Roof folds, five die

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) — The roof of a multipurpose stadium under construction near O'Hare International Airport collapsed today moments after a plane thundered overhead, witnesses said. Five people were killed and 15 were injured, police said.

Spokesmen for the architect and the Federal Aviation Administration said it was too early to speculate on whether the plane had anything to do with the collapse. The FAA spokesman said, however, he was certain a large jet would have been landing at the time of the accident.

Joseph Peterson, a spokesman for the Rosemont Police Department, said there were five confirmed dead. Fireman Don Thurman said five bodies had been taken to a temporary morgue.

The roof of the four-story stadium, designed to seat 19,400 people, caved in about 8:30 a.m. About 100 workmen were reportedly at the scene.

A spokesman for one hospital said it was told to expect five dead. Leyden Township Fire Department officials said they had confirmed between two and five people dead.

Police said some construction workers were trapped in the wreckage but later freed.

One unidentified witness, interviewed by television station WBBM, said the stadium started shaking as a plane roared overhead. "And just like dominoes, everything went down," he said.

Neal Callahan, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration, said planes fly "just a couple hundred feet" over the site when runway 22-Right is being used at O'Hare, as it probably was today.

Fred Schroeder, an architect with the firm of Anthony R. Rossi, which designed the stadium, said "it's very wild and very premature" to speculate on whether the plane could have triggered the collapse of the roof.

Rescue crews from Chicago and seven suburban communities converged on the stadium site, northwest of Chicago near the giant airport.

Warren Nelson, spokesman for Resurrection Hospital in northwest Chicago, said he had been told to expect five dead. "We've been notified we can expect five DOA (dead on arrival)," he said.

Nelson said the hospital had treated six injured workers, one of whom told him there were well over 100 men working at the site.

Officials at Lutheran General Hospital in nearby Park Ridge said three workers had been brought in for treatment.

Robert Andrews, assistant manager at the nearby Sheraton O'Hare Hotel, said the entire roof of the stadium had fallen in.

Ambush of 'Bonnie and Clyde' revived by local man

By ANDREA COHEN

Officers found a letter on the body of Bonnie Parker stating that she wanted to be buried next to Clyde Barrow, according to the May 25, 1934 edition of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

However, Parker's mother refused to follow the wishes of the dead woman. "Clyde had her for two years. Look what he did to her. Now she's mine. Nobody else has a right to her."

Bonnie and Clyde were buried less than a mile apart in west Dallas.

Mrs. Parker was also angry that the famous duo were ambushed and never had a chance.

Bonnie and Clyde were killed in Arcadia, La., Wednesday, May 23, 1934. Officers shot 167 bullets at the car being ridden by the twosome because they would not stop their vehicle when ordered to do so.

The ambush cut short a plan to kill Barrow at the Tarrant County jail.

Authorities knew Barrow had been offered $18,000 to free O.D. Stevens, W.D. May and M.T. Howard for a price of $6,000 each.

At the time, May was under a death sentence for the slaying of Jack Sturdivant, one of the Handley triple murder victims and Stevens was to be tried the following month for the killing of Harry Rutherford, another of the slain trio. All three men were serving federal sentences for the $72,000 T&P robbery of 1933.

Authorities and newsmen had known Barrow was offered the proposition, but the story had never been released because precautions had been taken "to deal death to Barrow at the door of the jail."

Bonnie Parker was married to Roy Thornton, who in 1931 was sentenced to 60 years at Huntsville Prison for robbery.

"She fell in love with Clyde Barrow while he was serving a prison sentence, according to an interview with Parker's mother, published two days after the duo died.

"She fell in love with Clyde Barrow," her mother said. "She wrote him for a long time while he was in prison and finally stopped. I encouraged her to write him again, because I felt sorry for anybody who was in trouble. But I think she had forgotten all about him until he was freed. Then she fell in love with him all over again.

"He came to me then, and I told him he could come to see Bonnie any time that he wanted to — that we would forget the past if he would go straight and be a man. He said he had pulled his last 'job' and I believed him. But it wasn't long until he was in trouble again.

"Bonnie was out of a job and when she left with him I think she just wanted to take a ride around the country, never dreaming of getting into trouble."

Mrs. Parker also stated in the interview that her daughter wanted to come home but could not because she was in such deep trouble. Bonnie told her mother she would live on bread and water if she could only come home.

"But they were too 'hot' by then," Mrs. Parker said. "She didn't kill anybody or hurt anybody, but she couldn't come home. I knew she couldn't."

"They had to keep traveling, and they'd be traveling until yet if it hadn't been for that dirty doublecrosser that put them on the spot to be shot up like that.

"What do you think of a bunch of men that would shoot them up like that?" she asked. "Shot them from ambush, that's what they did. Didn't give them a chance. They got a signal when to start shooting and didn't even try to take them alive."

"Did Bonnie think she could go on forever, or did she think she and Clyde would eventually be killed?" Mrs. Parker was asked.

"Of course she knew she would be killed. She knew they couldn't last long. But there was nothing else to do but keep driving all of the time."

Despite Mrs. Parker's statement that her daughter was not a killer, others had different ideas.

Frank Hamer, who was a former Texas Ranger and directed the ambush, was convinced Bonnie Parker was a killer.

"I hated to shoot a woman," he said, "but as I looked down my rifle barrel I remembered the way in which Bonnie Parker had taken part in the murder of nine peace officers. Bonnie just got in the way of some bullets intended for Clyde Barrow."

Hamer revealed that at that time the May 23 ambush had been planned over three months before it happened.

He told the newspaper that Barrow communicated with his few intimates along the highways.

"I hated to shoot at a woman," Hamer said. "But Bonnie got in the way of the bullets aimed at Clyde Barrow. When I fired I thought about the way in which she helped kill those two highway patrolmen at Grapevine, and how she was in on the murder of nine officers in Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas."

"A woman of that kind has something like that coming to her. After they killed those boys at Grapevine, she walked over to where the bodies lay and turned one of them over with her foot. Then she fired a bullet point blank into the body. The bullet went through the body and went a foot into the ground."

"She and Clyde had killed two officers in Joplin, three in Dallas, one in Arkansas and three in Oklahoma."

Hamer said they had gotten a tip at his hotel the preceding Monday night that all was set. The plans had been made beforehand. Six officers took a vigil on a little red dirt road about 13 miles southeast of Arcadia.

"About 7:30 Sunday night," Hamer related, "Clyde and Bonnie passed through Arcadia and drove about 100 miles. They were looking for a board along the highway. They found the board, but there wasn't any note under it. The information they were expecting hadn't come."

"The information never did come. Clyde and Bonnie sat there all night, until the dawn waiting for the messenger but he didn't come. They then returned to Arcadia, and started out on the Gibsland road, looking for the second board. They found us instead."

"Clyde was driving less than 80 miles an hour. I raised up and commanded them to halt. At the same instant, Clyde reached for his 12 gauge sawed off shotgun, leaning on the seat between him and Bonnie and Bonnie reached for a 16 gauge sawed off shotgun."

"I gave them a chance to halt but they didn't so we gave 'em the same medicine they've given so many others."

Hamer had been planning to catch Barrow for some time and knew he could be caught in Louisiana. Hamer reasoned Barrow was not "hot" there and had friends in that state. His calculations for the capture were off. Barrow was killed 12 minutes before the officers thought he would be.

Goliad and Nolan to be seal-coated

County Engineer Bill Crim announced that seal-coating on city streets would be completed today.

He also said in Howard Commissioners Court regular meeting at 9 a.m. in the Commissioners Courtroom that the city had given the County Road and Bridge department 25 more blocks to do. Goliad and Nolan will be seal-coated from First to 11th Streets and a short stretch of 24th St. The county agreed last week to seal coat the city streets in return for fire protection in the county.

