BOAT PEOPLE — Flood waters caused by heavy rains Wednesday, brought out people in boats to survey their damage to property.

25 inches of rain falls

Upper Texas coast residents evacuated

Law enforcement agencies and the National Guard evacuated residents of low-lying areas today as wind-blown sheets of rain drenched the heavily populated upper Texas coast.

Water poured into homes and business as remnants from tropical storm Claudette dumped up to 25 inches of rain in the Southeast Texas area.

In Houston, civil defense officials issued appeals for boats and gasoline as hundreds of homes in southeastern sections of the city and Harris County were flooded. The state highway department closed Interstate 45, running north and south, between Houston and Galveston.

Interstate 10, running east-west between Houston and Beaumont, was closed near Channelview, just east of Houston, because of reported washouts. The alternate route, U.S. 90, also had water over it, effectively cutting a link between the two cities.

Sabine Pass, on the southeastern tip of the state, was virtually cut off today as water covered Texas 87 on both sides of the city. It is the only major road running in and out of the town.

Houston police established a command post on Interstate 45 at Sagemont, near Ellington Air Force Base, to dispatch boats to areas where water was reported as deep as six feet.

Entrance roads to the Johnson Space Center, the training base for the nation's astronauts, were flooded.

Rainfall had ranged from 14 to 25 inches in some areas of Galveston, Harris and Brazoria counties since tropical storm Claudette moved ashore to the east Tuesday afternoon.

Rain from Claudette's remnants continued and forecasters indicated it might not end before Friday.

"The triggering mechanism is stationary," said Jerry Boudreaux, a forecaster at the National Weather Service.

"As each group of storms dies out, another group regenerates."

Houston civil defense asked operators of unflooded service stations along Interstate 45 to open and make gasoline available for owners who bring boats in for emergency use.

Farther to the north the rains had forced evacuation of Baytown's flood-prone Brownwood area as rain and tide water poured over a protective levee. Baytown residents on Tuesday rejected a bond issue to buy the Brownwood section and convert it to a park.

Evacuation shelters were opened in Southeast Houston, South Houston, Pasadena, the NASA area, Baytown, La Porte, Dickinson, Alta Loma, Galveston and Clear Lake City.

In Pasadena, police Sgt. K.F. McCright said quite a number of residents — have been evacuated and the situation was getting no better.

"Every time the phone rings, somebody wants to be evacuated," he said.

All roads leading to and from Alvin, between Houston and Galveston, were closed due to flooding. The state highway department also said Texas 288 and 35 at Angleton and Texas 3 in the Webster area in Harris County were closed.

One death was reported Wednesday when a man drowned when his automobile went into deep water at an intersection in Beaumont.

The National Guard was mobilized Wednesday by Texas Gov. Bill Clements to help with the evacuations.

There were no indications as to when relief might be in sight from the torrential rain as forecasters said radar indicated that the showers extended well into the Gulf of Mexico. The overall, slow movement of the system, the remnants of Tropical Depression Claudette, was northward, meaning the activity would continue.

Flooding was reported early today in Harris, Matagorda, Liberty and Brazoria Counties as well as several counties in the Beaumont-Port Arthur area.

Hundreds were housed in temporary shelters in numerous communities along the upper coast area. Exact figures were not available as flooding appeared to be reaching new areas by the hour.

New evacuations started during the night were reported under way at Freeport, Alvin and El Lago, League City, Dickinson and Clear Lake Village. Evacuations had been under way Wednesday at Port Arthur, Bridge City and Lakeview.

More than 20 inches of rain fell at Alvin, the National Weather Service said, adding that it was still raining "extremely heavy" there during the pre-dawn hours.

"This is a record breaking flood," said a spokesman at the National Weather Service office at Houston.

Forecasters urged motorists to stay off roads and streets because many are flooded and closed because of high water and stalled vehicles.

Strong southerly winds prevented tides from flowing out of Galveston Bay, adding to the problems and causing more flooding problems for residents living along the bayous leading into Galveston Bay.

At Galveston, the National Weather Service said the area very heavy thunderstorms covered most of three counties and is moving little. The thunderstorms covered a vast area of Southeast Texas, extending from near Bay City to West Columbia and Brazoria to Rosharon, Alvin, Friendswood, La Port and Baytown.

Big Springers feeling heat from energy-saving rules

By ANDREA COHEN

The summer heat seems to be worse this year with President Carter's order to turn thermostats to 78 degrees.

An employee at the Big Spring Police Department who asked not to be identified told the Herald that in compliance with City Manager Don Davis' memo to follow the president's orders, the thermostat is set at 78.

"It's hot," he said. "The employees all complain. They've all been fussing because it's so warm."

He went on to say that the part of the station being kept cool is the room where the teletype machines are kept. "Otherwise they won't work," he said.

The temperature at the Settles Hotel, 200 E. 3rd, is at 78 degrees, "but says Lucy Killcrease, desk clerk at the hotel, "most of the air conditioning does not work."

"The air conditioning is old. By the time we get it fixed, something else falls apart," she said.

"We're getting quite a few complaints. They don't like it at all. They're fussing about the humidity. When it's set at 78, it feels like 80 or 90."

Wayne Heintz, manager of the Holiday Inn, East Highway, says the hotel is set at 78 "all over the place."

"About 10 percent of the customers are complaining. It takes some getting used to. The employees are constantly complaining but for once I can't do anything about it."

The temperature at the Post Office has been set at 78 degrees for the past six months.

Postmaster Frank Hardesty says the post office went into a conservation program before the government did.

"The temperature change hasn't affected us too much," he says.

Hardesty says they have reduced energy consumption by about 20 percent. "Every other light in the lobby is turned out. We're trying our best to conserve electrical energy and gas."

"We're seeing if we can go back to walking the routes but we don't know yet. We need to see how much extra time it takes as compared to gas consumption."

A spokesperson for Rip Griffin's Truck Terminal, I-20 and Highway 87, says the thermostats are set at 78 degrees. "There are a few complaints but no problems," she said.

Vince Portsch, owner of Family's Country Kitchen, 208 Gregg, keeps the temperature at 72 degrees. "Otherwise the restaurant gets entirely too warm. We try to keep it cool for customers or else they'll go somewhere else.

"I tried it (keeping the thermostat at 78 degrees) but I got complaints. We get a lot of older people, I guess, because it's cooler."

Hospitals are exempt from the president's energy restrictions. Malone-Hogan Hospital keeps the general temperature at 75 degrees. The temperature according to Emily Ward is regulated by patient needs.

She explained that surgery and delivery rooms are set differently. The surgery room is set at 70 degrees with 50 to 60 percent humidity. The delivery room and the newborn nursery are "about the same."

The Veterans Administration Medical Center is set at 76 degrees, according to JoAnn Stauleup, secretary to the chief of staff.

"The whole hospital is controlled by one thermostat," she said. "We keep the whole hospital regulated for patient care."

Opening night at AJRA rodeo was injury-free

A crowd estimated at 750 sat in on the opening night performance of the 34th annual Howard County Junior Rodeo here Wednesday night.

The show continues nightly through Saturday. Tonight's show is scheduled for 8 p.m.

Spectators saw some fast times and some notable spills, although the first show was injury-free.

There were 171 entries on hand for the first show.

Paula Allen, Coahoma 4-H Club, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Allen, was crowned 1979 Rodeo Queen. She won in competition with four other girls, all of whom were in the area when the winner was announced.

Annette Mitchell was the only local winner in the opening round of competition. Competing in the girls' breakaway roping event for ages 16-19, Annette finished first.

In breakaway roping for boys 12 and under, Shawn Chamber of Haskell and Russell Perrish of Evant tied for first place.

In boys' breakaway roping, ages 13-15, Cody Newton of Gail wound up first.

Belt buckles will be awarded to overall winners at the conclusion of the show.

Wednesday's results:

Come out tonight — 8 p.m., The Rodeo Bowl.

Area Relations Breakfast scheduled Friday in Lamesa

LAMESA — The seventh annual Area Relations Breakfast will be held beginning at 7 a.m., Friday in the Dawson County Community Center here.

Chairman of the event is Dorothy Haney, who said she was expecting a crowd exceeding 200. Fifty-two area communities have been invited to have representatives at the breakfast.

A traveling trophy will be awarded to the community with the most people present.

Last year's winner was Sparenberg while Welch was awarded the prize two years ago.

The trophy is a large mental windmill built by Joe Raines.

The meal, which will be served by Norma Johnson of the Pheasant Restaurant, will consist of ham, sausage, eggs, hash browns, biscuits and coffee.

The annual breakfast is sponsored by Lamesa businessmen. Master of ceremonies will be Lamesa police chief Lee Barnett. The Jim Hart family will sing and play old-time musical selections during the program.

Breakfast music will be provided by the Llano Estacado Balladeers, a country group composed of Johnny Montgomery, Frankie Merrick, Dale Merrick, R.T. Bingham, Floyd Moore, Gene Truitt and Lona Bradley.

GRAND ENTRY PARADE — Contestants and officials of the annual Big Spring AJRA Rodeo, which started Wednesday night in the Rodeo Bowl, are shown going through intricate maneuvers in the grand entry parade. The wild west show continues through Saturday night.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Patent answers

Q. I've heard that getting a government patent can be complicated. How do I go about it?

A. Get in touch with the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C., 20231. The phone number is 202-557-3158. The Patent Office says the key concept in patents is novelty. Generally, the invention must not have been used or described before in this country. Not patentable are small advances such as changes in size or color or any developments obvious to anyone familiar with the technology of a particular field. Patents are granted for actual processes or devices, not merely the idea or suggestion of possible new inventions. Once a patent is granted, it bars others from making, using or selling the invention in the U.S. for 17 years.

Chamber takes aim at minimum wage hike

Arson Reward Fund implemented

By EILEEN McGUIRE

F. LeRoy Tillery, new executive vice president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, took his place beside chamber president Johnnie Lou Avery for a noon meeting of the board of directors Wednesday.

Tillery led the body in a prayer and the Pledge of Allegiance.

Of primary concern was outlining regulations for implementing the Arson Reward Fund. After much discussion, previously suggested by-laws were modified and will be presented to the City Council at its next regular meeting.

The fund is a cooperative effort of the Chamber and city council to curtail incidents of arson by pursuing convictions.

Purpose of the reward fund, as clarified during the board discussion, is to encourage citizen input in obtaining convictions.

The fund will provide rewards to persons giving information, that might not otherwise be available, which leads to an arrest and conviction in an arson case. The amount of the reward will be determined according to the seriousness of the crime.

The by-laws provide for a 24-hour hotline, manned by the local police and fire departments, through which confidential information may be relayed and anonymity insured to the caller.

By-laws concerning the administration of the fund were changed following a discussion of whether the city arson investigator could be an objective member of the committee.

Though input from the investigator and district attorney will be necessary to determine the worthiness of any information received from the public regarding arson cases, they will not serve in an administration capacity of the fund.

The group governing the fund will be made up of the Chamber's Health and Safety chairman, Public Affairs Council director, executive vice president, two people appointed by the city council, and four other citizens appointed by the Chamber.

According to the by-laws, the nine would serve one-year terms, but may be reappointed.

Board member Tom Watson, Herald publisher, suggested the by-laws be revised to stipulate that monies be invested in interest-bearing accounts rather than specify six-month Certificate of Deposits.

The CDs, Watson said, might mean a delay in rewarding informants, defeating the purpose of the arson fund. The revision will make funds readily available to be rewarded.

A motion to accept the changes in the by-laws was made by Daryle Hohertz and seconded by Bob Hurt. A draft of the by-laws, with the modifications, will be made by Hohertz, chairman of Public Affairs, and submitted to the city council for its approval.

Upon Tillery's recommendation, the board of directors adopted a stand regarding legislation pending in Congress that would increase minimum wage.

Tillery pointed out that an increase in wages would be inflationary and suggested that businessmen write to their representatives "about how this will affect your business."

The board resolved to write a letter to U.S. Senators Lloyd Benson and John Tower to delay an increase in minimum wage. In addition to a letter from the Chamber, businessmen were urged to write individual letters, as Tillery suggested it would be more effective.

Another new personality at the Chamber, Nadine Pittman, was introduced. Mrs. Pittman, wife of Pioneer Natural Gas Company Manager Deal Pittman, replaces Claudene Floyd, who resigned for personal reasons.

Mrs. Pittman will serve in a bookkeeping capacity for the Chamber. She is already familiar with the Chamber's systems, having kept the Chamber's financial records and books while working for Maxwell Green's CPA firm.

Carol Hutchinson, who has worked for the Chamber for the past six years, will also be leaving. Her resignation, effective Aug. 3, was read and accepted by the board.

Mrs. Hutchinson will be leaving the Chamber to accompany her husband to San Angelo where he is being transferred. In her resignation, she stated that the chamber has been "an important part of my life."

