BRADY, Texas (AP) - A crime lab team has lifted several fingerprints from a shotgun and a rifle found near where three persons were shot to death early Thursday as they slept, officers say.

"The DPS crime lab has worked the scene and has some prints, but we haven't eliminated the victims' prints yet to know what we've got," said McCulloch County deputy sheriff

Molly Farr, 55; her daughter, Tandy Bennett, 25; and former Brady high school football star Robert Shirl Gandy, 40, were shot at close range between 3 a.m. and 6 a.m. Thursday in Mrs. Farr's trailer house on a ranch about eight miles north of this Central Texas town.

Funeral services were pending at Wilkerson Funeral Home, where Mrs. Farr, a widow, worked as a recep-

Officers said Miss Bennett recently acquired a liquid seed company from her brother-in-law and that Gandy returned to Brady to go to work for her as a truck driver. Gandy was the fullback on Brady's high school team that went to the state finals in 1957, later played at Howard Payne and coached at Conroe.

The bodies were discovered about 9:15 a.m. Thursday when Mackey Weaver, a McCulloch County rancher, came to pick up Miss Bennett, who was helping him work some sheep.

He found the front door open. knocked and got no answer, then walked in and found the women's bodies in their bed, officers said Weaver told them

The rancher drove 200 yards to a trailer house where another daughter, Nita Ellison, lived with her husband, Jim, and where Gandy's daughter, Lana, 14, was spending the night.

Mrs. Ellison and Mackey went back and found Gandy's body on another bed in a guest room. A shotgun was found beside the women and a .243caliber rifle beside Gandy. Both had come from a gun cabinet in the trailer

Mrs. Ellison told officers she and her husband had played cards at her mother's house until 3 a.m. Her husband, a truck driver, went to work before the bodies were discovered, and officers were still trying late Thursday to track him down and notify him of the slayings. Gandy was obviously asleep when he was shot, and the women 'probably" were asleep when the first shot was fired, District Attorney Ron Sutton said.

On the assumption the first gunshot would have wakened the others, officers believe more than one gunman may have been involved, with the almost simultaneously.

Preliminary autopsy findings showed one of the women had powder burns on her throat

"For all practical purposes, none of 'em knew what hit 'em,'' added Texas Ranger Bob Favor, in charge of an investigation that also includes the Brady police, the McCulloch County sheriff's department and the highway

'There's got to be a motive. A person or persons wouldn't storm into a house and kill three persons without a motive," Sutton said.

"We haven't ruled out robbery because some shuffling around had collecting evidence and we don't have any suspects at this time," Sutton

Mrs. Farr's car was taken after the shooting, but was found abandoned about two miles away, near Texas 283, which leads to Coleman

"It slid to a fast stop by the side of the road," Favor said.

The window wipers were on when the ignition was turned off, indicating the car was driven during a rainstorm that hit the area bout 4 a.m. Thursday and lasted at least two hours.

FUNNEL CLOUD SIGHTED - Tornadoes aren't among the usual weather fare for the southwestern New Mexico community of Silver City, and a funnel cloud which some residents say touched ground was quite an attraction Tuesday. There was a traffic jam on one city street as motorists tried to get a better look at what one resident called "the thing." No damages and no injuries were reported. The National Weather Service said a tornado in Silver City would be a "rare event.

Unemployment rate rises; signs of future deterioration

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's unemployment rate rose slightly in July to 5.7 percent, making a full year in which the jobless rate has been below 6 percent, the government said today.

The Labor Department said the number of persons without jobs -5,848,000 - was little changed from June but there were signs of possible future deterioration in the job market. The unemployment rate in June had been 5.6 percent, the lowest in nearly five years. Since last August, the jobless rate has been slightly below 6 percent. Unemployment is expected to increase markedly toward the end of this year and into 1980 as the nation slides into an economic recession, according to Carter administration forecasts. As many as 8 million persons may be without jobs by mid-1980, internal White House documents predict.

The reason is the business slowdown that began in the second quarter this year and could continue into early

Although the unemployment rate increased only slightly in July and total employment rose by 456,000 in a catch-up from considerably slower growth in March and April, there were signs of weakness in the figures.

Jack Bregger, chief of the Labor Department's Division of Employment and Unemployment Analysis, noted that "the male unemployment rate advanced a couple of tenths (of a percent) and there was an increase in the number of persons who lost their last job. The lost jobs category, which Bregger described as "the most cyclically sensitive," increased by 174,000 persons to 2.5 million in July.

The unemployment rate for men rose to 4.1 percent in July from 3.9 percent in the previous month. At the same time, the rate for women declined from 5.8 percent to June to 5.5 percent in July

The rate for women reflected the fact that "the entire July increase in employment took place among adult women, as both white and black women posted strong gains," the Labor Department said. The rise in the unemployment rate in July was foreshadowed by recent economic developments.

Deterioration in the business sector was visible in the government's recent report on the nation's output. which fell at an annual rate of 3.3 percent from April through June. Meanwhile, factory orders have been sluggish, and production has been lown. All have an impact on jobs

Except for June, the unemployment rate has ranged from 5.7 percent to 5.9 percent since last August. Largely because of new jobs created in that period, less than 6 million people have been unemployed each month

But the job creation could stop as the economy slows down.

economists says unemployment probably will rise to 8.2 percent next year rather than the 6.9 percent forecast by the administration only three weeks ago. The revised prediction is contained in a new, though not yet publicly announced, assessment of the economy

Since there are about 100 million persons in the job force, an 8.2 percent rate would mean more than 8 million people out of work in the year President Carter faces re-election.

One published report indicated that the economists outlined the possibility of a $25 billion tax cut to stimulate the economy. Most would involve cuts in Social Security taxes starting Jan. 1, but about $5, billion would be earmarked to encourage corporate investment and, indirectly, job

In economic developments Thur-Board approved new rules that should make it easier for families to buy cooperative apartments or to improve the homes they own.

Savings and loan associations will be allowed to make loans on up to 95 percent of the value of co-op apart-

Oil spill washes ashore 4½ miles south of Texas

Scientists said today oil spilling from a runaway well off Mexico has moved closer to the United States and globs of the thick crude have washed ashore 421/2 miles south of Texas on the northern Mexican coast.

Every time we look, for the past three days, the oil on the beaches is farther north," said Carl Posey, a spokesman for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Government scientists are preparing for a long and costly battle against the Mexican oil slick, which is expected to drift into U.S. waters Sunday and could spoil Texas beaches two days later. Posey said the reconnaissance flights over the Gulf showed the leading edge of the oil is thicker than before and 15 miles farther north in the previous 24 hours.

