Oil spill task force using 'cease fire' for advantage

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Oil spill task force leaders say they plan to take advantage of an expected two-day "cease-fire" in the relentless advance of history's largest oil spill to prepare for a second assault.

Coast Guard officials said Monday night that reconnaissance flights showed only "a couple" of patches of sheen within 80 miles of the 100-mile-long Padre Island, which bore the brunt of a major greasing last week.

Huge concentrations of the crude oil from a crippled Mexican offshore well cover thousands of square miles of the western Gulf of Mexico, but remain more than 100 miles south of Texas. The northerly flow of the oil is expected to stall at least until Wednesday as winds and currents die.

"It looks like we may be in for a period of two to three days with nothing significant coming onto the beaches," said Coast Guard Capt. Roger Madson, commander of the task force.

Meanwhile, an official of the Mexican government oil company that was drilling the Ixtoc I well said Monday that Pemex hopes to cap the well this week — more than three weeks ahead of schedule.

More than 100 laborers, armed with rakes, shovels and plastic trash bags, worked Monday to clean the goo from dozens of miles of multi-million-dollar tourist beaches fouled last week.

The oil has washed up on more than 50 miles of Padre Island's glistening white beaches, dealing a harsh blow to the vital tourist industry during a peak vacation time.

On the northern end of Padre Island, crews collected 2,000 garbage bags of emulsion containing up to 90 percent oil.

To the south, an 88-man clean-up crew worked along the plush strip of hotels and condominiums in the crippled resort town of South Padre Island where tourism has dropped 50 percent and Chamber of Commerce officials say the losses will total in the millions of dollars.

Officials are using manual clean-up rather than heavy machinery because the rakes and shovels remove less precious sand from the thin beaches and don't pound the oil into the sand.

The Coast Guard is also taking initial steps toward defending the difficult two-mile-wide Cavallo Pass into Matagorda Bay, some 100 miles up the coast from Corpus Christi. Task force officials have also begun looking up farther the coast at Galveston Bay, just southeast of Houston.

Some defensive equipment has been readied in the Cavallo Pass area, and Coast Guard officials will meet this week with private contractors who regularly work against such spills to determine the best way to defend the pass.

"This respite has given us the time to prepare ourselves farther northward. It gives us plenty of time to make sure the oil doesn't outrun us and get past our defenses," Coast Guard spokesman Jim McGranachan said.

The defense strategy is to sacrifice the beaches on the barrier islands and protect the inlets into fertile bay and lagoons, which could be devastated by the oil. The inland bays harbor many rare species of wildlife and are the breeding ground for shrimp and other key commercial marine life.

Texas attorney General Mark White, who says he has the authority to sue Mexico for damages, toured the blackened beaches Monday and said it could be months before his investigators know who to blame for the mess.

White, a Democrat, stressed that no fault has been determined but added that he hasn't ruled out a lawsuit against a Dallas firm, founded by Republican Gov. Bill Clements, that owns the equipment used in drilling the runaway well, Ixtoc I.

U.N. debate on Palestine

U.S. strategy may be no strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Carter steams down the Mississippi, his senior advisers are gathering at the White House to plan American strategy for the U.N. debate on the Palestinian issue.

That strategy, admitted Robert Strauss, the president's special Mideast negotiator, may be to offer no U.S. proposal whatsoever.

Strauss told reporters on his return from Israel and Egypt Monday that he found "considerable hesitation" in both countries about a number of possible American approaches he suggested in talks with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

"We might conclude to do nothing," Strauss said.

This would appear to be in accord with Israel's strong resistance to any U.S.-led effort to modify longstanding Security Council resolutions on the Mideast. Somewhat surprisingly, Strauss found Egypt backing the Israeli view, possibly because a U.S. split with the Begin government could upset continuing peace talks.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale was chairing today's meeting with Strauss, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Zbigniew Brezinski, the president's national security adviser. Vance interrupted his vacation at Martha's Vineyard, Mass., to try to settle on a U.S. position in time for the opening of the U.N. debate Thursday in New York.

Strauss ended his mission without blaming either Israel or Egypt for the U.S. dilemma. He called them "good and strong partners" in the peace process and said he found they were making even more progress in their own negotiations than he had expected.

But as to the Security Council debate, where the United States is likely to face strong Arab demands to acknowledge Palestinian "rights," Strauss said he returned without any recommendation for Carter.

"I do not know what he is going to decide," the special envoy said.

The goal of the White House meeting is to produce recommendations for Carter's approval by Thursday morning.

