HUMAN ERROR STRIKES AGAIN — Lubbock pilot Eugene Skalnaker walked away unharmed from a close call at Big Spring Airport this morning. According to Fire Marshal Jim Ryals, the plane's alarm system failed to warn Skalnaker that he had forgotten to lower his landing gear. Big Spring police and fire officials arrived on the scene minutes after the plane, shown above, belly-landed, skidding down the runway some 250 feet, about 10:45 a.m. Amount of damage to the plane has not yet been determined.

In Southeast Texas

Potentially dangerous chemical sludge poured

CORRIGAN, Texas (AP) — A potentially dangerous chemical sludge was poured on roadbeds at several locations in Southeast Texas, according to the Port Arthur News.

The sites included a Campfire Girls site near Silsbee, the Barlow Lakes subdivision near Spurger, Cougar Country Resorts near Buna, a trailer park five miles south of Woodville, and Town Bluff Estates near Jasper, the newspaper reported Tuesday.

Other locations being checked by the Texas Department of Water Resources include Bralio Lake Estates near Woodville, Invanhoe Estates near Hollister, Wilson Warehouse parking lot in Orange and Shelter Co. R.R. in Livingston.

C.R. Miertschin, director of field operations and enforcement at TDWR, said inspectors are checking samples in these areas.

The chemical sludge and its toxicity was first brought to light by the News at Reily's Village, a new subdivision nestled in the tall pines near Corrigan in Polk County.

Dr. Ewins Eads, director of environmental science at Lamar University in Beaumont, conducted tests on samples brought to him from the road and a ditch in the area.

Eads said Tuesday he found nitrobenzene and some nitriles, which are equivalent to organic cyanide. Both are dangerous to man, Eads said. Nitrobenzene has been shown to cause skin cancer and cyanide can cause death by suffocation. He said it might have to get into the food chain before death would result, but that it was still hazardous in its present state.

"I'm as fearful of those chemicals as I am a snake," Eads said.

Browning-Ferris Inc. of Houston, which supplied the road oil to these sites, also has started an internal investigation to see if cyanide and other chemicals got into the oil mixture. The company is one of the largest disposal firms in Texas, taking industrial waste from the petrochemical complex along the Southeast Texas coast.

One of its wastes is cyanide, but state and federal regulations restrict its disposal to certain underground sites.

Corrigan Mayor M.G. Reily said last week he was not aware of the possible problem until he was contacted by a reporter last week.

Reily owns the Reily's Village development, where residents are complaining of the fumes. Many of roads covered with oil are used by buses in the Corrigan-Camden Independent School District.

Residents complain that in hot weather the stench from the blackened splotches of road oil is almost unbearable, giving headaches to those who as much as pass by the area.

Many developers have been using the oil, which is donated free of charge, including transportation, to anyone who wants it, Reily said.

The Environmental Protection Agency regional office in Dallas said Monday samples were taken last week but results would not be known for two weeks.

The road oil for Reily's Village was obtained from Browning-Ferris' Chemical Services Division in Nederland, between Port Arthur and Beaumont.

In a statement issued after the newspaper report, Browning-Ferris said that practices of the kind alleged in the News' article are "completely contrary to BFT's policies and authorized methods of operation."

"Should BFT's inquiries find any indication whatsoever that the allegations are even remotely correct, BFT would take prompt and effective steps to correct any deficiencies which are found," the statement said.

Gene Davis, operations manager of the chemical disposal company, acknowledged the firm may be responsible for dumping as much as 500,000 gallons of chemical sludge for use as road oil each year.

May be biggest case by Energy Department

Seven oil companies accused of overcharging

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department today accused seven major oil companies of overcharging their customers $1.7 billion for crude oil over the past six years, in what could be the biggest such case ever between the government and the oil industry.

The department, in an administrative complaint, said the companies on paper illegally converted lower priced categories of oil into higher priced categories.

This was done mainly by improperly redrawing the boundaries of their oil-producing properties and by counting some wells that should not have been included.

Accused in the complaint were Texaco Inc., Standard Oil Co. of California, Standard Oil Co. (Ohio), Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), Marathon Oil Co., Gulf Oil Corp. and Atlantic Richfield Co.

The complaint alleges the companies violated federal regulations to obtain higher prices, and demands they refund the $1.7 billion to customers or, if they cannot be located, to the U.S. Treasury.

If the new charges are upheld, the government could seek penalties later that might increase the cost to the companies to as much as $2.4 billion, the department said.

The complaint potentially is the costliest overcharging case ever brought by the government against the oil industry, exceeding a lawsuit filed in January that seeks to recover $1 billion from nine companies in alleged overcharges for natural gas liquids.

Texaco is accused of half the alleged overcharges, totaling $888.3 million. The other companies and their alleged overcharges: Gulf, $578 million; California Standard, $101.6 million; Atlantic Richfield, $42 million; Marathon, $29.1 million; Indiana Standard, $24.1 million, and Ohio Standard, $17 million.

The Energy Department said some of the accused companies redrew the boundaries of their oil-producing properties in ways that violated federal regulations. The goal was to maximize the amount of post-1972 oil production flowing from a given property, it added.

Production added to a property after 1972 can be sold at the "new" oil price of $13 a barrel, while pre-1972 production is limited to $6 a barrel.

Thus, property that previously produced mainly old oil was transformed on paper into new-oil land, the department charged.

The companies also were charged with trying to turn old oil into "stripper" oil, which can sell for $16 a barrel. Stripper wells are wells on a property whose average production per well is under 10 barrels a day.

To produce, on paper, a low per-well average, the government said the companies counted certain wells that either didn't produce oil at all or didn't operate full time.

Former BSHS coach loses another contest

A Travis County District Court this morning refused to grant a motion for continuance presented by the attorney for former Big Spring High School basketball coach James Griffin, who is asking the court to intervene in his bid to be rehired within the Big Spring school system.

The Big Spring School District and the Texas Attorney General's Office presented their motion to discuss Griffin's suit, maintaining the court does not have jurisdiction in the matter.

Griffin's attorney stipulated that the past January 13 the State Board of Education entered its order upholding the action of the local board of trustees, which, in effect, said that Griffin did not file a motion for a rehearing before the State Board of Education within the time required by law.

Presiding Judge Pete Lowery took the case under advisement and gave Griffin's attorney two weeks to file a brief showing why the case should not be dismissed.

Lynn Hise, superintendent of the Big Spring school system; Carole Hunter, school board president; Bob West, a school trustee; and attorneys Dick Milstead and Mike McKinney attended the hearing in Austin's 261st District Court this morning.

Two years ago, the local district voted against extending Griffin's contract after school administrators complained that Griffin had shown an inability to get along with his supervisors, both in and out of the athletic department.

Griffin has maintained that the decision not to extend his contract was racially motivated.

Griffin first appealed to State Education Commissioner M.L. Brockette and Brockette ruled in his favor. However, the school district appealed the decision to the State Board of Education and the board, in effect, overruled Brockette.

Ten more persons sentenced for income tax refund capers

Ten residents and former residents of Big Spring were sentenced Tuesday in Federal District Court in Lubbock for their involvement in a fraudulent income tax refund scheme which was operated out of Big Spring, Snyder, Midland and Hobbs, N.M., during 1976 and 1978.

The sentencing of these individuals brings the total to 23 who have been sentenced out of the 26 who were indicted in Lubbock in January 1979.

The charges against these ten people included conspiracy to defraud the United States, filing false claims against the government and perjury before a grand jury.

James W. Brown, who organized the refund scheme, received a sentence of five years in prison, five years probation and fined $5,000 while his sister, Della Compton, was sentenced to two years in prison.

Norman E. McNew and Loan Hatfield both received prison sentences of six months, 30 months probation and were ordered to pay restitution to the government in the amount of $1,196 and $908 respectively.

Dolly M. McNew, another sister to Brown, was sentenced to six months in prison and 18 months probation. Kenneth Skinner, Terry McCartney, Brenda Sanders, Kenneth Clement and Jennie Nix received probation ranging from 24 to 36 months with Skinner, McCartney, Sanders and Clement being ordered to pay restitution to the government in amounts ranging from $470.64 to $912.36 for the false tax refunds they received.

In addition to the sentences, Eugene Shipman, who was also one of the 26 indicted in January this year, entered a plea of guilty for filing a false claim against the government and Judge Halbert O. Woodward sat his sentencing for May 21.

Cases against these individuals were investigated by special agents of the Criminal Investigation Division of the Internal Revenue Service and were prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Roger L. McRoberts.

Bill would require all car owners to have liability

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Every Texas motorist would have to buy automobile liability insurance under a bill that gained preliminary House approval Tuesday.

A 125-9 vote advanced the bill, which still needs the formality of a final vote to send it to the Senate.

Some 30 percent of all the motor vehicles in Texas lack insurance to pay for injuries, deaths and property damage inflicted on other people.

Minimum liability coverage would be $5,000 for property damage and up to $20,000 for injuries in any one accident.

The House bill would fine a driver $50 to $200 the first time he or she is caught without without insurance and $200 to $1,000 for subsequent offenses.

When a Texan buys or renews an auto policy, the insurance company would give him or her a special windshield sticker. Cars without current stickers certifying coverage could not receive their annual vehicle inspection.

And a car without an inspection sticker can't be driven legally on Texas highways.

Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, sponsor of the bill, said the sticker requirement — which he opposed when it first came up last week — would make it "a stronger bill in the eyes of the Senate."

He easily mustered a 112-26 vote to table an amendment by Rep. Bob Leonard, R-Fort Worth, that would have required proof of insurance in order to register a car.

The amendment — identical to the bill Green first introduced — would have required insurance companies to issue identity cards to policyholders. It also would have allowed the state to make random checks with insurance companies to assure policies still were in force.

30th District Democrats assemble here Saturday

The 30th District Democrats will hold a business meeting in the Cactus Room of the Student Union Building at Howard College at 1 p.m., Saturday. Those unable to attend a luncheon scheduled prior to the meeting will be welcome at the business session.

Honored guests will be Cong. Charles Stenholm of Stanford, State Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls, State Rep. Mike Ezell of Snyder and State Rep. Pete Laney of Plainview.

Jane Ray, S.D. 30 Committeewoman of Big Spring, and Calvin Gambill, S.D. 30 Committeeman of Seymour, will be in attendance.

The 30th District is composed of 29 counties. Approximately 54 30th District Democrats from out of the city have made reservations to attend.

$1,500 reward posted in Reeves murder case

A $1,500 reward for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the deaths of Ann Laurie Reeves and her son, Tracey Reeves, here April 26 has been posted, according to Sheriff A. N. Standard.

The money was donated by an oil company. Standard said that, in all probability, the reward would be increased through other donations.

Marvin (Sally) Price of Vernon, chairman of the 30th District County Chairmen, chairman from Howard County, Hal Boyd, Scurry County, Gene Bowlin, Archer County, Billy Wise, Baylor County, Calvin Gambill, Mrs. Lou Lambert, Jones County Chairwoman, County Judge Don Menn, Nolan County, County Judge Tom Bacus, Wichita County, and District Attorney Quay Parker from Albany, Texas will be present.

Mrs. Margaret Ray, County Clerk, Bonnie Franklin, County Treasurer, and Mary Ann Bloodworth, Sgn. Farabee's secretary in the Wichita Falls Office, will preside at the registration table.

For additional information, one can contact Jane Ray after 5:30 p.m. at 267-6896.

Mrs. Reeves and her son were shot in the head. Their bodies, with all clothing removed but shoes and stockings, were discovered not far from the old Centreport school northeast of Big Spring.

Standard emphasized that the identity of persons supplying such information would remain secret.

Action/reaction: Fastest cycle

Q. What was the fastest motorcycle ever made?
A. It didn't exactly look like a motorcycle. The Silver Bird Streamliner, clocked at 307.692 MPH in 1977, was 21 feet long and was powered by two 750 cc engines. The feat occurred at Bonneville Flats, Utah. In the saddle was Donald Vesco.

