Detox funds plea fails

By JAMES WERRELL
The Big Spring Detoxification Unit pleaded for leniency from budget slashers in the city, but got none at today's regular meeting of the City Council.

The unit, a city-run operation to rehabilitate persons considered to be habitual alcoholics, was one of the services on the chopping block in the proposed city budget for 1979-80. Estimates by city officials showed a net cost savings of $53,295 a year if the program were dropped by the city.

"I've said just about all I could already, and you know how I feel. I just hope we can seek some alternative to keep the program going," said Ed Mitchell, unit director, addressing the council.

Dr. Lanier Dunn, who provides medical services for the unit, also praised the operation there.

"The center provides a very needy service in its treatment of chronic alcoholics in this city. It provides an opportunity for the patient to get help during what for him is a very difficult time," said the doctor. "He (the patient) could go to the state hospital, but that goes on his record, and there is still a stigma in this society about alcoholism. The only other alternative is a private hospital, and most of them aren't interested in taking patients like this," he added.

Ed Bowman, local businessman and volunteer worker at the Detox Unit, also addressed the problem of alternatives.

"We've had employees who were periodic drunks or heavy drinkers, and we have sent them to the Detox Unit. They were away from work for only five days, and when they came back, they were off drinking," he said. "It takes an act of Congress to get a man into the state hospital, and then he's gone for a month. There are no private hospitals who will take alcoholics. So where are you going to put a drunk but in the Detox Center?"

City Manager Don Davis replied that the city would help the center to become established as a non-profit corporation, and would provide the building used by the center free of charge.

"The city is willing to participate on a support basis, and give assistance in managing and providing a building. The key question is whether the community is interested in supporting such a center," he said.

"I am sure this (the unit) is a good thing, but how can we finance it?" asked Councilman Bill Henkel. "If you people can find a federal grant or something, great! But we just don't have the money," he added.

The council then voted unanimously to deny funding, but to help Detox Unit officials in forming a private corporation.

Going fishing for month

Resignation of Massey accepted by councilmen

The resignation of John Massey from his position on the Big Spring City Council was officially accepted at today's regular meeting of the council.

Massey, instructor in Law Enforcement at Howard College, submitted his resignation from that post around noon Monday. His notice of resignation from the council was submitted to the city shortly thereafter.

"I now hope to spend about a month fishing. I'll go to East Texas to visit relatives, and get back with my family. They've been there a few weeks already," said Massey this morning.

The former council member said that he will enter into a private business venture, and is considering several options which he chose not to discuss with the Herald.

Will he leave Big Spring?
"Yes, I placed my house on the market this morning. I and my family will get together and discuss moving to one of several cities in Texas," he confirmed.

City Manager Don Davis said, following today's council meeting, that a replacement for Massey will be discussed at the next regular meeting of the council.

"We will probably go into executive session on this because it is a personnel matter. It will be a closed session," said Davis. "I have never been in a situation like this, so I'm sure there are some things about the process we will have to work out," he added.

Social Security---14

Is system going broke?

By WILLIAM STEIF
(Last of 14 parts)
The Social Security trust funds are NOT going broke. That is a canard promoted by ignorant and shallow writers in recent years.

The recent furor over this topic grew from a combination of things. With the recession that followed the late-1973 Arab oil embargo, applications for disability benefits grew swiftly because many more people were unemployed. Some discovered they might be eligible for disability payments, as, indeed, they were. This put a lot of pressure on the disability trust fund; it appeared that by the early 1980s that trust fund would be out of money.

A more important element in the furor was Congress's 1972 liberalization of Social Security benefits to keep up automatically with the rise in the cost of living. At the same time, it enacted the automatic cost-of-living increases. Congress raised taxes to cover their additional cost. But that was not enough.

High unemployment during the 1974-75 recession meant that far fewer people than predicted were paying into Social Security while high inflation was bringing automatic increases to beneficiaries.

In 1977, the trust funds' trustees estimated that the system would pay out $540 billion from 1977 through 1981. They predicted that the system's income for the period would be only $499 billion. This would be only $499 billion. This would have erased the system's $40 billion reserve in treasury bonds.

So, Congress and the Social Security Administration buckled down in 1977 to insure the stability of the Social Security system.

The results were relatively light increases in Social Security taxes, which by 1986 will reach 7.15 percent of salary from each employee and each employer. From 1990 on, the rate will be 7.65 percent.

But Congress did something else, too, and this is what upset so many critics. It extended the Social Security tax base upward, so that fairly well-paid people must pay the taxes on more of their incomes than previously.

Prior to the 1977 amendments, for example, a person in 1982 was scheduled to pay the tax only on the first $23,400 he earned; now he'll have to pay the tax on his first $31,800. That will amount to $562.80 the high-wage earner won't have to buy a new hi-fi system or take a trip to the Virgin Islands.

So, the hollering and screaming about Social Security going broke immediately were followed by protests against high Social Security taxes.

But what the high-wage earner may not recognize is that his $562.80 has bought him and many of his fellow Americans much more insurance protection. That's because his future benefits are based on the higher taxes he's paid. Further, the tax increases have erased the threat of the trust funds being out of balance — that is, not having any reserves — at least through 2010.

RETURNING THE FAVOR — Lots of mothers will recognize this game, which spanned several blocks of a downtown walk in Houghton, Mich. A kick earned is a kick returned.

Ambush of youths may create more violence in San Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Chanting slogans of hate and vengeance, 800 leftists marched behind the coffin of a 16-year-old slain with six other teen-agers in an ambush. More political violence was expected as Central America prepared for independence celebrations Saturday.

Leftists said they would confront the troops in towns around the capital and try to disarm them. The right-wing military government, trying to keep a low profile since the overthrow of its Nicaraguan allies in the Somoza dictatorship next door, said the army would not be provoked into violent reaction. But Information Minister Rafael Flores Lima said the armed forces would control any outbreaks that threatened to get out of hand.

The teen-agers killed in the ambush Saturday and seven who were wounded with them were members of the student wing of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc, El Salvador's largest organization of leftist activists. The Revolutionary Bloc blamed the ambush on government plainclothesmen, but President Carlos Humberto Romero denied any of his forces were involved and lamented the deaths.

Rightist hit squads also have made frequent attacks on leftists and suspected leftists, but no one claimed responsibility for the ambush.

Four policemen also were killed during the weekend, three when they responded to a false accident call southeast of San Salvador and the fourth in a town 40 miles to the north-east.

The young people were on their way to a recreation area 80 miles east of San Salvador. Masked men opened fire on them when their small truck slowed down for a curve.

The mourners marched through San Salvador's narrow streets for two hours in a driving tropical rain Monday, following the coffin of Nubio Castillo, shouting for revenge, and standing with clenched fists beside her grave.

San Angelo Diocese recommends parishes not support United Way

By ANDREA COHEN
The Diocese of San Angelo has urged parishes not to support the United Way if Planned Parenthood is a participant in the program, according to Father Timothy Murphy, chancellor of the Diocese.

The Diocese encompasses 34 counties including Howard County.

"Our policy is, the administrator Father Zientek who is the administrator until the new bishop arrives, has urged the parishes not to support the United Way if Planned Parenthood is a participant in the United Way program. This is an advisement until the new bishop arrives and studies the situation."

He added the decision should be made on the local level.

He also said if money can be directed to specific agencies through the United Way, which can be done in Howard County, the Diocese would not have any objections.

Anthony Gillis, administrator of the Immaculate Heart of Mary in Big Spring said the local church basically supports the United Way and most of the organizations who comprise it.

"We support the United Way in its efforts to serve the needy and civic causes. But we draw the line at Planned Parenthood which is one of the United Way organizations."

Gillis says he does not think there is as much abortion counseling given at the local Planned Parenthood Agency as in other areas, so he would not object to parishes giving to United Way. "That would be acceptable," he said.

However, he would prefer donations be made to the individual agencies.

"Giving money to the United Way is giving money to Planned Parenthood, even if the money is specified to go to other agencies. They get what they want indirectly," says Gillis.

"Ninety-nine percent of the funds go to worthwhile agencies. I'd hate to condemn the United Way because one per cent goes to an agency we don't approve."

"Since Planned Parenthood supports or recommends abortion, we don't support it," says Father Bernard Gully, pastor at the Immaculate Heart of Mary.

He says directing the money through a donation to United Way "evades the question."

"My money then goes to the Boys Club. Someone else's money will go to Planned Parenthood. The net result is the same," he said.

"We support in other ways groups that are funded by United Way."

William Bailey, executive director of the Permian Basin Planned Parenthood in Odessa says, "We do believe we are a freedom agency. We are pro choice. It is an individual woman's right according to the law of the land to make a choice regardless of what particular group or church she should do. It's the basis of our Constitution and Declaration of Independence."

"The person decides they have a problem pregnancy. They define that and come to us. We define all the options that are available. All the options are in the patient's chart."

The options according to Bailey are adoption, keeping the baby and abortion.

Women can be sent to among others Maple House, a United Methodist home in Odessa or Catholic Family and Children's Services Inc. in San Antonio for those who want to put their babies up for adoption.

They also work closely with Birthright in Dallas and Midland for women who want to keep their babies.

Abortions are performed by private physicians. However, Bailey would not identify them to "protect the privacy of the physician."

"Every time a dollar is taken away from us, a woman couldn't have Pap smears or a venereal disease screening," says Bailey. "If we weren't here, it couldn't be detected."

"They're preventing us from serving those on birth control, who need counseling, who desperately need to have control of her own body," he continued. "For the first time in history, women can choose how many children they have, through counseling and medical services."

"We in no way encourage abortion," says Donna Kothmann, clinic supervisor in Big Spring. "If they have made that choice, we want them to examine their feelings."

Kothmann says the majority of the 1,400 Big Spring patients are low income women and because of their income, it is the only medical care they receive.

Planned Parenthood charges patients on a sliding scale according to income.

Kothmann stressed that many women go to Planned Parenthood only for their yearly checkups.

The examination include a Pap smear, blood test for anemia, syphilis screening, urinalysis, blood pressure, breast examination and gonorrhea check.

New wage guidelines proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is concluding delicate negotiations with organized labor and business this week on a revised voluntary anti-inflation program the government hopes both sides will support — backing the current program has badly lacked.

Labor leaders have led the opposition to the program President Carter announced in October on the grounds that its 7 percent wage guideline penalizes workers whose wages are being eroded by a 13 percent inflation rate.

But administration officials are cautiously optimistic that they can reach an understanding with labor on the revised voluntary wage-price guidelines, due out by week's end.

Administration sources say the new guidelines, to take effect as Carter's program starts its second year next month, will be tightened for prices and relaxed for wages. The sources asked not to be named.

County dads vote to join tax district

By DON WOODS
Commissioners decided late Monday to adopt a resolution placing Howard County under the Howard County Tax Appraisal District. The district and its board of directors were created by a recent law (S.B. 621) passed in the last state legislature.

Commissioners also decided in their regular meeting Monday afternoon to adopt a resolution to allow the seven governing bodies of the taxing entities to choose how many members would be on the board of directors of the taxing district. The resolution will also allow governing bodies to choose their own method of selecting board members.

