FTC decision

Advertising ban of AMA illegal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Medical Association illegally restrained competition among its physician members by restricting their advertising and solicitation of patients, the Federal Trade Commission decided today.

The commission ordered the AMA to stop imposing the restrictions. But, reversing an earlier initial decision by an FTC administrative law judge, the commission ruled that the AMA may formulate "reasonable ethical guidelines" governing acceptable advertising.

"Ethical principles of the medical profession have prevented doctors and medical organizations from disseminating information on the prices and services they offer, thus severely inhibiting competition among health care providers," commissioner David Clanton said in the FTC opinion.

"It is especially important that price advertising remain as unfettered as possible," the opinion added.

Although the AMA had no immediate comment today, the association is thought likely to appeal the FTC's ruling to a federal court. In advance of the decision, the AMA said it would appeal any unfavorable ruling.

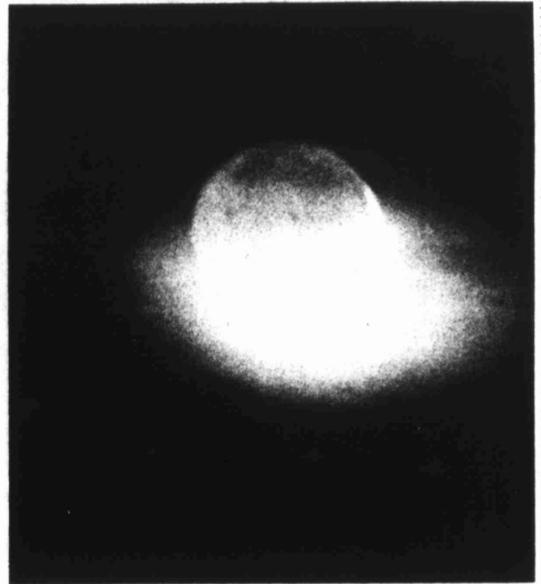

In permitting the AMA to publish "reasonable ethical guidelines," the commission recognized that the association has a valuable role to play in deceptive advertising by physicians.

In allowing some self-regulation of advertising and solicitation, the FTC declined to follow the law judge's preliminary ruling, which came nearly a year ago.

That decision would have barred the AMA from any regulation of physician advertising for two years and would have allowed the AMA to issue advertising guidelines thereafter only with FTC approval.

BAFFLED SOME — Some folks in Big Spring thought they saw a lunar eclipse last night. It was not an eclipse, according to John Beasley, instructor at the Big Spring High School planetarium, but it was somewhat unusual. What was seen was a crescent moon which appears in the sky about twice a month. At this time of year, according to Beasley, the angle of the moon nearest to the Earth looks a lot steeper than usual and background visibility gives it perspective, particularly right after sunset or just before sunrise.

Three perish in plane crash

Two Angelo State University students and a former student were killed Tuesday night when their light plane crashed in Sonora, a college spokesman said today.

Dead are Beverly Borren, 19, of Imperial; Jennifer Cooke, 20, of Odessa and Michael J. Stucky, 20, of Peabody, Kan.

Officials said the pilot, Todd David Carlisle, 20, was injured and hospitalized in San Angelo. He is a former ASU student.

The plane crashed about 9:30 p.m., just after taking off from the Sutton County airport.

The cause of the accident is being investigated by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Three absentee ballots cast

Only three absentee ballots have been cast in County Clerk Margaret Ray's office for the upcoming Nov. 6 constitutional amendment election.

The election will decide whether the state needs provisions for inmates public serving terms of not less than two years or more than four.

The election will also decide if there should be legislative review of process of lawmaking by executives in the executive department.

The last proposed constitutional amendment is to authorize guarantee of loans for purchase of farm and ranch real estate to qualified borrowers by sale of state general obligation bonds.

Recent oil profits indicate need for 'windfall profits,' Carter says

NEW YORK (AP) — The Carter administration says the recent profits of oil companies demonstrate the need for a "windfall-profits tax." But analysts say the president's proposal would have had little impact on those earnings.

With several oil companies reporting their profits at least doubled in the third quarter over last year, the administration has renewed efforts to push the controversial tax through Congress.

Conoco Inc., the nation's ninth-largest oil company, said Tuesday its third-quarter earnings were 134 percent above last year's third quarter — more than double. Gulf Oil Corp., ranked fifth, reported a 97 percent increase.

Earlier, Exxon, the world's largest oil company, had posted a 118 percent gain for the quarter; Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), a 49 percent increase; and Atlantic Richfield Co., 45 percent.

"The third-quarter earnings reports of major U.S. oil companies dramatize the merits of our proposed windfall-profits tax, which is fair both to the oil companies and to the American people," Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said Tuesday, echoing a statement the president made Monday.

Miller said the tax is needed to develop alternate energy sources and assist poor families overburdened with high fuel costs.

President Carter proposed the tax earlier this year to dampen the profits oil companies earn from the decontrol of domestic crude-oil prices, which began several months ago. The tax actually would be on the extra revenue, not profits, from decontrol. Without the tax, oil companies would keep more of the revenue as profits.

The Senate Finance Committee planned to discuss a windfall-profits tax bill today. The Senate version of the tax would produce an estimated $142 billion in revenues from 1980 to 1990. The House has already passed a bill backed by the president that would produce twice the revenues contained in the Senate proposal.

But most of the profits being reported by oil companies for the third quarter are the result of increased earnings from foreign operations, which would be unaffected by the proposed tax.

The amount of oil-company profits this quarter that could have been affected by the tax, even in its most stringent version, is quite small, according to Larry Goldstein, an analyst at the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, a study group partially supported by oil industry funds.

economy and its policies toward Jewish settlements in the occupied West Bank.

The Knesset voted only once, on all five motions as a package.

Begin recalled Defense Minister Ezer Weizman from Egypt and four other members of his Likud Bloc traveling abroad to bolster his forces, which normally include 41 members of Likud, 12 from the National Religious Party, 7 from the Democratic Movement, and 4 from Agudat Israel.

Moshe Dayan, who resigned as foreign minister Sunday because of his inability to modify the government's hard line on Palestinian autonomy, voted with the government as he said he would.

No-confidence motions are a routine occurrence at the opening of Knesset terms, and the Labor Party did not make a major effort to rally support. But opposition leader Shimon Peres asserted in presenting the motions that even though Begin would defeat them, his government had lost the confidence of the people.

"The Labor alignment believes there is no choice but immediate elections," Peres said.

The voting attracted more attention than usual because of two government set backs at the start of the week, Dayan's resignation and a Supreme Court ruling that the seizure of privately-owned Arab land for the Jewish settlement of Elon Moreh in the West Bank was illegal.

The court ordered Elon Moreh dismantled within 30 days. It said private lands could be confiscated only for purposes of defense, but that Elon Moreh had been established for political purposes, not for the defense of Israel.

Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon, the cabinet minister in charge of settlements and a leading advocate of expanding them, visited Elon Moreh Tuesday and was told by the settlers they would resist the court order.

"This village is here to stay," said Avraham Shit. "No Jewish army will remove a Jewish settlement from its home and only a foreign army."

Focalpoint

Action/rection: Life expectancy

Q. Has life expectancy gone up or down the past few years? Seems to me there's an awful lot of deaths due to cancer and heart's disease.

A. Government figures show life expectancy increased by 1.7 years from 1972 to 1976, an impressive statistical leap. And do you know what got the credit? The 55 MPH speed limit imposed by the government. Other contributing factors were medical progress and better self care.

Tops on TV: 'House Calls' hailed

Waiter Matthau is witty as usual, and Gienda Jackson wry and sophisticated, also as usual, in "House Calls," airing at 8 p.m. on CBS. Although these two are capable of carrying this tale of a widowed surgeon determined to take advantage of the new sexual freedom, the movie also features some hilarious bits by Art Carney. Meanwhile, NBC will try to boost its prime-time ratings with reruns of the best segments from "Saturday Night Live," at 9 p.m. Who knows, it's better than anything else in that time slot.

849 Texas rigs digging

The number of working oil rigs in the state climbed its upward trajectory this week.

As of Monday, 849 rigs were making hole, compared to 829 for the previous week. This tops the 807 total for last month, but is still low the 855 total for a year ago at this time.

The nationwide total also rose slightly this week. A total of 2,399 rigs were making hole, compared to 2,391 for last week. This tops the 2,311 total for last month, and the 2,347 total for this time last year.

Gas rationing voted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, party as a gesture of frustration at soaring oil industry profits, reversed itself today and voted to retain price and allocation controls on gasoline through mid-1981.

By a 225-189 margin, the House overruled a vote earlier this month for immediate and full decontrol — a step some critics said might have sent retail gasoline prices soaring toward $2 a gallon.

The vote came as members of Congress expressed dismay at reports of recent oil industry profits. "It's just an absolute and utter disgrace," said Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill.

The turnaround was a victory for the Carter administration, which favors removing price and allocation controls gradually.

The previous House vote in favor of gasoline decontrol, on Oct. 12, was 191 to 188.

First 'John Hour' aired

NEW YORK (AP) — The city-owned radio station, WNYC, has broadcast the names of nine men convicted of patronizing prostitutes in the first "John Hour" as promised by Mayor Edward I. Koch.

The station also aired the ages and addresses of the men, convicted since Oct. 9, when Koch said names of those convicted would be broadcast. Four of the men, aged 20 to 64, gave out-of-town addresses. All were arrested in Manhattan.

Koch said the names were being broadcast "to deter people from roaming New York City's streets picking up prostitutes... I am not making any moral judgment about prostitution."

Exhumation hearing set

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The Fort Worth Court of Civil Appeals will hear arguments next April 24 on British author Michael Eddowes' lawsuit seeking to have the body of Lee Harvey Oswald exhumed.

Eddowes filed the suit earlier this year, contending that the corpse in the grave may not be Oswald's, but that of a Soviet spy. Last week, Dallas County medical officials joined Eddowes in asking Tarrant County to open the grave and settle the controversy, but officials here said they would do so only under a court order.

Oswald, who the Warren Commission said shot President John F. Kennedy, was gunned down two days after the assassination in 1963.

Detectives serve

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Six Philadelphia homicide detectives have been ordered to begin serving 15-month jail terms for beating witnesses and suspects in a firebombing case.

U.S. District Judge Donald Van Arsdale on Monday directed them to begin their sentences Nov. 8 at a minimum security prison to be chosen by the Bureau of Prisons.

The detectives were accused of beating and threatening witnesses to force them to sign statements used to convict a Philadelphia man in a 1975 firebombing. The man spent 15 months in jail before he was cleared by another man's confession.

Midland voters defeat bond issue almost 2 to 1

MIDLAND — A proposal to authorize $10.2 million in expenditures for improvements and additions to the Midland school system was beaten by a margin of almost 2 to 1 here Tuesday.

A total of 4,806 voted against the bond issue while 2,948 gave their approval.

Of the amount sought, $5,542,270 would have gone for improvements to Midland High School. Of that amount, $1 million would have been spent on the purchase of 13 residences west of the campus.

Advocates of the plan would have also authorized $2.1 million for construction of a new elementary school in the northwest section of the city, had voters okayed the bond issue.

For the record

In the Monday Policebeat of the Big Spring Herald, Richard Gutierrez, 610 N. Gregg, was erroneously identified as the driver of a car stopped by police Sunday morning.

Richard Joseph Nunez, 710 N. Scurry, was the driver and Gutierrez was a passenger in a vehicle searched at N.W. 2nd and Gregg, 2:28 a.m. Sunday.

The pair were arrested on an unlawful carrying of weapons charge after two pistols were found in the glove compartment. They were released on a $2,000 bond each Sunday morning.

The Herald apologizes for any inconvenience or embarrassment caused by the error.

Warrants due for three

District Attorney Rick Hamby received information from Howard County Sheriff's Deputy Eddie Owens recently that will lead to warrants for three arrests for the burglary of Knowlton's Gun Shop.

Leal behind bars in county jail

Thomas V. Leal, Robstown, was transferred to county jail today on suspicion of burglary of Ward's Western Wear. No formal charges have been filed, but three jackets were recovered from the Howard House where Leal was arrested on suspicion of public intoxication.

Leal is in custody in lieu of $5,000 bond set by City Judge John Coffee.

Canales freed

Disidro Junior Canales, 1210 Harding, has been released on $20,000 bond set by Justice of Peace Lewis Hefflin. Canales was arrested last Wednesday on suspicion of aggravated robbery.

Excitement mounting as Turkey Walk nears

Excitement is mounting among Heart Association volunteers preparing for the Annual American Heart Association Turkey Walk in Big Spring. Julie Shirey, chairman of the event, estimated that over 75 joggers, walkers, and runners will take part in the Saturday event.

The "walk" will be held between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. and continue along a measured route around the top of Scenic Mountain. Along the route, checkpoints will record and certify the mileage achieved by the participants.

Probation hearing due

Jesse Ramirez, 608 NW 3rd, was transported back to Howard County from Fort Worth Tuesday for a revocation of probation hearing. He was arrested last week by Fort Worth police after a routine stop revealed the suspected probation violation.

Ramirez is being held without bond pending revocation of probation hearing. He entered a guilty plea to burglary in 118th District Court Jan. 12, 1976 and received a probated six-year sentence.

A motion for revocation was filed by District Attorney Rick Hamby April 17. It charged Ramirez with failure to report to his probation officer, pay court costs and restitution.

Tax papers delayed

COAHOMA — The Coahoma Independent School District has announced that is experiencing an unavoidable delay in getting tax statements mailed due to the extra workload created by exemptions granted this year by the Legislature.

