GRIEF — Two men embrace in tears at learning that the body of a church secretary was found in the rubble of the church.

Killer storm still disrupting lives

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Families of 44 tornado victims spent a somber Good Friday preparing for 17 funerals in the midst of massive cleanup operations.

But the killer storm that splintered more than 7,800 dwellings, leaving Red Cross estimates of 8,600 families homeless, continued to disrupt the last-minute funeral proceedings.

"We have one service today at Rosemont Cemetery, right where the tornado hit," said Delbert Gandy of Hampton-Vaughan funeral home. "I just hope we can get to it. Tombstones are thrown everywhere and all our tents are at the command post."

Disaster relief teams from all over the country continued to pour into the area as the net of security around the stricken site was pulled tighter. Officials prohibited entrance to the area without special passes issued to several hundred residents this morning.

"They've (checkpoint guards) been told to use their common sense," said Nancy Mallett of the Wichita Falls Police Department. "But they stopped 50 telephone trucks this morning because they didn't have stickers. It just about blew our minds."

But despite beefed-up patrols and doubled checkpoints, more than 20 persons were arrested for looting and curfew violations during the night.

The tornado turned some families' lives so topsy-turvy they could find only casual clothing to wear to the funeral rites of loved ones killed in the storm.

"It's very tough and these people are very strong. They seem to know there was no control and it was nobody's fault," said John Onstott, a Wichita Falls native who drove from Dallas' Sparkman-Hillcrest Funeral Home to help local morticians.

"They really would think it unfair if a tornado came through here and just killed one person," he said.

Funeral services began at 10 a.m. and ran hourly throughout the day. One funeral home was so packed that it could offer only graveside services to soothe the grieving.

"We feel the people have been through enough," said Bob Mason, funeral director at Owens-Brumley Funeral Home. "It just looks like having graveside services would take the pressure off these families."

But the director at Hampton-Vaughan Funeral home disagreed. "It would be short changing our customers to say we were only offering graveside services. We're going to see to the needs these people no matter what," said Larry Hamilton.

Funeral directors from all over North Texas and Oklahoma have offered their services and equipment to help the funeral homes meet their rigorous weekend schedule.

Workers restored power in Wichita Falls Thursday and cloudy brown water began flowing through the pipes as the near catatonic residents struggled to return the city to normal. "But Mother Nature refused to cooperate with that effort. In the aftermath of Tuesday's massive tornado and Wednesday's dust storm, a steady rain fell Thursday night on the gaping holes that once were homes.

"I was scared we wouldn't get our paychecks in the mail tomorrow (Friday)," said Lupe Esquivel, a secretary in the police chief's office. "I'll walk over to get them myself. But what bank would we put them in?"

Dozens of rescue workers completed their first search of the 12 square-mile area devastated by a granddaddy tornado that also severely injured about 600.

American Insurance Association adjusters estimated insured damage at $204 million for Wichita Falls. Red Cross volunteers predicted 90 percent of the devastated structures were insured.

"It is incredible that that many people are homeless," said Richard Balnick, the Red Cross director of damage assessments who flew to Wichita Falls from California. "We kept hearing about it out there (in California) and we just couldn't believe it."

President Carter declared Wichita Falls a national disaster area. Federal and state officials planned to open disaster assistance centers in the city Saturday.

Throughout the day Thursday bulldozers scrapped the rubble into heaps and caravans of pickups streamed from the area, loaded with battered furniture, mattresses and clothing.

Balnick said the twister destroyed more than 6,400 homes, 150 mobile homes and 1,100 apartment units in Wichita County.

But by Wednesday afternoon, Balnick said, all survivors had "a place to sleep and three meals a day."

National Guardsmen strictly enforced a security lid that clamped the city's 7 p.m. to 6:30 a.m. curfew on the disaster site. Restaurants and convenience stores in the city closed early so employees could be off the street by the 9 p.m. curfew in effect for the rest of the city.

Even so, 20 persons had been arrested for looting by early Friday morning.

Parents of Goliad students fear for safety of their children

Parents of several Goliad Junior High students expressed fear for the safety of their children, citing threats made by other pupils, in a meeting with members of the Big Spring school board held Thursday evening.

Supt. Lynn Hise offered reassurance to the parents without trying to downrate the problems, saying that the incidence of implied threats invariably arises at this time of year with students of that age group.

"This kind of thing happens two or three times a year," Hise stated, "but we never ignore it." Juvenile Detective Tony Lujan has been helping defuse the problem and has talked with some of the students who allegedly promoted the disharmony.

Trustees reassured the parents that order would be maintained on the Goliad campus.

In other action, votes from Saturday's School Board election were officially tallied and winners, Dr. James Mathews and Bob West, were certified by Business Superintendent Don Crockett. The board moved to okay the tally and oaths were administered to the newly elected trustees.

School board officers were re-elected for another year. They are president, Carol Hunter; vice president, Delbert Donaldson and secretary, Al Valdez.

The Board of Equalization was voted on. Board members are D.A. Brazel, J.O. Hagood and Lee Porter. The resignation of Jack Bowers, choral director at the high school was accepted. Bowers plans to move to Alaska to fish for king crab under the employ of French's Miller, Inc.

A new transfer policy was approved. If students have started their education in the Big Spring School district they will be allowed to continue until they graduate from high school. No students from homes outside the school district will be allowed to this district or begin kindergarten here.

Hise recommended the change because of recent court decisions that have held that transfer students bring with them any existing or future liabilities. This has been especially critical in special education cases, he said.

A work study program was approved by the board for students to do maintenance on school property during summer months. Texas Education Agency will pay 95 percent of the $1,252.80 maximum salary earnable per student. School district's responsibility will be five percent plus special security contributions. Twelve students have been approved.

The school district budget will be amended to include $1,673.23 for the program.

Board members agreed to lease office space to a Special Education Co-op consisting of Coahoma, Stanton, Garden City and Stanton School Districts. The districts requested office space at the Boydston Campus because it is centrally located to all the school districts. Custodial services and utilities will be provided for two offices for $85 a month in July and June.

In the attendance report for the school district 20 students were listed as withdrawn from school since April 6.

An amendment was made to the Title I budget. Funds were transferred from a material and supply category to a capital outlay category in the amount of $2,931.

John Smith, District Contest Chairman, and Ron Logback were commended for their work in last weekend's University Interscholastic League contests.

a camera and took aerial photographs. However, he said he would not call the photography espionage.

The State Department refused to comment on the substance of the charges.

Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha leveled the surprise spy charges on the 8 p.m. TV news Thursday. He charged that the plane was Ambassador William P. Edmondson's private aircraft and that it "was converted for use as a spy plane by the installation of an aerial survey camera under the seat of the co-pilot."

"In flight, the device enabled the camera to take pictures of the ground below," Botha continued.

"Photographs in our possession reveal that the embassy aircraft was engaged in a systematic program of photography of vast areas of South Africa, including some of our most sensitive installations."

He gave no details but said, "we have the necessary exhibits and will show them if need be."

Botha said it was the kind of conduct that could be expected from the Soviet Union. He demanded an official apology from the Carter administration.

The prime minister did not say how many Americans were ordered out of the country or identify them. But the State Department said three men were given a week to leave: Col. Alvin M. Crews, a defense attache; Maj. Bernd McConnell, an assistant air attache, and Master Sgt. Horace E. Wyatt Jr., crew chief of the plane.

South Africa expels U.S. military staff

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The U.S. government hedged in its first response to South Africa's expulsion of three members of the U.S. Embassy's military staff and their plane on charges of aerial spying.

The embassy refused to comment. But a State Department official in Washington admitted the plane, a twin-engine C-12A, was equipped with

High winds hit Big Spring area

High winds hit the Big Spring area late Thursday, loosening dust that gave the sky an eerie red look reminiscent of the Dust Bowl days of the 30s.

Local residents, however, could take comfort in the fact that the brunt of the weather front barreling down from the Rocky Mountain went north of town. Snyder, located 49 miles northeast of Big Spring, measured wind gusts up to 90 miles per hour.

The winds here were of relatively short duration, dropping as nightfall came on. By daylight, about the only evidence that the weather had again acted up in Howard County was the thin layer of dust covering almost everything.

Long-range forecasts say the Easter weekend will be ideal but cautious Big Springers have adopted a wait-and-see attitude. They've been buffeted too long by winds that were supposed to have been harnessed.

'Onion strike' continues

Officials fear violence

RAYMONDVILLE, Texas (AP) — Officials in this South Texas town braced today for possible violence as some onion field workers who walked off the job last week decided they wanted to go back to work.

"We need to work, that's all," said Juan Guerrero, who said he fears for his safety.

Texas farm workers union members walked off the onion fields last week in a strike aimed at higher wages and collective bargaining rights.

"Yes, I anticipate trouble," Willacy County Sheriff Oscar Correa said. "A whole bunch of it, but I don't know when."

Tempers fueled by a hot afternoon sun almost spilled over into violence later in the day Thursday. Strikers, upset when a grower replaced them with workers who said they were from Mexico, tried to convince the strike breakers to leave a western Willacy County field.

"We thought everything had stopped here," said strike leader Jesus Moyá. A busload of Texas Farm Workers Union members headed for the field after hearing reports that workers were back at work. By the time the bus arrived, the strikers found that about 1,500 sacks of onions had been clipped and sacked.

The workers said they were getting paid 25 cents per bag and had been bused in from Reynosa, Mexico.

The Texas Farm Workers Union is asking for a dollar per bag.

The strikers swarmed the field and asked the workers to join the strike. A man identifying himself as a field hand for Griffin and Brand Produce of McAllen told the strikers they were trespassing.

The man left, and sheriff's deputies and other law enforcement officials arrived within 30 minutes.

The union members retreated to a nearby public road when the officers lined the field. However, when the workers went back to work the TFWU members again headed into the fields.

"We're going to try everything not to arrest them," Correa said as the strikers again tried to talk the workers out of the field. Marciel Silva of San Juan, a strike leader, said the TFWU members were willing to be arrested. However, the deputies made no arrests at the scene and the strikers left the field when the workers boarded the bus and left.

Correa later said about a half dozen strikers would be arrested on trespassing charges.

Moya said the field was owned by Charles Wetegrove of Raymondville, the target of the strike, when the workers walked off last week. But Correa said the field is now owned by Griffin and Brand. A camera crew from the company took videotape accounts of the incident.

The picketing spread Thursday to two local banks Thursday. The picket lines were in response to local bankers who volunteered their services Wednesday at a Wetegrove packing shed closed by the strike.

Correa said workers who want to return to the fields have asked for protection. The sheriff said his men will insure that anyone who returns to work will be protected.

Action / reaction: Sign of the times

Q. I was surprised to learn the "no left turn" on Main and East Third Street had been removed. This may seem a dumb question, but my friend said the sign was never there. I would like to know if I am wrong.

A. "No, you're right. The sign was once there, and now it isn't," said Big Spring Police Capt. Sherrill Farmer.

China asks for plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — China has asked a Columbus company to develop a plan for a hotel in a mainland city, company officials said. Citing the "sensitive nature" of current negotiations, officials at John W. Galbreath Co. declined on Thursday to give details of the firm's proposal, or to identify the city where the hotel might be built. Daniel M. Galbreath said officials of the firm, which recently completed multi-million dollar construction projects in Hong Kong and Saudi Arabia, are expecting an invitation to visit China by May.

House given to community

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Bassett Hall, a house built before 1766 in what's now called Colonial Williamsburg, has been given to the historic community by the estate John D. Rockefeller 3rd. The gift, valued at $4.4 million, had been the Williamsburg home of John D. Rockefeller Jr. and his family since 1936. It includes 585 surrounding acres, according to an announcement made Thursday by Carlisle H. Humelsine, chairman of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. The two-story original frame house was built by Col. Philip Johnson.

No reason for prevalence

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — For reasons as mysterious as the disease itself, Reye's Syndrome statistically is more prevalent in southwestern Ohio than elsewhere in the state, officials say. An 18-month study of the area is being conducted by state medical authorities to determine how the malady is spread. Dr. Ralph Haynes, director of the infectious diseases department at Children's Medical Center in Dayton, said the disease damages the liver and brain and usually involves children. Its cause is unknown. Haynes said the study may lead to a better understanding of the ailment by comparing stricken youngsters with those who had similar symptoms but did not contract the disease.

