Production plunge, less gasoline per barrel cost more than cutoff

By The Associated Press

Crude oil production in the United States took an unnoticed and unexplained plunge last winter, just when revolution was cutting imports of oil from Iran.

At the same time, U.S. refineries were squeezing less gasoline than usual from each barrel of oil.

These two developments, which together cost America more gasoline than the widely blamed Iranian cutback, were found in an Associated Press investigation.

-The cutoff of Iranian oil meant a loss of at least 17.5 million barrels of gasoline that otherwise could have gone into motorists' tanks

-At the same time, the drop in U.S. crude oil production caused a loss of at least 11 million barrels of gasoline. -And 11.5 million barrels of gasoline simply never got produced because domestic refineries were squeezing less gasoline and more heating oil, jet fuel and petrochemicals out of each barrel of crude oil.

Those three factors add up to a loss of some 40 million barrels of gasoline that never reached service stations. That is a four-to five-day supply of gasoline for the entire United States, matching the Energy Department's estimate of the maximum shortage in April and May. To make matters worse for the average driver, government regulations steered some of the remaining gasoline to state emergency stockpiles and priority users. This may have diverted roughly 46 million barrels of gasoline, raising the shortage to about 20 percent at the service-station pumps. Interviews with dozens of oil company executives and industry analysts turned up a variety of ex-planations for the shortage. But some of those are contradictory and, taken all together, do not explain fully what happened. Energy Department analyst Frank Verrastro told the AP that department experts only recently noticed the domestic crude oil drop, the deepest since 1971, but could not explain it.

"It has declined and then picked back up and it's strange. It may possibly be due to some withholding," Verrastro said, but he later added that this guess was unsupported by evidence and that other causes might explain the dip.

Oil company unanimously denied they had deliberately depressed domestic production. Indeed, many said they had not noticed the dip, although it showed up in individual company data that some of them provided.

Groping for explanations, most of them guessed bad weather was to blame; some cited mechanical problems or questioned the statistics. Others rejected the weather theory or just shook their heads in puzzlement.

Analysts say the stage was set for the current shortage in 1977 when U.S. companies built stockpiles to record levels in anticipation of a world oil price increase. Then in the fall and winter of 1978, unexpected, record gasoline demand drew these inventories down to near-minimum

But just then, when gasoline stocks are normally rebuilt, both Iranian and U.S. crude oil production plunged and U.S. refineries began producing less gasoline per barrel of oil.

By March, the shrinking gasoline output reached distributors, who began limiting deliveries to service stations. In April, with even less gasoline to sell, stations began closing evenings and weekends. In May. panicked motorists began lining up for blocks in the early morning outside stations.

Oil company executives say they first saw trouble coming last fall.

"The beginning of the Iranian problem was in September or October of 1978," said H. Laurence Fuller president of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana (Amoco). "We had begun to recognize a problem at that time and would have begun to buy crude if we could have gotten our hands on it."

Company officials agree the situation called for all-out domestic production, and yet that too began to

Hispanics threaten suit to keep case going

WASHINGTON (AP) -Hispanic community of Texas, directing sharp criticism at federal officials after they announced they would not prosecute Ector County officials, vowed not to let the death of a 27-year-old Mexican American be forgotten soon.

'This is enough. We've had it," said San Antonio attorney Ruben Sandoval, after the Justice Department announced there was insufficient evidence to warrant prosecution in the case of Larry Ortega Lozano, who died Jan. 22, 1978, in a West Texas jail after he allegedly was beaten by

'We will pursue this case with a lawsuit against the Justice Department, with congressional hearings. with a petition to the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights of the Organization of American States, Sandoval said

Lozano, one of 10 Mexican-Americans killed while in the custody of state law enforcement officials during the past four years, was found dead in his Ector County Jail cell 10 days after sheriff's deputies arrested him for a minor traffic violation.

In a five-page statement issued Friday, Deputy Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti said an extensive FBI investigation and the testimony from about 60 witnesses failed to turn up enough evidence of police brutality or other official misconduct to warrant an indictment.

The decision was hailed by Ector County District Attorney John Green as both a personal vindication and victory for the sheriff's department. "This is what I predicted all along,"

Green said. "The trouble came from outside people who came in and stirred up our community without having any of the facts."

Green also said he thought the Justice Department's decision not to prosecute was made because "they knew they couldn't get convictions.

Beating the fuel crunch

By JAMES WERRELL

Ted Coombs of Hermosa Beach, Calif., has found a unique way to see the country and beat the fuel crunch at the same time

There are no lone waits at the gas pumps of worries about odd and even days for Ted. You see, he's a man who stands on his own two feet. Well,

Between him and the ground are eight fiberglass wheels mounted on some footgear resembling a pair of running shoes with a contraption known as a "panther plate" attached between each set of wheels. They are, of course, roller skates, but not the kind you used to attach with a little

This pair will carry Coombs on a 7,000 mile trip from a gas station on Sunset Boulevard in Hollywood, to Fifth Avenue in New York City, and

He and his companion, Brian Douglas, who travels more conventionally in a car next to Coombs, had been planning and digging up just before they left, the producers of the new movie "Americathon" got wind of the project.

The movie is set in 1998 after the world has run out of all gas and oil, and resourceful Americans are forced to resort to jogging, bicycling and naturally, skating to get around. Coombs was the perfect choice to plug the film across the country, and the moviemakers decided to pick up the tab for the trip.

While en route, Coombs will try to break two world skating records. On Wednesday night he will attempt to skate non-stop for 120 miles during his approach to Dallas

This will be followed by a marathon, non-stop, three day skate into St. Louis. Coombs will cover about 500 miles during the three days.

"I'll be eating and just about everything else on skates," he said. Coombs averages between 60 and 80 miles a day, usually while the sun is up. "It can get pretty hot, but it's just too dangerous traveling at night," he

He sticks mainly to back roads, but has had to resort to interstates Texas. He will roll along Highway 180 as he heads east. How did he get in shape for the trek?

"I chased girls on skates," he replied. "When I got tired of California girls, I decided to chase other girls across the country. Coombs is convinced that skating will catch on big in America, "even than Skateboarding."

explained that skating can be done just about anywhere, and it is relatively easy to learn.

"You can learn to do it well in a day. Even some of the older people in California are doing it," he said.

Who knows, with the gas situation as bad as it is, skates may be the transportation of the future. Now is they can just make some that look like

Action / reaction: Dependent

Q. With everybody complaining and talking about the gasoline shortage, high prices and etc., why doesn't somebody come up with the main cause and cut back on the manufacture of cars and reduce the number of imports. My chicken was eating more grain and not laying eggs, so I rung

A. As long as America retains the free market system, the manufacture of cars will be dictated by the demand for them. There is a definite trend toward smaller cars but a stampede hasn't yet become apparent. Because America has largely become a suburban society, man must depend upon automobiles to get him to work and back. Granted the average American does much too much unnecessary driving, putting his vehicle up on blocks is hardly a way to solve his problems. Development of a mass transit system could be the best solution.

The good news is that it might have been worse. A consumer spokesperson said some creditors wanted to charge 14 percent for mobile homes, the maximum rate allowed on installment loans other than mortgages.

Millions of Americans will spend the summer of 1979 living with less gasoline and learning, perhaps, to

They will drive less often and less rapidly. They will stay closer to home — afraid to venture beyond known supplies of fuel.

But saving doesn't have to mean suffering. "The problem is to avoid confusing conservation with curtailment," said Dave Schooler, a staff employee of the House energy and power subcommittee. "There's a lot of flexibility in our system for getting more out of every gallon of gasoline."

