Victims shot seven times

By JAMES WERRELL
Initial autopsy reports show that seven bullets were used to slay Ann Laurie Reeves, 38, and her son, Tracey Reeves, 15.

The bodies of both were found nude, 500 yards north of the Centerpoint School, 1 a.m. Thursday. Mrs. Reeves had been shot once in the head, and twice in the hand with a small caliber weapon.

"It's difficult to say why she was shot in the hand. These autopsy reports are just preliminary, and we should know more when the complete reports come in sometime early next week," said Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard.

Tracey Reeves had been shot twice in the head and twice in the chest. The head wounds of both victims were in the area of the ear and temple.

"The autopsy also showed facial wounds on both of the victims. This would indicate an assault of some kind," added Standard.

The bodies of both victims were transported to Hendrick Memorial Center in Abilene, Thursday morning, after an autopsy was ordered by Justice of the Peace Bob West. A Howard County Deputy was dispatched, 7 p.m. Thursday, to Abilene to retrieve the initial report.

Another piece of evidence of questionable value was discovered on the North Service Road of IS-20, near the I-20 Texaco Station. The station is owned by the Reeves family, and is probably where the abduction of Mrs. Reeves and her son began.

Officers found a pair of bloodied men's undershorts, with a hole in the groin area, Thursday afternoon. "We really don't even know if it is connected with this case. But the underwear is evidence that was picked up, and it will be checked like anything else," said Police Lt. Claude Morris. (See Victims, page 2A, col. 3)

'It doesn't seem real'

City stunned by homicides

By EILEEN MCGUIRE, ROBBIE CROW and MICKIE DICKSON

Disbelief, then shock that such a thing could happen in this normally quiet town, is how news of the double homicide of Ann Reeves and her son, Tracey, has registered in the minds of Big Spring citizens.

"I can't believe it happened...not in Big Spring," was the phrase most often used Thursday as the community attempted to come to grips with what had taken place the night before.

One of the grisliest, most bazaar crimes committed in Big Spring, according to Sheriff A.N. Standard, the deaths of Mrs. Reeves and her son have left a feeling of uneasiness and fright in some of the town's residents.

"Last night, I wouldn't have thought anything about working late," Mary Helen Bustamante, a beautician at Bernadette's Beauty Center said Thursday, "but I wouldn't work late now."

A former student of Mrs. Reeves at Valtai Reeves School of Hair Dressing and Cosmetology, Ms. Bustamante said she learned of the slaying when she arrived at work Thursday morning.

"My boss told me. She knew that I knew Ann well. It scared me. It still scares me."

"I can't believe it...it doesn't seem real," said Saletta Crow, also a former student of Mrs. Reeves.

More than seven hours after learning of the murders, Mrs. Crow said she still hadn't been able to digest the news.

"My husband called me after I got to work and told me," she said. "I knew her pretty well. I just can't believe it. This is going to have a whole lot of impact on how safe I feel."

The shock and uneasiness felt by Ms. Bustamante and Mrs. Crow were expressed over and over again by Big Spring beauticians Thursday. Some tried to rationalize the murder of their friend by theorizing on what had taken place.

"We're all stunned, upset and shocked," revealed Eloise Faulkenberry, owner of Eloise Personalized Hair Fashions, of the still-unsolved incident.

"There are so many different stories, but very few solid facts," stated the beautician.

Robbery has been suggested as a possible motive for the murders.

"If the motive was robbery, then why did they kill her and her son," questioned Ann Clark of Faye's Beauty Salon.

"It had to be somebody on drugs because no one in their right mind could do such a horrid thing," she concluded.

It is the opinion of Mrs. Clark that the murderer or murderers bought gas at the station and then parked their car behind Walls Industries, went back to the station and forced the two victims at gun point to get into Mrs. Reeves' car and drive them back to their car behind Walls for a fast getaway.

"Things like that just don't happen here in Big Spring," stated an obviously stunned Bee Kelly at Kut and Kurl Beauty Salon.

In the words of one beauty operator who requested that she not be identified, "Some dopehead must have stopped to get some gas and didn't have the money. He was probably high and just robbed them and killed them."

Though expressed in many ways, the general feeling in Big Spring among fellow workers, students and friends of the late Mrs. Reeves and her son, Tracey, the final consensus is the same—everyone is stunned.

Eddie Lou Pherntton of Coahoma Beauty Center feels that the murder of Mrs. Ann Reeves and her son, Tracey is "terrible." "I feel that whoever did it knew her. Ann put me through beauty school and was a wonderful person."

"A young boy with long hair, wearing beads, watched all the girls coming out of the Beauty School every day, and one day he called Linda, another student who was walking out with me 'Foxy,' and really scared us. I ran to my car and locked it."

Ms. Pherntton has been out of school two years. She says that she hopes whoever did it will hang by the neck. If the guilty person is not caught, she hopes he will never sleep again.

Helen Brown of Milady Beauty Shoppe says that it breaks her heart. Mrs. Reeves was a close friend whom she loved. Helen filled up her car at the Texaco at Highland Shopping on Mondays and always saw Ann there up until recently. She didn't hear of the murder until 1 p.m. Thursday, when a customer told her.

Juanita Lewis of Quita's Hair Fashions was "in shock." She ran a shop for the Reeves, The Royal Beauty Center, on Wasson Road for two years. Both Charles and Ann Reeves were very nice people to work for, she said she feels that robbery was the motive.

Peggy Cottingham of Vogue Beauty Salon says it's "unbelievable, unreal." She and the four other operators were close to Mrs. Reeves. They had trained under Mrs. Reeves in the Beauty School.

Wanda Mize of Vogue Beauty Salon has a daughter, Starla, who is a student at the Beauty School. She says the students are extremely upset—practically in shock.

"Word is out that the money was taken from the bags," stated Delores Craig, beauty operator at La Contesa Beauty Salon. "But we've heard from several other sources that the money wasn't taken. I wonder what kind of a nut we've got on the loose here."

Mrs. Craig was a student of the Valtai Reeves Beauty School.

Wanda Nickle of Wanda's Beauty Shop said that it was a tragic thing and that she's very sympathetic with the family.

Nellie Kerby of the Midway Beauty Salon on East Highway was very broken up about it. She and her daughter, Gayla Coleman, both went to the beauty school. They said they thought of Ann Reeves as "a very dear person who was good to both of them."

Zelda Abbe of Zelda's Beauty Shop said that she was in shock over it. "It was a horrible thing to happen here in Big Spring."

"You think of things like this happening to people in Chicago or some other big city, but not here."

Several nuclear plants to shut down voluntarily

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nuclear power plants designed by Babcock & Wilcox, the builder of the stricken Three Mile Island unit, will shut down voluntarily for safety improvements, a top Nuclear Regulatory Commission official announced today.

Harold Denton, who had recommended Wednesday that the NRC order temporary shutdowns, told the commission that utility companies operating the plants have promised to shut them down voluntarily to conduct new safety analyses, make safety modifications, prepare new emergency procedures and improve the training of plant operators.

Denton said earlier this week that the plants would have to be closed at least two months to iron out any technical problems, and perhaps much longer if design changes must be made.

Utility officials have said such a shutdown could keep the plants closed through the peak summer months, leading to sporadic blackouts in some areas served by the Babcock & Wilcox plants.

Of voters Saturday

Candidates await verdict

With the city runoff election just hours away, the two candidates for the remaining seat on the City Council exchanged last minute political blows.

John Massey, who challenges incumbent Polly Mays, cited spending by city leaders as the main issue in the campaign.

"I have been asked what I consider to be the main issue facing Big Spring residents. I maintained in the first election and I continued to state during this run-off election that the biggest single issue facing Big Spring residents is the spending being done by our city leaders.

"I have said many times that we are headed for financial disaster if city spending is not brought under control: Big Spring will end up in the same financial condition as Cleveland, Ohio, or New York City.

"My beliefs were supported recently when outgoing City Manager Harry Nagel stated that he did not believe our city could operate another fiscal year without the raising of more money or having a severe cutback on city services.

"There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that a tax increase is imminent for Big Spring residents in the very near future if the present spending habits of our city government are not halted. The various city departments must be forced to stay within their allotted budgets. The other alternative would be to cut back severely on city services and that would result possibly in layoffs of some city employees.

"I believe both a tax increase and a cutback on services could be avoided if our city leaders would halt deficit spending in our city government.

"Recently, in one month alone, our city spent over one million dollars, and during the past four weeks, our city has spent approximately seven hundred thousand dollars. In an eight week period, the city has spent nearly two million dollars. The yearly budget is approximately five million dollars, and our city simply cannot continue spending in such manner if we are to avoid a tax increase or a cutback in city services.

"If the voters of Big Spring elect me to the city council, I will work to keep the spending within the budget.

Mrs. Mays defended the city's financial policy: "Let's look at the record. When I went on the city council, the city tax rate was $1.40 per $100 value (assessed on the basis of 60 percent of the 1958 market base).

"That went unchanged until 1977 when the rate went up 25 cents and the basis of assessment remained the same. So, when you stretch it out, the rate has gone up 25 cents in 10 years.

"That's 17.85 percent in that many years. Compare that with the rate of inflation in that period. How much has your food bill gone up in that time? How much have your clothing, your housing, your utility payments gone up?"

"One reason we have been able to hold the line is that many years ago, you voted the city sales tax, which expands as the economy expands. We have tried to use this wisely, and I think we have succeeded."

In a news release issued on the same day, Mrs. Mays addressed the issue of rising prices for water in the city: "It has been said (by my opponent) that it is impossible to relate to a water hike when the city is unable to account for a deficit that has occurred in the water department."

"First, there would be a surplus in the water department if all the revenues generated by it were used only for that purpose. Some of these funds are used to finance other city operations, and when such transfers occur, a temporary imbalance may result.

"In due time, incoming revenues correct this. The reason for the rate increase basically is that the price of our water is going up, just like everything else. Perhaps we operated too long without a raise to keep from passing it on to you.

"If we did not change the rate schedule, in time we not only could not transfer to other funds, we could also not even pay our own way in buying and distributing water."

Voting will take place throughout the city from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. Saturday. Citizens are urged to get out and vote for the candidate of their choice.

In Smithsonian Institution

'Timely' exhibit begins

WASHINGTON (AP) — At a time when many Americans are giving thought to their timepieces because of Daylight Saving Time, the Smithsonian Institution has mounted a display of rare European and American clocks from the 16th to the 19th centuries.

As millions of Americans fuss with buttons and dials to move their clocks ahead, visitors to the Museum of History and Technology may view timepieces made by some of the finest craftsmen of their time, located in the hall of timekeeping.

The exhibition is, well, timely. This is the weekend when most Americans make the switch to daylight time at 2 a.m. Sunday.

Daylight time is effective from the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October. It is not quite universal. Areas which remain on standard time are Arizona, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa and the portion of Indiana in the eastern time zone.

The Smithsonian exhibition includes 16 mantle clocks, tall clocks and others to be mounted on a wall.

There is a forerunner of the travel alarm clock in a Czechoslovakian table clock made in 1760 with a gilt finish. For early risers, it has a flintlock gun mechanism which lights a candle when the alarm is sounded.

One of the more exotic clocks is a Renaissance statuary timepiece from south Germany with a turbaned warrior clutching a snake. The hours are engraved on a sphere located on a stand above a Turk. The sphere revolves once every 24 hours.

Most areas will change clocks

By the Associated Press

To keep up with daylight-saving time, which begins in most parts of the United States at 2 a.m. Sunday, set your clocks and watches AHEAD one hour. You can turn them back again the last Sunday in October.

There's a catch-phrase that makes it easy to remember how to turn the dial: Spring ahead, fall back.

The following areas remain on standard time: Arizona, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa and the portion of Indiana in the eastern time zone.

Clockmaking skills often ran in the family, the Smithsonian says. Aaron Willard made a banjo clock which resembles the musical instrument in its simplicity; his brother Benjamin made a rather ornate tall clock.

One unusual 16th century clock has two brass figures dressed in suits of armor that strike the hours with swords.

A Japanese Victorian shelf clock made before 1873, when that nation switched to the 12-hour timekeeping system, showed seasonal variations and hours on a central dial. The clock's single hand remained stationary while the wheel revolved.