Already ruled out is any U.S. support for Palestinian statehood. Carter is on record against it and, in any event, the administration would risk a break with Israel if it did not veto any resolution calling for a Palestinian state.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Letter to editor

Q. What is the longest recorded letter to the editor?
A. We assume you mean globally and not one addressed to the Herald. The Fishing Gazette received a letter containing 13,000 words. In length, that would be about as third as long as the modern novel. It was published in seven point type and spread over two issues in 1884. All letters to the editor should be written tersely and as much to the point as possible. Never write over 250 words; otherwise you stand the chance of being edited sharply.

Tops on TV: Baseball, crazies

Baseball fans get another treat tonight when Cable Channel 6 broadcasts the Houston Astros-New York Mets game at 7 p.m. For those who don't go gaga over the national sport, there is little besides a repeat of the 1978 movie "A Death In Canaan," airing at 7 p.m. on CBS. It involves residents of a small Connecticut town who rise to the defense of a fellow Canaanite accused of murder. Fans of Monty Python should watch "The Pythons" at 10 p.m. on PBS. The crazies get interviewed, and we will see scenes from their new movie.

Big Springer voted Miss Amity in Miss Texas USA pageant

Andra Hohertz, representing Howard College, was elected Miss Amity by queen contestants in the new Miss Texas USA contest held Monday night in El Paso.

Andra, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daryle A. Hohertz, 7 Highland Heather, is the reigning 1978-1979 Miss Howard College. She was chosen Miss Diamond Queen in 1977.

Andra plans to enter Texas A and M University this fall as a sophomore to study fashion merchandising.

Barbara Buckley, a 21-year-old brunette from Midland, is the new

Miss Texas USA, and says the key to success is to be considerate and to keep pushing forward.

She will represent Texas in the Miss USA contest. That winner will compete in the Miss Universe pageant.

Kathy Patrick, a 19-year-old pre-law student from Anthony, was first runner-up. Second runner-up was 20-year-old Diana Dunford of El Paso. Juanita Vasquez, 23, of Cleburne was third runner-up and 20-year-old Staci Simmons of Lubbock was fourth runner-up.

Local rancher assaulted today by two masked men

D. L. Dorland, prominent rancher and oilman, was assaulted by two masked men this morning around 5 a.m. while checking some of his leases.

The two men beat him with a wooden club around the head area and fled in Dorland's car. A warrant was issued by District Attorney Rick Hamby for the arrest of one of the men. The complaint was filed this morning.

Dorland walked a half mile to a telephone and called the Howard County Sheriff's Office.

Dorland was treated and released with sutures in a wound on the left side of his head.

Hail damages Stanton crops

By EILEEN McGUIRE
Rain, strong winds, and a large amount of hail played havoc on some property, including crops, in Stanton Monday evening.

"We had a terrible wind," said Police Chief Jerry Register today. "It blew some small camp trailers and storage buildings over."

He said that the estimated inch of rain that fell on Stanton from about 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. was accompanied by hail. Some crops were extensively damaged by the hail, he stated.

Many Stanton residents were still without telephone service this morning, according to Register, following the loss of service to most Stanton areas Monday night.

In addition to blowing telephone lines down, Register said that the wind also ripped down a few power lines. Electrical lines were quickly put back in service, however.

According to Mrs. John T. Couch, Luther, a thunderstorm hit her area sometime between 6 and 7 p.m. Monday. No hail was reported, but the storm was accompanied by strong winds and "very bright lightning."

"They did get some hail southeast of us," she said. Total rainfall Monday amount to .5-inch, according to Mrs. Couch. She reported an unmeasurable amount of rainfall this morning.

About .74-inch of rain fell on the H.H. Wilkinson Ranch west of town, Monday night.

Only a trace of rain was reported falling in Ackerly, in the Sands High School area.

The Coahoma School Superintendent's Office reports that about 1.4-inches of rain fell on Coahoma Monday night. The storm was accompanied by some strong winds, but no damages have been reported.

Big Spring rainfall varied, depending on where you happened to be standing. According to Agriculture Research Leader Bill Fryar, .53-inch of rainfall was measured on one gauge at the Experiment Station, while another gauge, one mile north from the first, showed .9-inch of rain.

Winds were strong, particularly around 7:45 p.m. when gusty winds peaked to 39 miles per hour, according to Fryar. Fryar stated that a little hail was reported falling southeast of town.

Well water is now available at park

Well water is now available for citizens at Comanche Trail Park.

Several weeks ago, the Big Spring City Council approved the construction of spigots to provide fresh drinking water from a well at the park. Five spigots are now in operation at the northwest corner of the park's ball field.

City officials have asked that persons limit the size of containers for the water to no more than five gallons.

"Also, we have used plastic pipes, and the taste of the water may be funny for a while," said City Manager Don Davis. "We have been flushing the pipes, and the water should taste great in a few days."

Mobile home ad produces results

A man who had a mobile home to sell got such good response to an ad he ran in The Herald he said "I wish I had another one to sell."