As families try to plan for the July 4th holiday and for summer vacations to come, the experts are still arguing about who is to blame for the shortage and how serious it is. But they generally agree that gasoline supplies for summer driving — and oil supplies for winter heating will be tight, but adequate. And what does that mean? The same experts say it means we will have enough fuel to go around if drivers use a little common sense. It means not overreacting to reports of a temporary shortage by running out and filling up the tank - even if

It doesn't have to take a lot. According to economists at Cornell University, family automobile trips average 51/2 miles each. At 15 miles to the gallon, that means each trip takes about four-tenths of a gallon. Each trip you eliminate - by going to the supermarket once instead of twice, for example - means a saving of almost half a gallon. You save yourself money and time as well.

Something as seemingly minor as underinflated tires or an overloaded trunk wastes energy. You cut your mileage by about 2 percent for every pound of tire pressure under the recommended maximum; each 100 pounds of added weight in your car cuts economy by 1 percent.

"In the years ahead, we will be faced with a contight supply situation," Gustin said.

Ciavatta broke the 216-hour world pinball record at 6 a.m. Friday and set a 228-hour record before quitting at 6 p.m. He had originally planned on quitting at 4 p.m. today.

The 31-year-old Riverside carpet salesman said he decided to guit because he was exhausted by his ordeal, which lasted more than nine days. "I can't handle it," he said. "I'm beat. I'm going to go home and go to sleep."

The strain had begun to show as the steel balls and the hours kept rolling by. Ciavatta put his quarter into the machine June 13, and by Friday afternoon he'd played about 2,700 games on that coin. His longest stretch of sleep had been 35

Mrs. S. P. Jones Representative Of Our HOWARD COUNTY HERITAGE

Lillie Jones is a pioneer to this city. She came to Big Spring from Hopkins County in 1928.

"I came here for selfish reasons," she laughed. Her husband, Sam P. Jones opened his own lumber yard and ran it for 45 years.

'The town was very small then. I think it had about 5000 people," she said. "Only the roads downtown were paved." She has raised four children. Her sons, James and Omar still live in Big Spring. Her daughter Mildred Dillard lives in Lubbock. Her other daughter, Myrtle Stontenburg lives in Yakama, Washington. She has 10 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren. 'I always had a way to make my grandchildren behave," she said, "I kept a paddle handy and they could go home, get the paddle or behave themselves. They always behaved then," she grinned. When Mrs. Jones first came here, Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital was a big house on Goliad be-

when they would misbehave I would tell them

tween Ninth and 10th. The house has since been torn down and a nursing home built. "I saw all the hospitals being built," she said. "Hall-Bennett was the first one built after I came here."

"There was a different courthouse," she continued. 'They tore it down and rebuilt the one we have standing now.

Mrs. Jones said there were three grocery stores located downtown, "One was owned by a Mr. Pool, another by a Mr. Allen and the third by a Mr. Jones. It's been so long ago, I may have forgotten some.

And she recalls there were not too many dry goods stores at the time. The kids, had entertainment provided to them by the churches," she says. 'There wasn't as much to do then as there is now. 'The city park was built after we came. We went out there to have picnics a lot. There was a little baseball park and the Amphitheater in the park provided a lot of entertainment. There were several different kinds of games." First Federal salutes Mrs. Jones and her contributions to Howard County's Heritage. Friends and relatives can visit Mrs. Jones at Mountain View Lodge.

Legislation proposed by Rep. Berkley Bedell, which would eliminate feed grain set-asides and use surplus grain production to fuel an all-out gasohol industry, came in for liberal discussion.

Bedell's bill would authorize government-guaranteed loans to finance construction of fuel alcohol plants using corn and other agricultural products.

Bedell, a Democrat from Louisiana, said that the gasohol industry could turn about 750 million bushels of feed grain a year into enough ethanol to splace $800 million worth of imported oil.

Gasohol, in the form it has been marketed in the country thus far, contains 90 percent unleaded gasoline and ten percent ethanol ( or ethyl

THE INDUSTRY isn't even off the ground yet and is already beset with problems. The demand for grain for such a use would almost certainly increase the cost and threaten the supply. Quite probably; government subsidies would have to be used to encourage maximum production.

Would it be better to use byproducts of things like potatoes and sugarbeets in the manufacture of gasohol?

Who would produce the gasohol and in what size plants? An official of the Kansas Farm Union said fuel alcohol development must remain in the hands of small, individually-owned units or family-owned cooperatives. Otherwise, he said, farmers would lose interest in fuel alcohol rapidly.

There's no doubt but that laws will have to be updated if the nation is to sanction the production of gasohol It's still against the law everywhere to operate stills and no self-respecting bootlegger ever tried to get a bank loan to maintain a still

When you have to deal with boils

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am 13. Every once in a while I get a boil. I've been getting them all my life. Three questions: How do you treat them? What causes them? How do you avoid them? - T D

Two things to remember about boils: (1) They are infections, usually are contagious, and can spread from person to person or from one part of the body to another. With this in mind. then, you can see how important hygiene is while the boil is present. The cause of the infection is usually that old troublemaker - the staph

How you treat a boil depends on its stage of development. At later stages it may break open and drain itself. It's important to keep the area clean and not spread the material that comes out of it. If a boil causes a lot of pain it can be drained artificially. If one is quite deep it is wise to have it drained this way. Do not squeeze, because that can cause a spread of the staph germ. Hot soaks help for early-stage boils, again always taking care not to spread the germ.

It's difficult to prevent boils, especially in persons who seem more prone to them. The germ survives long periods in clothing, bedding, even in house dust. If you have boils in areas covered by clothing, change frequently and boil clothing. (Boils often occur in airmpits, and on the buttocks, thighs, breasts, and upper back). Shower twice a day, using antiseptic soap. You'll need special antibiotics if the staph germ you have is resistant to penicillin and tetracycline. About half of them may be. This is especially true if, as in your case, the boils recur. Family members should get treatment if they have boils. This is a common problem in young people like you.

Dear Dr. Ruble: After having a baby almost a year ago I developed a hemorrhoid. I was only 18 at the time, and was wondering if it will always be there and what to do about it. — D.M.

Hemorrhoids may develop or get worse during pregnancy because of new pressures and circulation changes in the pelvic area. They normally subside after pregnancy. You should have noticed some improvement by now. If you haven't, you should be examined by a doctor to see what should be done about this. It doesn't have to mean surgery. Often, conservative measures are sufficient Have you tried sitz baths? Instead of covering material I've discussed in the past, I'll refer you to printed material available in booklet form. This specific one is "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." To get a copy, send 35 cents to cover printing and handling to me in care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope in ordering. Dear Dr. Ruble: What exactly is diet bread? — Mrs. O.T. It's bread that has fewer calories per slice than regular bread. A good 'recipe' for diet bread is as follows: take one slice of normal bread. Cut it in half. That makes two slices of "diet bread." A half a slice is better than none, and for the reducer it's twice as good as one.

FOR MRS. E.N.F. - If you can't walk a block without the pains you describe (in the chest and arms) you certainly do need some medicine. I cannot tell from this distance just what the problem is, but one that certainly has to be investigated is angina pectoris. With this the pains (the kind you describe) occur with exertion. Be examined promptly.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is strep infection rare for a six-month-old infant to get? Is it serious, more serious than in an adult? - B.E. It's quite rare under three months, and a serious matter. Susceptibility increases with age, but between six months and 10 years the infection can be quite serious, sometimes leading to scarlet fever.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Do you believe in gelatin to strengthen fingernails? -

Adequate dietary protein helps nails. Gelatin won't help any more than protein in any other food.

