Speech canceled

Strong action is promised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following President Carter's unexplained cancellation of a major energy policy speech, his chief spokesman today promised on Carter's behalf "strong measures" to curb oil imports.

The statement, issued in the name of White House press secretary Jody Powell, added a new element of mystery to Carter's abrupt decision Wednesday not to go on nationwide television tonight to discuss energy and the economy as he had planned.

The added mystery stemmed from the fact that Powell's statement said nothing the president has not said himself.

A White House official, who asked not to be named, said the statement obviously was released so there will be "no misunderstanding about the president's intentions in this matter."

Powell's statement said: "The president has authorized me to state that, pursuant to the agreements reached at the Tokyo summit, he intends to propose at an early date a series of strong measures to restrain United States demand for imported oil."

Deputy White House press secretary Rex Granum said Powell, who was not in his office at the time, instructed him to issue the statement "in exactly this format."

"There's just really nothing that I can add on this matter," Granum said.

Administration sources said earlier that Carter apparently decided to cancel the speech because "either he or it wasn't ready."

Publicly, the administration chose to keep the reasons for the cancellation a mystery. Powell, relaying Carter's decision to reporters Wednesday afternoon, refused to go beyond a two-sentence statement:

"The president has decided to cancel the speech for Thursday night. I have nothing to add to the announcement."

Less than three hours earlier, a proposed draft of the speech had been delivered to Carter at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., said a White House official with access to the draft.

The official said he believed the decision to scrub the speech followed discussions between Carter, Powell and top presidential aide Hamilton Jordan.

"My guess is that the speech went up to him and he read it and he decided he or it wasn't ready," said the aide, who requested anonymity.

The speech, for which all three major networks had cleared time, was viewed as one of the most important of the Carter administration. Powell would give no time for when it would be rescheduled.

Powell had said earlier that Carter would address the nation in general terms on the causes of the "energy crisis," its effect on the economy and the steps he feels are needed to deal with the problem.

The speech was not intended to include specific proposals. Those would be forthcoming, Powell said, in another 10 to 14 days.

Carter has been criticized for not consulting with key congressmen before unveiling past energy initiatives. The president vowed that this time he would work more closely with Capitol Hill to insure in advance that legislators would accept his proposals.

The president said he wanted a "bold and forceful program that, under the scrutiny of the Congress and the public, will be highly acceptable and that we can move without delay."

"STRIKE UP THE BAND" — Members of the Kazoo Band, made up of residents of the Highland South Addition, hit the right key and the right cadence in their annual parade down to FM 700 Wednesday morning. Among members of the musical group were Keat Wilkins, Kirstin Wilkins, Paul and

Basque separatists bomb resorts

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Basque separatists bombed coastal resorts and French firms in a dual offensive to cripple Spain's vital tourist industry and hit at the French government through French interests in Spain.

The terrorists also shot and wounded a leading member of Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez' political party. He was the only casualty in 36 hours of stepped-up political violence, but hotelkeepers on the coasts said their business was way off.

The ETA terrorists fighting for the independence of the Basque provinces in northwest Spain on Wednesday bombed two tourist hotels on the southern Costa del Sol, a golf course on the Costa Brava, in northeast Spain, and three French auto agencies in the Basque country.

Another bomb exploded shortly before 7 a.m. today in the Bank of Paris in downtown Madrid, causing several thousand dollars in damage, and police defused two other bombs there.

Also in Madrid, four ETA gunmen shot Gabriel Cisneros, the press spokesman for Premier Adolfo Suarez' Center Party, as he returned to his home late Tuesday night. The newspaper Diario 16 reported the gunmen were trying to kidnap him to exchange him for imprisoned ETA members.

Cisneros, who was reported out of danger today, is a member of the parliamentary commission negotiating a Basque autonomy plan, and the government ordered police protection for the other members.

ETA, the acronym for Euskadi Ta Askatasuna, or Basque land and Liberty, has been waging a campaign of assassination, bombing, kidnapping and robbery since 1968 in an attempt to win the independence of the four Basque provinces. It has killed 183 persons, most of them police.

In a new tactic to force the government to meet its demands, ETA announced last week that it would strike at the tourist industry, Spain's No. 1 revenue earner. It also said it would attack French firms in Spain in retaliation for a French government crackdown on exiled Basques in southwest France.

Last week there were six bombings on the Costa del Sol, one of which injured a Belgian couple. The government sent extra plainclothesmen to the Costa Brava and the Costa del Sol, but tourism, after increasing 14 percent in the first five months of the year, was immediately affected. Cancellations piled up at hotels, some beaches were deserted, and business in the shops, restaurants and entertainment spots was hit hard.

Three of Howard County's four banks record drop in deposits

Three of Howard County's four banks experienced a seasonal drop in deposits during the second quarter of the year but the total was up more than $5 million for the corresponding period in 1978.

The lone county banking facility showing a gain during the second quarter was Coahoma State, which had a record $7,793,387 on deposit as of June 30, compared to $7,500,155 for the period ending April 30 and $6,695,857 one year ago.

Total deposits in the four banks amounted to $134,858,347, compared to $139,326,686 for the quarter ending March 30 and $129,776,395 one year ago.

Loans, on the other hand, totaled $84,442,257, compared to $81,910,714 for the period ending March 30 and $82,886,216 a year ago.

Johnny Justiss, vice-president of the Coahoma State Bank, attributed some of the increase in deposits at his bank to the fact that the facility had moved into new and larger quarters earlier this year but added that business had also been good in the area.

First National Bank of Big Spring experienced a drop of about $1.5 million in deposits during the second quarter but remains far and away the largest bank in the community with deposits totaling $61,502,000.

Body of young girl found Wednesday near Mesquite

MESQUITE, Tex. (AP) — An informant's tip directed police to the decomposing body of a slain 6-year-old Mesquite girl, who had been missing since June 26, said Assistant Police Chief Travis Hass.

Officers found the body Wednesday of Tyra Christine Heath partially buried in a wooded area about three miles from her Mesquite apartment.

"There is no doubt in our mind that foul play is involved," said Hass. He said police questioned a "primary suspect" for several hours Wednesday night before releasing him.

"At this time we are not able to make an arrest," said Hass, who earlier in the evening predicted an arrest would be made within 48 hours.

"We're just going to have to fall back and regroup our forces, but we still are very strong in our belief that we are going in the right direction," said Hass. He said investigators would continue to check out the "primary suspect and if that leads us to others we will follow."

Dallas County medical examiners were to perform an autopsy this morning, and Hass said he hoped to have the results by noon.

The girl was last seen alive playing outside her apartment on the evening of June 26.

A search failed to find a trace of the girl near the apartment, leading police to believe the child had been abducted.

Rewards totaling $15,000 had been offered for information leading to the safe return of the girl.

"She has been dead for several days," said Hass. "Whether she was killed the same day or the next day I can't say."

An investigator for the medical examiner's office said the girl had been dead for four to seven days.

The "Skeleton-like" remains had been scattered, apparently by animals, the investigator said.

Q. In Big Spring, to whom would you report a case of child neglect?
A. Report cases of neglect or abuse to the Child Protective Services of the Department of Human Resources, 707 E. 3rd St., 263-7671. You may request that your identity not be revealed.

Calendar: Physical Fitness

TODAY
The YMCA will be showing the film, "Physical Fitness: It Can Save Your Life," at 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 7 p.m.

SATURDAY
A dance for junior high students will be held at the YMCA from 8 to 11 p.m. Participants must be going into junior high next year, in junior high school already or in their first year of high school. Admission is $2.

The Howard County Library will show three films from 2 p.m. until 3 p.m. They are: "Barnum & Ringling, Inc.," "Tutankhamun: The Immortal Pharaoh" and "The Seven Wishes of Joanna Peabody."

Tops on TV: Reds vs. Astros

The struggling Cincinnati Reds will face the booming Houston Astros at 7 o'clock tonight, and you can catch all the action on Channel 6. Pitching aficionados shouldn't miss the matchup between Tom Seaver for the Reds and J.R. Richard for the Astros. If you are staying up late, try to tune in on "Dead Of Night." It stars Michael Redgrave, and airs at 11 p.m. on PBS. This, by the way, is a better movie than "Magic" that deals with somewhat the same subject.

Storing nuclear wastes: Big headache for industry

Editor's Note: A major problem with nuclear power plants is what to do with spent radioactive fuel. Nobody wants it buried in his back yard. Private industry says the problem has been studied to death but the federal government is dragging its feet. Meanwhile, the stockpile of spent fuel keeps building up at the nuclear plants.

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
Ask anybody if they want the radioactive wastes from nuclear power plants stored anywhere near them. The answer is an obvious and resounding "no." And therein lies a big headache for the commercial nuclear power industry.

More than 70 commercial plants are generating electricity in the United States and another 96 — including the two in Texas — are under construction. But the federal government has yet to resolve the question of how and where the intensely radioactive spent fuel assemblies will be stored.

It's been studied and studied more than 20 times by numerous federal and private groups. Politicians have debated it for years and several state legislatures have already passed laws forbidding the federal government from using sites in their states. An attempt to pass similar laws failed in the recent session of the Texas Legislature.

Meanwhile, the plants that generated more than 12 percent of the nation's power supply last year are storing the spent fuel assemblies under deep water in concrete-and-steel storage spaces built into the plants.

Some of the older plants, said Texas Utilities Nuclear Information Coordinator Frank Shants, are running out of room. President Carter has halted a reprocessing method to salvage the usable fuel in the spent assemblies.

Texas utility officials, somewhat disgusted with the way waste disposal has become a political football, are not counting on any quick solution from the federal government.

Both the Comanche Peak plant under construction south of Fort Worth and the South Texas Nuclear Project being built south of Houston are designed to store up to 20 years worth of spent fuel assemblies.

"Some of the utilities are concerned they are going to run out of space to store the spent fuel assemblies. They might have to close their facilities," said Shants. "In some of the facilities built several years ago, it's not possible to go back and build in increased storage space."

Dr. Robert Cochran, head of Texas A&M's nuclear engineering department, said the technology has been known for several years.

"The whole thing should have been going on for several years. We've studied it to death," Cochran said. "It's typical that nobody in the federal bureaucracy will make a decision."

Jim Parsons, director of public affairs for Houston Lighting & Power Co., one of the managing partners in the South Texas project, noted that "Other countries are disposing of their wastes. It's a political problem, an emotional problem. The government won't make a decision."

But outspoken nuclear critic Dale Bridenbaugh, an engineer for 22 years in General Electric's nuclear program before resigning, said, "They can't argue if it's safe or not because it hasn't been proven."

"I think there are a lot of unknowns. Chances are it will be solved. We have to do something with the wastes because we've got them," he added.

Utility officials and nuclear experts say there are several methods that could be used. The method preferred is to liquify the waste and convert it into a ceramic material, seal it in massive, lead-lined stainless steel casks — which have escaped unscathed in test crashes, falls and fires — and bury the casks hundreds of feet underground in impervious salt domes or other stable geologic formations.

About 100 tons of small uranium dioxide pellets will be used in the fuel assemblies in each of the 2,300 megawatt Comanche Peak plant. About a third of that is exhausted and must be replaced each year, said Shants.

Radioactivity remains in the spent fuel assemblies for thousands of years, since the half-life of the plutonium produced as a fission by-product is 24,000 years. That material with high levels of radioactivity is what would be stored in salt.

Low-level wastes, such as contaminated liquids, gloves, booties and other equipment, are also produced, just as they are from radioactive materials used in medicine and industry.

Such waste remains radioactive for about 300 years and is solidified in concrete, put into 55-gallon drums and taken to one of six licensed commercial burial sites in the United States.

Shants, who once worked at a nuclear plant in New England and handled such wastes, said workers can handle the drums by hand and be exposed to radiation less than that from a single X-ray. It's by far the most bulky of that produced by nuclear plants.

By the year 2000, if the reprocessing of spent fuel is allowed, American nuclear power plants will have produced a total of 330,000 cubic feet of high-level waste — 33 times less than the 11 million cubic feet projected to be created by the American weapons program, industry officials say.

President Carter, however, has halted the reprocessing because it separates the plutonium from the unused uranium and waste products and he fears he might make it available for nuclear weapons proliferation.

"That means we're losing 30 percent of the total energy in that fuel," said Cochran. "That's a terrible thing. It's a crime to waste that fuel. That's valuable material. It should be reprocessed and put back through the reactor."

As for Carter's fear about the plutonium being used for bombs, Cochran said, "That's so ridiculous, it's a shame to have to defend it. The commercial reactor is probably the worst place to produce plutonium. It's marginal material for a bomb. There are several other ways to obtain weapons grade material that is better."

The industry says reprocessing would extend a limited supply of fuel. Uranium, you see, is limited — just like the oil and natural gas it will replace.

"There's enough

recoverable uranium in this country that we know about for all of the power plants that'll be built in the next five years to operate for their full 40-year lifespan," said Shants.

"That doesn't mean there won't be problems. It takes two years and several processes for the uranium to be enriched for the plant.

Five motorcycle gang members killed

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Police, fearful of escalating gang violence, kept a close watch today on the rival Hell's Angels and Outlaws motorcycle gangs following the execution-style slayings of five Outlaws.

Authorities said there were no suspects in the shootings, but they noted the two gangs "hated each other's guts" and have exchanged gunfire occasionally over the last few months.

Three men and a woman were shot dead in their sleep early Wednesday in the two-room frame house that is the Outlaws' headquarters and home to about 10 gang members, authorities said.

One man was found dead with a gun in his lap on a side porch, where he had apparently been posted as a guard, police said.

There were no signs of a struggle, leading to speculation he might have known his attacker.

Police said the victims were shot several times, in what one officer termed the "the July Fourth massacre." There was no sign of a struggle in the house, either.

Police were put on the alert to watch out for any groups of Outlaws or Hell's Angels. Mecklenburg County Police Capt. D.G. Lutrick and officers had orders to stop members of either gang "if we see anything of a suspicious nature. We can't just blanket stop people for no reason."

But he said: "It's generally the pattern when one of these things happens that a lot of them come in from all over the country to the city where it happened."

A funeral for a local Outlaws member shot to death in 1973 drew about 800 gang members and resulted in an estimated $200,000 damage to a motel where they stayed. A funeral in 1975 for another slain Outlaw drew about 100 gang members.

Before Wednesday's shooting, the two gangs had about a dozen members each in Charlotte. They are bitter enemies and tensions have been escalating in recent months, authorities said.

Police Officer Walter Hilderman, who keeps tabs on local motorcycle groups, called the deaths Wednesday "inevitable." He told the Charlotte Observer the Outlaws and Hell's Angels have been engaged in a fierce recruiting war for new members.

