Condemned inmate awaits execution; mother appeals murderer John Louis Evans III, seeking to end "a hell on Earth in prison," awaited electrocution tonight while his mother pleaded with the governor and the U.S. Supreme Court to save him.

In Washington, attorneys for the mother, Betty Evans of Beaumont, Texas, asked the court today to stay the electrocution pending a hearing on Evans' mental competence. The petition was given to Justice William Rehnquist, who took it under advisement.

There was no indication when Rehnquist would respond

Mrs. Evans met with the Gov. Fob James briefly Wednesday. One of her attorneys, Morris Dees, director of the Southern Poverty Law Center, said the governor indicated he would not act until he saw what the courts

Evans gave no sign late Wednesday that he would change his mind and oppose his scheduled death in the electric chair. He would be the first person executed in the United States since Gary Gilmore faced a Utah firing squad in 1977.

But there were private, eleventh-hour discussions between the governor's office in Montgomery and Holman Prison near Atmore late Wednesday. And the Rev. Kevin Duignan, a local Roman Catholic priest who has befriended Evans and expressed a desire to see the condemned man live, said he was "very cautiously optimistic" that the execution, scheduled for 12:01 a.m. CST Friday, might be postponed.

Duignan said he spoke by telephone with James for 25 minutes Wednesday night and expected further communication with the governor's office today. He declined to say what was discussed and, when asked what James might do, said, "I don't know."

But Duignan said that when Evans' mother paid an unexpected visit to her son Wednesday afternoon, Evans said he would "consider" asking for a clemency hearing before the Duignan said Mrs. Evans, who met briefly with James earlier Wednesday, asked her son to request the clemency hearing. "He refused with qualifications," Duignan said. "He said he would think about it.

Pakistanis protesting violently

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Violent protests over the execution of former Pakistani Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto erupted for the second day today in Kashmir, and the leader of India's predominantly Moslem state appealed for calm.

The United News of India, the nation's domestic news service, said police fired tear gas to disperse 9.000 protesters who tried to set fire to the Ahmediya Mosque in central Srinagar, the capital of Kashmir. There was no immediate word on injuries or arrests.

Protest strikes were being observed throughout the Kashmir Valley on the Pakistani border in northern India, the reports said.

UNI said three persons were killed and at least seven seriously injured in rioting and demonstrations in Kashmir on Wednesday, the day Bhutto was hanged.

Kashmir's chief minister, Sheik Mohammed Abdullah, told the state legislative assembly that the people of Kashmir were genuinely griefstricken by Bhutto's hanging, but he said "anti-social elements" were taking advantage of the situation.

Like Pakistanis, the residents of Kashmir are predominantly Moslem and probably would vote for union with Pakistan if India gave them the

McDermott already was plagued by a lengthy decline in profits from its sizable oilfield construction business. Then former chairman Charles L. Graves, who stepped down March 2 because of "medical problems," pleaded no contest in a federal court March 30 to conspiracy and fraud

The charges were related to an investigation of price-fixing in the offshore oilfield construction industry. McDermott, a leader in the industry, earlier had pleaded no contest to a conspiracy charge and was fined $1 million.

The Three Mile Island plant was damaged by an accident March 28 that sent radiation into the surrounding area and brought threats of a "meltdown," the worst possible disaster at an atomic reactor. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has said three separate human errors contributed significantly to the

The NRC said it has no immediate plan to close the seven other Babcock & Wilcox atomic power plants in other

NEW YORK (AP) - Times have states, although it is sending in-

Things haven't been all bad for Babcock & Wilcox, which has a healthy business building coal-fired power plants. And McDermott despite the legal troubles and a pessimistic profit outlook - easily raised $150 million on Wall Street on March 21.

Some of that went to pay bills McDermott ran up two years ago, when it spent $748 million in cash and stock - and outbid conglomerate United Technologies Corp. — to buy Babcock & Wilcox

Until 1977, McDermott's business was the construction of offshore oil and gas production platforms and underwater pipelines. But offshore drilling activities worldwide have slackened while competition for the remaining business has intensified.

As a result, earnings from oilfield construction "have been deteriorating very sharply for the past 18 months to two years," said analyst Michael L. Gordon at the brokerage house of L.F. Rothschild, Unterberg, Towbin.

Although government action this year may spur the oil drilling business, and give a boost to oilfield builders, McDermott has been counting on the 112-year-old Babcock & Wilcox to ease its profit squeeze. So far, McDermott's expectations has performed well, analysts say, largely because of earnings from sales of coal-fired power plants, nuclear power systems for Navy ships and oil-well tubing.

Its commercial nuclear power plant business may be less profitable, although exact figures have not been disclosed. McDermott's new chairman, John D. Ritchie, and chief executive officer, James E. Cunningham, were unavailable for comment despite requests for interviews.

At the brokerage house of Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co., analyst Jeffrey Freedman estimated the atomic power stations provide only a small portion of McDermott's profits today and will not make "a substantial contribution" in the near However, Freedman estimates orders placed for Babcock & Wilcox plants could bring revenues of $1.5 billion over the next decade. But Babcock & Wilcox, ranked fourth in the U.S. nuclear reactor business behind Westinghouse, General Electric and Combustion (Engineering, faces formidable competition in a changing market.

The utility industry had predicted capacity to be built in the 1980s will be faced with high construction costs and arguments over nuclear safety - now even more heated - have been dropping, not placing orders.

Only two reactors were sold last year, both by Westinghouse. None has been sold in 1979. According to the trade organization Atomic Industrial Forum, 12 nuclear power projects two of them to be built by Babcock & Wilcox — were scrubbed in 1978. 'Since the Arab oil embargo in 1973, there have been 37 U.S. reactor orders and 39 cancellations." organization said.

Analysts disagree when asked if the Three Mile Island accident will hamper Babcock & Wilcox' nuclear power sales. But several say the incident may be a bonus to the company's coal-fired power business.

A federal order barring or cur tailing nuclear electric power would result in a "crash program for coalfired boilers" built by Babcock & Wilcox, said James Horan of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields.

That program "would have to take place or we'd have no electricity, added Freedman.

Wholesale prices up another one percent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wholesale prices increased another 1 percent in March, the same as in February, as inflation continued to rage at the highest level in more than four years, the government said today. The Labor Department said wholesale prices, which eventually are reflected in the prices that consumers pay, rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 14.1 percent during the first three months of 1979. It was the largest quarterly advance since the fourth quarter of 1974. But a hint of some future relief from rising food prices was contained in the March price report. Consumer food prices were up 1.2 percent, the smallest increase this year, and prices of crude foodstuffs rose just 0.2 percent, down sharply from the 3.8 percent increase the month before.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices were higher in March for beef and veal, which were up sharply for the fourth consecutive month, and for eggs, home heating oil, gasoline and shoes.

Overall prices of non-food goods rose 0.9 percent, the same as in

The price report showed inflation continuing at well above 10 percent, a rate that has the Carter administration searching for ways to strengthen its battered wage and price guideline program.

The administration is expected soon to announce plans for a consumer watch on price increases at the local level to supplement government efforts to restrain inflation.

The Labor Department's wholesale price report is now officially called the Producer Price Index, which measures prices of goods at three levels before they are sold to consumers and industrial users.

