Recession hinted

800,000 jobs might be lost

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, stepping up criticism of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, says higher oil prices have increased the risk of recession and may cost the nation 800,000 jobs by the end of next year.

"I think the OPEC decisions will make a recession much more likely than it was before," Carter told a group of reporters aboard Air Force One as he flew home Sunday from a nine-day visit to Japan and South Korea.

Referring to generally muted criticism of the world oil cartel, the president said: "It is obvious that there has been an excessive amount of timidity on the part of the consuming nations ... It is very difficult for a single nation ... to let their lonely voice be mounted against the OPEC countries because they can single that country out with punitive withholding of oil or some other action."

Carter cited the declaration adopted at last week's seven-nation economic summit in Tokyo deploring the latest price increases and declared that the statement "might have some special significance in the future."

Asked what the United States could do about OPEC besides make strong statements, he said: "I would rather not go into that ... I will let the press speculate on what can be done."

The president said the 60 percent increase in oil prices so far this year will add 2 to 2½ percentage points to the U.S. inflation rate and trim 2½ percentage points from projected economic growth.

The administration had hoped to keep inflation to 7.4 percent, but government figures show the annual rate is now 13.4 percent. It had forecast economic growth for 1979 of 2.2 percent, down from 4 percent last year.

A Carter adviser, who asked not to be identified, said Sunday in the president's presence, "Our country this year ought to have roughly a zero growth rate."

A recession is said to occur when the economy shows negative growth for a period of two consecutive quarters.

In other economy-related developments Sunday: —A survey by Manpower Inc., one of the nation's largest employment agencies, showed business hiring plans for July through September are the lowest for the quarter since the recession of 1975.

The survey, based on interviews with 6,000 businesses and public agencies, found 29 percent of the employers expect to increase employment in the quarter, compared with 34 percent a year ago. Seven percent said they planned to cut jobs, up from 6 percent a year ago.

—Leaders of three major U.S. corporations — General Motors, U.S. Steel and Du Pont — said on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" that the country is headed for an economic slowdown but not a recession.

Carter, who returned to Washington late Sunday night following a trans-Pacific flight from Seoul, had a light schedule today, planning only a meeting with aides on the energy situation, the economic impact of higher oil prices and the independent truckers' strike.

FIRST IN LINE — First National Bank Teller Gladys Thompson issues a handful of Susan B. Anthony dollars to eager Eileen McGuire who pounced on the bank at 10 a.m. today. Ms. Thompson was expecting a long day of exchanging the new coins for dollar bills as Susan B. made her debut.

Anthony coin appears here

Suffragist earned niche

By EILEEN MCGUIRE
I was standing in line at First National Bank this morning when the doors opened. My intent was to seize as many Susan B. Anthony dollars as my funds would allow.

Stella B. Hackel, Director of the Mint, says 500 million of the symbolic coins were released today — enough for everyone. I just snatched five from ever being circulated.

Even those who don't appreciate Susan B. can appreciate her coin which is slightly larger than a quarter.

Because of its smaller size, it is already saving the Treasury Department 60 percent of the cost of minting the Eisenhower dollar.

If the new dollar replaces bills, the Federal Reserve System will save as much as $50 million a year through reduction of printing processing and destruction costs of dollar bills.

To replace the dollar bill, however, people have to be willing to spend Susan. I will not. It took too long to get her.

When Congress first decided to print a new coin with the picture of a woman on it, it was the mythical Miss "Liberty" who was selected.

Congresswomen, feminists and other interested souls pressured Congress for a coin designed with a "real" woman on it.

Susan B., as most people should know by now, was the leader in gaining rights for women.

Her belief that women should be entitled to equal guardianship with their husbands over their children and entitled to own their own hairbrushes, sewing needles and other personal belongings made her a radical in the 1850's. She began her life in Adams, Mass., in 1820, the daughter of a liberal-thinking Quaker, Daniel Anthony. When he declared bankruptcy and her mother's personal possessions were confiscated since they were, under the laws of that age, his property, she began to sense the injustice that she had inherited because she was female.

The child grew up to champion a cause for, if not equal, then at least fair laws for women.

She lectured before people who expressed their sentiments with tomatoes and she went before Congress to introduce a number of bills that allowed women some control over their own earnings, their own property and their own children.

She also fought to abolish slavery and was part of the temperance movement.

Though she was implemental in gaining a number of basic survival rights for women, she is best known for championing a cause for political rights for women.

After Congress rejected her proposal of granting the right to vote to women, she was jailed for "illegally" voting in Rochester, N.Y., in 1872.

Though there was nothing in the Fourteenth Amendment specifically denying women the right to vote, she was released on $1,000 bond — twice that of any of her comrades who had followed her to the polls — and ordered to pay a fine of $100. She refused, announcing to the judge, "May it please your Honor, I shall never pay a dollar of your unjust penalty. And I shall earnestly and persistently continue to urge all women to the practical recognition...that resistance to tyranny is obedience to God."

Susan B. died in 1906. Her followers continued her work and gained a clear, right to vote with the passage of the Nineteenth Amendment in 1920, more than 50 years after it was first introduced to Congress by Miss Anthony.

Now, in 1979, Miss Anthony is often viewed as a leader of the women's liberation movement, a movement held in contempt by many. Yet, you

Gas crunch hits tourism

By The Associated Press
Early deliveries of July allocations and poor weather, which cut fuel-consuming travel in some areas, stretched gasoline supplies through the weekend, as the gas crunch continued to hurt areas dependent on tourist dollars.

The problems of the gasoline crisis were compounded by the jkly Fourth holiday atmosphere, with more people wanting to be on the road, and by end-of-the-month supply shortages at many stations.

Few stations were open over the weekend in most areas, especially in the heavily populated East.

However, American Automobile Association spokesman Barc Wade said 75 percent of the stations surveyed along Interstate 80 in Nebraska were open Sunday, and about half of all the stations in the state were pumping gas.

Elsewhere in the nation's heartland, between 40 percent and 6 percent of stations in the Dakotas were open.

In California, where lines at the stations first developed, those few stations open on Sunday had no lines.

Firefighters battle timber, brush blazes

By The Associated Press
Hundreds of firefighters battled timber and brush blazes in Idaho and the Southwest today, keeping anxious eyes on the weather after thousands of acres of brush and timber went up in flames.

Fifteen major blazes Sunday burned more than 80,000 acres of southern Arizona brush parche by high temperatures. More than 1,700 firefighters were called to put out fires as lightning continued to start new ones.

Idaho officials said fireworks may have set off some of the blazes that claimed more than 1,000 acres of range and timberland, generally in the southwest section of the state.

And California officials worried that a 848-acre fire that killed livestock and threatened expensive homes in the Bedford Canyon area near Corona could lead to mudslides in the rainy season.

Heavy winter rains were responsible for Arizona's growth of brush and grass that withered under recent temperatures as high as 115 degrees. As the brush fires grew, the Arizona National Guard began providing transportation and other services for firefighters, who came from eight states to assist.

Bruce DeVault, fire control officer with the U.S. Bureau of Land Management, said Sunday the largest fire had burned 23,000 acres near Florence, Ariz. A blaze 40 miles northeast of Phoenix spread over 20,000 acres and was continuing to grow, officials said.

"We got riddled so hard we couldn't think of names fast enough for these fires," DeVault said. Officials had hoped for rain from thunderstorms that moved into Arizona late Saturday, but lightning touched off more fires.

The largest of the blazes in Idaho, a 700-acre fire in the Boise National Forest, was controlled early today, but officials worried that storms could move in and stir up new flames.

"It looks like just about all of the fires are man-caused," said a Bureau of Land Management fire dispatcher. "We are getting a lot of grass fires. Our prevention people are talking about fireworks as being the cause."

Focalpoint

Action / reaction: Turn it off

Q. My husband and I have been arguing about whether or not it wastes gasoline to stop the car engine while waiting for someone. He says it uses more gas to start the engine again than leave it idling. I say you turn it off. Who is right?

A. Turn off the engine. The Department of Energy says that the average American car consumes a cup of gasoline every six minutes while idling. So, when you stop your car, don't let it idle for more than a minute. The DOE calculates it takes less gasoline to restart the car than it does to idle it.

Vance says North Korea may accept invitation

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance says there are "some indications" North Korea may accept the invitation from President Carter and President Park Chung-hee to join in peace talks. However, opponents of Park's 18-year-old dictatorship believed Carter's advocacy of more human rights for South Korea would have little or no effect.

Vance, talking to reporters Sunday at the end of Carter's two day visit to South Korea, called the proposal for North and South Korea and the United States to meet as a step toward reunification of the peninsula "a major diplomatic initiative."

He warned that even if North Korea accepts, "it will be a long, hard road."

But he said it would lead to an immediate relaxation of tension.

North Korea, China and the Soviet Union were notified of the proposal in advance, Vance said. He added that the United States and South Korea would follow up with more specific proposals.

North Korea began putting out word six months ago that it seriously wants a settlement with the South. Last month, it offered for the first time to include South Korea in peace talks with the United States. However, the plan had several strings including a demand that the United States first withdraw its 31,000 troops from the South.

The United States and South Korea found North Korea's terms unacceptable.

Bishop College deficit

DALLAS (AP) — Officials of the financially-troubled Bishop College say a multi-million dollar fund drive designed to pay off the school's outstanding debts is more than $1 million short. However, administrators of the predominantly-black institution said the $3.2 million figure was only the amount they had hoped to reach before the fiscal year ended Saturday. Meanwhile, Bishop officials flew to Washington for a meeting with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare on Monday concerning the college's use of federal money. The meeting resulted after HEW asked administrators in April to account for its use of more than $890,000 in federal funds and said no more government money would be appropriated until their questions were answered. Alex Bickley, who has been working with the college on behalf of the Dallas Citizens Council, described Bishop's financial situation as "tough but better." However, he declined to speculate what the outcome might be. Of the amount raised, about $200,000 came from church donations, another $200,000 from sale of land, and about $1 million from the college's endowment fund, public relations director John Dvorak said. He did not know how much the alumni association had raised.

Prison crusade nixed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Prison Director James Estelle has rejected a request by former presidential aide Charles Colson to bring his evangelical Prison Fellowship crusade to Texas prisons. "Texas is the first state to do that," Gordon Loux, the group's executive vice president, told the Austin American-Statesman. "All we know is that Mr. Estelle didn't like some of Mr. Colson's public statements and that he felt Texas prisons already had enough religious activity. Of course, we disagree," said Loux. The group's office is in the Washington area. The newspaper quoted Estelle as saying he disliked reported comments by Colson that state and federal prisons are breeding grounds for criminals. Estelle insisted, however, the refusal to let Colson bring his crusade to Texas was "just an administrative decision after a staff study and no slight to Mr. Colson." Colson, a "born-again Christian," has taken his crusade into most federal prisons and more than 20 state prison systems. Estelle said Texas prisons already work with a crusade run by Bill Glass, former Baylor football lineman.

Gas deaths investigated

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Railroad Commission is investigating a gas pipeline leak that caused the deaths of two teen-age girls near Carthage last Friday. Janet Blair, 14, and Doris Holman, 16, both of Longview, died as a result of the leak. "It is my understanding they were walking along a road, and the line was laid near the road in a dry creek bed," said Tom Hill, hearings examiner for the commission's Gas Utilities Division. Hill said the commission's regional engineer at Kilgore was investigating and would submit a written report to the commission. "As of Saturday morning, the system involved was shut down by Pennzoil," he said. Hill said the line actually was a customer-owned line from a Pennzoil well. He said he did not know the customer's name but that would come out in the investigation. He said he did not want to comment further until the investigation is complete.

Bus wreck injures 14

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A Trailways bus carrying 40 passengers slammed into the rear of a moving van west of Shreveport early today, injuring 19 people, state police said. Eight passengers on the bus and a man and woman in the North American Van Lines truck were treated at a hospital and released. The others did not require hospital treatment. Officers said neither driver was ticketed. "I heard the woman in front of me say, 'My God, he's going to hit that truck, we're going to crash,'" said Elaine Bonitas, a Los Angeles resident bound for Miami Beach. Officers said that after the collision, the bus ran off the road into a field, but the driver of the truck managed to keep his vehicle on the highway. The wreck occurred about 4 a.m. on Interstate 20.

