

Four Puerto Ricans granted clemency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen who dived for cover from Puerto Ricans' blazing gunfire in the House of Representatives 25 years ago say they don't object to President Carter's freeing the assailants.

"I'm surprised they kept them in that long," said Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C., who left his seat just before a bullet tore through it during the attack.

The White House announced Thursday that Carter is granting clemency to the three surviving Puerto Rican nationalists who shot up the House in 1954, and a fourth convicted of taking part in an assassination attempt on President Harry S. Truman in 1950.

All have been imprisoned for at least 25 years and are expected to be released Monday, officials said.

Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti, who recommended the release, said the action should not be mistaken for "evidence of leniency toward terrorists. On the contrary, their long incarceration demonstrates severe punishment for any terrorist crimes."

The White House described the release as being "a significant humanitarian gesture and would be viewed as such by much of the international community."

The three involved in the House attack who are being released are: Lolita Lebron, 59; Rafael Concel Miranda, 49; and Irving Flores Rodriguez, 54. The fourth involved, Andres Figueroa Cordero, was freed by Carter in 1977 because he had cancer. He later died in Puerto Rico.

Carter also granted clemency to Oscar Collazo, 67, convicted in the Truman assassination attempt at the Blair House. A Puerto Rican nationalist who tried to storm Truman's temporary residence with Cordero was killed in the assault, as was a White House guard.

After the White House announcement, Rep. Benjamin Gilman, D-N.Y., raised the possibility that three U.S. residents and a Puerto Rican fisherman jailed in Cuba might be freed in return.

He said Cuban President Fidel Castro had told a visiting congressional delegation in January that "as a reciprocal gesture of good will and humanitarianism," he would free the four if the Puerto Ricans were released.

The State Department said early today it had no indication whether the prisoners referred to by Gilman were being freed.

Gilman called on Castro Thursday to release the prisoners "in Cuba as he promised he would."

A Justice Department source, who asked not to be named, denied that the release was linked to a possible freeing of the jailed Americans.

The four who could be affected by Carter's action have been jailed in Cuba since the mid-1960s. They are: Lawrence Lunt, 53, of Saratoga, Wyo.; Juan Tur, 62, of Tampa, Fla.; Everett Jackson, of Los Angeles; and Claudio Morales, of Puerto Rico.

"It's in the prerogative of the president," said House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Carter's decision.

"I think they've been punished enough," said Rep. Tom Steed, D-Okla.

Rhodes and Steed, two of the congressmen who witnessed the House attack, recalled it vividly.

Five congressmen were hit by bullets fired during the attack at 2:30 p.m., March 1, 1954. No one was killed. None of the wounded congressmen is still in the House.

The House floor was crowded with some 200 members because the shooting came during a quorum call on a bill to extend the Mexican labor program.

A woman unfurled a flag in the northwest gallery, shouting, "Free Puerto Rico," and three men blazed away with pistols, getting 25 to 30 shots.

"It was a scene of carnage," Rhodes said. "I assumed the shots were blanks. But then one of them ricocheted right over my head. I hit the floor — real hard."

"It was over in a minute. Al Bentley, (R-Mich.), was lying prone on the floor down in the well... Dr. Judd (Rep. Walter Judd, R-Minn.) was treating him. He looked gray and I wondered if he was alive. Ben Jensen (R-Iowa) got one in the back. Kenneth Roberts (D-Ala.) had one in the leg." The other two hit were former Reps. Clifford Davis, D-Tenn., and George H. Fallon, D-Md.

Vital to rehabilitation of alcoholics

Grant keeps de-tox center going

By EILEEN McGUIRE

Unless something happens very soon, Big Spring's De-Tox Center will be a thing of the past.

The De-Tox Center begins its fiscal year Oct. 1 without support from its creator, the City of Big Spring.

The City, undergoing financial difficulties itself, has announced that it must withdraw its $50,000 maximum annual commitment to the center. But the Texas Commission on Alcoholism, (TCA), who also contributes to its support, wants to see it remain open.

Cope Routh of Odessa, TCA coordinator for a 54-county area which includes Howard County, was in Big Spring Tuesday to present a one-time $3,000 grant to the Halfway House which is recovering from financial difficulties that threatened its existence earlier this summer.

Routh expressed concern for the De-Tox Center which he said is closely related to the Halfway House. TCA has contributed more than $2,000 in grants to the Big Spring community for the operation of the De-Tox Center since its creation six years ago.

During this fiscal year, $15,000 has been contributed to the center's support by TCA. TCA's annual grant to the De-Tox Center runs out June 30, 1980. The grant will be renewed at that time if the De-Tox Center is still operating. If it ceases to exist prior to that deadline, support will be withdrawn immediately.

Routh wants to see it continue. He recalled why and how the De-Tox program in Big Spring began.

"You take an intoxicated person. He ends up in jail. The next morning he stumbles into court and is fined $50 to $100. In Texas, the city can't tell a prisoner that he has to go to jail. If he can't pay his fine, he'll generally serve out his fine in one to two weeks."

"When he gets out, he goes back out on the street. No one really cares. He goes back to the bottle and back into jail."

When Routh describes the jail to bottle and back to jail cycle of an alcoholic, there is no exaggeration. He's speaking from experience.

ONE UP, ONE DOWN — Cope Routh, area coordinator for the Texas Commission on Alcoholism (TCA), left, presents a one-time $3,000 grant to John Bennett, president of the Halfway House Board of Directors. Thanks to grants from Howard County, the City of Big Spring and TCA, the Halfway House is nearly out of financial danger. Now, it's the Big Spring De-Tox Center that's going under.

"I was a newspaper man for 35 years. It all came to a halt eight years ago. I was committed to the state hospital here as an alcoholic. I spent three months there by order of the county judge. The last month was by voluntary commitment."

"I became involved with the problem of alcoholism thereafter and retired from the newspaper business."

Routh, who reported for both Midland and Odessa papers, at one time won a $500 award for a headline. "I drank it away," he said.

As a former city government reporter, Routh said "I can appreciate what the city is going through and they are to be commended for trying to function on their budget." He noted that other forms of government could benefit the taxpayers by following suit.

"Don Davis (city manager) said that the facility (De-Tox Center) will be available if another group thinks it can finance this thing," said Routh. And that's what Routh hopes will happen — that enough people or groups will take an interest in continuing the De-Tox program."

The city began the De-Tox program as a means of transforming the tax-supported alcoholic into a taxpayer.

"Up until six years ago, when the city or sheriff had a bad drunk case, he was placed in the Alcoholic Ward (of the Big Spring State Hospital). Along about '73, they changed the policy and would no longer take drunks."

"There's a danger to putting the drunk in jail. He might get sick — real sick. The city supported the creation of a De-Tox Center. Any prisoner who wanted to could go through the program. "The city is to be commended for its interest. It's still interested."

According to De-Tox program director Jackie Ginich, 35 to 50 alcoholics a month go through the Detoxification program.

"The De-Tox Center takes the general alcoholic and with a minimum of counseling, tries to motivate him to break his drinking pattern," Routh said.

There's a danger that the alcoholic will return to his former patterns unless the problems that resulted in the alcoholism aren't reversed. The De-Tox Center attempts to motivate the drunk to want to stop drinking. He's then steered to the Halfway House, which according to Routh, bridges the gap between the De-Tox Center and a return to the community.

Both programs, the De-Tox Center and the Halfway House, are voluntary. Both programs, together, have achieved a high success in recovering individuals from alcoholism.

William (Dub) Nelson, director of the Halfway House, relayed an example of one man who has gone from drunk to employed through the two programs. The man came to Nelson wanting help with his problem. He was drunk.

"I told him to go to the De-Tox Center to dry out and in four or five days to call me and I'd get him in the program here."

The man, who faced some substantial personal problems prior to his detoxification, including the loss of a loved one, is now a constructive, contributing, tax-paying individual. In a short time, the man was working at the Halfway House and paying taxes from his pay.

The difference that the De-Tox Center makes is in the treatment period. According to Routh, the alcoholic can spend four months in a state hospital or a night in jail and five days in the De-Tox center.

The Big Spring State Hospital, the Big Spring De-Tox Center and the Big Spring Halfway House are closely related in their functions.

"They were set up that way," according to Routh. One might function without the other, but the effectiveness of the total program will be sacrificed.

"The influence of the three programs here extend as far west as El Paso," Routh said. On monthly visits to different cities in Area III of (See Influence, page 2A, Col. 1)

That 'reasonable' charge

By WILLIAM STEIF

Medicare's medical insurance covers 80 percent of doctors' "reasonable" charges — after the first $60 a year, which you must pay.

That reasonable-charges provision is tricky. Here's why.

Reasonable charges are decided by Medicare carriers — insurance companies picked by the federal government to handle medical-insurance claims. The reasonable charges are supposed to be based on the customary or most-common fees charged in your area as determined by surveys of doctors and supplies.

Some doctors have agreed to abide by these reasonable charges.

Those doctors are paid directly by Medicare for services to you. You are only expected to pay the difference between the actual charge and what the carrier paid your doctor on behalf of the federal government.

But other doctors — more and more of them lately — have refused to do the paperwork to get their part of your fee. They have also refused to abide by the reasonable charges set by the carriers.

They instead bill you directly. Then you have to do the paperwork.

The carrier sends you 80 percent of what it thinks the reasonable charge should be. You are then expected to send the doctor the whole of his fee.

Result: Lots of people on Medicare receive doctors' bills far in excess of their area's reasonable charges. So, they seem to be stuck with those bills.

