Local teacher accidentally shot to death by teen son in home

Elizabeth Ann Schattel, 51, 4305 Connally, a local teacher, died Saturday after an accidental shooting at her home.

Police were summoned to the Schattel home, 4:15 p.m. Saturday, immediately after the shooting occurred. Mrs. Schattel was pronounced dead on arrival at Malone-Hogan Hospital at 4:30 p.m.

According to Detective Ted Lancaster, Mrs. Schattel was helping her son Martin Edward Schattel, 19, pack for a fishing trip when the accident occurred. She was reportedly leaning over an ice chest in her kitchen while her son examined his .22 caliber pistol, when the gun went off.

The bullet struck her on the left side.

"This was strictly an accident, and there were no circumstances to warrant a further investigation of any kind," explained Lancaster.

Funeral services will be held at 4 p.m. Monday in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with the Rev. Elra Phillips officiating. Burial will be in Trinity Memorial Park.

Rosary will be recited 7 p.m. Sunday in Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel by the Rev. Bernard Guley.

Born Sept. 22, 1927 in Palestine, Texas, Mrs. Schattel attended Texas Women's College in Denton. She married Lee Schattel June 21, 1949 in Palestine. They came to Big Spring in August, 1949.

She was a school teacher and taught at Elbow School the first three years in Howard County. She had taught in Big Spring schools the past 23 years, including Bauer Elementary this year.

She was a Methodist, a member of Delta Kappa Gamma sorority, Texas State Teachers Association, and National Education Association.

Survivors include her husband Lee Schattel, of the home; a daughter, Sharon Bailey, Big Spring; a son, Martin Schattel, of the home; her mother, Mrs. Winnie Hunt, Big Spring and a brother, C.R. Hunt Jr., of Houston.

'HEE HAW' — Evangelist Billy Graham will make a comedy appearance in the syndicated television show "Hee Haw." According to a program spokesman Graham appears at the end of a show and says "The Bible has humor and God has a sense of humor... He has to have a sense of humor when He looks down here at some of us."

Two truckers dodge bullets

The trend of continuing violence against truckers may have found its way to Big Spring Saturday.

Although investigators are unsure of the motive, two truckers northbound on IS 20 were shot at 2:35 a.m. Saturday.

According to Sheriff's Deputy Robert Puente, Estill Jones, Fries, Va., and Arthur Lee Pierson, Abilene, were traveling in two different rigs between mile markers 177 and 178 when shots rang out.

One of the shots, thought to have come from a large caliber weapon, struck the air conditioning unit on Pierson's truck. Damage was estimated at $200.

The other shot hit the right door of Jones' truck, causing $50 worth of damage.

Neither driver was injured.

In the confusion immediately following the shooting, neither driver could give a clear description of his assailants. The only lead that law enforcement officials have to go on is that the shots were thought to have been fired by two men shadowing the trucks on the south service road in a late model, white Ford Thunderbird.

Herald Citizens' Advisory Board issues call for young, aged vols

Persons who would serve as members of the newly organized Herald Citizens' Advisory Board, especially young people of high school or junior college age and senior citizens, are still being encouraged to volunteer for the assignment, according to Herald Publisher Tom Watson.

Watson said that the 11 people who have agreed to serve on the panel represent an excellent cross-section of the Herald readers but the input of students and senior citizens is still needed.

Present plans call for the board to meet the third Tuesday evening of each month. Each person chosen will be asked to serve on a sub-committee. The panel will have an interim meeting at 7:30 p.m., July 17, Chairman Elma Martinez says.

Those who would like to serve on the committee can contact either Watson or Tommy Hart, Herald editor, by calling 263-7331.

Gas rationing sentiment swells

By The Associated Press

Sentiment is swelling for a nationwide gasoline rationing plan, but work on any plan will not begin until Congress returns from its July Fourth recess, a period in which many Americans face "stay-at-home" holidays because of empty fuel tanks.

Despite the hoped-for delivery of new July allocations, gasoline was expected to be in extremely tight supply, especially in the Northeast, through the Independence Day holiday next Wednesday.

"Rely on anything but the auto. Don't drive this weekend," said New York Gov. Hugh Carey as vacationers in many states were warned to drive no farther than half a tank of gasoline could take them. Tourism was reported sharply down in some spots.

In a front-page editorial Saturday, the New York Post called on President Carter to impose rationing. "Uncertainty about prospects for the rest of the summer and apprehension over fuel shortages next winter have created a spreading mood of panic and frustration," the Post said.

Also Saturday, the U.S. Conference of Mayors urged the federal government to consider special allocations for cities.

In a survey of 50 large cities and 50 smaller communities, the conference found gas station lines in 47 cities, odd-even sales in 26 cities and lower supply allocations in 95 cities.

For Misty, life hangs in balance

By EILEEN McGUIRE

When people asked whether she wanted a boy or a girl, Susie Bowers gave a classic response. It didn't matter, just as long as the baby was healthy.

But it was not a healthy baby that she gave birth to Jan. 3, 1979. John A. and Susie Bower's infant daughter, Misty Dawn, was born with a defective heart.

"I was scared," Susie says of the day that she was told of the, not one, but two birth defects in her baby's heart. "I knew something was wrong, but I didn't think it would be that serious."

An unusable artery and a hole in a wall of Misty's heart were discovered when Misty, then 5 weeks old, was rushed to Texas Tech Medical Center at Lubbock when her heart began to falter.

"The doctor didn't find anything wrong with her when she was born," said Susie who described her daughter as being "a kind of gray color."

"Once in awhile, she'd get kind of blue around her mouth," Susie continued, "but it always went away. One day, when she was 5 weeks old, she started turning blue and it didn't go away. She just got bluer and bluer."

Susie said that the baby had undergone a routine examination just the week before. The baby's erratic heartbeat was overlooked, she said.

She had made an appointment to take Misty to another doctor because the infant was not keeping her formula down. Misty began turning blue several days before the scheduled appointment.

"She turned dark blue. I took her in and the doctor listened to her heart and ordered chest x-rays. Another doctor, Dr. Owen (Dr. B.R. Owen at Malone-Hogan Hospital) told me I had three hours to get her to Lubbock. She was in heart failure."

Ninety minutes later, Susie and her mother, Mrs. Monty (June) McGuire, entered the emergency room entrance of the medical center with Misty. They had driven.

Misty's paternal grandparents are John and Freidal Bowers.

"Her heartbeat was 190 instead of 110 to 120 like it should have been," said Susie. "They did a heart catheterization on her and ordered Lanoxin, a heart medication, to slow the rate down."

For the next five days, Susie lived in her baby's room in the Pediatric Intensive Care Unit of the medical center. A machine monitored Misty's heart and her nutrition came from I.U.V.s.

On the sixth day, the crisis had passed and Misty was moved to another hospital room. She was released on the seventh day.

Susie's husband, whose job had taken him to New Mexico, arrived in Lubbock shortly after Misty's admission. He was not with Susie when she was told what was wrong with their baby.

She said she didn't know what the medical term was for Misty's condition. "I don't think there is one," she said. "All the blood that comes from her lungs empties into the right side of her heart instead of both sides."

"The artery on the left side is closed. There's no opening to let the blood out so it all goes through a blood vessel on the right. The doctor told me that the vessel had enlarged to carry the extra blood."

Misty's second defect, a hole in the wall between the top chambers of her heart, was keeping her alive. It was as if nature had provided a second defect to help Misty cope with the first.

According to Susie, "The hole was only two-eighths of an inch big at first. The doctor in Lubbock had to create a larger hole to control her circulation."

She said that the doctor inserted a deflated balloon-type device through a tube that had been inserted in Misty's heart. The "balloon" was then blown up in order to make the heart tissue rip.

The doctor had explained to Susie that scar tissue resulting from a jagged tear in the heart tissue would keep the opening from completely closing. If the tissue had been cut, leaving even edges, however, the edges would probably have grown back together.

"He actually helped create Misty's second defect," said Mrs. McGuire. "But he had to, to keep her alive," Susie added.

HER LAST DAY — Susie Bowers inserts Section B into Section A on her last day at work as a carrier for the Big Spring Herald. Mrs. Bowers, who went to work for the Herald a month ago to help pay medical expenses for her daughter's birth defect, cannot afford to continue working. She cannot afford to quit either and is troubled over her daughter's condition and ensuing costs.

SUSIE BOWERS AND DAUGHTER, MISTY "Her heart could stop anytime."

place of employment. The plan covered hospitalization costs and a percentage of outpatient expenses. When the company for whom her husband worked dissolved, the Bowers were not told that they could have the policy converted to a personal policy.

Susie said that a relative suggested that it was possible and that it was only after eight long distance phone calls and "a lot of run around," that the conversion took place.

She suspects that the insurance company wanted to avoid covering a child with a birth defect.

The insurance policy now covers only a percentage of hospitalization. It does not cover outpatient visits to the doctor.

"And its the little visits that are eating them up," stated Mrs. McGuire.

"Susie explained that any time Misty shows any signs of illness, "even a runny nose," she must be taken to the doctor. And every visit to the doctor entails blood and other tests and x-rays to insure that the problem is not heart failure.

"Everytime I take her to the doctor," Susie said, "it costs $50."

Recently, Misty received a routine vaccination against diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis. Many babies will experience a slight rise in temperature after receiving such a vaccination and Misty was no exception. But her fever caused a special alarm.

"I took her back to the doctor. He told me it was probably due to the vaccination, but we had to make sure."

Tops on TV: Popcorn and movies

Say, what's with these TV networks anyway? It looks like another tepid summer night on the small screen. Some may find relief in the anemic musical "1776" airing at 6 p.m. on Channel 11. Others may want to tune in on NBC's answer to CBS's "60 Minutes," "Tom Snyder is the guest host of "Prime Time Sunday" which airs at 9 o'clock, and will feature a look at the bizarre collection methods of the Hare Krishna religious cult. All in all, it looks like a good night to go out to the movies.

Outside: Broiling

The forecast calls for continuing fair and hot weather through Monday. High on both days is expected to be near 102 degrees. Tonight's low should be in the low 70s. Winds are from the south at 15 to 20 miles per hour.

Misty Dawn was born with defective heart

"Her heartbeat was over 150. The doctor said it was probably because of the fever, but we had to get the fever down to see whether it was the fever or the medicine."

It took several hours at the hospital to reduce Misty's fever, Susie said, and then tests were ordered.

"Her heartbeat is 120 now," Susie said. She then produced a stethoscope which she uses at home to monitor Misty's heart. The heartbeat was, as Susie said it would be, very erratic.

If Misty survives that long, she will undergo open heart surgery at age 1 or 2.

"The doctors in Lubbock wanted to do it when she was 3 months old, but she would've only had a 20 percent chance of making it through the operation," Susie said.

"They told me that the longer we can wait, the better chance we'll have."

"And even then, she'll only have maybe a 50 percent chance," Mrs. McGuire added.

Meanwhile, Susie and her husband face a day-to-day risk that each day they spend with their only child may be the last.

"Her heart could stop any time," Mrs. McGuire stated.

Scattered about the Bowers' living room are 8x10 portraits of the little girl. Susie said that she takes advantage of TG&Y and other stores' photography specials.

"I get her picture taken every month. I know that some people probably think I shouldn't be spending money on pictures when we've got all of these medical expenses, but if I do lose her, these pictures will be all that I'll have left of her."

She displayed the first of the portraits, taken when Misty was a month old.

"The finished picture came in the same day I found out that she had a birth defect," she said.

"All these medical expenses," that Susie had referred to, were a large pile of computer statements sitting in the middle of her kitchen table.

To the Texas Tech Medical Center in Lubbock, she owes over $250. She owes over $400 to Malone-Hogan for outpatient visits for Misty and over $100 to the emergency room. The premium on the Bowers' health insurance is also due, $177.61 every three months.

"This is going to run out," Susie said, referring to her insurance bill. "There's a limit of $1,050 on surgical benefits. Misty's surgery is going to be a lot higher than that. The first time she was in the hospital, the bill was over $1,500."

At the current time, Misty's hospital expenses are covered partly by the insurance and partly by Crippled Children's Fund. The Bowers attempt to pay the balance themselves.

Roger Huey, a member of the local March of Dimes Chapter, has indicated that that organization might be able to help with transportation costs to out-of-town hospitals.

The rest of Misty's expenses, especially a quickly-rising outpatient treatment bill, have Susie worried.

"I'm afraid," she said. "When Misty reaches the limit of her health insurance benefits, I'm afraid that she'll be cut off."

"No other insurance company is going to insure her heart. The only reason that this company did was because we already had the insurance before she was born."

Another company might cover everything except her heart, but all of her medical expenses are because of her heart. A routine trip to the doctor involves more than routine expenses.

Susie expressed a fear that if she and her husband, who works for Price Construction Company, cannot keep up with Misty's bills, treatment may eventually be denied.

"These kids have only been married three years," Mrs. McGuire said. "They've got all the expenses of a young couple just starting out plus this. They had three weeks of emergency expenses to deal with at one time during one of Misty's emergencies."

Friday was Susie's last day of work as a Herald carrier, a job she took to help pay Misty's medical expenses. She quit because she couldn't afford the expense of working.

"I can't leave Misty with just anybody," she said. "Whoever takes care of her has to know what signs to watch for in case she goes into heart failure."

A day care center is out of the question, she said, because they aren't equipped to handle Misty's need for close and constant supervising.

"And she can't be exposed to any illness because she can't fight infection."

A friend of Susie's had been caring for Misty in her absence, but Susie said that the babysitter expense plus other working expenses just added up to too much.

Despite the expenses of Misty's condition, Susie is not bitter. Her attitude is one of acceptance and courage.

"She's special. She was given to me because somebody thought I could take care of her. She wouldn't have been given to me if I thought I couldn't take of her."

"She means even more to me because I know that she might not be around much longer."

Festivities presided over by 98-year-old Queen Beth ROCK VALLEY, Iowa (AP) — Beth Sandschultze is no ordinary festival queen. She didn't win any bunting suit competition. And she doesn't have a rhinestone tiara.

Beth Sandschultze is 98 years old.

Still, she's Miss Centennial to the 2,500 townsfolk and 3,000 visitors who joined in a three-day celebration of this little farm community's 100th birthday.

Miss Sandschultze has been around almost as long as the town itself. She came here in 1881.

She rode in the centennial parade Friday, waving her fragile arms like a signalman and smiling from a red convertible.

"I didn't really want to do this," she said, blinking behind thick glasses. "But I'm the oldest one in town, you know. There was nothing to be done."

The little farming community is proud of its heritage. Men, women and children dressed for the centennial in modern copies of turn-of-the-century clothing, and yellowing pictures of great-grandparents were taken out of closets.

People came from all over the United States and from other nations to look up friends and neighbors and to gaze over the rich Iowa fields their ancestors once worked.

They came from Washington state, North Carolina, Texas, Louisiana — even the Bahamas. In the Centennial Center on Main Street, a microfilm record of the 1900 census for northwestern Iowa was set up.

Even though the town was swamped with visitors for the celebration, everyone still seemed to know everyone else.

Walking through the carnival, watching the parades, beating the Iowa sun in the taverns, they talked of families and friends, relatives and history.

Frank McGill, a feisty Irishman in a top hat, was grand marshal for the parade. He is 90 years old.

McGill and his family never left Rock Valley. He has been practicing law here since 1919, and still works in partnership with his son.

"It's the people," he said. "I like the people here. I'd never leave."

VOTE meeting called Tuesday

The regular meeting of the Vote of the Electorate (VOTE) will be held in the Howard County courtroom at 3 p.m., Tuesday.

Among the items on the agenda will be a discussion of the failure of the city to post signs banning through truck from certain streets and to otherwise enforce the newly-established truck routes.

The public has an open invitation to attend.

Grateful publisher handing $1 million in bonuses to staffers

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — A grateful publisher is handing out more than $1 million in bonuses to his employees for helping build a solid newspaper, one that has at least a decent reputation.

Although reluctant to discuss the individual amounts in detail, publisher Ken Johnson said Saturday that the bonuses are being paid to some 200 people, who were employed by the Daily Sentinel on April 16, 1979.

That was the day Johnson announced an agreement to sell the newspaper to Cox Enterprises Inc., owner of the Atlanta Constitution.

"I'm laying some money on the troops," he said. "They are my friends, and they've been through good, bad and otherwise. This is a chance to do something for them in a meaningful way."

"All I'm really doing is trying to share with the staff some of the proceeds of the sale," he added. "It's a very positive way of saying thanks."

Johnson said the bonuses ranged from "two or three weeks pay" to several thousand dollars. The Denver Post reported Saturday that some were as large as $40,000.

Johnson termed reports that one staffer received $100,000 "on the high side."

He said he began calling in staffers individually Friday to thank them for a job well done and expects to complete the process early this week.

"They really are very emotional moments," he said. "Reactions vary from exclamations of 'Oh my God,' to one that said, 'I'm not worth that much.'"

Johnson, 46, began as a copy carrier with the newspaper in 1949 and worked his way up to become publisher in June 1970. He said he plans to stay on with the Daily Sentinel, which has a daily circulation of 30,000 and 40,000 Sunday, at least through the 1980 election.

The sale to Cox became effective June 1, but the staff and management remained unchanged.

Johnson said the bonuses fulfill a promise he made when he announced the newspaper's sale.

"The most interesting thing out of it is it gives us a chance to chat for just a few minutes," he said. "I guess in some respects it gives me a chance to reassure the staff that I will still be here and it's the same newspaper."

Some publishers who sell their newspapers "walk off without a backward glance," Johnson said.

Medicare costs up 50 cents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 27.1 million elderly and disabled Americans will be paying an extra 50 cents a month in Medicare premiums starting Sunday to help cover their doctor bills.

The premium will now be $8.70 a month, up from $8.20. The increase was announced early this year.

Most of the elderly opt for Medicare's supplemental Part B insurance coverage and have the premiums deducted directly from their Social Security checks. There are 24.3 million persons over age 65 and 2.8 million disabled persons in the program.

There is no premium for Part A of Medicare, which covers hospital bills.

Hot sun scorching sections of Texas

By the Associated Press

The hot summer sun scorched most of Texas Saturday, although a few scattered thundershowers dampened and cooled many residents near Clarksville in the northeast region.

By mid afternoon, the mercury had climbed to 103 degrees at Wichita Falls, 100 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 97 at El Paso, 96 at Tyler and 95 at Abilene and San Angelo.

Dry winds blew over much of the state with southerly to southeasterly gusts along the Rio Grande Valley at 10 to 15 miles an hour.

Forecasters called for fair to partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures through Sunday with a chance of a few isolated afternoon and evening showers in the Panhandle.

Police beat

Gangs sock, slash, shoot

Two local gangs clashed near the intersection of Northwest Second and Gregg, 12:03 a.m. Saturday.

According to an estimate by witnesses, over 35 youths armed with wooden clubs, knives and tire irons battled in the middle of the street near the intersection.

"It looked like two local factions were involved. They managed to tie up traffic before we were able to break it up," said Detective Ted Lancaster.

Theodore Diaz, 25, 1504 Wood, was beaten, and cut over the right eye during the melee. He was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital where he received several stitches for the cut.

Ismael Juarez Jr., 18, 1003 N.E. 2nd, was also taken to Malone-Hogan for the treatment of two cuts. But the fight didn't end there for him.

At 2:40 a.m. Saturday, two shots were fired at Juarez, and five more shots were fired at his home. Police later arrested a male juvenile thought to have fired the shots, and confiscated a .22 caliber rifle containing a spent shell from him.