Appreciation for the work Mrs. Hutchinson did as a staff member of the Chamber was expressed by Mrs. Avery. Filling the vacant position will be one of the Tillery's first objectives as the new executive.

A discussion was entered into regarding the Chamber's new stationery design. The new three-color design would result in a 60 percent cost increase, Walter Wheat, treasurer, said.

The matter of stationery was tabled pending investigation of Wheat and Tillery into a one-color design, using screening techniques to accomplish the same effects as a three-color design.

Mrs. Avery made a request that Chamber members indicate their choices of candidates to fill upcoming board vacancies of retiring board members Sidney Clark, Daryle Hohertz, Robert H. Moore III, Jack Redding, Walter Wheat and past president Ray Don Williams.

Candidates will be nominated by a nominating committee, headed by Cosden President Ken Perry. Nominations will be published in the August issue of the Chamber's bulletin, "The Volunteer". In September, chamber members will vote and candidates with the most votes will be announced.

Mrs. Avery also requested input from Chamber members regarding a 1980 Program of Action for the Chamber, which will be finalized in September.

WINNER IN TIE DOWN ROPING EVENT — Roy Miller of Ozona is shown about to dismount after roping a calf in the tie-down roping event, an opening night feature of the annual Big Spring AJRA Rodeo Wednesday night. Roy was competing in the 13-14 age bracket.

SEARCHING — Mike Eggleston, foreground, detective with the Major Crimes Task Force searches for evidence of drugs at 1303 Owens Wednesday night. Randle Moore, center, 19, who lives at that address, was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana. Also arrested was Jackie Lynn Lockhart and charged with possession of a controlled substance. Detective Ted Lancaster looks on.

Aggressive cats cause concern for Statonites

STANTON — Strange-acting cats have some residents of Stanton on edge.

According to Stanton Police Chief Jerry Register, residents have been reporting cats displaying aggressive behavior.

Tuesday, police apprehended a black cat that had been sought for two weeks.

The animal's head has been sent off to Austin for analysis and Register says he expects a report back today or Friday.

Police are waiting on another report regarding a cat shot by Register Sunday.

A man on the south side of Stanton reported that the animal had killed the family's pet cat before retreating beneath an automobile in the driveway of the home.

After several futile attempts by Register to apprehend the cat alive, it was shot. The dead animal was sent to Big Spring where the animal's head was amputated and shipped to Austin.

"Quite a few people have called reporting strange-acting cats since then," Register said today.

"We've been getting reports of cats chasing people. That's pretty unusual. The people say the cats are acting real aggressive."

Register said that no case of rabies have been confirmed as of yet.

Concerned with public safety, the Stanton Jaycees are sponsoring a rabies vaccination clinic Saturday. According to Register, Stanton does not have a veterinarian so a clinic is held several times a year.

"We vaccinated 182 dogs last year," he stated. He said that everyone, county and non-county residents, may use the clinic.

"We want to vaccinate them all," he said. "Even if they're from New York, we'll take them."

Midland veterinarian Dr. Henry Tillet will administer the rabies vaccinations from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Stanton fire station. The charge will be his usual fee, according to Register, but will save Stanton residents from having to take their pets to another city to have them vaccinated.

Two juveniles arrested, stolen pickup recovered

A stolen vehicle was recovered and two juveniles arrested Tuesday night by Howard County Sheriff's Deputies Raymond Bedford and William Shankles.

The two youths were returned to Midland County by a Midland County juvenile probation office worker. A stolen black Thunderbird, stolen from an apartment complex in Midland, was impounded at a local wrecking yard.

Shankles and Bedford received a report at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday that two Mexican males attempted to steal a motorcycle from a Sand Springs resident. Witnesses gave descriptions of two youths to the deputies.

At 6:45 p.m. the Big Spring Police Department dispatcher radioed that two youths matching witnesses' description were seen at SH 350 near the Howard County Industrial Park.

The deputies stopped the two juveniles as they crossed the highway near the Stampede Dance Hall. The youths told the deputies a white pickup, that was then leaving the scene, had given them a ride.

The two were ordered into the car and the pickup was intercepted. The pickup driver verified their story.

The two juveniles were then given their rights and put under arrest. The deputies declined to discuss the case with them until a judge had given them their warnings.

The thunderbird was recovered on SH 350. The deputies realized it was stolen after they arrested the two juveniles and ran a check on the car.

Deaths

H. Stevens

BROWNFIELD — Houston Stevens, 77, died Tuesday morning at Studebaker Community Hospital in Los Angeles, Calif., after a brief illness.

Services will be at First Baptist Church Chapel, Brownfield, 2 p.m. Friday. Officiating will be Kenneth Flowers, pastor of the church. Burial will be in Terry County Memorial Cemetery under the direction of Brownfield Funeral Home.

Born and raised in Parker County, Stevens married the former Ora Plumlee in Weatherford, Jan. 25, 1924.

He attended college in Weatherford, Denton, Brownwood and at West Texas State University.

He was a teacher in public schools and an administrator. He moved from Lamesa to Wellman in 1953 where he served as teacher, principal and superintendent.

He moved to Brownfield in 1959, serving as county superintendent until retiring in 1972.

He was in Downey, Calif., visiting a son when he suddenly became ill.

He was a member of the First Baptist Church in Brownfield.

Survivors include his wife of the home; three sons, Elgin Stevens of Downey, Calif., Don Stevens of Big Spring, and Burnell Stevens of Sundown; three brothers, Martin Stevens of Dallas, Leo Stevens of Fort Worth and Archie Stevens of Weatherford; and five grandchildren.

Man faces LSD count

For the first time in several months an arrest was made locally Wednesday night for the alleged possession of Lysergic Acid Diethylamide (LSD).

Jackie Lynn Lockhart, 20, 1303 Owens, was arrested in the 1200 block of South Gregg and charged with possession of a controlled substance. Approximately 12 dosages of LSD were found.

Also arrested was Randle Kullie Moore, 19, 1303 Owens, who was arrested at his residence and charged with felony possession of marijuana.

Both men were arraigned this morning before Justice of the Peace Bob West. Bond was set at $15,000 for Moore and $25,000 for Lockhart.

Operating oil rigs increase

The number of operating oil rigs in the state continued to rise this week.

As of Monday, 763 rigs were making hole, compared to 751 for the week before. The total rose compared to that of 696 for June 25, and dropped from the 896 total for July 24, 1978.

Retrial set Sept. 24 in local robbery trial

A hung jury deliberating from 3:15 p.m. to 11:15 p.m. Wednesday resulted in the setting of a new trial for Gilbert Coffee, charged with the beating and robbery of Gailia Perkins April 28.

The retrial, set for Sept. 24, is necessary because of the dissenting vote of one juror, Robert Barton. He called his stand "uncomfortable."

"You don't feel too good to be out there alone. Technically, I wasn't," he said. "I don't feel particularly good."

Barton added that he didn't sleep well last night because of the trial. "I couldn't base a fair decision on whether or not I will sleep well," he said.

When asked about the cost of a retrial he replied, "That's not what justice is about, is it? If I was going to be tried it's what I'd want."

Rain drenches southern Texas

By The Associated Press
Wind-blown rain drenched the upper Texas coast early today and National Guard troops and police evacuated residents of low-lying areas as water poured into homes and businesses.

One death was reported Wednesday when a man drowned after his automobile went into deep water at an intersection in Beaumont.

The National Guard was mobilized Wednesday by Gov. Bill Clements to help with the evacuations as more than 20 inches were reported in some areas.

Forecasters said radar indicated that the showers extended well into the Gulf of Mexico. The overall, slow movement of the system, remnants of Tropical Depression Claudette, was northward, meaning the rains would continue, they said.

More than 20 inches of rain fell at Alvin, the National Weather Service said, adding that it was still raining "extremely heavy" there before dawn. Street flooding was said to be "severe."

Forecasters urged motorists to stay off roads and streets because many are flooded and closed because of high water and stalled vehicles.

Strong southerly winds prevented tides from flowing out of Galveston Bay, adding to the problems and causing more flooding problems for residents living along the bays leading into the bay.

Elsewhere, a small tornado uprooted trees and plants near Pikes Peak as a chain of severe thunderstorms battered eastern Colorado. No injuries were reported and there was no damage to any buildings, the Weather Service reported.

WEATHER FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Partly cloudy to clear through Friday with widely scattered thunderstorms mainly Panhandle and mountains through tonight and mountains Friday. No important temperature changes. Highs near 90 Panhandle to 105 extreme south. Lows 64 to 76 except upper 50s mountains.

EXTENDED FORECAST
WEST TEXAS — Widely scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms mainly eastern portions. Otherwise partly cloudy with no important temperature changes. Highs low 90s north to near 100 south except near 105 along the Rio Grande. Lows low 60s mountains and Panhandle to mid 70s south.

FORECAST (Map showing temperature ranges for various regions)

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers and rain are expected in the forecast period, today until Friday morning, from the central and western Gulf to New England. Sunny skies are forecast for most of the nation. Cooler temperatures are expected for the upper Great Lakes region but most of the country will be warm.

Capital has new hazard

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — After surviving a nuclear accident and enduring recurring floods, Pennsylvania's capital city must now deal with a new hazard — hand grenades.

The fourth grenade found in the last two months turned up this week at the city's steam generating facility.

"It's developing into some sort of syndrome," said Richard Vajda, captain of city police detectives.

Officials at the 56th Ordnance Detachment at nearby Fort Indiantown Gap determined Wednesday that the latest grenade was not live. But two of the four found so far were. One exploded May 25, killing Terrence Adams, 4, and seriously injuring his 15-year-old brother Bernard.

Authorities said the boys apparently found the M-67 high explosive fragmentation grenade while they were playing. It went off while they were handling it in front of their house.

Other grenades have been found in a cemetery and near a school.

The grenade found Monday and the one near the school were missing their top portions, including the fusing devices, police said.

Though the grenade at the school had no fuse, it did have a charge and was detonated by explosive experts at Indiantown Gap.

Police and military authorities still have no idea where the weapons — some of Korean War vintage — are coming from.

"There's been no headway," Vajda said of his investigation.

Two of the grenades, known as MK-II's, haven't been used by the Army for at least 15 years, said Staff Sgt. Patrick Craig of the Ordnance Detachment. The grenade that turned up in the cemetery was identified as a training dud, produced since 1973.

The M-67, which killed the Adams boy, is a variety still in use.

Vajda said the closest arsenal that stores such grenades is Letterkenny in Franklin County, about 60 miles southwest of Harrisburg.

Gasoline supplies tighter

By The Associated Press
Higher gasoline prices and somewhat tighter supplies are expected for Texas motorists this weekend.

A survey of 420 service stations by the American Automobile Association indicates a smaller number of stations will be open at night while awaiting August allocations under federal supply regulations.

As opposed to 3 percent a week ago, 7 percent of the stations reported having already exhausted supplies of at least one grade of the July allocations.

The AAA survey indicates this availability of supplies:

AMARILLO — 36 stations surveyed, with 58 percent closing by 8 p.m. weekdays, 38 percent by 6 p.m. Saturday, and 63 percent on Sunday.

AUSTIN — 15 stations, 93 percent closing by 8 p.m. weekdays, 86 percent by 6 p.m. Saturday, and 80 percent Sunday.

Government grabbing for more land

A few among us are concerned over the practice of some government agencies of acquiring privately owned lands and using such stewardship in bids for political clout. The rest of us should share that worry.

Never before in the history of our country has the government of the United States been so deeply involved in the business of acquiring the land of individuals and families or so limiting the use of that land as to make it relatively worthless.

When the government takes over property, everybody owns it and yet nobody does.

BEGINNING IN the 1960s, federal planning grants under the Housing Act of 1954 were implemented with increasing frequency to lay the groundwork for massive invasions of private property rights.

The Clean Air Act, with its numberless amendments, was interpreted by the Environmental Protection Agency (which suddenly developed muscles) to authorize the prohibition of parking lots in one California city. The Federal Water Pollution Control Amendments created a Federal monster which began telling men of the soil how to run their farms, under the guise of regulating 'non-point source pollution.'

The Coastal Zone Management Act gave U.S. support to the imposition of zoning controls along much of the nation's coastline. The current housing shortage in California can be blamed on misuse of CZMA.

Numberless citizens lost their homes and businesses due to the federally-supported urban renewal plan. The Endangered Species Act enhances the well-being of creatures like the snail darter and the furbish lousewort but threatens countless energy development projects.

A MAJOR EFFORT to create the Federally-controlled system of zoning and 'growth management' was three times beaten back in Congress but the forces behind the proposed legislation have by no means run up the white flag. Its reappearance has occurred piecemeal, hidden within other legislation, in every subsequent session of Congress.