Hilderman said the rivalry led to the death of at least two Hell's Angels in Canada in recent months. But there was no further explanation of that claim.

Police identified two of the victims Wednesday as William Allen, 22, of Charlotte, and Bridgette Benfield, 17, of nearby Mount Holly. Authorities believed the other three victims may have been from outside the area. They were not identified.

The five bodies were discovered about 5:30 a.m. by the local Outlaws leader, who identified himself to reporters as Bill "Chains" Flamont.

Final arguments set today in Estes trial

DALLAS (AP) — Jurors may be asked to decide today if Billie Sol Estes is, as prosecutors say, a paroled swindler up to his old tricks or the desparately poor man defense attorneys claim has been hounded by over-zealous government agents.

Defense attorney G. Brockett Irwin rested his case Tuesday and U.S. District Judge Robert Hill, who recessed the fraud trial for the fourth of July, scheduled final arguments for today.

Estes and co-defendant Raymond K. Horton of Midland are accused of defrauding investors in oil field steam cleaning equipment the government contends never existed. The pair also is charged with trying to conceal Estes' assets from the Internal Revenue Service.

Estes was convicted in the 1960s of swindling investors in non-existent fertilizer tanks. Under the terms of his parole, he was prohibited from self-employment or promotional activities.

Wet spring stalls planting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The late, wet spring not only stalled farmers who couldn't plant corn in the muddy fields but also put a damper on fertilizer use until the weather cleared, according to government and industry reports.

In April, says the Agriculture Department, fertilizer use in the 18 major consuming states totaled about 2.7 million tons, down 17 percent from nearly 3.3 million tons in April of last year.

For the first 10 months of the fertilizer marketing year, which began last July 1, use was put at more than 4.5 million tons in the 18 states, up 10 percent from the same period a year earlier, however, the department said.

But farmers gradually made progress in planting spring crops in May and June, and fertilizer use figures are expected to rebound sharply, according to industry sources.

The Fertilizer Institute, which represents the industry, said its surveys of "domestic disappearance" of fertilizer in April showed sharp declines from year-earlier levels.

Industry figures are really comparable with USDA's, which are based on retail sales of fertilizer reported by state officials and are limited to the 18 major states, said Donald N. Collins, an institute spokesman.

The institute's tonnages are based on reports of shipments of manufacturers, reflecting how much fertilizer is moved into the marketing pipeline, he said. Also, the statistics cover all states, not just the big ones.

Eventually, Collins said, USDA and industry fertilizer use patterns work out fairly closely in showing how much was used in an entire year.

Meanwhile, the institute reported that in May — a month later than the USDA figures covered — fertilizer "disappearance" jumped

Fem not surprised when Ohio River swallowed her toilet

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP) — It's been known to gulp down a house trailer in a split second, not to mention such small snacks as automobiles and boat docks.

So Betty Garrison was not surprised when the Ohio River swallowed her toilet.

“You don't bring nothin' down here that you can't afford to lose,” she says, shaking her head at the swirling currents that double as her front yard.

“Sooner or later, the river takes it all away. It takes whatever it damn well pleases, whether it's nailed down or not.”

That doesn't seem to faze the hundreds of Indiana and Kentucky residents who spend their summer nights on the riverbank in a collection of brightly colored school buses and trailers that resemble abandoned circus wagons.

They tick off their annual losses as though they were reading a laundry list, and no matter how costly their personal food tolls, most can think of neighbors who have had it worse.

sharply to a record 10.1 million tons, up 10 percent from May of last year.

For the first 11 months of the marketing year, the institute said fertilizer movements were up 4 percent from a year earlier. Collins said the industry expects a 5 percent increase to be recorded for the entire year that ended June 30.

Edwin M. Wheeler, president of the institute, said in the monthly report that U.S. production of fertilizer through May was up only 1 percent from the same 11 months in 1977-78, indicating that inventories were drawn down sharply.

“Well, the water came up and our dock and toilet floated away with it,” Mrs. Garrison says. “But the Sternemans' trailer got flooded and they had to redo the whole inside.”

“That's true,” agrees Wanda Sterneman, a black-haired grandmother. “And my only set of car keys is probably sittin' on the bottom of that river right now.”

But just think of John Jones' car.

“I kept meaning to get it out of here before the high water came. I guess I waited too long,” Jones says.

He glances ruefully at the waterlogged Ford that is enjoying a second life as a boat anchor.

“Naw, it wasn't insured. There's actin' smart insurance, and there's actin' dumb insurance. And nobody seems to offer the second kind.”

Life on the river poses other hardships for the little community, part of which is raised on stilts to prolong the inevitable confrontation between water and wood.

Most residents haul their drinking water from nearby Evansville, Ind., and the walked to the closest telephone is “a good long piece,” Mrs. Sterneman says.

For the dozens who leave electricity behind for the summer, cooking is done on camp stoves, and a bath means a quick dip in the Ohio, out of the way of the coal barges that float by.

Growing old in America

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the United States, the number of people 100 years or older jumped 43 percent between 1974 and 1978, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

The council says this makes centenarians one of the fastest-growing segments of the population.

There were 8,317 centenarians in 1974, according to Social Security Administration statistics, but this group increased to 11,922 by 1978.

The council says 54 persons in every 10,000 will live to 100 while 279 in 10,000 will survive to age 96. Women, it adds, seem to have a better chance of living to 100, as 7 out of 10 centenarians today are women.

Super rock

MENTOR, Minn. (AP) — A man-made cavern here is one reason why homes in the Midwest can remain warm next winter.

By excavating 17,000 tons of zoisite, a non-porous rock that can hold gas so it can't escape, Solar Gas created an underground cavern with a 14-million gallon capacity for storing propane.

Every year since 1962, the company has filled the cavern with propane gas during the spring and summer when supplies are plentiful. By fall, a ready supply is on hand for when it is needed.

Jefferson's conception

WASHINGTON, D.C. — On July 2, 1776, the Continental Congress declared that America was separated from Great Britain. Two days later on July 4, the Congress endorsed an extraordinary document, a Declaration that stated the Colonies' numerous reasons for leaving the British Empire. On this week of the 203rd anniversary of this event, I feel it fitting to pay tribute to the author of the Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson.

This man proved himself to be a skillful legislator, inventor, scholar, diplomat, and an influential President. Jefferson began his career as a justice of the peace and then, in 1769, he took his seat in the House of Burgesses, the lower house of the colonial legislature. He served in this, and in the later revolutionary conventions, until 1775, when he was sent as one of the Virginia delegates to the

Congressman

Charles W. Stenholm

Congressional Comment

Continental Congress in Philadelphia. Then in June, 1776, Jefferson was appointed to the committee assigned to prepare the formal statement on the reasons for separation from England. He later served as governor of Virginia, Minister to France, Secretary of State, and President of the United States.

Jefferson's contribution to world events can not only be measured by his political career as a legislator and President, but also by his political philosophy which has helped shape American institutions for over 200 years. He was a firm believer in the ability of mankind to govern himself. The effort to establish republican government over a large area and a heterogeneous people was a novel idea, but in the end it turned out to be the most successful experiment in human history.

Thomas Jefferson's conception of government institutions was derived from the doctrines of natural laws and natural rights. He wrote in the Declaration of Independence that men were endowed with the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. He was of the conviction that the ability to own property was a natural right.

Also he was a chief advocate of the principle of separation of powers as a necessary safeguard against abuses of authority. During the process of forming our government, Jefferson adhered to a policy of strict or narrow interpretation of the Constitution which he thought essential to the preservation of the citizen's liberties. In the early years of the Republic there was a continual battle over the scope of authority of the Federal Government.

Jefferson founded a party that was opposed to a strong centralized government and he advocated the belief that a large sphere of the interests of the citizens could best be served either by state or local governments or by no governmental action at all. One of the phrases most associated with his philosophy is “the government that governs least governs best.” In this 203rd year of our existence as a Nation, America would be well served by a reaffirmation of this basic political tradition.

Remember America and First Federal

Yes, It's Time To Remember America

That is the name of the free enterprise radio series First Federal Savings is sponsoring every weekday morning in:

Big Spring (on KBYG at 7:30 a.m.)
Odessa (on KOZA at 7:45 a.m.)
Snyder (on KSNY at 8:03 a.m.)

These messages about America spotlight some of the problems that face us in this great country, as well as what we, as citizens, can do to make things better.

Free enterprise is the magnificent foundation for the good life we enjoy today, and the hope that we all share for an even better tomorrow.

Remember also that First Federal Savings pays you the highest interest rates allowed by law. America has prospered and moved forward because the majority of Americans set aside some of their money in savings to take advantage of future opportunities. IT STILL WORKS!

Weather

Forecasts calling for thunderstorms

Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast for most of Texas today.

Forecasts called for partly cloudy skies, scattered showers and thunderstorms with highs mostly in the 90s. Extremes were expected to range from the 80s in the mountains of Southwest Texas to near 102 in North Central Texas.

Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms produced only light amounts of rainfall. WEST TEXAS — Chance of afternoon and evening thunderstorms mainly north and southwest over the weekend. Otherwise clear to partly cloudy with no important temperature changes through Monday. Highs in the 90s except near 103 Big Bend lowlands. Lows in the 60s and low 70s.

WEATHER FORECAST — A band of showers and rain is expected in the forecast period, today until Friday morning, from the Dakotas to the Gulf coast and Mexico. Cool weather is forecast for New England and the northern Rockies but most areas will be mild.

Discovery of west enhances pro sports

Time was in sports when nothing was considered "big league" unless the franchise was located east of or at least on the Mississippi River.

The St. Louis Cardinals of the National Baseball League were looked upon as upstarts, something out of Ring Lardner, because they dared to challenge the monopoly established by such proud organizations as the New York Giants, the Boston Braves and the Chicago Cubs.

NEW YORK. FOR instance, had three teams in the major leagues at one time, including the Brooklyn Dodgers, and people who lived in one of New York's boroughs tended to write off the World Series if at least one of their teams didn't make it to the October championships.

Back in those days, the membership in both the American and National baseball leagues was limited to 16 teams and it was unthinkable to stomp for expansion.

Happily, those times are no more. Both the Dodgers and the NY Giants conceded patronage in New York to the Yankees and discovered California. California had always been regarded as a great minor league country but it proved to be even better suited for the bigs.

The lords of baseball were so taken with the way their game had been accepted out west, they, in time, embraced Texas, the Deep South and eventually went international.

Now, big league baseball has grown to the extent that it takes in 26 teams and the next move could be overseas — to places like Tokyo and Mexico City.

Professional football franchises have mushroomed with equal intensity and perhaps even more success.

A few years ago, Bobby Layne, then quarterback of the Detroit Lions, wondered aloud if the saturation point hadn't been passed when a team like Denver might be matched against a club from Boston but the Broncos of the Mile High City and the Patriots, who represent Boston and the whole of New England, do meet occasionally — and invariably before capacity houses.

and the Seattle, are making both sports truly national.

The professional basketball and hockey leagues, too, took the cue and established their franchises on both coasts, and in many places in between.

Franchise hopping is scorned by the sports purists but it happens when fan interest dwindles from time to time, which brings to mind the recent National Basketball Association transfer of the Jazz from New Orleans (which built its magnificent Superdome for just such spectacles) to Utah.

That brought on a name crisis. It's easy to understand why a team based in New Orleans would adopt a team name like the Jazz but the Utah Jazz? Sooner or later, the name will have to go. It just doesn't fit the popular image of the typical Utahn.

IN BOTH professional baseball and football, the teams west of the Mississippi — like the Houston Astros, the Texas Rangers, the Oakland A's (of Catfish Hunter's era), the Los Angeles Dodgers and the San Francisco Giants as well as the Dallas Cowboys, the Denver, the Oakland,

Raise draft age

Around the rim

Eileen McGuire

Illinois is now joining Michigan in reneging on legislation that now appears to have been passed only to temporarily calm youth.

In the early 70's, when youth began complaining that if they were old enough to kill and be killed fighting an adult war, they were also old enough to drink, both states and others passed legislation making it legal for draft-age citizens to drink.

In Michigan, my home state, the drinking age was lowered to 18. In Illinois, it was lowered to 19. Michigan raised the drinking age back up to 21 around the first of the year. Illinois will follow suit if the governor sees fit to sign the bill.

I WAS ALREADY close to 21 when the Michigan law was lowered, so the change did not particularly concern me. I did, however, agree that a person who was old enough to marry without consent, be tried in court as an adult, and be ordered to Vietnam, was certainly old enough to spend part of his taxable income in a bar if he chose to do so.

I will not even touch the subject as to which age a person magically becomes old enough to handle alcohol with good sense. But, if a person becomes subject to all of the responsibilities of adulthood upon reaching his 18th birthday, then shouldn't that person also be entitled to the privileges of adulthood?

With all judgment aside as to whether a 21-year-old can handle liquor any better than an 18 or 19-year-old, I am curious as to how 19-year-olds who are now welcomed in Illinois bars will react when the governor's signature suddenly makes their now legal Friday and Saturday night rituals a crime.

I am also curious as to whether laws regarding drinking age are destined to become "yo yo" laws — 21 during times of peace, 18 and 19 during times of "conflict."

Somehow, I cannot picture my 20-year-old brother-in-law coming home to his wife and daughter after a day of hard work and adult stress to drown his sorrows in a refreshing glass of Kool-Aid.

NOR CAN I picture my 19-year-old sister getting too excited about a night out on the town that will consist of a filet mignon and a milkshake.

For their anniversary, they can go Dairy Queen hopping.

On the other hand, perhaps the states should raise the drinking age in order to preserve these semi-adults' youth, health and innocence.

In the event of another "conflict", perhaps it would also be healthier if the draft age were raised, rather than the drinking age lowered.

WASHINGTON — As part of our continuing endeavor to help Jimmy Carter keep his campaign promise of an "open presidency," we have been printing excerpts from secret minutes of his Cabinet meeting.

Why Cabinet minutes were ever classified "eyes only" remains something of a mystery. They contain little if any insight into the thinking of President Carter and "the best and the brightest" of his administration.

It seems likely that Carter's insistence on keeping the Cabinet minutes confidential is based on a reluctance to let the American public know just how unremarkable he and his advisers are in their approach to the "complex" problems facing the country. If this is indeed the case, it seems a shame.

CARTER PROBABLY owes his election to the fact that the voters perceived him as an ordinary man who would arrive at the same common-sense conclusions they would in a given situation. The further he strays from his plain-folks image, the more he becomes the sophisticated Washington "insider" the electorate instinctively distrusts.

The Cabinet meeting of last April 23 was a typical session. Carter opened the meeting by asking Vice President Mondale to report on his recent trip to Scandinavia and the Netherlands.