Is angina pectoris dangerous? Is there a cure? If you would like to learn more about this heart condition, write to Dr. Ruble, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, to Handle Angina Pectoris." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Do you have problem hair? Dr. Ruble's booklet, "Good Health for Your Hair," shows how proper treatment can result in healthier. more attractive hair. To get a copy, write Dr. Ruble in care of the Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Rubie welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I believe God is a loving God and that everybody will go to Heaven eventually. After all, the Bible says that "God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the-world; but that the world through him might be saved" (John 3:17), - W.B.G.

DEAR W.B.G.: Yes, God is a loving God. We know this because the Bible tells us of His love. The Bible tells us God loves us so much that He gave His Son to die for our sins.

But if we believe God loves us because the Bible tells us so, we must also see what else the Bible has to say about Him. In other words, we cannot pick and choose passages that happen to appeal to us and reject the rest of it. When we look at the whole Bible, we see that God is not only a God of love but a God of justice and holiness as well. You quote John 3:17, but have you read the very next verse? Note it carefully: "Whoever believes in him is not condemned, but whoever does not believe stands condemned already because he has not believed in the name of God's one and only Son." Or again, later in the same chapter, we read, "Whoever believes in the Son has eternal life, but whoever rejects the Son will not see life, for God's wrath remains on him" (John 3:36, New International Version).

I know this is not a popular teaching, but we cannot avoid it if we take the Bible seriously. Our problem is that we do not really see the holiness and perfect nature of God, and the terrible and horrible nature of sin. Sin separates us from God — both n ow and in eternity. "Do you not know that the wicked will not inherit and kingdom of God? Do not be deceived" (1 Corinthians 6:9, NIV)

The wonderful thing is that we no not fear the judgment of God. God Himself has provided the way for our salvation. His Son took our sins upon Himself, and by faith in Him we can be saved. Have you accepted the gracious gift of salvation that God offers you in Christ by faith? If not, I urge you to reach out and accept Christ as your personal Lord and Savior. "To all who received him, to those who believed in his name, he gave the right to become children of God" (John 1:12, NIV).

Summit begins

Jack Anderson.

WASHINGTON — When President Carter arrives in Tokyo tomorrow for summit meetings with Premier Masayoshi Ohira, the No. 1 topic will be trade. It's a subject that affects the pocketbooks of every American. Specificaly, Carter will be trying to convince Japanese officials that their country's staggering trade imbalance with the United States - an incredible $12 billion in x978 - can no longer be tolerated by an American economy suffering double-digit inflation and a threatened recession.

Despite the anticipated Japanese reassurances of cooperation, the stark truth of the matter is that their unswerving protectionist policies may touch off a trade war between the two allies. Japan has practically attained by peaceful means the "Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere" they couldn't win by force of arms during World War II.

Japanese demand for oil was one of the causes of U.S.-Japanese rivalry in the 1930s and '40s; ironically, the U.S. demand for oil is now aggravating our trade deficit with Japan, as American motirists turn to gas-saving Japnese imports in ever-increasing numbers.

A CONFIDENTIAL MEMO prepared for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the congressional Join tEconomic Committee, lays it out in blunt terms: "Imports of automobiles, the largest number from Japan, captured almost 25 percent of the domestic market last month."

The other side of the coin is no better. American auto makers can't crack the Japanese market. "Last year," the eyes-only memo states, the United States imported 1,563,048 passenger cars from Japan. Despite considerable dollar depreciation and a great deal of Japanese rhetoric, the United States could sell only 13,963 automobiles in the Japanese market. Other examples of our difficulties with Japan: -The Japanese government purchases U.S. wheat for about $3 a bushel, then doubles the price to Japanese customers. discourages imports.

-American cigarettes are marked up 500 percent in Japan. -U.S. agricultural products in general are subjected to "stringent application of health standards...in addition to import quotas."

—"Safety standards in Japan have been used to block a host of potential American exports. On electrical appliances, the cords were too long or the motors were unsuited to the Japanese climate. Pharmaceutical manufacturers found new health regulations just where they were the most competitive."

UNDERWRITERS LABORATORY has a large number of inspectors working in Japanese factories to certify goods for export to the United States, but Japanese inspectors are not in American factories. U.S. firms must still send prototypes to Japan for time-consuming tests,

And as Japanese and American officials clink glasses over prospective trade agreements, sources told our associate Jack Mitchell, Carter's hosts are already quietly moving into two areas where American firms have enjoyed traditional supremacy - hightechnology computers and aircraft production.

Japanese computer experts, backed by joint government-industry financing, will be visiting the United States soon to study the latest computer technology. The Japanese have already boasted that they can top American efforts in the field - but they couple this supposed selfconfidence with a protective tariff for their computer industry that is about three times the rate applied by other industrial countries, according to the congressional study.

The Multilateral Negotiations did not pressure on the Japanese to let down some of the trade barriers they have erected around their island nation. There was also much bowing, smiling and promising from Prime Minister Ohira during his last visit to Washington in Afterward, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance reported to the Cabinet behind closed doors "that an agreement had been reached to settle outstanding economic issues between the United States and Japan." According to the confidential minutes, he predicted that "the June meeting between Prime Minister Ohira and the President in Tokyo should produce specific agreements on outstanding matters.

Nevertheless, a number of economic variables - inflation, recession, currency depreciation and growing frustration with Japanese trade practices - could lead to all-out economic warfare between unhappy U.S. businessmen and the uncooperative Japanese.

Meanwhile, we've learned that a behind-the-scenes struggle has been going on between the Air Force and the Justice Department over the case. Justice wants to settle with Matlovich on a mutually agreeable basis, but the Air Force won't budge.

The settlement would have the Air Force give Matlovich is back pay and hire him as a civilian human relations instructor on gay rights. It is strongly supported by Assistant Attorney General Barbara Babcock.

But Babcock is leaving the department sometime this summer. So the Air Force, which must submit its policy statement to the judge by mid-September, is planning to stall its response until Babcock leaves. She has told associates she's determined to settle the case before she goes, so more fireworks are in the offing

Trial of Stafford pressed

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) ford - Prosecutors impatient to begin a preliminary hearing for Roger Dale Stafford the man accused in the worst mass murder in Oklahoma history - say they may ask a judge to order a hearing to be held in the next few weeks.

"We're going to insist he (Stafford attorney Garvin Isaacs) get ready pretty soon," to defend Stafford in the murders of six employees found shot to death an Oklahoma City steakhouse last July 16, said Jim McKinney, Oklahoma County first assistant district attorney.

Isaacs, who recently won an innocent verdict in a nationally publicized trial for the late Gene Leroy Hart on charges of murdering three Girl Scouts, became Stafford's attorney Tuesday. Isaacs replaced Gary Dean and Tony Jack Lyons of Prvor, who resigned from the case when they said Stafford's relatives could not pay them enough money.

Contacted by telephone at the University of Houston, where he is lecturing at the National College of Criminal Defense Lawyers, Isaacs said he has "no idea" of when he could be ready for a preliminary hearing.

The Oklahoma City lawyer said when he completes his lecturing at the end of this week, he will return to Oklahoma City to begin familiarizing himself with the Stafford case.

"I just don't have any comments about any of the facts." in the case until learning more about the case, Isaacs said.

Stafford, a 27-year-old Alabama drifter, is charged with murdering Terri M. Horst, 15, one of the six steakhouse workers whose bullet-riddled bodies were found stacked in the meat locker of a Sirloin Stockade steakhouse in south Oklahoma City after a $1,500

Though Stafford is charged with only one of the deaths, McKinney said authorities believe Stafford and his late brother. Harold. 29, were responsible for all six killings. Harold Stafford died in a Tulsa motorcycle accident six days after the steakhouse bloodbath.

"It would serve no purpose" to charge Stafford with five additional murder counts, McKinney said. He said prosecutors will be allowed to introduce evidence about all six murders into court proceedings against Stafford.