Wording a "People's ad" for the newspaper in which it runs is important. The fact that it appears in a newspaper like the Herald, thus gaining maximum exposure, is just as important.

The subscriber for this particular ad said he had many calls as a result of the ad, which ran over a period of 11 days.

For best results with something you are trying to buy or sell, call 263-7331 and talk to one of the Herald's courteous, cooperative sales girls.

ROBERT STIGWOOD

TONY BOYLE

Nixon sure about privacy

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Nixon says he expects no problem maintaining his privacy as a resident of the nation's largest city.

The former president and his wife, Pat, on Monday took a look at the Fifth Avenue apartment they hope to occupy by Jan. 1. Nixon said he wants privacy so he can spend time "reading and thinking and writing."

"We're delighted to be back in New York City," Nixon said as he and Mrs. Nixon chatted with reporters and shook a few hands among some 100 passersby and new neighbors outside the building.

"I've always found New Yorkers have a great respect for the privacy of those who live here," he said.

"Regarding the problems in this country, I'm going to leave it to the very wise people in the media and in Washington who seem to know all the answers, I hope," Nixon said.

Production blitz planned

NEW YORK (AP) — Film and record mogul Robert Stigwood says he plans an 18-month, four-film production blitz in New York City beginning in October.

The movies will carry a total budget of $25 million and are expected to employ more than 1,000 persons. Mayor Ed Koch, who announced Stigwood's plans Monday, vowed the city would "extend all possible cooperation."

The Australian-born Stigwood, known for the parties and promotions that go along with his productions, has made a fortune on such movies as "Grease," "Saturday Night Fever" and "Jesus Christ Superstar." He plans to supervise production from his yacht moored in the Hudson River.

Capacity crowds see film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Near capacity crowds are seeing "Apocalypse Now," director Francis Ford Coppola's $31 million Vietnam War epic, in the three theaters where it is playing on a reserved-seat basis.

United Artists reported the long-awaited picture grossed a total of $322,489 in its first five days at New York's Ziegfeld Theater, Toronto's University Theater and the Cinerama Dome here. The film broke box office records on its first day, last Wednesday, at the Toronto and Los Angeles theaters.

Third trial bid lost

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — Former United Mine Workers boss W.A. "Tony" Boyle has lost a bid for a third trial on charges he arranged the assassination of a union rival nine years ago.

In a second trial, Boyle, 77, was convicted in February 1978 of three first-degree murder charges in the Dec. 31, 1969, shooting deaths of Joseph "Jock" Yablonski and Yablonski's wife and daughter.

Presiding Judge Francis Catania of Delaware County Court on Monday denied Boyle's request for a new trial and ordered the former union leader to appear Sept. 20 for formal sentencing. The convictions carry a mandatory life sentence.

Kucinich to try again

CLEVELAND (AP) — With familiar attacks on big business, banks, utilities and the media, embattled Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich has announced he wants a second two-year term.

The brash, 32-year-old mayor told wildly enthusiastic supporters Monday that he has entered the Oct. 2 non-partisan primary election because he needs another term to solve the city's problems.

Amarillo mother leads testimony in retrial

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Nancy Moyer of Amarillo, whose 16-year-old daughter was kidnapped and slain four and a half years ago, wept as she told a jury Monday of seeing her daughter for the last time as the girl was dressing for school.

Mrs. Moyer was the lead-off witness in the prosecution's second attempt to convict Jimmy Paul Vanderbilt, a former Amarillo rookie policeman accused in the murder of Katina Moyer on April 1, 1975.

Mrs. Moyer's husband and the victim's father is Hudson Moyer, who was a state representative at the time of the slaying. District Judge Larry Gist overruled a defense motion and allowed the state to introduce a mangled lead slug that police found 250 feet from where the girl's body was found.

Vanderbilt's first conviction in Potter County was reversed by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on grounds a statement Vanderbilt made after his arrest should not have been admitted in the 1976 trial.

Six police officers followed Mrs. Moyer to the witness stand, telling how they found the Moyer's family car about 9 p.m. on the night of the crime and a few hours later discovered the girl's body.

Two accused of robbery

Ronnie Day Barber, 1606 State, and David White, 902 San Antonio, were charged Thursday with the aggravated robbery of Karim Abed Hamid at the Water Hole No. 3 bar.

The pair were accused of stealing his watch, ring, and over $200 of currency Wednesday. They were arrested in a bar after the robbery.

Rains accompanied by electrical activity

By the Associated Press

A large area of thunderstorms marched across West Texas and North Texas late Monday and early today.

Moderate to heavy rain, accompanied by electrical activity, was reported over the state. Abilene measured 1.1 inches and Wichita Falls received .83 of an inch.

The rest of the state had either clear or partly cloudy skies and gentle winds.

