Carolinas are next targets of David

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane David, one of the century's deadliest Atlantic storms, lost some of its punch as it side-swiped the coast of Florida today on a course that could take it to the Carolinas.

Damage was surprisingly light as the hurricane packing 90 mph winds skirted the beaches from Miami to Palm Beach on a path toward the north. At last five deaths in Florida were blamed on the storm.

"We think it's going to parallel the coast and continue north and be a threat somewhere in the Carolinas sometime in the next 48 hours," said Dr. Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center here.

Before closing in on the southeast coast of Florida where thousands had fled their homes, the storm had killed at least 640 persons in a 5-day march through the Caribbean islands of Dominica, Puerto Rico, the Dominican Republic, where 150,000 were reported homeless, and the Bahamas.

Hurricane-force winds slammed the wealthy playground of Palm Beach today after the hurricane's eye skipped past Miami and Fort Lauderdale.

The storm's eye and fiercest winds, however, stayed just offshore, drifting northward past populous Fort Lauderdale and the mansions of Palm Beach.

At 10 a.m. EDT the storm was just off Palm Beach at latitude 26.5 and longitude 79.6. The highest winds were clocked at 90 mph.

Hurricane warnings were in effect from Fort Lauderdale to Daytona Beach.

During the night the storm had appeared headed for the densely populated Miami-Fort Lauderdale area. Then it shifted course to take a more northerly track.

The small shift in direction would not have been significant far out at sea, Frank said. "But when you put eight million people in its path, it becomes very significant," he added.

At least five hurricane-related deaths were reported in Florida.

But property damage appeared moderate.

Arthur St. Amand, civil defense director in Broward County which includes Fort Lauderdale, called the storm "a flop."

Meanwhile, at 9 a.m. EDT,

Hurricane Frederic was at latitude 17.7 north and longitude 62.0 west, near the island of Barbuda and about 250 miles east of San Juan. Its winds were clocked at 75 mph.

Frederic was considered a threat today to the northern Leeward Islands and the Virgin Islands. Forecasters said it could follow David's route all the way to the U.S. coast.

Dominican Republic feels worst effects of hurricane SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Rocks filled main streets and rooftops jutted from the flooded Ozama River as the Dominican people dug out hundreds of bodies and began to clean up some of the devastation left by Hurricane David.

Power poles were broken off at their bases, major hotels were damaged and restaurants were no longer recognizable in the wake of the storm, which killed at least 600 Dominicans and left 150,000 homeless, 90,000 of them in the Santo Domingo area, officials said.

The hurricane left 22 dead Wednesday in the tiny eastern Caribbean island of Dominica and another 16 in Puerto Rico, then swept into the Dominican Republic late Friday, ripping chunks of concrete from sidewalks and crushing cars waiting on a dock like toys.

Palm trees were uprooted and tossed about like straws, a large cargo plane was tossed upside down onto the top of a building at the airport. The long concrete walkway along Santo Domingo's George Washington Avenue was shredded, its remains hurled across the street by the storm.

Waves then pounded directly into the hotel fronts, smashing in glass walls and windows and sweeping through the buildings. Foreign businessmen and tourists staying in the hotels had been evacuated to public buildings on higher ground and no casualties were reported among them.

But in the tiny town of Ocoa, 75 miles southwest of Santo Domingo, 400 Dominicans huddled in a church and a school were killed when flood waters from the rain-swollen Yaque River swept through the buildings, civil defense officials said.

"The waters kept rising and rising until everything was flooded and dozens of persons drowned. The few who saved themselves had to climb to the top of the church steeple," a local official said.

Fifteen others were killed when high winds knocked down a concrete block church in the city of San Cristobal, 12 miles west of Santo Domingo.

The government said there will be no electricity for at least three weeks. David also destroyed a storage tank with thousands of gallons of fuel, and the power shortage will delay resumption of refinery operations.

All commercial and private flights were cancelled because of a damaged runway at the airport.

Authorities estimated 90 percent of the nation's crops were destroyed by David. Civil Defense Director Pedro Justiniano Polanco said damage to crops and buildings could be between $600 million and $1 billion.

President Antonio Guzman, who viewed the damage from a helicopter Sunday, declared a state of disaster and asked for aid from the Organization of American States, the United Nations, the United States and Venezuela.

The OAS secretary-general, Alejandro Orfila, reportedly assured Guzman that aid was forthcoming. CARE, the United States' international relief agency, sent word from New York that it was organizing an aid shipment, officials said.

SITTING OUT DAVID — Raymond Maxwell, age 80 and a 20-year resident of Miami, takes time out for a reflection and a smoke at the Miami Senior High School, which has been set up as a refugee center. Maxwell is the veteran of many hurricanes, but since he lives in a mobile home, he decided that caution was the better part of valor and was evacuated.

Social Security --- 7

Help for worker's widow

By WILLIAM STEIF
(Seventh of 14 parts)

What happens if the family breadwinner dies before retirement?

His widow is protected. She gets the same amount her husband would have received in Social Security benefits at age 65.

She could begin receiving her widow's benefit any time after turning 60, but the payments would then be reduced slightly for each month she was short of 65 when she began to draw them.

However, a disabled homemaker can begin collecting her widow's benefit at age 50.

For help in calculating your benefits, consult my book "What You've Got Coming in Social Security and Medicare."

A widow (or widower) 60 or over can now remarry without losing benefits accruing to her from a dead spouse. Or she can opt to receive half of her new husband's benefits.

This provision was inserted into the 1977 amendments to the Social Security law to take care of situations in which beneficiaries were living together without marrying for fear of losing benefits.

Remarriage under age 60, however, still means forfeiture of benefits. Surviving parents of a worker covered by Social Security may be eligible for benefits if they can prove the deceased was their sole support. Such parents must be 62 or older.

Widows — and some widowers — are entitled to another benefit; a lump-sum payment of $255 on the death of a Social Security beneficiary.

This provision, which has been in the law since 1940, was designed to provide for the special expenses of a worker's last illness and death.

The lump-sum death benefit has not kept pace with inflation. Some experts now view it primarily as a boon to the funeral industry, since it insures payment of some of the expenses of burying even a beneficiary who has no survivors.

Some administration officials want to do away with the lump-sum death benefit to save Social Security several hundred million dollars a year. Companies that market small life-insurance policies don't want the benefit expanded for fear that would cut into their business.

Some fear increasing the benefit simply would result in higher funeral costs. Still others believe the benefit should be raised to $1,000 to provide significant extra protection to survivors of beneficiaries.

A hitchhiker, Ronald Leonard Edmiston, Jonesboro, Ark., was struck with a tire tool after an argument with two men at a road side park Saturday.

Edmiston was at the park west of town at 7:45 p.m. when he was approached by two males. After an argument, one of the men hit Edmiston on the right side of the face.

Edmiston contacted the authorities while at the Exxon station on west highway 80.

He was taken to the Veterans' Administration Medical Center where he received five stitches to a two-inch cut on his face. He was kept overnight Saturday.

weekend would exceed predicted totals as Texans prepared to return home today from holiday outings.

At least 32 persons were killed in traffic accidents before the final 18-hour period of the long holiday weekend began. The Department of Public Safety earlier predicted that 37 would die in holiday weekend traffic crashes between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight tonight.

Authorities blamed high speed and drinking for many of the traffic deaths.

Department of Public Safety Director Col. Wilson E. Speir said Sunday "With more than a day remaining in the count...we feel certain the estimates will be exceeded."

"Early analysis indicates speed and drinking are heavy contributing factors," Speir added.

"It's been pretty bad so far," said Department of Public Safety spokesman Jim Robinson.

A. The Voice of the Electorate according to Mary Thomas, a reporter for their publication, is an organization of interested citizens who are active in government. "Our nucleus is small, but a lot of people work in the election," she said. Open meetings are held every month. The next one is planned for Tuesday, 7 p.m. Terry Bradbury resigned as chairperson about one month ago. At Tuesday's meeting, a discussion will be held on restructuring the organization with a board of directors. Tina Arguella is serving as secretary and Guy Teague as treasurer. Along with Ms. Thomas, Tina Arguella and Sandy Sawyer write for the publication. As to who would be held liable, Ms. Thomas says it could be determined who wrote the particular story in question published in the newsletter.

Police Beat Assailants are foiled

A local housewife, Rachel Sciretta, 1104 Mulberry, foiled the attempts of assailants early today when she broke free from their grip and ran home.

Mrs. Sciretta told police that she was grabbed from behind by two males while walking in an alley near her home, 1 a.m. The assailants allegedly pushed her to the ground, on her back, and one of them struck her in the face. She fought back and managed to get to her feet and run home, according to police reports.

Driver charged with murder

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A Hartford man has been charged with first-degree assault for allegedly shooting at seven persons who were trying to lift his car off a young bicyclist, police say.

Alonzo Davis, 21, of Hartford surrendered to police Saturday evening in connection with the incident last Tuesday. Police said Davis "car struck the bicyclist, and when the boy's mother and others tried to lift the car to free the boy, Davis began shooting at them. They theorized that the driver panicked. Davis denied he fired the shot.