McKinney said if Stafford is found innocent of the Horst murder, prosecutors could not bring him to trial on any of the other killings.

Stafford's preliminary hearing will be held to determine if he must stand trial on the Horst murder charge.

In addition to the steakhouse murders, Stafford is the prime suspect in the killings of three members of a San Antonio, Texas family near Purcell on June 22, 1978, said Kay Huff, Cleveland County District Attorney

"I don't really see anything but confusion" resulting from filing charges against Stafford before the steakhouse murder case is resolved, Mrs. Huff said.

Mrs. Huff said she might decide to file charges against Stafford after receiving a new report this week on the Purcell killings from the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation, but she doubts she will file.

In addition, Stafford is considered the only suspect in killing a McDonald's restaurant employee, 19year-old Jimmy Berry, in Muscle Shoals, Ala., in 1974, said Muscle Shoals Police Chief Ronald Gene Bowling .

"If we could come up with the gun (used in the killing) we could charge him, Bowling said.

Stafford was once considered a suspect in the Nov 22 murders of four Burger Chef employees in Speedway, Ind., but police there no longer believe he was involved in the deaths.

'We're going to demand the death penalty," McKinney said. "I think any jury at all, if they believe in the death penalty, if they find him guilty, would, in my opinion, without any question of any kind assess the death penalty."

If the steakhouse murder case comes to trial, "we're going to demand the death penalty." McKinney said. "I think any jury at all, if they believe in the death penalty, if they find him guilty. would, in my opinion, without any question of any kind would assess the death

McKinney said he hopes the Stafford preliminary will be held in the next few weeks, and would like the trial to come no later than early November

'We're ready for jury trial right now," McKinney said. Asked how the entry of Isaacs into the Stafford case would affect the case, McKinney gave a sarcastic reply: "There might be a lot of benefit dinners or ice cream socials to raise something for poor old witnesses against Stafford will be his estranged wife. Verna, 26. Police have kept Mrs. Stafford at secret locations, where they have talked with her extensively, since bringing her here from Chicago March 8.

Officers allege that Mrs. Stafford has connected her husband and his late brother to the steakhouse murders and the Purcell killings.

Police said Mrs. Stafford has told them she was the getwaway car driver in the steakhouse massacre and was present at the scene of the killings of the San Antonio family of Air Force Sgt. Melvin Lorenz, 38, his wife Linda, 31, and son Richard, 12, near Purcell. The Lorenz family was driving to North Dakota to attend a funeral at the time of the murders.

Mrs. Stafford has told police she did not participate in the killings. She has not been charged with any crimes. Prosecutors refuse to say if she will eventually face any charges.

Prosecutors have other important witnesses besides Mrs. Stafford and have physical evidence linking Stafford to the steakhouse murders, McKinney said, but he refused to be specific.

In addition to Miss Horst, the other steakhouse murder victims were: Anthony Tew, David Salsman, 15; David Lindsey, 17; Isaac Freeman, 56; and Louis Zacarias, 43, all of the Oklahoma City area.

The executionstyle murder of the six steakhouse workers sparked the most massive murder probe in Oklahoma history.

Last September, ballistics tests on newly-discovered guns showed that a gun used in the Lorenz triple-murder and a gun stolen from Lorenz were also used in the steakhouse killings. "We've spent close to a half million dollars and we've used every innovative technique available in this investigation," Oklahoma City Police Chief Tom Heggy said when he announced March 10 that Stafford would be charged in the steakhouse

A nationwide manhunt for Stafford followed, climaxing three nights later when authorities - acting on a tip from a relative - arrested Stafford at a Chicago YMCA.

"You should have seen the look on his face - he was very startled," said Robert McConnel, a YMCA Security guard who helped arrest the unarmed Stafford. The mass murder suspect offered no resistance.

After his arrest and before a lawyer bagan representing him, Stafford spent many hours talking with Oklahoma City police detectives, Chief Heggy said. The chief said parts of the talks were helpful to officers, but he declined to reveal what Stafford was telling detec-

McKinney refused to say if any of Stafford's remarks will be used as evidence in court proceedings.

Stafford pleaded innocent to the Horst murder charge at his arraignment March 17. He was sent to Eastern State Hospital at Vinita, where he underwent 26 days of mental before doctors ruled he was sane and able to stand trial.

While Mrs. Stafford remains in police protective custody at an undisclosed location and her husband of seven years remains in the Oklahoma County Jail awaiting court action, the couple's three children, ages 6 and under, remain in a foster home in Chicago.

Moments before, the girls had heard that the fundamentalist preacher reached an agreement with the state that will close the pattled Rebekah Home for Girls but allow Roloff to place its residents in non-state

the war is over

The battle line in the skirmish was a 300member human wall of preachers and parents. When state officials sent a reconnaissance party to scout ahead Wednesday, they found an impressive show of solidarity by the Bible-clutching Roloff supporters. The Rebekah girls — about 100 were still here — were locked inside the People's Church.

Marlin Johnston, associate commissioner of the Department of Human Resources, said he decided the preachers looked too dangerous to tangle with. Johnston also said he had been told not to go into the church. Roloff later decided to let the girls sleep in the church one night when he thought the state might show up.

The church people also sent out scouting parties. Anytime there was movement at Texas A&I University in nearby Kingsvile - where the 140-member state force was housed - the preachers at the church would man the barricade. There were about a half-dozen false alarms. The state never came back after the first trip attention. Roloff, who has long blamed the press for many of his problems, grew friendlier as the ordeal went on. By Friday, he had a press tent set up to shield the reporters from the blistering South Texas sun. A barbecue lunch for the press was also provided

Each false alarm also scattered reporters at Roloff Evangelical Enterprises

At midday Friday, while the state force was passing the time at the college dormitory (they paid $12 a night for a single room), State Attorney General Mark White headed here for a talk with Roloff. It was at that negotiating session that the deal was carved out, Roloff

"You preachers need to know that there has been no compromise," Indianapolis preacher Greg Dixon told the Friday night session. He called it a "strategic withdrawal.

"So you can fight another day," he said. The fight may wind up back in the same courts where it bounced around for the past six years. Under the agreement, Roloff will place the children elsewhere while he restructures his ministry. Under the new system, the homes will be under the aegis of the People's Church. The homes had been under the umbrella of the

"Everything will be structured under the church," said Roloff "If the state tries to control (the children) they would be trying to control the church.

Roloff said Saturday it will take about a week to clear out the Rebekah Home. He said some of the girls may be taken to a facility he runs in Hattiesburg, Miss. Others may go home with their parents or be placed in foster homes chosen by Roloff.

But he guaranteed the Rebekah Home will

"I predict that by this time next year we'll have twice as many girls and boys as we ever had before," he told the crowd, referring to the various facilities he runs.

He also reassured the preachers that he has not softened his stance against state licensing - a stance criticized by an official for an association of other church-related homes in

"I have not agreed to take a license and never will," he promised, "The Rebekah Home will never close. It may just be displaced a little

David Gibbs, a Roloff lawyer, said he anticipated more court battles when Roloff restructures his organization and re-opens the

"You can re-organize under the church. But that doesn't mean they're not going to test that church's mettle," he said.

After the prayer session, the preachers and parents went out into the night to re-enact the uman wall. They called themselves the "Texas Brigade" And claimed victory at the "believer's Alamo."

White said the agreement "assures compliance with the law and also avoids any unfortunate confrontation which might have led to injuries to parties involved.

Assistant Attorney General John Fainter said the possibility loomed of further legal action. "If he attempts to operate a child care facility without a license, I suppose we'll be back in the same situation... I don't know what his lawyers have told him.

Human Resources Commissioner Jerome Chapman said White was pleased, "and I have confidence in him."