Backers of gasoline rationing plan optimistic about victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of President Carter's standby plan for gasoline rationing say they have a fighting chance of seeing it enacted, despite the fence-straddling vote of a key House panel.

"We'll try. It will be a hard fight," said Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., the plan's leading House supporter.

The House Commerce Committee voted 21-20 Tuesday to send the plan to the floor, without a recommendation of approval or rejection.

Dingell said the plan would come before the full House for a final vote sometime within the next few days. A Senate vote is expected Thursday.

The Senate was taking up today a related standby administration energy conservation plan, one setting mandatory thermostat controls for public buildings.

Meanwhile, a group of House liberals was prepared to move today in the Commerce Committee to try to block the president's decision to lift price controls on oil beginning June 1.

But the leader of the group, Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., said Tuesday he was three or four votes short and Dingell suggested Moffett's effort might be ruled out of order.

Moffett, who contends decontrol will send fuel prices soaring while not reaping accompanying benefits for consumers, is trying to attach his prohibition against decontrol to a bill authorizing a variety of Energy Department programs for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Dingell said failure of the panel to vote its support of the standby gas rationing plan makes the job of selling the measure to the full House that much harder. But he added: "I think it has a good chance."

be prepared for the possibility of an emergency." He termed such a failure "ludicrous."

But Powell expressed encouragement that the neutral committee vote did not defeat the Carter plan and said that on Capitol Hill as well as with the public in general. "There appears to persist some confusion about what the plan means. It is not a rationing plan we expect we will need to impose."

Moreover, he noted that Congress would have to give its approval again at the time before rationing could actually be imposed.

Carter's rationing plan would allocate gas based on registered vehicles. Lawmakers from western and tourist-oriented states claimed the proposal would hit their areas hardest.

The White House informally promised to make extra gasoline available for states that could demonstrate such a need—but this failed to sway enough votes to give the president a committee victory.

The plan will die unless both chambers approve it by May 12.

The "no-recommendation" vote came after supporters of the plan failed for second time in a week to win committee approval. A motion seeking that endorsement died Tuesday on a 21-21 tie vote, despite President Carter's appeal to the panel in a Monday news conference.

Reacting to the committee's action, presidential press secretary Jody Powell said, "It would be absolutely foolish for this country not to

In Birmingham suburb

Bomb explosion kills policeman

BESSEMER, Ala. (AP) — An explosion rocked the police commissioner's office at City Hall today in this Birmingham suburb, killing a police lieutenant and injuring three other persons, authorities said.

There was no immediate explanation for the explosion on the fourth floor of the building, but federal officials were called to help investigate. Police Lt. John Knight, who was not in the room at the time, said when asked if the blast could have been natural gas that it "smelled just like" a bomb.

There was no apparent connection between the incident and a strike by the police and other city employees in Birmingham.

Lt. Clifford T. Hill, 48, was dead on arrival at a hospital. Police Commissioner Max Williams, in whose office the explosion occurred, was critically injured.

Gene Lint, Mayor Ed Porter's executive secretary, was listed in guarded condition after surgery.

A city employee, Willie Jones, was treated in an emergency room for a minor eye injury. Williams' wristwatch was found across the street, apparently blown through a window.

The explosion caused major damage to the offices of the commissioner and the mayor and to other parts of the fourth floor of City Hall.

Julia Armstrong, secretary to a judge, was seated across the street in a cafeteria. "I heard a loud, ominous sound, then a blast," she said.

City Building Inspector Ray Hendon, whose office is directly above Williams', said the explosion shook his office but there was no damage there.

From the outside, the building showed no evidence of a blast except for two windows broken out.

Authorities closed off the building for investigations and officers guarded the doors.

One behind bars, three released

Carl Roy Brown, Los Angeles, Calif., is the only one of four originally arrested on suspicion of auto theft Friday who is still in jail. The other three are Jose Anthony Richardson, Ravynville, La.; Gail Jean Payton, Dallas; and Perry Lee Payton, Dallas.

Though charged Monday they were released Tuesday on the authority of Highway Patrolman Bill Jennings because of insufficient evidence.

The four men were arrested at a road side park west of Big Spring Sunday at 12:15 a.m. Sunday. A stolen California vehicle was recovered.

Publishing company sues

NEW YORK (AP) — Grosset & Dunlap Inc., alleges in a $50 million federal suit that rival publisher Simon & Schuster is trying to infringe on its exclusive rights to such juvenile fiction classics as the Hardy Boys and Nancy Drew mysteries.

The books are produced by the Edward Stratemeyer Syndicate. Stratemeyer, who died in 1930, founded the syndicate for writers who mass-produced the juvenile mysteries and such other series as the Tom Swift and Bobsey Twins books. The suit claimed Simon & Schuster's plans to publish a new series of the books is a breach of its contract with the Maplewode, N.J.,-based syndicate and violates a licensing agreement. Simon & Schuster could not be reached for comment Tuesday evening.

Mauled man pleads innocent

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A man who was mauled by two polar bears when he fell into their pit at the Buffalo Zoo has pleaded innocent to charges of criminal trespass and reckless endangerment.

Kurt Fornes, 20, of suburban Williamsville, was released Tuesday in the custody of his father pending further proceedings in City Court on June 13. Police shot and killed the two bears to prevent them from killing Fornes after he fell into the pit in the early morning hours of March 24. Fornes underwent surgery for a badly torn left arm and broken left shoulder.

Salt Lake telephones dead

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — About 26,000 telephones in the downtown area went dead for more than 16 hours after water drenched three frames of circuit processing equipment.

A Bell Laboratories troubleshooter squad from Chicago restored phone service Tuesday to hundreds of businesses, two local newspapers, KSL television and radio, two hospitals, Utah Power & Light Co. and to Mountain Bell's downtown office, where the trouble began Monday. A water pipe burst on the sixth floor sending 2,000 gallons filtering to ground level at the phone company, drenching circuit processing equipment. The phones went dead immediately. Police and fire officials said the outage did not hinder emergency services.

American Motors celebrates

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors Corp. celebrated its 25th birthday without most of the executives, cars or even the refrigerator that was around when it was founded a quarter-century ago.

Gone is the Kelvinator refrigerator, a fixture of that May 1, 1954, merger of Nash-Kelvinator and the Hudson Motor Car Co. Gone are the cars with names like Nash, Hudson, Metropolitan, Hornet, Marlin and Gremlin. Gone are virtually all the top officials of the 1960s and early 1970s who tried to put the No. 4 automaker into the big leagues.

But also gone is the red ink that has plagued AMC's balance sheets for nine of its 25 years. In place of all that isn't, is American Jeep Corp., which is suddenly making big dollars.

Byline editorials approved

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A resolution calling on newspaper editorial writers to use bylines has been approved by the Rhode Island Senate. The resolution already had been cleared by the House.

The resolution reads that newspapers are required to have their editorial writers sign their work, but in Rhode Island resolutions do not carry the force of law. The Senate vote on the bill Tuesday was 28-17.

New Lamesa Cotton Oil Mill to aid U.S. balance of trade

Nearing completion in Lamesa, is a major project which will increase West Texas' capability to send oil to the oil-rich Middle East. Makes no sense, huh? Sure it does, when you know that the West Texas product is cottonseed oil that becomes food and the Middle East oil is the kind that provides fuel for your car. Edible oils from the U.S. are in demand among food processors in the Middle East and other parts of the world, as well as the U.S. itself. Cottonseed oil exports aid the U.S. balance of international trade, and thus help pay for large imports of petroleum from the Middle East and elsewhere.

The Lamesa project is a new multimillion-dollar plant of the Lamesa Cotton Oil Mill, a division of Chickasha Cotton Oil Company of Fort Worth. It will replace the previous Lamesa plant, which has continued operations during construction of the new installation.

About June 1, operations will begin in the new plant's "front" part, the department which prepares cottonseed for extraction of its oil and meats (kernels). The rest of the plant will go on stream in November, 1979, in time to handle seed from the new cotton harvest.

Rex Steele, executive vice president of Chickasha, says the new plant is to be one of the most modern and complete facilities of its kind built in the U.S. in recent years. The plant will have capacity to process in excess of 300 tons of seed per day (50 per cent more than the old plant). A new railroad spur and new loading facilities

Big Springer named Fulbright scholar for study in Italy

NORMAN, Okla. — Keith D. Graumann, a graduate student in the University of Oklahoma School of Music, has been named a Fulbright scholar for study in Turin, Italy, during the 1979-80 academic year.

He is one of some 350 American students and artists selected for Fulbright grants, awarded by the Institute of International Education.

A native of Big Spring, Texas, Graumann currently is working toward a doctor of musical arts degree in conducting. He holds earlier degrees from OU in music education and music theory.

and cultural exchange program, and is conducted in cooperation with more than 100 foreign countries, some of which contribute substantially to the financing of academic exchanges. The program has enabled more than 40,000 Americans to study abroad, and more than 75,000 foreign students, scholars, artists and others to come to the United States.

The Fulbright grant will provide Graumann's round-trip transportation; tuition; books; maintenance for one academic year; and health and accident insurance. The maintenance allowance is based on the living costs in Italy.

In his work as a graduate assistant at OU, Graumann teaches sophomore music theory. He is experienced in choral and instrumental conducting, and presently is co-conductor of OU Concert Choir II. He also is music director-conductor of the Norman Community Choral Society and is director of music at Hillcrest Christian Church in Oklahoma City. During 1978, he worked with Leigh W. Burns as assistant conductor of the Oklahoma Youth Orchestra.

Graumann has published several previously unpublished editions of works for chorus and strings by Antonio Vivaldi.

Outstanding engineer

Lonnie Gary honored

LUBBOCK — The Texas Tech University College of Engineering, in conjunction with the Engineering Student Council, has named five seniors as 1979 Outstanding Engineering Students.

The award is based on scholastic achievement, activities and leadership.

Chosen from 30 nominees were Arati Prabhakar, Lubbock, and Becky S. Taube, Waco, both in the Department of Electrical Engineering; Lonnie F. Gary, Big Spring, architecture; James L. Cromer, San Saba, agricultural engineering, and Mary Anne Aldrich, Blacksburg, Va., industrial engineering.

Gary, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gary, 2516 East 24th, Big Spring, has been vice president of the Texas Tech student chapter of the American Institute of Architects, vice president and president of architecture honorary Tau Sigma Delta, student representative to the Associated College Schools of Architecture, a former contributing editor for the engineering student publication, "Technology," member of the freshman honorary Phi Eta Sigma and former member of the Engineering Student Council. He was a 1977 winner of the AIA-ACSA Mount Rushmore Competition Award and recipient of the 1978 AIA Scholarship Award. He has been active in the Baptist Student Union off campus.

Wall is named vice president

AMARILLO — Pioneer Corporation President K.B. Watson has announced the election of H.F. Wall to a position of vice president, by the board of directors of Pioneer Corporation.

According to Watson's announcement, Wall's responsibilities will be in the area of natural gas transmission, including the utilization, maintenance and construction of pipelines, compressor stations and processing plants owned and operated by the Pioneer Corporation utility division, Pioneer Natural Gas Company.

Wall is a 30-year engineer of Pioneer. For 20 years he worked in the engineering and pipeline transmission office at Lubbock. In 1976, he transferred to Amarillo and was named assistant director of the transmission engineering department, the position he held prior to his election to vice president.

Wall attended Southern Methodist University, and graduated from Texas Tech University with degrees in Business Administration and Civil Engineering.

A registered engineer, Wall is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the National Society of Professional Engineers and the Texas Society of Professional Engineers.

Wall and his wife, Doris, have three children.

Weather

Large hail, heavy rain in part of state

By the Associated Press

Scattered thunderstorms, some possibly severe, were forecast for the northern half of Texas today after thunderstorms accompanied by high winds, large hail and heavy rain roared across northern and eastern sections of the state during the night.

Numerous severe thunderstorm warnings and some flash flood warnings were issued during the night. Street flooding was reported at Dallas and Denton during the night and large hail fell at Arlington, Carrollton and at Bartonsville in Denton County.

The heavy thunderstorms dumped as much as four inches of rainfall in northwest sections of Dallas County and in Collin County.