Guard jet pilot killed

CAMDEN, S.C. (AP) — The pilot of an A-7 Air National Guard jet was killed when the plane apparently lost power and crashed outside of Camden, officials said. The pilot, 1st Lt. David Hatfield, 28, of Columbia, S.C., was on a solo training flight when the craft went down, according to Col. Robert Johnson, commander of McEntire Air National Guard Base near Columbia, where the plane was based. Calvin Atkins, a high school student who said he saw the plane go down, said he heard what sounded like an engine going dead before the plane crashed near Wateree Dam.

Slow-moving landslide 'tearing everybody up'

RANCHO PALOS VERDES, Calif. (AP) — The road along Portuguese Bend winds gently past wispy pepper trees and rambling ocean-view homes, its slightly cracked surface the only hint of a slow-motion disaster residents say is "tearing everybody up." More than 30 fashionable houses in the Abalone Cove neighborhood of this affluent Los Angeles suburb are splitting and cracking inch by inch, victims of a creeping landslide that began last spring. "When I noticed cracks in the ceiling last April, I thought I needed to paint again," said resident Jacqueline Moxley. Now, as the cracks slowly riddle her home from kitchen to back bedroom, Mrs. Moxley says "it just breaks your heart." Shifting real estate is no stranger to Portuguese Bend. Some 150 homes not far from Abalone Cove were either destroyed or damaged between 1956 and 1958. But until last year, homes in the Cove section had remained untouched. "It's amazing to watch," Mrs. Moxley said. "Monetarily and emotionally, it's tearing everybody up." The once-choice homes are now impossible to sell at their pre-slide worth, and banks will not make loans to prospective buyers, according to residents. "We're losing something we paid a lot of money for and worked for," said Maureen Griffin, a homeowner. "We're losing our biggest asset." Melvyn Lewin said his $210,000 home is now "practically worthless." He said the four-to six-inch cracks in his floors "look like caverns" and open wider with each new rainfall. Just next door, Lawrence Horan cut his slowly sliding garage away from his house to keep the rest of the building intact. But a few weeks ago the home began "pivoting around the fireplace," Horan said. "I have a contractor coming out to cut another portion of my house off," he said. "The thing is moving very erratically." Nearby, a two-acre palm-studded waterfront estate once used to film the comedy "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World," has suffered cracking throughout the grounds. The owner, Mrs. Betty Hardin, put it up for sale last year for $875,000. "It's still on the market and I can't sell it," she said. While the slide has turned most homeowners against the caprice of nature, it also has pitted some residents against local government. Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. Moxley said the city and county should have warned residents about a slide possibility after a sewage pumping station nearby was damaged by ground movement three years ago. "If only we had known, we could have done something about it before it got like this," Mrs. Moxley said. "It's a real stab in the back."

Funds for victims of disaster needed

Persons who wish to donate funds for victims of the tornadoes which struck the Wichita Falls and Vernon areas earlier this week can make their checks out to Disaster Fund and forward them to the local Salvation Army post, care of Brigadier Robert Ball. There has been discussions about opening a collecting agency for those who would like to donate food, clothing and bedding to the victims but plans have yet to be worked out for the site of the depot. Brigadier Ball revealed that six Salvation Army mobile canteens are busy in Wichita Falls helping feed some of the homeless. In addition, 30 Salvation Army officers have been dispatched to the area to help ease the stricken city over its crisis. All donations to the Disaster Fund are tax-deductible. The Salvation Army, of course, will retain none of the money for administrative costs since all supervision is performed on a voluntary basis. Local Red Cross Chapter Manager Nat Roll said, "The American Red Cross is in dire need of money, not material things, but money, due to the tornadoes in the Wichita Falls area." He said all donations will be appreciated. Checks should be made out to the American Red Cross and mailed to P.O. Box 1970 in Big Spring, Zip Code 79720. Roll said the cost to the Red Cross is estimated in six figures. He said the Red Cross will help thousands of people.

Diamonds were a thief's best friend Thursday. Two gold rings with diamond clusters in a Tiffany setting were stolen from Cindy Pearson, 3710 Calvin, around 6:30 p.m. Wednesday. The rings had been left in a car while Ms. Pearson attended softball practice. Loss was estimated at $1,100. Marguerite Hyden, 1725 Yale, found an antique diamond ring with two large diamonds and two small diamond chips on either side missing from her purse Thursday. The ring was valued at $2,000, and Ms. Hyden has offered a $100 reward for its return. Total loss was estimated at $8,500. Burglars hit Arnold's Garage, 201 N.W. 2nd, sometime Thursday, and ripped off an acetylene cutting torch and a large variety of wrenches and other tools. He said only three states — Mississippi, California and Alaska — have conjugal visitation programs. Hopper said adoption in Texas would be a giant step forward for the concept. Hudson said he will seek House approval for a special committee to study the conjugal visitation issue for the 1981 legislative session, when he will introduce the bill again. Nine representatives who supported the bill on an unsuccessful March 20 vote and seven who opposed it were absent from the floor Tuesday. Rep. Michael Ezzell of Snyder supported Hudson's attempt for reconsideration but said he would have voted against the bill itself. "I was willing to give him another run with his bill," Ezzell said. He said he would have opposed the bill, however, because he feared a conjugal visitation program would be too expensive. Hudson planned to amend the bill so that only inmate labor and donated materials and furniture could be used for preparing rooms or houses for visiting spouses, but many legislators argued that costs would be involved. WIND-SOME, LOSE SOME — This sign, at Pinkie's East Store, 1414 E. 3rd, showed "signs" of the passage of the wind. The sign was almost totally lost as a result of the wind which gusted up to 50 mph Wednesday, a testimony to the fact that Chicago, Ill. isn't the only "windy City". Telephone and electrical poles and lines across the county required some repairs after the three days of high winds which began Tuesday. Although some wind is forecast today, the speed, forecast at 15 to 20 mph, shouldn't cause as much blowing dust or other problems as were evidenced earlier in the week.

National Airlines recommends merger

MIAMI (AP) — National Airlines, object of an increasingly complex merger battle, today recommended approval by its stockholders of an offer made by Pan American World Airways Inc. which began the merger battle last summer.

"After full and careful consideration, your Board of Directors has concluded that the terms of the proposed merger with Pan American are fair and equitable, has unanimously approved it and recommends that you vote in favor..." the proxy statement said.

Pan Am has offered $41 per share for National's outstanding stock, and National agreed last fall to recommend that offer to its stockholders. But then Eastern followed with a $50-per-share offer and the companies all began jockeying for position in the fight.

A series of offers and counteroffers followed, with National saying today that it was unable to reconcile Pan Am and Eastern's competing proposals into one, easy-to-understand decision.

So the firm said it was recommending the Pan Am proposal, with the understanding that if Eastern agrees to extend its offer beyond the time that the CAB is expected to rule on the case, an auction would be held between the two firms.

Carters have nothing planned

SAPELO ISLAND, Ga. (AP) — President Carter is finding near-perfect solitude in a wildlife refuge here where his closest neighbors include snakes and alligators.

Carter had no announced schedule today, and his Thursday activities were hardly arduous.

The White House press office, headquartered more than 30 miles away on Jekyll Island, said only that the president had a lunch of sandwiches and soup after arriving from Washington, and then walked on the beach with wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy.

"They have been in the house the rest of the afternoon... reading and resting... the sparse announcement concluded.

"They have no special plans for this evening."

The Carters are staying in a well-preserved 19th-century plantation manor house where President Calvin Coolidge once sojourned. The spacious residence, which looks something like the White House plopped in the center of a coastal forest, is owned by the University of Georgia Marine Institute.

The press office said the Carters are renting the place, but has been unable to provide a dollar figure. Deputy press secretary Rex Granum said simply that the Carters were paying "the going rate."

The president came here principally to fish with his wife and two old friends, Brunswick, Ga., optometrist Carlton Hicks and attorney James Bishop.

Tattooing course rescheduled

A course in Tattooing is being offered by the Adult and Continuing Education office of Howard College. Tattooing is a lace-making technique that requires a tattooing shuttle. A recent issue of Better Homes and Gardens featured tattooing articles.

The craft class will begin April 19, and end May 24. It will be held on Thursday nights from 7-9 p.m. in the Student Lounge of the Horace Garrett Building. The cost of the course is $12. Materials for the six-week course will be discussed the first night of class. Zella Lindley, a local seamstress, will be the instructor for the course.

Interested students must pre-register in the Adult and Continuing Education office located in the Horace Garrett Building. For more information, call 267-6311, ext. 70.

Nuclear transcripts released

Technicians uncertain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nuclear technicians and officials groped through the crisis at Pennsylvania's Three Mile Island atomic powerplant "in the blind" for days, uncertain exactly what was wrong or what to do about it, transcripts of their meetings reveal.

The transcripts of tape-recorded meetings, filling more than 700 pages, were made public Thursday.

Two full days after the accident began March 28, Nuclear Regulatory Commission Chairman Joseph M. Hendrie complained, "I don't have the impression that they have a good grip on it. We are operating totally in the blind."

Then, referring to requests from Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh for advice about the possibility of a mass evacuation, Hendrie went on: "His information is ambiguous. Mine is nonexistent, and — I don't know — it's like a couple of blind men staggering around, making decisions."

The five-member NRC met with "staff members daily to follow developments in the Three Mile Island incident, which they have called the most serious accident in the history of commercial nuclear powerplants in this country.

The transcripts reveal no major information which was not quickly reported to the public at the time, but they convey vividly the worry and frustration of the officials as they tried to make sense out of fragments of information about a kind of accident they had never imagined.

On March 31, Hendrie said it would be "several days out into the next week" before hydrogen gas in the reactor could become flammable and another week before the hydrogen could become explosive.

The transcript from April 1 shows that while President Carter was visiting the crippled facility, NRC officials were still assessing various turns the situation might take — including a hydrogen explosion — and various responses to ensure the safety of persons in the area — including an evacuation.

Discussing the possibility of a hydrogen explosion, Dudley Thompson, an NRC official, said, "Right now we believe it takes 5 percent of oxygen to become flammable; 11 percent to be a detonation mixture. Right now we think we've got 5 percent. ... But so, for all practical purposes, we've got to assume the mixture is flammable, but I don't think anybody is assuming right now that he thinks it's an explosive mixture."

The discussion then turned to other topics and NRC Commissioner Richard T. Kennedy remarked, "Meanwhile, I'm going to check to see if the president is arriving at the (reactor) site."

There were no suggestions that the hydrogen posed any danger to the president.

In a meeting March 31, Roger J. Mattson, NRC director of systems safety, told the commissioners bluntly: "No plant has ever been in this condition, no plant has ever been tested in this condition, no plant has ever been analyzed in this condition in the history of this program..."

Mattson was one of at least three staff members who, on March 30, were urging a precautionary evacuation of the area downwind from Three Mile Island, some 10 miles south of Harrisburg, Pa.

But the commission did not recommend it, partly because the wind was shifting erratically and nobody could be sure which way "downwind" would be when people moved out.

By March 31 Mattson had gained more confidence that the reactor could be controlled, and he changed his mind about evacuation.

The transcripts show that NRC officials also complained that plant operators and the plant builders, Babcock and Wilcox, were slow to recognize how seriously their reactor was damaged and to relay important information to the NRC.

Mattson said on March 30 the reactor core was severely damaged and might even have suffered some fuel melting. But the NRC had trouble convincing Babcock and Wilcox representatives of that severity until some 40 hours after the accident, he said.

Lott sentenced to six in prison

Lonnel Lott, 806 NW 6th, entered a guilty plea in 118th District Court Wednesday to attempting to pass a forged check. District Judge Jim Gregg heard the plea. He sentenced Lott to serve six years in state prison.

He was taken to prison by sheriff's deputies today with another prisoner, Raul Flores.

Flores, 304 NE 8th, entered a guilty plea April 3 to DWI and his probation was revoked. Flores, arrested for DWI Feb. 26, began his probation April 18, 1978 when he entered a guilty plea to burglary. He received a ten-year probated sentence for burglary.

Acri's dad keeps 'cool' during N-plant 'heat'

According to one observer of the nuclear power plant mishap near Harrisburg, Pa., the crisis was blown out of proportion.

That's the opinion that Eddie Acri Sr., a resident of Middletown, Pa., located 2.5 miles from the Three Mile Island Plant, recently relayed to his son, Eddie Acri Jr., of Big Spring.

"We tired to call my father when we heard what was happening," Acri said, "but it was two days later before we could get through."

Acri said that his 76-year-old father was unconcerned with the reported threats of a melt down and that he stubbornly refused to leave the area.

