Trucker wins applause

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Stunt pilots and skydivers got their share of applause from 15,000 spectators at the Aviation Day airshow but the hero of the day was a truck driver.

The startled and embarrassed driver was welcomed with cheers, applause and whistles as he rolled in with his cargo — four portable toilets.

Nearly 200 people, many of them mothers with cranky children in tow, had been waiting impatiently in lines for the only two portable toilets in place when the fourth of July show began.

Women, some dads and older children rushed to help the truck driver unload and put the four additional outhouses in place in record time.

"I'd say his arrival was the highlight of the whole show," said one grateful mother as she herded her two children into one of the toilets.

Bard on the boards

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — It's doubtful the immortal bard was ever so inclined. Certainly, Ceasar never "hung ten." But a group of surfers found that some Shakespearean quotes kept them awake in their 24-hour marathon to raise money to rebuild San Diego's old Globe Theater, which burned in February 1978.

The campaign's 22-year-old organizer, Eric Orloff, emerged from the water at La Jolla Shores wet and weary Wednesday afternoon, but said, "It was worth it." A final count of pledges and donations was still being made Thursday.

Wave size ranged from "waist-high to over our heads," he said. As night fell, a quote from MacBeth came to mind. "Light thickens and the crowd makes wing to rocky wood," he recited, "good things of day begin to droop and drowse." That's how I felt.

Deliveries by CRMWD Weather show decline in June

Deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District followed much the same pattern of recent months in June showing a 11.8 percent decline.

The 218 million gallons less water for the month resulted in 96 million less to the cities and 122 million to the oil companies, which are cut off from surface deliveries as a conservation measure. The big cut-off in this respect began taking effect a year ago, so the major difference this June was that Texas Electric Service Company took 150 million gallons less because the District needed the Ward County water for Odessa.

In June, cities used 1,331,353,000 gallons, off 6.75 percent from a year ago. For the first six months of the year cities have used 6,291,955,200 gallons, or 7.91 percent less, which amounts to 218 million gallons.

Oil companies and industries used 154,173,924 gallons in June, down 121,960,000 gallons or 44.17 per cent. For the six-month period the total was 1,690,957,949 gallons, off 23.78 percent.

Total deliveries by the district for the first half of the year reached 7,982,913,148 gallons down 1,068,292,000 gallons or 11.8 percent.

June deliveries to cities showed: Odessa 591,107,000, down 3.92 percent; Big Spring 251,146,000, down 11.96; Snyder 106,374,000, down 16.53 percent; Stanton 7,950,000, off 47.33 percent; Midland 392,361,000, up 15 percent. In June of 1978 Robert Lee used 14,019,100 gallons but took none this June.

Cisco's mayor pro tem hit with criminal mischief count

CISCO — Raymond Whitley, Cisco's mayor pro tem, and his brother, Arlie, were arrested Thursday and charged with criminal mischief. Each later posted a $2,500 bond.

The arrests stemmed from a property dispute involving Mrs. Neeta Jacobs and the Whitleys. Specifically, the charge evolved from a fence Mrs. Jacobs claims was torn down. The plaintiff says she has cattle on the property.

Big Spring teen kicked in mouth at rodeo

COLORADO CITY — The brahma bulls imported to Colorado City for the annual American Junior Rodeo Association's shows proved too much for two riders.

Jesse Askew of Midland, riding in the 13-15 age division, was shaken up Thursday when he was unseated from the back of Spider, a giant bull.

Askew was taken to Root Hospital for a checkup, but his injuries were believed to be minor.

Cabell Mackie, Big Spring, riding in the 16-19 division, was kicked in the mouth by a bull Wednesday night. He received facial lacerations and lost a tooth but was not seriously injured.

Rodeo officials said that 406 entries had been received as of Thursday night. The rodeo continues through Saturday night.

Todd Whitesides, Colorado City, finished third in the tie-down roping event for boys 13 through 15.

Shelly Jones, Lamesa, won the barrel racing event for girls 12 and under in the time of 19.22.

In breakaway roping for girls 13 through 15, Sissy Doss, Big Spring, was second in the excellent time of 5.10.

Winner of the event was Tisa Lovett, Rotan, timed in 4.01.

The 1979 Rodeo Queen will be announced Saturday night. A rodeo parade takes place through downtown Colorado City Saturday afternoon.

NO HOPE OF EVER GETTING OUT — ETERNITY! WEeping — WAILING — AND GNASHING OF TEETH! TORMENT FOREVER!

No one wanted the old country church torn down when the new building was put up across the road. It just didn't seem respectful. Charlie Swenson suggested, "Why not make it a museum?"

You should have seen the activity here one Saturday. Everyone for miles around turned out, bringing mops and paint brushes — and, of course, chicken salad and apple pies. Then we had a dedication ceremony. Charlie Swenson's wife accompanied us on the old piano as we sang, "The Church's One Foundation."