Before SB 621 was passed, Howard County had tax appraisal boards for each taxing entity. Taxing entities in Howard County are: Big Spring, Howard County, Forsan, Forsan School district, Coahoma, Coahoma School district, Howard College Big Spring Independent School District and Howard County Water District Number 1.

The bill is worded to create a five-member board for the taxing district by election of the governing bodies of seven of the nine Howard County taxing entities. Howard College and the water district were not eligible under the bill.

However, there was a provision allowing the governing bodies to choose their own method of selection and number of board members. The provision stated that three-fourths, or six out of seven, must agree.

Howard County Commissioners decided to vote for the resolution because they could put representatives from all nine taxing entities on the board, rather than only five.

Since the board members are not elected by public election, commissioners felt that officials from all nine taxing bodies would create a fairer representation.

The commissioners must now, before Sept. 15, inform the governing bodies of the other taxing bodies of their decision to join the district. Howard County is the only taxing entity eligible to decide whether to join the district or continue to appraise its own taxes.

Otherwise, County Clerk Margaret Ray will be required to conduct an election in which the seven taxing bodies will vote to put five members on the tax district board to appraise taxes for all nine taxing entities. The number of votes each taxing unit gets is commensurate with the amount of taxes it levies.

The election must be over by Nov. 15 and by Dec. 1 the five winners must be announced.

Though Howard County decided to join the district it may reverse the decision after 1981.

The commissioners consensus was that it would be too expensive to appraise its own taxes.

The senate bill also includes a provision for three fourths of the taxing agents to adopt a different method of funding for the district than the one set down by the bill.

The bill's method of funding is to cause each of the seven agencies represented to pay a percentage of the budget commensurate with the amount of tax the agency levies.

The county budget for 1979-1980 was adopted with one revision.

A total of $1,500 was added to the Civil Defense budget on the request of W.D. Berry. The C-D budget had been completely cut from the city budget then reinstated with limited funds.

sanitation bills also passed today.

The ordinance had formerly called for a $1 penalty charge for bills which were not paid within the 15-day allowed period. Councilmen today agreed on first reading to charge 10 percent of the amount of the bill for delinquency.

If the bill and penalty are not paid 30 days after the due date, water will be cut off. The customer will then pay $5 as a cutoff fee, and another $5 turn-on fee once the bill is paid and service reinstated.

In one other ordinance concerning water fees, members agreed to raise the cost of transferring water services inside the city limits from $3 to $5.

Charge for water turn off raised to $5 by council

A number of ordinances concerning fees for services provided by the city were discussed during today's meeting of the Big Spring City Council.

The first called for an increase, from $.3 to $.5, for turning a customer's water off during an emergency situation.

"Frankly, I would like to drop this charge altogether. I can't see penalizing a person for having a leaking water heater or a busted water main," said Councilman Larry Miller.

"Whether we charge or not, some people will find it more expeditious to turn their own water off than to call us," replied Bill Brown, assistant city manager.

City Manager Don Davis explained that the Fire Department will turn off customers' water during the night and on-weekends in case of an emergency.

"It would be easy enough to define what is an emergency and what isn't. We could continue to charge for turning it off as a convenience, such as for someone who is installing a new faucet, and charge nothing for an emergency," he said.

Miller made a motion to that effect, but it received a nay vote from Councilman Ralph McLaughlin. Since Miller, McLaughlin and Bill Henkel were the only council members present, the motion did not receive a quorum, and failed.

Councilmen voted in favor of a motion on first reading, asking customers to risk $20 to find out if their meters are working properly.

If a customer thinks his meter is not working properly he can appeal to the city. A field crew will then examine the meter for leaks.

If the customer is still unsatisfied, he may deposit $20 for a meter check on special equipment. If the meter is found to be faulty, the deposit will be refunded. If not, the city will keep the $20.

Brown explained that the deposit system has been in use for approximately a year already since its approval on a simple motion by the council.

"We have had about nine requests for meter checks so far this year. Before we instituted the deposit, we had between 100 and 200 a month," said Brown. "Our personnel just couldn't handle that many requests. And the meters were in good condition 99 percent of the time," he added.

The first reading of a motion to increase fees for delinquent water, sewer and

State senate races may lure political money

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Business interests in Texas have a problem.

They have a pot of political money handy and right now they are undecided where to spend it.

Indications are that a lot of it will go into Texas Senate races in 1980.

The "crunch" is this.

Next year will be mostly a presidential election year — no governor's race, no U.S. Senate, no other statewide races except a couple of Texas Railroad Commission fights that have limited appeal.

And most of the political action committees, known familiarly as PACs, are not organized for presidential races. They prefer to save their money for Texas' lobbying and campaigning.

Almost every business interest in Texas has a statewide association that in turn has a "PAC" to carry out its political aims.

Particularly strong during the recent 66th Legislature were the PACs set up by the real estate, trial lawyers, auto dealers, savings and loans, banking, and medical associations, and the labor unions. These same PACs, and others, are showing signs of backing some legislative candidates in 1980.

At least five Senate seats show signs of attracting both liberal and conservative PAC money.

"There's going to be a world of money spent in 1980," says an Austin campaigner who has been busy signing up clients.

"All the Senate that voted against the deceptive trades act, against the documentary auto fee and against the increase in home interests are attracting support from business interests. On the other hand, liberal interests are aiming at certain senators."

One of the main targets of the liberals was Sen. Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, who had close calls in the last two elections. On Labor Day, Creighton announced he would not seek re-election and would return to his law office.

A few days earlier, Sen. Bill Braecklein of Dallas, who faced strong Democratic opposition next year, announced he was switching from Democratic to Republican, with the blessing of Gov. Bill Clements.

But still facing strong opposition in 1980 is Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, head of the influential Senate Finance Committee. The trial lawyers association and some liberal Democrats have him marked.

'None of above' vote sought

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A candidate for the Louisiana governorship says there ought to be a constitutional amendment so voters dissatisfied with their choices could cast their ballots for "none of the above."

L.D. Knox, of Winnsboro, an independent candidate, said Monday such an amendment would make the nation a true democracy.

"The people of this country have never had a free election," he said. "We don't have a right to reject candidates. We have to take the lesser of the evils. At the present time, many candidates who are unopposed are elected by default."

Knox says he can't understand why the concept was not included when the U.S. Constitution was framed.

"Our forefathers thought of a public office as a public trust. They couldn't conceive that our politicians might run for personal gain," he said.

Braniff grounds jetliner that was a work of art

DALLAS (AP) — By the end of this month an airplane that once was called the world's biggest "flying sculpture" will have become just another Braniff International jetliner.

The DC8's multicolored, abstract paint job — in bright hues of red, orange, yellow and blue — was designed by artist and sculptor Alexander Calder, who personally supervised the painting in 1973. Braniff put the plane on the South American run and dubbed it "the flying colors of South America."

At $100,000, the airborne artwork was one of Braniff's more expensive publicity ploys.

Now the craft has been grounded and the paint will be stripped so the company can check for corrosion. When the airplane is repainted, it will be in the standard colors and patterns of the rest of the Braniff fleet.

"Calder was an engineer as well as an artist and he would understand the need to repaint it," said Braniff spokesman Jere Cox, who said the company will not try to recapture Calder's designs.

"If Calder were alive, I'm sure he would be glad to come here and supervise the repainting," Cox said. "But in view of his death, we just do not think it would be appropriate. It would be recreating a work of art without the artist himself present."

A curator at a Dallas museum, Sue Graze, agrees with Cox. "I don't think it (stripping the plane) is a tragedy," she said. "We never considered the plane a work of art." Calder's original 6-foot model for the plane is on display at the museum.

"As long as we have the model, we have something for posterity," said Ms.

Graze. "That was what Calder really worked on, anyway."

Some members of the Dallas art community do not agree.

"The Calder jet is a national treasure," Kroft said.

Why is Empathy So Important In Funeral Service

Empathy is the ability to put oneself into the position of another. It is important to a funeral director because it enables him to anticipate the needs of the bereaving family and to more completely meet those needs in his service.

Empathy is a quality shared by all of our personnel.

Strauss calls talks with Sadat 'constructive and worthwhile'

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — U.S. Mideast negotiator Robert Strauss arrived from Egypt today for consultations with Prime Minister Menachem Begin on the outlook for the Palestinian autonomy negotiations, with all sides agreeing they want to move ahead.

The American ambassador told reporters at Ben-Gurion Airport that he had had "most constructive and worthwhile" talks with Sadat and repeated a comment he made in Egypt in which he characterized the sofar slow pace of negotiations as "shifting into second gear."

The chief of the Israeli autonomy negotiators, Interior Minister Yosef Burg, indicated Israel also wanted to speed up the pace. "We have no intention to wait for the last day of the eight months remaining in our negotiations," Burg said.

Strauss told reporters in Cairo Monday after two days of talks with Sadat and Egypt's chief negotiator, Prime Minister, Mustafa Khalil, "I am terribly encouraged and hope to find the same feeling in Israel."

Strauss said Sadat was convinced of the "inevitability of success." But the American conceded "terrible difficulties" lie ahead and said he did not expect a breakthrough on "gut issues" before March.

However, he did seem to share Sadat's belief that the "personal chemistry" he and Begin have developed virtually rules out a breakdown in the negotiations.

"It seems reasonably certain now that we can do it," Strauss said of the possibilities of reaching agreement on the nature of self-rule for 1.2 million Arabs living in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Strauss said both Sadat and Khalil felt that by the time he returns to the Mideast in November "so much will have been either announced or already done that the picture that takes place will be one of success." U.S. officials traveling with Strauss indicated that in the next few weeks the Egyptians and Israelis would begin debating their basic differences instead of arguing about agenda and procedure.

"We will move into second gear," Strauss said.

editor of The Pilot, the Catholic newspaper for the Boston Archdiocese, said "I thought a lot about that (city expenditures) myself. I can see the concern about it, but I feel the city — under the purpose of a public celebration, — has to be aware of costs in so many directions that the line is a very difficult one to define and separate."

Grant compared the pope's visit with that of Queen Elizabeth during the bicentennial. He noted she is head of state and head of the Anglican church and was present at a service at Boston's Old North Church. Grant said he recalled no issue was made concerning city expenditures at the time of her visit.

"It's a toughie, it's a close call," said Lawrence DiCara, a member of the council, which is dominated by Roman Catholics. "I think it's a public safety question first, a religious question second."

"He deserves security and all of the dignity that is afforded a head of state," said Claus. "My problem simply goes to public support of religious services."

On Monday, two Protestant ministers, the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts and birth control and abortion advocate William Baird, objected to the expenditures directed to a City Council hearing on the proposed papal budget.

Claus said he supported money for "security," but was disturbed about spending public money for the platforms that will be part of the Mass.

"This is not a public event," he said, noting that under Roman Catholic law, non-Catholics cannot receive communion during Mass.

On Monday, two Protestant ministers, the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts and birth control and abortion advocate William Baird, objected to the expenditures directed to a City Council hearing on the proposed papal budget.

Claus said he supported money for "security," but was disturbed about spending public money for the platforms that will be part of the Mass.

"This is not a public event," he said, noting that under Roman Catholic law, non-Catholics cannot receive communion during Mass.