These are clocks from a collection started in the late 19th century by a Scottish immigrant who started a successful machine works in New York and collected approximately 1,500 clocks, watches, sundials and other timepieces.

Before his death he donated the collection to New York University. It is now on loan to the Smithsonian.

Many of the clocks are in working order, but they will not be running in the public display. The museum several years gave up trying to keep the hundreds of timepieces in its hall running, on the ground that it required too much time and manpower.

Action/reaction: Answer is 'no'

Q. Is it true that all questions appearing in this column concerning the City of Big Spring first have to be approved by the city council? If this question doesn't appear in print, the question will have been answered.

A. The answer is "no." If the council had veto powers, why should members go to the trouble of answering inquiries that do not always promote their image? Questions are rejected when it becomes obvious the petitioner is merely trying to embarrass an individual or an agency.

Clements taking new look

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Despite a threat to veto any increase in Texas usury rates, Gov. Bill Clements is taking another look at interest ceilings on home mortgage loans.

"I have not relaxed my position," Clements told a news conference Thursday, "but all this is going to cause further consideration. I don't know what the effect will be."

Clements commented shortly after he was informed that federal mortgage bankers will no longer approve Texas FHA or VA loans above the 10 percent interest maximum.

A national spokesman for mortgage bankers said in Houston that the Texas usury law is outmoded and created a "trade barrier" by curtailing the flow of mortgage money at a time when the national interest rate ranged from 10.14 percent to 11 percent.

Clements noted that the Legislature passed a bill exempting federal FHA and VA loans from Texas' interest ceiling but the Texas attorney general has expressed doubts in the past as to the constitutionality of the exemption.

Clements said two weeks ago he would veto a pending Senate bill, by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eulesis, if it passed the Legislature because there was no compelling reason for raising rates and the higher rates would be inflationary. A week ago he repeated his threat.

The governor said Thursday he would be in touch with Meier.

"I'm going to look into the ramifications and measure the effects," he told a news conference. "If the facts change, I'll be glad to reconsider the new facts."

Enormous personal loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Residents of six southeast Texas counties swamped by floods are eligible for federal assistance after President Carter declared Texas a major disaster area for the second week in a row.

Rep. Charles Wilson, whose southeast Texas district reaches into the heart of the area hit by last week's flooding, said he observed "enormous personal loss."

Counties certified for aid include Hardin, Orange, Montgomery, Liberty, Jefferson and Harris, Wilson said.

Barnhart confirmed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senators unanimously and without debate confirmed State Republican Party Chairman Ray Barnhart Thursday to a seat on the Texas Highways and Public Transportation Commission.

Barnhart promised to resign his GOP post and give up involvement in statewide party politics if his appointment by Gov. Bill Clements won Senate approval.

The 51-year-old former legislator from Pasadena was named to succeed Reagan Houston of San Antonio whose term expired. Barnhart was Ronald Reagan's state campaign manager in 1976.

Chet Upham, a Mineral Wells natural gas producer, is Clements' designate to succeed Barnhart as state GOP chairman. The State Republican Executive Committee must meet 30 days following Barnhart's resignation to name a successor.

Sugar prices to sour

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the same day the Labor Department announced a 1 percent increase in consumer prices, the House Agriculture Committee approved legislation that could boost every American's food bill by nearly $3 in the next 2½ years.

The House panel voted 29-9 Thursday to raise raw sugar prices by 5.3 percent this year and up to 7 percent in 1980 and 1981.

That could add a maximum 74 cents to each consumer's food bill this year and $1 per person during the next two years, according to government estimates. Refiners and food companies generally pass through the higher sugar prices to consumers.

The increased prices would be reflected in such products as beverages, canned goods, and sweets. A five-pound bag of refined sugar could rise 4 cents by the end of the year.

Will Johnny Carson take job with ABC?

NEW YORK (AP) — Will Johnny Carson leave "The Tonight Show" for a job with ABC? "I can't answer that," Carson tells CBS' Mike Wallace, conceding ABC may be "doing a little stroking, as all networks do," in an effort to attract him.

Carson, in an interview for CBS' "60 Minutes," to be broadcast Sunday evening at 7 p.m. EDT, recalls an informal get-together after his appearance as host on ABC's broadcast April 9 of the Academy Awards show.

"They...made no direct overtures of my coming to the network," Carson says. "I would assume that when somebody has you socially for dinner — I'm not that naive — that they might say, 'Hey, it would be nice possibly if Johnny Carson worked over here.'"

Wallace and the "60 Minutes" crew visited Carson April 15 at his home in Bel-Air, Calif., about a week before the story broke that Carson wanted out of his NBC contract, which runs until mid-1981.

CBS had planned to produce a profile of the entertainer for fall broadcast, but pulled some of the newsworthy material from the footage shot Easter Sunday for immediate broadcast.

The segment runs about 14 minutes. Carson tells Wallace he did not fight with his boss, NBC President

Fred Silverman, over the amount of time he spends as host of "The Tonight Show," and he refuses to answer Wallace's repeated questions on his legendary salary.

"Now who said I got three or four million dollars annually?" asks the man who probably is the highest paid entertainer in TV.

"You know that you do," Wallace says. "Nobody's ever quoted my salary correct," says Carson, "and that's always intrigued me. Nobody has ever had the figure right."

Wallace asks about reports Silverman had demanded that he show up as host of "The Tonight Show" more frequently, citing figures to show the program's audience declined when Carson was not there.

"After 17 years, I just found it impossible to keep my energy level, and do the kind of quality work I want to do, if I do the show," Carson replies. "So it's true I do work a three-day week now...I still do 135 or 140 ninety-minute television shows. It's been something like 4,500 shows altogether."

"And after that time, if I would have had to still do five days a week, I would have finished the show five years ago."

He says in the interview he wants to remain in television, though not as host of a nightly or even weekly program.

Silkwood trial

Kerr-McGee chief hurls innuendoes

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Kerr-McGee Nuclear Corp.'s president testified Thursday he didn't contaminate Karen Silkwood's apartment with plutonium and doesn't know who did, although he blames her.

Innuendoes aiming blame for the contamination at Kerr-McGee or at Miss Silkwood or her union have been left hanging several times during the eight-week Silkwood contamination negligence trial.

After undergoing a lengthy cross-examination, former nuclear fuel plant manager Morgan Moore, 52, of Oklahoma City was asked on re-direct if he contaminated the apartment.

"No sir," he said. "Did you do anything to cause it to be contaminated?" Kerr-McGee lawyer Bill Paul asked.

"No sir," Moore said. On re-cross, Silkwood lawyer Gerry Spence carried the question one step further. "Did you blame Karen Silkwood... for contaminating her own apartment?" he asked.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — John B. Connally, a Republican candidate in the 1980 presidential race, says former California Gov. Ronald Reagan will be the man to beat in the campaign for the GOP nomination.

On the Democratic side of the 1980 race, Connally predicted Thursday that Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., would be the nominee.

Standard said that the underwear had been sent to forensic experts in Austin along with other clothing found at the scene of the bodies' discovery.

"We have nothing solid yet. We just hope there is somebody out there who knows something. If this is a local situation, we will be in pretty good shape," said Standard. "Our main aim is not to let this get stale. We have to keep our group (of investigators) motivated. Time is very important," he added.

Standard also asks those who might have stopped at the I-20 Station or passed routinely by after 10 p.m. Thursday to call the Sheriff's Office. Standard said this morning that he is in the process of negotiating with an area company to provide a substantial reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the culprit.

Fund for Vernon storm victims totals $2,297

Donations for the victims of the April 10 tornado at Vernon are pouring in from local groups and individuals as the Greater Big Spring Rotary club project, "Big Spring Adopts Vernon," nears the end of its second week. Pledges and cash on hand total $2,297 as of noon today, according to project chairman Mike Faulkner. Vernon was picked over Wichita Falls primarily because the destruction in Vernon was concentrated in a low-income area which was 95 percent un-insured. The Wichita Falls section was an affluent residential area that was probably 95 percent insured. Additionally, the focus of national attention and relief has been Wichita Falls, while Vernon has been virtually forgotten. "The Red Cross and Salvation Army are doing a tremendous job taking care of the food and clothing needs of the victims in both towns," said Faulkner. "Everyone we talked to said the greatest need is for cash, to help these hundreds of people get back on their feet." All checks should be made out to "Big Spring Adopts Vernon" and mailed to or brought by the Chamber office. Any club, organization or church that would like to have a presentation on the project should contact the Chamber or Mike Faulkner. Donors thus far include: Great Big Spring Rotary Club, $500; Big Spring Rotary Club, 250; Big Spring Rotary Club members collection, 165; Big Spring Jaycees, 200; Big Spring Jaycees (funds from Mem. Day Rest Stop), 300 (est.); Big Spring Downtown Lions, 300; Big Spring Downtown Lions members collection, 30; B.P.O. Elks Lodge 1386, 100; B.P.O. Elks Lodge 1386 members collection, 52; Optimist Club of Big Spring, 100; Pioneer Sewing Club, 10 and Mission Circle of Westley United Methodist, 20. Also Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Leonard, 10; Mr. and Mrs. C.O. Hitt, 15; Mr. and Mrs. L.B. Baird, 50; Dr. and Mrs. Paul Kionka, 25; Mrs. Curtis Warren, 20; Marie Gaertner, 10; Opal Snelling, 5; Marion Malane, 20; Mrs. Udonia Bass, 25; Edna Spinks, 20; Mrs. Udonia Bass, 20; Mike Lannon, 55; Mrs. Ralph McLaughlin, $25; and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Halfman, 20.

Understand What You Are Voting For On April 28th

I maintain that even in the face of inflation and the loss of Webb, we have solid, progressive city government. I have worked toward that goal for 6 years. For 25 years before that I had time to devote to the betterment of our city.

My opponent is asking you to vote for change, criticism is easy, faultfinding a snap! Look at his accusations and lack of answers in the campaign alone. He has tried to question the solvency of the city. There is no question on this point. The audit established that the city is in sound financial condition. The bank balance affirms that we are "not broke!" To say otherwise is to impeach the integrity of certified public accountants who audit the books independently. He evades public comment on civil service for police and firemen, using the ploy that the city council will not make the ultimate decision. This avoids the issue of who is responsible for administering all the city's affairs. In an early interview he stated "some positions should be eliminated entirely or reassignment of duties should be considered." ---"I support additional benefits not only for the police and fire departments, but for other city workers. This could be accomplished within the present budget with proper management." ★★ ★ When asked to specify how to do this (with no increase in revenue or raising of taxes) he never gave any specific answer. He should say "Who and where".

When asked to answer concerning his general accusations on HWY 27 (saying that a "select few" had previous knowledge and would make a financial gain), he said he did not wish to comment. There is no "designated" route and to think so is foolish, therefore there was no explanation from Mr. Massey.

There is no record that he has contributed any effort in bettering his city through civic work outside of police work. How can his criticism come from genuine concern or knowledge?

He has attacked the industrial foundation saying it "keeps the public in the dark". The foundation is an open organization which has made numerous appeals to all citizens to join for over 20 years. Having never participated himself how would he be helpful in attracting new industry with such an attitude and prejudice?

Biggest island would like home rule

The continent of Europe, where space has long been very precious, one day soon could conceivably lose more than half its total land mass. The strange thing about it is that most of its citizens would hardly even notice.

Few Europeans are even aware of the full geographic extent of their community. Few maps other than those prepared in Copenhagen, Denmark, include the vast Arctic territory of Greenland as a part of Europe, yet the claim is legitimate by virtue of its status as a province of the Kingdom of Denmark.

GREENLAND IS the world's largest island, containing 2.1 million square kilometers. With only 50,000 inhabitants, Greenland is the world's most under-populated country. Eighty-six per cent of it is permanently covered with ice over 1,500 feet thick. It is five times the size of France and 50 times that of the mother country Denmark. Transportation is by sledge, ship or helicopter — there are no inter-urban roads. It has been described as a colonial empire but it can no longer be called that. It was fully incorporated into Denmark in 1953. U.S. troops landed there during WWII and the island has never been quite the same since. When the Cold War was at its hottest in the 1950s, U.S. bases were established there, to be followed by an influx of Danish administrators and their helpers when the territory became a Danish province.