Example: A Washington surgeon recently billed Ellen $1,600 for nerve surgery in her back. She filled out the necessary Medicare forms. After some delay — during which the doctor kept worrying her with monthly bills — she received a check for $960 from her Medicare carrier.

With the check, the carrier sent a form telling her the reasonable charge for her operation was $1,200 and, therefore, she was receiving 80 percent of that amount. That seemed to mean Ellen would have to pay the doctor the remaining $640, which she didn't have since she was living on a small retirement income.

At that point, Ellen got her back up. She wrote the doctor a note pointing out the carrier's reasonable charge. She enclosed a check for $1,200 and asked him to forget the rest because the extra $400 was unreasonable by the standards of his cohorts in his area and because she didn't have it anyway.

In Ellen's case, the doctor "forgave" her, probably assuming he couldn't get blood out of a stone. But the lesson is clear. Find out what the doctor plans to charge before he starts working on you. Press him to keep his fee down. And don't be afraid to fuss if the charge looks unreasonable.

Influence of program extends to El Paso

TCA, Routh says that wherever he goes, he encounters individuals who know of the Big Spring programs because they've been in them. "The Commission (TCA) is interested in Big Spring," Routh said. Officially, the commission was organized by the state "to prevent broken homes and loss of life," Routh said. In 1973, the commission became state authorized to administer all funds in the alcoholic field. The Big Spring De-Tox Center was the first center to be operated by a municipality, he said. Most centers, including centers in Midland and Odessa, are operated by the community. In Abilene, the de-tox center is operated privately by church groups. San Angelo's is operated by the San Angelo Counsel on Alcoholism. In El Paso, the program is funded by a grant from Washington D.C. The current expenses of the Big Spring De-Tox Center amount to an operational cost of $70,000 a year. Part of the $65,000 that is not funded by TCA comes from donations and patients' fees. The center is located in an old fire station across from Airport School on Air Base Rd. "It's a first-class operation," said Dub. The cost could be trimmed down, according to Routh, depending on how fancy an operation is desired. "Hopefully some agency or some group will be able to take it over," Routh said. Unlike the Halfway House, the De-Tox Center cannot hope to become self-supporting. There is a lag between the alcoholic's start of treatment and the time when he's able to hold a job, contributing to the support of his treatment. Because alcoholic clients contributed to some of the Halfway House's financial problems earlier this year, TCA made the one-time $3,000 grant Tuesday. TCA also contributes some regular support to the Halfway House on behalf of individuals who are there due to alcoholism. According to Dub, the Halfway House is going to make it now, thanks to a $3,000 grant which was made by the county, another $3,000 grant which has been approved by the city, and the $3,000 grant from TCA. "We feel confident that the Halfway House will make it," said John H. Bennett, president of the Halfway House Board of Directors. "It's on its way up." "The business community has been patient and we do appreciate that. They could have closed us out any time in the last year. The Halfway House is trying to repay all of those debts. "The De-Tox Center is a closely related facility and we want to help it." Hopefully, the people coming out of Detox will move over to the Halfway House and help maintain it, making the individual a taxpayer instead of a tax-taker." Bennett reminds the community that there are clients at the Halfway House who can do a real service for the community. Often, the Halfway House client is not ready for full-time employment, but he or she is ready for temporary and part-time jobs. "We have people who can do small jobs for people in the community — one-time landscaping, temporary housekeeping, little things. We want people to think of us as an employment office. These people will work for minimum wage. It helps them and the agency. "Any handy work around the house or help in the home — we can fill some of those needs. The Halfway House is here for the community — let them utilize it." He noted that senior citizens might have odd jobs, like taking drapes down, that a Halfway House resident would eagerly do. Any money that Halfway House clients make on their jobs helps them gain confidence and also partially contributes to the support of the Halfway House. The jobs advance the client toward the day when he is self-supporting and it also helps to make the Halfway House self-supporting. The financial problems of the Halfway House are not yet over, but the time is fast approaching when they will be fast. Bennett and Dub feel confident that the Halfway House is nearly out of danger. Now, it is the De-Tox Center that is endangered.

"It's going to hurt," Nelson said about the possible dissolving of the De-Tox Center. "It'll hurt because there won't be a place to de-tox. It will hurt the ones that we're going to miss because they won't be motivated to begin a long-term program. "We've had a good success rate with the program. Our own records for the past three years show a 50 to 70 percent success rate with a good program. It was geared this way — the TCA, the De-Tox Center, and the Halfway House." Without a de-tox program, according to Nelson, the mass recovery rate for area alcoholics drops to 18 to 20 percent. The right environment — a motivating environment — is the whole key to their recovery," Nelson said. "If they don't get in someplace and get motivated, they're going to die."

Federal roadblocks may be harmful, TESCO veep says

The country faces a "terribly serious" energy problem that can be solved only if federal bureaucratic roadblocks are removed, Texas Electric Vice President R.T. Martin said here today. A severe imbalance between supply and demand lies at the heart of the energy problem, Martin said in a luncheon talk to the Greater Big Spring Rotary Club. There are solutions, he said, noting the nation's abundant supplies of coal and uranium. Both are cheaper than natural gas and oil, and "nobody can put an embargo on them." But he warned that if present national policies that restrict development of those fuels continue, the supply-and-demand imbalance will become far worse. "We simply use a lot more oil in the United States than we can produce, and we don't seem to learn from history," he said. Last year, the U.S. imported twice as much oil from foreign countries as it did in 1973, the year before the Arab oil embargo, and it paid 10 times as much money for that oil, Martin said.

Recent studies show that unless federal laws are changed, the nation will be paying about $190 billion for foreign oil in 1990, he said. The alternative would be to do without 13 million barrels of oil a day. The consequences from that would be staggering," Martin said. "It's been estimated that 900,000 Americans lose their jobs for each million barrels per day we are short on energy." There are better alternatives, he said. Martin pointed out that Texas Electric has eight lignite coal units generating electricity. The coal used in those units since 1971 is the energy equivalent of enough oil to yield 166 million 20-gallon tanks of gasoline. And the uranium that will be used in the company's nuclear plant near Glen Rose will equal the energy in 23 million barrels of oil each year. The trouble is, he said, that excessive federal government regulations are making it more and more difficult and expensive to develop the nation's coal and nuclear resources. And he pointed out that a major part of President Carter's energy proposal — the federal Energy Security Corporation — is the development of synthetic fuels — only promises to add one more level of federal bureaucracy to the energy obstacles. The proposal, he said, "sounds a whole lot like starting Amtrak to solve railroad problems." The private sector, Martin said, is "ready, willing and able" to develop synthetic fuels, as well as solar energy. And the same private sector, freed from restrictive government controls, can best develop existing resources safely, efficiently and at the least cost. "Turn the free market loose," he said. "Competition in a fast-changing energy market can and would develop needed resources at the lowest possible price."

Four County Young Farmers plan barbecue in Ackerly

The Four County Young Farmers club will gather at Sands High School in Ackerly at 7 p.m., Tuesday for a barbecue. Anyone interested in furthering the aims of agriculture can attend the barbecue. The club's convention will take place in Big Spring Saturday, Sept. 15, with registration due to begin at Howard College at 9 a.m. Those registering will go to the U.S. Experiment Station at 9:30 a.m. for talks on farming techniques. The enrollees will have lunch on their own and reassemble at the college's Student Union Building for a business session at 1 p.m. A banquet in the college SUB at 6 p.m., catered by the college staff, will climax the day's events. Joe Barnes is currently president of the Four County Young Farmers Club, which accepts membership from residents in Howard, Borden, Dawson and Martin Counties. Steve Herm is the treasurer, Kenneth Schulte the secretary and Bruce Nichols the reporter. An election will be held later this year, at which time 1980 officers will be chosen. Booth space still available. Limited space is still available to rent an inside booth at the Howard County Fair, September 17-22. An estimated 20 to 30 thousand persons are expected to attend the week long event. Booths are eight by 10 feet and can be rented at a cost of $75. For more information, contact Delbert Donelson at the State National Bank, 267-2531 or at home, 263-0786. You may also contact Ruth Mitchell at 263-8301.

Car rips fence, woman injured

Francis E. Wilson, 64, Merkel, was hospitalized Thursday night after running her car through a fence 18 miles north on highway 87 at 7:19 p.m. She complained of back injury and was taken by Martin County Ambulance to Malone-Hogan Hospital. She told Department of Public Safety Patrolman William Jennings a truck ran her off the road. She was going south when her late model Pontiac ran into the median, then off the shoulder into a barbed wire fence. She is in good condition and will be examined by an orthopedic doctor today.

Waylon Jennings Show might attract 4,000

In show business parlance, the Waylon Jennings Show scheduled Saturday night in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum may be 'boffo' at the box office. Carl McMillen, manager of the coliseum, said that 2,000 tickets for the appearance of the country-western singer had been sold by the time the ticket offices closed Thursday. McMillen added that the tickets were being purchased at the rate of 500 a day. "I will be disappointed if the crowd does not total 3,000 and it would not surprise me if as many as 4,000 paid to see Jennings," McMillen added. The tickets, priced at $7.50 and $6.50 each, will remain on sale at the coliseum box office, radio station KBST, Cleveland Athletics and the Radio Shack all day today. On Saturday, the tickets

Working oil rigs up some

The number of working oil rigs in the state rose slightly this week. As of Monday, 794 rigs were making hole, compared to 788 for the previous week. The total was also greater than that of a month ago of 757, but dropped from the 863 total for Sept. 5, 1978. The national total dropped slightly, from 2,256 for a week ago, to 2,245 for this week. The total for a month ago was 2,187, down from the 2,327 total for Sept. 5, 1978.