Now tourists from the city come out to see the pot-bellied stoves, rustic pews and old lamps in our church museum. Once each summer we worship here.

For some of us there will always be a place in our hearts for this little church where we first learned about the teachings of God's Son. We love the new one, too. It is leading new generations into finding the same enduring values.

Get Your 2¢ Worth

Got an idea? How about a suggestion? Do you have a complaint?

Here's the opportunity to help make the Herald YOUR newspaper . . . to include features you want to read, find out why your meeting or event went unpublished while the "other guy's" news made page three, or just help improve the content of your daily paper.

The Herald has assembled 15 Big Spring residents of various ages, occupations and backgrounds, called the Herald Citizen's Advisory Board. The board members are not employed or influenced by the Herald, so they are free to act as spokesmen for you and the Big Spring community. They will discuss and relay your ideas, suggestions and complaints to the Herald through public meetings held the 3rd Tuesday of every month. Next meeting: July 17th, 7:30 p.m. at the Chamber of Commerce Board Room, 215 W. Third St. (use east rear door entrance).

An agenda will be followed, so to get your 2¢ worth, all ideas must be submitted no later than July 12th to be discussed at the July meeting. Either 1) contact a board member with your view, or 2) send your ideas in writing to Big Spring Herald, c/o Community Relations Director, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring TX 79720.

The canvas inferno remembered 35 years later

EDITOR'S NOTE: Thirty-five years ago today, reporter Louis G. Black, now retired, covered the nation's worst circus fire for The Associated Press. Here he looks back at it.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — There it is, a grass-covered school yard in Hartford's North End, a slumbering picture of innocence on a lazy summer day.

But 35 years ago today, July 6, 1944, the same turf was a fiery hell, the scene of America's worst circus catastrophe.

It was a day in which clowns cried and coffins suddenly became scarce, a hot and humid day in a summer when Americans waited anxiously for the latest news of American troops in World War II.

The fire broke out during the matinee of the sprawling Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus, and left 168 dead and more than 500 injured. Many were trampled to death in the panic, others died of burns, some of suffocation. Among the dead was a beautiful 6-year-old girl whose identification remains a mystery.

The years haven't dimmed the memories of survivors. Some have nightmares still, some avoid crowds. The smell of burned human flesh remains. They suffer.

They remember the "Big Top" being three-quarters filled with more than 6,000 children and adults. They recall the smell of popcorn, cotton candy, and the odor of lions, tigers, and elephants.

They remember heroes, clowns like Lou Jacobs and Emmett Kelly; Karl Wallenda of the Great Wallendas high wire act; and Merle Evans, the band leader. They see the circus vibrating with excitement and life — just before it became a heartbreaking scene of death and destruction.

Many lessons about fire prevention and crowds were learned from the disaster. Six circus officials — who pleaded innocent to involuntary manslaughter — wound up in prison. It took the circus 15 years to pay $4 million in claims, including $2.20 to a woman who suffered face and leg burns but insisted on collecting only for her ticket.

For Rose Dunn, and her son, Herbert, the 35 years have been one long series of nightmares. "We have awakened many nights, and even now I wake screaming," the retired nurse says.

"For many years I was scared to be caught in a crowd," Herbert added. "I believe I have gotten over it. I attended the Super Bowl football game early this year and enjoyed it. But every so often I find myself with a sickly feeling in a crowded indoor situation."

Police detectives Tom Barber and Ed Lowe, now dead, often told of "hearing those screams."

All of them were in various sections of the paraffin-covered tent as Evans led his 29-piece band through a snappy opening number at 2 p.m.

First came the clowns, then the animals. And high up, waiting for a cue, was the celebrated Wallenda aerial troupe.

At 2:40 p.m., circus photographer Bill Miller glanced up and saw a small fire crawling along a rope of the big top. He gave a warning. Evans, too, noticed a small horseshoe-shaped flame. So did Wallenda, who pointed down at it.