Although the thunderstorm activity was breaking up this morning, the National Weather Service said it would develop again later today. The new storms were expected to appear in the western, northern and coastal regions of Texas.

New York's bank burglary rate skyrocketing in '79

NEW YORK (AP) — A 23-year-old bank teller is the latest fatality in an exploding New York City bank robbery rate. Holdups have occurred recently at the rate of five a day — more than 100 in three weeks.

Daniel Tishman was gunned down Monday during the sixth robbery in three years at the same branch of the European American Bank, police said. The robber, who wore a monkey mask, got away with $2,435.

He was the second victim of a bank robbery suspect in New York in four days. A police officer was gunned down Friday. Two other policemen have been wounded this month.

Meanwhile, across town on Monday, a gun-wielding bandit walked out of a Citibank branch with $2,600, police said, and about $1,800 from a Chemical Bank branch was handed over to a man who had written on a paper bag: "Would you like to cash this check?"

Two other attempts were unsuccessful — one leading to the arrest of a suspect and the other abruptly ending when a teller fell to the floor after reading the would-be robber's note.

The sharp upsurge in bank robberies in New York, which has outpaced the escalating robbery rate across the nation, led the FBI and city police to form a 30-man task force to deal with bank heists.

The unit was set up this month following a record-breaking 125 bank robberies in July, including 14 in one day. The previous one-month record was 84 in August 1977. More than 100 have occurred already this month, according to police.

Nationwide, the bank robbery rate has been climbing for years, but the increases are getting steeper — 12 percent for 1978 and a projected 13 percent for this year, the FBI says.

The FBI said there were 456 bank robberies in New York in the first seven months of this year compared with 358 for the same

Man wanted in arson deaths still eluding Houston police

HOUSTON (AP) — A man wanted for questioning in last week's fire deaths of four children has been reported seen near the house where they died, but has avoided capture, Houston police say.

"He is still out there and we have a whole lot of people looking for him," homicide Detective Dave Frazier said. "He was reported to have been seen twice near a convenience store and in the chocolate brown station wagon he has been driving."

Former convict Charles Harold Bingham, 33, walked away from an interview room Saturday night when a detective left him unattended while questioning him about the deaths of the children, ages 2 to 12.

Bingham was charged with escape, a felony. No charges have been filed regarding the deaths.

Funeral services were set today for one of the children, Amos Black III, 9. Services for Andrea Jones, 12; her sister, Traci Marie Jones, 7, and Tony Beard, 3, were scheduled for Wednesday.

Their bodies were found by firefighters Friday in a southeast Houston home. After finding a one-gallon gasoline container in a bedroom, arson investigators said the fire was set.

Three of the children were bound hand and foot and one had been raped. Medical examiners ruled three died from carbon monoxide asphyxiation, while the fourth died from strangulation and smoke inhalation.

Bingham, who had dated the mother of one of the children, had surrendered through his parole officer Friday night after twice telephoning arson in-

Champ--Chinese style

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — It's hard to find worthy opponents, so Donnas Johnson, the self-styled Bobby Fischer of Chinese checkers, has placed a local newspaper ad offering $100 to anyone who can beat him.

"I'm the best," says Johnson, who claims to have never lost a game in the five years since his wife first introduced him to the game.

"They recognize the world's greatest chess player, the world's greatest backgammon player, and I want to be the world's greatest Chinese checkers player," said Johnson.

Johnson says he's only played against his wife, Theresa, some relatives and any friends he could cajole into a game.

Johnson's lament is that Americans are aware of Chinese checkers, but it's not as popular as other games.

"Then I could go out and win me some money," he chuckled.

Goo for $2

PORT ISABEL, Texas (AP) — The way pharmacist Charles Rogers sees it, there were hula hoops followed by pet rocks. So why not jars of runaway Mexican crude oil — at $2 a jar, of course.

Rogers headed out to the beach near here last week as the crude from a blowout Mexican well began rolling ashore and began scooping up the goo nobody wanted.

The bottles are tagged: "South Padre Oil Slick, 1979. Origin: Campeche, Mexico June 3, 1979."

Rogers admits his family and friends laughed — at first.

"They pay $3 to $5 for a pet rock, don't they? People will buy anything. All you have to do is take a gamble on it," he said. "I've sold about a hundred of them so far. People will buy anything."

Taco-tested twins

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Between them, Casey Jones and twin brother, Charles, weighed 17 pounds at birth. Their mother, Cindy Jones, credits a prenatal diet that included tacos, watermelons, doughnuts and homemade ice cream.

Dr. Tom Boulware, whose experience stretches back 50 years and about 20,000 babies, was succinctly impressed:

"Huge bunnies they were," he said. Casey checked in at 8 pounds, 4½ ounces and Charles at 8 pounds, 6 ounces.