Police beat— Showtime box stolen

Police thwarted another burglary, 1:14 a.m. today. While on routine patrol, Officer Bill Price noticed movement inside Big John's Feed Lot Restaurant, 802 W. 3rd, early this morning. Searching the building, the patrolman found that a screen on the north side of the eaterie had been removed. Price then rushed in and arrested Richard Marquez, 42, 705 N. Douglas. Marquez has been charged with burglary, and his bond was set today at $20,000 by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin. In the first such incident to be reported since a pay-television-movie service arrived in Big Spring, a Showtime box was stolen from the home of Ben Benitez, 1018 Nolan, Thursday afternoon. The box was valued at $40. Vandals smashed a plate glass window at the Mini-Mall, 611 E. 3rd, sometime Thursday night. Damage was estimated at $300. Cindy D. Mize, 4215 Calvin, knows the person who threw an object at her car as it passed the intersection of 10th and Main, 3:50 p.m. Thursday. Damage to the car was estimated at $100. Thieves stole a tire and wheel from a 1973 Oldsmobile parked on the lot of Mitchem Auto Sales, 70p W. 4th, sometime between 7 and 10 a.m. Thursday. The equipment was valued at $80. A screen was stolen from the residence of Judy Franklin, OK Trailer Court, sometime Wednesday night.

Value of the screen has not been estimated. Seven-year-old Cynthia J. Hernandez, 1514-A Wood, was treated at Hall-Bennett Hospital and released after being struck by a car on the 1600 block of 11th, 3:04 p.m. Thursday. The car had been driven by David Lee Mesker, 1812 Main. Two mishaps were reported Thursday. A parked vehicle belonging to Harvey D. Harmon, 405 Edwards, was struck by a vehicle driven by Gustavo Marquez, 623 Star, in the lot of Furr's Cafeteria, 9:14 p.m. Vehicles driven by Virgie Dyer, 1402 Tucson, and Raymond Bedford, 1106 Marjio, collided at 1300 Wood, 11:32 a.m.

Unemployment, wholesale prices rise during August

WASHINGTON (AP) — The twin effects of recession and high inflation racked the economy in August as the unemployment rate rose to 6 percent — the highest in more than a year — and wholesale prices advanced by 1.2 percent, the government reported today. The Labor Department said the rise in unemployment from a 5.7 percent rate in July marked the first time that the jobless rate had been at the 6 percent level since July 1978. The Carter Administration had expected unemployment to rise in August as a result of the recession that began in the spring. Labor Department economist John Breger said the latest jobless reports provides "very strong evidence of a downturn." But inflation also continued to rage in August as prices at the wholesale level showed the biggest monthly advance since January, the department said in a separate report. The rise in wholesale prices was paced by another steep climb in the cost of energy products and the first increase in food prices since March. The government said wholesale prices at the stage just before goods reach consumers rose 11.1 percent during the previous 12 months. Inflation at the consumer level has been running slightly higher — at a 13 percent rate this year. Wholesale prices are an important measure of future inflation because they signal price trends likely to occur at the retail level a few months later. The simultaneous release of the two gloomy economy reports underscored President Carter's dilemma in trying to combat high inflation through tight fiscal policies while at the same time trying to keep from aggravating a recession that could mean high unemployment in the 1980 election year. The Labor Department said the number of unemployed people rose by 300,000 during August to 6.1 million, with most of the increase resulting from factory layoffs.

Total employment fell by 310,000 jobs in August to 96.9 million, the government said, following a rise of 450,000 jobs in July. Unemployment rates for virtually all major groups of workers based on age, sex and race increased last month. During the prior 12-month period, the unemployment rate had been remarkably stable, ranging from 5.9 percent to a five-year low of 5.6 percent reached in June. The government said employment has shown virtually no growth since March, after increasing by a strong 2.1 million jobs during the six months previous to March. Those figures provided strong evidence of the economic slowdown that has gripped the economy since the second quarter, administration officials said.

State energy advisor withdraws resolution for rationing power

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Opposition from two Democratic senators has forced the governor's energy advisor to withdraw a resolution that would have given him power to reinstate gasoline rationing in emergencies.

Sens. Peyton McKnight and Bill Meier of the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council said they would like to review any plan before it is adopted.

The dispute occurred Thursday during the council's first meeting. Republican Gov. Bill Clements had restricted the sale of gas in 17 counties on an odd-even day basis, according to license numbers, but he lifted the rationing Sunday.

Clements' authority from President Carter to limit gas sales extends until Sept. 30.

Energy advisor Ed Vetter, executive director of the council, asked for "fail-safe" authority in the event Clements' authority is not extended past that date and a gas shortage develops.

"There might be some chance — which we don't expect to happen — that there could be a real catastrophe in the month of October," said Vetter.

Vetter's resolution stated that any emergency order would require the approval of Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, council co-chairmen.

McKnight, D-Tyler, said the council "could be assembled on pretty short notice ... no reflection on you, Mr. Vetter, or the governor or lieutenant governor ... but I'd like to see an exact plan before I give my approval."

Meier, D-Eules, said six council members, a majority of a quorum of 11, could act. At least that many live in Austin, who might "come on very short notice," he said.

"Your comments are very appropriate," said Vetter, "and because of the very low probability that we will have to do anything, I will withdraw the resolution."

Afterwards, McKnight told reporters, "I don't think we should give blind approval to some plan that might not meet the approval of my constituents."

The council adopted a $7,189,691 budget for this fiscal year, including $2,907,828 in state general revenue.

Council members earmarked $2,480,828 for analysis and development of energy resources. No state money, Vetter noted, had been set aside for conservation projects, although $3,876,463 in anticipated federal funds has been allocated for conservation.

The council voted to spend $200,000 on a coal laboratory and $50,000 on additional geothermal studies in West Texas. The laboratory is contingent upon federal approval of a consortium headed by the University of Texas.

Football gambling is big in Texas

Gambling is a human condition that grips some individuals more than others, and distorts the thinking processes of a few to the point that it ruins them and not infrequently their families.

Gambling is gambling, no matter whether it comes on the turn of a card, a $6 combination at a race track or on a football parlay card.

THERE ARE ANY NUMBER of good, church-going people in Texas who condemn the life style of neighbors who travel to horse tracks in other states in order to play the ponies, yet they see no wrong in trying to pick a winner in football, and back their convictions with legal tender.

There is no doubt that football is big business in Texas. The buildup in the sport starts with the high school games on Friday nights in season. What the fans see or hear on Friday night merely whets the true fan's appetite for the college games that follow on Saturday. The frosting on the cake is saved for Sundays, when the pros take over, and the flavor lingers even through Monday nights, when the last of the pro games take place.

As big as football is in Texas, however, the gambling that takes place on the game is likely bigger still. No one knows how much money is spent on football gambling every year but it is considerable. It's probably safe to say that the total amount bet runs well into the billions.

Some people prefer to bet in office pools, taking a chance on winning a considerable sum on a small investment. Others like to risk their savvy against the professional gamblers. Invariably, they lose, but that doesn't keep them from trying.

Dallas is considered the Las Vegas of Texas when it comes to betting on football. The city is sports minded. Its people are looking for action and they have the money to spend.

Football gambling is going on all over the state, however. Proportionately, the Midland-Odessa area has the reputation for heavy play.

THERE ARE STILL lots of parlay cards in evidence, despite the efforts of police to stamp them out. The police admittedly are fighting a hopeless battle. Football gambling has gained such popularity and respectability in this state, the police can hope only to slow the tide.

It's useless to tell many of the people willing to risk small amounts in football pools and on parlay cards that organized gambling is orchestrating the show but that is the truth.

The mobsters pay big bucks to get all the inside information possible, down to the fact that the quarterback of one of the teams is suffering from a busted toe, before coming out with the morning line. It's estimated that Dallas alone has 250 bookies making daily bets, not only on football but on any kind of sports event. It's said that residents of that city spend $10 million a week in illegal sports wagering.

What can be done to rid the gamblers of their urge to risk a buck? Probably nothing. No one would volunteer to take the cure, mainly because they do not think they have a problem.

High old time Around the rim

James Werrell

Well, folks, it was the same old story. Thursday was nearly over; Tommy Hart was breathing down my neck for a Rim; and I had about as many good ideas as Custer had when he visited the Little Big Horn.

But I was saved by the U.S. Mail! A pal of mine and yours who now lives in General Sherman's favorite hot spot sent me a ready-made column.

Rumors have it that Marj Carpenter has been traveling so much lately that the only furnishings she has bothered to install in her Atlanta apartment are a toothbrush, a cot and a couple of those little bottles of vodka they sell on airplanes. This is the account of one of her recent excursions:

IT WAS LABOR DAY weekend and I'd agreed to go to Hole-in-the-Wall, Oklahoma for the second annual Chili Cookoff there.

Now I'd been to 45 states without ever setting foot in Oklahoma so even that was going to be an experience. I flew from Atlanta to the Dallas airport where I was picked up by Jane and Bob Glover from Marble Falls. Bob used to coach at Big Spring and Jane is a native Big Springer. Their daughter Shannon celebrated her second birthday in Ardmore over the weekend.