NOAA official John Robinson said oil could continue to threaten Texas beaches for up to two months after the runaway well, located about 500 miles south of Brownsville in the Bay of Campeche, is capped.

El Paso man puts life on line He acknowledged, however, that before

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -An El Paso man says he flew to Colombia for Las Vegas gambler Jimmy Chagra, connected for 13.2 pounds of high quality cocaine and put his life on the line as collateral so Chagra could receive the dope on credit.

Chagra's lead attorney, Oscar Goodman of Las Vegas, Nev., sought in crossexamination today to show that the witness, Henry Wallace, testified to save himself from federal prosecution and possible prison terms in Louisiana and Colorado.

Wallace, who admitted to a 1973 felony conviction for possessing 19 ounces cocaine, had testified another cocaine arrest in Denver in June 1978. He said that he was approached during a Denver court appearance last summer by U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency

"They said they were getting ready to indict me and I could come in and talk to them or be indicted,"

Wallace had testified Thursday that he went to Colombia in an attempt to obtain a large quantity of cocaine on his own and not in association with Chagra.

"I gave him six kilos of cocaine, six packages wrapped with tape," Wallace said.

Meanwhile, he said, he and Chagra had decided to invest the profits from the cocaine in a shipload of marijuana. Wallace said he arranged to have 30,000 pounds of marijuana loaded on the "Dona Petra" about Dec. 23, 1977, under a captain sent to Colombia by Chagra.

Most Texans don't get as disturbed as perhaps they should over their lawmakers being approached regularly by special interest groups. It's a stark indictment against the system that some lawmakers are 'owned' by some of the lobbyists.

It's difficult to understand the rationale of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, which has vigorously opposed the legislation. Spokesmen for the Chamber say such a law would abridge the basic freedom of speech.

The U.S. Chamber also suggests that the bill would break down an individual's rights to communicate, either in oral or written fashion, with members of the Congress. That claim is questionable.

Lead poisoning settles in nerves

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is there any way lead can be removed from the body? I have been told I have a high content in my body. The only noticeable symptom is numbness in my leg. I believe excess lead settles in the nerves. Am I correct? — G.D.

Dear Sir: I think my little brother has lead poisoning. He is three years old. We think it is from the landlord not painting our apartment for the last eight years, and the paint has been falling down. He doesn't know any better and eats this. Can you give us any advice? - Miss L.H.

"G.D." is right in assuming that lead causes neuritis (nerve inflammation). Excess lead can settle in the nerves. It can cause other problems such as anemia, stomach pain, and mental confusion. If the leaf level gets high it can be removed with medicine that binds the metal molecules to itself and carries it from

Miss L.H. may have the right idea about her three-year-old brother. One of the commonest causes of lead poisoning in youngsters years ago was from eating flakes of lead-based paints in interiors of homes. It is said to have a sweet taste to youngsters. New building codes (post-World War II) forbid use of lead-based paints in interiors. It is possible for an ancient layer of lead paint to become exposed and cause the old problem. The flakes should be examined to see if they contain lead, and so, for that matter, should the child, if he shows signs of

There are other unsuspected sources of lead poisoning. One case involved a physician who ingested 3.2 milligrams of lead each night for two years by drinking cola from an earthenware mug made by his son in a ceramics class.

Dear Dr. Donohue: It's too late for me this summer, because I already got it - poison ivy rash, that is. But if you write some tips for it I'll clip out the item and post it prominently for myself for the next season. What's best for it? Do we ever get immune to poison ivy? How do you treat the itch?

The best thing for it is not to get exposed. That will mean wearing gloves, since hands are the chief means of transferring the resin to various parts of the body. There is a chemical (2, 4-D) that kills the plant.

areas. If you are exposed next year wash the area thoroughly and take a bath with a good detergent-type soap. The sooner this is done, the better. Extracts taken by mouth that are supposed to prevent the rash are not proven effective, so I wouldn't waste time or money on them.

You can spray that in poison ivy

For severe cases, cortisone medicine helps. You can relieve itching with a variety of soaks - baking soda, Epson salts, burow's solution, or any creams or powders for this purpose containing hydrocortisone. Calegine or starch lotion help dry the blisters. In time, people develop some resistance to the plant and eventually have little or no reaction. But don't assume that next year will be any different for you.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband won't take any kind of pills without cola. Is this harmful? — L.W.F.

No problem if he is not supposed to restrict caffeine. You don't tell me what the pills are taken for, or how many he takes. His physician will tell him whether he needs to avoid the caffeine stimulation. Don't discount the carbohydrate represented by the cola either. Dear Dr. Donohue: Recently I went to donate blood for a friend. I noticed that when they got a pinprick of blood from my finger and dropped it into the test solution it clotted immediately. Could I have a problem because the blood clotted so fast? - Mrs. B.E.F.

This is standard. The blood forms a drop when put into the solution. It is a simple test to make sure you are not anemic and can spare the pint. The test does not measure clotting even aq though the drop appears to clot immediately.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters.

Furred and feathered friends may prolong life.

The pet-human bond may give individuals something more to live for, it is theorized, or it may be that the pet-owning type is somehow different and more resilient.

The type of pet, mostly dogs and cats, seemed to make no difference in the survival statistics with one interesting exception. Perhaps it shouldn't be mentioned to avoid starting a run on the limited market. but a one-person category posted a 100 percent survival rate.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Can Biblical principles be applied in a business structure? Please name

DEAR K.I.: This is a very important question. If you are in business it is one you should think about a great deal — and pray about as well. As a Christian you are called to be a disciple of Christ in every area of your life, and that means following Him in your business life also.

Yes, I believe there are many principles in the Bible which have application to the Christian in business. I can only state a few in this space, but you will want to study the Bible for yourself to see what it has to say. Some of the New Testament letters, for example, touch on this. You also will find much of a practical nature in the book of Proverbs.

First, you will want to conduct your business as honestly and fairly as you know how. As a Christian you are called upon to be honest in every relationship, and this includes business. The Bible says, "The Lord abhors dishonest scales, but accurate weights are his delight" (Proverbs 11:1, New International Version). In other words, you are to be honest in all your dealings. I know that this is sometimes difficult in the complex world of modern business, but God must be your standard, not the world. This will, incidentally, not only mean you deal fairly with your customers (including the integrity of your product and your advertising) but will be honest in fulfilling such things as community responsibility.