Mondale said the leaders he had met strongly supported the Carter-engineered Middle East settlement between Israel and Egypt, but expressed "concern about how the peace process will work out in the long term."

The vice president also noted that "at each stop of his 12-day trip there were questions about the nuclear accident at the Three Mile Island plant in Pennsylvania."

Carter turned next to Robert Strauss, his utility infliender and recently appointed ambassador for Middle East peace negotiations. Strauss reported on the complex economic problems facing Egypt, and told the president that "American involvement in the economic support of Egypt would be critical to its long-term future."

He added that Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin was "very positive in his attitudes...and had spent considerable time in his remarks to the American delegation emphasizing the need for American investment in Egypt to solidify the peace treaty."

SECRETARY OF STATE Cyrus Vance then noted that "the legislation implementing the Panama Canal treaties emerging from Congress was unsatisfactory."

This warning evidently bore fruit. Carter lobbied hard for the administration's proposed legislation, inviting more than 100 members of Congress to the White House for briefing and persuasion. On June 21, by a narrow margin, Congress okayed legislation acceptable to the president.

Turning to the economy, Carter asked Charles Schultze, his top economic adviser, for an appraisal of economic indicators. Schultze reported that "there was a substantial reduction in the rate of growth of the GNP (gross national product) at the end of the first quarter of 1979." But Schultze told the Cabinet that "the slower rate of growth of the GNP, by itself, was not evidence that the economy was entering a recession."

(This assessment has since been questioned by economists generally, and even the White House has conceded that we're apparently headed for a recession.)

Inflation fighter Alfred Kahn next reported that despite some deviations, the administration's voluntary wage and price guidelines had been at least partially successful. This moved the president to note somewhat plaintively that "contrary to some widespread opinion," he has "no authority to impose mandatory wage and price controls," and that even if he had such authority he "would not exercise it." He added, somewhat contradictorily, that there was "misunderstanding around the country" that he has such authority and that he is simply refusing to use it.

CARTER THEN heard from Energy Secretary James Schlesinger — whose predictions on the fuel shortage we have already reported — and the rest of the Cabinet on less pressing matters and the one-hour, 40-minute session was over.

In short, his typical Cabinet meeting was a businesslike, if pedestrian, discussion of a president's everyday problems. Nothing earth-shaking, nothing embarrassing — certainly nothing to be kept from the American people.

CONFUSED CONGRESSMAN: The letter from the 17-year-old sailor to Rep. Harold "Bizz" Johnson, D-Calif., a 20-year veteran of Capitol Hill, posed a succinct question: "How good is the new Russian T-72?"

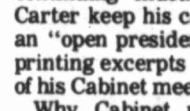

Johnson's reply was equally to the point:

"It (the T-72) is obviously their (the Russians') most improved plane and it certainly has a great deal of capability. As you know, weapons systems continue to evolve and as we prepare an airplane which is better than the T-72, the Russians will further improve their planes to overtake us."

"I guess what I am saying is that it is definitely a good plane, one that we are very much aware of and are working to learn more about."

There was only one problem with the congressman's response: The T-72 is a Soviet tank, not a plane.

A spokesman for Johnson claimed the incorrect answer was drafted by a former staffer who was obviously unfamiliar with the Soviets' arsenal.

Kremlin's big mouth

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — So alarmed are President Carter's SALT-sellers about the impact of Soviet blustering on ratification of the arms control treaty that the Kremlin has been sent a private plea, whose diplomatic language boils down to this advice: please shut up!

It was one thing when President Carter warned the Senate against amending the treaty; it was quite another when Soviet leaders, President Leonid Brezhnev and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, took up the cry with scowling threats of worldwide trouble if the Senate exercises its constitutional prerogative. Unwittingly, the Kremlin's masters have all but insured at least one major amendment.

Why did Brezhnev and Gromyko butt in, without asking advice from Carter? "I think it's just the Russians acting with their usual finesse," one high-ranking administration SALT-seller told us. "They have no understanding of American politics and less interest in learning."

BAKER'S BLOOPER

While Sen. Howard Baker improved his stock on the Republican right by declaring opposition to SALT II, he is bucking the party current by supporting President Carter's nomination of a liberal Republican to the Federal Election Commission (FEC).

SIXTEEN REPUBLICAN senators — including Baker's own presidential campaign chairman — have been letters requesting a "hold" on Senate confirmation of Frank P. Reiche to the FEC. Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, national chairman of the Baker-for-president committee, told us Republicans need an unwashed partisan to represent them in the commission's rough-and-tumble, while Reiche "is a philosopher king."

Reiche, currently chairman of the New Jersey Election Law Enforcement Commission, has expressed willingness to go along with the Democratic campaign for public financing of congressional elections. Consequently, many Republican senators wonder why Baker, as Senate minority leader, included him among approved nominees for an FEC Republican seat. They wonder even more why Baker still supports the appointment in the face of party opposition.

Many Republican senators wish Baker would withdraw his support for Reiche, and at least one put it in writing. But Baker has no intention of switching. Lugar told us he has not tried to change Baker's mind, but added, "This situation is one of the misfortunes of being minority leader."

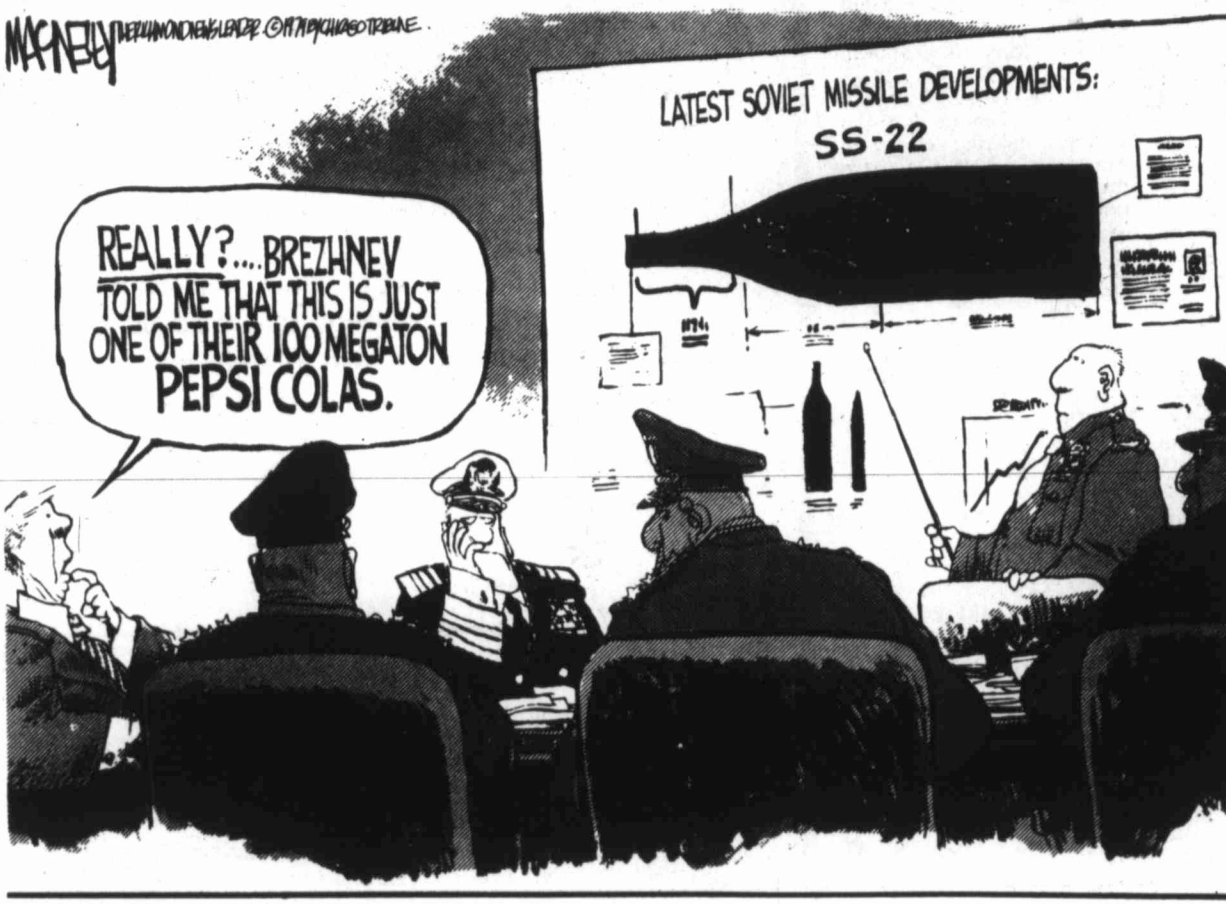

CONNALLY IN CALIFORNIA

Operatives supporting John B. Connally's presidential campaign are up to their eyebrows in a surprisingly successful campaign to harass front-runner Ronald Reagan in his home state by changing California's winner-take-all primary to proportional representation.

A bill requiring over 50 percent of the vote to get 100 percent of the state's 168 Republican delegates won surprising endorsement (0-to-5) from the Senate Republican Caucus. Even more unexpectedly, it captured 47 percent support in an informal, non-secret ballot of Republican State Central Committee members.

All this is unlikely to actually pass the bill, but it is causing the Reagan campaign aggravation on its home ground that was not expected.

National campaign managers for Howard Baker and George Bush timidly kept hands off the California primary.

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am 24 years old and have what my doctor diagnosed as "left-sided appendicitis." Is he pulling my leg? Is there such a thing? — J.M.G.

The only way one has "left-sided appendicitis" is if the appendix is located on the left side — which is not out of the question. The appendix is, as you know, a tiny "dead-end" pocket of the lower intestine. Everybody (or just about everybody) has one. It is almost always located in the lower right part of the abdomen. The first pain of appendicitis, though, is sensed in the upper part of the abdomen — the "pit of the stomach" in layman's terms. After vomiting, which usually occurs, the pain becomes localized where it should be, precisely over the appendix.

The appendix can be found at various other points in the abdomen, even on the left lower side. These are quirks in development of the bowel. Diverticulitis, a problem that also can cause abdominal pain, may occur in the left portion of the bowel. Various "misplaced" pains are discussed in the booklet, "Stomach and Other Abdominal Pains: A Checklist." For a copy of it send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald. If you had a real appendicitis you would have been hospitalized to have the structure removed.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I understand that a doctor can tell by looking at certain fingernails if you have a problem in a certain part of your body. True? — Mrs. N.S.

That's a strange notion. It's untrue, of course. Nails can be an indicator of several general conditions. Clubbing can be a sign of lung or heart disorders. Certain drugs may cause ridges (crosswise). Brittle nails may indicate general nutritional deficiencies. Usually all the nails are involved, though not necessarily. The booklet, "Solving Your Nail Problems," answers the questions most often asked on this subject. For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald.

DEAR DR. RUBLE: I like yeast. How many calories in one cake of it, and what are the benefits? — M.F.

Yeast contains about equal amounts of protein and carbohydrate. An ounce of compressed yeast, the kind you are probably getting, has about 25 calories. There are about 90 calories per ounce in the dried form, or brewer's yeast. Yeast is rich in potassium and some of the B vitamins, which makes it a handy, inexpensive supplement for treatment of pellagra (vitamin deficiency) and anemia caused by poor nutrition.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Can you tell me about the beam of light the doctor projects into your eye during an examination? Is it a laser? Could it be harmful? — S.N.

Heavens, no! It's a tiny flashlight that allows him to look at the retinal surface and its blood vessels.

Dear Dr. Ruble: How soon after a couple is married should the question of sterility be raised if they have not been able to conceive? — J.F.A.

For the normally healthy young couple, about a year. That's assuming that the frequency of intercourse has been average.

Do you often have a "stomach ache?" If so, your stomach may not be the real trouble spot. The booklet, "Stomach and Other Abdominal Pains: A Checklist," tells you why. For a copy, write to Dr. Ruble in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

So what else is new, Mr. Kahn?

Alfred E. Kahn, the administration's field marshal in his war on inflation, has come up with the definitive word to Americans on how the so-far losing battle is affecting them.

"Your standard of living is going down." We needed to be told?

My answer

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: There seem to be so many problems in the world, especially for a young person like myself. What do you think the future has in store for young people? — J.V.K.

Dear J.V.K.: It is easy to get discouraged as we read the headlines every day. There are many frightening things in this generation. Many of them did not exist 30 or 40 years ago. Jesus spoke of days in which "Men will faint from terror, apprehensive of what is coming on the world" (Luke 21:26, New International Version), and you cannot help but wonder if we are rapidly approaching those days.

But there is another side to this. The Christian knows that God is ultimately in control of the universe and some day all the forces of evil which are in rebellion against Him will be judged and cast away. If you know Jesus Christ as your Lord and Savior, you know that your future is in God's hands. All you have to do is trust Him and follow Him. That does not mean we will avoid suffering or problems which may come in our world. But Jesus said, "In this world you will have trouble. But take heart! I have overcome the world" (John 16:33, NIV). "Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer: behold, the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried; and ye shall have tribulation ten days: be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life" (Revelation 2:10).

Let me remind you, too, that some of God's greatest servants have been young people. Think of Gideon, for example. (You can read of him in the book of Judges, beginning in chapter 6.) He was young when God called him to lead the people of God against a vast enemy. But Gideon trusted God and the enemy was defeated. He had an impact on his own time. God wants to use you as well as to make an impact for Christ on this generation.

Commit your future to Christ. Let Him guide you. And then seek to be faithful each day right where you are. God does not usually show us too much of the future. He asks us to be faithful now, so that when the future comes we will be ready for it since we have already learned to serve Christ.

Tragedy accompanies joy

Holiday celebrations varied

By The Associated Press

The nation starts its 204th year of democracy today after a close-to-home Fourth of July that saw citizens skipping rocks on a Michigan lake, smoking marijuana near the White House and marching against nuclear power in Maine.

People were also scrambling for gasoline and sunlight on Wednesday, a day that will be remembered in some areas for its lack of fuel and abundance of rain.

The day had its tragedies, too: More than 115 persons died on the nation's highways between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 12:01 a.m. local times today, the National Safety Council reported.

A Maryland man was killed when he fell off a float that was heading home from a rain-soaked parade.

Four persons in Illinois were injured when a test rocket at a jaycees fireworks display landed in the fireworks stash.

A third person died from injuries resulting from an explosion in a Philadelphia house where police say illegal fireworks were being made.

And in Boston, ailing 83-year-old maestro Arthur Fiedler had to sit out the Independence Day concert on the banks of the Charles River — an event he originated in 1923.