Organizations worried about the encroachment of the Federal government point out that even where the U.S. does not actually acquire the ownership of private property, it is acting to destroy the long-standing interests of people who have relied on the availability of public lands for their livelihoods.

Seemingly, those groups say, people have no place in the environment.

President Carter played the bureaucrats' game by recommending that Congress put another 15.4 million acres of public domain into permanent wilderness status, that in addition to retaining the freeze on another 10.6 million acres for further study.

Government agencies have carried on a propaganda campaign by leading the public into believing that vast, scenic areas are being destroyed by private individuals. The truth is, except for a few privileged individuals who backpack into the area, no one will be allowed to enjoy the wilderness. In short, mankind is not considered compatible with the wilderness areas. People needs are ignored.

Some municipalities have come to regard parks the same way, that parks should not be for the people but are there only to be admired from afar — better by postcard or movie slides than in person.

Farmers, ranchers, homebuilders, energy developers and some concerned citizens are rallying to fight the concept that the traditional idea of private property ownership should be replaced by the older notion of 'social property' — that all land really belongs to the sovereign, not the individual. The groups for the preservation of the private ownership concept are trying to rally as much support as possible, hoping to reshape the thinking in Washington that the individual and his rights do indeed matter.

Perhaps it is not too late.

Like lemmings

Around the rim

Eileen McGuire

The sudden sweep in President Carter's Cabinet last week reminded me of those little rodents who run and leap into the sea.

Lemmings instinctively knows when they are endangering themselves so every so often hundreds of them make the supreme sacrifice for the survival of their species.

When over-population threatens the colonies, the weaker members commit voluntary mass-suicide.

THE MASS-RESIGNATIONS of Carter's former staff was apparently a measure to increase the chances for the survival of the Carter administration.

From the past few weeks' events, I get the feeling that Carter's real presidency is about to begin. The changes in image and staff, however, indicate that he is now concerned with his popularity.

This president has had a great deal to contend with. The country was not in very good shape when he took office and while he's been coming to grips with our problems, they have worsened.

With primaries coming up, and Carter's obvious concern over them, I now fear that any resolutions that may come from the White House will be made with respect to popularity polls.

The advent of election year may, on one hand, spur Carter to action. But any action that is taken, I'm afraid, will be dependent on its popularity. With problems as serious as ours, it may take unpopular action to resolve them.

Most of us can only speculate on what the causes of our national problems, particularly inflation and alleged energy shortages, are and what action needs to be taken to rectify the problems as swiftly as possible.

As extreme as the problems are, the resolutions are also apt to be extreme. Extreme changes may result in unpopularity which may very well mean that there will be no effective resolutions until the next administration, whether it be Carter's or someone else's, and popularity contests are no longer an immediate concern.

I HELPED TO put Carter in the White House with the hope that a more common man than past presidents might have more sympathy for the less affluent majority. His polled unpopularity was an indication to me that he was not going to bend to any one solution just because it would gain him votes.

I'm tired of the mess and all of the rigmarole of getting it cleaned up. Surely some experts at the top have been studying our problems long enough to know where the solutions might lie.

Whatever needs to be done, regardless of how unpopular the action is, to put us back on a productive track, I want it done. The person who does that, popular or unpopular, will get my vote.

Any extreme measures that interfere with my lifestyle will naturally solicit complaints from me, but if they are necessary to prevent spending the rest of my years with the current long-standing problems, the unpopular action will also be supported and complied with.

As we bounced from one president to another looking for someone who will save us without our feeling it, there has to be a danger of passing a point of no return when it will be too late to salvage the economy or insure enough oil for the winter.

EACH NEW president who comes into office has only a few years to attempt to implement any solutions before worrying about popularity. It seems a waste that any work begun by one may be scrapped to begin anew by another. Since effects of any effective programs may not be felt immediately, there's no real way to measure a president's effectiveness.

Carter said in a speech aired during the past weeks that individuals would have to forget about their own interest and work for the common good of the country if we are to overcome our problems. Yet with primaries just around the corner, the president will most likely be looking after his interest — popularity.

Politicking is big business and it gets in the way of good government. Until the next election, more than 15 months off, is over with, I fear that we are stuck in the mess we're in.

And looking over the list of declared hopefuls, I don't recognize a savior among them.

Americans, resign!

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Having done everything they could to cleanse the Administration of disloyal and incompetent appointees, the White House advisers were surprised their actions didn't go over well with a majority of American people.

"There must be something else we can do to show Jimmy is a strong President," a White House image-maker said.

"I THINK I'VE got it," said the in-house pollster. "Why don't we ask every American to hand in his resignation? Then we could decide who we want to keep in the country and who we don't."

The chief of staff said, "I like it. The President could go on television and explain that he had made a lot of mistakes by not demanding the discipline and loyalty of the electorate. He could ask every American of voting age to hand in his resignation so he could restructure the country and get rid of the deadwood and those who aren't team players."

The press secretary said, "It's a gamble, but it makes political sense."

The in-house pollster said, "How do we decide which American resignations we'll accept and which ones we won't?"

THE CHIEF OF staff replied, "We'll send out a questionnaire, asking the head of the family to evaluate everyone living in the household."

"Beautiful," the image-maker said.

"We could have everyone rated on a scale of 1 to 6. We could ask if they had the skills to be a good American, if they'd come up with new ideas when Mr. Carter was President and most of all how loyal they were to Jimmy."

The press secretary said, "We should also find out their strengths and weaknesses and what they've accomplished since Carter's been President."

The chief of staff said, "I want to know how they feel about the President's energy proposals and the SALT treaty. If they can't support him on those two measures, they don't deserve to be part of this Administration."

The in-house pollster said, "I think we should also ask them how they feel about Kennedy. Anybody close to Kennedy has to go. You can't be a good American if you don't support the incumbent President."

The press secretary said, "I know a lot of members of the media whose resignations I'm going to accept."

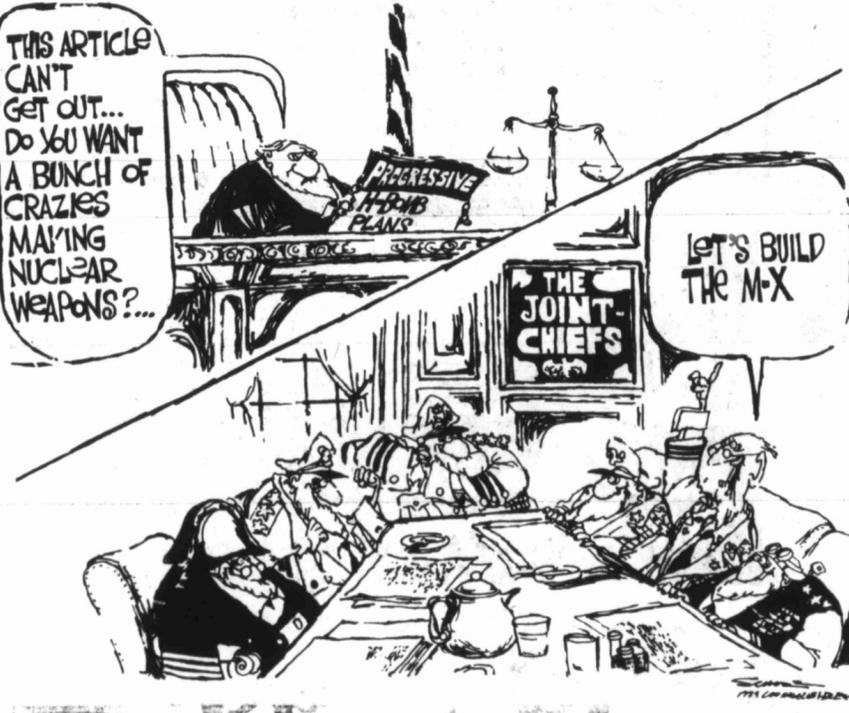

The image-maker said, "I think we should appoint a whole new Congress."

The in-house pollster added, "What I like about it is that it takes the heat off Carter and puts it on the American people where it belongs. If it hadn't been for them, the President wouldn't be in all this trouble."

The chief of staff said, "Then it's agreed. We'll have another domestic summit at Camp David, and after the President consults with all the leaders of the country, except Republicans, he'll come down and say that he did the wrong thing by asking his Cabinet to resign. He'll admit the trouble with his leadership was that the American people wouldn't follow it. Therefore he is asking for everyone's resignation so he can put the country's house in order."

"Does that mean we have to resign, too?" the in-house pollster asked.

The chief of staff said, "Yes, dummy, but don't get nervous. Carter has to keep us. Great balls of fire. We're all he's got."

Combination medicine helps treatment

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am being treated for Parkinson's disease with a drug called Sinemet. I've had side effects, including terrible shaking. My doctor doesn't seem to offer any other help for me. What do you advise? Are side effects to be expected? How does this drug work? —N.F.

Sinemet is a combination of drugs that is effective for Parkinson's, but not without side effects, especially early in use.

The two drugs are levodopa and carbidopa. The levodopa works by crossing the brain barrier where it helps the brain produce a substance called "dopamine." It is a deficiency of dopamine that causes Parkinson's symptoms.

The problem with levodopa by itself is that much of its action is lost before it gets to the brain. The carbidopa minimizes this loss, thus allowing more levodopa to reach the brain. For some, the amounts of levodopa used has been limited by side effects. The combination can reduce side effects and allow more levodopa to be used. The proportions of the two drugs can be varied (increasing the amount of carbidopa). This can be arranged with the manufacturer.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is it true that hemorrhoid surgery is hell, that a person is better off without it, and that hemorrhoids can be treated without surgery? I've heard it leaves a person a practical cripple. My decision hangs on your answer. —D.M.

I wouldn't want your decisions to hang on what I tell you, nor would I want it to hang on scare stories you've heard. Sounds like you've talked with a friend who has had a bad experience and who is passing his "expertise" on to you. If you need hemorrhoid surgery, you need it, and you may as well get it over with. It's not pleasant, but what surgery is? You may have rectal discomfort, but that is usually eased in time with simple sitz baths. You may have some loss of bowel control for a few days or a week.

The chief factors in making a decision for surgery are the seriousness of the hemorrhoids and the amount of trouble they have been giving you. Your doctor should be able to answer the first question and you the second. Hemorrhoidectomy is neither hell nor a rose garden. It's discussed in greater length in the booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Ruble: In a recent column you answered a reader who com-

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Several years ago I was very ill. I told God if He would restore me to health I would serve Him. Now I feel like I've not kept my end of the bargain. I'm worried about what He might do to me if I do not start serving Him. What kind of things do you think God wants me to do? —S.D.

DEAR S.D.: I suspect there are many people in your situation. Perhaps they were very sick, or afraid they were about to die on a battlefield, and told God they would serve Him if He would save them. God has been gracious to them and preserved their lives, yet they have forgotten about His goodness. It is good that you are remembering again the commitment you once made.

The first thing God wants you to do is come to Him in faith and trust and turn your life over to Him. I want to be as clear as I can at this point because it might be easy for you to misunderstand. But it is important for you to know that you cannot "buy" God's favor by serving Him. You can never earn your salvation, no matter how much you try or how many good deeds you do. The reason is because God is absolutely pure and holy and cannot tolerate even the slightest sin in His presence. "Art thou not from everlasting, O Lord my God, mine Holy One?...Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look on iniquity" (Habakkuk 1:12, 13).

But God loves you in spite of your sin. Although you have neglected Him and been ungrateful to Him, He still wants you to be His child. What does He want you to do? He wants you to give your life to Christ, His Son. Christ came to take away your sin, and by trusting Him you can be saved. "But when the kindness and love of God our Savior appeared, he saved us, not because of righteous things we had done, but because of his mercy" (Titus 3:4-5, New International Version). By a simple prayer of faith you can ask Christ to come into your life. He will forgive you and make you His own.

Then you will have a whole new life ahead of you — a life of serving God. You will not serve Him out of fear but out of love — love for what He has done for you. Get into the Bible and you will find many things God would have you do. Become active in a church where Christ is preached, and God will begin to open new ways for you to serve Him.

'Great robbery'

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — In what some Pentagon insiders are calling "The Great Plane Robbery," the Air Force has been cagging millions of dollars a year from Congress to keep its controversial C-5A transport planes from falling apart in mid-air.

The C-5A, of course, is the flying turkey that gobbled up $2 billion of taxpayers' money in cost overruns a decade ago. Exposure of this scandal cost A. Ernest Fitzgerald his Pentagon job. The taxpayers were later called upon to extend a $250 million loan guarantee to the plane's manufacturer, Lockheed-Georgia.

WHAT HAS NOT been noticed, however, is the equally scandalous fact that for at least two years the Air Force has been requesting funds to pay Lockheed for the correction of design errors that were known to exist almost from the start. The ongoing bailout effort is needed to keep the C-5A's crackings from falling off in flight.