The statements will be mailed to taxpayers as soon as the district receives them. Their arrival is anticipated late this week or possibly next week.

Suspect jailed, keys missing

A suspect in the theft of an automobile from an unnamed Big Spring resident was arrested Friday night. The name of the victim is being withheld because the suspect threw the victim's keys from the car. Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said the keys, if found, could be used to get into the victim's house.

The suspect has not been formally arrested for the theft and his name is also being withheld. Standard asked that anyone finding the keys notify the sheriff's office. They were thrown from the car near the corner of 10th and Gregg across the street from the Civil Defense office.

Cathey ranks ninth among bull riders

Wacey Cathey, a native of Howard County, ranks ninth among bull riders in unofficial Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association standings with winnings for the year totaling $27,548.

First in the ratings is Don Gay of Mesquite, Tex., who has won $52,723 during 1979. There are nine Texans among the top 20 bull riders in the country but only Gay outranks Cathey.

The others are Ken Henry, Happy, Monty Taylor, Allison, Ricky Bolin, Mesquite; Eddie Rawson, Cedar Hill; Sandy Kirby, Greenville; Mike Bandy, Adkins; and Art Ray, Keller.

Cathey won the bull riding event in the Dallas rodeo with 162 points, scored atop two bulls. His winnings at Dallas totaled $2,911.

A finish among the top 15 bull riders would qualify Cathey for the National Finals scheduled in December.

Tom Ferguson of Miami, Okla., is no longer the No. 1 ranked cowboy in PRCA standings. Ferguson was overtaken by Paul Tierney of Rapid City, S.D., last week. Tierney earned $5,395 in the State Fair Rodeo in Dallas and now has a whopping $81,227 compared to $79,793 for Ferguson.

Tierney's Dallas win also boosted him to the top position in calf roping with total of $53,861, passing Ferguson's total of $53,704.

Tierney and Ferguson are the only two cowboys in the history of professional rodeo to have crossed the $80,000 mark in a single season.

Ferguson has dominated the No. 1 spot in the PRCA All-Around Cowboys ranks since 1974.

Juvenile criminals, Rim topics discussed by advisory panel

Should the names of juveniles who commit serious crimes be carried in newspapers?

That was a question raised in Tuesday night's monthly meeting of the Herald Citizens Advisory Board, held in the Chamber of Commerce offices.

A sub-committee headed by Adrian Randie will end some thought to the matter and consult readers before reporting back to the board next month.

There were arguments pro and con for the practice at last night's meeting. Some expressed the opinion that the publication of the names of such offenders might promote a stronger discipline on the part of the parents.

Others took the view that many juveniles are often accused of crimes they do not commit and would be held up to ridicule by their peers if their names were made public.

It was the consensus of the group that far too much vandalism is committed in the Big Spring area and the miscreants go unpunished because they do not get the proper supervision at home.

The Herald again came in for criticism for its numerous errors in spelling and in basic grammar. The free license its Rim writers have to write about any subject, as long as their articles are not libelous, also came in for some spirited debate. An article written about a local utility firm's policy of demanding unrealistic deposits for new customers drew sharp criticism from Mike McCracken, a member of the board. McCracken said the writer did the utility firm a disservice because she was not factual.

It was announced by Tom Watson, Herald publisher, that another readership survey would be taken by the Herald sometime in 1980, this one more business-oriented than those in the past. Results of the survey will be made available to members of the board.

The Herald's policy in running pictures without accompanying stories, a practice common among most publications, came in for some comment. One of the panel members said she believed it would help the reader if rules of some kind were inserted between pictures which have no relationship to stories run above or below them.

The Herald was also praised as a firm whose personnel is acutely aware of its market and who write for that market.

Next meeting of the board will take place Tuesday, Nov. 20, in the Chamber offices.

No one came up with better idea

Economically speaking, these are parlous times for America. The pessimists say we are in the twilight of the gods. The optimists insist we are simply experiencing some rough sailing but the weather will clear and make for smoother sailing.

THE CARTER ADMINISTRATION is, without a doubt, worried. It has authorized an increase in the prime interest rate. The stock market, acutely sensitive to such things, has taken a dizzying plunge.

Carter apparently told the money lenders to go to it because no one came up with a better idea.

As columnist Joseph Kraft noted recently, the administration had struggled for months to win support for an anti-inflation program which would (it was hoped) slow down the meteoric rise of the price of practically everything without sending the country into a recession. Voluntary wage-price guidelines, some curbs on credit and moderate restraints on government spending: Such was the stuff of which the administration's program was made.

As matters turned out, it simply was not equal to the task. Remorselessly, implacably, the annual inflation rate continued to climb. By August, the rate of inflation in consumer prices had topped 13 per cent. At the same time, General Motors and the United Auto Workers had just concluded a three-year agreement that shot the president's voluntary guidelines full of holes.

It was incontrovertibly time for drastic action, and that's just what we got: The Federal Reserve Board announced over the weekend it was moving to tighten credit — really tighten credit. Consequently, the prime interest rate (that rate reserved for a bank's best customers) — went up to an unprecedented 14½ per cent. This foreshadowed a whole host of woes: Higher expenses for homebuilders and home purchasers, a boost in the unemployment rate, production cutbacks...but at least we'd be gaining some kind of purchase on the inflation problem, wouldn't we?

THE RETURNS ARE still out on that all-important question, but already we have seen the price we are going to have to pay for this exercise in belt-tightening. As noted, the stock market immediately went through the floor, taking its steepest dive in five years. The dollar, after momentarily firming up against foreign currencies, resumed its downward spiral. The price of gold shot up again after a brief pause.

All of which leaves the administration in a cleft stick: Obviously, it had to do something; but if in responding to the problem it succeeds in making a bad situation even worse, Mr. Carter might as well chuck it all in. All of us will be affected to some extent by the economic moves of the last few days — but none of us more directly or intimately than the somewhat forlorn figure of Jimmy Carter.

Problems common

Around the rim

Robbi Crow

It's really refreshing and comforting to find out that I'm not the only family news editor in the State of Texas that feels like pulling her hair out every now and then.

I RETURNED SUNDAY from a four-day Texas Daily Newspaper Association Lifestyle Editor Seminar which was held in the beautiful and historic city of San Antonio. And even though I didn't receive answers to all of my questions and solutions to all my problems, I know now that I am not alone. There are at least 50 plus family news and lifestyle editors nearing complete baldness also.

It is interesting to note how identical our problems really are.

1. Too little space to work with;
2. Too lengthy club reports, which, if cut, result in problem No. 3;
3. Irate club women who demand that there 12 inch story, filled with who read the minutes, who said the prayer and who cleaned up afterwards, not be cut, and

4. Upset mothers of the bride who want to know why their daughters' wedding write up wasn't as long as the others.

The list could go on and on. A host of informative, intelligent and interesting speakers from the Missouri School of Journalism in Columbia, Mo., lead the seminar bringing up numerous points, suggestions and criticisms dealing with section contents such as birth announcements, club news, wedding write-ups, food pages, feature stories and columns.