County Tax Collector and Appraiser Zirah Bednar discussed with commissioners the implementation of the Peveto Bill 621 which stipulates a county tax appraisal board. Approval

Dam break kills 1,000 in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — All-India Radio reported today that about 1,000 persons were killed following the collapse of a dam in western India that unleashed a wall of water nearly 20 feet high on the town of Morvi and buried it in mud.

"I am deeply shocked at the enormous loss of precious lives and destruction of property caused by the sudden floods," Prime Minister Charan Singh said in a message to the chief minister of Gujarat state, Babubhai Patel.

Singh sent Agriculture Minister Brahm Perkhask to Morvi to survey the flood damage.

Earlier a former mayor of the town said he feared the death toll would run as high as 5,000. That would have made it the world's worst dam disaster, more than double the previous record toll of 2,300 at Belluno, in northeast Italy, in 1962.

Troops were ordered to the town 300 miles northwest of Bombay to help dig out the bodies and care for the survivors, but they were delayed by highways and rail lines washed out by the weeks of monsoon rains.

of the tax appraiser collector's office budget is being considered by the commissioners.

Commissioners are also considering raising the price of tax certificates from $1 to $2. Most other taxing agencies have raised the price to $2. The certificate is proof that a piece of land has had all taxes paid on it.

Michael Ballard, NFC Marketing Associates Sales Manager, presented commissioners with a plan to provide county employees with coverage for cancer, heart attack and intensive care costs. Commissioners must approve the plan because the cost would be deducted from the county payroll.

County employees will be able to pick one of all of the three plans if the measure is approved. The programs are supplemental health care insurance. NFC is a five-year-old affiliate of the National Financial Life company that underwrites the NFC policies.

Patterson Insurance representative Louis Stalling told commissioners that premiums were due on the various structures owned by the county and handled by Stalling's agency. Commissioners County Judge Bill Tune told Stalling to delete several structures from the policy.

They are the pump and switch house at the Howard County Air Terminal and its contents, the Volunteer Fire Station at the terminal, the terminal building and the Howard County Rehab Center.

Three insurance agencies handle the policy; Driver, Park and Patterson Agencies. One of the companies is paid the premiums each year so that payments are staggered.

A drainage easement was discussed for E.L. Loveless, E. 24. Loveless said he wants to build a fence on the drainage easement the county has on his property. Since the road by his house has been paved and gutters installed the drainage is no longer through his property and the easement is not necessary, he said, and he wants the easement cancelled.

BONNIE AND CLYDE 'EXTRA' — Curtis Reynolds, 1300 Nolan, looks at the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, published May 25, 1934, two days after Bonnie and Clyde were killed in an ambush.

Big Springer was hunting job when he heard about killings

Curtis Reynolds was 26 years old in 1934 when Bonnie and Clyde were killed.

"We were moving to Big Spring from Winnsboro. It was the depression and I was looking for work. We were eating dinner at a restaurant in Sweetwater with the radio announced that Bonnie and Clyde had been killed in Arcadia, La. The Texas Rangers had been following them for years and finally located them in Arcadia."

Reynolds paid 5-cents for the May 25, 1934 edition of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. The famous duo had been killed two days before.

It has been stored in a trunk in his attic since then. Most of the newspaper has decayed. Part of it, though yellow and frayed, still shows the stories of the aftermath of the killings of Bonnie Parker and Clyde Barrow.

"They had been going several years," said Reynolds. "They had been robbing banks and whatever else. They were operating around Oklahoma as I remember."

The newspaper shows a photograph of the bullet-torn vehicle Bonnie and Clyde were killed in. Reynolds points out it is a four door sedan.

He says the car was put on a trailer, taken around and shown to the public, for a price. The car that was shown to the people, however, was a two door sedan, he noted.

Bureaucrats balk at change in routine

By SCOTT CARPENTER and JIM DAVIS

Harris-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — State bureaucrats generally are blasé about efforts to make their agencies more efficient.

They see Gov. Bill Clements' calls for more businesslike management and legislative review of agency activities as short term intrusions into the routine way of doing things.

Clements staff will hold a seminar Aug. 30 for agency heads to explain the planning and management-by-objective systems being used by business to increase productivity.

The legislature has set up the sunset process, requiring agencies to periodically prove their need for existence.

House Speaker Billy Clayton has charged House committees with making sure agencies spend state dollars the way the legislature intended.

Agency directors don't attack these programs on the record. That would be foolish and alien to their way of doing things.

The first rule of being a successful bureaucrat is not to be involved in controversy. Decisions on controversial matters can wait until interest has waned.

But privately, they view efforts to make them more accountable as lasting only until the next politically popular issue diverts attention.

That is why there was cold silence when Gov. Bill Clements called all agency heads together last spring to tell them to cut 25,000 state jobs without reducing productivity.

That also is why there was little discussion when Clements told heads of the 12 largest agencies he wants businesslike management systems to achieve maximum productivity for the least cost.

Clements reported the agency heads were in general accord with his goal of big state agencies using management programs proved effective in the private sector.

But "general accord" and "we agree conceptually," are key phrases Clements uses to mean lack of outright rejection.

They do not mean endorsement of what he says.

Carter's tax policies eyed by Bentsen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earlier this summer, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said he expected President Carter would be the Democrat's nominee in 1980.

The Texas Democrat also said he expected he would support Carter in 1980.

Bentsen apparently has added a qualification for his support of the president.

"I'll be interested in seeing what he's done on his tax policies," Bentsen said at a news conference Thursday, declining to reiterate or refute his earlier "expect to support" stand.

"I'm becoming more and more concerned about what he has done with a tax cut," Bentsen said.

The senator, chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, repeatedly has called for a $20 billion tax cut designed to stimulate the "supply side" of the economy. Carter has not made a commitment to waiver from his balanced budget goals.

Bentsen said he disagreed strongly with Carter's Cabinet shakeup because replacements should be carried out with as low a profile as possible.

"To do it wholesale I think is a serious mistake. That creates an image of toughness, but toughness without purpose," he said.

Bentsen jokingly referred to his own unsuccessful campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination when asked if he would join in the calls for Carter to announce he would serve only one term.

"I urged him to get out of the race in '76," Bentsen said. "I don't think I'll be urging him this time."

Asked to evaluate the chances of former Texas congressman Bob Krueger to be confirmed as ambassador-at-large to Mexico, Bentsen said, "I think they're good. I think he will be confirmed."

The White House announced the nomination in June, but Krueger will have to wait until September at the earliest for his confirmation hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth is continuing his criticism of the Washington press corps.

Concerned about the growing words of caution about the synthetic fuel program, at first greeted enthusiastically, Wright told the Washington Post: "I don't expect continuing paeans of praise. But I hate it when it seems to be a continuous gabble of gripes, an uninterrupted dirge of despondency."

Wright said the press in the post-Watergate era has taken the adversary relationship out of proportion.

"I think we all ought to be on the same team, the same side. And that's the side of the country," he said.

But her husband and friends had another idea. They erected a 4-by-8-foot plywood sign atop the city's coliseum to wish her a happy 40th birthday. And bumper stickers — with messages such as "Happy 40th Jackie Newman" and "Guess who's 40 ... Jackie Newman" — began appearing on cars around town.

"We're really rubbing it in about her birthday," her husband Ralph said. "Like most people, she's not looking forward to being 40. Jackie's the youngest one in our group of friends, and she's given the rest of us a hard time, so now it's her turn."

Toughest primary grind ever

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite all efforts to bring the quadrennial presidential marathon under control, 1980 candidates can look forward to the toughest grind ever, including as many as 35 primaries.

Although the situation is still unsettled in some states, it is fairly certain that there will be at least twice as many primaries next year as the 17 in 1978 when the reform movement began within the major parties to open up the delegate selection process. There were 31 primaries in 1976.