"He said that law enforcement officials were going up and down the streets with micriphones ordering citizens to keep cover and stay indoors," Acri continued.

"Later, the area was evacuated, but Dad didn't leave. Instead he babysat for a neighbor's poodle after they left."

Acri, who has a number of relatives living throughout Pennsylvania, attributed his father's calm reaction to the power plant breakdown to his age and a general tendency to not worry about anything.

Whatever the reason — stubbornness, age, not wanting to miss the excitement — Eddie Acri Sr., who enjoys looking out on Three Mile Island from his living room window, stuck it out.

Immunities should be guaranteed

There's not much that comes out of Washington these days that is funny. It's hard to get a laugh about inflation anymore or Congress' penchant for raising the national debt every time it finds itself short of money.

People are simply too concerned about the bread and butter items to laugh anymore.

AN EXCEPTION to the rule, however, has been the "Golden Fleece" awards as presented by the Wisconsin Democrat, William Proxmire.

The "Golden Fleece" awards are the senator's way of showing that some ridiculous expenditure of the taxpayer's money has been finalized. The awards serve to puncture some meddlesome bureaucrat or skewer the pretensions of an arrogant academician.

Proxmire, however, doesn't always escape unscathed. A case in point recently was that of a Kalamazoo, Mich., scientist named Ronald Hutchinson, whose research into aggressive behavior in animals has been labeled wasteful and worthless by the senator.

Hutchinson, stung by the criticism, took Proxmire to court, suing him for a whopping $8 million. A U. S. circuit court of appeals threw out the suit. Now the issue is pending before the highest court in the land.

At stake is not a question of whether Proxmire was justified in belittling Hutchinson's research. That, for the purposes of this exercise, has been jettisoned. Now it is a question of whether the senator's congressional immunity protects him from being sued for statements and allegations made in connection with his congressional duties.

ALARMED AT the prospect of congressional prerequisites coming unglued, such Washington superstars as House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., House Majority Leader Jim Wright and House Minority Leader John Rhodes have weighed in for a friend-of-the-court brief backing Proxmire.

The circuit court who sided with Proxmire found that the senator was at least partially protected by constitutional guarantees that a member of Congress shall "not be questioned in any other place" for having made "speech or debate in either house."

Perhaps the senator goes too far sometimes (though Lord knows the lowly taxpayer doesn't have enough friends), but it is hoped the Supreme Court will uphold his side of the argument.

The constitutional immunities enjoyed by congressmen and senators are a precious part of our national legacy. They guarantee a freedom of dialogue which simply would not be possible were not such guarantees in force.

To sacrifice this in the interest of nailing down an individual lawmaker strikes us as false economy indeed.

Major letdown

Around the rim

James Werrell

I interviewed the Easter Bunny the other day, and boy, I've got to tell you, it was a real letdown.

First of all, it was like pulling teeth just getting EB to consent to the interview. He doesn't like reporters. As a matter of fact, he doesn't much like human beings, period.

Anyway he finally relented and I drove over to his hotel room to have a chat.

His hotel room! It looked like Nagasaki!

"So, I'm used to living underground," he said, noticing as I held a handkerchief over the lower half of my face.

HE WAS LYING on the bed, feeding quarters into the magic fingers machine and sipping on something that was definitely not carrot juice. I had expected a cute little bunny with a twitchy nose, but this guy wasn't even close.

He stood about two-feet tall at the shoulder, and looked like my grandmother's old fox fur coat come to life. Seedy was the word that came immediately to mind.

I decided to get the interview over in a hurry so that I could go home and take a couple of showers.

Me: Well, I guess Easter is almost here.

EB: Gee, thanks for the reminder, kid, I'd almost forgotten. Jerk reporters!

Me: I'll let that one slide. Now, what do you do to get in shape for the big day?

EB: You're looking at it, kid (taking a big slug from his glass). No, the Easter Bunny routing is for chumps like you. These are modern times.

Me: What do you mean?

EB: I mean I pass out a couple of eggs to some wimpy kids, do a couple of shopping centers, some radio shows, and that's about it. The rest is automated. You don't think Colonel Sanders fries all that chicken by himself, do you?

Me: I wouldn't know. But, look, let's get this straight. You mean you don't do eggs?

EB: You want eggs, I got eggs. AT THIS POINT he picked up an egg that would have felt at home in a Chinese apothecary and started smearing it with this red viscous fluid.

Me: What's that stuff?

EB: Red dye number three. I got a bargain on it.

Me: This is too much!

EB: Look, I'm not that crazy about kids, but they're not as dumb as they look. And they sure don't get that worked up over a crummy hard-boiled egg, no matter what color it is.

Me: Boy, talk about disillusionment. I remember when I was a kid...

EB: You think it's easy being the Easter Bunny. I go out with friends, and some joker will start in, "Here comes Mr. Cholesterol, hoppin' down the shopping mall." It gives me a pain in the general area of my little fluffy tail (it wasn't fluffy). And you're beginning to have the same effect on me, so why don't you just scam.

Me: My pleasure! And while you're at it, why don't you just take your eggs and...

EB: (slamming door) Happy Easter Jerk reporters.

Iran: Other shoe

Evans, Novak

TEHRAN — With the great unifying force behind the Iranian revolution having vanished with the toppled shah, architects of the new "Islamic Republic" face the gravest peril in the immediate future from Soviet intrigue, border wars and a disastrous economy, with the U.S. powerless on the sidelines.

Expulsion of the shah was the first shoe; the second has yet to drop. "The Soviet Union pretends to be a friendly country," the minister of the interior told us, "but we are quite aware that they are trying to cause troubles with agents."

Amplifying that statement as he twisted prayer beads around his wrist, Ahmad Sadr said his government makes no charges but that "I personally think" Moscow is helping to exploit Iran's age-old security problems with the Turkoman, Baluchi, Kurdish and Arab minorities.

THE PRESENT strongman of the revolution, Deputy Prime Minister Ibrahim Yazdi, told us he could not say "precisely" that the Soviets stirred up the trouble in the western Kurdish regions. But it is assumed by many here in a capital city rich in assumptions but poor in certitudes that when the Ayatollah Khomeini received ace Soviet diplomat Vladimir Vinogradov — the first ambassador admitted to his presence — Soviet fishing in Iran's troubled waters was one subject. But warnings will have no impact from a country without an effective armed force — the defense minister, air force chief and army chief of staff change with the regularity of Italian governments, and the revolutionary regime is hard put to field a healthy division or two.

A huge new edifice is nearing completion on the one-square-block Soviet embassy grounds here for housing even more Soviet "diplomats," commercial agents and the like (most of whom are undercover KGB operatives) with an obvious mission: weaken and further divide the forces of the revolution. With Iran's access to the Persian Gulf and its rich oil reserves, its switch out of the American orbit has made it a glittering target for Moscow.

There are no illusions in the interim government headed by mild-mannered, goateed Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan as to Soviet intentions. Extremist elements of the gun-toting fedayeen, whose numbers are now multiplying, may show few signs of pro-Soviet inclinations, but there is no doubt about their Marxist ideology. A second organized faction of irregulars, youthful "Mojahadeen" Islamic zealots, is anti-Soviet and anti-American with strong xenophobic tendencies.

The power-vacuum of Iran's turbulent transition from the shah's dictatorial rule to a constitutional "Islamic Republic" begs to be filled. The increasing number of trained Soviet agents, many of whom speak vernacular Farsi, is obviously intended by Moscow to fill it in a way that will maximize Soviet and eliminate American influence.

Western authorities here say there is no doubt that anti-American broadcasts from across the Soviet border, ignored by the State Department for months, were a major factor in linking anti-shahism to anti-Americanism. "Those broadcasts by themselves made the (Feb 14) attack on the U.S. Embassy inevitable," one Western ambassador told us.

Most birthmarks disappear without help

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Please explain the difference between a blood tumor and a birthmark. How serious is a blood tumor and should it be removed immediately? — Mrs. E.E.

There are many types of birthmarks, but most are hemangiomas, those blood vessel tumors to which you refer. The word "tumor" scares many laymen, who think it refers only to cancer. Most tumors and hemangiomas are quite benign. Of the hemangiomas, the strawberry mark is the most common. These occur most frequently on the head, neck, and trunk, and you may find from one to four on any child. They are various shades of red and may be visible at birth or shortly after. They tend to increase in size the first six months, then get smaller over the next six to 12 months. Between 75 and 95 percent of them disappear in the first year of life.

Patient waiting for the natural disappearance is better than premature tinkering. But it is during this waiting period that some parents get into disputes with their doctors.

The question is what to do about the few hemangiomas that don't disappear and pose cosmetic problems. After age 11 it is unlikely for one to disappear without treatment. It is best to let the doctor, preferably a plastic surgeon, judge matters and tell you whether removal would result in scarring worse than the original mark. You can expect some scarring dimpling of the skin, or wrinkling in the area after any kind of treatment.

Treatment consists of closing off the little blood vessels (capillaries) that caused the tumor. Dry ice, cortisone, laser beam, cryosurgery and X-rays have been used successfully. The possible side effects of cortisone or X-ray make those less popular among doctors. There have been reports of some success by using bandages and applying pressure to the area. Sometimes further plastic surgery or local treatment after removal is necessary.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have been going to the doctor for 10 months for an irritation on my vulva. The doctor calls it acute atrophic vaginitis. At first I had a slight discharge, but that has stopped. Just the burning remains. Tests show I have an infection, but only on the outer portion of the vulva. — Mrs. M.J.

Your letter may help me clear up a bit of confusion about hormones and complaints about the vagina. I have mentioned from time to time that hormones, such as those in birth control pills, may cause changes in the vaginal membranes. Obviously, you are not using birth control pills, but perhaps you should be taking some hormones. Some doctors do prescribe this for older women whose hormone level is so low as to cause such vaginal dryness.

If you have repeated infections, which, from your letter, seems to be the case, that might justify hormone use. But some individuals should not use hormones no matter what, and your doctor can advise on this. Hormone suppositories are available just for problems like yours. They are also supplied as a cream, which is inserted with an applicator. After a short period of treatment the vagina returns to normal. Repeat courses of treatment are usually necessary to keep the problem under control.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is it true that the nutrient value of canned vegetables is lost if one discards the liquid the vegetables are canned in? — N.V.

Yes, there may be a considerable amount of the vitamin and mineral content in the liquid in which it is packed.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Can one have surgery to correct protruding ears, even when one is an adult? — K.G.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Although I grew up in a religious home, I got involved in Satan worship about 10 years ago. Only recently have I been forced from this through the power of Christ. Will you tell people for me that Satan is real and can gain control of our lives in a terrible way if we let him? — S. W. L.

DEAR S. W. L.: Your own testimony is a witness to the dangers we face when we willfully turn our backs on God. Yes, Satan is real. He seeks to do all he can to keep us from God. With some people (such as yourself) this may take extreme forms, including even the worship of Satan himself. You will remember that Satan tried to get Jesus to worship him. Jesus' response was what ours should be: "Away from me, Satan! For it is written: 'Worship the Lord your God, and serve him only'" (Matthew 4:10, New International Version).

Yes, but it's best done at an earlier age.

Dear Dr. Ruble: What could make one's ear itch? — Mrs. H.L.

If there is drainage, an infection would be suspected. The ear is a prime site for fungus growth, and should be examined, especially if the problem is continuing or recurring.

Vaginitis can strike any woman at any time in her life. You can read about the causes — and cures — for this troublesome complaint in the booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment." To get a copy, write to Dr. Ruble, in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am in my 60s and recently have been experiencing what I thought were hot flashes. My doctor says I should not be having these at my age. I am sweating severely and am awakened three or four times at night. Can you comment? — Mrs. A.R.

Some women do have menopausal symptoms at your age. But sometimes symptoms of other conditions are attributed to menopause when in fact this is not the cause. With the other symptoms you have, and especially with the nocturnal awakenings, you should be checked for overactive thyroid. Heart palpitations and weight loss would be other signs of an overactive thyroid.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

WASHINGTON — Religious zealots have always posed a special problem for law enforcement authorities. Their constitutional protections must be respected, yet the damage even a small band of messianic madmen can wreak on society has been tragically demonstrated in recent years by Charles Manson and the Rev. Jim Jones.

A case being tried in Salt Lake City involves a self-anointed holy man called Stephen Andrews, who was caught trying to steal plastic explosives from Tooele Army Depot in Utah, where he worked as a guard. Our sources say Andrews boasted to other guards that he was a polygamist, that he walked and talked with God, and that he believed he should prepare for any challenges to that authority by stockpiling a private cache of weapons.