One question raised by one seminar speaker was "Why run past club news when the only people who read the write ups are the club members themselves who already know what went on at the meeting because they were there? Wouldn't a write up prior to the meeting announcing it and revealing the program topic or guest speaker serve a more informative purpose to the public readers?"

Great point! Fantastic point! But immediately all of the TDNA seminar participants, almost simultaneously, counteracted with the response "Because club women get points per inch at state for the publicity they squeeze out of the family news editors on their club. We'd all be burned at the stake."

Another great, fantastic point. There are more club women than there are family news editor. We'd never stand a chance.

However, this particular speaker was quick to point out that "we aren't in the newspaper business to provide brownie points for clubs and we didn't supply the public with a newspaper to keep their scrapbooks up to date."

Still another good point. But you try telling 250 club presidents and reporters that. Like I said the entire population of lifestyle and family news editors would be burned at the stake, no questions asked.

IT WAS ALSO brought out at the seminar that the family news section serves as somewhat of a public relations department for the newspaper. Running a birth announcement here and a wedding there, at no charge, is a public service to the community. It creates good newspaper-community relationship.

But did you know a large number of newspapers with the larger circulations have adopted the practice of charging a phenomenal fee to run a wedding write-up in the paper. I learned that a decent wedding write in a Houston paper costs, at the very least, $130.

Count your blessings Big Spring brides. You've got it sooooo goooooood.

More than anything else, the seminar enlightened me with oodles of ideas for the family news section. I can hardly wait to put them into motion.

Even though all of my problems connected being a family news editor weren't solved at this one seminar, it will make it a little bit easier to grin and bear it just knowing that I'm not alone.

President, anyone?

William F. Buckley, Jr.

The day's mail brings a form letter from Sen. Robert Dole ("Dear Bill" — but one doesn't resent such ventures in diplomacy. President Dole, before he is through his first term in office, might find it necessary to send a letter to "Dear Pol," — to Pot. If a presidential candidate cannot bring himself to address a potential constituency informally, he is in the wrong business).

Sen. Dole makes the point that a) Ted Kennedy is bound to be nominated by the Democratic Party, and b) he, Sen. Dole, is uniquely qualified to contest Sen. Kennedy's qualifications for president.

WHY? BECAUSE they have sat side by side, or very nearly that, in the Senate during all those debates. Only someone who tackled Kennedy on the Senate floor is in a position dramatically to demonstrate to the American people how Kennedy actually behaved in the legislature, when on almost every issue touching vital American interests — our defense establishment, our foreign policy, inflation, super-government — Dole was eyewitness to the profligacy of Sen. Kennedy's appetite for the attrition of American power and of the U.S. dollar — not a bad point, what?

And George Bush writes. In this space in recent weeks mention was made that Mr. Bush had resigned his membership in the Council on Foreign Relations, the reason given being the conviction of a few Americans, most of whom spend their time on the typewriter, using capital letters, and red ribbon, to explain to George Bush that the Council on Foreign Relations is an instrument of David Rockefeller who is an instrument of the Illuminati who is an instrument of the devil, and does George Bush really desire to become president of the United States in order to advance the best interests of the devil?

Well, actually George Bush doesn't, other alternatives commending themselves to him. But George Bush advises that not only did he quit his membership in the CFR a while ago, he quit his membership in virtually everything, including the directorship of several companies, from which he drew his principal income.

HIS MOTIVES, in short, were categorical: He thinks it prudent that someone running for president of the United States should not permit any suggestion that there is any conflict of interest plaguing him. In short, he was not merely succumbing to the pressure of the kooks: He was making an impartial gesture. He remains, he writes, a trustee of one or two Texas colleges. One assumes this will not encumber him in the opinion of the voters. It is not yet received doctrine that Texas colleges are enemies of the social interest, although Professor John Kenneth Galbraith has a book on the press, and it is possible that revelation is forthcoming.

Mr. Bush ends his letter with the handwritten scrawl, "By the way: I am quite certain to be nominated." A cosmopolitan friend, perusing that letter, observes: "If he thinks anything less than that, he should get out of the race."

A third letter comes from a sophisticated Jewish-American intellectual, a liberal of enormous talent and understanding who knows as much about America as anyone since de Toqueville, and she writes that there is only one person who could with confidence lay claim to the presidency, namely Pope John Paul II. Although the lady is intrepid, she recognizes there are obstacles in the path of any such design.

But the pope cannot run for president because the Constitution forbids it — he was born in Poland.

"Residents of low-lying areas are warned that Hurricane Teddy, packing winds of up to 190 mph, has abruptly changed course and will slam into..."

Most hernias represent 'wear and tear'

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can you write about hernias — where they are, etc.? I am at a loss about my "femoral" hernia. Can you tell me its location, appearance and whether symptoms differ from something like a thigh muscle strain? How susceptible is it to strangulation? — J.E.M.

The medical description of a hernia is the "protrusion of any organ or tissue through a supporting structure." If that sounds confusing, a few examples might clear things up. The common inguinal hernia is a bulging of the abdominal contents (a bit of intestine, for example) through a small defect in the abdominal wall. This "defect" at one time wasn't a defect at all, but a normal passage present during the body's development before birth.

Normally, this passage shrinks. In some people it doesn't shrink enough, and later in life a hernia develops at the site. Some abdominal contents may protrude through it.

Many other such passages form during early development. Others may form as part of the wear and tear of living. Most do, so there are many types of hernias, as you've learned.

Now, the femoral hernia is a similar situation found in the upper part of the groin near the thigh muscles. There should be no problem distinguishing between a thigh muscle and a hernia problem. As with any hernia, the femoral type is a soft, painless bulge.

Strangulation means that the protruding tissue is pinched, cutting off blood supply. Prompt surgery is required for this. Strangulation is uncommon, but may happen with a femoral hernia. Strictly an aside — hernia always struck me as a beautifully-sounding word. I would even think of naming my first daughter "Hernia."

Dear Dr. Donohue: I work a graveyard shift and can't get more than four hours sleep in the day because of a busy schedule. Each night I take two to three NoDoz tablets to stay awake at work. Will this damage my bladder and kidneys from the caffeine in the tablets? Will they destroy vitamins? — Mrs. S.B.

If you are taking any pills to stay awake you are harming yourself. Your body is trying to tell you something. You need sleep.

The active ingredient of NoDoz is caffeine (100 milligrams per tablet). A cup of coffee has 100-150 milligrams of caffeine. So you are getting the equivalent of from two to three cups a night — more if you are also drinking coffee at work.