Monsignor John Grant,

editor of The Pilot, the Catholic newspaper for the Boston Archdiocese, said "I thought a lot about that (city expenditures) myself. I can see the concern about it, but I feel the city — under the purpose of a public celebration, — has to be aware of costs in so many directions that the line is a very difficult one to define and separate."

Grant compared the pope's visit with that of Queen Elizabeth during the bicentennial. He noted she is head of state and head of the Anglican church and was present at a service at Boston's Old North Church. Grant said he recalled no issue was made concerning city expenditures at the time of her visit.

"It's a toughie, it's a close call," said Lawrence DiCara, a member of the council, which is dominated by Roman Catholics. "I think it's a public safety question first, a religious question second."

"He deserves security and all of the dignity that is afforded a head of state," said Claus. "My problem simply goes to public support of religious services."

Sunflower oil may fill the bill

Some energy experts on this continent have their antennae up, attentive to what is going on in South Africa.

Hendrik Schoeman, minister of agriculture in that country, has announced that a year of intensive research has produced a new fuel: Sunflower oil. Schoeman says that sunflower oil can be used without engine modification to power diesel tractors, a revelation that could make farmers self-sufficient in fuel.

"IF EVERY large maize farmer used one-tenth of the land he is now using for maize production to grow sunflowers," the minister said, "he would produce sufficient fuel to cultivate the remainder of his maize lands."

As for the economics, researchers report the consumption of sunflower oil in a tractor is very similar to that of diesel fuel; the cost per hour works out nearly the same.

Too, the researchers are of the opinion sunflower oil can be used to power diesel locomotives and large trucks as well — and, with slight modifications, diesel passenger cars. Much more testing remains to be done, let it be added. The effect of the prolonged use of sunflower oil on the engine is still to be determined.

So far, however, it looks like a major breakthrough. Sunflowers are easily grown and, unlike petroleum, are a readily renewable resource. Even if the use of sunflower oil as a fuel is restricted to diesel farm machinery alone, the savings in petroleum would be significant — in this country, as well as in South Africa.

THE DEVELOPMENT is certainly worth consideration by the United States, as it struggles with its own energy problems. This country is not as dependent on imported petroleum as in South America, but that should not limit either our inventiveness or our willingness to employ every feasible alternative fuel.

The news that sunflower oil can be used as a substitute for gasoline and diesel should especially be welcome in West Texas, where sunflowers are prolific and often grow wild. If any part of the world is in a position to promote the sunflower as a major crop, this has to be it.

President, rabbit

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — By now most people know the story about the President and the rabbit. For those who don't, it seems the President of the United States was out in a fishing boat alone and was attacked by a ferocious rabbit. The President splashed his oar at the rabbit and drove it away.

When he got back to shore he told his White House staff about the incident but they wouldn't believe him.

Now if this was just the story of a President and a bunny it would be none of the public's business. But the tale does have political implications and it says quite a bit about Mr. Carter's way of running the White House.

In previous administrations it is hard to imagine anybody on the President's staff doubting the word of his boss.

IF PRESIDENTS Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy, or even Nixon had said they had been attacked by a rabbit on a pond a staffer's reaction would have been "Thank God you're safe, Mr. President." Or in the case of President Johnson, Jack Valenti or Joe Califano would have said, "Please tell us about it, sir, and don't leave out the detail."

Even Gerry Ford's staff would have taken the Chief Executive at his word. But such was not the case with President Carter. When he got back to shore with what he thought was a good tale to recount, his people refused to believe him.

As far as it could be learned not one person said, "Well done, Mr. President. That rabbit will think twice next time before he attacks the leader of the most powerful country in the world" or "if this doesn't show you can row and hit a rabbit at the same time, nothing will."

Instead he found nothing but skepticism when he related the story amongst his advisors and friends. Some insisted that rabbits could not swim; others doubted that, even if they could swim, they would attack a person holding an oar in his hand. Still others showed by their silence just how far morale in the Administration had declined.

It is rumored that Ham Jordan had even considered giving everyone who worked for Mr. Carter a loyalty test to find out who believed the President's funny story and who didn't.

President Carter, who never shows his emotions, was crestfallen. The credibility of the Presidency had reached such a low point that, even when Mr. Carter said he had been attacked by a swimming rabbit, no one would take him at his word. Mr. Carter chalked it up to the malaise in the country that had now infected even his own staff.

FORTUNATELY FOR Mr. Carter, a White House photographer, who was on a bluff overlooking the pond, had taken a picture of the battle. Carter showed the photo to his staff who studied it, but they were still skeptical. Someone said, "It's an animal but how do we know it is a rabbit?"

For the first time since he took office Mr. Carter stopped smiling. He ordered Jody Powell to blow up the part of the photo which highlighted the thing in the water. Then he called in the staff again. "Well, is it a rabbit or isn't it?"

They finally decided by a vote of 5 to 4 that it was a rabbit. Jody Powell, who voted with the majority, went ahead and released the story.

The country was assured that a President who had promised Americans when he took office that he would never lie to them had once again kept his word.

But the real question that goes begging is: "Why wouldn't Mr. Carter's people believe him in the first place?"

"Gosh, maybe that furry thing that attacked me wasn't a rabbit! But... naw! It couldn't have been a Teddy Bear."

How to test for milk intolerance

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have been bothered by intestinal upset and I believe I am intolerant to cow's milk. How does one go about proving this? — Mrs. P.W.

The simplest way is to avoid all milk and milk products for a couple of weeks, then drink a glass or two of milk. If the symptoms subside while you are avoiding milk and return after resumption of it, you have a pretty good clue that you have an intolerance. It's estimated that about 33 million Americans have some problem with digesting the lactose (milk sugar) because of some degree of lactase deficiency. Lactase is the enzyme that helps digest the lactose.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am an elderly lady with a heart condition. My doctor thought it was angina pectoris at first. Then, after I wore one of the monitoring devices for 24 hours, he told me it was "supraventricular tachycardia." He didn't go into detail and didn't prescribe any medicine, but told me to relax when I had any pains and they would go away. Can you explain "supraventricular tachycardia?" — Mrs. M.C.

You need just a small anatomy lesson in order to understand. There are four chambers in the heart, two upper (atria) and two lower (ventricles). Tachycardia simply means fast heart beat. If the cause of the fast beat originates in the lower chamber it's called "ventricular tachycardia." Such a condition requires prompt treatment.

"Supra" ventricular tachycardia (which you have) refers to a fast beat that originates in the upper chamber. This is less serious, but not to be ignored. You have had proper attention and your doctor has looked for important and treatable causes for this condition. Perhaps you have the type of fast beat that requires no drug treatment.

There is no diet to follow, but sometimes carbonated beverages can cause an attack, as can stimulants such as caffeine. For a fuller discussion of such matters see the booklet "How to Take Care of Your Heart," which you can order by sending 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Donohue: A few years ago my doctor said I had a weak bladder. Nothing serious, and that I could live with it or have surgery to repair it. Lately, I find I have to urinate every 30 minutes after drinking liquids in the morning. Is there anything I can do to help this problem other than surgery? — Mrs. A.E.K.

A "weak" bladder means that the support for it has "pooped out." Because of this weakening, the bladder does not empty completely and often urine will leak out when a person laughs or coughs.

Your doctor noted the early stage of this problem a few years ago. Now you should return to get an update on your condition. Surgery is the only treatment to correct it. You may be a candidate for that now.

Frequent urination might be a sign of a fallen bladder, but it can also, as you may know, indicate diabetes. While your frequency is probably due to the bladder condition, diabetes has to be considered at your age.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Six years ago I had anorexia nervosa and almost died from it. So here's the question: Could a person like me, who once had this, ever have it again? It's very important to me to know. — Mrs. C.E.

Anorexia nervosa is a total lack of appetite that is not caused by any physical problem. It is a serious condition that can lead to emaciation. There are, as you are aware, psychological problems associated with it. You are to be congratulated on overcoming them and bringing yourself back to health. So long as you continue to keep active and get the nutrition you need there is no reason for you to lapse into your old problem.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Several years ago I had surgery for hemorrhoids and also for birth damage repair. Unfortunately scar tissue developed in the vaginal area. Now this tissue isn't a bit elastic and causes pain on contact. Is there anything one can do to alleviate this condition? Is there any cure outside of surgery? This is very distressing. — Mrs. D.

Sometimes doctors can use a dilator to stretch the tissue. Often enough, however, surgical correction is necessary.

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with this or other rectal problems, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. For a copy of the booklet, "How You Can Control Arthritis," which discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have heard people say that God is a person. What does this mean? I always thought God was a Spirit and did not have a body. — M.L.Y.

DEAR M.L.Y.: I think what most people (including myself) mean when we use this term is that God has a personality. No, God does not have a body as we have because "God is spirit" (John 4:24). But He does have a personality. That is, He is not just a vague, impersonal force, like gravity or magnetism. Just as human beings have personalities, so God has a personality also.

What is God like? What are the various parts of His personality? The Bible has much to say about this — far more than I can recount in a few words. But there are some important aspects of God's personality I think we need to remember. For example, the Bible says that God can be angry. God's anger is hard for us to understand, because we usually think of anger on the human level as something that can be very selfish or harmful. But God's anger is a righteous anger — it is anger against sin. He is righteous and holy and perfect. "Your eyes are too pure to look on evil; you cannot tolerate wrong" (Habakkuk 1:13, New International Version). You should not think that this is somehow unfair of God — remember that we also want justice and that which is right within human society.

Another part of God's personality is His love. This is the most amazing thing about God — He loves us, even when we have sinned against Him. How do we know He loves us? We know it because God has made it possible for our sins to be forgiven and for us to be reconciled to Himself. He sent His Son into the world to die on the cross for our sins. By faith and trust in Him, we can be forgiven.

Do you want to know what God is like? Come to Him in faith by inviting Christ into your life. And then search His Word, the Bible. You will discover that God is perfect, and in His perfect love He cares for us every day.

Freedom of choice

Around the rim

Marie Homeyer

It's not something you think about everyday. It's not a pleasant subject — a subject that many of us think can never happen. But it is possible and one that all of us must think about before it's too late.

I'm talking about our freedom of choice — freedom to choose our lifestyle, our forms of entertainment, our career, the foods we eat, our freedom to say what we think and feel and our freedom of religion — and the possibility it may not always be ours to have.

MANY AMERICANS take these privileges for granted. They have never known any other way of life. Many Americans have only criticisms about their government and rarely ever anything good to say. Wonder how they would feel if they weren't able to voice those criticisms aloud without fear of death. Wonder if they have ever thought about it. Chances are they haven't.

This country is not perfect as is no country. But I feel that it still is the best country in which to live, despite all of its current problems. This fact didn't really hit home until the other night after hearing the story of Al Valdes and his wife of their recent visit to Cuba.

I cannot envision the citizens of the United States being under the control of a communist government as the Cuban people are now. But it is possible. Especially if the current problems with inflation and energy get so bad that people will believe what the communist propaganda has to offer. But what the propaganda has to offer is not really what the citizens will get.

OF COURSE THERE will be no rich and poor or class separation. There will only be poor as there are in Cuba today according to the Valdeses. Americans would eat only when and what the government says. They would have their clothes and just about everything else rationed.

If you are skeptical about this it is only because the communist government only lets the world see what they want it to see — happy people in pleasant surroundings — while they keep the real conditions in the country hidden.