Plane goes down in gulf

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Rescuers searched an area of the Gulf of Mexico for a downed plane and its pilot after a man rescued from a life raft reported surviving the crash, the Coast Guard reports.

Coast Guard aircraft and oil company crewboats Sunday searched the area, about 40 miles from Intercoastal City, La., for the pilot. Details about the accident were sketchy, but Lt. Steve Fothergill said the man reported that the small private craft went down Saturday about 9 p.m. Identities of the two men were not released.

Youth accidentally kills

KINGSWOOD TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — A 17-year-old Elizabeth youth was killed when he pointed a revolver he mistakenly thought was unloaded at his head and fired, police say.

Dominick Didonato was shooting at targets with Michael Caruso, 17, also of Elizabeth and another youth, who was not identified. After firing eight shots with a .22-caliber nine-shot revolver, Didonato raised the gun to his head and pulled the trigger, police said.

Authorities said he apparently miscounted the number of rounds in the revolver and didn't realize the gun was loaded.

Bridge hanger rescued

ABERDEEN TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — A man who had dangled by his hands over the Garden State Parkway was pulled to safety by a police lieutenant who grabbed him by the hair as he threatened to jump into traffic, police said.

John C. Groel, 22, of Matawan, climbed onto the Main Street overpass Saturday evening and threatened to throw himself onto the highway, police said. But Matawan Police Lt. Frank Cherney pulled him to safety at the last minute, officers said. Groel reportedly told Cherney he was upset over family problems.

He was arraigned on disorderly persons charges and sent to Marlboro Psychiatric Hospital for observation, authorities said.

Winery first on continent

Ancient documents proved true

Editor's Note: Herald reporter James Werrell was privileged recently to attend a festival which occurs in Parras, Mexico. This is the second of a three-part series of his impressions of the event.

By JAMES WERRELL Morning sunlight streams across the peaks of the Sierra Madre Mountains to the east as a man places his fingers to the earth, and then touches them to his lips. "Now the land is mine," he declares to those gathered around him.

The year is 1590, and the land is still somewhat barren and forbidding. But it will soon be the site of a grand hacienda, quarters for a small colony of Spanish settlers.

As the settlement grows, the acres surrounding the hacienda will be cultivated and planted with grapes. Soon thereafter, a winery, one of the first on the North American Continent, will be established.

The family of Don Jose Milmo, present director general of the Casa Madero Winery and Distillery in San Lorenzo, Mexico, has owned the land for nearly four centuries, and Milmo is now in the process of restoring the hacienda, or casa grande, to its original condition.

"The original deeds to the land were sanctioned by King Ferdinand II of Spain. The documents describe the ritual of tasting the earth and placing grains on the head during a ceremonial dance," explained Milmo.

These documents were handwritten on ancient parchment, and bound in leather. They now rest safely in vaults in Monterrey. "We are very lucky to still have the deeds. The art of making paper like that, which will hold up for centuries, is probably lost now," said Milmo.

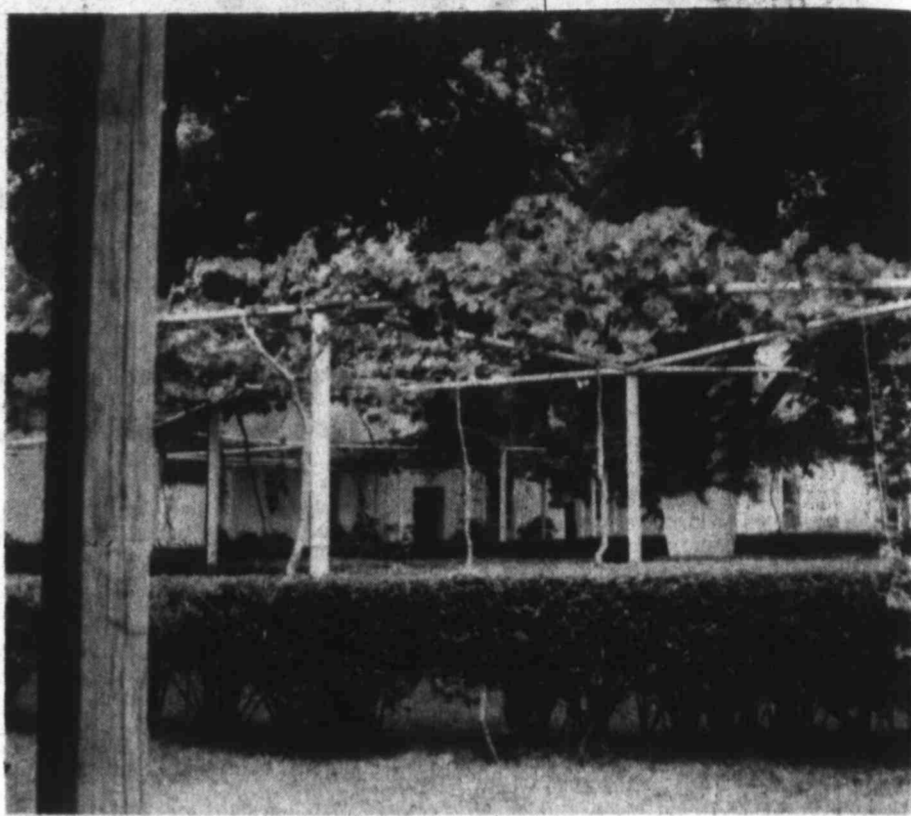

The documents are written in 16th Century Spanish, and experts were called in to translate them. From the yellowed pages and the structure of the casa grande, itself, much of which was amazingly well-preserved, Milmo was able to determine how the restoration should proceed.

"We have worked for nearly five years now, trying to stay as close to the original plans as possible," said Milmo's wife, Sra. Roberta Milmo.

Although the hacienda now has electricity and modern plumbing, the spirit of an age long-past still inhabits its sunny courtyards and large airy rooms.

The walls throughout the hacienda are of either stucco or a composite of stone and stucco, and in most places are over four feet thick. Artisans built the walls to these massive proportions in order to support the many high vaulted ceilings that hover 30 feet above.

For its original occupants, the hacienda's walls also provided perfect, natural insulation in the rooms, said Milmo.

DISTILLING ROOM — A tall tower at the Casa Madero Winery houses distilling equipment, and bears the emblem of the winery.

"In the summer the rooms would be closed off during the heat of the day to contain the cool air. In the winter, it was the opposite. Doors would be opened during the day to let in the heat, and the rooms would be warm all night," he explained.

The hacienda compound measures nearly 100-by-100 square, and tall Moorish-style towers stand at each of the four corners. The towers still contain slotted openings that may have been used to fire at hostile intruders.

Inside the compound is a huge central courtyard, dominated by a grandfatherly peacan tree towering hundreds of feet into the air. An arbor surrounds the tree, and in the afternoon the sun sprays dappled shadows from the leaves of the grape vines onto the lawn below.

Adjoining a slate walkway around the courtyard are 25 bedrooms; each different, and each breathtaking. In keeping with the spirit of restoration, Sra. Milmo has used only fired, hand-painted clay tiles in the large bathrooms.

The tiles, covering floors, walls and ceilings, range in shades from pale pastels to startling primary colors. Some tiled rooms contain floral designs, others geometric patterns, and one, a galaxy of white stars on a deep blue background.

In addition to the large courtyard, the hacienda also contains two smaller ones. One hosts a fountain, and trellises dripping with bougainvillea bushes; the other is surrounded by more rooms.

The enormous central dining room boasts a ceiling that soars 50 feet above the floor. Supported by rafters, the ceiling is constructed entirely of rough-hewn, crisscrossed wooden slats.

The hacienda's kitchen provides an immediate contrast between old and new. Wood stoves and open fires have been replaced by modern gas ranges, but earthenware vessels indigenous to the area for hundreds of years still are used for cooking.

These pots must be fired at white-hot temperatures to withstand the direct heat of the stoves, said Sra. Milmo. Some of the dishes they contain may be familiar to Americans, but some, such as a simmering stew of cactus sections and jalapeno peppers, provide an exotic jolt for foreign palates.

To stay in the casa grande is to enter the world of the first Spaniards in the new land. It was, in a very real sense, their only world; danger and the unknown lurked beyond the gates of the hacienda.

But with their courtyards, fountains and trees, the early settlers brought part of that outside world into the hacienda. And its bright white walls, even today, seem to whisper, "You will be safe here, and you will be happy."

Value of contacts is stressed by Clements

By JIM DAVIS Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau BUDAPEST — Governor Bill Clements began his five-nation agricultural mission in Eastern Europe Sunday by declaring: "It's no junk."

Clements said he hopes the mission's 35 participants — mostly wealthy farmers, ranchers or food processors and their wives — will make valuable business contacts.

That would increase Texas' agricultural exports and benefit the United States' balance of trade, he said.

Participants have to be fairly well off. Each plunked down $3,600 to make the three-week trip through Hungary, Czechoslovakia, the Soviet Union, Poland and Yugoslavia.

"The State of Texas has not paid one dime for anybody," Clements said Sunday.

"I think that's important."