Prices in March were up 1 percent for all three levels: crude goods, meaning before processing; intermediate goods, meaning after some processing; and finished goods, which are ready for sale to Overall wholesale prices had risen by 1.3 percent in January before dipping slightly to one percent in February and March.

Carter's chief anti-inflation strategist, Alfred E. Kahn, had been scheduled to announce the consumer watch on prices today, but a news briefing on the program was called off Wednesday with no new date set.

A spokesman for Kahn didn't give any reason for the change in plans, but it appeared Kahn didn't want his announcements to compete for attention with President Carter's. energy speech tonight.

Meanwhile, officials of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, the agency headed by Kahn, said they have found that some companies thought to be violating the administration's price guidelines may be in compliance after all. Kahn has recently denounced companies he said were violating the guidelines, warning that the names of our companies would be made public if they couldn't justify their prices. However, council spokesman Joe Carter said Wednesday at least one of the companies has justified its prices. it appears a second may be able to justify them, and the other two are still providing information to the

He said "more than eight" additional companies have been informed they are in probable noncompliance with the guidelines, meaning they could be publicly named if they can't convince their government they are within the

But Carter indicated it may be at least a couple of weeks before any company is named, if any are named at all. "We have not at this time told anybody they are in non-compliance,"

The voluntary price guidelines call for companies to hold price increases in 1979 to onehalf of one percent below the average price increases for the

It's true. These are perilous times and one may have to look hard for something about which to be cheerful, but they're there:

A beautiful sunrise, a warm smile of recognition from a toddler, a perfectly cooked steak, a gentle rain.

Since Americans landed on the moon, some Americans have become jaded about news concerning space travel, but the men involved in exover the Jupiter flight.

The space ship's cameras started sending back valuable photographs of the surface of a planet which — on direct line - is almost 400 million miles from earth.

The specially built craft is now sailing ever deeper into space and in timen hopefully, will send additional scientific data from Saturn.

"It's an overwhelmingly successful encounter," project scientist Edward Stone said.

If you had to give the space probe a grade, it would probably be A plus. Certainly the scientists who watched were elated with the results.

JUPITER, LARGEST of the planets, often has been regarded as one of the most interesting of all because of its sheer size and the 11 satellites which revolve around it.

Most everyone marveled at the precision and the timing of the flight and should compliment those who had anything to do with its success.

Granted the opening of the major league baseball season might have excited many Americans far more; the flight of the Jupiter was and is something to be remembered.

'Friends' bring patient bad news

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I do wish you could say something to help my husband. I just know he is being killed by his friends. He had a heart attack a few months back. The doctor tells me it is mild and there's no reason he can't resume normal activities within limits. But since he got home from the hospital he's been deluged with his "friends" who give him all the scare stories about their heart attacks and how it ruined their sex lives, etc. Isn't it true that the heart heals itself after an infraction? If he knew that I think he'd be better off. - Mrs. T.P.

Job had friends like that, too. I sometimes wonder who comes out of heart attack worse - the patient husband or his wife. I know that might be vice versa, but it usually seems to be the husband who goes into the postcoronary shell the most.

I suspect, too, that most of his bearers of bad tidings were in his position once, and it was their 'friends' who carried the bad news to

It is you and not they who are correct. A heart attack is a serious matter, but when the healing process is quite complete, full resumption of activity is allowed. The heart adjusts gradually, and one is left with a pretty reliable organ, so long as one treads the middle ground between, say, foolish activity and moderate activity. Once the doctor gave him the goahead, he can go ahead. Tape this to his shaving mirror and he might get

Dear Dr. Ruble: Will a pound of food cause a pound of weight gain? -

It will — temporarily. That is, if you eat a pound of hamburger and get on the scale, you'll obviously weight a pound more than before. But will it put on a pound of body tissue weight? No. The weight of food cannot be equated with the weight of body tissue. That is the old story of calories in the food versus the calories expended. It takes 3,500 extra calories to add one pound of body weight. If you took in 7,000 calories a day - heaven forbid! - and expended on 3,500 calories at work you'd gain a pound a day over the long haul. Successful weight-loss programs are based on simple arithmetic like this. See the booklets "Lost Secrets of Reducing." For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald:

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have been to doctors and they tell me I do not have varicose veins. But the side of each leg is sore, and going up and down steps is very painful for me. I have a tendency to limp. Could you tell me what kind of a doctor to see? — Mrs.

You may not have varicose

(dilated) veins, but you have some kind of leg circulation problem. Circulation is a two-way street. Arteries carry blood to the legs, for example, while veins carry it back to the heart and lungs. From what you tell me, it sounds as though you may have artery deficiency. This might be improved with medicine. A vascular surgeon specializes in this, but your own doctor should be able to diagnose the problem and treat it. A more likely cause for the pain is arthritis or a nerve damage problem.

Tried to hide

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The scare word today in Washington is "oil." It's a word that has the policymakers shutting doors, locking files and stamping their papers "secret." For their past policies have made the United States dependent upon overseas oil, which suddenly is vulnerable.

The Arab oil ministers last week not only raised the world oil price by 9 percent but agreed to rig production to keep the actual price far higher than the announced price.

From Saudi Arabia to Libya, the oil sheikdoms are preparing to cut back production. This will make oil supplies scarce and keep prices high. Some U.S. officials characterize the action privately as economic warfare against the West.

BUT THE WASHINGTON policymakers are desperate just to keep the oil flowing. They are nervous, therefore, about offending the sensibilities of the Saudi Arabians who supply most of the oil that the United States imports.

This may be what prompted Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., to try to keep the American public from learning the contents of a secret congressional report detailing the serious problems of oil production in

The report is based on material subpoenaed from Aramco, the consortium of four American oil companies operating in Saudi Arabia. Sources who read an early draft of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee report told our associate Dale Van Atta it contained "incredible" in formation on declining oil production in Saudi Arabia. The gist of the report — that technical problems and possible political instability cast doubt on the Saudi's ability to increase production significantly — is actually nothing new. More than five years ago we revealed that serious "pressure drops" odcurred when the consortium tried to increase production he 20-million-barrel daily output it had claimed could be

The Aramco colossus - Exxon, Standard Oil of California, Mobil and Texaco - heatedly denied our report at the time. Three years later, they disputed a similar report in The New

After we reported that the Saudis could not even make good on an Aramco promise of 15 million barrels a day, we were called to testify in February 1974, before the subcommittee headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho. We told the committee which Aramco documents should be subpoenaed.

NOW, THE subcommittee report, firmed the major points of our five-year-old reports. The subcommittee report is less than 100 pages long, but it is a devastating indictment of the oil

It would be bad enough if the subcommittee had used material that Aramco could challenge, but the consortium was doubly embarrassed by being hoisted on its own petard. Unable to dispute their own internal memoranda, the oil companies decided their only recourse was to bring pressure on the subcommittee to suppress the report.

The oilmen found their staunchest ally in Sen. Javits. He listened to the arguments of the companies, particularly Exxon, that the Aramco documents were corporate secrets and should never be released.

Javits "actively stalled the report," according to our sources, sandbagging it at various stages by quibbling over the degree of detail it should include about oil production. Opposing his position, other senators on the subcommittee fought to maintain the integrity of the report.