Americans need to realize what they've got going in this country and stop taking it for granted. But many of them won't realize how good they had it until it's all taken away from them. Many of them will never see the day but the children they raised to take the freedoms for granted may see the day. What then?

We need to begin again teaching our young citizens to respect their country for the freedom it offers and the benefits and privileges that go along with that freedom. Because if we don't start soon, the privileges of freedom may be gone before we know what happened.

Energy albatross

WASHINGTON — President Carter's mid-July pledge not to let "one drop of foreign oil more" into the country than was imported in 1977 is becoming an energy albatross around his neck, but one he can shed only with acute political embarrassment.

The oil quota was the one major energy initiative to come out of the celebrated "domestic summit" at Camp David and was the widely praised centerpiece of his July 15 energy speech. But overly pessimistic economic forecasting and the continuing nuclear power freeze within the bureaucracy guarantees reaching the quota much faster than anybody thought possible — quite likely during 1980.

SOON THEREAFTER, U.S. prices will be racing above the OPEC price. To avoid this knockout punch, the temptation to reimpose tight federal controls — and reverse present policy — will be close to irresistible. There would be no effective way to reduce energy demand, despite all the claims made in the name of conservation.

The alternative: back away from the July 15 pledge. "I think the president would be absolutely nuts to stay with the quota," one high-level energy official confided to us. "Nuts" or not, however, Carter seems committed to it. The entire episode is another tragic lesson of what so often happens when the laws of economics are bent to political purposes by the government.

The oil quota idea came from the president's staff, primarily as a device to show critical Western Europe that the U.S. meant business about energy conservation. James Schlesinger, then secretary of energy, protested that this was a descent into madness. But Schlesinger's frequent ally, then Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, opposed him this time on grounds that a quota would strengthen the dollar.

The quota was seized on during the Camp David extravaganza as one solid morsel amid vapid philosophicalizing. Besides, it had the special appeal of a political gimmick. In declaring "this nation will never use more foreign oil than we did in 1977 — never," Carter seemed to be decreasing a level of usage lower than today. In fact, the 8.5 million imported barrels a day during that prosperous year was well above today's level as well as the level then expected for election year 1980.

While the public cheered this seeming step away from energy dependence, experts frowned. "The president is gambling," one congressional staff economist declared in a private memorandum that explained how the OPEC price would no longer serve as a ceiling on domestic prices. The same economist told us a month ago: "Decontrol with a quota means that Carter will succeed in clobbering the economy" (by putting domestic oil under irresistible price pressure).

Since then, the road to ruin has accelerated. The economy's strength in staving off recession has kept oil imports unexpectedly high. But the crowning blow came in one of those exhibitions that makes the multi-faceted U.S. government the wonder of the world.

ON AUG. 24, THE Nuclear Regulatory Commission backed down under pressure, cancelling its announced decision to resume processing licenses for new nuclear power plants. Measured very conservatively, that decision can require an extra 250,000 barrels a day in imported oil by late winter. The Energy Department plans were thoroughly undermined.

Cleaning up his desk before Labor Day, the departing Schlesinger left behind a warning that the 1977 import level was being approached and listing four options for dealing with that calamity. All would put the government back into oil regulation, option No. 4 reinstating straight-out price controls. That would mean Carter had junked his own decontrol program, but this seems the course most likely to be selected by the White House.

It is no secret that Schlesinger, if still at Energy, would urge instead that Carter shelve his "not one drop" pledge of July 15. What Schlesinger's successor, Charles Duncan, would do is a secret. A methodical man, Duncan is now studying his inherited predicament.

Duncan has at his disposal clever Energy Department schemes to escape the woes of clever past schemes. All would circumvent the quota without really lifting it. An example: oil imported for the strategic petroleum reserve (supposedly growing by 300,000 barrels a day) would not count against the quota.

Other officials are stroking their rabbit fee in phantom hope that the quota will not be reached until after the 1980 election, after which it can be safely discarded. But some senior officials are truly unaware that the president took a course at Camp David that must end in folly or embarrassment. A worse fate than wearing an albatross is wearing one without knowing it.

Health book doesn't make cut

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A health education textbook that was criticized for dealing with breast examinations didn't make the cut Monday.

The State Textbook Committee left Scott, Foresman & Co.'s "Health: A Way of Life" off the list of five health education texts recommended for use in Texas high schools.

"I didn't object to the breast exam. ... I just thought a mixed classroom (of boys and girls) was the wrong place to do it," said Norma Gabler of Longview, who had protested the book at an August hearing.

The 15-member committee chose the book as an alternate, meaning it can be adopted only if State Education Commissioner Alton Bowen or the State Board of Education eliminate another book.

She had maintained at the hearing that teaching self-examination for breast cancer was a "fantastic" idea, but not in a class of both boys and girls because it might be embarrassing to some and "exciting" to others.

Two of the three health education texts opposed by Mrs. Gabler, who has critiqued textbooks from a conservative stance for 18 years, were approved by the committee. They are Houghton-Mifflin's "Investigating Your Health" and Laidlaw's "Healthful Living for Today and Tomorrow."

Her main criticism of the two books, she said, was inadequate treatment of drugs. Mrs. Gabler said the Laidlaw book devotes only 43 lines to marijuana and says the evidence on its physical effects is inconclusive.

"If I were a teen-ager and read that little is known about the physical effects of marijuana after all these years, why not try it?" she said in an interview.

She said she would ask board of education to require publishers to expand their drug chapters before adopting their books for use in public schools.

Other books for health education, a required high school course, approved by the committee were Holt's "Modern Health," Webster McGraw-Hill's "Health and Safety For You" and Harcourt's "Your Health and Safety for Better Living."

The state board will adopt textbooks Nov. 10 for health, civics, typing, computer math and auto repair courses. Adoptions will last six years in most cases and may consist of no more than five textbooks per subject. Local school boards choose the books they want from the state list. The state pays for the books.

Civics texts also aroused protests at the August hearing.

The committee recommended Holt's "American Government"; Prentice-Hall's "American Government: Comparing Political Experiences"; Webster McGraw-Hill's "American Government"; Scholastic's "American Citizenship" and Addison-Wesley's "American Citizenship."

Mrs. Gabler had protested the Addison-Wesley, Scholastic and Prentice-Hall books.

Addison-Wesley's book beat out Magruder's "American Government," published by Allyn-Bacon, for the fifth spot on the recommended list. Magruder's has been a staple in Texas civics classes since 1927 and is used by about 49 percent of the students, an Allyn-Bacon salesman said.

Being dropped from the state list means the loss of nearly $1 million in sales to Allyn-Bacon.

Mrs. Gabler had protested

Magruder's because of "an inexcusable amount of editorial opinions and bias," but the committee's discussion centered on the book's difficulty for modern students.

Committee member Kay Carlton of Orange said she had 20 students, including 10 who had passed civics with high marks, evaluate the proposed government texts. She said none favored Magruder's, calling it "too difficult even for the college bound."

Herman Blalock of Houston said that if all five available texts are too difficult for high school students who read at the 6th and 7th grade levels, "these students will be left out. They will not learn government."

Value estimated at $27 million Foreigners buying up Texas land

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Germans are coming — and the Swiss, Mexicans, French, Dutch, Canadians, Scots and others, all buying choice Texas farm and ranch land.

Since March foreigners have bought 53,002 acres of farm and ranch land in 32 counties. The land has an estimated value of nearly $27.3 million.

"There's a lot of money floating around," Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Monday.

Brown distributed the first official federal report on foreign investment in Texas agricultural land.

The 1978 Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act charges the U.S. Department of Agriculture with gathering information on land owned by foreigners and submitting reports to the states.

In April the Texas House killed a proposal that would have prohibited purchases of agricultural land by foreigners.

The largest investors in recent months have been West Germans, who spent more than $7.2 million for 8,456 acres, including over 1,000 acres of citrus groves in Hidalgo County.

Brown, however, expects the next wave of big buyers to be Mexican nationals, who have been involved in 12 recent transactions.

The report, which includes transfers of inherited land, shows 28 separate transactions in Hidalgo County and seven transactions each in Cameron County, also in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, and Zavala County in Southwest Texas.

The largest land sale involved 14,030 acres of "pasture" in Pecos County, purchased by Alvaro Lebriza of Mexico. The most expensive sale was $3,493,023 for 9,206 acres in Delta County, bought by Sulphur Bluff Realty of the Netherlands Antilles.

Brown said the report covered the six-month period ending Aug. 1 and does not show foreign purchases prior to March.

When an estimated 93,000 acres of farm land were purchased in 1978, it was said that at that rate it would take foreigners 25 years to gain control of 1 percent of Texas' 157.9 million farm, ranch and forest acres.

However, Ed McKay of the Texas Farm Bureau has been quoted as saying foreigners already own 1 percent of Texas' farm land.

The Texas Agriculture Extension Service identified Prince Francis Joseph II of Liechtenstein as the buyer of more than 40,000 acres of Texas land last year, an area nearly 1,000 acres larger than his country.

Also, reported the Austin American-Statesman, relatives of the deposed Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza bought a 1,200-acre ranch near Waller in Southeast Texas in 1977.

The 1979 purchases in Texas total only 0.044 percent of the arable land in the state, Brown said in a statement.

"They (foreigners) are paying the going rate," said Brown, "but the sad thing is that if they sell the land they're not required to pay capital gains or income tax on the sale."

"I've got to wonder, though, when I see a Dutch couple buying land in Bowie County — who are they and why are they buying?" said Brown.

Here the counties, by area, in which foreigners have $746,750; Maverick 42, $43,093; and Zavala 4,062, $2,707,071.

Panhandle and Plains — Dallam 794 acres, $293,900; Hartley 701, $523,000; Lubbock 153, $450,000; and Kent 1,920, $102,000, inherited property.

Lower Rio Grande Valley — Cameron 1,541, $2,146,294, plus 59 acres of inherited land with no value; and Hidalgo 1,302, $2,975,537.

North Central Texas — Denton 1,226, $12,441; Ellis 253, $125,000; Delta 9,206, $3,493,023; and Bosque 129, $42,000.

Soviet ballerina shunned

MOSCOW (AP) — Bolshoi ballerina Ludmilla Vlasova, who left her defector husband in New York last month, is being shunned by her fellow dancers and regrets her decision to come home, according to Bolshoi insiders.

Former friends and fellow dancers will not talk to the 36-year-old dancer because they think she "sold her soul" to Soviet officials in exchange for better roles, Bolshoi sources say.

Miss Vlasova was the center of a Soviet-U.S. confrontation when her plane was grounded for three days in New York by U.S. authorities until they determined she was returning to Russia by choice.

Kennedy Jr. enters college

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Reporters and photographers descended on Brown University to witness the start of orientation activities for a special freshman — John F. Kennedy Jr.

Breaking the family tradition of attending Harvard University, Kennedy arrived at Brown on Monday and spent most of the day doing the same as his 1,305 classmates — standing on line and waiting.

Gently protesting that he "hated" being followed by the press, the son of the late president shrugged off questions on whether his uncle, Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, would enter the Democratic presidential race next year.

Country singer honored

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Entertainer Dolly Parton has been given an official thank you for donating her image in an advertising campaign designed to lure fuel-wary tourists.