The group arrived in Hungary late Sunday afternoon after an overnight flight across the Atlantic and a layover in Zurich, Switzerland. It was given VIP treatment by the Hungarians and was cleared through customs without a luggage check.

Clements' presence on the American Airlines flight from Dallas-Fort Worth Airport to New York City drew considerable attention from the flight crew and passengers Saturday.

"That's the governor of Texas," one surprised passenger told another. "I wonder why he's flying tourist?"

All the tour members fly in the tourist section. This will include 17 such flights across Eastern Europe.

The group, which is sponsored by the People to People program, will leave for Prague on Wednesday.

Body recovered from demolished oil tanker

DEER PARK, Texas (AP) — Coast Guard inspectors examining the burned and broken hulk of the Chevron Hawaii recovered the body of a missing radar technician from the main deck of the demolished oil tanker.

However, inspectors found no trace Sunday of two other men missing since the 870-tonner exploded Saturday — sending a wave of burning crude spreading across the Houston Ship Channel.

At least 12 other persons were injured, none seriously, in the fiery blast that rocked the vessel and surrounding area, ignited a nearby ethyl alcohol storage and burned a dock.

The Coast Guard plans a formal hearing Tuesday to investigate the cause of the explosion that destroyed the tanker, three barges, the storage tank and the dock — damages that total an estimated $10 million.

"Initial reports from investigators are that lightning struck the vessel or the tank nearby with the resulting explosion and fire," said Commander J.J. Wicks of the Coast Guard marine inspector's office.

Eyewitnesses told the Coast Guard they saw a bolt of lightning strike the deck of the ship during unloading operations Saturday afternoon.

The Harris County medical examiner's office identified the dead man Sunday as Daniel W. Beemer, 32 of Houston.

Working couple advised to check withholding

It's not too early to think about your federal tax bill, especially if you're among the millions of couples in which both spouses bring home a paycheck. "Last filing period, many married couples who expected refund checks were surprised to find out that they instead had to write a check to cover a balance due on their tax bill," noted A.W. McCanless, Director for the Dallas District of the Internal Revenue Service. "The problem lies in the fact that the withholding rates are designed around the individual's wages and do not take a spouse's wages into account." For example, the highest tax rate applicable to a couple filing a joint return with only one wage earner making $26,000 is up to 32 percent. The withholding would be adequate. But for a couple with one spouse earning $10,000 and the other $16,000, the likelihood that an insufficient amount would be withheld is very great. Mr. McCanless offers several alternatives for the two-paycheck couple. One possibility is to pay additional tax by means of estimated taxes. In this system, the amount is paid in quarterly installments directly to the IRS using vouchers that come with Form 1040-ES, "Declaration of Estimated Tax for Individuals." Another choice is to file a revised Form W-4, "Employee's Withholding Certificate," with the employer claiming fewer or no allowances or requesting additional withholding. Also, married taxpayers may choose to have taxes withheld as if they are single. Both Forms 1040-ES and W-4 are available by calling the IRS taxpayer assistance telephone operation. The toll-free number is 1-800-492-4830. Additional information may be found in IRS Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Declaration of Tax," available free from the IRS.

SPILL-WATCHING WEATHER STATION — Six sophisticated weather stations have been placed aboard oil rigs in the Gulf of Mexico this week to monitor winds that threaten to spread oil from the Ixtoc I well along the U.S. Gulf Coast. The solar-powered stations were developed by the Federal Bureau of Reclamation for use in a weather modification research project. They were flown from a research site at Miles City, Mont., to the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station aboard a Coast Guard C-130.

Oil spill monitored by weather stations

Six solar-powered weather stations owned by the Bureau of Reclamation have been installed on oil rigs in the Gulf of Mexico to help monitor the world's worst oil spill. According to Dr. Bernard Silverman, Acting Chief of the Bureau's Atmospheric Resources Management Office, the stations are monitoring the unpredictable weather conditions in the Gulf and relay the information via satellite to scientists in Corpus Christi, Texas. Silverman said that the weather stations are normally used in cloud seeding search in Montana. The oil is spilling from a well off Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula, about 500 miles south of Texas. It blew out June 3 and has been losing 20,000 barrels of crude a day. The sticky oil is blanketing Texas beaches and has already covered part of Padre Island National Seashore Park. Reclamation's assistance was requested by the National Response Team, a group representing several Federal agencies that respond to disasters such as this spill. Various interior components are directly involved in this spill-containment effort, including the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, National Park Service, and Geological Survey. The weather stations were installed by two-man teams from Reclamation and Electronic Techniques, Inc. of Fort Collins, Colo., the manufacturer of the stations.

State AFL-CIO head blasts Clements' stand

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — President Harry Hubbard of the Texas AFL-CIO said Monday Gov. Bill Clements' views on the Mexican oil spill represent his own company — SEDCO — not the people of Texas. "Clements clearly put his personal interest above the public interest when he opposed filing suit against the parties involved in the oil spill," Hubbard said in remarks prepared for a Labor Day celebration. Clements founded the Dallas firm that leased drilling equipment to the offshore well that blew out, and he once described the spill as "much to do about nothing." He also has said a lawsuit, presumably against the Mexican government, is an "absolute last resort." Hubbard said the leased rig "was an old rig which may not have been suitable for use at the depth of water in which they were drilling." By opposing a lawsuit, Hubbard said, Clements "opposed fixing blame for the disaster. He either feared the blame might be traceable to his own company, SEDCO, or feared loss of future business in the lease of drilling rigs to Mexico. Either way, Clements' interests clearly are in conflict."

Gas saving claims are investigated by BBB

Gasoline shortages as well as rising prices have prompted an increase in exaggerated and misleading advertising claims involving gas saving and emission control devices, according to Al Beatty of the Better Business Bureau. "We encourage media to obtain all the facts before deciding on the acceptability of such advertising," said Beatty. A "Media Bulletin," now being distributed by the BBB to newspapers, magazines, radio and television stations, states that in addition to exaggerated and misleading claims made for these products, "data offered to substantiate gas saving claims for a number of devices have often been inaccurate, outdated or otherwise insufficient." The bulletin cites past testing of fuel savers by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) that showed in most cases not enough improvement in gas mileage to justify the cost of purchasing and installing them. Final rules were issued by the EPA earlier this year which set test procedures and criteria for evaluating fuel economy improvement claims for such devices. Under the program, any manufacturer of a fuel saving device may apply to EPA for product testing, providing the device has already been tested in an EPA-approved laboratory. A review of the data follows and a decision is made whether or not EPA testing of the device is needed. Results of any EPA testing performed on gas saving devices, however, does not render government certification or approval.

Dan Kubiak is keynote speaker in workshop

A statewide workshop on Gasohol will take place in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Thursday, under sponsorship of the Texas Farmers Union and the Texas Tech Center for Energy Research. State Representative Dan Kubiak of Rockdale, whose support of Gasohol production has earned him the name "Mr. Gasohol," will be the keynote speaker. Jon Thomas, TCU Staff Conference Coordinator, says the conference will deal with all major problems related to Gasohol production and marketing. "Gasohol is seen as a very logical solution to some of the problems of Texas farmers," Thomas said. "And this Conference is designed to be a gathering point for information on Gasohol." Rotating workshops are planned so that farmers interested in Gasohol production can attend a total of five sessions. The sessions will provide information on technology of Gasohol production, legal aspects and financial assistance for production, equipment procurement, and mixture and uses of Gasohol, including blending, storage and marketing. The workshop on Ethanol production technology will contain a comprehensive presentation on stages of modern ethanol production, including demonstrations of working Ethanol "stills" — one solar, the other clear glass. A slide program entitled "Alcohol Fuels: A Declaration of Independence for Farmers" will answer some of the questions clouding the Gasohol issue. Cindy Domenico, Coordinator for Alcohol Fuels, and Victor Ray, Director of Field Services, both of National Farmers Union, will coordinate this workshop. Representatives of the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, and the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission will We're glad you asked!

With LARRY D. SHEPPARD SHEPPARD FUNERAL HOME

SHOULD THE CASKET BE OPEN OR CLOSED?

This question can only be answered by the family, never by the funeral director. There are several options available to the family. The casket can be open during the hours of visitation and closed during the final rites or it can remain open during the final rites. It can also remain closed at all times. The customs of the family's faith and the influence of their clergyman's thoughts may help determine what is to be done. Modern psychologists tell us viewing the deceased helps the family to accept the fact of death, especially when it may have been sudden or unexpected. If, however, the appearance of the deceased cannot be made acceptable, viewing may possibly be harmful. The family's own wishes on the desired procedure will always be the guideline for the funeral director at our firm. We respect the family's wishes on all particulars of the funeral service as we try our very best to provide a truly personal and meaningful service.

Americans still get break on gasoline

Granted that it is hard to stay in a good humor while paying more than twice as much for a commodity than it cost a decade ago. Americans who burn gasoline in their automobiles still have reason for being thankful.

We think of ourselves having high gasoline prices only because they have been low for so long. Throughout the world, we rank right at the bottom still — and have a long way to go before we even approach the prices paid in other Western nations and in Japan.