Sunbathers offered tips to ease pain

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Health Department has advised sunbathers they should try to get their tans before 10 a.m. or after 3 p.m., when ultraviolet rays are the weakest. "If you can't avoid these hours, try limiting your exposure to a maximum of 15 minutes during the danger hours," the department said in a release. The department said almost all of the 300,000 cases of skin cancer developed by Americans each year are considered to be sun-related, and there is proportionately more skin cancer in the southern and southwestern states than elsewhere. The best chemical "cover-up" that still allows tanning is any one of the popular brand sunscreens that contains PABA, or para-aminobenzoic acid, the department said. The sunscreen should be applied about 45 minutes before exposure and reapplied after swimming or perspiring. A well-known sun block that allows no tanning is zinc oxide, an opaque white ointment often used by lifeguards, the department noted. Here are some other tips by the department about sunning: —Avoid sun reflectors. —Bicycling or playing golf in the sun is better than lying immobile. —Ultraviolet rays are only partially deflected by beach umbrellas. —Don't figure on being safe on a cloudy day or even under water. —A wet T-shirt can also deceive you. Water droplets funnel at least half the ultraviolet power to your skin. —Altitude plays a role as there is less atmosphere on mountain tops to filter ultraviolet rays. —Snow can reflect as much as 85 percent of the sun's rays. —Neither true sunscreens nor 'suntan lotions' promote tanning," the department said. "Sunscreens protect against sunburn, while mineral oils and baby oils lubricate and even change the optical properties of the skin, but don't protect from sunburn or promote suntan."

Voters in Mexico's congressional election jamming polling stations

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Congress. Returns were not expected until later today, and the Institutional Revolutionary Party, which has ruled Mexico for 50 years, was expected to be the big winner. Three parties — the Communists, the Socialist Workers, and the conservative Mexican Democratic Party — entered candidates for the first time under an electoral reform law passed last year. It provides that a party must get at least 2.5 percent of the vote to participate in the next election. Communist and Democratic Party spokesmen filed complaints that there were scattered irregularities at some of the 42,000 polling stations. There was no official word on how many of the 32 million voters were to the polls Sunday, but some unofficial tallies projected the turnout at 70 percent, far above that of the 1976 presidential election when nearly half the voters stayed home. Seven parties entered a total of 2,800 candidates for the 400 seats in the Chamber of Deputies, the newly-expanded lower house of Congress. ## Police Beat — Visitor helps himself

While Donald Edward Myrick was enjoying the great-out-of-doors Saturday night, someone else was enjoying what he left behind. After returning from an overnight trip to a lake with his wife, and friends, Myrick discovered Sunday that he had had an uninvited visitor in his home. The intruder destroyed a window screen and took Myrick's entertainment center — including radio, stereo, tape player, speakers and turntable — and some items to munch on. The stereo equipment, two packages of ground beef, one package of chicken gizzards and five pounds of catfish added up to $433. The visit was paid on Myrick between 4:30 p.m. Saturday and 2:50 p.m. Sunday. An acquaintance of Guy Steven Olson took Olson's pickup, valued at $10,000, late Saturday or early Sunday without Olson's permission. Police received a report Sunday that someone had broken into Auto Supermarket, 905 W. 4th. Police found broken glass and a ransacked office arrival. It had not been determined if anything was taken. The 7-11 Store, 4th and Franklin, reported to police Sunday evening that a man had been coming into the store at various times and stealing vanilla extract. Police apprehended the suspect at 6:30 p.m. with six bottles of extract, with a total value of $6.90, on his person. W.J. McNew reported the theft of a stereo, valued at $200, from his home, taken between 6 p.m. Saturday and 8:10 a.m. Sunday. Gasoline thieves hit the Texaco Service Station, US 87 and FM 700, at 1:30 p.m. Sunday. The station reported $12.75 worth of gas stolen. 7-11, 8th and Gregg, reported $8 of gasoline taken at 9:30 p.m. Saturday. Police were alerted to a burglary in progress on the 1600 block of Bluebird, 10:27 p.m. Saturday. Upon arrival, officers found a ripped front porch screen and an open window. An officer crawled through the window and upon searching the house, discovered a man covering in the linen closet. The man was arrested for suspicion of burglary. An employee at Furr's Supermarket observed a "shopper" stashing unbagged groceries in his car Sunday. The subject could not produce a receipt for the groceries and was arrested. Value of the groceries was not determined. Gilbert Senter reported Sunday that a tire on his vehicle, parked in a parking lot at the 1800 block of Gregg, was slashed between 3 and 9 a.m. The tire was valued at $90. Benjamin Deanda's front and rear windshields were shot up with a firearm, 1:30 a.m. Sunday. Amount of damage was undetermined. Marcelino Nieto reported that a window pane had been broken at his residence by an unknown person at 12:30 p.m. Sunday. He estimated damage at $200. A 22-year-old local man was arrested 5:30 p.m. Saturday for possession of under two ounces of marijuana. The contraband was found in the man's automobile. A bicycle owned by Tony Rodriguez, 9, was stolen from where it was parked at Ramieres Cafe, 7:15 p.m. Sunday. Thieves stripped the bicycle and left the frame behind the cafe where it was later found. Taken were both wheels, a banana seat and a reflector. The bike had been worth $115. Edward Garcia reported Sunday, 7:30 p.m., that he had been spited, his wife was insulted and threats were made to other members of his family while they were at the city park. Bruce E. Young, 24, was found lying on the ground at the 2300 block of Gregg, 11:10 p.m. Sunday. He was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital by Shaffer Ambulance where he was admitted with minor injuries received during an apparent assault on him. He was released today. In addition to answering a large number of reports of fireworks, police responded to several minor accidents over the weekend. Automobiles driven by Perry W. Chandler, 2302 Cindy, and Charles Ray Bryant, Travel Inn Motel, collided at 4th and Franklin, 1:54 p.m. Saturday. A pedestrian, James Lagrand of Chalea, was unharmed when a vehicle driven by Withey James Thomas, 1207 W. 3rd, struck him at the Jet Drive-In Theatre, 10:35 p.m. Saturday. Hardin Elaine Kay, 1902 Morrison, and Mickey Lynn Kennedy, 206 Circle, were drivers of cars that collided at the 1800 block of Gregg, 11:25 p.m. Saturday. A car driven by Dorothy Banks Wooden, Houston, struck a vehicle owned by Annie May Huey in front of her residence at 917 Ohio, 2:49 p.m. Saturday. 19th and Gregg was the scene of a collision involving Laura Clark Whitley, 1502 Phillips Rd., and Wanda Evans Dodd, 819 W. 3rd, 6:41 p.m. Saturday. Inez Lewis, 715 Harvard, and Johnnie Turner, Box 109, were involved in a minor accident at 1700 Harvard and Birdwell, 12:26 p.m. Sunday. A light pole at Long John Silver's parking lot was struck by a vehicle driven by an unknown person at 1:45 a.m. Sunday.

Including one in Howard State has rabies problem

AUSTIN — More rabies cases already have been reported this year in Texas than in all of 1978. The State Health Department says 567 cases so far this year compares with 563 in 1978. Reported rabies cases for 1979 include one each for Borden and Howard counties. During a Thursday seminar on rabies, State Health Commissioner Raymond Moore said 25 percent of the nation's cases this year have occurred in Texas. Skunks account for 80 percent of this year's rabies cases reported. Officials warned against adopting skunks as pets because of their long incubation period for rabies. Skunks can harbor the disease without showing ill effects for up to 18 months, Moore said. They can also infect humans during the incubation period. Although rabies in skunks is on the rise, one of the most dramatic increases has occurred in the dog population. Nine cases of rabies in dogs were confirmed in 1978. Forty-four cases of rabies in dogs have been confirmed this year. El Paso and Maverick counties have experienced the bulk of the increase. In 1978 the only case of rabies in El Paso County was found in a bat. So far this year the Department of Health has confirmed rabies in 24 dogs from the area. Maverick County has jumped from no reported cases in 1978 to 12 cases in dogs this year. "The domestic pet is the most potential problem to the human population," F.V. McCasland, chief of the Bureau of Veterinary Public Health, said. Five hundred persons had to undergo the painful series of rabies shots in 1978. This year 308 have. "We look at all cases of human exposure as public health failures," Charles Webb, Bureau of Communicable Disease Services, said. Webb said that two persons died of rabies in Texas last year. However a new vaccine, manufactured in France and Germany, may replace the painful and dangerous vaccines presently in use. The state has applied for permission from the federal government to import the vaccine, Moore said.

Forsythe named to presidency

LAMESA — William Forsythe has assumed the presidency of the Dawson County United Way. Fred Myers will serve as vice-president of the 1979-80 campaign, which will be held in the fall. Wayne Smith will be the campaign manager while Dale Newberry will continue as treasurer. Six new directors have also been named. They are Robert Crawley, Cora Brown, Danny Renner, Bobby Shofner, Bobby McKennon and Fred Vera. The Agency Hearing will be held Aug. 1, at which time the UW committee will hear presentations of fund requests needed by the various agencies.

Act gives board greater ability to fight threat

State Rep. Mike Ezzell of Snyder has been advised by the Texas Department of Health of the serious nature of the rabies problem in Texas. Ezzell's House Bill 1323, which was passed by the 66th Legislature and signed by the Governor, dealt with the eradication of rabies in Texas. That bill gives the Texas Board of Health a greater ability to deal with the rabies situation in the state. In response to numerous inquiries about rabies as a result of its increase in areas such as Eagle Pass and El Paso, the Texas Department of Health held a conference in Austin on June 28, 1979. A total of 567 cases of rabies have been confirmed by the Texas Department of Health laboratory as of June 23, 1979. The total number of confirmed rabies cases for 1978 was 556. The Texas Department of Health has been working on large scale education of the public concerning rabies. Local clubs and civic groups interested in learning more about rabies should contact the regional health office in Midland or Abilene. "Wild animals such as skunks, raccoons or foxes should not be kept as household pets," advises Ezzell. Ezzell also said "it is the responsibility of the public to see that domestic pets such as dogs and cats are leashed and vaccinated." In District 63 only four cases of rabies have been confirmed this year. Three were in skunks and one was in a cow. Most dog-to-dog transmissions occurred in El Paso, Eagle Pass and Maverick County. Persons who suspect a particular animal to be rabid should report any incident to the local sheriff or police department. Rabid animals should not be shot in the head as it make laboratory testing impossible. The Health Department also advises veterinarians or other person shipping head specimens to the Austin lab for rabies testing to get a copy of the directions for shipping heads of suspected rabid animals from local health departments. This will speed analysis and increase accuracy of findings.

Weather Thunderstorms dump rain on El Paso

By The Associated Press
Thunderstorms dumped a half-inch of rain on El Paso and other parts of far West Texas as a front moved north-eastward across Texas today.
But the rest of the state was dry and parched in the predawn hours as the mercury rose to the low 70s and mid 80s.
Skies in North Texas were clear this morning, but clear to partly cloudy in South and West Texas.
Early morning temperatures ranged from the low 70s to the mid 80s with 4 a.m. ranging from 66 degrees at Dalhart to 83 degrees at Galveston.

Forecasters called for clear to partly cloudy skies across South and West Texas with a few late afternoon and evening thunderstorms in the panhandle and Southwest. Weather men promise no relief from the heat, however, as the temperature inches through the 90s to an expected high near 107.

Dr. Kreps recovering

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Clifton H. Kreps, husband of U.S. Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps, was in stable condition today, recovering from surgery for what authorities said was a self-inflicted gunshot wound.
Kreps, 59, a University of North Carolina business professor, was found by his son Friday night lying on the floor of his study in the Kreps' home in Durham.
He underwent three hours of surgery late Friday and early Saturday, and doctors said they were optimistic about his chances for recovery.
Mrs. Kreps, who flew here Friday night, was unavailable for comment late Sunday.
A spokesman for Duke University, said Mrs. Kreps had been spending most of her time at the Duke University Medical Center since three hours of surgery began Friday night.
Kreps had been under psychiatric care at North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill and was on a one-day leave at the time of the shooting.

Ruling may lead to massive busing of pupils in Austin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today left intact a ruling that may lead to massive busing for racial desegregation of Austin, Texas, public schools.
The court, without comment, rejected arguments by Austin school officials that no desegregation steps are warranted.
School officials had argued that the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals was wrong when it decided that the state capital's school system discriminates against Mexican American students.
Today's action represented the second time in 26 months the nation's highest court considered charges of racial bias in Austin's schools.
The court on Dec. 6, 1976 set aside a 5th Circuit order designed to desegregate Austin's schools by busing up to 25,000 of the school district's 59,000 students.
The appeals court was told to restudy its order in light of a 1976 Supreme Court decision focusing on "discriminatory intent." The implication was that to order a constitutional remedy, the lower court would have to rule that school officials had "intended" to violate minority students' rights.
Although the court's action was taken without further explanation, three of its members issued a major statement of their views on school desegregation.
"Large scale busing is permissible only where the evidence supports a finding that the extent of integration sought to be achieved by busing would have existed had the school authorities fulfilled their constitutional obligations in the past," Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. wrote.
Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justice William H. Rehnquist joined in Powell's concurring opinion.
"The remedy ordered appears to exceed that necessary to eliminate the effect of any official acts or omissions," Powell said. "A remedy simply is not equitable if it is disproportionate to the wrong."
The three court members seemed to be telling the appeals court to come up with a more limited way of integrating black, Mexican American and white students.
Austin's 81 public schools have a 15 percent black population; 23 percent Mexican American and 62 percent Anglo.
About 40 percent of the Mexican American students attend schools with minority populations of more than 90 percent.