The country music singer was honored Monday at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon for her efforts at bringing more tourism to Tennessee and to Nashville. Then, in a surprise presentation, she was given the annual Metronome Award as the person in the music industry who has done the most to help the Music City.

Miss America not pushing

NEW YORK (AP) — Cheryl Prewitt, the newly crowned Miss America, says she would be pleased to talk about her faith, but does not want to proselytize.

"I'll be glad to share it, but I don't want to push it," the 22-year-old Ackerman, Miss., native, told reporters Monday.

Miss Prewitt said that winning the pageant was "something I wanted since I was about five years old," but had feared the hope was ended with an auto accident when she was 11.

"My left leg was crushed, and the doctors said I would never walk again," she said. "I knew that to be a happy person I had to walk, and I asked God to heal my leg."

Jailing of six protested

ROME (AP) — French philosopher Jean Paul Sartre and author Simone de Beauvoir joined a half-hour protest in front of Parliament in support of six persons jailed on suspicion of terrorism.

They also signed an appeal of "solidarity" with the detainees, who have been awaiting trial since April 7 in connection with the killing of former premier Aldo Moro.

At the demonstration Monday, the wife of one detainee held a banner reading, "Jailed without proof."

Third rim of Jacob's Well proves fatal to 2

WIMBERLEY, Texas (AP) — Mary Maupin of Pasadena says her 20-year-old son had dived into the dark water of Jacob's Well several times before he headed for the Texas Hill Country cavern Saturday.

"He'd been there several times — but not through the third rim," she said Monday from her home.

It was beyond that narrow third rim that Kent Maupin and Mark Alan Brashier, 21, also of Pasadena, drowned in the dark hours of Sunday morning.

Officials believe the two died after passing through a 20- to 30-inch opening about 80 feet below the surface. Hays County Sheriff Alton Smithy decided Monday it was too dangerous to send a rescue team into the cavern to retrieve the bodies.

A spokesman for the sheriff said Smithy hoped to get pumps to clear the way. Divers who went into the hole Sunday saw the bodies but were unable to free them.

Maupin came from a family of divers. Mrs. Maupin said her son often talked about the places he visited. He was particularly interested in caverns such as Jacob's Well.

"He said it was beautiful but that it was just too dangerous to go all the way down. It was so small. But maybe the water level was low. He's never been one to take chances. It must've looked easy to him. But I guess we'll never know," she said.

Rector McCollum, a security guard for the private resort that owns the well, said divers descend into the deep hole just about every weekend. There was a drowning on Labor Day 1978, and Sheriff's Deputy Ed Cooper said he could recall at least three other deaths here.

The well begins at a 30-foot wide opening beneath a few inches of water in a shady stream near the tennis courts of the resort. The top segment goes down about 40 feet before veering into a second portion. That second chamber extends another 40 feet before the narrow opening into the deepest segment.

It is that narrow opening that Cooper and Mrs. Maupin would like to see closed off. Cooper proposed a metal grate that would prevent curious divers from entering the dangerous area. Divers now must remove their air tanks to squeeze through the narrow passage. Investigators said Maupin and Brashier may have been unable to get their breathing apparatus back in place.

Mrs. Maupin said about 20 members of a Pasadena-area divers club had made the trip. The fatal dive began shortly after midnight Sunday.

"He'd been diving since he was 12," she said. "He said it was beautiful (in Jacob's Well) and he loved it."

Cuba receiving steady flow of Soviet weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Intelligence Agency has predicted a "steady flow" of new Soviet weapons to Cuba, aimed at increasing the firepower and mobility of Fidel Castro's forces.

In a heavily censored version of a report to Congress, DIA experts said, "The weapons could be used equally well in any arena."

The Pentagon's intelligence agency estimated that Russia has given Cuba more than $1.6 billion in free military aid since 1960.

"The state of readiness of the Cuban army continues to improve," the DIA said. "This is because of increased combat experience in Africa, intensified training at home and delivery of new weapons systems."

The report, given behind closed doors to a House subcommittee last April and released recently, said Russia may send Cuba bigger assault guns, mobile surface-to-surface missiles, interceptor versions of the advanced MiG-23 jet fighter, larger troop transport helicopters and additional oceangoing naval combat vessels.

The censored version of the report made only indirect references to Soviet military personnel in Cuba and said nothing about the Russian ground combat brigade there whose presence was recently confirmed by the Carter administration.

It said that Cuba's military, economic and political ties with the Soviet Union are "closer than ever" and that deliveries of Russian military equipment "greatly increased" in dollar value last year.

"Traditionally, Cuba has had to settle for older systems while other Moscow client states received more recent production," said DIA analyst Martin J. Scheina.

"Of late, however, in line with the professionalization of the military, Cuba has been taking delivery on systems comparable to those received by Moscow's other allied states."

In addition to Cuba's extensive involvement in Africa, DIA specialists reported "a noticeable increase in Cuban support of Latin American insurgents."

The report linked what it described as a "resurgence" of Cuban activity in Latin America particularly to the then-raging battle by Sandinista rebels to overthrow the Somoza regime in Nicaragua.

But it also spoke of close Cuban relations with Jamaican Prime Minister Michael Manley and of ties with Guyana.

Support for Kennedy increases recently

WASHINGTON (AP) — for Kennedy in Massachusetts. But 3,200 miles away in Vancouver, Wash., Jim Carty, the Clark County prosecutor, has operated largely as a one-man draft movement and grasps encouragement where he can find it.

Carty tells how at a county fair last month he put out Kennedy campaign material — buttons, brochures and bumper stickers left over from Robert F. Kennedy's 1968 presidential bid.

"They were all gone in less than two hours and weren't well displayed at all," Carty said Monday.

More important, he says, is the sudden change in the response to his frequent letters to Kennedy urging the senator to run.

"In the past, I've always gotten back the standard response you see and hear about," he said. "The one I got back today (Monday) about the response at the fair surprised me."

"It offered me 'many thanks' and 'appreciation' and said, 'I want to thank you for warm words of encouragement and support.' I think he's moving in the right direction."

And in Oregon, Bill Garrett, head of the "Ready for Teddy" committee said he has had so many telephone calls in the past couple of days he "can't keep up."

There's never been any question about the support

(AP LASERPHOTO) — New York City fire fighters carry woman from subway train Monday evening shortly after a rubbish fire brought three trains grinding to a halt. Authorities said hundreds of passengers had to be evacuated after the blaze erupted in a tunnel just south of the Lenox Ave. and 110th Street Station in New York. Many passengers however, chose to remain on the trains rather than walk through smoke-filled tunnels.

Wages not issue in strike against weapons plant

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The reason for a security guard strike at a nuclear weapons assembly plant remained a mystery late Monday, but union spokesmen insisted wages were not the issue.

The next step probably would be to bring in a federal mediator, said Ross Dunham, manager of the Pantex Plant operated for the Energy Department by Mason & Hanger-Silas Mason Co., Inc. All nuclear weapon warheads for the United States are assembled at the plant.

More than 150 guards, members of Local 38 of the International Guard Union of America, voted to reject management proposals and walked out when their contract expired at midnight Sunday.

Dunham, asked why the proposals were rejected, said, "I prefer not to talk about it but it is basically over some administrative matters."

Charles Ratliff, business manager of the local, also declined to talk about obstacles to a new contract. "It is kind of complicated," he said. "We are trying to keep this thing lowkey."

He emphasized the union is not affiliated with the AFL-CIO, and added that other employees are guarding the plant. "We wouldn't have left the plant unprotected," Ratliff said. "We want that known real well."

One security supervisor, who asked not to be identified, said the temporary guards have been trained and know what to do in case of an emergency.

Paul Wagner, area manager of the Energy Department, said the strike "has no effect on our operations whatsoever." The plant employs 1,800 persons.

Wagner said the weapons are "not detonatable" when they leave the plant. "Additional components have to be added to the fusing and firing systems, and these things are added by the Department of Defense," he said.

Both sides said they were willing to resume negotiations, but no talks were set.

Opinion polls misleading, House leader Wright says

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Majority Leader Jim Wright says no president can live up to the nation's "superhuman expectations."

A dismal percentage therefore is shown in the opinion polls when Americans match President Carter's performance against those expectations, Wright said Monday.

The Fort Worth congressman reminded the Woman's National Democratic Club that the president fares considerably better in the polls when matched against a flesh-and-blood Republican opponent.

Wright said the tendency of the media to "magnify errors and nitpick flaws" is another big contributor to Carter's low standing in the polls on his performance.

Carter this year in Mexico became the first president to address another nation's congress in its own language, Wright said.

"It was beautifully received," he said. "Very few were told of the triumph."

Instead, Wright said most Americans remember

Carter's trip to Mexico for a gaffe about the affliction known as Montezuma's revenge.

The congressional leader said the polls that show the public's low regard for Congress' performance may be equally misleading.

A recent poll found only 22 percent thought Congress was doing a good job but 68 percent approved of his own congressman's work, Wright said.

"I suggest to you that is a mathematical impossibility," he said.

Responding to questions from the audience, Wright predicted that the Senate will not ratify the new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty unless the Soviet Union removes or reduces its military contingent in Cuba.

"It's an affront to us," Wright said. "It casts a shadow of doubt on the sincerity of the Soviet Union."

Wright said he favors extending U.S. aid to the new government in Nicaragua even if it has Marxist members because closing the door might insure a turn to the Soviet bloc.

Texas Electric TIPS help keep home electric bills down.

Saving energy — and energy dollars — in your home can be as simple as using energy wisely.

For example, make sure filters are kept clean in your furnace, air conditioner and clothes dryer. This ensures units are operating efficiently. And using less energy. For additional savings on heating and cooling, keep drapes closed for extra insulation on overcast winter days and hot summer days. But on sunny winter days, open them to let the warm sunshine in.

And, turn off ALL appliances when you're not using them. When you stop and think of the many ways you use electricity, you'll see what an energy saver this can be!

For more information — and a lot more tips — get the TIPS booklet from Texas Electric. Just call Texas Electric or ask for the booklet on the comments section of your next electric bill.

At Texas Electric, we're trying to help you keep your electric bill down.

Auxiliary No. 1474 top in publicity

The Veterans of WWI Barracks No. 1474 and its Auxiliary, met Sept. 8 at Kentwood Older Adult Activity Center.

Separate business meetings were held at 10:30 a.m. and a covered dish luncheon was enjoyed at noon.

Commander C.D. Phillips presided at the Barracks meeting with nine members in attendance. President Virginia Bryant presided at the Auxiliary meeting.

The report book from the National Convention held last week in Hot Springs, Ark., gave Auxiliary No. 1474, Big Spring, Texas as No. 1 in publicity for the entire United States.

This honor was earned by Virginia Younger, and she was honored at the National Convention, awarded a certificate for the Auxiliary, and given a personal trophy.

The Ladies Auxiliary will hold their annual garage sale Sept. 14, at 1629 Purdue. All monies received will be used in service to hospitalized or otherwise needy veterans and members.

Meter Cheaters Rewire for God

DEAR ABBY: Some years ago I helped one of my tenants cheat the electric company by installing a special outlet wired ahead of the meter so she could use electricity free. I did it because I felt the electric company had treated her unfairly by cutting off her service before giving her enough of a chance to pay the money she owed them, then charging her an unjust amount to turn it back on.