The juvenile may face charges of assault with a deadly weapon and discharging a firearm within the city limits.

Tijuana, Mex. (AP) — Mexican authorities, pleased with results of their Tijuana crackdown on illegal aliens and green card forgers, plan to expand the anti-crime drive eastward to Tecate and Mexicali.

Baja California Gov. Roberto de la Madrid said the two cities are earmarked for "carbon copies" of the campaign initiated in the Tijuana last week.

According to the United States Border Patrol, the raids on smuggling and green card forgery sharply reduced the number of undocumented aliens apprehended.

Special events planned for Big Spring's 4th

Several special events are planned in the city to celebrate the Fourth of July.

The All Veterans Planning Council will sponsor an Independence Day Ceremony on the east side of the Howard County Court House, beginning at 8:30 a.m. Members of the council and local Gold Star Mothers will lay wreaths at the site.

The 10th Annual Highland South Parade is scheduled for 10 a.m., Wednesday. All Howard County residents are invited not only to attend, but also to participate by decorating a bicycle, a tricycle, or preparing a costume.

Chairman of the planning committee this year is Doris Huihregtse. She announced that the parade would again feature a kazoo band, a firetruck, a color guard and a motorcycle escort.

All entrants should meet at the east end of Highland Drive by 9:30 a.m. in order to be judged. Categories in which silver dollars will be awarded include: tricycles; bicycles; costumes; wagons or three-wheel vehicles; motor driven vehicles.

Dan Wilkins will be this year's master of ceremonies, with Dr. Brian Caplan, a Highland South resident and a native of South Africa, giving the patriotic speech.

Refreshments will be served following the program. For further information, call Mrs. Huihregtse at 263-6525, or Polly Mays at 267-6192.

Gangs sock, slash, shoot

Two local gangs clashed near the intersection of Northwest Second and Gregg, 12:03 a.m. Saturday.

According to an estimate by witnesses, over 35 youths armed with wooden clubs, knives and tire irons battled in the middle of the street near the intersection.

"It looked like two local factions were involved. They managed to tie up traffic before we were able to break it up," said Detective Ted Lancaster.

Theodore Diaz, 25, 1504 Wood, was beaten, and cut over the right eye during the melee. He was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital where he received several stitches for the cut.

Ismael Juarez Jr., 18, 1003 N.E. 2nd, was also taken to Malone-Hogan for the treatment of two cuts. But the fight didn't end there for him.

At 2:40 a.m. Saturday, two shots were fired at Juarez, and five more shots were fired at his home. Police later arrested a male juvenile thought to have fired the shots, and confiscated a .22 caliber rifle containing a spent shell from him.

The juvenile may face charges of assault with a deadly weapon and discharging a firearm within the city limits.

Border crackdown

Tijuana, Mex. (AP) — Mexican authorities, pleased with results of their Tijuana crackdown on illegal aliens and green card forgers, plan to expand the anti-crime drive eastward to Tecate and Mexicali.

Baja California Gov. Roberto de la Madrid said the two cities are earmarked for "carbon copies" of the campaign initiated in the Tijuana last week.

According to the United States Border Patrol, the raids on smuggling and green card forgery sharply reduced the number of undocumented aliens apprehended.

Wind storm kills two in Tennessee

By The Associated Press
An apparent tornado demolished a mobile home in Tennessee on Saturday, killing a man and an infant and critically injuring a woman, authorities said.

In Louisiana, violent winds whipped through Deer Lake, while about 150 people were taking part in a fishing derby on Old River, a tributary of the Mississippi. The winds stirred up 8-foot waves.

Met gets grant

NEW YORK (AP) — The Metropolitan Museum of Art has been awarded a $1.5-million grant for the construction and equipping of a new, enlarged and modernized Paintings Conservation Center.

"This facility is now under construction and will be completed in the fall of 1979," according to the museum.

The grant was made by the Sherman Fairchild Foundation and the facility will be named the Sherman Fairchild Paintings Conservation Center.

capsizing boats, and uprooted trees on both sides of the river.

One woman suffered a heart attack but was reported in good condition at a hospital. No other serious injuries were reported.

The National Weather Service said the mobile home in Gainesboro, Tenn., was destroyed early Saturday while a tornado watch was in effect in the area, about 50 miles northeast of Nashville. The home was on a secluded hilltop, and it could not be confirmed whether a tornado actually touched down.

Names of the victims were withheld until relatives were notified.

The Louisiana storm struck about 10 a.m. during the fishing contest. Authorities accounted for all the participants four hours later.

"We don't know whether it was a tornado or not," said Joanne McMurtry, operator of the Deer Park Boat Camp, sponsor of the fishing event. "The winds came and tipped over some boat trailers on land, but it looked like the water was hit worst," she said.

TORNADO HITS ALGONA — This funnel cloud which caused heavy damage and cost two persons their lives was photographed Thursday night by John Cullen seconds before it demolished this motel in Algona, Iowa.

A woman, lower left, runs for shelter. Cullen made the picture and scurried to safety to the basement of a nearby restaurant.

Screaming skyjacker subdued

MIAMI (AP) — A swarthy, bottle-wielding man screaming in Spanish tried to hijack an Eastern Airlines flight Saturday but was subdued by crewmen and passengers on the Miami-bound flight, an airlines spokesman said.

Eastern Flight 932, a Lockheed 1011 jumbo jet en route from San Juan, Puerto Rico, landed on schedule at Miami International Airport at 12:22 p.m. There were no reports of injuries among the 293 passengers and 13 crew members.

FBI agents, who took the man into custody soon after the plane landed, identified him as Igoberio Gonzalez Sanchez, 46, a Cuban native who lives in Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico.

FBI agent Welton Merry said: "He said he believes in (Cuban President Fidel) Castro's philosophy and wanted to go back to Cuba to join the revolution. He said the only way to get back was to hijack the plane."

Authorities said Gonzalez Sanchez would be arraigned Monday on federal charges of aircraft piracy.

"The door was pushed open and a flight attendant said, 'There's a man trying to take over the aircraft' and take it to Cuba."

Thompson said he, a male flight attendant and some passengers managed to subdue the man, described as in his mid 30s, swarthy and with Latin features.

"We first tied him up with my tie and then with wire from the cockpit," Thompson said, describing how he used his radio headset. "He was screaming in Spanish. He had a bottle which he was trying to use as a weapon. He tried to break it twice, unsuccessfully, I understand."

The pilot, visibly shaken after the incident, praised passengers aboard his plane. "The passengers were beautiful. Several helped us subdue him and hold him down," Thompson said.

Thompson said a passenger sitting next to the suspected hijacker said the man "seemed to be looking at his watch a lot. He seemed to be timing his movements; he seemed to know what he was doing."

Passengers and crew members were interviewed at Miami International Airport by FBI agents.

The incident came less than three weeks after a Delta Airlines flight was hijacked to Cuba while on a June 11 flight from New York to Miami. The 206 passengers and crew and the L1011 returned to Miami from Havana early the next morning.

The hijacker, a former Cuban air force pilot who had defected to the United States in 1969 at the controls of a MiG-17, stayed behind in Cuban custody.

On June 20, an American Airlines Boeing 727 flying from New York to Chicago with 137 passengers was hijacked by a Serbian nationalist who demanded that a jailed Serbian nationalist priest be freed.

That hijacker was eventually flown to Europe, but was talked into surrendering and returned to the United States.

RESTRAINS HIJACKER — Eastern Airlines pilot Capt. J.B. Thompson helped restrain a hijacker aboard EAL flight 932 from San Juan, Puerto Rico to Miami today. Thompson used first his tie then the cord from his headset to confine the hijacker.

Gearshifting crash course

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP) — Debra Draper's friends are giving her a crash course in how to drive a four-speed car with manual gearshift.

The 16-year-old high-school junior, whose driving experience has been limited to an automatic transmission, won a design contest for a basic white car. And that gave her the right to drive a manual shift car bearing her design triple stripe in bright yellow, orange and red for 24 days.

The contest, which drew more than 160 entries from local schools, was judged by the design department of an automotive company in Detroit.

The information unit, which Secretary Kreps indicated was the proper gift, was designed to break the information logjam between China and the United States.

Few shockers in agencies' reckonings

People living in the Southwest can understand why Spanish is the second language. Judging from the population growth, Spanish may overtake English as the leading tongue, not only in our area but throughout the United States.

According to U.S. Immigration Service reckoning, the annual increase in the U.S. population of Hispanic origin is 12 per cent. This includes natural increase and legal immigration plus the continuing massive inflow of illegal immigrants.

IT'S ONLY A question of time before Hispanics outnumber blacks as the largest minority group in the country. The best estimates have that happening inside ten years.

Growth, however, will not stop there. If it continues at 12 per cent for another 20 years, Hispanic-Americans will number some 250 million, half the total population and far away its largest single ethnic component.

That, at least, would be the inevitable mathematical result if present growth rates for all groups in the population continued unchanged for the next score of years, The Environmental Fund, which made the projections, observes. That, however, is what is least likely to happen.

Such population trends do not continue indefinitely. They could go up, but it is more common for a surge of explosive growth to be followed by a downturn.

THE MOST ALARMING thing about the prediction is that the nation will have a population of 500 million (that's half a billion) a generation from now. If that is the case, no matter the makeup in population, the quality of life is bound to suffer. That many people would sorely tax the nation's resources.

The change in the population ratio isn't sudden and neither is it shocking. The American population is never static but constantly changes. It is different in composition from what it was yesterday and will change again tomorrow.

Such change is the hallmark of a dynamic society.

Brace yourself, here's my first scoop of 1979. When President Carter visited the President of Mexico recently, he told him:

"Oil we want is your friendship."

CINDY COLE, Herald word maker, overheard over the sound of a cue stick:

"Say you!" cried a man accusingly to a "pal." "I put everything I had on that horse you gave me the tip on, and the nag lost."

"Lost!" exclaimed the friend. "He should have won in a walk." "Well, he sure couldn't," retorted the loser, "but he tried it that way."

"YANKEE DOODLE DANDY"

Herald reporter-photographer Andrea Cohen, who celebrates her birthday on the Fourth of July, said the Senate is rubbing SALT in the president's wounds.

The Pennsylvania native wonders how we can make the rest of the world understand that Texas car owners don't fill their tanks from oil wells in their back yards.

Bouncy Bonnie DeLeon, Herald word chaser, asks: Would you call a health spa the last resort?

BEBE REBOZO has bought a place next door to Richard Nixon's home in California. They're getting close to having a majority of the Nixon Fan Club all bunched together in San Clemente.

The Nixons are leaving their home in the compound and moving into the house bought by Rebozo, but there's no move to set up a national shrine at San Clemente. What would they call it — Watergate West?

That travelin' man, Kenneth Hart, rolls out three minigags.

Boss: The best way to solve your problems around here is to work real hard.

New worker: What's the second best?

Kenneth conducts a question: If Congress goes through with its rail cutback, will Amtrak become Aren'trak?

Some people reportedly are storing gasoline drums in their garages even though one gallon equals the explosive force of 20 sticks of dynamite.

There goes the neighborhood.

I picked up a few tour books and noticed that most motels now say "Rates subject to change."

Meaning they are charging all the traffic will bear.

There are long lines at gasoline stations in California and other states, the price has skyrocketed and the administration said we may have to leave your cars home one day-a-week. So what does Congress do?

It meets to find out if we have a problem.

GOOD WITH THE FIGURES, the Herald's Therone Baker, who will be playing a tense tennis match with Sissy Mann at 1 p.m. today at the Dora Roberts Tennis Center, says:

Most American motorists still don't know much about the oil industry, but a lot of service station customers are beginning to understand what a dry hole is.

State Democratic delegate and advisor Oliver Cofer says:

Ted Kennedy's position is that he will support Jimmy Carter when he's right, and oppose him the other 99 percent of the time.

Big Brother

WASHINGTON — The beauty of government servants in Washington is that they are always willing to help American citizens, even when you don't want them to.

Now you have to follow me very closely on this one, or you'll get lost. The antitrust division of the Justice Department is suing the networks because they don't allow enough commercials on the air during prime time. According to a code agreed upon by the networks, TV commercials are limited to nine and a half minutes to every hour between eight and eleven o'clock.

BUT LAWYERS in Justice, who know what's best for us, have decided the less commercials you put on TV, the higher the cost, and therefore the consumer (that's, you and me) has to pay more for the product advertised.

Now I know you all have questions so I will try to answer them for you.

Q — Why do we have to have more commercials? There are too many on the air as it is.

A — Because the more commercials the networks show, the less it will cost the advertiser, and so he can pass his savings on to you.

Q — How much would we save?

A — Figuring cost per thousand, you would save as much as half a cent on a bar of soap, a quarter of a cent of a roll of toilet paper, and maybe five cents on a new car.

Q — Suppose we'd rather have the shows and pay the extra money, so we wouldn't be inflicted with the expensive deleted commercials?

A — Impossible. You have no say when the Justice Department institutes an antitrust suit. They know better than you do what's good for your welfare.

Q — IF THEY put on more and more commercials, then I'll stop watching television and the advertiser won't be able to sell his product. What happens then?

A — The advertiser will be forced to raise his prices for his goods because he won't be producing as much.

Q — Can't the Justice Department officials realize that the less commercials on TV, the more the public likes it?

A — No, they can't. For one reason, they're so busy thinking up antitrust suits such as this, they never have time to watch television. If the government lawyers can break the network code on TV commercial limitations, it will be a big feather in their caps. They can then go out and join a big private law firm specializing in defending this type of antitrust case.

Q — Why don't they spend our money and their time going after the oil companies and the big multinationals instead of messing around with how much advertising the public should have inflicted on it?

A — That's a good question, but when I called the antitrust division to ask them, everyone was out to lunch.

Q — Do you think this is a good thing or a bad thing for TV viewers?

A — It's a good thing if you enjoy watching commercials. But if you prefer to watch the programs, you could have trouble with it.

Q — What can I do as an American TV viewer to tell them it's the stupidest idea I ever heard of in my life.

A — Write to: BIG BROTHER in the care of Antitrust Division, Department of Justice, Washington, D.C., but don't be disappointed if no one answers your letter. They're all busy people, or they wouldn't be thinking up lawsuits like this one.

Heavy snorer may develop breathing woe

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My husband's a heavy snorer and has been for years. I do notice that sometimes at night he has a loss of breath (or seems to) and I wonder if this is serious — Mrs. J.D.

Heavy snorers can experience apnea (AP-nee-uh), which is the temporary stoppage of breathing. People with this problem may have it to some degree during the day. Hypoventilation (slow, shallow breathing) is a cause. That results in a building of carbon dioxide in the body, which may contribute to the breathing problem.

In a recent study, wives and husbands of persons with sleep disturbance often noted that it started after many years of heavy snoring. The direct cause of heavy snoring is thought to be a loss of tone in the tongue muscles, allowing it to fall back and obstruct normal air passages. If the muscles relax sufficiently breathing stops and the person wakes up.

Other facts from the study: 45 percent of normal people snore, and 25 percent admit to being habitual snorers. It is more common in older men, three times more in fat people.

With common "garden variety" snorers, I suspect the only problem is that they have the misfortune to go to sleep before the non-snorer, in which case ear plugs might be the only "cure" for the bed partner.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I know the difference between diverticulosis and diverticulitis has' been explained many times. But when one is told that he has one or the other it sort of goes in one ear and out the other. I always thought "osis" was far more serious than "itis." Also, I was led to believe that pockets in the bowel was referred to as diverticulitis. What is the difference between pockets and polyps? What is the treatment for the pockets problem? — M.H.

You have things reversed. The "osis" is the presence of the bowel pockets. Most people develop them. The "itis" means infection of the pockets, and obviously that is serious, requiring antibiotics. Both are treated with diet primarily, but different types. For the "osis," the diet emphasizes sufficient bulk. The inflamed pockets call for a diet low in bulk until the infection subsides. The booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," describes the condition and things that are done for it. For a copy, send 35-cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald. A polyp is a growth in mucous tissue. It has nothing to do with pockets. You should find out just what your problem really is.

Dear Dr. Ruble: You said that pernicious anemia is a lifelong problem, and that the body lacks a substance needed to use B-12 in the food. Can one be OK most of one's life and then develop pernicious anemia gradually, with age? — Mrs. P.J.

You are exactly right. In fact, pernicious anemia is rare under 30 and becomes more common after that. Once it appears, then a person has the problem for life and the B-12 shots are needed to correct the deficiency. Elderly persons with anemia, digestive problems and neuritis (numbness problems) should be checked for this.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I read that there is a substance you can take to coat the stomach and intestines to prevent absorption of calories and thus help you lose weight. Is there such a substance? — M.M.B.

In the first place, I doubt there is any substance to coat the digestive tract to prevent calorie (food) absorption. If there was and if it was used it would also prevent absorption of many essential vitamins and minerals and make you pretty ill. Better stick with a realistic weight loss plan.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I take vitamins every morning with my orange juice. Could that counteract the effect of the vitamins? — M.D.

No. Note: the juice is probably taking care of your normal vitamin C needs.

Dear Dr. Ruble: When a woman has had her uterus removed is it possible to have one transplanted? — Mrs. N.S. No.

You can lose weight if you really want to! The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Ruble in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I read in the Bible somewhere that Christians are not supposed to judge other people. Does this mean we should never take a stand against wrong ideas that other people have? — C.R.

DEAR C.R.: You are probably thinking of a passage like Matthew 7:1-2; "Do not judge, or you too will be judged. For in the same way you judge others, you will be judged" (New International Version). These words were spoken by Jesus to His disciples during the Sermon on the Mount.

When you look closely at what Jesus was saying in the Sermon on the Mount, you will see that He is warning us against a harsh judgmental spirit which looks down on others. Another way of putting it is to say that Jesus is warning us against pride — the kind of pride that says "I am better than you," and goes on to point out all the faults in another person which make him inferior to you. This is wrong, as Jesus says. One reason it is wrong is that we are all equal in the eyes of God. Each of us has sinned, and none of us can claim to be better than anyone else. "There is none righteous, no, not one" (Romans 3:10).

But on the other hand we are to exercise discernment, especially when it comes to wrong ideas. In fact, the failure of Christians to be discerning about ideas and beliefs they encounter every day is one of the greatest problems in the Christian community today. The Bible says, "Do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits to see whether they are from God, because many false prophets have gone out into the world" (1 John 4:1, NIV). Several of the New Testament books — such as Colossians, Galatians, and 2 Peter — were written specifically to alert the Christian believers to false doctrines and ideas.

A true Christian should never be judgmental toward other people; he knows it is only by God's grace that he has become a child of God. But he must hold fast to the truth of God that has given us, and that means rejecting anything which is contrary to the Word of God.

Query vetoed

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Documents buried in government archives disclose that former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger brusquely vetoed a State Department move to help an 80-year-old Swedish woman learn the fate of her son, a heroic diplomat who disappeared into the Soviet prison system at the close of World War II.

The missing Swede is Raoul Wallenberg, who as a 31-year-old diplomat stationed in Budapest, was credited with having saved thousands of Hungarian Jews from Hitler's extermination camps. Such selflessness was apparently incomprehensible to the Russians. When they overran Hungary they promptly arrested Wallenberg, whisked him off to Moscow and sentenced him to prison without trial on charges of espionage.

WE HAVE WRITTEN in earlier columns how the Russians at first lied about Wallenberg, denying any knowledge of him. Years later they admitted having held him, but claimed he died in Lubianka Prison in 1947.