Although they will have varying degrees of power over the national convention delegations, they will in some way or other affect 2,548 of the Democrats' 3,331 delegates and 1,480 of the Republicans' 1,993 — the largest percentage ever selected, instructed or advised by presidential primaries.

In addition to the proliferation of primaries, the convention states are becoming just as demanding. Gone are the days when deals were made with key leaders to deliver a state. Now every delegate is fought over in every caucus.

Next year also will be the first when the new public financing system for presidential election will have full effect, probably assuring longer fights before the winners become apparent.

A Supreme Court decision ordering the restructuring of the Federal Election Commission cut off government funds for the candidates at a critical point in the 1976 primaries, forcing several to drop out sooner than they wanted.

In 1980, with the legal issue settled and the commission experienced in handling the flow of money, there should be more candidates with enough money to go the distance. The treasury matches, dollar-for-dollar, contributions raised from private donors once a candidate reaches a $100,000 threshold.

Complicating the lives of politicians also is the pattern of the primaries. The early primaries still hold a prestige, but most of the delegates to the nominating conventions are elected in the later ones.

A candidate who runs poorly in New Hampshire in February may not lose many delegates but he may lose enough face and momentum to cost him delegates in Illinois in March or California in June.

Already there are 10 registered candidates for the Republican nomination. On the Democratic side only President Carter and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., are registered, but several draft efforts have been launched to get Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts into the race. Although most candidates have not been as assertive as President Carter, who declares he will run in every state, they generally are planning to run in as many as they can. "You almost have to take them one at a time and prepare for all of them," said one campaign official. "But that takes a bunch of money. You have to go to the early ones and see what you can do from there." The Democrats have passed a new rule to shorten the primary season by requiring delegate selection to be held between March 11 and June 10, but New Hampshire is expected to be exempted one more time to keep its first-in-the-nation status. Puerto Rico is threatening to jump in with its first presidential primary on Feb. 17, but New Hampshire has a law automatically shifting its primary a week ahead of any other state. Meanwhile, the caucuses which begin picking delegates to state conventions begin as early as Jan. 21 in Iowa. There will be at least five new primaries next year — Connecticut, Kansas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Puerto Rico. While Mississippi also has a new primary law, its Democrats have decided against holding one, and the GOP won't decide until the fall. Several primaries are in dispute, although they are still expected to be held.

Massachusetts has refused to bring its primary within the Democrats' mandatory dates and delegate selection may have to be done in a separate process. Michigan and Wisconsin may also lose the legitimacy of their primaries because they have failed so far to comply with a Democratic Party ban on crossover voting, allowing Republicans to vote in the Democratic primary and vice versa. State legislatures are still juggling the schedules, but the primaries are expected to run from New Hampshire in February to a grand finale on June 3 when at least eight states will hold primaries and Mississippi may become the ninth. # 'Cameras in the courtroom' nixed

DALLAS (AP) — "Cameras in the courtroom," a growing phenomenon resoundingly rejected by the American Bar Association earlier this year, has confronted its detractors at close range.

The ABA, an influential group representing a majority of the nation's 450,000 lawyers, sponsored two unusual courtroom sessions Sunday "to explore the advantages and disadvantages of the use of electronic and photographic media equipment in the courtroom."

Both proceedings, one a mock state Supreme Court argument on the pros and cons of such news coverage, were televised over closed-circuit monitors in separate rooms.

Despite a vote by the ABA's policy-making House of Delegates last February against altering a 42-year ban on camera coverage of trials and appellate hearings, 21 states now allow some form of television, radio and photographic coverage in their courts.

ABA President S. Shepherd Tate, a camera-coverage advocate, insisted that Sunday's program was not aimed at showing the association the error of its ways but merely an "educational process."

Tate, a Memphis, Tenn., lawyer, conceded, however, that "in time the issue will come up again before the House of Delegates."

Although the ABA's policy is merely advisory, it is believed to be a key factor in most states and the federal judicial system maintaining an absolute ban on such in-court media coverage. The program was designed to show television's development of sophisticated, unobtrusive technology since the days when TV coverage of highly publicized criminal trials such as that of Billie Sol Estes led to overturned convictions.

The Supreme Court in 1965 ruled that television coverage of Estes' fraud trial denied him a fair trial. In Sunday's mock courtroom debate, New York lawyer Floyd Abrams told a panel of judges that improved technology has made television "a medium whose time has come."

"We seek no absolute rule of coverage. We seek an end to an absolute rule of exclusion," Abrams said.

Washington lawyer Robert Hanley, who argued that appellate hearings but not criminal trials should be televised, said: "The question is not whether the courthouse doors are to be opened or closed (but) how open this public trial has to be. Not so public as to jeopardize the integrity of the court. Not so public as to deny a fair trial."

In another courtroom, a mock criminal trial was televised by a single, silent camera. Lawyers attending the ABA's national convention could walk from the courtroom to a nearby room to watch the televised version for comparison.

Several news organizations coordinated the sessions under the ABA's aegis.

Nine states now permit some form of television, radio or photographic coverage of courtroom proceedings. They are Alabama, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, New Hampshire, Tennessee, Texas, Washington and Wisconsin.

Twelve states now permit some coverage on an experimental basis. They are Alaska, Arizona, California, Idaho, Louisiana, Minnesota, Montana, New Jersey, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma and West Virginia.

We're glad you asked! WITH TOMMY WHITLEY SHEPPARD FUNERAL HOME

I UNDERSTAND SOME PEOPLE PRE-PLAN THEIR OWN FUNERALS. WHY DO THEY? Three important reasons come to mind at once. Pre-planning permits free choice, makes one's wishes known, and does away with any possible disagreement among the bereaved as to what to do and how much to spend. In effect, one eases the burden placed on the immediate family — in terms of both the proper course of action to follow and the peace of mind in knowing that arrangements have been made in advance. Because we feel that this question may be of value to many residents in the community we serve, we're glad you asked. We welcome your questions and comments on this and other subjects — in private or publicly through this column.

Hoping to stop dangerous exodus by boats 10,000 a month to leave Viet

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnamese officials have told visiting U.S. congressmen they plan to let 10,000 refugees leave legally each month in hopes of stopping the dangerous mass exodus by small boats.

Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., who headed a 12-member delegation that arrived in Bangkok Sunday, told Thai Prime Minister Kriangsak Chomanan the Vietnamese feel that unless about 10,000 people a month are allowed to leave in an organized exodus, it will be impossible to stem the flow of refugees. Hanoi reportedly said it did not have the resources to stop all those trying to flee by boat.

Members of another American congressional delegation that visited Hanoi last week said they were told the Vietnamese government has arrested about 4,000 persons caught trying to escape and has executed some of them.

Wolff, talking to reporters after his meeting with Kriangsak, said he felt the delegation's talks in Hanoi had broken "some significant new ground." He said they got a promise of full cooperation in gathering information about the 2,800 MIAs — Americans still listed as missing in action in the Vietnam War — in Vietnam and Laos.

He also said the Vietnamese made it clear that they planned to withdraw from Cambodia eventually but would remain there as long as it felt threatened by China. The new Cambodian government said in a broadcast today that the Vietnamese would withdraw when the last remnants of the Pol Pot regime were eliminated and when the threat from Peking was over.

"We are not saying that the normalization (of relations with the United States) is imminent," Wolff said. But he said Vietnam agreed to negotiate with the United States on the three main obstacles to the establishment of diplomatic ties — the refugees, Vietnam's presence in Cambodia and the MIAs. "These three issues are not pre-conditions ... but obstacles that remain to be solved," Wolff said.