The total cost of the wing correction program could eventually reach the same figure as the original cost overrun — $2 billion. What most glib congressmen don't know, but the Air Force has admitted in secret internal documents we have obtained, is that even when the wing problem is solved, still more money will be needed to correct other weaknesses in crucial parts of the Air Force's most expensive lemon.

The price tag for the C-5A was already staggering before the wing-correction drain began. The original cost estimate was $28 million per plane, but the delivery price actually proved to be $65 million. Add on the $20 million bill for each plane's wing fix and the total cost comes to $85 million apiece — more than three times the original estimate. And this astronomical figure will fly still higher as other already identified defects are corrected.

The most shocking thing about the wing problem is that the Air Force knew about it even before it took delivery on the first C-5A. Now it is asking Congress for money to redesign the entire wing.

The trouble with the C-5A wing is stunningly simple: Stress tests show that it will wear out at a point somewhere between 6,000 and 8,500 flying hours. It was supposed to weather at least 30,000 hours in the air.

Even after correction, the wings will last only 20,000 hours. But by that time, other parts of the aircraft will have begun to disintegrate, according to the Air Force documents.

"THE REST OF THE aircraft has had problems that cannot be passed over lightly," an internal report states. Test results dating from 1972 showed that the C-5A's fuselage is "highly sensitive to stress corrosion," the report notes, adding: "The C-5A is perhaps the most corrosion-sensitive large aircraft ever built. Additionally, it is a victim of an Air Force-wide lack of understanding of corrosion in general."

Other problems with the Air Force's multimillion-dollar flying mistake:

—The C-5A's nose landing gear and landing-gear yoke will require replacement.

—Aluminum power-distribution cables are already beginning to deteriorate.

—The navigation systems "are not expected to be economically-supportable for the proposed life" of the plane.

—Fire hazards exist despite an extensive — and expensive — fire-prevention system. "We must clearly recognize that this (system) doesn't go to the root of the problem," Air Force brass hats were told at a 1975 briefing.

The same briefing noted that the original contract with Lockheed failed to provide adequate oversight by the Air Force on safety features. The contract didn't even call for safety studies as part of the "owner's manual" purchased from Lockheed, the briefing document noted, "thus they are not available today in the Air Force files."

Footnote: A Lockheed spokesman said he's never heard of the internal Air Force documents we have obtained, and said the 30,000-hour life expectancy was a "goal," not a firm contractual requirement. An Air Force spokesman claimed the cost of the wing corrections would not exceed $1.3 billion.

SOUND OFF: Q. Your article of June 10 contains a reference to Mobil in connection with petroleum prices. We wish to deny emphatically that Mobil has at any time encouraged the Saudis to increase petroleum prices. —Rawleigh Warner Jr., chairman, Mobil Oil Corp.

The executive officers of the four Aramco partners, including Mobil, met with Saudi oil minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani in San Francisco in September 1973. They agreed together upon a price increase, which became the forerunner of the disastrous 1974 price explosion. Sources inside Aramco told me the oil companies encouraged the September 1973 price rise. They reportedly felt it would lead to higher domestic oil prices, which would make it economically feasible to recover more crude from their U.S. oil properties.

Civiletti, Hispanic representatives to meet

WASHINGTON (AP)—Hispanic spokesmen scheduled a meeting today with Deputy Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti, whose nomination as attorney general they are fighting.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., suggested the meeting midway through testimony as the Senate Judiciary Committee began Civiletti's confirmation hearing Wednesday.

"We are strongly opposing Mr. Civiletti's nomination," Paul Sedillo of the Forum of National Hispanic Organizations said. "We feel that as a minority have been neglected by the Justice Department."

Central to the Hispanic opposition is the contention that the Justice Department, with Civiletti in a top leadership spot, has been reluctant to prosecute for civil rights violations involving alleged police brutality against Hispanics. Ninety of 57 cases the group outlined to the committee were in Texas.

"The number of cases that the Justice Department has initiated ... is absolutely a horrendous record," Sedillo said.

Elisa Sanchez of the Mexican-American Women's National Association said, "Our people are being assaulted, murdered and otherwise brutalized while their cries for help fall on the deaf ears of the Justice Department."

Civiletti is scheduled to respond further to senators' questions Friday after the Hispanic groups complete their testimony today. He denied Wednesday, however, any bias in Justice Department activities.

"I have not, in my view at least, shied away or shirked or neglected to move in these areas, and move positively," he said. "I believe we have made strides in the Justice Department."

The deputy attorney general said the Justice Department decided not to issue any indictments in the death of a Larry Lozano because of insufficient evidence of civil rights violations after an extensive investigation.

He said the decision in the Lozano case was a unanimous one, refuting reports Washington officials

Chain fence a nuisance not barrier

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — A chain-link fence divides the United States and Mexico at this border city, but, at least to the law abiding, it is more a nuisance than a barrier.

"I suppose I cross the border half a dozen times a day, on business," said Apostolos Kyriakis.

"I never feel like I'm actually leaving one country and entering another. Growing up here, I guess I've always thought of both sides as sort of the same place."

True. Like other border towns, Nogales, on both sides of the fence, is something of a place apart.

Its culture is its own, neither typically American nor typically Mexican.

"My parents both came from Greece," he said. "My father worked his way over on a ship that docked at Tampico. That was in 1920. He met my mother in Phoenix. Later, they settled in Nogales, on a ranch, and became Mexican citizens."

"I was born on the American side of the border, though, because in 1948 that was where the hospital was."

"I also went all through school on the American side. It was closer, even though my home was in Mexico. So I spoke English at school, Spanish with my playmates and Greek at home."

"Because my parents were Mexican citizens and I was born in America, I was actually a citizen of both countries. When I turned 18, I had to choose. I chose Mexico because that was where we lived."

Kyriakis still lives in Mexico, runs a restaurant there, but his business card lists post office boxes in both Nogales, Mexico, and Nogales, Ariz.

The restaurant Apostolos Kyriakis runs is most unusual, with a most unusual past, although somehow, in a border town, the unusual becomes the commonplace and it doesn't really turn many heads.

overruled U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd of San Antonio. Lozano died in the custody of Ector County, Texas, authorities.

Ruben Sandoval of the League of United Latin American Citizens, who represented Lozano's family in court proceedings, said there were too many inconsistencies in the Justice Department's decision to close the Lozano case.

The San Antonio, Texas, attorney, said, "there has been not only a refusal but an outright ignoring of our rights."

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., asked if the Hispanic spokesmen still would oppose Civiletti if commitments to more minority representation and involvement in the Justice Department are made.

"The relationship is not beyond repair," Sandoval said, adding he was skeptical because of the lack of progress made after previous meetings. Sedillo proposed that the next deputy attorney general should be a Hispanic.

"I can already hear what that conversation is going to be like," Kennedy said jokingly of today's Civiletti-

Hispanic session. Raul Yzaguirre of the National Council of La Raza and Tony Bustamente of La Raza Legal Alliance also opposed the deputy attorney general's promotion at Wednesday's hearing.

Organized labor needs tougher political activity, AFL-CIO officials says

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Organized labor faces a determined assault by business on prevailing construction wage laws and must get tougher in its political activity, a national AFL-CIO official says.

Thomas R. Donahue, executive assistant to national AFL-CIO president George Meany, addressed the Texas AFL-CIO convention on Wednesday.

attack by business on prevailing wage laws and said the activity "represents guerrilla warfare against workers and decent working conditions."

Prevailing wage laws prevent contractors on government jobs from paying workers less than the wages normally paid in a community. A bill to repeal the Texas law died in this year's Legislature only after thousands of "hard hats" thronged the Capitol in protest.

Donahue said opponents of the prevailing wage law talk of holding down costs, "but the real goal is not economy but busting unions."

The convention of delegates from 1,000 union locals, representing some 265,000 union members, began Wednesday and runs through Saturday.

Delegates are expected to reelect Harry Hubbard as president and Joe Gunn as secretary-treasurer without opposition.

Donahue recalled that last year's "Labor Reform Act" was killed by a U.S. Senate filibuster after a move to cut off debate failed by a single vote.

"We probably spent $6 million to $8 million on that effort," he said.

Donahue said with irony that labor should have "an honor roll of COPE-endorsed senators" who voted to let the filibuster continue. COPE is the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education, which endorses candidates and funnels labor money into political campaigns.

The labor bill would have made it easier for unions to organize workers in non-union factories.

"We need to be even tougher in giving support to candidates and in supporting the candidates we endorse," Donahue said.

Prosecutor disagrees with order

HOUSTON (AP) — A prosecutor says he disagrees with a federal judge's findings that prompted an order for acquittal of two fired policemen charged with violating civil rights in a "throw down" gun case.

U.S. District Judge John V. Singleton Jr. made final arguments and jury deliberations unnecessary Wednesday by abruptly ruling the government had failed to prove the defendants had specific intent to violate the rights of Billy Keith Joyvies, 18.

Joyvies was fatally wounded on July 11, 1975, at the end of a high speed chase that began after a tool box had been stolen from a truck.

The indictment against Walter Plaster 53, and John Stephen White, 28, alleged a conspiracy to place a gun in Joyvies' car to make it appear the Houston youth was armed.

A police internal investigation later showed the gun found in the car had been traced to an officer who had been slain earlier in a gunbattle with escaped convicts.

There was conflicting testimony during the trial whether Joyvies was armed. Singleton described the actions of Plaster and White as "improper and shocking" but said there was no conspiracy as the officers sought to protect themselves and the police department.

"The government has the duty to produce sufficient evidence to prove beyond a reasonable doubt each of them had the specific intent to violate a right of Billy Keith Joyvies was guaranteed," Singleton said.

"The evidence in this case does not support any reasonable inference either officer had this intent."

Calvin Botley, the chief prosecutor, said he differs with such findings.

"His findings were the defendants' conduct was shocking, but their purpose was to cover themselves and the police department, not to violate Joyvies' civil rights," Botley said.

Mary Sinderson, head of the U.S. attorney's civil rights division, said investigations of such cases will continue.

"We are, of course, disappointed to lose a case, but it will not slow down our investigations," she said.

Two members of the jury that never got to deliberate indicated agreement with Singleton.

"My feelings were running about the same as the judge," said F.D. Utsey.

"Joyvies was dead or near dead and I don't feel you can violate the rights of a dead man."

Singleton talked with several jurors, including Ralph Sheets, outside the courtroom after announcing his ruling.

"I didn't see any evidence against them," Sheets said. "We were all in agreement. Everyone had the same idea I had."

Joanna Joyvies, mother of the dead youth, did not seem surprised by the outcome but said she thought the trial made it clear "Billy didn't have a gun."

This was an apparent reference to two earlier federal court trials in which five other fired Houston officers were involved in civil rights violation charges.

In a similar "throw down" case, former officers Danny H. Mays, 32, and Norval Wayne Holloway, 28, received five-year suspended sentences on May 14, with U.S. District Judge Finis Cowan saying they already had been punished enough.

The two officers had been found guilty of charges of lying to a federal grand jury while covering up the fact Randall Alan Webster, 17, Shreveport, La., was unarmed when he was shot to death in a 1977 high speed chase that began after a van had been reported stolen.

Prison official wants system to be No. 1

The federal prison camp here is just getting started, but John Alman, superintendent, already is predicting it will be No. 1 in the system.

"I don't say that lightly," he told the Downtown Lions at their Wednesday meeting at Howard College. "In my 19 years in prison work, I have never seen a more receptive and more interested community." At every turn, he said, cooperation has been fantastic.

There are now 70 inmates here with another 37 due before too soon and a goal of 200-250 by Oct. 1. By that time he hopes to have the east building at Big Spring Industrial Park renovated and ready for another 250. Also, he will be looking for another 36 employees to go with the 65 already at work. The payroll will be $2.8 million a year, and operating expenses (most of it supplied through the local economy) will be $3.2 million.

Alman gave the Lions a glimpse of the operation here. Men will be expected to put in 40 hours a week in the federal prison industries plant which will make canvas products for military or other federal services. Some electric cables also will be manufactured.

On weekends or holidays only inmates may obtain passes to be with families or attend church. Near the end of their terms, if they live within a 50 mile radius, they may obtain short furloughs to apply for jobs. Violation of privileges will bring action by the disciplinary committee, or transfer to prison systems with tighter security.

Employees of the system have purchased 40 or more homes here in recent weeks, he said. Most of the additional workers will be hired locally if possible. Employees, he said, are high type individuals because "we have to be role models."

Reading Enrichment course offered by Howard College

The Adult and Continuing Education Department of Howard College announces a two-week Reading Enrichment course for students in the sixth grade through High School level. The class will begin August 13 and end August 24. Class will be held from 9:30-11:30 Monday through Friday mornings. The class will meet in the Reading Lab, Room 203, located in the Howard College Administration Building. This class is just in time for students ready to prepare themselves for the school year.

