Senate approves gas rationing plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders are predicting the House will join the Senate and give President Carter powers to order gasoline rationing if there is a severe energy shortage. But a tough fight is expected and the White House was waging a heavy lobbying campaign today to pick up wavering votes for final House action, expected by early evening. Wednesday's 58-39 Senate approval of the heavily modified plan helps its chances in the House "very significantly," said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House energy and power subcommittee. Dingell predicted passage by the House. However, aides to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said a preliminary head count showed victory might be by an extremely slim margin. House approval would give the president the power to order gasoline rationing — although either chamber of Congress could exercise a veto within 15 days of such a presidential decision. Senators passed the standby proposal only after wringing a variety of last-minute concessions from the president. Among other promises, the president agreed not to use the powers except in dire emergencies and to make more gasoline available for farmers, taxicab and truck drivers and for certain energy-related industries.

Spotty rains welcome, but not enough

Spotty rain, all welcome but in most cases not nearly enough, hit the Big Spring area shortly before 2 a.m., today. Few measurements in the city exceeded one inch and the east part of town seemed to benefit more than any other. In the Howard College area, exactly one inch has trapped in one gauge. The official measurement at the U.S. Experiment Station immediately north of town was .56 of an inch. The station has another gauge about a mile and half north of the headquarters and it had .46 of an inch in its gauge at daylight this morning. Howard County's official total for the year now totals only 2.21 inches, which leaves it at less than half of normal. Owen Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, who resides in the Coronado addition in the south part of Big Spring, reported the fall at his house totaled 8 of an inch. At the Martin County CRMWD pump station, 15 miles northwest of town, the fall was .7 of an inch. The Midland filter plant benefitted from only .2 inch of moisture. The CRMWD district pump station located three miles out on the Big Spring-Snyder highway soaked up a half inch of rain. At Moss Creek Lake southeast of Big Spring, the fall was also measured at .5 inch. The rainfall eight miles north of the Big Spring city limits totaled .2 of an inch. Eight miles northeast of town, the fall amounted to .3 of an inch. On the H.H. Wilkinson Ranch ten miles west of town, Mrs. Bill McIlvain reported the shower deposited a half inch rain all over the ranch. The rain cloud almost missed the Knott community completely. No more than a tenth of an inch fell in that area. At Forsan in South Howard County, about .25 of an inch of moisture was recorded. Coahoma had a "good" rain but a third less than that which fell on Big Spring. Three miles south of Big Spring, on the Garden City road, .3 of an inch was recorded. When the sun set last night, there was no hint that moisture was on the way but a thunder and lightning display which began to build after 1 a.m., gave promise that a squall line was on the way. The rain odds quoted Wednesday were no better than 30 percent.

Ignore Carter's plea for approval Critics vow to reject SALT II

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate critics of a new treaty to cap the arms race are vowing to change or reject it despite President Carter's plea for ratification to diminish "the shadow of nuclear war." The strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union is expected to produce the most searching national security debate since the end of World War II. The outcome is far from sure. Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., told the Senate today he hopes action on the treaty can be completed this year. In a brief speech at the opening of the Senate session, Byrd emphasized that he remains uncommitted on the treaty.

"I'm not going to be intimidated by the idea that if my vote is against, that it goes down," said Byrd, whose support would be crucial to the goal of obtaining the necessary two-thirds majority for approval. Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee said he offered to keep President Carter informed of the GOP head counts on the treaty as the debate progresses. "I don't want my president to fly in the dark, to fly blind," said Baker, who stressed his belief that the treaty might require significant changes to win ratification. SALT II is being denounced by foes as an inequitable and unverifiable pact that will give the Soviet Union a definite advantage in long-range missiles and bombers and a chance of winning a nuclear war with the United States. "I have a strong feeling the treaty is likely to be amended or returned for further negotiations," Baker said.

Truck flips; wreck not 'cheep' Frigid chicks warm up while patrolmen 'peep'

By JAMES WERRELL. It was a "fowl" day for Terry Wheatman, 22, of Dallas. Ms. Wheatman was behind the wheel of a giant Kenworth rig, 6:40 a.m. today, traveling west on IS-20 with 3,000 pounds of ice cold chicken roosting in the cab behind her. Her daughter, eight-year-old Candice Swindle, was seated beside her. Investigators are still not sure how it happened, but one mile east of the Howard County line the huge truck went out of control and overturned on the median strip of the highway. Though her daughter was able to walk away from the wreck, Ms. Wheatman was trapped inside the cab for over an hour while rescuers struggled to free her. State Troopers Glen Redmon of Big Spring and Wade Turner of Stanton were at the scene, along with Big Spring Policemen and Howard County Sheriff's Deputies. Mother and daughter were taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital where it was found that, miraculously, both had escaped with minor cuts and bruises. Meanwhile, the hot, morning sun had begun to turn the day's haul into 3,000 pounds of fried chicken. Some of it was salvagable, but health officials handed down the verdict on the rest: Bury it! So, with a few scavengers in tow, hoping for a stray wing or drumstick, several truckloads of chickens went to their final resting place in the Stanton landfill.

Action/reaction: Counseling needed
Q. There is a man in town who calls during the night begging women to talk to him. If they listen, he becomes lewd. Is there a number he call to get counseling?
A. Your phone caller is fairly well-known, by voice anyway. He has called several women known to us, including an employee at the police department. He has already been given a number to call for counseling and obviously, since, he's still calling you, it has not helped. Annoyance and obscene phone calls are against the law. If you want to put him out of business, make a trip to the telephone company business office. With your authorization, a trap can be put on your phone. Having him arrested may be the only way he will get the counseling he needs.

Ex-pro football star to speak at commencement exercises

Ex-pro football star Roosevelt (Rosie) Grier is slated to speak at the May commencement exercises at Howard College tonight. The ceremonies, set for 7:30 p.m. in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, will be the first Howard College graduation in the new community facility.

After being traded to the New York Giants by the Los Angeles Rams, Grier became interested in film work and even had his own national television show at one time.

He has appeared in television's "Daniel Boone," and co-starred with Danny Thomas in "Make Room for Daddy." On the big screen he appeared in the chiller "In Cold Blood," "Mr. Carter's Army" and "Skyjacked."

ROOSEVELT GRIER

Grier has also been influential in community affairs, especially those affecting young people in the nation's ghettos.

"We thought he'd interest the most diverse audience, and he was someone who had a really inspirational speech to give," said Presidential Assistant Mary Dudley.

William F. Henning, First Presbyterian Church pastor, will be giving the invocation and the benediction. Special music will be offered by Joe Whitten, music director of the First Baptist Church, and Vice President for Instruction Dr. Bobby Wright.

President Dr. Charles Hays and Vice President for Instruction Dr. Bobby Wright will be presenting the degrees.

Candidates for graduation number 78 this year. The public is invited to the ceremony.

Counseling for Vietnam vets urged

Continuing an advocacy he began some 10 years ago as a severely disabled veteran returned from Vietnam, Max Cleland today urged Congress to authorize a "long overdue" program of psychological readjustment counseling for Vietnam veterans.

Now Administrator of Veterans Affairs, Cleland testified before the Subcommittee on Medical Facilities and Benefits of the House Committee on Veterans Affairs chaired by Rep. David E. Satterfield 3d.

He said, "The Veterans Administration recognizes the compelling need for a program of readjustment counseling. A great number of veterans suffer from low-grade motivational or behavioral impairment which interferes with the veteran's job and educational performance, interpersonal relationships, or overall ability to cope with problems encountered in daily life.

"Currently, there is no mechanism available for the VA to provide the type of counseling necessary to assist a veteran through this difficult period."

The needed program would cost $9,945,000 the first year and $43,095,000 over a five year period, Cleland said.

Cleland, 36, and a triple amputee, said many veterans with readjustment problems have not sought VA help for several years after their discharge because of their unwillingness to admit they are unable to solve their own problems and an uncertainty about their eligibility for VA help. To deal with this, he said, VA would provide professional counseling "without the need for referral to a mental health unit.

Chili chase rules changed

All ages participating in the Chili Chase marathon run will be running five miles this Saturday. Originally runners were going to run different distances according to their ages.

The race begins at 9 a.m. in front of the YMCA at 8th and Owens. Trophies will be given to the winners of the different age groups. Entry fee is $7 and each runner will receive a Chili Chase Fiesta T-shirt.

Other events in the Fiesta include a handball tournament and a Chili Cook-Off. Entrants in the cook-off will start at 9 a.m. Civic groups, churches and industrial groups are encouraged to be involved in the community project.

Conferees to decide fate of health center

The fate of the Texas Tech Regional Academic Health Center is now in the hands of the ten-member joint conference committee.

The House approved approximately $12 million in construction and operational funds for establishing the Texas Tech University School of Medicine's teaching branch in Odessa. The Senate's bill included approximately $70,000 in planning funds.

The differences in the two bills will be ironed out by a committee yet to be named. Rep. Dick Slack of Pecos, who shepherded in legislation in the lower house, said he was optimistic that the committee would accept the house version.

The presiding officers of the Senate and the House will name the conferees following a resolution or motion from the floor.

These conferees will meet with members of the Legislative Budget Board and go over both bills item by item.

State Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka said: "We won't give up on this (funding for the project) until it's over."

Odessa was selected for the site of the proposed facility over Big Spring and Midland, even though Big Spring offered a practically new $3 million facility formerly occupied by the Webb AFB hospital.

The proposed Odessa building would be located adjacent to Medical Center Hospital.

Fire destroys mobile home

Fire destroyed a mobile home at the Ray Sneed residence on Kyle Road Wednesday. The home was occupied by Dale Peacock and Ed Nanny. Peacock estimated the damage at $2,500 to $3,000. The blaze was fought by volunteer firemen from Jonesboro and Sand Springs Fire Departments.

Pioneer posts increased earnings

AMARILLO — First quarter 1979 earnings for Pioneer Corporation have been announced.

Pioneer Corp. President K. B. (Tex) Watson reported consolidated net income for the quarter was $12,009,275, compared to $10,522,981 for the same period of 1978. Earnings per share for the first quarter were $1.31, compared to $1.13 for the first quarter of 1978, and the previous record, $1.25 reported in the first quarter of 1977.

Watson said the exploration and production operation of the Company was the major contributor to the increased earnings. Two wholly owned subsidiaries, Amarillo Oil Company and Pioneer Production Corporation, reported participation in a total of 34 wells during the first three months of 1979, with a success ratio of 73.5 percent, indicating 24 completions.

Juarez bond set at $2,500

Bond was set on Ismael Juarez Wednesday at $2,500 by Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin. Juarez was returned to Howard County from state prison last week on a writ of habeas corpus granted by the Texas Court of Appeals.

Juarez was convicted of aggravated robbery of Winchell's Donuts in 1976.

Runnels Junior High Career Day highlights

Thirty local citizens addressed classes at the Runnels Junior High Career Day Wednesday. The day was a reaction to an increased emphasis on careers in public schools.

Preparation for the day began when the 28 member Career Committee devised questionnaires for the 400 Runnels students. From the questionnaires they chose 26 careers and contacted 30 local businessmen and women to speak on them. Committee members each did research on one of the careers.

Each member was then given the name of one of the speakers. The student called the businessman, interviewed him, and scheduled the periods he or she would speak.

When Career Day finally came around the student acted as host for the speaker he had interviewed.

Using the preference cards from the students, committee members scheduled students to hear the speakers they preferred. Committee co-chairmen were Scott Nelson and George Bancroft.

Judy Bowers, counselor and Career Day sponsor, directed the efforts of the committee. "Career Day is not a selection thing, at all, but awareness of what is available," she said.

