Two prisoners die, Vegas jail secured

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Two prisoners shot and killed each other today in a burst of gunfire at the city hall jail where 84 inmates were holding three guards hostage, said a guard who was wounded. Police quickly ended the three-day siege.

Police sharpshooters with automatic weapons entered the second-floor lockup shortly after the gunfire erupted and began emptying cells and taking the inmates to a nearby county jail. Five guns were recovered.

All three guards later emerged from the second-floor lockup. The wounded guard, William Melton, 52, walked without assistance and the other two were unharmed.

Melton later told officials that the two prisoners who died, said to be leaders of the siege, killed each other.

"They apparently had some kind of disagreement," said Capt. Dan Stopka. "He (Melton) said they were shooting at each other. He (Melton) jumped out of the way and was hit in the hand."

Inmates involved in the jail incident were not available for comment on Melton's report on how the two men died.

Police Lt. J.O. Smith said seven or eight shots rang out at 5:32 a.m. in the lockup where the inmates had been holding the three guards hostage since Saturday morning.

He said some of the inmates apparently turned against the ringleaders of the siege and began firing.

The dead prisoners were identified as Felix Lorenzo and Eugene Shaw. Lorenzo, serving a 150-year term for two armed robberies and a previous incident in which hostages were taken, had been seen earlier wearing a guard uniform.

Melton was grazed in the hand and leg. He was taken from the jail by ambulance. The other guards were identified as Dave Murray, 35, and Bob Hansen, 52.

The shooting ended the siege that began when an unknown number of inmates overpowered a guard, took his gun and used it to take the other two guards hostage in the lockup.

Sharpshooters were stationed on the roof of the three-story police building, situated about 4 miles from the Strip casinos.

Earlier in the day police had agreed to a list of 18 demands issued by the inmates dealing with jail conditions and prisoners' rights, but the prisoners refused to release their hostages.

Smith said "they didn't like all of them (the police responses)."

The points that were denied included demands for better representation by public defenders, improved facilities for Sunday religious services and radios in every cell.

A local attorney and a television newsman had served as mediators during negotiations with the inmates.

Smith said the first two demands could not be met because they were outside police jurisdiction, and the third was impossible because not all jail cells had electrical outlets.

The prisoners had demanded better medical care, access to court records and an exercise area. They also complained about cold food and lukewarm showers, and sought better laundry service, complaining poorly-done laundry "makes us look even worse when we go to court and confront the judge."

Russian ballerina interview shapes

NEW YORK (AP) — State Department officials said today that the United States and the Soviet Union had reached a compromise in the stand-off over interviewing Russian ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova.

The announcement came from Washington as Miss Vlasova and 52 other Soviet citizens remained aboard an Aeroflot jetliner grounded at Kennedy International Airport.

Hodding Carter, a State Department spokesman, said the interview would take place at the airport in a mobile lounge — a kind of bus that ferries passengers from airport terminals to planes. He said the lounge would provide the "non-coercive atmosphere" which the United States says Miss Vlasova needs to decide whether to stay in America with her husband, Alexander Godunov, who defected last week.

Miss Vlasova, like her husband a star of the Bolshoi Ballet, has been confined in the jetliner since Friday, along with the other Soviet citizens.

State Department officials had said earlier that both Soviet and U.S. representatives would be present at the interview. Carter said the question of who would attend was the subject of some last-minute "horse-trading" between officials at the airport.

Miss Vlasova's mother, meanwhile, appealed to President Carter to end the "cruel moral torture," a Soviet news agency said.

The White House confirmed a telegram was received over the weekend, purportedly from the ballerina's mother.

Kids, it's THAT time, again

By WALT FINLEY
School days, 1979.
They're fast approaching.
For many, they've already arrived, like today in Big Spring schools and Howard College.

Buses.
Some folks remember when they had to walk a mile or 10 to school, depending upon the accuracy of their memories.

If gasoline gets any more scarce, today's students will one day tell their kids how they walked to school.

Once it was popular to say that when summer vacations ended mom's vacation began.

Now many moms work, along with pops, and so they weren't home with the kids for the summer.

It's a sign of the inflationary times.

Inflation.

People and schools are hurting for money.

Hard times aren't ahead. They're already here for many.

But it will give future adults something to tell their children about. Like the Terrible Winter of '79.

Or the Great Recession of '79.
Or the Energy Crisis of '79.
Everything seems to be a crisis any more.

Fuel. Inflation. Nuclear Waste. Revolutions. Things that cause cancer in rats.

Today's students will learn how to solve all those crisis. Or at least how to pass them on to the next generation.

So as schools begin, be especially alert while driving your moped to work. One of those kids may be the answer to all our problems.

Social Security — 1

How did the system begin?

By WILLIAM STEIF
(First of 14 parts)

What is Social Security?

Put as simply as possible, Social Security is insurance against losing income because of disability or retirement. This insurance protects you, your spouse, your children — even your parents in certain unusual cases — by replacing some of your lost income.

Social Security is the cheapest insurance you can buy against the risks of American life, despite the gripes you may have heard about its rising cost in recent years.

But let's back up for a moment and see where the term "Social Security" came from and what's behind it.

The term was used by English economist Lord William Beveridge, who defined it as "a job when you can work and an income when you can't."

European craft guilds organized insurance-benefit plans as far back as the Middle Ages, and various kinds of voluntary insurance funds protected people throughout Europe from the 16th century on.

But it wasn't until Otto von Bismarck's Germany in the 1880s established its social-insurance plan that a whole nation received protection. Germany's was the first government-operated compulsory social insurance.

From there, the idea spread worldwide so that now more than 100 nations have systems to collect contributions — that is, taxes — from citizens and pay out these taxes as benefits to make up partly for earnings lost when people die or become old, disabled or sick.

The United States did not embrace this idea wholeheartedly for a long time.

The myth persisted of the "independent little guy" who through hard work, individual initiative and thrift had made it on his own and erected his fortress against all outside forces.

That is, of course, just a myth; no human being makes it on his own, and many are buffeted by forces over which they have no control whatsoever.

One such major economic force was the Great Depression of the 1930s.

In 1935, after five years of savage economic depression, President Franklin D. Roosevelt sent Congress economic-security legislation based on recommendations of a special Committee on Economic Security.

Congress then enacted the Social Security Act, which FDR signed into law Aug. 14, 1935. On that date, less than 15 percent of all U.S. workers were covered by any kind of retirement system.

The law signed in 1935 was far from comprehensive, but it furnished a base for all changes ever since. Those changes are explained in detail in my book "What You've Got Coming in Social Security and Medicare." For your copy, send $1.50 plus 50 cents postage and handling to "What You've Got Coming in Social Security and Medicare" in care of the Newspaper Enterprise Association, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Example: The 1935 law created old-age insurance for retired workers only. Amendments enacted in 1939, before the first monthly benefits were payable, expanded the program to provide for workers' survivors and dependents.

Major changes again were made in the 1950s, bringing farm workers, household employees and the self-employed under Social Security's coverage. Other changes were made in the law, such as providing benefits for the disabled.

But probably the biggest change came in 1965 when Congress established Medicare under the Social Security Administration.

That added insurance to pay hospital costs for retired workers and their spouses. Retirees were also given the option of paying a small monthly fee for insurance to cover doctors' charges.

In the 1970s, Congress tinkered with the taxes-and-benefits formulas used in Social Security. The tinkering was made necessary by inflation. A method was devised to automatically keep benefit payments up-to-date with prices and keep the top amount of annual earnings subject to Social Security taxes up-to-date with wages.

Public hearing on budget scheduled Tuesday by city

The public will have an opportunity to learn more about and comment on the proposed budget for next year at Tuesday's 9 a.m. meeting of the Big Spring City Council.

This will be the first public hearing on the proposed 1979-80 city budget, which includes proposals to cut 31 job positions in the city's operation.

City Councilmen will also listen to a request by Bill Lee, owner of the Big Spring Taxi Service, to raise rates. A decision will be made later in the meeting about whether to raise rates and whether to revise the fee for issuance of a taxi cab driver's license.

The council will also consider several ordinances concerning charges by the city. Second and final readings will be considered on ordinances requiring a deposit for new water customers, and a sewer surcharge for improvements at the sewer plant.

An emergency reading will be considered on an ordinance setting the tax rate in the city for the fiscal year 1979-80.

Rapist stabs

eyes of victim

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A well dressed man abducted and raped a service station attendant, then stabbed her repeatedly in both eyes in an effort to make certain the woman couldn't identify her assailant, police say.

The 20-year-old woman, who was not identified, was twice raped in a municipal park before the assailant stabbed her eyes with a screwdriver, authorities said.

The woman told police the man said he could not allow her to identify him later, police said.

The victim did not lose her sight in either eye when her eyelids and eyeballs were punctured in the Sunday attack, said Joanne Wall, nursing administrator of Family Hospital.

The woman told authorities she was abducted from a suburban Glendale service station about 8:15 a.m. while working alone. She was found more than three hours later, stumbling out of a wooded area in the park.

Troopers kill 'racer'

CANTON, Texas (AP) — State troopers shot and killed one man and arrested three juveniles late Sunday after a chase on Interstate 20 at speeds up to 120 mph and a manhunt in a wooded area north of here.

Department of Public Safety officials were trying today to identify the dead man whom they said fired at officers.

The chase began when a DPS officer clocked a vehicle traveling westbound on Interstate 20 in Smith County at more than 100 mph.

Tyler Police Sgt. Harold Richey said he called DPS headquarters after hearing of the pursuit to report that the men possibly were involved in a robbery in Tyler.

David Gish, 25, of Tyler told police he was hit over the head with a tool handle and tied up with an extension cord. He said the robbers took a radio, a stereo, some coins and an Irish Setter puppy.

Texas Highway Patrolmen Tom Purvis and Jack Ferguson chased the suspects at more than 120 mph, officers said. The car was believed stolen in Dallas.

The chase ended when the car spun out of control at Texas 19 and four youths got out and ran. Police said one of them fired on officers with a .38-caliber pistol. He was shot and killed. Police said he was not a juvenile.

One suspect was caught running toward some woods, and the other three were found after about a dozen officers from the DPS, including the Dallas-based DPS helicopter, and the Van Zandt County sheriff's office searched about two hours.

Goods stolen in the Tyler robbery were found in the car.

Fascinated by man-eater

MIAMI (AP) — Beneath the surface of Florida's inviting freshwater lakes and streams, authorities fear, may lurk a growing number of piranha — schools of which can strip a human to bone in minutes.

So far, only single specimens of the vicious South American carnivores have been reported in Florida waters. But those reports have prompted the state Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission to raise its guard.

"We know now that piranha could survive and reproduce in the wild in all of southern Florida as far north as Daytona," said Paul Shaffland, director of the commission's non-native fish research laboratory in Boca Raton.

Sex harassment survey under way

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — More than 5,000 female employees of the state are being asked if their male colleagues have given them "leering or suggestive looks," or made "sexual propositions."