But we were recently given convincing evidence by former inmates of the Gulag Archipelago that Wallenberg was alive at least into the late 1950s. The Russians, continue to stick by their story that he died in 1947.

Following up on our disclosures, Swedish radio correspondent Sven Stromberg pored over documents in the State Department files and found that on May 4, 1973, Wallenberg's mother, Maj von Dardel, had written a poignant personal appeal to Kissinger. She asked that he use his influence with the Soviets to learn the truth about her son. She reminded him that Wallenberg, a University of Michigan graduate, had undertaken his dangerous mercy mission in Hungary at the request of the American ambassador in Stockholm.

"I ask you, who by virtue of your extraordinary efforts have liberated thousands of prisoners, against the background of my tragic ignorance of what really happened to my son after he was arrested, to inform me if you have the possibility to undertake something which can throw new light on my son's fate, and if he is still alive to return him to liberty," the anguished mother wrote.

Obviously moved by her appeal, a panel of five State Department officials appointed to study the case recommended that Kissinger take action. They drafted a letter for Kissinger to sign, and taped coded instructions to U.S. diplomats in Moscow to pursue an inquiry with the Russians.

"AGAINST THE background of the humanitarian nature of the case and your son's efforts for the Hungarian Jews during the last war," the letter prepared for Wallenberg's mother said, "the United States government is prepared to ask the Soviet government via the American embassy in Moscow what has happened to your son."

The letter was never sent. Kissinger, himself a Jewish refugee from Hitler's Germany, sent the draft back with this curt notation: "Rejected by Kissinger, 10-15-1973."

There was no explanation for his refusal. But department insiders note that Kissinger harbored a venomous animosity toward Sweden for its outspoken criticism of America's Vietnam intervention, particularly President Nixon's unauthorized bombing of Cambodia.

Wallenberg's mother died without knowing whether her son had survived the living death of a Soviet prison camp.

Footnote: Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin asked President Carter to raise the Wallenberg case at his recent summit meeting with Soviet boss Leonid Brezhnev in Vienna. A State Department official told us the issue was probably not raised. The White House had not returned our calls by the time we went to press.

HAPPY MEDIUM: Four members of Congress have managed to meet the classic definition of a Mugwump — someone with his mug on one side of the fence and his wump on the other. They are members of two groups that have opposite views on arms control.

The groups are the Coalition for Peace through Strength, an aggressively anti-SALT organization affiliated with the ultraconservative American Security Council, and the Members of Congress for Peace through Law, a congressional caucus that favors disarmament.

The coalition claims more than 200 members in the House and Senate; the arms-control caucus numbers about 160.

Three of the fence-sitters — Reps. Frank Horton, R-N.Y., William J. Hughes, D-N.J., and Jim Lloyd, D-Calif. — told our reporter Keith Singinger they saw no conflict in their dual membership.

But the fourth, Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., expressed some second thoughts. "I've never attended a meeting of the (strength) group and I don't remember the circumstances of joining it," he said. "I do have a problem with their so-called statement of principles. If they don't reflect my viewpoint, I'll have to get out."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: A member rests the briefcase held by a member of Jimmy Carter's Cabinet. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger is the odds-on favorite for the ax in most political oracles' books. In fact, the breadth and intensity of the criticism aimed at him may be the only thing that's saving his job: Carter feels Schlesinger is being made a scapegoat for the energy crunch.

But White House sources tell us a better candidate for political extinction is Transportation Secretary Brock Adams.

Somoza to resign after civil war ends, in exchange for aid

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza will not resign until his national guard crushes the guerrilla uprising and unless the United States promises massive aid to rebuild the country when the war is over, according to a high-level government source.

The source also said Somoza's military leaders forecast at least three more months of war with the Sandinista rebels.

Another attempt by the embattled Nicaraguan president to call an extraordinary session of his Congress failed Saturday morning.

Only a handful of the 70 members of the Chamber of Deputies and 30 senators showed up at the Intercontinental Hotel, scheduled site of the gathering. The hotel is near Somoza's fortified bunker headquarters.

A similar call earlier in the week also failed for lack of a quorum.

Many of the legislators are believed to have left the country to escape the fighting or to have gone into hiding as a precaution against abduction by the guerrillas.

The government source, who asked not to be identified, said Somoza believes that if he resigns while the guerrillas still pose a military threat to Nicaragua the national guard would crumble, a communist government would emerge and there would be dozens of executions.

"The president realizes that his presence will be an obstacle to reconstructing Nicaragua. So he is telling his Cabinet and some members of the Nicaraguan Congress that he is willing to resign to get U.S. reconstruction help for this country, but that he won't do it until the fighting stops," the source said in an interview.

The United States and the other nations of the Organization of American States have called for Somoza to step down.

Beaumont 'blackout'

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — More than 11,000 Beaumont residents were left without electric power for about 90 minutes when an overloaded transmitter cut out under the burden of heavy air conditioner use.

"Because of the extreme heat and the overloading of the remaining lines, the load just became too heavy," said Ray Funderburk of Gulf States Utilities Co. The power went out at 3:40 p.m. Friday and was restored in most areas by 5 p.m., Funderburk said. Temperatures were in the low 90s.

Kerr award announced

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The Chester Kerr Award, "a $1,000 annual prize to help commemorate the outstanding leadership in scholarly publishing of Chester Kerr," has been announced by Yale University Press.

The press said the award would be given annually to honor a distinguished work of creative scholarship written by an author under 40 years of age and published by Yale University Press.

SISTERS UNITED — Three sisters in one of Managua, Nicaragua's sprawling refugee centers cling together for safety Saturday. Now that the battle for Nicaragua's capital city has temporarily ended, it is hoped the population of refugee centers such as this will diminish. The problems of the people, however, will probably remain as they return to their devastated homes with little if any food.

Energy Confirmer in Borden

A confirmer has been finalized in Borden County. The Myrtle, North (Wolfcamp and Strawn) field of Borden County gained its second Strawn producer and a 3/4-mile north and slightly east extension to that pay with completion of William N. Beach, Midland, No. 1 Collier, three miles west of Fluvanna, to pump 65 barrels of 43.2 gravity oil, plus 35 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 224-1.

Production was through perforations at 8,055-121 feet, which had been acidized with 250 gallons.

Operator also tested through Strawn perforations at 7,952-54 feet, which had been acidized with 250 gallons.

Prior to plugging back to 8,155 feet, it tested through Mississippian perforations at 8,184-218 feet, which had been fractured with 20,000 gallons and an unreported amount of sand.

The following tops were picked on Kelly bushing elevation of 2,714 feet: Wolfcamp, 6,350 feet; Strawn, 7,785 feet; and Mississippian, 8,180 feet.

Drilled as a wildcat to 8,374 feet, 4 1/2-inch casing was set at 8,370 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from the north and 660 feet from the east lines of 519-97-H&TC.

The Strawn re-opener, Cobra Oil & Gas corp. No. 2 B.J. Belew, was finalized Aug. 11, 1978 to pump 22 barrels or 42 gravity oil through perforations at 7,818-26 feet, reported at that time as Wolfcamp.

Olivetti president introduces new electronic typewriters

Marisa Bellisario became president of the Olivetti Corporation of America earlier this year. Seven days later the company announced the introduction of its first electronic typewriters. While Mrs. Bellisario does not say any cause and effect is involved, she does believe that the new electronic typewriters will help turn her company around from a whopping $30 million loss last year to profitability in 1980.

"It's a big challenge," said the 43-year-old Italian executive. "But if I were not optimistic, I would not accept this responsibility."

Mrs. Bellisario, who joined Olivetti's electronic division in Italy as a systems analyst after her graduation from Turin University in 1960, rose to become head of software development and customer services. In 1969, that division was sold to the Italian subsidiary of the General Electric Company and "I was sold together with the division," Mrs. Bellisario said.

When G.E. sold its computer operations, including this division, to Honeywell in 1972, she returned to Olivetti as director of corporate planning, noting that, "I make the decision myself this time."

Last year, she became head of Olivetti's data processing group, which included responsibility for the company's efforts in the growing field of word processing.

At the United States subsidiary of the Olivetti Group, Europe's largest manufacturer of office products and data processing systems, she is planning to have a new marketing strategy defined during the remainder of 1979. "We will make a selection among our products and concentrate on a few major lines," she said.

She indicated, however, that in addition to typewriters and word processing systems, on-line systems for such industries as banking and financial services would certainly be among those projects in her future plans.

Graham's Office Machines, managed by Gordon Myrick, is the Big Spring agent for Olivetti machines.

Whether bullish or bearish you were at least partly right

NEW YORK (AP) — The first half of 1979 was a forecaster's dream in the stock market. Whether you were bullish or bearish, you were at least partly right.

Analysts who predicted six months ago that the market was in for a tough time were borne out by a sluggish showing among most of the big name blue chips.

Those who were optimistic at the start of the year, meanwhile, could point to the sharp rise since then of many lesser-known secondary issues — particularly energy stocks and takeover candidates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrials, which slipped 7.12 to 1,198 in the past week, managed only a modest gain of 36.97 points, or 4.6 percent, for the first half.

When G.E. sold its computer operations, including this division, to Honeywell in 1972, she returned to Olivetti

Company guilty of discrimination

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The J.P. Stevens textile company is guilty of employment discrimination and will have to set up an affirmative action program if it wants to do any more business with Los Angeles.

The Board of Public Works voted unanimously Friday to suspend a May 1978 contract with the firm after deciding Stevens had "failed to comply with city regulations." City codes prohibit a contractor from discriminatory procedures and requires affirmative action be taken to ensure equal employment for members of minority groups.

The 1978 contract requires the company to release employment data if requested, but Stevens has refused, the board said.

Human bones very strong

NEW YORK (AP) — Why doesn't the karate practitioner injure his hand when breaking wood planks and concrete slabs.

The explanation is that human bone is much stronger than either wood or concrete, according to an article in the Scientific American magazine.

The force required to rupture bone is more than 40 times greater than that required to break concrete, said the article, written by Michael S. Feld, Ronald E. McNair and Stephen R. Wilk, all of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

They added that unlike wood or concrete blocks, human bones move under impact and transmit part of the stress to adjoining muscle and other tissue.

FREE AT LAST — Terre Fleener, the 24-year-old from San Antonio, Texas, displays this expression Saturday aboard a Rome airport bus after her flight from Israel following 20 months in prison. Miss Fleener, who had been imprisoned for spying for the Palestine Liberation Organization, later boarded a plane for the United States.

Texan more pro-Arab now than day she entered jail

ROME (AP) — On the plane flying her home after 20 months in an Israeli prison, Terre Fleener said she is more pro-Arab now than on the day she was jailed on charges of spying for the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The 24-year-old Texan also defended the PLO's terrorist tactics as "the only route available to them."

"I believe very strongly in the Palestinian people's struggle," she said in a three-hour conversation with an Associated Press reporter who accompanied her to Rome.

"I won't walk away from it. I won't let myself..."

"An injustice has been done. The (Egyptian-Israeli) peace process offers no solution. The Palestinians have to continue their fight, and I support them very strongly," she said.

Miss Fleener, a native of San Antonio, was arrested Oct. 25, 1977, when she flew in to Israel's Ben-Gurion Airport. A closed trial was held the following January, and she pleaded guilty to a charge of spying for taking photographs of Israeli cities and delivering them to the PLO in Cyprus.

She also confessed to giving the PLO information about security arrangements in Israel—an act Israel said helped the PLO set up terror raids in the Jewish state.

An Israeli parole board Friday cut 10 months off her 30-month sentence, on the condition she leave Israel immediately. Two weeks earlier under duress but intense pressure from the United States, Israel had cut her original five-year sentence in half.

Miss Fleener said she spent a lot of prison hours reading about Zionism and said she understands why the Israelis fear the PLO. She also said she was deeply touched by the television film, "Holocaust," which she saw in prison.

Nevertheless, she said, "what the Jewish people endured does not give them the right to visit violence on another people." She said she has no difficulty justifying the PLO's violence against Israelis, even civilians.

"The Palestinians can't drop bombs, so they take the only route available to them," she said.

And of her actions on behalf of the Palestinians: "I'm sure I wasn't involved in anything violent.

"I felt free as soon as I walked into the airport," she said, digging into a plate of sausages and eggs during the flight to the United States aboard a TWA Boeing 707 jetliner.

"The first real breakfast I've had in almost two years," she said.

What will she remember most about the 20 months in jail?

"The (Palestinian) girls there. I admire them very much. Some were hurt in explosions, some are serving life sentences, but they never feel sorry for themselves."

German ships trying to tow 'boat people' attract fire

By The Associated Press
U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said Saturday that an international conference will be convened July 20 in Switzerland to try to solve the Southeast Asian refugee crisis.

About 60 countries, including Vietnam, China and the United States, will be asked to send representatives to the two-day, ministerial-level meeting in Geneva, Waldheim told a news conference in that Swiss city.

The U.N. chief said he wants the meeting to be a purely humanitarian one that "avoids political confrontation."

"I don't want to hear long statements, I want practical deeds," he said.

In the South China Sea off Vietnam, meanwhile, Vietnamese navy ships fired over the bow of a West German oil-supply vessel to keep it from towing a boatload of refugees away, the West German Foreign Ministry said.

The 1,300-ton Nordtor was trying to take about 300 "boat people" to Singapore Friday for resettlement later in West Germany when the Vietnamese stopped it, the ministry said.

The refugee boat was taken into custody and a second German ship involved, the 1,000-ton Alexanderturm, was forced to follow the navy vessels back to Vietnam, the ministry said. A spokesman for the Bremen ship owners said the Nordtor was in international waters off Vietnam.

The Foreign Ministry has protested to the Vietnamese ambassador.

West German officials in Singapore said both boats were involved in Vietnamese offshore oil projects. No one was reported injured in the incident.

International pressure has been building for weeks for a world conference on Indochinese refugees, particularly from Southeast Asian nations burdened with more than 300,000 refugees in camps awaiting resettlement elsewhere.

The refugees include Vietnamese, often of Chinese descent, fleeing by boat and landing in Hong Kong, Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines, and Cambodians and Laotians fleeing overland to Thailand. Many Chinese also cross illegally into neighboring Hong Kong, straining the tiny British colony's resources.

The Asians, fearful that many of the refugees might have to be absorbed by them, are demanding that the United States and other Western nations step up their efforts to take in refugees for permanent resettlement.

A U.N.-sponsored summit held in Geneva last December produced increased resettlement offers, but the flow of refugees outstripped resettlement. Waldheim said many more nations were being invited this time, that there would be a "more concrete agenda," and that he was confident of "more and better offers."

Tens of thousands of boat people are believed to have drowned in the past few years when their unseaworthy boats sank.

Former chief innocent of torturing two men

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal court jury found Allan Jamail, former Jacinto City police chief, and two former subordinates innocent Saturday of charges that they violated the civil rights of two Indiana men by torturing them during questioning.

The jury, which received the case from U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue at 4:30 p.m. Friday, acquitted Jamail, 35, former officer Andrew Torres Jr., 27, and suspended Sgt. Wayne E. Speaks, 44.

The government accused the men of beating and torturing with an electric shock baton Karl Walter Wise, 34, and John Michael Stafford, 30.

Jacinto City police arrested Wise and Stafford on March 25, 1977, in the case of Ramona Abner, 10, who was raped and murdered. Both men were released without charge the same day.

Jamail, now a Jacinto City councilman, said he had been worried about the outcome of the trial.

"There will be no revenge coming from Allan Jamail for the political factions that were in this," he said. "I'll continue serving as city councilman and do the best job I can for the people."

Speak's attorney, Donald Lambright, agreed with Jamail's contention that the trial was politically motivated.

"None of this would have come up if it had not been for the political ambitions of Frank McAvoy," Lambright said.

McAvoy, a reserve Jacinto City police officer, testified he saw Torres repeatedly shock Wise with the baton. McAvoy told the court he had applied for the job of police chief and supported an opponent of Jamail's in the 1978 city council election.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Beery countered by asking the jury if anyone had ever heard of or seen a shock baton, and added that Robert Rea, an FBI agent for more than 20 years, had not.

"Who in the world has ever heard about a shock stick or a shock baton, yet Wise and Stafford that same day (as their arrest) were at the FBI saying a shock stick was used on them," Beery said.

"It was so bizarre and out of the ordinary that if they invented the story, who told them about it?" he asked.

Jurors indicated after the trial that they felt there was a lack of credibility on both sides.

"We felt some things went on at Jacinto City jail that night that shouldn't have, but we had no proof," said jury foreman Wendel W. Laster. "I'm glad I don't live in Jacinto City."

The Spring Branch brokerage salesman said too many questions were left unanswered by the government's evidence for the jury to find the defendants guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

"We felt there was not one single witness we could lend any credibility to, except for (news service reporter) Glean Smith," Laster said. "That goes for both sides."

International fireworks

DETROIT (AP) — Seven tons of rockets and shells will be fired midway between the American and Canadian shores over the Independence Day holidays.

Some 600,000 spectators are expected to watch the pyrotechnical display from both the Detroit and Windsor, Ontario, sides of the Detroit River.

The annual fireworks display is a highlight of the six-day International Freedom Festival, now in its 21st year.

Legal drinking age raised

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Despite a warning that the bill would turn youth "into overnight criminals," the Illinois General Assembly approved a measure that will raise the state's legal drinking age for beer and wine from 19 to 21.

The House voted 112-52 Friday to concur with a technical Senate amendment to the measure, sending the bill to Gov. James Thompson, who has indicated he is likely to sign it. The bill also bars the state's 92 "home rule" units of government from setting alternate legal drinking ages.

Hose-on garden sprayer cheap, easy to operate

The hose-on garden sprayer is one that every home vegetable gardener should consider purchasing if his garden site is located near a high pressure water faucet, suggest David Foster, County Entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

This sprayer is relatively inexpensive ($10 to $12), easy to operate and can provide fast and efficient coverage of pesticides to garden plants when properly used. The hose-on garden sprayer is a device that screws onto the end of an ordinary water hose. However, this sprayer is designed to spray only those pesticide formulations that can be mixed with water such as emulsifiable concentrates (EC) (liquid) and wettable powders (WP).

According to Foster, hose-on sprayers usually come with a pint sized container which holds the pesticide. As the water from the garden hose passes through the spraying device, it creates enough suction to draw out the pesticide and dilute it proportionately.

Dilution rates can be controlled by turning "a dial" to the desired setting. This setting usually represents teaspoon or tablespoon of pesticide per gallon of water passing through the hose. Pesticide dilution rates are obtained by reading the pesticide label.

Differences in the preparation of liquids and wettable powders are that liquids can be poured directly into the sprayer without mixing it with water. Whereas WP's must be pre-mixed and thoroughly dissolved with just enough water to give it a flowable texture before it is poured into the sprayer.

A disadvantage of hose-on sprayers occurs when the siphoning tube becomes obstructed with undissolved particles of wettable powder or foreign material.

This restriction of pesticide flow will result in a poor mixture not readily detected by the applicator.

Wettable powder solution when used in sprayers should be agitated periodically to maintain uniform suspension of active ingredients, points out Mr. Foster.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service are for people of all ages rdlless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

VIEW FROM THE MOUNTAIN

Update on an old house and church

By CAROL HUNTER
The mountains in Howard County are not only beautiful, but also have been historically useful. Accounts tell us how the Indians used the flat top of Signal Mountain for sending their smoke signals. Caves on South Mountain offered housing and shelter for Indians centuries ago. Their arrowheads are collected, still, from that site. Scenic Mountain is the most traveled because of its use as a State Park with the Scenic Drive, wildflowers, bird and animal sanctuary and its rock carvings.