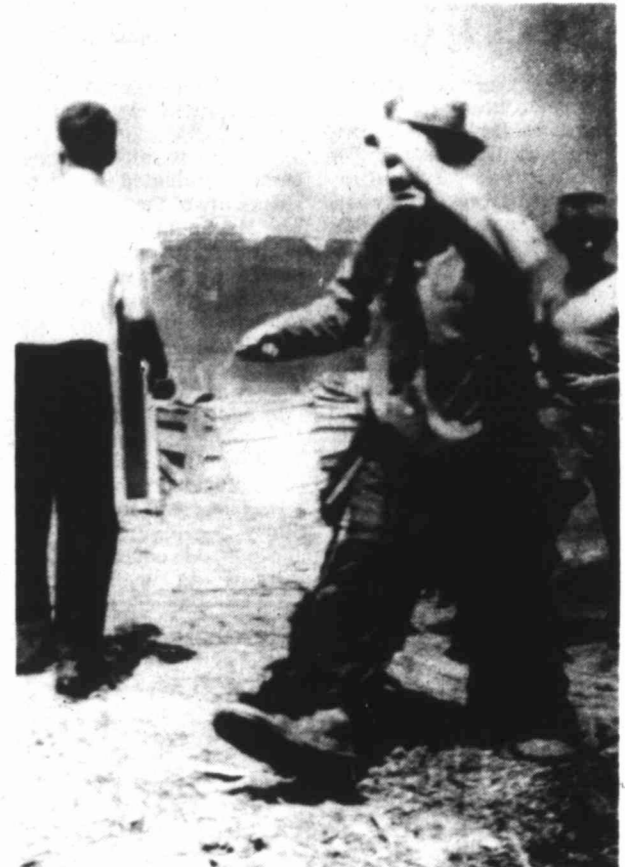

Evans suddenly switched the band from ballet music — the exit tune for the animal act — and his cornet blared out the band's disaster song — "The Stars and Stripes Forever." The abrupt change signaled to circus people that there was danger in the big top.

At first, the fire looked small, and Kelly tried to put it out with a bucket of water. But, blown by a sudden wind, the flames shot up and exploded like a red ball on the roof of the sun-baked tent.

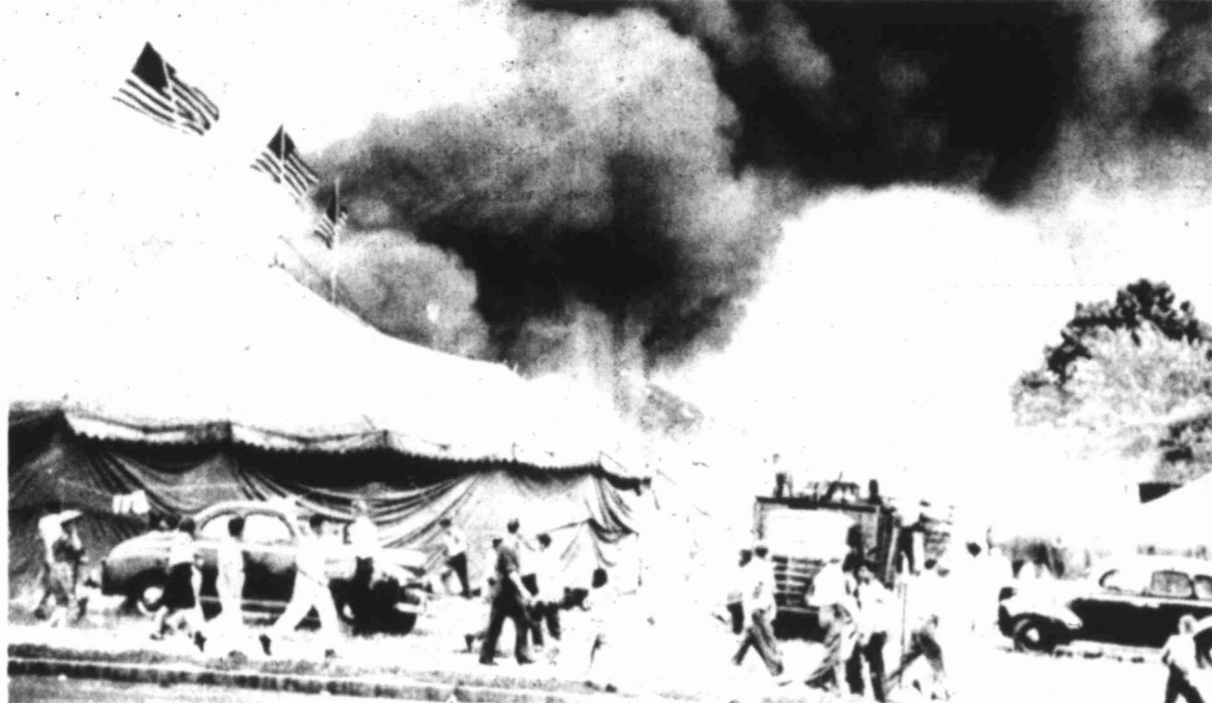

By 3 p.m., the circus ground was a smouldering bier. From her haunted memories, Mrs. Dunn recalls: "I was in an end seat up high when I suddenly became aware of nervous animals. To my right I saw flames, heard shouts of fire and a roar. I grabbed my son by the right hand. Looking down front, I saw panic. People were trapped ... bodies blocked exit paths. There was only one thing to do, to jump to the rear."

"It was about 25 feet. We jumped together. We were lucky the ground was soft so we weren't hurt. We crawled over numerous bodies, saw an exit where somebody had cut a hole."