Now, most Greenlanders want to disengage themselves somewhat from the mother country's embrace. In a referendum on Jan. 17, over 70 per cent of the population opted for the introduction of home rule starting May 1.

Election of a new Parliament took place as recently as April 4. The legislature (it will be known as the Landsting) will have 18 to 21 members. Foreign policy, defense and management of the currency will remain in the hands of the Danish state. The general principle is that Greenlanders will be entitled to administer anything they can finance by themselves. It is anticipated the Danes will also offer sufficient additional grants to enable social, cultural, industrial and employment policies to be run locally.

The Greenlanders not only want more say in their dealings with Denmark but they want to change their relationship with the European Community. They were drawn reluctantly into the combine six years ago after 70 per cent of the country's inhabitants voted against joining. The Danes have already said that it would respect the Greenlanders' right to secede from the Community, if a new referendum produced that kind of sentiment.

THE GREENLANDERS are seeking special arrangements in fisheries, free establishment and Community law. The Greenlanders have plunged headlong from the days of the igloo and remote fishing villages into the 20th Century, though uprooting them from the primitive homes into urban centers hasn't been easy. Greenlandic culture has suffered a blow. The crime rate and alcoholism are rising. Because Greenland appears to be so rich in natural resources (it may even have an abundance of oil), the European Committee wants to keep a hand in the region.

If Greenland gets carried away with its new home rule, it could press on for full independence. Should that happen, however, it might have to make a choice between two super-powers, a prospect which one of its leading politicians says: "it is much safer to be attached to a small, friendly Scandinavian country."

Best artists

Around the rim

James Werrell

My professor in Studio Art-201 had a pet theory that I have always been fond of.

An accomplished artist himself, he claimed that the best artists in the world were children up to the age of nine.

"A blank piece of paper or canvas is already perfect unto itself," he told us, "and to improve upon that is a considerable task."

And children perform this task with an instinctual purity that is lost to most as they grow older. A young child is not restricted by the stifling and often silly "rules" that afflict the older artist.

Children's work is almost always perfect in its use of space and color.

You have probably noticed when looking at a piece of artwork done by a child that he or she will not hesitate to add a helicopter or a second sun if the spatial structure of the picture calls for it.

The child artist is not restricted by representational boundaries that limit an adult who picks up the paint brush.

This, of course, also applies to the use of color. Purple apples and green faces often inhabit the artwork of children, and they are almost always surprisingly appropriate.

In the work of adult artists this type of master stroke is called daringly innovative.

It is ironic that much of the work of the great Impressionists and Abstract Expressionists employs the same methods found in children's art. It is as if they had to relearn or recapture the instinctual rules lost to them with their adolescence.

Look at the squiggly figures in a Miro, the bold, flowing strokes of color in a Klee, and one could almost imagine a child lurking behind the brush. And these men spent a lifetime answering the critics who asked, "But isn't art supposed to look like something?"

With this in mind, you may be able to view the exhibit of works by local elementary schoolchildren at the Heritage Museum through slightly different eyes. The show will be there this weekend.

TRY TO DISCARD for a moment the judgement that all good art is representational. Enjoy the shapes and colors that are produced by imaginations unspoiled by conventional concepts of dimension and space.

Many of the elements of children's art can be found in the primitive (and I use the term loosely) art of Africans, Eskimos and various island cultures. In primitive art I choose to believe that, rather than being more crude, it is merely the result of an evolution on the part of the primitive artist tangential to those whom we deem the masters that incorporated the finer elements of an instinctual feel for what is beautiful.

So, when you view the work of our schoolchildren, don't despair at the purple apples and frequency of helicopters in their work. It is art of the highest degree.

Brown-eyed parents, blue-eyed tot-- yes

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: If all the parents and grandparents have brown eyes, can a third-generation child have blue eyes?—H.H.

Yes. A blue-eyed child emerging from brown-eyed parents would be a flimsy basis for a divorce suit, even though it might raise eyebrows among neighbors. It happens in the best of families.

At one time, eye color was thought to be a simple "wo-gene" event, brown eyes always dominating over blue. But the occasional appearance of blue-eyed children with brown-eyed parents caused researchers to look further into the matter. Studies proved things weren't that simple. Blue-eyed parents have had brown-eyed children, although that is rare. In the absence of brown (dominant) genes, the blue ones usually take over for the immediate offspring.

Brown eyes are trickier. A person with brown-eyed genes may carry a blue-eye ("recessive") gene even though his or her actual eyes are brown. This applies to each parent, of course. A distant ancestor's blue-eyed gene may persist "quietly" through generations only to emerge at any unpredictable time. One might have to trace several generations of brown eyes and still not find the blue-eyed gene, but it is there somewhere.

Sometimes a child's blue eyes will have little flecks of brown, gray or green as the only evidence of the dominant (brown) gene of one of the parents. Some eye colors are difficult to identify without special instruments.

That's as deep as we need to go into the mysteries of genetics, but it should ease concerns brown-eyed parents may have about the "immediate ancestry" of their blue-eyed toddler.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am 25 years old and have had psoriasis since I was 18.

I have been to a skin doctor and he prescribed a cream that keeps it under control. Is there a cure for psoriasis? I read in a magazine that they have found a cure. Is this true?—M.R.

We have no cure for psoriasis. If one were found you would read about it in the headlines of this newspaper. But there are effective treatments available to control it. Apparently your dermatologist (skin doctor) is using one for you. Congratulations.

Such treatments don't work well for everyone. Some people can stay controlled for a long time. Meanwhile, research does continue and experimental drugs are being used. Their long-term beneficial effects or bad effects are yet to be measured. There's always hope that one day one of them will be found to be the complete answer to this nagging problem.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Should a person with angina have an oxygen supply on hand for attacks? What else can you tell me to help my husband with this recently diagnosed condition?—Mrs. T.O.

An oxygen supply is seldom necessary unless a doctor advises it because of some other heart condition. The nitroglycerin tablets, which he probably is using to ward off attacks, are sufficient in most instances. In cases complicated by severe heart failure or lung disease (emphysema) oxygen may be needed nearby.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Although I have had surgery for a pilonidal cyst, it still recurs. Sometimes it doesn't act up for years and then I may have it every few months. I would appreciate your thoughts on this. If surgery is, as you say, the answer, why does it come back?—Mrs. N.G.

This is a peculiar type of cyst that occurs at the tailbone (base of the spine). Removal is the answer because otherwise there may be repeated infections. One of the problems is the growth of hairs into the cyst area. Surgery is not always 100 per cent effective unless the entire lining of the cyst is removed. Since this is not your ordinary cyst, it requires expert attention, especially if your occupation entails a lot of jouncing around on the tailbone. It was once called "jeep driver's disease."

Is angina pectoris dangerous? Is there a cure? If you would like to learn more about this heart condition, write to Dr. Ruble, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Handle Angina Pectoris." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What can I do to make sure God loves me?—J.C.

DEAR J.C.: You do not have to do anything to make God love you—God already loves you and always will love you. You cannot do anything to make God stop loving you, for "God is love" (1 John 4:16).

You can know God loves you since He sent His Son to die for you, bearing the penalty and punishment of your sin. Jesus did not wait until we were good before He showed His love for us in this way. He loved us and died for us while we were still sinners. "God commendeth His love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8).

You can be absolutely certain, on the basis of God's Word, that God loves you. But do you love God? Jesus said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment" (Matthew 22:37, 38).

How can you come to love God? First, realize just how much He loves you—so much that He would have sacrificed His Son for your sins if you had been the only person in the world who needed forgiveness. Then accept the gift of salvation God has for you. By faith, turn your life over to Christ and invite Him into your life as Savior and Lord.

It is good to tell God that you have Him. You should do that often. But you also need to show God that you have Him. As you read your Bible you will find out what God is like, and in this way you will discover the things that please God.

Same old thing

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — A standing ovation behind closed doors two months ago and a non-announcement six weeks later point to this increasingly probable development: the Republican campaign to regain the White House in 1980 will offer few new challenges, blaze no new paths.

The ovation was given John B. Connally the morning of March 7 by a select group of Republican House members. Such acclaim at these breakfasts is rare. What made it meaningful was Connally, while failing to mention tax reduction, gave a characteristically spirited defense of the massive intervention into the economy he directed as Richard Nixon's secretary of the treasury.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT, due April 16, aborted. On that dour tax collecting day, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York was supposed to announce formation of an "exploratory committee"—the first step to qualify for federal funds to finance a presidential campaign. No committee was formed. Kemp's friends now think it improbable that it will be.

This is more than new proof that Connally is a rising Republican star and Kemp is flinching at uphill presidential run. Beyond that, it suggests an early grave for the bright new Republican doctrine of economic growth rather than austerity, emphasizing tax reduction rather than reduced spending.

It was this doctrine that transformed the famed football quarterback overnight into a national Republican star. It was envisioned as the vehicle to elect him president by his closest advisers: Irving Kristol, writer and teacher; Jude Wanniski, journalist and business consultant; Jeffrey Bell, 1978 Republican Senate nominee from New Jersey.

Preaching the gospel across the land, Kemp has left audiences feeling more hopeful than before—a rare feat for Republican orators since the coming of the New Deal. But hedonism is uncongenial to conventional Republicans. In the 1978 campaign, uncomfortable Republican candidates moved away from Kemp's growth doctrines as Democrats sounded the alarm of fiscal irresponsibility.

AS 1979 BEGAN, Kemp was concerned that Republicans were about to engage in an austerity contest with President Carter. He did not see front-running Ronald Reagan, with whom he has close ties of long standing, propounding a philosophy of growth. Kristol, Wanniski and Bell grew optimistic that Kemp would run.

They became nearly certain as the political community perceived Regan's decline and Connally's rise. Connally boasted he did not travel aboard "The Republican Tax Clipper," the plane load of Republican politicians boosting the Kemp-Roth tax reduction bill, and had never even endorsed that bill.

On March 7 at his breakfast with Republican congressmen, Connally was asked a pointed question by Rep. David Stockman of Michigan (an ally of Kemp): did he regret his role as Treasury secretary in 1971 imposing wage-price controls and ending dollar convertibility into gold? Both steps have been assailed by Kemp (and by Jeff Bell in his Senate campaign) as part of the crusade against government stifling of the economy.

Big John neither hesitated nor apologized.

Big Spring Herald

Mailbag

Dear Editor:

Reference here is made to the letter to the Editor 4-25-79 signed by a Mr. Roger Miller, Rte. 2, in which he attacks me and the accuracy of my letter concerning questions and answers at the Howard College Forum relative to candidates in the city and school board election and also remarks about Mr. Massey's news releases. First of all, I think voters should note that according to the address Mr. Miller put on his letter, he is not an eligible voter since he does not reside in the City of Big Spring.

It is true I am a retired labor representative, and as such I learned I had to be accurate since I was constantly subject to attacks by people like Mr. Miller who, even though not a resident of Big Spring, proceeds to tell us what we should do. I also have been a member of the tax equalization board and what I said on that matter is exactly correct: i.e., there has been no re-evaluation of property in the City or School District since 1958. One only has to check records to learn this.

There have been taxes added since then; for example, ranchers and farmers came to the county commissioners and asked for a trapper to protect their sheep and cattle from predators, and then it was learned not a sheep or cow was on the tax rolls in Howard County. An additional trapper was provided and these people started paying that portion of taxes for the first time. The same thing was true in regard to the County Airport. The owners of airplanes asked for better facilities but not one plane was on the county tax rolls. Facilities were provided and planes appeared on the tax roll even though Mr. Larry Miller objected last year to paying taxes on one he and Mr. McClure owned together.

The contents of my letter are 100 percent correct as printed on 4-24. I want people to know that I prepared a number of the questions asked at the Forum and took them to the Chamber of Commerce for use. I had directed questions to Mr. Miller and Mr. Massey because of remarks they had made about the City which were not supported by facts. I had 2 type-written pages and they had to be altered to meet the Chamber's requirements that they be directed to all the Candidates, and that was done. A question was asked about the Industrial Park; Mr. Massey said it, in his opinion, was a liability. There was also a question presented concerning the hangar; Mr. Miller and Mr. Massey gave the same type answers as opposing.