The Trinity River overflowed between Body in Wise County and Eagle Mountain Lake, stranding some motorists on FM 30.

Underpasses were flooded on the Central Expressway in Dallas, causing some cars to stall, blocking traffic at times early today.

A few thunderstorms were reported in East Texas early today and a severe thunderstorm warning was issued for an area near Lufkin during the predawn hours.

Forecasts called for developing thunderstorm activity over the northern half of the state late today. Highs were expected to range from the 60s in the Panhandle to the 90s in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas. Most of the state was to have highs in the 70s and 80s.

WEATHER FORECAST — G Wide-spread showers are expected in the forecast period, Wednesday until Thursday morning, for the western and southern Plains and from the Gulf coast states through the Midwest to the Great Lakes. Temperatures are expected to be mild in the East but most of the nation will be cool.

Big Spring Rotary Club lands district conference

Seventeen Big Spring residents attended the Rotary District 573 Conference in Odessa last weekend. The group was composed of members and their wives from the Big Spring and Greater Big Spring Rotary Clubs.

The Big Spring Rotary Club bid for and were selected to host the 1980 district conference in April of that year. Louis Rochester, district governor for 573, made an interesting talk outlining the "Honor, Health and Humanitarian" program for the current year.

The program was designed by Clem Renouf, president of Rotary International and its goal is to help feed, inoculate and give medical assistance and care to hungry and needy children throughout the world.

A goal of $12 million has been set by Rotary to fund the endeavor. Each Rotary Club is asked to contribute $15 per member or $1,500.

There are 152 countries and geographical regions in Rotary International, and as of March 1, 1979, there were 18,015 Rotary clubs and an estimated 835,300 Rotarians. Since July 1, 1978, 286 new clubs were admitted in 47

Tips offered on ways to save fuel

Some Americans apparently think God moves in to replenish the world's oil supply periodically, likely as not undertaking the feat under the cover of night when it would inconvenience the least number of people. ("Besides that, there couldn't have been all that many dinosaurs. Where does it come from, anyway?")

A housewife in Louisiana was moved to remark recently: "I think there's plenty of oil. (This crisis) is an oil-company ripoff." Some businessmen have been quoted as saying: "We'll be alright now with decontrol and incentives."

Most of us are waiting for the time when we can return to the days of cheap fuel and less agitation from the Middle Easterners who are now making the world dance to their tune.

Regrettably, those days are gone forever. Those who reason otherwise are simply not paying attention. The U.S. Department of Energy is now concentrating on a campaign to make us energy-conscious. Only if we are help and prepare to make a few sacrifices will the situation improve.

One of the ways we can save fuel is by adopting a sensible plan for operating our automobiles. If you're a typical driver, you drive your vehicle about 11,000 miles per year. It consumes about 800 gallons of gasoline during that time, for an average fuel economy rating of 14-15 miles per gallon. Gasoline now costs over five cents a mile, or over $600 a year, and the price is rising.

If you save only a tenth of a gallon daily, your savings will amount to a five per cent discount on every gallon you buy. The Department of Energy passes along these gas-saving tips to help you — and your country — save this essential fuel. You, no doubt, say you've heard them all before but, the point is, are you doing anything to cooperate in the crusade:

(1. Share the ride. About one-third of all private automobile use is for commuting, frequently with only one driver in the car. If only one passenger were asked to share the ride, the two occupants would use about half the gasoline if each drove alone. More than 20 million commuters already share rides.

(2. Combine and eliminate unnecessary trips. Whether you are going to the market, the library or to visit friends, chances are you can combine some of the trips. You could also help your neighbors by offering to run errands for them. Some trips might even be eliminated by telephoning.

(3. Drive at a moderate speed. The most efficient range is 35 to 45 miles an hour. Stay at 55 on the highway. Most vehicles get about 18 per cent better mileage on the highway at 50 than at 65, 20 per cent better mileage at 55 than at 70.

(4. An engine tuneup would probably help, unless you've had one recently. If your engine is hard to start, sputters or idles roughly, you are losing mileage and should check on its condition.

You can get more tips by writing for the folder "How to Save Gasoline... and Money." Address your inquiries to Energy, Box 62, Oak Ridge, Tenn., 37830.

Exception to rule

Around the rim

Robbi Crow

It seems only logical to assume that someone with the title family news editor would be well-versed in all areas of homemaking such as cooking, sewing, gardening and the like.

But, as everyone well knows, there is always an exception to the rule, which in this case, is me. As I was growing up, my mother practically had to hog me in the kitchen in a not-so-successful attempt to teach me at least the 'basics' of cooking (how to boil water, how to turn on an oven). She did manage to get these words of wisdom across: 'If all else fails, read the directions'.

NOW THAT I'M married and have one child, I enjoy cooking about as much as I enjoy going to the dentist or getting my tonsils out. You know, fun things like that.

There's nothing like making coffee in the morning for your husband and pouring him a cup of hot water. (I knew there was something I forgot to do.)

My first lesson in sewing came from my freshman homemaking class. Right then and there, I decided to leave my dressmaking to the professionals.

Believe me, I'm doing exceptionally well to get a button sewed on straight (or crooked for that matter).

When I was a kid, however, I had the best dressed Barbie Doll in town. I used to sit for hours creating the latest styles for Barbie and her friends. Somewhere along the line, I guess I lost my technique. It's kind of hard to sew clothes directly on real people.

There is one field of homemaking, however, I can't take full responsibility for my lack of accomplishment, knowledge or luck. My mother has never had much of a green thumb, either.

LUSTROUS GREEN plants seen around my house, inside or out, that don't shrivel up, turn brown and completely vanish within a month's time, have to be artificial.

I've tried over watering them, under watering, and singing to them, but I still get 'ring around the collar'... wait a minute, I was writing about plants, not laundry.

But, since we're on the subject... I don't mind washing clothes and drying them. It's the folding and putting up I hate.

Surely if scientists can put a man on the moon and raisins in bran flakes, they can invent some kind of mechanical device to alleviate women of this tiresome chore.

I could get off onto an entirely different subject here about how unfair it is that most of the household duties of a woman must be performed inside the house, while the few chores done by men or done outside in the fresh air. Washing the car and mowing the lawn sound like a blast compared to ironing, vacuuming, making beds, doing dishes, etc.

Although it may seem ironic, family news editor I am, but Susie Homemaker I ain't.

CIA reaction

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — It has taken 12 years to get the reaction of the Central Intelligence Agency to our stories on its recruitment of Mafia mobsters to assassinate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

Working under the late Drew Pearson, I produced two columns, dated March 3 and March 7, 1967, on the plot to kill Castro. CIA officials grimly refused to comment.

But President Lyndon Johnson demanded a full report from the CIA after he read our stories. We have obtained a still-secret report by the CIA's inspector general confirmed the essentials of the columns, conceded that the disclosures had caused "much distress" at the spy agency and discussed the ways in which the government could minimize the embarrassment.

"DREW PEARSON's column of March 7, 1967 refers to a reported CIA plot in 1963 to assassinate Cuba's Fidel Castro," the inspector general wrote. "Pearson also has information, as yet unpublished, to the effect that there was a meeting at the State Department at which assassination of Castro was discussed, and that a term 'of three men' actually landed in Cuba with (poison) pills to be used in an assassination attempt."

The report then says: "There is a basis in fact for each of those three reports."

In light of this uncomfortable accuracy, the inspector general asks: "Can we plausibly deny that we plotted with gangster elements to assassinate Castro?"

And the answer: "No. We cannot. We are reasonably confident that there is nothing in writing outside the government that would confirm Pearson's story of the operation, but there are plenty of non-gangster witnesses who could lend confirmation."

Well then, the inspector general asks, "Can CIA state or imply that it was merely an instrument of policy?" In other words, could the spooks pass the buck to the martyred President Kennedy?

"Not in this case," the report decides. "While it was true that (the later phase of the plots) was carried out in an atmosphere of intense Kennedy administration pressure to do something about Castro, such is not true of the earlier phase. (It) was initiated in August 1960 under the Eisenhower administration."

THE INSPECTOR general also concluded that the Castro assassination project could not be fobbed off as just a practice maneuver — part of the "Executive Action Capability" being developed by the CIA's clandestine operations arm.

It is still not known whether this "capability" program, code-named with ominous prescience "ZRRIFLE," was requested by the Kennedy administration or developed by the CIA on its own.

Our stories raised the question whether the attorney General Robert Kennedy had approved the assassination plot. The secret report confirmed only that Kennedy "was fully briefed" on May 7, 1962. "A memorandum confirming the oral briefing was forwarded to Kennedy on 14 May 1962. The memorandum does not use the word 'assassinate,' but there is little room for misinterpretation of what was meant."

But the inspector general stressed that Kennedy was told only about the first phase of the mobster-recruitment program. He was not told about the second phase, "which was well under way at the time (he) was briefed."

A further reason the Kennedys couldn't be saddled with blame for the plots was that a key ingredient mentioned in our column was not known to the president and his brother. "The Pearson story, which is causing us so much distress, includes one detail that is found only in Phase Two: the three-man team." If the CIA tried to foist responsibility onto the Kennedys, the sources who told us about the three-man team could easily point out that the agency was lying.

"What measures might be taken to lessen the damage?" the rhetorically curious inspector general asks. A classic coverup was discarded as impractical.

"We cannot now suppress the story because it is already out," he concluded. "If we were to approach any of the participants and urge discretion upon him, and if this became known, it would merely lend credence to a tale that now sounds somewhat improbable." So the agency maintained a stone wall of silence.

BUREAUCRATIC BROUHAHA: When federal bureaucrats get on their high horses, it's usually the public that gets trampled underfoot.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Why is there anything wrong in smoking marijuana? After all, God created marijuana, and why would He create something He did not intend for us to use? — A. G. G.

DEAR A. G. G.: Just because something exists does not mean God intends it to be used for human uses. Poison ivy and poisonous toadstools may have their function in nature, but I would not recommend them for your consumption.

There are several reasons while I feel it is wrong to use marijuana, in spite of the growing acceptance of this drug in our society. One simple reason is that it is still illegal in most parts of the world, and a person who is concerned about God's will in his life will want to obey the law. We also do not know long-range effects of marijuana. Recent scientific studies have given strong evidence that serious physical and psychological problems may come from protracted use.

But there are other reasons that are very important. For one thing, I believe the Bible teaches it is wrong to allow our minds and hearts to be dulled or altered by any means — including drugs. The Bible warns us, "Do not get drunk on wine" (Ephesians 5:18, New International Version). Alcohol is a drug, and both the Bible and experience show clearly the harmful effects of drunkenness. Any drug — not just alcohol — which dulls a person's reason makes that person more open to temptation and sin.

Too much profit

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Handelman came rushing into the office of Wheeler Generous, chairman and chief executive of the Seven Sisters Oil Co.

"Good news," Handelman cried, "our profits for the first quarter of the year have gone up 110 percent."

"Oh, my God," Wheeler said. "How did it happen?"

"It beats me. We just kept charging more and more for our products and people kept paying the price. We could have a record year. I thought you'd be happy, sir."

"YOU BLOODY FOOL, Handelman. Don't you see the implications of this? The President will say we're making a windfall profit on the gas shortage. Congress will demand that we divest ourselves of our retail outlets, and the whole country will say we're gouging them. Every Tom, Dick and Mary in the consumer movement will be after our scalps. Isn't there some way we can knock the profit picture down before the public finds out about it?"

"I don't think so, sir. The money just keeps pouring in. Brinks is complaining they don't even have any place to store it. If we start fudging our profits the SEC will be on our backs. We have to go with the figures."

"I was afraid of that," Wheeler said. "Where are we holding the stockholders' meeting?"

"In New York City, sir. It's the most convenient for everybody."

"We don't want it to be convenient. We have to announce these profits as quietly as possible. What about holding it in Harrisburg? No one will want to go there."

"I get your thinking, sir. We'll meet in one of our gas stations near Three Mile Island. That should keep attendance down and hopefully the press will stay away."