Anne Couvillion will be the instructor for the course. Mrs. Couvillion has had experience as a Reading Lab director for the Webb Air Force Base Education Department. She also held the position of teacher coordinator for the Adult Basic Education program at the Big Spring State Hospital.

The curriculum of the two-week course is designed to help those students who need to brush-up some skills which will improve their reading ability or who want to increase their reading speed and comprehension. This course is not designed as a remedial reading course. Cost of the course is $20. A book will not be prepared for the course. The class will be limited to 20 students.

For more information, please call 267-6311, ext. 70. Interested persons must pre-register in the Continuing Education office located in the Horace Garrett Building.

New round of warfare may begin in Mideast

CANNES, France (AP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization accused Israel of the attempted assassination of its military operations chief, but Western diplomats in Paris said the shooting on the Riviera may be the start of a new round of warfare between rival PLO factions or leaders.

There was no comment from Israel.

The condition of the victim, 43-year-old Zuhair Mohsen, was described as "hopeless." He was shot in the head and was reported in a coma in a Nice hospital following an operation to remove the bullet.

Mohsen, who also headed the Saiga (Thunderbolt) guerrilla organization controlled by Syria, was shot Tuesday night as he approached the door to the fourth-floor apartment in Cannes he and his wife had been occupying since last weekend. His wife, who was opening the apartment door to admit him, told police the gunman fired from a service stairway six feet away.

A watchman reportedly saw two men, one possibly an Arab and the other a large man in a white suit, apparently European, fleeing in a red Fiat with a local license. But the police gave no information on the progress of their investigation.

In Beirut, Yasser Arafat, the chief of the PLO, charged that the shooting was the work of a hit squad trained by the Israeli secret service. A high-ranking Syrian official made the same charge in Damascus.

Saiga and another PLO faction, the Marxist Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, blamed the "Camp David alliance" — Israel, Egypt and the United States. Saiga vowed a "painful and decisive reply sooner than expected."

However, Western diplomats in Paris suggested that the shooting might be the start of another round in the endless struggle among Palestinian leaders for control of the PLO, a loose alliance of eight guerrilla organizations united largely by their opposition to Israel.

Mohsen had frequently criticized Arafat's leadership and had other strong enemies within the movement.

Other diplomats suggested the shooting might be connected with the seizure of the Egyptian Embassy in Ankara, Turkey, earlier this month by four members of the Red Eagles of the Revolution, which is believed to be a wing of Saiga. Arafat's PLO command said it was not responsible for that attack and sent a delegation to Ankara to negotiate the surrender of the terrorists.

Three other PLO leaders have been assassinated in France in the past seven years.

Ag proposals outlined

WASHINGTON, D.C. — For most of this century agriculture has been a depressed or subsidized sector of our economy. This situation has not occurred because of obsolescence, or poor management, or low productivity as has happened in other ailing industries.

The reason that agriculture has been experiencing difficulties is because the farmer has been encouraged to produce to the point where he more than satisfies the needs of the market. The problem we have been facing most of this century is not shortages — but surpluses. And with surpluses have come less expensive food and low farm income.

We are continually faced with the dual problem of providing for the world's nutritional needs and at the same time insuring an adequate return to our producers. One of the most successful programs that addresses both of these goals is the farm loan system and more recently the grain reserve.

This program is administered by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm Congressional Comment

Farmers can store their produce in government warehouses and receive a loan payment. If the market prices go above the loan rate, then the farmer can withdraw his crop in an orderly fashion and sell it in the marketplace. If the market price is below the loan rate for a sufficient period of time, then the loan expires and the produce becomes property of the government.

This policy, when administered properly, as is the case recently, can provide a good return to producers and insure an adequate supply to the consumer at a fair price. The cost to the taxpayer is relatively low. Over the 40 year history of the loan program, for every dollar paid out by the government,

90 per cent has been recovered from the market. Currently the 1980 wheat program is being developed. The Secretary of Agriculture is considering a program which will call for all out production. I have written the Secretary outlining my proposals on this issue. I feel strongly that we should not provide for a zero set aside without adequate compensation to the farmer. Experience has taught us that too great a level of output will depress prices below the cost of production. I can still recall the effects of the 1974-5 program which encouraged the farmer to produce fencerow-to-fencerow, and from which we are just now recovering. I fear that just as the American grain farmer is beginning to enjoy relative prosperity, we will produce a record domestic crop which could wreck our market if foreign output increases.

In response to this situation, I am calling for minimum loan prices on wheat of $3.43 per bushel, which will result in a trigger price of about $4.80 and a $6 call price. Also the target price should be set near the $4.20 bushel mark, which will allow all Americans to share the risk if we once again over-produce. Farmers have suffered greatly from the high cost and unavailability of diesel and I feel these price levels are justified if we are to ask our farmers for all out production.

Some voices will be raised to say that the prices I have outlined are excessive. But we must remember that in order for a person to stay in business he must receive a reasonable rate of compensation for the services he provides. Food is essential for our survival and the continued vitality of the agricultural industry is important to our economic and defense position in the world. If you eat you are involved in agriculture and agricultural policy.

Vacations in Texas save fuel, money

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock Monday said gas line-weary Texans will save both fuel and money if they vacation in Texas this summer. Texas continues to have the nation's lowest gasoline tax rate at five cents a gallon, Bullock said, adding that short, in-state trips will conserve more fuel than long, cross country vacations. The highest gasoline tax rate is 12 cents a gallon in Washington. Bullock said gasoline tax rates in the nation's nine northeast states are nearly double the Texas rate — averaging 9.5 cents a gallon. Nine states — Arkansas, Georgia, Iowa, Michigan, Montana, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Washington — have recently increased gasoline tax rates.

'Come latelys bit the dust'

Don't write off farming in Pecos ---yet

By JAMES E. VANCE

PECOS — In this vast "Pecos Country" of West Texas where cotton is unrivaled and undisputed king of an agricultural empire, there's an intensive struggle by farmers to keep from being swept into economic bondage.

They still have a way to escape being forced off their land — if they use it.

These farmers are victims of devastating inflation, sweeping across the Trans-Pecos area and sending costs of everything they use — natural gas to fuel irrigation pumps, fertilizer and insecticides primarily, swirling sky high.

In the aftermath farmers are finding themselves spending about 70 cents to produce a pound of cotton that brought them only about 50 cents when they sold it. This subtracted into a loss of about $100, or more, per (500 pounds) bale. Many farmers have gone broke and moved away.

Cotton production topped from a peak of about 150,000 acres in an eight-county area to some 20,000. Cotton gins went out of business. The drastic and sudden drop in cash flow dealt a severe economic blow to the overall economy.

However, the "natives" will tell you quickly, "Don't write off farming in West Texas...yet!"

They'll also tell you that a high percentage of farmers who "bit the dust" were "come latelys," not equipped with know-how necessary to handle cotton farming with success. Particularly under adverse conditions, not the least of which are rapidly escalating costs — and high risk.

They'll agree that a higher level of skilled, almost scientific, management will be a must — if farmers survive raising cotton.

"In the past farming was kinda' taken for granted to produce the maximum," commented Ray D. Siegmund, district extension agent, "but we found out that that 'extra' yield cost money, rather than make a profit."

Although two farming philosophies are practiced — "go for broke" versus "less input, reduced risk and less potential profit" — farmers will concede that there simply isn't any future for non-professionals in cotton production in Pecos country.

With a mandate for more highly skilled management, scientists such as Dr. Luther Bird, cotton breeder at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, and Leon New, irrigation engineer, and Dr. Ken Lindsey, an agronomist, for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, blended weather, varieties, growing season, irrigation, fertilizers, insecticides and potential costs and profits into a new package labeled "Econocot."

Gary D. Condra, district management economist said, "Everything in this program is built around economics. If a crop can't be grown at a profit, why grow it?"

Lindsey described Econocot as "a system of management to do precisely the right thing at precisely the right time to make a cotton crop — and some profit."

"This system of farming was developed specifically for the Trans-Pecos country. It works. This has been demonstrated, but a lot of farmers went broke before they would switch to it," commented Dr. Perry L. Adkisson, Texas A&M University's vice president for agriculture and renewable resources. "Information about Econocot is readily available, but some farmers still are not using it."

Farming in West Texas was relatively easy-come, easy-going, until the first money pains of an energy crunch reared its ugly head in 1973-74, fashioned after an Arab oil embargo.

Irrigation water was abundant, and cost of pumping it to the surface to supply cotton, grain sorghum and other crops was also relatively cheap.

The biggest requirements of farmers was to take advantage offered by the elements, and to beat the bollworms in the annual tug-of-war over whether the bugs or the farmers would end up with the cotton.

Raising cotton was apparently less of a problem than selling it at an adequate profit. Overproduction and world markets sometimes drove prices down. However, more years than not, farmers made a profit.

DR. PERRY ADKISSON

CLIFF HOELSCHER

The abrupt and dramatic reversal in production cost and profit bared that loss of a single crop, can and does, result in economic destruction to a farmer.

Meanwhile, as most farmers in Pecos country continue with historical philosophy that if a little bit does some good then use a lot (of fertilizer, water and insecticide) in hopes of higher yields and more profit, another group is reducing their gamble with lower input, and expressing satisfaction with lower net profit — but at least "some" profit, semi-guaranteed.

"I figure I'm better off to spend $500 (per acre) and make 1,000 pounds (two bales) of cotton, than to spend $300 and make 500 pounds," explained Mike Burkholder, a veteran of some 20 crop years at Pecos.

"My objective has been toward the quickest way to reduce cost of unit of production. The problem with this concept, however, is higher risk."

A newer generation farmer, Clifford Hoelscher of St. Lawrence community in Glasscock county, said, "I projected profit where production was limited to no more than one bale per acre. My input was woven around half the bale's worth being out of pocket cost, and the other half to pay for land and equipment. Anything left over would be for management."

While farmers talked in terms of how much water, fertilizer and insecticides to apply and make profit, the A&M team of scientists and specialists discussed determinant and intermediate varieties of cotton to fit into weather patterns, irrigation, prevention of stress of plants, timing of growth of plants for hardness and resistance to bugs.

"The key to the Econocot system," assured Charles Neeb, area extension entomologist, "is timing of irrigation water. It's the most critical management factor, because the water dictates plant responses and degree of infestation of bollworms."

Neeb described the Pecos area as "no different, really, from other irrigated areas which produce cotton. This area just happened to get caught first in the cost-price vise."

While there's growing concern that water in West Texas is playing out, people in the Pecos area say it isn't here.

"We've got water," Burkholder assured. "It's just that it's expensive."

"We don't count on rainfall. Can't afford to," Hoelscher added. "Irrigation is a must to raise crops in this country."

Rainfall averages about nine inches per year at Pecos, and up to 11 to 4 inches in Hoelscher's community some 100 miles east and slightly north, but it's erratic. Hoelscher recounted that last year some locations in the Pecos area received in excess of 40 inches.

Hoelscher has been successful with the Econocot system. He said that when he projected for his crop he planned for 20 inches of irrigation water, compared with 40 and as high as 50 inches applied under traditional management.

"Instead of eight to 12 applications, of insecticide by airplane, which is the conventional system, I projected no applications," Hoelscher said. "Instead I'll rely on A&M's pest management program for information regarding egg lay by insects. Then with proper timing of irrigation I can prevent optimum habitat for insects to lay eggs, thereby controlling insects."

Hoelscher said that he does not plan to apply fertilizer, rather entering a crop rotation of cotton, followed by grain sorghum, followed by small grain which he said would eliminate need for commercial fertilizer in the Econocot system.

He's one of many younger farmers who are venturing into the Coyanosa area, which went boom in the 1950's and bust since the energy crisis.

"This system worked in the St. Lawrence area," he said. "Why not in the Coyanosa area. Coyanosa has ample water and rich soil. Also about the future of water, Econocot not only requires less water, but with exodus of so many farmers the water table has had a chance to rise."

Farmers generally agree that the price of cotton must bring 60 cents per pound, or higher, over the long pull for farmers to make a profit.

Burkholder expressed optimism, "Our view is that eventually commodities will have to reflect cost of production. The drastic jump in cost of production just happened to hit us first."

While most major crop areas, including California's diversified specialty crops, depend upon cotton as the mainstream of farm income, some agricultural leaders said that Pecos farmers have an alternative — either raise cotton under irrigation, or get out of crop production, per se, and return the land to cattle.

A cattle economy appears unlikely because about 80 acres of native rangeland now is required to support one animal unit.

There has been a sudden flurry-type return to grazing, as Burkholder put it, because of pure economics. Price of feeder cattle tripled.

Jaroy Moore of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station's unit at Pecos, said interest is increasing in Jose wheat grass, a perennial cool season forage plant similar to rescue which grows year round for light weight cattle to graze before being placed in commercial feedlots. Full potential of this forage has not been proved. It's new here.