You also will want to see what the Bible says about the way you treat your employees. As a Christian you should not exploit them, but should realize you have a responsibility to them (as they do to you). In the first century (when the New Testament was written) the economy of the Roman Empire was based to a great extent on slave labor - labor which was often mistreated and abused. But the Bible said, "Masters, provide your slaves with what is right and fair, because you know that you also have a Master in heaven" (Colossians 4:1,

Above all, remember that your greatest desire should be to seek God's Kingdom (Matthew 6:33). Greed and covetousness should not be allowed to creep in. You should let Christ fill your life.

What can you say to a friend who is afraid of bears?

A buddy of mine recently passed up the opportunity to take a backpacking trip through Alaska because he was afraid to share the state with a few fuzzy omnivores. I wouldn't pass up a trip to Alaska even if I had to sleep snuggled between a mated pair of grizzlies, I told my friend. But he was adamant.

ALL THIS BEAR talk prompted me to do a little research on the beasts. I found most of what I needed in an article by Janet Hopson entitled "The Bear Facts" in Outside Magazine. The gist of the article is that bears have become a real menace in most of our national parks (not very encouraging on the surface for my friend). As is usually the case, however, that relatively hairless biped, homo sapiens, is the cause of most of his own and the bears' misery.

According to the article, the bear problem in the national parks began at the turn of the century. Open garbage dumps, to the surprise of most naturalists, attracted bears like

With what now appears to have been a serious lack of vision, park authorities encouraged the bear show. "In time," writes Hopson, "grand-

stands and floodlights were installed so that the animals, now snarling and jostling and feeding shoulder to shoulder, could provide after-dinner entertainment" for visiting city folks.

By 1975, the situation had grown completely out of hand. According to the article, property damage by bears exceeded $113,000 and 15 people were injured during that year.

My friend was beginning to make

THE ARTICLE states that the adult black bear weighs from 300 to 500 pounds, can run 35 miles per hour in short sprints and can tear five-inch limbs from trees. With equipment like that, imagine what a black bear could do to your car, or worse, to your body. Grizzlies, of course, are more

In addition to the report on bears in the national parks, the article also includes some useful advice about what to do if you meet up with a black or grizzly bear. When face to face with a black, the first thing to do is "stay calm, and don't yell, throw things or run.' That's easy for you to say.

Second, "if all foods are properly stored, retreat quietly from the

But, th

No argument here!

The advice about grizzlies is slightly different. If you meet one of them face-to-face, you have probably already cashed in your chips.

What if you see one from a distance?

"Cross upwind at a safe distance (200 to 300 yards) so that the bear can catch your scent. Make noise, but be cautious and watch the bear's movements," says the article. "If a bear approaches from a distance, climb high into a tree."

Or if it is quicker, fly to the top of the nearest tree.

"If a grizzly approaches from nearby, stand still or quietly withdraw (this is a judgement call). Speaking softly to the bear sometimes has a calming effect."

Perhaps the Lord's Prayer in a hoarse whisper?

This, unfortunately, is just the type of reinforcement my friend was looking for. I was beginning to hear, "I told you so," echoing around in my head. But the article vindicated me. Statistics show that in the past century, only 71 people have been injured by grizzlies in national parks. No one has ever been killed by a black bear in a national park.

"The odds on falling off a cliff, drowning in a mountain lake or dying from exposure are also much higher (than those on being injured by a bear) for national park visitors, concluded the article.

So there! About all I have left to say to my friend is, "There's no place like

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Are the horrors of Nazi Germany being relived in South America through an unholy alliance between right-wing totalitarian regimes and war Reich? A top-secret Senate report raises this disquieting possibility.

Over the years, we have reported eyewitness accounts of the unspeakable methods of torture used by the military dictators of Latin America against political opponents and their suspected allies. Women are raped repeatedly while their husbands are forced to watch; babies are tortured in front of their parents. Uncooperative suspects are asphyxiated in piles of excrement, or roasted to death over barbecue pits.

APPARENTLY, IT is no coincidence that some of these dictatorships are havens for Nazi war criminals who managed to escape the collapse of Hitler's Germany in 1945. Competent sources have told our associate Dale Van Atta that Nazi refugees have offered their inhuman expertise to the secret police of their adopted countries and may even be directing some of the Hitler-style torture and extremination of political dissidents. And it may be no coincidence that five of the countries named in the torture charges - Chile, Paraguay, Uruguay, Brazil and Argentina — are also members of an international assassination consortium known as "Operation Condor." As we reported earlier, Condor's "Phase Three" section first identifies common enemies in foreign countries (including the United States) then tracks them down and finally eliminates dynamite execution of Chilean exile leader Orlando Letelier in Washington three years ago was listed by the FBI as a possible Condor operation

DINA, the infamous secret police of Chilean dictator Augusto Pinochet, was responsible for the Letelier murder, according to the confessed hit man. And a top-secret Senate report raises the possibility that DINA, carrying on under a new name after Pinochet "reformed" it, is perpetrating SS-type brutalities at a Nazi enclave called "The Colony" at Parral, Linarest Province, Chile. 'An informed source indicated that

DINA has maintained a detention center inside The Colony, and there are allegations that torture has taken place there," the secret report states. 'Allegations also have been made that German personnel, who are described as ex-Gestapo and ex-SS officers, have given instruction in torture techniques and have actually taken part in the application of these techniques.'

The Colony, a commune officially named "La Dignidad" ("Noble Bearing"), was established on a 3,000acre tract by refugee German Luftwaffe officers at the end of World War II. CIA sources have identified the leader as Franz Pfeiffer Richter, referred to as "The Commander."

Dear Editor:

I would like to publicly thank Johnny Miller, coordinator for the United Girls Softball Association, for his devotion to all the girls in the USGA program.

For months, he gave unstintingly of his time, his energy and his money. He was never too busy to hear anyone's problems, and was on call 24 hours a day seven days a week.

Whereas some people work only for their own interests, Miller worked as hard or harder for other people's daughters as he did for his own. Every little girl in his division was 'his.

I would also like to thank Mrs. Miller for her patience, understanding and hard work. I consider myself lucky to have known these people. If we had more people in the USGA program like Mr. and Mrs. Miller, what a terrific program Big Spring could have! Hats off to Johnnie and Bobbie

NEW YORK (AP) - Black activist leader Rev. Jesse Jackson has returned to the United States after a two-week trip to South Africa, where he said he was able to "heighten the human rights consciousness."

Speaking at a brief news conference Thursday at Kennedy International Airport, Jackson said he urged people in that racially torn country to try to "keep a sense of liberalism alive."