The questions are part of a survey on sexual harassment being conducted by the Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation at Sangamon State University. Researchers hope to learn more about what had become a growing national issue — the sexual pressures on working women.

"It's been kept under wraps a little too much, and women are afraid to come forward with it," said John Collins, center director. "It tends to be a closet issue for those who are subjected to it and know anything about it."

Eight-page questionnaires were sent out this month to 5,192 female employees selected at random in 51 state agencies. More than 660 responses have been received so far, said Gay Davidson, a research assistant working on the survey.

Ms. Davidson said some women called to ask if they were sent a questionnaire because the center had been tipped that they had been sexually harassed.

The Illinois General Assembly is considering legislation that would make it an unfair practice for an employer to retaliate because a worker declined sexual advances made by a superior.

The questionnaire asks women if they have been subjected on the job to unwanted "subtle sexual hints or pressures," "touching, brushing against, grabbing, pinching," or to "coercive sex."

It also asks what action they took as a result of the incident, whether and to whom they reported it and what happened to them as a result.

"People should also be aware that many holiday accidents happen close to home. Deaths in many of our cities are up substantially from 1978 levels, and it is possible that the majority of deaths during the Labor Day holiday will result from accidents in urban areas," Speir added.

To help keep traffic moving safely, DPS and many local law enforcement agencies will be placing special emphasis on traffic enforcement during the Labor Day weekend. All available DPS Troopers will be on duty statewide, and the department will also work with the news media in the "Operation Motorcade" program which seeks to focus public attention on holiday traffic safety problems.

Labor Day weekend road death toll may be down

AUSTIN — Col. Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, has estimated that traffic accidents will claim 37 lives in Texas during the Labor Day holiday weekend.

The holiday runs from 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31, to midnight Monday, Sept. 3. During the comparable 78 hour period last year, there was a preliminary death count of 45, with late deaths raising the toll to 62.

"Our estimate is lower this year because, due primarily to the supply and cost of fuel, weekend travel is reduced from 1978. But at the same time, we recognize that traffic will probably increase during Labor Day since it is the last holiday weekend of the summer," Speir said.

"We could easily have more deaths than estimated if drivers fail to put safety first. I would appeal to all to all motorists to save both fuel and lives by observing the 55 mile speed limit, and am hopeful that persons who are drinking will let others do the driving," he noted.

"People should also be aware that many holiday accidents happen close to home. Deaths in many of our cities are up substantially from 1978 levels, and it is possible that the majority of deaths during the Labor Day holiday will result from accidents in urban areas," Speir added.

To help keep traffic moving safely, DPS and many local law enforcement agencies will be placing special emphasis on traffic enforcement during the Labor Day weekend. All available DPS Troopers will be on duty statewide, and the department will also work with the news media in the "Operation Motorcade" program which seeks to focus public attention on holiday traffic safety problems.

For the record

In the story about the Cabot closure printed in Sunday's Herald, the Union's interpretation concerning laying off employees according to seniority was inadvertently left out.

The Local 826 contract with Cabot reads:

"In a reduction of force, the man with the least plant seniority will be the first man laid off. The only exception to the above procedure will be the result of specific action to deny the company the use of necessary skilled employees, in which event the union agrees to waive the strict application to the extent only that the company shall not be denied the services of necessary skilled employees."

County's revenue sharing funds will total $168,612

By DON WOODS

Federal revenue sharing funds will amount to $168,612, Howard County Judge Bill Tune said in a letter from City Manager Don Davis detailing the programs funded jointly by the city and the county.

These are programs the City Council had agreed to cut from the budget in recent budget workshop sessions: the Detox Unit, county contribution was $5,000 last fiscal year, Civil Defense, $3,000 from the county, Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, $6,000 from the county, Seniors Citizens, $5,400 from the county, Texas State Guard, $1,500 from the county, and Health Inspection, to which the county contributed $6,138.

Public hearing for the proposed city budget is Tuesday.

Davis said in the letter to Tune, however, that he didn't anticipate any changes in the city council's position on the budget cuts.

Changes in insurance coverage for county property was discussed. In commissioner's last meeting several pieces of Howard County Industrial Park was taken off their policy.

Louis Stallings, acting as spokesman for the three agencies handling the county insurance, said the premium for the coming fiscal year will be $15,423. Last time a premium was paid three years ago it amounted to $10,749. Tune attributed the increase in part to the Wichita Falls tornado, which raised property premiums in the area.

The next time premiums are paid the amount should be lower.

The value was increased on some of the county property such as the Howard County Courthouse. Currently, Howard County property is covered by $5

Sex harassment survey under way

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — More than 5,000 female employees of the state are being asked if their male colleagues have given them "leering or suggestive looks," or made "sexual propositions."

The questions are part of a survey on sexual harassment being conducted by the Center for Policy Studies and Program Evaluation at Sangamon State University. Researchers hope to learn more about what had become a growing national issue — the sexual pressures on working women.

"It's been kept under wraps a little too much, and women are afraid to come forward with it," said John Collins, center director. "It tends to be a closet issue for those who are subjected to it and know anything about it."

Eight-page questionnaires were sent out this month to 5,192 female employees selected at random in 51 state agencies. More than 660 responses have been received so far, said Gay Davidson, a research assistant working on the survey.

Ms. Davidson said some women called to ask if they were sent a questionnaire because the center had been tipped that they had been sexually harassed.

The Illinois General Assembly is considering legislation that would make it an unfair practice for an employer to retaliate because a worker declined sexual advances made by a superior.

The questionnaire asks women if they have been subjected on the job to unwanted "subtle sexual hints or pressures," "touching, brushing against, grabbing, pinching," or to "coercive sex."

It also asks what action they took as a result of the incident, whether and to whom they reported it and what happened to them as a result.

Labor Day weekend road death toll may be down

AUSTIN — Col. Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, has estimated that traffic accidents will claim 37 lives in Texas during the Labor Day holiday weekend.

The holiday runs from 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31, to midnight Monday, Sept. 3. During the comparable 78 hour period last year, there was a preliminary death count of 45, with late deaths raising the toll to 62.

The

Governor-for-a-day celebration one of hard-to-explain things

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — One of the hard-to-explain things about state government is the traditional governor-for-a-day celebration.

Most taxpayers can't see the need for it, but state senators seem to think they can't do without it.

Every time the Senate begins a legislative session or ends one, a new Senate president pro tempore, or assistant presiding officer, is "elected" for the following period. Actually there is very little election, since the senator is chosen on seniority of service. If two or three senators have the same amount of seniority there usually is a coin toss — or the honor goes to the senator who has to run for reelection first.

The president pro tempore ranks immediately behind the lieutenant governor in the order of succession to the governorship if a chief executive should die or become unable to serve.

The main honor given the chosen one is the "governor-for-a-day" celebration staged by his supporters and lobbyists during his or her tenure.

On that particular day — when both the governor and lieutenant governor are supposedly out of the state — the president pro tempore is honored as Texas' governor with all its privileges and ceremony, including a day's pay as governor.

Actually, the real governor or lieutenant governor is usually in hiding at some country retreat, ready to rush to Austin in case a real emergency occurs.

In the past, some elected governors have had such little faith in governors-for-a-day that they locked their private offices and refused to let them inside. Others have carefully locked up all important papers and instructed employees of the governor's office to take orders from no one.

But the brief day of simulated power and glory lives on.

The latest all-day celebration was that for Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, whose chief claim to fame is that he holds the world's filibuster record of 43 hours.

Bands and choral groups from the University of Texas, Tarrant County Junior College and Fort Worth high schools furnished music. The governor-for-a-day marched to his swearing-in ceremony beneath the drawn sabers of the Ross Volunteers military unit at Texas A&M University. After Texas Supreme Court Justice Joe Greenhill administered the oath, a unit of the National Guard fired a 19-gun salute from cannon on the Capitol lawn.

There was a cake and punch reception in the governor's reception room, then a barbecue luncheon on the Capitol lawn. Meier's office said 1,100 tickets were sold at $10 each.

The current Senate pro tempore is Sen. Bill Braecklein, D-Dallas, whose governor-for-a-day celebration will be held in November.

Actually, Braecklein missed a good chance to be a real governor-for-a-day. Last weekend, Gov. Bill Clements was in New Mexico and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby was in Wyoming. However, Braecklein was also out of the state, in Alaska.

As a result, Speaker Bill Clayton, fourth in line of succession, served as governor, the first time a speaker has served since 1959.

The going rate for governor-for-a-day contributions is about $200 per lobbyist, according to a prominent Austin lobbyist. The amount of money raised from local supporters depends on the strength of the senator's campaign organization.

"Some of these senators take home a pretty nice check for the next campaign," said the lobbyist.

There have been some memorable governor-for-a-day celebrations in the past.

Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, was sworn in twice and celebrated twice — in Austin and El Paso. He was the first person with a Spanish surname to serve as governor of Texas — even a ceremonial one — since 1835.

Dallas Sen. Ike Harris served as governor-for-a-day in 1973, the first GOP governor of Texas since Reconstruction days. Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth, was the first Republican woman governor-for-a-day.

Coahoma grad gains $1,200 scholarship

Roxanna Lea Daniell, a 1979 graduate of Coahoma High School, has been awarded a $1,200 Permian Honor scholarship from the Texas Interscholastic League Foundation.

The Permian Honor group provided funds for five of the grants, awarded by TILF on the basis of participation in UIL literary and academic contests, and other school-community achievements.

"Roxanna was among the outstanding Texas high school graduates of 1979," said Dr. Rhea Williams, TILF secretary. "She compiled a remarkable record of academic and extracurricular success and we're proud to have her as a Permian Honor scholar."

Daniell earned eligibility for the scholarship by placing fourth in the 1979 regional meet ready writing contest. A four year member of the Future Homemakers of America, she served as FHA secretary, Office Education Association reporter and band manager.

She was a member of the choir, sign language class and OEA area youth leadership conference, and received school awards in shorthand, accounting and typing.

Daniell plans to attend Howard College and major in physical therapy.

South Texas under flash flood watch

By The Associated Press

Extreme South Texas was under a flash flood watch today as a tropical depression moved slowly northward towards the South Texas coast.

The National Hurricane Center at Miami said early today the depression was located about 150 miles south southeast of Brownsville and was moving slightly west of north at about 10 mph.

Highest winds were estimated at 35 mph mainly over the Gulf of Mexico east of the center, forecasters said. Winds along the coastal sections of northern Mexico and South Texas remained light.

Conditions favor some strengthening and forecasters said it could reach tropical storm intensity later today as it nears the Texas coast.

Officials in charge of keeping oil from a runaway Mexican oil well in the Bay of Campeche from getting into the lush, delicate bays and lagoons along the lower Texas coast feared that high winds from the depression might swamp their defenses.

"If the winds are too high, the booms will be ineffective in stopping the oil at Laguna Madre and the other bays. We are very concerned," said Hans Stuart, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service spokesman at Corpus Christi.

Stuart said the booms will likely not be effective if the wind reaches more than 20 knots.