"LET'S SCHEDULE it for seven o'clock on Sunday morning, when Walter Cronkite is asleep."

"Good idea. The news could get lost, especially if the Ayatollah Khomami decides to shoot 100 more people that day."

"Now let's start working on my statement. I think I should say that I do not consider the first quarter profits excessive, considering that we intend to pour back most of our profits into new equipment after we pay the stockholders a reasonable extra dividend."

"What kind of new equipment?" Handelman asked, as he took notes.

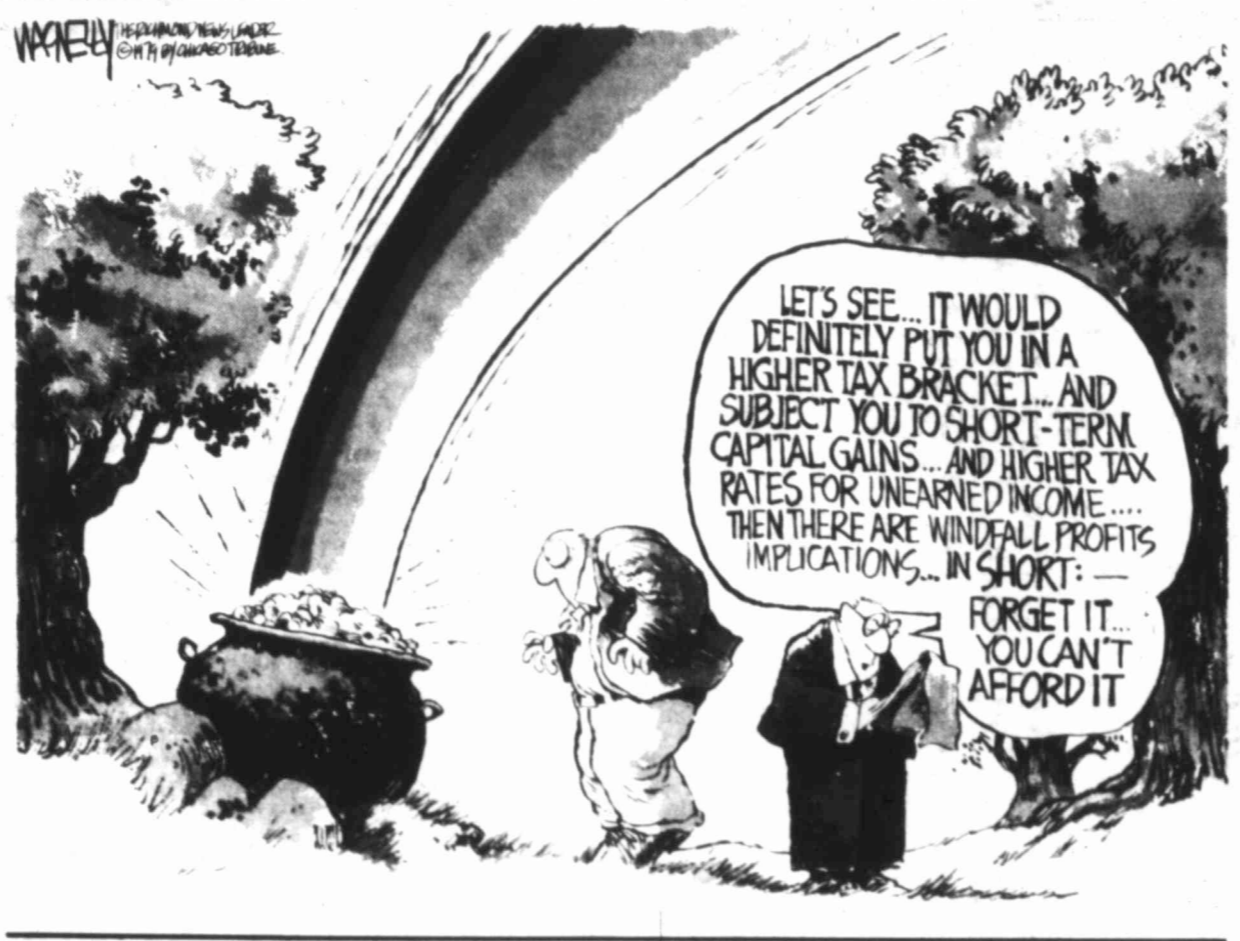

"I'll say we're developing new meters for our gas pumps so they can accommodate a dollar a gallon and more at our stations. These new meters will be a boon to all our customers since gas station attendants will no longer have to add up our surcharges by hand."

Handelman wrote it down. "Why don't we start giving Tupperware away again if people buy 10 gallons of premium or more?"

"An excellent thought. We could give a cup and saucer away with each purchase until people have a complete set. Also we might hand out a free poster of Seattle Slew to anyone having a tuneup and oil change."

Handelman said, "You're a genius, W.G. Those announcements will take people's minds off the profit business."

"All right," Wheeler said. "Get the speechwriters to work. Let's play this up as not a good year or a bad year, but one where we're managing to survive, which is all any oil company is trying to do in these inflationary times."

Doctors learn more about 'floppy valve'

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Here are excerpts from six (or many) letters on the same subject.

"I have Barlow's syndrome. I never heard of it before. Please explain." — Mrs. M.

"Please explain the click syndrome. The doctor has told me to quit smoking and to go off birth control pills. I am 29." — Mrs. B.R.

"I have mitral valve prolapse. Why do I need medication before surgery, dental work, etc.?" — Mrs. E.B.

"Please write about Barlow's syndrome. I am 33 and a female. I had palpitations and a feeling of my heart becoming enlarged. I take medicine to control it. I trust my doctor, but want to see something about this in the paper." — Mrs. G.T.

"Is mitral valve prolapse acquired or is it congenital? Is there surgery for it?" — Mrs. R.A.

"I have click syndrome. I am in my early 50s. Until now I didn't worry about it. My doctor didn't seem concerned because I never had any symptoms. Can you ease my mind? Is it common?" — Mrs. M.A.E.

Besides those mentioned by these readers this problem goes under a hodge-podge of other names — "floppy mitral valve," for example. Most people who have it have no symptoms and require no treatment.

The mitral valve controls blood flow between the two left chambers of the heart. It opens to allow filling of the left ventricle (lower chamber) and closes as blood is pumped out via the aorta, the main artery leaving the heart. With mitral valve prolapse, a "leaflet" of the valve billows upward into the upper chamber (atrium). The cause is not known, but for some unclear reason the valve is just too large for the opening it controls.

For years doctors reported the peculiar extra "clicking" heart sound, best described as "lub-dub-dub." With newer equipment (such as an echocardiogram) the defect was pinpointed to the "floppy" valve. Today, it is probably the most common of heart valve problems. It tends to run in families. It is more common in women, and it is interesting that all of the above letters are from women. It is quite common, occurring in perhaps as many as 6 percent of otherwise healthy individuals. Most are unaware of it, and the defect is usually found in ordinary heart examinations. A few may notice fatigue, shortness of breath, chest pain and palpitations (sensation of heart beats). Special monitoring devices can determine the extent of heart rhythm disturbance caused by it.

Drugs are available to control the heart rhythm if needed. Antibiotics are advised for use before surgery or dental procedures to prevent possible infection of the valve. On rare occasions, a leakage may develop, in which case surgery can be done to replace the valve. The results have been encouraging.

Mrs. B.R. was advised to quit smoking and go off birth control pills most likely because of the threat either may pose to persons with heart problems. Caffeine and certain drugs should be avoided.

Again, most people who have this problem have no symptoms and live a normal life.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I would like some information on mitral valve. I have a weight problem and just can't seem to lose any of those extra pounds. Also, I am old and tired most of the time. I have been to a doctor to find out if I have a gland problem. He says I don't. So I was wondering if metabolism could play a part in this and if there is a drug that would help. I am 39 years old and weight 180 pounds. — Mrs. C.M.

Sure, metabolism has something to do with it. That's how the body utilizes the foods we eat to produce the energy we need and keep our organs, glands, etc., functioning normally. I suspect that your "metabolism problem" stems from the fact that you provide your body with more calories than it can use. Hence you are overweight. Your problem begins at the dining table.

Dear Dr. Ruble: If a man has become sterile from radiation while in the service, is it possible for him to become fertile again after 20 years? — M.D.H.

Not if the sterility was caused by radiation of his testicles (the sperm-producing glands). He can find out if he is producing sperm by checking out an ejaculation specimen. That would settle the issue.

Wounded woman gives birth to girl

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Isabel Hernandez has no idea how close she came to a sniper's bullet. But her mother, wounded in the upper right thigh Friday in the Fiesta parade attack, is saving the newspaper clippings and someday she'll show her newborn daughter.

Irene Hernandez, 20, gave birth to the healthy, nine-pound girl early Tuesday morning — less than four days after the pregnant woman crumpled to a downtown street, wounded by a heavily armed sniper firing wildly into the thousands of parade spectators.

Two spectators were killed and at least 50 were injured, most by gunshots. The sniper, 64-year-old Ira Attebery, killed himself after a furious exchange of gunfire with police.

Mrs. Hernandez was nearly a week overdue on the day of the parade and her 20-year-old husband, Armando, remembers seeing her near parade starting point at the corner of Broadway and Grayson to be near her car.

Across the intersection, Attebery had parked his green-and-white motor home in a tire store parking lot. Inside the camper he had stockpiled three shotguns, eight rifles, four pistols and hundreds of rounds of ammunition.

Then the shooting started. Six police officers only a few feet away from the Hernandezes were the first to be hit.

"I didn't realize at first what was happening," said Hernandez. "I thought they (the shots) were fireworks. Then we saw the cop go down."

"I didn't want my wife or the baby hurt. She couldn't run because of her condition, so I put her down on the road and got on top of her and covered her," he added.

"I was hoping he would take two or three shots and run. I thought maybe he was on the roof or something," he continued. "Then one shot almost hit us, so I pulled her up and tried to run for cover. That's when a shot hit her in the leg."

The bullet from a powerful AR-15 semi-automatic carbine, a civilian version of the military M-16, hit Mrs. Hernandez a scant 12-15 inches from the baby. The AR-15 was the weapon Attebery used to kill his two victims, officials said.

Hernandez somehow pulled his wounded wife behind a nearby police car, but it was nearly an hour before the shooting stopped and emergency workers could rescue the pinned-down couple. "I just remember the gunshots being real, real loud," said Hernandez.

"I didn't know what was going on," said Mrs. Hernandez from her hospital bed. "I didn't really know what was going on until I got shot. I was all scared about losing the baby. I kept asking everybody if the baby was all right, but they couldn't tell me until I got to the hospital."

She was treated for the gunshot wound at Bexar County Medical Center and then moved to the maternity section at the Robert B. Green Hospital. The baby showed no ill effects from the ordeal, said Green spokesman Jeff Duffield.

"I'm just happy we're all okay. I'm very sorry for those who had it worse."

Ad saves boys life

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Coast Guard television spot about boating apparently saved the life of 14-year-old boy who hung to his family's capsized boat for more than 40 hours, officials say.

The boy, identified as Ronald Price Jr., told investigators after he was rescued that he had remembered the spot, which said it is usually safer to stay with a capsized boat than try to swim for it, the Coast Guard said.

His parents and younger sister were missing early this morning, despite a careful scan of the area where the shrimper Little David found the 16-foot outboard motorboat Tuesday morning. A fishing boat found the body of a child believed to be his younger brother Tuesday evening.

Two Coast Guard helicopters spent a total of 14 hours searching for them Tuesday and were to resume the search at first light today, officials said.

The body, found wearing an adult's life jacket, was being sent to the coroner in Galveston, Texas, to make sure it was that of Norman D. Radcliff, 7, said Petty Officer Jim Morrison, a spokesman at Coast Guard headquarters here.

"The only thing the helicopters found was a floating lifejacket," Chief Bob Baeten, a Coast Guard spokesman, said Tuesday.

"They made a slow careful hover scan of the area, which is known as West Bay."

Baeten said the motorboat was found three miles west of JFK Causeway at Galveston.