Gov. Brown supports anti-nuclear groups

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has pledged his support to anti-nuclear groups who have vowed to keep the Diablo Canyon nuclear plant from ever opening — with a human blockade if necessary, they say.
Brown called Saturday's rally, at which an estimated 25,000 turned out, "an impressive display of concern." He called on the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to "deny the license (for the power plant)." And Randy Bernard, spokesman for the rally sponsor, the Abalone Alliance, said "This could be the turning point for Diablo Canyon." The nearly-completed plant is awaiting a license from the NRC. A decision is expected late this year or early next year.

Fringe benefits interest some workers more

The trend among workers now is more in the direction of fringe benefits than in salary increases. The pay boosts invariably are eaten up by tax bites.

Fringe benefits, on the other hand, are something put aside for him. Their costs are either shared by employer and employee or underwritten wholly by the employer.

NO MATTER the amount of money offered, some prospective employees will oftentimes hold out until they learn the extent and the kind of fringe benefits they get.

The North Texas Contractors Association recently published a tabulation of fringe benefits in the area for employers of the various building crafts in the Metroplex for one month. The figure came out to a rather astonishing $1,889,793.28.

The carpenters, for instance, came in for $248,845.41 of the benefits, the laborers $272,652.67, the iron workers $225,522.78.

The electricians and the plumbers weren't overlooked. Each group qualified for almost as much while the bricklayers had $53,859 set aside for them for future use.

The funds covered 14,401 workers on building construction for just a 30-day period. That figures out to about $131 per person for one month.

THERE IS NO doubt but that this is the age for the individual trained to master a trade. Those in the building professions say it was a long time in coming but few will maintain that they are not getting their share of the construction dollar.

Not only do the craftsmen command a healthy portion of the building dollar but most of the unions have built-in clauses in their contracts guaranteeing that they will be taken care of in the future.

Harnessing hostility

Evans, Novak

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — In a California supposedly lunging rightward on an anti-government orgy, radical Tom Hayden has become a major political force by harnessing public hostility against big business.

Hayden's Campaign for Economic Democracy (CED) is only an infant but even now commands bigger precinct-level forces than dilapidated state Democratic and Republican organizations. It is intervening in dozens of local elections for both candidates and causes, with increasing success. Financed both by $15 dues payers and by angels (such as his actress wife, Jane Fonda), CED has spawned 30 chapters and field offices throughout the state.

FOLLOWING HIS astonishing 41 percent in the 1976 Democratic Senate primary, Hayden himself clearly has his eye on that U.S. Senate seat up again in 1982. Whether he is still remembered by too many voters as a founder of the radical Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and defendant in the Chicago Seven trial to be elected remains to be seen. But more interesting than his personal future is his formula for bucking the conservative tide.

The answer by Hayden and his CED: avoid unpopular liberal nostrums. In an interview at his 118-acre Laurel Springs ranch in here, Hayden made clear to us he will not incur popular wrath by defending public service employment (while insisting, "My heart throbs" for the liberal humanitarian programs).

Similarly, he calls California's famous Proposition 13 slashing property taxes "half-good," objecting only to "giving away the candy store to the big real estate operators." He is sympathetic toward a federal balanced budget and flatly opposes racial busing on grounds it does not work.

Having thus avoided traps that snare liberals, Hayden gets down to what he really cares about: "An alternate structure" replacing American capitalism. He told us he would "charter" corporations requiring public members on boards of directors and eventually partial public ownership; nationalize oil companies; treat other energy companies as public utilities.

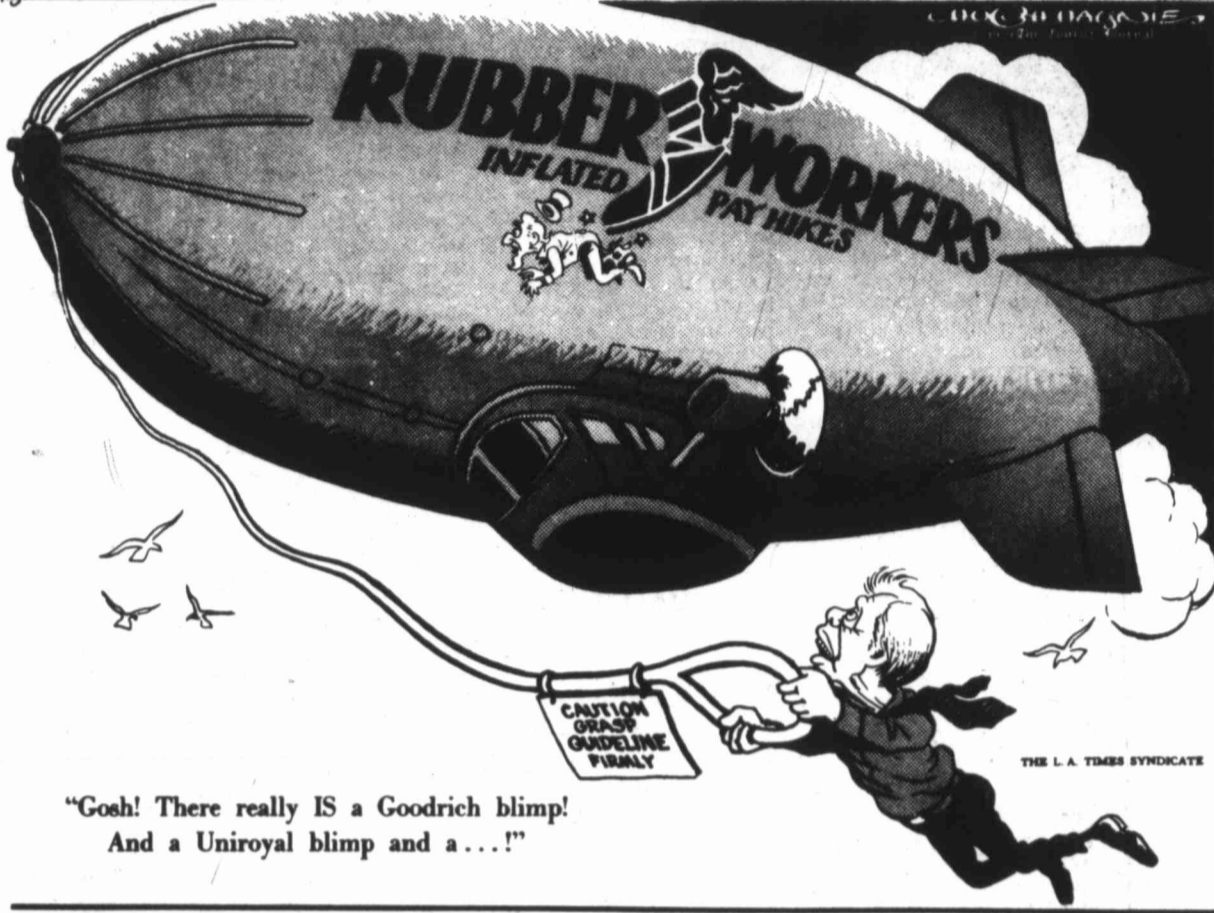

Such a package tastes too much like socialism for public consumption, and Hayden is not offering it as such. Instead, he operates on the indisputable theory that Joe Sixpack is as fed up with big business as he is with big government. Thus, the various threads of Hayden's campaign share a common theme: the sins of American capitalism.

CED's most recent emphasis has been on rent control in the wake of Proposition 13, winning public votes in Santa Monica and Berkeley and city council votes in Los Angeles and San Francisco. Hayden is pressing hard against corporate culpability for industrial illnesses, particularly cancer. Fred Branfman, a notorious pro-Cong activist, is working with Hayden again and last week publicly blamed the oil companies for the gasoline shortage.

Energy is the hub of Hayden's campaign, rejecting nuclear and exciting solar. But there is a suspicion — denied by Hayden — that stirring public fears about nuclear danger is only the means to the end of fanning public hostility toward corporate business.

THAT IS THE underlying theme of "The China Syndrome," the anti-nuclear movie thriller starring Miss Fonda, a political activist herself who is her husband's partner in CED. The movie's real villain is the fictitious "California Gas and Electric Co.," a brutalizing pillar of the police-corporate state.

"The China Syndrome" and CED are inseparable. Bruce Gilbert, the movie's producer, contemplates future films about multi-national oil companies and environmental causes of cancer — both priority Hayden items.

"Gosh! There really IS a Goodrich blimp! And a Uniroyal blimp and a . . .!"

Perspiration lack can pose problem

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My husband is 71, a farmer and an outdoor man. He always enjoyed hot summer months and always sweat profusely. Now his problem is he cannot sweat. His doctor told him to take salt, but this did not help. Taking salt seemed strange. Last summer he got ill from the heat. So now he spends the hot months under the air conditioner. Can you suggest anything? — Mrs. E.S.

The inability to perspire is called "anhidrosis." Recommending salt for this may seem odd at first glance. We usually use salt to replace sodium lost by excessive sweating. Yet, with some types of anhidrosis it does make sense.

The part of the nervous system that controls sweating is called the "autonomic system," the same system that controls all bodily functions we do not control consciously — heart rate, blood vessel action, etc. If this system is disturbed to the point of interfering with perspiration, other symptoms appear — hair loss, mouth and eye dryness, AND low blood pressure.

Normally, low blood pressure is of little concern, but in this instance it can be. It is not common in such cases to prescribe salt to elevate blood pressure.

Your husband's situation is rare. Most of us sweat more than we realize. It's the kind you don't see, but which forms as almost invisible droplets on the skin and evaporates. We lose some through the lungs. Also, we sweat less with age as other bodily functions decrease slightly.

I can't say from your letter if your husband does have the nerve-related anhidrosis. It can be diagnosed by simple skin perspiration tests. If it is confirmed he will have to be careful about any future fever-related illness and take precaution at high temperatures. His air conditioner is vital to him.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have spasm-like movements in my forefinger and thumb of my left hand at night. I am able to stop it by holding my fingers with my right hand. Also, sometimes my writing hand (right) is very shaky. I take aspirin with milk before going to bed. I am 75 years old. Can you comment? — R.M.

Tremor of the forefinger and thumb in one hand CAN mean Parkinsonism, but it is difficult from your brief description to say whether this is what you have. Other nerve diseases can cause muscle twitchings. The fact that the twitching seems to occur only when your hand is at rest is further evidence of Parkinsonism. A doctor can readily determine this.

The shaking of the right hand when you try to write is another matter. That comes under the heading of "action tremor" and is not related to Parkinsonism. Some of this can be expected with age and it can run in families. It rarely requires any treatment, although if it becomes a real nuisance it can be helped with a mild relaxant.

Dear Dr. Ruble: During my first four months of pregnancy I did some varnishing and painting. It was in a small room not well ventilated. Now, a friend tells me this is the worst thing I could have done. If it is so bad, why didn't my prenatal books warn against it, and what damage could the fumes have done to my baby? I'm scared. — F.A.

If you didn't get sick at the time you did your varnishing it is unlikely any harm was done to you or to the fetus. The signs of overexposure are usually lung and bronchial irritation — coughing and mucus as with an upper respiratory infection. Most up-to-date prenatal books do warn pregnant women against inhalation of pollutants — including cigarette smoke — good advice anytime.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I wish you could explain fluid buildup in the body and how it is related to circulatory and heart problems. What causes it to begin with? — Mrs. B.L.

You either missed the article a few months back in which I discussed congestive heart failure or you did not connect it with your condition.

Congestive heart failure does not mean that the heart itself is congested. It means that the heart is stopped pumping efficiently enough to maintain proper blood circulation throughout the body. This may be

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How can we be sure we are making use of the gifts God has given us? — S.D.

DEAR S.D.: One of the great truths of the Bible is that God has given spiritual gifts to His children. I believe the Bible teaches that we all have at least one spiritual gift. We are not to be jealous of those who have different gifts from our own, but are to be faithful in using those given us to do God's work in this world.

The first step in knowing you are using God's gifts is to be sure you know what your gift or gifts might be. You will find some of those gifts mentioned in passages like Romans 12:3-8, which speaks not only of gifts such as teaching, but of serving, encouraging, and contributing money. There are many spiritual gifts. We should examine ourselves carefully and prayerfully so that we know what they are.

Assuming that you believe you know what your gifts are, and assuming evident chiefly in the lungs, which, if they become congested, can cause breathing difficulties. Other less dramatic effects of the sluggish circulation is accumulation of body fluid elsewhere (edema). The direct cause of the heart problem varies, but results are the same.

Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Dr. Ruble, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Demand is down; investment is up

After all, with the cost of living going up every day, some people should expect to do without a few luxuries.

Americans haven't cut down on their consumption of gasoline to any degree but the demand for another popular commodity is down.

We're eating less candy. Commerce Department statisticians, adding up national production of sweets during 1979 and dividing by population, came up with a per capita consumption of 14.9 pounds for the year. That was down from 15.4 pounds the previous year.