Runnels students each heard six presentations of careers they were interested in pursuing.

Mrs. Bowers said the presentations were excellent and that it was evident that time had been spent in preparing them. She also said the day would not have been possible without cooperation from the teachers by allowing students out of classes to do committee work.

Registration at HC set

Registration for first summer term at Howard College will be held Thursday, May 31, from 9 a.m. to noon, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the college library.

Classes begin June 1 and end July 6. Late registration will be conducted through June 4. A comprehensive schedule of classes is being offered. Students interested in pre-registration for summer classes may do so by coming to the registrar's office on the Howard College campus from Monday, May 21, through Friday, May 25.

L.L. Lewis, Registrar, is encouraging those who wish to enroll to call his office for specific information. He also reminded prospective students that Don Melton, Director of Guidance and Counseling, is available for course planning for summer as well as for fall. Students should make an appointment to see Melton as soon as possible.

'White Paper' continues

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC will resume its "White Paper" series of news specials, discontinued in 1974, with a two hour report in September on American foreign policy, according to the network. NBC said Wednesday that the Weyerhaeuser Co. will sponsor the prime-time report, a second 90-minute "White Paper" in December, and perhaps a continuation of the prime-time series through the season. NBC inaugurated the "White Paper" series Nov. 29, 1960, and broadcast 49 such special reports between then and Nov. 24, 1974. The series won at least 27 major awards, including eight Emmys. Subjects ranged from energy to organized crime to the world food crisis.

Railroad car flips over

BALTIMORE (AP) — A railroad tank car carrying nearly 10,000 gallons of toxic sulfuric acid flipped over in a rail yard and 700 persons were forced to temporarily evacuate their homes. Authorities said none of the chemical leaked from the Chessie System tanker and no injuries were reported in the Wednesday derailment. One firefighter was treated for possible heat prostration. Thomas Landers, chief train dispatcher for the Chessie System, said an engine was switching 13 cars in the rail yard, when the sixth car, carrying the sulfuric acid, flipped on its side.

Burger renews philosophy

ATLANTA (AP) — Chief Justice Warren Burger has renewed his decade-old call for a national corrections philosophy allowing prisoners to "learn" their way to freedom. Burger on Wednesday asked Attorney General Griffin Bell to take the first steps toward implementing that philosophy before his scheduled departure from the Justice Department this summer. He also asked Bell to move toward establishment of a national corrections academy, patterned after the FBI's training center, to train prison workers. Both Burger and Bell spoke to a conference of judges, government prosecutors and attorneys.

Dirt, rock slide in Malibu

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — A blanket of dust covered the Pacific Coast Highway after a dirt-and-rock slide rumbled down the Malibu cliffs, closing a 400-foot stretch of the scenic road. About 1,000 tons of mountain rubble have piled up behind an earthen barrier next to the highway since the slide began Tuesday and debris continued to fall Wednesday. Workers put a 3-foot-high concrete barrier between the highway and a walkway, allowing residents and beach-goers to travel the pedestrian path that was also closed Tuesday. No injuries have been reported.

HONEYCOMB EFFECT — John Warren, a supervisor at Tenneco's Petro-Tex Chemical Corporation in Houston, is dwarfed by a large cooling tower at the plant. Petro-Tex is undergoing a major expansion program to enable it to produce MTBE (methyl-t-butyl-ether), a high-octane blending component for gasoline. In addition to providing more gasoline, MTBE will be particularly useful for increasing the octane rating of unleaded gasoline.

Ag advisory bill introduced

Washington, D.C. — I have introduced a bill (H.R. 3809) in the House of Representatives this past week entitled the Producer Elected Farm Policy Advisory Board Act of 1979. This bill will establish a vehicle whereby the Nation's farmers and ranchers can bring direct producer input into the decision making processes of the Department of Agriculture on policies, procedures, programs, and practices. I believe this will help to alleviate a common complaint from farmers and ranchers that the Secretary and the Department are not responsive to the needs of agriculture.

I have provided that the Board will function for a period of five years, after which the Congress may review the Board's record of achieving the objectives set forth in the bill prior to extending the authority of the Board or letting it expire. I feel that this bill will help to reduce the number and improve the credibility of existing appointed advisory groups in the USDA and will allow the Nation's agricultural producers direct input by their elected representatives in the decision making processes of the Nation's agricultural policies.

Several of my colleagues have introduced bills this session to provide for Cost of Production Boards that would formalize the existing practice of appointing those persons. I believe these bills fail to recognize that usually such Boards only become the instruments of the current administration in power at the time, and therefore are unable to speak out freely and act accordingly on the issues that are of concern to the farmer. Too, these boards would lack the authority to address the full scope of agricultural issues that my bill envisions. The Board I propose will be composed of 30 agricultural producers, three from each of the ten regions across the Nation. These Board members will be elected by the ASCS committee members in each county in the U.S. and will be unpaid for their services, though they will be reimbursed for travel and per diem expenses while actually on Board business. The members will serve three year terms with a two term limit. The ten regions designated in my bill were selected on the basis of total agricultural income and the number of farms, in an effort to achieve a good cross section and fair representation of all farmers and ranchers and agricultural production. The Board's clerical and administrative support will come from the Department of Agriculture in an effort to insure that the Board will function as an integral part of the Department and Secretary's office. The Board will nominate all commodity task force members, who will be appointed by the Secretary. The Board and all task force meetings will be open to the public and records of their meetings will be available for public inspection.

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Lois Desmond had just been X-rayed and was sitting in the labor room. "I heard people yelling and somebody say something about triplets," she recalled Sunday. "I had no idea it was me." Mrs. Desmond, 28, of Elmhurst, N.Y., gave birth to two girls and a boy shortly after midnight Saturday at a Long Island hospital. The babies were reported in excellent condition after a delivery that lasted just 12 minutes. Her husband, Dennis, said he was still in shock. Desmond said the couple, already the parents of two children, had only been prepared for twins this time. "And just think, she didn't take any fertility pills, either," he said.

Land giveaway program stymied

It had to be reviewed by the highest court in the state but that land giveaway program in Alaska has been negated. Had the proposal gone through, an estimated 30 million acres of Alaskan land would have been parcelled out without charge to individuals within the state.

The plan was spelled out in simple terms: All one needed to do was to apply to the state for the land and have it surveyed. Depending on how long one had resided in the state, he or she would have been eligible for anywhere from 40 to 160 acres. Anyone living within the state's borders for less than three years would not have been eligible for the property.

THE GROUNDS on which the Alaskan Supreme Court threw out the proposal were rather narrow. The jurists ruled that the giveaway was unconstitutional since it had not been sanctioned by a statewide initiative. The power to appropriate (or give away) state assets, the court declared, is limited to the state legislature.

The plan, had it been approved, would, no doubt, have set off a wild land scramble, perhaps not unlike that when the Oklahoma land territory was opened up.

Fact is, if non-Alaskans had successfully sued for a piece of the action, it would, as Gov. Jay Hammond noted, "made the Oklahoma land rush look like a Sunday school picnic."

More importantly, the giveaway would have posed a serious threat to the American wilderness heritage. Alaskans are a ruggedly self-assertive and independent lot; and they don't take kindly to what they see as interference in their affairs by bleeding-heart preservationists from the lower 48.

STILL, ALL Americans have a stake in the preservation of Alaska's feral, empty spaces in their natural state. Why break up this natural birthright and have it chopped up and ceded to individuals who might all too easily have turned their property to speculative purposes? That would have been folly.

The struggle may not yet be over. Champions of the plan are likely to turn to the state legislature after having been rebuffed by the courts. Lobbyists have a way of getting laws written to suit their clients, and the Alaskan lawmakers may not be able to recognize the land grab for what it is.

The odd couple

Art Buchwald

(Messrs. Babcock and Wilcox, the founders of the nuclear design and construction firm that today bears their names, both died in the last century. If they were alive today, here's what might have happened.)

WASHINGTON — As the builders of the Three Mile Island nuclear energy complex, Babcock and Wilcox have become household names.

THE QUESTION people are asking is, who was to blame for the Three Mile Island incident — Babcock or Wilcox? Rumor has it that Babcock and Wilcox aren't talking to each other. They used to work in the same office, with their drafting boards facing each other, singing and joking all day long. But after the Harrisburg flap the friendship chilled and the men had a bitter fight, at which time each pointed the finger of guilt at the other.

"I told you we should have put in an automatic valve in case the primary cooling system failed," Babcock said.

"I did have an automatic cooling system, but you vetoed it because you said a manual valve was less expensive," Wilcox retorted.

"When did I say that?"

"When we were eating in the cafeteria. I remember it well because you said if we were going to bring it in for $100 million, there was no sense throwing money away on a redundant valve."

Babcock bristled. "I never said any such thing. I told you to do anything you wanted to as long as it made you happy."

Wilcox said angrily, "While we're on the subject, how come you didn't know anything about the chance of a hydrogen bubble forming when the coolant was turned off?"

"I KNEW ABOUT the hydrogen bubble problem. I told you about it at your daughter's wedding, and you said 'Don't bother me with such details. I'm having a good time.'"

Wilcox said, "You told me there was one chance in a million that a hydrogen bubble could form if the reactor overheated. You were always lousy at figuring odds."

Babcock retorted, "Next you're going to tell me I was responsible for all the radioactive water being dumped into the auxiliary building."

Wilcox said, "You were in charge of radioactive water. I was in charge of pumps."

"Your pumps didn't work, Wilcox. That's why my radioactive water spilled all over the place."

"My pumps worked perfectly. It was the gauges you designed which made it impossible for the Three Mile engineers to guess that the reactor wasn't getting any water."

Babcock said, "You never complained about my gauges before. You told the Three Mile Island people I was the best gauge designer in the business."

"When you weren't drinking," Wilcox replied.

"Oh, so now we're getting personal. Where were you the day we put in the fuel rods? At the Holiday Inn with your secretary, watching the Stanley Cup playoffs?"

"That's a lie, Babcock, and you know it. I was at the Holiday Inn working on the vent valves which, incidentally, worked where we needed them."

Babcock fumed, "I never told you this before, but I hated every moment I worked with you. You're a slob, Wilcox. You leave blueprints all over the place, you can't even draw a containment structure without blotting half the paper, and not once in all the years I've known you have you ever hung up your raincoat."

Wilcox shouted, "I'm a slob? Who kept dropping uranium pellets on the floor, which I was always slipping on? You make me sick."

Injury may interrupt bone growth

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: When my boy was 12 (he's now 14) we noticed his left arm was somewhat shorter than his right. X-rays showed he had an old fracture in the shoulder joint. The doctor said there is nothing to be done. He is now nearly six feet tall, so the arm is more noticeable. He is active and an excellent athlete. I know there are worse things to worry about than this, but we wondered if you knew of any treatment for the arm so that it will grow out. — Mrs. O.W.

At 14 there are growth years left. Just how many are left can be determined by a study of the bone end plate (the epiphysis). If it has been sealed off or otherwise disturbed by the old injury, growth stops and will not resume. If the injury did not interfere with blood supply and if the epiphysis remains open, then future growth will occur. The condition of the bone ends can be determined by an orthopedic (bone) doctor.

I know of no treatment to alter the situation in any case.

Dear Dr. Ruble: A weight-loss clinic recently moved into my town. It operates by giving daily injections of HCG, which is a hormone. There is also a stringent low-calorie diet. Is HCG safe? I have signed up but haven't started the program yet. I am 24, and in good health except for 60 excess pounds. I know several people who have been helped by this program, but I want the straight information on it. — T.G.