Young supporters to meet with Israeli officials today

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Black supporters of Andrew Young are meeting with an Israeli official today to urge recognition of Palestinian rights after saying they support the rights of both Jews and Palestinians to national homelands.

Campaigning for Israeli-Palestinian rapprochement in the wake of Young's resignation as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, officials of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference were to meet with Israeli U.N. Ambassador Yehuda Z. Blum. They were also to hold a news conference, meet with New York Jewish leaders and address a rally of black groups at a Manhattan church.

Nachum Shai, a spokesman for Blum, told a reporter the SCLC delegation sent word to the ambassador that it wanted to "clarify our support for the PLO's human rights to establish a state." But at a news conference Monday SCLC president Joseph E. Lowery would not go beyond endorsement of the Palestinians' right to a homeland.

The SCLC leaders had lunch Monday with the Palestine Liberation Organization's U.N. observer, Zehdi Labib Terzi. Lowery told reporters: "We communicated to Mr. Terzi and his associates our support for the human rights of all Palestinians, including the right of self-determination involving among other things their homeland." Lowery said they urged that PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat "give consideration to the recognition of the nationalhood of Israel...whereby steps can be taken that would lead to peace and reconciliation."

He said his delegation also asked the PLO to consider "a halt to the violence that has inflicted hurt, death, destruction upon far too many of God's children in the Middle East."

"We think," he declared, "that God is moving in this whole situation to lead us to peace and reconciliation."

Lowery conceded that Young's resignation was the "catalyst" for his group's attempt to bring the Israelis and Palestinians together. But he said American blacks are concerned about the Israeli-Palestinian stalemate because a cutoff of Arab oil shipments to the United States "will have a devastating effect on everybody but it may have a fatal effect on black areas."

Young, who was administrative assistant to SCLC founder Martin Luther King Jr., said on Sunday that the U.S. government's refusal to deal with the PLO was "kind of ridiculous" because communication with it is essential to advance the cause of peace in the Middle East.

Shai said Israel would continue to reject any PLO participation in the Middle East peacemaking process and would insist that the U.S. government live up to its commitment to have no dealings with PLO representatives until the PLO recognizes Israel's right to exist.

Motorist can be armed with price gouging info

WASHINGTON (AP) — Motorists who suspect their local service stations of price gouging can now arm themselves with a government list of maximum legal gasoline prices in 20 major U.S. cities.

The Energy Department released the list Monday in its continuing battle to monitor the prices of gasoline being charged by the nation's more than 175,000 service stations.

But Michael Podhorzer of the Consumer Federation of America charged that penalties for pricing violations and the chances of being discovered are so remote "people are not afraid of being found in violation."

And the department itself acknowledged it has had only 50 auditors working on complaints of retail gas prices. However, the department added that an additional 150 should be in the field soon in response to President Carter's recent order to increase the size of the auditing staff.

Federal rules have regulated the price of gas at retail stations for the past five years. The current ceilings range from a low of 86.2 cents a gallon for regular in Dallas to almost $1.15 a gallon for premium in New York. The maximum prices are based on the wholesale gasoline price paid by the station operator plus taxes and a maximum margin of 15.4 cents a gallon to cover overhead and profit.

Despite the federal controls, government officials say it would be virtually impossible to conduct widespread monitoring of prices for possible violations.

"It would be just like auditing every taxpayer," said Dianne Novick, a spokeswoman for the Energy Department.

With the releasing of the maximum price list, the Energy Department's David J. Bardin urged motorists to notify the department if their gasoline costs more than the legal ceilings.

The department's toll-free telephone hotline for consumers to pass on their price complaints is: 800-424-9246. Consumers who use the list to try to spot price gouging will find prices vary widely from city to city and among the 10 oil companies included.

For example, the difference in the legal ceiling on a gallon of regular gasoline in Chicago varies from $1.0057 for Shell to $1.0813 for Mobil, a variation of about seven cents.

Won't replace mercury thermometers

FDA investigates fever strips

A fever is a symptom of something wrong in the body. It is caused most often by bacterial or viral infection. The infection produces heat that sends body temperature up above the normal 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit.

For years, the customary way of taking a temperature has been with a mercury-filled glass thermometer. But recently, some manufacturers have been promoting plastic "fever strips." These strips, which are placed on the outside of the body, such as the forehead, are imbedded with liquid crystals that are sensitive to temperatures.

However, the Food and Drug Administration, which is investigating these new devices, cautions that the "fever strips" should not be considered replacements for the conventional thermometer, but should be regarded only as fever indicators or detectors. When the strips give an indication of fever, a conventional mercury thermometer should be used to determine the extent, if any, of the temperature rise, FDA officials say. Indeed, one manufacturer of the strips includes a glass thermometer in its sales kit.