Scenic Mountain's rock was used in one Big Spring home. J.M. Morgan, the only stone mason in the area around the turn of the century, is familiar to all history buffs because he quarried the stone for his own home at 1500 Scurry from the limestone on Scenic Mountain. His children helped him cut the stone and carry it down the mountain in their Studebaker Wagon, pulled by Dave, their horse. The house was completed in 1909, and family members lived there until a few months ago when his daughter, Mrs. Kathleen Williams and his son, James Morgan, sold the rock house.

The home, which is trimmed in red sandstone from the Barstow quarry, and which features solid oak trim inside, will be renovated to serve as dental offices for Dr. J.R. Cave. He is in the process of making off-street parking and will then start on redoing the home. Because of its use as a dental office, the room arrangement will be changed, but Dr. Cave does plan to hang old-fashioned wallpaper and he will decorate with antique furniture in his waiting room and at appropriate places. The home features a second story, which will be used later. Plans are to take the inside stair case out and make an outside entrance. It would be used for office space or possibly an apartment, eventually.

J.M. Morgan did not use the rock from Scenic Mountain again, but he was an important man in the history of Howard County building. Within two years after completing his home, he undertook to build St. Thomas Catholic Church, located at 605 North Main. The family was active in St. Thomas. The stone for this solid structure came from the Bob Evans Ranch, north of town. The Evans donated it and the stone was quarried there at the ranch location off of the Gail Highway. The completion date for the church is said to be 1911, but the cornerstone states 1912, so it was in use by then, at least. The land was donated by the Bauers, George and Louisa, in 1887. It was customary in those days for large landowners, such as the Bauers, to donate land for a church, but should it ever not be used for same, it was to revert to the Bauer Estate. In fact, when the new Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church was first built across town in the early 1960's, St. Thomas was, indeed, closed for a brief time. It was reopened as a parish church before it could be lost.

At the time of the building of St. Thomas, there was a frame church, called St. Mary's, the only Catholic church in Big Spring. It was located on the site where St. Thomas is now. When the new stone structure was finished, the old church was moved to the present location of Sacred Heart Catholic Church on North Aylford. St. Thomas remained a mission church even though its size was adequate, seating about 260. Expense was not spared with the stone, beautiful windows and wood. Drive by and look at it today. One will be amazed at its age.

By 1926 or '27, accounts vary, St. Thomas was a parish and had its own priest, whereas during the mission years, a priest had come from Stanton once a month to celebrate Mass. When the Morgan children moved from 1500 Scurry, they found some church records, particularly the Women's Guild, of which their mother was an active member. They will donate these for posterity and history. There was never a school connected with St. Thomas, but even during the mission years, there were Sisters who were permanent.

Mr. Morgan built many buildings still in use in the downtown area, chiefly the ones along the old red sandstone courthouse, replaced in the early '50's. The sturdiness of his building is still important to Howard County.

Governor's Community Achievement Awards

Six Texas cities recently were named winners of the statewide Governor's Community Achievement Awards by Rita Clements, wife of Gov. Bill Clements.

The honored cities were Arlington, McKinney, Angleton, Alice, Paducah and Clarksville. The "Award of Excellence" given to cities judged to have conducted the best overall job of community-wide beautification and improvement of environmental quality during the past year, was awarded to Angleton.

The Governor's Community Achievement Awards were announced in Houston at a luncheon culminating the 12th annual meeting of the Beautify Texas Council, where several hundred beautifiers from across the state were in attendance, among them Ray Don Williams and Bob Hurt of Big Spring.

Big Spring finished among the top ten cities in the state and Mrs. Clements presented Williams and Hurt with a certificate to that effect.

The annual competition is sponsored by the state-wide, non-profit Beautify Texas Council — a voluntary organization with representatives from business and industry, state and local government, garden clubs, civic workers and civic groups working together at the grassroots level to make Texas "the cleanest, most beautiful state in the nation."

Big Spring's entry was initiated by Edna Womack, who was acting on behalf of the garden clubs of Big Spring and the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Vietnam renews verbal attack on China today

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam renewed its verbal attack on China today, accusing Peking of artillery attacks across the frontier and sending troops and spies into its airspace since late May for "provocative acts."

After a lull of several weeks, Radio Hanoi said the intrusions show the Chinese leaders "still pursue a hostile policy against Vietnam, intend to create tension at the border and want to undermine fraternal relations between the two countries."

The broadcast accused the Chinese of heavy artillery attacks against factories in Quang Ninh and Ha Tuyen provinces, shelling that killed two village committee members in Ha Tuyen province, air sorties over Cao Bang province and spy and reconnaissance probes into five border provinces.

Balanced budget amendment advocate to talk at Midland

U.S. Sen. Bill Armstrong of Colorado, one of the nation's leading proponents of a Constitutional Amendment requiring a balanced federal budget, will be the special guest speaker at a Republican Party dinner in Midland Friday, July 13.

Sponsored jointly by the Midland County Republican Party and the State GOP, the dinner will be held at the Midland Hilton Hotel beginning at 8 p.m. The senator will also appear at a private reception beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Armstrong, who serves on the Senate Budget, Human Resources, and Banking Committees, defeated Democrat incumbent Floyd Haskell in last year's election. He had previously served three terms in the U.S. House of Representatives where he won national recognition for his fight against the Congressional pay raise and his battles to trim fringe benefits for members of Congress.

Armstrong, 41, has introduced legislation for the balanced budget amendment during each of the years he has served in Congress. He has also been active in seeking a genuine tax cut for all Americans, a reduction in government bureaucracy and regulations, and a strong national defense.

Republican Party State Chairman Chester R. Upham, Jr. of Mineral Wells and GOP National Committeeman Ernest Angelo of Midland will also attend the July 13 dinner.

Tickets for the dinner are $50 per person and can be obtained by contacting Dinner Chairman Larry Hunnicut at (915) 682-2128. Tickets for the reception are $100 per person and may be obtained by contacting Bob Monaghan at (915) 683-2175.

"Cymbeline" will open at the Globe July 12, at 8 p.m. and will alternate every other night with "Anthony and Cleopatra" which premiered June 23. The plays will run through August 5.

Shakespeare's "Cymbeline" has been labeled both a tragicomedy and a romance. The play revolves around Imogen, the daughter of Cymbeline, the King of Britain, and her husband Posthumus who she marries against her father's will. Posthumus is banished from the kingdom and goes to Rome where he meets the villain Iachimo. Iachimo badgers Posthumus into making a wager on his beloved Imogen's virtue, and tricks Posthumus into believing that she has indeed betrayed him. Posthumus orders her murdered but a faithful servant tells Imogen of the plan and advises her to disguise herself as a page and seek employment in Rome to be near her husband. War breaks out between Britain and Rome.

Meanwhile, two sons of Cymbeline, who were abducted as babies, are grown and yearn to enter the battle. Cymbeline is captured by the Romans but is rescued by his two sons, still unknown to him, and Posthumus. Posthumus, in Roman guise is subsequently captured by the Britons and is brought before the King. The identity of Cymbeline's sons is revealed and Imogen makes her identity known. Old grudges are forgiven and the lovers are reunited.

Convention brings new library services to light

By JOHN W. DEATS
County Librarian

During the past week, I had the pleasure of attending the annual convention of the American Library Association, which was held in Dallas at the Convention Center. Attendance was estimated at close to ten thousand, including public, school, academic, and special librarians from around the country.

In addition to the librarians were representatives for most of the publishing firms around the United States, ranging from the small presses to the giants of the industry. Since over 33,000 new books are published annually in this country, there was obviously not enough display area to accommodate one copy of every title. Naturally, the publishers attempt to select their finest, most marketable material.

Today's books come in a variety of formats, subjects, and costs. Paperbacks are the focus of many publishers, such as Avon, Ballantine, and Dell. They share center stage in the lineups of major publishing houses, such as Charles Scribners, Simon and Schuster, and Viking, all of whom have extensive lists of new hardback books each season. While authors are often known for a particular style of writing, so do most publishers develop one or more specialty areas. For example, Prentice-Hall is the foremost source of textbooks in this country. H.W. Wilson leads in the area of library reference works, and Doubleday is dominant in the domain of contemporary novels.

The multi-media aspect of modern library service was reflected in the large array of exhibitors of products such as films and filmstrips, records and cassettes, microfilms, and their attendant hardware. Some exhibits point to the current trends for larger libraries to automate, and suggest the future for small to medium-sized institutions. Such systems utilize the minicomputer to increase both speed and accuracy in the necessary processes of circulation, inventory control, cataloging, and loaning between libraries.

More important than the exhibits was the opportunity to attend the meetings and seminars which inspired us to reassess our own library's services in the light of national trends and changing demands. Every decade or so, new standards are determined which aid in measuring the quality and the quantity of our services. This year, the Public Library Association has published a new set of standards, whose central philosophy is to meet local needs more than ever before. There will also be a greater tendency to increase cooperation between types of libraries, and we may also witness a greater pooling of resources in terms of materials and manpower.

Gas shortage to spark change of life style

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The governor's energy adviser said Saturday the time when a motorist could fill up at virtually any service station on the weekend may be gone forever.

Ed Vetter said Texas should have more gasoline in July than this month, but he added he sees nothing that would indicate "we're not going to be back in a tough slot next spring and summer."

"I'd like to think we're looking at the worst of it ... Energy Secretary (James) Schlesinger keeps telling me we're looking at the worst of it, but unfortunately he said that last month, too," Vetter stated.

Vetter, who helped put together Texas' odd-even fuel allocation plan, was interviewed on the weekly radio program, "State Capitol DateLine."

He said Houston and the Dallas-Fort Worth areas are short of gasoline because federal allocation formulas do not "take into full account the growth of those two areas in the past year." The formulas, he said, are "really based on population levels of a year or 1 1/2 years ago."

"I'm afraid the Texas and, indeed, the American motorist is never going to be able to fill up his tank as easily on weekends as he was able to just a few months ago. Those days may be gone forever," said Vetter.

Asked about possibly forcing service stations to stay open on weekends, Vetter said, "We're kidding ourselves if we think just telling a service station to open on Sunday — and he's got nothing to sell — does anybody any good."

"I think a significant change in life style is going to evolve from all this (energy shortage)," said Vetter, and he added:

"The delay in that happening is not working to the advantage of the American people. The delay is caused by the American people — a large segment of them — believing there is no problem, that it's all some big hoax. ... On balance, we're in a real short supply situation worldwide, and the quicker the American people realize it's not going to go away, the quicker I think everybody will be better off."

Mayors urge special gas allocations for cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Conference of Mayors, saying the gasoline shortage is being felt in some form in almost every U.S. community, urged the federal government Saturday to consider special allocations for cities as well as states.

Reporting on its own survey of 100 cities, the conference said, "the combination of price increases and short supplies may soon force cities to undertake cutbacks in service."

stressed they did not want to see any city allocation taken from the already reduced supplies available to motorists. Instead, they asked that federal officials consider giving mayors of major cities control over a portion of the existing state setaside.

"In New York, for instance, Mayor (Edward) Koch has complained that he is trying to get gasoline for stations downtown, but Gov. (Hugh) Carey has used the set-aside to insure supplies on major highways outside the city," said one conference official, who declined to be named.

MIAMI (AP) — With Theodore R. Bundy personally approving the final juror, attorneys wrapped up final details Saturday on picking a jury for his double-murder trial. But they said it could be another week before formal testimony gets under way.

The final two alternates were Mark Mihm, a young Southern Bell employee, and William Von Seggern, a former clergyman who now teaches vocational education.

Bundy concluded the process by standing to accept Von Seggern. The two alternates chosen Saturday will sit with 12 jurors and one alternate selected after a week of questioning.

Double-murder trial testimony hits snag

MIAMI (AP) — With Theodore R. Bundy personally approving the final juror, attorneys wrapped up final details Saturday on picking a jury for his double-murder trial. But they said it could be another week before formal testimony gets under way.

'Small savers' get rates break

WASHINGTON (AP) — Starting Sunday, millions of Americans will be able to get higher interest rates on savings accounts, but financial experts say this won't necessarily insulate a family's savings from inflation.

The changes are part of a "small savers" package approved late in May by federal bank regulators. Liberalized interest rates also were approved for some credit union accounts.

The regulators and other financial experts admit that the higher interest rates and new savings opportunities won't completely protect a family's savings from inflation. A savings return of 5.5 percent, for example, turns into a "loss" of 4.5 percent if inflation erodes buying power by 10 percent in a year.

Essentially, the changes that become effective Sunday mean:

—Most savers will begin getting a quarter of a percentage point more interest on their passbook accounts, the first such increase since mid-1973.

—Many will be able to invest in new four-year, "floating ceiling" savings certificates. Those purchased in July will carry rates of 7.6 percent and more.

The conference, which represents cities of more than 30,000 population, conducted a telephone survey June 20-27 of the 50 largest cities and 50 smaller cities throughout the nation.

The survey found:

- Gas lines in 47 cities, ranging in duration up to 8 1/2 hours in Newark, N.J.
- Odd-even gas sale restrictions in 26 cities.
- Gas sale restrictions such as staggered service station hours or maximum or minimum purchase requirements in 46 cities.
- Increases in public transportation ridership in 77 cities.
- Supply allocations lower than last year in 95 cities.
- Newly instituted contingency measures in 81 cities.

"The gasoline shortage is being felt in some form or another in almost every community," the conference said.

It recommended that federal officials review whether urban needs are being met through the regulation which sets aside 5 percent of a state's supply for use at the governor's discretion.

In asking consideration of similar set-asides for major cities, conference officials

American rescued after gunbattle

Kidnapped exec found alive

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — American businessman William F. Niehous, kidnapped by leftist terrorists 3½ years ago and given up for dead by many here, was found alive in the Venezuelan jungle Saturday, authorities reported.

The 48-year-old Toledo, Ohio, man was rescued after a gun-battle Friday between a police patrol and his guerrilla captors on a secluded ranch south of the Orinoco River 350 miles southeast of Caracas, Interior Minister Rafael Montes de Oca said.

It was reported that a two-man patrol, looking for rustlers, unwittingly stumbled upon the handcuffed Niehous in a ranch shack, but then he was somehow lost again in the wilderness. Montes de Oca did not say precisely where or how he was found Saturday.

Police said the bearded kidnap victim was later taken by authorities to the city of Ciudad Bolivar, 50 miles east of the ranch.

In Washington, the State Department said a U.S. Embassy official, John J.

Crowley Jr., flew to Ciudad Bolivar with representatives of Niehous's firm, Owens-Illinois, and made a positive identification of him.

Niehous, who was manager of the company's Venezuelan operations, is in good physical condition and will get a medical examination and any treatment needed in Ciudad Bolivar, where he was spending the night, State Department spokeswoman Sue Pittman said. She said he would be flown to Caracas Sunday.

In Toledo his wife, Donna

Niehous, told a reporter her belief that her husband was alive had never wavered in 3½ years. "I was sure it would happen," she said.

She said she would be coming to Venezuela in the next day or two.

Niehous' captivity ranks as one of the longest for a kidnap victim in recent years.

He was abducted from his Caracas home Feb. 27, 1976, by seven armed men. Several weeks later, a previously unknown group calling itself the Argimiro Gabaldon Revolutionary Command issued ransom demands in a series of communiques.

The demands included payment of a $3.5 million ransom, payment of a $116 bonus to each of Owens-Illinois' 2,000 Venezuelan employees, donations to the poor and publication of a political manifesto.

But the government prohibited negotiations with the kidnapers or compliance with their demands.

Six men are on trial in Venezuela in a secret military proceeding in connection with the kidnaping. Two other men were released in February when they were elected on leftist party tickets to Congress, thus gaining immunity from prosecution.

Turtle stew for breakfast?

INDIAN SPRINGS, Ga. (AP) — Joe Crane grew up on a farm, enjoying turtle soup, stew and pie cooked by his mother. He still enjoys turtles in soup bowls, on dinner plates and breakfast dishes.

Crane, a 73-year-old, retired, state parks-department employee, catches turtles himself in a local, private pond using a homemade, 5-foot wire basket. In one year, he caught 111 turtles, including a 28-pounder and a 30-pounder.

He grinds up turtle meat and cooks it in an 18-gallon iron pot with corn, tomatoes, onions, potatoes, rat cheese and seasonings.

He once cooked 40 gallons of turtle stew for a group of people.

Tom Sorley signs with Denver

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

Tom Sorley, former Big Spring High School quarterback who most recently guided the Nebraska Cornhuskers to the Big 8 title and a berth in the Orange Bowl, has signed a free-agent contract with the Denver Broncos of the NFL, the team announced Friday.

The 6'2", 205-pounder will join the Denver quarterback roster which now includes veterans Craig Morton, Norris Weese, and Craig Penrose from last year's club, plus second year pro

Jeb Blount and free agent Fred Mortenson. Blount is the son of former Big Spring resident Peppy Blount.

Sorley speaking from his apartment in Lincoln, Nebraska, was delighted to join the Broncos organization. "I am real excited, because I don't feel that I could have gone to a place I would like any more. The organization has a lot of class, and I like the attitude of the coaching staff and the players. They have a winning attitude that resembles the program at Nebraska, and the belief that they are the best and will work to achieve it."

Sorley, who will report to the Broncos training camp in Fort Collins, Colorado, on July 14, feels that the mental aspect of pro football will be his biggest obstacle to overcome. "I have to make a very good mental adjustment. I have to overcome the experience factor with learning, and then put some points on the boards when I get a chance in the pre-season. Physically, I know I will be in better shape than some of the older competition; because no one works any harder than me. If I do the best that I can physically and mentally, the rest will take care of itself." Howard Slusher, one of the most popular agents of NFL players, negotiated Sorley's contract. It is a one-year pact, and the affable Sorley was pleased. "I got a lot more than I expected as a free agent, and Howard was super," Sorley said. "The club gave me a good contract, and I hope to make them happy with the way I perform."

Sorley joins former Nebraska teammate Kelvin Clark in the Denver camp. Clark, who played his high school football at Odessa High, was the top draft pick of the Broncos.

He will also be the second former BSHS gridders to sign with the Denver club for the upcoming year. Charlie West, a 12-year veteran who has excelled as a defensive back with Minnesota, Detroit and Denver, will begin his second year as a Bronco.

Sorley is now the fourth former local gridders to sign an NFL pact for the 1979 season. He joins West, John Thomas Smith and Putt Choate. Smith is in his second year with the Kansas City Chiefs and Choate will be a rookie in the Atlanta Falcon camp.

McEnroe upset in Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Tim Gullikson, the righthander of the Wisconsin tennis twins, vanquished John McEnroe 6-4, 6-2, 6-4 Saturday in Wimbledon's biggest upset.

In a feverish atmosphere more like that of a football game, McEnroe shouted at spectators and skirmished with a foot-fault judge. The 20-year-old left-hander, who has won the Masters and World Championship Tennis titles this year, was seeded No. 2. His defeat left as the top contenders defending champion Bjorn Borg and third-seeded Jimmy Connors.

Borg and Connors are in the same part of the draw so could meet only in the semifinals. Borg will play Dutchman Tom Okker in the quarters, and Connors next meets fellow American Bill Scanlon.