THE AVERAGE per-gallon cost of gasoline in this country last month was 97.79 cents. A year ago, the norm was 64.32 cents per gallon. The boost has been shocking but compare it to the price being asked in other countries; 97.79 cents against the $2.50 the Swiss are asked to pay. The Swiss, on the other hand, reason they get off lightly. The French are anteing up $2.74 for the precious liquid. The Danes are paying $3.40 per gallon. To be frank, it is our price, not those cited for the Western European nations, which is out of line in the world.

Despite those prices two and three times our own, the impact on driving has been minimal. Strange as it might seem, the bigger American cars are selling better in Europe now than at any time in history. The plunging dollar has made them more accessible to a lot of buyers.

Overall driving, and thus gasoline consumption, has simply not decreased in response to sharply higher prices.

AROUND THE WORLD, there seems to be an intent on the part of a great many people to buy the last gallon of gasoline left in the world and use it to drive the family vehicle the last mile to the automobile graveyard.

It's long been thought that steep prices would bring on a form of rationing, but that simply hasn't been the case anywhere. So, if we want to reduce gasoline consumption the answer does not seem to lie in the direction of rationing-by-price — not unless we're willing to go to $5 or $6 a gallon, with the imposition of a confiscatory federal tax, perhaps. And that's an option no politician is about to exercise.

Episcopalian ordeal

William F. Buckley, Jr.

At a meeting a year ago of Episcopal bishops, one spokesman for the body dismissed the uproar over the impending proscription of the Book of Common Prayer as of concern to "possibly 5 percent" of the nation's Episcopalians. Such a declaration was doctrinally provocative (the revised edition is here and there, however obliquely, a dogmatic retreat). But aesthetically, it was an outrage, on the order of saying that only 5 percent of French Catholics would be concerned over the destruction of Chartres Cathedral. The shock came early last month when George Gallup released his findings: 63 percent of America's Episcopalians prefer the Book of Common Prayer to the revised edition. That finding should be as surprising as a finding that American students prefer, in a ratio of 3-to-1, Lincoln's Gettysburg Address over Nixon's Checkers speech.

COMING UP IN two weeks in Denver is a conclave of Episcopalian dignitaries who gather augustly every three years to make major decisions. At that historic meeting, a decision will not be reached whether to stay with the Book of Common Prayer (with its obviously necessary idiomatic emendations), or to go with the Rolling Stone version.

Incredibly, the issue will be whether to permit — the continued use of the Book of Common Prayer. The Anglican poet W. H. Auden, shown the revised version shortly before his death (post hoc propter hoc?) said simply, "The Episcopal Church... seems to have gone stark, raving mad." He added, "And why? The Roman Catholics have had to start from scratch, and as any of them with a feeling for language will admit, they have made a cacophonous horror of the mass." The language of the Roman Catholic mass would offend the ears of Helen Keller. Even so, the Episcopalians appear to be determined to go in the same direction, though they are unquestionably encumbered now by the startling finding of Dr. Gallup.

BUT HERE IS THE distinctive complication. The same poll reveals that 80 percent of the clergy of the Episcopal Church desire the new version. Let us not pause at this moment to ask why, beyond acknowledging the easy and plausible explanation that the new and bulkier version permits improvisational renderings suited to the licentious spirit of the age. The question is: Where do you go when 80 percent of the clergy desire one version of the liturgy, and 65 percent of the congregation desire another?

The question is not easy to answer, because for all that the natural law makes room for the authority of the people in its expressed acknowledgment of "jus gentium" (in our Declaration of Independence, "the opinion of mankind"), there is a special role for those ordained in the priesthood. But all that the majoritarians are asking is that individual parishes should be permitted to decide which text to use.

If indeed the new version commends itself finally to the modern ear, gradually the old text will slip away into desuetude. But need it be burned publicly, in imitation of the hideous assault of the Catholic church against the Tridentine Mass?

It is hard for many to understand the depths of despair of many American Episcopalians. Or ex-Episcopalians, like the writer Keith Mano, who has, sorrowfully, left his church. "I had been much more than a Sunday Episcopalian for 18 years. My decision was lacerating. It disjoined me from a hundred friends; devout folk, who — when the Episcopal Church dies of its terrible fever — will, by their grace and presence alone, touch it with an absolvingunction.

"But, for me, the dusk had come: My spiritual constitution was breaking down. I entered every parish church in the New York Diocese with the skin white and drawn across my knuckles.

Jaundice means bilirubin count high

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please explain what a bilirubin count means. I know it refers to the liver, but how dangerous is a high count, and what is done about it? — Mrs. E.J.E.

Bilirubin (BILL-ih-ROO-bin) is the chief ingredient of bile, the liquid substance produced in the liver and stored in the gall bladder for use in the intestines as digestion needs demand.

Bilirubin takes on its yellowish color from the breakdown of old red blood cells, a task the liver performs for the body. When there is an overproduction of bilirubin or an obstruction to its normal flow to the gall bladder or intestines it may "back up" and be absorbed in the blood. This produces a yellow cast to the skin and eyes (jaundice). Thus any sign of jaundice prompts a blood test for bilirubin content. In jaundice, it is, of course, high.

Causes range from liver inflammation, which may block the tiny bile ducts, to gallstones, which might block the bile flow to the intestines. Another cause might be excess destruction of red blood cells, which creates excess bilirubin and its potential absorption into the blood stream.

You don't "treat" jaundice. The idea is to search for the cause of the excess amount of bilirubin in the blood causing it. Common causes are hepatitis and cirrhosis of the liver.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am on medicine for high blood pressure and this is working reasonably well, as my pressure is now down to normal. I am a senior citizen and would like you to tell me if, in your opinion, sexual intercourse would cause a person's blood pressure to rise. My doctor did not tell me one way or another. — F.C.

Sexual activity does cause a rise in blood pressure and heart rate, but the rises are temporary. In fact, most heart-related episodes associated with sexual activity involve guilt and other pressures of extra-marital affairs.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is cracking your neck dangerous? I can crack my neck like some people crack their knuckles. — M.M.

No, unless it's annoying to the people near you.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can you tell me where I might find out more information on narcolepsy (the sleeping problem)? I was interested in the recent comments in the column, but wish to learn more, since a member of our family is afflicted. — J.A.

You can write to the American Narcolepsy Association, Inc. Box 5846, Stanford, Calif. 94305. They have printed material.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a friend who uses Murine eye drops every morning to make his eyes feel better and take care of redness. Can this practice be harmful? — A.R.

No, if the drops are used sparingly. Once a day would be considered sparingly. Your friend should be concerned about the cause of his eye redness and not continue to treat the symptoms alone.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please tell me why my pharmacist put a "no refill" on my peritrate SA container and on my nitroglycerine, too. I've been taking these for 10 years and each doctor has recommended that I continue with them. Also, what is Isordil 2.5? Is this a substitute for the above medicines? — H.M.

The medicines you mention are used in treatment of angina (heart pain) due to arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries). Drugs must, by law, be renewed by your doctor at certain intervals. Some prescriptions are good for six months, some for 12 months and some are not renewable at all, requiring a written prescription for each refill.

Isordil (isosorbide dinitrate) is another medicine used for dilating heart vessels.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What does the Bible mean when it says that the kingdom of God is within us? Does that mean that God is within us, and all we have to do is look within ourselves to discover God? — W.M.

DEAR W.M.: The statement to which you refer is in Luke 17:20-21: "Once, having been asked by the Pharisees when the kingdom of God would come, Jesus replied, 'The kingdom of God does not come with visible signs, nor will people say, "Here it is," or "There it is," because the kingdom of God is within you' (New International Version).

This statement has often been misunderstood to mean (as you suggest) that God is in every one of us, and we discover Him by looking into our hearts. But that is not what Jesus was teaching. As you read the Gospels you see that Jesus spoke frequently about the kingdom of God. What did He mean by that? Actually, this is a very wonderful concept if we understand it correctly.

Remember first of all that a kingdom has — by definition — a king. When Jesus tells us about the kingdom of God, He is telling us that God is to be our king. He is to be Lord of our lives, reigning and ruling over us. By nature, every one of us wants to be our own king — we want to control our own lives. But when we come to Christ, we accept another King. One of the greatest truths of the Bible is the truth that Jesus Christ is Lord, "far above all rule and authority, power and dominion, and every title that can be given on this earth" (Ephesians 1:21, New International Version).

Remember too that a kingdom has citizens or subjects. By faith in Christ we become citizens of the kingdom of God. God has chosen us "to inherit the kingdom he promised those who love him" (James 2:5, NIV). If you know Christ, you are part of His kingdom, and He is to be your King.

Jesus, in the passage you mention, shows that His kingdom is not a political government, as some in His day hoped it would be. His rule is within our hearts — it is within. Is Christ ruling in your heart? Are you seeking His will each day? "But seek first his kingdom and his righteousness" (Matthew 6:33, NIV).

Views on life

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

Nathan Poss works at the desk across from mine here at the Herald. But don't congratulate me yet.

His jokes are bad and he is a perpetual thief where it comes to stealing my Cokes.

Last week he finally splurged on two Cokes, one for each of us and then sat and spoke what was on his mind.