The plastic fever strips work like this: When pressed against the forehead for 15 to 60 seconds, a letter or number registers on the strip to indicate if there is a rise in the skin surface temperature. Most manufacturers use the letter "N" (for normal) or "F" (for fever) or numerical indications (the higher the number the higher the skin temperature) to indicate the skin heat. Some companies use a letter-number combination.

In addition, the indicators turn one of three colors: tan (warm), green (warmer), or blue (warmest). Any shade in the "N" category is considered a normal temperature, while any shade of color with a numeral reading such as 1, 2, or 3 is supposed to indicate an elevated temperature. Generally, doctors consider a temperature of 100 degrees

Fahrenheit or above as a cause for concern.

FDA strongly recommends that consumers read the product's directions for use carefully, as well as double check any indication of a fever with a clinical mercury thermometer. One of FDA's concerns is that these fever detectors give a reading of surface skin temperature, while the mercury thermometer gives a more accurate body (core) temperature when placed in the mouth or rectum.

Forehead surface temperatures can vary 2 to 8 degrees between individuals. Body (core) temperatures generally remain constant (98.6 degrees Fahrenheit) in the absence of disease for the overwhelming majority of people. In addition, external and internal physical factors can raise an individual's forehead temperature. These factors include air temperature, direct sunlight or artificial light on the forehead, physical exercise, or even flushing of the face caused by an emotional state.

The fever strips have been marketed in this country since about 1975, but only recently have manufacturers and distributors made a concentrated effort to see them in retail outlets. With the increased marketing efforts came questions about the reliability of the devices. FDA's investigation into the fever strips will include gathering scientific information to ascertain the reliability of the devices, with an eye to the possibility of setting standards for the strips.

Tween 12 and 20 — Young poets speak of love and life

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Poetry time has rolled around again and I'd like to welcome our three young poets. Kathy Neeley is 15 and lives in Huntsville, Ala. She hopes her poem will make a lot of teens who feel they are not alone. Carnell B. Hardy, 16, of Colorado Springs, Colo., says "Love Is Worth a Try." And Gerald Morris, 21, of Alameda, Calif., says "Love is the door and we are the key."

I'VE GOT ME

People say I'm lonely
And that I need someone else

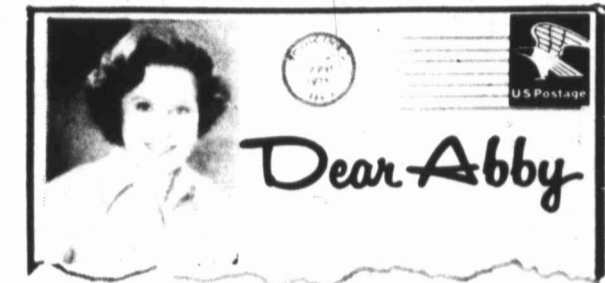

But I smile and shake my head
Because I've got a special someone
I've got me
I once lost touch with me
As the world crashed through my door
Because it was said I needed friends

But I told them I already had one
I've got me
A loner is what they say I am
Who never has many friends
But I'll always have one
Life-time friend
Who'll always stick by me
I've got me! — Kathy

LOVE IS WORTH A TRY
When you are down and feeling blue
And nothing seems to be going for you
Give love a chance,
Let love flow through
Don't cry and be shy,
Let your love be mine
Always reach to the sky
And let love shine on by
It's always true,
Let love be with you! — Carnell

JUST YOU AND ME
My love for you will never slow
For when we are close, my heart,

It just glows
Your hair is of autumn, your skin
Of snow, your touch is a dream
Oh awake me slow
Your eyes are so sweet like the ocean so blue
Or a small winding brook that God
Made just for you
I hold you at night so close while you sleep,
And think of the day that God helped us meet
We will always be together, my love
You and I, for without you I am not alive
You are part of my life, just you and me,
Our love is the door and we are the key
My love is for you and yours is for me,
God put us together, so it shall be,
Just you and me. — Gerald

Hers Is a Sterling Silver Anniversary

DEAR ABBY: I will soon celebrate my silver wedding anniversary and consider myself the luckiest woman in the world to have been married to this wonderful man for 25 years.

I want to express my appreciation to my husband for all his kindness and understanding, but I'm not very good with words. A friend told me that you published a beautiful tribute to your husband on your 25th wedding anniversary. Please print it again. I could use some ideas.

WILMA IN DENVER

DEAR WILMA: What a coincidence! Your letter reached me on my 40th wedding anniversary, and because those words are as true today as they were 15 years ago, I repeat them with pleasure:

July 2, 1964

Dearest Mort:
Today is a very special day for me. It's my 25th wedding anniversary and I have this to say:
I had a mother and father who really loved each other, so I know what love is.
I've seen two teenagers safely through the traumatic teens, so I know what satisfaction is.
I've prayed, and my prayers have been answered, so I know what faith is.
And I've had by my side for 25 beautiful years, the kindest, gentlest, most considerate human being I've ever known, so I know what happiness is.
And because I've known all these things, I know what wealth is.
I love you.