Rep. James Scheuer, another New York Democrat in Wolff's group, called for the establishment of relations with Hanoi "now, today or tonight." Scheuer said such a move would provide a "clear advantage" for the United States by "cutting down the Soviet influence in Indochina" and making the Vietnamese "less neurotic" about the threat from China.

Wolff tried to cut Scheuer short and said his statement did not represent the view of the entire delegation.

Meanwhile, Malaysia, another of the countries being swept by the refugee flood, appeared to relax its tough policy against accepting new escapees. Naval officials in Kuala Lumpur, the capital, said 46 boat people had been transported to a refugee camp on Friday instead of being towed back out to sea. The government has towed more than 20,000 refugees back out into open waters since June 18, when it announced it would allow no more refugees into its overcrowded camps.

The bride, the former Mary Dee Adkins, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence G. Adkins, Garden City Rt., Big Spring. Parents of the groom are Jan Nelson, 538 Westover, Big Spring; and James Nelson Sr., Farmington, N.M.

The Rev. Davis Edens, church pastor, performed the 6 p.m. rite before a gold rainbow candelabrum entwined with greenery and flanked on either side by gold spiral candelabrum. Baskets of daisies enhanced the altar scene.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose to wear a formal-length gown of white silk organza over taffeta. Embroidered lace encircled the high neckline and framed the tucked organza yoke and tucked sleeves. The A-line skirt which flowed from the empire waistline, completed in a double-ruffled, chapel-length train. She wore a floor-length veil held by a cap adorned with lace and seed pearls.

Accenting her attire was a colonial bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses, white daisies and purple status sprinkled with baby's breath.

Review Your Clues Before You Accuse

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to STUMPED, who discovered that her turquoise and silver ring was missing from the jewelry box on her dressing table. (It wasn't expensive but had sentimental value.) She asked if she should question the lady who had come to dinner that evening. (After dinner, the guest asked to lie down for a few minutes.) You advised STUMPED not to approach the guest on the chance that she could be mistaken. I disagree with you, Abby.

Because their husbands worked together doesn't mean the lady was honest. I know the type. I'm pretty sure she asked to lie down because she wanted to snoop in the bedroom and see what she could pick up.

You should have advised STUMPED to call the lady and tell her the ring was missing, and ask if she happened to see it.

CAUTIOUS

DEAR CAUTIOUS: I intuitively feel that accusations should not be made without concrete evidence. Please read on:

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for advising STUMPED not to accuse the lady she suspected of taking her ring just because she had napped in the room where it was.

I still get a sick feeling in the pit of my stomach when I recall an incident that happened to me 43 years ago.

When I was 11, I went to a birthday party at the home of a classmate I'll call Johnny.

The following day Johnny's parents came to our house to talk to me and my parents about a gold pocket watch on a chain that was missing from the drawer in the master bedroom. They were sure it was there before the party, and it wasn't there afterward, and someone said they saw me go into that bedroom.

It's true I did go into that room, but only to use the bathroom because the other one was being used.

I was so hurt and upset at the accusation that my face turned beet red and I stuttered and stammered and burst into tears as I proclaimed my innocence.

I remember the woman saying, "I can always tell when someone is lying, and if ever saw the look of guilt on a face, that boy is guilty!"

Thank God my parents believed me and stood up for me. Even though I was innocent I hated to go to school the next day because I knew all the kids would be talking about me.

A few days later, Johnny told me that the "lost" watch and chain had been found! It seems his little sister had taken it to play with.

REMEMBERS IT WELL

DEAR ABBY: I hope STUMPED takes your advice in regard to the missing ring.

I am a home health aide who was accused of taking "four beautiful linen napkins." I was told emphatically, "I remember seeing them on the hall table while you were here, and after you left, they were missing."

Abby, it was an awful feeling to be unjustly accused. I reported the incident to my office and never returned to that house. Two months later, my accuser phoned my office to say she had found the missing napkins in the ironing board that pushes up into the wall! She was advised to call me and apologize, which she did.

I'm glad she made those calls because I learned that she died two weeks later.

TWEEN 12 and 20

Dr. Wallace: Right before school was out for the summer, my friend was playing around with a squirt gun when our principal came over and said, "Squirt guns make me hostile." Then he threw it on the floor and stepped on it.

What would you have done if you were a high school principal? — Chris, Tacoma, Wash.

Chris: Let's not overlook a most important part in your story. The squirt gun should not have been on campus in the first place.

I would have taken the squirt gun and returned it to the parents if they would have made an appointment with me to pick it up after school one day.

Squirt guns make principal hostile

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I've liked this one guy for quite awhile but we are not going steady.

On a recent skiing trip, I met another guy. We have become good friends and we have gone out together. Here's my problem. All my friends are mad at me and are calling me a two-timer.

I'm confused because I don't want to be tied down but I don't want to be known as a two-timer. What should I do? — Katie, Santa Barbara, Calif.

Katie: One of the nice things about not going steady is that you can date whomever you want, whenever you want. Date both guys and don't worry what your good friends say. They just might be a little bit jealous.

Dr. Wallace: My girlfriend informed me that a certain boy plans to ask me out and I intend to say yes. He is a terrific guy.

The problem is, how do I tell my parents? I'm 14 and have not yet been allowed to date.

I've thought of not telling my parents. Should I or shouldn't I, and if I should, how do I tell them? — Jeri, Windsor, Ontario, Canada.

Jeri: Mothers always have a way of finding out things. It's an amazing phenomenon — so you had better tell Mom.

Try this method: Ask Mom if she remembers her first big date. Then tell her a handsome young boy is going to ask you out. Hopefully, Mom will remember and relent.

Send questions to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Family members reunite at recent Haney reunion

Ten children of the late Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Haney gathered recently at the Kentwood Center for their annual reunion.

Included were Anna and J.O. of Big Spring; Mrs. Les White, Mertzon; Mrs. Otto Cook, Balmorhea; Mrs. Glen Barber, Mrs. Carl Peterson and R.E. Myrle, all of Big Spring; Edward Haney, Carlsbad, N.M.; and Sam of Lamesa.

Sixty-four of the 68 people attending were family members. Non-family members were three maternal cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Allen and her brother, Raymond Teague of Fort Worth; and a former teacher of four of the Haney children, Mrs. C.B. Lawrence, who taught them their first school year in Howard County.

Out-of-county attendants were from Abernathy, Baird, Beaumont, Fort Worth, Lamesa, Mertzon, Balmorhea, Claremore, Okla.; and Carlsbad, N.M.

The border between Virginia and North Carolina has been changed in the past, and often proved a stumbling block for those tracing their family history. "Along the Border" deals with this problem. "Natchez Court Records" is important to those who are tracing their lines in Mississippi and Louisiana during the Spanish rule. Records are incomplete and usually written in Spanish, which adds to the difficulty.

Mrs. C.G. Barnett was appointed chairman in the participation in the Howard County Fair.

The next meeting will be at the Howard County Library's Conference Room, 7:15 p.m., Sept. 13.

Suicide third leading killer or teenagers

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Suicide is the third leading killer of teen-agers (following accidents and homicides). And while about five thousand teens commit suicide each year, the number who attempt to kill themselves is one hundred times as high.

Psychiatrists claim that many in this last group—the attempted suicides—are really looking for attention, not death. And many of these teens have a common and all too fatal belief—that a brush with death will bring them the love, attention and respect they are desperate for in life. Their suicide attempts are what doctors call "cries for help."

How can you tell if someone you know is contemplating suicide? Dr. Mary Griffin, a North Shore psychiatrist, reports in the April issue of Seventeen Magazine, that an easily observable change in behavior might be a sign of impending suicide. The honor student who stops studying, the easygoing girl who suddenly turns sullen and forlorn, and the quiet boy who becomes loud and aggressive all might be suicide signals.