A small craft warning was in effect along the lower Texas coast between Port O'Connor and Brownsville. Forecasters warned residents of South Texas to be prepared to take quick action should conditions warrant later today.

Tides were to be 1 to 2 feet above normal along the coast and locally heavy rains of up to 5 inches were expected to spread into South Texas as the depression moved northward.

The flash flood watch area covered extreme South Texas south of a line from Laredo to Palacios.

Elsewhere, thunderstorms dumped heavy rain over the Panhandle and South Plains during the night.

Some street flooding was noted in Lubbock and a flash flood warning was issued during the night for several counties in northern sections of the Panhandle.

Forecasters cancelled the flash flood warning and several flash flood watches early today after thunderstorm activity in West Texas decreased. But they warned that conditions remained favorable for a resumption of the activity later today and said other watches may have to be posted if it rains more because the ground is saturated from weekend rains.

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance said he plans to ask Gov. Bill Clements to declare farmlands on the South Plains battered by weekend storms as a disaster area.

The area was battered during the weekend by hurricane force winds, torrential rains and baseball-sized hail. Most of the area was battered by heavy rains until early today.

WITH TOMMY WHATLEY SHEPPARD FUNERAL HOME

CAN FUNERAL DECISIONS BE MADE WISELY UNDER STRESS?

Not always — which is why we recommend planning your own funeral.

Caught up in grief and stress, some people may be emotionally unable to cope with making funeral arrangements effectively. They may be tempted to proceed with more costly arrangements than they should. It should be noted that the psychological value of the funeral has no relationship to its costs.

Planning such arrangements may eliminate the possibility of such over-spending. Planning can be accomplished in advance of need, in an atmosphere uncharged with the emotionally distressing circumstances of bereavement. For details of planning funerals, call us — or stop by for literature.

Your questions and comments on this and other subjects are welcome — in private or publicly through this column.

Can BBB do as objective a job?

Attorney General Mark White is getting rid of a job he probably never liked anyway — customer complaints. In the future, the Better Business Bureau will field such grievances.

White has announced that, as of Sept. 1, consumers should send their complaints to the BBBs. His office will, for a time, continue to supply forms and instructions, but the Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division will restrict its activities to investigation and prosecution of deceptive trade practices and white-collar crime. It will not pursue individual consumer complaints.

WHITE COPS THE plea that the move is necessary because of budget restrictions. He further argues that by concentrating on investigations and prosecutions, he expects the "division to perform even more effectively and efficiently than it has in the past."

That all makes for very sound reasoning, but it still seems to be a retreat from consumer protection. People who live in sparsely settled areas might suffer from the decision. Not every community in the state has an active Better Business Bureau to which consumers can direct complaints. Nor is there uniformity among BBBs around the state where they do exist. Some are vigorous and get results. Others come up short and might as well not exist. There is bound to be some fallout in consumer protection, therefore.

Moreover, the Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division has been one of the most praiseworthy units in the office of the attorney general for the past few years.

IT HAS ENGAGED in an activist way in providing Texans with protection against fraud, and has been vigorous in providing Texans with protection against fraud, and has been vigorous in pursuing violators. Dismantling what has been an effective and beneficial program scarcely seems to be anything more than a decrease in service to the citizens of the state.

The past session of the Legislature showed a remarkable affinity for those programs most beneficial to business interests, and an equal distaste for people-helping legislation.

The attorney general's action may not be following that pattern, but at a minimum the verdict remains to be delivered on that score.

No different

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

Burt Reynolds, Michael Landon, Robert Redford, Lee Majors, Clint Eastwood.

What do these five men have in common?

They have all been chosen by a cross section of teenage girls who would like to have them for fathers if they could trade the original one in, according to a survey appearing in September's issue of Ladies Home Journal.

No I know I am getting old. If any of these men lived in my house, it would not be as my father.

leg crossed over the other to read the evening paper, with a pipe in his mouth.

When I was a kid, schoolbook mothers never wore pants, or even (horrors) shorts and a tee shirt. I always wondered why schoolbook dad never stretched out on the sofa, with the newspaper spread out on the floor, reading it head down.

But with all the papers he read, they were never discussed. Never. The books never said Mother did not read the paper. But when he started reading it, it was always spanking new. Schoolbook mama cleaned up the dishes and then settled back to watch television with papa after which they retired to their twin beds at 9 p.m. So we can assume, the mother never read the newspaper.

During all this time of reading these books, I always had the feeling my family was abnormal. Some of our biggest arguments were over that newspaper. In order to avoid any frustrations of never being able to find it, the daughter always tried to grab it first, scattering the various sections all over the house, as it was being read. That was to avoid having to look for it if the folks read it first and scattered it all over the house.

But when it was time for them to read it, there was pure mayhem in the house.

The first problem was finding the paper because the daughter never knew where she put it. If there was any chance the paper was in daughter's room, daughter had to go in and find it. The parents refused to enter her room for fear of what might attack from under all the debris.

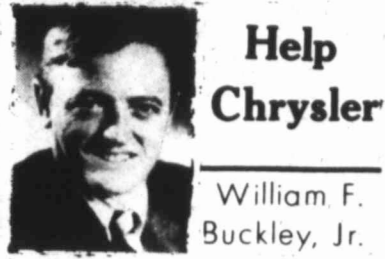

When the paper was finally found, daughter heard it again because it was torn apart and wrinkled and the sections were not in any sort of order.

Current events were discussed at our dinner table, even by the mother who did not wear house dresses and who set anything but pot roast on the table to avoid the complaints of her daughter.

I found out my family was no different than many other. The schoolbooks had the facts mixed up. And maybe the teenagers of 1979 think their parents are abnormal. But all parents are alike. I think there are special schools where they teach phrases such as "I walked two miles uphill to school each way" or "Why did you get a C in math" when they had flunked it 15 years before when they were in school and know the reason very well.

I really do not know why Burt Reynolds, Clint Eastwood or Robert Redford, would be any different.

But I still think the teenage girls are a little sick in the head to want them as fathers.

Help Chrysler

William F. Buckley, Jr.

NEW YORK — The financial problems of the Chrysler Corp. raise in their starkest form various philosophical questions which we as a nation will now be obliged to answer.

For one thing, ever since "environmentalism" and "consumerism" became popular catchwords in the mid-1960s, Congress and the bureaucrats have been merrily imposing new and ever more onerous requirements on car manufacturers: emission standards so stringent that the last 10 percent of the restrictions cost 12 times as much to engineer as the first 90, and fuel efficiency requirements that rise from 19 miles per gallon this year to 20 next year, then 22, 24, and up to 27½ gallons in 1985.

SOONER OR LATER some manufacturer was bound to buckle under this ever-increasing load, and it is Chrysler that has buckled. No doubt Chrysler itself is partly to blame for its weakness, having been slow to switch to production of the now-popular smaller cars. But if it hadn't been Chrysler it would sooner or later have been Ford, or General Motors. There is no corporation in America that can endure increasingly onerous government regulations forever.

So now Ralph Nader can stick another feather in his cap: He and his little crew may have been aiming at General Motors, but what the heck, Chrysler will do. Never mind that if Chrysler goes under there will be a permanent loss of 200,000 jobs, an increase of $2 billion in the country's trade deficit, and further inroads by foreign car manufacturers. Nader never promised us a rose garden, did he?

Question No. 1, therefore, is how much longer Congress and the regulatory agencies are going to cooperate with the deprecations of this marauding little business-hater.

Question No. 2 involves how (and whether) we ought to respond, as a nation, to the damage Nader and his ilk have already done. Specifically, should Congress guarantee Chrysler's loans, or otherwise try to bail it out?

Such help flies squarely in the face of the American tradition of free enterprise. The way for government to help business is to get off its back and stay off — not knock it unconscious with over-regulation at the best of full-time demagogues, then try to revive it with quick fixes of money wrenched from the taxpayers.

BESIDES, DON'T KID yourself: If government is allowed to slide into the habit of bailing out failing businesses, it will wind up controlling and ultimately owning them. Already the voice of the socialist is heard in the land: What Chrysler really needs on its board of directors, it is said, are representatives of the consumers, or of labor, or of Mother Government.

Don't you believe it. All Chrysler really needed — and didn't get, back when it would have counted — was a little common sense on the part of government regulators, who arbitrarily imposed ridiculously rigid and savagely regressive requirements on companies with sharply different necessities. Separate independent studies confirm that it costs Chrysler $600 per car to comply with regulations that GM and Ford, thanks to their larger sales, can obey for just $300. Do you think anybody in Washington considered the consequences of that, or gave a hoot?

According to Charles J. Pilliod Jr., chairman of Goodyear Tire & Rubber, complying in 1977 with the regulations of just seven federal agencies cost Goodyear $46 million — which was substantially more than the entire net income of the world's largest rubber company for either the third or the fourth quarter of that year.

Pelvic muscle problem common in women

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I need peace of mind. Two years ago I had hemorrhoid surgery. Months later I still had pain. The surgeon could find nothing wrong, but a proctologist told me I had "levator ani pyrififormis." What is this and what can be done for the pain? I am 58. — Mrs. D.B.

It's a severely painful situation found most often in women in their 40s, although it may occur in either sex in later years. The source of pain is the complex of muscles of the floor of the pelvis — the structure that supports pelvic organs, such as the bowels. A more descriptive name for the problem is "tension myalgia (muscle pain) of the pelvic floor."

Because there is no inflammation and tests and X-rays appear normal, the condition is frequently missed, except by the trained proctologist. Pain in the lower back and tailbone areas is usually the only sign. The cause is not known, but poor posture habits may contribute. Frequently, as perhaps in your case, a previous operation for back problems or for hemorrhoids may be part of the picture.

Pain follows vigorous exercise or long sitting or standing. It usually gets worse toward afternoon and increases as the day wears on. Housewives are frequently victims.

Experience has shown that about 30 percent of people with it gets relief by simply lying down or with hot sitz baths. Muscle relaxing medicine and pain pills do not help, but newer approaches — such as ultrasound, diathermy (heat), and internal muscle massage — may be tried. Some combination of therapy usually helps in about 60 percent of cases. Special relaxation techniques (like biofeedback) may help. Some women who have pain with intercourse may have this pelvic muscle problem.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have heard expressions of concern about the drug Inderal. I am sure many heart patients taking it might stop after reading such articles. Another article said that people who do stop taking it suddenly increase risks of heart attack. Please comment. I have been on it for two years and I'm scared to death. — Mrs. K.A.

Inderal is the brand name for propranolol hydrochloride. It has a long list of POTENTIAL side effects. So do many other drugs. This particular drug is one of the more valuable pharmaceuticals developed in the past two decades to treat angina patients, and more recently hypertension (high blood pressure).

The side effects are well-known by doctors. Most patients can use it with no side effects, and if you have none you can continue to use it. If it is stopped it must be done slowly, not all at once. The risks you cite are possibilities. Yet in one recent study of 100 patients who were on high doses and who stopped abruptly, only three had increased chest pain and without other serious problems. Any medicine used over a long period of time demands monitoring and periodic evaluation by the doctor, especially those that act on heart performance.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband had a heart attack three years ago. He returned to work three months later and was able to do his work the same as before. His medication is Inderal, which he took faithfully up to about six months ago. He says his heart is beating normally and he doesn't think he needs it anymore. I am concerned. Am I just a worry wart? — H.W.