Caffeine does not destroy vitamins. It should not hurt your body in moderation. The lack of sleep will. Thomas Edison was supposed to have required only four hours of sleep a night. But his friend, Henry Ford I, said of this: "That may be true, but Mr. Edison sleeps eight hours during the day."

Dear Dr. Donohue: The results of my complete physical and chemical profile showed my alkaline phosphatase level to be high. All other tests were normal. I had a repeat test that showed the same thing. I do have a gum disease. Could that be related? What is alkaline phosphatase? — J.P.

Alkaline phosphatase is an enzyme found in many organs of the body. It is especially prominent in the bones and the liver. When either is damaged, the alkaline phosphatase level in the blood rises. It is also higher normally in pregnancy and during growth years.

Perhaps your dental problem, if it is involving the jawbone, is causing your alkaline phosphatase to be up.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is it true that more women than men get migraine headaches? Do children ever get them? — B.C.

According to a recent report, more males get migraine before age 10. After that age the problem is more common in females. That should also answer your questions about children and migraine. Youngsters do get migraine headaches, and may as early as three months, according to Dr. William Speed III of the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine.

Headaches — you can beat them! Write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Tame Headaches." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My neighbors belong to a religious group that is not, I suppose, really Christian. But they are so sincere and committed to their beliefs that I wonder if maybe they have something I don't have. Do you have any opinion about this? — Mrs. L.S.

DEAR MRS. L.S.: The sincerity of your neighbors is impressive, but you should remember that sincerity is not the test of truth. It is possible to be sincerely wrong. For example, I might take a pill, believing that it will heal me, but if the labels have somehow been switched and the pill is harmful, all the sincerity in the world won't make it right. A child may sincerely believe there is no harm in playing with a poisonous snake, but that child's sincerity will not keep it from being bitten.

It is the same way in religious matters, although it may be harder to see it than would be the case with a

Traffickers busy

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — A new real estate boom has hit Florida, and it has federal officials worried. They are convinced that Latin American drug traffickers are buying up seashore property, not only as an investment for their illicit millions, but as an aid to their smuggling operations.

"Buying beachfront property means they can boat their Colombian marijuana right up to their private property," a knowledgeable source told us.

The drug traffic into the United States is largely controlled by organized crime, which rakes in the greenbacks by the billions. The estimated haul from drugs is more than $40 billion a year.

The hottest item is the lowly marijuana joint, which generates most of the cash flow. This means every pot smoker contributes indirectly to organized crime.

AN ESTIMATED 90 percent of the popular psychotropic weed now comes from one South American country: Colombia. There is strong evidence that a lot of the cash that American pot smokers lay out for Colombian Gold is going into Florida real estate and other legitimate investments in the Sunshine State.

A secret Drug Enforcement Administration report details what happens to the money that pays for the 20 million pounds of marijuana smuggled into this country from Colombia each year.

Much of the money is initially deposited in Miami banks, in cash deposits "ranging in size from $30,000 to $950,000 with an average of $200,000," according to the confidential DEA report.

The cash deposits consist mostly of $20 bills "brought into the bank in bags, boxes or suitcases carried by young men who appeared to be U.S. citizens dressed casually in jeans and T-shirts who refused to show any form of identification," the report states.

The cash flow is both large and steady. One account in a Miami bank handled more than $4 million in cash deposits in a single month. A DEA survey of just 19 out of 100 suspect accounts "revealed cash deposits totaling in excess of $53 million in a six-month period," including a one-month total of more than $20 million.

The banks provide a respectable and useful front for drug dealers, who unload their cash and then draw on their accounts to buy real estate and legitimate businesses. One DEA report notes that "the wife of a prominent trafficker" actually purchased a bank for $4 million in 1977.

So much money flows into Florida banks from Colombia that the Miami branch of the Federal Reserve Bank accepts direct deposits of U.S. cash from the Central Bank of Colombia. "No other foreign Central Banks make direct deposits to the Miami Branch," a DEA report states.

THE DEPOSITS from the Colombian central bank make up almost 15 percent of the total cash receipts at the Miami Federal Reserve branch. Much of the money is then transferred by wire to the Colombian bank's account at the Federal Reserve in New York.

Some of the drug profits are in turn transferred to banks in countries that offer tax exemptions and other advantages to depositors who want no questions asked — or answered. One trafficker had $5 million transferred by TELEX from the Miami account to a bank account in Panama, a DEA report noted, adding: "Other transfers from bank accounts involved banks in Switzerland, the Bahamas, Venezuela and the Grand Caymans."

But a healthy chunk of the money — day bootleggers' income stays right in Florida. A Miami real estate consultant, Charles Kimball, studied foreign purchases of Dade County real estate, focusing on property that sold for more than $300,000. He told our associate Dale Van Atta that in the first six months of this year one-third of these expensive properties — $421 million worth — were bought by foreigners. The buyers included oil-rich Arabs and drug-rich smugglers.

At least half of the foreign purchasers were South Americans, Kimball found. They included a group of Bolivian and Colombian citizens who have been buying property at Key Biscayne, Richard Nixon's old home stamping ground.

Political Pipeline: Ex-President Gerald Ford, chatting with us over lunch in Palm Springs, Calif., said he has made up his mind not to try again for the White House — although he will accept the nomination if the Republicans become deadlocked and turn to him at the convention next year. "The former president confided that he had come within a whisper of choosing a woman, Anne Armstrong, as his running mate in 1976...Ford received a telephone call from Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., the other day asking him to run for the Senate next year against Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif. Ford politely declined...No past president has been quite as flagrant as Jimmy Carter in passing out the taxpayers' money to buy his renomination. The word has gone out from the White House to Democratic leaders across the country that federal blessings for their constituencies will depend on their support of Carter...This has resulted in a perceptible cooling toward Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., among party poobahs who don't want to lose federal aid and patronage. The federal carrot has already cost the Senator support in Chicago, Detroit, Miami and New York City, whose leaders love federal benefits more than Kennedy.

Ousted shah faces possible surgery

NEW YORK (AP) — Guarded by his private security force and a veil of secrecy, Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, ousted ruler of Iran, faced more tests and possibly surgery today at New York Hospital amid reports he has been treated for cancer for years.

A spokesman, Robert Armao, described the shah as in good spirits, saying he was "happy to be in the United States." Armao said reports of the shah's condition had been exaggerated.

"He is far from breathing his last breath, but obviously he is an ill man," the American spokesman said. Armao said the shah had received "thousands of telegrams from Iranians" wishing him well.

A hospital administrator said reports on the shah's condition would be updated today, but declined to say what information, if any, had been obtained through various tests already completed.

A State Department source, who asked not to be identified, said the shah had a blocked bile duct and was suffering from cancer. He did not specify the type of cancer.

The New York Daily News today quoted unidentified sources as saying the shah had lymphoma, cancer of the lymph system, and had been receiving chemotherapy treatment for years.