The signs seem easy to spot. Why then do too many suicide notes lament, "None of my so-called friends would listen to me"? Dr. Francine Klagsbrun, author of "Too Young to Die: Youth and Suicide," points out that some very dangerous myths often keep us from helping our friends.

"Too often people ignore the suicidal person's talk of killing himself because they think he's just looking for attention," says Dr. Klagsbrun. "Ignoring people who are on the verge of suicide is the worst thing to do. People who talk about suicide want attention—in the same way a drowning person wants a lifeguard to save him," Dr. Klagsbrun remarks.

Another harmful myth is that if a person is suicidal, it's dangerous to talk about suicide. "It's dangerous not to talk about suicide," says Dr. Klagsbrun. "And for teens, one of the most crucial times to discuss it is right after there has been a suicide in school. The death of a friend seems to sanction suicide, making it an acceptable way to deal with problems.

"Some people feel that once a person has decided to kill himself, no one can stop him," Dr. Klagsbrun remarks. "This is wrong," she continues. "Everything we know about suicide shows that people desperately want to find a better way. Thus, no matter how distraught or self-destructive the individual is, there is a good possibility he can be helped."

There are two hundred centers across the country that offer help to suicidal persons, twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week. To find the nearest center, call 411 or look in the yellow pages under "Suicide Prevention," "Mental Health," or "Clinics." The American Association of Suicidology in Houston (713-644-7911) will refer any person needing help to a doctor or center close to their home. Or look under "CONTACT" in the telephone book. There are eighty-one CONTACT centers across the United States.

If you're worried that a friend is about to kill himself, don't carry the burden alone. Involve parents, teachers, counselors. Your friend may be furious with you for betraying a confidence. But losing a friendship beats losing a friend.

He has power to make Falstaff king

Beer distributing judge denies conflict exists

AUSTIN — If you want to sell Pearl, Lone Star or any other beer in Zavala County, you have to get permission from the Falstaff beer distributor.

That's because the official who must approve beer licenses, County Judge Jose Angel Gutierrez, owns the Falstaff distributorship there.

Maurice Pipkin, executive director of the State Commission on Judicial Conduct, says such a situation is "obviously a conflict of interest."

But he adds that he does not know of any specific statute that addresses the problem.

Gutierrez, who has held that Falstaff distributor license since shortly before his initial election in 1974, said there has never been any problem with beer licenses in his county.

While admitting a potential for conflict of interest, Gutierrez said he never has denied a license to an applicant who complied with all the regulations and had approval of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission.

The judge described his role in the application process as "mostly ceremonial."

Under state law, a beer license applicant is first screened by an agent of the Alcoholic Beverage Commission, who checks for a criminal record, stock ownership, and other matters.

The applications then goes to city officials who check whether the applicant has met tax and building code requirements.

The application then goes to the county judge, who signs the permit unless someone objects to the issuance.

If a permit is opposed, the county judge holds a hearing and decides whether to issue the permit. An applicant may appeal the judge's decision to a state district court.

Gutierrez was elected county judge on the Raza Unida Party ticket in November 1974, less than one month after he was granted the distributor's license for Zavala, Dimmit and Maverick counties. He was since quit distributing in Maverick County.

He took office in January 1975, and has issued beer licenses and distributed Falstaff ever since.

Joe Darnall, general counsel for the beverage commission, said he had never heard of county judges owning beer distributorships in their own counties.

"The difficult thing about it is that the county judge is one of the officers who approves beer licenses," Darnall said.

However, the board does not have any rules that would apply to such a situation, he added.

Gutierrez said he has granted more than one hundred licenses since taking office and no one has ever complained about a conflict of interest. He said he does not know how he would react if someone objected.

"I'll just have to wait until there's a challenge to see how I will react, whether I'll react as a county judge or as a Falstaff distributor," Gutierrez said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert Dole, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, has reiterated his belief that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts — not President Carter — will be the 1980 Democratic nominee.

Response to CIA's ads 'remarkable'

The CIA's display advertisements say it wants to hire "information-gathering specialists" with a "spirit of adventure" for "life in foreign places."

The ads in several major newspapers tout the satisfaction of "knowing that you belong to a small, very special group of people doing a vital, meaningful job in the face of challenges and possible hardship." The jobs pay $14,414 to $19,263.

"The response has been really remarkable," said Mike Russell of New York's Gaynor and Ducas agency, which designed the ads. He says thousands have responded since the ads appeared about a week ago.

$30 billion increase noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government at the city, state and federal level spent $1.646 per person in 1977 for social welfare purposes ranging from schools and housing to hospital and retirement benefits.

The total was $362.3 billion — up $30 billion or 9 percent from the year before, says a new Social Security Administration report.

That's an improvement over the average 14 percent annual increase of the preceding 10 years, the report says. And the 1977 figures mark a decline in social welfare spending's share of the gross national product for the first time in 20 years, dropping from 20.4 percent of the GNP in 1976 to 19.7 percent.

Police, fire pay hike defeated in Abilene

In a federally ordered election, Houston residents have approved a plan to increase the city council to 14 members with nine elected from single member districts.

And Irving residents approved a Proposition 13-type proposal to clamp a 6 percent ceiling on overall property tax increases and restricted the tax hike for any one resident to 8 percent.

In other weekend elections around the state: — Balch Springs residents turned down a proposal to become part of its big neighbor, Dallas, by a margin of 1,948 to 648.

— Abilene citizens denied pay raises to their city's firefighters and police officers, who had asked for a general monthly base pay of $1,290 — a 35 percent increase for firemen and a 29 percent increase for police.

A near-record turnout of Irving residents approved the taxlimiting measure by a 3,914-3,282 margin.

"We're tickled to death at how it turned out," said Roy

Brown, co-chairman of the Irving Concerned Taxpayers Association. "We had an almost record number of voters turn out today."

Tax Assessor-Collector Don Caldwell said, "I didn't expect it to pass. I don't see how it can help the city."

Houston voters approved the city council change after the Justice Department ruled that annexation of two predominantly white suburbs had diluted minority voting strength. Failure to pass the proposal could have resulted in November city elections being delayed.

In Abilene, unofficial returns show the police raise lost 5,759 to 5,398 while firefighters lost their appeal for higher salaries by a vote of 5,948 to 5,461. In other elections, Sherman-Denison voters Saturday approved creation of the Greater Texoma Municipal Utility District by a better than 2-to-1 margin. The district will arrange for future water supplies in the Sherman-Denison area and provide sewer treatment and solid waste disposal on a contract basis.

Commerce voters agreed 384 to 99 to sell the city's 50-year-old electric generating plant to Texas Power & Light Co. for $1.9 million. Voters in Mansfield approved the popular election of a city mayor 131 to 67. Before the election, the mayor was chosen by the seven-member city council.

DESERT DERAILMENT — Four locomotives and 17 freight cars were derailed early Sunday when a flash-flood weakened a bridge two miles east of Glamis, Calif. There were no injuries, but all west-bound Amtrak traffic was halted.

TI to build in Colorado Springs

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Planning officials here say Texas Instruments, the Dallas-based electronics and computer firm, has eased local fears about its proposal to build a major plant on the northeast fringe of Colorado Springs.

The plant would get under construction in 1981, growing over a 10-year period to a 600,000-square foot facility employing 3,500 people. About half the staff will be engaged in research, while the other half will be machinists and technicians engaged in manufacturing.

Until a series of meetings last week, city and regional planning officials had criticized Texas Instruments for seeking rezoning of a 713-acre tract on the metropolitan fringe rather than considering available sites closer to downtown. Members of the city planning staff said the plan would cost millions of dollars to extend utilities, roads and other city services.

However, City Planning Director Bub Owsley said the exchange of views last week "changes the whole picture."

One of the key developments was Texas Instruments' announcement that it would pay the estimated $1.4 million cost to extend city water and sewer services to the site. In addition, the firm agreed it would pick up the bill if it decides that existing access roads need improvement.

