market value and the generally smaller revenue from taxing the land on its productivity.

The House approved, 75-61, an amendment giving school districts $2 million a year to cover administrative costs involved in applying the Tax Relief Amendment.

It also voted 75-65 to reimburse junior college districts for revenue they would lose from taxing rural land on productivity instead of market value.

Fiedler unknown?

NEW YORK (AP) — Arthur Fiedler, certainly one of public television's most recognized figures, may at the same time be one of the medium's least-known personalities.

Grandfatherly in appearance, courtly in public, Fiedler can be cranky and downright ill-tempered off-stage. He will submit to almost any situation or costume for publicity's sake, but complain, "I don't like children," when asked to sign autographs for youngsters.

"Arthur Fiedler: Just Call Me Maestro," contrasts the public and private personalities of the man who has led — indeed, the man who has been — the Boston Pops Orchestra for nearly half a century.

The hour-long documentary will be broadcast Sunday evening at 8 EST by many Public Broadcasting Service stations. As with all PBS programs, date and time may vary, so check local listings.

"Just Call Me Maestro" airs at the height of public TV's Festival '79 fund-raising campaign, fitting time for a tribute to the man whose "Evening at the Pops" series has attracted summer viewers to public TV since 1974.

Arthur Fiedler, at 84, has by his own admission slowed considerably. Yet it's remarkable to watch this man who shuffles through his home, struggles to mount a small step, complains of being tired, lead his orchestra with vitality and verve. At the podium, he appears a man far younger than his years.

Efforts to explain the man and his music are as many and as varied as there are people who know him and his work.

"He's still making a career for himself, says one of the orchestra's administrators.

"He throws himself into a march as if it was Beethoven's Ninth Symphony," says a member of the orchestra.

Says the maestro himself, "It's still my motto: He who rests rots."

The film is sandwiched by scenes from Boston Pops performances on Patriot's Day, April 19, 1975, and on July 4, 1976, but the documentary is more a personality study than an examination of the Fiedler style.

Camera crews from Boston's public TV station, WGBH, followed Fiedler for several months, capturing on film the man's many strengths as well as his weaknesses.

His dedication to his work is evident, a seemingly tireless pursuit of musical perfection. Yet with his staff, he can be short, even petty. In one scene, he bickers over the ridiculous possibility that June might have 31 days.

Cost of prescription drugs killing Texans, Senate committee hears

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The high cost of prescription drugs may be killing some Texans, a Senate committee heard Wednesday.

Carrie Estes of Houston said she had "several" neighbors whose families found unfiled prescriptions among their effects after their deaths.

"That's pathetic in a rich state like Texas," she told the Senate State Affairs Committee as it considered for the second day a proposal to allow generic drug substitution.

Mrs. Estes was one of several hundred senior citizen and consumer group members who crowded the Senate gallery to show their approval of the bill they say is a money saver.

"We want to have the right to have our choice," said Mrs. Estes, of the Texas Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now, or ACORN. "Why should we have to pay the exorbitant prices for the fancy bottles, for the brand names?"

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, committee chairman and the bill's sponsor, said the bill would remain pending before the committee while a substitute proposal to clarify its language is prepared.

Sen. Bob Price, R-Pampa, said he had received many calls from doctors who did not want a pharmacist to be able to change their prescriptions.

Brooks said the substitute bill will state more strongly that a physician or a consumer would be able to specify that a pharmacist could not substitute.

"We want to be absolutely sure that the physician has complete control," he said.

"Use Open Dating"

This aid provides you with a guide to product freshness. An example is milk! Look at the date imprinted in the top of the carton. This specifies the last date this item can be sold and still allow you reasonable time to store and use the product at home. You'll find this same kind of dating on many other products.

Cottage cheese has the date stamped on the bottom. Egg cartons have the dates imprinted on the end. The places for the date may vary but their purpose does not.

Play often... the more times you are an instant winner or bingo winner... the better your chances are to be a jackpot winner!

Store clerks know these products are not to be sold beyond the stamped date. The quality and freshness of the food also depends on the efficiency of storage and handling it receives in-store.

While this care and Open Dating is your assurance of freshness and quality, your handling of the product is also important.

Refrigerate perishables as soon as you get home. Then, Open Dating will truly pay big dividends in freshness and top quality for you!