Texans get new dress code under Clements' 'no-tie summer' policy

By JAMES R. KING Associated Press Writer Many urbanites in Texas who normally wear coats and ties daily have already begun to appear without shame in open-collar shirts as dress codes relax in anticipation higher thermostat settings.

A random check in a few big cities showed a generally positive response to Gov. Bill Clements' proclamation designating the next three months a "no-tie summer"

There were a few holdouts. "I will personally always wear a coat and tie - I don't care how hot it gets," vowed David Dozier, president of the DGB&H advertising agency in Dallas.

Nevertheless, Dozier said he had already eased the dress policy for his agency = which used to be "suits for men, and three-piece suits if possible." Now, open collars are permitted — "but no blue jeans." Dozier also said each male employee had to have a spare suit in his car "in case

Most government officials,

Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice Joe Greenhill of Austin also applauded Clements' suggestion, but, like other judges in-terviewed, did not go so far as to advocate open collars when court is in session.

When we sit on the bench we'll wear ties and robes out of respect for the court,' Greenhill said. "The wearing of a coat and tie is sometimes a mark of respect either for persons you are with or the occasion. But as a working uniform, I see no reason for them at all."

Dallas attorney Dan McDonald said what lawyers going to court must wear are decided by the judges, but he said he favored the no-tie policy. "A tie doesn't make a lawyer better - just betterlooking," he said.

Another strong advocate of the concept was Dallas businessman Gil Clements, 38, of SEDCO, Inc., the Dallas-based oil field equipment firm that Gov Clements founded. "We are amending our dress codes to reflect summer dress suggested by Governor Clements." Gil Clements said Asked if he liked the idea, the governor's son added, "If I didn't, I wouldn't do it.

The current gasoline is making many changes in the Texas way of life. It's even making changes in the way we greet our friends.

Friends in Dallas, Fort Worth or Houston are asking "Are you odd or even?" these days just about as much as they once asked "How are you?

The odd-even gasoline rationing system goes into effect Monday in Dallas, Harris and Tarrant Counties and in some counties surrounding the big cities.

As temperatures climbed near the century mark in Texas during the past week and gasoline lines got longer and longer, tempers got shorter and shorter. Short enough that one Dallas gasoline station attendant started carrying a shotgun for protection.

T've had people threaten to shoot me, stab me, kill me anything you can possibly think of." said Dale Clark. 30. Clark kept watch over his gasoline pumps with the shotgun until police questioned the legality and he agreed to put it away.

The gasoline crunch has also resulted in a sales for some mainly in the cities, are purchasing magnetic signs for the sides of their vehicles, indicating that it is a commercial vehicle That allows them to buy gasoline on any day — providing they can find it — instead of having to depend on the last digit of their license plate. One Houston firm started running a sale on the magnetic signs, calling them the "Gas Crunch Special." Business was booming for the signs costing $30 to $60, according to a spokesman at a Houston sign firm.

It's also created a booming business for automobile parts stores selling locking gasoline caps and siphon hoses. The locking gas caps are about as easy to find in the Dallas-Fort Worth area as a service station with only two cars waiting to be filled

Many Texans are also installing auxiliary gasoline tanks, mainly on pickup trucks and vans.

Just about anyone can tell a "horror story" about the problem of finding gasoline. Oscar Howell of Lockhart thought he had plenty of time to drive his wife, Mary, to an Austin hospital before their baby was born. But he had to find gasoline on the way. He pulled off the highway three times for gasoline, but each time found a "pumps closed" sign front of a four-car line.

Can I cut in front of you?"

At the fourth station, Howell said. He got $2 worth Howell was becoming of gasoline and raced ondesperate. He wheeled to the ward to the hospital.

'It was the perfect excuse. the car just outside the for a little liquid happiness, I yelled 'My wife's in labor. emergency room Texas style hospital

One could go on and on telling about the gasoline crunch, but it's almost time He almost made it. Oscar for the service stations to Romel Howell was born in open and time to get in line

Texans slowing down, driving less, DPS says

DALLAS (AP) — At least some fuel-starved Texans are slowing down and driving less in the face of increasing gasoline short-ages, say the people who monitor Texas traffic as a livelihood.

The Department of Public Safety recently polled its troopers at 31 major highway patrol stations to see if the harsh reality of lengthening gas lines had put the brakes on lead-flooted Texas motorists.

'We asked the troopers if they had sensed or visually noticed any reduction in speed," Jim Robinson, DPS public information officer, said.

The survey showed troopers at 13 of the 31 stations "seemed to think speed was down," Robinson

Areas where patrolmen noted a slower traffic flow included Dallas, Houston, Sherman, Texarkana, Beaumont, Pierce. Harlingen, Ozona, San Angelo, Lubbock, Wichita Falls, Childress and Kerr-

"There are two patterns where you see some reduction," Robinson said. 'In the wide-open spaces, such as West Texas, people may be afraid they will run out of gas. You also see the reduction in places where the gas lines are the

Col. Wilson E. Speir, DPS director, said last week that many drivers are reducing speed as gasoline becomes a more precious commodity. speeds seem to be lower where the gas lines are longest." he said

Troopers said that drivers in the upper Panhandle and Central Texas still are driving at pre-shortage speeds. Robinson said.

The state's last highway speed survey in March estimated Texas drivers were rolling along at an average of 59.3 miles per hour. At least 75 percent were believed to be exceeding the 55 mile per hour limit.

DPS officials say the slower traffic flow does not necessarily mean greater compliance with the muchignored speed limit. "It just means the speed is down," Robinson said. "But we have noticed more people going

In the survey, troopers at 19 of the 31 DPS stations "reported visible traffic reductions." Robinson noted especially at night and on the weekends after normal rush-hour flows.

Chief Harold Warren, Dallas Police Department traffic supervisor, said that 'traffic is a little bit lighter' in the shortage-plagued Dallas metropolitan area. "The speed is generally slower," Warren said. "You still have plenty of speeders, but the general flow of traffic

A similar trend in the Houston area has been reported by Houston traffic

"Traffic's still heavy and fast, but it's slacked off some," said Captain G.E.

The DPS survey also confirmed a new sign of gasoline shortages that decorates highways in the Dallas and Houston areas.

Rangers topple A's in 10th

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - Pinch-hitter Dave Roberts smacked a two-run homer in the 10th inning to power the Texas Rangers to an 8-5 victory over the Oakland A's Saturday.

Bump Wills led off the inning with a single, stole second and went to third when A's catcher Jeff Newman threw the ball into center field. Roberts' homer then put Texas ahead 7-5 and the Rangers added an insurance run when Eric Soderholm singled, went to second on a wild pitch by A's reliever Bob Lacey, 1-5, and came home on Oscar Gamble's single.

Jim Kern, 9-1, relieved Sparky Lyle in the eighth for

The Rangers tied the game 4-4 in the seventh on catcher John Ellis' two-run pinch single.

In the fourth inning, the A's completed their third triple play of the season, tying the American League record. After Gamble and Bill Sample singled, putting runners on first and second, John Grubb attempted a bunt. But A's third baseman Wayne Gross made a diving catch of the popup for out No. 1.

With both runners moving, Gross threw the ball wildly into center field. Center fielder Tony Armas, backing up the play, fired the ball back to shortstop Dave Chalk, who stepped on second for out No. 2.

Chalk, holding the ball in the confusion, saw Armas run into the infield and signal for the ball. Chalk threw the ball to Armas, who tagged first base to complete one of the strangest triple plays in baseball

Continuing his heavy hitting, Oscar Gamble batted safely in his eighth straight game as he went 4-for-5, pushing his average over the .400 mark.

Mitchell Page of the A's hit safely in his ninth consecutive game, with a homer in the first inning.