Speeches on the state of the union came from the Rev. Billy Graham, who deplored the nation's energy crisis from the Capitol steps in Washington, D.C., and from recently-retired NATO commander Gen. Alexander Haig, who told Philadelphians the U.S. is in "the most challenging period in the history of our great nation."

In a lighter vein, T. Willard Hunter of Claremont, Calif., claimed to have set a record for the longest speech ever given on the American Revolution. He spoke three hours to amused passers-by.

The fourth was observed as far away as China, where touring comedian Bob Hope led a celebration at the U.S. Embassy in Peking. It was the first Fourth commemorated here since relations between the U.S. and China were normalized.

In Tehran, Iran, the U.S. Embassy grounds served as a private picnic site for Americans, while a park in Aalborg, Denmark, filled with an estimated 15,000 Danes and Americans for the annual celebration.

President Carter and his family spent the day in seclusion at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md.

Seclusion was not always possible on sunny beaches along the Gulf of Mexico and West Coast, but officials reported few problems with the crowds that poured to the shorelines.

Easterners weren't so lucky. It rained, resulting in cancelled events and disgruntled resort operators with empty rooms.

But rain didn't prevent an estimated 5,000 marijuana advocates from lighting up in Washington's Lafayette Park, near the executive mansion.

A similar demonstration was staged at the Oregon state capitol in Salem. State police gave citations to 50 puffery who got stoned to live music and urged legalization of their favorite weed. Inside the capitol, legislators labored to wrap up their 1979 session.

About 200 nuclear power foes marched 30 miles from the Maine Yankee reactor site to the statehouse in Augusta.

Truckers' protest ending

By The Associated Press

An Idaho truck driver was hit by gunfire as he drove his semi-trailer rig along an interstate. Elsewhere on the nation's highways, independent truckers wound down their protest over rising fuel prices and government regulations.

Larry A. Thomas, 35, of Nampa, Idaho, was wounded Wednesday by one of four .45-caliber bullets fired at his rig when a pickup truck overtook him on Interstate 80 in Boise.

"I thought he was a cop car," Thomas said. "But when he pulled up along side of me, I saw it wasn't a cop. The fireworks started."

Police said it was not known if the shooting was related to the 3-week-old strike by independent owner-operators. There had been no arrests.

Thomas, a member of the Amalgamated Meatcutters' Union, was driving for Idaho Meatpackers Inc. of Caldwell. He said he sympathizes with striking independents 100 percent, but not if they shoot at me.

Thomas was wounded in the right leg, treated at a Boise hospital and released, police said.

The latest highway violence came as Terry Russell, spokesman for Nebraska truckers, said drivers in that state were joining operators elsewhere in going back to work.

Russell said the strike had been frustrated by "the finance company knocking on one door and the customers knocking on another."

Meanwhile, perishables including cherries from Washington and watermelons from Florida were moved without problems to markets before the July Fourth holiday.

But there were strike holdouts. Bill Campbell, vice president of the Maryland Independent Truckers and Drivers Association, said members will wait for Gov. Harry Hughes to relax the state's truck load-weight restrictions before returning to the road.

And Bill Hill of Pittsburgh, spokesman for the Independent Truckers Unity Coalition, announced plans for a drivers meeting in St. Louis on Saturday.

Hill said truckers have made some gains since their protests began, but urged owner-operators to continue the strike.

Brown bagger bequeaths bundle

CLEVELAND (AP) — Most of his life John McCalla Harris was the picture of thrift. Friends say he never owned a car, walked daily the 10 miles between his home and office and carried his lunch in a brown paper bag. But in his will, the lawyer, who died Jan. 25, at 93, left $7 million to Case Western Reserve University.

Nathaniel R. Howard, a close friend of Harris, said the lawyer toiled his lunch not to save money, but because the City Club where he ate each day, didn't serve his favorites — watercress sandwiches and hard-boiled eggs. School president Louis Toepfer said Harris asked that the gift be used to support the humanities.

From the... Cow Belle Kitchen

By BOBBIE NIX
Handy ground beef flexible resource for flavorful entrees.

Ground beef makes more than beefburgers! Meat loaf, spaghetti sauce and chili are but a few examples of its flexibility. For additional ground beef variety, look to other foreign cuisines for inspiration.

Reba Staggs, home economist of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, suggests Jiffy Chow Mein. Quick to prepare, it provides a change of flavor.

In only 20 minutes browned ground beef, simmered with onions and celery, soy sauce and bean sprouts, is table-ready and tasty. It's served on Chinese noodles for a complimentary contrast in both taste and texture.

JIFFY CHOW MEIN
1 1/2 pounds ground beef
1 medium-sized onion, sliced

1 1/2 cups chopped celery
1 cup water
1 can (16 oz.) bean sprouts
1/4 cup soy sauce
1/2 teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Chinese noodles

pour off drippings. Add onion, celery and 1 cup water. Cover tightly and cook over low heat 15 minutes. Add bean sprouts. Combine soy sauce, sugar, 2 tablespoons water and cornstarch. Add to meat mixture and continue cooking for 5 minutes or until sauce is slightly thickened. Serve with Chinese noodles, if desired. 6 servings.

Summer will be singing in the air soon, so serve beef sirloin steaks from the outdoor grill. For a new flavor twist, add a flaming fruit sauce. Two sirloin steaks, inch-thick or thicker, are a great choice for a group of 5 or 6, be it family or friends. When broiling steaks on the grill, be sure the heat is low to moderate for best results, advises Reba Staggs, home economist of the National Livestock and Meat Board.

BROILED SIRLOIN STEAKS
Allow charcoal to burn until covered with gray ash before putting steaks on grill. Steaks cut 1 inch thick should be placed 2 to 3 inches from heat; steaks cut 2 inches thick, 3 to 5 inches from heat. When one side is browned, turn, season cook side, finish broiling on second side and season. Steaks cut 1 inch thick require approximately 15 to 20 minutes for rare, 20 to 25 minutes for medium. Steaks cut 2 inches thick require approximately 35 to 40 minutes for rare, 40 to 45 minutes for medium.

Have you been elected club reporter?

If so, here are several guidelines the Family News Section of the Herald requests you follow:

1. Club reports should be type-written and double-spaced.
2. They should be no more than one full page (8 1/2" X 11") in length.
3. Proofread reports to insure proper spelling, dates, etc.
4. Always include phone number where correspondent can be reached if further information or clarification is needed.

Your cooperation will help us serve you faster and more efficiently.

Tween 12 and 20 — Guest writers advise shoplifters

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

C.C., 15 who lives in McAllen, Texas, has a serious problem and is asking for suggestions from me and the guest teen writers.

Greg Shields, 17, from Pittstown Pa., and Rose Palmer, 17, who comes from San Rafael, Calif., will offer the teen views. Welcome to all three.

Dr. Wallace: I thought a long time before I decided to write to you. If you would please give me your thoughts and those of your two teen guest writers, I would be grateful.

I am a habitual shoplifter and have been since I was 12, I'm now 16. I often take things I don't need and could pay for. It's just so easy to shoplift that I cannot resist the temptation. I've never been caught, and I don't want a police record. Any suggestions will be deeply appreciated. — C.C.

C.C.: To stop you must first really want to stop. Don't shop alone. Always shop with a friend or a family member. Don't carry a purse with you when you shop; carry only a wallet.

If tempted to take something, think of the embarrassment to you and your family if you are caught. — Dr. Wallace

Hi C.C.: Maybe you can say I was lucky that I got caught. It sure made me stop. When I was 14, a girlfriend and I were caught swiping perfume by hiding it in our bras. It was our first time and my last.

I would seek help from a trusted friend, teacher or church leader. It would be much easier to stop if you knew someone else carried — sort of like Alcoholics Anonymous. — Good Luck, Rose.

Hello C.C.: I think it's super that you are going to do something about your problem. The first step in solving the problem is to admit that you have a problem.

If I were you, I'd return everything in your possession that was stolen to the store you stole it from. It will take guts but ask to see the manager and tell him you are returning something that you stole.

Tell him your conscience bothered you and that you wanted a clean slate and a clear conscience. What you can't return, pay for. What you can't pay for, promise to pay for. — Greg

China hot tourist spot Oriental decor back

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures
Like short skirts, small cars and the seven-year itch, Oriental-style decor tends to come back into fashion at regular intervals.

It's not surprising that with China the hot tourist spot and Oriental cooking at the top of public interest, that Oriental decor should once again be in demand.

At present, there are numerous examples of Oriental design to be seen in the marketplace. Oriental merchandise is available in most categories of home furnishings products, including upholstery fabrics, furniture, lamps, dinnerware, wallpaper, sheets and floor coverings to name several.

"Americans are responding to the serenity and peacefulness that have always characterized Oriental homes," according to Margaret Clayton, a designer for Drexel Heritage Furnishings, Inc.

"In Oriental cultures, there is a rule governing almost everything from the structure of the family to the way tea is poured. And the two primary rules in home decorating are simplicity and balance."

The new Oriental furniture uses many design motifs that have been classic for centuries, according to Ms. Clayton. These include, for example, carved details derived from nature, bamboo-like turnings on tables and chairs, and lacquered, pictorial decorations on furniture, known as chinoiserie.

To decorate a room in the Oriental manner, everything does not have to be from the East. Instead, using a few or even one piece of furniture plus appropriate accessories such as porcelain vases or Oriental wall coverings, upholstery fabric or drapery, one can convey a sense of the period.

Another method is to employ the Eastern principle of balance and symmetry in the arrangement of furniture.

Techniques for doing this include pairing objects in a formal, balanced fashion which is the traditional Oriental manner.

"Open shelf units can stand side by side or they can flank another piece of furniture or a doorway. An occasional table with a lamp and floral arrangement can be matched by another piece of furniture can be placed at right angles to one another, parallel to the walls," she said.

In traditional Chinese homes in the past, a very formal and vastly different set of rules was used to govern furniture arrangement, according to Margaret Medley, an English authority.

"On formal occasions, the place of honor in any room was the one furthest from the door and to the left of the host," she explains in an article on the subject in the book, "World Furniture."

Furniture was set against the walls or at strict right angles to the walls. It was never slanted out or carelessly grouped in the center of the room.

The Chinese home had no formal dining room. Instead, at mealtimes, a round or square table seating no more than eight or 10 was brought into whatever room it was decided to eat in.

The traditional ways of the Orient are not always practical in an American home of the 20th century.

Murphy's Law is a ritual

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Pack an umbrella to guarantee sunny weather on a vacation because the opposite of what you expect to happen will happen.

What sounds like a lesson in Murphy's Law is actually a ritual some of our ancestors took part in before setting off on a long journey, says the June issue of Seventeen Magazine. Below are some other ancient beliefs to follow if you want success to follow you.

Knock on wood three times when you speak of your itinerary. Trees traditionally symbolize life and are thought to ward off evil spirits. The ancients believed that the knocking sound scared away demons and prevented harm.

Sprinkle dried tomato seeds in your luggage and you'll fall in love. The French call tomatoes "pommes d'amour," or love apples. Their seeds were carried by European women in search of husbands.

Even nice girls can get raped

Many people still think of rapists as unseemly characters who lurk in dark alleys waiting to pounce on sexy women. They think that nice girls don't get raped. But they do. According to the FBI, there were 56,730 rapes in 1978. Reporting of rape is growing rapidly: between 1972 and 1976 the number of reported rapes increased 17 percent.

"One out of every four women can expect to be raped," says Margaret Jordan, director of the Metropolitan Organization to Counter Sexual Assault. "We sense that women who display vulnerability by personality or situation are more likely to be victimized than women who display raw sexuality."

MOCSA, a comprehensive rape center located in Kansas City, offers round-the-clock support and professional counseling to rape victims. It has increased the convictions rate there from 20 to 80 percent, four times the national average.

"Many women invite rape not because they are sexy but because they are ignorant," says Jordan. Contrary to popular opinion, many rapists are married, in their middle 20s and employed. Fifty-two percent have had a prior look at their victims and are planning the attack. Most are repeat offenders; 78 percent are back in prison for the same offense within four years of their release.

Rapists tend to select women who are elderly, handicapped, passive or in vulnerable situations. Thirty percent of the women accosted are sleeping alone in their bedrooms, 30 percent are walking alone on the street and 40 percent are attacked during the day in a variety of places.

Rape continues to be a problem because victims are often too embarrassed, ashamed or frightened to testify in court or even to report the crime. Yet, the only way to decrease the crime is by the testimony of victims. "We have increased the number of prosecutions in Kansas City by educating women about rape and getting the police, courts and hospitals to work together on their behalf," Jordan says. "Women are now less afraid to talk because they know they will get a fair shake in courts." She gives these tips on how to prevent rape and what to do if attacked:

1. Lock doors, windows and garage. Keep a night light in windows and entrances.
2. Do not admit strangers to your home. Ask service and delivery men for identification.
3. Try not to walk alone at night. Stay near well-lit areas. Face traffic. A rapist will be reluctant to attack when headlights are illuminating him.
4. Walk at a steady pace looking confident. Attackers look for passive victims.
5. Take out your car keys before going to your car. Look inside before getting in.
6. If you are attacked and think you can escape without injury, try to resist. Smash a lighted cigarette in his face. Scream in his ear. Scratch his eyes and face with keys or a ring. Kick him in the knee or instep — hard. And then run.
7. If you are attacked and he has a weapon, submit. You must assume that he will use the weapon he has brought.
8. After you are attacked, do not clean up or wash. Call a neighbor, friend or policeman immediately. Go directly to the hospital.
9. Report the crime and testify in court. Take notes immediately after the incident or tell a friend to take notes. Remember: rapists are repeaters. Failure to testify will make victims repeaters as well.

MOCSA has prepared an awareness brochure defining rape and explaining preventative methods in detail. For a copy send $1 to: MOCSA, Two West 40th Street, Kansas City, Mo.

He Ought To Quit This Turkey Cold

DEAR ABBY: Beverly is a beautiful blonde, immaculate and built like a fashion model, age 53, widowed five years. I am an average looking, 59, divorced four years and considered a sharp dresser.

We met four years ago. After an on-and-off courtship, we married. We are both employed, occupy a new apartment and have no family members living with us. I have a meager savings account, which I put into a joint savings account.

The problem: Beverly arises at 3:45 a.m., Monday through Friday, takes three minutes to prepare her breakfast, eats in five minutes and spends two hours dressing for work. She leaves at 6 a.m. for a 15-minute drive to an 8 to 4:30 job. (Clerical, not executive.) She arrives home at 4:45 p.m. I usually have dinner ready. We eat together, clean the kitchen, after which she goes to her bathroom and prepares for her next day's work. She retires at 8 p.m., face greased up, lying on her stomach to protect her hairdo and her hands in the air to keep from smudging her freshly polished fingernails. Every Friday evening she allows 15 to 30 minutes for sex because she doesn't have to worry about her hairdo. (Her hair appointment is Saturday morning.)