The figures quoted by Mr. Miller as to cost of the hangar is at least double what the true records show and are those used by Mr. Jack Watkins on occasion in an effort to discredit the City. The truth is, and records will bear this out if one wants to be honest and check them, that the City had been granted around a million dollars by the federal government for a similar project at an earlier date and would have lost this grant if not utilized promptly. When Lockheed showed this interest based on a hangar's being constructed, it was accepted and the hangar built at very little cost to the City. The total was only about 1/2 what Mr. Miller said.

I guess Mr. Roger Miller wants Mr. Massey in to support Mr. Larry who has been on the Council only a few weeks but in his voting since being elected, he has voted against extending a railroad spur into the Industrial Park and cast the only negative ballot. He also cast the only negative ballot concerning a request to build a pastry shop on Wasson Road by the Jet Drive-In Movie where there is nothing but sand dunes and cactus. Big Spring can not stand more of this stifling of growth of our City.

I had the pleasure of having lunch with a gentleman last week who represents a nationwide manufacturing firm that at one time was interested in locating here but did not so because of the lack of adequate transportation facilities. He further said that if the picture improved they would take another look at it. The railroad spur will help this.

I wonder why Mr. Miller did not let Mr. Massey answer my remarks of 4-25. Mr. Massey knows they are correct. Why did Mr. Massey apply for the Chief of Police job at Stanton a short while back, and why did he not receive the appointment? Why would Big Spring need the services of a man who could not meet the needs of Stanton? We need experience on the Council, not new comers to our City who have lived here only a short while and are not even knowledgeable of our City. Only incumbent Polly Mays has these qualifications.

D.A. Brazel

Dear Editor:

This is my first and probably the last "Letter to the Editor," but I feel strongly that the following be said.

Regarding the City audit, I have known the auditors since each partner got his certificate. I have run across their tracks many times in past years, and never have I been able to take exception to their work. The audit reports they publish have workpapers behind them to sustain every word and every figure in the report. Their workpapers would be accepted in every court in the land, including the Supreme Court. Over the past 20 years

I have audited both the City and the County many times and Jack Watkins has questioned every report I published. Jack could not read a financial statement 20 years ago, and apparently has not improved to this date.

Polly Mays and myself are nationally as far apart as two people could be, but locally, in my opinion, she has done a good job as a Big Spring City Commissioner, and, above all else, Polly is a lady in the strictest sense of the word.

I urge the voters of Big Spring, to support Polly. I cannot think of anything decent to say of her opponent.

George Thorburn, Box 251, Certified Public Accountant

Dear Editor:

I did not intend to write this letter but too many things have not been answered in this election run-off. First off Mr. D.A. Brazel can't see the forest for the trees.

If the city of Big Spring is operating in the black why were our taxes increased "by a substantial amount." Why two water rate increases, why a sewer and trash increase? If we have so much money why can't some of our streets be repaved, such as Wasson Road, which has been a disgrace for the four years I've been here.

I love Big Spring and intend to stay here and I am going to do everything I can to make it a better place to live. Mrs. Mayes is a very nice person, with good intentions but they are misguided.

We need positive action on measures to live within our budget. We need priority on what our money is to be spent on. I feel that John Massey can help do this.

Another matter. Two years ago several small businessmen went before the City Commissioners needing help to control itinerant merchants and garage sale businesses "People who make a business of garage sales," without proper license or collecting taxes." There is still no ordinance controlling this. Mrs. Mayes voted to table this ordinance again Tuesday at the last meeting.

The people who help support this community do not get the help needed. Just more taxes, higher water, sewer and trash rates.

I also feel that the taxpayers of this community should have the right to vote on matters that concern them or that could mean a tax increase (such as the new hangar at the Industrial Park).

Mrs. Mayes evidently does not feel we have this right, since she voted not to give us this vote. I am not against the hangar but I am for the right to vote on where my money is to be spent.

I feel like a vote for John Massey Saturday will be a step in restoring these rights to the "Big Spring Taxpayer."

Price surges due to continue

Bad news for consumers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's advisers are offering little hope that consumers have seen the end to price surges such as the 1 percent increase in March.

"We can still expect months of bad news on the economy," especially on the inflation front, White House press secretary Jody Powell said Thursday after the Labor Department reported the latest rise.

The March increase — fueled by large price rises in food, fuel and housing — followed boosts of 1.2 percent in February and 0.9 percent in January. That translates to an annual inflation rate of 13 percent for the first quarter — the worst quarterly rise in 4½ years and far above the president's 7.4 percent target.

Despite continuing sharp increases in prices, Powell insisted the administration will stick to its anti-inflation policies that include voluntary wage and price guidelines. Many officials — from Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller to Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability — have warned that the public needs signs soon that inflation is slowing.

Bosworth, in a recent interview with The Associated Press, said, "The next two to three months are crucial."

He explained that "if the price situation doesn't begin to improve," wage earners will abandon hope that government policies can soften the bite of inflation and start demanding ever higher wages that would only worsen the inflationary spiral.

Alfred E. Kahn, the president's anti-inflation chief, told the Congress Joint Economic Committee on Thursday: "We still have some bad months ahead. We can win this fight if we persevere. There are no other quick fixes around." Only last month, Kahn said, "I will regard this program as having failed if by sometime like the beginning of the summer, we don't see the inflation rate tapering."

The Commerce Department reported that gasoline rose in March by nearly 4 percent, while food, housing and transportation costs all rose a percentage point or more.

Bosworth said consumer and business activity were not as high during the first quarter of 1979 as at the end of 1978, indicating a slowing of the economy that could translate into a more modest rate of inflation.

Supporting his premise that a "price explosion" could come soon if inflation continues at current rates, Bosworth noted that most workers have been settling for wage increases of 7 percent or 8 percent — well below the inflation rate — over the last couple of years and will not do so indefinitely.

Already, President Carter's 7 percent guidelines for wage increases were stretched by the recent Teamsters contract calling for a 9 percent annual increase. The United Rubber Workers, meanwhile, are negotiating for a potentially guideline-busting contract.

Other news Thursday indicated the economy could be further fanned:

—Social Security benefits rose 9.9 percent to offset the impact of inflation on the nation's 35 million recipients. The average benefit will increase $25, to $283 a month, starting in July.

—The House Agriculture Committee voted 29-9 to raise sugar prices late this year and twice more by 1982 in an effort to help U.S. growers withstand cheaper foreign competition. The bill must be approved by the full House Ways and Means Committee and both the House and Senate.

—Automobile manufacturers told Congress federal regulations could add as much as $1,000 to the price of a new automobile by 1985.

Carter administration officials say the costs would be less than previously assumed, and regulation will pay off with increased fuel economy and cleaner air.

RARE CLOCK — The Smithsonian Institution has mounted a display of rare European and American clocks from the 16th to the 19th centuries in Washington. This clock which is part of the display is a bracket clock, probably South German, mid 16th century. This type of do mestic chamber clock takes its name from the wall-hung wooden bracket supporting it. The movement, frame and painted panels of the clock are iron; the dial plate, bell and striking figures or "jacks" are brass.

Senate budget bill tops $20 billion

By ALAN SAYRE
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee completed work Thursday on a state budget for 1980-81 which exceeds a House proposal by $600 million.

Chairman Grant Jones estimated the Senate bill totals $20.9 billion. If adopted, the spending total would exceed the House's $20.3 billion proposal — a budget that Governor Bill Clements termed "totally unacceptable."

Clements told a news conference Thursday the House bill was unacceptable because of its dollar total and some appropriations. Adding that "the appropriations process is barely underway," Clements said, "It will be settled in conference committee...I am not unhappy at all as far as the budget is concerned."

The $20.9 billion would leave about $40 million available for either tax relief or other spending, said Assistant Director Jim Oliver of the Legislative Budget Board.

The LBB proposal for 1980-81 totalled $20.8 billion.

Clements had proposed a $19.8 billion budget, with a plan to cut state taxes by $1 billion.

The Senate proposal now limits annual teacher pay increases to 5.1 percent — the increase Clements is supporting for all state employees. The House voted teachers a 7 percent hike Tuesday, contingent upon passage of a school finance bill.

Jones added that said "some realignment" of the present teacher step-increase scale would probably be made. Clements has favored doing away with the plan, which guarantees state teachers a annual pay increase for the first 12 years of their careers.

The Senate committee also tentatively approved $2,700 annual increases for the 18 judges of the Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals. The increases proposed by Sen. Babe Schwartz would hike the salaries to $56,700 annually with an extra $500 for the chief justices.

Schwartz, D-Galveston, said the increases would bring the judges' salaries "up to that of a federal district judge in Houston."

The committee would limit district judges to a 5.1 percent hike. The House voted those judges a 19.8 percent increase, a pay hike that Schwartz predicted "won't hold up in conference committee."

The Senate committee will vote on its budget proposal next week.

How To Wield A Diner's Club

DEAR ABBY: STAN, who complained a lot in restaurants, may have gone overboard but he had the right idea. He had a habit of sending back food that was either overcooked, cold, smelled "funny" or wasn't what he ordered. And if the service was poor he left no tip and complained to the management.

Stan also carried a little battery operated fan to blow smoke back into the faces of people who smoked while he was eating.

With the prices one has to pay in restaurants today, we should demand top quality food and first-class service. It is our willingness to accept mediocrity that makes for sloppy service, bad food and shoddy merchandise in general.

As for Stan's little fan, he should be congratulated for having the courage to give those inconsiderate boors a taste of their own pollution.

You probably think I'm just another cheap, demanding, hard-to-please klutz like Stan, but I'm not. I'm one of the millions of weak, gutless wonders of the world who gets ignored, pushed around and walked over while continuing to overtip for second-rate service because I never had the guts not to.

DEAR NO GUTS: It takes a lot of guts to admit you've got no guts. So you may be a gutsier klutz than you think you are.

Club sees energy film

After Mrs. Rabenaldt's presentation, Vi Ballou presided at the short business meeting. Report was given by Sue Warren on the Regional Seminar which was held April 20-22 in Roswell, N.M. and attended by Ms. Warren and Mrs. Cristi Bonevitz.

Brother needs help

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I am 16 years old and I am writing in regard to my brother. My brother is 19 years old, unemployed and a high school dropout. Frankly, I think he needs psychiatric help but my mother cannot accept this and she claims that he is normal.

First of all, he goes around the house straightening out every little object and every day he spends three hours washing out a small bowl in our sink. The rest of the day he spends vacuuming his room which is completely bare except for a bed.

Well, this might sound like he is neat but the fact is that he takes a bath about once a month and his body odor is almost unbearable.

I've explained his problems to my mother but she is confused and so am I about what to do. So please give me some advice as to what we should do about my brother's problem. — Mike, Wheaton, Ill.

Mike: What your brother is doing is not normal and you are right when you say he needs help.

I don't know your family's financial situation but I would see your school nurse, explain to her the situation and ask her where your brother might go to receive professional counseling that is free or very low cost. Don't wait! Do it now.

Dr. Wallace: Please allow me to tell you about one of our high school teachers who happens to be our varsity football coach. This guy coached the team like he was a drill sergeant in the Army.

It so happens that we lost all of our games and a lot of guys quit the team during the season. When this happened, he told all of the team members to shun these guys. He also said if he caught us smoking, he would jam the cigarette down our throats.

Well, this teacher is now out on bond because he has been charged with 19 counts of child abuse.

So when adults think teens are criminals, just remember who taught us. — Thomas, Oakhurst, Calif.

Thomas: It makes me feel very sorry when I hear of teachers who mistreat students — especially sexually. But you are using this one isolated case to convict all teachers, and I just won't buy it. Sorry!

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Army program women and girls volunteered their evenings to sort the goods in the basement of the church. About 40 people became involved in the project as

A nursery will be provided free of charge. Parents are requested to bring sack lunches for their children.

Life begins at 70, says seminar speaker

Between the ages of 70 and 83, Commodore Vanderbilt added about $100 million to his fortune.

Kant, at age 74, wrote his "Anthropology," "Metaphysics of Ethics" and "Strife of the Faculties".