Don Anderson, a high school boy, had cut loose a section of the canvas tent, providing an exit for several hundred. Then he returned twice to the blazing interior, first to save an injured child, and again to rescue a 64-year-old relative.

KELLY HELPS — Famed clown Emmett Kelly, still in full make-up, hurries with a bucket of water to try vainly to put out the flames as fire consumed the big top of the Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey Circus in Hartford on July 6, 1944 in this photo taken by Ralph Emerson of Newington who was a spectator at the circus on that day. More than 500 were injured and 168, six of whom were never identified, died in the blaze.

BLAZING TENT — Spectators and others hurry away from the main tent of the Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey Circus as it burned in Hartford on July 6, 1944. More than 500 were injured in the blaze and 168, six of whom were never identified, died in the conflagration.

Old adage doesn't work for architect

HOUSTON (AP) — George Sharman says the adage "if you build a better mouse trap people will beat a path to your door" may apply to mouse traps, but has nothing to do with new automobile designs.

Sharman, 31, an architectural construction expert, has come up with what he says is a car that will save gasoline and save lives, but nobody apparently cares enough to come across with money to start production of the vehicle.

After building a prototype and showing it around the country, Sharman asked for private funds and then federal funds, "but I've hit a brick wall."

The only whisper of interest has come from Great Britain and Mexico.

"I want this to be an American car," Sharman said in a recent interview, "but I'll go where necessary to get the proper reading such as low fuel or overheating. The miles per gallon indicator will keep the driver aware of the efficiency of the vehicle."

Sharman added, "It must be emphasized that the EEV will not be a revolutionary but a natural evolution of technologies that have proven themselves in areas such as the space program. We just took it a step farther and proven that a safe, economical automobile can be built."

Sharman said the U.S. Congress "is captured by the major automobile companies. They won't finance a proven product, but instead allocate money for more research, for more study."

"One of the major auto firms hasn't come out with anything really new in 30 years. They have just copied from foreign firms."

Joining Sharman in the design and construction of the auto were Anthony Buonaura, in the product development and technical service division of U.S. Steel, and Raymond Earl Thomas, a researcher in reinforced plastics for Dow Chemical Co.

The new four-seat sports model car is made of plastic, with foam blocks of varying densities sandwiched between the inner and outer skins, reinforced with graphite and directional glass.

That means, Sharman said, the car "is virtually crushproof."

The developer said the vehicle, powered by an 80-horsepower motor, can get at least 50 miles to the gallon.

The total cost to the customer — $8,500.

Sharman, a native Houstonian and graduate of Texas A&M University, said the Rabies vaccination turnout 'fair'

Emergency steps may be needed

EAGLE PASS, Texas (AP) — City officials say they must review the "fair" turnout at Eagle Pass seventh pet rabies vaccination clinic before they authorize emergency steps that could include the wholesale slaughter of stray dogs and cats.

This border city, along with Piedras Negras, Mexico, has been the focus of an outbreak of the deadly disease that doctors say may have caused the death of two girls and left an Eagle Pass boy in critical condition in a San Antonio hospital.

Eagle Pass residents brought 135 dogs and cats to a special rabies vaccination clinic Thursday in an effort to curb the outbreak of the disease.

City Manager Roberto Gonzalez said Thursday the council may meet today to determine if the response is sufficient to avoid invoking emergency measures.

Mexican officials in Piedras Negras apparently have already issued shoot to kill orders on stray animals. Gonzalez said a Mexican newspaper reported earlier 6,000 dogs had been killed in 40 days.

Gonzalez said the council agreed Tuesday night to use the immunization program as a gauge for determining if drastic steps were necessary to combat the outbreak of rabies.

Dr. Hans Petersen, city veterinarian, called the turnout "fair." But Gonzalez refused to speculate on what action the city council might take.

"I can't say what they will decide about the average turnout to our seventh clinic. They will almost certainly request additional assistance from the state," said Gonzalez, who would not specify the type of help the city would seek.

Two doctors from the National Center for Disease Control, who monitored the vaccination program, were briefed by city officials on the rabies outbreak.

The two physicians also looked into the background of Marianita Garza, 8, of Eagle Pass, who died Tuesday in San Antonio of symptoms suggestive of rabies. The results of an autopsy were not yet available Thursday.

Her death came only an hour after a CDC announcement that one of five test results indicated "the child's clinical course was consistent with rabies in its earlier stages."

Gerardo Castano, 8, of Eagle Pass still clung to life with the aid of a respirator Thursday at San Antonio's Santa Rosa Medical Center where he is in critical condition with a confirmed case of rabies.

Bundy handles own case

Testimony to be allowed

MIAMI (AP) — A key prosecution witness will be allowed to tell a jury that she saw defendant Theodore R. Bundy carrying a club from the Chi Omega sorority house at Florida State University shortly after two women were murdered there, a judge ruled today.