SOURCES DESCRIBED it as a 'fierce struggle." Several draft reports were drawn up, but none could meet the diametrically opposed requirements of the contending Meanwhile, Secretary of State Vance was concerned with the foreign policy implications of the report.

Have you ever wondered how it would feel to have the jaws of a 200-pound male cougar close over your right hand?

In college I worked as reporter, anchor-man, camera man and other jobs for Insight 10, a shoddy excuse for a 15-minute bi-weekly news program that aired on cable television it was a SWTSU sponsored show using old cameras and equip-ment held together with gum and

ONE DAY I heard that one of Farah Fawcett-Majors' co-stars, a cute little cougar, lived near San Marcos. Remember the 1976 Mercury Cougar commercials? Mrs. Majors made her debut with a cougar kitten named Crash.

Crash lived west of town on Highway 123. He was owned by a horse rancher named Gladys Finley. She was the divorced wife of the owner of the Cheatham Street Warehouse, a popular hill country bar.

I signed up a photographer and drove out to the Broken Arrow Ranch. Crash was definitely larger than he had been a year earlier in the commercials. The squirrelly "Meow" on the commercial had given place to a chesty rumble. Crash growled peacefully as the photographer and I approached with Gladys.

She took him out of his cage and fastened his chain to a pin in the center of her back yard. We shot some footage of her petting the cat and she left to transact some business about one of her race horses. She told us to

Crash had grown very tame and docile. Gladys said you could take his food out of his mouth and he wouldn't

So I was wrestling with him and the camera man was filming and at one point he put his huge paw on my forearm and clamped my hand in his teeth. He didn't bite down but his grip was so firm that I couldn't move until he let go.

CRASH HAD a habit of tackling people in the back yard who weren't watching out for him. Our camera was one of the old ones that had to be wound periodically. Once when the camera man had his head down attending to the camera the cougar rushed across the yard on his leash and tackled the guy. Just knocked him flat on the ground. It was a playful reenactment of the grisly consequences a cat like Crash could reap in the wild.

He was a Christmas present to Gladys from a Ruidoso jockey who had won him in a horse race, the same jockey Gladys said she was going bear hunting with later that year.

Gladys was also raising a young female cougar as a mate to Crash. Her name was Rompum and was not tame enough to know that if she bit you she drew blood.

Gladys had raised mountain lions, and Norweigan elk hounds as well, and around 20 bobcats. One of the bobcats was donated as a mascot to SWTSU in 1974.

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband and I became Christians iseveral years ago, but now we find we are slipping spiritually. How can we keep this from happening? — Mrs. D. L. DEAR MRS. D.L.: It is good that you realize the dangers of drifting away from God.I receive countless letters from people who have allowed their spiritual lives to become almost dead over a period of years. Often they have not seen how this leads to great unhappiness until it is almost too late.

Your relationship with God is like any relationship. If, for example, you never spent time with your husband - talking to him, listening to him, enjoying his presence - you would find that your love would probably grow stale and cold. A relationship becomes stronger, on the other hand, when we make the effort to keep it growing.

That is true with our relationship to God. You and your husband can help each other spiritually by learning to pray together, turning your minds and hearts to God every day. I am sure there are many things which concern you both each day, and God wants you to bring these to Him in trust.

You also need to spend time in God's Word, the Bible. Perhaps your pastor can suggest a regular study program. But learn to read the Bible and apply it to your lives every day. It was written for your "teaching, rebuking, correcting and training in righteousness" (2 Timothy 3:16,

(Editor's Note: Last Sunday the Herald published an editorial which endorsed the election of Polly Mays and Sam Hunnicutt in Saturday's Big Spring City Council election. The Herald has offered each of the three candidates who were not endorsed, L.A. Hiltbrunner, Larry Miller: and John Massey, an opportunity to replay to the Herald's editorial if they wished. The only reply submitted was from Larry Miller.)

Dear Editor and or Publisher,

Since I do not own a newspaper and have the facts and figures of the few elite and privileged people in Big Spring, I felt like I owed it to the people to make a statement on my own behalf. I am one of the candidates for City Council that the Herald was referring to, who harps on what the paper considers a "few niggling ssues - such as water rates of the airport hangar." The water rate increase may be of no importance to some people of our city, but I have talked with hundreds of people in the past few weeks who consider this to be a very major problem. You try telling an elderly couple or person on Social Security who is living on $200.00 a month that the water rate increase is of no importance and see what you are told. The people who have full time jobs and not living on a fixed income may never notice in their budget that there was an increase in water rates, but for someone on a fixed income, this $1.50 may mean the difference in a meal. Has local government completely forgotten the elderly? I have not, and I feel that the water increase is a major issue facing our city and especially our senior citizens

As for the hangar at the Industrial Park, I feel like there would have been much less controversy over this issue had the taxpayers of our city been made aware of it and had had a voice in the matter. Anytime that there is as much money involved as there was with the hangar, I feel like the citizens who are footing the bill have a right to know before hand and a vote on the issue. We had no more assurance that Lockheed would get the Government contract and occupy the hangar than does a gambler at the dice table have the assurance that he will not roll a 7 and lose his money. In fact he has better odds than did the city, because there were 3-4 or even more com-panies making bids for the F-4 Contract. If, and I do stress if. If the city is wisely being very selective about prospective tenants for the hangar as

The Herald so stated, why has this not been brought to the attention of the public and the names of the Companies revealed? Maybe this is another deep dark secret that the citizens and taxpayers have no right to know, only the elite and privileged

The Herald also stated that in 1978 alone the taxable retail sales in Big Spring increased almost 13 percent. But the paper failed to tell the people how much of this was due to inflation. A year ago hamburger meat sold for around 89 cents per pound, today it is around 1.50 per pound. This is almost a 50 percent increase in price, so can we say if there was $1 million dollars worth of hamburger sold in the last year and $2 million dollars sold this year, that we have increased our retail sales, or is it because we are paying almost twice as much for the product. Also The Herald stated that the city's industrial recruiting efforts have succeeded in replacing nearly all the jobs that were lost when the air base was closed. But again they failed to tell you the whole story. How many of the civilian people actually left Big Spring to seek employment elsewhere and how many of them were forced to take early retirement in order to stay

On the issue of the pay for city employees, we are told that the salaries have doubled in the past 5 years. This may be true, but when you double nothing, you still have nothing. It has been stated that there can be no substantial pay raise for city employees because of the President's guidelines on salaries, so I ask this question. Was the $4,000.00 pay raise for our airport manager within the President's guidelines? If so, he must have been working for nothing, and this I doubt very seriously.

I agree completely with the Herald when it stated, "As the rhetoric of the Big Spring City Council election goes into its last few days, there are several things the voters of Big Spring need to ponder in making their choices." I urge each and every voter to check into major issues very carefully and see if your present city council and newspaper are giving you all the facts about these issues or if you are being told what they want you to hear. Don't take my word or the Herald's, get out and talk to people and businesses and find out for yourself what is happening to the economy of Big Spring and your

Widow's Might

DEAR ABBY: I've often read your column aloud to my husband and we'd both have a good laugh at some of those outlandish letters. We even suspected you made some of them up, but we're not laughing (or suspecting) anymore. Our handsome, 28-year-old lawyer son (I'll call him Ray) has fallen in love with a 62 year old widow. Can you believe

Well, neither could we. At first we thought Ray was being kind to an older lady until he told us that he was in love with her. She's a nice-looking woman (for her age), stylish and refined, but with so many young, beautiful girls after Ray, we can't understand what he wants with this old lady. (She's not rich either.)