Jackson called the trip "extremely successful" and said he was able to get a "real sense of the culture." In a country that has effectively shut out its critics for 30 years, Jackson aroused emotional responses from South African leaders as well as the country's young militants. TRENTON, N.J. (AP) - A federal judge has temporarily banned distribution of the soundtrack of Sylvester Stallone's film "Rocky II" because four singers charge they have not received proper credit as songwriters for the film and album.

U.S. District Judge Clarkson S. Fisher issued a 10day restraining order Wednesday, according to lawyers Ralph S. Mason III and Bernard A. Campbell

The order prevents United Artists from producing. selling or distributing the record album nationwide, but it does not stop individual stores from selling the album from their stock.

The singers, known as the Variations, sang in both the film and the album. They receive credit as singers, but they claim they also wrote two songs — "Nanonie" and "Two Kinds of Love." The album and movie credits say the writer for those songs was Frank Stallone, brother of the "Rocky II" star.

Energy answers—in a nutshell

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) - President Carter, who favors development of alternate Hathaway. fuels, might find one very close to home - in the Carter family peanut warehouse.

Scientists at the Army's Construction Hathaway to test the shells as an energy Engineering Research Laboratory are source. preparing to test peanut hulls to find out how they burn as fuel.

Eventually, they may be used with coal, or instead of coal, to fire boilers at military installations and perhaps at small civilian

It all began when a Georgia firm contacted Steve Hathaway at the Champaign

"Are you interested in pelletized peanut hulls?" a company official asked Hathaway. Hathaway, who has tested refuse-derived fuel and wood pellets as alternate fuel, agreed it was an interesting idea to test peanut hulls pressed into pellets, but said he had not previously thought about nut shells as an energy source.

Bill Lehmberg of the Gold Kist farmer cooperative in Atlanta was anxious for

"He sent me a little box of the pellets," said Hathaway. "Then we got 300 pounds." Lehmburg said peanut hulls can present a problem since many peanuts are consumed out of the shell — in bags or cans, in candy, in peanut butter — and the processors have to find a way to dispose of them. "For years, we've been looking for ways to use peanut shells," said Lehmberg. "At times of the year, you can't get rid of them." Gold Kist turns some into pellets as a fiber source for livestock, and makes others into cat litter and artificial fireplace logs. The Dothan Oil Mill in Dothan, Ala., which shells peanuts and produces peanut oil, has found another way to use the shells. The firm's operation requires steam, and it had "Not in my wildest dreams," said burned coal, natural gas and oil to fire its boilers.

But, now the firm grinds up the peanut shells and blows them into the boiler, where they are burned.

"One-hundred percent of our steam energy comes from peanut hulls," said Rhett Bryson, executive vice president. "They burn well because they're dry. There is very little moisture in the hulls."

The peanut-shell pellets will be the first alternate fuel burned in the Champaign lab's new test furnace.

"I sent them to Steve because of this sophisticated machine he has that is supposed to tell us everything we need to know about burning peanut hulls," Lehmberg said, referring to Hathaway.

The tests will reveal the burning characteristics of the peanut-shell pellets. They also will tell scientists whether existing coal-fired boilers and fuel-handling equipment must be modified before the from Texas and Oklahoma.

pellets are substituted as the energy source. Lehmberg said the peanutshell pellets cost about $25 a ton at the plant, and could be competitive with other fuels, depending on transportation costs.

"It isn't a real inexpensive thing to produce," he said. "It hasn't been economical until the past year, but since the energy crisis, it became feasible to approach the market."

If Hathaway's tests do indicate it would be practical to switch from coal to peanut hulls at power plants, about 350,000 tons would be available each year from the peanut industry, said Lehmberg. The answer to how much energy that would produce depends on the tests.

Since transportation costs are high, the location of the hulls is important. About 70 percent of the nation's peanuts are produced in the southeast - Georgia, Alabama and Florida. Another 20 percent come from Virginia and North Carolina and 10 percent

Bear facts

Around the rim

James Werrell

What can you say to a friend who is afraid of bears?

A buddy of mine recently passed up the opportunity to take a backpacking trip through Alaska because he was afraid to share the state with a few fuzzy omnivores. I wouldn't pass up a trip to Alaska even if I had to sleep snuggled between a mated pair of grizzlies, I told my friend. But he was adamant.

ALL THIS BEAR talk prompted me to do a little research on the beasts. I found most of what I needed in an article by Janet Hopson entitled "The Bear Facts" in Outside Magazine.

The gist of the article is that bears have become a real menace in most of our national parks (not very encouraging on the surface for my friend). As is usually the case, however, that relatively hairless biped, homo sapiens, is the cause of most of his own and the bears' misery.

According to the article, the bear problem in the national parks began at the turn of the century. Open garbage dumps, to the surprise of most naturalists, attracted bears like

With what now appears to have been a serious lack of vision, park authorities encouraged the bear show. "In time," writes Hopson, "grand-

stands and floodlights were installed so that the animals, now snarling and jostling and feeding shoulder to shoulder, could provide after-dinner entertainment" for visiting city folks.

By 1975, the situation had grown completely out of hand. According to the article, property damage by bears exceeded $113,000 and 15 people were injured during that year.

My friend was beginning to make

THE ARTICLE states that the adult black bear weighs from 300 to 500 pounds, can run 35 miles per hour in short sprints and can tear five-inch limbs from trees. With equipment like that, imagine what a black bear could do to your car, or worse, to your body. Grizzlies, of course, are more

In addition to the report on bears in the national parks, the article also includes some useful advice about what to do if you meet up with a black or grizzly bear.

When face to face with a black, the first thing to do is "stay calm, and don't yell, throw things or run."

That's easy for you to say. Second, "if all foods are properly stored, retreat quietly from the That's more like it.

Third, "if the bear threatens you directly by charging, whoofing or snapping its jaws, give it what it

No argument here!

The advice about grizzlies is slightly different. If you meet one of them face-to-face, you have probably already cashed in your chips.

What if you see one from a distance?

"Cross upwind at a safe distance (200 to 300 yards) so that the bear can catch your scent. Make noise, but be cautious and watch the bear's movements," says the article.

"If a bear approaches from a distance, climb high into a tree."

Or if it is quicker, fly to the top of the nearest tree.

"If a grizzly approaches from nearby, stand still or quietly withdraw (this is a judgement call). Speaking softly to the bear sometimes has a calming effect."

Perhaps the Lord's Prayer in a hoarse whisper?

This, unfortunately, is just the type of reinforcement my friend was looking for. I was beginning to hear, "I told you so," echoing around in my head.

But the article vindicated me. Statistics show that in the past century, only 71 people have been injured by grizzlies in national parks. No one has ever been killed by a black bear in a national park.