Abby

DEAR ABBY: My 3-year-old son and two neighbor boys his age were playing in our small pool in the backyard. Since I'm always within earshot when children are in the pool, I heard my son say, "Let's play like babies without any clothes!" Then they all giggled and took off their swimming trunks. It was a very hot day and I saw no harm in letting them play in the pool for a while unclothed.

Suddenly an older sister of one of the boys appeared, and when she saw her brother naked she raised a big fuss. My son quickly admitted it was his idea. The girl ran home, horrified, and returned with her mother who was practically in hysterics. By that time I had already dressed her son, but the mother dragged him home screaming that he was never to play here again, and spanking him every step of the way. Abby, is it wrong for small boys to play naked together? Or am I raising a pervert? What do the experts say about children and nudity?

CALIFORNIA MOM

DEAR MOM: The experts say that to make a big deal out of nudity tends to give children the impression that their bodies are "dirty" and something to be ashamed of. Furthermore, it's normal for children to be curious about the bodies of their friends, and it's reassuring to discover that when they've seen one, they've seen 'em all.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Women's colleges enrollment rising

NEW YORK, N.Y. — A few years ago, it seemed as if colleges for women were about to disappear. In the ten-year period between 1966 and 1976, more than one-half of the nation's women's colleges closed their doors.

But recently, record numbers of first-year students are enrolling in women's schools. So many, in fact, that some colleges are having to adjust classroom space and living quarters to accommodate the sudden boom in student enrollment.

Why the resurgence of interest in women's colleges? For many high school graduates, it's the firm belief that women's schools will take them seriously, says a recent issue of Seventeen. "It's a sad commentary on sex discrimination," says Eleanor Smeal, president of the National Organization for Women, "that even in 1979, women are not always treated fairly in co-educational institutions. But at women's colleges, the atmosphere is such that even male professors behave differently and tend to be more supportive of female students than their counterparts at co-educational institutions."

"You can always be sure at a women's college that when the professors recommend their best students for graduate schools and jobs, those recommended will be women," said Dr. Ann M. Lacy, a microbiologist at Goucher College.

"At a women's school a student sees in her teachers living proof that women can be successful," added Dr. M. Elizabeth Tidball, a medical school professor at George Washington University.

There is no way of knowing how long the trend favoring women's colleges will last. But many of the weakest women's colleges have passed from the scene, and the feeling is growing that those that have made it through the shakedown are likely to survive.

United States 'in retreat' in war with energy crisis

HOUSTON (AP) — The president of Arizona Public Service Co. believes most criticism of nuclear energy is the "irrational blatherings and posturings" of environmentalists and politicians.

Keith Turley told a small gathering of delegates to the national American Legion convention here Monday that this country's nuclear industry is shrouded by an "atmosphere of fear" created by those critics along with the biased and sensational reporting of the media.

He was part of a question-answer forum on energy presented by the Legion as the final pre-convention activity before it officially opened today a seven-day meeting that apparently has the energy crisis as its focus.

retreat." Emphasizing that "not one death has directly resulted from nuclear power," Turley said it "is not 100 percent safe, but it is safer than any other form of energy."

"All things that yield substantial benefit to mankind also present an amount of risk," he continued. "We must weigh the benefits and risks and make our decisions accordingly."

Turley said nuclear power can be used to reduce international instability because it will stop the competition for dwindling energy resources.

The present instability existing in the Middle East gravely threatens the security of the United States because of its dependence on the oil from that region, said Michael Canes of the American Petroleum Institute, which represents the nation's oil industry.

If any of a number of circumstances resulted in a cutback by one or more of the Oil Producing and Exporting Countries of just 4 million barrels a day, this country would be plunged into a recession three times worse than the one that gripped it in 1975, he said.

Canes said the United States has untapped energy resources that include 300 billion barrels of presently unrecoverable oil and 1,600 billion tons of coal that is not now economically extractable.

"And those resources will stay in the ground until the government and its regulations are taken out of the energy marketplace," he said. "We need to get it out of the fuels price control business."

The main speaker scheduled for the convention's opening ceremonies was Richard Morrow, president of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

The organization's emphasis on energy stemmed from its view that the nation's energy problems are, as its convention literature put it, "a threat to both the national security and our economy."

The Legion said it was offering its services "in an effort to help find meaningful and satisfactory solutions" to the problems.

Monday's forum included representatives of the oil, natural gas, nuclear and solar industries, each presenting his point of view to the small, receptive audience.