She's a poor widow on Social Security. I'm charging her about half the rent someone else would be willing to pay.

This lady got away with about $150 worth of electricity before deciding she was even with them, then she asked me to restore her meter to its original state, which I did. Now she's paying for her electricity like everybody else.

Her health has been failing lately, and she told me she wants to make things right with the Lord before she dies. I feel sorry for her and hate to spoil her chances for getting into heaven. Also, I don't want to make my own chances any worse, which aren't too good to start with.

Abby, which one of us will be held accountable for the stolen electricity come judgment day? And how can we both make things right with the Lord?

OMIT THE TOWN IN IOWA

DEAR OMIT: Come judgment day, you BOTH will be held accountable for the stolen electricity. And to make things right with the Lord, first you'd better make things right with the electric company!

DEAR ABBY: We have two children, an 11-year-old daughter and a 9-year-old son. They both do well in school and have always been complimented on their behavior. My husband and I are very proud of them and feel we have made a lot of right decisions in their upbringing, and one being that they don't get something or do something just because the kid next door does.

My husband and I disagree when it comes to our daughter getting her ears pierced. She's the only one among our friends, relatives and neighbors, many of whom are much younger than she, who hasn't had her ears pierced.

My husband refuses to let her. He thinks it's a silly idea for one so young, and that the only reason she wants her ears pierced is because everyone else has had it done—which isn't good enough. It's such a small thing she wants, and if ever a little girl deserves something she wants so desperately, she does.

We can't agree on this, Abby. We want what's best for our daughter and will abide by your decision.

MASS. MOM

DEAR MOM: The word from here is a piercing yes!

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Area home economists attend annual workshop

Area home economists attended the Texas Electric Annual Workshop for teachers and home economists at the Texas Electric Reddy Room, 409 Runnels, Sept. 8.

According to Cheryl Oren, TESCO home economist for the Big Spring Division, the theme for this year's workshop was "Housepower — The Effective Use of Residential Wiring and Lighting."

Participants were welcomed to the meeting by Bob Goodwin, TESCO Division Customer Service & Customer Operations Manager.

The workshop began with a discussion of wiring in the home lead by Gayle Wilson, TESCO home service advisor, from Fort Worth. Ms. Wilson discussed wiring requirements throughout the house, and the problems and signs of ineffective house wiring.

An appliance update on new trends and energy-saving features was also discussed by Ms. Wilson. Participating in the workshop was Casey Jones, TESCO lighting specialist from Fort Worth.

Jones offered slides and a discussion of lighting techniques and principles for effective residential lighting. Ms. Oren presented teachers a school program preview of available programs for their classes during the 1979-80 school year.

Attending this year's workshop were Fern Alexander, Alma Wrightsil, Virginia Martin, Wanda Walker, Charlotta Hamilton, Sue Wilbanks, and Billye Grisham, from Big Spring High School.

Others were Becky Lambeth, Goliad Jr. High

School; Janet Rodgers, Howard County Extension Agent; and Betty Conley, Runnels Jr. High School.

CHOOSE And SAVE

At the July Furniture Market I approached Mr. Bill Maddox, owner of Maddox Mfg. Co. I told him of my son, Dee, joining the firm. He agreed to work out a real value to offer to my customers. This is what was offered to me. 1. A choice of three frame styles — Traditional, Early American, and Contemporary Modern. Using his regular deluxe construction and three fabrics (10 colors) we picked together. 2. He is priding to me (and me to you) these deluxe covers at base (starting) grade. 3. He will guarantee this price to me all of 1979. 4. On top of the already great saving he will deliver them to me with no freight charge. — DAVID ELROD.

USC retains top rating

By The Associated Press

Southern California, Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas held onto the top four places in The Associated Press' first regular-season college football poll today while Stanford, Texas A&M and Arizona State were casualties of the year's first upsets.

Southern Cal, a 21-7 winner over Texas Tech in its opening game, received 47 first-place votes and 1,222 of a possible 1,240 points from a nationwide panel of 62 sports writers and broadcasters.

However, second-ranked Alabama closed the gap from the preseason poll. The Crimson Tide, which opened by thrashing Georgia Tech 30-6, received 14 first-place ballots and 1,172 points. The margin of difference in the preseason poll was 1,242-1,141.

Neither Oklahoma nor Texas has played yet. The Sooners received two first-place votes and 1,068 points while the other No. 1 ballot went to Texas, which accumulated 962 points.

Penn State, fifth in the preseason poll, also was idle and slipped to seventh place behind Purdue and Michigan, which posted impressive triumphs. Purdue trounced Wisconsin 41-20 and climbed from sixth to fifth with 931 points while Michigan swamped Northwestern 42-7 and jumped from seventh to sixth with 898 points.

Then came Penn State with 823 points, idle Nebraska with 742 and idle Notre Dame with 644. Michigan State defeated Illinois 33-16 and held onto 10th place with 594 points.

Cooper's stock still best among Texas schoolboys

By The Associated Press

Abilene Cooper, the preseason choice in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football poll to win the state Class 4A title, did nothing to tarnish its image in the first week of play last week, although the Cougars defeated "only" a Class 3A school.

Cooper's stock remained high because the team they humbled was defending state Class 3A champion Brownwood, which went into the game ranked No. 1 in its classification.

Abilene Cooper, which lost to Brownwood last year when the Lions went unbeaten in 15 games, blasted Brownwood 50-14 in one of the worst defeats ever for veteran Coach Gordon Wood.

Jasper, which defeated Henderson 27-7 last week, moved up from third place to assume the No. 1 position in 3A, while Pittsburg in 2A and China Spring in A, retained their leadership roles.

The loss toppled Brownwood into seventh place among the 3A ranks this week. McKinney dropped from second to eighth place after a 15-14 loss to Paris, which jumped from 10th to sixth.

Two other 3A teams, Tulo Midway and Snyder dropped from the rankings after losses and No. 9 Hunstville and No. 10 Gainesville moved in as replacements.

LaPorte kept the No. 2 position in Class 4A while Lake Highlands leapfrogged over Seguin into third place and Seguin dropped to fourth.

Dallas White, rated fourth last week, dropped from the top 10 after a 19-7 loss to Lake Highlands. Also disappearing were Plainview and San Antonio Jay.

The newcomers in 4A are No. 8 San Antonio Roosevelt, which beat Jay 54-21, No. 9 Odessa Permian and No. 10 Fort Worth Richland.

Bridgeport and Tahoka, ranked sixth and ninth last week, disappeared from the Class 2A list after losses and were replaced by Breckenridge and Comanche.

Injuries no excuse for Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia baseball fans have been mugged.

Last December after the Phillies acquired free agent Pete Rose the club all but opened a World Series ticket window. Rose was the link that would take the Phillies over the hump after the National League East champions had lost three consecutive league playoffs.

The attitude was that the Phillies might clinch the East by July 4. Bake McBride, Larry Bowa, Rose, Greg Luzinski, Mike Schmidt, Garry Maddox, Bob Boone, and later Manny Trillo, read like an All-Star lineup.

Why vote? Just send the Phillies against the American League in the midseason classic.

Season ticket sales boomed after the Rose signing. The fans were walking on cloud nine.

All the Phillies had to do was throw their gloves on the field and the rest of the NL East would get hardening of the arteries.

But something happened between December and September. As fall approaches, the Phillies are in fifth place, a fistful of games behind the division-leading Pittsburgh Pirates. They trailed the Chicago Cubs, St.

Louis Cardinals and Montreal Expos as well.

Phillies fans were stunned. The boos rolled around Veterans Stadium like claps of thunder. The team that couldn't lose made more fundamental mistakes than a Little League club.

Management, sensing fan discontent, fired Manager Danny Ozark, the same manager who led the team to three consecutive division titles. They knew it wasn't Ozark's fault. You can't, however, fire 25 players.

What happened to Wonder Team?

They had an unusual run of injuries. But that's no excuse. All teams have injuries. That's why you have 25 players.

Ozark did too much experimenting; too many lineups; perhaps questionable handling of the pitching staff. But he won with the same tactics in 1976, 1977 and 1978. That wasn't the answer.

What it came down to was sub-par performances by some of the heralded stars, unsound baseball. Some guys were still missing signs in September. The team lacked cohesion. One guy didn't pick up the other the way good teams do.

Use fourth quarter touchdown to overcome Eagles Falcons up to old tricks in victory

SHOULDER TACKLE — Eagles Frank LeMaster (55) hits Atlanta Falcons William Andrews flipping him off his feet Monday night in game at Philadelphia's Veteran Stadium. Andrews picked up five yards on a draw up the middle before hitting the artificial turf. Eagles Reggie Wilkes (51) is in near background. Falcons won the game, 14-10.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons always seem to find a way.

Last year, the Falcons won six games in the last two minutes en route to their first appearance in the National Football League playoffs.

This season is only two games old and Atlanta has pulled two games out on plays manufactured in fantasyland.

In the opener against New Orleans the game went into overtime tied at 34. Then a center snap sailed over the Saints' punter's head. The punter tried to pass the ball. It was intercepted for a six-yard touchdown.

Monday night, the Falcons played the Philadelphia Eagles on the NFL's weekly national television game. They showed their supernatural powers again. Atlanta trailed 10-7 in the final period. Tom Pridemore intercepted a pass and returned it 20-yards to the Eagles' 17.

The Falcons had a third down from the Eagles' 13-yard line. Quarterback Steve Bartkowski went back to pass and the play he had called was soundly defended by the Eagles.

That didn't stop the Falcons. They scored a touchdown on the play that stood up for a 14-10 triumph and a 2-0 record. The Eagles slipped to 1-1 after opening with a 23-17 decision over the

New York Giants.

"The winning touchdown was an ad lib play," said Bartkowski, the fifth-year Falcons' quarterback. Bartkowski gave all the credit to Wally Francis who caught the ball in the end zone.

"Francis has a tremendous knack to work himself open. He saw the outside blocked and worked his way inside," Bartkowski explained.

"Quite frankly I didn't think the play would work," said the Falcons' quarterback who completed 10 of 16 passes for 123 yards. "We tried the same play earlier on the other side and Philadelphia had it covered extremely well."

"Actually it didn't work the second time, because they had the flat covered so well. Fortunately Wally found an opening. And there was no safety there. And besides, Alfred Jenkins ran a tremendous pattern and ended up setting a pick just like in basketball to help Francis get open."

Earlier, the Eagles had taken a 3-0 lead in the first quarter on a 35-yard field goal by rookie Tony Franklin. After Bartkowski scored on a second period quarterback sneak, Philadelphia regained the lead on a 3-yard pass action run by quarterback Ron Jaworski to lead 10-7 at halftime.

The third period was scoreless, although the Eagles disdained a chip shot field goal with a fourth and one at the Atlanta seven to try for a first down on fourth down and one. They didn't make it.

That decision came back to haunt Eagles' coach Dick Vermeil as his team reached the Atlanta 38 in the final seconds. If they had taken the earlier field goal, Franklin, a thunderfoot kicker might have won it with a field goal.

Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett said his team went into the game with the idea of establishing the running game. He said they accomplished their goal. He expressed pride in the offensive line, which opened the way to 145 net yards rushing. Rookie William Andrews, who gained 167 yards last week, added 121 against the Eagles. And he was a blocking back at Auburn last year.

Vermeil said he went for that fourth and 1 because his scouts in the press box said the Eagles needed only two feet.

"I had confidence we could make two feet," Vermeil said. "If we went for the field goal, we would have gone up 13-7, and they still could have made a touchdown and beat us 14-13. I didn't think this was the turning point."

Knight won't go to Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Bobby Knight, the embattled basketball coach at Indiana University, faces six months in jail and a fine of $500 if he ever sets foot in this U.S. Commonwealth, but he says he probably never will.

Knight was convicted in absentia on Aug. 22 of assaulting a police officer during the Pan American Games. On Monday, District Judge Rurico Rivera formally set sentence, the maximum allowable for the misdemeanor offense.

Although he was not available for comment Monday, Knight said at a news conference Sunday in Bloomington, Ind., that he had no intention of ever going back to Puerto Rico, where he coached the U.S. men's basketball team to the Pan Am Games title last July.

After setting sentence, Judge Rivera issued an arrest order. Carlos Romero Barcelo, governor of Puerto Rico, said he would not consider extradition for a misdemeanor, however, and Indiana Gov. Otis R. Brown added he "would not be willing to allow Bobby Knight to be extradited."

After his conviction in August, Knight was given two weeks to show up in court to appeal if he wanted. Since Knight did not show up, the judge set sentence.

Knight was charged with assault after an incident during a practice session. It started when the Brazilian women's team arrived eight minutes early for practice while the U.S. men's team still was on the court. Knight asked that the women's team be told to leave until its assigned time.

Policeman Jose Silva said Knight swore at him and hit him during the argument. Knight said at the Sunday news conference that he accidentally brushed Silva with his finger tips when the policeman poked him in the eye while shouting and waving his arms during the argument.

Boston Globe considers action against Clayborn

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Globe says it is considering litigation against New England Patriots' defensive back Raymond Clayborn following a locker room scuffle in which Clayborn and Globe writer Will McDonough exchanged punches.

Clayborn, a former University of Texas star, apologized to McDonough and the rest of the news media Monday, telling a small Foxboro news conference, "I'd like to make an apology to Will for the incident that occurred in the dressing room after the game last Sunday and also to you guys (reporters) for being belligerent in not giving you interviews. I do not plan on letting anything like that happen in the dressing room... again."

McDonough could not be reached for comment, but the Globe said he refused to accept the apology.

Vince Doria, Globe sports editor, said, "We're disappointed that neither the Patriots nor the National Football League deems this incident serious enough to take immediate action to prevent harassment of reporters in locker rooms. The reporters are professionals, just as are the athletes. At this time, we are considering several courses of action, including litigation."

McDonough was not at the news conference Monday, but Clayborn said he would write him a formal note of apology and personally apologize to him the next time he saw him.

Clayborn reportedly poked McDonough in the eye after both exchanged words in the Patriots locker room Sunday following the Patriots' 56-3 trouncing of the New York Jets.

McDonough received a clean bill of health Monday from an ophthalmologist, who checked the writer for a scratched eye suffered in the incident.

Runnels splits with Seminole

The Runnels Yearlings girls volleyball teams split their matches last night with Seminole at the Runnels gym.

The Runnels White team, led by high point server Laura Baum, scored a 13-15, 15-10, 16-14 victory over their counterparts. Others impressive in the win included Paula Spears, Vicki Halfman and Jane Tercero.

The Runnels Red team then dropped an 8-15, 1-15 decision to Seminole. The Red team was led by the play of Tammy Yancey and Andy Burns.

Runnels returns to action next Monday when they visit Snyder.

Goliad loses to Seminole

Despite encouraging performances, both the Goliad girls volleyball teams went down in defeat in seventh grade action Monday evening to Seminole.

The Black team lost a 10-15, 4-15 decision to Seminole. Those participating for the Black team included Lisa Subia, Tonya Ferguson, Gloria Bustamonte, Linda Arroyo, Sheri Criswell, Taylisa Cork, Jennifer Richardson, Yvonne Smith, Diane Arnold, Teresa Adamson and Rosie Garcia.

The White lost by scores of 10-15, 11-15. Members of the White team were Adrienne Allen, Tria Clemon, Janet Anderson, Kelly McLaughlin, Amanda Perriman, Tonya Tompkins, Tonya Gilstrap, Teresa Martinez, Alice Lopez, Debbie Holguin, Delia Correa and Darla Witte.

Managers for this year's Goliad team are Christy Bartlett and Kim Garrison.

Linda Jones, Goliad coach, expressed pleasure with the play of the girls, and feels that with improvement better things will come.

Goliad will meet Colorado City next week beginning at 4:30.

Fall Slowpitch meeting set

There will be a meeting for representatives of teams wanting to play in the Fall Slowpitch Softball League Wednesday, September 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Johnny Stone Memorial Park. Anyone interested needs to attend, urges John Weeks.

Rookie gives Cards a running threat

By The Associated Press

The numbers on the scoreboard were ominous. Third-and-5. A tough time to be a quarterback.

Jim Hart, who has faced his share of tough times over the years with the St. Louis Cardinals, looked at the scoreboard and then at Ottis Anderson. And instead of frowning, he smiled.

"Having him back there allows you to do so many things," Hart said. "You don't have to throw ... even on third-and-5. You know he can go for five or six yards a crack. They bring in that nickel (five defensive backs) defense in a passing situation and it's tough to throw against it. Now we don't have to throw."

Ottis (that's right, two t's) Anderson has given an extra dimension to the Cardinal attack. He is strong and quick. Give him the football and watch the sparks fly. In two National Football League games, Anderson has rushed for 193 and 111 yards. He is only the fourth rookie in 60 years of NFL history to go over 100 yards in each of his first two professional games. Old Double T has been exciting with a capital E.

"There's no question about that," said veteran Cardinal defensive back Roger Wehrli, who gets to watch Anderson from serenity of the sidelines. "It doesn't look like he's going that fast, but he runs with those long strides. He keeps his feet close to the ground. It almost looks like he's shuffling along. I wouldn't like to have to tackle him."

Anderson was drafted in the first round by the Cardinals and carried the blue-chip reputation that accompanies all No. 1 selections. When he ran up and down the backs of the Dallas Cowboys for nearly 200 yards in his debut, it did not simplify his life.

"Because of what I did in that game, I came into this game more tense than I was in that one," Double T said after going for 111 against the New York Giants.

AN EXTRA DIMENSION FOR CARDS ATTACK — Ottis Anderson, St. Louis Cardinals running back, wears wide smile Sunday as he leaves the field at Giants Stadium, East Rutherford, N.J. That's Giants Ken Johnson, at right. Anderson, a rookie, has given an extra dimension to the Cardinal attack. In two NFL games, he has rushed for 193 and 111 yards. He is the fourth rookie in six decades of NFL history to go over 100 yards in each of his first two pro games.

Pastorini, White Shoes injured

Oilers hurting after Steeler bout

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers hoped to learn today if they lost anything more than a football game to the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday — like wide receiver Billy Johnson and quarterback Dan Pastorini.

Johnson, who missed most of the 1978 season with a knee injury, suffered torn ligaments in the other knee Sunday during Houston's 38-7 loss to the defending Super Bowl champion.

Pastorini left the game on a stretcher after suffering a bruised right shoulder. Houston Coach Bum Phillips said Pastorini would play in Sunday's home opener against the Kansas City Chiefs if the injury is not more serious than already determined.

The prognosis did not appear as bright for Johnson. "We sent Billy to a specialist in Atlanta, Ga., to get another opinion," Phillips said. "All we can do is wait and hope."

Phillips said Johnson was examined today. Meanwhile, the Oilers coach started regrouping. "This was only the end of a game, not the end of the season," Phillips said Monday. "We didn't play the caliber of football that Houston is used to playing."

Despite the completeness of the defeat — Pittsburgh held Earl Campbell to a career low 38 yards rushing — Phillips isn't conceding the American Football Conference Central Division race to the Steelers. "We had a demoralizing loss to Atlanta in our first game last year," Phillips said. "And we were 1-1 after two games last year and that's the same record we've got this year. We're going to have another shot at Pittsburgh."

Pittsburgh held the Oilers to 124 total yards and mauled Pastorini, who completed only four of 16 passes for 16 yards and had three interceptions.

"It wasn't all Dan's fault," Phillips said. "Would you call it all his statistics? There were other factors involved too, not just Dan's throwing."

Oiler cornerback Willie Alexander said the Oilers lacked aggressiveness. "Our defense played what was called," Alexander said. "There was no above-and-beyond-the-call-of-duty going on out there."

Phillips said that the Oilers' defense was "out of sync" and that the Oilers' offense was "out of sync" as well. "We're going to have another shot at Pittsburgh," Phillips said. "We're going to have another shot at Pittsburgh."

Phillips said that the Oilers' defense was "out of sync" and that the Oilers' offense was "out of sync" as well. "We're going to have another shot at Pittsburgh," Phillips said. "We're going to have another shot at Pittsburgh."

Astros visit Reds for two-game series

Richard vs. Seaver in tonight's crucial game

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, who trail by half a game in the National League West, battle head-to-head tonight and Wednesday night with the division-leading Houston Astros, but none of the Reds wants to put too much importance on the series. "We know one series isn't going to win it," said Dave Collins, the Reds' hot-hitting super. "We've got to take it like any other series."

Collins, who leads Cincinnati batters with a .318 average, said the Reds know what to expect from Houston.

"You're going to get good pitching, and they execute well," he said. "They do the little things well; that's why they're where they are. And everybody in the lineup can run."

Both Houston and Cincinnati had a day off Monday, and first baseman Dan Driessen said that might help the Reds.

"Both sides know they can't take anything for granted," Driessen said. "Everybody will be up for the series, everybody on both sides."

But Driessen also thought the division title wouldn't be determined this week, even if Houston were to sweep the series.

"As long as we're real close, anything could happen," he said. "I believe it could go to the very end."

First night pitchers were scheduled to be Tom Seaver, 14-6, for the Reds, and J.R. Richard, 16-12, for Houston. Each has been hot lately, Seaver winning 12 of his last 13 decisions and Richard leading the league in strikeouts and possessing a string of 37 innings without an earned run.

Tomorrow night, the Reds' Mike LaCoss, 14-6, will face Joe Niekro, who leads the National League in victories with an 18-9 record.

Baseball Roundup

Royals, Twins split twinbill

It will happen every so often: a player or manager will sit and stew after a game, say "I don't have anything to say," then vent his frustrations for five minutes or so.

Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch did it Monday night, after his Twins spent six hours, 52 minutes splitting a two-night double-header with the Kansas City Royals and staying in third place — 6½ games behind the American League West-leading California Angels.

"I don't have anything to say," his speech began, "except that we played all night for California."

"We have to win every game the rest of the season. You're darn right we had to win two. But to that we have to play a lot better than we did in the first game. We played all night for the Angels. That's exactly what they want to happen."