You may be a worrier, but in this case, you have reason. He cannot judge the need for the medicine by the way he feels or the way his heart is beating. He should continue his medicine as long as his doctor sees the need for it. See above item.

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with this or other rectal problems, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dear Editor:

The United Girls Softball Association of Big Spring is deeply grateful to the City Manager's office and particularly Paul Feazelle for the assistance during our softball season. The working relationship between the City and our board of directors was quite apparent in the looks of the fields and the well kept, well, supplied restrooms.

A special "thank you" to Nathan Poss, and Danny Valdes for their coverage of the National Tournament. The National Tournament was quite successful and we of Big Spring may feel proud in the fact that all who left here did so with a feeling of friendliness and good will toward our town.

Tommy Meeks, President, UGSA

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband has left me for another woman and sued for divorce. Although I cannot discover any way in which I was at fault in this matter, I find myself burdened with guilt and feelings of unworthiness. Can God help me overcome these? — M.D.

DEAR M.D.: You are really asking yourself why your husband has rejected you, and down inside you feel that perhaps it is because you were not adequate in some way. But that is not necessarily the case. It is regrettable that you are being sued for divorce, and I hope you have done everything you could to avoid it. But if your husband has left you for another the important thing now is to look to the future and do what you can to make a stable and productive life.

Your letter indicates that you have never thought about God very much. Perhaps He would use this situation to make you think more seriously about the meaning of life, and your need for God's guidance. Yes, God can help you overcome the guilt you feel because He will forgive you if you turn to Christ in repentance in faith. Even if you can find no reason for guilt in the matter of your divorce, the Bible tells us that we all are guilty before God for the many sins we have committed — both big and small. Jesus Christ came to take away our guilt and our sin and, by trusting Him and inviting Him into your life, you can know the joy of full forgiveness.

"As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us" (Psalms 103:12).

God also wants to help you with your feelings of unworthiness. How? By assuring you of His love. You are worth something to Him. You are worth so much that He sent His Son to the cross to die for you. "God so loved the world" — including you — "that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

Whatever the situation you face, commit your life to Christ. He can take it and remake it as you learn to follow Him each day.

WASHINGTON — Pain is driving thousands of arthritis sufferers across the border into Mexico for a mysterious medical treatment they can't get in the United States.

What they think they're getting is the controversial "miracle drug" DMSO (dimethyl sulfoxide), which has not been approved as safe and effective for arthritis by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. But what they're actually getting is phenylbutazone, a prescription drug that has been approved by the FDA — but which has known, dangerous side effects.

ONE OF THE most successful dispensers of the phoney DMSO treatment is Dr. Salvador O. Chavarria, whose Clinica de Especialistas in Piedras Negras, just across the border from Eagle Pass, Texas, does a land-office business with U.S. arthritis patients. For approximately $750, a patient receives three days of treatment at Chavarria's clinic, plus a supply of pills for follow-up medication.

The arthritis sufferers are treated in batches of 25 at a time, and though Chavarria doesn't advertise, word of mouth keeps the patients — and the money — pouring in. Some have been able to charge the fees off to their health insurance plans.

Some reports of the results achieved by Chavarria's treatment sound as if they came out of the New Testament. Several patients told our associate Jim Bontempo they saw new arrivals throw away their crutches after 15 minutes of treatment the first day. Many reported that they are now living normal, active lives instead of a painful existence in a wheelchair, thanks to Chavarria's "miracle medicine."

WHY THEN does Chavarria, who trained at the University of Mexico and at hospitals in San Antonio and Washington, D.C., misrepresent the medication he is giving to his grateful patients? Chavarria will not talk to reporters, so we can only surmise that he has sensed the "forbidden fruit" appeal of DMSO. If arthritis victims knew they could get the drug he administers from physicians in the United States, they would obviously have no reason to make the costly trip to Mexico.

The real mystery in Chavarria's use of phenylbutazone has been the apparent absence of side effects. As prescribed for oral dosage in this country, phenylbutazone has caused liver damage, weight gain, bone marrow deterioration and peptic ulcers.

But none of these symptoms was reported by Chavarria patients we interviewed. The only difference is that Chavarria gives the drug intravenously, but most doctors assume this method would, if anything, cause even more drastic side effects. U.S. authorities cannot explain the apparent absence of these side effects in the intravenous treatment — though doctors in San Antonio say they frequently treat patients from some of the Mexican arthritis clinics for severe phenylbutazone side effects.

The FDA, the Arthritis and Rheumatism Association and the U.S. medical establishment scoff at the reports of Chavarria's success, despite the glowing accounts of relief from his patients. And the arthritis who have sought relief at his clinic have usually tried every conventional treatment in this country, including gold injections, cortisone — and phenylbutazone.

People in pain — especially those who have exhausted the approved medical remedies without relief — don't care whether a doctor lies to them, if only he gives them succor from their suffering. And there is no doubt that Chavarria has achieved this, even though the relief is often only temporary, and must be buffered by repeated visits to his Piedras Negras clinic.

But by adding fuel to the fires of confusion and controversy over DMSO, Chavarria may be indirectly prolonging the suffering of many thousands of arthritis victims in the United States. Every patient who thinks he has been cured by DMSO — and chemical analysis of the follow-up pills brought back by Chavarria's patients showed them to be phenylbutazone, not DMSO — gives the FDA one more time-consuming hurdle to overcome in its bureaucratic snail's pace toward testing and approval.

Footnote: Six months ago, we cited detailed medical tests which indicated DMSO has an amazing, if unexplained, healing effect on the human body, particularly for soft-tissue and musculo-skeletal injuries. The testing has been persuasive that DMSO relieves the suffering, cheaply and effectively, of patients with arthritis and other painful, debilitating diseases.

FBI agents faked 'proof' of death

Scheme led to Davis' arrest

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An FBI agent told jurors that the tension was so thick in the early morning hours before David McCrory betrayed Cullen Davis that hardly anyone could sleep.

Agent Joe Gray said he and fellow agent Jerry Hubbell spent the hours before McCrory's early morning meeting with Davis on Aug. 20, 1978, in the room next to one shared by McCrory and agent Ron Jannings.

Jannings has testified he stayed awake all night while McCrory slept fitfully. Gray said anticipation of the set-up — designed to fool Davis into thinking a state district judge had been murdered — kept him awake.

The scheme led to Davis' arrest and his second trial on charges he tried to buy the murder of Judge Joe Eidson, the jurist presiding over Davis' lengthy divorce trial.

At 7 a.m. Aug. 20, Gray said he got up and prepared to wire McCrory with the hidden body recorder that would capture the meeting with Davis on tape.

"I'm not sure I had been asleep," Gray said. "Seven o'clock just seemed like the time to get up and get with it."

While Gray covered recorder on McCrory's back with white adhesive tape, Hubbell hid a remote transmitter in a tissue box in the back of McCrory's car.

As the hour of the meeting crept closer, agents worked to prepare the faked "proof" of Eidson's death for McCrory to give Davis.

Gray brushed a fluorescent powder — visible under a black light on anyone touching the power — on a staged photograph of Eidson's "bloodied" body.

The Polaroid photograph had been snapped the day before, after Gray burned three cigarette holes in Eidson's T-shirt and smeared the judge with ketchup to simulate blood.

But use of the photograph later backfired. Davis claimed he never saw the picture and McCrory said Davis saw it, but held it only by the edges.

Fort Worth police allowed Davis to wash his hands after he was arrested later that morning, rendering any tests for the powder useless.

The undercover operation developed several other nervewracking flaws. Minutes before they left for the meeting site, agents had to make last minute repairs on a van they planned to hide in while filming the exchanges.

When he arrived for the meeting, Davis decided to inspect the van, which by this time had been disguised as a survey company vehicle and was parked on an adjacent parking lot.

Hubbell said the four agents sat breathlessly inside — two with their guns drawn — inches away from Davis, who was trying to see inside through blackout curtains.

The testimony of Gray and Hubbell is necessary to set up prosecutors' introduction of the tapes, a crucial part of their case against Davis.

A Houston jury deadlocked 8-4 for conviction in the case in January. A mistrial was declared and the case was set in Davis' hometown of Fort Worth.

Earl killed in boat blast

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Earl Mounbatten, uncle of Prince Philip and a top British military commander in World War II, was killed today in an explosion on a boat at his summer residence in Ireland, police said.

Police said the cause of the blast, at Mullaghmore, a village in County Sligo, was not immediately known.

Mounbatten, 79, a great-grandson of Queen Victoria and cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, rose through the ranks of the Royal Navy to lead the Allies to victory against the Japanese in Burma in World War II and helped plan the Normandy invasion. He was the man who handed independence to India as its last British viceroy and first governor-general in 1947-48.

South Plains crop damage 'worst ever'

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance called damage to storm-ravaged crops on the South Plains "the worst I've ever seen" and he says he'll ask Gov. Bill Clements to declare the battered farmlands a disaster area.

"I've lived almost all of my life in West Texas and I have never seen this kind of damage," Hance said after touring Deaf Smith, Castro, Lamb, Hockley and Terry counties Sunday.

Hurricane-force winds and massive thunderstorms walloped maturing crops with a one-two punch of torrential rains and baseball-sized hail Friday. Preliminary damage estimates exceed $10 million.

The National Weather Service clocked winds of 80 mph between Dimmit and Littlefield Friday night and minor flooding from heavy rains, drove more than 100 persons from their homes in Olton, where large hail also shattered windows and windshields.

Heavy rain continued to pelt parts of the South Plains and Panhandle Sunday.

"Most of these crops were really good, maybe even records," said Hance. "Prices were finally up a little and a lot of these men were hoping to recoup losses from other years. This will really set the whole area back."

Officials estimated the storm devastated more than 150,000 acres of corn, cotton, grain sorghum, soy beans and sunflowers. Some of the crops were less than two weeks away from the fall harvest.

If the stricken farmlands are declared a disaster area, landowners would become eligible for special federal assistance and low interest loans.

TV producer to write book

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — John C. Stevens, television producer for the Southern Baptist Radio and Television Commission, has resigned.

Stevens, who worked for the commission for about 17 years, said he is leaving effective Sept. 6 to start his own film writing and production business, American Enterprise Co.

Stevens also said he plans to write a book about former Texas Christian University athlete Kent Waldrep. Waldrep was injured in a football game several years ago and has been paralyzed since.

PLANO, Texas (AP) — Memorex Corp. has announced plans to construct a large manufacturing complex on a 42-acre site in this community north of Dallas.

The California-based corporation, one of the nation's largest data-processing equipment manufacturers, has leased a building near the site of the plant, on Dallas North Parkway, just east of North Central Expressway.