THE PROSECUTION is leery of the religious motivation behind the Andrews case, and instead is planning to prove that he was planning to sell the stolen explosives to mercenaries.

Andrews is not the first truculent polygamist to give Western lawmen cause for alarm. Consider these recent cases:

—We have already reported on Ervil LeBaron, who is in hiding in Mexico, charged with two murders in Utah and one in California. Police believe his hardcore band of 40 followers has been responsible for the religious assassinations of several others as well — including LeBaron's daughter Rebecca and his brother Joel.

—Authorities are keeping a watchful eye on Alex Joseph, an affable, internationally known polygamist and star of his own movie who so far has confined his battles with police and the federal government to the courtroom. But Joseph has an unsettling penchant for religion and revolvers.

A former California policeman and a karate practitioner, Joseph lives in a log fortress in southern Utah with a 24-hour guard posted. His adherents, including teen-agers, are proficient with guns, and openly flaunt their rifles and pistols when visitors come to the community. One member of the group is an expert cutler who turns out superb knives, including a CIA-designed miniature scythe that fits over the hand like brass knuckles.

PERHAPS FOR these reasons, some Utah lawmen have used pictures of Joseph for their daily target practice.

—John Singer staved off arrest on several charges by arming himself and his polygamous family, patrolling his Utah mountain hideout and proclaiming on local television that he would shoot any officer who came on his property. Police posing as Los Angeles newspaper reporters succeeded in approaching Singer, but when they tried to make an arrest and a scuffle ensued, Singer got the drop on them and chased them off.

Last Jan. 18, Utah police swooped in on Singer with snow-mobiles. Singer waved his gun around — though he never fired it — and was fatally shot by the police.

—The most recent incident was the Jan. 30 arrest at Tooele Army Depot of Andrews and three fellow guards in the explosives theft. One of the guards was supposedly a party to the crime, but he had tipped off the FBI, and agents were waiting at the depot gate when the four arrived with 36 cases of the explosives.

Sources told our associate Dale Van Atta that what Andrews really was after was a supply of grenades. Alarmed at the Singer shooting less than two weeks earlier, Andrews wanted the grenades to protect himself from a similar police raid. He had already collected a number of M-16 automatic rifles, according to our sources.

What has the FBI and the military particularly worried is the fact that if one of the guards hadn't blown the plot, Andrews would certainly have gotten away with the explosives. The four guards constituted the entire night shift at the ultra-sensitive storage area.

Furthermore, the thieves were only a few ammunition bunkers away from several Redeye missiles, secured by the same easy-to-cut locks as the plastic explosives bunker. The missiles have been called the ideal terrorist weapon. They are hand-held, shoulder-fired guns loaded with heat-seeking warheads that can shoot down aircraft several miles high, including passenger airliners.

Most frightening of all, the incident demonstrated once again the sloppy security at Tooele, where the nation's largest supply of nerve gas is stored. The base was already the target of a congressional probe of inadequate security measures and guard selection. Evidence disclosed that several employees tried to cover up an inventory shortage of 24 nerve-gas shells by putting dummy rounds in their place.

Also reported was the still unexplained disappearance of one shell filled with a nerve gas so strong that one-fiftieth of a drop on a person's skin can be fatal.

Footnote: Our sources tell us that our polygamous fanatics have stockpiled weapons in anticipation of moves against them by law enforcement authorities. Though the violence-prone zealots constitute only a small minority of the estimated 30,000 religiously oriented polygamists in the United States, the danger they pose to society is out of all proportion to their numerical strength. They foresee the end of the world as imminent and expect to be called upon by God to eliminate the unworthy before Doomsday comes.

Geography plays a significant role

Are you job-seeking? Then don't overlook the significance of geography.

Your chances of finding work are currently statistically better in the Great Lakes area than in other parts of the country, with the South Atlantic states least promising of all. So reports The Conference Board.

This is the New York-based economic research organization's reading of figures compiled during February for a seasonally adjusted employment index.

It collects its information from the newspapers — specifically the help-wanted pages of 51 major newspapers across the country.

The rise and decline in volume of job advertising, the report says, has proved a particularly sensitive barometer of the changes in demand for labor and of general business conditions.

The frigid latitudes are far from dead.

SHINOAK, QUERCUS, HAVARDII — One of the oaks that contribute to many millions of dollars loss of livestock annually. The toxicity of oaks is low, but the buds and immature leaves are relished by all classes of livestock. Drought years or early spring is the most important to keep livestock off of oak range. The picture shows an acorn about the size of a man's thumb. Acorn poisoning is not as common in America as it is in Europe. Swine are more resistant to acorn poisoning than other classes of livestock. This plant grows in thick clumps to about two to three feet tall in Howard County. March and April are the most poisonous times of the year and most ranchers remove their livestock from shinoak pastures when possible.

Leftists hold on

OUTSIDE ESTELI, Nicaragua (AP) — Leftist guerrillas held the northern Nicaraguan city of Esteli for the seventh day today despite heavy fire from President Anastasio Somoza's artillery and planes.

Reporters stopped at a roadblock four miles south of the city could see explosions and smoke as the national guard's fighters attacked with rockets.

A lieutenant commanding the roadblock on the Pan American Highway said heavy fighting was under way and the national guard, Somoza's combined army and national police force, hoped to recapture the city today.

Refugees from Esteli said the guerrillas of the Sandinista National Liberation Front who overran much of the city on Saturday captured the communications center, knocked out an armored car and destroyed a Sherman tank that had been firing into the city.

A national guard spokesman, Col. Aquiles Aranda Escobar, denied these reports.

At least 400 guerrillas were reported in the city, fighting from the protection of a network of barricades and trenches.

The national guard appeared to be beefing up its forces in the area. One soldier said 200 troops went through the roadblock Thursday.

Somoza is on an Easter vacation with his children in Florida but is reported keeping in close touch with his commanders.

The Red Cross has estimated about 5,000 of Esteli's 35,000 inhabitants have fled since the fighting began. There were unconfirmed reports that a family of four Americans was trapped in the city.

Student dies while riding school bus

DALLAS (AP) — A 16-year-old high school sophomore died Thursday in Dallas when the school bus on which she was riding brushed against a utility pole while she had her head out the window.

Officials said Debra Lynn Tramel suffered a broken neck and died instantly.

The bus driver said a car was parked directly in front of him, and he had to steer sharply to the left to pull out around it. The girl had just gotten on the bus and had her head out a window at the back of the bus when it pulled away from the curb.

Authorities said information on the accident will be turned over to the Dallas County grand jury as a matter of routine, but that no action is expected.

Bill would require job acceptance

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Jobless Texans would have to accept work assignments from the Texas Employment Commission or forfeit their unemployment benefits under a bill passed Thursday by the House.

The bill advanced to the Senate on a voice vote after representatives refused, 46-77, to table it.

Rep. Ben Reyes, D-Houston, distributed a memo by a Dallas official of the U.S. Department of Labor, written in February, saying the bill would put Texas out of compliance with federal law.

This not only would jeopardize the $60 million annual federal funding of the employment commission but also would raise businesses' unemployment taxes by some $600 million a year, Reyes said.

"If you think you are getting at those workers out there, you are not. It is the employers you are going to hurt," he said.

The bill would enable an employer to ask the TEC to order persons applying for or receiving benefits to work for him. The commission, by law, would have to order the jobless individuals to "perform suitable work" for the employer or lose their benefits.

Rep. Jim Nowlin, R-San Antonio, the sponsor, said the addition of the term "suitable work" by amendment on Wednesday put the bill in compliance with federal law.

"Suitable work" means work that pays about the same as one's previous job and for which one is qualified by training and experience.

Dear Cecily...

Is there an Easter Bunny?

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I am 6 years old. Some of my friends say there is no Easter Bunny. Mya says, "Ask Cecily. If you see it in her column it's so."

Please tell me the truth. Is there an Easter Bunny? — KERI

DEAR KERI: On Easter Sunday some young children, waking to find marvelous colored eggs, believe the Easter Bunny brought them. But often their friends scoff at the idea.

Is there a real Easter Bunny? You might as well ask: Is there a real Peter Rabbit?

Peter Rabbit was the creation of a gifted lady named Beatrix Potter. She wrote a story about him called "The Tale of Peter Rabbit" and painted some enchanting pictures to illustrate it.

That was over 75 years ago — long, long before you were born — and yet today Peter Rabbit is still with us. So are his mother; his sisters, Flopsy, Mopsy and Cottontail; and Mr. McGregor, in whose garden Peter lost a shoe in a cabbage patch. Peter Rabbit will go on living as long as there is an English language.

EXCHANGING GLANCES

Rainbow girls plan dinner

Big Spring Assembly No. 60, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, held their regular meeting in the Masonic Temple Tuesday evening with Worthy Advisor Dana Hodnett presiding.

A chicken-spaghetti dinner is scheduled for April 27 from 5:30-8 p.m. in the Cactus Room in the Howard College Student Union Building.

Chairman for the project is Jean Alice Knox and Rainbow girls are selling tickets for the event although tickets may be purchased at the door.

Mother Advisor Mrs. Edie Fyar gave an Easter reading and monologue of Mary Magdalene.

The next meeting will be April 24.

Misery Wants Company—The Guy She Divorced

DEAR ABBY: I'm divorced and miserable. Even though I was the one who asked for the divorce, it was a terrible mistake.

I know there must be thousands of divorced people (men as well as women) who would give anything to get back with No. 1 but they don't know how to go about it.

Abby, will you please ask readers who were divorced, regretted it and got back with No. 1 again to write and tell you how they accomplished it?

SORRY IN ST. JO. MO.

DEAR SORRY: All right. Readers? And please let me know how it was the second time around with No. 1.

DEAR ABBY: Our 18-year-old daughter has graduated from high school and has steady employment, so now she says she can do as she pleases. She is living at home (free), but she doesn't care what anybody thinks about her actions.

Her "old-fashioned" parents want to know if we have the right to set some rules for her. We have asked her to be home by 1 a.m. when she goes out on a date. (She's been coming home anywhere from 2 a.m. to 4:30.) When we object to her going to her boyfriend's apartment to watch TV for an evening she says we have "dirty minds."

She tells us if we don't "get off her back" she will move out and rent with girlfriends. Of course she is trying to assert her independence, but we think she's overdoing it. Please give us bewildered parents some guidelines.

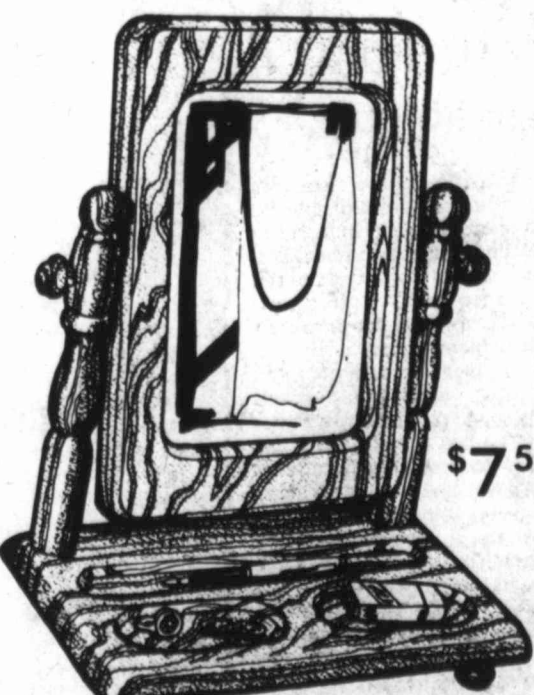

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: Tell your daughter to sit down with a pencil and paper and figure out exactly how "independent" she is. Advise her that when she is able to support herself entirely — and that means pay for her room, board, clothes, transportation, entertainment, travel, doctor, dentist, and insurance — then she may live where she chooses, and by her own rules. But as long as she lives with you, she will have to live by yours.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

joy on Easter Sunday. The Easter Bunny sprang from a lovely thing called imagination, and from the good feelings fathers and mothers and grandparents and aunts and uncles have for children. Although you can't see or touch imagination and feelings, they are just as real as eggs and cabbage patches.