It said the chemotherapy recently had become less effective and the shah had developed a high fever and lost weight.

CBS and the Daily News, meanwhile, reported the shah would undergo gallbladder surgery today. Blockage of the ducts through which bile leaves the liver can be caused by tumors, inflammation and gallstones.

The newspaper said Dr. Benjamin Kean, the shah's personal physician, would oversee a team of surgeons including Dr. Burton Lee, a noted lymphoma specialist, in the operation.

The shah, who will be 60 on Friday, received visits Tuesday from his wife, the Empress Farah, and other relatives in the $300-a-day room at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center where his own bodyguards were joined by private agents.

The luxurious Beekman Place townhouse owned by his sister, where the Empress Farah is staying, also is under heavy guard. City police were not assigned to protect the shah but they reportedly beefed up their patrols around the hospital.

The new government of Iran, led by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, has put a $135,000 price on the shah's head and promised asylum to the person who assassinates him. A Tehran newspaper has offered a free trip to Mecca, the burial place of the prophet Mohammad and Islam's holiest shrine, for anyone who kills the ruler deposed in a January revolution.

The shah arrived in New York by private jet from Mexico on Monday, traveling on a special visa for medical treatment only.

Although he had been active and in apparent good health during his exile in Mexico, observers were quoted as saying he had taken a turn for the worse in recent weeks, lost weight and was jaundiced.

New York-Cornell has an international reputation for treating a variety of diseases, including heart illness and cancer. Across the street and connected by an underground passageway is Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center.

What goes on inside the poll taking?

A recent Roper Report says that support for President Carter rebounded in August, with most Democrats behind him, and that half of the nation doesn't blame him for inflation.

Behind these findings were hours of painstaking discussions in which the Roper organization tried to predict issues that could remain newsworthy, frame fair and credible conclusions.

Burns W. Roper, head of the Roper organization and son of the late founder, gave The Associated Press a rare inside look at the process.

It is July 31, and Roper is meeting with three of his colleagues to cut the 103 possible questions they have prepared to a manageable 42.

The first casualty is a question about the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, or SALT. Roper says that it was asked three times in the past year, but staffer John Brennan suggests that it will remain pertinent. "It's heating up a lot," Shirley Wilkins, Roper's president, interjects. The question goes out anyway — no room.

There is considerable debate about a series of questions concerning President Carter's energy policy and the fuel shortage.

"If we want to know what the effect of the president's speech was, we ought to go with the two-parter," says Roper, rejecting the similar question proposed this time in favor of finding out whether the public thinks there was a real shortage.

That decided, three questions related to the rejected one are eliminated. And so it goes all morning, three times through the questionnaire, until the pollster reaches his goal.

On the next day, they go through the even more delicate process of trying to avoid influencing a response by using loaded words. They also try to make sure that the questions cannot be misinterpreted.

Perhaps the thorniest wording problem begins this way: "Some people say that the power to solve the country's big problems lies with the president. Others hold that these problems are caused by a lot of things outside the president's control." Respondents are to be asked for the answer "closest to your feelings" on the president and his handling of inflation, energy, unemployment and world peace.

Roper objects to one response, which says, "It's mostly the president's fault — he has the power but he's not making the right decisions."

The pollster says he can imagine someone believing that these problems are worse elsewhere in the world and that "fault," therefore, doesn't apply. Also, he says the question doesn't make clear whether it is this president or any president.

"What bothers me," Roper continues, "is that you're saying, 'Why is the president doing a lousy job?'"

After considerable wrangling, Miss

Wilkins volunteers: "How this inflation problem is handled is largely within the president's control. Whether it is handled well or badly depends upon who is in office." But Brennan wants to retain an evaluation of Carter, and the group eventually decides on Roper's version.

It breaks the question into two parts — one on "how much effect you think a president can have" and one on "how you would say this president is doing."

The scene shifts.

A 62-year-old former caseworker for the juvenile court system is trying to find West Side and Cemetery streets in Funkstown, Md.

There, for $4 an hour, Jayne Ingram will start on 20 interviews for Roper, which has told her to question four men and six women from this Hagerstown suburb and five of each from Manassasville.

On that question about presidential control, the issue of inflation catches the first woman's interest and she misses the point about a president's ability to control it. Mrs. Ingram decides that "B" — "there are many influences outside his control" — comes closest.

Concerning President Carter specifically in the next question, the woman volunteers that "Kennedy wouldn't do any better." Mrs. Ingram wants to know whether she means that Carter is "doing about as well as anyone," which is the wording of one of the printed responses. "Yes, I guess so," the woman replies.

People in the next two houses won't be interviewed. At the third, a man says his wife is in bed. "Can I wait?" Mrs. Ingram asks, not moving. Told she cannot, the interviewer urges the man to ask his wife. But he refuses curtly as he disappears behind the door.

Doorbells go unanswered or her requests for an interview go rejected in house after house. Mrs. Ingram persists and talks at last to the preoccupied mother of a newborn baby.

Next week, Mrs. Ingram says, she'll start on the men.

On Sept. 12, the pollster, Miss Wilkins and analyst Terry Murray are poring over the thick volumes of computerized results.

"Carter's support has risen, but he's still negative," Roper begins, saying that the responses reflect the "full effects" of the president's energy speech, cabinet changes and White House shakeup.

A majority of Democrats in the sample support Carter, he notes.

With 44 percent saying they are "generally optimistic" about the nation's future and little lasting change over five years, Roper says, "It certainly doesn't justify the conclusion of a 'crisis of confidence.' The most you can say is they are moderately concerned."

Only 30 percent said that a president can have "an important and vital effect" on inflation.

On the light side

Vote for Fred

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Fred and Peggy Kraft are on the ballot Nov. 6. In fact, their problem is the only issue in this year's municipal election.

The Krafts want the voters to decide whether the city charter should be amended to let them hook their home up to city water. The water line runs just 30 feet in front of their house at the mouth of Boulder Canyon. The other eight homes in the sub-division were hooked up to city water because they were built before the city's blue-line law — a 1959 attempt at controlling the city's growth — went into effect.

But the Krafts' well is drying up and the blue line prevents them from hooking up to city water. The city turned down Kraft's water line application 10 years ago.

"We didn't have the money to spend in a lawsuit and a lawsuit would take years to settle anyway," Kraft said. "So our attorney recommended that we try to change the city charter."

Hairless squirrels vacation

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Six furless squirrels have some heartwarming news: They probably won't freeze to death this winter.

Barbara Spier, who fed the squirrels in her yard for the last two years, said that about 10 days ago she discovered someone else had been putting peanuts into the feeder.

A short time later, she and a neighbor noticed the squirrels had lost all their fur except that on their tails. A veterinarian determined the peanuts were laced with a poison.

With the approach of winter, Mr. Spier began worrying about her furless friends and made arrangements to trap them and send them off to a nature center for the winter.