Though consumption was down, however, the price paid for them was up — by some $22 million nation-wide, as a matter of fact.

that you are trying to use them in your church or somewhere else, ask yourself if God seems to be blessing your work for Him.

For example, perhaps you are teaching a Sunday school class. Are some of your students coming to know Christ for the first time? Are the members of the class really growing in their commitment to Christ? If not, perhaps you are not really called to teach. Or you are not using your gifts to the maximum.

The first step in using our gifts is a willingness to have them used for God's glory alone. If you have laid the gifts God has given you at the feet of Christ, to be used as He sees fit, I am convinced He will also lead you to the opportunities He has for you. We are never perfect in our obedience to Him, but when we know we are in God's will but also know He has equipped us for the task He has given us. When we are faithful, God will bless our efforts according to his will.

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

It is coming. I can feel it. And it will probably be here sooner than we think. Scene: The local discount and department store. A young woman is waiting in a long line to check out $50 in merchandise. It is her turn with the cashier.

CASHIER: GOOD afternoon. Will this be paid for with Mastercharge, Visa, American Express, automatic payment from a bank or a check which must be local and accompanied with two ID's?

WOMAN: Cash.
C. Cash?
W. Yes, ma'am.
C. Cash?
W. Uh huh.
C. Well, I don't know if I can accept that. Let me see it.

(The woman pulls out three crisp green bills. The cashier eyes them suspiciously.)

C. Are these from a local bank?
W. Yes, ma'am.
C. Do you have identification?
W. Yes.
C. Let me call the manager. He can take care of this.

(Enter manager.)
MANAGER: What's the problem?
C. This woman wants to buy this merchandise (Points to the checkout counter) but all she has is cash.

(A man at the back of the line groans with impatience. "How could she bring cash?" he complains in a loud whisper.)

M. May I see this cash?
(Woman again holds out her three crisp bills.)

M. I DON'T know. I just don't know. (Turning to the cashier) What do you think? Think this cash is any good?

C. I don't know. I never learned a procedure for this. I don't want to take the responsibility.

M. (Back to the woman) Do you have identification? How about a state driver's license?
(The woman searches for the license and presents it. more groans from the line behind her.)

M. This picture on the license doesn't look like you.

W. Why not?
M. You have pimples in the picture but you don't have any in person.

W. (Getting disgusted) It cleared up.

M. I'll need other forms of identification.

W. How about my social security card?

M. No, I need a major credit card.

W. If I had a major credit card, why would I be paying with cash?

M. If you don't have a major credit card — well — how do you live?

W. I pay cash.

M. Well, I still need more ID's.

W. Like what?

M. The deed to your house.

W. Nobody carries that around!

M. (Yelling) Well, nobody bothers us with cash either!

(Manager thinks a moment) Where do you work?

W. The Herald.

M. The Big Spring Herald?

W. Yes, sir.

M. (To the cashier) What do you think? Are they good?

C. They have a good staff.

M. No, money wise, is their cash good?

W. We get paid by check, sir. The cash is from the bank.

M. A local bank?

W. (Sarcastically) No! A bank from Mexico! Of course it's a local bank. With gas prices, who can afford to drive out of the city?

(Manager thinks for a few seconds and turns to cashier and quietly talks with her. After about a minute he looks up.)

M. Look ma'am. We will accept it. But I'm doing you a favor. This is against company policy. But of course we will have to keep your name, address and phone number on file in case the money is useless. (Turning to the cashier) Take down all the pertinent information on the bills — serial numbers, the signatures on the bottom of the bills, the color and whose picture is on it. If you think anything else is important, write it down.

C. Yes, sir.

(Merchandise is paid for and all information taken by cashier. Woman walks away, bag in hand.)

M. (To cashier) Do you believe what just happened?

C. Yes, I know. Some people will do anything to make our job more difficult.

Hardly 'open'

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter, the "outsider" who won the presidency with his engaging grin, his down-home, folksy manner and his anti-Washington rhetoric, had promised the American voters an "open" government.

But now it was August 1978, a tough 19 months after the plain-spoken man from Plains strolled up Pennsylvania Avenue to the White House and began his People's Presidency. And Jimmy Carter was as hot as the scorching summer weather outside the executive mansion, where he was holding the 53rd meeting of his Cabinet.

With portraits of Abraham Lincoln, Thomas Jefferson and Harry Truman gazing down at him, Carter looked over the oval mahogany table in the high-ceilinged, cream-colored Cabinet room and focused his blue eyes on his Cabinet secretaries.

THE PRESIDENT admonished everyone present to "treat the minutemen of the Cabinet meetings with the care that should be given confidential documents," and noted that the minutes being distributed by Cabinet Secretary Jack Watson were clearly marked "For your eyes only."

As luck would have it, we were the source of Carter's irritation that day. We had taken Carter seriously when he promised during his campaign to run "an open government to let our people know what our government leaders are doing, including the president." So we obtained and published excerpts from the secret minutes of Cabinet meetings from November 1977, to early 1978.

Carter's admonition to his Cabinet was not the first time he had complained about leaks. Nor will it be the last. Our associate Gary Cohn has obtained the secret minutes from January 1978, to the present from White House sources.

These hush-hush transcripts of the administration's top-level discussions are hardly spectacular reading. In fact, it's difficult to see why the president was so determined to keep them from the public — unless he was reluctant to let the voters know that he and his department heads have no clear solutions to the serious problems facing the nation.

Some of the laboriously transcribed minutes reveal a level of insight more characteristic of a service club luncheon than the inner circle of the most powerful government in the world. At one recent meeting, for example, Carter informed his Cabinet members: "In California, there was substantial anxiety by motorists over limited gasoline supplies."

AT ANOTHER meeting, the secret minutes show the president waxing eloquent on a parade he had just witnessed at the Marine barracks in Washington: "He described the Parade as an exciting and inspiring event, and one that is well worth seeing by Members of the Cabinet."

In fairness to Carter, our comparison of the earlier Cabinet minutes with the more recent ones shows that there is increasingly less discussion of such trivial matters as the press coverage given individual Cabinet members. The president has abandoned the practice of going around the room in a time-consuming "show-and-tell" quiz of each Cabinet member, and has focused instead on more substantive issues like energy, the economy and foreign affairs.

Sometimes there are apparent contradictions between what is said in the privacy of the Cabinet room and what is dispensed to the public. Last April 23, for instance, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger warned the president that "gasoline demand remains high, and a tight supply situation is expected this summer."

Not long afterwards Schlesinger told reporters that motorists should find it easier to buy gas this summer. "Gas lines should end around the country," he said. "There should be no generalized shortages." This could reflect either a rapidly changing situation — or a tendency by Schlesinger to be more candid behind closed doors.

Sometimes the minutes reveal a surprising failure to grasp the realities of a situation. At one meeting, the president and Labor Secretary Ray Marshall confidently reported that many business and labor leaders were supportive of the administration's anti-inflation wage and price guidelines. It turned out that more of them weren't, to say the least.

Despite the essentially harmless nature of the Cabinet discussions as revealed by the minutes, Carter's concern about leaks of the "secrets" at times has approached the paranoia of the Nixon years. The minutes carry this impressive covering notation: "Due to the nature of the contents of the attached minutes, they are being distributed to Cabinet Members with the request that no copies or distribution be made, and that they be kept 'for your eyes only.'"

Early last year, after we had published excerpts from some meetings, Carter ordered the Cabinet secretary to find and plug the leak. In April 1978, he summoned the Cabinet and senior staff aides to Camp David and angrily dressed them down for leaks that were still going on. "You have to be more discreet," he said.

Then on Aug. 7, according to the minutes, "The President asked that Cabinet Members treat the minutes of the Cabinet meetings with the care that should be given confidential documents."

And finally Carter added the true Nixonian touch: Some of the Cabinet minutes were actually classified, although they contained no national security secrets whatsoever.

End to truckers' strike looming

By The Associated Press

Striking truckers wheeled their big rigs around New York City's Times Square and drank iced tea in the North Carolina governor's mansion as drivers in other states packed up their blockades and headed back to the highways.

A spokesman for one group of independent drivers predicted the three-week-old shutdown could end soon — but with a flurry of activity.

"I think it will be resolved soon, because I think it's going to escalate," William Hill of the Independent Truckers Unity Coalition told a group of striking drivers in Pittsburgh on Sunday. "The government is going to be in a position where they have to give immediate relief."

Hill said "weak leaders" were used by the White House to call for an end to the shutdown. However, he said, "the reports I have had indicate that a large majority of the nation's independent truckers will hold out until their demands ... are met."

Truckers in Pennsylvania, Colorado and Alabama voted during the weekend to remain idle. "The calls I'm getting in here now are calling for more vigorous action," said Bill White, national representative of the International Truckers Association.

But members of the New Jersey Council of Independent Truckers voted Sunday to return to work today, calling off picket lines at oil distribution centers around the state. Atlanta's Independent Truckers United voted to go back to work until Sept. 15 "to determine if the problem is over." And some groups in South Dakota, Washington state, Arkansas and Missouri freed their members to return to work.

Truck traffic and shipment of foodstuffs reportedly have risen steadily in most parts of the country over the last several days.

Some Massachusetts drivers planned a convoy in Boston today while others ended blockades of several major truck stops.

"We're still supporting the shutdown 100 percent and we're asking those who can afford it to stay home," said George Oberg, representative of the New England ITA. "But a lot of guys are getting hungry and hurt by this."

The shutdown by the independent haulers was called to protest high diesel fuel prices and short supplies, the 55 mph speed limit and weight regulations that vary from state to state.

White House officials have proposed a plan pledging support for uniform weight regulations and equitable fuel distribution, and designating eight interstate highways as "safe corridors" for drivers.

"I think we've gained more than I ever figured we would," said Dennis Snyder of the western South Dakota ITA.

FAMILIAR TERRITORY — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin (left) shares a joke today with Henry Kissinger, who arrived in Jerusalem direct from Cairo on a private visit. Dr. Kissinger was known for his shuttle diplomacy when he traveled between Israel and Egypt to negotiate the settlement to the 1973 October War. Since the peace treaty's signing, such direct flights are easier.

Another rig fired upon

Three shots from sniper fire hit a Whitaker Company tractor trailer rig from Houston, near Sterling City Saturday at 8:20 p.m.

The truck was heading southeast on US 87 a quarter mile west of the community when he was fired on. Sterling County Sheriff F.J. Cantrell said the shots probably came from a gunman near a river 200 feet away.

The shots came from in front of the rig at a 45 degree angle, said Cantrell. Two bullets hit the right rear view mirror. Another passed under the door on the right side, went through the cab and passed out the back.

Bullets left holes the size of dimes. Cantrell said bullets were probably fired from a high powered rifle.

One man was in the truck. He drove to the sheriff's office after the assault. But told the sheriff he saw no one.

The truck was headed back to Houston empty from Amarillo.

Beef supplies will remain tight

Grocery prices decline

By The Associated Press
Consumers got a mid-year break at the supermarket last month, as grocery prices declined slightly, an Associated Press market-basket survey shows.

The AP found butter and eggs led the list of items which cost less at the start of July than they did a month earlier. The declines were partially offset, however, by rising prices for coffee.

The downward trend is not expected to last. Beef supplies will remain tight for the rest of the year; protests by independent truckers are disrupting food shipments and cutting supplies of fruit and vegetables; and the boost in oil prices announced by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will make it even more expensive to package food and transport it to market.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and non-food items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. One item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list at the end of November 1977 because the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

The latest survey showed that the marketbasket bill increased during June at the checklist store in six cities, rising an average of 3.2 percent. The bill decreased at the checklist store in seven cities, with an average drop of 2.4 percent. On an overall basis, the average AP marketbasket bill at the checklist store was seventenths of a percent lower at the end of the month than it was at the beginning. During May, in contrast, the Cowboys linked to drugs use

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Approximately half of the 36 persons named in recent sealed drug indictments were rodeo riders and their friends, the Austin American-Statesman reported Saturday.

Twenty-two of the suspected drug dealers were arrested Thursday night and Friday after the indictments were handed down by grand juries in Travis and Williamson Counties.

Three were taken into custody at the Sheriff's Posse Rodeo in nearby Georgetown. One "had just been thrown by a bull and was walking back to the chutes when a Georgetown deputy sheriff put the collar on him," said a narcotics agent.

The story said two men at the competitors' gate at the Georgetown rodeo admitted a few of the 300 contestants used drugs.

"Some of them have to, just to get up the nerve to go out there," said one man, who asked not to be identified.

average marketbasket bill rose one-tenth of a percent.

The dairy counter appeared to offer the best bargains during June, the AP found. The price of a pound of butter declined at the checklist store in six cities; the price of a dozen eggs dropped in seven cities.

Meat prices were mixed; the price of a pound of hot dogs, for example, increased at the checklist store in six cities during June and decreased at the checklist store in six other cities.