Verdi, at 74, produced his masterpiece "Otello" and at age 85, the famous "Ave Maria," "Stabat Mater" and "Te Deum".

Like the lives of these great men and others like them, life can begin at 70 says Virgil Bentley, Gerontologist and Minister to Aging Christians, of Dallas.

Bentley will share his belief at a senior citizens' seminar at 14th and Main Church of Christ May 6-7. The seminar is being hosted by the church as a free service to all area citizens.

Bentley will speak at the regular services on Sunday and at a pre-retirement seminar, 2:30-4:30 p.m.

The program Monday begins with registration at 10 a.m. and will include several speakers and panels. Meals will be provided for all participants.

A Farthing's Worth

WHO ARE YOU?

There are many churches in this community. I believe you have a right to ask any of them: "Why are you here, and what do you stand for?" We are a congregation of imperfect people who realize the perfection of Jesus. Although some of us fail to understand it as we should, and although some of us fail to live it as we should, we realize that the Bible is the Word of God and our guide in spiritual matters. We are an independent congregation that realizes that while we are free of any ecclesiastical hierarchy or denominational governing body, we are joined to Christ and every other believer in Christ. We are committed to being no respecter of persons. This is a church for every believer. We believe in baptism, but we are not Baptists. We use methodology, but we are not Methodists. We believe in presbyters (elders), but we are not Presbyterians. We assemble, but we are not Assembly of God. We believe the church was established on the day of Pentecost in 30 A.D., but we are not Pentecostals. We give thanks for Martin Luther, but we are not Lutherans. We believe the church is catholic (worldwide), but we are not Catholics. We are followers of Jesus, but we are not Disciples of Christ. We believe the church is of God, but we are not Church of God. We are 20th century Christians, but not Latter-Day Saints (Mormon). We believe the church is Christ's, but we are not Church of Christ. We're just plain Christians.

'Mystery' tax relief bill advanced

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee has approved a tax relief bill without even knowing how much it costs. The committee bill would revise the House version by eliminating proposed homestead exemptions for elderly and disabled Texans who have incomes exceeding $10,000 a year. It was approved 9-2. Both proposals implement the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment, which voters adopted overwhelmingly, with the elderly promoting its passage in hopes of getting tax breaks. Sen. Carl Parker assailed the 1978 amendment, however, as a "filflam."

"If you had a recipe for Mulligan's stew and called it the 'Tax Relief Amendment,' it would pass," said Parker. "We filflammed the public by putting that name on it." Sen. Tom Creighton described the 1978 proposal as the "worst bill we've ever passed" and said if the amendment is carried out by the Legislature "it will bankrupt every political subdivision in Texas." The Senate committee bill does not contain the $430 million in state money that the House had provided to reimburse school districts for revenue losses resulting from mandatory property tax cuts. Sen. Grant Jones, committee chairman, said reimbursement would be covered in a separate school finance bill being written by the Senate Education Committee. Jones, D-Abilene, admitted he had forgotten to ask the Legislative Budget Board to estimate how much the Senate bill would cost the state. "In all honesty, I flat forgot to get a fiscal note," said Jones. He promised one would be made available before the full Senate votes on the bill. R.H. Gibbons, a Fort Worth area resident representing 500,000 elderly Texans, urged the committee not to base eligibility producing ability instead of its market value. It also would: —Retain a House provision to freeze school taxes of the elderly for life. —Exempt two cars or light trucks per family from property taxes, but allow city councils, school boards and commissioners courts to restore their automobile taxes if they are willing to take the political risk. —Limit state spending increases to the percentage of growth of the state's economy. The House set out a detailed formula for use by the comptroller in determining the economic growth rate, but the Senate bill simply leaves the decision to the Legislative Budget Board. "The bottom line is that middle-Texas and middle-America are going to end up paying the dadgum tax bill," said Creighton. "The people going to get socked again."

Spring is a season of warm sunshine, fields of flowers, lingering twilight and gentle breezes. Spring is tender and romantic. It is a wonderful time to be alive.

This delightful season draws us like a magnet to the magic world of the great outdoors. Flowers begin to bloom in all their radiance, and birds sing once more. There's an assurance in the air itself of fresh, new hope.

Spring is also a time when we're more receptive to thoughts of the eternal mystery of life. It's a special time to marvel at God's supreme plan for each of us and for all of His creation.

This week discover a new sense of wonder of the divine power that sends us a bright, new spring year after year . . . in church.

AWAKE AT LAST! — Twenty-three year-old Karen Delahanty of Bristol lies in a hospital bed in New Britain, Conn., Thursday. Injured in a car crash last year, the young woman spent a full year in a coma and just began to revive on Good Friday. Her mother, Lorraine Delahanty looks on from right.

Average Social Security check rises $25 in July

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average elderly Social Security beneficiary will find $25 extra in his government check this July and some will get up to $50 more as a result of the automatic 9.9 percent benefit increase announced today.

The record increase, which will cost the Social Security trust funds $10.2 billion, came automatically as a result of the rise in the Consumer Price Index in the first quarter of this year over the same period in 1978.

An estimated 35 million retired or disabled workers and their families and survivors will get the increase in their July checks. Benefits also will go up 9.9 percent for about 5 million Supplemental Security Income recipients at a cost of $415 million.

Here is a list of the benefit increases:

The maximum monthly benefit for a worker retiring at age 65 in 1979 will jump from $508.40 to $553.30. The minimum benefit for a 65-year-old worker will go from $121.80 to $133.90.

The average benefit for a retired worker alone will go from $258 to $283. For an elderly couple, both getting benefits, it will go from $439 to $482.

For a mother with two children on Social Security, benefits will jump from $614 to $674. For an aged widow, it will rise from $243 to $267. For a disabled worker with a wife and children, it will go from $581 to $639.

The average benefit for all disabled workers will jump from $291 to $320.

The SSI payments, which go to the elderly, blind and disabled who are needy, will climb from $189.40 to $208.20 for an individual, and from $284.10 to $312.30 for a couple. Most states supplement these payments.

Last year's cost of living increase was 6.5 percent. This is the fifth annual automatic cost-of-living increase and exceeds the previous high of 8 percent in 1975.

Clutivars are approved

Not long ago lawns were clothed with whatever volunteered, generally crabgrass and a mixture of weeds. It was not much to take pride in, but everyone was in the same boat. There were no specially bred lawngresses, no Penfine turf-type ryegrass or Adelphi hybrid bluegrass. There was only leftover seed of pasture grasses used by farmers.

What a difference today! A wealth of first-rate cultivars is at hand, featuring namms as down-to-earth as Touch-down, Derby and Nugget; as American as Manhattan, Jamestown and Yorktown II; as imperial as Majestic, Baron and Regal; as high-sounding as Citatin, and Diplomat; and as pristine as Bonnieblue, Glade, Highlight and Emerald, to name just a few.

It all began with Merion Kentucky bluegrass, the first widely accepted cultivar markedly superior to common grass. Merion set the pace around midcentury, opening the door to an epoch of classy cultivars bred and selected for lawns alone, not pastures.

Church's top elective officer scheduled to speak here

The Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States will visit Big Spring Wednesday. Mrs. Sarah Bernice Moseley, the first woman ever to serve in the church's highest elective office, will be the guest of honor and speaker at a supper meeting in the church's fellowship hall. The supper will begin at 6:00, and the program will begin at 7:00. The public is invited.

The Moderator is a native of Anson, Texas, a graduate of Texas Woman's University. She is a ruling elder in the First Presbyterian Church, Sherman. In the past she has served as chairperson for the denomination's Mission Board, its Division of National Mission, and its Board of Women's Work. She has served as Moderator of the Covenant Presbytery. Her husband, Dr. John D. Moseley, was for 25 years president, and now serves as Chancellor, of Austin College at Sherman.

The Presbyterian Church is governed by a system of church courts. Each local church elects ruling elders and these, together with the teaching elders or ministers, constitute the Sessions. The various Sessions are represented at the higher courts of the church by ruling and teaching elders. These higher courts are the Presbytery, the Synod, and the General Assembly. The General Assembly is representative of the entire denomination.

It was at the 118th meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States at Shreveport, La., that Mrs. Moseley was elected Moderator last June 9. The General Assembly will meet this year in Kansas City on May 22.

Church calls moratorium

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — A district convention of the American Lutheran Church has called for a moratorium on construction of nuclear power plants "until the health and safety questions have been resolved."

Delegates to the church's southwestern Minnesota district convention said nuclear power plants present "unknown risks," and voted to support "safer alternatives," including solar and wind energy.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Bob Keeshan, television's Captain Kangaroo, and Richard S. Salant, former president of CBS News, are individual winners of the George Foster Peabody Broadcasting Award.

"Holocaust," the top-rated TV drama about the Nazi treatment of Jews during World War II, also captured one of the 28 annual awards announced Sunday by the University of Georgia School of Journalism and Mass Communication.

Titus Productions Inc. and NBC received the award for "Holocaust," which the judges said "has won international acclaim despite the controversial nature of its subject in some countries of the world."

Keeshan won for providing "superior entertainment for children and ... (promoting) quality television in all forms."

Salant was cited for "his staunch defense of the First Amendment guarantee of a free press, especially in the field of electronic journalism."

Sex offenders could be 'asexualized' in Oklahoma

Rape labeled 'a national pastime'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Certain sex offenders could be "asexualized" under a proposal passed by the state House Thursday after its author complained that rape has become "a national pastime."

House members voted 50-35 for an amendment that replaced all of the language in a bill originally drafted to repeal a 1931 state law providing for sterilization of certain criminals and the mentally ill.

Rep. Frank Shurden, a freshman Democrat from Henryetta, said he has received letters from across the country supporting his proposal.

The amendment calls for "asexualization" of sex offenders, as opposed to castration, which is defined in the dictionary as removal of the genitals or ovaries. Asexualization is defined in the amendment as the "the incapacitation of the external male genitalia." Final action was not taken on the bill, but Speaker Dan Draper, who voted against it, said he believed it had sufficient House support to send it to the Senate.

The proposal would allow a judge or jury to order asexualization of a person convicted of first-degree rape or a "detestable and abominable crime against nature" if at least two "aggravating circumstances" were involved in the crime.

The aggravating circumstances are defined as rape of a child under age 18, a sex crime "especially serious, atrocious or cruel," a sex crime committed by an escaped felon or the existence of a "high probability" that the defendant would commit additional sex crimes.

Other factors that could lead to an asexualization order under the bill are gang rapes, multiple rapes and sex crimes resulting in significant physical injury to the victim.

The amendment was passed over objections it might be unconstitutional and would reduce the administration of justice to the level of the criminal.

Shurden was asked about the U.S. Supreme Court's interpretation of laws dealing with cruel and unusual punishment. "Personally, I'd say to hell with the Supreme Court," he said.

Some lawmakers pleaded with their colleagues not to pass the amendment out of their anger over the rising crime rate, saying it would bring ridicule on Oklahoma from other parts of the country.

"I don't care what the liberal, do-gooders back East think about Oklahoma," said Rep. John Monks, D-Muskogee.

Monks spoke of the castration of a feisty young bull when he was a child on the farm. He said from then on, the animal's "mind was on the grass all the time."

Shurden said he was "deadly serious" about the amendment. "I want to strike a blow for the women and children in Oklahoma and give them the protection they need," he said. Rep. Jerry Steward, D-Oklahoma City, argued against the proposal and said it did not make sense because it referred only to removal of the "male genitalia."

He said it was possible for a female to commit a sex crime, such as a crime against nature. "How can a female have her male external genitals asexualized...It can't be done." Monks contended, however, that men have "more sex drive than females" and are responsible for almost all sex crimes.

He added of sex offenders: "It's like an alcoholic—they can't control it...They ought to be fixed."

Rep. Mike Lawter, D-Oklahoma City, said lawmakers who think sentences for rape are too lenient should push for laws calling for longer sentences and not for one he said would put Oklahoma on the same level of other countries that punish thieves, for instance, by chopping off their hands.

"Let's not make the society of Oklahoma reduce itself to the level of the people who break the laws," he said.