My husband thinks Ray should see a psychiatrist. What can we do to bring him to his senses? And what on earth could a 62-year-old woman have that our son finds so

Marcia Helen Ewing gave a program on an article, "Uncle Sam Lived Here" published in the March issue of "Yankee" magazine.

Uncle Sam is not in the same category as Santa Claus, Jack Frost or Superman. Uncle Sam was a real live flesh and blood man named Samuel Wilson. Congress passed a resolution during John Kennedy's first year as president of the United States, recognizing Sam Wilson, who was born in Wilmington, Delaware, as the official "Uncle Sam". Sam's father moved to Mason, New Hampshire, in 1780 when Sam was fourteen years old. They built a one and a half story home, which is now for sale.

A historical marker which reads; "Uncle Sam's House. Stands nearby the boyhood home of Samuel Wilson (1766-1844), who was generally known as "Uncle Sam". He supplied beef to the Army in 1812. The brand on his barrels was "U.S." The transition from U.S. to Uncle Sam followed and became the popular symbol of the United States.'

While Alaska may be Uncle Sam's ice box. Delaware his pocket han-dkerchief, and Florida his heel, Mason, New Hampshire, remains one of Uncle hometowns. Basically, it hasn't really changed all that much since he left.

Body of man found in oil tank near Sweetwater

SWEETWATER - The body of Alan Wayne Welch, 19, Sweetwater, was discovered in an oilwell storage tank five miles northwest of Sweetwater Wednesday after local authorities pumped sludge from the tank in efforts to find him.

Welch had been missing since Tuesday night. He was pronounced dead at 11 a.m.,

Wednesday. A crew from Jolley Well Service was swabbing a well on a drilling site and pumping sludge from the well into three storage tanks, which Welch was reportedly noticed by fellow employees late Tuesday. Subsequently, the Nolan County Sheriff's Department was notified. Sheriff Don Underwood said. it was "assumed he had just walked off."

Police said they do not suspect foul play. Justice of Peace Tom Green pronounced Welch dead and ordered the body be sent to Abilene for an autopsy.

Welch was born Sacramento, Cal., April 18, 1959. Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Welch of Sweetwater; two sisters and a brother.

SAM HUNNICUTT TALKS ABOUT THE ISSUES:

I have a confession to make. I can't change the taste of our water. And to be honest with you, I doubt even if you elect me to the City Council that the City can do much about this situation. When you get right down to it, most of our water here comes from surface supplies. Our well supplies are very minor, and the longer and harder that wells are pumped, the less they yield and the less we have in reserve. Many of you can remember before our City became part of the water district -

how you had to ration supplies, save bath water for plants and shrubs. That hasn't happened in the past 25 years, and most of that time we have had good to excellent, water. Some of these days, God willing, we once again will get those big rains on the watersheds of our lake and once more we will have good water. In the mean time, there just isn't much that can be done to materially change quality of water unless you get into desalinization programs which cost millions of dollars to set up, which are costly to operate, and which would be idle after the lakes catch a lot of fresh, good water.

I wish we could change water quality by complaining or promising. However, I'm grateful to have a supply, and I'm willing to work as a City Councilman with the district and others to enlarge that supply for future years so we can grow and

Surrealistic calm in Ungandan capital

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) -Residents of Kampala described Idi Amin's capital as a deserted and silent noman's land today, with Libyan defenders retreating on one side and Tanzanian and exile invaders massed on the other.

"The fighting has pretty well died down, and the Libyans are on the road east to Jinja," a diplomat in Nairobi reported after contacting people in the Ugandan capital.

"The people there are relieved, even estatic. They believe it's all over in terms of any fighting.

Residents described surrealistic calm — food was almost gone and gasoline was nonexistent, but at one country club a handful of golfers emerged for a game. Radio Uganda went on the air as usual with anti-Tanzanian tirades and pop

Fuel taxes on gasohol suspended

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) Motor fuel taxes on the mixture of gasoline and alcohol known as "gasohol" should be suspended until the new fuel becomes competitive, the Texas Senate decided Wednesday.

A voice vote sent to the House a bill by Sen. Bob Price, R-Pampa, that would exempt from the state 5-cent gasoline tax any gasoline that contains at least 10 percent alcohol by volume.

An amendment attached by Sen. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, would bring the exemption to an automatic end in 1989. It could be phased out earlier if the 'gasohol'' got to be 10 percent or more of the retail sale of gasoline.

"It would greatly expand the demand for our agricultural products ... it would provide a much cleaner burning fuel," Price

Midwives endangering lives, House told

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Lay midwives who deliver thousands of Texas babies each year may be endangering lives through lack of knowledge, the House Committee on Health Services was told Wednesday.

"This is a profession where a majority of them are in their late 50s and 60s," said Arthur Munoz, a Texas Department of Human Resources investigator.

"They feel that they know it all. They learn a lot of it along the way," he said. "How many babies and children are injured while they get that experience?"

Rep. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, has introduced bill to allow the State Health Department to provide some regulation and establish a voluntary training program for lay however, deliver about 9,000 babies a year in Texas, about twothirds of them Mexican-Americans.

"I think we have to deal with the problem as it exists," Gibbs said. "The avoidance of an underground system is very important." The doctor said quick access to hospitals is crucial in case emergencies develop during the delivery.

Brownsville's government, in a county with one of the highest infant mortality rates in the nation, has passed an ordinance establishing a mandatory certification program for lay

Beatrice VonOhlen, a registered nurse in charge of the midwifery education program, said there has been a substantial decline in emergency obstetric drop-in cases at the local medical center since the program started in 1976.

"These people do like education because it gives them the link with the medical community they have not been able to acquire before," she said.

Ace Pickens of the Texas Medical Association said he was "not entirely in opposition to the entire bill.'

He said it was important to clarify that the health department's education program could not be construed as certification of lay midwives.

"We're fearful that the letter of completion will be used to some extent to indicate certification,' Pickens said.

Dr. Raymond Moore, state health commissioner, said the program would start in counties where lay midwivery is most commonly practiced. "Our target population is about 400 midwives," he

Substitution bill would save money

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) Persons over 65 pay 25 percent of the national drug bill, and one older Texan was so excited about committee approval of a drug substiution bill that he spread the news throughout the press room.

The bill allowing the substitition of cheaper - but equivalent - drugs for d name drugs to the Senate on a 6-3 vote of the human resources committee Wednesday.

The measure was worded to give physicians close control over substitutions. Based on a survey of 60 drugs, it has been estimated that the bill could save Texans up to $22 million a The rate of brand-name prescribing has soared from 10 percent in 1909 to 90 percent in 1972, according to committee informaton.