I KNOW everyone has been waiting for this, so here goes:

On Female Sportswriters: "I think it's great if they know what they're talking about. I've seen male sportswriters in a press box who don't know what's going on. They're sports fans but they don't know strategy. That's why I think I'm good, because I can analyze a coach's strategies where a lot of guys are cheerleaders. Though I do like to look at cheerleaders. Females can do just as much as a man can. I'm not prejudiced."

On Women: "When I was 17 or 18, I really wanted to get married, but the older I get, it doesn't look like I can handle one girl exclusively, and be fair to both her and me. I have a very strong value as far as marriage goes. I want to be ready, I want her to be ready. I don't want the urge to not be a good husband. I don't want to be dominant. I don't believe in the typical marriage where the man is the dominant force, where everything he says is law.

"My taste in women is changing. In college, I would go out and I wouldn't be picky about who I would end up with. Now, it means more. The mental aspects of a woman mean more than simply being with one for the sake of sudden urges or being seen with one. I'm pretty liberal with age. A lot of people think you ought to go out with your age group but I don't think it's relevant. I'm 24 and in my lifetime, I've been out with ladies who are 20 years older and as much as eight years younger. Age is not important, but whether she can make me happy and vice versa and I'm not just talking about a physical point of view. I should have been a Mormon but I was born 100 years too late. What can I say?"

On Money: "God! I have mixed emotions. There is going to be a point in my life whether it's against my will or not, that I'm going to have to get rich, which means I can't be a sportswriter all my life. But at the same time, I think the main thing is a person has to be happy in what they're doing no matter what they do. One thing I'll never do to get rich is to be a salesman. If I had a hundred thousand dollars today I'd never work another day of labor in my life, because it would grow enormously. Of course, the problem is unless I rob a bank in Kentucky or marry a rich girl, it will never happen."

On Hangovers: "RAW EGGS the night before, shell and all while you are drinking. It coats the stomach and brains so you don't have a headache. Also, tomato juice with a large amount of Tabasco or hot sauce chugged down the next morning is good."

On Female Athletes: "I have a sexual fantasy. My exception on a sexual fantasy to someone I don't know is Chris Evert. I'm all for female athletes. It's easier for me to relate to a girl who is athletically oriented than one who is not. But it's not a prerequisite. I respect a lady past 35 who has kept her body in good shape more than nearly anybody."

On Big Spring: "A lot of people always complain about Big Spring. I have lived here, in Houston, in Garden City and New York City in my life and my philosophy is that it's up to the person to make himself have a good time wherever he is. You have to make yourself happy. Big Spring has its pros and its cons. The one thing I don't like about it is that every time I make a fool of myself, every women's bridge club and teachers' lounge in town seems to find out about it. Nevertheless, I'm a free spirit and I'm not going to change."

"Wow! I had some friends that I played football in college. We made a most serious $100 bet. They said I would not live to see 30. I have been lucky. There have been a few times that I have been lucky not to be dead or seriously injured due to my sometimes flamboyant nature. But, I function extremely well under intense circumstances. There will be a day, however or a night, that my luck will run out. A good woman does make me stay out of these circumstances. Problem is I might not meet her in time."

On the Dating Game: "I don't like the way the dating game is set up. Me, I usually wait until 6:30 or seven to call and ask for a date for that night. Most females don't appreciate this. Therefore, I find it much easier just to see what I bump into. But don't get me wrong, everytime I go to a club or a party, I'm not necessarily trying to hustle somebody. I think this type of thought questions the intelligence and desires of the girls there. I think girls should have as much right to call and ask for a date as guys. But unfortunately, that's not the way it is."

On How a Girl Lets a Guy Know She is Interested: "Drop by my house or call and invite me to come over."

On His Body: "I'm vain. I have a terrible, big fear in my life of becoming overweight. Let me explain myself. I've always worked extremely hard on my body in order to play football, through high school and college. But now I do in order to keep my body beautiful. I don't mean that in a conceited fashion. It's just that I am very critical of myself because I don't have a healthy physique, it affects my state of mind. A healthy body, a healthy mind, y'know. I'm a paradox. I'm a health freak, to a certain extent yet at the same time I have been known to live too dangerously."

On Being a Sportswriter: "Now you're going to get me in trouble. No comment."

Need for action

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — This is the day when politicians traditionally pay flowery tribute to the dignity of labor. But a more practical expression of their avowed support for honest toil would be the enactment of fairer and more uniform compensation laws for working men and women who suffer job-related injuries or illnesses.

The hodgepodge of state workmen's compensation laws is clearly inadequate, yet legislatures continue to put reform at the bottom of their priority lists. Nowhere is the failure of the compensation laws more shocking than in the area of occupational disease.

THE NEED FOR ACTION is shown by some alarming statistics compiled by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health. An estimated 390,000 workers are taken sick each year from exposure to toxic chemicals, dust, fumes, radiation and other occupational hazards. More than 100,000 deaths a year are caused by job-related diseases.

Some public health officials, alarmed at the increase in workers' cancer, brown lung, black lung and asbestosis, warn that the nation is in the grip of an occupational disease epidemic.

Despite this staggering toll of deaths and illnesses, no states have compensation laws that deal adequately with the problem. A Labor Department analysis shows that state agencies award benefits to a total of only 30,000 workers seeking occupational disease compensation — a tiny fraction of the estimated victims.

Even in the relatively few cases where benefits are granted, they often amount to a mere pittance. Examples abound. But a particularly glaring case of inadequacy — and of the politicians' indifference to it — is found in New Jersey, which is ranked by the National Cancer Institute as the state with the highest cancer mortality rate in the nation.

There is a group of about 2,700 New Jersey men and women who have been locked into benefits of $45 a week or less. Totally disabled, they had the added misfortune of having suffered their disabilities before 1967, when the state legislature finally established cost-of-living increases for workmen's compensation recipients. Some of the excluded recipients draw as little as $5 a week.

Ted Kowalski, a former asbestos worker for Johns-Manville Corp., is a representative for the group, most of whom also worked for the company. Kowalski's personal tragedy is a horror story of frustration and quiet desperation.

Kowalski, now 50 years old, went to work at the Manville, N.J., plant in 1947, when he was 18. Twenty years later he had to quit work, his health ruined at the age of 38.

He has undergone operations for work-related injuries, among them a hernia and a torn knee cartilage and a serious head injury when struck by a pane of glass that fell 40 feet. But Kowalski's main disability is asbestosis — a scarring of the lung tissue caused by breathing asbestos fibers. Five years ago he had a heart attack that may be related to his lung condition.

RECALLING THE ASBESTOS dust in the factory, Kowalski told our reporter Paul Sweeney: "We couldn't even see our co-workers, it was so bad. There were exhausts and dust collectors, but they would just jam up. It was just like a cloud of smoke with all this asbestos flying around."

"We'd clean the dust collectors where the asbestos would be drawn in from the machines. We tried to protect ourselves and wrapped canvas around our faces and noses because there was no air and no ventilation."

Kowalski said the company doctors took chest X-rays, but never told him he had any problems. Finally, he went to a private physician. "He found something wrong with my heart," Kowalski said. "Then he checked my lungs and told my wife I'd never be able to work again."

Today, 12 years after he had to quit his job, Kowalski often needs the help of an oxygen tank to breathe. His disability payment is $45 a week, scarcely enough to pay his medical bills, let alone the two mortgages on his house.

Dear Abby

Abstinence Makes Heart Grow Fonder?

DEAR ABBY: I don't have a problem, but my friend suggested I write for a consultation on what she thinks is a most unusual situation. She couldn't believe it when I told her that my husband and I have been happily married for nine years and have never consummated our marriage.

I am a physician who prefers to practice in the United States, and my husband is a career officer in a foreign military service, based abroad, 3,000 miles away. We are both in our 30s. We see each other only three times a year for a week at a time. We know how little time we would have together, but married anyway because we truly love each other.

We express our love by hugging and kissing, but always stop short of completing the act of love because we agree it's easier to live in total abstinence than open ourselves up to insufferable frustrations during our long separations.

We are a well-adjusted, heterosexual couple without organic dysfunctions or psychological hang-ups. We are living proof that a sexless marriage can be fulfilling. Some may think we're weird. Perhaps you do.

My friend insisted that I get a prescription from Dear Abby. However, I don't think there's anything wrong that needs fixing. What is your opinion?

DOING FINE WITHOUT

DEAR DOING FINE: Yours is a most unusual case, doctor. But if you and your husband are totally fulfilled in a sexless marriage, I agree—there's nothing that needs fixing. I can only wish you continued abstinence, because if you ever find out what you've been missing, you may kill yourself.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are fit to be tied! Our son is also angry. My sister says we are making something out of nothing. Here is the situation:

My sister's daughter will be married soon. It will be a semi-large affair. Our older son (30) and his wife received an invitation to attend the wedding.

Our youngest son (26) is unmarried and presently living with us. He did not receive a separate invitation. Instead, my husband and I received an invitation addressed to MR. AND MRS. JOHN SMITH AND SON.

My son also feels that he should be allowed to bring a date. Who is right and who is wrong?

J.S.