Could affect oil spill

Hurricane David born

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane David was born today far out in the Atlantic Ocean as a tropical depression in the western Gulf of Mexico put a damper on efforts to clean up runaway crude oil, forecasters at the National Hurricane Center here said.

Conditions favored strengthening of both tropical systems, forecaster Gil Clark said. Hurricane David was located about 700 miles east of the Lesser Antilles, while the depression was 150 miles south-southeast of Brownsville, Texas.

The depression could become Tropical Storm Elena today if its winds reach 39 mph.

If David stays on course, Clark said, it was about 48 hours from the islands in the eastern Caribbean, plenty of time for it to strengthen or get much larger.

"It's moving right along, so it looks like it's almost certain to affect those islands," Clark said after issuing the 6 a.m. EDT advisories. "The strength may not change too much, but it does spread out over a larger area if it stays over water a long time."

The eye formed quickly, he explained.

"It's certainly turned into almost a classic pattern on satellite tonight," he said. "It's probably one of the most distinct eyes I've seen out in that area since satellites have come out."

Reconnaissance planes would fly into both systems later today, Clark said.

At 6 a.m., David was about 2,200 miles southeast of Miami — near latitude 11.88 north, longitude 49.0 west — moving west at about 15 mph, he said. Its highest sustained winds were 75 mph and gale-force winds extended 125 miles north of the center and 50 miles to the south, he added.

A tropical storm becomes a hurricane when sustained winds reach 74 mph.

The depression's highest sustained winds were 35 mph east of the center, while winds along the northeast Mexican and southern Texas coasts were lighter.

It was moving almost due north at less than 10 mph, Clark said. He advised south Texans to be ready to seek shelter, should gale warnings be posted later in the day as it neared Texas. Small craft south of Port O'Connor should stay in port, he said.

He said there was no way to predict the depression's possible effect on the runaway Mexican crude oil that has been threatening that coastline.

"It could affect the oil spill, but there's no way to say, because we've never had anything like this before," Clark said of the thousands of gallons of oil that have spewed into the Gulf since the well burst June 3.

The depression was well northwest of the broken well off the Yucatan Peninsula, he said Sunday night. "So it's not near the spill itself, but there's oil all over the western Gulf, so it's sure to have some effect..."

"It's not a strong system yet, but tomorrow that might be a different situation... it's over an area that's favorable for development, and unless too much of it is circulating over the Mexican coast, it could strengthen."

High winds could defeat the barriers guarding delicate bays and estuaries along the Gulf coast, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service spokesman Hans Stuart said Sunday night.

"If the winds are too high, the booms will be ineffective in stopping the oil at Laguna Madre and other bays," Stuart said. "We are very concerned."

CLARK JOHNSON EYES HIS HERO, RACEHORSE HAYNES (R) Man in center is Judge Gordon Gray

Local youth is swayed by Haynes' eloquence

Clark Johnson, son of Clovie and stepson of Del Shirey, 615 Highland, says he always wanted to be a doctor. That is, until he decided to become a lawyer.

The change of mind came when the 13-year-old Runnels Junior High 8th-grader got an opportunity to see first hand how trial procedures work. He sat in on the jury selection and some of the testimony in the Cullen Davis murder-for-hire trial this summer.

While visiting his father, Bill Johnson, and sister, who works at the courthouse in Fort Worth, Clark didn't miss a day of jury selection. Each day he sat attentively in the witness stand at Judge Gordon Gray's left hand, carefully watching and listening to the proceedings. Just before he returned to Big Spring Aug. 17, he heard some of the testimony.

Clark's hero is defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Jones. He told Fort Worth Star-Telegram reporter Carolyn Ondrejas that he wasn't sure he would be willing to adopt the attorney's pipe, but he likes the small, half glasses Haynes keeps perched on the end of his nose and he found Haynes' courtroom voice fascinating.

"It kind of booms and echoes," he told the reporter during jury selection. "Yesterday it really sounded like we might be in church."

Johnson was introduced to the jury panel by Haynes and he was given a copy of the transcript by a court reporter. He carried Haynes heavy briefcase to his van each afternoon and went out to eat with Davis, Haynes and attorney Bill Barbeson.

"He's a real nice man," Clark said of Cullen Davis.

Clark, who was in on some of Davis' divorce trial during spring break, says he wants to be a criminal lawyer. He's already formed an opinion about the murder-for-hire trial.

"Not guilty," he said firmly. "All the way — not guilty." His conclusion is based mostly on a gut feeling. "That's just the way it is," he said.

Rate-setting bill sure to pass in legislature

By SCOTT CARPENTER and JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — It was the 1979 Legislature's big lobby fight, but it may be the 1981 session's dud: deciding who has first crack at setting electric rates in cities.

The electric utility lobby came to Austin last January with a switch in rate jurisdiction as its big legislative goal.

The Texas Municipal League — the lobbying arm for Texas cities — didn't like the idea. But that opposition may not be around in 1981.

Currently, utilities usually go through a two-tiered system to obtain a rate increase within incorporated areas.

They first make their pitch to city officials. If that doesn't work, they appeal to the Texas Public Utility Commission.

Utility officials decided to press the 1979 Legislature to place all jurisdiction with the Utility Commission — skipping the cities altogether. They came within half a kilowatt of succeeding.

The House quickly passed the utility lobby's pet bill, and the Senate agreed in a close vote. But opponents in the Senate argued loudly and offered amendments until they found one too sweet for a politician to ignore — requiring utilities to print notices on rate-hike requests on customers' bills.

That amendment in the Senate meant the bill had to go back to the House for another vote. The delay killed the bill's momentum and the publicity diminished legislators' enthusiasm. The bill died.

If a bill comes close to passing one session, you can count on it coming up and probably passing the next session.

The jurisdiction bill is beginning to look like a sure thing for two years from now.

For one thing, the utility companies will have more time to lobby legislators and feed thousands of dollars into their political campaign funds.

For another, the Texas Municipal League's opposition may be weaker or even absent.

The man most responsible for the bill's defeat this year was Dick Brown, the league's soft-spoken, crafty executive director. Brown has been criticized for a late-start in opposition, but he was hasty in tactics and persuasion in the Senate confirmation.

Brown, of course, is the professional lobbyist for the league — a hired gun.

He fought the jurisdiction bill because his bosses — a majority of member cities and towns — ordered him to. But there was substantial opposition in the league to that order, and it appears to be growing.

The league will hold conventions in the next two Octobers before the 1981 session. At either one the members could decide to drop opposition to the jurisdiction bill. Brown says there is a good chance that will happen.

That could leave the utility lobby in an enviable position for its 1981 legislative effort.

Some legislators and city officials will oppose the bill no matter what, but without the league's organized effort they will be as helpless as shrimp at a lobby cocktail party.

Houston Lighting and Power Co. fought hard for the bill last session, and its director of governmental affairs, Jack Newton, says it will again in two years.

He says the two-tiered system is clumsy, costly and inefficient and a change will save ratepayers and taxpayers money.

Some consumer proponents admit that the companies have some good arguments — that a single hearing before the utility commission would be more efficient.

But the companies' strong commitment of time and money to the proposal has them worried.

Italian multiple births upset American women

NEW YORK (AP) — Many American women who take fertility drugs were needlessly alarmed by the story of the Italian woman who gave birth to octuplets only to have five of the babies die, U.S. doctors say.

American specialists say the fertility hormone taken by the woman, Pergonal, is not widely used in this country.

Moreover, they say that U.S. women who do take it may face a smaller risk of multiple births than women in Italy because of better U.S. facilities and recent advances in therapy.

"Pergonal is a potent hormone, but when used intelligently it has a minimal amount of risk or side effects. That's the key," said Dr. Alvin Goldfarb of the University of Pennsylvania, head of the education affiliate of the American Fertility Society.

No one knows exactly how many U.S. women use Pergonal. But Serono Laboratories Inc. of Braintree, Mass., which distributes the Italian-made drug, says it's probably only a few thousand a year.

Physicians said Pergonal is used only for certain kinds of infertility and only when nothing else will do or when cheaper, simpler methods fail.

In the Italian case, Pasqualina Chianese gave birth to eight premature infants Aug. 16 in Naples. All but three of them died and the survivors are still struggling for their lives.

Her family refused at first to divulge the name of the fertility drug she was taking. But aides to her doctor told The Associated Press in Italy that it was Pergonal, an extract of two natural hormones that regulate the female ovaries.

Mrs. Chianese and her husband were distraught over the multiple birth because they feared all the babies would die, as happened when Mrs. Chianese gave birth to sextuplets in 1976.

Many American women were upset too. "We got phone calls and patients coming into the office asking about it. It caused, let's say, some concern," said Dr. John Shane, an infertility specialist in Tulsa, Okla. Other specialists told similar stories and said such scares are common after a multiple birth using drugs is widely reported.

But much of the concern was groundless. To begin with, most American women taking fertility drugs are taking a different product — clomiphene (trade name Clomid) — an estrogenlike drug which is given by pill, while Pergonal is given by injection.

Both drugs are used only when the sole cause of infertility is the failure of the woman to ovulate. That accounts for only one-fifth of the estimated 3.5 million infertile U.S. couples.

The two drugs encourage the ovaries to send an egg into the uterus to be fertilized. Multiple births occur if the drugs work too well and more than one egg is sent.

Dr. Robert Kistner of Harvard, president of the fertility society, said about 5 percent of births using Clomid result in twins, compared to 1 percent twins for women who do not require help to become pregnant. Multiple births of three or greater are rare with Clomid.

But with Pergonal, he said, the twinning rate rises to 15 percent of births and an additional 5 percent are triplets or more.

It's never too early Christmas in August

It's never too early to begin making Christmas decorations for your own use or for gift giving, advise the experts at Bucilla, one of the leading makers of yarn and needlecraft kits. "In fact, it's a good idea to start your project during the summer months," they suggest, "so you'll have lots of time to complete all of the things you want to make and not be harried during the busy Christmas season."

Included in the line of kits for the holiday season is an exciting variety of Christmas stockings. Some can be knitted, others can be made with felt, needlepoint or latch hook kits. For those who prefer to applique, there are kits that come packaged with golden threads, sequins and beads, in many whimsical designs, along with instructions for personalizing names, so that each member of the family can have their own stocking to hang on the mantle this year. All are bright, colorful and decorative, as well as fun to make. And step-by-step instructions are included in the kits to simplify matters.

There are also kits for making latch hook wreaths, applique dolls, and felt applied tree skirts that twinkle with colorful sequins. Or you might want to make a decorative felt applique wall hanging to place over the mantle.

One needn't have nimble fingers, just the desire to put together these fanciful and whimsical ornaments for the coming holiday season. Christmas is not as far away as you think. It's only a matter of months and it will be here. If you begin your project now, you'll be finished in time to sit back and enjoy the holidays.

Sex change surgery no longer available

BALTIMORE (AP) — Johns Hopkins Hospital, which pioneered sex-change operations in the United States, says it has stopped performing them following research that failed to show any objective improvements in the patients' lives.