The firm also plans to open a smaller, 100,000-square foot plant within the city limits next month. It will house 100 employees at first, and later expand to include some of the research personnel who will transfer to the larger plant when it is ready.

Owsley said he was "delighted" with the prospect of Texas Instruments' arrival, but added that the firm would be expected to go through all the required review procedures.

"They have to go through the necessary steps, rather than skip a few as it appeared they planned to do," he said. "They aren't to used to county zoning, and approached everything in Texas style."

Mitchell County oil, gas sales show 1978 increase

COLORADO CITY — The sale of crude oil and natural gas from Mitchell County wells accounted for $57.5 million of the $17.1 billion value place on Texas production in 1978, according to a report from Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

Mitchell County ranked 73rd among 202 counties with a marketed production valued at $100,000 or more, excluding sale of natural gas liquids.

The wells produced 5.8 million barrels of crude oil in 1978 compared to 5.4 in 1977. Royalties received by owners were $7.2 million in 1978, said the association, compared to $6.4 million in 1977.

Hospital rules fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The hospital industry is fighting new federal rules designed to guarantee medical treatment for racial minorities and the poor. Lawyers for the poor say the rules taking effect Sept. 1 promise better and more reliable health care for millions in every state. But the industry, calling the rules an unnecessary and costly burden for institutions already short of money and overloaded with federal paperwork, has filed suit to block them. "Hospitals have always taken care of poor people, and they still are," said Frank Spencer, spokesman for the American Hospital Association. Legal aid groups say the regulations are necessary because many hospitals have discriminated against racial minorities and turned away patients unable to pay. The new regulations, imposed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, cover facilities built or improved with federal grants, loans or loan guarantees. They apply to most of the nation's 7,000 hospitals and many nursing homes and outpatient clinics.

Rape study released

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women aged 16 to 24 run the greatest risk of being the victims of rape, says a federal study released today. It also says the typical victim is poor and unmarried. The study, commissioned by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, was based on assaults in 26 cities. Among its findings: —The hours between 6 p.m. and midnight are the most dangerous. —Most assaults occur in open public areas such as streets or parks. —Resisting a rapist often means the sexual assault is thwarted but the victim is more likely to suffer other injuries. —Most attacks are by strangers and, according to the victims, attackers generally appear to be over 21 years of age.

'Tar balls to come ashore'

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Large patches of oil from a runaway Mexican well will hit part of southern Padre Island within 24 hours if National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration computer predictions are accurate. "We believe there will be some shoreline impact along southern Padre Island south of Port Mansfield within the next day," said NOAA scientist John Robinson. "We expect one of the large patches to come ashore. It will be more than the tar ball incidence we've had in the past." Government experts said today that there had been no significant change over the weekend in the status of several large patches of oil that have lurked about 20 miles offshore. Officials feared that a strong wind could blow any or all of the patches ashore. The expected impact area is north of the tourist beaches of South Padre Island. Mostly uninhabited, the area is a part of the Padre Island-National Seashore, a natural-state preserve. Robinson said the apparently shorebound oil is a bit thicker than sheen, which is thin surface oil. He said the situation would not be as severe as has been experienced by some Mexican beaches, which have been blackened by thick oil. The presence of the sheen oil probably indicates more oil beneath the surface, Robinson said. Two oil-skimming rigs that had been on standby at Brownsville were moved to Port Aransas by the Coast Guard as a precautionary measure. Port Aransas is about 20 miles north of Corpus Christi and some 170 miles from South Padre Island. "It's (the oil) tending to move north, but offshore," said Coast Guard Lt. Jake O'Neal.

Alien gays are barred

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Although government health officials will no longer identify homosexual aliens, gays still are being barred from entering the United States, according to the district director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. Charles Perez said he has no orders from superiors to change the rule that excludes homosexuals under a category of "aliens afflicted with a psychopathic personality or sexual deviation, or mental defect." The U.S. surgeon general ruled last week that U.S. Public Health Service workers no longer will be allowed to decide who is gay so that immigration officials can exclude them. Until now the health service has been asked by border officials to determine whether an alien is homosexual, Perez said.

Theodore Jakaboski said the burden of determining homosexuality now will fall on immigration judges.

Energy audits said inadequate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some consumers might end up victimized by a government program requiring utilities to offer "energy audits" showing where money can be saved on energy bills, the Federal Trade Commission says. The National Energy Conservation Policy Act allows each state to draw up its own plan for the program. But the FTC says the Energy Department's proposed regulation in this area is inadequate and does not adequately say what constitutes participation in a state program.

State contends Davis delivered $25,000

Murder-for-money rerun under way

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A young prosecutor today laid before a jury a murder conspiracy case which the state intends to prove against millionaire industrialist Cullen Davis. The opening statement by chief prosecutor Jack Strickland, 36, said the evidence will show Davis "commanded or induced" a friend and business associate to find a hired killer to murder his divorcee and others. Strickland lined up about a dozen witnesses, including State District Judge Joe Eidson, 61, target of the alleged murder solicitation scheme. Strickland summoned Eidson as his leadoff witness, but the start of testimony was delayed until 1:30 p.m. The state contends Davis, 45, plotted the contract murder of Eidson and others last summer and delivered $25,000 to a gobetween when convinced Eidson was dead.

The defense, headed by Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, maintains Davis himself was the target, a "patsy" in a conspiratorial frame orchestrated by his ex-wife, Priscilla. A jury of eight men and four women was chosen last week to hear the case, expected to run between two and four months. An earlier attempt to try Davis on the murder-for-hire charge ended in a mistrial Jan. 22. A Houston jury deadlocked 8-4 in favor of conviction. The state based its case on two tape-recorded conversations last August between Davis and FBI informant David McCrory, the key prosecution witness. The FBI recordings coupled with videotape of the second meeting purports to show the crime unfolding and the exchange of $25,000 in blood money. Davis testified in Houston he was duped into believing he was cooperating with the FBI when he discussed mass murder and delivered the money to McCrory. He said he also played along with McCrory to head off an alleged plot on his own life by Priscilla, 38, from whom he was divorced last spring. Davis since has married his longtime girlfriend, Karen Master, 30, a principal in both the Houston trial and an earlier murder trial in Amarillo. The Amarillo jury acquitted Davis of killing his stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, 12, Priscilla's daughter by a previous marriage. The child was one of two persons slain in a 1976 shooting spree at the $6 million Davis mansion, occupied at the time by Priscilla and her lover, Stan Farr, 30. Farr was killed, Priscilla wounded and a young mansion visitor crippled by a bullet lodged in his spine in the midnight gunfire. The shootings occurred about eight hours after Eidson ordered Davis to increase his estranged wife's support payments from $3,500 to $5,000 monthly and granted her request for a delay in the divorce trial. Eidson testified as a state witness in the Amarillo trial and, after the acquittal, refused to surrender jurisdiction in the divorce case that dated back to 1974. He stepped down after Davis' arrest last Aug. 20. The judge told the Houston jury how he posed as if dead for FBI snapshots designed to convince Davis the contract on his life had been fulfilled.