On weekends she does the laundry and apartment cleaning. (I help.) Because of her routine we invite no guests nor do we accept any invitations out. I do most of the shopping and errands.

We've been married six months, and I've suggested a marriage counselor. That's out. Beverly refuses to discuss our problems or make any adjustments.

Do all beautiful women make poor wives? Divorce seems the only solution. What are your thoughts? E. IN E.

DEAR E.: All beautiful women do not make poor wives, but yours does. If Beverly refuses counseling, won't adjust or even discuss your problem, your choices are obvious. Either put up with her selfish preoccupation with her needs, or end your marriage.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but here I am. I have a close relative who has not visited us for some time and I simply must have her visit soon. (She's been hinting for an invitation.)

I rarely invite her because in the past she has inspected my house like the white tornado. I've seen her very carefully examining every nook and cranny. She even puts on her glasses to inspect my oven!

I have three small children and things do get cluttered, but I think I'm a fairly good housekeeper.

I suppose she wonders why I don't invite her more often, but her inspection tours drive me up a wall.

Any suggestions? SANTA CLARA READER

DEAR SANTA: Sometime bringing a problem out into the open and kidding on the square about it works wonders. Nickname her "The Sanitation Department" or "The Inspector General," and let her know (good humoredly) that her inspection routine irritates you.

Corwin rocket flies highest

Eighteen excited boys and girls, their parents and teachers gathered at Goliad School Friday morning to launch rockets which the students had built in the Summer Enrichment Program.

The students had had to memorize 14 points of the safety code in addition to building the rockets in science class at Big Spring High School under the direction of Joe Reed, biology teacher at BSHS.

As each student fired his rocket in turn, three altimeters were pointed at it by other students to be fired when the rocket reached maximum height. The three readings were added together, then divided by three to get the average. The answer was multiplied by 3.3 to convert the measurement from meters to feet, then divided by two to get the final height the rocket went.

Mark Corwin won the trophy for highest flight. Sam Gladden won the Mr. Science trophy. Adrienne Allen won the Miss Science trophy. Dana Anderson got the trophy for the best rocket and Jance Allen was awarded the Wonder of Science trophy. Becky Bridges won the Crash and Burn Award.

Oil firm's stock worth $1.76 million

Clements lists assets

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements sold all of his stock in companies other than SEDCO, Inc., before he formed a blind trust to control his assets.

SEDCO is the oil drilling company Clements founded in 1945.

In a financial statement filed recently, Clements said that before the first of the year he sold all of his shares in Fidelity Union Life Insurance Co. and Offshore Drilling Co., the only firms he held stock in other than SEDCO.

In addition, he reported selling enough SEDCO stock to realize a net gain of at least $5,000.

The officeholder financial statement, filed with the secretary of state, only requires the listing of general categories of assets and profits, such as 500 or more shares of stock and $5,000 or more of profit.

In October, Clements reported his SEDCO holdings at 630,191 shares, worth $1.76 million at the current New York Stock Exchange price.

The October announcement of Clements holdings did not mention other stock.

That indicates the sales were prior to that date.

His latest statement may be the last public view of Clements' holdings. Under Texas law he need not report the holdings of the blind trust since he does not exercise control or have knowledge of the holdings.

Other assets listed by Clements include notes or bonds from Clemgil Realty of Dallas, Southern Methodist University and Richard A. Smith, mayor of Bryan.

The note on Smith is part of his purchase from Clements of 8 lots on Texas Avenue in Bryan.

SMU and Clemgil Realty each paid interest to him of $5,000 or more, according to the report. It appears that Smith did not pay more than $500 in interest to Clements in 1978. Clements is only required to list by category interest paid in excess of $500, and Smith is not listed.

The governor reported 1978 stock dividends from SEDCO in excess of $5,000, and rents of between $1,000 and $4,999 from property in Middleburg, Va.

His real estate holdings include the Bryan lots he sold in 1978 for a net gain of $5,000 or more, his 7.7 acre residence in Dallas, 237.6

acres in Middleburg, Va., a condominium in Vail, Colo., and 800 acres in Henderson County.

He also leased 1,868 acres in Kaufman County and 2.4 acres in Taos County, N.M.

He lists debts of $1,000 or more to Prudential Life Insurance Co. and First National Bank in Dallas. He is not required to set the specific amount of debt, but in October he said he owed Prudential $48,000 and First National $2.29 million.

Clements said that before becoming governor he resigned from the boards of directors of SEDCO, Inc., where he was chairman; SMU, and First International Branchshares, Inc., of Dallas, a bank holding company. As of the first of the year he still served on the boards of the Clements Foundation and Clemgil Realty.

Mrs. Clements did not place her holdings in the blind trust.

The report shows she sold all of her holdings in Applied Science, Inc., and Mary Kay Cosmetics in 1978.

She received stock dividends in 1978 of $1,000 to $4,999 from Royal Dutch Petroleum and Standard Oil of California.

Those producing dividends of less than $1,000 included Campbell Taggart, Dr. Pepper, EDS, Honeywell, Sedco and Zale.

Stock holdings that produced dividends of $500 or less included Centex Corp., Citicorp, Continental Illinois Corp., Continental Oil Co., Garcia, Halliburton, Mercantile Texas Corp., and Sante Fe International Corp.

She held a note or bond on Steakley Leasing, Inc., of Dallas, but it apparently did not produce interest of $500 or more in 1978.

Mrs. Clements was not shown to have any outstanding debts.

She jointly owns the Dallas duplex for a net gain of at least $5,000. It produced rents of $1,000 to $4,999 in 1978.

Midair collision kills seven persons

ASHDOWN, Ark. (AP) — Police have identified three Dallas advertising agency employees among seven victims of a midair collision in southwestern Arkansas on Tuesday.

Authorities said a single-engine Cessna T-41 and a twin-engine Cessna 340 collided near the Millwood Lake Dam and plunged into the water about 6:15 p.m.

Rescue workers worked until late Tuesday to remove five bodies from the wreckage. Two more bodies were recovered after dragging and diving operations resumed early Wednesday.

The dead were identified by Little River County Sheriff Marlin Surber as David Council, 30, of Dallas, board chairman and a graphic designer for Albright, Council, Hanna and Carl; Jack Caspary, 35, of Dallas, a commercial photographer; and John Robert Egar, 26, of Dallas, an assistant photographer.

Surber identified the pilot as Harry Tyler of Dallas. Tyler's age was not available.

The pilot and two passengers in the single-engine plane were identified by Surber as Arlia Luther Moore, 56, the pilot; Margaret Tazzano, 28; and her daughter, Angela Tazzano, 4, all of Texarkana.

Sid Phillips, 37, of Texarkana said he and a co-worker were driving home from work and had stopped near the dam Tuesday evening "to see if anyone was catching any fish."

"We had just stepped out of our car when we heard this big loud bang," he said. "I thought it sounded like a sonic boom."

"There was a lot of debris floating out of the sky. About that time, I spotted a twin-engine plane spiraling down upside down. It hit the water and sank right away," he said.

7.15 rigs busy digging for oil

The number of oil rigs making hole in the state rose slightly during the week.

As of Monday, 715 rigs were in operation, compared to 698 for the previous week. The total increased by one compared to that of a month ago, but dropped from the 861 total for July 3, 1978.

The number of rigs operating nationwide rose from 2,017 for a week ago to 2,051 as of Monday. The total a month ago was 2,000, and 2,304 for July 3, 1978.

Big Springer wins barrel-racing event at Colorado City rodeo

COLORADO CITY — Kristi Taylor of Big Spring won the barrel-racing event in the opening night of the annual American Junior Rodeo Association here Wednesday, an action-packed program which attracted a crowd estimated at 1,500.

The rodeo continues through Saturday night.

Kristi was clocked in 19.24. She was competing in the girls' 13-15 age group.

Third in the same event was Melody Choate of Big Spring, timed in 20.2.

In pole bending, girls 13-15, Kristi Taylor of Big Spring was second behind Paula Kiefer of Hamilton, who covered the distance in 20.98.

Dina Todd, Lamesa, finished second in barrel racing for girls 12 and under in the time of 19.84.

Kerry Bradford, Colorado City, wound up third in bull riding for boys 13-15 with a score of 46.

Gary Rowe, Colorado City, was third in breakaway roping for boys 13-15, timed in 9.19.

Dina Todd, Lamesa, competing in pole bending for girls 12 and under, finished third in the time of 23.28.

Farm Crop, stock questionnaires provide valuable information

Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service questionnaires provide valuable information for Texas farmers and ranchers, points out Andy Vestal, Asst. County Agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

A number of producers in Howard County have received or will be receiving the questionnaire shortly. Vestal urges producers to complete it promptly and to return it as directed.

Estimates from the questionnaires are developed into state and county crop acreage and midyear livestock reports. In turn, these reports help farmers and ranchers develop planting, breeding, feeding, storing, producing and marketing plans. Therefore, the primary beneficiary of accurate estimates is the contributing producer, Vestal emphasizes.

All individual farm and ranch information is kept confidential, reminds Vestal. Only county and state reports and published in the final report, which is a cooperative effort of the Texas Department of Agriculture and the USDA's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Services.

Farm organizations and legislatures also use the survey information in their planning programs. Various government program acreage and payment levels are established according to survey figures.

Vestal says Extension economists and private consultants also use the survey data when advising farmers and ranchers. Even exporters use tee estimates when planning and promoting the sale of agricultural products abroad.

Police Beat Skyrocketing crime spree

As was to be expected, reports of a certain crime skyrocketed Tuesday and Wednesday.

During the two days, while patriotic spirits were high, police responded to 48 different incidents of fireworks being exploded in the city. Fortunately no serious injuries to revellers or property were reported.

Johnny Scott, 1609 Harding, reported that while he was at a Main Street residence, 11:45 p.m. Wednesday, an acquaintance threatened him with a pistol. Police will investigate the incident further today.

Two juvenile males tossed a baseball through the windshield of a car belonging to Martha Morales, 406 Aylford, 4 p.m. Tuesday. Damage was estimated at $150.

The windshield of a Chemical Express Carriers truck was splattered by BBs sometime Wednesday night. Damage to the truck was estimated at $90.

Bridget Novotny, 538 Westover, told police that someone lifted the keys to her car from her table at the Pump Club Lounge, 10:45 p.m. Tuesday. Loss was estimated at $6.

Three mishaps were reported Wednesday.

A vehicle driven by Eloisa Rodriguez, 1510 E. 11th, struck a fence at 823 W. 7th, 12:55 a.m.

Randall Roberts, 2513 Fisher, was treated and dismissed from Malone-Hogan Hospital Wednesday after his motorcycle went out of control and struck a curb at the corner of 22nd and Lancaster, 2:06 a.m. Wednesday. Roberts spent the Fourth in the hospital, but was released in good condition today, said hospital authorities.

A parked vehicle belonging to William L. Brown, 1507 E. 6th, was struck by a vehicle that left the scene in the 1500 block of E. 6th, 4 p.m.

Three women to be questioned about info on Reeves' murders

Three women who were at the Texaco station where Tracy and Ann Reeves were abducted and murdered April 26 are expected to be interviewed by sheriff's deputies this evening and tomorrow.

Two of the women were part of a group of two men and two women who were at the station at 11:30 p.m. the night of the murders. The two men in the group have already been interviewed.

A third woman, set for interview Friday, was at the station at 11:20 p.m. She will be asked to describe a car she saw there at the time.

Reward money for information leading to the arrest and prosecution of suspects has climbed to $10,000.

House near Knott located

Mrs. Paul Adams reported a burglary of her residence four miles north of Knott Tuesday. A window on the north side of the house was broken out.

Taken were four cameras, a movie projector, two tape recorders, slide projector, silver coffee and tea pitchers and a silver tray. Also stolen were two table lamps valued at $100 each.

Mrs. Adams had been out of town for two weeks when she returned to find her house burglarized.

Blaze doused

Sand Springs Fire Department firemen extinguished a blaze in a home Tuesday at 2:49 p.m. on the Snyder highway. The blaze, located across the street from Don's Machine Shop, was started by a child who turned over a pan of grease on the stove.

Cutter seizes marijuana
MIAMI (AP) — A cutter commanded by the first woman in the Coast Guard's history to command a ship at sea seized marijuana worth an estimated $1 million, officials said.

The cutter Cape Current, commanded by Lt. j.g. Susan Ingalls Moritz, seized a cabin cruiser Wednesday about 75 miles southeast of Miami and confiscated about 3,000 pounds of marijuana. Petty Officer Second Class Dan Dewell said. He said six persons aboard the Miami-based David were arrested, but their identities were not released.

Lt. Moritz, 25, took charge of the cutter and its crew of 13 on June 8.

Denver electrical failure

DENVER (AP) — A 5 1/2-hour electrical failure forced hundreds to walk down stairs at a 39-story building. Denver's tallest, and stranded two window washers on a platform 39 stories high for four hours.

About two dozen other persons were stuck in elevators for about two hours, authorities said, about 1,000 persons were in the Anaconda Towers when the power failed shortly before noon Tuesday, said Jim Dumont, operations manager at the office building. Steve Lammy, 28, of Denver, and Ron Bell, 18, of Westminster, were stranded on their 18-foot-long platform outside a sealed window until power from an emergency generator was used to rescue them.

Evert, Navratilova advance to Wimbledon finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Martina Navratilova plans to forget all about the Wimbledon final until she steps onto Center Court Friday afternoon.

Defending champion Navratilova, who meets Chris Evert Lloyd in a repeat of last year's final, said, "I will be concentrating totally on my women's doubles match Thursday. I won't be doing a lot of practicing. If you don't have the strokes by now you might as well forget it."

The 22-year-old Czech-born left hander also hopes to partner veteran Billie Jean King to a record 20th Wimbledon title.

"It will be just the doubles that matter Thursday," she said after crushing 16-year-old Tracy Austin 7-5, 6-1 in the semifinals. "Last year I didn't play at all on the day before the final, this time I will be going all out in the doubles."

Meanwhile, today, Bjorn Borg, who is vying for his fourth consecutive Wimbledon crown, was to take on Jimmy Connors in the men's semifinals, and Roscoe Tanner was to play fellow American Pat Dupre.

"I would rather play than rest," Navratilova said Wednesday. "It will help take my mind off the singles. I really don't think I will get uptight until I get out on Center Court. I will probably be a nervous wreck on Friday, but I feel fine now." The powerful champion reeled off nine straight games as she powered past Austin, who was bidding to become the youngest Wimbledon finalist this century.