Coffee lovers almost everywhere got bad news. The price of a pound of coffee increased at the checklist store in 11 cities, rising to an average of $2.71. The price topped $3 a pound in two cities.

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents. The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease.

The items on the AP list were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Ga., Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

MID-YEAR BREAK — An Associated Press marketbasket survey in 13 cities showed a slight decline in grocery prices at the start of July.

Gold prices skyrocket 'Jake' Pickle named trustee

LONDON (AP) — Concern over the impact of higher crude oil prices sent gold prices soaring today in Europe while the dollar advanced a bit in Japan and slid on most European markets.

Gold jumped $4 in Zurich to $281.875 an ounce from $277.875 at Friday's close. The early trading price of gold in London was $282.375, up from the Friday close of $279.25.

In London, the British pound climbed to a four-year high against the dollar. Bounded by Britain's North Sea oil resources, the pound traded at $2.1880, compared to $2.1782 late Friday.

Estes' lawyers to finish fast

DALLAS (AP) — Defense attorneys say they'll begin unraveling the fabric of a prosecution case today when they secretly recorded conversations and the testimony of businessmen who contend they were bilked by paroled swindler Billie Sol Estes.

Estes' lawyers predicted, when prosecutors rested their case Friday, it will take just two days to rebut government arguments presented during 10 days of testimony.

Prosecutors called a parade of witnesses to testify about Estes' role in an alleged scheme to bilk four leasing companies out of more than $500,000. They also presented 29 hours of tape-recorded talks between Estes and an undercover federal agent posing as a highrolling investor.

Estes and Sue Goolsby, his former secretary, are accused of using documents bearing the forged signatures of Tyler millionaire Billy D. Pyron to secure loans for various business ventures. Ms. Goolsby will stand trial after Estes and Horton.

Prosecutors base their contention the steam cleaners never existed on the testimony of M.L. Copenhagen. However, the defense charged Copenhagen failed in his obligation to manufacture the equipment even though Estes and Horton paid him more than $30,000.

Pyron told federal court jurors Estes set him up in two multi-thousand dollar business deals, then swindled him.

Pyron said he agreed to put up $125,000 in letters of credit for Horton's company, Permian Petroleum Co. of Midland. He also said he agreed to sign a $78,000 note from an Abilene bank so Estes could purchase a small electronics firm for his eldest daughter, Pamela Estes Tedford.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jim Rolfe also maintained Estes used Pyron's name to finagle other deals not authorized by the millionaire. That allegation centered on a power of attorney bearing Pyron's name allegedly authorizing Ms. Goolsby to act on Pyron's behalf.

A retired West Texas farmer claims to have lost $50,000 in one of those deals. The farmer, now a used car dealer, said he loaned Estes after meeting him in a Bible class.

Jasper H. Burkett told jurors he agreed to loan the ex-convict $30,000 for Permian Petroleum and another $20,000 after he saw Pyron's financial statement, which listed his net worth at $4.7 million.

Burkett claimed he never would have made the investments if it had not been for Estes' claims his ventures were backed by Pyron and Horton.

Nuclear plant triggers prosperity in Glen Rose

Editor's Note: Nuclear power has turned the community of Glen Rose in North Texas to somewhat of a boom town and most residents seem to consider it a boon instead of a boondoggle. The dangerous aspects of the facility don't seem to bother them.

GLEN ROSE, Texas (AP) — It used to be in Somervell County that Comanche Peak dominated the landscape, the dinosaur tracks were the No. 1 curiosity and the Flat Top Ranch was easily the biggest thing on the tax rolls.

That was five years ago — before 4,000 construction workers began building Texas Utilities' $1.7 billion Comanche Peak nuclear power plant.

The plant's two domed concrete-and-steel containment towers, rising like giant silos 265 feet out of the rocky, scrub cedar rangeland, can be seen for miles. And they stand in such stark contrast to the rugged rolling hills that it's sometimes easy to overlook Comanche Peak, a commanding mesa that looms 600 feet above the landscape five miles to the north and was once a traditional rallying point for the Comanche Indians.

The nuclear plant is so noticeable, in fact, that it's common for travelers near Glen Rose to pull off on the side of U.S. 67 and gawk at it. Except for the well-preserved dinosaur tracks and some aging fiberglass dinosaur models at Dinosaur Valley State Park, there really isn't much else to look at in Somervell County.

It's the state's third smallest and was one of its poorest and most sparsely populated. The Texas Almanac lists its mineral resources, not as oil and natural gas, but as "limited sand and gravel."

The county's 2,600 residents, 1,500 of whom lived in Glen Rose, either scratched out a living by raising peanuts along the Brazos River or cattle and goats in the semi-arid hills. Some commuted the 50 miles northward to the plants in Fort Worth or 17 miles to Cleburne.

A small, but steady stream of tourists visited the state park and the church camps along the Brazos. There were once spas and sanitariums here in the 1920s, but some say the moonshine whiskey from stills in the remote cedar breaks was the county's leading product from the 1920s until the 50s.

But by the 1970s, the feed mill in Glen Rose was the closest thing to an industry. It so happened, however, that Texas Utilities officials felt the site five miles north of Glen Rose near the Hood County line and along Squaw Creek was ideal for any nuclear plant, especially their nuclear plant. Construction began in early 1975 and brought in the hordes of workers and a million-dollar payroll in a county where minimum wage was considered good money not so long ago.

The tax base at that time was about $5 million — at a rate of 20 percent of market value. The projected cost of the plant was about $800 million and has since risen to $1.7 billion.

By the time both of the nuclear plant's units began operating in 1983, it will have increased the county's tax base by 60 times of what it was in 1974. The same holds true in the county's school district.

That increase in tax base doesn't include the other businesses the project has attracted. There's a new supermarket and other stores, houses and apartments, and a lumberyard. Mobile homes are parked seemingly everywhere.

"They're living in anything, anything," said Dan McCarty, 38, a former mayor and publisher of The Glen Rose Reporter. "If it's something you could possibly consider housing, then they're living in it."

The Glen Hotel, once nearly deserted, is now packed with construction workers and the buildings from the old spas and sanitariums are being used as dorms for the workers.

But county officials say the population of Somervell County has doubled to more than 5,000. The school enrollment has jumped from about 500 to 800, said Superintendent Charles Gibbs.

"The transient workers have young kids, so it's really crowded in the elementary school," he said. The school district, flush with its new tax wealth, has added temporary buildings to relieve the overcrowding and is building a new $2.5 million high school. The old high school will be used to ease the overcrowding in the lower grades.

"The new high school will be a real showpiece, not any better than anywhere else, but it'll be really something for us," said Gibbs. "We used to be one of the poorest school districts in the state."

Montgomery. There were only two sheriff's deputies in 1974, but there are now six deputies and two state troopers.

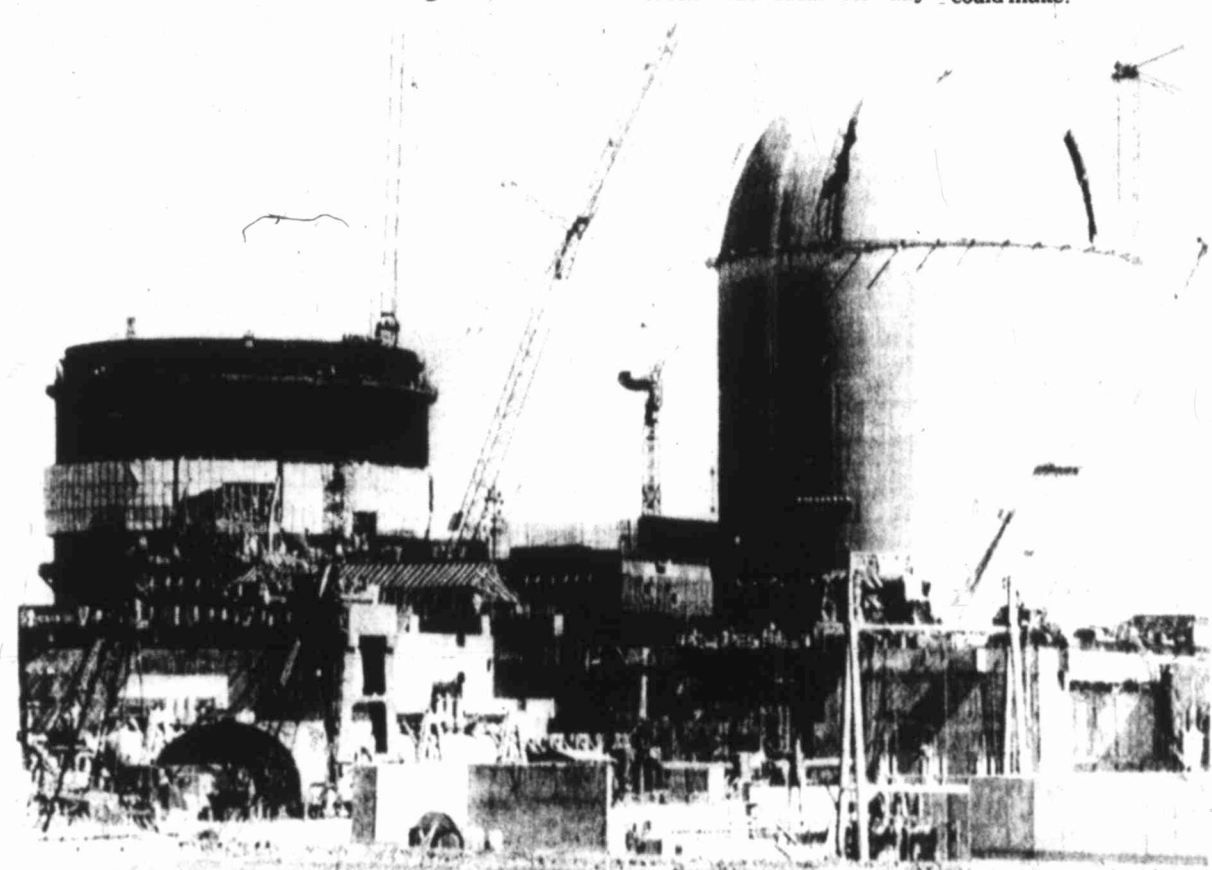

"Like anything else, this has its assets and liabilities," she said. Even in the wake of the Three Mile Island accident, the fact that the plant is nuclear powered seems to be lost in the shuffle.

"About one percent of the people of Somervell County are opposed to the location of the plant for all reasons, not just because it's nuclear," said McCarty. "Probably 20 percent are actively for the thing and a vast majority of the people couldn't care less if it's nuclear or not. The fact it's a nuclear plant doesn't bother me at all."

"I would prefer not to have to live around it, particularly since the Harrisburg (Three Mile Island) thing," countered author John Graves, 58, whose secluded ranch "Hard Scrabble" is about six miles from the plant. "I don't want to sit here and get radiated, plus there's the disposal of the waste and the chance of sabotage and the whole mess in general."

"I don't think that we have much chance of stopping it, though," he continued. "There's still a chance it will never operate. It would take another Three Mile Island."

"It came in here and it was a payroll and a tax base. That's all the people worried about and a vast majority of them were in favor of it. Up until Three Mile Island, I don't think the people had any large doubts about radiation."

COMANCHE PEAK PROJECT — This is the partially completed Comanche Peak nuclear power plant near Glen Rose, Texas which has great impact on the surrounding area.

Stenholm supporting alcohol fuels

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Majority Leader Jim Wright is on a European trip he says will give him the chance to see synthetic fuel plants in operation.

The House approved overwhelmingly last week a plan pushed by Wright to promote an American synthetic fuel industry.

A seven-member congressional delegation left Friday for the trip to Norway, West Germany and Great Britain during Congress' Fourth of July recess.

Wright, D-Texas, said the trip also was planned to look at NATO facilities.

Wives are accompanying the congressmen "for protocol purposes" but not at government air travel expense, he said.

The latest congressional caucus, a group supporting the development of alcohol fuels, lists U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm as its first Texas member.

The Stamford Democrat is a farmer. "I think alcohol fuels offer an alternative present as well as future resource," he said. "We know what we can do with grain. I'm particularly interested in some of the solar-powered stills."

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, introduced a bill Tuesday which would put top priority energy projects on a fast track for government permits.

"It is preposterous, absurd, that with a full-blown energy crisis looming over the country the unknown, unpredictable quantity of government regulation has become a major and frequently insurmountable obstacle to the development of alternative facilities," he said.

Bentsen said under his plan projects that now may take as long as five years to pass through the federal, state and local permit process would proceed in one and a half years or less.

"Americans are fed up with the delays and senseless waste caused by government red tape," he said. "We don't want to sprinkle the landscape with alternative energy plants or pipelines without a thorough understanding of what we're doing to the environment or the economy. But the way we currently manage our affairs you would be lucky to finish the permitting process for an alternative energy plant in five years."

Bentsen said the permit bill is the first part of a synthetic fuel crash program he is proposing.