Borg, going for a fourth straight Wimbledon triumph, fought grimly Saturday to defeat Brian Teacher, the tall star from Beverly Hills, Calif., 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, 7-5.

Connors, looking in peak form, rolled over Mark Cox, the last British hope, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

The other men's quarters will pair Italy's Adriano Panatta with American Pat Dupre and Gullikson against Roscoe Tanner. In contrast to the erratic form in the men's draw, the top eight women all advanced to the quarters. Defending champion Martina Navratilova had a difficult time against South Africa's Greer Stevens but survived 7-6, 6-7, 6-3.

Chris Evert Lloyd, Tracy Austin, Billie Jean King and Virginia Wade all had straight victories. Evonne Goolagong Cawley, the 1971 champion, had a harder time but got past American Kathy Jordan 7-6, 6-7, 6-1.

Navratilova goes against Australian Dianne Fromholtz in the quarters, with Lloyd meeting Australian Wendy Turnbull. Wade against Cawley and King against Austin.

The action resumes Monday. McEnroe's frustrations started in the first set. He shouted at spectators who were moving about, and complained about the noise. Excited spectators were screaming and yelling on the next court, where Panatta was beating America's Sandy Mayer 7-6, 6-3, 7-6.

Hawks capture city championship

The Hawks used a three-run double by Jason Farthing in the first inning to stake themselves to an early 4-0 lead, then relied on the pitching of Jay Pirkle to take an 7-1 victory and claim the 1979 Big Spring City Little League Tournament Championship Saturday night.

The Hawks, the regular season champions of the American League, loaded the bases in the first on back-to-back singles by Stacy Kilgore and Pirkle, and a walk to Jack Owens. Farthing, who collected three hits in the contest, then doubled to left center to clean the bases and give the Hawks a 3-0 lead. Farthing then scored on Mark Rea's two-out single.

The Yankees appeared to have a rally of their own in the first inning, loading the bases with nobody out. But Pirkle struck out the next two hitters and Lane Salvo grounded out to end the inning.

Yankee hurler Mark Walker settled down to whiff six Hawk batters in a row before Ismael Paradez singled and scored on Read's second single of the contest. Read added another run in the inning on a bases loaded walk.

The Hawks rounded out their scoring for the evening when Farthing singled and later scored on a throwing error by the Yankees.

Bobby Headrick, who had two of the Yankees three hits, started a belated rally for the champions of the National League on a bunt single with two outs in the bottom of the fifth. Sammy Watson then tripled against the grain of a shifted Hawk defense and Headrick raced home. But Hawk catcher Doug Walker tagged Watson out two pitches later attempting to steal home to stop the Yankee uprising.

Pirkle fanned the side in the final inning to end the game. He fanned 10 hitters in the contest, while losing pitcher Mark Walker struck out 12 hitters, most on a curve ball.

The Hawks had beaten the Colts of the American League by a score of 7-4 in the semifinals on Friday night, while the Yankees had advanced to the final round by taking a 7-3 decision over the Tigers of the Texas League. The Tigers claimed third place in the City Tournament by taking a 9-4 decision over the Colts in a game played prior to the championship affair.

Little League action will resume on Monday, July 16, when the District Little League All-Stars will determine a representative to the regional tourney. Action will be held in the National and American League Parks.

Prior to Big Spring Cardinals game Oldtime Tigers play today

The Roy Anderson Sports Complex will be the scene today of a baseball doubleheader. At 1 p.m., the Old-time Tigers, managed by Gus Fierro and Pat Martinez Sr., will take the field against a venerable outfit called the Bad News Bears. That one will last three or four innings.

The Bad News Bears, in reality, have a lineup composed of players who once performed for the Tigers. Among other players for the Old-Time Tigers will be Elias Gamboa Sr., Juan Garcia, Nacho Rodriguez, Sonny Dutchover, Wimpy Santellon, Popeye Rodriguez and others.

The Big Spring Cardinals square off with the New Mexico Merchants in the second contest.

Starting lineup for the Red Birds will be Sammy Rodriguez, shortstop; Tony Rubio, second base; Arturo Olague, third base; Billy Pineda, right field; Larry Mendoza, center field; Ysa Rubio, left field; Jo Martinez or Lupe Ontiveros, catching, and Frankie Rubio or Luis Rodriguez on the mound.

Jody Flores and Larry Smith will be available for relief mound duties.

Raul Rubio Jr., Tommy Fletcher, Jim Brown and Robert Rubio will also see action sometime during the afternoon for the Red Birds.

Camp of champs stresses basics

SUSAN MARTIN HAROLD WILDER

Since the beginning of Howard College Camp of Champs seven years ago, the coaches have been promoting the need for sound fundamentals and valuable game experience.

The coaches at the camp have been unusual in this respect. Most other camps provide the frills without the basics. Camp Director Harold Wilder has selected Big Spring High Coach Tommy Collins, Lavernia High School Coach Bobby Beall, Hawk Queen Susan Martin, Forsan Coach Ron Taylor, and Bubba Stripling to head the coaching staff.

Fundamentals are 90 percent of the game. Once the camper can execute the basic fundamentals, he will perform better no matter what level he seeks — college, high school, junior high, or simply recreational.

The Camp of Champs begins on July 9 for girls and July 16 for boys on the campus of Howard College. Once again the camp is near maximum capacity, as it has been for the past six years.

That's sound testimony to the camp's approach, for, from humble beginnings as an idea by Harold Wilder, Howard College's Athletic Director, the Camp of Champs has become recognized as the top basketball school in West Texas. By the time the Boys Camp closes on July 20, the coaches will have put their message to some 100 boys and 50 girls ranging in ages from 8 to 15.

As in any good development program, the work load grows progressively more demanding through the period the campers are in camp. Most kids welcome this challenge — as indicated by the fact that 75 percent of the eligible campers return the following year.

Players are grouped according to age and capabilities and are coached accordingly. Depending on age, they'll put in a 14 to 16 hour day.

From the basis provided by this type of training, which is personally supervised by Coach Harold Wilder right through the camp, any player can then properly execute the proper skills of shooting, passing, dribbling, and defensive positioning.

For information on Camp of Champs, contact Harold Wilder, Howard College, 11th and Birdwell, Big Spring, Texas 79720 (915) 267-6311.

TRACY REACHES QUARTER-FINALS — Tracy Austin of the United States bites her lip, as she prepares for a double-handed return to Laura Dupont, during the Ladies Singles match at Wimbledon Saturday. Austin beat Dupont 6-2, 6-1, and will meet Billie Jean King, six times winner of the Singles championship, in the quarter-finals of the tournament.

Martin named Steer baseball boss

Big Spring Athletic Director Ron Logback announced earlier in the week that he has elevated Hal Martin to the position of head baseball coach at Big Spring High School for next year. Martin served as an assistant to former baseball boss Tommy Collins the past two years. Collins relinquished his post early in June in order to devote full time to his position as head basketball coach. Martin played his high school ball in Roswell, New Mexico, before attending Eastern New Mexico. Following graduation, he embarked on a coaching career. He was in the Coahoma system before moving to Big Spring. Logback stated that there were five or six other applicants that applied for the job, but that none had experience on the varsity level. "We felt like he was the best man available of those applying," Logback stated. "He has been involved in the baseball system here and knows the kids." Martin will also coach in the football program on some level.

Rangers rally by A's to take 8th straight win

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Al Oliver's bases-loaded infield single in the ninth inning lifted the Texas Rangers to their eighth straight win Saturday night, a 4-3 verdict over the Oakland A's.

Jim Kern, 10-1, got the victory in relief, allowing two hits, striking out four and walking two over the last 22-3 innings.

Jim Sundberg doubled off the glove of Dave Chalk at third base with one out in the ninth. Jim Todd, 2-5, walked Oscar Gamble intentionally to get to Richie Zisk, but then uncorked a wild pitch that let the runners move up.

Zisk then walked to load the bases and Oliver hit a high chopper that bounced in front of the plate and caromed over the drawn-in infield to win the game.

The eight-game win streak matches the Rangers' all-time best, set in 1976.

Edwards doubled, moved up on Picciolo's bunt and scored on Dave Chalk's single to give Oakland a 1-0 lead in the third.

With two outs, three straight Rangers walked, but John Ellis hit an infield grounder to end the inning. But in the third, after Zisk singled, Dave Roberts and Nelson Norman both walked to load the bases with two outs. Willis then hit a two-run double.

Edwards singled in the fifth and scored from first on Picciolo's double down the left field line to tie the game, 2-2.

Picciolo went 3-for-3, including a single in the ninth. Henderson sacrificed him to second, but Kern struck out Essian and Jeff Newman to end the threat.

Chalk, after his third-inning RBI, walked in the fifth, seventh and ninth.

Orioles stifle Blue Jays

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ken Singleton hit his 17th home run of the season and Mike Flanagan hurled a six-hitter to lead the Baltimore Orioles to a 2-0 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Saturday night.

Baltimore got its first run in the first inning when Singleton hit a two-out home run over the left field fence. Flanagan, 10-5, struck out two and walked only one. Tom Underwood, 2-11, allowed only four Baltimore hits while taking the loss.

Phils race by Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Greg Gross raced home from second base when Larry Bowa knocked the ball out of shortstop Garry Templeton's hands on a double play attempt in the 10th inning and Greg Luzinski followed with an RBI single to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 6-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday.

The Phils had rallied from a 4-1 deficit with a three-run ninth inning. Luzinski belted a two-out homer and, after Garry Maddox singled, pinch-hitter Del Unser delivered a second two-run homer to tie it.

Ron Reed, 6-3, was the winner, with Tug McGraw picking up his eighth save. George Frazier, 0-1, who surrendered the homer to Unser, the first batter he faced, suffered the loss.

Saturday baseball

Indians ease by Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — Jim Norris went 4-for-4 with a run batted in and Andre Thornton hit a homer for Cleveland's winning run Saturday as the Indians beat the Detroit Tigers 4-2.

Thornton triggered the Indians' two-run second inning with a single off Kip Young, 1-1. He came around on a passed ball, Toby Harrah's bunt single and Mike Hargrove's sacrifice fly.

Norris and Ron Hassey then singled to load the bases and Harrah scored on Tom Veryzer's grounder. Thornton made it 3-0 in the third with his 11th homer of the season.

The Tigers got an unearned run off David Clyde, 1-0, in the fifth, and cut the Indians' lead to 3-2 in the seventh when Jerry Morales led off with a double, went to third on Jason Thompson's pinch single and scored on an infield single.

Smalley leads Twins assault

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Roy Smalley drove in five runs with a single, double and his 14th homer of the year as the Minnesota Twins, exploding for six runs in the fourth inning, coasted to a 16-4 rout of the Chicago White Sox Saturday.

Smalley hit an RBI single in the third inning, a two-run double in the Twins' fourth and a two-run homer in the seventh to lead Minnesota's assault against Ed Farmer, 2-3, and two relievers.

Geoff Zahn, 7-1, earned his fourth victory with relief from Mike Bacsik.

The White Sox got a run in the sixth on Smalley's bobble of Junior Moore's leadoff grounder to shortstop, an infield out and Chet Lemon's RBI double. Lamar Johnson hit his sixth homer of the year in Chicago's three-run ninth.

Seaver tames Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tom Seaver pitched a two-hitter and the Cincinnati Reds cranked a scoreless tie with two runs in the ninth inning for a 2-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants Saturday.

Seaver, 6-5, didn't allow a hit after pitcher John Montefusco doubled leading off the third. The Reds' right-hander retired the last 21 batters and struck out five and walked one.

Cincinnati scored its runs off Ed Whitson, 2-4. Ken Griffey opened the ninth with a single and advanced on a wild pitch. Dan Driessen was walked intentionally and Harry Spillman was hit by a pitch, loading the bases.

Griffey scored on Cesar Geronimo's grounder, second baseman Joe Strain's throw failing to force the runner at the plate. Vic Cornell then walked, forcing in Driessen with the other run.

Mets rally to outscore Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — Joel Youngblood and Lee Mazzilli cracked two-run homers and Steve Henderson hit a two-run triple in the 11th inning Saturday to give the Mets a wild 9-8 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

With one out in the 11th, pinch-hitter Ed Kranepool was hit by a pitch by Dick Tidrow, 3-2, before Youngblood broke a 3-3 tie with his 11th homer. Frank Taveras then singled and Lee Mazzilli, who had homered off Rick Reuschel in the eighth inning to tie the game, followed with his eighth homer.

In the bottom of the 11th, with Dale Murray pitching, Ken Henderson and Ivan DeJesus singled, Scot Thompson walked, Bill Buckner hit an RBI-single and Mike Vail, batting for Moore, hit a grand slam homer before Ed Glynn came on to earn his fourth save.

Brewers rip Mariners

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Gorman Thomas' two-run homer keyed a five-run first inning, and Paul Molitor and Sixto Lezcano also homered for Milwaukee, powering the Brewers to a 8-1 victory over the Seattle Mariners Saturday night.

Moose Haas, 5-5, fired a fourth-inning Loser John Montague, 4-3, failed to retire any of the four Brewer batters he faced in his first start since Sept. 20, 1977. Molitor led off with his fifth homer and Don Money followed with a double and scored on a single by Cecil Cooper. Thomas then belted his 19th homer of the year.

Angels outslug Royals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bobby Grich and Willie Aikens hit home runs and Joe Rudi drove in two runs with a single to lead the California Angels to an 8-5 victory Saturday night over Kansas City.

Aikens' two-run homer in the fourth brought the Angels to within one run at 3-2, then starter Rich Grich led off the fifth with his 17th home run. Two outs later, Don Baylor singled and Aikens walked. Brian Downing singled home Baylor. Rudi made it 6-3 with his twourun single.

Yaz's shot sinks Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Boston's Carl Yastrzemski smashed his 399th career home run in the ninth inning Saturday, giving the Red Sox a 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees.

Yaz connected on a 1-1 pitch from ex-teammate Luis Tiant, 4-3, sending his 16th homer of the season into the lower right field stands. Bob Stanley, 9-5, earned the victory with a five-hitter.

The Yankees tied the game in the eighth. Pinch-hitter Jim Spencer led off with a single to right. After Bucky Dent sacrificed pinch-runner Roy White to second, Stanley retired Willie Randolph on a grounder. Then Jerry Remy missed Bobby Murcer's grounder, allowing White to score from second.

The Red Sox got to Tiant for two runs in the second inning, both scoring on single by designated hitter Bob Watson. The Yankees got one run back in the third when Juan Beniquez and Dent hit doubles past third baseman Butch Hobson.

Rankin ties LPGA record Saturday

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Judy Rankin tied a single-round mark of nine birdies Saturday on her way to a course-record 65 and a five-shot lead going into Sunday's final round of a Ladies Professional Golfers Association tournament.

Rankin, who went into Saturday's action three shots behind second-round leader Debbie Austin, played a skillful combination of shots from the rough, sand and soggy fairways for her 7-under-par round. She takes a 208 into Sunday's play, 8 shots under par.

The 17-year veteran needed only 23 putts in shattering both the mens' and womens' records at the Dearborn Country Club course — firing five birdies on the front nine for a 32 and four on the backside for a 33.

Austin, who carded a 73, was alone at 3-under-par 213. Amy Alcott, who shot the day's second-best round at 68, joined defending champion Sandra Post and rookie Beth Daniel in third at 214, two shots under par.

"I just had a golden touch with the putter today," Rankin said. "Fortunately, I made the right shots to get to the putts that counted. Sunday, I'll just let the law of averages take care of the putts — if I have any luck left."

The $150,000 tournament carries a first prize of $22,500. "I would rather have a five-shot lead on a difficult course than on an easy one," Rankin said. "And I consider this a tough course."

The $150,000 Lady Stroh's Open, in its second year, is sponsored by the Stroh Brewing Co.

Unknown Texan takes Danny Thomas lead

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Brad Bryant, a Texan who has been having mixed luck on the professional golf tour, fired a four-under-par 68 Saturday to grab the third round lead in the $300,000 Danny Thomas Memphis Classic.

Bryant's 54-hole total of 209 gave him a one-stroke edge over Tom Kite, who carded a 69 Saturday at the 7,249-yard Colonial Country Club. Peter Jacobsen, Jim Simons, Wally Armstrong, Cesar Sanudo and Larry Ziegler were bunched at 211.

Second-round leader Jack Newton of Australia slumped to 76 for 214, while defending champion Andy Bean stayed in striking distance with a 68 — 213.

The best round of the day belonged to Rod Curl, who had a 67 to run his total to 212.

Bryant, 24, who joined the tour last year, had four birdies for the day and seemed unaffected by wet fairways and high winds which produced less than satisfying scores for some of the early leaders.

Bryant, whose best finish this year was a tie for fourth in the Bing Crosby Open, missed the cut in nine of his 18 tournament entries this year. He qualified for the Danny Thomas with a two-under-par 70 Monday.

Bryant, who lists Bible studying, hunting and fishing as hobbies, said his golf game had improved recently.

"It seems I am playing a professional game instead of a high school or college game," he said, explaining that he was driving better and becoming more aggressive in his play.

Despite his position Saturday, Bryant said he did not have high expectations for Sunday's final round.

"The Bible teaches us that we should try to seek the kingdom of God first and He will add what you need."

Astros lead NL West by 6½ games

Richard dominates Padres

SAN DIEGO (AP) — J.R. Richard shut out the Padres on just three hits and struck out six to run his league-leading total to 132 as the streaking Houston Astros scored their 10th victory in their last 12 games with a 3-0 win over San Diego Saturday night.

Richard, 7-7, walked only two batters and hurled his first shutout and seventh complete game of the year.

The win was Houston's 20th this month, their best June record in history and tied a club record for wins in one month.

Bob Shirley, 3-8, the Padres' hard-luck left-hander who entered the game with a 0.90 earned run average in his last 18 outings, took the loss as he surrendered a pair of runs in the fifth and another in the sixth on Cesar Cedeño's fifth homer of the year.

Shirley had shut out the Astros on just one hit over the first four innings before Houston came up with three singles and a double by Terry Puhl to give Richard a 2-0 lead.

Jose Cruz and Julio Gonzalez both singled and Alan Ashby knocked in the first Astro run with a single to right. After Shirley fanned Richard, Puhl rocketed a double into the right field corner to send Gonzalez home with Houston's second tally.

The towering Houston righthander was in complete command, allowing just one Padre runner as far as second base.

Jay Johnstone broke up Richard's hitless string with a leadoff double in the fifth, and Bill Almon drew a walk two outs later. But Richard ended San Diego's only serious scoring threat by getting Shirley on a high chopper to third which Enos Cabell fielded bare-handed to throw him out at first.

Richard's complete game effort was the 32nd of the season for the Astros, and his shutout was the 12th recorded by their pitching staff. Both marks are high for the National League.

The 6-foot-8 hurler finished off the game by retiring the last 10 batters he faced.

Following Johnstone's double, the only other hits the Padres could manage were a sharp single to center, by Paul Dade and Dave Winfield's infield hit, both in the sixth inning.

Memphis upsets Dallas Tornado with late rally

DALLAS (AP) — Speedy Brazilian winger Mirandinha fired in one goal and was credited with an assist on another as the Memphis Rogues upset Dallas 2-1 Saturday night despite a frantic last-minute rally that brought the Tornado a goal in a North American Soccer League game.

Dallas, with several of its best players out because of injuries, never seemed to get the measure of Memphis, despite the Rogues' unimpressive 5-14 season record.

Ken Cooper, playing in goal for the first time this year in place of injured Alex Stepany, was hindered by a confused and weaker than usual Dallas defense.