That turned out to be one of many things we celebrated. In the first place we celebrated getting to Ardmore alive. First Bob got stopped by the highway patrol because he had a headlight out. We got to Gainesville and were going to stop and get a headlight and before we could do that sheets of rain began to fall and we couldn't see. We crept up next to the railing on a bridge behind a truck and sat there through a hailstorm.

I was about to decide the idea of going to Oklahoma was really a mistake. We left the highway when the storm was over and saw two inundated vehicles that had driven off the road. We stopped at the service station, (which did not have a headlight) and decided to call ahead to Bob and Carol Burris, former Big Spring football coach, who were expecting us in Ardmore.

But we couldn't call them because the telephone booth had blown down. The storm had also knocked the big metal front door of the station. Those of you who had Glover for a defensive coach remember how big he was. Well he got out and lifted the metal door and kind of leaned it against the opening for the poor guy.

We went on our way and got to Ardmore in time to help set up camp for around 50 visitors from all over who were to be part of the Tiger Red Chili cooking team. We ended up having the fourth best chili, but that was nothing to the fun we had.

The event is literally held out in the middle of nowhere where the outlaws used to flee — to the notorious Oklahoma Badlands. The two days of fun included chili cooking, picking and singing, eating and drinking, bull riding, dancing, a wet t-shirt contest and a liar's contest.

I was one of the judges for the liar's contest along with a couple Okies from Muskogee U.S.A. A fellow named John, who could spin tales about his mule, won first and Carol Burris and her sister were the second best liars in Oklahoma. Carol's mother was third. Her father said philosophically, "I knew I had a bunch of liars in my house."

Those of you who are old Oklahoma fans knew the Burris brothers as football players and three of the six were at that gathering — which incidentally included around 6,000 people. Buddy, Bob and Lynn and their wives, Betty, Carol and Paula were among the group — as well as some of their offspring.

The name is well known around there. One guy stumbled up to the liar's contest and said "I'm Judge Lynn Burris" and the woman announcer took one look at him and said, "And that's a life."

Matt Burris won a couple of foot races, just to keep the family name in good stead. And Mark Burris gave some thought to whipping the chili judges after they failed to name the Tiger Red chili to first place. The cook was Harry Dan Phipps, whom some of you may remember from the years he coached over in Hobbs or up in Dumas.

But it was a beautiful two days. The sun was hot and the chili was hotter. The dirt was dirty and the mud was muddier. The barbecue was warm and the beer was cold.

THE MUSIC SMACKED of songs like "Take Me Back to Tulsa" and "These Oklahoma Hills" but they played a few tunes for the outlanders. The bull riding was exciting and a fellow named Duane Goff did a flip off the top rail as a bull went by, doing a complete somersault before he hit the ground and became the best candidate for the falling down contest.

I think I may have qualified to help judge the liar's contest when they found out I worked two desks away from Walt Finley, the Big Spring token Okie, for seven years, because that was my very first trip to Oklahoma.

But one big strapping cowboy summed the whole celebration up at the final dance when he said, "Hey Babe, where you from?"

"Well," I answered, "I live in Atlanta, Ga. but my home's in West Texas." "Say," he said, "I like West Texas — had a flat there one time and everybody was nice. Durned if they weren't nice as Oklahomans."

And I thought, "Durned if some of these Okies aren't nice as West Texans...durned if they aren't."

Some joy

WASHINGTON — Two months ago we described the plight of Thach Minh Loi, one of the hundreds of thousands of anonymous Asian "boat people" cast adrift on the perilous open seas. He turned up, forlorn and malnourished, in a refugee camp in faraway Malaysia.

He gave most of his meager food rations to his small daughter and pregnant wife. He ate rats and snakes to survive. Their situation was so hopeless, he wrote a sister in America, that he thought it might be more merciful to do away with his family and then kill himself.

The sister tried frantically to reach him, but not one letter got through. Loi decided his sister must be dead. But just as he was about to abandon all hope, his name was called out by the camp authorities. He was notified that his pathetic, impoverished family would be welcome in the United States.

UNKNOWN TO THEM, Loi's desperate sister, Chuong Ellis, had appealed to us. We contacted Immigration Commissioner Leonel Castillo who moved fast to prevent the family suicide. With bewildering speed, Loi was on his way to America with his wife Vui, daughter Tao and new baby Minh Chow.

They were greeted at the Las Vegas, Nev., international airport by Loi's sister. Our representative, Tim Anderson, was invited to share the poignant moment with them. The family struggled off the plane, fatigued and ill. Their Asian stoicism broke down at the sight of the awaiting sister. Smiles lit up the gaunt faces; tears began to stream. Choking on their first words, they fell into one another's arms.

Then a sudden calm, like a sigh of relief, settled over the scene. It was as if they were offering an unspoken prayer of thanksgiving that the agonizing ordeal was over. For the Thach Minh Loi family knew they were the lucky ones. They had left behind hordes of hopeless refugees in fetid refugee camps and flimsy boats, often at the mercy of marauding Malaysian gangs and Thai pirates.

Our representative drove the family to their new home in Veyo, Utah, where the sister Chuong lived. As they piled out of the van, Loi could no longer suppress his emotion. He could speak no English; but suddenly he threw his fists into the air and jumped with joy, like a football player who had just scored a Super Bowl touchdown. With all his lungpower, Loi yelled at the nearby mountains: "America!"

Footnote: For some refugees, the ordeal has not ended in America. Some have encountered resentment from neighbors, who fear the low-paid refugees will take away jobs. There have been unprovoked incidents and racial slurs. Other refugees have been turned loose, unprepared and bewildered, in a strange cosmopolitan society they don't understand.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor: Northern Ireland makes up only a fifth of the island itself, so Ireland could let the North be and laugh it off except for underlying emotion and the red rash of it.

Of substance and thought, a highway-topped wall could divide the land. It's against the law to kill and it weighs against them in judgment, but rehabilitation will gain that much. The 11th Law pacifies emotions. It's peaceful, doesn't needle and the wall would be unnecessary.

Capital crime is emotional, but when it is premeditated it's satanic and the same of history. The unknown time process of Supreme Justice is perfect and man's interference must end.

The U.S. Peace Corps could help build the divide (the wall). Civils respect rights of minorities. The North identity evolves and powers must preserve the right to live. Power pushes are worldly, but when the rash clears the protectorate will leave. They just live by individual faith and it may be impossible to liquidate or subdue them by killer shark gangs of the peasantry. There's the Mafian kiss of death, but there's the Christian kiss of life.

Violating test ban

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Behind the turgid drama of the SALT II debate, the Soviet Union has been engaged in intensive underground weapons testing with indications of repeated violations of two test-ban treaties, one limiting the size of weapons tested, the other prohibiting "venting" of radioactive fallout into the atmosphere.

This hyperactive Soviet testing, the most intensive in years, has been overlooked in the vigorous Carter administration effort to ratify the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II). But there are growing indications that the Kremlin may be systematically cheating in the rush to complete a vast "data base" for building new and better nuclear explosives before U.S. Soviet agreement on the comprehensive test-ban treaty (CTB) now being negotiated.

A key issue here is U.S. trust of its Russian negotiating partner, a trust that President Carter's administration had seemed particularly inclined to accept.

Lack of healthy suspicion was the crux of the tragic failure of the U.S. to talk privately to Ludmilla Vlasova, the Soviet ballerina whose husband defected and who might have done so herself if she had had the chance. Alerting Soviet diplomats here in advance to the fact that the U.S. wanted that private talk made it impossible. She was spirited off to an Aeroflot IL-62 by Soviet secret police.

THE SOVIETS' RECORD of actual and attempted cheating is unambiguous, beyond the ability of Soviet apologists to disprove. Yet such "gentlemanly" conduct as Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher's telephone call alerting the Soviet embassy here to U.S. interest in the Vlasova affair persists. In the infinitely more important case of Soviet underground weapons testing, trust in Soviet declarations or intentions could lead to graver results.

During 1978, at least three underground tests (among the estimated 27 exploded in the Soviet Union) are believed to have violated the 1974 "threshold" test-ban treaty with its 150 kiloton ceiling. In addition, at least 13 of the 1978 tests almost certainly produced illegal "venting" — the escape of poisonous radioactive materials such as crypton and other fission products into the atmosphere.

The three probable violations occurred in August, November and December. Seismic instruments — not on Soviet territory because Moscow rejects on-site inspection — indicated that each of the three tests were well above the 150 kiloton limit.

This year, as the Russians continued their most active underground test program in 15 years, a June explosion is believed to have had the force of 225 kilotons and a July shot possibly as high as 400 kilotons. The U.S. has never announced the July test.

Soviet refusal to permit on-site inspection by seismic sensor — and the imprecision of distant seismographs — make it virtually impossible to prove violations. This is true despite sensitive Swedish seismic instruments that pick up and record most Soviet tests. But Soviet violations of the 1963 treaty can be proved by the empirical evidence of dust particles collected in the atmosphere over Japan, Korea and other areas.

"It is intolerable that the U.S. should permit the Soviets to cheat at the margin without even raising a protest," one specialist told us privately.

Some tips for heart pacer users

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What are the absolute rules when wearing a heart pacemaker? I was equipped with one recently and have run into such advice as: "Do not go near a microwave oven."

"Do not have a CB radio in your car."

"Do not use a hot pad." Others tell me it makes no difference. I certainly don't choose to experiment, and can't seem to get a definite answer from my physician. I'm sure others would appreciate your answer, as will I. — Mrs. J.E.D.

Pacemaker precautions vary with the type used. However, patients should follow a few simple rules. Most electrical and mechanical instruments will not interfere with the pacemaker (the device that helps regulate your heart rhythm).