The latest Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries price hike prompted a salvo from U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

"This latest oil price increase announced by the OPEC governments should serve as another painful reminder of the United States government's continuing inability to come to grips with the current, very real national oil shortage problem," Tower said.

The senator said the only solution is to increase domestic production. He called for decontrol and said the plan to tax the resulting "windfall profits" should be defeated.

"We must also act now to suspend or eliminate all of the overly restrictive environmental controls which so impede energy development and increase its price," he said.

U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Texas, now has a seat on the committee which oversees the House's fiscal affairs.

Loeffler, a freshman, replaces U.S. Rep. Sam Devine, R-Ohio, on the House Administration Committee. Devine resigned the committee post after his recent election to the No. 3 Republican leadership position in the House.

"I have previously stated my intentions to try to control spending by the House, the size of committee staffs and to reduce the sheer size of the federal bureaucracy," Loeffler said. "This important committee assignment will give me extra dimension and ability to bring about changes in these matters of serious concern to the majority of American taxpayers."

Ferry rate hike prompts blockade, tourists stuck

VINALHAVEN, Maine (AP) — A rate increase on the ferry that links this island community to the mainland prompted a blockade by residents at the ferry ramp and left tourists stuck on the boat.

The Sunday morning protest was peaceful, and about a half hour after the ferry reached its island berth, approximately 20 cars and pickups that formed the blockade dispersed and passengers went ashore. Blockade spokesman Robert L. Norton said if residents decide not to use the ferry to transport their groceries, there are plenty of lobster boats around. Roundtrip rates went up 80 cents to $3.75 for passengers, and $3.60 to $16.35 for cars.

On the light side

Outta gas - outta luck

DATONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Race driver Hurley Haywood had the kind of trouble a lot of Americans are encountering. He ran out of gas in the Daytona Six Hours endurance while he was in second place.

Haywood's crew frantically tried to wave him in for refueling two hours into Sunday's race, but he said later he was busy trying to get his two-way radio working and missed the signals.

"There's a light supposed to come on when we have two gallons left," Haywood said. "When it came on I was out."

He sprinted three-quarters of a mile to his pit, and co-driver Rob McFarlin took a can of gasoline to the car and got it restarted. But the new Mazda RX3 never ran well again and finished 39th.

Prof. promotes peddle power

ORONO, Maine (AP) — That worry-free expression on Dave Field's face these days may be the result of the gasoline crunch. The shortage hasn't fazed Field. He commutes 36 miles each day to and from his job — by bicycle.

For the past two years, Field has been riding his 10-speed bike between his home in Humpden and the University of Maine at Orono — a distance of 18 miles — from about April through October.

"You don't have to be in as good shape as you think to do it, but it puts you in shape in a short time," says the 38-year-old associate research professor at UMO's School of Forest Resources.

Field, who began bicycling to work in 1972 when he was at Yale University, says he has all kinds of motivations to leave the car at home, including the desire for "something to keep me in shape without taking too much time."

Economics counts, too. Figuring in the cost of gas, oil, car repair and depreciation, he estimates he saves at least 10 cents a mile or $3.60 a day by biking to work.

Fields sees no reason why many others can't take to the bicycle. "What I've found is that the more people who see somebody doing it, the fewer people there are who think it's crazy," he said.

Telephone directories now red, white, yellow

By LOUISE COOK
By The Associated Press

The familiar telephone directory is getting a new look: There's a touch of red in the yellow pages. Some of the white pages are turning blue. And there may be discount coupons in the back of the book.

It's all part of what the Bell System says is an effort to make the directories — white and yellow — more useful to customers and advertisers.

"Almost every aspect of the telephone directory is being changed — or is being researched for change," said George Callahan, the Bell System's director of standards and development for directory services.

The Bell System publishes about 2,400 separate yellow pages, about half of all the directories in the country. In 1978, according to Callahan, the yellow pages brought in $1.6 billion in gross revenues; total Bell System revenues were $41 billion.

Callahan said the yellow pages "are profitable indeed," but he declined to say what percentage of the company's overall profits the directories represent.

The Bell System does not make any attempt to check up on advertisers' performance. Callahan said the company does, however, try to encourage firms to list such barometers of reliability as number of years in business, membership in trade associations, etc.

One of the newest trends in the yellow pages is the coupon. Bell of Pennsylvania and Southwestern Bell, which serves parts of the Midwest and Southwest, are experimenting with the idea and Callahan said most of the other companies in the system "are considering it." The coupons, grouped together in a single section at the back of the book, offer discounts on products and services provided by advertisers who are listed in the yellow pages. The advertisers pay anywhere from under $200 to over $3,000 to place a coupon in an annual directory. The price depends on the location and the size of the potential market.

Thus far, the coupons are limited to directories that serve a relatively small area. "It's a neighborhood device," said Callahan.

Red print already appears in about 100 yellow pages across the country and is expected in another 100 directories by the end of the year. It was introduced to allow advertisers to highlight their listings and its use is being expanded "to improve basic graphics," Callahan said.

Changes also are under way in the white pages directories. The Bell System is experimenting with "blue pages" sections consolidating state, federal and local government listings. The blue sections have been tested in Little Rock, Ark., Chicago, Boston and Sacramento, Calif., and are expected in all major directories within two years.

A growing number of larger cities, meanwhile, are turning to split yellow-page directories, with one edition for businesses and another for consumers.

Names in the news

MARGARET HECKLER

LARRY FLYNT

Not what she expected

STAFFORD, Kan. (AP) — For Margaret Heckler, the Massachusetts congresswoman who came to Kansas to see how the agricultural half lives, the farm just wasn't what she expected.

Mrs. Heckler, who arrived in Wichita on Friday, said her stereotypes were shattered at Earl Hayes' farm near Stafford.

"I knew they were wheat farmers, but I expected to see some chickens," she said, "expected to see a front porch, rocking chairs — and lo and behold, we went into this beautiful farmhouse with modern art, African sculpture ... it was as sophisticated as anything you will see in Boston."

Mrs. Heckler, a Republican, had been invited to Kansas by the Kansas Farm-City Council, a volunteer organization of farm businessmen interested in promoting better relations with city residents.

Flynt ready to go to jail

ATLANTA (AP) — Larry Flynt says he's prepared to go to jail for selling his magazines in Georgia, but the judge who can put him there says Flynt is not breaking any laws.

Flynt, who bought a full-page advertisement in Sunday's Atlanta Journal-Constitution soliciting subscriptions for his Hustler and Chic magazines, was convicted on 11 misdemeanor obscenity counts here in March for the sale of certain issues of the sex magazines.

His 11-year jail sentence was reduced to probation by Fulton State Court Judge Nick Lambros on the condition that Flynt not again violate state obscenity laws.

The ad pictured the covers of the two magazines with the word "banned" across them. It charged Lambros' ruling violated Flynt's rights because it banned his magazines as obscene before they were published.

Carstens records first

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Karl Carstens has been sworn in as West Germany's fifth post-war president.

The 64-year-old conservative leader took the oath Sunday for a five-year term in the largely ceremonial post, succeeding Walter Scheel.

Carstens was elected to his new post by the National Assembly in May after winning support from the conservative Christian Democrats and their Christian Social Union allies.

Seminar set for nurses

The Howard College Adult and Continuing Education Department will sponsor a summer seminar for nurses entitled "Clinical Interpretation of Blood Chemistry."

Sponsored by the Texas Nurses' Association and Howard College, the seminar will be held on Saturday, from 9 a.m. to noon. Coffee will be served from 8:30 to 9 o'clock the morning of the seminar.

It will be held in Room 206 of the Horace Garret Building, and the cost of the course will be $5. Three hours of Continuing Education (C.E.A.R.P.) have been approved.

Paul Ausmus, chairman of the Science and Math Division of Howard College, will be the lecturer for the seminar. Ausmus will clarify and review the types of tests performed by the laboratory in clinical chemistry.

He will discuss the reasons such tests are requested by the physician, and their value in patient diagnosis. He will also review the nursing implications associated with the performance of laboratory tests. The seminar will include all routine tests, as well as several tests performed in special chemistry. Participants must preregister by 4 p.m., Friday, in order to be assured of a place, and space is limited to 30 people. Due to the depth of the subject matter, participation for this seminar is restricted to R.N. and L.V.N. participants only.

Registration will not be accepted the morning of the seminar. Students may register in the Adult and Continuing Education Department located in the Horace Garrett Building. For more information, please call 267-6311, ext. 70.

KILGORE, Texas (AP) — Despite talk of an economic recession, East Texas business ventures have made substantial gains, the Kilgore News Herald reported Sunday.

Growth in bank deposits, retail sales, construction and business expansion were detailed in the newspaper's 49th annual Oil, Progress and Mail-Away Edition.

Retail sales in Kilgore, as measured by collection of the 1 percent municipal sales tax, are among the highest per capita of any city in Texas, the newspaper said.

Bank deposits were up $21 million in June from the year before, the paper said, and highway construction projects totaling more than $21 million are under way in the Kilgore area.

Food shortages produce renewed looting

Somoza's units bomb rebels

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Typhoid and tetanus have broken out among Managua's 150,000 civil war refugees and food shortages are driving others to renewed looting in the capital.

Government broadcasts reported sporadic fighting in the war between President Anastasio Somoza's national guard and the Sandinista guerrillas. They said the guard bombed rebel-held Masaya, 20 miles south of Managua, and a ground force destroyed a rebel command post near the Costa Rican border, killing a number of guerrillas.

The rebels still controlled a score of cities including Leon, the nation's second largest 55 miles northwest of Managua.

Cross said. "It won't be long before it is a major crisis if we don't start getting vaccine."

And the Red Cross distributed its last food Saturday, said Miguel Schiele, the agency's Managua director.

eight months to try to overthrow the Somoza family dictatorship. The guerrillas retreated from the area Thursday, moving to Masaya and other points south of the capital.

"My babies are dead. My home is destroyed. Where is my husband? Oh, God, where is my husband?" wailed Sara Barreto de la Cayo, standing in the smoking ruins of what used to be her home.

photographers said they saw four national guardsmen march four male civilians into the already burned out, vacant warehouse last week. They heard about a dozen shots and only the guardsmen came out.

Another American reporter said he saw a pile of seven charred bodies with their hands bound with wire behind their backs in an area north of the city guarded by government troops.

Hispanics want explanation from Justice Department

DALLAS (AP) — Mexican American leaders angry over Justice Department refusal to prosecute in the case of an Ector County inmate who died in jail last year say they will file a civil suit against the agency to guarantee such prosecution in the future.

At a recent news conference, the Hispanics said the death of Larry Lozano last year was a case of police brutality.

Lozano died Jan. 22, 1978, 11 days after he was arrested on drunken driving charges.

Attorney Ruben Sandoval said the Justice Department was trying to perpetuate "misinformation and misconceptions" about the Lozano case.

Justice officials said medical opinion was split on whether or not Lozano's death was an accident.

Sandoval said 92 bruises and wounds on Lozano's body indicated police brutality.

After showing newsmen color photographs that showed blackened bruises and open wounds on Lozano's body, Sandoval asked, "How can anyone say this man was not subject to unreasonable force?"

"We are serving a simple message to the Justice Department," Sandoval said. "We want an explanation."

Sandoval and other Hispanic leaders, including newly-elected president Ruben Bonilla of the League of United Latin American Citizens, accused President Carter of failing to deliver on promises to rigidly enforce civil rights laws.

"President Carter is either ignorant or has no guts in prosecuting those who have brutalized us," said State Rep. Paul Moreno, D-El Paso, who also attended the news conference.

Sandoval represents the Lozano family.

At Warm Springs Rehab center needs repairing

NEW HOWARD COUNTY AUDITOR — Jackie Olson, right, was sworn in this morning by District Clerk Peggy Crittenden. Mrs. Olson is replacing ex-County Auditor Virginia Black, who will be leaving Big Spring Thursday to take a position in the state comptroller's office.

ATLANTA (AP) — The bathhouse roof has collapsed and kudzu covers the pools, but Ann Bray still sees the three-pool complex at Warm Springs, Ga., the way it was when President Franklin D. Roosevelt came to bathe in the hot springs as therapy for his polio.

Mrs. Bray, the wife of state Rep. Claude A. Bray of Manchester, Ga., says it is painful to view the crumbling plaster and ankle-deep water, still fed by the hot springs that bubble out of the ground.

But because of her efforts and those of others interested in saving the complex, the 939-acre Roosevelt Warm Springs Rehabilitation Center grounds may soon be restored at a cost of $2 million.

"I think we very nearly have 100 percent funding," said Mrs. Bray, chairman of a governor's advisory committee for the project. "It's important to us to have it ready for dedication in 1982, the 100th anniversary of President Roosevelt's birth."

Mrs. Bray, in a recent telephone interview, said the federal Economic Development Administration and the Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service indicated they would provide "up to 80 percent funding" for the project.