The boy was taken to a Galveston hospital for treatment of exposure and shock.

"He was still a little delirious but he told us the boat capsized about noon Sunday. He saw his mother fall in with one of the smaller children, he couldn't remember which one. Then his father was gone. They all drifted apart. He cannot give any time frame."

Listed as missing were Ronald's father, Ronald Price Sr., 36; his mother, Mary Price, 27; and a sister, Janice Bell, 10.

The Coast Guard was unable to explain why the children had different last names.

"The only source of information we have is the survivor, and he's delirious — he's not in all that good shape," one official said.

Baeten said both children were believed to have worn lifejackets.

"They were both wearing adult jackets, oversized jackets," said Morrison. "You might as well not wear anything at all — it can hamper you as much as anything else."

Settles Hotel named tornado protection center

The Howard County Department of Civil Defense has secured permission from the Settles Hotel management to use the hotel for a tornado protection center. The arrangement is for the first floor and the basement area of the structure, tallest in Big Spring.

W. D. Berry, Civil Defense director, said it is suggested that people who live east of the downtown area use the shelter if needed.

In addition to the Settles, the Howard County Courthouse and the Veterans Administration Medical Center have been designated as tornado shelters.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
 from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, May 3, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Daytime is fine for planning to increase the scope of your activities both in personal and career life. Make sure you organize your efforts toward this worthwhile goal. Compliment others now to get their best cooperation.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan how to become more proficient at your talents and gain more benefits therefrom. Set up recreational activities for the near future. Good day to put across a business deal.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan how to make the situation at home more enviable and show that you are most devoted to kin. Study a new project that could bring you greater benefits.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Talk over with allies your finest aims and how best to gain them. Also a good time to pay visits, whether to trade or with close ties.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Elevate your consciousness so that you can attain greater wealth in the future. Sit down with a monetary expert and get good advice, ideas.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you expend more effort you can realize personal aims more easily now. Get in touch with good friends and plan recreation you like together.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan how to handle a specific problem in a clever way. Listen to what an expert has to suggest. Avoid whoever is apt to get you into some kind of an argument.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Know what your most innate desires are and plan how to go after them successfully. Make plans now for social gatherings you want to have in the near future. Avoid the tendency to exaggerate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contact bigwigs for the support you need in civic matters and get the right results. Improve career affairs also. Become interested in a hobby that will hold your interest and relax you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan how to expand in your career work. Don't limit yourself so much. Study a new method that could prove to be good for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get at those tasks ahead of you and they are soon behind you. Show you can be efficient when you want to be. Try to be more encouraging with loved one and get better results.

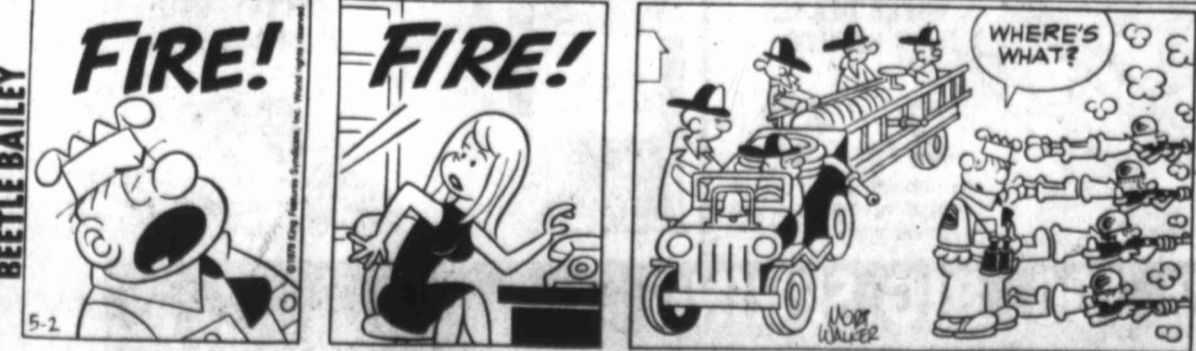

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You now understand better what partners want of you and can coordinate efforts very well. A situation arises that can give you more prestige, if you handle it wisely.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make sure your surroundings are more comfortable and charming and add art pieces that are distinctive. Show co-workers you appreciate their cooperation and get more of it.

MR. AND MRS. RUSSELL KENNEDY

Kennedys will be honored Saturday

The five children of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kennedy will serve as hosts for a come and go open house honoring the couple on their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday from 2-5 p.m. in the couple's home at 504 E. 17th.

Russell Kennedy and the former Nettie Mansfield were married May 3, 1929 in the home of Rev. J.W. Bowen of the Morgan Community.

Kennedy, born June 10, 1902, farmed until his retirement in 1969. Mrs. Kennedy worked at McCrory's Department store for 17 years, three years as manager.

Children reared by the Kennedys are Edward Kennedy, Carrigo Springs, Joe Kennedy, Dallas, La Verne Atwell and Carl Kennedy, Odessa and Gayla Paul, Abilene.

The Kennedys are the grandparents of 14 and the great-grandparents of 4.

Friends and relatives are invited to attend the open house and the couple request that no gifts be brought.

Business economists to hear Betty Anderson

The West Texas Home Economists in Business will hear Betty Anderson, Texas President of the League of Women Voters, at a May 4 meeting in Lubbock.

She will discuss change as it relates to attitudes, creativity, aspirations and success. Mrs. Anderson has been league president for the past 4 years.

Another featured speaker will be Leota Alexander, Lubbock attorney, who will give an overview of the recent National Conference on Women and the Law held in San Antonio.

The session begins at 1 p.m. in the Southwestern Public Service Company Reddy Room, 1120 Main St., Lubbock.

Any professional home economist is encouraged to attend. Membership is made up of home economists employed by business or industry from Big Spring, Midland, Odessa, Amarillo, Lubbock and surrounding area.

Like Weeds, Bad Kids Flourish in Neglect

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live in a very respectable neighborhood and, although our children are still toddlers we are deeply concerned about the rise of juvenile delinquency among youngsters from "better" homes.

All around us, minors—some as young as 10—have been convicted of violent crimes. They include armed robbery beating up the elderly and handicapped, knifing and even rape.

Abby, these kids have never known hunger, poverty or discrimination. They come from respectable homes and have gone to the best schools. Yet more and more children from the so-called privileged class are turning to crime and violence.

Why?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Basically, it's lack of discipline. (Discipline, meaning "to teach"—not necessarily "to punish.")

For a better understanding of this growing social problem, get the May issue of PARENTS' magazine and read "Bad Kids," by Lori N. Andrews, a Chicago lawyer. It will open your eyes!

She says, "Unfortunately, only after a child has committed a violent crime are the roots of his behavior explored. A peek inside the middle-class home will reveal a child who lives with two adults—but has no real parents."

DEAR ABBY: I have a relative who loves to play gin rummy. When HE wins he says it's 90 percent skill and 10 percent luck. When the other fellow wins he says it's 90 percent luck and 10 percent skill.

When he loses he always wants to play one more hand—double or nothing. I get uptight and usually lose that hand. How can I get out of going along with his double-or-nothing challenge without looking like a poor sport?

HY

DEAR HY: Tell him you can't afford to play for such high stakes.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 14-month-old nephew whose feet turn outward when he walks. So severely, in fact, that the child walks sideways. My sister knows it and keeps talking about asking her pediatrician to put the child in corrective shoes. But that's as far as it goes.

I've mentioned this to her several times. I don't want to bring it up again for fear she'll think I'm putting my nose where it doesn't belong.

Please don't say that if my sister wants her child to grow up with turned-out feet, it's her business, because it isn't my sister who will have to stumble through life on deformed feet. I see her pediatrician quite often. Would it be unethical of me to say something to him about it?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: You may not have all the facts but on the chance that your sister is either unable or unwilling to deal with this problem, mention it to the doctor.

Nestle boycott continues

International food giant under attack

Nestle, the international food giant, is under attack by a growing number of Americans. They are calling for the Swiss-based conglomerate to halt its promotion of infant formula in developing countries, citing claims that Nestle is creating a serious health epidemic by encouraging mothers to switch from their own breast milk to powdered infant formula.

Unclean water and poverty make the safe preparation of the expensive infant formula virtually impossible, says the Infant Formula Action Coalition (INFAC), an assembly of concerned nutritionists, educators and religious leaders.

INFAC estimates that bottle feeding in developing countries leads to 10 million cases of severe infant disease each year. The result is malnutrition, retardation and death.

Nestle, the world's largest producer of infant formula, disputes these charges and refuses to cease its promotion and marketing practices despite widespread international protests and an on-going boycott of its many products. "CLIP NESTLE QUIK!" is the slogan for an INFAC campaign. INFAC supporters have been clipping the coupons from newspapers and magazines in the past two months. This truck, and another on the east coast, delivered the unredeemed coupons to Nestle's U.S. headquarters in White Plains, New York April 28.

The Nestle Boycott includes Nescafe—the world's largest selling brand of instant coffee—Taster's Choice, Nestea, QUIK, and CRUNCH, among others; plus all foods marketed by Nestle's wholly-owned subsidiaries, Stouffer and Libby.

Dr. Spock, in a fund-appeal sent out for INFAC, has charged Nestle with "putting profits first." "We are trying, with the boycott, to compel Nestle to do what they won't do out of decency," said Spock, speaking for himself and the Infant Formula Coalition. Johnson said the group is convinced its boycott is having an effect. "Nestle has stepped up its advertising and promotional coupon distribution—which is why the 'Clip Nestle QUIK' campaign is so important—but we're going to show them their sales are going to drop until they change their policies," he said.

INFAC was organized in 1977 to stop multinational corporations from promoting infant formula overseas, which the group says has led to a phenomenon United Nations doctors now call "Baby Bottle Disease." This syndrome includes a range of malnutrition and intestinal illnesses and occurs in areas of the world lacking the necessary conditions for safe use of the powdered milk. To use formula properly, the health authorities say, a mother must have safe water supplies, adequate fuel for sterilization of bottles, and refrigeration of the prepared milk. Improperly prepared, the baby bottle is a breeding ground for bacteria that cause acute diarrhea, malnutrition and death.

Western Drifters Club hears Good Sam report

The Western Drifters Camping Club met April 26 in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

President Evelyn Vigar gave a report of the International Good Sam Meeting held recently in Harlingen. The Vigers were representatives of the local club, and reported attendance from 29 states and two Canadian Provinces.

The local club's booth was well received and cleared a small profit for the local treasury. The booth was designed with a covered wagon as the central theme. This is a part of the Local club emblem. The drawing was done by Becky Adams, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Adams.

Six prizes were awarded to members submitting canned and baked goods for judging in the Fair Day. Mrs. Vigar presented Joanna Marshall second place for cherry jelly; Essie Jackson first place for plum jelly; and Virginia Bryant first place for pear jam, and Mrs. Vigar first place for strawberry fig preserves, and first place for brickly cookies.

Vern Vigar urged all members to write to their congressmen and representatives concerning the proposed action to legislate mandatory closing of gas stations over the weekend.

Jane Blalack reported four rigs in attendance at the April camp-out held in Ft. Davis State Park. Despite chilly weather the group enjoyed fun and fellowship around giant campfires.

Bill and Jane Blalack were the host couple.

A Personal Service Committee was created by the group to keep in closer touch with the members during times of sickness and bereavement. Pollyanna Brown was elected chairwoman, Nellene Wright and Joanna Marshall her co-workers.

Danny and Sandy Wright will be the host couple for the May weekend campout to be held May 18-20 in Water Valley.

The 31 members attending welcomed Jean and Perry Chandler, and Ruth and A.J. Statser as new members.

Homemakers learn effects of color

The home of Mrs. Ross Callihan, Silver Heels, was the site of the April 27 meeting when the City Homemakers Extension Club met at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Johnny Green served as co-hostess.

Presiding was Mrs. C.F. Dohoney, president. Roll call was answered with members revealing their favorite color.

The club standing rules were read and adjusted according to the changes of time and regulations. Mrs. Waymon Etchison was appointed reporter to replace Mrs. Bill Bain who has taken a leave of absence.