The defense had tried to prevent the jury from hearing Nita Neary's eyewitness testimony on grounds that she was hallucinating during a hypnosis session when she described Bundy as the man she saw.

Circuit Judge Edward D. Cowart also ruled that Bundy's jury will be permitted to hear about evidence seized when he was arrested in Utah in 1975 — items that include handcuffs, a crowbar, ski mask and pantyhose.

Bundy, wearing a shirt emblazoned with "Seattle Mariners Baseball Club," took over part of his defense Thursday. He is charged with murder in the Jan. 15, 1978 slayings of Margaret Bowman, 21, and Lisa Levy, 20.

Bundy, a former law student, handled the questioning of three law officers involved in his original arrest in Utah on minor charges of trying to evade a highway patrolman.

Police said they became suspicious after looking in Bundy's car and finding handcuffs, a crowbar, ice pick and pantyhose with holes cut in them.

A young woman later identified Bundy as the man who tried to kidnap her in Murray, Utah, and Bundy was convicted. He also is charged with murdering a Michigan nurse near Aspen, Colo., and a 12-year-old girl in Lake City, Fla.

Wednesday Skylab's day?

Time running out fast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Skylab's time is running out fast.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration believes the 77.5-ton craft will crash into the atmosphere sometime next week, most likely Wednesday.

The North American Air Defense Command in Colorado, which has been tracking the 118-foot-long space derelict, predicted earlier in the week that the reentry would be between July 10 and July 14, with Thursday the most likely date.

But NORAD advanced its projection one day Thursday to the July 9-13 period, with the target date of July 11.

The low point of Skylab's orbit Thursday was 133 miles above earth, six miles less than the day before. The high point was 144.8 miles, three miles higher than Wednesday.

Skylab's final plunge will begin when it hits the thickening atmosphere.

Meanwhile, the State Department has alerted key personnel around the world to be set to provide last-minute Skylab information to their host governments.

Such information won't be available until the final hours of Skylab's life. Then, NASA says, it will be possible to identify the orbital path in which Skylab can be expected to reenter.

Dawson County Commissioners will discuss land program

Other items of business will include the acceptance of an oil and gas lease of Labor Nine of League 303, Gaines County; and consideration of a request by district agriculture agent General Telephone Company to place a buried cable in a Precinct One county road.

Commissioners will hold a conference with Bill Gunter, district agriculture agent. They will also report the approval of the Veterans' Precinct One county road.

Navratilova captures Wimbledon

Defeats Evert Lloyd in straight sets for second straight title

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova fought back Chris Evert Lloyd 6-4, 6-4 today to win the Wimbledon tennis championship for the second year in a row.

Navratilova unleashed her overpowering serve-and-volley attack to crush a listless and error-prone Lloyd.

The victory strengthens Navratilova's claim to the No. 1 ranking in women's tennis, the position Lloyd had held nearly unchallenged for four years — until last year.

After an indifferent winter season, Lloyd had seemed renewed going into the final here. She had lost just one match during the European spring circuit.

But today she seemed uninspired and never really was in the match.

It was a disappointment for the sellout crowd of 17,000, some of whom paid up to $700 to scalpers for a pair of tickets.

These two top-ranking players have had a series of hard, spectacular duels. Two weeks ago Lloyd beat Navratilova on grass at Eastbourne 7-5, 5-7, 13-11 in a match widely held to be the best the two had ever played against each other.

Martina beat Chris in the 1978 Wimbledon final 6-4, 4-6, 9-7 to highlight a season in which she had a 44-2 match record and gained the top spot on the computer ranking list.

Chris, recognized as No. 1 by the International Tennis Federation, disputed the computer's analysis and said she believed she would prove her right to the throne in this Wimbledon final. It had been hers in 1974 and 1976.

But today Navratilova had her unpredictable nerves in check and her play at the net was deadly.

Few had seen the 24-year-old Evert so loose and ineffective. She never got her disciplined backcourt game in the groove as she repeatedly scooped forehand shots over the backline. Frequently she never got close to Martina's sharply hit volleys.

The fans got their first twinge of excitement when, with the score 5-2 for Navratilova in the first set, Chris held service at love and then broke Martina's high-kicking, left-handed service without losing a point. A rally seemed in the offing.

Chris, appearing to gain confidence, walked to the service line with a chance to tie the set.

But Martina scored with a smash, went ahead 30-0 when Chris hit a forehand out and then, after netting a volley, took a double set point position when Chris again sent a forehand shot soaring over the back line.

There was a gasp when Martina netted a return but on the next point, the champion put away a high volley for the set.

Now in full cry, the Czech girl sent her high-bouncing service into the corners and moved effortlessly into the forecourt to take the return for easy putaways. Chris, active, seemed stunned. She played at times as if in a trance.