Ode to the noble nag

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A horse is a horse, of course, of course — that is, of course, unless the horse is the subject of a Brooks H. Rohde poem.

For the last seven years, Rohde, 26, has suffered from the kind of horse "fever" generally associated with kids. But while they're out riding, he's in, writing — to wit:

"One has to be quite inquisitive
To find a steed more exquisite."

Since 1972, Rohde, a Ph.D. candidate in biochemistry at Indiana-Purdue University here, has been a self-professed horse-show groupie, galloping from event to event to pen poetic tributes to the beasts he loves best.

Rohde has no car but manages to hop buses or bum rides hundreds of miles to find fodder for his poetic mania. Once there, he says selecting subjects is no problem.

"Sometimes, I take notes. And sometimes the owners describe their horses in ringing tones and I write that down," he said. "They also tell you what not to write."

Radioactive medical treatment in danger?

Radioactive isotopes are used to detect and treat ulcers, cancers and other diseases. But experts in this space-age brand of medicine warn that the closing of two of the nation's three low-level nuclear waste dumps has put such treatment in jeopardy.

Dr. Leonard Freeman, president of the Society of Nuclear Medicine, told President Carter on Tuesday the closing of a Beatty, Nev., low-level radioactive waste disposal site had created "a crisis for medical care in the United States."

Gov. Bob List ordered the dump closed Monday after an inspection revealed nuclear wastes had been improperly handled. Gov. Dixy Lee Ray had ordered a dump at Hanford, Wash., closed earlier this month.

"If the vital work of nuclear medicine is to continue, safe disposal sites for the small amount of low-level waste it generates must exist," Freeman said in his telegram to the president.

"As recently as three weeks ago, there were three such sites. This morning there is only one, and its continued operation is far from certain."

The only dump still open is in Barnwell, S.C., and Gov. Richard Riley said Tuesday the state will act soon to "significantly" reduce the amount of waste handled there.

The governors in all three states have expressed concern that the wastes are not being properly transported, packaged or buried.

List said he recognized the importance of nuclear medical treatment, but added he is "tired of assuming the responsibility for having our people take the risks in a system that is not properly regulated."

Nuclear medicine is used thousands of times daily in U.S. hospitals to diagnose and treat disease, including cancer and heart illness. Radioactive isotopes in solutions are used to locate through X-rays ulcers, tumors and other internal disorders. Laboratories use such matter to determine hormone levels in blood samples and check other body data. Some cancers are treated with low-level radiation.

DPS officials recommend trooper remain in county

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Department of Public Safety officials recommend that two state troopers under political fire in Atascosa County remain at their posts.

County officials had called for the transfer of the two troopers, saying the entire six-man DPS unit would be kicked out of county-owned property if the two officers did not leave.

The DPS refused and moved out instead. They now operate on an emergency basis from their homes.

"It is our belief that the best course of action is to leave the troopers stationed in Atascosa at this time and not require either to transfer to another location," Col. Wilson Spier, the DPS director, said Tuesday.

He said an internal affairs division investigation of county complaints "did not reveal any violation of statutes or of departmental policies of a serious nature that would justify our taking disciplinary action against the troopers."

"However, every allegation will be reviewed with the troopers so they may take precautions to avoid any future recurrences of this nature," said Spier.

Several county leaders claimed Troopers Alberto Rodriguez, a Mexican-American, and Earl Conaway, a black, used harassing tactics against the citizens.

The troopers said they were only enforcing the law and cracked down on traffic violations, receiving praise from their superiors.

JOE SOUTH GEORGE BURNS

'Angel' hospitalized

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cheryl Ladd, who grew up in the blustery winters of the South Dakota prairie, has been hospitalized in sunny Southern California for a bad cold, hospital officials say.

Miss Ladd, one of the stars of the hit ABC television series "Charlie's Angels," has been hospitalized since Oct. 17 and should be discharged by the end of the week, according to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center spokesman Larry Baum.

Baum said Tuesday that Miss Ladd was admitted "with what amounts to basically a bad cold. But she's really doing very well now."

Burns turns country

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — George Burns, comedian, movie star and cigar smoker, is hoping to add another laurel to his distinguished career as an entertainer — country music singer.

Burns, 83, is scheduled to arrive in Nashville Oct. 31 to record a country music album, record producer Charles Fack said Tuesday.

"You know, George has a history of singing," Fack said. "That's the way he started out in show business. And he sings very well."

Fack said it wasn't difficult finding suitable music for Burns, just time-consuming.

"You just have to wait in a case like this to find something that will suit itself to a particular artist," he said.

For 36 years, Burns played "straight-man" for his zany wife, Gracie. Following her death in 1964, Burns continued his comedy career but switched to a solo, stand-up routine using a cigar as a prop.

At age 79, Burns accepted a role in the movie, "The Sunshine Boys," and won an Oscar for Best Supporting Actor.

Singer pleads guilty

ATLANTA (AP) — Country music singer and entertainer Joe South has pleaded guilty to two firearms violations in U.S. District Court.

South, an Atlanta resident, entered the pleas Tuesday to charges of possessing two Heckler and Koch .308-caliber assault rifles. The charges were contained in an indictment which said it was illegal for South to possess the weapons because of a conviction on a charge of felonious marijuana possession in 1970.

Two charges that he falsified records when he bought the weapons in 1976 and 1978 were dropped in exchange for the guilty pleas.

U.S. District Judge Charles Moye set no sentencing date for South, 39, who won two Grammys in 1970 for his hit "Games People Play."

Student Leaders: The Hope of the Future confab theme

The annual Fall Forum of the West Texas Association of Student Councils was held Saturday in Andrews — Theme of the forum was "Student Leaders: The Hope of the Future". After opening ceremonies, Lewis Timberlake of Austin gave the keynote address on how to be a leader.

He stressed that leaders must: learn, have enthusiasm, possess a positive attitude, have dedication toward a goal, show empathy for others, and maintain "revisisco" (ability to keep coming back).

Discussion groups were presented throughout the day on such topics as: safety, apathy, fund raising, publicity, administrative relations, the invisible student, organization and function of committees, role of the student council member, projects, and priorities and goal setting.

Craig Drake and Bobby Brasel led the discussion on safety.

Lunch was served by the Mesquite Burners of Andrews. Entertainment was presented by a group out of Odessa called: "Tom, Dick, and Harry".

Students representing Big Spring High were: Cindy Knight, Bobby Brasel, Craig Drake, Wendy Pagan, Tiffany Whiteside, Steve Drake, Brad Small, Becky Stephens, Brent Pearce, Patrick Connolly, K. K. Griffin, Tom Cudd, Missey Baker, Lori Marin, Julio Corda, Lisa Leal, Felicia Ford, Terri Dominguez, Debbie Archer, Michael Abelar, Dee Earhart, Christy Garcia, Alan Trevino, Sabrina Thomas, and Shana Hertz along with sponsor Craig Fischer.