Witnesses for consumer including the elderly, who often pay high percentages of their income for drugs, supported the proposal. The sponsor, committee chairman Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said he had "tried to deal effectively with all legitimate objections, but there are some drug manufacturers you're never going to convince. Despite repeated objections of the Texas Medical Association, Brooks said many physicians support a revised measure drawn up in subcommittee. Brooks said physicians could block substitutions verbally or by writing "medically necessary" — or similar words - on the prescription or initialing a block that says "Dispense as written.' 'We leave control absolutely to the physician,' said Brooks. He pledged to work with anybody interested in the bill before attempting to pass it on the Senate floor He said the bill did not contain language requiring the pharmacist to pass on savings to the customer, but added, "I will go along with it (an amendment) if the language can be developed.' The bill would permit a pharmacist to select a less expensive, "therapeutically equivalent drug" if it is listed on the Texas Drug Formulary. The formulary would be based primarily on a list developed by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and supplemented by the Texas Drug Formulary Commission and State Board of Pharmacy.

Three of the candidates will vie for the Place 3 position now held by Polly Mays. Mrs. Mays will be challenged by L.A. "Red" Hiltbrunner and John Massey. Larry Miller and Sam Hunnicutt both seek the Place 4 position vacated after one term by Ralph Brooks.

The questions asked of the candidates cover a wide variety of topics; ones, it is hoped, that will help voters make a more informed decision at the polls. The answers from candidates are listed in alphabetical order are as

Q. Should the jail facilities maintained by the city be improved? If Hiltbrunner: We have a modern and safe jail at the city. If it needs some repair to meet state standards then we need to improve it.

Hunnicutt: I have not visited the jail, but I understand that the Border Patrol keeps illegal aliens in the city jail, which means to me that it is evidently up to standards.

Massey: I have not had an opportunity to view the jail facilities, however if improvements are needed, the Chief of Police should be responsible for proper maintenance.

Mays: City jail facilities do not present much of a problem. Occasionally there is overcrowding on a because drinking. Some of the cells are leased to the Border Patrol, but these men are picked up two or three times the county jail or other even though this problem facilities as soon as possible, present would be the em-ployment of another part-Miller: I have said all stronger supervision in the sanitation department. Hunnicutt: To keep the responsibility of the city and also its citizens Massey: Enforcement of city ordinance and proper utilization of department personnel must be required. Mays: If certain businesses are responsible for continued trash accumulations (such as driveins) they should be required to clean up the trash. It is harder to place the blame in residential areas, and often the responsible citizen must clean up after the irresponsible citizen. Periodic cleanup campaigns by the Garden Clubs and Chamber of Commerce aided by the alley cleanup crews of the city will help this situation.

Miller: First of all, you have to find the cause. Is it due to people, dogs, wind, etc. If you can't find the cause, you can't solve the problem.

Q. Our streets are crumbling away due to lack of proper maintenance. What can we do to at least arrest the problem, if not improve the streets?

Hiltbrunner: We have several streets that need to be seal-coated. Some need to replaced because the base has been damaged.

Hunnicutt: Recent cold weather has caused $100,000plus damage to our city streets which will take some time to repair. If proper Massey:

maintenance is the only reason for the street problems, someone is not managing this department properly. Mays: Chug holes and minor repairs are being needed is hard to obtain due a week. Felons are sent to to transportation problems was anticipated. You must and few prisoners remain in wait for the proper weather the city jail as long as a to seal-coat and because of week. The only need at the the cost, only certain areas

Miller: If there is take priorities in what it something wrong with them, does. I would consider street the problem needs to be maintenance a major looked into and proper action priority, and then if there is money left we can use it for petty projects, or the city might even consider putting a little money away in savings for unforeseen emergencies at a later date.

Q. Some city officials have made authorized trips and been given equal amounts to finance

such trips, a practice that caused some people to complain that the employees were not required to itemize and account for their expenses. Do you think such bookkeeping should be required of people benefitting from the experience? Hiltbrunner: I sure do believe, and would require that an itemized account of expense be kept. Expenses that do not pertain to business should not be paid for by the city. Hunnicutt: In making inquiries, I have found in all cases, with exceptions, the annual Texas Municipal League meetings, the city officials and employees are required to fill out detailed expense accounts. Also, in checking with other cities, they also use the lump-sum method to cover the League meetings. If elected, I will look into this practice. Massey: I believe all expenditures should be accounted for by proper bookkeeping procedures, regardless of who authorizes trips or other expenditures. Mays: In this case equal amounts were given because there were such discrepancies in past expense accounts turned in. It saved the city some bookkeeping some money, but I'm not sure which way is best.

Miller: I believe all city expenses regardless of what they are for should be completely accounted for.

Q. Where should the city's priorities lie, in the construction of a big new hangar in the Industrial Park or in providing proper servicing of the city's streets? There is no client in sight for the hangar. Everyone uses the city streets. Hiltbrunner: everyone uses the city streets. There was no money taken from the street department, to my knowledge, to use on the hangar. Now that we have the new hangar, let's make use of it. Hunnicutt: Due regulations imposed by the ederal Government and the transfer of Webb property to the city, the city is to spend all money derived from these properties in maintaining and improving these roperties, and cannot spend it on other activities. With this in mind, I see no relationship to the city streets and the hangar. I do understand that there are prospects for this structure.

Massey: The hangar is a liability and even though we have been informed that numerous industries are standing in line to occupy the facility, I believe we should continue to consider the street problem. Mays: The city crews have been working on the streets ever since weather per-mitted such work, and will continue as long as the money holds out. It is proper for the city to look toward the future. It was the consensus of the steering committee composed of eleven members and the five-member was in the best interest of Miller: It's kind of hard to answer this question since the city has already wasted the money for an empty hangar. Yet the streets of Big Spring keep getting worse. Our city officials should have put some automobiles, the owner Massey: I believe thought into this matter should be advised to move it. citizens have a right t before they committed themselves to the building of the hangar.

Q. Should sports

facilities like the Figure Seven Tennis Center be closed on a day week in order to give attendants the day off, or should the facilities be kept open for the convenience of those who use them? Hiltbrunner: If enough ople want to use the facilities to warrant it, keep them open. If not, close them one day. This would need to be looked into before any. definite answer could be Hunnicutt: I believe that everyone should have a day off. This day should be used for cleaning and maintenance of the Tennis Center. Massey: I believe the attendants should be allowed time off for relaxation.

Mays: Figure Seven Tennis Center is open six days a week (long hours) and is closed on Monday in order for the manager to have a day off.

Miller: Everyone who works deserves some time off. Some arrangements, whatever they might be, need to be done to allow any employee with time off.

Q. Should police officers (or animal wardens) be told to start a more rigid enforcement of the ordinance concerning the pickup of stray animals running the local streets? What hauling off abandoned utomobiles?

Hiltbrunner: Our animals running at large are a problem that needs to be seen about. Even if it takes more people for a short time. As to the abandoned the city should have them removed it is the function of the police to catch stray dogs. Every city has this problem, and if I am elected I will certainly see that our animal wardens are doing all that is possible. I understand there are existing ordinances on the books, and I feel that they should be more enforced.

Massey: Police officers should concentrate on law enforcement functions. The animal wardens are trained to handle this problem, and they should be properly equipped to fulfill their ponsibility. Texas Motor Vehicle Laws-Article 6687-9 V.C.S. Section 12, provides the authority to enforce the statute concerning abandoned vehicles. This law should be enforced.