As far as I know, Beatrix Potter never told whether Peter Rabbit colored eggs for Easter. But I believe he did — with red cabbage leaves and brown onion skins from Mr. McGregor's garden. — CECILY

BUNNY-STYLE EASTER EGGS

Warm 2 large white eggs under the hot water tap. Put them in a 1½-quart saucepan. Tear off 3 large dark red leaves from the outside of a red cabbage head and tear each leaf in half. Cover the eggs with the leaves and add 3 cups hot tap water. Simmer for 30 minutes, uncovered. The eggs will still be white. Cover the saucepan and let stand at room temperature for 2 hours. The eggs will turn a beautiful mottled blue.

Follow the previous directions but instead of red cabbage leaves, use a big handful of brown onion skins and 3½ cups water. The onion skins will float. After simmering, the eggs will look pale orange; after letting them stand 2 hours they will turn a handsome terracotta color. The onion water can be used to color 2 more eggs in the same way.

1979 Cinderellas crowned Saturday

Approximately 20 Cinderellas are making plans to attend state competition following last Saturday evening's Cinderella Girl Pageant at the Howard College Auditorium.

The pageant, sponsored by the Cactus Chapter, American Business Women's Association, was a huge success, according to Nelda Colclazer and Gail Earls, pageant coordinators.

Keith Loftin served as master of ceremonies for the event which featured 48 contestants in the divisions of Cinderella Tot, Cinderella Miniature Miss, Cinderella Miss, and Cinderella Teen. Judges were Carl Rogers, and J. Gordon Lunn, both of Odessa; and Jane Gillit, Wolfthor.

The stage was decorated with stars and trophies displayed atop a red iron tea cart provided by Thornton's Department Store. Scheffera plants and greenery from Mr. G's Garden Center also enhanced the scene.

Entertainment was provided by last year's winners: Kimberly Gee, Ginger Brooks, Diane Boothe, Tymi Brooks, and Felicia Ford. Contestants also participated in a disco number. The Cinderella Girl Theme Song was sung by Keith Loftin.

The 1979 Cinderellas are: Cinderella Tot: Karen Johnson, winner; Stacey Mauldin, first alternate; Cassie Underwood, second alternate; Christie Gayle Hirt, third alternate; and Deanna Sue Templeton, fourth alternate.

Cinderella Miniature Miss: Kasandra Keyes, winner and Miss Congeniality; Amy Osborne, talent winner; Melynda Page Grifford, first alternate; Kimberlee Karol Wing, second alternate; Andrea Ownes, third alternate; and Brandy Taylor, fourth alternate.

Cinderella Miss: Tessa Underwood, winner; Anissa Dawn Bartee, first alternate; Jill Luan Beall, talent winner and second alternate; Mary Weaver, third alternate; and Audrei Polo, fourth alternate.

Cinderella Teen: Valeri Meeks, winner; Dawn Estes, first alternate; Lisa Griffice, second alternate; Kristi Franklin, third alternate; and Terri Mears, talent winner and fourth alternate.

Elected Cinderella Mom was Becky Mauldin. She was selected by all the moms of pageant contestants.

Special guests were introduced by Johnnie Lou Avery.

Mrs. Colclazer was presented one dozen red roses by Gail Earls for her work and devotion to the pageant. Contestants presented Mrs. Colclazer, Mrs. Earls and Esther Trantham with a music box.

First place winners' sponsors are Valeri Meeks, First National Bank; Tessa Underwood, Mrs. G's Garden Center; Casandra Keyes, First Federal Savings and Loan; Karen Johnson, Bilt-Rite Pallet Co. Talent winner sponsors are Terri Mears, Pretty Things and the Kid's Shop; Jill Luan Beall, Village Shoe Store and Laddie and Lassie; and Amy Osborne, Tot 'n' Teen and Big Spring Seed and Chemical Co.

The winners of each division as well as first and second alternates and talent winners will participate in state competition June 25-30 in Denton.

Up From The Grave He Arose

Kevin's in the Junior Choir. You better believe Kevin is in the Junior Choir... you'll sometimes hear him above the rest... occasionally a shade off pitch.

But the joyous message of Easter is never sung with any more enthusiasm than when Kevin and his friends sing "Up From The Grave He Arose." The effect on the congregation is electrifying.

Think, too, of the effect on Kevin. His youthful heart is warming to the central truth of his religion. He is feeling, not just telling, the Story of Easter.

What we give of our time and talents means a great deal to our church. It means even more to us! Discover that truth this Easter.

Nonviolent offenders in Denver

Youth jury of peers granted

DENVER (AP) — Juvenile offenders who want a jury of their peers are getting just that in an experimental program which provides advice as well as punishment for nonviolent Denver youths.

Unlike many adult juries, members of the youth panels are eager to do their "duty" as they review cases ranging from shoplifting to burglary.

The jury program is the newest addition to Denver County's "diversion" program for young offenders. The idea is to keep troubled youths out of Juvenile Court when possible and still teach them a lesson about right and wrong.

Seven students from the city's 29 junior and senior high schools sit in judgment each week on three cases referred to them by the district attorney's office.

Dozens of students have volunteered for juries in the month-old program and those who have served are asking for more duty, according to Zoralee Steinberg, a counselor for juvenile offenders and organizer of the program.

Asked why he was serving on the volunteer panel, one juror said, "Why do adults serve on juries? It's our duty, isn't it?"

Prosecutors choose which cases are to be decided by the youth jury. Violent crimes or "anything too serious" goes to Juvenile Court, said District Attorney Dale Tooley.

Accused youths must admit they are guilty. Otherwise their cases go to Juvenile Court. They also must agree to accept the "contract" decided upon by jurors.

Thursday's session was typical of how the program works.

At one end of a courtroom table was a four-boy, three-girl panel. At the other end was 14-year-old Tommy (not his real name,) accused of shoplifting $3.40 worth of gum and cigarettes.

Twice before Tommy had been caught shoplifting. He was sent home each time after being lectured by police.

Jurors listened as Tommy's father talked of shame and bewilderment at his son's actions. He said Tommy was reacting to peer pressure about his below average height and added that it didn't help that the family was Mexican-American.

During deliberations, jurors asked Mrs. Steinberg how they could tell the father to stop talking about his son's height and give him more positive reinforcement. She told them to just say it and they did.

The decision: Tommy would have to keep in touch with Mrs. Steinberg for six months and would be required to find something besides television to fill his spare time.

A 16-year-old boy came before the jury accused of collecting more than was due from customers on his newspaper delivery route. His distributor claimed the youth quit owing him about $90.

Five policemen jailed

Executions continue

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Firing squads executed seven more of the shah's men today, including the general in charge of political prisoners at Tehran's Qasr Prison and the chief of air force counter-intelligence. Revolutionary courts also sent five policemen to jail and freed one.

The latest deaths, announced by the state radio, raised to 116 the number of confirmed executions since the forces of Shiite Moslem leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini ousted the last royal government of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi two months ago.

The Qasr Prison official was Gen. Bijan Yahyai, who was tried by a revolutionary court in the prison. In an emotion-packed trial, former prisoners and their relatives told of torture at the prison during the monarchy.

Yahyai was shot in the early morning along with the air force counter-intelligence chief, Gen. Hashem Berenjian, the radio said. Five of Yahyai's police colleagues drew jail terms of one and two years.

The radio said a policeman, an army sergeant and an army lieutenant were executed at 5:30 a.m. in the city of Khorramshah on charges of murder.

In Ahwaz, the former police chief, Maj. Hossein Torbatian, was executed on charges of putting down demonstrations in the nearby city of Behbahan and of being "corrupt to the core," the radio said.

Another man was executed in the city of Kerman for killing a pregnant woman and shooting civilians, while a policeman was acquitted when it was proved he had only fired in the air during anti-shah unrest.

Eight of the shah's men were executed Thursday and the newspaper Kayhan reported 141 persons were arrested recently in Tehran and elsewhere, presumably on suspicion of collaborating with the shah.

Houston judge tired of hassle

Trial returns to Fort Worth

HOUSTON (AP) — The murder-for-hire trial of Cullen Davis is headed back to Fort Worth, the place of its birth, sent there by a frustrated state district judge in Houston tired of hassling with it.

Despite prosecution objections, District Judge Wallace "Pete" Moore returned the case Thursday to the Tarrant County presiding judge, who will have the jurisdiction to try it or move it somewhere else.

Moore had tried to grant the defense request to move the case out of Harris County due to the large amount of publicity received by the first three-month trial, which ended in January with the jury deadlocked at 8-4 for conviction.

Davis was being tried for hiring someone to kill the judge presiding over his divorce trial.

But judges in Austin and El Paso wouldn't take it, citing time and space restrictions. District Judge George Hamilton in Corpus Christi agreed to preside in the case, but attorneys for both sides ruled it out.

"That judicial district has had three cases of notoriety moved there in recent months, and we felt that adding this one would overload the system," said Jack Strickland, assistant district attorney in Tarrant County.

Strickland wanted Moore to hold Davis' retrial in Harris County.

During a hearing before Moore Thursday, he introduced as evidence the county's voter list of almost 1 million people, saying the court should be able to find at least 12 unbiased jurors among them to hear the case.

Prison escape known earlier, attorney says

HOUSTON (AP) — The defense attorney for Ignacio Cuevas says Texas Department of Corrections officials knew in advance of a 1974 prison escape attempt in which two inmates and two hostages were killed.

Attorney Will Gray, Thursday introduced a copy of a letter dated March 28, 1974 from the U.S. Department of Justice Drug Enforcement Administration regional office in Dallas to TDC Director Jim Estelle.

The letter said information had been received from four extremely reliable informants that the escape attempt would be made at the Huntsville prison in the near future.

Inmates Fred Gomez Carrasco, Rudolpho Dominguez and two hostages died Aug. 3, 1974 when they tried to break out of the prison library using the Right place, wrong time

Fate dictated that Jeff Fischer, brother of assistant high school principal Craig Fischer of Big Spring, would be in Vernon when Tuesday's massive tornado hit his home town, Wichita Falls.

A Civil Defense training officer, Fischer went to Vernon after a tornado ravaged that city to help in recovery operations.

He parked his pickup truck in a Wichita Falls shopping center which later was heavily damaged by the series of twisters. His vehicle did not escape unscathed but might be salvagable.

The Wichita Falls storm occurred almost three hours after Vernon was hit. Jeff Fischer's quarters were well removed from the storm area and were not damaged.

Craig planned to visit with his parents in Abilene this weekend but Jeff won't be there. He'll be trying to help restore a degree of normalcy to the stricken areas along the Texas-Oklahoma border.

A Farthing's Worth
CHRISTIANITY IS DIFFERENT!

A young man from India, studying in an American university, commented: "I just cannot see any difference between the religions of the world and Christianity. All of them are concerned with uplifting the moral and spiritual lives of mankind." He concluded that Christianity was "just another religion, much younger than many other religions of the world."

A Christian youth replied: "You have studied about Confucius, who lived from 551 to 478 B.C. in China. You are acquainted with Gautama, the Buddha who lived from 560 to 480 B.C. You have heard of Mohammed, who lived A.D. 570 to 632. Perhaps you also know of Zoroaster, Mithras and Pythagoras, and the religions they founded. One fact these all share is that their burial place is still evident. Beneath their monuments, their bodies still lie. But when Christians go to the tomb of Jesus, it is empty! He arose from the dead!"

State House reverses decision; defeats 'minority banks' bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The House has reversed itself and defeated, 75-48, a bill opponents called an attempt by bankers and savings and loan associations to head off minority competition.

Thursday's vote meant two dozen representatives had changed their minds since the bill won tentative approval the day before, 79-49.

A black legislator called the bill the most "despicable" thing he had seen in more than six years in the House.

The measure would have prohibited ownership of bank or savings and loan stock by nonprofit organizations that receive state or federal money.

"The bill is just saying you can't go to the federal government and get your dollars and my dollars and invest them for this particular purpose," said Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, the sponsor.

Rep. John Wilson, D-La-Grange, observed that the only witness for the bill when it was heard in committee was from the Texas Savings and Loan League.

"We don't have to compete with those folks' is what they are really thinking," said Wilson, a moderate to conservative legislator.

"It's all right to talk about job opportunities as long as it's job opportunities with a shovel. ... But God forbid they would own a bank," Wilson said.

Rep. Matt Garcia, D-San Antonio, said the bill would prevent organizations from using economic development money from the U.S. Community Services Administration to buy banks.

Rep. Froy Salinas, D-Lubbock, said such a bank might make home improvement loans in rundown neighborhoods that other lending institutions have "redlined."