Navratilova's biggest problem was the umpire. He couldn't remember how to pronounce her name.

"I felt like saying 'Hey, I won here last year. You could have remembered my name,'" Martina joked afterwards.

Both finalists say they have no problems escaping from the pressures of the final.

"I am able to concentrate totally on whatever I am doing," says Martina. "I have lots of other interests; movies, TV, books and music, and I can get totally involved with them. For instance when I watch the TV and someone speaks to me, I don't even hear them."

Lloyd, who had an equally easy semifinal win in beating Evonne Goolagong Cawley 6-3, 6-2, also has no problem relaxing off court.

"When I was younger tennis was the only thing in my life. Now my husband (British tennis star John Lloyd) helps take my mind off tennis."

The two semifinals were in complete contrast.

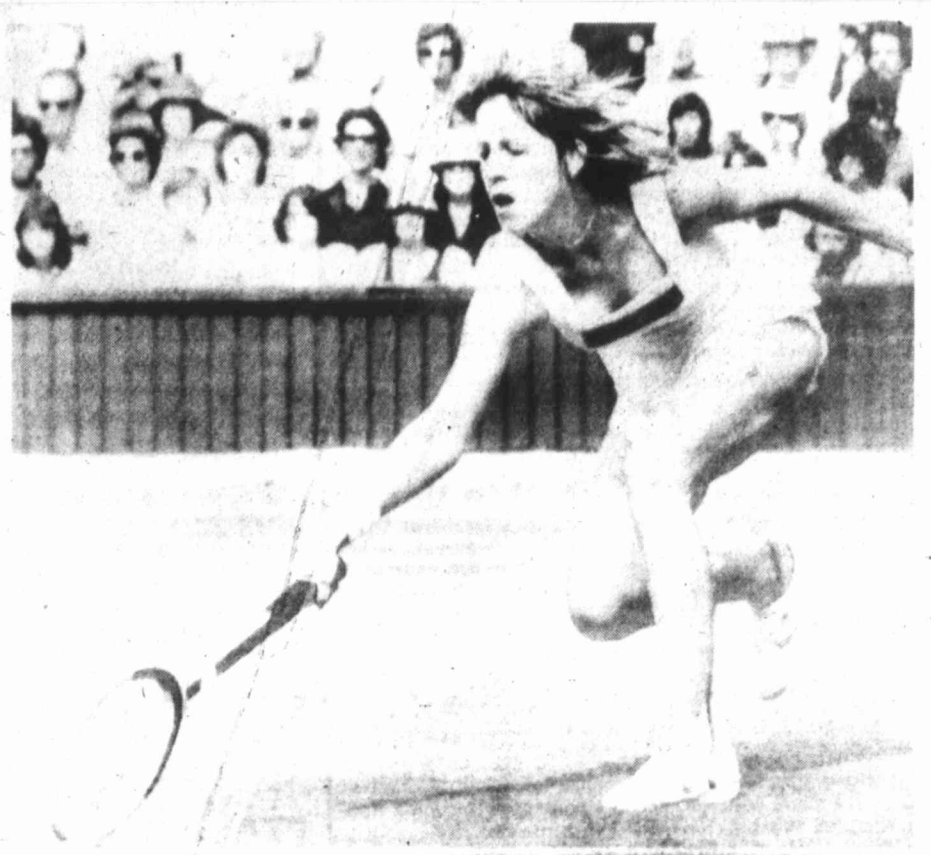

Austin, a Rolling Hills, Calif., schoolgirl, made

Navratilova fight for every point in the first set before the power of the Czech-born left hander won her control. Lloyd, however, was always in command against 1971 champion Cawley.

The Australian, a great favorite with the Wimbledon fans, was never able to get her game under control.

Austin, who has played both finalists on a number of occasions, thinks Lloyd will take the title for a third time (Lloyd won it in 1974 and 1976).

"Their matches are always tough," said Tracy. "I think it will depend on how Martina plays, but I must go for Chris. Beating Martina at Eastbourne must give her the edge."

HEADS FOR FINAL — Chris Evert Lloyd reaches for a backhand to return shot from Evonne Goolagong Cawley during their semi-final match at Wimbledon, England, Wednesday. Mrs. Lloyd won in straight sets 6-3, 6-2, and will meet defending champion Martina Navratilova in Friday's final.

Kern, Rangers complete Oriole sweep

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP)—Jim Kern struck out nine and allowed only two hits in four innings of relief, but Baltimore manager Earl Weaver was unimpressed.

"Anybody who takes a four-run lead into the ninth and allows the first two runners on base, I'd say you're not doing your job," Weaver said after Texas' 9-5 victory Wednesday night that gave the Rangers a sweep of their three-game series with the Orioles.

The tying run could have gotten on base, and the only reason it didn't was because of (plate umpire Larry) Barnett," Weaver said.

Weaver and several Baltimore players thought Barnett called strikes on several of Kern's pitches that should have been called balls. Weaver went to the plate in the ninth to argue with Barnett after Al Bumbry walked and pitch hitter Pat Kelly doubled to lead off the ninth.

Kern struck out Ken Singleton with the help of strikes the Orioles disputed.

Kern, whose 10-1 record and 1.38 earned-run-average are among the best in the major leagues, picked up his 14th save in relief of Danny Darwin, 2-0, who struck out four and allowed six hits over five innings.

Bump Willms went four for four, scoring three times and driving in two runs to lead a 15-hit assault on four Baltimore pitchers.

"Cooled off their heels a bit," said Kern of the Orioles, who came into this Texas city with 22 wins in 25 games.

"I started aiming the ball in the ninth. Then I said, 'To heck with it, if I'm going to get beat, I'm going to get beat with a hard gas,' and I started pumping it," said Kern, whose fast ball has been clocked at more than 100 mph.

He struck out Singleton and Eddie Murray, then got Doug DeCinces to end the game.

Kern said Barnett "was calling them awful tight after the first two batters when Weaver went out to complain.

"Then he went back to the strike zone he had before. Some umpires have a high strike zone, and some have a low strike zone. He (Barnett) doesn't give you the high one but does give you the low one."

Willms singled and scored in the first two innings and added an RBI single in the third. He tripled home another run in the sixth and then scored on a sacrifice fly by Billy Sample, who hit a two-run homer in the first.

It was Texas' 11th victory in its past 12 games and kept the Rangers on top of the American League West.

Watson favored in Western Open

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP)—They went out in the first round of the 7th Western Open Thursday, trying to beat the monster—the Butler National Golf Club Course—where Jerry McGee once came down the 18th fairway waving a white towel of surrender.

Tom Watson, favored to win his third Western since 1974 and his fifth tournament of the season, summed it up nicely.

"One thing's sure," he said. "You never feel upset by making a par here."

If the winds continue as predicted, "the greens will dry out and the scores will skyrocket," said Watson, who could spiral his leading money winnings this year to $431,674 by taking the top prize of $54,000.

Watson said he would settle for a 5-under-par 283 as the winning score. "I would take 283 and let the rest of the field shoot at it."

Defending champion Andy Bean said he would do the same thing with a 282, taking that score and sitting it out. he and Bill Rogers each shot 282s last year with Bean winning a playoff. It was the lowest 72-hole score since the tournament settled at the new George Fazio-designed course in 1974. Watson won that year, his first tournament triumph as a pro.

Besides Watson and Bean, five of the top 10 money winners are in the field 8 Larry Nelson, Bruce Lietzke, and Rogers.

Cardinals split twinbill with San Angelo

SAN ANGELO — The Big Spring Cardinals split a doubleheader with San Angelo here Wednesday, leaving them with a record of 15-1.

San Angelo inflicted a 2-1 defeat on the Red Birds in the opening contest but Big Spring surged back to capture the nightcap, 15-5.

Second baseman Tony Rubio managed Big Spring's only run in the opening game after reaching base on an error in the first inning.

In all, the Cardinals had five hits, the same number the resident Lions collected off Frank Rubio.

The big blow for San Angelo occurred in the second when shortstop Jim Carson smashed a home run with Ken Perez on board. Perez had walked.

Ysa Rubio had two hits for the Cards in the opener. The Lions took a 3-2 lead in the first inning of the second game but Big Spring went ahead to stay in the second and added five runs in the third to win going away. In the afterpiece, the Cardinals had a total of ten hits, Arthur Olague collecting three of them.

Luis Rodriguez was the winning pitcher for Big Spring in the second game. The Cardinals go to Van Horn Saturday for a weekend tournament, meeting the Van Horn All-Stars at 11 a.m., in the opening round.

Leonard's hit rallies Astros by Reds

CINCINNATI (AP)—Baseball's version of Biblical retribution — "If you throw at my guy, I throw at you" — sparked a sixth-inning brawl Wednesday and rallied the Houston Astros to a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Houston pitcher Joaquin Andujar and Cincinnati third baseman Ray Knight were the chief protagonists, but it was Knight and Astro first baseman Cesar Cedeno who finally squared off and were ejected.

Knight and Andujar had tangled before, several years ago when they were roommates in the Reds' minor league organization, but both said that had nothing to do with the Fourth of July fireworks.

The incident seemed to stem from a fourth-inning brushback Andujar gave Reds' second baseman Joe Morgan, although Andujar denied he threw at Morgan intentionally.

When Andujar came to bat in the sixth, Reds' starter

Bill Bonham threw behind Andujar's back. Bonham declined to discuss whether the pitch was a warning of retaliation.

"I can't answer that truthfully because I'd be incriminating myself," Bonham said.

Andujar grounded out, and on the way back to the Astro dugout chided Bonham, the loser, 3-2, prompting a comment from Knight.

"I said, 'Joaquin, if you throw at Joe, you have to expect that,'" Knight said.

"He threw at Joe, and it's high time some of our pitchers protected us."

The Astros rallied for two runs in the seventh when

Closes in on 4th straight Wimbledon title

Borg pounds Connors to gain finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Defending champion Bjorn Borg pounded Jimmy Connors 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 in the semifinals of the Wimbledon tennis championship today and was one match away from making modern tennis history.

Borg advances to Saturday's final, in which his opponent will be the winner of the other semifinal between Roscoe Tanner and little-known Pat DuPre. If Borg wins, then he will become the first man since 1913 to win four consecutive Wimbledon crowns.

Borg improved his record against Connors to nine wins against 10 losses. But the 23-year-old Swede has won the last three encounters against the 26-year-old Connors.

Included in the plus column for Borg are victories over Connors in the 1978 and 1977 finals at Wimbledon. They met in the semis this year because Wimbledon officials saw fit to seed Connors just third, which put him in Borg's half of the draw.

Connors' loss was no more respectable than the one here last year, when Borg mastered him 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

Connors fought fiercely today, but he was totally unable to counteract Borg's devastating accuracy and drive. Time and again Borg paused him with shots down the lines. The rest of the time, Borg pinned his usually scrambling opponent to the baseline.

The match, which lasted only one hour and 46 minutes, ended tamely, with Connors hitting out wildly, dropping his service at love.

Only, once the entire match did Connors break Borg's serve — in the opening game of the third set, when the Swede failed to reach a Connors lob, then put a backhand into the net.

Connors went on to hold his own service for 2-0 in that set, but Borg dashed any hope Connors might have had by streaking through the next six games for the set.

The match was almost a carbon copy of last year's final. Again Borg seemed to demoralize and finally crush Connors with his phenomenal speed.

Bonnett nips Parsons in Firecracker 400

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Clear skies and 93-degree heat made an ideal Fourth of July for beachgoers in this vacation city — but it was a murderous day for Neil Bonnett.

He nipped Benny Parsons by a second to win the $208,000 Firecracker 400 in a close battle that forced the contenders to run their stock cars hard — and hot. "I've been in some hot traces before, but this one is right up there. My car was really cooking," Bonnett said after braving heavy traffic on the final lap to hold off Parsons at a record speed of 172.890 mph, nearly 5 mph better than Cale Yarborough's 1968 record.

"The harder I ran, the hotter it got. It was just like turning up your car heater to extra hot. I had my foot stuck to the floor," Bonnett said. "I stuck my hand out the window to try to divert in a little cool air, but I found out that it was just like somebody turning on a blowtorch. It was hotter coming off the cars in front of me."

Bonnett, who had to take oxygen after the race, said his engine's water temperature was over 220 degrees and that it didn't seem much cooler where he was sitting.

Baseball Roundup

By The Associated Press

Being the Fourth of July, the fireworks around the American League were appropriate.

Wayne Nordhagen's grand slam home run highlighted a 10-run fifth inning as the Chicago White Sox clobbered the Cleveland Indians 16-4 and California scored 10 runs in the eighth inning, using two errors, two passed balls, eight walks, a sacrifice fly and four singles to crush Oakland 17-6.

Texas exploded for 15 hits as the Rangers stopped Baltimore 9-5, for their third straight victory over the East Division leaders and Otto Velez' three-run homer in the top of the 11th was just enough to negate Rusty Staub's two-run blast in the bottom of the inning as Toronto led on to edge Detroit 7-1.

Blue Jays 7, Tigers 6

Velez' three-run homer in the 11th inning gave Toronto its victory, but just barely. With the score tied 4-4, Joe Cannon singled, Dan Ainge walked and Velez, pinch hitting, cracked his seventh home run of the season.

White Sox 16, Indians 4

Nordhagen's grand slam was the big hit as Chicago crushed Cleveland.

Rusty Torres followed Nordhagen's first career grand slam with his second homer of the year and Claudell Washington added a three-run shot. Bobby Bonds homered for the Indians.

Red Sox 6, Royals 4

Dwight Evans smashed a two-run homer with two out in the ninth inning to snap a 4-4 tie and lift Boston over Kansas City. It was Evans' 100th major league home run.

Twins 7, Mariners 2

Roy Smalley's three-run homer backed Jerry Koonsman's four-hit as the Minnesota Twins defeated Seattle. It was Koonsman's 150th career major league victory.

Angels 17, A's 6

Don Baylor drove in five runs, two with a homer, and California added 10 runs in the eighth inning to smother Oakland. It was Baylor's seventh homer in his last seven games as the Angels posted their sixth straight victory.

Phillies 1, Mets 0

Steve Carlton had just tied a National League record with his fifth one-hitter but he didn't throw out any one-liners. In fact, he didn't utter a single word.

Carlton, who is stinger with words than hits, continued his ban on the press Wednesday night after pitching the Philadelphia Phillies to a 1-0 victory over the New York Mets. The only hit was a first-pitch, double by Elliott Maddox leading off the seventh inning.

"It was a fastball down the middle, said Maddox. 'I'm sure it was a mistake as far as he was concerned. It was the same pitch I popped in my previous at bat.'"