Elected as nominee to council for a delegate to the State Meeting was Mrs. Frances Zant. State Meeting will be in September in Fort Worth. Mrs. Zant has also been appointed by the state to the State 4-H Committee in Homemakers Extension Work.

A program on color and how it affects different people in different situations and places was given by Mrs. M. F. Hodnett, chairman leader, Mrs. Zant, Mrs. Kelly Burns, Mrs. Green and Mrs. James Johnston.

Each member attending added their thoughts, likes as well as dislikes relating to colors.

Color in a factory can change the production. The heating and cooling factors can be changed by changing the color of a room, revealed the speakers.

Refreshments were served to the 21 members present from a table decorated with a floral arrangement.

Clinic will provide adult sitter training

By JANET ROGERS, County Extension Agent

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service is conducting a new training program—a four-day Adult Sitters Clinic.

This clinic is designed for adult audiences and will provide information and training on physical care for the ill, handicapped or elderly as well as information on the roles and responsibilities of sitters, human relationships and job opportunities for the adult sitter.

An adult sitter is a companion and caretaker—one who provides for the well being of a patient who has restrictions or handicaps. One is always needed for people in hospitals, nursing homes or private homes.

Consider becoming an adult sitter to fill a need—yours and the patients'. This would help you acquire the skills needed for caring for friends or relatives or to be qualified for job opportunities as a sitter.

The Adult Sitters Clinic is co-sponsored by the Howard County Council on Aging, Howard College, and Texas Nurses Association District 24. Howard College will issue continuing education credits to all participants who complete the training. Volunteer registered nurses will teach the physical care skills.

The clinic is scheduled for May 22-25, beginning at 9 a.m. at the Horace Garrett Applied Science Building, Room 206 and 208, Howard College Campus.

Enrollment is limited to 30 participants which must pre-register. A pre-registration fee of $5 will be charged and deadline will be May 18.

Any cancellations of class must be made prior to the first day of class in order to receive a refund.

Interested persons should enroll in the Adult Sitters Clinic through the County Extension Agent's office. Contact Janet Rogers, P.O. Box 790 Big Spring or call 267-8469. Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

TWEEN 12 and 20

Trust is part of love

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

It's guest writer time, and this column welcomes Jill Carter, 17, from Elyria, Ohio and Frank Harper, 16, who lives in Sacramento, Calif. Jill and Frank will offer Rita of Huntsville, Ala., the teen point of view—Welcome!

Dr. Wallace: I have a problem that seems to be growing worse, and I don't know what to do.

I am 16, and a responsible teen, but no matter what I say, my father says that I'm lying. When I go out on a date, my father always asks me where I've been and when I tell him, he doesn't believe me.

Last night I was a half-hour late returning from a date because my boyfriend had a flat tire, and when I told him this he flew into a rage, called me a liar, and grounded me for two weeks.

I can accept the grounding because I was late, but the fact that he called me a liar is almost unbearable. What can I do to convince my father I'm telling him the truth?—Rita

Rita: Parents with suspicious minds are indeed difficult to deal with but not impossible.

After dinner some evening, sit down with your parents and discuss the problem with them. Ask your father why he does not believe what you say.

Be mature and stay calm, and avoid an argument regardless of his reaction. End the conversation by telling your parents you love them, and you know they love you. Remind them that trust is a part of love.

Hi Jill: Take it from me, most dads are super-critical when it comes to the dating habits of their daughters. I'm sure if you were a boy and came home a little late with a legitimate excuse, very little if anything, would have been done.

But back to your problem. I would talk to my school counselor or my priest (I'm Catholic) and have one of them talk to my dad. Many times it takes someone from outside the family to get a parent to act like a parent—Good luck, Jill

Hello Jill: I think you can convince your father that you are telling the truth by being more considerate. You should have called your father and told him of your situation.

Talk to your dad and make a commitment that you will always call (of course, it is possible) in similar situations. Show consideration and your parents will show trust.—Frank

If you would like to be a teen guest writer, please write to me in care of this newspaper stating your sex and age.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped large self-addressed envelope to Dr. R. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Soviet dissidents reunited Tuesday

CAVENDISH, Vt. (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn and Alexander Ginzburg, Soviet dissidents whose fight for human rights led to imprisonment, are once again behind a wire fence. But now the gate provides a welcome seclusion for the two exiles, reunited after five years separation.

Ginzburg arrived late Tuesday at Solzhenitsyn's fenced-in compound in Cavendish, where the Nobel Prize-winning author has lived as a near-recluse since coming to the United States in 1976.

The 42-year-old Soviet physicist is suffering from an ulcer that he said Monday was "aggravated extremely" by his latest confinement in a Soviet prison camp.

Ginzburg, along with four other dissidents, was released Friday by the Soviet Union in exchange for two Soviets convicted of espionage in the United States.

Solzhenitsyn and Ginzburg are close friends and leaders of the Soviet dissident movement.

Ginzburg was greeted by Solzhenitsyn's wife, Natalya, at the tall gate of wire mesh strung on a heavy frame leading to the 51-acre southeastern Vermont estate.

The two embraced, and Mrs. Solzhenitsyn told Ginzburg that he and his family, who are expected to join Ginzburg soon, should "think of this as if it were your home."

Ginzburg, who was released last week from a Soviet prison, looked gaunt and pale after a day of interviews in New York City and the long drive to Vermont.

But he bounded out of the car before it had stopped rolling to throw his arms around Mrs. Solzhenitsyn, her mother and Solzhenitsyn's 18-year-old son, Dimitri.

Solzhenitsyn, who is rarely seen by the 1,200 residents here, did not come to the gate to welcome his guest.

Mrs. Solzhenitsyn, speaking through a translator, said that Ginzburg was "very, very tired and very much in need of rest."

Mrs. Solzhenitsyn said the two men had not seen each other for five years and plan to devote themselves to the Russian Social Fund, which Solzhenitsyn created to help imprisoned Russian dissidents.

Ginzburg served as director of the fund in the Soviet Union before he was imprisoned in 1977.

The physicist, who has served three separate terms in Soviet prison camps, was again imprisoned last year after his conviction on charges of "anti-Soviet propaganda" for his work monitoring human rights provisions in the Helsinki accords.

Solzhenitsyn, who has spent a decade in Soviet prison camps, is the author of the three-volume "Gulag Archipelago," an indictment of the Soviet Union's prison camp system. Solzhenitsyn, who holds the Nobel Prize for Literature, was exiled from the Soviet Union in 1974.

FAMILY KILLED IN AMTRAK COLLISION — Anna Choboter, 8, clings to her uncle Bruce Cheney after learning her parents and three sisters had been killed earlier Tuesday morning when a North bound Amtrak train, The Montrealer, struck the family vehicle at an unmarked crossing in Charlestown, N.H. only minutes after they dropped her off at a friends house.

Bargain available to all with silver coins

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The price is right at Gomer Clemmons' service station — if you've got silver coins. A gallon of gas can be had for less than two bits, a soft drink for a dime.

Clemmons also sells at today's prices — if you offer today's currency. But if you want his bargains, the purchase must be made in silver coins.

"I'd trade anything I've got" for the shiny, no-copper-added coins minted before 1965, said Clemmons, who adds with a laugh, "I'd trade my wife for it."

Clemmons' abiding passion for silver coins lured him to begin trading merchandise and gasoline for them in 1973. Besides his Lexington service station, he owns wholesale autoparts businesses in Lexington, Frankfort and Louisville.

"We'll take silver for anything," he said. "I sold one man a set of radial tires. I think I took $60 in silver for a $270 set of tires. He paid me in Washington quarters. He had piles of (silver). But he died."

Clemmons estimates he has swapped about $1,700 in merchandise for silver coins worth about $9,000.

The coins are worth about five times their original value. But Clemmons vows his motives are pure.

"I'm not trying to make money on 'em," he said of his coins. "I just like old coins. That's true."

However, he said, "if they weren't going up in value, I probably wouldn't like old coins."

"I never sell 'em," said Clemmons. "I wouldn't sell 'em unless I absolutely had to for food. I wouldn't even pay a hospital bill with 'em, I don't believe."

Clemmons said he began his coin collecting 25 years ago. That's how he spends his money, although "my wife doesn't always approve," he said.

"People don't have silver anymore," he said. "These coin dealers and others have it snapped up."

On the light side — Termites fight city hall

COLFAX, Calif. (AP) — The termites literally ran the government out of the City Hall of this former Sierra mining camp.

After secretaries reported termites coming out of the walls of the old frame structure, a termite inspector declared it totally unsafe Tuesday and ordered immediate evacuation.

A member of the Placer County Board of Supervisors, Jim Henry, requested permission for city government to move into a county building occupied by the American Legion Memorial Hall.

Henry said the termite damage was so extensive that the building could fall down.

Colfax, with a two-block main street, is on Interstate 80 between Sacramento and Reno, Nev.

Blind date that didn't work

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The desired romance between gorillas Abe and Bouba is "beginning to look like a blind date that didn't work," say San Diego Zoo officials.

It's been two months since the two lowland gorillas were placed in the same quarters, with the hope that they would mate.

But the 30-year-old Bouba apparently didn't find Abe, 23, her type. The two stick mostly to separate corners.

"They slap each other around a little and they'll fight over banana leaves," said Jeff Jouette, a zoo spokesman. But amour has not been on Bouba's mind, he said.

"She's just a tough old gal, and very set in her ways," he said.

Bride outranks groom

ELMIRA, N.Y. (AP) — The bride and groom wore army fatigues, as did the maid of honor and the best man, who also wore a major's golden oak leaves pinned to his uniform.

Traditional wedding white gave way to army green as National Guardsman Pfc. Levi Coram, a cook, was married to Spec. 5 Candice Worthey, a medic, at the Elmira Correctional Facility on Tuesday.

The two members of Company B, 102nd Medical Battalion, have known each other for about 10 years, and have been performing support duties at the prison during a strike by state corrections officers.

The wedding was performed in the prison chapel by the Rev. Ronald C. Bill, the Guard chaplain. The maid of honor was Spec. 5 Patricia Finch of Buffalo. The company commander, Maj. Ronald Muscarella of Buffalo, flew in from Syracuse to be best man.

"I'm going to wear my fatigues, because those are the only clothes I have," said the bride-to-be before the ceremony. "I'm not nervous, but I am excited."

Giants seek QB in Thursday's draft

By the Associated Press
 "Basically, there are two positions that it's hardest for a rookie to start at — quarterback and offensive line," says Ray Perkins, himself a rookie of sorts. "I don't think you can win with a rookie quarterback. It's never been done."
 Perkins is in his first season as head coach of the New York Giants, a team in almost desperate need of a quarterback. None of the three they have — Joe Pisarcik, Jerry Golsteyn and Randy Dean — has shown the intangible quality that makes a quarterback and the team he plays for into a big winner.
 Thus, when the time comes for the Giants to make their first pick in Thursday's National Football League draft, Perkins and new General Manager George Young are likely to go for the "Throvin' Samoan," Jack Thompson of Washington State.
 He's the biggest name among available college quarterbacks, one of the glamour positions in the game. Thompson is a 6-foot-3, 215-pounder and basically is a drop-back quarterback, the kind most pro teams look for. He has had a series of shoulder problems in his college career, but that doesn't figure to keep him from being the first quarterback drafted.

 There is, however, someone else who might make him only No. 2 at his position — Steve Fuller from Clemson. He's 6-4 and 205 pounds and the twotime Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year. But he's not as well known. And he's not the classic drop-back passer since his job was to direct an option-oriented offense.

 But, then, there are a few other quarterbacks drifting around the NFL who weren't classic drop-back types in college — namely Richard Todd, Roger Staubach, Fran Tarkenton, Billy Kilmer and Steve Grogan among others. Furthermore, a number of insiders and experts — Gil Brandt, the master builder of the Dallas Cowboys, among them — believes Fuller will be better sooner. Brandt cites leadership and other intangibles.
 Whether the Giants get a shot at Thompson or Fuller — or Phil Simms of Morehead State.