Like the man said, nothing to say. The Twins lost the 4½-hour, 14-inning opener 6-5 when Hal McRae blasted a Mike Marshall pitch over the fence. They salvaged the nightcap 5-2 with the help of Roy Smalley's two-run homer in a four-run Minnesota sixth.

The nightcap left the Royals second, four games behind California — exactly where they started the evening — leaving Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog to offer these comments:

"We're definitely in a situation where we need help. We needed help from Milwaukee this weekend. The Angels are hot."

Smalley's homer wiped out a 2-1 lead the Royals had built on consecutive fourth-inning homers by George Brett and Darrell Porter.

"I hate double-headers, anyway," offered Smalley. "You hardly ever win double-headers. This was our ninth doubleheader. That's 18 ball games that you figure to go 500."

That's what they did Monday night.

Red Sox overcome Orioles

Jim Rice drove in two runs and Bob Stanley pitched eight innings of four-hit ball to help Boston beat Baltimore. But the Fenway Park crowd of 30,618 — which sent the Red Sox' total attendance past the 4-million mark this season — missed seeing Yastrzemski become the first American Leaguer to amass 3,000 hits and 400 homers.

"The fans here tonight wanted to see it and I wanted to get it," said Yastrzemski. "I want to get it with you."

Mariners bomb Rangers

Fifth-inning home runs by Willie Horton and Leon Roberts — the first Seattle hits — carried the Mariners past the Rangers. The homers were the 34th and 35th given up this season by Texas right-hander Ferguson Jenkins.

PUBLIC NOTICE

BRIEF EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS SPECIAL ELECTION NOVEMBER 6, 1979

PROPOSITION NO. 1 ON THE BALLOT (H.J.R. 108)

House Joint Resolution 108 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution relating to the appointment and terms of notaries public. The proposed amendment would:

- Require the Secretary of State to appoint a convenient number of Notaries Public for the state; and
- Authorize terms of office of Notaries Public of not less than two years nor more than four years.

A temporary provision of the proposed constitutional amendment provides that the amendment would take effect January 1, 1980; that each person who was appointed a notary public before January 1, 1980, would continue to serve as a notary public for the term for which the person was appointed; and that this temporary provision would expire January 1, 1982.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to provide for the appointment of notaries public for the state and for a term of not less than two years nor more than four years as provided by law."

The process of rulemaking by agencies in the executive department."

PROPOSITION NO. 3 ON THE BALLOT (S.J.R. 13)

Senate Joint Resolution 13 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution authorizing the Legislature to provide for the guarantee of loans used to purchase farm and ranch real estate for qualified borrowers. The proposed amendment would allow the Legislature to provide for, issue, and sell general obligation bonds called "Farm and Ranch Loan Security Bonds" of the State of Texas not to exceed 10 million dollars. All money received from the sale of such bonds would be deposited in a separate fund with the State Treasurer and administered by the commissioner of agriculture without further appropriations. These funds would be used to guarantee loans for the purchase of farm and ranch real estate. The commissioner of agriculture would use these funds, under provisions to be prescribed by the Legislature for the purpose of guaranteeing loans used for the purchase of farm and ranch real estate, to acquire real estate mortgages or deeds of trust on lands purchased with guaranteed loans. These funds would also be used to advance to the borrower a percentage of the principal and interest due. The Legislature may authorize the commissioner of agriculture to sell at foreclosure any land acquired in the manner authorized by this amendment. The commissioner of agriculture would be required to charge at least 6 percent interest on such loans. The proposed amendment appropriates an amount that is sufficient to pay the principal and interest on the bonds that mature or become due during the fiscal year less the amount in the interest and sinking fund at the close of the prior fiscal year.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to provide for the guarantee of loans for purchase of farm and ranch real estate for qualified borrowers by the sale of general obligation bonds of the State of Texas."

PROPOSITION NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT (H.J.R. 133)

House Joint Resolution 133 proposes an amendment to the Texas Constitution to provide for legislative review of the process of rulemaking by agencies in the executive department. The proposed amendment would allow the Legislature to enact laws:

- To provide for legislative review of the process of rulemaking by agencies in the executive department;
- To prescribe conditions for rules to take effect;
- To provide for suspension, repeal, or expiration of rules;
- To prescribe procedures; and
- To delegate powers to either or both houses or to committees of either or both houses.

AVISO PUBLICO
Breves Declaraciones Explicativas De Las ENMIENDAS CONSTITUCIONALES PROPUESTAS ELECCION ESPECIAL 6 DE NOVIEMBRE DE 1979

PROPOSICION NO. 1 EN LA BOLETA (H.J.R. 108)

La Resolución Conjunta #108 de la Cámara de Representantes propone una enmienda en la constitución de Texas referente al nombramiento y a los plazos de los notarios públicos.

La enmienda propuesta: —Requerirá que el Secretario de Estado nombre a un número conveniente de notarios públicos para el estado; y —autorizará para que los plazos oficiales para notarios públicos sean por no menos de dos años y por no más de cuatro años.

La provisión temporal de la enmienda constitucional propuesta declara que la enmienda entrará en vigor el 1° de enero de 1980; que cada persona que haya sido nombrada como notario público antes del 1° de enero de 1980 continuará ejerciendo como notario público hasta vencer el plazo por el que fue nombrado; y que esta provisión temporal se vencerá el 1° de enero de 1982.

La enmienda propuesta aparecerá en la boleta como sigue:

"La enmienda constitucional para el nombramiento de notarios públicos para el estado para un plazo de no menos de dos años ni de más de cuatro años, según lo previsto por la ley."

PROPOSICION NO. 2 EN LA BOLETA (H.J.R. 133)

La Resolución Conjunta #133 de la Cámara de Representantes propone una enmienda en la constitución de Texas para proveer una revisión del proceso reglamentario en las agencias del departamento ejecutivo. Esta enmienda propuesta permitirá a la Legislatura el decretar leyes:

- Para proveer una revisión legislativa del proceso reglamentario en las agencias del departamento ejecutivo;
- Para prescribir condiciones para que las leyes sean puestas en vigor;
- Para suspender, revocar o expirar las reglas;
- Para prescribir procedimientos; y
- Para delegar autoridad a cualquiera o a ambas cámaras, o a los comités de cualquiera o de ambas cámaras.

La enmienda propuesta aparecerá en la boleta como sigue:

"La enmienda constitucional para autorizar a la Legislatura para que por medio de la venta de bonos de obligación general del Estado de Texas, provea una garantía para que las personas calificadas puedan obtener préstamos para la compra de bienes raíces agrícolas y ganaderas."

La Resolución Conjunta #13 propone una enmienda en la constitución de Texas para autorizar a la Legislatura para que provea una garantía de préstamos, a las personas calificadas, para la compra de bienes raíces agrícolas y ganaderas. De esta manera, la enmienda propuesta podría permitir a la Legislatura el proveer, emitir y vender bonos de obligación general llamados "Farm and Ranch Loan Security Bonds" (Bonos de Seguridad Para Préstamos Agrícolas y Ganaderos) del Estado de Texas, sin exceder la cantidad de $10 millones de dólares. Todo dinero recibido de la venta de estos bonos sería depositado en un fondo diferente en la Tesorería Estatal y sería administrado por el comisionado de agricultura, sin más apropiaciones. Estos fondos garantizarían préstamos para la compra de bienes raíces agrícolas y ganaderas. El comisionado de agricultura usaría estos fondos bajo las provisiones prescritas por la Legislatura, con el propósito de garantizar préstamos para la compra de bienes raíces agrícolas y ganaderas; para adquirir hipotecas de bienes raíces o escrituras de bienes raíces compradas con préstamos garantizados. Estos fondos serían usados también para adelantar un porcentaje del principal y del interés debido en esos préstamos, a la persona que califique para el préstamo. La Legislatura también podría autorizar al comisionado de agricultura para que venda cualquier terreno adquirido mediante esta enmienda. El comisionado de agricultura requeriría al menos un 6 por ciento de interés en dichos préstamos. La enmienda propuesta aparecerá en la boleta como sigue:

"La enmienda constitucional para autorizar a la Legislatura para que por medio de la venta de bonos de obligación general del Estado de Texas, provea una garantía para que las personas calificadas puedan obtener préstamos para la compra de bienes raíces agrícolas y ganaderas."

WELCOME LOTTIE — Denise Pirtle welcomes Keith Roark and his cataract-stricken guide dog, Lottie, to San Antonio. Mrs. Pirtle is attempting to adopt Lottie, who is no longer suitable as a seeing-eye dog. Roark is on a nationwide journey to find the perfect home for his dog.

Blind man trying to find home for his cataract-stricken dog

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Keith Roark will never see Mike and Denise Pirtle's home. But the blind man will instinctively know if it's right and that will end his devoted nationwide journey to find the perfect home for Lottie, his cataract-stricken guide dog.
 Roark of Decatur, Ga., who has been forced to give up his companion of eight years because of her own failing eyesight, arrived here Sunday night and turned Lottie over to the young San Antonio couple until Wednesday.

Either the Pirtles or a Tucson, Ariz., couple will get Lottie by the end of the week, Roark said. His strict requirements have eliminated the rest of the 800 families who read of Roark's plight and offered to adopt the friendly, tan-and-black German shepherd.
 "Lottie is part of me and part of me is going to be gone. She is not a dog; she is my eyes," the 47-year-old Roark said Sunday night as he arrived, hugging Mrs. Pirtle at the gate. Lottie shook hands with the Pirtles and nestled beside Mrs. Pirtle as Roark talked to reporters.
 Lottie, who is 10, can no longer serve as a guide dog, but is still suitable as a house pet. Roark said it's impossible for him to keep Lottie while trying to grow accustomed to the new dog he'll receive Oct. 1.
 Roark said he wanted to find Lottie the perfect home or he would have been forced to have Lottie destroyed. His plight received nationwide publicity.
 "It was heartbreaking," said Mrs. Pirtle, 27, who read about Lottie in a San Antonio newspaper and wrote to Roark. "I couldn't see anybody putting a dog to sleep because she is going blind. I grew up with German shepherds. I love them. I want to spoil Lottie. She'll be treated like a member of the family."

 Mrs. Pirtle's 13-year-old German shepherd, Sarge, had to be destroyed three years ago. "Reading the story about Lottie brought back so many memories," she said.
 Mrs. Pirtle is a supermarket employee and sophomore at San Antonio College, while her husband, also 27, works for the state highway department.

Lottie will remain alone with the Pirtles, but they must call Roark with progress reports each hour they are awake. Roark will remain in his downtown hotel to give Lottie a chance to decide if she likes it there.
 Roark will then visit in the Pirtles' home and take Lottie back to the hotel Wednesday to make his decision.
 Roark, who lost his sight 10 years ago while serving with the Air Force in Vietnam, said he has been to 10 cities in his quest for Lottie's retirement home. He and Lottie visited last week in Tucson with the Richard Johnson family, the other finalist.
 Roark, who was a basic trainee in San Antonio, came here from Las Vegas, where another prospective family was eliminated because they lived in a condominium without a large enough yard for the dog.
 Roark's decision, he said, also will be based on whether he encounters any discrimination against his seeing-eye dog in the cities where the families live. Roark said he has encountered such discrimination in many cities.

 The Pirtles have signed a notarized agreement in which they promise to adhere to an incredibly strict set of requirements.