Memphis' first goal came only minutes into the second half at 47:42 on a free kick by John Faulkner after Tornado defender Glenn Myernick had fouled Rogue forward Tony Field. Mirandinha was credited with an assist on the goal which was Faulkner's first of the season.

Mirandinha scored the second goal himself at 60:32. The play started with an interception by Jimmy Husband, who passed across to Field who sent it on to Mirandinha on the wing. Mirandinha ran neatly around a bunched and confused Dallas defense and fired the ball home past the bewildered Cooper.

Gideon retires from baseball

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Former University of Texas All-American pitcher Jim Gideon is through with baseball as a result of a nerve injury in his right shoulder.
 Gideon, 25, signed with the Texas Rangers in June 1975 for a bonus estimated at $80,000 after winning 19 games his junior year. He was traded to Minnesota in 1976.

National Schwinn BMX Tour exciting in stop here

SMOOTH AT THE CORNER — A group of 14-15 expert riders hit one of the final turns in an exciting race Wednesday at the Big Spring BMX race track, which hosted a stop on the prestigious Schwinn-BMX National Tour.

The Big Spring BMX Track was the host of the national 1979 Schwinn National BMX Tour Wednesday afternoon, and the action in the increasingly popular bicycle racing sport was very exciting.

Around 400 people, bikers and spectators included, gathered at the local track located approximately five miles south of town off of Jeffries Road.

Riders from such places as California, New Jersey, and Florida participated in the competition, as well as many riders from Big Spring, Odessa, and Midland. Most of the area riders were entered in the novice competition.

The affair was one of 30 on the national tour that started three weeks ago in San Francisco and will head toward the east coast before winding back across to its conclusion at Seattle, Washington.

Many of the talented riders are sponsored by bicycle promoters, and travel in custom vans and expensive travel homes.

AND THEY'RE OFF — A group of age 10-11 novice bikers hit the first bump in their race at the Big Spring BMX Track Wednesday afternoon. The youngsters were part of the many bikers, many from as far away as California and New Jersey to compete in the Big Spring stop of the Schwinn-BMX National Tour.

Happy Irishman highlights Ruidoso Downs action today

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. — Happy Irishman, a roan gelding who was out of the money only twice in 11 starts as a two-year-old, carries a bankroll of $31,369 into Sunday's renewal of the Rio Grande Stakes at Ruidoso Downs.

The 6 1/2-furlong duel for State-bred sophomores will offer a gross purse of $6,750. Thirteen races are on tap with a starting time of 1 p.m.

Happy Irishman, owned by Carlross Alexander of Lovington, N.M., will be making his '79 debut. He'll break from the No. 6 post with Gary Sumpter aboard in the top load of 122 pounds. He's likely to get his stiffest competition from Saurkraut, Draconic's Loom and Nancy O' Nasty.

Here's a look at the field: 1 — Fresh Challenge, 108 (Joe Martinez); 2 — Vitenpost Jr., 114 (Tony Trujillo); 3 — Self Sparkling, 109 (Dave Mello); 5 — Got Up and Gone, 117 (Don Howard); 6 — Happy Irishman, 122 (Gary Sumpter); 7 — Draconic's Loom, 119 (Robert Roller); 8 — Nancy O' Nasty, 114 (Danny Summerow); 9 — Rebel Leader, 111 (Charles Mueller).

Happy Irishman hasn't been to the races since Dec. 17 at Sunland Park, when he raced as a 5-2 shot in that track's prestigious Fall Thoroughbred Futurity. He broke a bit slowly, settling in fifth place in the early going.

At the turn for home, he picked up steam but was no match for Fol's Native, and had to settle for second.

Earlier last year, Happy Irishman took second in the El Dorado Futurity and third in the Cutarusty Stakes, both at Sunland. At the New Mexico State Fair, he raced to a front-running head victory in the A.C. Kemp Memorial Handicap.

His work at Ruidoso Downs last summer included a booming 6 3/4-length win, as a 2-1 favorite, against maidens, and a 4 1/2-length score as a 6-5 favorite in a band of allowance juveniles traveling 5 1/2 furlongs. He also took fourth in the Rio Grande Futurity behind the brilliant Pocket Coin.

coasting 3 3/4-length win. He led almost from the first jump. The fans had him down at nearly 4-1.

In two other outs at the meeting, Draconic's Loom took it on the chin in stakes competition. He finished sixth as a 31-1 outsider in the Aspen Stakes and eighth as a 17-1 shot in the Memorial Day Handicap.

At the start of the meeting, Draconic's Loom kicked off with a neck win over allowance foes. He raced as the people's choice in that one.

Draconic's Loom first came into prominence by taking third, as an 80-1 outsider, behind Fol's Native and Happy Irishman in the Sunland Fall Thoroughbred Futurity. The colt would up his freshman year with winnings of nearly $15,000.

Saurkraut comes off a good second to Draconic's Loom. He raced at nearly 4-1. Before that, the quickly-improving gelding accounted for a clear-cut win against allowance company. The distance was 5 1/2 furlongs.

Jackson makes unsuccessful return to Yankee lineup

'I stunk, but I did the best I could'

NEW YORK (AP) — "I stunk, but I did the best I could," Reggie Jackson said after returning to the baseball wars Friday night.

It wasn't a particularly auspicious return — Reggie went 0-for-6 and struck out four times in the New York Yankees' 13-inning 3-2 loss to the Boston Red Sox — and he only got to talk to Manager Billy Martin for a few seconds. But at least Jackson was off the disabled list and doing his thing, which is swinging a bat.

The bases were empty the first three times Jackson came up against Mike Torrez. He struck out twice, but in the seventh inning he sent center fielder Fred Lynn to the wall for his drive.

"I thought it was gone," he said. "It was one of the best breaking balls he threw all night and I was looking for it, but I swung too quick and hit on top of the ball. All night long I was getting the bat through the strike zone too quickly."

Jackson, who was the Yankees' designated hitter, was fanned by Torrez with runners at first and second and none out in the ninth inning. He fouled to the catcher against Bill Campbell following a leadoff single in the 11th and looked at a third strike from Dick Drago leading off the 13th.

"I didn't even get a chance to test my leg tonight," said Jackson, who was sidelined for almost a month by a slight muscle tear between the calf and Achilles tendon on his left leg.

"I'm not especially discouraged," he said. "I hadn't seen any breaking pitches and the guy made some good ones on me. The first couple of times I felt strong as a bull ... strong as an ox, but I was too anxious. I might hit before the year's over, don't you think?"

The long-awaited meeting with Martin never came off. After taking nine minutes of batting practice 2 1/2 hours before the game — he had a definite limp and said his leg was "a little tired" — Jackson went into Martin's office and pronounced himself ready as DH. He was out in a few seconds and was promptly surrounded by the media.

"Having everything under a microscope isn't fair to Billy or to me," he said, "so I'm not gonna talk about it." But he described the atmosphere as "nice," adding that the two would talk later.

SETS AMERICAN RECORD — Mary Decker, University of Colorado watches her time on the score board as she is congratulated by Francie Larrieu after winning the mile event Saturday in Philadelphia's Meet of Champions. Decker ran the mile at 4:23.5 setting a new American record which was held by Larrieu.

Lake Spence report

Bill Meredith, Denver City, came within just a hair of equalling the record for a yellow catfish at Lake E.V. Spence during the past week. He boated one weighing 44 lbs. 10 ozs., barely under the 45-pounder reported by Joe Dunham, Odessa, on July 6, 1978. Gene Berry, Big Spring, also landed a 19 1/2-lb. yellow catfish.

There were numerous reports of good catches of channel and blue catfish, along with the usual string of hefty striped bass to make it one of the best reports in several weeks. Here were the highlights:

Paint Creek Marina — C.P. Wortham, and Hugh McCray, San Angelo, six striped bass with an aggregate weight of 59 1/2 lbs.; Lonnie Muse and Tom Perry, Odessa, six strippers aggregating 59 lbs.; Bob Weber, Llano, two strippers to 11 lbs.; Gene Berry, Big Spring, 10 channel catfish and a 19 1/2-lb. yellow catfish; Bill Meredith, Denver City, a 44-lb. 10-oz. yellow catfish.

Wildcat Fish a Rama — Larry and Barbara Casey, Westbrook, six blue catfish to 6 lbs., 14 channel catfish to 3 lbs. and six strippers to 12 lbs.; C.E. Collins, Sweetwater, a 9-lb. striper; Tom and Gary Wideman, Sweetwater, two strippers to 8 lbs.; Gary Gilliland, Big Spring, a 12 1/2-lb. striper; Vaughn Johnson, Odessa, a 11-lb. 14-oz. striper; Tommy Keil, Odessa, a 11-lb. 10-oz. striper; Lloyd Funk, C. Fund, Jim Funk, and Ron Gilmer, Levelland, four strippers to 3 1/2 lbs.; Ron Gilmer, Levelland, two strippers to 3 1/2 lbs.; Milton Williams, and Dwight Clark, San Angelo, five strippers to 7 lbs.; J.W. Walker, Sweetwater, a 7 3/4-lb. striper.

Skinney's Grocery — Richard and Jimmy Arthur, Colorado City, two strippers to 12 lbs.; Bill Meredith and party of Denver City 75 channel catfish to 3 lbs.

Edith Store — Howard Swaininger, Mary Neal, three strippers to 10 1/4 lbs.; Billy Carlile and Ike Plumlee, Hobbs, N.M., 12 blue catfish to 9 1/2 lbs.

Leland Key to play in Texas six-man All-Star game

STEPHENVILLE, TEXAS — Leland Key, a graduate of Grady High School, will participate in the second annual Texas Six-Man Coaches Association Clinic and All-Star Games at Tarleton State University on July 15-21. The clinic and games are being sponsored by the Stephenville Chamber of Commerce.

Key will be one of 62 small school athletes competing in All-Star basketball and football games on July 21. Key will be playing for the West football team at 8:00 p.m. in Tarleton's Memorial Stadium. Key was an all-State nose guard and made all-district at both nose guard and center. He averaged 11 tackles a game and had 23 quarterback sacks. In addition he scored 11 touchdowns.

The Clinic, which proved to be an overwhelming success last year, features a long list of activities to keep the all-star players, the coaches and their wives busy all week. The players will register on July 15 and among their planned activities is a barbecue supper, a movie, a miniature golf tournament, and a variety of activities at the Tarleton Student Center. Coaches will register on July 18 and apart from the scheduled coaching clinics will participate in golf, bowling, and fishing tournaments and have a hamburger buffet. Among activities scheduled for the coaches' wives are a tennis tournament, a fashion show, and a shopping tour of Stephenville.

In addition, each school represented with an all-star player is eligible to enter a girl in the All-Star Queen's Contest. The candidates will arrive in Stephenville on the 20th and be introduced at a picnic at the city park that evening. Judging will take place during halftime of the all-star basketball game, and the crowning of the Queen will take place during intermission of the all-star football game.

ALI AND BYRNE IN BOUT — Muhammed Ali, right, takes a body punch from New Jersey Governor Brendan Byrne Friday night in a boxing match held as a fundraiser for the Jersey City Medical Center in Jersey City.

Even Ali can't understand the popularity

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Muhammad Ali says he's so popular, even he can't understand it.

"I get this everywhere I go," the former heavyweight champion said Friday night as fans chanted "Ali, Ali, Ali," after he appeared in a pair of exhibition matches against Gov. Brendan T.

Byrne and Jersey City Mayor Thomas Smith.

"I can't walk the streets, this happens everywhere. They keep calling for me," Ali said. "At this moment in history, I'm the biggest thing in the world."

Ali, who confirmed Tuesday that he had officially resigned his World

Boxing Association heavyweight title, was not referring to the excess baggage he's been carrying around his midsection.

He boxed the matches wearing the bottom part of a navy blue jogging suit, his once-firm belly bouncing with every move. At 234 pounds, the only man to win the heavyweight title three times was not close to being in shape, but not as round as he appeared on his recent European tour.

Ali boxed Byrne and Smith for fun and said even a $50 million offer can't entice him to do it for real ever again.

"I got an offer three days ago from a promoter in South Africa to fight Gerrie Coetzee anywhere I want," Ali said. "I turned it down."

All 10,000 seats at the Jersey City Armory reportedly were sold, most to Jersey City businesses, but only about half the crowd showed up. The tickets went for $50, $25 and $10, but Ali was appearing for free as a favor to Newark promoter Murad Muhammad, a former member of his entourage. Most of the proceeds went to the Jersey City Medical Center Foundation.

Ali hit the deck three times as Byrne playfully slapped at the former champion. Smith, however, actually hit Ali with a couple of good shots.

"You know, the mayor was pretty serious," he said. "You can get hurt if you don't watch him."

Ali plans to keep busy organizing WORLD — The World Organization for Rights, Liberty and Dignity — and plans extensive travels to promote peace.

"I predict that a year after boxing, I'll be bigger than I am now," he said. "Boxers usually go down after they retire, I'll get bigger. I'm the only man, besides the president, that can get off a plane in Russia and walk right into Brezhnev's office."

Ali also said he plans a gala retirement party in September in the Forum in Los Angeles.

Astros trying to match Oiler Cinderella story

HOUSTON (AP) — The Cinderella story of a Houston Sports franchise is alive again.

Last winter, the Houston Oilers, laughable vagabonds of the National Football League for so many years, suddenly became championship contenders and went all the way to the American Conference title game before losing to Pittsburgh.

A crowd of 40,000 adoring fans awaited their return to a pep rally in the Astrodome in the early morning hours.

Another Cinderella story could not happen under the same Astrodome roof — but it is. Meet the Houston Astros, who have carried the same cagatag reputation as the Oilers until this year.

those explanations and more to define the Astros' metamorphosis, but the overriding reason to date is the success of a pitching staff straight from the twilight zone.

Ken Forsch pitched a no-hitter on the second day of the season. Knuckleball specialist Joe Niekro ticked off nine consecutive victories and became the first pitcher in the major leagues to win 11 games this season.

The Astros' amazing climb to first place in the National League West has been a tantalizing blend of players putting together pitching and hitting streaks — a key hit here, a great defensive play there, and don't forget a strong dash of luck.

Experts have used all

When four Houston pitchers, including Forsch, went on the disabled list, the Astru plucked Randy Niemann and Rick Williams from the minor leagues.

As the Astros took to the road last week, Niemann carried a 3-0 record. Williams evened his slate at 3-3 with a 6-5 win over San Francisco Thursday.

The Astros have been winning with an uncanny talent for getting the key hit or putting together a rally at the right moment. But it's tough to thrive a full season on a steady diet of Death Valley rallies.

Pinch-hitter Denny Walling has been the leader of those cardiac comebacks, hitting as high as .556 in his role as a pinch-hitter this year.

Chicken Mania back as Padre cheerleader

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Cheered by the sight of their fine-feathered friend, 47,000 San Diego fans have welcomed back their beloved bird. And tiny Ted Giannoulas, the man behind Chicken Mania, was proud as a peacock.

Defrocked for two months by a court order, the 5-foot-4 Giannoulas returned to San Diego Stadium Friday night in a modified chicken suit.

As the crowd chanted "We want the Chicken," Giannoulas, out of sight behind the outfield fence, climbed into a giant styrofoam egg on top of an armored car.

A roar reverberated through the stadium as the truck rumbled onto the field. Two motorcycle patrolmen, sirens wailing, provided escort.

named by his fans, he said.

Once in the stands, the furry Pied Piper was engulfed by a mob of squealing youngsters.

The crowd was the largest of the year for the padres, who are averaging 2,000 fans per game.

Earlier in the day, Giannoulas said he shelled out a strange ransom to four eggpoachers who stole the empty egg from the ballpark and demanded four tickets to the game and $20 worth of beer for its safe return.

When the truck reached third base, a group of Padres gingerly removed it from its perch and placed it on the ground.

First the egg rolled toward second base and back again. Then it shook, began cracking and out popped the new multicolored bird.

"I'm coming back to family and their laughter," said Giannoulas, who handed out stamped cigars proclaiming "It's a bird."

Mostly orange, the costume contains all the main colors of San Diego's sports teams, Giannoulas said. Across his chest, his official crest was emblazoned with a flying egg and stamped with the letter C. "That stands for comedy and California," said Giannoulas, who insists he has made enough modifications to skirt the court order.

But like the Phoenix of Egyptian mythology, the grounded Chicken reemerged in full plumage.

Giannoulas made a grand entrance as the San Diego Padres' mascot.

Before heading into the stands, Giannoulas had one last crack.

"Now if only Gaylord (starting pitcher Gaylord Perry) can throw a goose egg."

He didn't. Perry's first pitch was blasted for a home run and the Padres dropped a 4-1 decision.

THE SHINE OF HIS LIFE — Umpire Doug Harvey gets a little buttering up from San Diego Padre mascot Ted Giannoulas Friday in San Diego. Giannoulas, formerly the KGB chicken, returned to action Friday as a new character after losing a court decision with the radio station. Over 45,000 fans turned out to welcome the new character.

Mother of braless netter outraged over exposure the press has no sense of proportion PIEDMONT, Calif. (AP) — Egea Siegel doesn't appreciate millions of people ogling her daughter coming out of her tennis dress.

"I think the press has shown incredibly poor taste the way they've exploited my daughter," steamed Mrs. Siegel after seeing a revealing picture of her daughter Linda competing at Wimbledon.

appeared on the front pages of the local papers, they were transmitted world wide by the wire services.

"Her outfit conformed to Wimbledon's dress codes. What happened was simply an accident," Mrs. Siegel said. "It could have happened to anybody. But some local papers didn't even have the decency to give an explanation of the incident when the story broke. They just ran the picture with some ludicrous captions."

"She said she was embarrassed it broke and that the London press won't leave her alone about it," Mrs. Siegel said.

In London, her daughter was quoted as saying she was not frightened to wear the dress again.

"As a mother, I think the press could find something more important to write about than this x-rated stuff."

Eighteen-year-old Linda excited London's Fleet Street and much of the world's press by breaking a strap on her braless, low-cut dress while losing to Billie Jean King Wednesday. The broken strap exposed her left breast momentarily, a condition several tabloid photographers froze forever with their quick shutters.

"What bothers me is that all this fuss detracts from Linda's tennis. She's an outstanding player. She won the 12 and 16 Nationals and has represented our country. Her tennis accomplishments usually rate one line in the papers. The press has no sense of proportion."

"I suppose it is a bit daring," she told a reporter. "Because I don't wear a bra, there was always the chance that something might happen. It happened, so what? I wasn't aware that I had shown too much."

Newspapers whose photographers missed pictures of her popping out of the dress flocked to her hotel, reportedly requesting a repeat performance or that she pose topless. She refused.

After the pictures appeared on the front pages of the local papers, they were transmitted world wide by the wire services.

"Her outfit conformed to Wimbledon's dress codes. What happened was simply an accident," Mrs. Siegel said. "It could have happened to anybody. Mrs. Siegel said Linda had called home following the match and talked to her sisters about the strap breaking.

Meanwhile, officials of the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club said that floral arrangements addressed to Siegel have begun arriving from newfound admirers.

Mission fizzles

Stenholm insists DOE should be abolished

ABILENE — Cong. Charles Stenholm (D-Tex.) said here Friday that he was of the opinion that the Department of Energy had failed in its mission and should be abolished.

Stenholm was on his way to his home in Stamford after Congress went into recess for the July 4 holiday.