Officials are telling persons seeking sex-change operations that the surgery is no longer available at Hopkins, spokeswoman Elaine Freeman said Sunday.

Between 25 percent and 40 percent of the 100 patients who go through the hospital's sexual behaviors consultation unit each year want the surgery, officials said.

In 1966, Hopkins became the first U.S. hospital to support officially sex-change operations, which had been performed for some time in Europe. Since then, Hopkins doctors have performed about 100 operations on transsexuals — persons who want to assume the bodies and behavior of the opposite sex.

The decision to stop the operations, which took effect quietly last spring, followed research conducted by Dr. Jon K. Meyer, associate professor of psychiatry and director of the sexual behaviors consultation unit.

Stepfather not skilled parent

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 17-year-old girl who has problems with my stepfather. My mother recently married and before she did, I was having a great time. My mother trusted me but my stepdad doesn't. Now, his rules are that I can't date unless I double date and that if I come home one minute after my curfew, I'm restricted for one week. I have been dating this boy for two months and my stepdad suggested that I should take the "pill." I was shocked. I'm innocent and don't need contraceptives. I feel no respect or trust for my stepdad. I love my mom but she goes along with whatever my stepdad says.

Her Shopping Gets Mauled

DEAR ABBY: In all the years I've been reading your column, I've never been so steamed. FRUSTRATED IN RUSSELLVILLE, ARK., complained because she — a "working woman" — had only her lunch hour to do her shopping, and the stores were always full of "little old ladies" and non-working mothers who could shop anytime but chose to do it during "her" lunch hour. And you agreed with her!

First of all, there is no such thing as a "non-working" mother. If mothers didn't work, they'd be arrested for child neglect. I put in a long, hard day caring for my family. I may not punch a time clock or receive a weekly pay check, but I work just the same.

Second of all, just because I don't work between 8 and 5 doesn't mean I have all day to shop. There are nap times for infants and pre-schoolers, appointments, housework, chauffeuring that I must work around, and if I have to do my shopping during the working woman's lunch hour, I'm sorry. I don't plan it that way just to inconvenience her. Sign me, TICKED OFF IN TUSTIN, CALIF.

DEAR TICKED OFF: I'll take 20 whacks with a wet dish towel. The score on that was WORKING MOTHERS: 322; ABBY: zilch. Read on for more brickbats:

DEAR ABBY: I've always been a big Abby fan, but when you agreed with that frustrated "working woman" who suggested that "non-working mothers" should schedule their shopping to accommodate the "working woman," you lost me.

I have rights, even though I belong to no union other than matrimony. I receive no income, but I feel well paid for my efforts as a homemaker. (I even do windows.)

Abby, please don't perpetuate the myth that mothers and housewives are "non-working" women. Please don't tell me how to rearrange my schedule, and I will refrain from advising people about their personal problems. HAPPY COOKER IN YAKIMA, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those "little old ladies" who is inconveniencing the working woman because I shop on her lunch hour. Well, excuseuuuuze me!

Just because I'm 74, and look it, doesn't necessarily mean I sit in my rocking chair all day and can shop any old time I please. I happen to hold an office job that requires me to be at my desk at 8 a.m. And I'm usually riveted there until well after 5 every evening.

If the "working woman" finds the stores too crowded during her lunch hour, let her shop in the evenings, or on Saturdays or Sundays. There are plenty of stores open then. BURNED UP IN BOSTON

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "working woman" that I am sick and tired of working women telling me when to do my shopping.

I chose to stay home and take care of my family just as she chose to work outside her home, and I consider myself just as much a working woman as she is. Before I made this choice, I also worked at an office job and, let me tell you, the job I have now is a lot tougher. But I'm not complaining.

I find that women who work outside the home resent housewives. Please get off our backs. We have our hands full. MARGE IN CHICAGO

DEAR ABBY: Boy, have I got an earful for FRUSTRATED IN RUSSELLVILLE: Did it ever occur to you that little old ladies and non-working mothers have schedules to keep, too? If we must do our shopping or banking during your lunch hour, it's only a coincidence.

And, by the way, here in Texas the noon hour is the hottest time of the day in the summer, and I don't go anywhere unless I have to! Sign me, EQUAL RIGHTS IN TEXAS

Cinderellas bring home truckload of trophies

Four local girls departed from Big Spring Aug. 9 and returned Aug. 18 with a truckload of trophies and honors.

Felicia Ford, Marcie Weaver, Karen Johnson and Audrei Polo competed with almost 300 girls from all over the United States when they participated in the International World Cinderella Pageant Finals in Baton Rouge, La.

Winners in the pre-pageant competition sponsored by the International Modeling and Talent Association (I.M.T.A.) were:

Felicia Ford — first place vocal; second place party dress; third place sportswear; third place street-length dress; and first alternate over-all Cameo girl.

Marcie Weaver — second place coat and cape; second place vocal; third place novelty dance; and third place baton twirling.

Karen Johnson — first place novelty dance; and third place gymnastics.

Audrei Polo — First place party dress; first place TV commercials; second place swimwear; third place sleep-wear; third place vocal; and Sweepstake winner 1980 Model of the Year.

Karen Johnson also placed in the International World Cinderella Pageant finals winning the full-length photogenic trophy.

The world finals were held in the Famous Riverside-Centraplex on the banks of the Mississippi River. Those competing were the winners or qualifiers of their State Cinderella Girl Pageants.

According to Nelda Colclazer who attended the finals, the pageant, which was taped, will be shown on television at a date to be announced later. Gail Earls attended the pageant with Mrs. Colclazer.

The Original Cinderella Pageant, local and district, was sponsored by the Big Spring Cactus Chapter of the American Business Women's Association.

"We will also sponsor the local and district Cinderella Pageants in 1980," concluded Mrs. Colclazer.

Children can learn from older parents

NEW YORK, N.Y. — With more women joining the work force and marrying late in life, children of older parents will probably be the wave of the future, says the September issue of Seventeen Magazine.

Though some children say a forty-plus age difference creates a generation gap of Grand Canyon proportions, others speak happily of mothers and fathers ripe with wisdom and experience. The added years, they say, make parents better advisors because they are more certain of their own identity.

Since older parents usually have fewer financial pressures, their children are likely to grow up with a greater sense of security. According to recent research carried out at the University of Texas, children of older parents tend to adopt a relaxed attitude about work, while those with younger parents tend to become more motivated toward achievement, placing greater value on competition and success.

A more relaxed attitude can extend into many other areas of life. If a crisis comes up, older parents may have the feeling that they have covered this ground before. They have lived through it once, they can live through it again.

On the other side of the coin, some parents become rigid and unacceptable of new ideas as they grow older. If older parents seem less sensitive to the needs of their children, it's often because time has served to erase the realities of their own youth. The earlier era that they long for — "when kids weren't so wild" — was probably not nearly as perfect as they remember. Psychologists assert that the older people get, the more they repress experiences that were unpleasant, forgetting anxieties, hurts and disappointments that are part of growing up.

When problems between older parents and teens seem severe, family therapists report that they often find tired mothers and fathers who feel they've been overworked for too long and whose lives and aspirations no longer seem as exciting as they once did. At an age where their friends are enjoying the luxury of a relaxed retirement, the older parents may still be running to PTA meetings, fixing lunches, and chauffeuring their kids to school.

Dr. Stephen V. Cohen, author of The Other Generation Gap, feels that in the instances where there are problems between older parents and their children, neither side should be too quick to blame the age gap alone. He suggests that if the parents don't spend enough time with their kids or if there's constant tension at home or a breakdown in communication, the troubles in the relationship probably go beyond the age gap.

Mrs. Tamplin honored

A friendship coffee honoring Mrs. Arthur Tamplin was given Aug. 23 by Mrs. Charlie Creighton and Mrs. Louis Stallings in the party room of their antique shop.

Guests were served miniature cinnamon rolls, sausage-cheese balls, and fruit from depression glass and brass. The main table was covered with a patchwork cloth and an arrangement of burgundy daisy-mums. Lemonade and orange chiffon cake were served from a smaller table, featuring a yellow and white checked cloth and bouquet of yellow daisies.

Mrs. Tip Anderson assisted in serving the guests.

DANGEROUS SITUATION — Two-way access roads, such as the one running in front of Highland Shopping Center, shown above, are danger spots since the new law granting vehicles entering and exiting freeways the right of way went into effect. The new law has received criticism from law enforcers, legislators and motorists, especially in regards to two-way access roads. The law requires that you yield to motorists entering FM 700 in the above location, but Sgt. Jimmy Wallace recommends that you yield to all oncoming traffic since many motorists fail to use turn signals.

New yield signs significant

Better take crash course

By EILEEN MCGUIRE
If new yield signs on service roads have you baffled, you'd better learn what they mean.

The new signs that have been popping up the past week were authorized by a bill signed by Gov. Bill Clements. Traffic law 1421 officially went into effect today, though it was already enforceable wherever a sign appeared.

The signs grant the right of way to all vehicles entering a freeway from or exiting a freeway onto a service or access road. An example is the access road that runs parallel to FM 700 directly in front of Highland Shopping Center. Drivers traveling west are required to yield to eastbound traffic.

The law specifies that access road traffic will yield right of way to motorists entering or exiting the freeway, but since motorists do not use turn signals, all oncoming traffic represents a hazard to the westbound motorist on the access road in front of Highland Shopping Center.

Motorists are required by law to use a turn signal to warn other drivers, but since they don't, Sgt. Jimmy Wallace suggests that motorists approaching that yield sign adopt defensive driving attitudes.

"The law says you will yield to any vehicle that presents an immediate danger," he stated.

According to Wallace, no accidents in town had been reported by Friday afternoon in connection with the new ordinance, but he expects some problems with the change.

"We're keeping a close eye on it," he said.
Does he expect accidents?

"Yes, Mam, I surely do," he stated. "Especially coming off of IS-20." He said that many people exiting the interstate still slow down because they are accustomed to yielding right of way to access road traffic.

But since those exiting the freeway do have the right of way, some problems are anticipated, particularly at points where the service road is in a position so that motorists cannot easily and clearly view what's coming off of the interstate.

"In some places, they have to turn their heads all the way around to see what's coming off the interstate behind them," he said.

Such areas exist east of town on the south and north IS-20 service roads where the interstate and service roads are built at different levels and interstate traffic is sometimes blocked from view by steep embankments on the interstate.

According to a recent article in the Abilene Reporter-News, "The law is part of the Legislature's efforts to make access road regulations uniform throughout the state."

Roger Welsch of Abilene, district engineer for the Texas Department of Highways and Transportation is quoted as saying that the new regulations, giving motorists who are turning left onto a freeway the right away, goes against everything motorists have ever been taught about left-hand turns and yielding.

Like Big Spring and other cities in Texas, accidents are expected in Abilene, particularly on two-way access roads where the problem becomes complicated.

State Rep. Walter Grubbs of Abilene said Friday that he felt two-way access roads should be exempt from the new law. He recently sent a letter to Gov. Bill Clements suggesting passage of an amendment exempting two-way access roads from the law.