Forget this program. HCG (human chorionic gonadotropin) is a hormone derived from the urine of pregnant women. It's harmless, but has nothing to do with whether you gain or lose weight. Such programs, usually stipulate a 500-calorie regimen (daily). Most people can lose as much weight as they want to on such spartan fare. You probably will, too, with or without the injections, if you follow the diet!

The hormone is approved by the Food and Drug Administration for certain hormone-related problems, not for weight reduction. This use of HCG began in 1954. Reputable researchers theorized that it might help eliminate abnormal fat cells, but this was not proven. To test the idea a group of people were put on a 500-calorie diet. Half got HCG shots. The rest did not. All lost weight, of course, but (you guessed it) those who did not get the shots lost as much as those who did. Need one say more?

Use the money (usually $500) for your family's needs. Better still, donate it to a worthy medical cause. Researchers are studying honest methods of helping people lose weight. If you need a sensible weight reduction program see my booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing." You shouldn't have to go into a starvation program to lose your 60 pounds. For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Ruble: On occasion I have had a transient sparkling effect in my eyes. It lasts about 15 minutes. My side vision is affected during this, usually the right side. It began about three years ago. My doctor says it is migraine. But I never had headaches, although recently they have started to occur after the sparkling. Is this a matter of concern? I am 18 and in excellent health. Could this be caused by an allergy? — N.B.

Migraine headache sufferers do report such eye symptoms (aura) just prior to attacks. For some it can be a blessing of sorts, because they can forestall the headaches by taking medicine promptly. However, the possibility of retina damage should be investigated, especially if the sparkling or vision disturbance is continuous. That requires prompt treatment.

The allergy-headache connection is open to question. If you can match your attacks to use of a certain food or drink, you will have an answer.

Dear Editor: As one of the final acts of my year as Editor of Howard College publications, I want to take this opportunity to thank you for all the help that you and your staff gave us.

Bob Rogers and his press crew spent many hours working with us in making the Hawk Reporter the best HC publication ever.

You, Mr. Rogers, and your former reporter, Marj Carpenter, made us feel like members of the working press.

Dear Editor: I attended the Tuesday Big Spring City Council meeting when John

Massey was sworn in as a councilman and was told this would be Harry Nagel's last day there (as city manager).

Come to find out, our mayor had seen fit to appoint Mr. Nagel as consul (sic). We don't need a consulate, as we are already broke. We don't need any added expense. It is my understanding that Mr. Nagel did not resign on his own. I understand he got a letter on April 9 asking him for his resignation. If you don't believe me, ask him to let you read the letter. There is a copy (of it).

Do we need a consulate? I for one don't think so.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I went to a religious conference and it felt good to be close to God. However, now I am back home with all the everyday problems I face, and that feeling of God's closeness has left me. Is there anything I can do about it? — D.B.

DEAR D.B.: Once, Jesus took three of His disciples away from their problems. They saw Him change before their eyes so that His heavenly glory was very evident. (You can read about this event, called the transfiguration, in Matthew 17:1-8). It was a great spiritual experience for the three disciples, and Peter wanted to erect tents so they could stay there on the mountain. But Jesus gently showed them that they had to go down into the valleys as well, and be His disciples there also.

There is a great truth in this event for our lives today. We should be thankful whenever we especially sense the presence of God in our lives and know that Christ is with us, whether it is through a conference or some other event. But Christ tells us we are to learn what it means to follow Him in our everyday lives. I want you to notice a very important truth — Jesus was with them in the valley as well as on the mountain. Christ is with you also, every day.

But you must learn to come to Christ every day. How do you do this? First, make it a daily habit to read the Bible. Read it carefully and prayerfully, asking God to speak to you through it and apply it to your life. Then learn the discipline of prayer every day. Learn to worship God in prayer, as well as commit to Him the concerns that are upon your heart. Finally, seek out Christian fellowship. The presence of other Christians may have been one thing which made this conference such a blessing to you.

Eager suckers

Around the rim

Eileen McGuire

Your Chevy is a ripoff. So is your GMC. And so is your neighbor's Ford. In fact, anything that sits on four wheels and requires maintenance, gasoline and insurance is costing you more than it should.

But, we consumers are eager suckers. We gladly pay any price for the most convenient way to get where we have to go. We pay a dear price for machinery that quickly depreciates and breaks down, then we gratefully pay the mechanic whatever he says are necessary.

We dish out hundreds of dollars a year for insurance to protect the other guy's car while the other guy saves hundreds a year by not worrying about ours. And, finally, we grumble all the while we are reaching into our pockets to pay for our cars' 80 cents a gallon diet.

IT'S GETTING difficult to focus on any one economical crisis long enough to figure out a solution. One week it's food, the next it's homes, now it's gas. Next week, the textile industries are all going to strike. (Don't get excited. I made it up...I hope.)

Two nights ago, I turned on the television only to learn that 53 cents out of every dollar spent on auto repairs is wasted. Last night, more good news awaited me. Eveready Nadar has discovered that an automobile manufacturer is putting an inferior part in the transmissions of large cars, causing them to break down prematurely so that you can waste every cent out of every dollar that you spend on repairing it.

But the big news of the day is that the federal government has found a way to finally make use of one of America's not-so-natural resources.

After the last gas shortage, the government invested some of your tax dollars to print up enough gas coupons to get us "off to a running start," according to one news report I read recently. All of those billions of books of coupons, enough to feed America's cars for 60 days, have been buried underground, under cement for the past four years just waiting to be doled out.

AND NOW comes the fun part — how to determine how they shall be

Net billions

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Alaskan fishermen can be excused if they think the Japanese won World War II. As in so many other commercial areas, our erstwhile enemy has undercut American fishermen in the lucrative harvest of pollock, cod and bait fish from Alaska's coastal waters.

The icy waters of the Gulf of Alaska each year yield up more than 5 billion pounds of these so-called bottom fish — those that feed in vast schools on the ocean floor and are scooped up by the ton in huge trawling nets.

THE GREAT BULK of this $2 billion annual catch is taken by Japanese, Korean, Polish and Russian fishing fleets and shipped home. The processing is done, for the most part, aboard modern floating fish factories on the high seas, by workers paid as little as 35 cents an hour.

By contrast, a cannery worker in Kodiak, Alaska, makes $4 to $7 an hour. The result is that American fish processors are frozen out of the U.S. market by foreign suppliers of fillets and fish sticks.

"It would at least double the prices of (frozen) fish if we had to buy from Alaska," we were told by a spokesman for Mrs. Paul's Seafoods, a major importer of foreign fish products.

We sent our reporter Hal Bernton to Kodiak to study the situation. He discovered that the only reliable market for American-caught bottom fish is the booming crab industry, which uses the delicate, highly perishable fish as bait.

The crabbers can afford to pay 30 cents a pound for prime eating fish, which they cut up and use to lure the giant king crabs into their traps. In contrast, a fish processor who supplies products for U.S. dinner tables can afford to pay only about 15 cents a pound to remain competitive.

DESPITE THE financial rewards possible in crabbing — a crewman willing to risk his life in the treacherous Alaska seas can earn as much as $100,000 in a single winter crab season — there are still skippers willing to struggle for a living as bottom fishermen. One of these, a former Montana miner named Oral Burch who first came to Alaska in a troop transport in World War II, invited Bernton along as a crew member on a two-day fishing expedition.

Burch's boat, the Dawn, left at midnight to take advantage of favorable tides to get around a particularly dangerous point of land. Each crewman was equipped with an insulated survival suit in case disaster struck in the frigid Alaskan waters.

Chugging into the Shelikoff Straits, Burch dropped the two long trawling nets from outriggers on either side and headed for a large school of fish pinpointed by the boat's sonar. After doled out. According to Carter's plan, the coupons will be issued according to how many cars are owned by a given household, with a limit of three cars per household.

Again, the rich come out ahead. You've heard of the man who has so much money to throw away because he has no one to spend it on that he collects cars. Then there's the economic-minded couple who, in order to save money, share one car for both their needs.

Then there's the man who doesn't much use his car except to collect his weekly unemployment check. He'll have coupons to spare to sell for a tidy sum to his neighbor who commutes to Midland because he prefers to live in Big Spring.

Thinking about a summer vacation? We've already been encouraged to vacation in our own state to conserve gas. Now we will literally be vacationing in our own back yard.

Carter says he isn't concerned about scalpers because the coupons will be worth more than money. If they are worth more than the money that we pay for them, then we do indeed have scalpers to worry about because life in our society is tied up to having enough gas to conduct the business of living. Somehow, I think most Americans will find the gas they need to conduct their affairs. If a ration is inadequate, there'll be a profiteer to turn to.

I wonder how much the "answer" is going to cost us. That's a lot of paper and printing. Then, there's the "middle man" cost. The coupons will have to be shipped to distribution centers which will have to be manned by paid employees.

In addition to paying for the production of the product that we purchase, we will have to pay something for administering the plan.

If the purpose of the coupons is to make consumers more conscious of how much gas they use, I think that end is already being accomplished by the current price of the commodity. The average person cannot afford to waste gas at current prices.

If coupon rationing is enforced, we'll be in for some major adjustments. Can you imagine the change in vocabulary? "Your coupons or your life!"

eight hours of trawling on the ocean floor 500 feet below, the crew hauled up some 10 tons of fish and dumped them, flopping, onto the deck.

The catch was a good one. The crew spent hours sorting out the catch of pollock, flounder, gray cod, flatfish and perch. The cod was gutted and flash-frozen to preserve its top market value.

The skipper was in high spirits, but not for long. Once in port, he learned that the Star of Kodiak processing plant would purchase only a small portion of his catch. The plant's manager felt the fish could not be marketed at a price competitive with the foreign fleets' prices.

The plant manager did send two workmen to unload Burch's fish, but would agree to pay for it only if he found a way to sell the fish to crabbers. Such a sale was unlikely because the crabbers were in the middle of a month-long strike for higher prices.

Footnote: A 1974 law was designed to protect U.S. fishing rights within 200 miles of the coastline. But the foreign fish corporations have continued to dominate the market because of their modern facilities and low labor costs.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Congressional junkies are traditionally justified as necessary to the legislative process — an excuse that loses a good deal of its point when the junketeer is a lame-duck member. Yet the lame ducks are often among the most high-flying travelers at taxpayers' expense.

Former Rep. John Flynn, D-Ga., for example, announced last summer that he wouldn't run again. He then winged off to Switzerland, Belgium, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Italy, South Africa and Rhodesia, running up a tab of $7,998. This lame-duck flight was even more wide-ranging than the one he took two months before he decided to retire. That $4,128 junket took him to Sweden, Austria, Spain, Morocco, Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union.

It's a rare and refreshing experience when a reporter gets through to a senator or congressman without having to go through a press secretary. But there's one slob who handles his own press inquiries — Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont. Trouble is, of course, that as word of this eccentricity spreads, the volume of his press calls may increase to the point where he'll be forced to hire a $25,000-a-year press aide like everyone else.

Eather Peterson, the White House consumer affairs champion, was delayed in New York on her way to an international conference in Stockholm. It was nothing sinister. Her office had simply forgotten to revalidate her special diplomatic passport.

TOP STATE PROSE HONORS EARNED repeat performance for Jan Whittington

BSHS senior captures state honors in prose

For the second consecutive year, Jan Whittington, Big Spring High School senior earned first place state honors in prose.

Jan, a three-year letter person on the BSHS speech team, earned the prose interpretation honor at the State UIL Literary Meet May 3-5 in Austin.