"The odds on falling off a cliff, drowning in a mountain lake or dying from exposure are also much higher (than those on being injured by a bear) for national park visitors, concluded the article.

So there! About all I have left to say to my friend is, "There's no place like

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Are the horrors of Nazi Germany being relived in South America through an unholy alliance between right-wing totalitarian regimes and war Reich? A top-secret Senate report raises this disquieting possibility. Over the years, we have reported eyewitness accounts of the unspeakable methods of torture used by the military dictators of Latin America against political opponents and their suspected allies. Women are raped repeatedly while their husbands are forced to watch; babies are tortured in front of their parents. Uncooperative suspects are asphyxiated in piles of excrement, or roasted to death over barbecue pits.

APPARENTLY, IT is no coincidence that some of these dietatorships are havens for Nazi war criminals who managed to escape the collapse of Hitler's Germany in 1945. Competent sources have told our associate Dale Van Atta that Nazi refugees have offered their inhuman expertise to the secret police of their adopted countries and may even be directing some of the Hitler-style torture and extremination of political

And it may be no coincidence that five of the countries named in the torture charges - Chile, Paraguay, Uruguay, Brazil and Argentina - are also members of an international assassination consortium known as "Operation Condor." As we reported earlier, Condor's "Phase Three" section first identifies common enemies in foreign countries (including the United States) then tracks them down and finally eliminates The dynamite execution of Chilean exile leader Orlando Letelier in Washington three years ago was listed by the FBI as a possible Condor operation.

DINA, the infamous secret police of Chilean dictator Augusto Pinochet, was responsible for the Letelier murder, according to the confessed hit man. And a top-secret Senate report raises the possibility that DINA, carrying on under a new name after Pinochet "reformed" it, is perpetrating SS-type brutalities at a Nazi enclave called "The Colony" at Parral, Linarest Province, Chile.

"An informed source indicated that DINA has maintained a detention center inside The Colony, and there are allegations that torture has taken place there," the secret report states. 'Allegations also have been made that German personnel, who are described as ex-Gestapo and ex-SS officers, have given instruction in torture techniques and have actually taken part in the application of these techniques."

The Colony, a commune officially named "La Dignidad" ("Noble Bearing"), was established on a 3,000acre tract by refugee German Luftwaffe officers at the end of World War II. CIA sources have identified the leader as Franz Pfeiffer Richter, referred to as "The Commander."

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Can Biblical principles be applied in a business structure? Please name them. -K.I.

DEAR K.I.: This is a very important question. If you are in business it is one you should think about a great deal - and pray about as well. As a Christian you are called to be a disciple of Christ in every area of your life, and that means following Him in your business life also.

Yes, I believe there are many principles in the Bible which have application to the Christian in business. I can only state a few in this space, but you will want to study the Bible for yourself to see what it has to say. Some of the New Testament letters, for example, touch on this. You also will find much of a practical nature in the book of Proverbs.

First, you will want to conduct your business as honestly and fairly as you know how. As a Christian you are called upon to be honest in every relationship, and this includes business. The Bible says, "The Lord abhors dishonest scales, but accurate weights are his delight" (Proverbs 11:1, New International Version). In other words, you are to be honest in all

your dealings. I know that this is sometimes difficult in the complex world of modern business, but God must be your standard, not the world. This will, incidentally, not only mean you deal fairly with your customers (including the integrity of your product and your advertising) but will be honest in fulfilling such things as community responsibility. You also will want to see what the Bible says about the way you treat your employees. As a Christian you should not exploit them, but should realize you have a responsibility to them (as they do to you). In the first century (when the New Testament was written) the economy of the Roman Empire was based to a great extent on slave labor - labor which was often mistreated and abused. But the Bible said, "Masters, provide your slaves with what is right and fair, because you know that you also have a Master in heaven" (Colossians 4:1,

Above all, remember that your greatest desire should be to seek God's Kingdom (Matthew 6:33). Greed and covetousness should not be allowed to creep in. You should let Christ fill your life.

Soprano honored by city

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Soprano Marian Anderson will be honored by the city and the University of Pennsylvania on "Marian Anderson Day" Aug. 22. City Representative Joseph LaSala announced the special day honoring Miss Anderson Thursday. Among festivities planned will be a solo concert performance by tenor Luciano Pavarotti at the Fredric R. Mann Center.

Philadelphia orchestra music director Eugene Ormandy has been named honorary chairman of the tribute to the 77-year-old Miss Anderson, who grew up in Philadelphia mot far from the university campus.

Reverend's visit over

NEW YORK (AP) - Black activist leader Rev. Jesse Jackson has returned to the United States after a two-week trip to South Africa, where he said he was able to "heighten the human rights consciousness."

Speaking at a brief news conference Thursday at Kennedy International Airport, Jackson said he urged people in that racially torn country to try to "keep a sense of liberalism alive."

Jackson called the trip "extremely sucessful" and said he was able to get a "real sense of the culture."

In a country that has effectively shut out its critics for 30 years, Jackson aroused emotional responses from South African leaders as well as the country's young militants. Thousands of blacks packed a Soweto ghetto church on one occasion to hear him speak.

Soundtrack off market

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — A federal judge has temporarily banned distribution of the soundtrack of Sylvester Stallone's film "Rocky II" because four singers charge they have not received proper credit as songwriters for the film and album.

U.S. District Judge Clarkson S. Fisher issued a 10day restraining order Wednesday, according to lawyers Ralph S. Mason III and Bernard A. Campbell

The order prevents United Artists from producing, selling or distributing the record album nationwide, but it does not stop individual stores from selling the album from their stock.

The singers, known as the Variations, sang in both the film and the album. They receive credit as singers, but they claim they also wrote two songs - "Nanonie" and "Two Kinds of Love." The album and movie credits say the writer for those songs was Frank Stallone, brother of the "Rocky II" star.

fuels, might find one very close to home - in installations and perhaps at small civilian It all began when a Georgia firm contacted Steve Hathaway at the Champaign

"Are you interested in pelletized peanut hulls?" a company official asked Hathaway. Hathaway, who has tested refuse-derived fuel and wood pellets as alternate fuel, agreed it was an interesting idea to test peanut hulls pressed into pellets, but said he had not previously thought about nut shells

"Not in my wildest dreams," said Carter, who favors development of alternate Hathaway.