Pathologist says No traces of poison in body of narc agent

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A pathologist says preliminary autopsy results show no traces of poison in the body of fired federal undercover drug agent Sante Bario, who died early Tuesday after more than four months in a mysterious coma.

"At the time of autopsy, there was no sign of any poisoning," Dr. David M. Spain of Brooklyn, N.Y., said Thursday after he took part in the autopsy.

Bario, who was charged with accepting a $9,000 bribe last October to overlook a cache of cocaine, lapsed into the puzzling coma Dec. 16 in his individual jail cell after eating part of a peanut butter sandwich.

Bario had suffered massive brain damage and died about 1:30 a.m. Tuesday without regaining consciousness. He had been removed from life support systems in January. Spain said Bario died from a respiratory infection spawned by life support efforts.

It was first believed he had been poisoned after traces of strychnine were reportedly found in initial tests last December. Bexar County Medical Examiner Dr. Ruben Santos said, however, that later tests did not turn up any trace of poison.

"I have nothing to add to what was said months ago," Santos said Thursday after the autopsy.

Gerald Goldstein, Bario's attorney, said the preliminary findings were "not unexpected." He said Spain plans further tests, but added, "Any further tests are not likely to produce anything different."

Erving leads Sixers rout of Spurs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — It could have been Philadelphia's shuffled lineup. It might have been a scrappy 76er defense or maybe Julius Erving's 32 points as a guard. San Antonio Coach Doug Moe says he team was so awful Thursday night, he really couldn't tell.

The 76ers routed the lethargic, anemic Spurs 120-97 to trim San Antonio's margin to 3-2 in their best-of-seven, NBA Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series. The series moves back to Philadelphia on Sunday for the sixth game.

"We played so bad, just terrible," moaned Moe after his usually potent Spurs shot a paltry 26 percent in the first half and 38 percent for the game. "You have to give them credit, but when you're missing the easy layups and easy shots... It was just some of both."

"The lineup change isn't going to affect you when you're coming out and missing the easy shots. Tonight it wouldn't have made any difference," he added. "We just had a very, very bad game. It was one of those nights you want to forget about."

Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham acknowledged that the Spurs had a miserable shooting night, but said, "The defense was the key. They missed some good shots, but it had a lot to do with our defense."

Cunningham, forced to continually shuffle his players with the absence of injured All-Star guard Doug Collins, opened with an oversized lineup that included 6-foot-6 forward Erving at guard, 6-11 center Caldwell Jones at forward and gargantuan Darryl Dawkins at center. Rookie Maurice Cheeks, 6-1, was the only regular guard who started.

Erving responded with 32 points, 24 of them in the second half. The shifty Cheeks got 18 points and shut down the usually explosive Gervin, the NBA's scoring champion for two consecutive years.

Gervin, who's been averaging 29 points per game in the series, didn't score until he hit a pair of free throws with 8:56 remaining in the second quarter. He didn't score again until he hit a reverse layup with 9:05 remaining in the third period.

He got nine more in the fourth period, none on outside shots. It was his worst performance this season and only the third time San Antonio had been held under 100 points this season.

DOCTOR J OPERATING — Philadelphia's Julius Erving leaps to grab an otherwise out-of-bounds ball and passes to a teammate in this action from their NBA playoff game with the San Antonio Spurs Thursday night at San Antonio. Erving led the scoring with 32 points in their 120-97 win over San Antonio.

Record setting Rice invades Penn Relays

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice University's sprint medley relay team set a national record last week and finished second in the race.

The Owls hope to put it all together this weekend at the Penn Relays when they try to improve on their American record 3:14.47 clocking in last week's Baylor Invitational.

Rice finished second to Missouri, which recorded the world's best time of 3:13.91. Rice claims the American record, however, because two Nigerian athletes were members of the Missouri team.

by Steve Baldwin in the 440 and Bruce Gingrich on the 880.

"We had kind of a bad handoff, so maybe we could improve some there," said Baldwin, who was passed on the 440-yard leg by Missouri's Dele Udo of Nigeria. "I'll have to agree that Udo is a world class runner in the quarter."

Gingrich, the second fastest half-miler in the Southwest Conference this year, ran a blistering 1:45.7 anchor leg but it wasn't enough to catch Missouri's Scott Clark, who ran a 1:46.1 anchor for Missouri.

It was the second loss to Missouri this year in the special event, which is not contested internationally. Missouri will not be at the Penn Relays for a rematch.

"We thought if we could get Bruce closer, we might win," May said. "We got him closer, but it just wasn't quite enough."

Rice's American record erased the mark of 3:15.2 set by Kansas in 1967 with former Olympian Jim Ryun running anchor.

The Owls' surprising finish took awhile to soak in.

"It took me until Monday to realize what we had really done," Rice Coach Bob May said. "An American record doesn't come along too often. It caught us by surprise. The weather was bad and it looked like a bad weekend."

Another fast field is lined up at the Penn Relays this week, and the Owls say they could run even faster. Sprinters Darrell Mouton and Carlton Darrett ran the 220 yard dash legs followed

Hawks blast Bullets to even series

By the Associated Press

Defense was the difference as the no-name Atlanta Hawks and the big-name Philadelphia 76ers stayed alive in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Both clubs were one loss away from elimination prior to Thursday night's games, but both postponed their summer vacations with lopsided victories in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

Steve Hawes and Eddie Johnson scored 12 points apiece in the second half as the scrappy Hawks beat the defending champion Washington Bullets 104-86 to even their best-of-seven series at three victories apiece. The deciding game will be played Sunday in Landover, Md.

"The most important thing in the game was defense," said Hawks Coach Hubie Brown. "It was absolutely great."

In the Western Conference semifinals, the Phoenix Suns will attempt to close out their series with a victory over the Kansas City Kings tonight at Phoenix in a nationally televised game.

The Suns took a 3-1 lead in that series with a 108-94 victory at Kansas City Wednesday night, a game in which the Kings shot just 33 percent from the field.

The winner of that series will take on the Seattle SuperSonics, who eliminated the Los Angeles Lakers 4-1 in the other West semifinal. If Phoenix wins tonight, that series would start on Sunday.

Atlanta went ahead to stay on a 12-foot jumper by Johnson that made it 35-33 midway through the second period. Hawes poured in 10 points during the third quarter and Johnson got 10 points in the final period as the Hawks pulled away from Washington.

Johnson and John Drew scored 22 points each for Atlanta and Hawes finished with 14 points and 14 rebounds. Washington's Elvin Hayes led all scorers with 24 points.

The Hawks feel they can knock off the defending champs on Sunday.

Giants veto Japan trip

NEW YORK — The San Francisco Giants voted 16-9 to turn down a trip to Japan with the San Diego Padres that was to have opened the 1980 National League season.

Giants' player representative John Curtis announced his team's decision, saying the main complaints were that the players would have to travel too far and would have to train earlier than usual.

Aggies sign schoolboy stars

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M coaches announced Thursday that a Texas schoolboy basketball blue chipper and the Illinois state indoor tennis champion have signed to play for the Aggies.

Claude Riley, a 6-9 player from Crockett, was one of the outstanding players in the Big Brothers All-Star game in Houston, said Aggie Coach Shelby Metcalf.

Kowal, from Naperville, Ill., is the fifth-ranked junior in the Western Sectional and reached the quarterfinals of the National 18 Indoor tennis championships, said tennis coach David Kent.

EVERYONE LOVES A WINNER — Diane Schmidt, of Houston, Tex., plants a victory kiss on her fiancé, Jim Howell, also of Houston, after Howell won the Drake Relay's decathlon. Rain spattered Howell had just won the 1500 meter event to claim the decathlon title, and a kiss from Diane. Howell finished with 7,470 points to win for the first time in six tries at Drake. Howell won the 110-meter high hurdles and the 1500 meters and finished second in the pole vault and javelin. He won the 400 meters in Tuesday's opening round.

Area tracksters in regional competition

Area tracksters will be hoping to prolong the track season two more weeks today and tomorrow as the regional boys competition begins. First and second place finishers this weekend will then advance to the state meet the second weekend in May.

Class AAAA participant Big Spring and AA schools Coahoma and Colorado City will be in Lubbock, with A Stanton and Forsan competing in Odessa. Class B competition, featuring Grady, Garden City and Sandy will be in Levelland.

Colorado City and Stanton are expected to contend for the regional crowns.

Class AA Colorado City has performers in the 11 positions, plus their 1600-meter relay quartet. Representing the Wolves will be Mark Carter, Dwayne Staats, Gary Hulme, Ron Proctor, J.D. Lewis, Ricky Sanchez, Ruben Garcia, Dewayne Iglehart and William Hanks.

Coahoma finished second in District 6-AA and will send four individuals in five events, plus their district champion 400-meter relay team. Randy Wallace is entered in the pole vault, Gary Gee in the high jump and high hurdles, Barry Newton in the 100, and Ronald Sundry in the 200 meter. The 400-meter relay team consists of Clint Elliot, James Dever, Gary Gee and Cecil Walker.

Forsan had two tracksters earn regional spots, with both cindermen competing in two events. Randy Cregar will enter the 100 and the long jump, with Todd Underwood entering the discus and the shot put.

The Big Spring Steers will be represented in the AAAA regional competition by Eddie Puga. Puga is entered in the long jump.

Hangin' Out

by Nathan Poss

When questioned recently, both former Marquette basketball coach turned commentator Al McGuire and golfer Lee Trevino admitted that they envisioned themselves as entertainers. Which is really not too surprising, considering the various animation and original one-liners that the two have been known to use.

Trevino feels that his role as the gregarious joker on the course must also end there. "Out there, it's like being on a stage. I don't think I could go out in public at night and still have the rapport I have with the people on the course the next day."

While Trevino seems to understand his role as a performer, McGuire seems a little confused by which role to play, stating: "I am an entertainer. I always knew that, but I never know when I'm acting and not acting. Hey, everything we ever did at Marquette was entertainment."

While both admit to the 'performer' sides of their personalities, neither seem to totally enjoy the acclaim that their private lives are now familiarized to.

The jovial and outspoken Trevino, in an effort to live a more normal life with his family, has become somewhat of a recluse. "I don't even go out in public," Trevino said earlier this week. "I'm a hermit. I haven't taken my wife out to dinner in four years, and she reminds me of that." This isn't any different than a lot of men running around. But Trevino, however, has an excuse.

"The last time we went out to dinner, people came over to our table, pushed my plate out of the way, spilled water in her lap and asked for my autograph."

McGuire's face is popular, but not as much so as Trevino's. Still, he has at times become uneasy toward the non-private life that his fame has brought upon him. "I was upset the other day when my salaries were printed in the newspaper," McGuire stated recently at a seminar on the campus of the University of Wisconsin, "but that's what the news media is about. For every pat on the back there is a kick in the pants. If you want to read just what you want to read, take out an ad."

Well said, Al, now if you would please try to get a couple of area coaches and mothers to understand this, it would make one certain sports editor's ear rest in attempted peace.

One of the true marks of a successful sports competitor is the ability to bounce back from periods of adversity. Both have passed these tests, exhibiting self-confidence and desire along the way. Trevino had some very painful back problems in 1977, but rebounded to win $228,723 last year and move ahead of Arnold Palmer into second place on the list of career money winners. "People started saying, 'He's finished.' No way. They just took a disc out, not my heart, not my guts."

McGuire's ability to overcome adversity is the type that many people would like to overcome, but his style was still somewhat unique. In the midst of the 1974 NCAA championship game pitting Marquette against North Carolina State, McGuire received two costly, technical fouls. After the game, Marquette center Maurice Lucas told McGuire, "Coach, you blew that one."

McGuire quickly shot back at the future All-Pro: "Maurice, you've come a long way, and you wouldn't be here without me. I'll come back." Three years later, McGuire's final team at Marquette defeated North Carolina to give the emotional Brooklynite his first and only NCAA title.

Concerning thoughts on the future, Trevino can only think about his golfing game. "It's on my mind all the time," he said. "It's what I love to do."

Meanwhile, McGuire doesn't really think he'll last as a sports commentator, but does have an idea what he too long on television. I think I'm offending, especially to the coaching profession. For my final career, I'm going to the south island of New Zealand. I may go early. My wife, Pat, gave me my freedom. Of course, I would have taken it anyway."