She was the only 4-A student from the West Texas Region, which includes Waco to El Paso, Temple to Amarillo, to place in a literary event at the State Meet. Jan's advisor is speech-drama instructor Janice Corn.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.L. Whittington of Big Spring, Jan serves as co-captain of the speech team, is a member of the National Honor Society and was elected by her class to be student speaker at this year's graduation exercises.

Weather Cold front triggers heavy thunderstorms

Two cold fronts moved across Texas today, triggering showers and thunderstorms following a night of heavy thunderstorm activity in West Texas.

Thunderstorms, some described as very heavy, dumped four to five inches of rainfall on some sections of the Texas Panhandle late Wednesday and early today.

Forecasts called for more thunderstorm activity today, mainly in northern and western sections of the state. Forecasters said some the activity in West Texas might become severe by late today.

One of the fronts, a Pacific cold front, was moving eastward early today along a line from just of Childress to near San Angelo and Sanderson.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is expected in the forecast period Thursday until Friday morning, from the upper Mississippi through the Midwest into the northern Plains. Snow is forecast in the northern Plains. Warm weather is forecast for the East, cold weather for the northern Plains and mild weather elsewhere.

House okays ownership of nuclear waste sites

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The House has approved a bill authorizing state ownership of low-level nuclear waste disposal sites, despite a warning it would invite federal dumps for high-energy radioactive material.

House members advanced the bill Wednesday, 82-55, and a final vote could come today. That would return the bill to the Senate for approval or disapproval of changes made by the House.

Rep. Ron Waters, D-Houston, urged defeat of the bill.

"I want a signal to President Carter that we are concerned in this state about sending (high-level) radioactive materials into this state. His decision (on a federally operated disposal site) will be political. If the state does nothing to signal that we don't want it in this state, it will come to this state," Waters said.

Texas must pass a law authorizing state acquisition of low-level storage sites by November 1981 or surrender all nuclear regulation to the federal government, said Rep. Tom Martin, D-George West, the sponsor.

The State Health Department has regulated disposal of low-energy wastes, such as those generated by hospitals and oil operations, since 1963.

Martin's district includes uranium mines and mills, whose radioactive "tailings" must be disposed of in a way that protects the public from radiation.

His bill authorizes the health department to acquire nuclear waste storage sites and operate them itself or lease them to private firms operating under department supervision.

Businesses and other entities licensed to store nuclear materials would pay fees into a Radiation and Perpetual Care Fund for maintaining the storage sites.

An amendment to the bill prohibits Texas storage sites from accepting radioactive materials from other states.

Rep. Betty Denton, D-Waco, sought unsuccessfully to table the bill and to restrict nuclear activities by amendments, then urged the House to kill it.

"Do you want them (the health department) to tell you that you are going to have a radioactive dump in your district, near your house, near your schools?" Mrs. Denton said.

A number of representatives laughed and shouted, "No! No!"

She said the bill lacked a definition of low-level waste, prescribed no environmental limitations on location of disposal sites and offered no chance for the public to participate in site selection.

$1.9 million approved to improve Howard span

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (D-Tex.) advised Wednesday that the Federal Highway Administration has awarded $1.9 million to the Texas Highway Department for a bridge improvement project on IS-20 in Howard County.

The money will be provided through the federal Interstate Discretionary Fund.

The project will involve the widening of an overpass owned by the Missouri-Pacific Railroad five miles east of Coahoma near Rattlesnake Gap, according to Joe Smoot, resident engineer for the highway department. Approaches to the bridge will also be rebuilt.

Museum members still talking about party

Heritage Museum members are still talking about the annual chuck wagon party, held May 4. The word is, if you missed it, you missed the best in the six years it has been held.

The museum will be closed Sunday in honor of Mother's Day.

The Junior High Art Show is on display at the museum and has been well-received.

Despite vagaries of the weather and shortage of gasoline, traffic at the museum has been better than fair, according to Gerri Atwell, curator. In addition to local traffic, several visitors from out of town and out of state have registered.

Student groups touring this week included one from St. Mary's School accompanied by instructor Carol McMahon. Mrs. Wim Oakes

"It will be primarily a widening job. We'll be able to salvage a lot of the material on the overpass, but we will add shoulders and replace the entire slab," said Smoot.

Once the bridge is widened, the approaches on IS-20 will also have to be restructured, he explained.

Bids for the project will be advertised early in June, and construction should begin sometime in the middle of July, said Smoot. The project will take approximately a year to complete.

"Traffic will continue to flow the whole time we are working," assured the engineer.

Recent new and renewed members include Dr. and Mrs. Wallace Hunter, Mrs. Roy Worthy, Mr. and Mrs. Lyndon Gladden, Mr. and Mrs. Derwood Blagrove, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Choate, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cruz, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stripling, Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Horton, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bentley, Rose Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Spence, Mr. and Mrs. Billy T. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Albright, Dr. and Mrs. John R. 'Gross misunderstanding'

Lawmakers flabbergasted by Texas fine arts 'rumors'

By STEVE MCGONIGLE

Waco Herald-Examiner Bureau

AUSTIN — A state wide uproar over the Back to Basic School Bill has representative Wilhelmina Delco scurrying to explain that she means the fine arts no harm.

The Austin legislators spent most of Wednesday trying to counteract rumors that the bill abolishes public school instruction in music, drama, art and other elective courses.

"There has been a gross misunderstanding," a slightly frazzled Delco said.

"There is no way I could offer a bill eliminating band," the former school board member insisted. "My husband is president of the (Austin) Reagan High School Band Parents."

She admitted being flabbergasted by an onslaught of parental and teacher outrage that has kept telephones ringing almost non-stop throughout the capital since Tuesday.

The outpouring of irritation was enough to persuade Delco to draft an amendment to the bill delimiting the teaching of fine arts as part of the basic school program.

But to her dismay, Delco found herself without a Senate sponsor for the amendment when Senator Bog Vale abruptly withdrew his support of the bill.

An aide to the San Antonio senator said Vale feared it would take too much time to resolve the potential problems the bill might create.

Just a week ago, the bill stirred minimal opposition before house members approved it, 123-8.

The smooth road suddenly became bumpy after an official of the Texas Education Agency interpreted Delco's bill to say that fine arts instruction could no longer be a part of a school district's curriculum.

The official, whom Delco declined to identify, reportedly told several concerned callers that because the bill did not mention fine arts, such courses could not be considered part of mandatory program in basic skills teaching.

James Hill, associate commissioner for field support services, termed the omission of fine arts an oversight.

But he conceded that questions about the bill's impact have caused TEA to begin through analysis of the bill.

Eye-brow and tempers also were raised by the belief that Delco's bill would have the State Board of Education dictate what type courses schoolchildren have to take.

Delco branded the interpretation of her intent as false, maintaining her desire is to streamline rather than alter existing curricula guidelines.

"All we do is take the curriculum that is already in the law and put (it) into percentages," she said. "We're just putting into organized form what is already there."

She insisted the bill is meant only to define what a basic education should consist of and how such programs should be implemented.

As past by the House, the bill divides the school program into "basic skills" and "works life skills." It requires school districts to offer such training as a percentage of their total curriculum.

The heaviest dose of basic skills training would be in lower grades, with a higher percentage of works skills training coming in high school. Basic skills includes reading, language arts, mathematics, social studies, science, health and physical education.

Works skills programs are industrial arts, home and family life, business and office work, agriculture, health occupations, career orientation, distributive education, technical education, vocational education and trade and industrial.

In kindergarten through third grade, the bill requires 95 percent of curriculum, to be devoted to basic skills. In grades four through six, basic skills teaching drops to 90 percent and work skills becomes 5 percent of the curriculum.

The breakdown for seventh and eighth grade is 85 percent in basic skills and ten per cent in work skills. For ninth through 12 grade the figures are 60 per cent basic and 30 work training.

In each grade level, that portion of the curriculum not devoted to basic or work skills can be used to teach any other program the school district wants to offer.

"The latter provision allows school districts enough flexibility to meet special needs of students," Delco said.

—National Smoker Study

Majority of 'Enriched Flavor' smokers show no regrets about leaving former high tar favorites.

Do smokers attracted to low tar MERIT stay with the brand, or "backslide" to former high tar favorites? Read what MERIT smokers had to say in a nationwide research effort.

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an "easy switch" from high tar brands.

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers say their former high tar brands weren't missed.

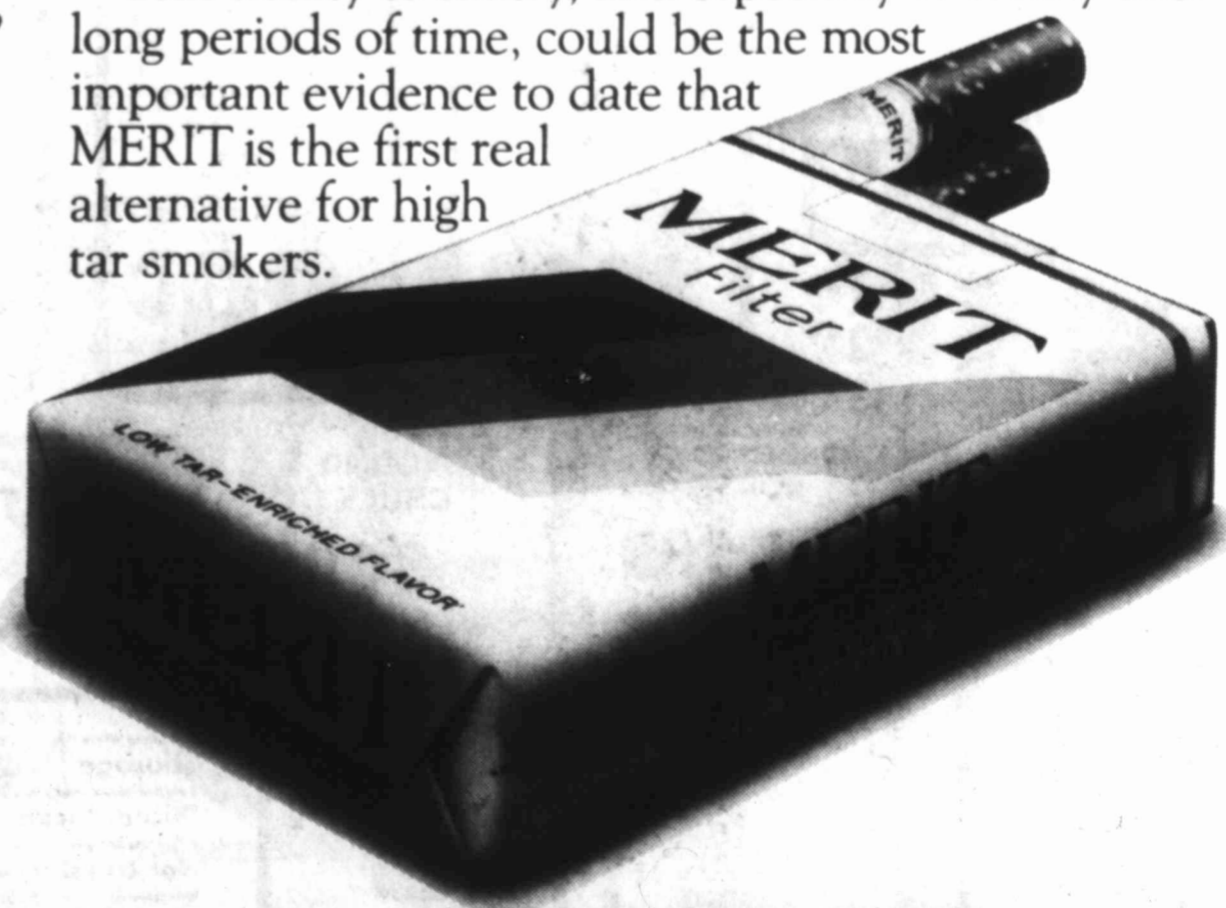

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

And in research conducted among smokers who taste-tested MERIT against leading high tar brands:

Confirmed: Majority of smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

This ability to satisfy, and especially to satisfy over long periods of time, could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT is the first real alternative for high tar smokers.