Mays: I would favor strict enforcement of the ordinance concerning stray dogs and the ordinance titled 'Junked Vehicles.''

Q. What changes, if any, would you suggest in the city's zoning policy? Some citizens have accused the city of arbitrary application of the so-called "spot zoning" ordinance.

Hiltbrunner: Our zoning policy has been a good committee. They have made some spot zoning. This could be in order with the location. This would be one application at a time. Hunnicutt: From what I understand about zoning, consideration should be given to what is the best use of the piece of property, plus taking into consideration the feelings of the citizens in the area, and its effect on the surrounding land value.

city can reduce water rates this summer. Loss in water revenue to the city last fall amounted to $126,740, mostly due to our good late rains. Lack of rainfall in the spring of '78 prevented CRMWD (Colorado River Municipal Water District) from selling water to oil companies, and in order to recover their rates to the city by $11,906 a month. The new rate of $1.50 sets aside $1.35 for the monthly increase and 15 cents to cover last fall's losses. Due to regulatory lag this new rate will be collected for only six months this fiscal year, and the city will lose $14,778.60.

Miller: The city never needed to raise the water rates in the first place. If they (the city) would stop all of their unnecessary spending, we would have enough money without placing more of a burden on the taxpayers.

Q. Do you think the drug-sniffing dog purchased by the police department will be worth the investment?

Hiltbrunner: This dog was purchased by the people and not the tax dollar. Yes, I believe this will help control one of our problems with the drug traffic Hunnicutt: Yes.

Massey: I am in favor of the dog, however the police department did not make an investment. The dog was purchased by donations by different citizens and organizations from Big Spring and the surrounding communities.

Mays: The city was not financially involved in the purchase of the dog. I donated to the fund, as did many interested citizens.

Detroit-Texas cancelled

DETROIT (AP) - The Detroit Tigers' opening day game with the Texas Rangers scheduled for Thursday will be played Friday because of bad weather, the baseball club announced.

Tiger fans holding tickets who cannot use them for the rescheduled game at 1:30 p.m. Friday can get refunds at the Tiger Stadium advance ticket office until 6 p.m. Thursday, a Tigers spokesman said.

It was snowing in Detroit Wednesday and the National Weather Service had posted a travelers advisory for southeastern Lower Michigan. About two inches of snow covered the ground in late afternoon and one to two more inches were expected at night.

Because of the opening day sellout and a reduced number of seats due to stadium renovation, the game was to have been televised by WDIV-TV in Detroit.

LONDON (AP) - Steve "The Kid" Cauthen, America's 18-year-old wonder jockey, wowed Britain's hard-bitten racing aficionados Thursday as few have wowed them before.

They had nothing but praise and yet more praise Wednesday for the cool way he handled his first British news conference here the previous day, and they predicted British racegoers will love him too.

Cauthen, who has ridden 944 winners worth $12 million in the United States since May 1976, arrived in England this week to spend the summer riding for millionaire owner Robert Sangster. He is scheduled to ride his first race in England on Saturday at Salisbury.

"Not since the arrival of Tod Sloan, the first top American to try his luck here 80 years ago, has there been such a stir in British racing," wrote Jim Stanford in the Daily Mail.

"Steve Cauthen's presence in this country is a heaven-sent bonus to British racing as a spectator sport," wrote John Oaksey in the Daily Telegraph. "I wish him all the luck that's going."

He said Cauthen handled the news conference "with quite extraordinary charm and self assurance ... the impression one got was of a modest, highly intelligent young man who is quite used to facing challenges and has come to England looking for a new one."

James Lawton quipped in the Daily Express: "This is the kid with the melting point of tungsten. This is 5feet-2 inches and eight stone (112 pounds) of rare

Cauthen, of Walton, Ky., told the crowded news conference he was considering spending a large slice of his future racing career in Britain. "If things go right, it could be that I ride here regularly for the rest of my career," he said.

Sangster has guaranteed him earnings of $200,000, and if he does well here he could treble or even quadruple that.

The youngest winner ever of the Triple Crown when he rode Affirmed in 1978 will have his first race in Britain at Salisbury in southern England on Saturday on Marquee Universal, a 3-year-old colt. His other mounts for the day will be Ring Lady and the National Stakes winner Tap On Wood.

Baseball stars make early season boasts

Peanuts, popcorn, predictions, popoffs and pressure that's the harbinger of the major league baseball season, beginning its long, hot summer run this week.

How many rash words will have to be eaten by the end of the six-month grind? How many boasts will be fulfilled and how many regrets will be drowned in a cold glass of beer at the end of the 162-game season? Take careful note, then wait and see:

Sparky Lyle, the New York Yankees' castoff Cy Young winner, now a Texas Ranger, who got partial revenge with his kiss-and-tell "Bronx Zoo" tome: "I can't wait to face the Yankees. I hope to break George Steinbrenner's heart the way he broke mine."

Dave Parker, the Pittsburgh Pirates' $900,000-a-year Goliath, who must prove himself worthy of the game's highest price tag: "I'm not worried. I think I am the best, hardest working player in baseball. I don't see any reason I can't win the Triple Crown (batting average, home runs, runs-batted-in).

Reggie Jackson, Yankees: "I will hit 40 home runs this year. I would have done it last year if Billy (Billy Martin, replaced in midseason as manager) had given

Bill Veeck, president of the Chicago White Sox: "The Brewers have been more successful in the free agent draft than anybody - the Yankees, California Angels, you name 'em. Larry Hisle and Sal Bando have been great additions. Outside of Reggie Jackson and Rich Gossage, the Yankees haven't got much use out of their free agent guys, and there's no way to prove Sparky Lyle wouldn't have done the job if the Yankees hadn't got Goose Gossage

Pete Rose, justifying his break with the Cincinnati Reds and his $800,000-a-year contract with the Phillies, as told to Penthouse Magazine: "Loyalty is a two-way street. I don't think the Reds showed Sparky Anderson any loyalty when they fired him ... The Reds sure as hell didn't show me any loyalty.'

"I think I'm real good for morale and spirit and things like that. I've been told I can wake up a couple of guys on the team who are really super players (Mike Schmidt, for example).

On value to the Phillies:

George Steinbrenner, Yankee owner: "Billy Martin will be back as manager in 1980 if he keeps his part of

Bob Lemon, interim Yankee manager: "I get tired of pulling on this uniform every day. I don't want to manage after 1979."

Lou Brock, St. Louis Cardinal outfielder and speed merchant: "There are two plateaus in baseball I would naturally like to attain - 3,000 hits and 1,000 stolen bases. The first I feel sure I can reach, the second is out of the question." The 39-year-old Brock starts the season with 2,900 hits, thus needing only 100. He would need to add 83 stolen bases to his all-time record of 917.

Texas High School Coaches Association said according to the Dallas Morning News, Allen makes $30,000 a year off his summer basketball camp. Prehigh schoolers can attend summer camps. "He's just a little jealous" because Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton makes $90,000. McConachie said, "and he wants your blessing to get his fee up.' Allen walked to the committee table and said, 'To say that I'm jealous of Eddie Sutton is certainly not true. I don't know why he (McConachie) would make that statement. He doesn't know me, and he doesn't know Sutton."