Too Tall's attorney cites NFL free agency as one reason to box who believe Jones' boxing

Except for a few close friends, until very recently nobody knew about Ed "Too Tall" Jones' plan to walk away from professional football and into the world of boxing.

Why then, with his National Football League option expired, do you think that one of the game's top defensive ends could not attract so much as a single inquiry from any team about whether he might like to sack quarterbacks for them? Jones' attorney, Don Cronson, thinks he knows the

"The lid is on," Cronson said. "Free agency is not what it's supposed to be." Believe the man. But that legitimate phone call from one NFL team," Cronson said. "But I wasn't surprised in the least at that."

Not that the phone calls would have done any good. Jones insists that he decided two years ago to leave pro football and that nothing could have kept him in the game and away from boxing. But it might have been nice if some team had tried.

'Texas' being presented at Palo Duro State Park

CANYON - Palo Duro State Park located 12 miles east of Canyon in the Texas Panhandle is once again hosting the nationally-known drama "Texas." The drama opened June 20 and will continue through August 25.

The drama will be presented nightly except Sundays beginning at 8:30 p.m. with a special presentation on the evening

"Texas" has been selected as one of only four such performances across the state that depicts pioneer life as it occurred in early Texas.

The fourteenth opening of the drama already has an impressive past-attendance record with over a million visitors recorded and 90,000 of these came through the park gates last year.

The drama is set in the 1880s depicting the story of the Indians already living in the canyon country and of a people who came to the Panhandle. It is also a story of what these newcomers did to the land and what the land did to them.

Spectators at the drama will also know and feel what the early settlers encountered as the theatre lies on the floor of a thousandfoot canyon in the state park. location is awesome with the backdrop of the huge caprock rising upward from the back of the outdoor stage. A mixture of real Texas summer nights and a skillful use of lights by the drama technicians will produce Panhandle sun and storms.

The audience will be able to see a difference in the facilities this year. A three-year building program in the theatre is finished. These improvements include an addition to the men's dressing room, new shoers, costume shop enlargemnets, new electrical building to house equipment to increase and facilitate the power coming into the theatre. Other improvements complete the three-year program initiated by the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation started in 1977. Those improvements are an enlargement of the men's rest rooms, permanent in-stallation of two rows of seats in the rear, a new exit from the theatre, a new side stage building and a new entrance into the parking lot. The total cost for these improvements has been $182,897. Work completed this year included a Texas Parks and Wildlife Depar-tment project with a bid of

A company of 80 actors and dancers will sweep across the stage during the drama. Many of these performers are from local Panhandle-South Plains cities along with individuals from the neighboring states.

A special appearance was made on opening night June 20, when the great grand-daughter of the famous Comanche chief Quanah Parker danced on stage. Included in this dance were other members of the famous Indian family as the drama "Texas" pays tribute to the plains Indians.

Normally, tickets for the performance can be purchased at the gates prior to opening. A few Saturday night performances have been sold out in the past. To make reservations and

Armstrong takes cafeteria approach to life

By JIM DAVIS Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau copyright 1979, Harte-Hanks Communications, Inc.

AUSTIN - Before the sun can burn away the morning dew on the Astroturf, Bob Armstrong is jogging around the University of Texas football stadium in a constant battle against middleaged spread.

As the sun drops toward the western horizon, he is 40 miles northwest of Austin, pitching hay to 49 Red Brangus cattle at his small A - "my recreation Ranch and first love."

In between he puts in a day as overseer of the 22.5 million-acre empire that is the province of the land commissioner of Texas, a job he has held for 8-1/2 years.

The day is punctured by informal staff discussions and chatty telephone calls with bureaucrats and old political friends.

I HAVEN'T

E TO START

And throughout his day, as throughout his life, he brings to each activity the special Armstrong gift for making whatever he is doing look like one heck of a lot of fun. Robert Landis Armstrong takes the cafeteria approach to life - try some of everything. He's a politician, an outdoorsman, a pilot, a scholar, a motorcyclist, a guitar-picking singer of country songs, a hopeless gossip, a sought-after master of ceremonies, a rancher, a sailor.

He's a complex man who seems simple; a hyperactive achiever with the easy-going manner of a rural Texas good ol' boy; a free spirit with all the right political and business connections; an astute operator with a guileless grin and an irrepressible zest for life; a conservationist who wants to promote economic growth.

"There have been a lot of things I've wanted to do and I've gone ahead and done them - whether it was golf or sailing or flying or playing the guitar or politics," he says. "They'reallfun."

So, what does he want to do now? Well, he would like to take up the banjo, learn Spanish and reread the classics. But his political and professional plans are less settled.

A psychoanalyst might be tempted to say the 46-yearold commissioner is in some mid-life crisis - troubled by soul-searching over career

But friends say that is just typical Armstrong - a man who believes in luck and timing as much as ambition and planning in either politics or life.

"I just never have had a "But there were some things I wanted to do, and fortunately I'm able to do

The easy thing would be to stay where he is. He hasn't faced a serious challenge since upsetting a 10-year incumbent land commissioner in 1970. He won another four-year term last year without opposition. He calls his job "super" his favorite expletive - but last year, agrees that and to a top job with Wilson's then wonders if he hasn't exhausted its more challenging possibilities. He says he never planned to stay in one job so long but expresses paternal concern about who might replace him in overseeing all that oil-rich land with its delicate ecological balance.

Armstrong has been addicted to politics for two decades, and with a Republican sitting in the Governor's Mansion, he admits to thinking about a 1982 governor's race.

That seems natural for a bedrock Democratic party loyalist with a history of winning races, a handsome face, a reputation in the Capitol as a solid administrator and an inpeccable media image as a

But the things that make him a colorful and popular land commissioner might be considered liabilities by the big-money backers of Texas Could a political image-maker dignify a shirtsleeves gubernatorial candidate who rides a motorcycle to work and likes to sing satirical songs with friends at a local beer garden?

Armstrong spurred rumors about his ambitions last spring with his first fund-raiser in seven years. But he says the modest effort was designed only to offset some out-of-pocket officeholder expenses.

Travis County Commissioner Ann Richards, an old political and family game plan," Armstrong friend, says Armstrong would make a great gubernatorial candidate - if he wanted the job and could find the finances to get his message across.

"In terms of media, he would be terrific. The thing about Bob is that he's perfectly natural. He's exactly as he appears to be."

Ernie Stromberger, who handled media for the John Hill gubernatorial campaign

Armstrong has a strong television appearance but fears that he lacks the personal funds to guarantee a well-financed statewide

Armstrong's net worth is about $603,000, a fraction of the spare cash millionaires such as Gov. Bill Clements can put into a campaign.

Things were different in 1970, when Armstrong gave up his safe House seat from Austin to run for land commissioner. He started out with $10,000 from Austin friends and good wishes from a lot of people who thought he should win but couldn't. He crisscrossed the state in his small plane, totaling 350,000 air miles "At that time there were very few people making statewide races, and statewide races were really neat experiences," he says. "I don't know if they still are though. Well, I mean when I look at what these other people go through...

He worries about spending too little time with his wife and three school-aged children now and about further sacrifices a shot at nigher office would require.

Shannon Armstrong is even more concerned than her husband about the trespasses of politics of family life.

"She's good as gold about it," Armstrong says, "but she's not very turned on by he excitement of it...She's very oriented toward the children and does a marvelous job with them."

Armstrong says he may return to the law parctice he left to become land commissioner. He speaks with a hint of wistfulness about the big money" some fellow lawyers make and how he's called a sucker for settling for a $45,200 state job.

But then he'll say he isn't interested in the big-money legal work that could easily fall to a former land commissioner the oil company and land office practice.

"I'll do something for the University (of Texas) or something like that if that was where I was going to go," he says with the vagueness of a majorless college student. "I think I'd at writing...or something else."