Dear Abby

She's a Stooge For a Scrooge

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a jerk. I've worked alongside him in our own business for 30 years but I've never had a dime I could call my own. If I want to buy something for myself or our children, I have to ask him for the money. Afterward, I have to show him the sales slip and give him back the exact change.
I don't drink or smoke. He does both. I've never been extravagant. If my husband had to pay someone to take my place it would cost him plenty. I do all my own housework, too. Including the laundry. Don't you think I deserve a few dollars to do with as I please?
I am so disgusted I could scream. Print this. The jerk reads your column. Maybe this will wake him up.

HADIT

DEAR HAD IT: You not only deserve a few dollars to do with as you please, you're ENTITLED to it. But if you've held still for this kind of treatment for 30 years, I'm wondering who the jerk is.

DEAR ABBY: For years my husband and I and our 14-year-old son Brian (an only child) have had Sunday dinner out.

Lately Brian has started something new. He rushes through his meal, long before we've finished, and asks his father for the car keys so he can sit in the car and listen to the radio.

His father doesn't like it any more than I do, but he gives him the keys and we finish our meals without him.
Brian has done this when we've had others eating with us. I think it's rude, but my husband says that if he prefers to sit alone in the car and listen to the radio, we shouldn't insist that he stay with us.

I know my husband is hurt, as am I, but we're not sure what to do about it. What do you think?

BRIAN'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Brian is trying to tell you he is bored. When you tried drawing him into the conversation—directing questions to him—listening to his responses? Try it next Sunday and I'll bet Brian stays through dessert!

DEAR ABBY: How about starting a campaign to get restaurants to offer children's portions at reduced prices to senior citizens? I'm over 65 and can't eat a regular-size meal in a restaurant, but I'm not allowed to order a child's meal. I just hate to see all that good food go to waste, Abby. Please see what you can do for us older folks.

SMALL EATER IN ILLINOIS

DEAR SMALL EATER: It's a lovely idea, but unless a restaurant shows a profit it can't stay in business. An occasional child's meal at a reduced price won't bankrupt the average eatery, but if it became too popular it might.
Better ask for a doggie bag and take home your leftovers.

DEAR ABBY: What do you say to a niece who has blond hair and blue eyes and is married to a man who also has blond hair and blue eyes and just gave birth to a baby with brown eyes and coal black hair?

UNCLE EDDIE

DEAR UNCLE: "Congratulations."

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (26 cents) envelope to Abby, 152 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Don't buy your way out of work

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

It's guest writer time and I'd like to introduce Sandra Johnson, 15, from Oklahoma City, Okla., and Ralph Masterson, 14, who lives in Rock Island, Ill. Sandra and Ralph will help me advise Richard who resides in the beautiful city of Santa Rosa, Calif. Welcome.

Dr. Wallace: I am 17 and I have a 12-year-old brother. I receive $8 a week allowance while my brother gets $4. This is satisfactory to both of us and there is no problem here. For this allowance, we are responsible for odd jobs around the house and yard.

My job is to take out the trash every day and cut the grass every other week. Lately I have been busy, and I hired my little brother to do my job. I pay him $8 a month and both of us like the arrangement.

My father found out what was happening and put a stop to it. We got into a heated discussion and I lost.

Don't you think I've got the privilege to spend my money in any manner I choose? — Richard Richard: In most cases I would agree that you could spend your money in any manner you choose, but this is not one of those cases.

'I'm doing things I want to do' Astaire celebrates 80th

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "What's all the fuss about? It's just a round number."

That was Fred Astaire's characteristic response on the occasion of his 80th birthday today.

The ultimate dancer of show business history, Astaire plans to spend his four-score anniversary in his usual modest style — a dinner with daughter Ava, son Fred Jr., and their families, including a half-dozen grandchildren.

About his life today: "I'm doing the things I want to do." Besides his family, he is interested in race horses. His greatest success was with Triplicate, who won the Hollywood Gold Cup and earned $244,000 before retirement.

"I have a brood mare and couple of foals that are not ready yet," he reported. "I don't know if they ever will be. But I'm hoping."

What Astaire is not interested in is the profession he pursued from age 5½, when he entered vaudeville with sister Adele.

"I won't dance," he said in a telephone interview Wednesday, echoing one of the famous songs associated with him.

"I danced up to the age of 70, when I did my last television special. That was too damned long," he added. "It was strenuous, but fortunately I suffered no ill effects. I'm just not going to push my luck."

He relied on his vow for no more dancing in 1976, when good friend Gene Kelly persuaded him to join a brief duet for MGM's musical cavalcade "That's Entertainment, Part 2."

The Astaire artistry remains a legend, from the Broadway musicals with Adele to 10 films with Ginger Rogers to other glittering musicals with such partners as Joan Crawford, Rita Hayworth, Joan Fontaine, Audrey Hepburn, Leslie Caron and Cyd Charisse.

The choreographer George Balanchine once called him "the greatest dancer in the world," a judgment Astaire termed "undeniably erroneous." He was on best-dressed lists year after year and to many, in his top hat, white tie and tails, he was simply elegance personified.

From "Dancing Lady" in 1933 until the 1976 duet with Gene Kelly, Fred Astaire was the impeccable dancer and complete gentleman to generations of movie-goers.

And now, while he won't dance, he hasn't retired from acting.

His role as a disabled oldster in a television movie, "A Family Upside Down," won him an Emmy last year. His latest role was in a segment of the outer space series "Battlestar Galactica."

"It was a tough show to get done because of the technical aspects, and we went three days over schedule," he remarked. "But I enjoyed it. It was a different kind of role, and I did it largely at the request of my grandchildren. The only problem was that I didn't understand the language they used on that show."

He'll do other roles if they interest him — "I'm reluctant about jumping into anything; I just say, 'Bring me the script and I'll let you know.'"

At 80, Fred Astaire remains in athletic trim.

"I don't eat too much, and I don't diet," he says. "I'm basically light; I'm rarely over 135 pounds. I don't go in for any physical torture; I don't jog or anything like that. I like to loosen up and play golf and occasionally some tennis."

"The main thing is that I keep moving around. I'm lucky to retain command of whatever athletic ability I've had."

Other aspects of the Astaire regimen: no cigarettes — "I hate smoking," a cocktail at dinnertime; early to bed. He considers himself a lucky man. "Even though 80 is just a round number, I'm glad I got here," he says.

Power to set rates stripped

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Lobbyists booted from their balconies Wednesday after the Senate amended a bill that would strip city councils of their power to delay electric rate increases.

The House-passed measure had survived eight attempts to change it, but Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, broke through with proposed amendment No. 9, winning a 16-15 vote.

The amendment would require utility companies to notify ratepayers in writing of their intent to seek a rate increase.

More importantly for Traeger and other opponents of the bill, the amendment sent the bill back to the House for approval, rather than to the governor.

The Senate tentatively approved the bill, 16-14, with a final vote still needed.

"It was a rather pathetic sight to see Sen. Gene Jones filibustering against the amended version of his own bill so that the utility lobbyists would have time to twist arms in the back room and change one vote on the amendment," said Theo Brown of Common Cause.

Brown said the amendment "makes a bad bill a lot more palatable."

House members passed the measure, 74-65, a week ago, and Jones, D-Houston, fought to keep it clear of Senate amendments.

Under the bill, electric companies would take their requests for rate increases directly to the Public Utility Commission, by-passing city councils.

Cities now have the option of waiving jurisdiction in electric rate cases to the PUC. Locally decided cases can be appealed to the utility commission.

The bill would not affect municipally owned electric systems.

Electric utilities have supported the measure. The Texas Municipal League opposes it.

Traeger might have succeeded earlier in amending the bill, but Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby sustained a point of order by Jones, killing the amendment.

Traeger finally succeeded on his amendment requiring that customers be notified — presumably in a monthly billing — at least 35 days prior to the effective date of any proposed rate increase.

"This would give the individual customer a chance to complain, to object if his rates are going up," Traeger said.

"This amendment is not worth the time of the Senate," said Jones. "It is something Dick Brown (of the municipal league) dreamed up."

A vote to kill the amendment failed, 14-17.

Urged on by Traeger, who shouted, "Vote aye — stick. Don't let them push you off," senators then voted, 16-15, to adopt the amendment.

"Not a bad beginning for a born-again consumer advocate," Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, chided Traeger.

Jones talked over jibes that he was "filibustering" his own bill as lobbyists hurried from the gallery, obviously trying to change a vote.

There was no effort made, however, to reconsider the vote on Traeger's amendment.

"It is a credit to the senators involved that they refused to bow under this type of pressure," said Theo Brown.

In other action Wednesday, the House passed a controversial measure that would let the ceiling on home mortgage interest rates float upward from the present 10 percent to as much as 12 percent.

The measure goes to the Senate, where a filibuster is likely.

It fits Gov. Bill Clements' specifications that the interest ceiling should rise and fall monthly with fluctuations in the average rate on 10-year U.S. Treasury bonds. The ceiling would be two percentage points above the treasury rate.

Another interest-related bill passed the Senate and was returned to the House for consideration of amendments. The measure would soften penalties for illegal interest charges on long-range loans.

Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado, stalled the bill Tuesday and Wednesday but gave up when it became clear he was not changing any votes.

House members killed, 44-85, a bill raising permissible charges on consumer finance company loans of $100 to $300. If the bill had become law, the cost of a six-month $150 loan would have risen from $13.50 to $42.

Three leftists leave El Salvador; 16 stay

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Three anti-government leftists occupying the Costa Rican Embassy for five days accepted safe conduct and left El Salvador, but other members of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc continued to hold the French Embassy and San Salvador's cathedral.

Another anti-government organization threatened foreign diplomats if their governments continued to support the military regime of President Carlos Humberto Romero.

A representative of the Costa Rican government flew to San Salvador and escorted the three leftists who occupied the embassy last Friday to San Jose Wednesday night. The Costa Rican ambassador and four women held hostage with him escaped from the building Monday night.

Sixteen other members of the organization of peasants and workers have been holding the French ambassador and five other hostages in the French Embassy since Friday, and 60 to 80 of their comrades are holed up in the cathedral in downtown San Salvador. They are demanding the release of five of their leaders who they claim are under arrest, but the government contends it is only holding two of them.

Meanwhile, a guerrilla group called the Popular Liberation Front warned foreign governments that continue to support Humberto Romero's regime they "will be considered as an enemy of the Salvadorean people and their officials in the country will receive the same treatment that they would in war."

The Liberation Front, one of three active leftist guerrilla groups in the country, claimed it was responsible for an ambush last Friday in which two police officers and a private guard were killed.

Red Cross representatives entered the cathedral Wednesday afternoon to examine the bodies of 17 of the 21 persons killed the day before when troops and police fired into a crowd demonstrating in the cathedral square in support of the Revolutionary Bloc.

The 17 corpses lay in front of the main altar, a candle burning in front of each. Nine of the bodies had been pulled into the church immediately after the shooting and were laid out in three neat rows of three.

The other eight had lain all night on the cathedral steps and were pulled in just before the Red Cross delegation arrived. Rigor mortis had set in and they were in the contorted positions in which they died, placed in two uneven rows of four.