The representative also said that the DOE and Congress are not doing all they can to help solve the energy crisis. The mood of Congress is changing, however, Stenholm added.

A group of congressmen, including Stenholm, are meeting to see what they can do for the energy supply and provide active leadership for energy bills. Some of the projected legislation promote synthetic fuels.

Stenholm said the OPEC nations "literally have the world by the throat...OPEC doesn't need the money — they don't know what to do with what they've got."

The West Texan said that if the United States could get half a million barrels a day of synthetic oil, OPEC would break up because the price of oil would go down.

"We're going to have a still on every farm producing synthetic fuel energy, once we set our minds to it," Stenholm predicted.

Stenholm was particularly critical of the windfall profits tax, identifying it not as a profits tax but rather an excise tax on oil at the wellheads.

The Texas Democrat will attend a "Fly-In" at Colorado City at 7 a.m. Wednesday. He will return to Colorado City for the 4 p.m. rodeo parade Saturday. His schedule calls for his return to Washington a week from today.

Three sisters on honor lists

ABILENE — Four Big Spring residents, including three sisters, have been named to academic honor lists at Hardin-Simmons University for the Spring, 1979 semester.

Julie Davidson and Linda G. Kelley were named to the Dean's List, Brenda K. Kelly qualified for the Honor Roll and Joyce A. Kelley made the Honorable Mention listing.

There were 68 students who compiled a perfect 4.0 grade point average (all A's) to make the Deans list while carrying at least 12 hours. Another 77 made the Honor Roll by having at least a 3.7 grade point average while carrying at least 12 hours and the Honorable Mention list included 34 students who had a grade point average between 3.7 and 4.0 while carrying between six and eleven hours.

A normal college course is worth three or four hours credit.

WHAT TO DO? — Business reverses are forcing Tina Davis (with extended arm here) to close her mobile home park east of Big Spring on IS 20 but Tina seems more worried over the fact that a lot of neighborhood kids will be deprived of swimming in this pool. The pool is full of children every afternoon the temperatures begin to heat up. Unless some one comes along and keeps the facility open, it will have to be closed, too.

WAITING — This little guy is waiting to be claimed or adopted at the Big Spring Animal Shelter. He wandered into the yard of Joe Dawes, 2510 Broadway, a week ago. Dawes reluctantly turned him over to the shelter Wednesday in hopes that someone has a soft heart for fluffy, wavy, brown fur. The puppy, about eight weeks old, will be destroyed if not adopted by Friday. You can see him and a large selection of other adoptable dogs and cats at the shelter, located at 911 E. 2nd St., 7 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday. A pound fee of $16 includes a rabies vaccination and dog license.

Wishcamper underwent open heart surgery 28 months ago. He said he had decided to take early retirement for reasons of health.

The McMurry College graduate has served as chief editor of the paper for 26 years.

Nuclear age comes to Texas! So who's right?

Editor's Note: Nuclear power has come to Texas whether Texans want it or not. It's brought prosperity to the towns around the two plants being built, and a quiet fear to some of the residents. The power companies contend the plants will be safe, regardless of Three Mile Island. Vocal opponents aren't so sure. So who's right? Who knows?

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

The list of natural resources in tiny Somervell County is a short one—some stony farm and pasture land, meager sand and gravel, a few dinosaur tracks and the Brazos River. There's nary a hint of petroleum and the limestone isn't even good enough to quarry.

But the famished county is going to have Texas' first nuclear power plant, ironically propelling it into the energy forefront of the state that has for eight decades been the nation's mother lode of oil and natural gas.

Whether or not Somervell County gets the last laugh on the rest of energy-rich Texas happens to be the subject of an already heated debate over the safety of the commercial nuclear power that won't be here until at least 1981.

Two controversial nuclear plants are under construction in Texas, the Comanche Peak station in Somervell County about 50 miles south of Fort Worth and the South Texas Nuclear Project on the Texas Coast 80 miles south of Houston. A smaller third plant is planned near Sealy, west of Houston.

Gulf States Utilities Co. planned, but later scrubbed for financial reasons, another plant in deep East Texas. Gulf States customers in East Texas, however, will be served by a nuclear plant being built north of Baton Rouge, La.

Comanche Peak and the STNP have both been plagued with construction delays and cost escalations that have pushed the price of each plant to more than $1.7 billion.

Both have had highly-publicized repairs on concrete and welding in sensitive safety areas. The governing Nuclear Regulatory Commission stopped some major work at the troubled South Texas plant last week because of voids in the concrete in a radiation containment building.

And both have been the target of demonstrations by increasingly sophisticated and vocal anti-nuclear forces bolstered by the March accident at the Three Mile Island plant in Pennsylvania.

But utility executives and experts claim Texas, with its booming economy a glut for more energy, cannot do without the 4,800 megawatts that the two plants should be producing by 1983 and the 1,200 megawatts that someday might come from the proposed Allens Creek plant near Sealy.

That's enough megawatts, the utilities say, to regularly serve more than 1.5 million residential customers. It would take, they add, more than 840 million gallons of fuel oil per year for an oil-burning plant to match just the 2,300 megawatts produced by less than 100 tons of nuclear fuel at Comanche Peak.

"What alternative does Texas have? If Texas wanted to secede from the United States and then use its own oil and gas for 200 years, we could get by without nuclear power," said Dr. Robert Cochran, head of Texas A&M's nuclear engineering department. "If we stay in the United States and continue to send our gas to Hyannis Port, then we'll have to have nuclear."

"In the 1980s, this country is going to be in one helluva fix for electric power. We're going to need all we can get and we can't do it without nuclear," said Bill R. Clements, a former commander of a nuclear submarine and vice president of the Texas

Utilities subsidiary that'll operate the Comanche Peak plant.

"If there's no nuclear power, it will give us an electric situation critical enough to make the current gasoline shortage seem like nothing," said Jim Parsons, a public affairs director for Houston Lighting & Power Co., the managing partner of the South Texas plant.

Most of Texas' electricity is still generated by increasingly expensive natural gas, which many say is also rapidly diminishing. Some Texas utility companies are converting many of their plants to coal, which is hauled in from out of state. Texas Utilities is using cheaper, readily available lignite coal mined near its generating plants.

The two 1,150-megawatt units at Comanche Peak, the first of which is scheduled to be in operation in early 1981, will be providing more than 15 percent of the electricity for Texas Utilities, which serves a third of the state's population.

The first 1,250 megawatt unit of the South Texas plant, a joint venture of the cities of Austin, San Antonio, H&P and Central Power & Light of Corpus Christi, is scheduled to begin operating in the spring of 1982. Parsons said the entire plant would be providing about six percent of the electricity for H&P's million customers by 1983.

This idea of nuclear power seems mystical to Texans accustomed to plentiful natural gas and oil, but it's nothing new to the energy-anemic Northeast and Midwest.

The first commercial nuclear power plant, a small 90 megawatt unit, began operating in Shippingport, Pa., in 1957—at a time when nuclear power was touted as a safe, clean source of electricity too cheap to meter.

Seventy-two reactor units are currently licensed to operate in the United States, but that total includes the one Three Mile Island unit shut down by the accident.

Nuclear plants generated more than 12 percent of the nation's electricity last year, Texas Utilities officials said. Almost half of the electricity in Chicago and 80 percent of that used in Vermont comes from nuclear power.

Another 96 reactor units, including the four in Texas, are under construction and 22 reactor units have been ordered by utility companies.

Dale Bridenbaugh of San Jose, Calif., an engineer for 22 years in General Electric's nuclear power plant program and a member of the opposition Union of Concerned Scientists, said tremendous pressure is being exerted on Americans to accept these plants without knowing for sure if the safety systems work.

"There's economic pressure to put those plants in service. We can't afford to go ahead and build those plants without demonstrating whether their safety systems work," he said. "It would be like building more DC-10s without knowing for sure whether the engines are going to fall off or not."

U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio, an outspoken foe of nuclear power who has introduced legislation to stop the licensing of future nuclear plants and the gradual decommissioning of those operating, said he's afraid Americans are building up a dependence on what he fears they will discover is a safety hazard.

"Now is the time that we can re-evaluate and withdraw from that swamp if necessary. I think perhaps it's irreversible. You've got a tremendous power struggle here involving millions of dollars," he said in Washington.

As an alternative, Gonzalez proposes the use of coal and an "all-out" effort to develop solar energy. Gonzalez' hometown, however, has been hit with huge increases in the rates charged by railroads carrying Wyoming coal to the city-owned City Public Service.

Utility officials retort, however, that nuclear power has been a safe, proven source of electricity for more than 20 years and point to the repeated inspections during construction, impressive safeguards and numerous—and expensive—safety systems, backup systems and backup backup systems.

Nobody, they point out with great relish, has ever been killed or seriously injured in an accident involving commercial nuclear power.

Despite the construction delays—two years at the STNP and a year at Comanche Peak—and the accompanying cost increases, Texas utility officials claim that their plants will still be a good deal for their customers if compared to the cost of electricity generated by coal, oil or natural gas.

But they do admit this newfangled nuclear power is not going to lower your electric bill one bit, just slow the anticipated price increases. "It's not going to lower anybody's bill," said Parsons, "but it will help stabilize them."

"The days of cheap power are gone," said Clements. "People can just blow that off."

How does nuclear power plant work?

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

It's immensely more expensive to build and considerably more sophisticated, but a nuclear power plant generates electricity on the same decades-old principle as plants powered by natural gas, oil or coal.

It goes something like this: Heated water produces steam, which drives a turbine, which spins a generator, which produces electricity.

The heat source in the case of Comanche Peak's and South Texas Nuclear Project's pressurized water reactor plants, however, will be energy released by nuclear fission—the splitting of the nuclei of uranium 235.

A self-sustaining chain reaction is set off when a neutron collides with a U-235 nucleus and releases heat and other neutrons, which then bombard other U-235 nuclei. The reaction is controlled by control rods, which contain material that absorbs neutrons.

The heat from the approximately 100 tons of small, enriched uranium dioxide pellets, encased in zircaloy tubes in the core, heats the coolant water surrounding it in the huge reactor vessel. The carbon steel vessel weighs 440 tons, is 44 feet high and 14.4 feet in diameter and has walls more than eight inches thick.

The coolant water, which also cools the reactor core to prevent it from melting itself with its own intense heat and enables fission to occur by moderating the flow of neutrons, is heated by the reaction to 600 degrees Fahrenheit and pumped into a steam generator.

The water is radioactive from flowing around and through the reactor core and also pressurized at 2,250 pounds per square inch to prevent it from turning to steam itself.

Water in the secondary water system is already in the generator and turns to steam from the heat passed on by the hot water in the coolant system. There is no intermingling of the two water systems; the heat is conveyed through the pipes.

That steam turns the turbines and is condensed back into water by cooling lake water in a third system of pipes. It then goes back into the generator.

The reactor and the generator are inside the concrete and steel containment building, a giant 265-foot silo 135 feet in diameter. The containment tower, which is lined with steel on the inside and has side walls more than four feet thick and a domed roof more than two feet thick, is designed to contain any radiation that might escape from the primary coolant system.

Numerous safety and reactor support systems in the concrete and steel auxiliary building are designed to prevent the core from overheating.

Registration starts July 9

Registration for the second summer session at Howard College will get under way Monday, July 9.

Hours are from 9 a.m., until 12 noon, 1 p.m., until 4 p.m., and 6 p.m., until 8 p.m. Classes begin Tuesday, July 10.

Wednesday, July 11, is the final day to register for the second summer term classes. All registration will take place in the college library.

Summer school ends Aug. 10. L.L. Lewis, registrar, is encouraging those who are planning to enroll to call his office for specific information. Lewis also said that Don Melton, Director of Guidance and Counseling, is available for course planning for summer as well as for regular terms.

Hot weather boosting cotton crop

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Hot summer weather is helping late crops catch up a little following a cool, wet spring. The open weather is also allowing wheat and hay harvesting to make rapid progress. Crop conditions have improved considerably over the past several weeks due to open weather, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. However, crops will need rain soon in some areas due to drying conditions. Late-planted cotton and grain are making good progress in most areas while early plantings are maturing in southern locations. Sorghum harvesting is progressing over South Texas, with good yields. The wheat harvest is now in full swing throughout the High Plains, with good to excellent yields. Some dryland yields of 80 bushels per acre are being reported in the Rolling Plains, far above average for that area, said Pfannstiel. The state's peach harvest continues to increase, with good supplies of Freestone peaches moving to market in Gillespie County, the state's top peach producing county. The Texas pecan crop is also looking good, with most trees bearing a heavy nut set, noted Pfannstiel. Spray programs have been widespread to control pecan nut casebearers as well as other insect pests. Ranges and pastures are boasting an abundance of forages over most of the state so the livestock picture looks good. However, grasshoppers are building up in many counties. Many heavy calves and lambs have been marketed at good prices. Second cuttings of hay crops are under way in many areas, with good yields. Reports from district Extension agents showed the following conditions. PANHANDLE: Wheat harvesting is going full swing, with good to excellent yields. Other crops are making good progress, with spring planting complete. Corn is being irrigated. Alfalfa and oats are being baled for hay. Pastures and ranges look good, with some spraying about to start to control grasshoppers. SOUTH PLAINS: Wheat harvesting is in full swing, with good yields. Spring planting is virtually complete. Cotton has made good progress in the past two weeks due to hot, open weather. However, the crop is still late due to replanting, seeding disease and a cool, wet spring. Corn, sugar beets, vegetables and ranges look good. ROLLING PLAINS: Most of the wheat crop is in, with yields generally excellent. Some dryland yields of 80 bushels per acre were reported, but most averaged about 30 bushels. Cotton planting is virtually complete, with some late plantings failing due to drying out. Vegetables are moving to market. Farmers are getting wheat land in shape for fall planting. NORTH CENTRAL: Most of the wheat is in, with good yields and prices. Cotton and sorghum are making good growth although insects are complete. Early peaches are being harvested. Livestock remain in good shape. EAST: Hay making remains active, with first and second cuttings producing good yields. Spring planting is virtually complete, with all crops late. Some early vegetables and peaches are being harvested. The watermelon crop generally looks poor. Livestock and forage conditions still look good but rain will be needed soon. SOUTHEAST AND UPPER GULF COAST: Moisture is getting short over the area although scattered locations have received good rains. Hay harvesting is active but the fuel shortage is delaying hauling. A few fields of soybeans are still being planted. Grazing is average. SOUTH CENTRAL: Wheat harvesting is about complete, with yields averaging about 30 bushels per acre. Cotton is squaring and most sorghum is headed. Corn is maturing rapidly. Some peanut and soybean planting continues. Peach harvesting is active along with hay making. Rain will be needed soon for crops and forages.

AFRICAN HERITAGE — Doris and Josh Owusu are from Ghana, Africa, the first colony in Black Africa to gain independence. Ghana is the home of a rich cultural life as well as traditional African arts. Here the African couple look over one African artifact signifying their heritage.

HAPPY WITH JOB — Doris claims she and her family are very happy living in West Texas and her job presents an added dimension to that happiness. She is employed by First Federal Savings where she says the people are most friendly and helpful.

Africans happy in West Texas

Where are Indians and gunfighters?

By ROBBI CROW
Family News Editor

Josh and Doris Owusu were very surprised when they came to Texas in the early 1970s and found no gunfighters, wagon trains or wild Indians roaming the plains.

Both are natives from the first colony in Black Africa ever to gain independence — Ghana.

Known throughout the world as the gateway to Africa, Ghana is graciously beautified by a coconut palm-lined scenic coastline that radiates soft white sparkling sand. Located one degree above the equator the temperature never falls below 60 degrees and only occasionally rises above 90.

Josh is originally from Kumasi, Ghana and Doris is from Accra, Ghana's capital city. They met in 1965 when Doris entered school in Kumasi.

Josh made his home in America on a track scholarship to Angelo State University in January, 1971.

"I received my scholarship through a Baptist missionary stationed in Kumasi. He was a real track fanatic," remembered the multi-award winning track star.

Josh is the proud possessor of numerous gold medals, trophies and plaques representative of his outstanding ability as a track star in Africa.

At one point in his life, Josh had a chance to win an Olympic Gold medal in the 1976 Montreal Games. He had posted the third best jump in the world with a leap of 26 feet and 10 3/4 inches, but fate would not have it.

All of his many years of sacrificing and training went down the drain shortly before the games were to begin when Ghana united with several other African nations in an Olympic boycott, protesting New Zealand's participation in the upcoming Olympics.

Josh has new hopes, though, of making the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow, Russia.

"The biggest problem concerning the Moscow games," revealed Josh, "is getting back into shape in time to participate."

While preparing for the 1976 Olympics, Cosden Oil and Chemical Company, where Josh is employed as a chemical engineer, gave him a leave of absence and stood behind him all the way in his attempt to conquer a dream which seemed not too far out of reach. But it was Doris, who was also highly competitive in track events while in school, came over to America to attend Angelo State University in 1972.

"Josh and I decided to marry in July, 1974. Since it was impossible for our parents to come to the ceremony, Dr. Lloyd D. Vincent, president of Angelo State University, gave me away in marriage. He and his wife were both like family to me and Josh," explained the attractive West African woman.

Mr. and Mrs. Owusu named their firstborn son, Drexell, after the university president. Drexell is now 20 months old.

Both agree that the most outstanding difference between their home country and America is opportunity.

"There is greater opportunity for advancement here than in Ghana," compared Josh. "People live better on a whole in America."

Ghana suffers a yearly inflation rate in excess of 98 percent, second only in the world to Argentina.

"The pay in Ghana doesn't begin to stand up to the inflation rate," said Josh, "and everyone is trying to make money quickly."

That's where bribery comes in, only serving the purpose of making the economy that much worse.

As for government in Ghana, it is totally military. According to both Doris and Josh, it is nothing unusual to wake up from one day to the next

AT HOME ON MERRILLY — Meet the Owus. Doris and Josh came to Texas from Ghana, Africa in the early 1970s. They were married at San Angelo in 1974 and are now the proud parents of 20-month-old Drexell who was named after the Angelo State University president.

under different military rule.

"Ghana government was overthrown by military force in 1966, 1972, 1978 and as recently as several weeks ago by a 33-year-old air force major," revealed Owusu.

He explained, however, that it was rare for violence to be involved because most governments being overthrown willingly step down in realization of their defeat.

Although Ghana has its problems with politics and economy, the lifestyle there is equalized by many old rituals and traditions brought down through the ages. Very few traditions are still strictly adhered to, but all are respectfully remembered.

Doris explained a few traditions, still existing in various parts of the country.

"Before a man and woman can marry, according to tradition, the male must request permission from the female's parents. If they (the parents) have a favorable impression of the boy, he and his family, without the presence of his hopeful bride, gather with her family. He must present a dowry consisting of money (usually around $100), a special drink known as 'schnapp', a Bible, and a ring of gold.

If the girl's parents accept these gifts, the couple may marry. If they do not accept the gifts, the couple may still marry, but without the blessings of her family.

"Divorce, through this custom, is quite easy also. All the man must do to be relieved of his wife is to return her to her family and explain why he does not want her anymore. The family then returns his dowry, making him a free man."

Doris also revealed that through this African custom, a man may take on as many wives as he can afford — with the approval of his first wife.

Not so for the woman.

Tradition has it that a woman must not have more than one husband and she is not permitted to 'divorce' him.

Josh said, however, that approximately eight years ago, a woman in Tanzania tried to get Parliament to equalize the law, but her attempt failed.

"Many foreigners come to Africa to marry because it is so simple to get divorced," added Doris.