Alfalfa has been a prolific crop for grazing and hay, and but many farmers are quitting its production. However, the Mormon Church of Salt Lake City operates some 10,000 acres in Pecos and Reeves counties producing forage, including alfalfa.

Cantaloupes, bell peppers, onions and other produce crops provide an alternate income to cotton. Quality is excellent and the market has been established.

Interest has been renewed for production of guayule for rubber, and Jojoba, another desert plant, as an oil crop, but it is not cold-tolerant. The oil was described as most nearly like whale oil.

Burkholder said that he believed the decline in number of farms has bottomed out, as measured by increased demand and price for land. Land (irrigated) selling for $400 to $500 per acre in 1960 was down to $100 to $150 in 1977, but now brings $200 to $300 per acre.

Very low tar Triumph. 3 mg. tar and taste. Together!

Read how new Flavor-Intensified™ Triumph gives you taste good enough to stay with at only 3 mg. tar... one of the lowest tar levels in cigarettes.

Triumph. The first and only cigarette that delivers good taste with only 3 mg. tar.

If you've ever been disappointed by one of the very low tar cigarettes, you will understand why Triumph is quite an achievement.

Even the draw is a surprise.

The smoke comes through abundantly. The taste reaches you smoothly. Effortlessly. With none of the struggle you may have experienced in other very low tar brands. You don't have to pull—you just puff on Triumph.

No gimmicks, no miracles.

No less remarkable than Triumph itself, is the technology that enabled us to build it.

The crux of it: Instead of searching for some yet unimagined answer, Lorillard scientists took a more sensible tack.

Why not, they said, take everything we've learned about cigarettes, and push that technology further than we've ever pushed it before.

Delivering taste, limiting tar.

We found, for example, that combining two types of filter fiber produces the best combination of taste and draw.

That tiny "vents" in the filter-rim smooth the taste.

That lower-leaf tobaccos (shaded from the heat of the sun) tend to be milder and lower in tar than those at the top of the plant.

In short, everything we could find that might intensify flavor at 3 mg. tar, was built into Triumph.

Taste you won't get tired of.

What it all comes down to is this: Triumph is not one of those ultra low tars that spoil your pleasure by short-changing you on taste.

Triumph, at only 3 mg. tar, is a cigarette with a taste you can stay with. So good, we believe you'll never want to go back to your old cigarette.

Meyer says Carter will play football

When SMU opens drills in August

FORT WORTH (AP) — Shotput sensation Michael Carter wants to be part of Mustang Mania and plans to play football for Southern Methodist this fall, says coach Ron Meyer.

"The last time I talked to Mike on the telephone, he told me 'Coach, I want to play,'" Meyer said at the Blackstone Hotel headquarters of the annual Texas High School Coaches Association Convention Tuesday.

There had been speculation the 6-5, 230-pound Carter might forego football to train strictly for the 1980 Moscow Olympics.

Carter, an All-state lineman at Dallas Jefferson in football, shattered every national high school record in the 12-pound shot. SMU recruited him as a football player with the provision he could participate in only track and field if he so wished.

"Michael said he wants to accentuate his career in both sports," Meyer said. "He wants a successful year in both sports. He feels he could take off from football in December and get ready for the Olympics. He played football last fall and you can see it didn't hurt him a bit."

Meyer also said he had heard rumors that he was pressuring Carter into playing football.

"This has all been blown up," said Meyer. "Of course, we want Michael to play football because he has great potential. He's played football all his life and never been hurt. But if he just wants track-fine, I would encourage him not to enroll in school in the fall semester if he wants only track. He could enroll in the spring."

"But again I emphasize he wants the competition of football. I told Michael the other day that he will have nine months to get ready for the Olympics, the same amount of time it takes to create a baby."

Meyer added, "Carter has unlimited potential in football. He's a possible starter at defensive tackle or middle guard. He has a world of ability. I just don't want it to sound like I'm hurting his career. Michael has professional football aspirations."

Five bluechip SMU recruits will play Saturday night in the North-South All-Star football game, excluding Carter who is expected to compete in the National Sports Festival in Colorado.

By fellow women on Ladies Tour

Lopez creating jealousy

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Writer

Is it true that those sweet ladies on the LPGA golf tour are getting catty over the attention being lavished on Nancy Lopez?

There have been locker room whispers ever since the darkhaired charmer out of Roswell, N. M., hit the scene like an exploding rocket in 1977, finishing second in the U. S. Women's Open at age 20 and going on to take the circuit by the throat in 1978.

Her accomplishments have been phenomenal — both Rookie of the Year and Player of the Year in her first season as a pro; first rookie, male or female, to win as much as $161,235; first woman to earn more than $200,000 in total money in one year; first woman ever to average less than 72 strokes a round; winner of five consecutive tournaments, nine in all; The Associated Press' Female Athlete of the Year.

As honor piled upon honor, as fans by the thousands flocked the courses just to walk in her wake, as the once humdrum female fairway show suddenly burst into a sparkle, reports of resentment among her contemporaries escalated.

Now comes an article in the August issue of Golf Digest by topflight golf journalist Dwayne Netland, who, after a tour of the tour, reports that Nancy is embroiled in a battle with the toughest foe of all — jealousy.

"Some of the women feel — really feel in their hearts," Netland writes, "that the LPGA's new star is getting too much star treatment."

He says there was cheering in the locker room April 1 when Nancy missed a putt that would have won her the Women's Kemper Open at Costa Mesa, Calif., she finally lost in a playoff.

One unidentified rival is quoted as saying, "If Nancy broke a leg, I don't think any of us would care."

Hollis Stacy, two-time U.S. Open champion, says, "We have a lot of fine golfers who aren't given enough credit."

Generally, the beef is that the press has adopted Lopez as their "darling" and that, as a result, Nancy draws the bulk of the gallery while others play in semi-privacy. There are also complaints — denied by Nancy and the LPGA — that Nancy is accorded special VIP treatment from sponsors. Grunts of chagrin were reportedly heard when Lopez was featured on both covers of the 1979 LPGA Player Guide.

It seems petty, but LPGA commissioner Ray Volpe was concerned enough to call the lady golfers together and urge them to cool it.

"Nancy Lopez earned her dues on the leader board," he said. "She is a rare and gifted athlete with the charisma the galleries love." The bitterness is said to have subsided somewhat.

Let's hope so. Nancy Lopez, who suffered the indignities in silence, has been a rare nugget for the LPGA tour. Her skills and personality have raised women's golf to a status it never before enjoyed.

She has given women's golf the boost Arnold Palmer and his Army triggered in the men's game back in the late 1950s and 1960s. Palmer was never resented by his contemporaries, just as his never been a gripe over the attention given Jack Nicklaus.

The ladies must adopt the attitude of the men pros, who say, "Resent Arnie? No, man. He's put money in our pockets. We all owe him a cut of every paycheck."

Darrell Shepard transferring to OU

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Darrell Shepard, a Texas quarterback who was lost by the University of Oklahoma in the recruiting wars two years ago, has confirmed he will enroll at Oklahoma this fall.

Shepard, who had two disappointing years at the University of Houston, will be eligible to play for Oklahoma this season.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association had ruled Shepard ineligible for competition in post-season bowl games after the publicity of his ownership of a sports car just after he signed with Houston in 1977.

He red-shirted one year at Houston and played less than 30 minutes the other.

"I liked the program in Houston, but I didn't want to sit out of bowls for the next three years," Shepard said. "OU was right behind Houston when I signed two years ago, and since Woodie is here, it seemed the best place to be."

Woodie Shepard, Darrell's brother, threw a clutch 49-yard halfback pass to spark Oklahoma's winning drive in the 1976 Oklahoma-Nebraska game. He quit the football squad in 1977 but returned this spring.

Darrell Shepard, a 5-foot-10½, 178-pounder, was listed as a super I-formation quarterback during his high school career at Odessa, Texas. Houston ran the veer and Oklahoma operates with the wishbone.

"I've never been an option quarterback, but I don't think running the wishbone will be too hard to learn," Darrell said. "If OU plans to throw more and use the I, that's great. I'd like to play, but I know they've got some good players."

Head Coach Barry Switzer said Shepard "was a good prospect, a blue chipper" two years ago and "will start off working at quarterback. I think he's a very good athlete, and we might look at him on kickoff returns and punt returns, too."

Alborn can't find the person responsible for tough schedule

FORT WORTH (AP) — Ray Alborn, the strong but not-so-silent type, would dearly love to speak to the person who made out Rice's current football schedule.

The second-year Rice football coach hinted he might even like to get his hands on the guy.

"I can't locate the individual responsible for our schedule," said Alborn Wednesday at the 47th annual Texas High School

Coaches Association School. "I'm serious. I can't find the guy. Nobody will own up to it."

Of course, nothing can be done about Rice's Southwest Conference schedule which is tough enough. But the anonymous schedule planner years ago also landed Louisiana State and Oklahoma as inter-sectional opponents.

"Playing LSU, Oklahoma and Texas on consecutive weekends is a thrill," added Alborn.

The Owls also played LSU and Oklahoma last year en route to a 2-9 season.

The enthusiastic Alborn is looking on the bright side.

"We sure could jump into national prominence if we just win one of those games," said Alborn.

"I told our alumni there are no more weak sisters in college football. I told them we've just got to think we are going to win. I made a mistake when we went to Oklahoma last year. I made an error because not once during the week did I tell our kids we were going to win. That will never happen again."

Alborn continued "the Baylor game was the turning point for our attitude. We were beaten 58-0 by SMU on homecoming but whipped Baylor the next week. Of course, Baylor beat Texas the next week. We knew we could play after that."

Alborn, a former Rice football player himself, said the private school will still be playing in the SWC "when I'm dead and gone."

"I can think back to when I was playing and Rice was competitive every year and I think it will be that way again," said Alborn.

"With the 30 scholarship limit, you are going to see some interesting races. It's going to be like it used to be where the winner sometimes had a loss on its record. The upcoming races are going to be great for fans and writers but mighty tough on coaches."

The annual North-South All-Star basketball game will be played at Tarrant County Convention Center Friday night and Amon Carter Stadium will be the site of the football game Saturday night.

National Sports Festival II begins tonight

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — National Sports Festival II, dubbed the United States Olympics and aimed at stimulating the development of young talent, begins Thursday night with a tremendous sprinkling of the nation's outstanding competitors in 30 sports.

The festival, launched last year by Robert Kane, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, has caught on quickly. From less than 2,000 athletes in 26 sports in its inaugural, it has mushroomed into a 31-sport program with more than 2,300 competitors.

In his opening remarks to the athletes last year, Kane said, "I just hope all you athletes will come day look to this inaugural festival and think that only the Olympic games preceded it in enormity and prestige."

The festival not only is a conglomeration of sports held in the summer Olympics, but it includes such winter sports as ice hockey and figure skating and non-Olympic sports like softball, baseball, roller skating and tennis.

The new sports added this year are yachting, roller skating, tennis, indoor speed skating and equestrian, but track and field, swimming, gymnastics and figure skating — the backbone of the summer and winter Olympics — are expected to attract the most attention.

In fact, seats for gymnastics and figure skating, two of the three sports with top admission prices of $5 — the other is equestrian — already are sold out. This, despite the withdrawal of world champion Linda Fratianne of Northridge, Calif., from the figure skating competition because of an injury.

However, the world champion pairs duo of Tai Babilonia of Mission Hills, Calif., and Randy Gardner of Los Angeles is competing, and the gymnastics field includes Kurt Thomas of Indiana State University, the gold medalist in floor exercises at the 1978 world championships, and Marcia Frederick of Milford, Conn., the first American woman to win a gold medal in the world championships, taking first in the uneven parallel bars last year.

Heading the list of track and field stars are Renato Nehemiah, the world record-holder in the 110-meter hurdles; fourtime Olympic discus champion Al Oerter; Olympic relay gold medalists Harvey Glange, Steve Riddick and Herman Frazier; 1972 Olympic marathon champion Frank Shorter; sprinter Steve Williams and the brilliant high school sensation from Dallas, shotputter Michael Carter.

Cynthia Woodhead, winner of five gold medals at the recent Pan American Games, tops the strong swimming field, while Olympic gold medalists Phil Boggs and Greg Louganis give the diving competition worldclass entrants.

Two other Olympic champions in the competition are Darrell Pace and LuAnn Ryon in archery.

Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm will officially open the festival at Thursday night's ceremonies, with the actual competition starting Friday and ending next Wednesday.

Expos 6, Padres 5

Tony Perez strode to the plate and surveyed the field. There were two out in the ninth inning, and he represented whatever hopes the Montreal Expos had of beating San Diego.