Salinas said he thought a group of blacks in Lubbock was trying to obtain a federal grant to start a savings and loan association.

Presnal said he knew of no groups that have used federal grants to buy bank or savings and loan stock so far, "and I hope they never do."

"I don't want anybody using federal money to buy a bank. They can get out and work for a living just like I do," said Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline.

"You are not stopping the grants, Mr. Hollowell, but you are stopping the opportunity of people to make it in this world. ... I have been in the House six years and I have never seen anything as despicable as this," said Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston.

Both chambers of the Legislature were off today, and only the House worked on Thursday. The Senate began its Easter break a day earlier than the House.

Representatives passed and sent to the Senate, 118-9, a bill restoring the traditional two-semester school year that was replaced in 1972 by the present three-quarter academic year.

The House passed on voice vote and sent to the Senate a bill enabling the Texas Employment Commission to direct a jobless person to take a "suitable" work assignment.

An employer could ask the commission to direct persons to work for him. Refusal to accept a job would result in loss of unemployment compensation. The commission could require a person to work only in jobs that are "suitable" in terms of his or her past wages, training and job experience.

In addition, an employer would have to allow time for a person whom the commission forced to work for him to continue searching for a job of the worker's own choosing.

House members passed, 101-29, a Senate bill allowing cities to pay legal fees for policemen who are sued because of injuries or property damage arising from performance of their official duties.

Senators now must decide whether to accept House amendments, chiefly one giving a city the option of refusing to pay a policeman's attorney fees.

The House passed and sent to the Senate bills that would:

—Repeat the law allowing elected county officials to form grievance committees to grant pay raises that county commissioners have denied.

—Require appointment of interpreters for deaf persons involved in criminal or civil court cases or administrative proceedings before such local bodies as city councils and school boards.

—Winning tentative House approval were bills that would:

—Eliminate the requirement of annual tuberculosis tests for school employees.

—Make the Texas Railroad Commission responsible for preventing water pollution that might arise from geothermal energy production.

Hangin' Out

by Nathan Poss

Although it is not considered as glamorous as professional football, baseball is definitely the sport to be in, as far as present salaries are concerned.

One of the more amazing aspects of the hardball sport is the pay scale of some of the lesser known players. While such stars as Davie Parker, Rod Carew and Pete Rose make between $750,000 and one million a year, there are many others that have recently signed long term contract for over a million dollars.

Such names as Darrell Evans, Elias Sosa, Lee Lacy, Jim Barr, Steve Stone and Jim Slaton are making astronomical amounts, but it's doubtful that they will ever become household sporting names.

Evans has a five-year pact worth 1.4 million and Slaton signed a agreement with the Brewers worth $1,235,000 for five years. Elias Sosa, whoever that is, is making 1.22 million for five years with the Expos, while Lee Lacy is making $1,050,000 for six years with the Pirates. These guys aren't exactly household names, but it does appear that they could probably buy your domicile quite easily.

Comparing the top money earners in pro football with baseball, you would find only O.J. Simpson able to crack the top twenty list of the salaries of our national pastime. Simpson, who commands a yearly income of $733,358 from the San Francisco 49ers, would be in fourth place on baseball's pay scale, behind Parker, Carew and Rose.

Walter Payton, the swift and powerful running back for the Chicago Bears, is the second leading bread winner in the NFL. But such baseball names as Jim Rice, Vida Blue, Catfish Hunter, Ted Simmons, Mike Schmidt, Reggie Jackson, Larry Hise, Bert Blyleven, Bobby Bonds, Sparky Lyle, Oscar Gamble, Tommy John, Rich Gossage, Joe Rudi and Robin Yount earn more than Payton's reported yearly income of $431,500.

In a recent salary survey conducted by the Major League Association, the seven American Leaguers that served as designated hitters in at least 100 games had the highest average salary of all the positions. In order to qualify for this list, a minimum of 100 games had to be played by the performer at each position — except catchers and pitchers.

The DH's had an average salary of $163,786. The seven men who qualified were Don Baylor, Rusty Staub, Hal McRae, Willie Horton, Glenn Adams, Lee May and Rico Carty. Of course, these all played in the American League, as the NL does not DH.

Here is a list of the average salaries by position, after the designated hitter, with both leagues included:

- Outfielders — $153,515
- Catchers — $144,374
- First Basemen — $143,796
- Third Basemen — $143,641
- Second Basemen — $130,745
- Starting Pitchers — $126,936
- Shortstops — $121,923
- Relief Pitchers — $87,266

Based on years of service, the highest paid players were the seventh to eighth year veterans, who averaged an intake of $181,557. The lowest paid by years performed were the rookies, with an average salary of $28,490.

The average remuneration for all major leaguers who played in at least 100 games was a healthy $99,876, which showed an increase of 31.3 percent from the average 1977 income of $76,066. The increase, however, was not as sharp as the 47.7 percent escalation that occurred in the first year of free agency.

When all of the free agency began a few years ago, many people claimed that the owners that could pay the most for the players would win on the field. 1978 did nothing to disprove this.

The world champion New York Yankees had the highest average stipend in 1978 at $188,880. Of course, people pay to see winners, and the great year at the turnstiles of Yankee Stadium made their organization a financial success. It was such a success that George Steinbrenner could afford to add the expensive accounts of Tommy John and Luis Tiant to his crew.

Three of the four division winners were among the top five teams on the salary list. The Philadelphia Phillies led the NL in average salary and were second in the major leagues to the Yankees at $159,039. The Dodgers were fifth in the majors at $135,884, while the Kansas City Royals were the poorest paying division winners at $106,532 per person. The Royals were tenth on the overall average salary list.

The Texas Rangers, with an average salary of $121,244, were the eighth best paying team in the majors and the second best in the AL West behind Gene Autry's rich California Angels.

As would be expected, the Oakland Athletics of owner Charlie Finley were the lowest paid team in baseball. Finley paid the average Oakland regular $49,258. The Oakland team also had the worst home attendance in the majors.

At the conclusion of the 1978 season, the eight best paying teams finished no lower than tied for second in their divisions, while only one of the nine worst-paying teams placed higher than fifth.

Just proves the old adage, you get what you pay for.

Watson, Nicklaus stay close

Lietzke takes Masters lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Bruce Lietzke was amazed. "It's very surprising," he said Thursday after becoming a reluctant leader in the opening round of the 43rd Masters Golf Tournament with a 5-under-par 67.

"I don't have the confidence in my shots to win the tournament," Lietzke said. "I don't know where the shots came from today, but maybe it's the start of the confidence I need." The 27-year-old Tucson Open winner confessed to being in a trance when he put together four straight birdies on the back side of the picturesque 7,040-yard, par-72 Augusta National Golf Club course to forge ahead of the select international field of 72 players.

"I was in a trance until the 17th hole," he said. "I had a 5-foot putt there to break it. If I had made it, I very well could have birdied the 18th."

Instead, he settled for a par at 17 and then got his only bogey of the day at 18. It left him little daylight, looking over his shoulder at two of the top shotmakers in the game — Tom Watson, the favorite and Player of the Year in 1977 and 1978, and Jack Nicklaus, showing signs of overcoming perhaps the worst slump of his career.

Watson, leading money winner this season, was tied at 68 with three unexpected first-round contenders — Leonard Thompson, Joe Inman and Ed Sneed.

Despite ideal weather, Nicklaus, who had a 69, labeled it "the kind of course you could not take a run at"

because of difficult pin placements.

"There were seven holes today where if you put the ball on the wrong side of the hole, you could put it right off the green," the five-time Masters champion said. "My putting was okay, I just didn't make much."

The 69 left Nicklaus in a tie with former U.S. Open winner Lou Graham, young pros Andy Bean and Craig Stadler and the 1970 Masters champ, Billy Casper, who at 47 said he "struck a blow for the old folks."

Veteran Rod Funseth, who surprisingly tied for second here last year, and Ray Floyd, winner of last week's Greater Greensboro Open, were in a group at 70. South African Gary Player, the defending champion, was one of eight players in at 1-under 71.

Hale Irwin, often a contender but never a winner in the Masters, had a 72, while Tom Weiskopf, Lee Trevino, Ben Crenshaw and Lanny Wadkins were in a large group at 73.

ROUGH SPOT FOR PALMER — Arnold Palmer hits from behind Dogwoods and Azaleas on number two green Thursday during the opening round of the Masters at the Augusta National Golf Club. Palmer is a four time winner of the Masters, and shot an opening round of 74.

Howard College honors athletes

The Howard College athletes were honored Wednesday night in the Cactus Room on the campus at the annual Howard College Sports Banquet. Both the men and women in basketball and rodeo were the special guests for their achievements in the school year.

Women's basketball coach Don Stevens presented the Hawk Queens, who finished with an outstanding mark of 22-9. Stevens awarded the Most Valuable Queen to Joanne Leffridge, a freshman from Victoria.

Rodeo Coach Skipper Driver then introduced the rodeo team. Both the men's and women's team had very successful years, and will be hoping to further their awards in June at the national meet in Louisiana. Driver presented the award of the outstanding cowgirl to Pam Mitchell and the outstanding cowboy to Joe Martinez.

Athletic Director Harold Wilder concluded the night by presenting the Hawk basketball team. He praised the sophomores for their outstanding leadership under adverse conditions and the team's unwillingness to quit in the latter stages of the season.

Wilder presented the assist and rebounding award to Allen Bonds, the free throw award to Elroy Green, the leading scorer honor to Robby Randolph, the newcomer of the year award to Rocky Rawls, and the Hustling Hawk to R.Q. Tolliver.

Four teams face do-or die situations

NBA playoffs resume tonight

The Phoenix Suns may walk into their dressing room and find track shoes instead of sneakers before they try to sweep their best-of-three National Basketball Association playoff series from the Portland Trail Blazers.

"A three-game series is like a 100-yard dash," explained Phoenix Coach John MacLeod. "Any time you have a chance to finish a series, you better do it."

The Suns have a chance to finish the Trail Blazers Friday night, since they took the opener 107-103 at Phoenix Tuesday night.

Portland isn't the only team needing a fast finish to stay alive as first-round action continues. The New Jersey Nets, Houston Rockets and Los Angeles Lakers all faced do-or-die situations.

The Trail Blazers will have the homecourt advantage for their last-ditch attempt, but the Suns may well have the confidence advantage.

"We won 50 games this year," said MacLeod. "Those weren't gifts. Teams didn't just lie down and let us run over them."

The Philadelphia 76ers' fast break ran over the Nets in Tuesday night's rough 122-114 victory, and New Jersey knows it can't afford to let that happen again.

"They just got too many points on the break," said Nets Coach Kevin Loughery, noting the 76ers converted 31 breaks into 29 points. "If we can contain the break, we can beat them. If we can't, we won't beat them."

The Nets — especially Loughery — might also do well to control their tempers. Loughery was ejected from the opener after drawing his second technical foul, and so was guard John Williamson, who led New Jersey with 38 points.

"It's a matter of principle," said Loughery. "Some of the calls were outrageous. We're just looking to get fair calls. If that happens, our chances are as good as any."

The Atlanta Hawks' chances of sweeping their series with Houston seem better than average, since they won Tuesday night's opener 109-106 on the road and can clinch the set with a triumph at their home arena, the Omni.

Since the Hawks have won their last 16 home games and have lost seven of 41 home matches this season, things appear to be looking up.

BREAKS RECORD — Steve Lindquist swims the 100-yard breaststroke at the AAU short course championships at East Los Angeles College Swim Stadium Wednesday, breaking a U.S. record with a time of 54.08.

Rangers whip Cleveland

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — In the past seven years, the Texas Rangers have gone through 29 third basemen, and none had the fielding credentials of Buddy Bell.

The difference was obvious Thursday night as the Rangers downed Cleveland, 5-3, to become the only unbeaten team in the major leagues.

Ironically, the key play of the game came on a sharp basesloaded grounder by Bell to last year's Ranger third baseman, Toby Harrah. Bell, who played for Cleveland in 1978, drilled a grounder to Harrah who let the ball trickle through his legs as two runs scored in a three-run, third inning.

"I hit the ball good and it was going so fast it would take quick hands to catch it," said Bell, who has become the darling of the fans along the third baseline at Arlington Stadium.

"You have to have sympathy for any player who gets an error," said Bell, one of the slickest fielders in the American League. "The fans here have been great to me. It has been a great experience."

Harrah disputed the official scorer's call, saying "You could see why I'm glad to get out of Dallas... I don't know who was scoring, but I think he missed the play."