Most couples, however, are married in Africa the same way as in America. They go before an officer of the court, or they get married in a church, in which case, they must be divorced according to the law.

"Girls are getting tough now so most of them get married through a court like in America," explained Josh, humorously.

Another traditional African custom which seems to be fading, according to the Owus, is that after a woman gives birth, she must stay inside the house for three months, at which time her mother comes and does all the household chores and takes care of the baby, giving the new mother time to rest.

It is time for the new mother to take her baby out into the public and show him off at the end of these three months.

Out of necessity, most women in Ghana work, but each woman who gives birth to a child is benefitted with three months paid maternity leave. "African people may be poor," but they take good care of their wives," stated Josh.

Families of the African nation are extremely close knit and usually live together in very large houses.

The older a person gets, the more respected he is.

"We take care of our mothers, fathers, grandmothers and grandfathers ourselves. We wouldn't think of putting them in nursing homes. It is our responsibility and desire to care for them," revealed Josh.

All African children enjoy sitting around and listening to their grandparents tell them folklore-type stories of their younger days in the war.

Ghana is the home of a rich cultural life and traditional African arts and crafts, gold and metalwork, painting, sculpture, pottery, basketry textiles, leatherwork and other works of art — all in rich design — depict the significance of their cultural heritage.

During festival time in Ghana, people of the tribes and villages wear robes featuring several intricate colorful patterns of the Kente — the apparel that proclaims the Ghanaian — made up of strips of cloth woven together from single cotton threads.

Doris explained African festivals by saying "Here ya'll have 'Rodeo Week' in Ghana we have festivals.

In Ghana alone, there are nine different dialects including Hausa, the Moslem language; Twi, spoken by people of central Ghana; Ga, the language of those who live in Accra; Fanti, spoken by those of the west-central region; and Nzema, spoken by those who live in west Ghana.

Of the nine Ghanaian dialects, Josh speaks five and Doris speaks four.

"Since there are so many different languages, the only possible way for people to communicate is through English, the language required in all African schools," explained Doris.

The highly advanced school system of Ghana, which has already converted to the metric system, is much more competitive than the U.S. system. In order for a student to pass from one school to the next, he must first pass an exam, proving his readiness for promotion.

In America, a student is required to pass through 12 grades. Schools of Ghana require a student to pass 15 grades at the least.

A child first begins grade school and attends for six years after which time he promotes to middle school after passing the required exam. He must then attend middle school for at least two years and then take the exam. If he passes, he goes on to high school. If he doesn't, he remains in middle school for two more years.

Unlike America, students of Ghana must attend high school five years. After the five years are completed and the O-Level (ordinary level) exam is passed, the student is then promoted to A-Level (Advanced Level), which he must attend for two more years.

Since the Ghanaian schools are based on the Free Educational System, students, upon passing their final exam from the Advanced Level, and if they rate high enough, are allowed to attend a university free for four years. They also receive a book allowance and free room and board.

Fifty percent of all religions in Ghana are based on Christianity. Thirty percent are Moslem and the remaining 20 percent are traditional religions.

When asked about African resentment toward the European and American people for their active involvement during slavery days, both Josh and Doris replied "no."

HOPEFUL OLYMPIC MEDAL WINNER — Josh Owusu was cheated of his chance to win an Olympic medal when Africa pulled out of the 1976 Montreal Games. Nevertheless, the contents in Josh's trophy and medal cases are evidence of his unique ability in track, especially in the long jump. He hopes to be back in shape in time to participate in the 1980 Olympics which will be held in Moscow, Russia.

'IT WASN'T EASY' — Doris and Josh revealed that one of the main obstacles they had to overcome in America was getting used to the food. But after several years here, Josh's favorite food is chicken fried steak and Doris' is just plain steak. Little Drexell, though, is hooked on a dish that's neither American nor African. He likes Italian spaghetti.

They explained more resentment is felt between tribes than toward foreigners.
"Tribalism is the reason for Ghana's instability," concluded Josh.
Both he and his wife agree that the recent television series "Roots" was an accurate depiction of what took place during that time.
The fortress at Cape Coast built by the Portugese and used to hold slaves until the ships came to pick them up, can still be seen in Ghana.
While living at 2208 Merrilly in the Texas town of Big Spring, the Owusu family has grown very fond of the western way of life.
Although Josh readily admits he is a chicken fried steak man; Doris likes steak and little Drexell's favorite American food is Italian spaghetti, they all had a little trouble adjusting to American food.

They miss several African meals they were accustomed to, including peanut butter soup, fried bananas and spinach stew. They claim weather and the Texas draw weren't easy to get accustomed to either.
Doris is an employee at First Federal Savings and Loan.
"I really enjoy my job and the people there are extremely helpful and friendly."
The Owusu last visited Ghana in 1976 and they plan to take their son next year for a visit.
But all three seem delightfully happy living in Big Spring, Texas, even if there are no wagon trains, gunfights or the traditional Old West cowboys and Indians.
"The friendly and hospitable West Texas people don't compare with anywhere else," they concluded.

College Baptist Church is scene of wedding ceremony

The wedding vows of Sherri Ann Bertran to Michael Winford Gibson were solemnized Saturday evening in a ceremony at the College Baptist Church with the Rev. Jimmy Turner, pastor, officiating.
The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M.L. Bertran, Jr., 3903 Dixon.
The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M.W. Gibson, Sterling City Route and Shirley Hankins, Sulphur Springs.
The couple stood before an altar which was enhanced by starburst fern arrangements.
Myrna Richardson played the wedding march on the organ, and the piano throughout the ceremony.
The bride chose to wear a gown of nylon and cotton chantilly lace lined with woven acetate. The gown was styled with a molded bodice with square neckline embellished with a lace ruffle, and long, unlined lace sleeves with small covered buttons, ending in ruffled cuffs. The V-front waistline ended with the five tiered bouffant skirt with full chapel train attached. Her chapel length nylon veil edged with cotton Venice lace was adorned with seed pearls and lace applique trim.
The bridal bouquet was a cascade of white carnations, daisies and pompon.
Karen Ramos, Big Spring, served her cousin as matron of honor. She was attired in blue polyester knit gown featuring an empire bodice with crystal pleated skirt complete with a nylon chiffon capelet and blue picture hat.
Mrs. Judy McSpadden, sister of the bride and Mrs. Evelyn Bertran, sister-in-law of the bride, served as her attendants. Their gowns were styled of blue print veil with cap sleeves trimmed with lace and ribbon, enhanced by blue picture hats.
Mitch Harris, Big Spring, served as best man.

MRS. MICHAEL WINFORD GIBSON

Groomsmen were Dusty Douglas and Jeffrey TeGantvoort, brother of groom. Jimmy Bertran, brother of the bride and Dalton Lewis, brother-in-law of the groom, served as ushers.
The couple was feted with a reception in the fellowship hall of the church immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with an ecru lace cloth over a blue lining, centered with an assorted blue spring flower arrangement. The three tiered wedding cake was decorated in pastel blue. Crystal and silver appointments were used.

Mrs. Rose Hooper and Mrs. Betty Kelsey, aunts of the bride, served at the bride's table.
The bride is a Big Spring High School graduate as well as a graduate of the Howard College Vocational School of Nursing. She is employed at Malone-Hogan Hospital.
The bridegroom attended school in Sulphur Springs and Howard College. He is presently employed by Berkeley Mobile Homes.

Focus on family living Wisdom dictates remodeling homes

Older homes increase in importance as interest rates rise, mortgage money for new construction becomes scarce and costs steadily rise.
Many homeowners today feel it is safer to hang on to the house whose mortgage is substantially paid off — and whose market value has increased — than to make the economical commitment demanded by building or buying a new home.
The idea of remodeling an existing house to meet new needs is increasingly attractive to many homeowners. Several factors currently make home remodeling a worthwhile approach to housing.
For a starter, it generally costs less to remodel a house than to buy or build a new one of comparable size. Fewer materials are needed, and remodeling generally does not involve buying additional land. This does not imply that remodeling isn't expensive. It is, but on a comparable basis, a new house costs more.
The lull in new construction currently plaguing the building trades also means that there are skilled plumbers, carpenters, electricians and cabinet makers available for smaller jobs that they would ignore during busy periods.
And, of great importance to the homeowner planning a big project, funds for remodeling and home improvement work tend to be readily available. Many lenders are still making loans for remodeling and home improvement work even though their construction funds are depleted.
Interest rates, maximum amount and length of repayment will vary among lenders. Under Texas law, the maximum amount and length of a home improvement or home remodeling loan is $20,000 with a 20-year repayment period. The "going" interest rate for remodeling loans is around 11.5 percent, but some lenders may charge the 18 percent legal maximum.

Since each lending institution establishes loan amount, length of repayment and interest rate, the homeowner should compare facts provided by several lenders before making a commitment.
If the homeowner plans wisely, the resulting improvements can enhance the value of the home, and at the same time, provide a more suitable and attractive place to live.

Hope for an 'ugly duckling'

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 12 and the only girl in my class who isn't going with someone. I'm also not able to dance, do gymnastics or write neatly.

I had a crush on a boy and asked him 14 times to go with me but he said no.

I'm not very talented and I'm ugly. Please give me hope. — Angie, Columbus, Ohio

Angie: Remember the story of the "ugly duckling" who grew into a beautiful swan? This can be your story.

When I was a high school principal, I saw many skinny, gawky, plain-looking freshman girls transform into beautiful upper-class young ladies.

Join clubs and organizations. Stay active. Your time will come sooner than you realize.

P.S.: Did you ever see a picture of Linda Ronstadt when she was your age? Very plain and very plump.

Dr. Wallace: I'd like you please to help me with my family problem. I go to church and have been going for seven years but no one else in my family goes.

Lately there has been a nightly revival and I have been attending all the meetings. When I get home, my family makes fun of me.

Since I lose my temper easily, I start yelling. Then they say that they thought that I was a Christian, and they all laugh. HELP! — Glenda, Hayward, Calif.

Glenda: Be an example of what you are learning in church. Sure, it's hard not to "fight back," but when they see that you are smiling, happy and pleasant, they will know that "being a Christian" has a lot going for it.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and I would like your opinion please. I have a 3-year-old brother and every weekend my parents go out and I have to watch him. I don't get paid and I don't get an allowance.

Of course, I never get to go anywhere on the weekends with my friends. Do you think this is fair? — Kelly, Newton, N.J.

Kelly: Your parents are being very inconsiderate. There is no reason that they cannot stay home if you have something planned. And if they must go, they should hire a baby sitter.

I also think you should receive an allowance.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 AND 20, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MRS. CHRIS ALLEN CHANEY

Deel-Chaney vows exchanged Saturday

The First Christian Church was the setting for the Saturday afternoon wedding of Teresa Elizabeth Deel and Chris Allen Chaney.

The Rev. William Smythe, pastor, performed the 3 p.m. ceremony in front of an altar decorated with an arrangement of valahal and gigi carnations and pink snowflake caryanthemums accented with woodward fern and English ivy. A massive candelabrum holding cathedral tapers formed a background for the altar.

The bridal isle was marked with pink organza bows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Deel, 1706 Morrison.

The bridegroom's parents are Robert Chaney, 1706 Gregg and Mrs. Jim Murphy, Gail Road.

Robin Salmon, Lubbock, provided piano music for the ceremony, and accompanied Barbie Kothmann, soloist.

The bride chose to wear a traditional style gown of white silk organza with white chantilly lace marking the lines of an empire bodice with a Queen Ann neckline and long, full bishop sleeves with deep lace cuffs. The gown was enhanced by lace motifs on the A-line skirt and chapel length train ending with a sheer organza ruffle topping a full circle flounce. Her finger-tip length veil of silk illusion, edged in matching lace, fell from a lace Juliet cap.

The bride carried a cascade arrangement of dusty rose roses, stephanotis and baby's breath accented with sprigs of English ivy.

Miss Barbie Kothmann, Big Spring, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Mike Walker, Clyde, and Mrs. Vikki Clark, Midland.

The bridesmaids were attired in floor length Victorian gowns of dusty rose with accordin pleats skirting a gathered blouson.

The attendants carried nosegays of valahal burgundy carnations, gigi pink snowflake chrysanthemums and clusters of baby's breath.

Bill Stockton, Big Spring, served the groom as best man. Groomsman were Don Adams and Buddy Arick, both of Big Spring.

Bill Kothmann and James Baldrige of Big Spring seated the guests.

The parlor of the church was the site of a reception honoring the couple immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a white eyelet floor length cloth underlaid with pink, centered with an antique brass candelabrum adorned with the attendant's bouquets.

Silver and crystal appointments were used. Mrs. Don Adams and Mrs. Carl Clanton served at the reception.

The register table was covered with a matching eyelet cloth and centered with a small floral arrangement of the bride's chosen colors dusty rose and shades of pink. Kim Deel, sister of the bride, served at the register table.

Miss Terry Stockton and Shirley Shanks, Big Spring, served at the reception.

The bride is a Big Spring High School graduate and plans to attend Howard College this fall.

The bridegroom is a 1977 graduate of Big Spring High School and a 1979 graduate of the Gemological Institute of America, Santa Monica, Calif. He is co-owner of Chaney's Manufacturing Jewelry.

After a wedding trip to South Padre Island the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. J.R. Petty and Mrs. Zan Rurrill.

The next meeting will be Sept. 11.

The club plans to entertain a group of Big Spring State Hospital patients with a picnic August 7 at Comanche Trail Park.

The two visitors were Mrs. Pattie Blackwood, Newbury Park, Calif. and Mrs. Norman Harmon, San Diego, Calif.

Joy Petty drew the door prize.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. J.R. Petty and Mrs. Zan Rurrill.

MRS. RUSSELL COLBY BRAUN

Methodist church is setting for Braun-Williams wedding

Debra Sue Williams became the bride of Russell Colby Braun in a ceremony held at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the First United Methodist Church with Phillip Burchan, minister of the Knott Church of Christ, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Williams, Raty, and the late Darlene Stone.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Braun, Conroe.

The vows were spoken before an altar flanked by brass candelabrum, fern trees and white floral arrangements on pedestals. The kneeling bench was before it and the memory candlestand adorned the altar.

The music was provided by a group of Knott Church of Christ singers featuring Brenda Beil, soloist, Noel Bethea, soloist and Noel Bethea and Sherry Bordofoke in a duet. Charles Parham served as organist.

The bride chose to wear a white dacron gown accented with silk Venice lace adorned with seed pearls, featuring a triple flounced scooped neckline with soft caplet sleeves. Her full skirt flowed from a lace bodice with attached chapel length train, ending in a triple flounced hemline. The floor-length three tiered veil, embroidered with Venice lace was attached to a lace Juliet cap.

The bridal bouquet was a cascade of white daisies, baby's breath and yellow carnations enhanced by fern leaves.

Tammi Burcham served the bride as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Lisa Warren, Mrs. Barbie Myers, Renee Jennings, Deborah

The punch bowl and the bride's bouquet flanked the cake. Crystal and silver appointments were used.

Knott homecoming is pot luck dinner at Kentwood Saturday

The Knott community homecoming at the Kentwood Center Saturday, 4 p.m., will be a time of remembering the spirit of the community for all past and present residents.

Bring a covered dish and join the festivities if you have a connection to the Knott community. Johnny Shortes will provide the music.

The Knott School District, organized in 1906, originated when a man named Knott from Ft. Worth, donated land on which the first school building was erected near the cemetery. A teacher was hired at $40 a month.

The Stork and Light Schools consolidated in 1920 and a new two room school building was built in West Knott. Two teachers were hired. As the community grew, the school expanded to five rooms and four teachers by 1925. A drinking fountain was installed in 1926 by piping water from Middle Knott.

The Garner Independent School District was formed by the consolidation of Knott school and Highway school in 1937. The existing buildings were moved to East Knott and two school buses were purchased. A new brick building with modern plumbing was erected in 1947.

The Garner Independent School District consolidated with Ackerly in 1959 to form the Sands School District and the high school was moved to Ackerly. The school building at Knott was torn down, but the cafeteria remains as a community center.

The population of Knott is growing because many of the young people are moving back into the community.

Old times will be remembered and new plans projected as the citizens of Knott renew old acquaintances and make new ones at the reunion Saturday.

Water necessary to good health

COLLEGE STATION — Water, water everywhere — but do Texans drink enough? Adults need a little more than two quarts a day, says Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Water is an often neglected nutrient," she says. Still, it's critical to human survival — and good health. It transports nutrients that nourish cells, and it helps the body get rid of waste products.

Every day, it's important to replace water that is lost through urine, pores, skin and lungs. Adults can get most of their two quarts of fluid from beverages and a little from solid foods. Infants use more than twice as much water as adults, so they need more water for each pound they weigh than adults do for each pound of weight. Ask your doctor about the needed amount.

During summer months, the body loses larger amounts of water through perspiration. It's important to replace that water, too. Let your natural thirst be your guide, Miss Haggard stresses.

Ten Nays For Good Neighbors

DEAR ABBY: After reading your Ten Commandments for Husbands and Wives, I decided to submit these Ten Commandments for Good Neighborliness:

- 1) Thou shalt love thy neighbor, but not his wife, nor shalt thou covet thy neighbor's house, or his car, or any other thing he owneth.
- 2) Thou shalt keep thy dog, and thy stereo, and thy lawnmower quiet while thy neighbor sleepeth.
- 3) Thou shalt borrow from the neighbor rarely, and when thou doest, returneth undamaged and without delay that which thou hast borrowed.
- 4) Thou shalt not alloweth thy pets nor thy children to run amok, despoiling thy neighbor's lawn, flower beds and fence.
- 5) Thou shalt keepeth thy lawn green, thy fence painted and thy driveway uncluttered even as ye shall also keep thy vehicles in thy garage where they belong.
- 6) Thou shalt watcheth always for criminals and fires in thy neighborhood and guard thy neighbor's home and his property even as thy own.
- 7) Thou shalt not useth thy home for any unsightly or illegal activity.
- 8) Thou shalt always stand ready to help thy neighbor in his hour of true need, even as he does for thee.
- 9) Thou shalt not parketh thy camper, nor thy RV, nor thy van in the street where it blocketh thy neighbor's view and createh a safety hazard to all.
- 10) Thou shalt not hold wild parties or orgies that lasteth until wee hours unless thou shalt inviteth thy neighbor, too.

ANONYMOUS IN OXNARD

DEAR ABBY: I'll get right to the point. I am a very attractive 20-year-old girl and I've never had a boyfriend. I've had many dates, but nothing has ever come of them because the guys always seem to want something in the end. My girlfriends tell me that if I were to give to a guy a few kisses it wouldn't hurt me, but I've tried that, and they are all over you in no time, and then you have a big fight on your hands.

Also, why does a girl have to give a guy a REASON for refusing to go to bed with him? I am tired of trying to explain that there is nothing wrong with me. (One guy offered me a chance to prove to myself that I wasn't a lesbian. How's that for a novel approach?)

So how do I get a decent guy who just wants good company? I'm not about to give up what I'm saving for my wedding night until I'm sure there's going to be a wedding.

SAVING MYSELF IN S.C.

DEAR SAVING: You can get a decent guy by being yourself. Don't lower your standards!

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 33-year-old woman who would have a very nice figure if I were filled out in the back. I am flat as a board back there and my clothes just hang on me.

Someone said you once listed a place where a woman could get a mail-order fanny made of foam rubber padding that looked and felt like the real thing.

Where is that place?