It wasn't enough that Perez had doubled twice already and helped the Expos pull within 5-4 after trailing 4-0. As Jerry White danced off second base and Rodney Scott stepped off first, Perez looked to the outfield while awaiting a pitch from the Padres' Eric Rasmussen.

"When I come up in these situations, I feel that the pitcher is the one in trouble," said Perez.

He was right. Rasmussen was in trouble because Perez noticed Padres center fielder Gene Richards had shifted way over to right-center, "and I thought if I could hit one into the gap it would score both runners." Right again. Rasmussen's 3-2 pitch, which could have ended the contest, was decisive in a different way: Perez sent it to the gap in left-center for his third double of the contest, two runs, and a 6-5 Montreal triumph Wednesday night.

"They were looking to me to hit one and it was a big hit for us," said Perez, who has 87 hits this season — 29 for extra bases.

And that's below his average. Of his 2,193 lifetime hits, 885 have been doubles, triples or homers.

Blue Jays 8, Rangers 3

Otto Velez and Rick Bosetti homered and Dave Stieb — the only pitcher with a winning record on the Jays — won for the third time in four decisions. The victory snapped Toronto's seven-game losing streak.

Dodgers 16, Phillies 8

Joe Ferguson and Dusty Baker combined to drive in nine runs as Los Angeles overwhelmed Philadelphia and won its sixth game in seven.

Ferguson had five RBI with a two-run single and a three-run homer while Baker — who had a grand slam in the Dodgers' 15-3 victory Tuesday — had a two-run single and two RBI doubles.

Mets 3, Giants 0

Craig Swan's six-hitter, his second shutout of San Francisco this season, carried the Mets past the Giants.

The lowly Mets won the season series 8-4, and Swan observed: "The numbers show we don't play like this against too many teams."

Tigers 8, Brewers 2

Detroit erupted for four homers, three in its seven-run eighth, with Champ Summers, John Wockenfuss and Lance Parrish connecting. Parrish's and Wockenfuss' came in succession and Al Greene had his first major league homer in the fourth.

Jack Morris, 9-5, got relief from John Hiller for the triumph.

Red Sox 16, A's 4

Jim Rice slugged two mammoth home runs, Carlton Fisk also homered and Boston had 19 hits, its biggest offensive outburst this season. Rice had three hits and five RBI. Dave Revering had three hits and a homer for Oakland.

Reds 6, Pirates 5

A 10th-inning double by Heity Cruz drove in Dave Collins with the run that gave Cincinnati its rain-delayed victory over Pittsburgh.

Johnny Bench hit two homers and Joe Morgan one to aid the Reds' cause. Morgan's sixth homer of the year snapped a hitless streak of 26 at-bats.

Bench's second homer of the game tied it 5-5 in the eighth after Pittsburgh starter John Candelaria retired 16 consecutive batters.

Angels 9, Yankees 5

Nolan Ryan lasted one inning — and still struck out two men to land fifth on the all-time list with 2,854 — and Tommy John departed in the third as rookie Ralph Botting was the pitching star. Botting, who entered the game with a 21.21 ERA and left with it at 10.80, pitched 5 1-3rd innings of one-run relief for his first major league victory.

PETER HURD'S MURAL DEPICTS PIONEER LIFE — A typical pioneer family is depicted in a fresco mural on the Howard County Library wall.

Famous American artist's mural adorns public library wall

Peter Hurd touched many lives here

By MICKIE DICKSON
"O Pioneers, Democracy rests finally upon us, and our visions sweep through Eternity."

The inscription under Peter Hurd's 25 foot by nine foot mural, formerly in the old Post Office, now in the Howard County Public Library, is a telescoping of two unrelated lines from Walt Whitman, according to Sam Blackburn on Jan. 30, 1966.

Painted in 1939 as a United States Treasury Department arts projects for $1,600, the mural depicts a pioneer family standing in front of their sod house. In front of a team of oxen stand yoked to a plow. To the left is the familiar Signal Mountain and its two companion hills. A Clump of "bear grass" looms at one side in full bloom. Several Chickens are scratching in the newly turned earth behind the plow. There are a number of mesquite trees visible in the background, and a water wagon on the right hand side. A wagon with bows in place is back of the house.

Peter Hurd later became one of the nation's most famous artists. Today he is one of the highest priced painters in the country. His work, mostly produced in his studio on his Sentinel Ranch in San Patricio, N.M., is in high demand.

A quiet, modest man, the willowy sandy-haired Hurd had the appearance of a cowhand fresh off the range. Mrs. Lillian Dawson, Nat Shick's daughter, recalled that he had an open countenance, very alive. He was friendly to everyone and won the hearts of many Big Spring people.

The late Nat Shick, then post master, was largely responsible for the commissioning of the painting. He and Hurd became fast friends with the artist spending much time in the Shick home. Shick said that when the old post office was built in 1936, he happened to mention to Smith Purdom, then fourth assistant postmaster general, during the dedication, that the lobby walls needed a mural. When he came back from his vacation, he opened his door and a young man fell into the office.

"He was Peter Hurd. He had been leaning against the door scanning the lobby, planning his work," said Shick, "he told me who he was and how the government had allocated $1,600 for him to do the mural I had suggested to Smith Purdom."

This project was the third painting on wet plaster that Hurd did. It was one of three he was commissioned to do, the others were at Dallas and Alamogordo, N.M.

The late George Winslow, a concrete contractor, would blend the "mud" or plaster to just the right texture that Hurd would paint on each day, and apply the proper amount over a three foot area to the galvanized plate lathe on which the picture was painted. Only as much plaster as Hurd could paint was put in place each day.

Mrs. Dawson remembers that the red clay around the Signal Mount area was used in the mix for the mural. Except for that, sand used was brought from the bottom of the Llano River. The lime used was crushed marble dust shipped in from Alabama. Colored earths from all parts of the world, blended with water (in some instances with eggs) was used to provide the colors for Hurd's palette.

Richard Thomas and his brother, George, remember watching Hurd on his scaffold as he worked. George remembers that Hurd would break an egg, separate it, and paint egg white onto the wet plaster, explaining that the albumen in the egg sealed the plaster so the paint would not bleed through it.

As the painting progressed, post office patrons would remark how real the chickens looked. Hurd would hold up an egg and say, "Sure they're real — here's an egg they laid," recalled Grady McCrary, 1611 E. 17, a postal employee.

The artist often worked at night, and would call to McCrary, "Hey, Mac, let me in!" when the doors were locked after hours. He and McCrary often had coffee together.

Alvin H. Smith, 420 Edwards Blvd., recalls that as patrons would look up at Hurd working and advise him as to how he ought to paint the mural, he'd say, "I'll leave my brush and equipment with Smith and after I'm gone you can work on it."

Smith recalled that Hurd made a full scale charcoal drawing of the mural and mailed it to Washington in a hugh roll for official approval before starting it. Smith worked the general delivery window near where the painting was being done.

Hurd was meticulous with his work, even using samples of cloth to paint the clothing for his pioneer family. He and his "right hand man," Pablo Lara, ate lunch often at Signal Mount, to get the right atmosphere in mind for his painting.

The pioneer man, his wife, the baby in her arms, and the tall gangling boy beside the oxen were modeled by Hurd after friends of his according to Nat Shick.

The little girl who is standing at the right of the man, was different, though. This face remained blank until one day as Hurd was up on the scaffold working, a little girl walked into the lobby and stood watching the artist. He saw her and climbed down, hastening into the postmaster's office.

"Get the little girl out there to pose for me," he said to Shick.

Shick persuaded her to sit for the sketches that Hurd needed to work from. This took about two days. Shick did not know who she was.

The painting which Peter Hurd used to get the contract for the Big Spring post office mural hung in the foyer leading to the office of President Lyndon Johnson from that of his appointments secretary. The name of the painting is "O Pioneers."

Peter Hurd remained as one of the significant realists of his time with a limited public until he attracted the attention of the editors of "Life" magazine.

Life magazine sent a crew here for several days to make a color photo of the Big Spring fresco and included it in one of its series on contemporary art. Richard Pollard, one of Life's most responsible young editors, visited the Sentinel Ranch, Hurd's home and was captivated by the atmosphere of hard work and its beautiful productions; the gaiety, charm, and order of the household under his wife Henriette's touch; and the fullness of life that Hurd himself suggests to even the most casual acquaintance.

Life took hundreds of photographs, borrowed a number of paintings, and recorded thousands of words in interview form. In due course the magazine produced a pictorial and textual essay about Peter Hurd, with many reproductions of some of his best works to that date in full color. Hurd was famous.

The artist still has fond memories of Big Spring. Jo Bright, formerly of the Herald, visited him at Sentinel Ranch in 1969 and wrote an Around the Rim about her visit as follows:

"So you are vacationing from Big Spring? I'm so glad to talk to you — I've wondered what was to become of the mural now that the post office has a new building," said Hurd.

"I told him of the plans to convert the building into a library, and that his mural would still be enjoyed by the townspeople," replied Jo.

"How Wonderful! I'm glad. How is Holly Shick? Please give her my regards. How I loved Nat! You know, he always called me 'boy'.

Yes, he'd take me by the arm and point to the top of the wall, explaining what he wanted in the mural and admonishing me not to leave anything out. Then, fixing me with a stern look, he'd say, 'Boy, I don't want anything dinky in here!'"

Mural kibitzer's recipes

Mural Kibitzer's recipes Following are some recipes of people whose lives were touched by Peter Hurd, the artist, as he painted the mural for all to enjoy.

Mrs. Richard Thomas' ZUCCHINI BREAD

- 3 eggs
- 1 cup oil
- 2 cups sugar
- 2 cups ground zucchini
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 3 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1/4 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1/2 cup nuts

Beat eggs until light and foamy. Add next four ingredients, mix lightly, but well. Mix remaining ingredients except nuts, in a bowl. Add flour mixture to first mixture and blend. Add nuts. Bake at 325 degrees, 1 hour or more in two loaf pans. Remove at once from pans and cool on rack. Bread may be frozen.

White or brown sugar may be used, depending on your taste. For an extra good taste, put in 1 cup Glace candied Fruit Mix.

Mrs. Grady McCrary's FRENCH FRIED BAKED POTATOES

Cut potatoes as for French fries

Place in pan of hot fat (just enough fat to grease bottom of pan) Roll potatoes over in fat so they will be greased on both sides.

Season Bake uncovered at 325 degrees for one hour.

Mrs. Grady McCrary's $10 SALAD DRESSING

- 1 can Eaglebrand condensed milk
 - 2 eggs, beaten
 - 1/2 cup vinegar
 - 1/2 cup Mazola oil
 - 1 teaspoon mustard
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Blend ingredients together well and refrigerate. Yield 1 pint. Keeps for months. Good for potato salad or cabbage slaw.

She Cares— And Shares

DEAR ABBY: I was raised to believe that charity begins at home, so I want to ask you what you think about a lady who spends three whole days a week as a volunteer in a nursing home for old people.

She says they need the love and attention she can give them. Well, they have a staff paid to care for those old people. And their families are supposed to give them love. So where does a volunteer who is a stranger fit in?

This lady has a retired husband and a 40-year-old handicapped daughter, and I'm sure they need her at home. What do you think?

T.B. FROM KY.

DEAR T.B.: I think anyone who works as a volunteer three days a week can't be all bad. Nursing homes need volunteers to keep the residents in touch with the outside world and make them feel that they are still a part of the community.

Staffs often are overburdened and some families aren't able to visit often. And, as for the retired husband and handicapped daughter, don't assume that they are being neglected. Chances are they manage nicely without her, and they all appreciate time away from each other.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married 23 years and have two sons, 20 and 18.

The problem in this: My husband and I were married (briefly) to others before we met each other. Both marriages ended in divorce. There were no children involved. We have never told our sons about our previous marriages, but now I have the feeling that we should tell them. My husband disagrees. He says, "It's all in the past and it's best to let sleeping dogs lie."

What do you say?

I'VE GOT A SECRET

DEAR SECRET: I say sleeping dogs have been known to awaken at the most unexpected time to set up a disturbing howl. Tell the boys.

DEAR ABBY: Lenny and I have been married nearly three years. He's 26 and I'm 24. We have good jobs, a car of our own, a neat apartment and no serious problem. However, I do have one mini-problem. I'm curious, suspicious, or maybe I'm just plain nosy. Anyway, when Lenny is in the shower I can't resist going through his wallet.

The last time he caught me he just about hit the ceiling. What do you suppose he has to hide?

SNOOPY

DEAR SNOOPY: Maybe he has nothing to hide; he just respects your nosiness. If you don't want your mini-problem to grow into a maxi, stay out of his wallet.

CONFIDENTIAL TO S.B. IN B. H.: Heed the wise advice of Joseph Zabara, the 13th century Spanish Hebrew physician and poet who wrote:

"Before the trouble comes, advice obtain; After it has come, advice is vain."