Next week's Inflation Fighting Idea: "RECYCLING IN THE KITCHEN"

Perfect way to pour beer

SPANISH LAKE, Mo. (AP) — Winter's rains and ruins are over, or will be, officially, next week. Time to start thinking seriously about picnic hampers and beer.

"Keep that beer out of the sunshine," Vince Deck admonishes. "The sun will turn beer skunky."

Vince Deck knows things like that. He knows the proper temperature at which beer should be drunk: 40 degrees. He knows how it should go from bottle to glass: splash it, get a good head. He knows how it should go from glass to throat: hold the glass at the bottom.

He knows these things because he teaches a beer school. Vince Deck is a professor of beer.

About once a month he gathers his pupils — saloonkeepers, bartenders, waiters — and teaches them one lesson: how to pour a perfect glass of beer. The course takes three hours. Finally, he pours one.

Its color is rich amber, its head creamy white. From the bottom of the glass not a single bubble rises. The aroma is sharp, inviting. A perfect glass of beer.

Here's how.

"Start with the glass. It has to be perfectly clean. Beer clean, not water clean. Beer clean means it can't be washed with soap. Use a non-sudsing cleaner. Air dry it. On a rack, not a mat.

"If the glass is clean, the beer will keep its head. Every swallow should leave a ring of foam. Five gulps, five rings.

"Some think that bubbles rising from the bottom of the glass means the beer is fresh. Not so. It means the glass is not beer clean. If the beer bubbles, it will be flat before you finish it.

"When you add beer to the glass, do it gently. Don't shake the bottle around. Just ease it into the glass.

"You would be surprised the difference it makes if you pay attention to those little things. I think a perfect glass of beer is worth it."

Vince Deck is a jolly man of 69 with a rich, amber voice, a healthy paunch and a head that is creamy white, a perfect professor of beer.

For years he worked as a chemist for a St. Louis brewery, testing grains, looking for better varieties of barley, keeping the yeast strain pure. His job also was to teach the brewery's salesmen how the beer was made so they could talk about it knowledgeably.

Since his retirement he has gone a step further, teaching tailors how beer should be served. His beer school is sponsored by a local distributor.

"The idea is for the customer to get the same beer in his glass that left the brewery," he said. "The distributor and the tavern owner want the beer they sell to taste musty."

They do?

"Yes. Like, I must have another. If every tavern served beer the right way, breweries couldn't brew enough of it. I will show you."

"Does it taste musty?"

Yes, it does.

"Then let's have another."

New protein tests urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has proposed a new rule that for the first time requires all private and state official grain agencies to provide protein tests in wheat.

Protein content "is the single most important index" of wheat's value for baking purposes, officials said.

Leland E. Bartelt, administrator of the department's Federal Grain Inspection Service, said the new requirement would take effect Aug. 15, if adopted.

Comments on the proposal can be sent by April 9 to: FGIS Compliance Division, Room 2405, Auditors Building, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Bridge building 'strictly political'

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Officials on the Texas side of the Rio Grande — eager to ease the burden on the traffic-choked international bridges — are trying to wade through the paperwork needed to start any new crossings. "It's strictly political," Brownsville Mayor Ruben Edelstein said of problems blocking efforts to add a couple of bridges here.

The four bridges in the Cameron-Hidalgo County area are often hopelessly snarled during peak hours. Officials in the two counties are working toward construction of eight new bridges.

But none of the officials are willing to guess on when or where the first new bridge will be.

"We have a little saying along the border," said Carl Griffin, superintendent of the Hidalgo-Reynosa bridge. "If you want a bridge in 10 years you better start today."

Brownsville has the only two crossings in Cameron County. Edelstein said the need for new bridges is "extremely critical."

"If there is an emergency and we have to get fire trucks or medical vehicles across they just couldn't get there," the mayor said.

Cameron County owns Gateway Bridge here. Henry Hickford, bridge manager, said the span carries 9,000 vehicles per day. During busy hours it can take more than a half-hour to make the short international crossing.

"Coming back from Mexico it's congested almost all the time," Hickford said.

The second bridge is a narrow crossing owned by the Mexican National and Missouri Pacific Railroads. The bridge can barely carry two lanes of traffic — and no cars cross when the trains crawl across.

County Judge Ray Ramon agrees with Edelstein on the need for more bridges. "We need as many bridges as the government will let us build. The more bridges, the more commerce and the more communications," the judge said.