She said Georgia Democrat Rep. Jack Brinkley and James Connolly, president of the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, have met with Speaker of the House Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill to discuss federal financing of the remaining 20 percent of the cost but no agreement has been reached so far.

"I see it as a memorial to Roosevelt, a mecca for the handicapped, and a tourist attraction," Mrs. Bray said.

Mrs. Bray's father, Dr. Charles E. Irwin, was chief surgeon at the warm Springs Rehabilitation Center Hospital in Roosevelt's day. At a 10-year-old, Mrs. Bray remembers swimming with the president in the soothing waters, horseback riding with him, and having him over for dinner.

"He was like an uncle to me," she said. "He's always been a vivid part of everything here in Meriwether County. Such a simple little place, but he loved Warm Springs and came every chance he could."

She said the heavily-wooded site adjoining the hospital grounds includes the remnants of the three-pool complex designed and built by Roosevelt, a nine-hole golf course now used by staff and patients of the hospital, and a deep forest.

Besides the three pools, a fourth T-shape pool that originally drew Roosevelt to the site has been filled in with earth, she said.

"It was just a classic example of neglect," Mrs. Bray said. "After World War II, it (the Roosevelt complex) was considered just an unnecessary burden to the administrators of the hospital. They have one pool at the hospital center, and they didn't need the Roosevelt pools."

"One of the first things tourists want to know when they get to Warm Springs is where the springs are," said Mrs. Bray. "We don't like to tell them they can't be viewed."

during the sixth inning and winds up first falling on the ball and his face, right top, and then sliding past the ball, right bottom. The Braves won 2-1.

Niekro leads league with 12

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Houston Astro pitcher Joe Niekro believes he isn't throwing any better this season than in years past, but he is going to have a tough time convincing the rest of the National League. "I'm not really pitching better, I'm just more consistent," said Niekro, who picked up his major league-leading 12th victory of the year as the Astros defeated the San Diego Padres 4-1 Sunday afternoon. It took a four-run Houston rally in the ninth inning to break a scoreless tie and give Niekro the win.

"I knew we were going to score some runs, it was just a matter of when," he said. The 34-year-old Niekro, who has never won more than 14 games in his 12-year major league career, improved his record to 12-3 at the season's midway point. It was the 50th victory of the year for the streaking Astros, who have now won four straight and 12 of their last 14. "Our pitching staff is sort of like the whole team; everyone is underrated," said Niekro of the NL West-leading Astros. "We've got good defense, hitting, and we can steal bases. Our starting pitchers are also very good."

The Houston starters allowed the Padres just two runs as the Astros swept the three-game series. "I'm not surprised the Padres could get only two runs off us in three games, not the way our pitching staff has been going," said reliever Joe Sambito, who got the final two outs in the ninth Sunday to record his eighth save. Niekro was denied his fifth shutout and eighth complete game of the year when the Padres scored a run and loaded the bases with one out in the ninth. "There's only one guy I've used consistently from the bullpen, and that's Sambito," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon of his relief ace who entered the game with a club-leading 1.13 earned run average. San Diego starter and loser Randy Jones, 6-6, held Houston scoreless for eight innings before being hit for the four runs in the ninth. "I don't know what it is, but I'm really tired of it and I'm ticked off," said the former Cy Young Award-winner. "I'm pitching well, but I'm still 6-6."

Heath goes from goat to hero

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Through nine innings, Mike Heath was hardly a hero. The Oakland catcher was 0-5, all grounders, and one of them even resulted in a double play by the Texas Rangers. Yet when all the shouting was over after Oakland's 13-12 win in 15 innings Sunday night, in a marathon that lasted five hours nine minutes, most of the bear hugs had gone to Heath. He doubled in the 10th, singled in the 11th, singled in the 14th and then singled in ex-Ranger Dave Chalk with the winning run in the 15th, all off Doc Medich, who threw the last 813 innings for Texas. Oakland trailed 9-4, but scored five times in the seventh to tie it. They trailed again 12-9, but fought back with three runs in the ninth to send the game into extra innings. "This is one we absolutely had to win," said Jim Essian, who had five of Oakland's team record 29 hits in the slugfest. Heath

Mike Edwards and Rickey Henderson, all had four hits. Texas also set a team record with 21 hits. "I've been in 11- or 12-inning games before, but never any with that many hits or that intense," Heath said. Texas had won eight straight and Oakland had lost eight straight and 13 straight on the road going into the game. The Rangers' lead over California in the American League Western Division dwindled to one percentage point. "It would have been incredibly depressing for us to lose this one," said Rick Langford, 3-9, who pitched the 10th through the 14th innings for Oakland and got the win. Oakland Manager Jim Marshall said: "Our kids really needed this one. We don't have many times to celebrate. Our kids never quit trying." Oscar Gamble hit a 3-run homer for Texas, and Buddy Bell and Billy Sample hit solo homers.

McEnroe maintains stiff upper lip after defeat

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — It all happened too quickly for young John McEnroe, the brightest new meteor in the tennis sky, and the world crumbled around his ears. But give the kid credit. He took his medicine like a man. He exited with a stiff upper lip. "Maybe I took too much for granted," said the 20-year-old court prodigy from Douglaston, N.Y., seeded No. 2, hailed as the possible successor to Bjorn Borg. He was crushed in straight sets by giant-killer Tim Gullikson in the fourth round of the Wimbledon championships. "The cold weather was difficult for me. I felt awful out there. But it was partially in the mind and partially in the body. I wish I had been 100 per cent, but that sounds like sour grapes. He played better than I did. That's what it comes down to." Two years ago John McEnroe was just a schoolboy of 18 — not even the best junior in the United States. He came to Wimbledon largely as a lark to mark time between junior commitments. But he qualified. Then, one by one, he began knocking over big name opponents. Before you could bat an eyelash, he was in the semifinals — the youngest man ever to get there — and an instant sensation. Given a choice between a lucrative pro career and college, he chose the latter. He spent a year at Stanford University, and won the NCAA college championship as a freshman.

Then he turned pro. Between June and the end of 1978 he collected more than $600,000 in prize money. He hit the rich pro circuit. He helped the United States regain the Davis Cup, winning his two singles matches over the British by the most one-sided scores in the 79-year history of the competition. He won the Grand Prix Masters, the premier prize of the pros. He beat Jimmy Connors and Borg in consecutive rounds to capture the top purse in the World Championship Tennis finals in Dallas. He was the sport's hottest commodity. He and Peter Fleming won the WCT doubles championship. He was on the cover of Time Magazine. Teenagers squealed and screamed over him. But because of his unbridled temper on the court, others called him a spoiled brat. British writer Hugh Hefner dubbed him "super brat."

It was heady stuff indeed. The pressure was monumental. Young McEnroe was smart enough to recognize it and man enough to acknowledge it on the firing line in the post-match interview. "Maybe I didn't prepare enough," he confessed. McEnroe had a hard match with Gullikson's twin brother, Tom, on Friday and a doubles match that lasted until 9 p.m. He was playing with a pulled groin muscle, suffered in Tokyo, and a nasty cold. He has asked if the cold bothered him. "Every cold is bad if it's yours," he replied.

Morgan hits 40-foot putt

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Victory was within Gil Morgan's grasp twice Sunday but it took that second chance and a heart-stopping 40-foot putt to put the winner's $54,000 check from the Danny Thomas Memphis Classic in his pocket. "It was one of those putts you make sometime," said the Oklahoma optometrist said, savoring the victory which came during the second hole of a sudden-death playoff against Larry Nelson at the Colonial Country Club. Morgan, 33, who failed to qualify as an amateur for the tournament seven years ago, went into Sunday's final round with a 4-under-par 212. He collected 8 birdies — along with 2 bogeys — and went into No. 18 leading Nelson by a stroke at 10 under. But he had to struggle to hold that position. Morgan's drive went into the trees at the right of the fairway. His second shot was to the left and his ball rolled down an embankment toward the lake guarding the 18th. At this point, Morgan must have been having visions of 1976 when an excursion into the water ruined his final round chances for a win. Morgan's third shot was long to the fringe of the green about 30 feet from the pin. Nelson, meanwhile, drove to the right of the fairway and sent an iron shot into the sand trap in front of the green. The Kennesaw, Ga., pro used a sand wedge to leave the ball five feet from the cup.

Judges snatch victory

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Hugo Corro was about to be proclaimed still the world middleweight champion, but Freddy Brown raised his voice in Vito Antuofermo's corner. A recount was demanded by the 72-year-old trainer — and it was granted. And when it was completed, Antuofermo, the Italian-born New Yorker was the new world champion Saturday with the narrowest of 15-round decisions over the former champ from Argentina. Judge Wally Thon of Britain favored Corro by a 146-144 count while judge

Roland Dakin of Britain gave Antuofermo victory 143-142 and referee Ernesto Magana of Mexico had it 146-145 for Antuofermo. The numbers were dead even — actually, the miscount gave Corro the victory — and the tie was broken by virtue of the two cards for Antuofermo to one for Corro. The next step for the new 27-year-old champ apparently is a bout against fellow American Marvin Hagler, who left no doubt in his scheduled 10-round preliminary bout. Hagler destroyed Norberto Cabrera of Argentina with a hurricane of 50 blows to the head in eight rounds, and Cabrera's corner threw in the towel.

ROW YOUR BOAT — Steering her way through the male strongholds at the Nottingham International Regatta this weekend is 23-year-old American girl Valerie McClain, who, due to a last minute reversal of the "men only" crewing rule, was allowed to compete as coxain with the men's eight from the University of California, Berkeley team.

Cards bankrupt N.M. Merchants

In a game called at the end of five innings by agreement, the Big Spring Cardinals routed the New Mexico Merchants, 20-0, here Sunday afternoon. The win was the 11th straight without a loss for the Red Birds, who go to San Angelo for a contest July 4 and will take part in a tournament at Van Horn Saturday and Sunday. Six teams are entered in the double-elimination meet at Van Horn. The Cardinals square off with the Van Horn All-Stars in their opening game at 11 a.m., Saturday.

In Sunday's contest, Big Spring struck for eight runs in the opening inning and added eight more in the second. Frankie Rubio and Luis Rodriguez combined to pitch a two-hitter for the Cards. Rubio received credit for the mound win. Arthur Olague banged out three doubles for the resident nine while Tony Rubio crossed the plate three times. An old-timers game preceded the contest between the Cardinals and the New Mexico club.

The winning number is 10

By The Associated Press Baltimore, Detroit and Milwaukee each scored 10 runs in a game, but California did it in one inning. The Angels reached double figures in the eighth inning Sunday en route to a 14-2 rout of the Kansas City Royals. Don Baylor hit a three-run homer, Dan Ford belted a two-run shot and Jim Anderson had a two-run double to highlight the 10-run inning. Meanwhile, Baltimore outscored Toronto 10-7, Detroit defeated Cleveland 10-2 and Milwaukee beat Seattle 10-3. California's Nolan Ryan, 10-5, stopped Kansas City on four hits and struck out 10 to raise his career total to 2,814 and move past Tom Seaver into seventh place on the all-time strikeout list. Ryan had a nohitter for 51-3 innings.

Orioles 10, Blue Jays 7

Rick Dempsey twice failed to bunt, then smacked a three-run homer to cap a four-run seventh inning that carried the Orioles to their 22nd victory in 25 starts. The victory lifted the Orioles 30 games over the .500 mark at 54-2 and put them 5 1/2 games ahead of second-place Boston in the American League East.

Giants 2-7, Reds 1-3

Top-notch relief pitching from Pedro Borbon and Gary Lavelle led San Francisco to its sweep. In the opener, after Willie McCovey's 13th homer and Darrell Evans' seventh gave the Giants a 2-1 lead, Borbon and Lavelle combined to hold off the Reds.

Jack Clark's 14th homer and Mike Sadek's hustling baserunning were keys to the second Giant victory. Sadek scored from third on a groundout to third baseman Rick Auerbach, taking off for home after Auerbach threw to first.

Lavelle, 7-4, hurled 31-3 innings of one-hit relief after Greg Minton pitched 32-3 innings of hitless relief.

Brewers 10, Mariners 3

Home runs by Robin Yount, Gorman Thomas and Paul Molitor powered the Brewers past Seattle. The Mariners' Dan Meyer was hitless in four times at bat, ending his hitting streak at 21 consecutive games — tying Johnny Grub of Texas for the longest streak in the major this year.

Yankees 6, Red Sox 5

Rookie Jerry Narron led off the seventh cning with his first major league home run, New York's fifth of the game off Boston's Dennis Eckersley, as the Yankees nipped the Red Sox. Willie Randolph, Jim Spencer, Roy White and Reggie Jackson also homered as the Yankees smashed five home runs in a game for the first time since Sept. 25, 1977.

Twins 2, White Sox 1

Glenn Adams singled home Roy Smalley from second base in the 10th inning, his eighth game-winning hit of the season. Paul Hartzell got the victory, scattering eight hits. Dave Edwards homered to Minnesota and Jorge Orta for Chicago.