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (25 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

SPECIAL TREATMENT — Ilona of Hungary's unique system for healthy, radiant skin, has attracted beauty seekers from around the world to her skin care centers in Denver, Colo., and Houston, Tex. Here, she begins a skin care treatment with a thorough analysis under a special light in order to determine the type of treatment required. At the heart of her system is the use of a special magnesium mineral-balanced water — Kristalyviz, or crystal water — imported from Budapest, Hungary. It is the key ingredient, also, in her specially formulated cosmetics.

Listen to what your skin is trying to say to you

When was the last time you listened to your skin?

If you pay close attention, it can tell of your age, your health and the climate in which you live. It can also tell you how well you know how to take care of yourself.

Some people are able to transform their skin into looking better, healthier and younger. Foremost among this group are Hungarian women, who are known throughout the world for their flawless complexions.

These women — whether famous celebrities or not — have discovered the secret of maintaining a wrinkle-free and radiant skin.

Many women who want to achieve this look have turned to a scientifically developed line of skin-care products manufactured with a special natural mineral and magnesium-rich artesian water imported from Hungary.

Until now, the scientific facts about natural minerals and magnesium were not utilized in making cosmetics in the United States. The use of this special water, along with the finest natural preparation of ingredients, contributes to the scientific, and what has been called spectacular, effectiveness of the Ilona of Hungary skin-care treatment products.

These formulations are individually designed to suit the differing needs of different people: men, teenagers, mature women, people with dry, oily mixed or blemished skin, and people in varying climates.

According to Ilona of Hungary — who operates two world famous skin-care institutes in Denver, Colo., and Houston, Tex. — "proper skin-care requires using various cosmetics in the proper sequence. Your first step towards skin beauty is to properly analyze your skin. There is no 'all-purpose' cosmetic, just as there is no 'all-purpose' medication for illnesses. And remember, a beautiful skin does not happen overnight."

To analyze your skin, cleanse it thoroughly the night before. In the morning, check it section by section with a magnifying mirror in natural sunlight or with a very bright light.

The four basic classifications for skin are dry, normal, oily and blemished. Dry skin is characterized as fine-grained with a parchment-like texture. Normal has compact connective tissues, suppleness and a velvety feel. Blemished skin contains whiteheads and blackheads that don't go away in a few days.

The skin care products developed by Ilona of Hungary represent the use of this special water — Kristalyviz, or crystal water — by a cosmetics manufacturer for the first time in this country.

Free information about these cosmetics and skin treatments, and how they may make a difference for you, can be obtained by writing to Ilona of Hungary, European Skin Care and Human Improvement Center, Department M, 3201 East Second Avenue, Denver, Colorado 80206.

Jennifer Jones receives the Degree of the Order

Big Spring Assembly No. 60 Order of the Rainbow for Girls met Tuesday evening in the Masonic Temple. Jean Alice Knox, worthy advisor, presided.

Those introduced were Kimi Kidd, grand representative from Montana to Texas from the Odessa assembly; Robin von Rosenberg, grand representative from Colorado to Texas grand assembly of Texas. Galen Bradford, past supreme deputy of Japan, supreme assembly, International Order of the Rainbow for Girls; Delanda Bradford LaMeire, past grand charity and past mother advisor from the Tede assembly No. 4 in Japan and past mother advisor in Hawaii, Ann Russell and Leilani Thomas, past worthy advisors; Louise Hamilton and Adele Tibbs, past mother advisors of Big Spring assembly; Mrs.

Galen Bradford, past worthy matron of Yedo Chapter No. 3 in Japan Order of the Eastern Star and O.L. Bradford, past worthy patron. Denise LaMeire, a member of an assembly in Hawaii, was also introduced. Four generations of Bradfords were present. Jennifer Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alpha Jones, received the Degree of the Order.

Ronda Beene's money making project, selling "School Days and Memories Books," was presented.

The assembly will have a Back to School Style Show Aug. 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the Blue Flame Room of the Pioneer Gas Co. The Tree House will furnish the clothes. Admission will be $1.50. Proceeds will go to the State Hospital for christmas gifts for the patients.

Robin Snodgrass, a two-year member, was presented a going away book with best wishes from the assembly. She is moving to Austin.

Joni Jones feted at bridal shower

Joni Jones, bride-elect of Steve Hodges, was honored with a miscellaneous bridal shower July 20, in the fellowship hall of East Fourth Street Baptist Church.

The honoree greeted guests with her mother, Mrs. Bob Jones, and the prospective bridegroom's mother, Mrs. H.F. Hodges. Carnation corsages in the honoree's chosen colors of yellow and apricot were presented to her and the mothers.

Guests were registered at a small table covered with an apricot-colored polyester cloth, featuring an arrangement of yellow gladioli in an amber vase. The refreshment table, covered with a white lace cloth over yellow, was centered with a large apricot-colored candles surrounded with yellow and apricot flowers and five miniature flower baskets holding tiny yellow mums and baby's breath, all on a round reflector base. Amber crystal punch bowl, cups and serving plates were used.

Hostesses were Mrs. Bobby Roman, Mrs. J.J. Willingham, Mrs. Dick Davis, Mrs. R.C. Stocks, Mrs. M.L. Kirby, Jeanette Mansfield, Mrs. Ray Gaines, Mrs. Mike Steward, Mrs. David Rhoton, Mrs. Jerry Foresyth, and Mrs. Francis Plozman.

Others included Mrs. Bennie Porter, Mrs. Bob Brasel, Marguerite Cooper, Mrs. Wade Shanks, Mrs. Roy

Neither brother mature enough

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 17 and I'm dating a neat guy who is two years younger than I. We both love each other very much. It so happens that this guy has an older brother who is my age.

Well, this older brother has also fallen in love with me and wants to marry me so he can help raise my 3-month-old son. I really like this guy, too.

No matter what I decide, I'm going to hurt someone and I don't want to do that.

Cindy, Marysville, Calif. I don't think either brother would be mature enough at this time to be your husband and your son's father.

Give your son all the love you can and with your parents' help you can guide him properly.

I would forget about marriage until you can share love with a mature, understanding guy.

Dr. Wallace: I am a recent June graduate and I'm bored. I don't know what to do with myself. My boyfriend says he will marry me but that I must wait for two more years. That's when he graduates from college.

Do you have any suggestions? All I can think of is to get a job or join the Women's Army Corps. — Dawn, Michigan City, Ind.

Dawn: Both joining the military and finding a job are good choices, but I think your main problem is boredom. Why not get a part-time job and then take a college class or two (evenings, if possible) in a subject area you enjoy?

Almost all state universities offer classes in or near every city in that state.

Do something exciting!

Dr. Wallace: We are two 13-year-old girls who have wonderful parents, get good grades and have good reputations. Guys respect us.

Our problem is that we have two close friends who had good reputations. Lately they have developed bad reputations.

What we would like to know is if we should continue hanging around these girls or if we should avoid them. — K. and S., Elizabethtown, Ky.

K. and S.: Don't abandon these girls if all you have are rumors.

It should take more than talk to ruin a close friendship. On the other hand, if you know that these girls are doing things that you choose not to do, suspend the closeness until they "shape up."

NSA hears news media speakers

The Big Spring Chapter, National Secretaries Association, met for the regular monthly meeting at Furr's Cafeteria at 6 p.m., with Mrs. Ella Vonne West, president, in charge. Program topic for the evening was "Secretarial Contacts With the News Media."

Speakers were Mrs. China Long, news director with Radio Stations KHEM and KFNE, and Ms. Andrea Cohen, reporter with the Big Spring Herald.

Mrs. Long pointed out the difference in radio news reporting and newspaper reporting, stating that brief and to the point reporting is stressed. It is at-the-scene, up-to-the-minute, and on-the-spot news. Ms. Cohen stated that newspaper reporting goes into more detail, and they were always looking for a enjoy fun in the sun

Harmon Wilson of Levelland called the dance for the Big Spring Squares July 21. Visitors from his club in Lubbock were honored guests. Approximately nine squares were in attendance.

After the dance most of the guests spent the night at the Colorado City Lake home of Frenchie and Erma Steward. Members of the club joined the group the next day for fun in the sun. A number of fun badges were earned.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Jones were presented an honorary life membership by the Big Spring Squares. They have been loyal members of the club since its beginning. The membership was a small token of the appreciation and gratitude of the members of Big Spring Squares.

Sleepy Browning will be the guest caller for the Aug. 4 dance.

Randy Phillips will be back for the Aug. 18 dance.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"You'll have to go someplace else to blow bubbles."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JULY 27, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to avoid a venture that would take too long a time to be successful. Be prepared for a sudden and surprising situation which can help you gain a most cherished desire.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Complete those tasks that face you and then keep promises you have made to associates. Keep busy at whatever is important.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure to do what your associates expect you to do and forget about amusements for the time being. Take no risks with your money.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have a change to enjoy amusements after important work is done. Plan to have greater abundance in the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Accept an invitation to a group affair and express happiness there. Show others that you are a generous person.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Listening to the suggestions of a family member who now can bring you benefits you had not expected. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study your newspaper well for information that can be beneficial to you at this time. Make the evening a most happy one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan how to add to your income so that you feel more secure in the future. Take steps to improve your health and appearance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen to your intuitive perceptions and follow them for greater success and happiness in the future. Show others you have wisdom.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can get good advice privately from one who is an expert, but be sure to follow it to the letter later for best results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Cultivate a powerful individual you know and become good friends for mutual advantage later. Think along constructive lines.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Go after a favor from an influential person who is in a position to extend it. Steer clear of a troublemaker.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have clever ideas that should be put in operation quickly and good results obtained. Let your ability be known to others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be capable of handling every item of any course that's appealing so be sure to encourage to study at school and much success will follow. A fine chart for artistic expression. Don't neglect ethical training.

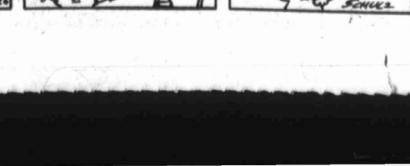

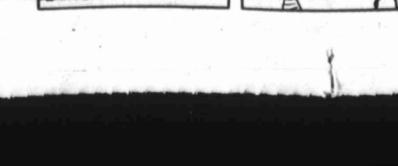

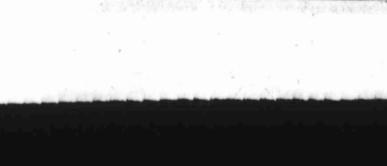

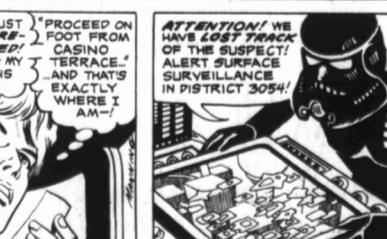

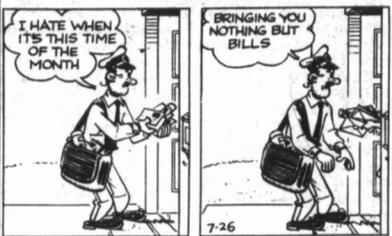

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

TYPICAL ENTRANCE RAMP

ON-RAMP - The new law provides that vehicle B must yield to any traffic entering the on-ramp vehicle A to a controlled access highway.

TYPICAL EXIT RAMP

OFF-RAMP - Vehicle C has the right of way as exits off a controlled access highway. Under the new law, vehicle D must yield.

New law to change driving habits of Texas motorists

A bill has been passed by the Texas Legislature and signed into law by Gov. Bill Clements that will have motorists changing their driving habits. The bill which becomes effective August 27 provides that two-way frontage road traffic must yield right of way to vehicles entering an on-ramp or exiting an off-ramp on controlled access highways. According to Darwin Webb, maintenance supervisor of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, Housebill 1421, stating the new law, was passed by the 66th Legislature and signed by Clements on June 11.

Inner-city problems hit University of Texas campus

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The situation is a familiar one - public officials want to tear down peeling, aged housing units while residents say they couldn't afford to move. But the scene is not in the inner city or along a proposed freeway route. The landlord is the University of Texas, one of the nation's richest universities with money from private endowments and proceeds from oil and gas leases. The upset residents are University of Texas students, many pursuing graduate and professional degrees. They live in World War II wooden barracks that were converted to married student housing in 1946. The Brackenridge and Deep Eddy Apartments outlived the "temporary" status assigned them more than 30 years ago when returning servicemen crowded college campuses. University officials expected to replace them after 10 years. Two additional brick complexes were built in the 1960s and 1973 but could not accommodate the 569 families already living in the older units. The barracks' safety continuously has been questioned, mostly recently by UT Regent Jon Newton. He told fellow regents in March he was concerned about the buildings' "appalling" appearance and possibly hazardous condition. A study was ordered and discussion of the