Two-way access roads, he said, comprise about 80 percent of the total access roads in the state, with the remaining one-way access roads mainly in metropolitan areas. No special session of the Legislature is on the horizon, however, to alter the new law.

An aide to Gov. Clements, Jim Kaster, reportedly responded to Grubbs' letter saying that the Gov. said it was a little too late to do anything about the new law and that there had been no adverse comment at the time the governor signed the bill.

"I don't think anybody realized what it did," Grubbs said. Grubbs said he hopes people will learn to obey the new yield signs and also hopes nobody will be hurt in the transition period.

The new traffic law, signed June 11 by Clements, is costing the state a lot of money in putting up the signs and will cost in maintaining those signs, according to Wallace.

He did not know the exact cost, but said it involved hundreds of thousands of signs statewide which involved the cost of the poles, the signs and the manpower for putting them up.

Uncautious motorists may find that the signs cost them additional expenses in the form of traffic fines, higher insurance rates and personal injury.

"It is vitally important that motorists use their turn signals when waiting to enter highways," according to Welsch as reported in the Abilene Reporter-News, "otherwise, oncoming traffic won't expect the turn and may not yield in time."

And in case motorists do neglect to use turn signals, Wallace states that it is also important for the motorist at the yield sign to exercise caution by remaining at a stop until approaching traffic that might turn onto the freeway without warning has passed.

A Colorado City man, Paul Winkle, recently wrote in a letter to the Editor of the Abilene Reporter-News his viewpoints regarding the new traffic law: "Our governor is sick. He has to be to sign a bill like 1421 Traffic law...His only excuse would be to have a working auto body shop or undertaking establishment (in hard shape)."

The new law is unpopular among some law enforcement officials, too. Said Wallace, "I personally don't like it, but they didn't call J. Wallace to ask."

Like it or not, traffic law 1421 is in effect.

D-FW Airport busy, busy

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — The Dallas-Fort Worth Airport had 1,442 takeoffs and landings last Thursday, making that the busiest day in the history of the airport, officials said.

"This marked the third time during the month that we have broken our record for takeoffs and landings," said airport executive director Ernest E. Dean. "August will become our busiest month ever."

Two men shot to death during armed robbery of card game

DALLAS (AP) — Two men were shot to death during an armed robbery of a card game in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas, police said. Officers identified the men as W.C. Robinson, 47, and Lee Burrell, 29, both of Dallas. Police said seven men were preparing to play cards at Robinson's apartment Saturday night when the gunman entered, demanding money.

Marathon means only one thing

NEW YORK (AP) — If you ever run or talk about a marathon, it can mean only one thing, a foot race covering 26 miles, 385 yards, notes Fred Lebow, president of the New York Road Runners.

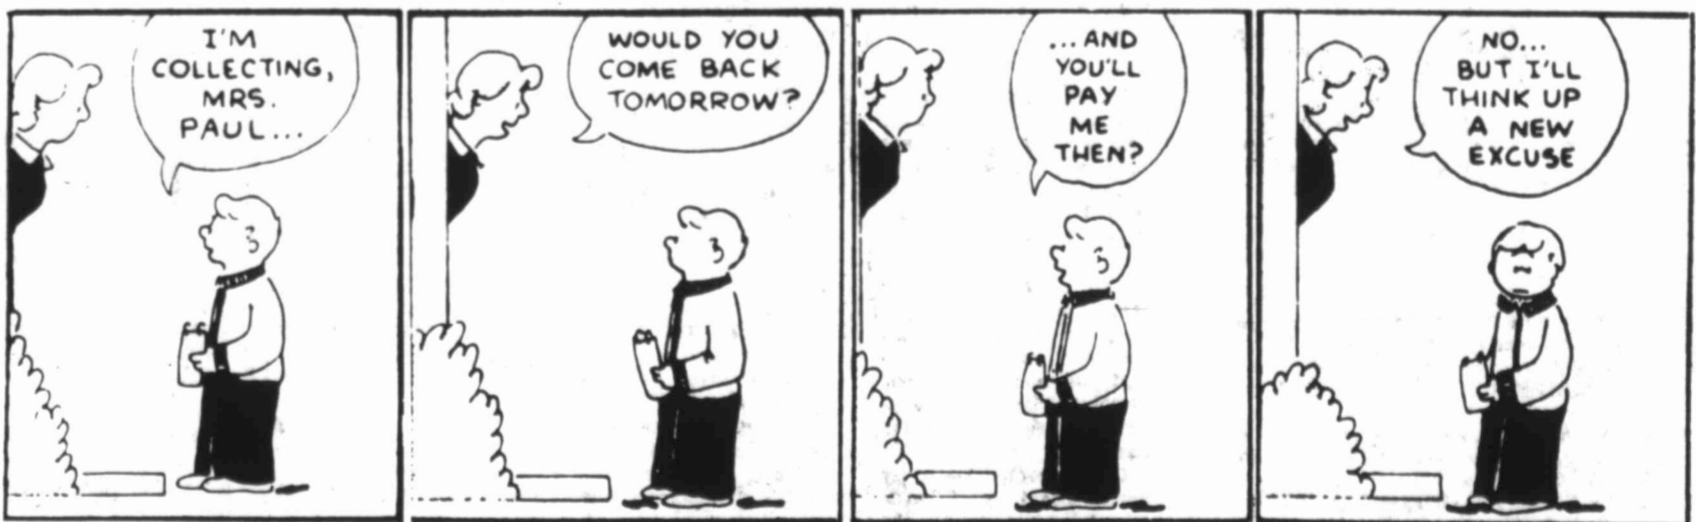

may seem like one to you." Lebow is credited with originating the term "mini marathon" seven years ago to denote a run of 6.2 miles — 10,000 meters. He said that the L'eggs Mini Marathon in Central Park this year had 4,500 women starting. The first mini he staged in 1972 had only 78 women entrants. "We begged women to run," he recalled.

Women's career program slated

NEW YORK (AP) — A program aimed at giving women the skills and experience they need to succeed in areas from which they have largely been excluded will be offered this fall by New York University's School of Continuing Education.

Known as "Women Advancing Through Career Help" WATCH, the program provides counseling, course work and unpaid internships. It is supported by a number of corporations and is open to women who wish to change fields, enter or re-enter the job market or advance in their present career.

A few subscribers think it's all right to ask the carrier to "come back again to collect." After all, the carrier's just a young kid...he or she won't mind. Not so! Just because carriers sometimes don't "speak up" when asked to "come back later" to collect, doesn't mean it's all right to ask them to do so.

We don't run your carrier's business, your carrier does. Therefore it's up to your carrier to make sure all collections are complete each month. Your carrier is charged for the papers in advance so he ends up paying for your month of papers by the 10th of the month. Part of the money you pay your carrier is used to pay for these papers and the remaining money is profit.

Those subscribers who fail to pay on time, shouldn't blame their carrier for stopping their delivery. They can't expect a carrier to pay for their paper. Carriers are businessmen and women and they have their own bills to pay.

Watson on Miller: 'He's back'

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Tom Watson had the title again in the Hall of Fame Golf Classic, secured in a sudden death playoff against Johnny Miller.

He also had a crisp, two-word evaluation of the man he'd beaten in one of the most dramatic tournaments of the year: "He's back," Watson said.

There seemed little question about it. Johnny

Miller is, indeed, back. He didn't say so himself. But his play through the towering pines that line the fairways on this famed sandhill country left little doubt about it. The man who has suffered — with considerable grace and no complaints — through one of the most mysterious and perplexing slumps in golf history, came very close to ending a three-year non-winning string. And it took the game's most productive performer to beat him.

"Somebody has to lose these things," Miller said Sunday after a bogey on the second hole of a sudden death playoff had deprived him of the victory that would have been, quite possibly, the most important of his strange career.

Cedeno shakes bug, goes 5-for-5

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Cesar Cedeno says that he has been in poor health for most of the season, and is just now starting to feel good again. If he starts to feel any better, the National League pitchers had better run and hide.

Cedeno pounded out three singles, a double and a triple Sunday night to lead the Astros to a 4-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, which kept the Astros a half game in front of the Cincinnati Reds in the NL West.

The first baseman thinks he had some form of hepatitis early in the year. "I felt weak all the time," he said, "and I must have lost 20 pounds. It was finally diagnosed at the All-Star break, but by then I was starting to feel stronger."

Manager Bill Virdon isn't sure what was wrong, but had no doubt that Cedeno was not himself. "He was very sick," said Virdon, "but it wasn't contagious. It seemed to be some sort of flu."

The Phillies had plenty of trouble trying to diagnose Cedeno Sunday night. With the score tied at 1-1, he led off the eighth with a long triple to right center. Craig Reynolds followed with a line single to left off loser Kevin Saucier, 1-2, and when Manny Trillo made an error on Terry Puhl's bunt, Reynolds came all the way around to make it 3-1.

Houston added an insurance tally in the ninth on a double by Alan Ashby, a ground out, and a single by ace reliever Joe Sambito.

Sambito came into the game in the eighth and put down a Phils threat to gain his 17th save. Peter Ladd, appearing in his fourth major league game, allowed one hit in 2-3 innings to record his first victory.

Houston starter Rick Williams, who replaced Ken Forsch, (bothered by a shoulder problem) in the rotation, and the Phillies Randy Lerch battled evenly for six innings.

The Astros took a 1-0 lead in the second on a lead by Jose Cruz, Ashby's sacrifice and a sacrifice fly by Rafael Landestoy.

The Phillies tied it in the fourth, and had a chance for more but Williams pitched out of trouble. Mike Schmidt led off with a double and moved to third on Bake McBride's grounder. Bob Boone then knocked in Schmidt with a single to left. Garry Maddox' single and an error by Cedeno loaded the bases, but Lerch's hard ground ball to first was turned into a double play.

Houston, which has used the sacrifice bunt successfully all season, had three, two by shortstop Reynolds, giving him a club record of 28 for the year. Sonny Jackson sacrificed 27 times in 1966.

Cedeno, who had five hits in a game for the first time in his 10-year career, summed up his night neatly. "It was my best game in four years," he said.

Comer blames juggled lineup for loss

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers have lost four in a row and 29 of their 39 games since the All Star break, and pitcher Steve Comer says it all goes back to the trades the front office made during the season.

With a juggled lineup, the Rangers committed two errors behind Comer Sunday night while dropping a 6-2 verdict to the Milwaukee Brewers.

Comer, normally soft-spoken, exploded after the game.

"That's what happens when a club has no will to win, no one to keep it alive," said Comer, whose record dropped to 13-9.

Texas, which led the American League West until shortly before the break, was nine games back on Sunday, but staunch Rangers fans had contended the team was still refusing to quit.

"No one quit? No one let down? That's easier said than what's done on the field and who's put on the field. You have to put your best nine out there and we can't make up nine games on California with a lineup I've had behind me a couple of times," Comer said.