SECOND TIME AROUND — A smiling Martina Navratilova holds up her trophy, after beating Chris Evert of the United States, 6-4; 6-4; in the final of the Women's Singles on Wimbledon's Centre Court Friday. It was the second year in a row that Navratilova took the championship.

Scotch foursome slated today

The foursome of Carl and Martha Gooden and Pat and Alice Weaver shot a 31 to take top honors in last week's Big Spring Country Club Scotch Foursome on Friday afternoon. Ted Ferrell, local State Farm Insurance Agent, donated the prizes to the winning quartet.

Third place finishers included the team of Jim and Susan Welch and Dot and Bill Bell.

Following play, Happy Hour and dinner were enjoyed by all of the participants inside the Club.

There will be another Scotch Foursome Tourney this Friday afternoon beginning at 5:30. All interested Country Club members are urged to play. Entry fee is $1.50 per person.

Balloting close as NL voting concludes

NEW YORK (AP) — Just as the last three outs are the toughest days of waiting for some of the potential all-stars competing for the fans' affections.

Several starting berths and the outfield — still are up for grabs before the final National League tabulation is announced Sunday for the 50th annual all-star game July 17 in Seattle.

Two-time NL All-Star MVP Steve Garvey of the stumbling Los Angeles Dodgers still clings to a slim lead over the Philadelphia Phillies' Pete Rose, who is attempting to gain his record fourth All-Star position in 12 years.

Rose, who has played in right field, left field and third base in previous midsummer night's dream games, trails Garvey by 16,026 votes in the fifth weekly tabulations announced today by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office.

Meanwhile, the perennial battle between Dave Concepcion and Larry Bowa finds Concepcion, the Cincinnati Reds shortstop, leading by 81,989 votes.

In what has dwindled down to a four-man race for the starting outfield positions, Dave Parker of Pittsburgh leads with just over 1½ million votes, followed by Dave Winfield of San Diego, George Foster of the Reds and Greg Luzinski of the Phillies, who trails a starting position by 32,064 votes.

Injured St. Louis catcher Ted Simmons held a comfortable lead over Johnny Bench, the leading vote-getter since the format was established in 1970, but the Cincinnati catcher will get the starting nod over third-place Steve Yeager. Yeager's Dodger teammate, Dave Lopes, had a commanding lead over the other second basemen, and Mike Schmidt, in all probability, will be at third base, where Rose started last season.

Their starting American League opponents, announced earlier this week, will be: Rod Carew, California, 1B; Bobby Grich, California, 2B; Roy Smalley, Minnesota, SS; George Brett, Kansas City, 3B; and Fred Lynn, Jim Rice and Carl Yastrzemski of Boston in the outfield.

The All-Star Game will be played Tuesday night, July 17 in Seattle's Kingdome.

Legendary Mendy Rudolph dies

NEW YORK (AP) — For years, Mendy Rudolph took the slings and arrows of outraged players. In the end, though, he got the chance to tell pro basketball fans why those missiles were so often misguided.

Rudolph, who died Thursday after suffering a heart attack, spent 22 years as one of the most visible referees in the National Basketball Association. He was 53.

It wasn't until his officiating days were over that NBA fans really got to know him — as a color commentator on CBS' telecasts and, in a lighter vein, as Tommy Heinsohn's foil in a Lite Beer commercial.

Funeral services were set for today in New York.

"He was one of the great basketball officials of all time," NBA Commissioner

Larry O'Brien said. "He symbolized the fine qualities and knowledge of the game all referees should possess."

Rudolph whose last health problem was a pulmonary embolism he suffered April 25, 1975, while working a playoff game between the Buffalo Braves and Washington Bullets at Landover, Md., was given a clean bill of health after his ensuing three-week hospital stay.

The well-known veteran of a record 2,112 pro basketball games chose to retire from the NBA grind, rather than referee again.

He also declined a position in the league's front office, opting instead for the CBS microphones during the 1977-78 season. And he received favorable reviews, especially for his insight into the referees' role in the game and his explanations of why certain fouls were or were not called.

By then, his familiar No. 5 jersey had been retired by O'Brien to the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass., where it now hangs.

The jersey really wasn't necessary to identify Rudolph. He'd already established his trademarks — a loud whistle and an emphatic style of refereeing.

He'd thrown plenty of coaches out of games for insolence — but he never got a bigger hand than when he ejected Heinsohn; the hot-tempered ex-coach of the Boston Celtics, from the bar during his own beer commercial.

Rudolph worked eight NBA All-Star games and at least one game of the league's championship series in those 22 consecutive seasons.

"Mendy's contributions to the integrity of professional basketball are legendary," O'Brien said. "His passing is not only a great personal loss to his family but to all of basketball and sports."