Red Sox to raffle bicycle

The Big Spring Red Sox will raffle off a bicycle prior to their game Sunday in Steer Park with Abilene.

The Red Sox have been selling the tickets for two months, and Bill Diaz said that there should still be some available at the Sunday encounter.

Grady tracksters invade Levelland

GRADY — Grady High School Wildcats climaxed their most successful track season in history last week in taking the District 9-B track and field championship in Sterling City last Saturday.

In winning the title, Grady qualified seven individuals and one relay team for the regional track and field meet to be held on the campus of South Plains College in Levelland beginning today. Those competing will be Ronald Chee, Leland Key, Ruben Gutierrez, Lupe Rodriguez, Jimmy Mitchell, Eli Silva and Alex Perez.

Richard, Astros clip Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — J.R. Richard is different. Not merely because he is an awesome sight on the mound at 6-foot-8 and 237 pounds but, unlike most pitchers, he wants to be a complete player.

Richard improved his record to 4-0, hurling the Houston Astros to a 6-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Thursday. But he had mixed emotions about having the game after five innings because of a slight back strain.

Richard also helped his cause by slugging a home run into a 12-17 mph wind.

"I like to go nine innings all the time, and every game I start I even think about going 10 innings," said Richard. "It makes you work that much harder and your stamina that much stronger."

Although he told Manager Bill Virdon he injured his back, Richard appeared reluctant to be taken out.

Why would he tell his manager his back was hurting, then resist leaving the game?

"That's because I have heart," said Richard. "You just don't want to come out when you have that big a lead but you can't jeopardize a whole season for one game."

Richard attributed the best start of his baseball career to his consistency, plus "the whole ball club is executing, moving runners along, doing the right things at the right time, which is what makes a winner."

"I want to become better in every respect — bunting, pitching, fielding and hitting," said Richard. "Every time I come up to bat, I think of myself as a hitter."

"I'm proud of hitting a home run, definitely," he said. "It's part of the game. I usually get one or two a year."

Richard, who now has eight career homers, allowed only three hits, three walks and struck out six before departing. He insisted he is not as wild as his reputation indicates.

"Do I scare batters?" said Richard, repeating the question. "I don't know. You would have to ask them. I've never had a chance to bat against myself, but intimidation is part of every pitcher's game."

Richard homered in the third inning, and Bob Watson and Alan Ashby contributed runcoring singles in the fourth. Craig Reynolds doubled in a run in the fifth and singled home two runs in the sixth.

Rangers forbid women reporters

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — A furor over the barring of women sports writers from the Texas Ranger clubhouse erupted into a shouting match Wednesday between team management and men writers also kept out of the dressing room by team policy.

Writers have not penetrated the Ranger door during a threegame series between Texas and the Toronto Blue Jays.

In an angry, cursing episode Wednesday night, the male writers confronted General Manager Eddie Robinson, a Ranger executive vice president, demanding that he open the doors.

The male writers have been banned from the dressing room because a woman reporter, Allison Gordon of the Toronto Star, was also denied admission.

Robinson called the meeting with the writers before game time to explain the front office position.

"We had a meeting with the players (in spring training) in which I brought up how I felt we should do it," he said. "They quickly told me they had their rule and that was it."

That rule, he said, was no women in the clubhouse.

"We cannot tell our players what they can do in the clubhouse," Robinson insisted. "I talked to the American League office today and they said you can't tell them what they can do there."

The meeting between writers and Robinson grew progressively hostile before they cooled off and left the issue unsettled.

Brewers sweep Tigers

Call them the modern-day hitless wonders — Robin Yount, 1-for-29; Gorman Thomas, 0-for-24; Ben Oglivie, 1-for-31.

The three Milwaukee Musketeers broke their slumps with a vengeance Thursday night, collecting 12 hits in 25 at-bats with four doubles, three homers and nine RBI as the Brewers snapped a five-game losing streak by sweeping a 5-1, 7-5 double-header from the Detroit Tigers.

In a stroke of genius, Manager George Bamberger made Yount and Thomas the 1-2 hitters in the Brewers' batting order and it paid off. Yount broke his slump with a three-run sixth-inning double in the nightcap and doubled home another run in a three-run eighth. Thomas, who homered in each game, followed with a decisive two-run single.

The Brewers won their first game from Detroit as Cecil Cooper homered and Charlie Moore lined a two-run single in a three-run seventh-inning.

They loaded the bases in the sixth inning of the nightcap on Oglivie's fourth straight hit, a walk and a checked-swing pinch single by Larry Hisle. Yount then doubled to score all three runners and give the Brewers a 4-3 lead. A walk and an error preceded Yount's RBI double in the eighth and Thomas followed with a two-run single.

Thomas' six hits were one more than he had all season and the free-swinging center fielder had struck out 18 times in 42 at-bats.

Red Sox 2, Mariners 0

Bob Stanley scattered six singles and Rick Burleson delivered a two-run single in the third as the Red Sox won their seventh game in a row and extended Seattle's losing streak to a club record 11 games.

Burleson's hit followed Bob Montgomery's double, a single by Jerry Remy and a stolen base. Boston ran its record to 12-4, matching its previous best effort for April. In 1971, the Red Sox were 12-7 in the first month.

Orioles 4, Angels 2

Pinch hitter Lee May's tiebreaking single and Eddie Murray's sacrifice fly in the top of the ninth inning helped Baltimore record its eighth straight victory and hand the Angels their fourth consecutive setback.

Al Bumbry started the ninth with a one-out infield hit off loser Dave LaRoche and Rich Dauer followed with a single, setting the stage for May's game-winner.

California starter Nolan Ryan had to leave the game after two innings because of a pulled groin muscle. Ryan suffered a similar injury Saturday night when he came within five outs of what would have been a record fifth no-hitter. There was no immediate word as to whether the hard-throwing right-hander would miss his next turn.

Royals 5, Indians 4

Cleveland reliever Sid Monge threw a bases-loaded wild pitch in the bottom of the ninth inning and Willie Wilson streaked home with the winning run. Monge was brought in to face George Brett after the Royals loaded the bases against loser Dan Spillner.

Brett's triple keyed a three-run rally in the sixth and Darrell Porter clubbed a solo home run as the Royals won their fourth game in a row. Bobby Bonds and Gary Alexander homered for Cleveland.

Conner leads at New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS — Frank Conner fired a 7-under-par 65 for the first-round lead in the $250,000 New Orleans Open.

Conner held a 1-stroke lead over veteran Jim Colbert and Doug Tewell, tied for second at 66. Allen Miller and Phil Hancock shot 67s.

Connors whips Tanner in Alan King Classic

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Jimmy Connors scored a 6-7, 6-3, 6-4 victory over Roscoe Tanner in the $250,000 Alan King Tennis Classic.

Connors advanced to the semifinals against John McEnroe, who notched a 6-3, 6-3 victory over Johan Kriek.

In other matches, Bjorn Borg easily beat Tim Gullikson 6-2, 6-3 and Gene Mayer defeated Adriano Panatta 6-3, 6-4.

West Germany skates past U.S.

MOSCOW — Marcus Kuhl scored four goals as West Germany downed the United States 5-2 to determine sixth place in the World Ice Hockey Championships.

The Soviet Union clinched the title Wednesday with its seventh consecutive victory. Czechoslovakia took second place, Sweden was third, Canada's squad of National Hockey League players finished fourth and Finland placed fifth.

North Korea takes tennis win

PYONGYANG, North Korea — North Korea scored a 5-0 win over the United States in Group A of the first category in the world table tennis championships.

America's No. 1 player, Danny Seemiller, was beaten by North Koreans Yun Chol 12-21, 21-18, 23-25 and Hong Chol 21-19, 20-22, 21-18.

Steers host Cooper; Spring training begins

Saturday will be a busy day for Big Spring athletes, as the Steer baseball team hosts first half district champion Abilene Cooper and the football team opens spring training for the 79 season.

The baseball game is scheduled to begin at 2:00. Big Spring is 1-3 in the second half, while Cooper is 3-1. Cooper won the first half with a record of 6-1 and needs to win the remainder of their regular season games in order to have a chance to win the loop title outright.

Big Spring baseball coach Tommy Collins will probably start Larry Smith on the mound, with David Manley also available for action.

Big Spring Head Football Coach Ron Logback will work the prospective footballers twice tomorrow. The morning session will stress workout organization, with the more serious play slated for the afternoon.

Logback and his staff will be working with a relatively young crew. The Steers displayed much needed improvement on speed and quickness in the off season program, and are hoping that this will overcome the inexperience factor.

BUTTERCUPS — Evening primroses are not true primroses, but some species of Oenothera do open in the afternoon and stay open until the following morning. Some of the species are called buttercups and they resemble buttercups. The flowers are white, rose, reddish violet and pink in color. Some of the species grow to 2-feet tall and some grow only a few inches tall. Others are prostrate on the ground. There are approximately 20 to 25 species adapted to this area. The family is Onagraceae. This species is brachycarpa.

Today's lawn is a touch of 'class'

A few dollars and a few hours invested in lawn and shrubbery can add thousands to the value of your home. That's what many real estate specialists tell homeowners. A neglected lawn, on the other hand, detracts both from the beauty and value of the home.

For most, a home is the largest single lifetime investment, and that investment is enhanced and protected by attractive landscaping and lawn care, notes The Fertilizer Institute.

Visual appeal of the home and landscape area is extremely important to most homeowners. It becomes even more important if sale of the property is planned because the home grounds create an initial impression on the prospective buyer regarding the total home value.

THE MOST popular flower of them all, and perhaps the oldest in history — traced back some 60 million years — is receiving long overdue tribute this year: The Year of the Rose. The eleven different national organizations concerned with this "Queen of the Garden" are spearheading the year of honor for the living symbol of love, friendship and peace.

'The Year of the Rose' honors easy-care beauty

There's no doubt about it. The most popular flower in all the world now, and for centuries past, is the rose — richly deserving the title: "Queen of the Garden."

Serious rose hobbyists find great satisfaction in all the ways their care can reward them with blooms, and many enjoyable hours can be spent with their plants. This is one of the benefits provided by the rose — its quick response to attention it can receive.

But for many people the care which can be given to roses seems shrouded with mystery, and some hesitate to add the beauty to their yard or garden because of it. During this "Year of the Rose" efforts are being made by a number of national organizations to allay those misgivings, and to demonstrate how easily the queen of flowers can be planted and cared for. Certainly there is knowledge and skill which can be acquired, but the enjoyment of roses does not depend on it.

The nurseries and garden centers and rose catalog companies have the simple information any new rose gardener might need, and they encourage every home to begin enjoying the armloads of beauty available through any of the many varieties of roses this special year designated to pay tribute to the queen of them all.

Pressure treating protection

Pressure treated wood means just that! Powerful, long lasting preservatives are driven deep into the wood in pressurized cylinders. After treatment, sufficient pressure treated wood to construct a 500 square foot deck (20' x 25') will contain ten times the preservative found in a similar quantity of wood that has been dipped, and nearly forty times as much protective preservative as would be present if the preservative had been brushed on.

Treatment by brushing protects only the surface. Dipping allows penetration to only 1-32 of an inch.

Long-lasting protection is provided when the preservative is deep in the wood. Pressure treating puts the right amount of protection where it is needed.

Landscaping adds value to home

How would you like to add 20 percent to the value of the market price of your home? Spokesmen for the American Association of Nurserymen say you can do just that by adding trees, shrubs, and plants to your grounds.

The AAN, the national organization for people who grow, care for, sell and install environmental plantings, point out a number of ways in which good landscaping is one of the best investments a family can make.

One. Studies by the U.S. Forest Service and by real estate organization show that a house with trees in the yard can be worth 20 percent to 30 percent more than the same house without them.

Two. As trees, shrubs and plants grow, they increase in value, and their added value makes up for the cost of installing them over a period of time.

Three. A 20 percent increase in market value brought about by proper planting yields a proportionately higher dollar return as the price of the real estate increases, notwithstanding inflationary trends.

Four. According to real estate studies, not only will a well-planted house sell for more, but it will also sell faster, which, in our mobile society is an increasingly important factor.