President of Hotel testifies Chagra wins $2 million

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The president of the Horseshoe Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas testified today that Jimmy Chagra has won close to $2 million this year from the Horseshoe alone. Jack Binion was called as a defense witness in Chagra's trial on federal cocaine and marijuana smuggling charges. The defense has maintained that large sums of cash spent by Chagra came from his skill as a gambler and not from drug profits. "We have the world's highest limits and Jimmy's the biggest player we've ever had," Binion said. He said that Chagra "played big" in 1978 — a year crucial to the defense — but made the majority of his winnings in 1979. "Jimmy Chagra's close to a $2 million winner on the Horseshoe alone," Binion said. U.S. District Judge William Sessions squeezed a possibly vital piece of defense testimony when he sustained an objection to testimony by Jose Perada, a Las Vegas paramedic, concerning words spoken by a severely burned man in Colombia. Perada said Chagra was present on a mercy flight to Colombia in June 1977 and was the person who went to the hospital to have the victim brought by ambulance to a chartered jet. With the jury out, Perada said the man "told me he was involved in a car accident." The prosecution contends the man actually was aboard a plane that crashed and burned while being flown out in attempt to smuggle drugs from

Indians scalp Rangers early

SAFE AT HOME — Cleveland Indian Cliff Johnson slides safely at home eluding the tag by Texas Ranger catcher Jim Sunberg as umpire Mike Reilly watches in the third inning at Arlington Stadium Sunday night. The play resulted after Indian Tom Verzyer hit a fly ball to Ranger center fielder Mickey Rivers and Johnson who was on third base tagged and came in to home for the score. The Indians won the game 6-3m

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers should have gotten Dan Spillner in the early innings.

Spillner, a nine-inning effort against Boston in mid-week, the Cleveland pitcher walked two of the first three batters Sunday night and "I was mentally and physically tired," he said. But Mike Hargrove led an offensive assault that staked Spillner to an early 6-0 lead and the Indian hurler finally got into a groove and Cleveland went on to a 6-3 victory.

"It was a struggle today. It's been a long time since I went out and had trouble with walks. I got in trouble in the first, fourth and fifth innings, but I was able to get out of it and after the fifth, everything fell into place," said Spillner, 7-2.

"I settled down and started getting the ball down and moving the ball around a little."

He walked four, struck out eight and gave up six hits. Two of his walks came the first inning, but a double play got him out of trouble.

Though struggling, Spillner carried Texas into the fourth inning before allowing his first hit, a double by Al Oliver. Manager Dave Garcia almost took Spillner out in the fifth. He gave up his fourth walk to Eric Soderholm, Jim Sundberg singled, Bump Wills doubled home one run, Mickey Rivers hit a sacrifice fly and Oliver singled in another run.

"The thing that saved me, after I went through the lefthanded hitters (Wills, Rivers, Oliver), I had some righthanders coming up. If I hadn't gotten Bell out, I would have been gone," Spillner said.

"The 6-0 lead made a big difference. When you get a big lead, it allows the manager to stick with the pitcher longer."

Catcher Ron Hassey hit his first major league homer for Cleveland in the second. Duane Kuiper singled, and Hargrove hit his sixth homer to give Cleveland a 3-0 edge.

In the third, Andre Thornton singled, Cliff Johnson was hit by a pitch and Toby Harrah singled to load the bases. That was all for Ranger starter Steve Comer, 12-7. Hassey and Verzyer hit sacrifice flies off John Henry Johnson for two more runs.

Hargrove finished things off in the sixth. After Hassey walked and was sacrificed to second Kuiper, the former Ranger doubled to left field to make it 6-0.

After picking up one strikeout in each of the first three innings, Spillner whiffed two Rangers in the fourth, survived the fifth, then struck out three in the seventh.

Sid Monge pitched the ninth inning for Cleveland, got three quick outs and got his 15th save.

Jerry Don Gleaton got Johnson out of a bases-loaded jam in the seventh, and Sparky Lyle pitched the final two innings for Texas.

Niekro's hurling baffles Astros

ATLANTA (AP) — Phil Niekro threw the way he wanted to Sunday — in terms of both accuracy and distance.

"When I take the ball before a game, I do it with the feeling that I'll give it back when the game's over," Niekro said after recording his 200th career complete game and 15th victory of the season, 3-2 over the Houston Astros.

"Of course, you don't look for it (a complete game) every day," said Niekro, whose brother Joe won his 16th game of the season, when Houston beat the Braves Friday night.

"Other than in the eighth, I pitched the way I wanted to pitch," Niekro said. "I had a pretty good fastball tonight. I got two or three out with it early. Joe is one ahead in victories. I have to catch him."

It was in the eighth that Niekro, who also has lost 15 games, gave up the Astros' only runs. They scored on an RBI single by Jose Cruz and a sacrifice fly by Enos Cabell.

Barry Bonnell belted three hits for the Braves, including his ninth homer of the season, and drove in two runs. After a run-scoring single by Bonnell gave the Braves a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning, Niekro scored the team's second run in the fifth after leading off the inning with a double.

Bonnell's home run, a drive into the seats in left, came with one out in the sixth. Rowland Office singled in the fourth and scored on Bonnell's second single of the game.

Niekro's mound foe, Rick Williams, 3-5, who got two of the Houston hits, gave up seven to the Braves before being removed for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Niekro's knuckleball was extremely effective as he struck out eight and walked three.

"The more speed you have on the knuckleball, the more effective it is going to be," Niekro said. "But no matter how good the knuckleball is, timing is more important than speed."

Niekro "has been excellent in his last three starts," said Braves Manager Bobby Cox. "He puts a lot of relief pitchers out of work. You know he's going to give you at least six innings, usually nine."

"Now our bullpen has had two days of rest," said Cox, whose team was rained out Saturday.

"Niekro stuck with it (the knuckleball) most of the way," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon. "He wasn't behind on too many hitters. I thought (catcher Bruce) Benedict did an excellent job. Only one ball got past him all night."

Benedict "is doing a super job back there," Niekro agreed.

"A knuckleball does strange things," said Benedict. "You can warm up an hour before the game starts, and once the game gets under way it moves differently. You need to relax to catch a knuckleball."

Seattle: the real thing?

SEATTLE (AP) — Two exhibition games do not a season make, but the Seattle Seahawks will take the results and file them away in their memories.

For good reason. After victories over the Minnesota Vikings and Dallas Cowboys, two National Football League powers that were models for Seattle's franchise, the Seahawks can't be blamed if they start thinking about playoffs.

The fourth edition of the Seahawks might be that good.

"I thought Seattle was pretty good myself," Cowboy coach Tom Landry said after the Seahawks' 27-17 victory at the Seattle Kingdome Sunday night.

"I was very impressed with their linebackers and I was very impressed with their offense. They beat us decisively, both physical and technique wise."

Though Dallas hardly looked like the club that made it to its fifth Super Bowl last January, the Seahawks were impressive on a night when their offensive star, quarterback Jim Zorn, played only a little more than one quarter.

"This was a real confidence builder for us," smiled Seahawk running back Sherman Smith, who sprinted 41 and 19 yards for touchdowns in the opening half. "Isn't Dallas in the Super Bowl every year?"

Not quite but the Cowboys have made a record five Super Bowl appearances, including the last two.

Appearing on national television for the first time in the history of the franchise, Seattle spotted Dallas a first-quarter touchdown — on a 17-yard pass from Roger Staubach to Jay Saldi — and then went to work.

On Smith's first score, his 19-yard run, he wasn't touched. On his second touchdown, his 41-yard romp, three Cowboys got their hands on him near the line of scrimmage but he burst free to go into the end zone standing up.

After Rafael Septien kicked a 38-yard field goal in the third quarter, Efren Herrera, who missed field goal tries of 39, 42 and 52 yards in the opening half, booted three-pointers from 32 and 21 yards out to make the score 20-10.

With 9:15 left in the game, reserve cornerback Kerry Justin made the first of his two fourth-period interceptions of Glenn Carano and raced it back 56 yards for a touchdown to virtually settle the outcome.

On the Justin interception, 37-year-old defensive end Carl Eller, the Seahawks' new acquisition from the Vikings, batted the ball out of Carano's grasp high into the air.

"I thought the Seahawks were a good team last year," said Eller, "and I think they'll be a better team this year."

The Seahawks rushed for a total of 194 yards and restricted the Cowboys to just 61 yards on the ground. Even Jack Patera, the Seattle coach who once played for the Cowboys under Landry, was impressed.