Each of the bodies had several bullet wounds. Their clothes were soaked with blood and there were small pools of half-dried blood leading from the cathedral steps to the altar. The stench of death and decomposition hung heavy in the tropical heat and flies crawled everywhere.

As the Red Cross workers began examining the bodies, a crowd outside banged on the doors. Church officials opened them, and hundreds filed quietly in to view the bodies. Members of the Revolutionary Bloc handed them leaflets which said a big funeral was planned and they were urged to attend.

Camp of Champs dates announced

Howard College Athletic Director and Basketball Coach Harold Wilder has announced the dates for his popular summer basketball camp. This will be the seventh straight year Wilder has directed the event.

Camp dates for the girls will be July 9 to July 13. The camp date for the boys will be July 16 to July 20. This will be the first opportunity for the campers to utilize the spacious Dorothy Garrett Coliseum for the many activities.

The camp is available to youngsters in grades five through ten. It annually has attracted campers from all over Texas as well as neighboring states.

The Camp of Champs was conceived with the idea of providing the youngsters of West Texas with top flight basketball instruction at an age most conducive to establishing an outstanding career.

It will include instruction in all fundamentals of basketball, such as shooting, ball handling, rebounding and defense. The members will also take part in nightly game situations that are developmental.

Each camp member receives a free Camp of Champs basketball T-Shirt.

Spurs use muscle to repel Bullets

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The racehorse San Antonio Spurs have never been confused with barroom brawlers under the basket. But they say they'll continue to physically challenge the heavyweight Washington Bullets — like they did in Wednesday night's 116-114 playoff victory.

Whether they can keep it up remains to be seen, says a doubting Washington Coach Dick Motta.

The bantamweight Spurs, showing uncharacteristically tough inside muscle, neutralized Washington behemoths Wes Unseld and Elvin Hayes in grabbing a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven, NBA Eastern Conference championship series.

The massive 6-foot-7, 250-pound Unseld, who had bullied the Spurs for 40 first and 41 rebounds in the first two games of the series, was limited to a paltry six points and 18 rebounds. Worn out by the Spurs elbows and their patented running attack, he sat out much of the fourth quarter in foul trouble.

The 6-9 Hayes, meanwhile, got a mere 15 points, 11 under his playoff average. He hit only seven of 20 shots and one of six free throws.

"Mark (Oberding) and Billy (Paultz) just didn't let Unseld get through," said San Antonio Coach Doug Moe. "They beat on him as much as he beat on them. Before it was just him beating on us and him showing us out of the way. Today it was both ways."

"You can't back away from people all the time. I thought we did a good job being physical," added Moe. "Everybody who took Hayes did a good job."

Moe promised that the 6-9, 230-pound Oberding and the 6-11, 240-pound Paultz would again try to match muscles with the defending NBA champions when the series continues Friday night in San Antonio.

"They will take a lot of cheap shots, but they will not intimidate us," countered Motta. "They threw a lot of elbows I didn't like."

"It'll be okay for one night, but it's not going to be a continuous thing," said Washington forward Bobby Dandridge, who got 28 points Wednesday night. "I don't think they can keep it up."

"I thought they did pretty good job campaigning before the game, stating a case about us being rough under the boards. I think that showed in the first half when we picked up three quick fouls," added Dandridge.

The Spurs trailed 58-56 at halftime, but outscored the Bullets 20-11 in the first six and one half minutes of the third quarter. They led 89-84 after three periods and held a 107-93 bulge with 6:35 remaining in the game.

But the dogged Bullets clawed back and closed to within a point, 113-112, when guard Kevin Grevey tipped in a rebound with 53 seconds remaining.

San Antonio's usually explosive Larry Kenon, shackled by Dandridge on only eight points up until then, got a key basket on a rebound dunk with 32 seconds remaining and then rebounded when the Bullets missed their next shot.

But he was called for traveling while trying to make a hot dog windmill pass attempt on an unnecessary break with 19 seconds remaining. That allowed the Bullets to close the gap to 115-114.

Fouled by Dandridge with three seconds remaining, Kenon then hit one of two free throws and gathered in the crucial rebound when Washington's Charles Johnson missed a clean shot from the corner at the buzzer.

"He had not had an outstanding game, but he was able to hang in there mentally and come up with their last three points. It's the mark of a good ballplayer," Dandridge said of Kenon.

Astros take 16-inning affair

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston righthander Bo McLaughlin is starting to regain his confidence.

McLaughlin hurled three innings of clutch relief before Bob Watson delivered a two-out run scoring single in the 16th inning to give the Astros a 5-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals early today.

McLaughlin, who had surrendered nine hits and six runs in four previous innings this season, held St. Louis to one hit and struck out four while gathering his first major league win in two years.

"I felt real good warming up in the bullpen tonight," McLaughlin said. "My curve ball was going real well and I was just hoping to keep it up when I went in."

"I was overthrowing earlier, but I think I've started to overcome that."

McLaughlin's effort capped 10 innings of shutout relief by the Astros bullpen as Houston managed to hold on to its one-half game lead over second place Cincinnati in the National League West.

The game was spiced by a rhabarb which saw St. Louis manager Ken Boyer, catcher Ted Simmons and first baseman Keith Hernandez ejected by second base umpire Dave Pallone in the ninth inning.

Pinchhitter Jimmy Sexton opened the inning with a single and was safe at second when pitcher Will McEnaney fielded Terry Pool's attempted sacrifice and threw wide to second, pulling shortstop Garry Templeton off the bag.

The three Cardinals were ejected during a 10-minute argument during which six towels were hurled from the St. Louis dugout.

The Astros mounted their rally in the 16th against losing pitcher Tom Bruno, 1-2, when Jeff Leonard singled with one out, stole second and moved to third on a fielder's choice before scoring on Watson's hit to shallow center field.

Canadiens, Bruins meet in seventh game finale

MONTREAL (AP) — A berth in the Stanley Cup finals opposite the New York Rangers will ride on every shift, every shot and every save tonight in the deciding game of the National Hockey League semifinal series between the Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins.

"It's like playing in overtime," Montreal defenseman Larry Robinson suggested of the seventh-game drama. "I think probably anything can happen."

The Bruins forced the series to the limit with a 3-2 triumph on home ice Tuesday night, with the home team the winner in every game so far.

"I have to admit we really were intimidated down there," right winger Mario Tremblay of the Canadiens said of the sixth game. "I don't know how we were, but it's a fact. On every faceoff, I heard (Boston Coach) Don Cherry yelling at his players to hit me."

"If I were going to tell the guys anything for the seventh game, I'd tell them to skate and hit the way we did Saturday. We have to skate and hit them for three periods. We weren't hitting and we couldn't skate in Boston."

The Canadiens thoroughly dominated the fifth game here Saturday night, winning 5-1.

Baseball Roundup

Ruthven, Blue win sixth games in barbaric baseball night

Giants 9, Expos 2

Blue now has completed four games this season, none of them classics. He has thrown two nine-innings, a seven-hitter and a six-hitter, and his ERA is 4.62.

Blue struck out six and walked two, pitching out of numerous jams. He retired the side in order only once — the first inning.

Bill Madlock drove in two runs with a single, and Jack Clark smacked a three-run double.

Reds 7, Cubs 4

George Foster slammed a two-run double to snap a 4-4 tie in the top of the seventh, powering Cincinnati over the Cubs.

Paul Moskau, 2-0, worked six innings for the win, and Doug Bair, the third Reds pitcher, got his fifth save with two innings of relief.

Red Sox 9, Angels 8

Young Fred Lynn wasn't there when the Boston Red Sox really needed him — but of Carl Yastrzemski sure was.

Lynn, the major league home run leader, hit his 12th of the season with one man on in the sixth inning and unloaded No. 13 with two aboard in the seventh inning Wednesday night.

But after Brian Downing's homer had put California ahead by a run in the top of the ninth, Lynn led off the bottom of the inning — and fanned.

With that bit of business out of the way, Angels reliever Dave LaRoche proceeded to walk Jim Rice, then fed a fat fastball to Yaz who crashed it into the right field stands for Boston's 9-8 victory.

A's 4, Orioles 2

Oakland's Mike Norris lost his no-hitter, his shutout and his 2-0 lead when Gary Roenicke of Baltimore doubled with one out in the bottom of the seventh inning — but Norris didn't lose his cool.

It was the Orioles' only hit, and when Mario Guerrero and Jeff Newman drove in runs in the ninth to hand Jim Palmer the loss, Norris had his third victory and first complete game in seven starts this year.

Dodgers 7, Mets 2

Don Sutton tossed a three-hitter for his 209th career victory, tying him in that category with all-time Dodgers great Don Drysdale. Sutton, 4-3, retired the final 20 Mets in order.

Ron Cey and Steve Garvey each hit three-run homers.

Yankees 5, Mariners 0

Ed Figueroa checked Seattle on five hits for his first shutout and third complete game this year while Lou Piniella and Thurman Munson hit RBI singles and Reggie Jackson unloaded a mammoth three-run homer in the Yankees' victory over the Mariners. Jackson's homer, his sixth, was a 440-foot shot into the New York bullpen in left-center field.

Phillies 2, Padres 0

Ruthven's sixth win was a bit more stylish than Blue's. He didn't allow a hit until Dan Briggs doubled with two out in the seventh. He struck out two and walked two in his second consecutive shutout.

"If you don't get a no-hitter, you shouldn't get upset," Ruthven said. "A no-hitter's gonna take a lot of luck."

Indians 8, Brewers 7

Bobby Bonds had a home run and three singles and drove in three runs and Toby Harrah also hit a homer in Cleveland's victory. But it was relief pitcher Sid Monge who was the Indians' hero — and nearly the goat. Monge came on with the bases loaded, one out and Cleveland in front 8-4 in the ninth and got Milwaukee's Cecil Cooper on a pop-up. But he balked to send one run home, then walked Gorman Thomas to reload the bases and walked Ben Oglivie and Sixto Lezcano to force in two more runs.

Pirates 17, Braves 9

The Pittsburgh Pirates blasted Atlanta 17-9 with the help of John Milner's grand slam home run and two homers by Bill Robinson. There were two near brawls as the benches cleared twice in the ninth inning, both teams played the game under protest, five persons were ejected, four were hit by pitches and Atlanta's Gary Matthews also hit a grand slam.

Both Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner and right fielder Dave Parker, two of the four Pirates ejected, said it was the craziest game to which they had ever been a party — Parker adding, "from knot hole until today."

Royals 4, Rangers 3

Kansas City took advantage of four Texas errors, two by Al Oliver, to beat the Ferguson Jenkins and the Rangers.

Kansas City scored twice in the first. Steve Braun and George Brett singled, Darrell Porter's single scored Braun, then Brett scored on Oliver's wild throw from center field. Braun also homered.

Tigers 5, White Sox 4

Ralph Garr drew a basesloaded walk from Detroit's Milt Wilcox to force in one run in a three-run third and hit a homer for another run in the White Sox's victory.

JOKES TODAY BUSINESS TOMORROW — Last year's Byron Nelson Champion Tom Watson, left, and former President Gerald Ford, center, have different reactions to a joke quipped by comedian Bob Hope on the second tee at Preston Trails Golf Club Wednesday in Dallas. The Pro-Am event is a prelude to the $300,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic which is scheduled to begin Thursday.

Watson among favorites as Nelson Classic begins

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Watson is a dues-paying member of Preston Trail Country Club, which plays to par 70 over 6,993 yards. He was in Spokane, Wash., Monday and Nicklaus was groaning about his putting. Watson found the answer. "He (Nicklaus) appeared to be too close to the ball," said Watson. "We talked about it and then he went out a shot six under. He's really getting his game back." Watson has been the well and I know the course.

winner here twice and has finished fourth twice. Last year, he shot an 8-under par 272 to nip fast-charging Lee Trevino by one stroke. Trevino has never won a tournament in Dallas, his hometown. "It's easier to win where you've won before," said Watson. "I've played this course a lot of times."