Five. Most homeowner's insurance policies cover against damage by sudden, unexpected catastrophe. If insurance is not sufficient, the loss can often be claimed on a personal income tax statement.

Six. Proper planting can cool a home in the summer and help protect it against cold winds in the winter, resulting in energy savings and reduced fuel bills.

The members of the AAN believe that living green is rewarding not only physically and emotionally, but financially as well. Considering the economics of the 1970's — it's another expression of "Green Survival."

Tree, plants, vines can add beauty, save money

While we will appreciate plants, trees and vines for their pleasing decorative effect, they are now becoming fully appreciated as helpers in one of America's greatest areas of concern — energy conservation.

The American Association of Nurserymen, along with other groups, has conducted numerous studies which have proved that careful planting and landscaping can indeed save energy and money.

Fuel bills can be reduced during the winter months by investing in windbreak trees. For example, in South Dakota, a cold winter state by any standards, the fuel consumption of two identical experimental houses was 25 percent less for the house located on the lee side of a tall windbreak than in the exposed house. For a house sheltered on three sides but exposed to the south, the wind reduction was 71 percent and the fuel consumption reduced by 40 percent, which is a remarkable saving. Even in the eastern part of the United States, where there is often more natural protection, studies have shown that an average saving of ten percent can be realized with the proper windbreak screening.

Proper shading by good landscaping can save money in the summer months as well. You don't need a computer to realize that a forest is cooler on a hot summer day than a city or even suburban environment. Trees have been doing a cooling job for centuries. They give shade in the summer and drop their leaves in the winter so the sun can shine through to help warm the ground and our home.

Vines can also provide significant savings. On masonry walls the leaf blades intercept and absorb rays of sunlight, while behind them a convection carries the warm air up and away from the wall. For wooden walls, a trellis should be erected some small distance out from the wood, as clinging vines tend to hold moisture and add to the deterioration of the wall. Wisteria or climbing roses are very effective on trellises. They help keep the hot rays of the sun away and slow deterioration of paint, which is another way plants save you money.

Planting around a whole-house air-conditioning unit can reduce the output necessary for effective cooling and result in another increased saving.

Home heating and cooling represents about 25 percent of our national fuel consumption. Proper planting for insulation can clearly make a major reduction in our fuel usage and a significant contribution to energy conservation. As the men and women of the AAN say, "It's another aspect of Green Survival."

Windfall profits tax' reshaped

WASHINGTON (AP) - President's Carter's proposed tax on oil profits would have far less bite than generally supposed on the additional billions of dollars oil price decontrol will give to producers.

Although described originally as a 50 percent tax, the levy actually will cost oil companies only about 13 percent of the first three years' worth of extra income from decontrol, according to figures made public by the administration for the first time Thursday.

Carter's decision to eliminate gradually the federal ceilings on domestically produced oil will transfer $15.4 billion from consumers to oil companies by the end of 1981, administration officials said.

Far from taking half that amount, Carter's proposed "windfall profits tax" would net only $2 billion more in taxes that the oil companies would have to pay anyway under existing state and federal tax laws.

These figures contrast with the president's description of his proposed tax as the only barrier to a "massive ripoff" of consumers by oil companies.

If Congress enacts Carter's proposal intact, oil companies will get to keep $6 billion of their estimated $15.4 billion in additional revenue. If Congress passes no "windfall tax" at all, the companies still would get to keep only $8 billion, the new figures show.

The president proposes to funnel money from the windfall tax and from other oil-company taxes into a fund to help the poor pay their higher fuel bills, and to improve mass transit and look for new energy sources.

Stuart Eizenstat, the president's chief domestic policy aide, provided the estimate that decontrol will produce a gross increase of $15.4 billion in oil prices over the next three years.

Only $3.3 billion of that would be taxed away by the windfall levy, which figures out not to 50 percent but to a little over 21 percent.

The reason is that the administration would exempt several categories of oil, including oil flowing in the Alaskan pipeline, oil from wells that produce relatively little oil, and oil from wells that require certain expensive techniques to induce production.

But it doesn't stop there. The $3.3 billion is an excise tax which the oil companies can deduct from their taxable income and thereby reduce the amount of federal income tax they otherwise would owe.

Thus, the "50 percent" oil profit tax would end up costing the companies a net of only $2 billion in added taxes over the first three years.

And that's about 13 percent of the $15.4 billion additional income expected to be realized by the companies under decontrol.

Windfall profits tax' reshaped

WASHINGTON (AP) - President's Carter's proposed tax on oil profits would have far less bite than generally supposed on the additional billions of dollars oil price decontrol will give to producers.

Although described originally as a 50 percent tax, the levy actually will cost oil companies only about 13 percent of the first three years' worth of extra income from decontrol, according to figures made public by the administration for the first time Thursday.

Carter's decision to eliminate gradually the federal ceilings on domestically produced oil will transfer $15.4 billion from consumers to oil companies by the end of 1981, administration officials said.

Far from taking half that amount, Carter's proposed "windfall profits tax" would net only $2 billion more in taxes that the oil companies would have to pay anyway under existing state and federal tax laws.

These figures contrast with the president's description of his proposed tax as the only barrier to a "massive ripoff" of consumers by oil companies.

If Congress enacts Carter's proposal intact, oil companies will get to keep $6 billion of their estimated $15.4 billion in additional revenue. If Congress passes no "windfall tax" at all, the companies still would get to keep only $8 billion, the new figures show.

The president proposes to funnel money from the windfall tax and from other oil-company taxes into a fund to help the poor pay their higher fuel bills, and to improve mass transit and look for new energy sources.

Stuart Eizenstat, the president's chief domestic policy aide, provided the estimate that decontrol will produce a gross increase of $15.4 billion in oil prices over the next three years.

Only $3.3 billion of that would be taxed away by the windfall levy, which figures out not to 50 percent but to a little over 21 percent.

The reason is that the administration would exempt several categories of oil, including oil flowing in the Alaskan pipeline, oil from wells that produce relatively little oil, and oil from wells that require certain expensive techniques to induce production.

But it doesn't stop there. The $3.3 billion is an excise tax which the oil companies can deduct from their taxable income and thereby reduce the amount of federal income tax they otherwise would owe.

Thus, the "50 percent" oil profit tax would end up costing the companies a net of only $2 billion in added taxes over the first three years.

And that's about 13 percent of the $15.4 billion additional income expected to be realized by the companies under decontrol.

Rare whooping crane chick 'doing fine' in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A rare whooping crane chick was hatched Thursday at the San Antonio Zoo from one of three eggs being tended by bantam jungle fowl hens acting as foster mothers.

The chick is "doing fine," said David McKelvey, senior aviculturist at the zoo. It is not yet possible to determine the sex of the chick, he said.

Ektu, mate of the late Crip, produced eight eggs last month, five of which were fertile. Crip died last month after living three decades in captivity.

One chick died last week after poking its beak through its shell. Another egg was sent to the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center in Maryland for incubation.

NO LONGER DRY Farm equipment that was for awhile dry on a country road now stands in the flood waters of the Red River south of Robbins, Minn., as the flooding river rages on its northward journey leaving thousands of acres under water and many farms isolated.

Chopper pilots searching for marooned families

By the Associated Press

Rising Red River floodwaters, surging toward an expected crest today, churned along a 150-mile front of prime prairie farmland from Grand Forks, N.D. to Winnipeg, Manitoba, threatening the area's important wheat crop.

National Guard helicopters swooped low Thursday over the upper Red River Valley, their crews scanning vast flooded areas in search of marooned farm families.

"There was water as far as you could see going north into Canada," said one helicopter pilot.

"Our chopper pilots reported a couple of farm families who said they hadn't seen anybody in four days and appreciated the food brought in," Lt. Col. Adrian Beltrand said Thursday.

In East Grand Forks, Minn., and its sister community, Grand Forks, N.D., the Red River climbed to more than 48 feet late Thursday, 1 1/2 feet under its expected crest. An estimated 2,000 persons remain away from their homes in the beleaguered communities, civil defense officials said.

A hot, steady sun baked South Florida Thursday as residents of the wealthy Gold Coast area north of Miami tried to dry out following Wednesday's record rainfall of more than 16 inches in a 24-hour period.

"It's like a big swimming pool here and it's impossible," said Mayor Lenny Kimmel of North Lauderdale, Fla. "The kids are out of school and they're swimming along with the fish and the snakes and the alligators."

In Broward County, hardest hit by the deluge, Lew Watson of the Agricultural Extension Service said farm, nursery and livestock business may have been set back by as much as $20 million. Some 5,000 acres of vegetable crops, worth an estimated $5 million, were destroyed by the torrential rains in Palm Beach County.

President Carter declared 40 counties in North Dakota a federal disaster area Thursday and Minnesota Gov. Al Quie said he would request similar designation for Minnesota sections of the valley once the water has receded enough to assess damage.

The flat, fertile Red River Valley allows no real drainage. Flood waters spread over wide areas, threatening a score of towns, breaking through farm dikes and overflowing country roads and interstate highways alike.

Hundreds of farm families have chosen to stay at their sandbagged, waterlogged homes to protect livestock and property.

"You can get in a boat right here and go 10 miles either direction just across the fields," said Ed Jundt, chairman of the Pembina, N.D., Flood Committee.

"Most of the grain bins are full of grain and some are sitting in four or five feet of water."

Canadian officials feared the flood waters could delay grain shipments, causing crop losses in the millions of dollars.

"Another day or two of rising waters will stop all grain movement into or out of grain elevators in the Red River Valley," said Keith Wilson of Manitoba Pool Elevators. "I'd say 70 to 75 of Pool's elevators in the area will be out of commission by the end of the week."

Officials estimated that up to one-third of the province's total crop of 150 million bushels stored on farms is in the flooded area.

House approves measure

If you do the crime you'll pay fine, victim

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Violent crime often inflicts not only pain but financial hardship — medical bills, funeral expenses and lost wages.

A bill setting up a state fund, taken from the pockets of criminals, to help ease those hardships won tentative House approval Thursday, 91-43.

Final passage would return the bill (SB21) to the Senate for action on changes made by the House.

One amendment would see to it that a criminal's profits from writing about his experiences were available to compensate people he injured.

Victims of criminal violence or their survivors could receive up to $50,000 from the state for medical or funeral expenses, lost wages and rehabilitation expenses.

To qualify, a victim would have to report the crime within 72 hours.

Only victims whose economic losses resulted in financial hardship for themselves or their families could collect.

Hospital emergency rooms and policemen would have to inform victims of the availability of financial help from the state.

The Texas Industrial Accident Board, which decides workers' compensation claims, would administer the crime victim program.

Money for compensating victims would come from court costs of $10 paid by persons convicted of serious misdemeanors and $15 paid by convicted felons.

Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Salado, called it a "pay as you go provision. We are going to make the people who perpetrate crimes put up $10 or $15."

He said the requirement to report crimes within 72 hours "will help our people in law enforcement find out about these crimes being committed."

Rep. Bob Maloney, R-Dallas, asserted the bill might be an unconstitutional grant of public money to individuals and said he was "most concerned that this will begin a philosophy in this state of state-subsidized insurance."

"This is a switch from the Robin Hood theory of robbing the rich and giving to the poor. This is taking from the poor and giving to the poor," Maloney said of the court costs to build the compensation fund.

Rep. Gerald Geistweidt, R-Mason, called the bill "a method of socialized law" that would penalize people who "had foresight enough" to buy insurance.

"It only helps those who will not help themselves," Geistweidt said.

Felony charges are filed here

Two felony charges were filed Tuesday with Howard County Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin.

Raymond Perez Mendoza Jr. was charged with indecency with a child.

Curtis Donaldson was charged with auto theft on a fugitive complaint from Louisiana. His bond was set at $15,000 by Hefflin.

In 118th District Court, Marcus Quentin Johnston, 22, of Big Spring pleaded guilty to aggravated assault, and received a sentence of three years imprisonment in the state pen. The assault allegedly occurred April 18.

A writ of habeas corpus was granted, and bond was set for Bobby Marquez who is being held on a charge filed in February for possession of heroin. The defendant will not be admitted to bond, however, because the 118th District Attorney's office had formerly filed a motion to revoke Marquez' probation.