Bill Lehmberg of the Gold Kist farmer cooperative in Atlanta was anxious for Hathaway to test the shells as an energy

"He sent me a little box of the pellets," said Hathaway. "Then we got 300 pounds." Lehmburg said peanut hulls can present a problem since many peanuts are consumed out of the shell - in bags or cans, in candy, in peanut butter — and the processors have to find a way to dispose of them. "For years, we've been looking for ways to use peanut shells," said Lehmberg. "At times of the year, you can't get rid of them." Gold Kist turns some into pellets as a fiber

source for livestock, and makes others into cat litter and artificial fireplace logs. The Dothan Oil Mill in Dothan, Ala., which shells peanuts and produces peanut oil, has found another way to use the shells. The firm's operation requires steam, and it had burned coal, natural gas and oil to fire its

But, now the firm grinds up the peanut shells and blows them into the boiler, where they are burned.

"One-hundred percent of our steam energy comes from peanut hulls," said Rhett Bryson, executive vice president. "They burn well because they're dry. There is very little moisture in the hulls." The peanut-shell pellets will be the first alternate fuel burned in the Champaign lab's new test furnace.

"I sent them to Steve because of this sophisticated machine he has that is supposed to tell us everything we need to know about burning peanut hulls," Lehmberg said, referring to Hathaway.

The tests will reveal the burning characteristics of the peanut-shell pellets. They also will tell scientists whether existing coal-fired boilers and fuel-handling equipment must be modified before the pellets are substituted as the energy source. Lehmberg said the peanutshell pellets cost about $25 a ton at the plant, and could be competitive with other fuels, depending on transportation costs.

"It isn't a real inexpensive thing to produce," he said. "It hasn't been economical until the past year, but since the energy crisis, it became feasible to approach the market."

If Hathaway's tests do indicate it would be practical to switch from coal to peanut hulls at power plants, about 350,000 tons would be available each year from the peanut industry, said Lehmberg. The answer to how much energy that would produce depends on the tests.

Since transportation costs are high, the location of the hulls is important. About 70 percent of the nation's peanuts are produced in the southeast - Georgia, Alabama and Florida. Another 20 percent come from Virginia and North Carolina and 10 percent

The restaurant caught fire about 25 years ago and had to be demolished, she said, so it was moved to its present location.

Through the years, Mrs. Piazza watched the slow deterioration of the area. The old buildings disappeared one by one to be replaced by skyscrapers and wide expanses of asphalt and concrete.

'The older buildings have character and a history behind them, and it's very, very sad to see them go down," she said. "We need

Is Carter a man of his word?

WASHINGTON (AP) - So many promises. So many unfufilled. Does it mean President Carter is not a man of his word?

No, but it does mean that what Carter says he will do frequently clashes with the limitations on what can be done, and more often than not he has come away the loser. Congress has not helped.

Nowhwere is this more evident than in the field of economics.

During his campaign for president, Carter promised to balance the budget, to try to restore full employment and to sharply curtail inflation, all by the end of his term in

He has come reasonably close on unemployment, but the other goals remain elusive. Inflation has worsened considerably, while the prospect of a balanced budget, once thought possible, is receding as the nation enters a recession.

Carter has said several times there would be no recession. Lately, he has switched to giving assurances there will not be a serious recession.

He promised major tax reform. But there hasn't been any major reform because Congress wouldn't go along. He wanted to end some tax breaks for businesses and businessmen; not only were they not ended, but some were expanded by a Congress that felt business needed help, not a handslap. He has promised tax rebates that didn't materialize, tax cuts bigger than were approved, a real wage insurance plan for workers that wasn't taken seriously. Some of them, such as the 1977 tax rebate and this year's wage insurance plan, were proposed during major television addresses, but that didn't help.

Those setbacks haven't deterred him from making new promises. In his televised July 15 address, Carter said "this nation will never use more foreign oil than we did in 1977 — never.'

Never is a long time, much longer than administration official said Carter could regret that promise when the economy begins to rebound from the impending

Carter isn't the first president to make promises he couldn't fulfill, of course. Former President Richard M. Nixon promised in 1973 that the United States could be "energy self-sufficient" by 1980. He also promised there would not be a recession, just before the country sank into the deepest recession since World War II.

In part, what has happened to Carter, and to other presidents as well, is that the realities of the nation's economy make it exceedingly difficult for the chief executive to deliver on some promises.

Some Carter proposals haven't been well thought out, and his own advisers concede it was probably best that some weren't

He's Alienated By Foreigners

DEAR ABBY: I believe in helping foreigners by sending them aid in disasters such as earthquakes, floods and famine, but when I see them overrunning our country by the hundreds of thousands, crowding us and taking jobs that should go to Americans, I object!

We feed, clothe and educate them when many of our own go without. Those bleeding-heart liberals are going to ruin this country if they don't get tough and shut down immigration until we can take care of our own. Charity begins at home! I welcome your response.

AMERICA FIRST!

DEAR AMERICA FIRST: Unless you are a direct descendant of the American Indian, you would not be here if your forebears hadn't sought refuge from another country. It would take more space than I am allowed in this column to explain why we must accept these homeless victims of war and oppression. An American poet and essayist, Emma Lazarus (1849-1887), said it eloquently in her poem, "The New Colossus." It appears on the Statue of Liberty and reads, in

"Give me your tired poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore,
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me. I lift my lamp beside the golden door!'

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office with both men and women. When a co-worker says, "I heard a cute joke last night, but it's a little dirty. Do you want to hear it?" I say, 'Sure," because I don't want to be known as a goody two-

Well, the joke is always dirtier than I thought it would be, and I'm embarrassed.

The women as well as the men in this office tell some pretty raunchy jokes, but I can't suddenly tell them I hate OFFENDED IN CASA GRANDE, ARIZ.

DEAR OFFENDED: When you're asked if you want to hear a cute joke, be honest and say, "Not if it's X-rated." Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple de-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Levely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Doctor saved his life

Cunneen pays back debt

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Wally Cunneen III, who almost died his first day on earth, has spent the last six weeks as a volunteer at Children's Hospital here, paying back a 23-year-old emotional debt to the doctor who saved his life.

'A lot of people might have just said, 'Thank you very much Doc, shook hands, smiled, had a lollipop and been gone for good, Cunneen said Tuesday, his 23rd birthday and the last day of his tour.

But I had to go beyond that because I believe that he really cared.

Cunneen was born with a blocked esophagus that caused food and liquids to enter his lungs, instead of his stomach. Dr. Harry C. Bishop successfully corrected the birth defect that in those days killed two out of every three babies afflicted. When Wally was 1, his parents moved to California, but kept in touch with the doctor who had saved their oldest son. The boy grew up to major in marketing, and he will take a job this fall with Xerox Corp. Last year, Bishop, now 58, visited the Cunneens on his way to a medical convention in Hawaii.