Carlton was overpowering. The only other Met baserunner was Richie Hebner who was safe when Carlton dropped a throw from first baseman Pete Rose.

Braves 7, Giants 6

The Braves rewarded Atlanta's biggest crowd in two years with a stirring comeback from a 5-0 deficit to pick up their fifth straight victory and 10th in 13 games. San Francisco reliever Gary Lavelle balked in Pepe Frias with the winning run in the eighth inning.

Padres 5, Dodgers 0

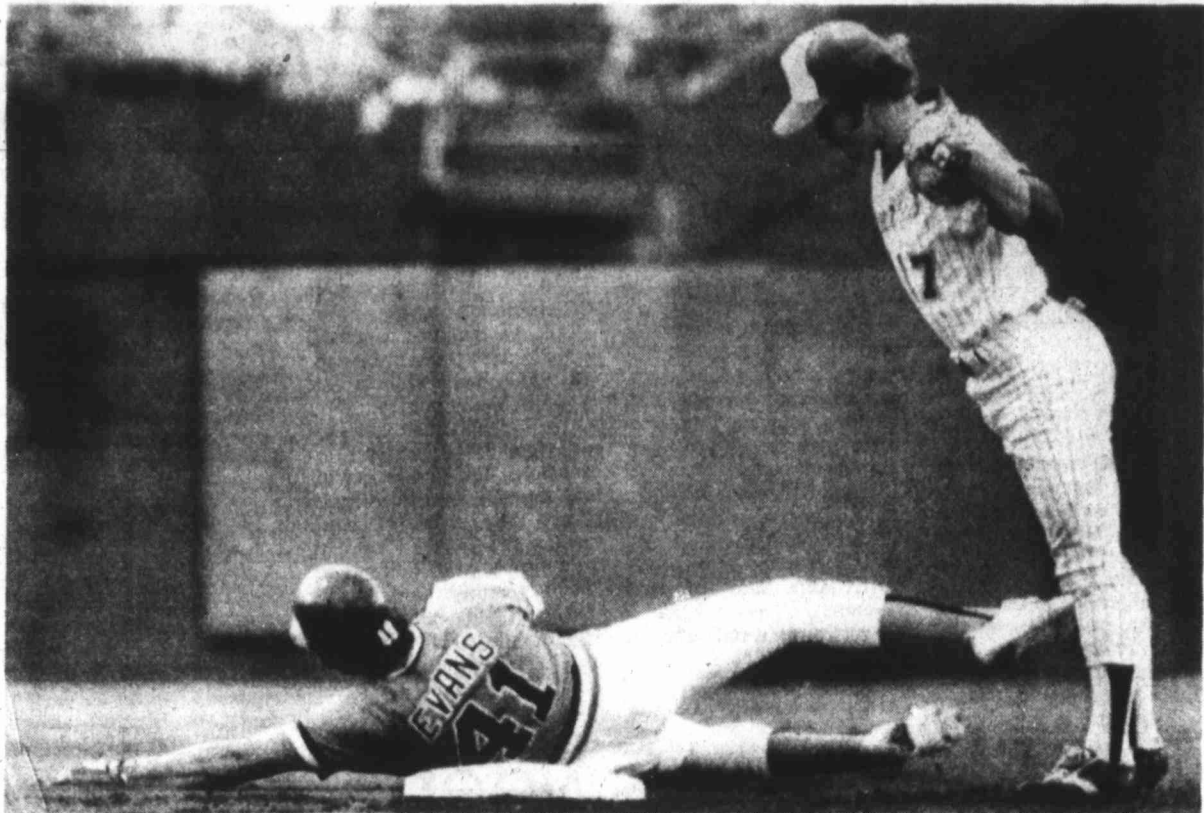

The Dodgers, who fell into last place Tuesday night for the first time in 11 years, dropped 1/2 games behind the fifth place Braves when Bob Shirley tossed a two-hitter for his first career shutout.

Pirates 6, Cards 4

Willie Stargell belted two solo home runs, including one that went nearly 500 feet, and Bill Madlock knocked in three runs with a pair of doubles, powering Pittsburgh past St. Louis for the Pirates' third straight victory.

Expos 2, Cubs 1

Bill Lee and Elias Sosa combined for a six-hitter and Warren Cromartie and Ellis Valentine slugged solo home runs, leading Montreal past the Cubs. The Expos lead Pittsburgh by 5 1/2 games in the NL East.

FOILED AGAIN — Atlanta Braves Glenn Hubbard (17) avoids the legs of San Francisco Giants Darrell

Evans after forcing him out at second. Evans' legs did break up a double play at first in the second inning in Atlanta Wednesday.

Goulding hurls no-hitter at Amarillo

Rick Goulding threw a no-hitter as the San Antonio Dodgers took a 5-0 Texas League baseball victory over the Amarillo Gold Sox Wednesday night.

In other Texas League action, Tulsa edged Jackson, 4-3. Arkansas beat Shreveport, 8-4, and El Paso slipped past Midland, 5-4. Goulding allowed only one base runner in his no-hit performance. That came in the first inning on an error by Dodgers third baseman Dave Lanning. Joe Carroll was the losing Amarillo hurler.

Mike Richardt's inside-the-park homer helped the Tulsa Drillers edge the Jackson Mets, 4-3. Jackson out hit Tulsa, 10-8.

AWAITS DECISION — Mike Carter awaits the officials' decision after a remeasurement was required after the 18-year-old from Dallas Texas threw the shot put a distance of 67'9" during the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Junior International Track and Field Meet Wednesday in Boston. Carter's throw was finally ruled official and broke the previous meet record and set a new Junior World Record.

Pan Am games a good indicator in 1980 Olympics

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — As the VIII Pan American Games today entered just their fourth day, it was already obvious that the magnitude of the United States' awesome overall victory now taking shape here will exceed even the most optimistic expectations.

That's especially good news for America's Olympic hopes, since these games are the last big international competition prior to the 1980 Moscow Summer Olympic Games and the best overall judge of how U.S. training programs and athletes stack up against their world-class peers.

In roller skating, behind only track-and-field and swimming in the number of medals being awarded, the U.S. team that was such a mysterious quantity coming in here had taken the gold medal in six of 10 events through Wednesday.

And tonight, the prospects for more golds look good with Natalie Dunn of Bakersfield, Calif., the three-time world figure skating champion competing.

Going into today's archery events, the U.S. competitors had an almost insurmountable lead in individual and team events. Lynette Johnson of Cypress, Calif., led the American archers to four of the first five positions midway in the competition, and a solid lead in the team standings.

In softball, the U.S. team, led by the incredible pitcher Ty Stofflet who already has one three-hit shutout to his credit, seems invincible.

In other sports, the American athletes are also advancing inexorably toward a trip to the medal stand and yet another rendition of the "Star Spangled Banner."

On Wednesday, a light holiday schedule, Army Lt. Col. Lones Wigger of Ft. Benning, Ga., continued his mastery of the small bore rifle competition, winning his third and fourth gold medals in the team and individual three-position event.

Wigger, a member of the winning Pan Am Games teams from 1971 and 1975, got his first gold in the event. He won the individual silver both previous games, and had the same score, 1,162, in 1975 that he had Wednesday to win the gold.

The United States' haul of gold medals increased to 27 Wednesday, nearly twice as many as the rest of the competition combined.

Argentina with six was the next closest, and today promised little relief and the swimmers returned to action, hoping to keep their streak of 10 golds in 10 events going. Prospects were quite good.

Donut making considered an art

Mrs. Barger, Ramirez 'roll in the dough'

By ROBBIE CROW
Family News Editor

"If you catch me eating a donut," says Mike Ramirez, new owner of the Big Dipper Donut Shop. "I must be really hungry."

But Mrs. Edward (Alice) Barger, manager of Winchells Donut House, says that "even after 23 months of making donuts, I still have to have my coffee and cinnamon roll every morning."

The donut has been around for many years and at the rate Mrs. Barger claims that the Winchells Donut House chain is expanding (an expected 700 new stores in the next 5 years), it's probably going to be around much longer.

According to Ramirez, who recently bought the Big Dipper from previous owner Marvin Lamb, the original donut had no particular shape.

"It was merely molded to form the shape of a nut," he explained.

He said bakers first made donuts by putting their two index fingers into the middle of the dough and rolling them round and round causing the donut to appear oval or oblong.

Both Mrs. Barger and Ramirez consider donut-making an art. "Not everyone can do it," they revealed.

"Each donut I make," continued Ramirez, "I try to perfect it in some way from my last one. I believe it takes as much skill to do my work as it does an artist to paint or a great chef to cook," he concluded.

"The way you cut and flip the dough determines the way they rise and how perfect in shape they will be," explained the Winchells manager.

Out of her six employees, three are children of Mrs. Barger. "You ought to see my son cut and flip. He even out does me," she said.

Family participation plays an important part in the operation of both donut shops.

"I've been in the donut business," says Mrs. Barger, whose husband, Edward, used to manage Winchells. "Working with my kids has established a better relationship between us."

Working for Mrs. Barger are her children, Daniel, Charles and Sharon. The other three remaining employees are Debbie Bramblett, Loretta Barnard and Mark Matthews.

After working for Winchells in Austin, Mrs. Barger and her family moved to Big Spring in December of 1977 to manage the local shop.

Mike Ramirez' involvement in the baking business stems from his father's influence.

"I started frying donuts when I was a boy back in high school. At one time, I worked from a baker's helper all the way up to foreman."

Ramirez also was employed by Meads for 14 years. In fact, his interest in baking was so extensive, "I cut my own throat and made my own wedding cake," laughed the long-time Big Spring resident.

The first owner of the Big Dipper Donut Shop was Mr. Tandy Ramirez, who was unable to recall his first name. He sold out to E.F. Henderson who then sold out to Marvin Lamb who owned and operated the shop for 14 years.

"I worked for all three owners since 1961," said Ramirez, who became the fourth owner in June.

His employees include his wife, Anna. Others are Naomi Arriola and Sylvia Ramirez.

What time do you have to get to work in order to have fresh donuts awaiting customers as early as 6 a.m.?

Where do donut holes come from?

Exactly how do you make a donut?

The answers to these questions may be surprising.

As for Winchells and the Big Dipper there's no "quickie" method for making donuts.

"It takes as long as three hours to make raised or yeast donuts," revealed Mrs. Barger.

Ramirez is up every morning at 4 a.m. busily preparing his assortment of glazed, cinnamon and jelly-filled donuts.

Are you one of those who thought those little round balls you buy at the donut shop called "donut holes" were just that, the holes from the donuts?

Wrong.

At least if you buy them from Winchells. All the holes taken from donuts there are re-kneaded and made into cinnamon rolls and twists.

So, logically, you might ask, "Then where do donut holes come from?"

There is a special tool used by donut-cutting artists which cuts the dough into the exact shape of a donut hole. That's kind of a let down, isn't it?

If you've ever wondered what it takes to make a mouth watering donut like the ones at Big Dipper and Winchells, pay close attention.

The ingredients (secret of course) must be mixed for approximately 10 minutes after which it must set for 45 minutes. Then, 20 pounds of dough is loaded into loaves and left to set again for 20 more minutes. After the dough has been cut, it is placed in a proof oven (warm moisture oven which makes donuts rise again) for approximately 45 minutes. Donuts are then fried for 30 minutes, after which they are iced.

Sound simple? Not hardly.

"Once you mix the dough," explained Ramirez, "You better get with it. If you don't, the dough can get over-proofed. The less you handle the dough," he continued, "the better the texture will be."

Ramirez and Mrs. Barger both have the same goal in mind, to become masters of their art—making donuts.

Here are some baker fresh breakfast specials you'll be tempted to try.

RAISED DONUTS
1 package active dry yeast
1/4 cup warm water (105 to 115 degrees)
3/4 cup lukewarm water (scalded then cooled)
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1/4 cup shortening
3 1/2 to 3 3/4 cups all-purpose flour

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Stir in milk, 1/4 cup sugar, the salt, egg, shortening and two cups of the flour. Beat until smooth. Mix in enough remaining flour to make dough easy to handle.

Turn dough onto lightly floured cloth-covered board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 5 minutes. Place in greased bowl; turn greased side up. Cover; let rise in warm place until double, about 1 1/2 hours.

Punch down dough; let rise again until almost double, about 30 minutes.

Roll dough 3/8 inches thick on lightly floured cloth-covered board. Cut dough with floured donut cutter. Let rise on board until double and very light, 30 to 45 minutes (leave uncovered so crust will form on dough).

Heat fat or oil (3 to 4 inches) to 375 degrees in deep fat fryer or kettle. Drop donuts into hot fat. Turn donuts as they rise to surface. Fry 2 to 3 minutes or until golden brown on both sides.

Carefully remove from fat; do not prick the surface. Drain. While warm, roll donuts in sugar, or, if desired, frost or glaze.

DRESSED-UP DONUTS
TO SUGAR — Roll warm raised donuts in granulated sugar. Shake favorite donuts one at a time in a bag with a little confectioners' sugar.

TO GLAZE — Blend 1-3rd cup boiling water into 1 cup confectioners' sugar. Dip warm donuts into warm glaze.

TO GARNISH — Sprinkle glazed donuts with chopped nuts, colored sugar or confetti candies.

FAVORITE DONUTS
3 1-3rd cups all-purpose

flour
1 cup sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons shortening
2 eggs
3/4 cup milk
Heat fat or oil (3 to 4 inches) to 375 degrees in deep fat fryer or kettle. Measure 1 1/2 cups flour and the remaining ingredients into larger mixer bowl. Blend 1/2 minute on low speed, scraping bowl constantly. Beat 2 minutes medium speed, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in remaining flour.

Turn dough onto well-floured cloth-covered board; roll around lightly to coat with flour. Roll dough gently 3/8 inches thick. Cut with floured doughnut cutter.

With wide spatula, slide donuts into hot fat. Turn donuts as they rise to surface. Fry 2 to 3 minutes or until golden brown on both sides. Carefully remove from fat; do not prick the surface. Drain. Serve plain, sugared or frosted. Yield 2 dozen.

Can Baker's stand on SALT II be ignored?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard Baker's tough statement on the SALT treaty doesn't change the arithmetic of the Senate debate. But it raises difficult tactical questions for supporters of the treaty.

The biggest question for President Carter is: can the Republican leader safely be ignored?

Politically, the White House would like nothing better than to muster the votes needed for approval of the arms control treaty without dealing with Baker, who hopes to take on Carter in the 1980 election.

The magic number is 67. Assuming all 100 senators vote on the resolution of ratification, 67 would provide the two-thirds majority required for approval. Pro-treaty lobbyists have always listed Baker as "leaning against."