DEAR J.S.: As an adult, your son should have been sent a separate invitation. However, unless he has a steady girlfriend, he should not dig up a "date" for the occasion.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a suggestion for CAN'T SLEEP, whose conscience is bothering her over the neglect of her elderly mother, recently deceased.

Go to the nearest nursing home and "adopt" a "mother." Do for her what you wish you had done for your own mother. What enormous pleasure a drive in the country, a small gift, or even a few fresh flowers would mean to an elderly "forgotten-by-family" resident in a nursing home. If you can't take her out, you can go and visit with her and let her reminisce awhile. You will gain a lot. I know. I've tried it and it works. Sign me...

CAN SLEEP IN MINNEAPOLIS

CONFIDENTIAL TO JIM IN NAPLES, FLA.: I appreciate your generous letter, but I did not save your life. I simply threw you a rope—and you caught it.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

This can't be love

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I have been dating a certain guy for quite some time and I really love him. He says that he loves me and wants to marry me, but let me tell you about him.

1. He says that he wants me to meet his family but I never have.
2. I keep getting letters from various girls stating that he loves them.
3. He calls and says he will be right over but he never shows up.
4. My mom had to pick him up at 3 a.m. because he was drunk and had nowhere to go.

He has improved his habits slightly since I've been seeing him and there is always the chance he will improve.

I'm 18 and he is 23. Do you think he loves me? — Kay, London, Ontario, Canada

Kay: No, I don't, and besides, you deserve much better than this louse. Tell him to "shove off."

Dr. Wallace: I'm a physically mature 15-year-old girl. About two years ago my father started touching my body. When I told my sister what happened, she wouldn't believe me. Not too long ago he approached me and told me not to be ashamed to come to him for sex. I'm afraid to be alone with him. He has ruined my entire attitude toward boys.

Now he is making excuses to get into our bedroom while I'm taking my bath. I believe in God and I know my dad isn't supposed to be doing these things, but I'm afraid and don't know what to do. Please help. — Nameless, Rock Island, Ill.

Nameless: Your dad is ill and needs treatment now. First, tell Mother what is happening. If for any reason she doesn't act immediately, talk to a clergyman and tell him everything.

Dr. Wallace: I've got a problem. I'm a girl but when I graduate from school I want to be a police officer. Whenever I mention this, my friends laugh at me and I get discouraged and don't know what to say.

I know an officer's work is hard, but I also know the job is one of honesty, loyalty and friendship. Can you help me? — Carol, Fullerton, Calif.

Carol: The best thing I can tell you is that local police departments are hiring women police officers.

Keep your goal and don't worry about your friends. Remember, they laughed at the Wright brothers, not to mention Christopher Columbus.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TwEEN 12 AND 20, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Iranian citizens flexing

Rebel stronghold weakens under heavy air rocketing

MAHABAD, Iran (AP) — An Iranian armored column rumbled into the northern outskirts of this Kurdish rebel stronghold today under cover of fierce air force rocketing, while a second government force fought the insurgents south of the city, witnesses said. Casualty figures were unavailable.

Rebel troops, still in control of the city, began withdrawing heavy guns into the hills surrounding Mahabad while hundreds of civilians carrying their belongings streamed out of the city.

Iran's oil chief warned in Tehran, meanwhile, the government might seek to revise contracts for selling crude oil to the United States if U.S. congressmen continue criticizing the U.S. sale of kerosene and heating oil to Iran.

Rebels said the army column that moved in from the north had taken control of the suburb of Mudkan with a force that included 14 tanks, a half-dozen armored personnel carriers and a large number of jeeps and trucks.

However, Kurdish rebels still swarmed in and around Mahabad and the volume of gunfire indicated they were still resisting. A second government force moved towards the city about 12 miles to the south, according to rebel reports trickling into Mahabad.

Kurdish soldiers said 100 rebel reinforcements had been sent to the south and that they had signed their wills and said prayers for their deaths before leaving.

"We are willing and ready to defend Mahabad to the last man," said Karimi Hesami, a member of the central committee of the outlawed Kurdish Democratic Party.

On Sunday, the rebels drove back an armored column of 400 troops advancing on Mahabad, but Radio Tehran reported that government forces took control of two towns in the Mahabad area.

Witnesses said the government column driven back included light tanks, armored personnel carriers and artillery. They said the Kurds opened up from mountain positions on each side of the road, pinning the troops down for about eight hours before they retreated to the army staging base at Miandoab, about 25 miles northeast of Mahabad.

"We had to come back because the Kurds were hitting us very hard and the going got really rough," said one of the soldiers.

Military sources said five troops were wounded. There was no word of rebel casualties.

But an army spokesman quoted by Radio Tehran said the army "victoriously" entered the town of Piranshahr, 12 miles from Mahabad, after pounding the city with artillery. One soldier was killed, several wounded and "heavy casualties were inflicted on the rebels," the broadcast said. The government also said it "eliminated all resistance" in Bukan, 30 miles southeast of Mahabad.

For the past week, the government had been ferrying men and supplies to the staging area for a march on the rebel stronghold, where an estimated 20,000 Kurds have been preparing for the "battle of their destiny."

The 4 million Kurds in northwest Iran are the country's biggest ethnic minority and are demanding autonomous home rule. Iran's Islamic strongman, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, has vowed to crush their rebellion, fearing that autonomy would be the prelude to the independence of the Kurds of Iran, Iraq, Turkey and the Soviet Union have sought for centuries and that a Kurdish victory would inspire other ethnic minorities in southern and northeastern Iran.

After eight hours of swimming

Boy dies in father's arms

BRIGANTINE, N.J. (AP) — An 11-year-old boy died in his father's arms just 25 yards from land after trying for eight hours in rough seas to swim ashore after a fishing boat motor failed, police say.

Coast Guard and New Jersey Marine Police officials said the father told them the boy died in the early Sunday morning darkness just off Little Beach Island, an uninhabited marsh seven miles northeast of Atlantic City.

A Coast Guard patrol boat rescued the father and a 14-year-old son shortly after dawn, said Marine Police Patrolman Thomas McNamee.

Authorities, who withheld the identities, said the 39-year-old father, of Philadelphia, and two of his three sons went fishing on a 21-foot outboard boat Saturday.

The motor soon broke down and could not be restarted. The three drifted with the currents, finally landing at Little Beach Island, between Brigantine and Long Beach Island, McNamee said.

After nightfall, the three hiked toward Brigantine and, believing the channel between the two islands to be only about 35 feet wide, tried to swim toward the lights of this city, authorities said.

The channel is about a quarter-mile wide and its strong current began to sweep them out to sea. Wearing lifejackets, they struggled for eight hours.

The youngest boy fell asleep during the swim and stopped breathing several times. His father revived him each time with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation in the water, authorities said.

A Coast Guard and Marine Police search, prompted by a call from the family's 17-year-old son on shore, found the father and sons on the island shortly after daybreak.

The two survivors refused medical attention and returned to Philadelphia on Sunday.

McNamee said an autopsy will be conducted. Indications are the boy may have died from exposure, he said.

Carter's 'old-fashioned' approach

Politics mixed with festivity

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — After winding up his hometown vacation playing softball with local prisoners, President Carter is returning to the White House for a old-fashioned Labor Day picnic and some old-fashioned politicking.

Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, invited about 1,000 labor leaders and rank and file to an evening picnic featuring hot dogs, hamburgers, relay races, banjo playing and volleyball on the south lawn of the White House. Some aren't coming for the festivity, which is being viewed as an attempt to repair the administration's strained relations with some parts of the labor movement.

One White House source, who did not wish to be identified, described those relations as "almost nil," adding, "They don't feel they have anyone at the White House they can deal with."

Though a handful of union presidents have endorsed Carter's re-election bid, several labor leaders, including AFL-CIO president George Meany, have strongly disagreed with the administration on economic and other issues.

It was uncertain whether Meany, who is recuperating from a hip ailment, would attend. But a spokesman for the International Association of Machinists said the president of that union, outspoken Carter critic William H. Winpisinger, would not be present.

Originally, the event was intended as a sort of tribute to women, with the president planning to speak about the influx of women into the labor market, it was learned. That apparently was the idea of Sarah Weddington, Carter's adviser on women's affairs.

However, the idea was abandoned for fear that emphasizing women would rattle Hispanics and blacks. A compromise was negotiated between Ms. Weddington and Landon Butler, the White House labor liaison, in which the president would devote a portion of his remarks to women.

Advance planning key to coping with illnesses

By The Associated Press

A sudden illness can cripple the budget, particularly for retired people on fixed incomes, and advance planning is a key to cushioning the shock of medical bills.

More than 95 percent of all Americans over 65 are protected by Medicare, the national health insurance program for the elderly, but there are gaps in the coverage.

A booklet prepared by the American Association of Retired Persons and the National Retired Teachers Association explores the gaps and looks at ways for individuals to fill them. The 24-page guide, "Medicare and Health Insurance for Older People," is available, at no charge, from NRTA-AARP, Dept. M-H, P.O. Box 2400, Long Beach, Calif., 90801.

Medicare is a two-part program. Part A covers hospital benefits; there is no charge for most people. Part B is optional medical insurance; it costs $8.70 a month.