Rudolph, born in Philadelphia and raised in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., began officiating Eastern League games with his father, Harry, in the 1940s. He was spotted by Eddie Gottlieb, former coach of the NBA's Philadelphia Warriors and now a consultant to the league, during an exhibition game between the Warriors and York, Pa., and began refereeing in the NBA in February 1953.

Rudolph is survived by his mother, Rose; his wife, Susan; his children, Jennifer, Pamela, Jim and Ted; and a granddaughter, Lauren.

Foster, Andujar honored for performances

NEW YORK (AP) — Slugger George Foster of Cincinnati was named National League Player of the Month and Joaquin Andujar of the Houston Astros took Pitcher of the Month honors, the league announced.

Foster earned the award with a .345 batting average for 29 games. He had 38 hits during the month including 13 home runs, drove in 32 runs and scored 21.

In six starts during Jur. Andujar went 5-1 with a 1.59 earned run average, allowing just nine earned runs in 51 innings pitched

ANOTHER CHANCE LOST — Watched by her partner Ben Testerman, Billie Jean King runs in to return a shot during a mixed-doubles match at Wimbledon, England, Wednesday. King's chances of gaining a record 20th Wimbledon title were reduced when she and her partner were defeated by John Newcombe and Evonne Goolagong Cawley. Billie Jean now has only one remaining chance of a title in this year's tournament — in the women's doubles which she will play with Martina Navratilova.

Czech defector happy in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Vaclav Nedomansky, who fled the Czech National Hockey Team in 1974 for the lure of the North American professional game, was looking for security. Now he's got it.

Nedomansky, 35, the leading scorer last season with the Detroit of the National Hockey League, signed a 15-year contract with the Red Wings, the club said Thursday, reportedly for more than $1 million.

"I would like to spend a few more years of my life here," Nedomansky told a news conference.

"Big Ned" had become a free agent June 1. Under terms of a unique contract, the Wings would not have been compensated with a player from another team if that club had signed him.

Once his playing days are over, he is to take a front-office job, most likely scouting, General Manager Ted Lindsay said.

Fashion revue winners to compete at district

Approximately 80 people attended the 1979 Howard County 4-H Fashion Revue on July 3 at the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room. This year 40 4-H'ers were involved in clothing projects and a total of 28 participated in the 1979 Howard County 4-H Fashion Revue. In addition to creating a garment, these 4-H'ers have gone on tours to fabric stores and to Walls Factory outlet. Fifty attended a Beauty Botique charm school where they learned about hair and skin care, exercising, how to accessorize and how to model. Dana Westbrook was the narrator and Mrs. Zula Rhodes, council secretary, presented each contestant a gift purchased by the council along with their ribbons as Linda Fuchs announced the results. Tomboys can be feminine

NEW YORK, N.Y. — It used to be that the girl who preferred treehouses to dollhouses would be negatively labeled a tomboy. Today, girls are not only climbing trees, they are climbing into many of the traditionally male dominated sports and business fields. And the word "tomboy" is taking on a whole different meaning, says the June issue of Seventeen Magazine. Psychologists have pointed out that young girls are no longer criticized for demonstrating assertive behavior. And girls who are good at sports now get favorable male reactions. "I think there's more emphasis on companionship in dating these days," says Dr. Janet S. Hyde, an associate professor of psychology at Bowling Green State University in Ohio. "A boy probably prefers someone who can play tennis with him to someone who just watches him." The latest research indicates that many tomboys enjoy taking the lead and breaking into new territory. This individualism can help young girls become self-assured, well-adjusted women. Tomboys are made of sugar and spice and everything nice. Today they just have a little more spice!

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 14-year-old girl and when I talk to my girlfriends on the telephone, I'm allowed to use the phone in the family room. But when I talk to my boyfriend, my mother makes me sit in the kitchen so she can hear every word I say. Also I can only talk to him once a day. I think that I'm entitled to a little privacy. I also think that I should be able to talk to him more than once a day. After all, this is a free country. Do you agree? — Karen, Gadsden, Ala.

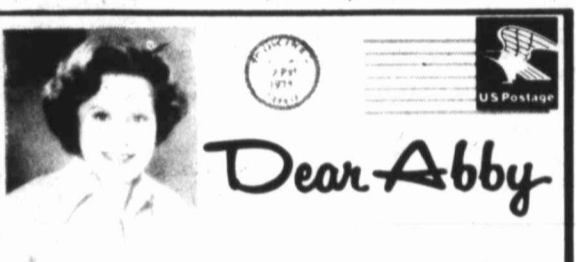

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 29-year-old guy. I did get involved with him but I never made love with him. Please, how can I convince my parents that I'm innocent? — Kathy, Longview, Wash.

Dr. Wallace: My mother never listens to me. Today when I was talking to her about some school problems, she listened for a few minutes and then picked up the telephone to call a friend even before I was finished talking. I don't understand why she does this. I thought I was her friend. Please print my letter because my mom reads this column. — Nan, Worland, Wyo.