Spurs hoping for revival tonight

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham knows what it's like to be a part of a team that blows a 3-1 lead in a best-of-seven NBA playoff series. He sincerely hopes the San Antonio Spurs get a chance to experience that feeling tonight.
 The Spurs, who have frittered away a 3-1 lead in the Eastern Conference semifinal series, host the 76ers tonight for the decisive seventh game.
 Cunningham was a member of the 1968 76ers, who went ahead of Boston 3-1, but then lost three consecutive games, including the seventh game in Philadelphia. That was one of only two times that has happened in the 33-year history of the NBA.
 He was asked Tuesday what it feels like.
 "There's no question you start feeling a little doubt in yourself," he said. "You think about the comfortable lead and how things were going to be so nice and easy."

 "A big key is the way they (the Spurs) get started in the game (tonight). They have to get a good start to regain their confidence," he added.
 The Spurs won three of the first four games, including one in Philadelphia, and returned home last Thursday, appearing to be a cinch to wrap up the series in five games.
 But the 76ers thrashed the lethargic Spurs 120-97 that night and won 92-90 on Sunday in Philadelphia.
 "We can't look back," said San Antonio Coach Doug Moe. "It doesn't do you any good. At this point, we just have to go after it. I think we're still pretty confident."

Johnson's key Sonic romp

SEATTLE (AP) — Running with the basketball is what the Phoenix Suns do best.
 On Tuesday night, however, the Suns found themselves romping up and down the court not only without the ball, but on the heels of the Seattle players who had it.
 When the opening game of the National Basketball Association's Western Conference championship series was over, the Sonics had beaten the Suns at their own game, running Phoenix off the Coliseum court 108-93.

 It was a tenacious Seattle defense, led by the two Johnsons, Dennis and John, that denied Phoenix the lightning quick pace it prefers.
 John Johnson harassed Walter Davis and limited the smooth shooting 6-foot-6 forward to just 13 points, nine below his team-leading playoff average.
 Dennis Johnson played guard Paul Westphal belly-to-belly and the Suns' leading overall scorer wasn't a factor in the end, either. Westphal had 13 points on 5-of-13 shooting.

 "I can't stop Paul every night," said Johnson, named earlier in the week to the NBA's all-defensive team. "My main objective isn't to stop Paul, it's to stop Phoenix."
 Seattle's objective is to stop the Suns in Game 2 of the best-of-seven series Friday night in the Kingdome.

"One game don't make a series," reasoned John Johnson, who dished out a gamehigh nine assists, pulled down eight rebounds and scored seven points. "I'm sure they'll come much better prepared and play better Friday."
 Phoenix Coach John MacLeod conceded the game was lost on the boards, where Seattle out rebounded the Suns 56-45, including a 20-12 edge on the offensive end.
 "You can't let anyone have a lot of second shots," MacLeod said. "They are physical and go to the boards well. They got a lot of offensive boards. They're just strong."
 He said Davis and Westphal simply had poor games. "Everything's fine with Walter. He didn't have a particularly good game, but he isn't the only one," MacLeod said. "Paul may have pushed his shots a little bit. He's a much better shot than that."
 "I think we'll bounce back."

Houston claims women's crown

HOUSTON (AP) — Paula Mayo scored 36 points as the Houston Angels downed the Iowa Cornets 111-104 to win the Women's Professional Basketball championship in the final game of a best-of-five tournament here Tuesday night.
 Houston, playing before a hooting and hollering hometown crowd of 5,978 fans, held a narrow edge throughout most of the contest. But Iowa pulled ahead, 97-96 with 3:22 left in the game.

Houston regained the lead but Iowa then knotted it at 100. However, the Angels scored six unanswered points and never trailed again.
 "I'm just going to have to sleep on this," said Mayo, whose game-high 36 points provided the winning spark.
 "This has been a team with a lot of class all season, and they really showed it with the score tied at 100. They made up their minds then they that they weren't going to give it away," said

Angel Coach Don Knodel. B.K. Thomas came off the bench to score 31 for Iowa and Molly Bolin had 19 points in the losing cause.
 Iowa Coach Dan Molton said the free throw shooting and the Knodel's coaching made the difference.
 "Don Knodel had coached his team to beat our press, and you're not going to outcoach Knodel very often," Molton said.

 For information call Wakie Buchanan 3-4374 or June Waters 7-7337.

WGA hosting free lessons

The Women's Golf Association of the Big Spring Country Club will hold three more free lessons for female members.
 The first lesson will be May 3 at 10:00 a.m. The second and third lessons will be Tuesday, May 8, and Thursday, May 10. They will also be at 10:00. Any woman interested is urged to attend.
 The Friday afternoon Scotch Foursome play will resume on May 4.

Bronchos stifle Steers

The Odessa Bronchos used the two-hit pitching of Billy Rumbaugh and four extra base hits to take 5-1 victory over the Big Spring Steers in a second half District 5-AAAA contest.
 The win increased the Red Hosses record to 3-3 in the second half and 9-18 on the year, while the Steers slumped to 1-5 and 9-17.
 Rumbaugh was in control the entire contest. He retired the first nine batters he faced before Kevin McLaughlin singled to open the fourth.
 Odessa took a quick 2-0 lead in the bottom of the second for all the runs that they would need. With two outs, Steer hurler Luis Rodriguez walked Ismael Tavaraz and Rumbaugh singled to center. Mark Valdez, the eighth man in the OHS lineup, then drilled a triple to right centerfield to score both runners.
 Odessa added a run in the fourth when Brian Cantrell

Angelo for its final game of the year Saturday, while Odessa faces cross-town rival Permian.

McEnroe takes WTC win

DALLAS (AP) — John McEnroe Jr., equal to the best in the tennis world?
 Australian John Alexander thinks so after the lesson he received Tuesday night in the opening quarterfinal match of the World Championship of Tennis Finals.
 "John played tremendous tennis—equal to the best I've ever played against and that includes (Rod) Laver, (Ken) Rosewall, (Bjorn) Borg and (Jimmy) Connors," said Alexander after a straight set 6-4, 6-0, 6-2 whipping.
 "McEnroe certainly is in that category the way he played tonight."
 The saucy 20-year-old McEnroe, simmering because officials moved his match up a day when Connors requested an extra 24-hours' injury rest, soaked up Alexander's powerful serve with cracking backhand winners.

McEnroe, the youngest player in WCT history, never lost serve. The only thing he lost was the crowd when he exchanged words with a linesman in the third game of the first set.
 "I wasn't happy that the crowd was against me but I'll try every point anyway," said McEnroe. "The call was wrong. I just don't think eight-tenths of the people

Baseball Roundup

Braves 5, Pirates 2 Niekro wins 200th

A lot of Phil Niekro's knucklers have danced around home plate since he signed his first professional baseball contract in 1959. Ah, yes, he remembers it well — especially his first contract.

"My biggest thrill was when I first signed at the age of 19," says the ace right-hander of the Atlanta Braves. "That was the biggest thrill I ever had in my life — just getting the chance to play major league ball."

Niekro has played major league ball extremely well and Tuesday night hit the lofty 200-victory plateau with a 5-2 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I feel great out there," noted the 40-year-old pitcher who has posted a lifetime 200-175 mark with the Braves. "I still like to pitch."

Niekro's 200th triumph came in the city of Pittsburgh where he won his first major league game, in May of 1965. Among the 5,122 spectators at Three Rivers Stadium was his mother, Ivy, from nearby Lansing, Ohio.

"When your mother is sitting in the stands and she brought you up and cared for you for some 20 years, it's a good feeling to do it in front of her," said the right-hander, who tossed a seven-hitter.

Giants 7, Phillies 0

Terry Whitfield hit an inside-the-park home run, singled and drove in three runs, while Bob Knepper pitched a five-hitter to lead San Francisco over Philadelphia.

It was the first victory in a frustrating road trip for the Giants, who for the third time since they moved from New York to the West Coast city had lost eight straight games.

Cardinals 7, Astros 6

Pinch-hitter Roger Freed slugged a bases-loaded home run with two out in the bottom of the 11th inning, powering St. Louis over Houston. The dramatic hit wiped out a three-run rally by Houston in the top of the 11th that had given the Astros a 6-3 lead.

Freed's homer, his first career grand slam, was his first hit of the year in six pinch-hit appearances.

Cubs 5, Reds 1

Bill Buckner smashed home runs his first two times at bat and Ivan DeJesus drove in two runs with a second-inning single as Chicago beat Cincinnati.

Buckner got both homers off Cincinnati starter Fred Norman.

Padres 10, Mets 5

Gene Tenace and Barry Evans drove in two runs apiece with a pair of bases-loaded singles, leading San Diego over New York.

Gaylord Perry worked six innings to earn his 270th major league victory. He surrendered nine hits, including a three-run homer by Doug Flynn, but struck out 10 Mets.

Expos 7, Dodgers 3

Run-scoring singles by Rodney Scott and Warren Cromartie in the fifth inning helped Montreal beat Los Angeles for the Expos' seventh straight victory. The rally gave the Expos a 4-2 lead and eventually proved to be their winning runs.

The winner was Bill Lee, who won his third game without a defeat this season with late-inning relief help from Elias Sosa.

Tigers 5, White Sox 2

Lance Parrish and Jerry Morales hit successive home runs off Ken Kravec in the eighth inning to seal Detroit's victory. Steve Baker was the winner with seventh-inning relief from Jack Billingham. The Tigers jumped to a 3-0 lead in the third inning when Lou Whitaker drove in a run with a sacrifice fly. Steve Kemp singled a run home and scored on a double by Jason Thompson.

Indians 3, Brewers 1

Rick Manning drove in all the Cleveland runs with a single and a homer while Mike Paxton gained the victory with seventh-inning help from Sid Monge. Manning's first home run of the season followed a single by Jim Norris in the third inning off Lary Sorenson.

Twins 3, Blue Jays 2

Jerry Kosman has left Losersville, N.Y., behind him and is now a resident of (a) Victoria, Minn., and (b) the victory column for the Minnesota Twins.

The veteran left-hander, who managed only a 3-15 record with the punchless last-place New York Mets in 1978, notched his fifth consecutive victory with seventh-inning help from Mike Marshall Tuesday night as the Twins nipped the Toronto Blue Jays 3-2 and climbed into first place in the American League West.

Yankees 12, Angels 8

Bucky Dent, Juan Beniquez, Thurman Munson, Lou Piniella and Graig Nettles delivered run-scoring singles with two out in the 11th inning as the Yankees snapped a five-game losing streak. Piniella and Beniquez homered as the Yankees kayoed Frank Tanana in the first inning and built a 7-0 lead after three. The Angels finally tied it 7-7 with four runs in the bottom of the ninth against three relievers before John, normally a starter, came on and struck out Rod Carew and Don Baylor to leave two runners stranded.

Orioles 3, Mariners 1

Ken Singleton homered in the first inning and Rich Dauer and Eddie Murray drilled RBI singles in the sixth as the streaking Orioles posted their 12th victory in the last 13 games behind six-hit pitching of Dennis Martinez. Loser Byron McLoughlin had retired 14 batters in a row until Dave Skaggs walked with one out in the sixth and Al Bumbry doubled to set up the RBI hits by Dauer and Murray.

A's 7, Red Sox 5

Jeff Newman delivered a pinch two-run double and Dave Revering sent Oakland ahead with a two-run single during a five-run seventh-inning rally. The Red Sox out hit the A's 17-11 but left 18 runners on base — two short of the AL record — and dropped one-half game behind Baltimore in the AL East. They left the bases loaded four times, including the ninth inning, while the A's stranded only four baserunners.

Royals 9, Rangers 3

Darrell Porter and Frank White homered to back the combined seven-hit pitching of Paul Splittorff and Marty Pattin. Splittorff yielded only a two-out double to Bill Sample in the third inning. Pattin took over at the start of the sixth when Splittorff developed a sore back.

Weapon of investment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Board Chairman G. William Miller is calling the plays for an economic policy he hopes will help beat inflation by giving businesses more incentive to raise capital.