Watson, the leading money winner on the tour this year with $232,674, is well rested. He hasn't played in two weeks.

Nine of the current top ten money winners on the Professional Golfer's Association tour were present, excluding Masters Champion Fuzzy Zoeller, whose wife had a baby recently.

"It's the best field we have ever had from that standpoint," said Byron Nelson, the tournament's namesake. The other members of the top ten are Larry Watkins, Hubert Green, Bruce Lietzke, Larry Nelson, Lon Hinkle and Andy Bean.

Horner's contract the question

NEW YORK (AP) — Should a signing bonus be considered part of a baseball player's annual salary? That's the key issue in the Bob Horner-Atlanta Braves salary arbitration case. The long-brewing dispute concerning the 1979 salary of last year's National League Rookie of the Year was to be heard today by arbitrator Ray Goetz, a law professor at the University of Kansas. The arbitration hearing is expected to last two days. Horner is seeking a multiyear contract for a reported $300,000 a year. Horner, his agent Bucky Woy of Dallas and Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, say the minimum Horner can get is $146,000. That figure is reached by combining Horner's 1978 salary and his bonuses totalling $182,000 and deducting the maximum cut allowed, which is 20 percent. The Braves, however, are contending that salary and bonuses must be separated. They are willing to pay Horner $100,000 for the 1979 season. Woy contends that if Horner wins his arbitration, he would become a free agent and available to the highest bidder among all teams. If Horner's position is confirmed, teams might be reluctant to offer signing bonuses. Horner, sidelined this season with an ankle injury, signed with the Braves last June right after being drafted out of Arizona State as baseball's No. 1 pick. He was given a $150,000 signing bonus and a one-year salary of $21,000. The 21-year-old slugger went on to belt 23 homers — 19 in Atlanta and four in Chicago's Wrigley Field.

TSU favored in NAIA meet

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Defending champion Texas Southern heads a list of 131 schools that will compete in the NAIA's 28th annual Outdoor Track and Field Championship May 17-19 in Abilene, Texas. A record 873 athletes will participate, including long jumper Carl Williams and pole vaulter Billy Olson of host Abilene Christian, and sprinter Evans White of Prairie View A&M. Two former U.S. Olympic gold medalists — pole vaulter Bob Richards and long jumper Bob Beamon — will take part in the meet as honorary referee and coaches' clinic instructor, respectively.

Chris Evert Lloyd wins in Rome

ROME (AP) — Top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd breezed by Janet Newberry 6-2, 6-1 Wednesday in the second round of the $100,000 Rome Women's Open Tennis Tournament. In other matches Tracy Austin, seeded fourth, defeated South Africa's Yvonne Vermaak 7-5, 6-1 and unheralded Ivanna Madruga of Argentina upset defending champion Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 7-5.

Guidry plays Palladin; Have arm, will travel

NEW YORK (AP) — It is a sad commentary indeed on the moral fiber of the times, the coldness and crassness of the generation, that Ron Guidry is regarded as a freak by his contemporaries because he deigned to stoop to an act of unselfishness.

"He has to be crazy," said team captain Thurman Munson after baseball's finest pitcher suggested — with quick acceptance from his bosses — that he sacrifice his role as a starter and enter the bullpen to save the floundering New York Yankees.

"I wouldn't have done it when I was 28," said Guidry's pitching mate, Catfish Hunter. "I would have been home a lot earlier if I had."

"It's not the smartest thing in the world," Allie Reynolds, the old Yankee mound ace of another era, told Henry Hecht of the New York Post. "It's not a career stretcher. It's like giving your brother-in-law a present. Don't expect anything back."

Everybody keeps warning the wiry, 160-pound fireballer that his left arm is going to fall off or that he's going to wake up one morning and find he can't lift a cup of coffee — his money wing just another slab of cold, useless flesh.

Guidry scoffs at such panicky suggestions. "Those guys helped me win the Cy Young Award last year," he says, referring to the Yankees. "Why shouldn't I do what I can to help them?" That's a virtual heresy in today's world.

Didn't the theme of "All-for-One and One for All" go out with Alexander Dumas' "Three Musketeers"? Aren't we living in an age when the Golden Rule has been modified to read, "Do unto others before they can do you?"

Sentiment is an anachronism. Until recent years, sports had provided the last bastion of unselfishness and good will. Traditionally, we have been a nation of team players. The team comes first, the individual subordinated. But now that's silly, schoolboy stuff. Hasn't Ron Guidry learned that?

With Rich Gossage on the sidelines with a freakish thumb injury, the Yankees were left without a short reliever. They took an awful wallop recently on a swing out West.

That was when Guidry suggested, "Maybe I could help them in the bullpen."

Word got upstairs to the frustrated Yankee brass. Boom — just like that — Guidry found himself doing relief duty. In three appearances he has two saves and a win, giving up no runs.

It's not what he aspires to be. He, like any other pitcher, admits he prefers starting rotation. He would like to win 20 or more games again and another Cy Young.

But right now his team is about to go down in flames. So he rushes blindly to the rescue.

Ron Guidry is a rare breed of cat — a loose, happy-go-lucky Cajun from Lafayette, La., who doesn't aspire to commercial exposure and public acclaim, who never worries about the bottom line.

Judge Garza cites changes in drug and alien traffic

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A trail of cigarette smoke twisted ceilingward as Reynaldo Garza talks about his 18 years as a federal judge, in a district overrun with drugs and illegal aliens.

It was early in the Kennedy administration that Garza became the first Mexican-American to serve on the federal bench. Now he has been nominated to be the first Hispanic on a federal appeals court.

"I don't think that legally it has helped (Mexican-Americans) that much. But at least I hope that my participation and my actions on the bench have helped others to be considered for these jobs," the 63-year-old Brownsville native said. "I never have done anything because I was of Mexican descent. I've done what the law requires me to."

Garza, chief judge for the Southern District of Texas, is now awaiting Senate approval of his nomination to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

In nearly two decades on the bench here, Garza has seen changes in his Mexican-American community and changes in the drug and alien traffic from across the border.

"I think that because of having our people educated we have advanced in many ways. We found that the percentage of Mexican-Americans on juries, for instance, was not what the population would require. But that has changed," he said.

Garza added that Mexican-Americans — being the large majority in this area — have not faced the problems faced elsewhere by Hispanics. But a stint on the Good Neighbor Commission helped Garza see the problems elsewhere.

"I knew about the problems in other parts of the state where they had signs, 'No Mexicans Allowed,'" he said.

Garza said the change in the alien traffic apparently has been caused by a change in the labor needs north of the border.

"I have found that the type of alien coming across is very different from the ones that used to come across when I became a judge. Eighteen years ago most of the aliens were coming to participate in stoop labor. But now you're getting the type of people who have an education in Mexico. I don't think the aliens of today are being exploited as much as they were in the old days," he said in his courthouse office.

"You talk to people in the construction business in Houston and they say if it wouldn't be for the aliens they wouldn't be able to do the job."

Garza bears little animosity toward the illegal alien. In fact, a trace of respect can be detected in his statements about aliens.

But the judge has no use for the professional alien transporter — a new breed of criminal that was virtually unheard of 18 years ago.

"The average man that comes here looking for work is trying to better his life. The ones I'm against are these professional transporters who take a young man's life savings — $300 or $300 is a lot of money to them — and then they get caught and lose their money and get

For the record, we didn't goof

There was no mistake in the "Assaults rise, car thefts dip" article appearing on page one of the Wednesday edition of the Herald.

The report stated that there were no murders in Big Spring in April. Since the bodies of Ann and Tracey Reeves, victims of double slaying in April, were discovered outside of the city limits, those murders are considered county crimes rather than city.

It has not yet been determined where the shootings occurred, but they are thought to have taken place outside of the city limits.

And readers please keep those cards, letters and phone calls coming.

deported," he said. Garza recalled a recent case in which a smuggler was taking truckloads of aliens across the border and making a small fortune.

The border drug traffic has also changed in 18 years. "I think that people who are inclined to make their living by violating the law have turned from marijuana to aliens," he said.

"I think they have stemmed the tide of marijuana. But I've noticed in the past three years or four years we are getting more hard drug cases. These guys have found out it's easier to carry a pound of heroin or cocaine than 100 pounds of marijuana...and they make as much money," Garza said.

The judge added that marijuana smugglers have taken to the air or sea to get the grass into the U.S. A recent offshore bust near here netted 32 tons of marijuana. "The only thing that worries me is, my gosh, who the heck is smoking all this stuff. They say they can make 1,000 cigarettes from one pound. Well, look at all the cigarettes they can make from 32 tons," he said, flashing a smile of disbelief. Garza has been known to make his gruff voice even gruffer in an attempt to get information from drug runners.

"Many times people are scared and they won't tell you who hired them. You know they are only 'mules.' You hate like the dickens to do anything to them but it gets to the point where you know if they don't have the mules they can't do the business," he said.

Garza said sentencing has always been the toughest part of the job. The judge drew some criticism from the public when he ordered weekend jail terms for former Laredo Mayor J.C. Martin. The longtime South Texas political leader pleaded guilty to using the mail to defraud the city of Laredo of over $200,000.

"A lot of people think that weekends aren't enough. But I know it to be a fact that a lot of people would rather serve 120 days at one time than have to go for 40 weekends," he said.

Clements' staff working on contingency plan for gasoline shortage areas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Wednesday his staff is working on a contingency plan to move gasoline to shortage-afflicted areas if supplies become scarce as in California.

The plan will not include rationing, he stressed. "We're not prepared to develop a rationing plan. I'm not sure how to approach that. And it's not in our jurisdiction," he said. "That's Mr. Carter's problem, and I'm glad to leave it in his hands."

Clements told reporters, "We're talking in terms of a calculated and planned distribution system. I don't want anyone to think that we in Texas are going to institute a rationing plan with coupons."

The governor said his staff is working on a plan "to move supplies from one part of the state to another. It would be a planned approach to shortages that may turn up on a spot basis."

He said he was watching developments in California with interest. Gov. Jerry Brown ordered a plan that allows motorists to buy gasoline on odd or even days depending on their license plate number.

The governor has authority to allocate limited supplies of fuel to areas with scarce supplies.

Gas shortages in Texas have been spotty so far, Clements said, and caused mainly by decreases of between 15 percent to 30 percent in retail supplies.

"Some of the shortages have been brought about by changes in traffic patterns, but most of it is because of decreased supplies to retailers," he said. Clements said his staff is not working on a deadline and has not formulated the plan's details.

Edward O. Vetter, the governor's chief energy adviser, heads the group studying the proposal. Other members of the governor's energy office and energy advisory council are involved, Clements added.

Archeologists reconstruct 1836 skull

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A skull recently found at the Alamo was apparently that of a young soldier who suffered a sword or knife wound in 1836 Texas Revolution battle, say University of Texas at San Antonio archeologists.

Archeologists reconstructed the broken portions of the skull and found a cut indicating an injury inflicted by a sword or similar weapon, Anne Fox, historical archeologist with the UTSA Center for Archeological Research, said Wednesday.

The wound is believed to have contributed to or was the cause of death, she said.

A small band of about 185 Texans was wiped out March 6, 1836 by more than 1,000 Mexican troops under Santa Anna in a crucial battle of the Texas Revolution. The battle followed a 13-day siege.