As a loyal campaign worker for President Carter, a federal appointment is always possible, but Armstrong says he isn't counting

"I have to this moment never known what I was going to do," he says.

The only son of an Austin automobile dealer, selling cars was his goal in the 1950s as he finished the University of Texas, spent three years in the Navy and entered the UT law school. "I thought I would be a Ford dealer but the law would be a good background."

But then Armstrong took a job in a law firm and changed goals. He discovered that law and olitics mix easily and he ad a flare for both.

Texas for the John Kennedy-Lyndon Johnson ticket in the 1960 presidential race and found a special affection for rural people and their feelings for the land. He also made connections in faster circles, with the powers and the climbers of Texas politics, including

"I always had the good fortune to be with him when things were really happening," Armstrong says.

These connections led to assistant attorney general post with Will Wilson unsuccessful campaign for Johnson's old U.S. Senate seat in 1961 the 1960s. Through Armstrong married, opened a law practice, worked in several campaigns and was elected to three terms in the Texas House. His legislative work is hard to categorize. He fought with the liberals against increasing the sales tax but joined conservatives to upgrade law enforcement. As he does now, he shunned political labels and talked in terms of getting things done.

He quit smoking and took up running before it became a fad. He pressed his interest in the environment and helped create the Texas Conservation Foundation, a non-profit corporation to purchase land of ecological

He watched with interst as incumbent land commissioner Jerry Sadler - a cranky longtime officeholder got into political hot water over absenteeism from Austin and a controversial division of an old Spanish treasure found in the Gulf of Mexico.

Armstrong successfully pushed himself as a conservationist candidate, with such statements as, "I have the feeling conservation may be the most important single issue in the preservation of our environment.

Under Sadler, the General Land Office basically just handled mineral and grazing leasing on state land

Armstrong brought a more activist approach - grabbing federal funds for studies and taking on a controversial Coastal Zone Management Program.

That program attempts to set up an organized state permit system for developments along the environmentally delicate

Armstrong also carried on an unfruitful effort to make the state purchase the Anderson Ranch, a wild area on the Rio Grande that he fears will be privately developed.

Such enthusiastic efforts have brought accusations of empire building from some legislators and other bureaucrats. Except for the Anderson

Ranch, Armstrong has been remarkably successful at obtaining program funding from the legislature.

Rep. Carlisle Smith of Grand Prairie says a committee he serves on found the land office to be efficient and aggressive. 'The general image Bob gives is that he's real hard vorking," Smith says.

In order to get as much done as possible, Armstrong keeps a detailed daily schedule, but there always is room for something im-

David Anderson, University of Texas law professor and former reporter, remembers a Armstrong invited him on a fishing trip to the coast -right in the middle of a major legislative battle.

Armstrong flew his small plane to Matagorda Island for a lunch-hour fishing break, never discussing the legislature.Upon their return, Armstrong changed clothes in a restroom and jumped back into the fight.

"It impressed me how he could just turn everything off and then pick it up again, Anderson says. "I guess that elps him survive. Thanks to the shortsighted stinginess of some 1845

congressmen, Texas today is considerable if those congressmen hadn't thought $10 million too high a price for 175 million acres of untamed Texas land. It seems that during its nine years of independence, the Republic of Texas had gone that far into the red. When statehood negotiations began, Texas offered its public land in exchange for federal assumption of the

Nope, Congress said, remembering that the entire only $15 million a few years So Texas kept that debt and became the only state to enter the Union retaining title to its public land. There are two ironies to this; 1) In the Compromise of 1850 Congress settled a dispute over the Texas

Being spurned Congress didn't keep Texas from giving away a lot of land to others. It gave land to colonizers, w railroads, to veterans. It used land as a commodity, such as trading some for granite for a new

That stopped about the turn of the century when someone woke up to the possibility of mineral wealth under the land. The state quit giving away land and started fighting for it, including a long legal contest with the federal government over the oil-rich tidelands.

Today the Texas land commissioner supervises a border by paying off the debt 22.5 million-acre empire that General Land Office is for public education rather than desert palaces.

Last April Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong gave an oil and gas royalty check for $1 billion to the state treasurer. That put the Permanent School Fund from which dividends are used for education - over the $2 billion mark.

Submerged land along the coast and rivers makes up a large part of the state's treasure. The University of Texas System has more than three million acres and other state agencies and special schools about an equal

Texas has mineral rights on another eight million acres and outright ownership of 870,000 acres, most in West Texas.

That work apparently will be sharply curtailed after next year, however, Gov. Bill Clements has vetoed 1980-81 funding for the Environmental Management Unit that carried out

VILLAGE AT THE SPRING A SUBDIVISION TO THE CITY OF BIG SPRING, TEXAS EXCLUSIVE RESIDENTIAL LOTS

BEAUTIFUL TOWNHOUSE TYPE

The Village at the Spring is not just another sub-division that has lots to build on, but a delaxe community, sparse on difficult to maintain yards, and long on lovely condominiums and homesites. Minimum yard maintenance was the key word in the planning and the zoning of the land. Natural growth left as it has always been, is encouraged at every turn on lots, by-ways, along planned paths and the shore area of Companche Trail Lake. The vistas created for the lots on these natural paths and the lake against the nearby mountains, with the historic "big, spring", the part of the city's skyline, is unequaled in West Texas anywhere. Easy maintenance flows over into the building restrictions; clay tile roof is required on homes, not only for the performance and maintenance aspect, but to add to the beauty of the sile, there next to the lake. Together with stucco or brick walls makes homes greatly functional and gives an appearance that is sure to be called Mediterranean or Californian, but for our own West Texas use, it may be called Southwestern. Only 1soo square feet of building is required by the architectural control committee, because quality is more important here than size. Lots are living size, not "working" size. A typical lot is about 72 feet wide. Pier and beam or split level building works well on some of the scenic lots, so as to minimize expansive dirt work and to preserve the natural low maintenance beauty of the land. The "Village" has easy naturals for lessure living, the best in the entire area. Look at it this way:

Easy access from a major thoroughfare (U.S. 87 South)
Close to regional shopping centers, Coronado and Highland South
Free access for all residents to the beaches and lake — sailing, fishing, and paddle boating may be enjoyed. Recent catches include a 47 pound catfish and an 8 pound bass.

Townhouses are being built for condominium living on the property.

A small shopping plaza is planned for the future.

The master planned property under development lays along the South shore of Comanche Trail Lake. Highway U.S. 87 South on the East and generally along Comanche Trail Park on the West. A great deal of planning has been done, by leading professionals to insure that "Village at the Spring" will be a fun place to live, in a highly respected area of the city, and in a manner successful people desire.

Bad reaction due to misunderstandings

HOUSTON (AP) - Donald O'Hara says there is indication much of the bad reaction to the gasoline shortage rests on two misunderstandings.

O'Hara, president of the National Petroleum Refiners Association, says he reached that conclusion after listening to days of congressional hearing testimony centering on charges there is a conspiracy to reduce refinery runs and hold gasoline in storage.

first misunderstanding, he said, is a contention a reduction of a few percentage points in utilization represents a reduction in the total amount of product manufactured

The second misunderstanding, he said, centers on a belief an allocation to dealers of 85 percent of last year's supply indicates the refiner is distributing only 85 percent of last year's total.

In both situations, O'Hara said, one simple fact has been almost completely overlooked.

In the five month period, January-May, refineries processed more crude oil and manufactured more gasoline than any corresponding five month period in history," O'Hara said in a report to the membership of the trade group that represents practically all of the nation's oil refiners.

This would appear to be a central fact in establishing that the 'shortage' is really the increased

John A. Mathis sentenced

ODESSA - Joseph Allen Mathis, owner of an adult movie house, was sentenced to a maximum fine of $1,000 and sentenced to 180 days in jail after a jury found him guilty Friday of commercial exhibition of obscene material.