To enroll in Medicare, visit your Social Security office at least three months before your 65th birthday. Bring proof of age. If you cannot go in person, call the nearest office and arrange to apply by mail. Unless you specify otherwise, you will automatically be enrolled in Part B as well as in Part A. The premiums will be deducted from your monthly Social Security check.

When you are confined to a hospital, Part A of the Medicare package will cover semiprivate room and board, operating and recovery room, intensive care unit, general nursing service, lab tests, X-rays and other radiology services, drugs provided by the hospital, medical supplies, rehabilitation services and some equipment like wheelchairs. Most of these services also are covered when you receive treatment in a skilled-nursing facility.

Part B of the Medicare program — the part that helps pay doctors' bills — covers medical and surgical treatments, diagnostic tests and procedures, drugs administered by professionals, most medical supplies, physical and speech therapy and, where necessary, ambulance services.

Medicare does not pay all the bills — even for covered items. According to the retirees' groups, the latest available statistics show that Medicare pays an average of about 44 percent of the total health care costs of beneficiaries. Unless you supplement your Medicare coverage with a private health insurance policy of some type, you could wind up paying the remaining 56 percent.

Check your existing policy before you turn 65. Are you covered by a job-related group policy that can be continued after you retire? Is your individual policy renewable and what benefits will it provide?

Your goal should not be total coverage; it is virtually impossible to get and would cost so much that it wouldn't be worth it. Plan your coverage instead with an eye toward minimizing the chances of your getting caught with huge bills for an extended illness.

Higher prices offset declining supplies

AUSTIN — Higher production of pork, lamb and mutton helped to offset declining beef supplies during July, even though Texas slaughter plants recorded a 13-percent decline in total red meat output, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brownsaid today.

"Nationwide, commercial red meat production was up 3 percent in July," Brown noted. "However, a net decrease in meat production was recorded in Texas during the month because we are the top beef producing state, and sharp declines in cattle slaughter are more strongly reflected here."

Brown pointed out that increased production of pork and poultry will be a major factor in keeping retail meat prices below their previous levels for the rest of 1979.

During July, Texas commercial slaughter facilities produced 280 million pounds of red meat, said Brown. This was 13 percent less than a year ago, and was down 5 percent from the previous month. "So far this year, Texas red meat production is running 7 percent below 1978, although this does not include poultry, which has been increasing," he added.

Thus far this year, U.S. red meat production totals 21.1 billion pounds, down 4 percent from the same period a year ago.

Cattle slaughtered during July in Texas numbered 412,300 head, down 102,700 head from a year ago. However, average weight was up 20 pounds per animal, and helped ease the dropoff in beef production. Veal production (from calves) has shown a 47-percent dropoff over the first seven months of this year, since declining cattle herds have made these younger animals increasingly valuable for breeding purposes.

July hog slaughter, at 103,200 head, topped July 1978 by over 28,000 head, and average live weight was up 9 pounds. So far this year, Texas pork production is up 10 percent from a year ago. Total sheep and lamb kill was up substantially at 69,800 head, while average live weight also increased 5 pounds.

Champs open against Pats

FOXBORO, MASS. (AP) — Quarterback Terry Bradshaw and his Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers meet the bowl-minded New England Patriots tonight in an opening game showdown between two National Football League powers.

Bradshaw, who passed for 28 touchdowns last season and then set Super Bowl records by tossing for four TDs and 318 yards, is expected to test New England's secondary early in the nationally televised game at Schaefer Stadium.

A crowd of 61,297 is expected for the 9 p.m. kickoff. The sellout assured regional television coverage, including the Boston area.

The Steelers, who were 14-2 last season before winning three playoff games and capturing a third Super Bowl championship in five years, invade New England with an eight-game winning streak.

They were 3-1 in pre-season exhibition games, but Coach Chuck Noll was not too happy with the running game. Franco Harris, the fifth leading rusher in NFL history with 7,377 yards in just seven seasons, is ready to go.

However, veteran running mate Rocky Bleier has been plagued by a knee injury through the pre-season and may see only limited action.

The Patriots, the American Conference East champions with an 11-5 record, boast a tough defense against the run. That means Bradshaw can be expected to go to the air, trying to pick apart a veteran secondary that allowed 21 touchdowns by passing last year.

Beaten by Houston in the playoffs last New Year's Eve during a period of turbulence as Coach Chuck Fairbanks was defecting to the University of Colorado, the Patriots are keyed up for the Steelers.

Most New England players still are smarting from the loss to Houston, which cost them a shot at Pittsburgh for the AFC title.

The Patriots figure to go out early and test their awesome running game against Mean Joe Greene, L.C. Greenwood, Jack Ham, Jack Lambert and company early.

Quarterback Steve Grogan, who complements passing with his halfback-style running, is healthy after being forced to the sidelines against Houston and then undergoing knee surgery.

Grogan ran for 539 yards last season while directing an offense that led the NFL with 5,965 in total yards. When not passing, or running, he hands off to three 500-yard plus gainers — Sam Cunningham (768), Horace Ivory (693) and Andy Johnson (675).

The Patriots also are determined to provide new head Coach Ron Erhardt a victory. Erhardt, promoted from offensive coordinator under Fairbanks, will make his NFL debut as a head coach with the title he last held seven years ago at North Dakota State.

Septien comes through, Cowboys win 15th opener

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys' string of triumphs in National Football League openers is intact at 15 — thanks to the gifted toe and steel nerves of Rafael Septien.

Septien, dispelling doubt from his mind, booted a field goal with 1:16 left and clamped the lid on a wild fourth quarter by pinning a 22-21 defeat Sunday on the St. Louis Cardinals.

Afterward, a composed Septien downplayed the feat amid the din in Dallas dressings room. "If you're thinking negatively, you're going to miss," he said.

"The hold was good. Everything worked out," he continued in reference to his 27-yard kick. "Only my timing was off. We had hurried onto the field. I looked up, and I saw the ball being snapped. But it went through."

Septien, in capitalizing on his chance, climaxed a closing period marked also by rookie Ron Springs' left-handed halfback option touchdown pass for the Cowboys and a 76-yard gallop to the end zone by rookie Otis Anderson of St. Louis.

Jim Hart's 18-yard aerial to Pat Tilley lifted the Cardinals to an abbreviated lead of 14-13 late in the third quarter. But, as it turned out, the touchdown only ignited Dallas.

Roger Staubach first clicked off pass completions of 12 and 21 yards to Doug Cosbie and Drew Pearson to set up a 30-yard pass to Tony Hill from Springs, a former Ohio State back playing for ailing Tony Dorsett.

Then, after Anderson bolted over the left side to establish a 21-19 St. Louis edge, a 47-yard kickoff return by rookie free agent Wade Manning refueled the Cowboys.

Robert Newhouse slammed 9 and 5 yards on runs after Staubach shot a 7-yard pass to Springs.

Ranked teams clash

The preliminaries are over and the stage is set for the stars of the college football season to swing into action.

With little fanfare, 21 of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Division I-A teams — none of them in The Associated Press Top Twenty — got the season under way Saturday. Next weekend, the teams with numbers before their names take over.

No. 1-ranked Southern California, the pre-season choice to capture the national championship, opens at Texas Tech while runnerup Alabama, the defending national champion, travels to Georgia Tech to kick off ABC's 1979 television package.

Oklahoma, Texas, Penn State, Nebraska and Notre Dame the pre-season 3-4-5-8-9 teams, are idle while sixth-ranked Purdue entertains Wisconsin, No. 7 Michigan hosts Northwestern and No. 10 Michigan State is at home against Illinois.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Georgia, No. 17 Pitt and No. 20 Arkansas aren't scheduled but No. 12 Missouri entertains San Diego State, No. 13 Stanford is at Tulane, No. 14 Texas A&M meets Brigham Young in Houston, Wyoming is at No. 15 Washington, No. 16 Houston at UCLA, California at No. 18 Arizona State and Southern Mississippi at No. 19 Florida State.

On the small-scale opening weekend the spotlight belonged to Hubert Oliver, who rushed for 196 yards on 25 carries as Arizona whipped Colorado State 33-17. Richard Hersey added 120 yards on 15 rushes while Jim Krohn ran for two touchdowns and passed to Oliver for one.

NFL Action Saints gaining

This will come as no great consolation to New Orleans Saints fans today, but the fact is that their National Football League team is gaining on the Atlanta Falcons.

After suffering heart-breaking losses in the final seconds of both 1978 meetings with the Falcons, the Saints forced Atlanta into overtime Sunday — and then suffered another heart-breaking loss.

This time it was 40-34 in a shootout decided when rookie kicker Russell Erxleben tried to salvage a wild snap on a punt with a desperation pass that was intercepted by James Mayberry and returned 6 yards for the deciding touchdown.

Cleveland's Don Cockroft forced another overtime by kicking a 35-yard field goal with four seconds left in regulation time and then lifted the Browns to a 25-22 victory over the Jets with another field goal, this one from 27 yards with 15 seconds left in the extra period.