(1) Notify in advance any doctor, dentist, physical therapist or others in the health field who may use diathermy (such as ultrasound heat) and other impulse-generating equipment.

(2) Modern microwave ovens will not leak enough radiation to affect your pacemaker. They automatically turn off when the door is opened and the microwave transmission ceases immediately. If it is an older oven it's best to stand three feet away from it because of possible leakage while in operation.

(3) Hairclippers, electric razors, cars, lawnmowers, electric drills, hairdryers and similar motors are not likely to upset your pacer. You should avoid turning electric motors off and on too frequently and standing over an ignition system.

(4) Airport luggage inspection equipment may be activated by a pacing instrument, so you should carry a pacer identification card to explain things.

(5) Avoid close contact with electric power stations, radar and radio transmission towers, including CB radio antennas. Home receiver antennas are no problem.

Any radiation exposure can interfere with the pacer operation. If this happens you may become dizzy, lightheaded, or, in extreme cases, faint.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My 23-year-old daughter is recovering from a recent illness called "encephalitis herpes simplex." Everyone wants to know more about this illness than we can tell them. Will you please explain it? — Mrs. F.B.S.

"Encephalo" is a Greek word that refers to the brain. Encephalitis is inflammation of the brain. The cause of this inflammation is a virus called herpes simplex. You have seen people with fever blisters or "cold sores." They, too, have an infection from the same virus. In their case, the virus infects the skin, and the blisters you see are the result of the inflammation.

In some cases, as in your daughter's, the virus may travel to the brain, which like the skin may become similarly inflamed. Since it is the brain and not the skin that's involved, encephalitis is very serious. Why the virus attacks the brain in some people is not known. I should note, to ease the minds of many readers, that people who have recurrent "cold sores" are NOT any more susceptible to the brain infection than anyone else. They need not worry about this happening to them.

Newer drugs are available to treat the brain inflammation. I do hope your daughter is feeling stronger every day.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can a person have a duodenal ulcer and not have it show up on X-rays? I had severe nausea and bleeding but my X-rays did not show any ulcers. I still have the symptoms and am taking medicine for ulcers. — Mrs. R.D.S.

Ulcers show up on X-rays in from 50 to 75 percent of cases. If they do not, other landmark symptoms — burning, gnawing pain when the stomach is empty, or pain that awakens a patient at night — are often sufficient to diagnose the problem. This can be confirmed by use of a gastroscope, an instrument that can enter the stomach and duodenum and "see around." These newer devices have helped increase the accuracy of ulcer diagnosis in recent years.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it bad, good, or doesn't it matter either way if one exercises (such as jogging) after eating a fairly large breakfast? — M.B.

Best to allow about an hour and a half before the jogging.

What are ulcers? How can you help yourself get rid of ulcers and stay rid of them? Read the booklet, "How to Heal Peptic Ulcers." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How were people who lived in Old Testament times saved? — C.B.C.

DEAR C.B.C.: They were saved in the same way you and I are saved today — by God's grace. The difference is that they looked forward in faith to what God would some day do in Christ, the Messiah. We, however, now look back to what He did for us in Christ. By faith in Christ we are saved.

In the Old Testament, God established an elaborate system of sacrifice. God gave this system to the Israelites to teach them several vital spiritual truths. For example, the shedding of blood as a sacrifice for sin reminded them that God was holy and took sin very seriously — so seriously that forgiveness could only come through the shedding of blood. Sin, we would say, is a "life and death matter" to God. The sacrifices also were continual, and that reminded them of the constant presence of sin in their lives.

But all of the sacrifices of the Old Testament were only a foreshadow or symbol of the great sacrifice for sin — the sacrifice of God's Son of the cross.

The Old Testament itself spoke of the Messiah who would come and die for the sins of God's people (see Isaiah 53). John the Baptist pointed to Jesus and declared, "Look, the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world!" (John 1:29, New International Version). Jesus Himself stated that His blood "is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins" (Matthew 26:28, NIV). Peter reminds us: "It was not with perishable things such as silver or gold that you were redeemed, but with the precious blood of Christ, a lamb without blemish or defect" (1 Peter 1:18-19, NIV).

There were times when those in the Old Testament forgot what God had revealed to them, and believed that their salvation depended on their own good works and their obedience to the law. But the Bible stresses that we can never be good enough to earn our salvation. Only by trusting Christ can we be saved. What those in the Old Testament only saw dimly, we now can know clearly, because Christ has come and made it possible for us to be forgiven and reconciled to God.

Positive attitude

Industrial committee pursuing prospects

Big Spring still has lot going for it, and a positive attitude plus work will help realize the potential, Johnny Lou Avery, Chamber of Commerce president, declared in a talk to the Downtown Lions Club Wednesday.

The industrial committee still is pursuing many prospects, some major, she said. Recently a site team from a sizeable industry visited here simply because one of its high officials had been stationed at Webb AFB and said it was the best town of his service career, she related.

While this push is going on, committees are not letting up on other fronts, she added. This weekend emphasis is being put on seeing things "right in your own back yard," Mrs. Avery noted, and maps and charts highlighting points of interest were distributed. She cited numerous other examples of the community at work.

Frequently prospects come into town unannounced, and if they find a positive attitude, it helps to land new businesses and industry, she said, and told of one such instance recently.

Ernie Boyd, president, announced a board meeting for Tuesday evening, and Dub Martin, chairman, mapped assignments for the mop and broom sale during the Howard County Fair when the club will be offering products made by the blind to benefit the club's sight conservation and blind fund.

CASTRO APPEALS FOR PUNCTUALITY — Cuban President Fidel Castro checks his watch with President Hafiz Assad of Syria as he urged delegates of the 6th Non-Aligned Summit Meeting to be punctual for sessions, many of which are 30 minutes late in starting. This photo, made earlier during the sessions, shows Castro as he made rounds to the delegates pointing to his watch, sometimes showing irritability.

Sniping at Alamo heard in Prague

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
PRAGUE — Gov. Bill Clements thought he was leaving political battles miles away when he came to Eastern Europe on an agricultural trade mission. He was wrong.

During a visit to the U.S. Embassy in Prague Thursday Clements learned that Gov. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona had been sniping at him and on his own home turf.

Clements said Babbitt snipes "are nothing new." The two governors have been vocal in their criticisms of each other. Earlier this summer at a meeting of the National Governors' Association, Clements said Babbitt's Administration was a circus. An embassy press officer told Clements that in a speech at San Antonio Babbitt had called the Texas governor's views toward Mexico "imperialistic."

And, the officer said, Babbitt called the Alamo a symbol of such views.

While Clements wasn't surprised by personal criticism, he said he couldn't believe the comment about the Alamo and he wouldn't react to it until he received verification.

But he did say, "I wish he (Babbitt) had married somebody from Maryland." Babbitt is married to a Rio Grande Valley native and is a frequent visitor to Texas.

To review 28 agencies

Ezzell named to Sunset Advisory Committee

State Rep. Mike Ezzell of Snyder has been named to the Sunset Advisory Commission by Speaker of the House Bill Clayton. Ezzell represents Howard County in Austin.

Rep. Ezzell becomes one of four House members serving on the commission. The other four members are members of the Texas Senate and appointed by the Lt. Governor.

The commission is charged to review those agencies due to be abolished by the Texas Sunset Act. The review process includes public hearings and a final report of findings to the Legislature with the commission's recommendations for each agency.

"Sunset is proving to be an important addition to our legislative system," Clayton said, adding, "Rep. Ezzell will be a strong member of the commission and will help provide the leadership necessary to determine the need for agencies to continue their role in state government."

During a visit to Big Spring Thursday, Ezzell said that 28 agencies must justify their existence before the commission later this month or be phased out. Ezzell is serving his third term in the House. He is chairman of the Health Services Committee and serves on Higher Education and House Administration committees. He also serves by appointment to the Committee on Human Resources of the National Conference of State Legislatures.

The commission convenes in Austin Sept. 21.

The Busy Life

Is there anyone so busy as a ten-year-old?
Our Joey isn't in this picture. Called to the phone, you know! Something extremely important like the Cub Scout picnic or the Little League meeting. Decisions that can't wait... even for homework. Or so we are told!

But if you'll note the items on Joey's desk you'll see that FAITH hasn't been crowded out of our boy's busy life. Sunday School is just one of his pressing weekly "appointments." But it is one that has as prominent a place in his growing up as it has on his desk.

And don't think it is merely parental pride when I tell you that Joey is already revealing some fine traits of Christian character in his attitude toward responsibilities—and toward people. His mother and I planned it that way when we made the Church an important part of our own lives.

McCrary's history erratic

'Racehorse' opens attack

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Lead defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes opened his attack on David McCrary's credibility with detailed questions about the erratic job and marital history of the state's key witness.

Using a poster-sized calendar, Haynes led McCrary through the various jobs he held in 1978 — jobs in carpentry, construction and sales. Haynes also touched on McCrary's four marriages and quoted prosecutors as calling the 41-year-old witness a "floater."

McCrary testified Thursday afternoon he has not held a salaried job in more than a year as part of the federal Witness Protection Program. The program, which gave McCrary and his family new identities in another city, also provides $950 per month in living expenses, he said.

McCrary said he went into the program "for the protection of me and my family" shortly after betraying Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis last August.

Davis was arrested Aug. 20, 1978, and is standing trial on charges he tried to hire the murder of his divorcee, Joe Eidson. Davis has since been granted a divorce from Priscilla Davis.