Cubs 5-8, Mets 4-2

Dave Kingman hit his 28th homer of the season and singled in a run in Chicago's opening win. The decisive run was walked in by Mets reliever Wayne Twitchell when he issued a pass to Steve Dillard with the bases loaded in the ninth.

The Cubs vaulted into second place in the East, six games behind Montreal, with the nightcap victory. Bill Buckner and Barry Foote homered for the Cubs.

An Irate Reader High-Rates Abby

DEAR ABBY: In another advice column, I recently read, "I have written to Dear Abby a couple of times, but she never answers my letters."
I am a 30-year-old wife and mother who has read your column in the New York Post ever since I was a teenager. I've written to you nine times, and received a prompt, helpful reply every time. (I still have the letters.) Maybe people don't know that unless they enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope there is no way you can answer them.
Please print this, Abby. After all the help you have given me and many of my friends, it hurts me when people say you don't answer their letters. I want to add that I have written to several other advice columns, and the ONLY other advice columnist who answered my letters was Ann Landers. When I sent stamped, self-addressed envelopes to the others, I got a form letter saying, "Sorry, unless your letter is chosen for publication I can't help you."
B.B.K. in N.Y.

DEAR B.B.K.: Thanks, I needed that!

DEAR ABBY: My daughter-in-law smokes one cigarette after another. It's OK if she wants to ruin her own health, but she has children 9, 8 and 4 who are constantly exposed to her smoke. I know it's a hazard.
Last Easter they drove to see us (they live 90 miles away) and when I kissed the youngsters, they had a head and hair reeked of smoke. It made me sick! My son doesn't smoke. I don't know how he stands it.
Besides that, the children are always in need of haircuts, their clothes are soiled, and she never sees to it that they wash up before meals or going to bed.
In the last five years she has become a careless, lazy slob. When she married my son 11 years ago she was a neat person.
My son has an excellent job, and money is no problem.
How does a mother-in-law tactfully let it be known that her heart is broken when she sees her grandchildren raised this way?
NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Any suggestions you make to your son's wife will earn you a meddling mother-in-law medal.
If you're truly concerned over the apparent neglect of your grandchildren, talk to your son about it. The responsibility is half his.

DEAR ABBY: Is there any reason for an 80-year-old woman with a living husband to be constantly talking about sex? It is very embarrassing for her family.
She complains that her husband is "too old" for her, and she hopes he dies before she does so she can get herself a peppier husband.
Is it normal—or even possible—for a woman her age to want sex? We are shocked. She was always such a proper person.
No names or location, please. Our family would have to leave town if this got out.
ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANON: It is both normal and possible for a woman of 80 to want sex. However, if she has suddenly begun to talk about it constantly, it might indicate that some physiological changes may have occurred in her brain. Try a little tenderness.

DEAR ABBY: For years I've been telling my daughters (now 56, 59 and 61 years old), "Please, don't buy me any Mother's Day presents. I have everything I need!"
Well, they paid absolutely no attention to me, and every year I would get these expensive Mother's Day gifts over my protests.
This year I said, "All right girls, if you insist on buying me something, make sure you pick out something you like because it's going to be yours after I croak."

Home may reveal your life style

Your home may be telling people more about your life than you think.
A group of professors from Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind., says the appearance of a house, including everything from the color of the walls to the brightness of the lights, is a guide to the type of family that lives there.
The professors, from the building construction, psychological sciences, mechanical engineering and art departments, have designed a brief multiple-choice quiz on the signals that a house sends out. It is not fool-proof, but it can give you an idea of what to look for.
Here are some of the questions: (Answers follow.)
1. A messy house indicated the occupant is (a) depressed, (b) distracted, (c) creative or (d) all of the above.
2. A person who likes bright colors like red and orange for walls and carpets is (a) highly emotional, (b) very successful professionally or (c) not highly motivated toward achievement.
3. A brightly lit living room indicates that (a) company is expected, (b) family members are energetic and hard-working or (c) family members are formal with each other and outsiders.
4. A person who displays kitchen utensils, a stamp collection, wookworking tools or family snapshots on open shelves may be (a) a sloppy housekeeper, (b) following a current decorating trend, (c) a warm person who is easy to know or (d) two of the above.
5. Someone who likes antiques and keeps houseplants is apt to be (a) politically conservative, (b) not particularly fond of sports or (c) concerned with environmental issues.
Now for the answers:
1. The answer is (d). A cluttered house may well indicate preoccupation with other matters, but it also may be a sign that the person who lives there is depressed, particularly if it is dark as well as messy. Clutter and creativity also frequently go together.
2. The answer is (c). People who like bright colors often rate low in achievement motivation; subdued colors like blue are more popular with those who score high on motivation tests.
3. The answer is (b). Light levels are associated with work levels; Bright light means more work, while subdued lights suggest formality.
4. The answer is (d). Open storage is a new trend in decorating. Some psychologists also believe that people who prefer out-in-the-open storage are outgoing types who make friends easily.
5. The answer is (c). A Purdue study of environmental activists found that their characteristics include a liking for antiques and plants.

A JULY 4 STAY-AT-HOME INCENTIVE besides the gasoline shortage — Grilled turkey, a red, white and blue salad with corn-on-the-cob, green onions, radishes and olives.

Grilled turkey dinner is good idea for July 4

A turkey on the covered grill is a good idea for a stay-at-home 4th of July celebration. Turkeys are good buys now and cook to a beautiful brown with an appealing smoky flavor in the covered grill.
Prepare the turkey as you would for the oven. Thaw, untuck the legs, and remove the giblets. Rinse and retuck the legs of a Butterball turkey. For faster cooking, do not stuff the bird. Rather, cook the stuffing in a foil packet in the grill beside the turkey. Place the turkey on the grill over a drip pan flanked with coals burned down to a snowy white color.
Corn-on-the-cob; a platter of green onions, radishes, and olives; and a Red, White, and Blue Salad Mold will complete the 4th of July spread. The salad can double as the dessert, too.
This molded salad which can be made the day before, is in three layers. The red layer is strawberries in strawberry gelatin. The middle layer is the white one of cream cheese, sour cream, and salad dressing thickened with plain gelatin. The blue layer is of blueberries and blackberry gelatin. The colorful "Red, White and Blue Salad Mold is a grand finale for the 4th of July turkey feast.

RED, WHITE AND BLUE SALAD MOLD
Yield: 8 cup mold
4 cups boiling water
6 ounce package strawberry gelatin
10 ounce package frozen sliced strawberries, partially thawed
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
¾ cup cold water
9 ounce package frozen blueberries
2 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese, softened
1 cup dairy sour cream
¾ cup salad dressing
1 tablespoon lemon juice
6 ounce package blackberry gelatin
Step 1: Pour 2 cups boiling water onto strawberry gelatin. Stir until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in strawberries. Refrigerate. When mixture begins to thicken, stir to blend berries evenly. Oil mold lightly, but thoroughly. Spoon strawberry mixture into mold. Refrigerate.
Step 2: Sprinkle unflavored gelatin into ¼ cup cold water. Stir over hot water until gelatin is dissolved. Let stand in a small custard cup over water. In the small bowl of an electric mixer, beat together cream cheese, sour cream, salad dressing and lemon juice until they are smooth. Pour in unflavored gelatin and continue beating until mixture is thoroughly blended. Carefully spoon over strawberry gelatin in mold. Spread evenly to edge of mold. Refrigerate.

Step 3: Pour 2 cups boiling water over blackberry gelatin. Stir until thoroughly dissolved. Add ½ cup cold water and frozen blueberries. Stir to blend blueberries through gelatin. Refrigerate until it begins to thicken. Stir again to distribute blueberries. Spoon over cream cheese layer in mold and spread evenly to edge of mold. Refrigerate until firm, preferably overnight. Unmold and garnish with crisp lettuce.

TWEEN 12 and 20 — A vote of no-confidence for mopeds

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.
Dr. Wallace: I want to buy a moped with money that I've earned but my father refuses to allow me to buy one because "they are too dangerous."
I'm aware that they go faster than a bicycle but the practicality and fun they offer seem worth the risk.
I have a B average in school and have completed driver's education.
My father is unreasonable. When I press him for an answer, all he says is, "I'm your father and because of it, I don't have to give you a reason."
Do you think I should be able to buy a moped? — Kevin, Petaluma, Calif.
Kevin: I know I'll make enemies with moped fans but I would not want my son or daughter to ride on a moped on streets and roads.
Dr. Wallace: Do you feel that a girl should be able to be on a boy's athletic team if she is good enough? Please answer in the newspaper. — Dora, Athens, Tenn.
Dora: Boy! This is a loaded question and has many ramifications. The other side of this question is: Should boys be allowed to be on Girls' Athletic Association teams?
Usually, by their sheer strength and size, boys have an advantage over girls in athletics. If schools eliminated boys' and girls' athletic teams and then selected the best athletes to participate on various teams, I'm sure the teams would consist primarily of boys.
But back to the question — yes — if a girl is good enough to compete on an "all boy" athletic team, she should be allowed to, but because of the size and strength of boys, I do not feel boys should be allowed to participate on girls' teams.
Dr. Wallace: There is a girl in my class who really bothers me but is supposedly a friend.
She lies about everyone and everything and copies everything I do. You might think this is a compliment but I don't.
Now she cheats by copying my work at school.
I go to a small school so we don't have a nurse or counselor to give me help. I've told her straight to her face to quit bugging me but nothing helps. Any suggestions? — Millie, Frederick, New Brunswick, Canada.
Millie: It will take a little time but totally ignore her, and keep your school work covered up. Spend more time with other girlfriends, especially at lunch time and before and after school.

Texas 4-H youth plan for summer

Texas 4-H Summer Camp will host about 1,000 youth this July for five three-day sessions in which they will learn canoeing, archery and outdoor cookery among other activities.
Held at the Texas 4-H Center, overlooking Lake Brownwood in Central Texas, the summer camp will include sessions for three age groups and provide food and lodging. Age groups are senior youth, ages 15 and up, youth ages 10-11 and youth ages 12-14. Texas 4-H Center features 78 acres of wooded land for the outdoors activities which also will include campfire programs and nature trails. Other facilities are 10 housing units, a main service building, a swimming pool,

Highlights of writers' workshop are revealed

By MAURINE TERRELL — Houston, on juvenile and teen stories; Lynn Fitzgerald, Abilene — "How Book Publishers choose Manuscripts," Etta Lynch, Lubbock, on the short story.
Jack Murphy of Dallas was a well-received speaker. He began with the beautiful quote from Solomon — "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver."
Another quote that hit the mark was "The difference between the right word and the almost right word is the difference between lightning and the lightning bug," Mark Twain.
Murphy, an admirer of Robert Frost, believes strongly in the power of understatement. "Leave something to the imagination of the reader," he said.
"There are no laws in poetry," he said. "We're all just learning." Thank you for that, Mr. Murphy.
Niloh Rogers, of Littlefield, known to be a successful freelancer and contributor to the Reader's Digest and now with Guidepost. (I must not forget to leave something to your imagination like Murphy said.)
I was unable to stay and hear Manda Eraus, Lubbock on "Creating Your Own Success."
"Mary Jane," I said, "I'm both frozen and exhausted with so much knowledge. I have to go to the dorm and rest. Mary Jane, will you please listen closely to Evans so you can tell me how to be successful, too?"
But she lost her clutch purse. That is life.

Pat Boone must repay acne medicine buyers
 WASHINGTON (AP) — The consent agreement, Singer Pat Boone stands to have to pay up to $5,000 in restitution to consumers who used an acne preparation that he endorsed, the government says.
 Boone appeared in television commercials and print advertisements touting Acne-Statin. But the Federal Trade Commission said the advertising claims could not be substantiated.
 The case likely will have an impact on celebrity endorsement of products for high fees. The FTC says celebrities, like the companies that place the ads, must verify the advertising claims before they go on the air or into print.
 The consent agreement, announced Sunday, was negotiated between FTC attorneys and lawyers for the maker of Acne-Statin and its advertising agency. It still requires approval of the FTC commissioners before becoming final.
 In one advertisement, Boone said, "With four daughters, we've tried the leading acne medications at our house, and nothing ever seemed to work until our girls met a Beverly Hills doctor and got some real help through a product she developed called 'Acne-Statin.'"
 That doctor, Atida H. Karr of Beverly Hills, Calif., president of Karr Preventive Medical Products Inc., agreed to establish a $175,000 restitution fund for customers who paid about $10 per bottle. About 800,000 bottles have been sold. The advertising agency, National Media Group Inc., agreed to establish a fund of $60,000.
 While Boone did not sign either agreement, they would trigger his own financial responsibility. He agreed last year to reimburse consumers if the companies lost the case or a consent order became final.
 The agreements do not include an acknowledgment by either company or Boone that the advertising was false or that any law was broken.
 Neither Boone nor his lawyer, James J. Cook, could be reached for comment.