Elsewhere, Tommy Kramer awoke Minnesota's slumbering offense by throwing four touchdown passes to Ahmad Rashad, the last one a controversial 25-yarder with 17 seconds to play in the Vikings' 28-22 decision over San Francisco.

In other games it was Houston 29, Washington 27; Miami 9, Buffalo 7; Philadelphia 23, New York Giants 17; Chicago 6, Green Bay 3; Dallas 22, St. Louis 21; Denver 10, Cincinnati 0; Kansas City 14, Baltimore 0; Oakland 24, Los Angeles 17; and San Diego 33, Seattle 16.

In Saturday night's game, Tampa Bay swamped Detroit 31-16.

Pittsburgh's defending Super Bowl champions play at New England tonight, completing the first week's games.

Browns 25, Jets 22

Cockroft's third field goal of the game forced the Jets into overtime and then his fourth won it for the Browns. Ironically, both he and New York kicker Pat Leahy, who had three field goals, missed extra points following touchdowns.

Vikings 28, 49ers 22

Kramer, replacing retired Fran Tarkenton, fired TD passes of 52, 32, 8 and 25 yards to Rashad. It appeared for a moment at least that Rashad had fumbled the last one before reaching the end zone but the officials ruled that he had already scored before losing the ball.

Dolphins 9, Bills 7

Larry Csonka, returning to the Dolphins after four years, scored Miami's lone touchdown and gained the important yards in the winning drive, finishing with 87 yards for the game. Tom Dempsey had a chance to win it for Buffalo, but missed a 34-yard field goal try as time ran out.

Eagles 23, Giants 17

Philadelphia crammed all of its scoring in the second period with Ron Jaworski rifling two TD passes to Harold Carmichael. The catches extended Carmichael's streak of at least one catch per game to 97, second on the all-time NFL list.

The Giants staged a second half rally to move within a TD, but fell short when the Eagle defense stopped them, first at the 26 and then at the 18 in the game's final seven minutes.

Bears 6, Packers 3

Bob Thomas kicked field goals of 25 and 19 yards, both in the second quarter, and Chicago made them stand up for the victory over Green Bay. Chester Marcol accounted for the lone Packer points with a 28-yard field goal.

Walter Payton gained 125 yards in 36 carries for the Bears.

Campbell even stumbles well

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earl Campbell said he was tired. Then, again, he admitted he's tired after a Houston Oilers game, even when it's not hot and humid.

"I'm always tired, that's the way I am," said Campbell, who scored two touchdowns Sunday as the Oilers scored a come-from-behind 29-27 victory over the Washington Redskins in a National Football League opener.

Campbell, the NFL's leading rusher as a rookie in 1978, continued where he left off last winter by gaining 166 yards on 32 carries, with two touchdowns, on the new-look Washington defense, which included two starting linebackers and a free safety who hadn't played at the position previously in a NFL game.

Still, on what many consider a crucial play, Campbell said, "It was the best slip I've ever had."

With Houston behind 27-22, Washington's John Riggins fumbled with a little more than 6 minutes remaining in the game. Six plays later, the Oilers were on the Redskins 8.

Campbell mistakenly left the field. He was hustled back in time to attempt the 4th and 1 but stumbled momentarily, freezing the defense, and then bolted

Expos singin' in the rain

The Montreal Expos were leading the Cincinnati Reds 10-0 after two innings and were worried.

Not about the Reds. The Expos, having scored six runs in the first inning and four in the second, were looking anxiously up at the threatening skies over Olympic Stadium.

"We were kind of concerned about the possibility of rain catching up with us," winning pitcher Steve Rogers said Sunday after he had coasted to a 13-1 victory and limited Cincinnati to four hits.

"We were sort of in a hurry situation with that lead," Rogers explained.

Montreal's hurrying batters apparently didn't intend to wait around for any walks, and they didn't get a single one. Their enthusiastic swinging resulted in 21 hits, nine in the first inning, tying a club record.

The victory gave the Expos a sweep of the three-game series, and kept second-place Montreal 3 1/2 games behind the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East. The Pirates beat the San Francisco Giants 5-3.

The Reds lost an opportunity to regain the lead in the NL West. The Houston Astros remained half a game in front despite losing 5-4 to the New York Mets.

In other NL games, Philadelphia edged Atlanta 2-1 in 10 innings, St. Louis beat San Diego 2-1, and Los Angeles rallied for a 6-2 victory over Chicago.

Pirates 5, Giants 3

Two doubles by Steve Nicosia keyed Pittsburgh's offense. One drove in two runs and the second led to another score. John Candelaria, 13-8, struck out 10 and walked only one. The Pirates victory, their 17th in 22 games, gave them a 6-0 season sweep in Candlestick Park, the first team to do that in San Francisco since the Giants moved west in 1958.

U. S. -Canadian woes escalating

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — The tuna war between the United States and Canada has escalated, with Canadian officials selling the catch from seized U.S. fishing boats and U.S. Customs officers enforcing an embargo on Canadian tuna. Galks aimed at resolving the week-old dispute aren't scheduled to resume until Tuesday, said Charles Friend, a spokesman for Canadian Fisheries Minister James McGrath. Friend said Sunday that about 2.5 tons of the fish from two vessels had been seized at Port Alberni and sold to processors, with the proceeds to be held "pending the outcome of whatever charges."

The two boats from which the fish were taken, the Proud Mary of San Diego, Calif., and the Santa Innes of Aberdeen, Wash., had been headed to Victoria but put in at the Vancouver Island town after a crew member reported sick Saturday.

Nine other vessels heading for Vancouver were delayed by gusting winds and high seas. Friend said the catches from those boats also will be sold to processors.

In retaliation for the seizures, the U.S. Customs Service began enforcing an embargo of Canadian tuna and tuna products on Saturday.

The 11 vessels were seized last week for entering Canada's 200-mile fishing zone while chasing a run of albacore tuna. The United States recognizes only a 12-mile zone for migratory fish, such as albacore.

A spokesman for the U.S. consulate said the skippers of the Proud Mary and Santa Innes would appear in court Tuesday in Vancouver with the skippers of the other seized boats.

Last Tuesday the captains of the first eight U.S. boats to be seized in the dispute were allowed to leave with their catches after each posted a $5,000 bond in Victoria. Further court proceedings were set for February 1980.

Jewelry heist succeeds

CHICAGO (AP) — Thieves broke into a downtown building over the weekend and stole more than $1 million in jewelry and gems from two wholesale jewelers, police said.

The merchandise was taken from the two businesses sometime between Saturday evening and Sunday morning, police said.

Sarah Jesteadt, owner of Casmira Gems, said burglars stole an estimated $1 million in gold settings from her store. About $70,000 in stones was taken from Melbros Jewelry Co., located in the same building, police said.

Mrs. Jesteadt said burglars broke into an adjacent sixth-floor suite and then knocked a hole in the plaster wall to enter her workshop. The shop is shared by the two businesses.

"As far as the gold inventory," Mrs. Jesteadt said, "let's put it this way, they put a heck of a dent in it."

Among the gems stolen from the Melbros firm were sapphires, ies and emeralds. She said the gems were not in the company safe because they were being catalogued for inventory.

Police said they recovered $38,000 worth of gold mountings that apparently were dropped by the thieves in the adjacent office.

Summit of non-aligned nations Fidel Castro's personal triumph

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — The Non-Aligned Movement's sixth summit meeting opens today with its growing membership engaged in a tug-of-war over what the movement's ideology and priorities should be.

Cuban President Fidel Castro was to deliver the inaugural address to the kings, presidents, prime ministers and other leaders from more than 100 countries at the $33-million Palace of Congresses he built for the meeting.

For Castro, the summit represents a personal triumph. Invaded, quarantined and embargoed in the 1960s, Cuba is now host to the largest summit meeting ever convened. More than 60 chiefs of state or heads of government were scheduled to attend.

Nations from Afghanistan to Zambia, some rich but most poor, will try to reconcile their diverse interests on a broad array of economic and political issues during five days of give and take.

Their ambassadors and foreign ministers, who have been holding preparatory meetings here since last Tuesday, agree that a consensus declaration won't be easy to achieve.

The movement, which held its first summit in Yugoslavia 18 years ago with only 26 members, brings together conservative military regimes, Marxist-Leninist governments like the host country, oil-rich Arab countries, fledgling min-states in the Caribbean, economic cripples from Africa, liberation movements from southern Africa and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

As the host, Cuba has dominated the preparations. It has circulated a draft declaration which some interpret as an attempt to shift the movement from an independent position into open support of Soviet foreign policy.

The Cuban resolution accuses United States of "imperialism" around the world, supporting "Zionist aggression" in the Middle East, interfering in the liberation struggles of southern Africa and aggravating tensions in Korea.

The Cuban draft also says the non-aligned countries should continue to "make every effort to cooperate with other peace and progressive forces of the world, successfully strengthening their ability to wage a determined battle against the forces of imperialism."

The Cubans said this and similar statements should not be interpreted as an attempt to align the movement with the Soviet Union. But veterans of non-aligned conferences say "peace and progress-loving forces" in the non-aligned as well as the communist lexicon refer to the Soviet Union and its allies.