"You hope for the team to turn around, but I can't see it. When you trade people away, it depends on what you get in return. What we got was a stockpile at first and a stockpile at center field. Dock Ellis, Oscar Gamble, Ed Farmer, they're not household names, but they're the kind you like to see in the clubhouse after a tough game. They pick people up. Now everybody picks up a hot dog and leaves. Great, it's time for spring training."

Lately, manager Pat Corrales has benched light-hitting shortstop Nelson Norman, despite his defensive abilities, moved Buddy Bell from third to shortstop and inserted Eric Soderholm at third base. Sunday night, Soderholm bobbled one grounder, and the Brewers hit two singles through him, including one off his glove that Bell at shortstop probably would have gotten had Soderholm not tried for it. Soderholm dived and missed on another shot of the variety Bell had consistently been coming up with all season.

Rookie Billy Sample started in center and got a late start on a fly by Sal Bando in the first that fell for a single. Comer responded with a long stare in his direction, but Sample won an extended ovation from the crowd after bouncing off the wall with a running catch in the third.

He hit three singles and a double.

U.S. looking good!

MONTREAL (AP) — The United States has claimed the big international track and field victory that got away two years ago, boding well for the country's chances in the 1980 Summer Olympics.

"I think there's a very definite possibility that we'll win more than a third of the gold medals (in track and field) at the next Olympics," said Sam Bell, U.S. coach at World Cup II.

The United States won seven of the 20 men's events and two of the 15 women's events at the three-day meet that ended Sunday at Olympic Stadium.

Three of the men's victories came on the final day — Larry Myricks with the second-best long jump in history, Renaldo Nehemiah in a tight 110-meter hurdles finish and the 1,600-meter relay team.

It was that relay event, the last of the first World Cup in Dusseldorf, West Germany, that kept the U.S. men from winning the team title in 1977. Maxie Parks pulled up lame on the last leg, allowing East Germany to take the men's crown.

"We didn't go out and have a pep rally" before World Cup II, said Bell. "I think the American kids have a lot of pride where a score is kept."

The U.S. men finished with 119 points. Europe was second with 112, followed by East Germany with 108, the Soviet Union 102, the Americas (Western Hemisphere except the United States) 98, Africa 84, Oceania (Australia and New Zealand) 58, and Asia 36.

In the women's competition, pre-meet favorite East Germany won with 105. The Soviet Union had 97, just nosing out defending champion Europe with 96. The United States was fourth with 75, followed by the Americas 67, Oceania 46, Africa 29 and Asia 25.

Miruts Yifter, the balding Ethiopian distance runner, and Evelyn Ashford, the U.S. sprinter, were named the outstanding men's and women's athletes in the meet. Each won two events.

Baseball Roundup

Seaver has the moves

For a pitcher, Tom Seaver has all the classic moves — the smooth windup, high kick and strong, clean follow-through.

And what he mainly relies on is classic, too: curve ball and fastball. Nothing fancy. Just simple, old-fashioned stuff, but he usually puts it in the right place at the right time.

The basics have always been at the heart of Seaver's success, and they were working at their basic best Sunday when Cincinnati's stylish right-hander stopped the New York Mets 8-0 with a neat four-hitter.

"I threw curves on the first two pitches," said Seaver after winning his 11th straight game, "because I wanted to establish that I could use it. I had a good curve in the bullpen but sometimes you lose it when you get on the mound."

Seaver also was pleased with his fastball, especially in the later innings. He struck out five in the game, raising his career total to 2,861 but he got two in the sixth inning, both on fastballs.

"I've been throwing very well lately and I've had a good fastball late in the game. Those two strikeouts came late and that's unusual for me now. That proves to me that I was throwing well."

Orioles 12-4, White Sox 7-3

Gary Roenicke's leadoff home run in the 13th inning gave the Orioles their sweep. Doug DeCinces' grand slam, one of four Baltimore homers, helped the Orioles take the opener as Mike Flanagan became the AL's first 18-game winner. Roenicke's homer was the first one allowed by Ed Farmer since joining the White Sox June 15. Ken Singleton, Rich Dauer and Eddie Murray also homered for Baltimore in the opener.

The day was dampened, however, when Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver was slapped with a three-day suspension by league President Lee MacPhail after filing two protests in the opener. The first was on behalf of the players, who claimed the outfield was not in playable condition.

In the fifth inning, Weaver was ejected by umpire Ron Luciano after he filed another protest "because of umpire integrity."

Blue Jays 9, Angels 3

John Maberry socked two solo home runs and Rick Cerone drove in five runs with a two-run homer, two-run double and bases-loaded walk. Rookie Butch Edge and Tom Buskey held California to seven hits while Nolan Ryan was the loser as the Blue Jays got a measure of revenge for Saturday's 24-2 shelling. "Yesterday was our best and today was a new day," Cerone said.

Pirates 9, Padres 2

Pitcher Bruce Kison socked a grand slam home run and Bill Madlock smashed four hits, including a two-run homer, as Pittsburgh defeated San Diego.

Kison, 9-7, capped a five-run Pirate second inning with his first career grand slam. It was the third career home run for the Pittsburgh right-hander.

Madlock, drilled his 13th homer of the year in the third inning, a two-run shot that chased loser Bob Shirley, 6-13.

"I didn't get to see it clear the fence," said Kison about his grand slam. "I hit three home runs and I've yet to see one of them go out. I'm never going to win the slugging percentage for pitchers, it was just a very lucky thing."

Dodgers 4, Cardinals 1

Steve Garvey slugged a homer, doubled and singled and drove in two runs to lead Los Angeles over St. Louis. Rick Sutcliffe, 12-9, scattered eight St. Louis hits before needing ninth-inning relief from Robert Castillo, who gained his fourth save.

The Cards' Lou Brock moved into 12th place on the all-time hit list with his 3,068th career base hit, a double. He surpassed Al Kaline.

Tigers 4-9, Mariners 3-8

Steve Kemp hit two solo homers in the opener, including a game-winning shot in the 10th inning, and hit a two-run homer to tie the nightcap in the seventh inning. Champ Summers won it with a pinch homer in the eighth. Kemp also had three singles in the doubleheader. Kemp and Jason Thompson hit successive home runs in the sixth inning to tie the opener after spotting Seattle a 3-1 lead.

Indians 7, A's 5

Wayne Garland and Sid Monge combined for 61-3 innings of strong relief and Dave Rosello drove in the tie-breaking run with a sixth-inning double. Garland, who underwent surgery in May 1978 for a torn rotator cuff in his right shoulder, allowed three hits in 31-3 scoreless innings in his first appearance since aggravating the injury June 25.

Cubs 4, Giants 1

Dennis Lamp and Bruce Sutter collaborated on a six-hitter as Chicago defeated San Francisco. Lamp, 9-7, pitched the first 6-3 innings, allowing five hits and striking out five. Sutter then came in and registered his 33rd save — four shy of the National League record.

CGA winners

The team of David Gomez and Joe Juarez took first place in the Chicano Golf Association Tournament held at the Municipal Golf Course over the weekend.

Gomez and Juarez shot a 61 in the two-man partnership handicap tourney. The team of Pancho Lozano and Jimmy Marin took second place with a combined score of 62.

Septien offers high drama

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Rafael Septien, the Mexican movie star who kicks for the Dallas Cowboys, went from rags to riches Saturday night as Dallas beat Pittsburgh, 16-14, in a preseason finale for both National Football League clubs.

Septien treated a national television audience to a moment of high drama when he blasted home a 47-yard field goal with two seconds left in the game, providing the margin of victory.

Until that time, the sometime film actor stood to be the goat, having blown a point-after-touchdown attempt that kept Dallas on the short end of a 14-13 count until the very end.

The game-winner wasn't your basic, perfect kick, Septien said. "I tried to rush it and I hooked it," he said. "The coaching staff had told me that they trusted me after the first one... that was just a bad kick."

Septien might never have had the shot at redemption had it not been for a gummy performance by Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach.

Staubach had thrown touchdown passes of 12 yards to tight end Billy Joe Dupree and eight yards to rookie running back Ron Springs.

In the final 37 seconds, the veteran from Navy hit Drew Pearson. Tony Hill and Preston Pearson to set up Septien's decisive boot.

To that point, Staubach's 207-yard passing performance had been overshadowed by Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw, who ended the night with 154 yards through the air.

Bradshaw was giving valuable lessons to an injury-riddled Dallas secondary more drew penalties. In spite of that, Pittsburgh crossed the goal line only twice with both touchdowns coming in the first four minutes of the second period.

Franco Harris scored from the one and Jim Smith collected an eight-yard touchdown pass from Bradshaw.

Another of Dallas coach Tom Landry's rookie finds put Dallas back into the game. Wade Manning, who played baseball at Ohio State, ripped off a 62-yard punt return to the Steeler 11 to set up the Cowboys' first touchdown — the one that preceded Septien's PAT miss.

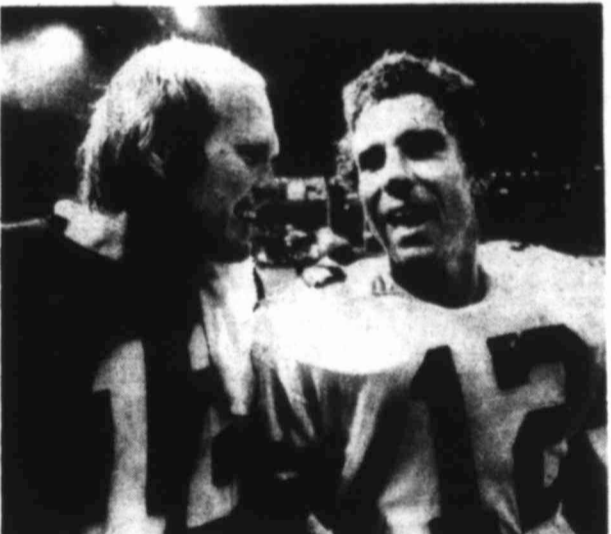

Landry was pleased with his team's performance, especially that of the rookies.

"Our new players looked good, like Mitchell, Manning and Springs," Landry said. "Those kids played pretty tough."

Landry's sick call list also grew.

Receiver Butch Johnson suffered a broken finger to join a long list of medical problems on the squad, including running back Tony Dorsett's broken toe.

The Steelers, conquerors of Dallas in January's Super Bowl, were not crestfallen by the meaningless loss.

OPPOSING NUMBERS — Terry Bradshaw, left, of the Pittsburgh Steelers and Roger Staubach of the Dallas Cowboys, opposing quarterbacks, have a brief hello after the National Football League exhibition football game Saturday night in Texas Stadium.

Lightning hits oil battery

Lightning was the cause of a blaze in an oil battery located on the J.M. Payne lease just south of Tarzan, Friday night.
The Martin County Sheriff's Office was alerted to the fire at 9 p.m. Friday, said Deputy Glenn Tilly, who reported to the scene. According to reports, a farm hand near the battery heard a large explosion when lightning hit, and watched as flames erupted.
Firefighters from the Stanton Fire Department were called in to douse the blaze, and keep nearby tanks cool to prevent further explosions. No estimate has been made on the cost of damages.