McCrary also testified Davis gave him $5,000 to do "investigative work" and the witness said he listed the sum on his 1978 income tax return. McCrary said his role as an investigator later changed to that of a mediator to hire a "hit man" to kill Eidson and others.

Earlier Thursday, prosecutor Jack Strickland queried McCrary about the tape-recorded meeting with Davis that led to the industrialist's arrest. The parking lot meeting was secretly filmed and recorded, and the synchronized version of those tapes was shown to jurors Thursday morning.

During that meeting McCrary said he showed Davis "faked" proof of Eidson's "death." The men also discussed the next victims of what McCrary has testified was Davis' "hit list" of 15 persons. "Who do you want next?" McCrary asked on the tape.

"Uh, the ones we talked about," Davis replied. "Bev, Bubba..." McCrary said.

"Yeah," Davis said. McCrary has testified that during an earlier meeting Davis told him to have Beverly Bass and Gus "Bubba" Gavrel Jr. killed prior to the judge.

Miss Bass and Gavrel testified in a 1977 murder trial that Davis was the black-clad gunman who shot Gavrel Aug. 2, 1976, during a midnight shooting spree at the $6-million dollar Davis mansion. Davis later was acquitted in the death of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, one of two persons killed that night.

"I asked who he wanted killed next," McCrary said Thursday. On Friday (Aug. 18, 1978) Cullen instructed me to go back to the original plan. I had actually made a mistake in getting the judge 'killed' rather than Beverly Bass.

I'VE GOT TO CROW — Sandy Duncan continues in her Peter Pan persona, after her opening night performance in the show of the same name at New York's Lunt Fontaine theater Thursday night, on the couch in her dressing room. It's been 25 years since the boy who wouldn't grow up last flew on Broadway.

Corpus Christi United Way may be in trouble

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The United Way in the Corpus Christi area may lose more than $800,000 if area Roman Catholics follow the advice of Bishop Thomas Drury and refuse to donate, a United Way official said Thursday.

Drury said Catholics should not support the United Way because last June Planned Parenthood, which provides birth control counseling and other services, became an agent of the Corpus Christi United Way.

There are more than 25,000 Catholic families in the Coastal Bend, or about a third of the population.

Monsignor William T. Thompson, vicar general of the Coastal Bend diocese, said there has been tremendous support shown to the bishop by area Catholics. "Many people who have been workers have resigned, and many have refused to contribute," he said.

Thompson said the bishop waited until near the beginning of the United Way's kickoff activities to make this announcement because "it was hoped that perhaps they might change their minds, or this final commitment would not be made, because the United Way knew the bishop's position."

Thompson said Drury deplored taking this stand because he has personally contributed to the United Way in the past. "The bishop felt that he could in no way support or contribute to an organization that directly or indirectly advocated abortion."

The bishop said he advised the 90 priests in the area to urge church members not to contribute because of "the constant teaching of the church on the sanctity of human life and our obligation to safeguard the lives of unborn babies."

Merriman Morton, a United Way campaign chairman, said the goal of the Coastal Bend area that includes Corpus Christi and area towns is $2.8 million. Of that figure, Planned Parenthood would receive about $2,500.

Drury said, "Without wishing to be divisive, I am compelled to call our Catholic people to stand firm in refusing direct or indirect aid to the United Way."

Dance to start off fiesta celebration

A Saturday night dance in the Dora Roberts Community Center will formally get the "16 de Septiembre" Fiesta under way here.

The Fiesta, which climaxes with another dance Saturday night, Sept. 15, in the Howard County Fair Barn, is sponsored by the Mexican American Service Council. Fiesta chairman is Amado Molina.

The three queen candidates will be introduced at the Saturday night dance. Voting for the queen will end at 10:30 p.m., while the queen and her court will be presented at 11:30 p.m.

Music for the dance will be provided by La Sombra of Big Spring. Admission to the festivities will be $4 per person.

The queen candidates are Sonia Rodriguez, Lisa Leal and Melinda Porras.

The queen will formally be crowned at the Sept. 15 dance following the traditional march around the floor. Cultural dances are scheduled for 9:30 that evening.

Enrollment up by 20 at Sands

ACKERLY — Sands schools have enrolled 287 students this year, about 20 more than were in school this time a year ago.

High school principal DAVE Smith attributed the increase to fine crop prospects in the area.

Sands graduated 18 students last year and picked up 26 kindergarten students this fall.

PARIS, Texas (AP) — A Lamar County grand jury indicted a 20-year-old Paris man on one count of murder in the slaying of Richard Todd Lewis, 18, of Denton.

Charles Parham was arrested after Lewis' body was found in south Lamar County last month.

Lewis' body was punctured by two .22 caliber bullets and also had been injected with industrial acid. A final autopsy report has not been received.

Church women welcome new member

Church Women United of Big Spring held their Annual Get Acquainted Coffee Aug. 31, 10 a.m., at the Wesley United Methodist Church. Sixty women from six of the eight churches in the group attended.

A new member, the Highland Church of God, 6th and Settles, was welcomed into the Church Women United.

A guest, Sophia Crawford, from Trinity Lutheran Church in Strongton, Mass. was also welcomed.

All women of this area are welcome to any of the functions of Church Women United and any church group interested in becoming members of C.W.U. may call the president, Mrs. Ben Boadle, at 267-2203.

At a recent Convention of Church Women United in Lubbock, Mrs. Boadle was elected co-ordinator of District Two which includes Plainview, Lubbock, Big Spring and Sweetwater. Mrs. Vada Perrin, Big Spring also attended the convention.

First United Methodist observes Fall Roundup

The First Methodist Church will observe Sept. 9 as Fall Roundup Sunday. Special emphasis will be placed upon the church school in both the 8:30 and 10:50 worship services. Each class is expected to have all of its members in attendance.

Sunday evening, the church will meet in Garrett Hall for a covered dish dinner. At 7 o'clock a special program, "The Importance of Christian Education," based on a "Hee Haw" format, will be presented.

Various Sunday School classes will present different acts and skits. The program is under the direction of Mrs. Emily Ward.

Free Christian faith course gets underway

A 16-week study course of the Christian faith is being offered free of charge to Christians of all denominations at St. Paul Lutheran Church.

The course is a repeat of several Christian Faith courses already offered by the Rev. Carroll C. Kohl, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran. To date, 61 individuals have completed the enrichment course, some completing it twice. The class meets for the first time Thursday, 7:30 p.m. at the church. A regular meeting time will be decided at that time.

For more information, call the church office mornings, 267-7163, or the Rev. Kohl's residence, 263-2764.

Mid-Week School opens for young Christians

St. Paul Lutheran Church, 9th and Scurry, has announced the beginning of its Mid-Week School, to begin Wednesday.

Classes will meet each Wednesday, 6-7:30 p.m., during the regular school term. Classes are available for children age 3 through 7th grade.

The class is being made available because many parents feel that more Christian training is needed beyond the 45-minute Sunday School classes held each Sunday morning. The classes are free to Lutherans as well as non-Lutherans.

Children will have an opportunity to receive this additional training in the Christian faith as well as an opportunity to become members of the Children's Choir.

More information regarding the school and enrollment is available by calling the church office mornings, 267-7143, or the residence of the pastor, the Rev. Carroll C. Kohl, 263-2764.

Early worship offered

The First Methodist Church, 400 Scurry, will begin offering an early morning Sunday worship service in addition to its 10:50 a.m. worship service.

The new 8:30 a.m. service will be conducted in the church's prayer garden.

Dr. Edwin Chappell, pastor, will present the early morning sermon. A special church choir, under the direction of Charles Parham, will provide special anthems for the service.

TWEEN 12 and 20

Teens share thoughts

By Robert Wallace, Ed. ID.

My suggestion would be to date a boy much closer to your age.

We had fun on dates, but it could never have resulted in anything serious.

Hi Millie: I'm 18 and I wouldn't think of dating a 15-year-old girl. I think older guys date exceptionally younger girls because they can't get one their own age.

I don't think that seven years is too big an age difference if you were 18, but at 15 I'm afraid it is. I have to agree with your parents. Good luck. — Jerri

Do yourself a favor and listen to your parents this time. (I'll admit parents are wrong almost as often as they are right). Tell the guy goodbye. — Todd

If you would like to be a teen guest writer, please write to me in care of this newspaper stating your age and sex. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hello Millie: I'm 17 and have dated guys who were 20 but somehow we didn't have a lot in common. I'm still school-oriented while they are work- and money-oriented.

My problem is that my parents think he is too old for me. I don't think seven years is too big of an age difference and besides, I am mature enough to handle this relationship.

I would appreciate it if you and your guest writers would add your two cents. — Millie Millie: I don't doubt that you are mature enough to handle this relationship, but I wonder if this fellow is. I'm still leery about adult men who date young teen-age girls.

She's Dumb— But No Dummy

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old girl who needs some advice on several things having to do with sex and pregnancy. My mother has never told me anything. Of course I know WHAT is done, but I would like to know if there is any way a girl can go all the way without getting pregnant.

I have heard about the Pill, but I don't know where to get any or how they are used. If I walk into a drugstore, will they sell me some? Are there instructions on the bottle? I have also heard that there is a certain time of the month when a girl is "safe." When is that time? We studied it in biology class, but were told we shouldn't depend on it because it is not 100 percent safe. I am really confused.