"I got a chance to talk to this man I felt a lot of loyalty to, but never had the opportunity to meet," Cunneen recalled

"Just before graduation, I started getting together will all my friends, and started talking about where we were headed, where we were going, what we wanted to do with ourselves. It got me to thinking about who has been really good to me - my family, my grandparents.

Then it dawned on me the reason, I'm able to graduate from college, enjoy my family, be with my grandparents, my friends in school, was because of what Dr. Bishop did for me 23 years ago. Within a couple of days, I got on the phone and called him and told him what I wanted to do ailment can now be corrected in about 85 percent of the cases. He said it occurs in about one out of every 10,000 babies.

One of the last things Cunneen did Tuesday was to visit a 3-week-old baby who had undergone the same opertion he did 23 years ago. Her name was Angela and he lay on her mother's lap in a rocking chair in one of the baby wards. "She's going to be fine," Cunneen assured the mother, Susan Winkler, of Marcus Hook. "I had the same operation when I was a baby and now I run, and I played athletics. I've had no problems at all, except when I was 5, I swallowed my SOUTHWESTERN AT PEST CONTROL

Ex-cultists reveal deception in film

The timely documentary film "Deceived" will be shown at the First Christian Church Sunday, 6:30 p.m., as a part of a program for a congregational dinner.

The film was produced after the Jonestown Gyauna tragedy in which 913 Jonestown cultists died. "Deceived" is not a film about Jonestown — its focus is the living, not the dead.

Included in the film is an interview with some excultist who, like other Jonestown victims, were from Christian homes and

The purpose of the film is to help viewers have a stepby-step understanding of what happened in the lives of the people who became in-volved in that tragedy so that others will not be deceived in a similar matter.

A Farthing's Worth

I DON'T LIKE ALL THESE "NEW" BIBLES!

There's a lot of suspicion surrounding the more modern translations of cripture nowadays, and many people have made statements like the below: There seems to be some confusion.

The original Bible was in Hebrew (O.T.) and Greek (N.T.). We don't

The original Bible was in Hebrew (O.T.) and Greek (N.T.). We don't have any of the original manuscripts, but we do have copies of them.

Believe it or not, but the Pilgrims who landed at Plymouth Rock would not allow a copy of the King James Version on the Mayflower. They had come to love the "Geneva Bible" and rejected the King James as a "perversion". The King James was too "contemporary sounding".

Today, people suspect that anything other than the King James Version is just "not the real Bible". They are reacting the same way the Pilgrims did to the King James when it first appeared.

Today we have available to us in the New American Standard and the New International Version the two most accurate translations of the Hebrew and Greek that have ever been available. They are Bibles that you can really understand.

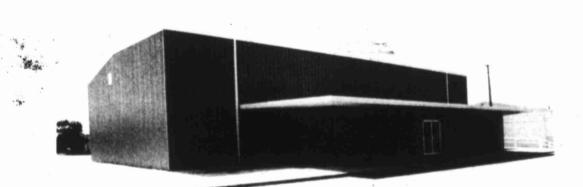

Whatever version you prefer, bring it and visit us. We're a Bible

Conspiring to steal classified info

Stereo dealer arrested by FBI

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — FBI agents have arrested a self-employed stereo dealer and charged him with conspiring to steal a highly classified Air Force radar jamming device for use in smuggling gold and artifacts out of

The FBI charged Roy Pozos, 28, with conspiracy to steal an electronic countermeasures pod (ECM) valued at $250,000 and the classified operating manuals that go with Pozos was arraigned Thursday before U.S. Magistrate Phil Sanders and jailed in liew of $50,000 bond at the federal holding facility in the Williamson County jail in In an affidavit that accompanied the complaint, FBI agent Michael Burns said the FBI was tipped about the alleged plot by Kirk Alan Jamison, manager of the Colony North and French Place Apartments in Austin. Jamison, who reportedly left town two weeks ago, said he was approached June 21 by an apartment employee who arranged a meeting with Pozos. He said the employee suggested that as an Air Force veteran with contacts at nearby Bergstrom Air Force Base he might be able to help Pozos. The three met at a restaurant on Interstate 35 in North Austin, Burns said in his affidavit, and "Pozos explained that he had a friend who had a DC-3 airplane that this friend wished to fly to Mexico and pick up gold and ar-

"According to Pozos, the ECM pod was needed on the airplane to enable the DC-3 to evade U.S. Customs radar.

Jamison said that Pozos offered him $500 for the ECM operations manual and $10,000 for the ECM pod," Burns Future conversations — at a Pentecostal church, a shopping center parking lot and the apartment buildings Jamison managed - were taped, Burns said. There was dickering over the price and over whether Pozos would receive the manuals before getting the pod, as he requested, the FBI agent said.

At the Pentecostal church, he said, Pozos acknowledged he realized he was asking Jamison to obtain classified Jamison at one point gave Pozos two non-classified Air Force documents about the ECM, Burns said, and received no money for them. On July 18, Jamison brought FBI agent Robert Hoglund, posing as an Air Force man, to a meeting in Pozos' 1979

Buick, the affidavit said. "Pozos ... said that his 'guys' make their living as outlaws and will pay whatever it takes to get the manuals. He offered $5,000 for the manuals and $5,000 for the pod, then raised his offer to $10,000 for the manuals, stating he would produce it in cash for observation," Burns said.

The Oilers may be headed for the championship game but Thursday's season opening 9-7 exhibition victory was only the first step in a long season.

Despite Barber's outstanding play, it took a 29-yard field goal by Toni Fritsch with 10:40 left in the game to nullify St. Louis' long score, a one-yard plunge by Wayne Morris in the second quarter.

"It was supposed to be screen pass to the back and I was blocking a linebacker but the blitzed," Barber explained. "So I faded across the middled and noone was there."

DALLAS COWBOYS vs. DENVER BRONCOS Saturday, August 4 7:40 P.M.

Dallas needs answer to running question

IRVING, Texas (AP) -It's not exactly a rematch of Super Bowl XII but the Denver Broncos and the Dallas Cowboys have some important items to settle Saturday night in their National Football League exhibition game in Texas Stadium.

For the Cowboys, it's their crowded situation at running back. Denver has to make some harsh quarterback decisions.

Springs of Ohio State, a fifth-Cowboy offensive coordinator Danny Reeves into hand-clapping delight with his performance at the Dallas Thousand Oaks, Calif. training camp.

Springs scored a touchdown and ran hard last week as Dallas lost 20-13 to Oakland in the NFL's Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio.