Dr. Wallace: I've got a 21-year-old brother who smokes pot and drinks hard liquor. Every night he goes out with his friends and gets stoned. Then he calls my dad who picks him up. When they get home my brother is always hateful to my dad who can't work because he is a disabled veteran. My brother has had many jobs but he only keeps them for a week or so. When he does stay home, all he does is eat and sleep, and sleep and eat. Why does my dad put up with him? — Marie, Valparaiso, Ind.

An Adaptive Response For Adoptive Parents

DEAR ABBY: I am the editor of a newsletter for adoptive parents. It is called OURS (Organization for a United Response).
Some years back you had a column about the typical stupid questions all parents of adopted children were asked. You offered some wonderful suggested replies. Could you please hunt up that item and run it again? I would like to run it in our newsletter with your permission.
ANN G. IN EARLINGTON, KY.

DEAR ANN: I found the item, and here it is:
"DEAR ABBY: A prospective adoptive mother asked you for help in replying to 'dear, kindly, well-meaning' friends and relatives who ask personal questions about the adoption. May I help? I have been through it four times and have heard all comments and questions. Here are some tried and true responses:
Q: Oh, isn't it a shame you can't have 'children of your own'?
A: Not really; there's a lot of insanity in both our families.
Q: Do you know all about the parents?
A: Everything. One was male. The other was female.
Q: Did the adoption agency try to match your features, coloring and personalities?
A: Good grief, I hope not!
Q: Aren't you worried about hereditary factors?
A: Haven't you. Regardless of how bad their ancestors were, they've got to be better than ours!
Best wishes!

Hearst joins cause

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst says her experience with violence at the hands of the Symbionese Liberation Army has prompted her to champion a cause — that of battered women. The newspaper heiress, who was kidnapped in 1974 by SLA radicals, Thursday held her first press conference since she was released in January from the prison where she was serving an armed robbery conviction. She told reporters: "Having been a victim of violence, this is the reason I'm so concerned with battered women. I was the victim of a very violent crime and I don't want to see anyone involved in violence of any kind. "I understand how helpless and desperate these women feel," she said. "They are sometimes afraid to call the police because they don't think they will help them." She and women's rights activist Gloria Allred introduced a card printed with the legal rights of battered women, which they said would be distributed throughout Los Angeles with the aid of police.

Jagger returns home

LONDON (AP) — After visiting her war-torn homeland of Nicaragua, Bianca Jagger returned to London for today's court hearing on her request to have her divorce suit against rock star Mick Jagger moved to California. Mrs. Jagger, who filed for divorce in February, seeks a settlement under California's community property law. Jagger wants the case heard in London. Mrs. Jagger's attorney, Marvin Mitchelson, said the California action seeks equal division of Jagger's property. "It would involve several million dollars," he said.

Chip praises father

BOSTON (AP) — President Carter's record-low standings will rise once other presidential candidates surface and take stands on the issues, says Carter's son, Chip. And the younger Carter, on a campaign swing through Massachusetts, predicted Thursday harsh measures would be implemented to ease the energy shortage, including the gas rationing authority his father supports. The 29-year-old Carter, interviewed by the Lowell Sun, blamed his father's low poll ratings on being compared to "ideals." He said those ratings will rise as other candidates show their positions on energy and inflation.

Trucks beginning to move slowly

By The Associated Press
 "There's trucks. Not as many as I'd like to see, but they're moving," said a Pennsylvania truck stop owner as truckers in two more states voted to go back to work and the decline of the month-old strike continued. Meanwhile, Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch, who recently drove a big rig to California to learn about drivers' problems, promised Thursday he would press for reforms in trucking regulations this weekend at the National Governor's Conference. A still-undetermined number of the nation's 100,000 independent haulers went on strike to protest fuel prices and shortages, the 55 mph speed limit and weight regulations that vary from state to state. The strike had prompted worries of widespread food shortages and dry gasoline pumps as the haulers parked their rigs and blocked highways. The Carter administration last week proposed a plan for dealing with truckers' grievances, and the Independent Truckers Association estimates two-thirds of the protesters have gone back to work. "We are looking at the whole situation today and we'll see what the locals want to do," said Mac Vernon, ITA national press spokesman. "A lot of guys couldn't afford to stay out any longer." Bill Hill of the Independent Truckers Unity Coalition urged drivers to continue the shutdown. But Thursday, drivers in Utah voted to end their strike, retaining the option to walk out again if future conditions warrant. Maryland haulers also voted to go back to work, unaware that Gov. Harry Hughes had ordered an increase in the state's road weight limits, a step the truckers had sought, as a fuel conservation measure allowing fewer trucks to haul more goods. Finch told truckers in Dallas he would seek passage of uniform weight regulation and adoption of fairer fuel allocations at the weekend governor's conference.