"It's hard to tell from training camp how good your running game is," said Patera. "It's a pleasure to see it work like that."

Waters finished?!

MUENSTER, Texas (AP) — Dallas Cowboys star defensive back Charlie Waters, who suffered a knee injury in an exhibition loss to Seattle, underwent surgery today in Muenster Memorial Hospital.

The Cowboys' team physician, Dr. Marvin Knight, who works out of the hospital in this small town North Central Texas town just south of the Oklahoma border, began a two-hour operation at 9 a.m., according to his secretary.

Waters, who played in his third Pro Bowl game last season, suffered the injury in Sunday night's 27-17 loss to Seattle in an open field mishap that did not involve contact with another player.

Cowboys officials said after the game it was feared the All-Pro safety suffered damage to knee cartilage and possibly a torn ligament. Officials at the hospital said they did not know the nature of today's operation, but knee surgery normally knocks a football player out for five to six months because of the rehabilitative factor.

Team officials were unavailable for comment today.

Waters, 29, who played quarterback at Clemson, led the Cowboys in unassisted tackles last year with 76 and tied teammate Cliff Harris in interceptions with four. He made The Associated Press' second team all-NFL team last year and was voted first team all-NFL by the Pro Football Writers Association.

"We'll miss Waters. He's a leader," Coach Tom Landry said in the locker room after the Seattle game.

Baseball Roundup

Cubs 5, Cardinals 3

Where Bruce Sutter is concerned, baseball is a game of one-upmanship — and no one plays it better than the Chicago Cub relief specialist.

"I just try to get ahead (of the hitter) and keep the ball down," says Sutter, explaining his stunning success this year.

The National League's top reliever came on strong again Sunday, gaining his 28th save as the Cubs defeated the Cardinals 5-3. The tough right-hander got the last two outs to halt a St. Louis rally, striking out George Hendrick on a 0-2 pitch to end the game.

Giants 4, Dodgers 1

San Francisco scored two runs when Dodgers rookie right fielder Mickey Hatcher dropped a two-out fly ball in the seventh inning and went on to beat Los Angeles behind Vida Blue's four-hitter.

Johnnie LeMaster opened the Giants seventh with an infield hit and moved to second on a sacrifice fly by Mike Sadek.

Blue, 10-9, struck out and Bill North walked before Rob Andrews hit a high fly to right. Hatcher, apparently having trouble as he looked into the sun, backed-pedaled and got under the ball but it popped out of his glove, allowing the Giants to break a 1-1 tie. Andrews reached second on the error and scored the third unearned run of the inning on Jack Clark's single.

Angels 4, Mariners 3

Rod Carew's bases-loaded single drove in the tying and winning runs and capped a four-run ninth-inning California rally. Held to seven hits by Rob Dressler over the first eight innings, the Angels chased the Seattle starter when Don Baylor and Willie Aikens opened the ninth with singles.

Reds 9-4, Padres 2-5

Ray Knight drove in three runs and Tom Seaver won his ninth straight decision as Cincinnati beat San Diego in the first game of their doubleheader. Seaver, 11-5, improved his lifetime record against San Diego to 24-7 with a seven-hitter.

Jerry Turner's pinch-hit single in the seventh inning drove in the winning run as San Diego came back to win the second game. Turner's first pinch hit after 15 unsuccessful tries capped a two-run rally for the Padres.

Royals 7, Tigers 1

The Royals backed Chamberlain, a hard-throwing 22-year-old right-hander, with home runs by Al Cowens, Amos Otis and Frank White. It was the fifth victory in a row and 11th in 14 games for the defending champion Royals, who trail California by five games.

White Sox 7-5, Blue Jays 0-7

After Baumgarten's masterpiece in the opener, John Mayberry drove in two runs with a pair of singles and scored three times to earn the Blue Jays a split. Baumgarten gave up a bunt single to Bob Bailor in the first inning and a two-out triple to Al Woods in the seventh. He walked three and struck out five. Meanwhile, Jim Morrison drove in two runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly and Chet Lemon collected three doubles. Morrison's leadoff homer in the first inning was all the support Baumgarten needed.

Errors hurt Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — New York Jets Coach Walt Michaels has labeled his team as being able to do anything at any time.

They did early and everything early, and late Sunday en route to a 26-14 National Football League exhibition victory over the injured and error-prone Houston Oilers.

Early, Kevin Bell ran 21 yards for a touchdown with a blocked punt on the fourth play of the game to give the Jets a 7-0 lead. Later, punter Chuck Ramsey threw a fourth down pass for a 13-yard completion, and most any time, it seemed Pat Leahy was on the field kicking one of his four field goals.

"We can do anything at any time," Michaels said. "We were in great field position to try the fourth down pass — but now everybody knows that Ramsey was a quarterback in college."

Michaels said both teams were ready to play.

"Our people were ready to play and have some fun," Michaels said. "And I think Houston was ready to play too. Their first touchdown drive was as complete a football team as I've seen in Houston."

But even on the scoring drive, Michaels had to praise the Jets.

"You are on the right track when you force a team to use two fourth-down plays to get points on the board," Michaels said.

Michaels referred to a pair of fourth-down runs by Earl Campbell, the first to keep the drive going, and the second for a one-yard touchdown run. Campbell, who led Houston rushers with 61 yards on 18 carries, also scored on a nine-yard run in the second quarter.

Leahy kicked first half field goals of 19 and 33 yards and added a 38-yard boot and career high 52-yarder in the second half.

Dykes, a rookie from southeastern Louisiana, charged in from the right side to block Cliff Parsley's first attempt of the game.

Met joins Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers have acquired first baseman Willie Montanez from the New York Mets and say he will join the club in New York tonight for a series against the Yankees.

For Montanez, the Mets got cash and two players to be named later, it was announced Sunday.

Montanez, 31, is hitting .236 with five home runs and 47 RBIs.

"He's capable of playing two positions (first base and outfield), and with (John) Grubb out, we felt we needed a lefthand bat," said Eddie Robinson, executive vice president of the Texas Rangers.

"At this time of the year, any team that's hoping to win is looking for a trade to help itself."

Grubb, an outfielder, dislocated a finger while sliding into a base on the Rangers' last road trip and was placed on the 21-day disabled list.

Ranger outfielders Richie Zisk and Al Oliver, who were unhappy about losing outfielder Oscar Gamble in the recent trade with the Yankees for Mickey Rivers, expressed amazement about Sunday's trade for Montanez.

"Can Montanez pitch?" Zisk asked in disbelief. "Just what we need, another lefthanded first baseman. They obviously chose Door No. 3. They didn't go for Door No. 1 or Door No. 2 or the box on Jay's tray or the cash in Monty's pocket." The Rangers already have acquired year candidate Pat Putnam, both left-handers, at first base. John Ellis, a right-hander and frequent designated hitter, also has played at first base.

Oliver, a National League rival of Montanez for years when he was with Pittsburgh, said:

"He can play. I'll say that. I just have no idea where Montanez can play, but so can all of our first basemen. And only one of them can play at a time."

The Ranger clubhouse was buzzing Sunday with speculation about the trade.

"It's like they said 'I'll give you Boardwalk and Park Place if you don't touch the utilities and the B&O Railroad,'" Zisk said.

Bonds chooses Howard Payne

Ex-Howard College Hawk Allen Bonds has decided to wear the colors of Howard Payne University next year, it was announced Sunday.

Bonds came to the Hawks from El Paso. He is considered an excellent rebounder with a double-digit scoring average, said Howard Payne Basketball Coach Chester Story.

Also hitting the hardwoods for Howard Payne are new recruits Fred Wilson of York Junior College, Nebraska, and Reginald Durham of Winfield, La.