The charges stem from a raid May 14 on the Art Flick Theater during which the films, "Debbie Goes Dallas" and "Deep Throat" were confiscated

O'Hara said refining executives and top officials the Department of Defense have testified total crude runs to refineries have actually been higher than comparable periods in previous year He said it appears the misunderstanding that the reduction in refinery per-centage utilization has resulted in less gasoline has been encouraged by some who should know better.

For example, O'Hara continued, A.F. Grospiron, president of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, released an eight-page statement chargthe industry was deliberately creating a shortage by reducing refinery runs.

"If Mr. Grospiron's sources were as good as he claims, he would have been aware of the fact gasoline deliveries from refineries were actually higher than last year's levels, in fact they averaged about 50,000 barrels or more the first five months this year than in the first five months of 1978," O'Hara said.

In discussing the misunderstanding that refiners are distributing only 85 percent of last year's gasoline total, O'Hara made reference to testimony by Alfred F. Dougherty Jr., director of the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Competition

In testimony before the House consumer and monetary affairs subcommittee, Dougherty said most major refiners have been allocating substantially less than 100 percent of the 1978 base period supplies to customers and that the Department of Energy reports refiners allocated much less gasoline to dealers during the first quarter than during the same 1978 period.

"If refiners are making as much gasoline, but selling much less, the refiners' gasoline stocks must be building," Dougherty said.
"But DOE and the American Petroleum Institute have reported gasoline stocks are dropping. Where is the missing gasoline. We are presently unable to answer this question.

Noting that Dougherty used the words "customers" and "dealers" interchange ably. O'Hara said the fact is oil companies are required to supply 5 percent of their sales to the states for the state set asides.

"And they are also required to supply priority customers, agriculture for example, before making allocations to dea 'rs. O'Hara said.

These priority orders are estimated to require 10 to 12 percent of the refiners output

"I learned that to do an experiment you have to have a purpose, hypothesis and procedure. You get the results then make a conclusion on the experiment. I also learned Newton's three laws of motion is: For every action there is an equal and opposite reaction. I also learned to make the first part of a rocket," states Sherri Criswell in her "I learned yesterday" session of the Summer Enrichment Program science class.

"I learned that to experiment isn't just a game. You have to work out something to find out something. Everything is more than meets the eye. For every action there is an equal and opposite reaction," says John Box in Joe Reed's science class of the Summer Enrichment Program for selected students.

So goes the "I learned" session in the science program for fifth and sixth grade A and B students each morning for two weeks in June.

The Summer Enrichment Program of the Big Spring Independent School District involves recommended fourth, fifth and sixth graders from all the elementary schools in Big Spring. The program this summer involves a total of approximately 75 disciplined and interested students in ceramics and science. Each session is two weeks, or ten days of class work and field trips under highly qualified in-structors and assistants, from 9 a.m.

The criteria for selection of students for the program varies with the subject matter. Science requires students with an A or B average who are self disciplined enough to operate in an unstructured setting. Ceramics was limited to those who are interested in crafts and are highly motivated to achieve.

Mrs. Darlene Archer, fifth grade teacher at College Heights School, taught ceramics to selected students who had completed the fourth and fifth grades the first two weeks ir

BIG SPRING, TEXAS, JUNE 24, 1979

She and her assistants, Shirley Marriott and two volunteers, Mrs. Shirley Bell and Mrs. Carol Stephens, helped the students to complete four main projects and numerous small ones. The four projects were an eight inch Christmas tree complete with 75 lights and electrical system, one large flower pot, a pencil holder and a large candlestick.

The ceramics class did some bisque stains on small items. Bisque is the ceramic which has been fired one time on which bisque stains and paints are applied. It takes much patience and skill to do a good job with bisque stains, but they are less expensive to do than glazes.

Joe Reed, Big Spring High School science teacher, is teaching the second session of WONDERS OF SCIENCE to 36 A and B fifth and sixth grade students at Big Spring High

The areas of geology, meteorology, physics and biology are being explored, using numerous experiments and activities, including three field trips. The first field trip was to the Agricultural Experiment Station north of Big Spring Thursday. The second field trip will be to the Morgan Ranch Rock Quarry to gather fossils and to look at reptiles. The third trip will be the last day of the program, June 29 at College Heights School on Goliad to launch their rockets.

Some of the experiments performed or observed by the students are observing the changes that take place as water boils, a candle experiment a pendulum experiment and making a nephoscope and a balloon barometer.

Compound microscopes will be used to draw algae and stereomicroscopes will be used to look through and draw different objects.

A discussion of fossils and how to hunt for them will be held the day preceding the field trip to the Morgan Ranch Rock Quarry to gather them. Upon their return to class the students will begin leaching the fossils and other artifacts found. The next day the fossils will be removed from the leaching acid and dried, identified and mounted on poster board.

Each day the students work on their rockets. On the last day, June 29, they will launch the rockets and calculate the altitude and the speed each at-

A discussion will be held on ways the pupils can use what they have

The science students Tuesday were testing their powers of observation by watching the changes that occur in boiling water. The students gathered around a beaker of water over a gas flame observing first bubbles beginning to form on the bottom, then rising as the top of the beaker becomes cloudy. The bubbles continue to rise faster and steam begins to escape. Convection currents are formed, up one side and down the other. Reed explains that all water has dissolved oxygen in it which makes the bubbles in the water. The students observe that the water level is going down as the water is vaporizing. A small string in the water is going around rapidly, pulled

Reed pours in a quantity of salt as the students watch the boiling stop. One student observed that the reason the boiling stopped was that the salt was cool, reducing the temperature. Reed concurred, then explained also that pure water dissolves more rapidly than water with any other chemical in it, therefore the addition of the salt regardless of temperature would have the same result.

The next experiment involved swinging pendulums. The studen each learned whether or not the speed which the pendulum operated depended on the length of the pen-

Goliad Middle School had 20 students participating in the science program, Marcy Elementary School had 13 students in the ceramics program and five students in the science class. Kentwood Elementary had nine students in the ceramics class with seven pupils in science. College Heights had six students in the ceramics program and one student in the science class. Moss Elementary had five students in the ceramics program and two in the science program. Washington Elementary School had three in the ceramics program and one in the science Awards were presented to outstanding students after the first session of WONDERS OF SCIENCE, June 15. Charlie Bott was selected as Mr. Science and Annette Rodriguez won the Miss Science trophy. Brenda Shirey won the High Flight Rocket Award for her rocket which soared 379 feet in the air. Kyle Robbins won the Best Rocket Constructed trophy and Tim Carroll won the "fun" Crash and Burn Award. The trophies were engraved loving cups.

Americans find fish fascinating

Watch anyone - child or adult - gaze in wonder at a tropical fish tank and it's easy to see why fishkeeping is one of America's most popular pastimes. Bright, colorful tropical fish that peacefully swim through a miniature ocean are fascinating to children as well as adults. It's no wonder tropical fishkeeping is second only to photography, America's favorite hobby.

Over 20 million Americans own tropical aquariums housing a total of some 340 million fish, according to a survey conducted by Frost and Sullivan, New York. Over 90 percent of these aquatic pets are fresh-water species; salt water fish, while generally more colorful, require more care. There are a number of reasons why people find fish fascinating. First of all, for a minimal investment anyone can get their feet wet in the world of tropical fishkeeping. Fish, especially the fresh water species such as guppies, are perhaps the most inexpensive pets to

The extent to which a child or an adult - gets involved in setting up a tropical fish aquarium is, of course, a matter of personal choice. For as little as $15-$20, most pet shops sell a small tank, a few tropical fish, a box of food and plants.