Ms. Fox said there is no way to determine if the skull was that of a Texas or a Mexican soldier. After the battle, Santa Anna ordered the bodies of the Texas soldiers burned.

The skull was discovered under some stones along a north wall of the downtown mission fort, where a new fence is being built. After fitting together the broken pieces, the team of archeologists found it was an almost complete skull from a man about 20 years old.

Because of related artifacts found in the vicinity, they were able to determine that the skull "quite likely" was that of a victim of the battle. Musket balls and a gun lock were among battle artifacts found nearby, she said.

The archeologists also found evidence of a fortification trench near the north wall. Until this discovery, there was no record that such a trench was built at the Alamo.

"This was a popular form of fortification at that time and it originated in Europe," said Ms. Fox. "The men simply dug a trench near a wall and piled dirt beside it. This enabled them to stand on the mound of dirt to shoot over the wall and also delayed anyone who scaled the wall to enter the fort."

Although the jaw and facial portions of the skull and the other skeletal remains were not found, Ms. Fox believes they are buried somewhere along the trench.

Fence installed to catch rocks

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — A 500-foot section of the Pacific Coast Highway has been reopened after rock slides prompted officials to close it last month, isolating this resort community.

Highway crews constructed an earthen wall to shield vehicles and pedestrians from rockfalls and a 300-foot-long chain link fence was installed by Sunday to catch sliding rocks. A monitoring device designed to warn of any further movement in the 150-foot hillside also was installed. State transportation officials said the highway would be closed if the sensor indicated more sliding was imminent.

DUCKY RESCUE — A mother duck trying to take her ducklings for their first foray to Lake Union in Seattle, Wash., Tuesday needed the assistance of city parking-enforcement officers, Nita Johnson, right, and Patty Gilbert, left. After being alerted to the ducks' plight by a passing motorist, the meter maids took the ducklings away from the danger of six-lane Aurora Avenue North and down to the lake in their motor scooters. The mother duck was carried along by a newspaper photographer in his car.

Red tape stifles production

America's 'pervasive anti-housing philosophy'

NEW YORK (AP) — The main obstacle to a person acquiring his or her own home isn't the $52,000 median price or the 20 percent down payment or the 10.5 percent mortgage rate, said the real estate man.

He conceded these to be formidable challenges, especially to the first-time buyer. But what worries him more, Donald Hovde indicated, was America's "pervasive anti-housing philosophy."

America against home ownership? How could it be? Between 1940 and 1960, the percentage of owner-occupied homes rose to 61.9 percent from 43.6 percent. By 1975, it reached 64.6 percent. It's probably 67 percent now.

Could Donald Hovde be correct? He has credentials. Hovde, a Madison, Wis., investor, is president this year of the National Association of Realtors, America's largest business organization.

He seems to have some evidence too. Even before taking office, Hovde was red hot about restrictions thrown in the way of homebuilding. Ordinances, regulations, limitations — imposed by those who already own.

"It's pervasive," he says. "It runs through all levels of government." And then this blast: "There is selfishness today in towns and communities that say 'build elsewhere.'"

And how do towns do it? Through building moratoriums, through overly restrictive environmental controls, hoary building codes, harassment of developers through duplicative reviews and needless paperwork.

Regulations that stifle production of housing add 20 percent to costs, said Hovde. He did not say how he arrived at that figure, but building suppliers and contractors sometimes have "ited comparable estimates.

This, he continues, puts housing beyond the ability of many families, and forces other families to rely on two paychecks to meet payments, which sometimes consume more than 35 percent of total income.

As viewed by Hovde, a developer, the situation is a national danger. As viewed by many of the 700,000 Realtors, it's a situation that lowers their incomes, made up mainly of commissions on sales.

But in the view of those who own America's 55 million single-family dwellings, valued at $2.2 trillion or about one-fourth the entire wealth of the nation, the picture assumes a different hue and pattern.

To them, new housing often means a strain on water and sewer capacity, and on schools and other municipal properties. A town's environment can be permanently changed, with traffic replacing pastoral beauty.

Whatever the changes, say existing homeowners, they often mean higher taxes. And sometimes, residents complain, in a slowing of in the rate of price appreciation; even worse, the threat of actual price declines.

Authority on credit unions to speak today

Ray Motesbocker, Regional Director of the National Credit Union Administration (NCUA), will be the guest speaker at the quarterly meeting of the Big Spring Chapter of Credit Unions today at 6:30 p.m. at the Brass Nail. Motesbocker, who's area of authority includes credit unions in the local chapter, will discuss consumer regulations.

RAY MOTESBOCKER

Motesbocker, director of Region V, is one of six regional directors in the United States who are appointed by the Administrator of NCUA to act as liaison officers between the credit unions in their regions and the Administrator. Region V, with its headquarters in Austin, include the sprawling eleven-state area of Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas, Utah, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, and Wyoming.

A native of Oklahoma, Ray Motesbocker graduated from Oklahoma City University in January 1951 with a major in accounting. He spent two years in the Air Force during and after the end of World War II. After graduating from college, he worked with Swift and Company during which time he lived in Oklahoma, Missouri, Tennessee, Ohio, and Iowa.

He was employed by the Bureau of Federal Credit Unions in June 1957 as an examiner in Oklahoma City, Okla., and later worked as an examiner in New Orleans, La., and Tulsa, Okla. In September 1967, he became senior staff officer in what was then the Dallas Regional Office and later moved with the regional office to its present location in Austin, Texas.

In January 1971, he transferred to the Chicago Regional Office (now Toledo) as assistant regional director. In April 1972, he became regional director in Austin, Texas, and in September 1973 was named deputy assistant administrator for the Office of Administration in the Washington Office of the National Credit Union Administration.

Motesbocker was named assistant administrator for the Office of Administration in January 1975, which later became the Office of Management and Planning. On Sept. 13, 1976, Motesbocker returned to Region V (Austin) as its regional director.

Council starts assault on non-compliance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Council on Wage and Price Stability is "just starting" its assault on companies it claims do not comply with the Carter administration's anti-inflation guidelines, a council spokesman says.

"We fully expect to start identifying more companies publicly," the spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said Wednesday after the council for the first time charged a firm with non-compliance.

Ideal Basic Industries — one of the nation's largest cement producers, with sales of $410 million in 1978 — strongly denied the council's claim and vowed to appeal immediately.

The company could be prohibited from bidding on government contracts if it loses its appeal. The council believes it is "on firm ground" contesting Ideal, the government spokesman said.

The administration has come under fire recently for failing to name names. In late April, Alfred E. Kahn, council chairman, cited 22 major corporations — with annual sales of at least $250 million — as being in violation of the voluntary guidelines, but refused to identify them, saying they could still be eligible for exceptions.

On Wednesday, a council spokesman said at least a dozen firms were still on notice, but it was uncertain whether this meant the others were off the hook.

Two paper companies, Crown Zellerbach Corporation and the Hammermill Paper Company, have been charged publicly with "probable non-compliance." They have denied the allegation and are negotiating with the council. The development on the price control front was coupled Wednesday with a warning from President Carter for labor not to expect any easing of wage guidelines.

"There has been no modification in those guidelines," said Jody Powell, White House press secretary.

The statement came one day after Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal told a Senate appropriations subcommittee the administration had "screwed up" its inflation forecast for this year. He revised projections upward from 7.4 percent to at least 8.5 percent.

However, Powell said Blumenthal's statement was not an official administration position and that Carter stood by the 7.4 percent figure.

Inflation is now running above 13 percent annually, with spiraling energy costs imperiling some perceived gains on the food front, where farm prices appear to be moderating after intense rises during the first quarter of the year.

United Airlines strike bonanza worth $6 million

NEW YORK (AP) — The United Airlines strike is proving costly to the nation's biggest air carrier and inconvenient to thousands of travelers, but it appears to be a bonanza worth as much as $6 million a day to the airline's competitors.

The strike, which began March 31, is the first major shutdown for an airline since an industry mutual aid pact was abandoned last December — a major step toward deregulation of the industry.

"Strike news was never a major consideration in estimating industry trends" because the losses of struck carriers were partly offset out of the gains made by operating carriers, said one industry analyst.

But now, partly because the pact has been abandoned, competing airlines may be profiting by as much as $5 million to $6 million a day before taxes during the United strike, said Louis A. Marckesano, an airline analyst at Janney, Montgomery, Scott Inc. of Philadelphia.

United Airlines, headquartered in Chicago, declined to estimate the cost of its shutdown, which was caused by a strike by 18,000 members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

Talks between the union and company are being conducted in Denver under the auspices of a federal mediator. At issue are cost-of-living adjustments, shift differentials and work rules, the union has said.

United normally carries about 130,000 passengers daily over routes connecting more than 100 cities. Its revenues a year ago — before expenses — averaged $9 million to $10 million a day, a United spokesman said. Normally United's business accounts for about 20 percent of the total industry.

No one can say for certain how many people have canceled or delayed trips because of the United strike.

Bird, game census action outlined

How the Texas Parks and Wildlife department keeps an eye on game animals and birds was outlined to Downtown Lions at their Wednesday meeting at Howard College Cactus Room.

Bill Del Monte, wildlife biologist stationed here with responsibility for the western half of the state, explained how the department makes regular census of bird and game population. Texas, he said, has a reciprocal agreement with many states whereby its surplus animals or birds are exchanged with others for breeding stock where there is a dearth in the population totals.

Efforts are made to balance the supply with the habitat as well as the specie with the habitat, he said. In many instances, game once on the thin margin is coming back.

One of the biggest problems, he continued, is environmentalist who take broadsides at the sportsman-hunter, who foots the bill for all this, without realizing that the hunter functions within established limit rules to harvest the game crop and thus contributes to the vigor or remaining herds and flocks.

Ken Dawson was in charge of the program. Larry Farthing, chairman of the lightbulb sale, reported that around 75 cases of bulbs had been bought by Big Spring people and that cleanup work would continue by teams. Frank Wentz, son of one of the founders of the Downtown Club, was introduced as a new member.

DeepCreek watershed protection meet called

A public meeting to identify resource problems and discuss project goals for watershed protection and flood prevention in Deep Creek Watershed is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. May 15, in the Council Chambers at City Hall in Snyder.

The sponsoring local organization, which is comprised of the City of Snyder, Scurry County Commissioners Court, and Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District will conduct this meeting.

Purpose of this meeting will be to afford the general public and sponsoring local organization an opportunity to participate in preliminary investigation studies. The studies have been undertaken in an effort to identify the problems and needs of the area and to formulate possible solutions.

Contingent upon a feasible project, technical assistance for planning will be provided by the Soil Conservation Service, United States Department Agriculture, under the authority of the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act. (Public Law 566, 83rd Congress, 68 Stat. 686), as amended.

Deep Creek Watershed is located in central and northwestern Scurry County in West Texas. It comprises an area of about 104,960 acres (164 square miles). The city of Snyder, in the southern portion of the watershed, is about 80 miles southeast of Lubbock and 70 miles west northwest of Abilene. Deep Creek is an ephemeral stream which heads in the northwestern corner of the county. It flows generally in a southeasterly direction for about 60 miles (of which approximately 41 miles of the upper portion are in the study area) to its confluence with the Colorado River in northern Mitchell County.

The proposed study area terminates at Farm Road 2763 which is about 3.5 miles channel distance downstream of the southern city limits. Deep Creek, a part of the Colorado River Basin, is in the Texas Gulf Water Resource Region.

Following the public meeting and receipt of inputs and suggestions offered, the Soil Conservation Service will formulate and evaluate alternative solutions which best satisfy the needs of the area. Those alternatives will be refined and serve as the basis for investigating project feasibility.