But that's about the only thing Ramon and Edelstein agree on. The city had applied for a bridge permit but U.S. officials turned it down.

"The State Department wants to force the city to work with the county on a joint venture on it," Edelstein said. "I can't for the life of me understand why."

So now the city and county are trying to hammer out a joint application. One of the stickiest questions involves the splitting up of revenue from the profitable bridge.

Edelstein said the prime site is downstream from the Gateway Bridge. In addition to a multi-million dollar crossing, the mayor hopes to see an extension of an existing expressway.

A second site — in western Brownsville — is also being looked at.

A third effort in Cameron County is being made by Port of Brownsville officials. A new bridge proposed for the port area would be part of a massive program aimed at relocating railroad tracks now running near the downtown area.

Ramon is confident the city and county can work out their differences. But that may be less than half the battle, he added.

"The very difficult problem lies ahead in Mexico. It's always been our position that they pay 50 percent. It's a question of the Mexican federal government appropriating the necessary funds," the judge said.

Ramon is more confident about a crossing proposed for Los Indios — south of Harlingen and San Benito. He said officials in those two cities seem ready to work with the county on the project.

In Hidalgo County all Mexico-bound traffic must cross at Hidalgo or Progreso (or take the hand-pulled ferry at Los Ebanos).

Bridge Superintendent Griffin said the Hidalgo-Reynosa span (owned by McAllen) carries 10,500 vehicles on weekdays and up to 13,000 on Saturdays and holidays.

The four-lane concrete bridge is the third at the site. The first fell into the river in 1939.

Griffin said the city wants to build a second span. The new crossing would carry only north-bound traffic. The existing bridge would be used for Mexico-bound vehicles.

"Everybody's in favor of it but no permits have been issued yet," he said.

The other crossing the county is the privately owned bridge at Progreso.

Officials in three other Hidalgo County cities are working toward new bridges.

"We figure the economic impact would be great," said Donna City Manager Mike Lopez. "But there's a tremendous amount of politics involved. There's local politics, state politics and national politics. And on the Mexican side their politics get involved."

Donna has filed an application with the U.S. State Department. The cities of Pharr and Mission have received U.S. approval and are awaiting word from Mexico City.

Ramon, who has worked with the Mexicans in the past, warns that it could take awhile to hear from south of the border.

"It could be six months, it could be six years. It's almost completely in their hands," he said.

OLD BRIDGE — Traffic on this old railroad bridge connecting Brownsville, Texas and Matamoros, Mexico is halted when freight trains cross the international span. The crossing is one of two often overworked bridges in Brownsville. Officials in the Rio Grande Valley are working toward construction of eight new bridges.

Women inmates hassled?

BEAUMONT, Texas (A) — A woman on trial for her life in the execution-style slaying of five persons choked back the tears as her lawyers objected to the harassment of other women inmates they say has stirred resentment against their client.

Linda May Burnett's lawyer Hellmut Erwing complained Wednesday to District Judge Larry Gist that a district attorney's investigator had harassed women inmates, questioning them about "my comings and goings at the jail."

Gist agreed to investigate the matter, but not at the expense of delaying the trial which resumes today.

Erwing attacked the credibility Wednesday of an incriminating tape recording in which Mrs. Burnett purportedly relates to a hypnotist her version of how five members of the Bishop Phillips family were gunned down in a common grave.

On the tape, a woman's voice admits to shooting the four adults to death and said "Joe" killed 3-year-old Jason Phillips.

The 31-year-old mother of three is accused, along with codefendant Joe Dugas Jr. of Port Arthur, of killing the family members last July. Dugas is scheduled to go on trial later this year in Corpus Christi.

Mrs. Burnett's lawyers also presented evidence aimed at showing Dugas' violent nature. A bar owner testified that Dugas worked for him five years ago as a bouncer, but that he fired him for manhandling a customer.

Jay Riekenberg, audio supervisor for an Austin public television station, again testified at the trial, this time in front of a jury. He said he believes the tape has been altered.

The tape runs five or six hours long, and the district attorney's office tendered a half hour portion of the tape for playback to the jury.

Newspaper jobs in ample supply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's newspapers are absorbing the large numbers of men and women seeking careers in journalism, contrary to the fears of some, an industry group has found.

A nationwide survey sponsored in part by the American Newspaper Publishers Association, based in suburban Reston, Va., showed there is no shortage of newspaper jobs for journalism school graduates.