I have been told that some boys use something. The guy doesn't have to worry about getting pregnant, so what are they for? I hate to sound dumb, but I would like to know the answers to these questions and I don't know who else to ask. A POORLY INFORMED GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Your questions are good and you deserve straight answers. Phone your local PLANNED PARENTHOOD office and ask for an appointment to see a "teen counselor" about birth control information. If you're old enough to ask, you're old enough to know.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the young mother whose 20-month-old child screamed and trembled every time a vacuum cleaner was turned on brought back memories. I went through the same thing with my son, John, now 21. When John was an infant he not only screamed whenever I used the vacuum cleaner, he would double up in pain. He reacted the same way to power tools and other high pitched noises.

The doctor said he probably would outgrow it and I should try to get him used to it. It didn't work. Sometimes the noise would make Johnny physically sick and the poor kid would throw up. I finally put away the vacuum cleaner and used a carpet sweeper instead.

I raised four kids, and Johnny was the only one with this problem.

E.T. IN N.J.

DEAR E.T.: I heard from several ear specialists that some children are born with an extremely high sensitivity to loud noises. They suffer severe pain when subjected to them and should not be forced to "get used to it." (Some outgrow this sensitivity and some do not.)

A child who reacts violently to loud noises should be examined by an ear specialist.

DEAR ABBY: Out of the blue, my sister's husband (I'll call him Neville) has asked her for a divorce. They're both 50 and have three married children.

Neville teaches English to foreigners, and it seems he has fallen in love with a 28-year-old pupil.

I have always gotten on quite well with Neville, so he keeps ringing me up to ask when he can bring his girlfriend over to meet me. I always give him some kind of excuse: "Sorry, not tonight. I have another engagement." etc. Soon I'll run out of excuses.

My sister is very upset over what her husband has done, and so am I. Furthermore, I am not the least bit interested in meeting his young girlfriend.

How can I handle this without hurting his feelings? CANADIAN READER

DEAR READER: Why look for "excuses" when you have a perfectly legitimate reason? Tell Neville that you don't care to meet his girlfriend. And don't worry about his feelings. He seems well able to take care of himself.

OPEN SEASON TONIGHT AT 8:00 — The Big Spring Steers open the 1979 season tonight against the Andrews Mustangs at 8:00 in Memorial Stadium. Coach Ron Logback and his staff have high hopes of improving on last season's winless record.

Local boosters have proclaimed tonight as "Stuff the Stadium" night, with hopes of increasing the sagging attendance of recent years.

Against explosive Andrews Mustangs

Enthusiastic Steers open season tonight

When the Big Spring Steers open their 1979 season tonight at home in Memorial Stadium against the Andrews Mustangs, the Bovines of Coach Ron Logback will more than likely be keying on the elusive Van Percy in hopes of containing Pony offense. The Steer coaching staff reportedly feels that if they can stop Percy, chances of opening the season on a winning note and breaking a long losing string dating back to 1977 will improve vastly. As Logback said yesterday, "I just feel that they've got to go to him."

Logback is speaking from experience. Last year, Percy broke on a 50-yard scoring romp early in the Big Spring game on his way to a 100-yard evening and definitely helped propel the Mustangs to a 27-7 win. Percy went on to earn All-District honors in District 2-AAA in the grid sport, and also qualified for the state track meet in three events, quite a feat for a sophomore. But Andrews Head Coach Bill Shipman, who fielded a 7-3 season in his first year at the Mustangs helm, gave a warning to any team that tries to key on Percy too much. "We are well balanced both offensively and defensively," he says. "And we do have a running game, besides Percy."

The people that Shipman is obviously referring to is senior fullback Johnny Madrid, a 5'6", 197-pounder, and quarterback Keith Brooks, a 170-pound sophomore. Brooks was listed as a wide receiver in the pre-season, but has apparently won a starting position after being more impressive than his elder counterparts in the Mustangs scrimmages against San Angelo Lake View and Midland Lee. Andrews will probably use Percy on most occasions on a power sweep or an inside trap. Both plays come from the same type of action, making it difficult for the defense to decipher it quickly. But the Bovines have spent much of their practice sessions this week devoted to recognition of the Andrews offense, and Logback feels confident about his team's reactions. "In practice we seem to have our responsibilities down. We better, because if Percy gets behind us in the open field I don't think anybody can catch him."

receivers coming out of the backfield on bootleg action. The Mustangs line, both offensively and defensively, is the suspect part of the Andrews game as the season begins. Jim Ellison, a 190-pound senior is probably the best blocker on the Andrews team, as none of the offensive interior are returning starters. The Steers plan nothing special for them, but are hoping to use their 4-3 defense in a reading fashion in order to fill the offensive holes created for Percy and company. The Bovine defense exhibited a look of quickness in last week's scrimmage against Lamesa, something that they desperately needed last season. It will have to be in order to stop the speed of the Mustangs. Offensively, Big Spring must produce an offensive line that is somewhat of a question mark entering the season. The Steers have more than adequate size across the front in the likes of Jack Odom, Keith Sheedy, Steve Painter, Scott Barnes and Jerry Bennett, but must be able to stop the stunts that they are expecting from the Mustangs. The Mustangs are led defensively by end Larry 200-pounder, also could create problems for Andrews. The Bovines are expected to use at least four different people in the backfield tonight. Massive junior Greg Jones, a 230-pounder, and fleet sophomore Richard Evans will draw starting roles tonight. But Mike Terry and Terry Conway will provide some much needed relief, especially for Jones, who will also start at a linebacker position. Another inexperienced performer who Logback has high hopes for adding immediate help is sophomore Bobby Earl Williams. Williams will give Greg Jones some relief as his linebacking position, especially if Logback decides that Jones is needed more in the offensive backfield.

of eight people both ways. They are Coffey, Joe Willie Jones, Greg Jones, Domino, Mark Knight, Jerry Bennett, Odom and Painter. But such performers as Ben Watson, Conway, Kevin Cain, Bradley Files, Neal Humphrey, and others, should provide much needed depth.

Richard 3-hits Padres

Astros Flamethrower unstoppable

HOUSTON (AP) — When right-hander J.R. Richard is on the mound for the Houston Astros, the rest of the team has little to do but marvel at the pitching mastery of the majorleague strikeout king. The 6-foot-8 fireballer has struck out 258 batters this year, but more important for the Astros he is 9-2 since the All-Star break, has not been relieved in nine consecutive games, has not allowed an earned run in 37 straight innings, and has walked just 85 hitters all season. His latest masterpiece came Thursday at the expense of the San Diego Padres, who managed just three hits while striking out nine times and losing 2-0 to the Astros, who clung tenaciously to a 1/2-game lead over second-place

Cincinnati in the National League West. "Any time your strikeouts are three times as much as your walks, you're having a great year," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon. "I don't know how he could do any better." Virdon said Richard, who now stands at 16-12 on the year, probably will start five more times, giving him a shot at the magic 20-game season. Things have not always been so rosy for the big right-hander this year as control problems cooled off a hot start and left him 7-10 at the midpoint of the season. "The difference is the number of walks he's giving up now," Virdon said. "He's staying ahead of the batters, and he's almost unhittable when he's ahead in the count."

Gerulaitis, Austin advance to semis

NEW YORK (AP) — Fourth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis got by South African Johan Kriek 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3; while Eddie Dibbs played three games against third-seeded John McEnroe, then retired from their quarterfinal match in the U.S. Open. In women's action, second-seeded Martina because of a pain in his back. In women's action, second-seeded Martina Navratilova easily beat Kerry Reid 6-4, 6-1; and third-seeded Tracy Austin won her quarterfinal against Sylvia Hanika of West Germany 6-1, 6-1. A crowd of 18,090 attended the night session at the National Tennis Center in Flushing Meadow, a new U.S. Open record.

Charnley takes lead in European Open.

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — Englishman Tony Charnley shot a 2-under-par 68 to take a one-stroke lead over British Open champion Severiano Ballesteros of Spain and South African Vin Baker after the first round of the European Open. 8 Jamie Edman was the leading American golfer with a 72. Defending champion Bobby Wadkins was far back with a 75.

Rapp wins 3rd gold

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Betsy Rapp won her third gold medal in swimming and the men's 800-meter freestyle relay team won in games record time, but the Russians extended their overall lead in the 10th World University Games. The Russians, defending champions in these 95-nation games, now have 16 gold medals and 37 overall. The United States is a distant second with a gold — total count of 9-27.

Rams overcome Broncos with tenacious defense

DENVER (AP) — Four days earlier, the Los Angeles Rams had lost a game because of costly turnovers — two blocked punts, a fumbled punt return and three interceptions, to be exact.

Thursday night, the Rams got even when linebacker Jack Reynolds scooped up a fumble by Denver quarterback Craig Morton and staggered four yards into the end zone for the clinching touchdown in a 13-9 National Football League victory.

"I was amazed to see the ball pop out," said Reynolds after scoring the first touchdown of his 10-year pro career. "It was just lying on the floor. I concentrated on falling on the ball. Everybody down there just picked me up and moved me on my way."

Of his lurking run into the end zone, Reynolds said, "I call it 'run, stumble and score."

The key turnover, which came with nine minutes left in the game, was produced by Dave Elmendorf's safety blitz. Elmendorf slammed into Morton, who had dropped back to pass from the Bronco 16-yard line, and the ball came loose.

"It was a normal safety blitz — I just went to the outside," said Elmendorf.

Los Angeles Coach Ray Malavasi explained that his team had used the safety blitz at least once in the first half, against Denver starter Norris Weese. "But obviously it didn't work as well as it did against Morton on the touchdown play," said Malavasi.