It will take intensive dealing to get the 67 votes — if, in fact, they can be obtained.

Were Baker in the pro-treaty camp, the administration lobbying of Republicans could follow the traditional path of operating through the party leader.

The Tennessee senator would act as the broker, bringing together the White House and his fellow Republicans on language both could accept for reservations or understandings that would satisfy questions now being raised about the treaty.

Without Baker, the administration must find a Senate Republican to fill that role. Perhaps Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, the senior Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee could do it. Javits is highly respected, but his liberal views could undermine his effectiveness among his more conservative colleagues.

The situation could provide the sort of opening that could offer a Republican moderate a chance for national recognition.

Baker has ruled out such a role for himself by demanding substantive changes in the treaty.

He wants the Soviets to give him what they were unwilling to give Carter — a reduction in their force of giant SS-18 missiles.

The treaty permits the Soviets to have 308 of the giant missiles with 10 warheads on each. The SS-18s dwarf any missile in the U.S. arsenal and without the limitations agreed to in SALT II, they could carry 30 warheads.

In March 1977, Carter tried for a breakthrough in the SALT negotiations by proposing greater reductions in the nuclear arsenals including limiting the Soviets to 150 SS-18s. He was turned down flat.

The Soviets refused to consider any reduction in the number of SS-18s, a force which they consider the keystone of their nuclear arsenal.

Now comes Baker insisting that the Soviets drop their hard stand on the SS-18 and agree to reducing the force.

The Senate Republican leader said he would not consider an alternative proposal that would allow the United States to build heavy missiles of its own. That would be too great an escalation in the arms race.

Ratification processes explained

MOSCOW (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd and Ambassador Malcolm Toon explained the Senate ratification process to President Leonid I. Brezhnev and the Soviet public in an attempt to ease fears that the Senate will kill the new SALT treaty.

Byrd met with Brezhnev Wednesday in the Crimean resort city of Yalta, where the Soviet leader is vacationing. Aides said the senator did not plan to comment on their talk until after a meeting today in Moscow with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Before going to Yalta, Byrd said he would discuss with Brezhnev the process by which the senate shares responsibility with President Carter for enacting the new arms limitation treaty.

"The Senate and the president are equal but independent partners in the process of concluding international agreements, a fact which you must take into account in the weeks to come," the West Virginia Democrat told Soviet officials at a luncheon in the Kremlin Tuesday.

Brezhnev has warned that the Soviet Union will accept no Senate amendments to the treaty, which he and Carter signed in Vienna, Austria, on June 18. Gromyko has said amendments would mean the "end of negotiations."

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said Brezhnev during his meeting with Byrd "pointed out that good prospects were opening in the relations between the U.S.S.R. and the United States as a result of the recent Vienna negotiations."

"It is the duty of both countries to make these prospects a reality," Brezhnev said. Tass added that he "expressed the hope that the entry into force of SALT II at the earliest date would open the way to elaboration of new, more far-reaching measures in limitation and reduction of strategic armaments."

Toon made his pitch to the Soviet public in a July 4 address on Soviet television, given during the 9 p.m. news broadcast in a time slot reserved for remarks by ambassadors on their national days.

Speaking in Russian to an estimated 200 million Soviet citizens, Toon cautioned against over-reacting to the Senate debate on SALT II. He said the debate is intended "to scrutinize all aspects of the treaty so that the Senate, representing the American people, can be certain the treaty is in the U.S. national interest."

"Open debate of this sort is fundamental to our political system," Toon said. "The ratification process should be understood in this light."

Nicaraguan national guard claims victory; rebels contradict story

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The national guard rushed reinforcements to southern Nicaragua and claimed to have cleared most of the rebels from Rivas, but the rebels said they were in control of the town and were mopping up.

The guard, President Anastasio Somoza's army and police force, said its forces repulsed an attack on Rivas, 60 miles southeast of Managua where the Sandinista guerrillas plan to set up their provisional government, and were cleaning out a few remaining snipers after heavy fighting Wednesday.

But the guerrillas' RADIO Sandino said the rebels held all but the guard headquarters in the town and were fighting to dislodge the holdouts from well-fortified positions.

The guard refused to say how many reinforcements it flew to the south, but reporters saw about 300 troops boarding planes at Managua airport.

The guard also claimed it shot down two light planes just south of Managua, saying they were flown by mercenaries but giving no other details. News reports said the planes carried arms for the guerrillas.

The Costa Rican government reported that some of Somoza's troops tried to cross into Costa Rica to dynamite two bridges on the Pan American highway to trap the guerrillas in the south, but it said the Sandinistas ambushed and killed all but one of the guardsmen.

The rebels launched their attack on Rivas Tuesday after moving north from a strip of territory along the border they had held for weeks. Rivas is 25 miles north of the frontier on the Pan-American Highway.

There were no reports of fighting elsewhere. During their six-week offensive, the Sandistas have won control of at least 23 cities forming a ring around Managua, Somoza's main stronghold. They also held the slum barrios in the eastern part of Managua for two weeks, withdrawing last week after heavy national guard attacks.

Three U.S. ambassadors returned to Central American capitals Wednesday after consultations in Washington on the Nicaraguan crisis.

Bicycles drafted for energy war

By the Associated Press

Since man first climbed aboard, the 19th-century contrivance of chain, wheels and brakes known as the bicycle has been peddled both in war and in peace. As gasoline prices soar and gas lines grow, people now are drafting the two-wheeler for another battle — the energy war.

Mastered by the thousands to block Danish streets during World War II, this machine of the masses mobilized the French and Dutch underground.

"Thirty-five years later, the bicycle is again becoming popular for more utilitarian mobilization.

"We're running about 25 percent ahead of last year," Ray Burch, senior vice president of marketing for Schwinn, said in Chicago. "Our markets have one thing in common and that is people are using bicycles to save gas."

Schwinn, he said, will sell 1.25 million bikes this year and factories are sold out through December.

"When the gas crunch hit in California, there was a very definite surge in bike buying," Burch said. "It reached panic buying. People cleaned out our warehouses. Where 400 would be sold out of a warehouse, 2,500 were being demanded and it has been like that ever since."

"When asked in California why they're riding bikes, people say 'Gasoline, gasoline.'"

John Allis, market researcher for Raleigh, said in Boston the company's business is up 30 percent to 40 percent.

Before the 1970s, bicycles were aimed at kids, Allis said, and after a bike boom in 1973 the market leveled off until now. "The bicycle is being looked at as a utilitarian vehicle."

"There's no doubt that the energy crunch is having a positive effect on the sale of bikes," said Bob Loewer, a spokesman for Huffly of Dayton, Ohio, the nation's top bike manufacturer. "The desire for physical fitness and the problem with getting gas are part of the boom."

A spokesman for Murray — the nation's No. 2 bike manufacturer, in Brentwood, Tenn. — said its sales are 20 percent better than last year.

Wayne Weissman, advertising director for Cross in New York, said, "They're coming into their own not only because of gas prices but because of long lines. As more people are convinced the gas crisis is for real, the more we become concerned with production."

Republican would not allow alternative to build of its own. no great an arms race.

120 die in traffic accidents

By The Associated Press

Traffic accidents across the nation took 120 lives during a Fourth of July holiday in which travel was limited by uncertain gasoline supplies and a one-day celebration that kept many close to home.

The National Safety Council had estimated 120 to 180 lives could be lost on streets and highways from 6 p.m. Tuesday to midnight Wednesday in a comparable non-holiday period at this time of year, 110 traffic deaths could be expected, the council said.

During a four-day Independence Day weekend last year, there were 706 highway deaths. The worst toll for the holiday was 758 over a four-day weekend in 1972.

The last one-day celebration was in 1973 when 194 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JULY 6, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are eager to be off to new scenes, but think it over carefully and don't act too hasty or you could be sorry. Strive to be as cheerful as possible when in the company of others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Those new ideas you have should be made to operate quickly with the advice of experts and in a positive way. Study every factor.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are able to make a good impression on an influential person who can give you a boost in your line of endeavor.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you are more objective, you can come to a better understanding with associates and the future will be much brighter.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find a more modern system by which you can handle your duties and thereby save time and money.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make preparations early in the day for amusements you desire later. Don't permit outsiders to interfere with your plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Look squarely at home problems and then handle them quickly and in a positive fashion. Be alert in motion today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) State your aims to associates and come to a better understanding. Your hunches are good now, so follow them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen to what a most successful person you know has to suggest to you and follow the advice to the letter.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Obtain the data you need from the right sources before going ahead with a personal project you have in mind.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Making sure that your regular routines are well organized is wise now, since you can lap off time and energy in the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contact the most influential persons you know and gain the knowledge from them that can help you get ahead.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have many small civic tasks to handle now so be sure to get an early start on them. Steer clear of unwanted temptations.

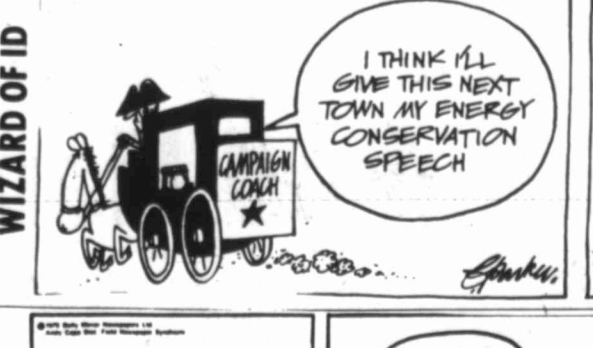

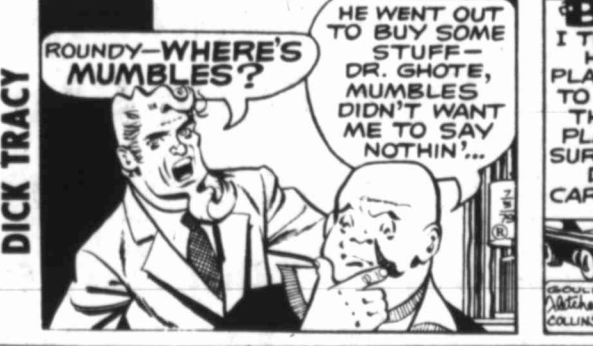

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who has the capability of getting new ideas and putting them across successfully. Give the finest education you can afford for best results. Make sure religious training is not neglected. Sports are a must here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

PAUL LYNDE MARIE OSMOND

Wedding plans canceled

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — It was just a few weeks ago that teen singer Marie Osmond joyfully announced her engagement to actor Jeff Crayton. But the honeymoon is over before it ever got started.

Miss Osmond, the distaff side of television's sweet-faced sibling duo Donny and Marie, told a crowd at the Montgomery Coliseum the wedding was off.

"Marriage is a serious thing you don't want to fool around with. We had doubts, so we called it off," said the 19-year-old singer. She was in town with brothers Jay and Wayne to attend the Tumbling Waters Museum's annual Old-Fashioned Fourth of July Celebration.

Miss Osmond and Crayton, 23, both Mormons, were engaged May 29. Crayton is a Los Angeles actor attending Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, the home of the Osmond family.

Kauzovs celebrate first

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — She's been married to her Soviet husband for nearly a year now, but Christina Onassis finally brought him home for a look at her native land.

The jet-setting millionairess and husband Sergei Kauzov arrived in Athens Wednesday on the Russian's first visit to Greece since they married a year ago.

Speaking to reporters outside the Onassis villa in Athens soon after arrival from Paris, the 28-year-old Mrs. Kauzov said: "We have come to stay for quite a while. We intend having a good rest and hope you newsmen will let us do so."

A member of the villa staff told reporters the couple planned to spend several days at the Onassis-owned island of Skorpios in the Ionian Sea, where Christina's father Aristotle and her brother are buried.

Tieg's husband fined

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Stan Dragoti, director of the film hit "Love at First Bite" and husband of super-model Cheryl Tiegs, has been given a 21-month suspended sentence and fined $55,000 for smuggling cocaine.

The 46-year-old Dragoti told a West German court Wednesday, "I am guilty in the sense of the charge" and said he became dependent on cocaine last September after learning his wife had begun an affair with another man during filming in Africa.

Dragoti was arrested May 13 after customs officials at Frankfurt's Rhein-Main airport discovered a capsule with nearly 25 grams of cocaine in his possession.

He was en route from California to Cannes, France, to accept a film award when he was arrested.

Assertive training course offered at Howard College

A course in Assertive Training is being offered through the Continuing Education Department of Howard College beginning July 17 and ending on Aug. 21.

The class will be held on Tuesdays from 7:00-9:00 p.m. in the reference library of the Horace Garrett Building. The cost of the course will be $22.

The instructor for the course will be David Sutton, psychologist at the Big Spring State Hospital. He received his Bachelor of Arts and Masters Degrees from East Texas State University.

In the course, Sutton will stress the reasons for assertive training and the results of failure to develop assertive behavior. He will establish the difference between aggression and assertion, and will discuss the behavior of an assertive individual.

The class must have 12 persons enrolled. Interested persons must register in the Continuing Education office located in Horace Garrett Building. For more information, call 267-6311, ext. 70.

Witness to shootings still hospitalized

DALLAS (AP) — The only witness to a triple slaying at a Dallas real estate and insurance office remains hospitalized with a gunshot wound in the chest and unable to help police fit together the puzzling pieces of a mass shooting for which they have no motive or suspect.

A solitary gunman burst into Pomeroy Insurance office Tuesday, ordered the four persons inside to put up their hands, and then without another word opened fire with two pistols, police said.

Company owner Joel Rufuu Pomeroy, 52, his wife, Margaret, 41, and employee Fred Casares Jr., 39, were killed in the hail of gunfire. Pomeroy's 23-year-old 7-year-old son Allan was wounded.

Sgt. Joe Poe said Wednesday that police were unable to learn anything new from the bed-ridden Pomeroy.

"I think he is scared and maybe still in shock," said Poe. "I think he is worried about his condition."

A spokesman at Presbyterian Hospital said Pomeroy was in stable condition Wednesday night.

Officers said Tuesday they were looking for a man witness said they saw, shortly after the shooting, get into a late-model blue Chevrolet driven by another man.

"Most likely it was some kind of grudge deal. Nothing was taken," said Sgt. Gus Rose.

Police investigator Rick Lambert interviewed the younger Pomeroy in his hospital room Tuesday. But he said the wounded man could not give him a description of the gunman.

"Allan said he'd never seen the guy before," said Lambert.

Pomeroy called police after he was shot and was conscious when investigators arrived.

Police said the two Pomeroy men were shot with a .38-caliber pistol and that Mrs. Pomeroy and Casares were shot with a .22-caliber weapon.