Lemons also has a summer camp, and Coach Gerald Myers of Texas Tech said the response to camps at Texas Tech had been "99 percent positive.'

As befitting a champion, the Washington Bullets have clinched the best season record in the National Basketball Association. And as befitting a player considered the most exciting in the sport, Julius Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers won a game in dramatic fashion, hitting a dunk shot with one second

The Bullets, last season's league champions and this season's Atlantic Division titleholders, raised their record to an imposing 54-25, routing the defenseless Boston Celtics 145-119 Wednesday night. With only three games remaining in the regular season, no team can match the Bullets' mark.

Erving, meanwhile, is the player the 76ers would like to see do it himself. And he did it Wednesday, slamming in the winning field goal just before the final buzzer as Philadelphia edged the Houston Rockets 121-

SuperSonics 115, Clippers 107

Seattle, which retained its 11/2-game lead over Phoenix in the Pacific Division, got 26 points from Gus Williams and 25 from Jack Sikma in beating San Diego.

Hawks 118, Bucks 109

Atlanta rolled to its 15th straight homecourt victory behind the 20-point scoring of reserve Terry Furlow, 18 points by Eddie Johnson, and 17 apiece by John Drew and Dan Roundfield.

Pacers 102, Cavaliers 95

Indiana's victory was its 37th of the season, tops for the club since it joined the NBA three seasons ago.

76ers 121. Rockets 120

The 76ers were led by Darryl Dawkins' 24 points, Erving's 21 and Henry Bibby's 18. Moses Malone scored 30 points for the Rockets.

Spurs 110, Nets 103

George Gervin, the league's top scorer, paced San Antonio with 30 points, while James Silas collected 21 and Larry Kenon and Billy Paultz each had 16 points

Kings 115, Lakers 111, OT

Kansas City's Scott Wedman tied the score 100-100 at the end of regulation time, hitting a 15-foot shot at the final buzzer. The Kings won it in overtime with the help of two key baskets by Sam Lacey.

here March 23 and 24. Shelly Carmichael won second place in the 4th grade elementary division with her water project. She goes to Marcy School. She tested water from Elbow City, one mile lake, Cosden Lake, well water north of Big Spring and rain water. She placed samples of each body of water in plastic glasses and colored it with red food coloring, then let it The minerals adhered to the sides and bottom of the glasses after the water disappeared.

She found that the lake water contained the most minerals. The well water from north of town contained more minerals than Big Spring water, and that city water had very little minerals in it but a lot of salt. Rain water contained some impurities. Shelly placed each glass on a map of the area from which she got the water samples on her science

Sweepstakes winner Charles Gordon of Andrews became interested in the yucca plant after he made a report on American Indian medicine. He found that the Indians in the Southwest, particularly in this area, used the yucca root on any kind of wound.

Charles decided to test the yucca root to see if there was sound evidence that it had medicinal value. He got hold of some staph bacteria, put a sterile piece of paper in the bacteria solution and nothing happened. He then ground up some yucca root, took an identical piece of sterile paper, put it in the extract and a ring of inhibition research about sodium showed up where the bacteria couldn't grow. This was

WASHINGTON (AP) - As a four-day trucking shut-down sends shock waves through the auto industry, government officials say truckers and the giant Teamsters union could stay locked in a "test of strength" at least into next week.

Federal mediators arranged a resumption of contract talks today for the first time since the industry lockout of striking Teamsters began Sunday. However, sources said no rapid progress seemed likely to break the impasse.

"I think I would expect it to continue into next week," said an official, who asked not to be named. "There will be a test of strength for a few

Senator receives applause

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A committee audience applauded Wednesday as a senator with only a passing knowledge of Spanish dashed in to cast the deciding vote on a $7 million bilingual education program. Minutes before, a bilingual San Antonio school official had called the program "corrupt" and suggested the Senate investigate it.

The bill's sponsor, Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, spent five minutes in Capitol corridors and rooms hunting two senators to send the bill to the floor on a 6-0

No. 6 was Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, who joined Truan, then a House member, to sponsor the original bilingual education bills in 1967. He said he knew only a little Spanish.

Access to bilingual education is now mandatory through the third grade in school districts with large Spanish-speaking populations, and Truan's proposal would extend the program through grade five. Truan's last-minute amendment cut the by $2 million. Truan, D-Corpus Christi, introduced his bill after the State Board of Education refused Nov. 11 to extend the program through the fifth grade.

Jose Vara, the school official who was the lone witness against the bill, said he recalled speakers that day criticizing board members as "gringo members as racists" and demanding that "board members, their children and their children's children" be forced to learn

Spanish. thought "I always bilingual programs in Texas were designed to teach English," said Vara, director of plant operations for the South San Antonio Independent School District. Asked by Ogg what he meant by "corrupt," Vara said, "The theory has become corrupt, not the financial end." Vara said the attitude of personnel in the bilingual program is, "Let's keep the program going, because it will mean more jobs for Mexican-Americans.'

"Ahhhhhh," responded a largely Mexican-American audience of 50 persons.

Vara said 80 percent or more of the students in bilingual education speak English, and he added, "It's high time for the Senate to investigate before any more funds are expended.

Truan interrupted Vara's 45-minute testimony four times, admonishing him to finish soon. He finally threatened to call him out of order if he did not finish.

"I thought the purpose of a committee hearing was to get evidence," said Vara. "I want to give you all the evidence you need."

Vara said he had been an elementary and secondary school teacher for 17 years in San Antonio before serving for 10 years as a principal at Kindred and Palo Alto elementary schools, also in San Antonio.

"Ours is a history of educational neglect, testified Ruben Bonilla Jr., state director of the League of Latin American Citizens and one of five witne supporting the bill. Bonilla said Truan's bill would "hear fruits far richer than the estimated cost."

Dealers buying up small cars

DETROIT (AP) Americans are suddenly scrambling to buy small cars just as they did after the Arabs cut off the oil more than five years ago.

"There's no question it's a trend when the dealers stand here and start fights over them," said Sam Gelt, who runs a dealers auction in Minneapolis. "We're encouraging the dealers not to

Sales of subcompact cars the smallest kind — were up an astonishing 71 percent in March, compared to

March a year ago. Sales of imports, mostly fuelstingy cars, too, zoomed up by 25 percent to an estimated 240,000 - a record for March. All companies showed hefty sales jumps in the subcompact lines. Ford's were up 81 percent, Chrysler's 79 percent, GM's 59 percent and AMC's 46 percent. Volkswagen was not selling U.S.-made cars last March.

The switch to small cars was evident, but some showrooms apparently had not yet felt it.

Prospective buyers "say, 'I want something that will give me good mileage," reported Jack Camp, used car sales manager at Beaudry Ford in Atlanta. But in the same dealership, new car sales manager Billy Shedd said, "Not one buyer in a hundred mentions mileage.

Subcompacts accounted for 24.6 percent of all cars sold in March and imports took another 21.7 percent, tying the record set in March 1975. Last year, subcompacts were 13 percent of the market and imports were 18 percent.