"The ball hit me on the heel of the glove... Perhaps I could have made the play. They (the fans and the writers) forget I only made 11 errors last year, and I played 50 games at shortstop."

Bell said he was worried about being accepted when he came to Texas.

"Being accepted by the ball players was my No. 1 worry, and then I was replacing a guy who had been a favorite in this town for seven years," said Bell. "I sort of had second thoughts. But now everything is great."

Bell said Harrah wouldn't let the error affect his play, adding "He is too good a ball player to let that happen."

Kentucky suspends athletes

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Eight University of Kentucky football players have been suspended from the team for the 1979 season, Coach Fran Curci announced, stemming from charges made against the players in a rape and sodomy case.

Charged in the case were quarterback Larry McCrimmon; defensive back Venus Meaux; halfbacks Henry Parks and Norman Green; fullbacks Randy Brooks and Charles Jackson; and tackles Earl Wilson and Robert Cobb.

McCrimmon also was charged with first-degree sexual abuse.

Umps gaining support

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The sixweek-old major league umpires strike is gaining support and sympathizers, says veteran umpire Doug Harvey.

"The thing is starting to swing our way," said Harvey, optimistic after amateur umpire associations in Cleveland and San Diego voted to honor the strike.

Harvey, a veteran National League umpire, said the ballplayers are already putting pressure to have the amateur umpires removed.

"The situation with the amateur umpires is getting worse," he said.

He praised the San Diego

County Umpires Association Thursday for unanimously voting not to work this weekend's games between the San Diego Padres and the Cincinnati Reds.

Harvey, a resident of San Diego, thanked his former colleagues for "standing up — which is American — to keep us from being stomped into the ground."

He said the players can no longer tolerate the missed calls, adding that three veteran members of the Los Angeles Dodgers have called for getting the regular umpires back.

Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, asked how long he could accept working with amateurs, said: "My acceptance has ended."

SHADES OF THE WORLD SERIES! — New York Mets pitcher Pat Zachry reacts after forcing the Philadelphia Phillies Pete Rose, left, at first base to make the final out of the ninth inning and win the game 3-2 at Shea Stadium Thursday. Zachry pitched with men on base in every inning and put Rose out four times in key situations to win his second victory of the year. Mets second baseman Kelvin Chapman, right, runs to hug Zachry.

Major League Roundup

By The Associated Press

For Don Robinson, it's a matter of control. For John Milner, it's a matter of self-control. Robinson, whose wildness cost him a chance at a victory last weekend, was razor-sharp on the mound for Pittsburgh Thursday night.

And Milner, once an unhappy starter on the mediocre New York Mets but now a satisfied reserve with the Pirates, made the most of a rare opportunity.

Angels 7, Twins 1

Willie Mays Aikens drove in three runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly, and Chris Knapp scattered four hits to lead California over Minnesota. In the second inning, Don Baylor doubled and was caught in a rundown on Joe Rudi's fielder's choice grounder before Aikens hit his first major league homer, a blast over the right field fence off Roger Erikson. In the fourth, Aikens doubled and scored on a double by Bobby Grich. And in the fifth, after former Twin Rod Carew drew a walk and took third on another double by Baylor, Aikens hit a sacrifice fly off reliever Jeff Holly.

Yankees 5, Orioles 0

Graig Nettles and Chris Chambliss cracked successive home runs to ignite a five-run New York burst in the second inning and Tommy John pitched a three-hitter as the Yankees defeated Baltimore. Nettles, who went 6-for-13 in the three-game series at Baltimore with six RBI, connected off Mike Flanagan after a leadoff single by Reggie Jackson. Two pitches later Chambliss homered.

John allowed only one hit after easing out of a bases-loaded jam in the first inning and recorded 18 outs on grounders.

Red Sox 12, Brewers 10

Jim Dwyer's first American League hit, a two-run pinch single with two outs in the ninth inning, led Boston over Milwaukee. Loser Reggie Cleveland walked Jim Rice to start the ninth and Carl Yastrzemski, who hit a grand slam homer in the seventh, followed with a single off Jerry Augustine. George Scott then bunted past pitcher Bill Castro and beat it out to lead the bases with none out. Jack Brohamer then grounded to Castro, who started a double play by way of home plate. Dwight Evans was walked intentionally to reload the bases, and Dwyer followed with a line single to left.

Blue Jays 9, White Sox 6

Rick Cerone's three-run homer capped a six-run, eighth-inning rally to lead Toronto over Chicago. A leadoff homer by Rico Carty and a two-run single by Roy Howell preceded Cerone's big hit.

"I'm not a home-run hitter and I wasn't thinking of home runs when I got up there," said Cerone. "In fact, I didn't think it was going out, but the wind helped it a little. I did know it was deep enough to score the tying run from third."

Mariners 4, A's 3

Pinch-runner Joe Simpson scored on a passed ball in the eighth inning as Seattle rallied to edge Oakland. Simpson ran for Bruce Bochte, who reached on first baseman Jeff Newman's error which let Seattle's Dan Meyer score the tying run.

Simpson was sacrificed to second, took third after walks to Ruppert Jones and Bill Stein and scored the winning run on a passed ball by catcher Jim Essian.

Mets 3, Phillies 2

The Phils had plenty of punch against Pat Zachry, but not when it counted. The Mets' slender right-hander survived a 12-hit barrage by squeezing out of one jam after another. His biggest feat was getting Pete Rose out four times with Phils in scoring position.

"I have no special feelings about Pete Rose. I was just out there trying to get him out," said Zachry. Last year he showed more than enough feeling. When he gave up a single during Rose's hitting streak, he took out his frustration by kicking a dugout step and kicking himself right out of the second half of the season with a broken bone in his right foot.

The most damaging hit off Zachry was Garry Maddox's home run. The most damaging off loser Randy Lerch was Lee Mazzilli's fifth-inning double. Mazzilli stole third and came home with the winning run on Kelvin Chapman's sacrifice fly.

Braves 10, Dodgers 2

Four runs batted in by Barry Bonnell and the four-hit pitching of Larry McWilliams carried the Braves past Los Angeles, which lost for the third straight time after winning four in a row.

Bonnell hit his third homer, a two-run shot, off Andy Messersmith in the second inning and ripped a two-run double in the ninth. Dale Murphy also homered for Atlanta.

Giants 4, Padres 3

San Diego pitcher Eric Rasmussen breezed through the first seven hitters he faced, then ran headlong into trouble. Before he got out of it he'd given up a San Francisco run in the third and three in the fourth, two on Darrell Evans' homer.

Dave Winfield hit a two-run homer for the Padres.

YOUNG IDEAS

By DICK YOUNG

They scared the hell out of Reggie Jackson the other day when he was sick. They examined him, and told him he had some kind of insidious virus that was ravaging some vital organ "that filters the liquid of my body," as Reggie describes it. As Reggie describes it, it sounded like a diseased kidney. It sounded as though his career was endangered.

"It was very frightening," he said. And then they re-examined him, and found something entirely different. "They found intestinal parasites that were draining the vitamins from my body and making me weak," he said. He is on medication. When he beats the parasites, he will go out and try to beat the Milwaukee Brewers. He says he will play today, but maybe that's rushing things. If not today, tomorrow. The important thing is soon.

He didn't play the opener, when the Yankees got licked. They were a bunch of singles hitters, not Yankees. Getting licked had become a carryover habit from spring training. They couldn't turn it on when it counted, as they, in their supreme confidence, had claimed they would do.

'JUST ONE BALLGAME'

"Hey, it's just one ballgame," said Reggie Jax. He was seated on his locker stool, half-stripped as newsmen gathered around, trying to get him to say that the Yankees are complacent.

"Look," said Reggie patiently. "We got beat by a guy who won 22 games last year, and he could have won 25 with a little luck, same as Guidry. So Guidry got knocked out. That happens. It will happen again before the season ends. And Jim Rice hit a home run up in Boston. Everything is normal."

"Not everything," said a newsmen. "The Mets won, big. Heber got four hits."

"Fine, good for them," said Reggie Jax.

"Would you like to play them in the World Series?" said a fantasizing newsmen.

Reggie gave it a moment's thought and decided not to be too flip. "Sure," he said. "It would be close."

"Close?"

"Yeah, the distance, the two stadiums."

"Not the Series! It wouldn't be close!"

"Listen," said Reggie, untrapped. "If they make the World Series, they'll be a tough team."

A newsmen from Milwaukee tried to lead back to his local angle. "Which team do you most fear in the division?" said Lou Chapman.

"That's a tough question," said Reggie.

A kibitzing New York newsmen said, "Tell him Milwaukee and make him happy."

"No no," said Reggie. "I say that, and they see it in Boston and Baltimore. I know the kind of trouble my crap stirs up!" He laughed at his self-analysis. He wanted to get back to his treatise on complacency. He wanted to kill that notion, in print, in the minds of his teammates, in the minds of newsmen.

"I read something like us being fat and it makes me feel crappy," he said. "Makes me feel I'm laying back and taking money, I know if I feel that way, I'm not like that."

"Cincinnati was like that. Cincinnati got fat. It can happen," said a newsmen.

"Not in New York. In New York they would write back up the truck and dump them into the river, like the Knicks. Hell, the press here will kill you. I live in Manhattan. I have to walk through that crap."

He had another thought. "You play for George Steinbrenner, you're not gonna get complacent," he said. "He'd go out of his blanket mind! And Bob Lemon, he'd go nuts. Lemon is calm to you guys, but he can go wild!"

Somehow the talk turned back to Reggie's health, and his diet, and cholesterol.

"I don't eat red meat," Reggie Jax said. "It's been three years. I stopped first to lose a little weight."

"Then it's not because of beef prices," a newsmen needed the man who makes almost a million a year.

"No," he said, seriously, "but if I were eating beef, I would boycott it. I think people should do it two days a week, not one, for economic and health reasons. I think they should do it with gasoline, too. Just boycott. They keep raising gasoline prices so the oil company's profits won't go down."

"You work for Getty, don't you?" cautioned a newsmen.

"Yeah, I work for Getty," said Reggie Jax. "That has nothing to do with it." He was strong again. Defiant. Ready to play.

Rossman-Galindez in 'Super Brawl' tomorrow

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The bout was called off because the WBA and the Nevada State Athletic Commission could not agree on who should appoint the officials.

"Boxing is being run by guys who sit behind big desks, smoke cigars and drink whiskey all night," a disgusted 22-year-old Rossman said at the time.

Saturday, when he shows up in the ring at the Superdome, Rossman this time is expected to get company in the person of Galindez. The WBA and the Louisiana State Athletic Commission have agreed that the WBA should appoint neutral officials, meaning no Americans and no Argentinians.

When Rossman, of Turnersville, N.J., won the title from Galindez — the same night that Muhammad Ali regained the heavyweight championship from Leon Spinks — there were three Latin American officials.

Saturday's fight will be the second defense of the title for Rossman, who stopped Aldo Traveraro of Italy in the seventh round in Philadelphia last Dec. 5. The bout is scheduled to be televised by ABC on its Wide World of Sports show beginning at 5 p.m. EST.

HOT WHEELS — Although the thoughts of having your star basketball player in a wheelchair would give most coaches bad dreams the sight of Michigan State's Earvin Johnson in one was only entertainment for the thousands of fans who came to watch the Spartans play a local wheelchair basketball team in East Lansing Wednesday night. The 1979 NCAA basketball champions were participating in the benefit match for the Multiple Sclerosis Society playing a team called the Globe Rollers from the Lansing Michigan area.

US All-Stars edge past Texas schoolboys

HOUSTON (AP) — It wasn't until the fourth quarter that Sidney Green, Brooklyn, N.Y., and Billy Varner, New Kensington, Pa., decided it was time to put an end to the pesky Texas All-Stars.

Green and Varner fueled an early fourth quarter surge that finally allowed the United States All-Stars to break away from the Texans and hold on for a 107-104 victory Thursday night in the second annual schoolboy Roundball Basketball Classic in the Summit.

The upset minded Texans, led by Houston Milby passing and shooting wizard Robert Williams, led by 37-27 at one point in the second quarter and trailed by only one point, 54-53 at halftime.

The talented U.S. team spurred early in the third period but Claude Riley of Crockett, Texas hit 12 of his 23 points in the last six minutes of the third quarter to narrow the U.S. lead to 80-79 going into the final quarter.