Morton had replaced Weese in the third quarter, and he promptly ignited a sluggish Bronco offense. Hitting passes of 25 yards to Jack Dolbin and 16 yards to Riley Odoms, Morton drove

Corbett denies tampering with Perry

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Texas Rangers majority owner Brad Corbett says he never talked with pitcher Gaylord Perry about joining the Rangers either before or after Perry's sudden retirement from the San Diego Padres.

"Gaylord Perry is my friend. But no, I haven't talked to him. But yes, I plan to at some future date," Corbett said.

Perry announced earlier this week his immediate retirement unless he could be traded to the Texas Rangers. San Diego team officials immediately began claiming that Corbett had tampered with their 40-year-old pitcher.

"Everything is dead. But I want to make this clear. There never was a deal in the first place," Corbett said.

"Many years ago I told him (Perry) if he decided to hang 'em up, we'd love to have him back with the Rangers," Corbett added.

"But that was a long time ago," he continued.

Corbett said he met this week with Padres owner Ballard Smith who was in Dallas for a visit. Smith had earlier said the entire series of events was "suspicious."

The Rangers owner said he and Smith discussed the matter. "He (Smith) never accused me of tampering. He did say something smelled suspicious — but he said it wasn't me," Corbett said.

Corbett said the two owners did discuss possible trades. Asked if Perry was mentioned in the trade talk, Corbett smiled and replied "I'm not going to say that."

There had been published speculation on the West Coast that Corbett might be ready to trade star outfielder Al Oliver for Perry. Oliver has been critical of some of the trades made by Corbett this season.

"Anyone in his right mind ought to know I wouldn't make a deal like that. Al Oliver is not going to be traded," Corbett said.

SWC Roundup Tech gunning for Trojan upset

Last year Texas Tech was scored then spooked the devil out of Southern California before falling 17-9.

This Saturday night in Lubbock the 11-point underdog Red Raiders hope they can keep cool then beat the devil out of the No. 1 ranked Trojans.

"We were really scared last year," said Texas Tech defensive back Larry Flowers. "We had seen all those great athletes on TV and we were wondering if we were going to get blown away. Then we went out on the field (Memorial Coliseum in Los Angeles) and found they weren't much different than any of the other teams we played."

Tech piled up a 9-0 lead on three Bill Adams field goals and Flowers said: "We went into the locker room at halftime leading and we couldn't believe it."

All-America tailback Charles White rallied the Trojans in the second half and they wore down the thin Red Raiders.

"I know they'll remember that game from last year," said Flowers. "I expect them to be rough and ready this time."

Some 55,000 fans were expected in Jones Stadium for the heralded duel between White and Texas Tech's James Hadnot, the leading rusher in the Southwest Conference last year.

Southern Cal Coach John Robinson remembers last year's meeting.

Officials chastise Arizona governor

Texans come to defense of Alamo

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Outraged Texans are again coming to the defense of the hallowed Alamo — this time against Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, who says the historic mission-fortress symbolizes all that's wrong in the United States' relations with Mexico.

Texas officials chastised the Arizona governor Thursday for his remarks at a Wednesday luncheon in San Antonio, the site of the fabled "Cradle of Texas Liberty."

Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton said Babbitt should tend to his own state's relations with Mexico and stop trying to "fire up emotions" between Anglos and Hispanics in Texas.

Texas Attorney General Mark White agreed and threw in an impromptu Texas history lesson for Babbitt. But one San Antonio attorney just suggested that Babbitt give Arizona back to Mexico if the governor is so interested in improving U.S.-Mexico relations.

Babbitt, a Democrat, made the controversial remarks Wednesday when he was addressing a luncheon given in his honor by two Mexican-American groups.

"We must forge a new relationship based on recognition of Mexico as an equal. But the Alamo is a symbol of the problem in our relationship with Mexico... a sacred symbol to Texans and an extension of the American ideal. But to Mexico, it's a symbol of territory lost, a nation plundered by overbearing gringo neighbors," Babbitt said.

The Arizona governor said both sides should readjust their thinking on such symbols.

The rebuttals poured in Thursday.

"Certainly Texas and Mexico have some problems, such as illegal aliens, but it's not going to help for a governor from some other state to come over here and try to fire up emotions," said Clayton. "It could do some irreparable damage to the relations between Texans and the people on the other side of the border."

White added, "The heroes of the Alamo don't need defending against a politician two states away."

"Who the hell does he think he is? If he's so damn sincere, let him give the state of Arizona back to Mexico," said prominent San Antonio attorney Fred Semaan.

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, agreed from his Washington office.

"He (Babbitt) is grossly ignorant," Gonzalez said.

"If anything, the Alamo was a victory for the Mexicans. They won the Alamo. This dumb and ignorant Arizona governor expresses the mythological and the crass ignorance of, of course, it's a shrill of liberty.

David destroys

grapefruit crop

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Strong winds from Hurricane David along a five-county stretch of Florida's East Coast destroyed about 10 percent of the grapefruit crop, Florida Citrus Mutual Officials say.

The heaviest damage was along a strip 12 to 15 miles from the coastline near Indian River, where fresh fruit is a market specialty and 42 percent of Florida's grapefruit crop is grown.

About a fourth of the area's crop was lost, a Citrus Mutual team said after a two-day inspection tour. Few trees were uprooted, but numerous limbs, branches and leaves were stripped by the 50-to-85-mph winds.

Rain damage was considered light because of pumping equipment the growers used.

Mutual Executive Vice President Tom Osborne said the overall 10-percent loss figure was projected to include secondary loss which may occur in the next few weeks from limb damage, scarring and bruising of fruit.

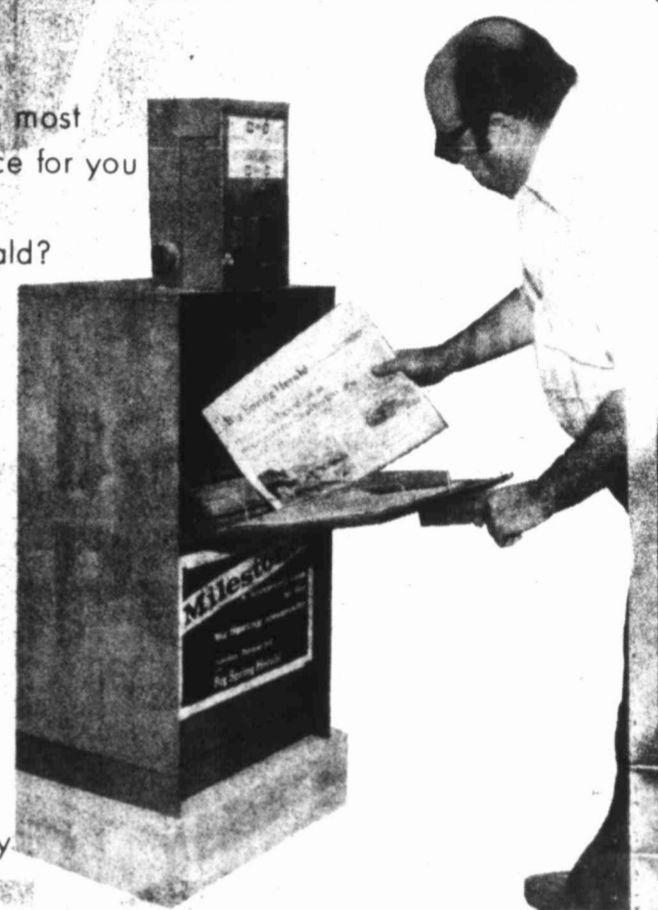

Orange losses were estimated at less than 5 percent of the fruit grown in that area.

COMPUTER PROCESSED VIEW OF SATURN — This is a new computer vista of Saturn made by Pioneer, 58 hours before its closest encounter with the planet. Saturn's moon Rhea is the speck of light below the planet and is about half the size of the Earth's moon. The somewhat distorted shape of the planet is caused by uneven spacing of scan lines of the scanning instrument and will be corrected by additional processing.

Ma Bell no longer has phone game to herself

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)— Ma Bell, which once had the telephone game all to herself, faces an ever-growing and hungry swarm of competitors, says a New York stock analyst.

Brad Peery, vice president of Pain Webber Mitchell Hutchins Inc., testified Thursday in the third day of a Texas Public Utility Commission hearing on Southwestern Bell's request for $145.2 million in rate increases.

Peery supported the request, saying the American Telephone & Telegraph system as a whole is less attractive to investors than it once was because of lower earnings and higher risks.

The risks include both competition and the actions of such regulatory bodies as the utility commission in setting limits on Bell's earnings, he said.

Among areas where Bell must compete for business, he said, are long-distance calls and telephone equipment.

"Even part of the local exchange market is competitive," Peery said.

He predicted competition will become "pervasive ... throughout the industry."

Peery said regulatory commission actions toward Bell also affect the AT&T's earnings and investor attitudes.

"A large part of the problem in looking at AT&T for the future is what is going to happen in the regulatory area," he said.

Peery says Bell's outlook for growth in dividends has worsened and has caused him to recommend to his clients that they sell their AT&T stock.

Probation terminated

Raul John Rivas, 29, Lenora, was released Wednesday when his probation violation case was dismissed. He had been in county jail since his arrest May 31.

His probation was also terminated by District Judge Jim Gregg. Rivas' six year probated sentence was due to be up in four months.

His attorney filed the motion to terminate probation two and a half years after the time he was formally able to do so, according to state statutes. A probationer may file for termination after he has served one-third of his sentence.