"It's just like somebody pulled a shade two weeks ago," the president of Chrysler Corp. Lee Iacocca, said Wednesday of the small car surge.

Pushed by the imports, the industry as a whole surprised itself in March by selling more than 1.1 million cars, 2.7 percent more than in March 1978 when sales were swollen by buyers who stayed home in February blizzards. Domestic manufacturers sold about 864,000, a 2 percent decline from last year. For the year so far, industry sales were 2.7 million, up 2.7 percent. Domestic sales were 2.2 million, up 6 percent.

Hostage during prison siege gives account

HOUSTON (AP) - A former teacher in the Texas Prison System, who was held a hostage for 11 days during a siege by three inmates in 1974, told a jury Wednesday of the final day when four persons were killed in an escape attempt that failed.

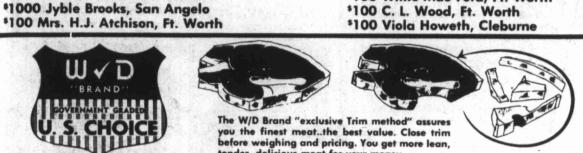

Ronald Robinson, now a professor of criminal justice at East Tennesse State University, testified he heard "shouting, the the screaming, and the shooting" as hostages and inmates pushed a homemade shield down a ramp at a prison unit called The Walls.

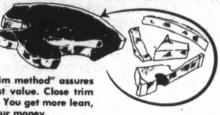

Robinson said he did not know who fired the shots but "they sounded close and were muffled."

He was the second prosecution witness in the retrial of Ignacio Cuevas, accused of causing the death of a hostage. Cuevas was convicted in the spring of 1975 and sentenced to death. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals granted him a new trial, after he spent four years on death row, on the ground the presiding judge at the first trial had erred when he failed to disqualify a juror.

Robinson said none of the hostages were physicially abused during the longest siege in U.S. penal history.

Water board, Coahoma officials dispute decision

Members of the Howard County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1 board of directors have taken issue with officials of the City of Coahoma over the significance of a decision made by Austin District Judge Hume Cofer concerning the distribution of water in Coahoma and the district itself.

Mayor Joe Swinney of Coahoma had previously reported that Coahoma "had won the battle if not the war in its long struggle with the water district over who has right to serve customers in the city of Coahoma and also within the district."

in China criticized

Last week, according to Swinney and City Judge Bob Taylor of Coahoma, Judge

Cofer announced the decision to reverse the ruling of the Public Utilities

Commission and remanded back to that commission in Immunization methods

Michael Kemp, Ackerly native and biologist at Texas A and M University, spent 15 days in China last November with a delegation of American physicians and bio-medical researchers. The American Delegation of Tropical Medicine studied Chinese methods of immunization for parasites. Kemp called their methods 'grim" and said they were at the level of American medicine in the 1930's. He said one reason for their backwardness is the Cultural Revolution, reaction against intellectuals. Scientists were drug from the labs and beaten and their labs smashed. Kemp said he met one old scientist this had happened to, Dr. Wan, who had studied in the United

Chinese scientists are depending on the U.S. for advanced medical cures for parasites, said Kemp. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard

WASHINGTON (AP) -Contract negotiations bet-ween United Airlines and striking machinists are collapsed after only one day,. apparently ruling out any chance for a swift end to the 6-day walkout that has grounded the nation's largest air carrier.

Sources close to the talks said late Wednesday that company representatives flatly rejected contract proposals made by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers as negotiations of federal mediators. Company bargainers, who did not meet, union representatives face to face, were said to have left the Washington hotel where negotiations were being held for Chicago, where United is headquartered.

More than 18,000 union members struck the airline Saturday, two days after a rebellious union rank and file rejected a tentative accord worked out by negotiators. It was the second tentative settlement torpedoed by the membership.

Sources, who asked not to be identified, said the departure of company officials from Washington made it unlikely the negotiations would resume quickly. The breakdown in the talks came on the first day that officials of the National Mediation Board had managed to bring about a resumption in bargaining since thewalkout began last

Realignment revealed

Bullock names Lilie deputy comptroller troller Bob Bullock Tuesday named Walt Lilie as Deputy

AUSTIN - State Comp- Comptroller for Tax Administration in a realignment of the operating structure of the Comptroller's Office. Lilie, 35, has been director of Planning and Research since October of 1977 and an employee of the Comp-troller's Office for nearly nine years. A University of Texas law school graduate, Lilie will share administrative duties with Ralph Wayne, Chief Clerk and Deputy Comp-Wayne will continue to carry out statutory responsibillities of the Chief Clerk and direct several department divisions. Lilie was promoted to fill a position that has been organizationally inactive since the death of Deputy Com-ptroller Ervin Osborn about three years ago. Bullock said a heavy increase over the past year in tax policy issues and taxpayer accounts and services prompted him to reinstate the dual Deputy Comptroller "We operate significantly more field offices, supervise more employees and service more tax accounts, as well as collect more taxes. It's an administrative load that should be split up to be run properly and effectively," Bullock said.

Destruction of wildlife habitate boosts rabies

COLLEGE STATION -Destruction of wildlife developed at a faster rate habitats in East Texas is leading directly to increased rabies, a Texas Department of Health official claimed at an infectious disease conference here.

Public health officials at the Texas A&M Universitysponsored conference also learned that Rocky Mountain spotted fever is on the rise in Texas

Alice Williams, zoonosis (animal diseases transmissible to man) technician with the agency, said skunks, the primary wild reservoir for rabies, ar being driven from woodland homes and into hay barns where they reproduce more rapidly and have a greater chance to infect family pets, bats or even bite humans

Williams said that the current hot spots in East Texas are in Van Zandt and Panola counties, where 13 cases have been reported since January, a twofold increase over 1978.

Earlier this week, health department spokesmen said the problem was increasing at an "alarming rate." Statewide, 172 rabies cases had been reported, about 70 more than for the threemonth period last year.

"An active education program aimed at getting people to vaccinate their pets annually is the most effective approach," she said. Skunk eradication and population control programs have to meet rigid federal guidelines and are less effective, indicated Williams.

Since East Texas is being than other portions of the state, destruction of the skunks' homes and the unnaturally benign shelter afforded by huge hay barns for the rise in rabid animals, which directly threaten humans with the deadly virus. Other portions of the conference's first day focused on the 1978 outbreak of Venezuelan and Western equine encephalitis, and the increasing incidence of Rocky Mountain spotted fever among Texans, who make up almost half of all spotted fever victims.

Diggs to face more charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles Diggs, already appealing his federal court conviction on 29 counts of mail fraud and filing falsified payroll forms, must now defend himself against a congressional committee's charges that he violated House rules.

The House ethics committee Wednesday accused Diggs, the senior black member of Congress, of 18 violations of the chamber's rules. That action opens the way to a possible "trial" of the Michigan Democrat by the panel and subjects him to the possibility he could eventually be punished by the full House.

The committee's action, similar to an indictment, was the first time it has made such a formal accusation since last year's conflict-of-interest charge against then-Rep. Joshua Eilberg. The Pennsylvania Democrat was defeated in November, however, and the committee's authority ceased with his loss.

Diggs will have the chance to respond to the charges against him and the committee will consider his responses before deciding on any public trial.