That's when Green, voted the most valuable U.S. player, and Varner, who finished with 12 points, went to work. Green hit seven points and Varner scored six in the first half of the final quarter when the U.S. took a 98-86 lead.

The Texans, who lost a 91-82 decision in the inaugural classic last year, then narrowed the gap to 105-102 with 57 seconds to play on two free throws by clutch player Ronnie Blake, who led Lufkin to the Texas state Class 4A championship last season.

Williams, headed for the University of Houston, was voted the most valuable Texas All-Star and finished with 23 points.

George Turner of Hitchcock, who will attend Southern University, added 17 points for the Texans and Blake, the smallest man on the floor at 5-7, scored 12.

Green hit 20 points to lead the U.S. team while Charles Hurt, Shelbyville, Ky. hit 17 and Tony Bruin, New York, scored 14.

Home and Garden

Home grown vegetables a savings

With the coming of spring, active life returns to the garden and - presto - it is planting time. To many rose lovers, that means the time has come to look over the recent rose introductions and try to choose some of the very best for the garden. The new roses for 1979 and the three All-America award winners, chosen after two years of trials in 25 test gardens are the friendship, a sweetly fragrant pink hybrid tea; paradise, a most distinctive and appealing lavender and pink hybrid tea; and sundowner, a gleaming orange, fragrant grandiflora.

Descriptions for these three award winners are as follows:

The friendship rose is a rugged, strong-growing, bushy hybrid tea rose. It makes a tall bush, producing a profusion of very large blooms throughout the season. The blossoms are held on long, tall stems most suitable for cutting.

The color descriptions of this rose vary from coral-rose, salmon red outer petals with flesh pink inner petals, coral-rose to flesh, and any one of them could be right, depending upon when you happen to look at the four to five inch blooms.

The buds, long-ovoid and deep coral in color, deepen to a rich coral pink as the petals roll back and open into the large, fully double flowers. Strong, vigorous, robust, the plant is well covered with good, heavy, glossy foliage and it often reaches the height of six feet.

Sundowner is a very vigorous grandiflora with medium to large gleaming-orange blossoms, borne on very long stems. When first opening, this rose has such an intense coloring that it actually seems florescent.

The forty petaled flowers are slightly ruffled, with excellent form and substance. As the bloom approaches maturity, salmon tints appear on the outer edges of the petals, giving the rose an apricot cast, gradually fading to a soft pink as the petals drop.

This rose has shown itself to have considerable resistance to rose diseases. It is the grandiflora rose to be introduced into the United States.

Paradise is one of the most distinctive and novel hybrid tea roses ever produced, developing a most unusual color combination and with it, presenting a flower of striking beauty.

From the long, pointed, deep ruby buds, to the fully double four inch, exquisitely formed open blooms, many shades of lavender, purple, bright pink and rich ruby red, come and go during the various stages of flower opening. As the bud unfolds, this center becomes silver-lavender, with each petal edged in vivid, bright pink, presenting a rose with an entirely new and unique color combination. As the flower ages, or in bright, cool weather, the silver lavender deepens and the pink becomes a bright, ruby red, appearing to have been literally poured around each petal margin, from which it gradually spreads over the whole flower. gradually spreads over the color to maturity and as the petals fall there are bursts of new ruby buds ready and waiting to take their place.

The flowers are truly classically tea rose shaped, distinctly fragrant, and are produced on fairly long, strong canes in great abundance.

Lawngrasses provide backdrop to flowers

A lawn is to the flower garden what framing is to a picture. Without a mellow backdrop of green grass, flowers and shrub beds will not show the best advantage. Most gardeners are tuned in on the beautiful new petunia, marigold, and chrysanthemum cultivars; elegant roses in endless variety; and select ornamental shrubs from the far corners of the earth. But many gardeners are unaware that the breeding of new lawngrasses has kept pace with these shower facets of horticulture.

As you ready your flowerbeds, consider how much better massed plantings of ornamentals will stand out if surrounded by the glistening green of low-growing Kentucky bluegrasses or perennial ryegrasses. Innumerable named cultivars of both are now on the market as weed-free seed of excellent quality. A list of varieties worthy of the modern lawn is yours for the asking from the Lawn Institute, 991 West Fifth Street, Marysville, Ohio 43040. Please enclose a

Even the smallest-size family garden, 10 by 15 feet, will grow about $125 worth of fresh vegetables that can be considered direct savings over store-bought vegetables. These figures, from the National Garden Bureau, can be increased if you freeze surplus crops such as tomatoes, beans, corn, zucchini, squash, brussel sprouts and beets from your garden.

This is especially noteworthy today as inflation costs leap from month to month. But a garden has many additional advantages.

Once a garden is started, people want to spend more time in it. The more time you spend enjoying your garden, the less time you will want to spend away from home. This saves on gasoline, dining out and other away-from-home costs.

Veteran growers explain that starting any garden from seeds indoors - flowers or vegetables - is the best method to follow. You get the plants you want, can try new varieties which may not be available as seedlings, and plants are also likely to be healthier as well.

And science has made it easier to grow your own plants indoors from seed.

Kys-Kube Growing Blocks, which are self-contained, sterile peat cubes developed by Keyes Fibre, Montvale, New Jersey, come in a variety of sizes and shapes to fit most needs. The newest item is a 50-cube tray pack in which an entire garden can be started while the ground outdoors lies hardened and temperatures hover near freezing.

The cubes are simple to use. Saturate them with water until they are uniformly moist. Don't soak, because the fertilizer that's part of the cubes will leach out. Each cube has a preformed planting hole. Drop in a seed, pinch or dibble it shut. All that's left to do is wait for the seeds to germinate. A variety of plants can be included in a single tray. You might even want to develop an entire vegetable garden - corn, beans, cabbage, cucumbers, peppers, squash, tomatoes, onions, etc. - along with a few rows of colorful plants such as coleus, carnations, begonias, or viburnum.

Kys-Kube peat blocks are biodegradable and add humus to the soil when they decompose. Transplanting shock to the plant is reduced because the roots are not disturbed. You plant pot and all.

Starting seeds indoors has its therapeutic values, as well. It gets one out of the such as photography (44 percent), fishing (35 percent), and boating (34 percent).

Many doctors are recommending gardening for therapeutic reasons. Overworked executives seeking an escape from work pressures, elderly people needing exercise, even nervous homemakers, are finding that gardening helps them with their problems.

Professional people - doctors, lawyers and bankers - are the second most active group of gardeners in the United States, with farm families the only group which gardens more. Women among these groups favor flower gardening while men are more interested in vegetable gardening, the survey noted.

There are nutritional reasons to garden. Along with sleeping, eating is one of life's most important bodily functions. The quality of food you eat deserves consideration. Vegetables from the garden not only have better flavor than store-bought kinds (the latter have to be picked prematurely to ripen during transit), but fresh vegetables are nutritionally superior. The longer you keep any vegetable, the greater the vitamin loss. The difference in taste is also noticeable.

There are also social advantages to gardening. It can be a family affair in which everyone can participate and enjoy the benefits. The same cannot be said for all other great pastimes.

It pays to get a headstart with seeds for this year's garden. Your health and social life, not to mention your pocketbook, will benefit.

Bark mulch offsets summer's drought

Mulch your plantings in April with four to six inches of bark mulch to offset predicted lack of rain during the summer months.

Weather forecasts predict hot, dry weather for much of the U.S. during summer months. This traditionally results in the death of many new plantings of trees and shrubs, even though most homeowners think that they water properly under these conditions.

Proper mulching of trees and shrubs provides several benefits to your plants and materially increases survival rates.

Use of bark for mulching provides a material which slowly decomposes, thus adding to the organic content of the soil area covered.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, APR. 14, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The day starts with personal pleasure, followed by dramatic conditions which can be turned to your advantage by an alert attitude on your part. Secrets come to light later in the day.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Come to a fine accord with the one you love early in the day and later engage in practical affairs that are important.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure to handle outside affairs wisely today. Study a new plan whereby you can advance in your line of endeavor.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan time to set up a new and better system for handling your regular duties. Take no chances with money at this time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Engage in creative work that appeals to you in the morning. Later go out to amusements you enjoy.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Look over your surroundings and make repairs to property. A new venture you have in mind should be studied before entering into it.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can make headway now in routines that were difficult to handle earlier in the week. Your hunches are accurate at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good time to handle personal duties. Try not to be forceful with anyone today and then all goes well with you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Unexpected events occur today, so be on the alert and handle them well. Establish more harmony with family members.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Listen to the small voice of your intuition and follow its promptings today, and get excellent results. Express happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get in touch with good friends early in the day and plan to see them for whatever your purposes. Be less critical of others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make plans early in the day to engage in favorite hobby with congenials. Be sure of what you are doing.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Go to new sites and meet new persons who can help you make greater progress in the future. Show that you have ability.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to easily do things which are difficult for others to do, so be sure to direct the education long lines of research and investigations for best results. Teach to be more open-minded, otherwise success will be diminished.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Mayoral runoff election likely in Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The hotly contested Fort Worth mayoral election today appeared headed for a runoff between Councilman Woodie Woods and incumbent Hugh Parmer, who trailed Woods by 23 votes when the results of last Saturday's election were first announced.

In a recount demanded by Parmer, Woods picked up four more votes Thursday, giving him a 27-vote edge. But 30 written votes also were uncovered, apparently denying Woods — by two votes — a clear majority.

The recount tally showed Woods defeating Parmer 15,578 to 15,551 in a race where they were the only two announced candidates. With the written votes, it would take 15,580 for a majority of all votes cast.

Canvass officers were returning early today to a county warehouse on Fort Worth's north side to check for discrepancies in written ballots on three machines.

The City Council was expected to decide today — after a noon canvass to recount totals and determine the status of the written votes — whether to call a runoff.

When the April 7 election results were first tabulated, only six written votes were counted. In the recount, 24 more surfaced, for a total of 30, but two of the writes — one for Woods and one for Parmer — are being discounted.

County Judge Mike Moncrief and 322nd District Judge John Hill, who were in charge of the recount, discovered two minor errors in the tally of voting machines. In one, Woods lost two votes, while in the other, Parmer lost six votes.

Woods contended he should be declared the winner in spite of the written votes. He said persons who were not declared written candidates could not have votes cast for them counted.

Topics will include beef cattle marketing, farm parity, cotton manufacturing and legislation affecting agri-business. For businessmen and industrial leaders, topics of interest will include industrial development, capital resources, economics and financing, usury laws and pending legislation.

Johnnie Lou Avery, BSACC president, will welcome the participants at 9:45 a.m., followed by addresses from Congressman Charles Stenholm and Shane White of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Stenholm will speak again at 12:30 p.m. after lunch, this time in a more humorous address about the "First Impressions of a Freshman Congressman."

The interest sessions, one for agriculture and agribusiness and another for business and industry, will begin simultaneously at 1:15 p.m. Speakers for the agriculture sessions will be Dave Cox, vice president in charge of economic research and development for Cotton Incorporated of Raleigh, N.C., Nita Gibson, manager of Cotton Pool Incorporated in Seminole, Dr. Ed. Uvacek, livestock marketing specialist for the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, A&M University and Rep. Stenholm.

Speakers for the business-industry session will be White, Mike McAndrew of the Texas Industrial Commission in Austin, Oscar Castillon, Texas Electric Service Company of Fort Worth and Ed McClelland, with the Federal Reserve System out of Dallas.

The closing wrap-up session, including an evaluation of the seminar by participants, will be at 4 p.m., and the seminar should adjourn at 4:30 p.m.

The Chamber hopes to make the seminar an annual affair.

Clayton speech sidetracks bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A parliamentary ruling by Speaker Bill Clayton sidetracked a House bill Thursday that would strip city councils of their authority to set electric rates.

Electric utility companies sought passage of the bill because it would enable them to present rate increase requests directly to the Texas Public Utility Commission.

City officials opposed the measure.

Dionne Warwick thought Red Cross was only about hurricanes.

"True. I always thought of Red Cross as a kind of rescue force in times of disaster and little more.

"Then I learned that in towns and cities across America, Red Cross gives the kind of help to individuals that you rarely hear about, because it doesn't make headlines in the newspaper.

"Red Cross, for instance, helps elderly people get to doctors' appointments... and even to the store. They help veterans get back on the track. They teach kids to swim... and how to save lives.

"I found out that if you added up all the different humanitarian jobs Red Cross does in different towns, the number comes to over 100!

"That's why I'm helping to keep Red Cross ready. And why I hope you do, too."

Keep Red Cross ready.