Miller wants the government to speed up the rate at which businesses write off capital expenditures "to give them every incentive to modernize their facilities and expand their (production) capacity."

The modernization, he said Tuesday night, would lead ultimately to more products made more efficiently. And, as the theory goes, that would temper rapid price increases.

Miller suggested that Congress begin studying such a plan now "so that in 1980 we can put in place this powerful policy weapon of investment to bring us back in the next growth pattern."

Not only did Miller explain his plan to a dinner gathering of the Advertising Council. He illustrated it, ad-man fashion.

At the close of the speech, the usually reserved central banker laughingly presented his hosts with red and yellow footballs, each inscribed with the numbers 1, 5 and 10.

"You now have the ball," he told them. "I hope you will run with it." The council sponsors public service ads on topics from Savings Bonds to forest fires.

Miller explained that the numbers on the footballs were meant to illustrate his proposal. The policy he is pushing would allow businesses to write off their investments for government-mandated environmental, safety and health expenses in one year; for equipment and processing machinery in five years; and for structures and other permanent facilities in 10 years.

The policy, he said, would compliment Carter administration efforts to stem inflation, which has been at an annual rate above 10 percent so far this year.

In a speech earlier in the day, Miller warned that no one should be surprised if the Federal Reserve pushed interest rates up further to slow inflation.

He did not, however, confirm market experts' analyses that the Fed, which does not reveal its actions until month after they are taken, had acted Friday to raise rates. Higher rates discourage borrowing and takes pressure off the prices of business and consumer goods.

In other economic developments Tuesday:

—Several government indicators reflected continued strong business activity. The Commerce Department said new construction rose 3 percent in March to an annual rate of $211.6 billion and that new orders placed with the nation's factories rose 1.8 percent in March to $147.5 billion. It also reported that shipments of manufactured products showed a record increase during the month, 4.8 percent.

—A House banking subcommittee endorsed an increase in Federal Housing Administration loan limits for single-family dwellings from $60,000 to $65,500.

—Spokesmen for four consumer groups told a Capitol rally that they would fight legislation aimed at raising the limits on raw sugar prices. If approved, higher sugar prices likely will start appearing in supermarkets later this year.

—Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland told the House Small Business Committee competition within the meatpacking industry has decreased sharply since 1970 and that the trend is likely to continue.

—Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., chairman of a House Banking subcommittee on consumers, recommended that Americans destroy the plastic cards they have for the deposit and withdrawal of money from electronic banking machines.

He suggested the action when spokesmen for the American Bankers Association and Federal Reserve opposed his legislation to move up the date for notifying consumers of their liabilities if the cards are lost or stolen. Notification rules are not scheduled to go into effect until May 1980.

—Govs. Dixy Lee Ray of Washington, Bill Clinton of Arkansas and George Busbee of Georgia told the House Foreign Affairs Committee less cumbersome export licensing is needed to stimulate U.S. business abroad.

FIEDLER CONDUCTS —G Boston Symphony Orchestra conductor Arthur Fiedler leads the Boston Pops Tuesday night in Boston as he launches his 50th season. Tuesday's concert was the first major concert by Fiedler since he underwent neurosurgery last fall.

Wife tries to stop sale

BARNSTABLE, Mass. (AP) — Norman Mailer's fourth wife has turned to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to try to stop the Internal Revenue Service from auctioning off the beachfront house she wants as part of her divorce settlement from the author.

"That house was my settlement," said Beverly Mailer after her husband spent most of Tuesday testifying in Barnstable Probate Court in the final stages of their divorce hearing.

Mailer said he didn't think he could produce $80,000 owed to the IRS and redeem the $135,000 Provincetown home because he was already in debt for more than $300,000.

Mrs. Mailer told reporters after the hearing that she had requested the Massachusetts Democrat to intercede with the IRS.

A California firm, Cape Cod See, bought the house at auction two weeks ago for $65,000.

According to the IRS, Mailer has 120 days to pay his $80,000 income tax debt and get back the title to the house, where his wife and their two children now are living.

Mrs. Mailer is suing the novelist for divorce and is seeking a settlement including the house, $1,000 a week to help her restart her acting career and tuition for their sons.

Luncheon with the runners

WASHINGTON (AP) — Boston Marathon winner Bill Rogers had lunch in Washington with some people who have done a bit of running themselves.

Sen. Paul E. Tsongas, D-Mass., whose office says he runs each morning and can go eight miles at a stretch, was host for a luncheon Tuesday in honor of the Worcester, Mass., runner.

Rogers' wife, Helen, who also runs, came with him.

Among the guests were Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., who brought his sneakers, and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who said that at the age of 76 he still does calisthenics and jogs a bit each day.

Apple Records files suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Apple Records Inc., the recording company founded by the Beatles, has filed a $16.5 million breach-of-contract suit against Capitol Records and its parent company E.M.I. Records.

The Superior Court suit filed Monday claims Capitol failed to pay Apple full royalties on records and tapes made between 1962 and 1976 by the now-defunct group and its individual members — John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr.

Under its agreement with Apple Records, Capitol was authorized to manufacture and distribute recordings in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Flack recovers from wreck

NEW YORK (AP) — Roberta Flack is recovering from a whiplash injury she suffered in a minor accident in lower Manhattan, the singer's secretary said.

The secretary, Marilyn Atlas, said the accident occurred Sunday evening, and Miss Flack is wearing a neckbrace while convalescing at her Manhattan apartment. She said Miss Flack will miss an engagement at the Kentucky Derby because of her injuries.

"She's not tap dancing, but she's not in much pain," Miss Atlas said Tuesday.

ERA Realtor to be buried alive to raise MDA funds

Steve Hoskins, Evansville, Ind., will be buried alive Friday, May 4, at 2 p.m. in a fund raising event for "The Fight Against Muscular Dystrophy."

The 29-year-old ERA Real Estate sales associate, who will be buried in a wooden box seven feet below ground, kicks off a nationwide campaign to raise $1 million in ERA Real Estate

"Weekend in May for MDA" door-to-door campaign.

The fund-raising burial coincides with the massive home-to-home collection on May 5 and 6, sponsored by ERA Real Estate (Electronic Realty Associates, Inc.), the nation's second largest real estate franchise organization and the number one marketer of home warranties.

Forty names listed

Forty names were listed on the charter of the Big Spring (Downtown) Lions Club when it was begun in 1929. Thirty-seven of these were signed up by the sponsoring San Angelo Lions Club, and several names were added to the list before the charter was issued.

First officers of the club were Cecil C. Collings, president; B.T. Cardwell, secretary-treasurer; B.G. Sharpe, Liontamer; E.F. Duncan, Tailwiter; M. Wentz and McCall Gary, directors.

Also included on the charter list were C.S. Diltz, W.R. Douglass, L.L. Haney, H.C. Hooser, New Jennings, M.R. Shwalter, Rev. Claude Wingo, and (Dr.) Frank Boyles.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Will Rogers once commented that the United States has never lost a war or won a conference, American generosity at the diplomatic table has caused us to rely on unrealistic idealism in the international arena instead of thoughtful pragmatism.

During the 1920's and 30's it was thought that if we could get Japan to sign enough treaties they would not dare resort to war. In 1921 Japan signed a treaty with the U.S. limiting the amount of battleships. In 1922 several nations, including Japan, signed the Nine-Power Treaty which affirmed the Open Door Policy in China. In 1928 both Germany and Japan signed the Kellogg-Briand Pact which outlawed war as "an instrument of national policy." In 1931 Japan repudiated all of these treaties and then promptly invaded China. The lesson of history is clear: that treaties are made at the convenience of nations and broken at the convenience of nations.

Before long the Senate will be asked to approve a Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) with the Soviet Union. This treaty limits launchers, not ballistic missiles; allows high Soviet force levels; and permits the Soviets to amass many multiple independent reentry (MIRV's) which can hit several targets with a single missile. It also includes inactive U.S. aircraft, but excludes Soviet Backfire bombers; and above all it does not adequately address the problem of verification.

The Soviets continue to adequately fund a vigorous defense program and to date have not allowed any treaty to adversely affect their military and production programs. In technology, they lead us in high energy lasers and high yield nuclear weapons. In conventional fighting capability, the Soviets have seven times as many tanks, over six times the number of artillery pieces, and fifty times the number of trained and active chemical warfare personnel. By 1980-82 they will have a commanding lead in strategic nuclear capability.

During this period the number of their warheads will increase to between 6,500 and 9,200 and the number of SLBM's will probably increase to 950. In the meantime the U.S. has closed the Minuteman III production line; delayed development of the new MX missile and cancelled the production of the B-1 bomber.

We have come from a position of U.S. nuclear monopoly in the 1950's to one of strategic superiority in the 1960's to rough equivalence in the early 1970's and the forecast is that we will shortly be a clear second to the Soviets in strategic capability.

I am of the firm belief that the world would benefit from a treaty that would reduce the number of nuclear weapons. But we must always remember that armaments are an instrument of national policy, and any attempt to regulate them without regard for the factors that bring them into existence is doomed to failure. The Soviet Union is determined to pursue world domination. Until this policy is dealt with, arms control will only limit — U.S. arms.

Wichita Falls tornado

Disaster fund in red

AUSTIN — The high cost of providing National Guard troops and other help to Wichita Falls following the tornado has thrown the state's disaster contingency fund into the red.

Gov. Bill Clements is asking the legislature for an emergency appropriation of $815,000 so that the state for dealing with any emergencies between now and Sept. 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

Rep. Charles Finnell of Holliday says the anticipated $150,000 cost of providing National Guard troops to aid in the Wichita Falls recovery and $1.9 million in other state costs prompted the governor's emergency message.

Finnell and Reps. Dave Allred of Wichita Falls and Bill Herty of Paducah have introduced legislation in the House to provide the extra money.

Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls introduced the Senate version of the bill.

According to figures supplied by Finnell, the state disaster contingency fund's initial appropriation of $2 million was reduced by $610,065 due to floods in Houston, Kerrville and Amarillo and by fires in Jeff Davis County.

Heiress will pay alimony

NEW YORK (AP) — An oil heiress whose husband never held a steady job during their 36-year marriage has agreed to pay him $1,600 a month alimony as part of a month divorce settlement.

The heiress, Elizabeth Phillips Irwin, 57, will pay Henry Durand Irwin the money under the settlement approved Tuesday by Justice Felice Shea in New York Supreme Court. Mrs. Irwin's attorney, Vivian Gentlemen, said the alimony was agreed to because Irwin "has no career of his own and no savings."

Irwin's attorney, Philip Solomon, said it was the first major award since the U.S. Supreme Court earlier this year ruled that husbands were eligible to collect alimony from their wives under certain circumstances.

Jackpot event set Saturday

COLORADO CITY — The Tex-Mex Barrel Racing Association will offer an approved jackpot event starting at 2 p.m., Saturday. The box office opens an hour earlier.

Competition will be held in novice, open, junior, flags and poles. The arena is located on West Second Street. The show is open to all competitors.

'Crown Matrimonial' opens Friday in Midland

"Crown Matrimonial," an intriguing play which provides a rare glimpse behind the walls of Britain's Royal Family, opens at Theatre Midland Friday, May 4.

Following the 8:30 opening Friday, the play will have performances May 5, 11, 12, 13, 17, 18 and 19. Reservations are now being taken by mail at 2000 Wadley and by phone at 682-4111. Curtain times for Friday and Saturday evening performances are at 8:30 and for the Thursday, May 17 performance at 7:30. The May 13 matinee is at 2:30.

Edward's announcement to his family that he intends to marry Mrs. Simpson, in spite of the disgrace he would bring both to the Church of England and his family, is the conflict which provides the action. One reviewer described the play after its New York opening as "the age-old story of the boy who brings home a girl whom his family doesn't like — except, of course, in this case, the whole point is that he cannot bring her home to the family at all."

The production is being directed by Midland Community Theatre executive director Art Cole.

Authored by British playwright Royce Ryton, the drama is based on a real-life crisis familiar to many, the romance of Edward VIII, king of England in 1936, with the American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson.