Turley had some criticism of his own for President Carter, saying if the nation's battle to overcome the energy crisis is "the moral equivalent of war, then we are now in

KNOW YOUR CARRIER

Michael Mendoza

One of the youngest Herald carriers is eleven-year-old Michael Mendoza who will be a 5th grader this year at Washington School. He is the younger brother of another Herald carrier. Michael is the son of Robert and Viola Mendoza, 1903 S. Monticello.

Michael has only been a junior businessman since June, delivering to subscribers on Morrison Street. The Herald tries to help carriers like Michael learn the fundamentals of business, help them gain confidence in making decisions, learn to be dependable in dealing with people, and to teach them to plan their work and then do it accurately.

The training Michael and other carriers receive will develop skills that will help them all of their lives.

Michael enjoys the profit he makes from his route. And with school just around the corner, he is using his earnings to purchase school clothes for the coming year.

If you would like to learn and earn from a newspaper route, call 263-7331 or come to the Herald circulation department for an application.

Clements out-Youngs Young

By SCOTT CARPENTER and JIM DAVIS

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements should hire Andrew Young to do public relations for his office on such things as the Gulf of Mexico oil spill. Young resigned as U.S. representative to the United Nations last week, saying he could not promise to stay out of controversies. Clements should be able to relate to that view.

The governor, who prides himself on being direct and plain-spoken in all matters, has out-younged Young by leaping with both boots into the oil spill controversy.

As globs of oil began washing up on Texas beaches recently, Clements took a look and said — in effect — so what?

The news media, he said, have grossly overstated the seriousness of the oil's effect on the Texas coast. Worrying about the oil before any serious damage is done is kind of a Chicken Little-and-the-sky-is-falling situation, he commented.

That reaction shouldn't surprise anyone. Clements has been an oilman most of his life, and an oilman worries more about dry holes than about gushing wells.

On his monthly "Governor's Report" public television show last week, Clements detailed the technical aspects of shutting off the well but brushed off reporters' questions about possible damage to the environment.

The general public is ignorant about the technology of the oil business, he said.

He's right, of course, but he's also showing his own ignorance of how strongly many Texans feel about their coast.

Bench issues tend to be emotional issues along the Gulf. The surest way to get a lot of angry persons together in that area is to propose something that could limit public access to or enjoyment of the beaches.

Even many in-land residents have strong feelings about the beaches. As gasoline becomes more expensive, the coast becomes more important to all Texans for vacation and weekend recreation.

Visitors do not want to spend their vacations scrapping sticky oil off their bare feet.

Clements not only is ignoring feelings of concern about the beaches and the environment but also is criticizing persons for having them.

That isn't very smart politically, nor is urging coastal residents to pray for a hurricane to help get rid of the oil. Tell survivors of Hurricane Celia to pray for another hurricane? That's like telling Wichita Falls residents to pray for another tornado to pick up litter.

Clements later said he wanted a Gulf hurricane that would just stir up the water

Weight management

YMCA Slim Living Program outlined

The Big Spring YMCA will kick off its Slim Living Lunch and Weight Management Program on Sept. 7.

The lunches will then be held on each Friday, and all members and non-members may come to eat the nutritional, low-caloried food. In order to participate, program members will be required to bring a slim living dish of their own.

Slim living dishes include: protein food such as fish, poultry or lean meat; Swiss, cottage or Muenster cheese; peanut butter; whole grain or enriched bread; raw vegetables or vegetables cooked without butter or added fat.

Members should bring recipes to share with others in the group. The Y's Slim Living Program lasts 10 weeks. It is geared to teach proper nutrition, behavior training techniques and awareness of body movement as its affects expenditure and intake balance.

The weight management program is part of the National YMCA's Cardiovascular Health Program. It is designed to help with control and prevention of obesity in men, women, and families. Linda Ward, also an aerobic exercise instructor, will be teaching the class with Mike Shinaberry, former class member.

Nadine Teague will be teaching the intermediate class called Slim For Life. This class meets on Thursday nights from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. The first meeting will be Sept. 6.

The YMCA Slim Living Program is concerned with the three areas of education, motivation and body awareness. Participants will be provided with a nutritionally sound food plan for those who have little knowledge of basic foods needs and provide to those who are seeking further current information.

Motivation for eating habits appropriate for each person's lifestyle is provided by group support, individual consultation and behavior training skills. Body Awareness becomes a reality through participation in weekly assignments and introduction to the role of physical conditioning to achieve and maintain a desirable weight.

A local YMCA Slim Living Advisory Committee of professionals in the area was organized in order to provide additional information when needed. Board members are: Dr. Jack Margolis, Big Spring VA Hospital; Mrs. Doris Perry, dietician; Jack Wells, Big Spring State Hospital Administrator; and the Rev. Augie Aamodt.

Prior registration is requested. Cost is $10 for Y-members and $20 for non-members. For more information call the Y at 267-8234.