It cited a survey by the S.I. Newhouse School of Public Communication at Syracuse University, which check the placement status of graduates of 46 accredited journalism school.

Mission in 'sin pit'

Not peddling sex

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Among the sin pits and flesh pots along Liberty Avenue, a place called The Store House of Love would not at first glance seem out of character.

After all, it shares the street with a dozen skin flick houses, massage parlors, sex device emporiums and bookstores that cost a quarter to enter.

But the Store House of Love isn't peddling sex.

"We're here to introduce Jesus Christ to the people of Liberty Avenue," says Jim Deglau, a born-again Christian who opened the humble mission in the garish neighborhood 10 months ago.

Because hundreds frequent the saloons and peep shows every night, Deglau figures his operation is like shooting fish in a barrel.

"The sinner going into a burlesque show isn't likely to go to a local church to find God. That's why we found ourselves right here," he says.

Deglau, a 43-year-old Roman Catholic-turnedfundamentalist, estimates about 1,500 have accepted Christ after visiting the Store House. But he takes no credit for saving anyone's soul.

"It's nothing we do. It's what an individual does. He asks Jesus Christ into his heart. We are only vessels being used by God to present Jesus Christ to these people," he says.

The soft-spoken Deglau, a land surveyor by profession, admits that his mission, with its ambiguous name, caused confusion at first — and not only for pleasure-bent passersby.

When Deglau first approached the city for an occupancy permit, the zoning board balked because it was suspicious the Store House of Love would be just another porno shop. "They put us through the third degree until they found out we were for real," he says.

The mission is a simple place. In the display window, a large framed portrait of Jesus is surrounded by inspirational banners. To enter, one must cross a

Mrs. Farabee presented major TDMHMR award

AUSTIN — The Commissioner's Award, the highest citation given by the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation (TDMHMR), was presented today to Mrs. Helen Farabee, outgoing chairperson of the Texas State Mental Health Advisory Council.

The award, originated in 1971, is given each year to the individual or organization whose service, dedication and support stand as monumental evidence of concern for continued improvements in the care and treatment of the mentally impaired citizens of Texas.

TDMHMR Commissioner John J. Kavanagh, M.D., presented the award to Mrs. Farabee at a meeting of the council, an organization required by federal law to advise the commissioner on mental health needs of the state.

Two other outgoing members of the council, Robert L. Leon, M.D., professor of psychiatry, University of Texas at San Antonio School of Medicine and Stan Pinder, Ph.D., director of community services, Texas Youth Council, Austin, also were cited by Dr. Kavanagh for their service.

In presenting the award to Mrs. Farabee, Dr. Kavanagh praised her for her long and devoted service to assist mentally ill and mentally retarded citizens.

"She began her service long before it was the fad thing to do, laboring in the shadows and always striving for the sunlight to bring new hope and new interest in the care and treatment of the mentally impaired," said Dr. Kavanagh.

Mrs. Farabee, wife of Wichita Falls State Sen. Ray Farabee, is one of Texas' most active supporters and workers in the field of mental health.

She currently is chairperson of the Special Committee on Delivery of Human Services in Texas, an organization created by Senate Resolution No. 67 of the 65th Texas Legislature.

Also Mrs. Farabee is a member of the Public Committee on Mental Health, Inc., the successor to the President's Commission on Mental Health which completed last year a lengthy study on the mental health needs of Americans.

Mrs. Farabee has served as president of the Mental Health Association of Wichita County and the Mental Health Association in Texas.

She was a citizen member of a 1970 legislative interim committee to study laws of Texas on mental health and mental retardation and a 1972 legislative interim committee to study services for emotionally disturbed children.

From 1975 to 1977 she served on the Texas Advisory Council on construction of community mental health centers. Last year she was chairperson of the Wichita Falls Mental Health and Mental Retardation Advisory Committee.

Mrs. Farabee has served in many capacities on the national level, including a role as a delegate to the Mental Health Manpower Conference in Washington in 1970, a member of the board of directors for the National Association for Mental Health and as vice president for organization and development in 1976.

Active in community affairs, Mrs. Farabee has been a member of the board of directors in the United Way campaign, the Wichita Falls Symphony Orchestra, the Civic Music Association and the Symphony Women's League and president of the Young Women's Christian Association.