Springs, second-year man, Alois Blackwell, and veteran Doug Dennison were expected to play most of the game against the Bronocs after Tony Dorsett appears for a quarter or so. Also, there is some sizzling competition at fullback where Scott Laidlaw and Rookie running back Ron Todd Christensen are making a strong run at round choice, has sent Robert Newhouse. Yet another veteran, Larry Brinson, must play hard to make the team.

Denver has some quarterback questions to answer as the Broncos play their first game of the year.

"Springs is an asset to this team." said Reeves. "He will get a long, hard look. He is making competition in our backfield much tougher."

Norris Weese will start at quarterback. Craig Morton

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day in which you are anxious to put into motion a number of changes that could give you increased prosperity in the future. Secrets come to light later in the day.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have to exercise care in expansion matters to gain your aims today. Try to be less critical of family members.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Sidestep one who could be detrimental to your progress. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Go over contracts you have made with others and see if revisions are necessary at this time. Take needed health treatments. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Attend to routine chores instead of going off on any pleasure tangents. Make necessary repairs to property. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) It might be wise to relegate recreational plans to a better time and day. Ease the situation at home by being more thoughtful of others.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Work slowly at making improvements to your property and do them right. Keep out of trouble as much as you can today. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan your time and activities well so that you can accomplish more. Be sure not to lose your temper with anyone today. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find more modern ways of making money so that you can have greater security in the future. Obtain advice from a successful person. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You understand better now how to gain a personal aim and you should do so without further delay. Be logical. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study new plans you have been working on before putting them in operation. The evening is fine for romance. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contact as many good friends as you can and tdalk over mutual goals. Engage in favorite lobby with congenials.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A good day to obtain important data that will be helpful to you in the days ahead. Let others know of your special talents.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one concerned with the welfare of others, so be sure to give as fine an education as you can and direct it toward politics for best result. Be sure to give good ethical, spiritual and religious training.

It took six hours and 48 minutes for the Montreal Expos and Chicago Cubs to play a baseball game Thursday. It seemed a lot longer to some of the par-

"Is that all we played, nine innings?" asked Expos Manager Dick Williams after firstplace Montreal extended its National League East Division lead to two games by surviving three rain delays and beating the Cubs 6-4. "We tried to end it a couple of times.

Once was in the first inning, when thunder boomed and lightning flashed.

'I had one heck of a day today," said Expos outfielder Warren Cromartie. "I didn't sleep well last night, I got to the ball park at 11 o'clock, I got everything scared out of me by lightning and I took an

The first rain delay lasted 75 minutes. The second was 38 minutes and the third lasted two hours.

Watson keys Red Sox attack

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Boston may not win any American League championship in a season that seems to belong to the Baltimore Orioles, but some sort of executive of the year citation seems due Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan.

It was Sullivan who convinced the Houston Astros to trade Bob Watson for two minor league pitchers and cash June 13, and Watson showed again Thursday night why he was one of the biggest bargains in years.

Watson, 33, and Dwight Evans both clubbed a pair of homers and knocked in three runs apiece, while Butch Hobson added a bases empty shot off Milwaukee's battered pitching as the Red Sox thrashed the slumping Brewers 10-1.

Baylor named Player of Month

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Baylor of the California Angels, the major league leader in runs batted in, was named American League Player of the Month. Baylor hit .349 during July, with 11 home runs and a club record 34 runs batted in for the month.

Cardinals edge Pirates

A four-run St. Louis eighth inning robbed Jim Rooker of his 100th career victory. Keith Hernandez climaxed the comeback with a two-out single that scored Dane lorg with the winning run.

Rooker, 99-105 lifetime, held a 4-1 lead entering the eighth but Ken Reitz led off with a double and a Rennie Stennett error followed.

Grant Jackson relieved and surrendered consecutive RBI singles to Mike Tyson and Iorg. Tyson scored on a fielder's choice prior to Hernandez' hit.

'The Pirates have beaten us so many times in the ninth inning, that it was nice for us to shut the door on them," said Hernandez.

Phillies split with Mets

The Phils took the opener as Greg Luzinski drove in three runs and hit his 14th homer and Ron Reed, 8-6, hurled 52-3 innings of two-hit relief

Mike Schmidt hit a majorleague leading 37th home run in the nightcap but the combination of Pete Falcone, 3-6, and Neil Allen allowed just four other

Braves clout Padres

Tony Brizzolara, 6-6, threw an eight-hitter, Pepe Frias had a two-run triple and Gary Matthews knocked in two runs with a pair of singles for Atlanta.

"The last three games I haven't pitched too well and so it was about time I had a good one," said Brizzolara,

Orioles sold for 12 million

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles were sold for $12 million to Edward Bennett Williams, president of the NFL's Washington Redskins. The sale is to take effect Nov. 1, after the end of the club's current fiscal year, with the purchase price then adjusted for profits or losses. Williams said he would be the sole owner of the team through EBW, Inc., a firm he just chartered in Maryland.

James Bond takes blast in Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — James Bond movies are smash hits in the West because of their "unlimited stupidity," and they will continue to be successful until Western "mass culture" changes says a Soviet critic.

Writing in this week's Literaturnaya Gazeta, A. Martinova had nothing but scorn for the new Bond venture into outer space, Moonraker ' others won't be shown in the Soviet Union

'Moonraker' continues the tradition of all 11 Bondmania films," she wrote, "it has not only the cosmic but also the earthy values of mass culture - namely sex, violence, and superindividualism.

Estimating that previous Bond movies have brought in "pure profits" of $500 million, she wrote: "It is the unlimited stupidity of James Bond films that explains their vitality

Whether in space or on earth, James Bond is always one and the same - he is part superman, part spy and always the hero-lover," she explained. "Only decorations and costumes are different, but his essence remains unchanged.

As long as there is 'mass culture,' Agent 007 will be alive - one of the giants who possess an irresistible attraction for those who extol stupidity on same level aesthetics."

Ms. Martinova, liké most Western critics, thinks the quality of Bond himself has declined since Sean Connery no longer lends his "strong outward appearance" to the

Her least favorite is the current 007, Roger Moore, who she said 'doesn't resemble his predecessors at all and according to the commentators tinguished by the fact that he has no distinguishing features.

Turning to the plot of 'Moonraker,' she said it she said it was "difficult to understand with whom and for what Agent 007 wages war. But as the producers say, this is not the point. 'It is more important that there is action, that the moviegoer feels tension, and that he sees special effects in 'Moonraker' that he has never seen before.'' "Bourgeois ideologists," she told her readers, have infected Western movie-"principle, illustrated particularly in this film and in Bondmania as a whole, that entertainment at any price is acceptable."