Attending from Runnels Jr. High were four officers and their sponsor. Big Spring High currently serves as district secretary treasurer for this year. The Spring Forum will be held March 8 in Crane.

Farm — Bergland not leaving post as some rumors have speculated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has put to rest, at least temporarily, rumblings that he or some of his senior aides might be leaving their jobs for greener pastures.

Rumors periodically circulate that Bergland is on his way out, that he is dissatisfied with the job he has held for almost three years or that President Carter is ready to dump him.

Earlier this year, reports also circulated that Assistant Secretary Alex Mercure was leaving to return to his home state of New Mexico, and that Assistant Secretary M. Rupert Cutler would leave for a university job in Michigan.

Bergland, a farmer and three-term member of Congress from Minnesota before he joined Carter's Cabinet in January 1977, was asked again Monday about the job situation in the Agriculture Department.

"I have no intention of resigning," he told a news conference. "I intend to stay out this term. And the sub-cabinet ladies and gentlemen who are with me, as far as I know, will all remain throughout the president's term."

"I plan to remove none. They are all honorable ladies and gentlemen doing a creditable service."

Later in the news conference, Bergland was asked again if "when Carter's term is up... would you, if asked, want to serve again, or would you do like Earl Butz and take a look at the corporate directorships" for employment?

Bergland replied: "I intend to serve out my term as I agreed I would when I took the job 33 months ago, and I like what I'm doing. I am in a rather unique and enjoyable position. I don't need this job, and this job doesn't need me. So we get along fine."

Bergland, after laughter subsided, added, "When the president is re-elected — and I have no doubt about that — I would like to talk about the post in the Carter second term. But I intend to submit my resignation in compliance with a longstanding tradition. And I reserve all judgments on what I will do after the latter days of January of '81."

"But I can tell you this: I have a good farm, which provides me with a living, and in one of the most beautiful places in North America. When I am through with this job,

I can go home, and that is exactly what I plan to do."

The questioners persisted, asking Bergland again about the possibility of joining the boards of directors of a corporation or two after leaving his job.

"Corporate directorships?" Bergland responded. "Listen, no one would want me. I am not a lawyer, I am not an economist, I am not a Ph.D., I am not from the corporate world. I don't know that world, and that world doesn't know me, and we get along just fine."

Bergland, 51, has said previously that he has no desire to return to Congress and that, if asked by Carter, he would serve as secretary of agriculture in a second term.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corn in storage from previous crops totaled 1.29 billion bushels on Oct. 1, up 16 percent from a year ago, says the Agriculture Department.

The Oct. 1 corn inventory also was the highest at the beginning of a new harvest season since 1964 when about 1.54 billion bushels were on hand, the department said Tuesday.

Farmers are currently harvesting a record corn crop estimated at 7.39 billion bushels. The Oct. 1 "carryover" of old corn plus the new harvest will represent most of the U.S. supply of feed grains through 1979-80.

But demand for corn and other grain is expected to hit a record level in the coming year, including potentially record sales to the Soviet Union.

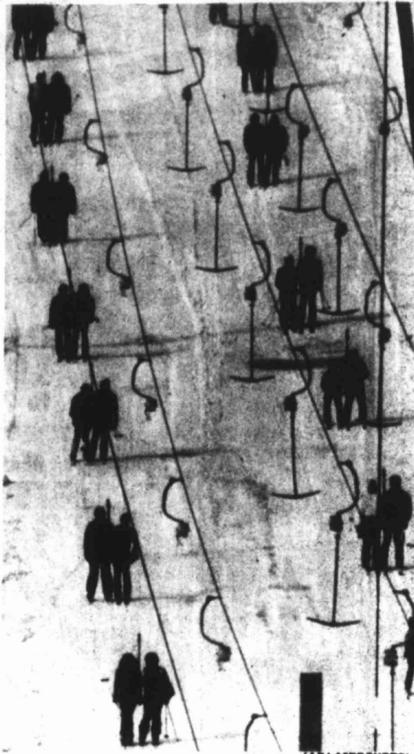

Thus, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland officially announced Monday that farmers will not be required to set aside part of their land in order to qualify for price supports on feed grains next year. A similar suspension was announced for wheat growers on Aug. 1.

The inventory report, issued quarterly by USDA, said 60 percent of the old-crop corn as of Oct. 1 was stored on farms, about the same proportion as a year ago when old-crop corn totaled about 1.1 billion bushels.

Wheat stocks, at 2.29 billion bushels, were up 7 percent from a year ago, the report said.

Looking at other feed grains, the report said the Oct. 1 inventory of sorghum was 159 million bushels, down 16 percent from a year ago.

The oats inventory was 576 million bushels, down 13 percent, and barley stocks, at 447 million bushels, were 4 percent less than on Oct. 1, 1978.

CBS gets tired of bottom rating

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS, mired in third place in the ratings since the start of the 1979-80 TV season a month ago, took a run at the top in the week ending Oct. 21, and was thwarted only by ABC's success with the World Series, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

CBS listed 10 of the 15 highest-rated programs for the week ending Oct. 21, including "M-A-S-H" in third place and "WKRP in Cincinnati" in fourth.

ABC, however, captured a record audience for the deciding game of the World Series between Pittsburgh and Baltimore, and did nearly as well with the next-to-last game.

ABC's research department estimated 80 million people tuned in for the game, more than for any other previous World Series broadcast.

ABC, overall, had six shows in the week's Top 20, and four of them were related to the baseball championships. The baseball pre-game programs were 11th and 12th in the ratings.

ABC's rating for the week was 21.2, with CBS second at 18.7 and NBC third at 16.8. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 21.2 percent of the homes in the country with television were watching ABC.

NBC, which surprised the industry by winning Nielsen's ratings race twice in the first four weeks of the new season, dropped to third for the first time this fall. NBC listed "Little House on the Prairie" No. 5 for the week, and had two other shows, "Quincy, M.E.," and a special, "TV Guide: The First 25 Years," in the Top 20.

In addition to "M-A-S-H," and "WKRP in Cincinnati," CBS spotted "60 Minutes," "One Day at a Time," "The Jeffersons," "Alice" and "Dallas" among the 10 top-rated shows.

For ABC, a runaway winner in the ratings last season, the victory was not without a drawback. The front-runner placed three shows among the week's five least-watched, including No. 59 "Detective School," No. 62 "Out of the Blue," and No. 63 "A New Kind of Family." CBS' "Paris" was 60th, and "Eisched" on NBC 61st.

All five series are new this season. Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows:

World Series, Game 7, with a rating of 36.9 representing 28.2 million homes with television, and World Series, Game 6, 32.2 or 24.6 million, both ABC; "M-A-S-H," 30.2 or 23 million, and "WKRP in Cincinnati," 26.8 or 20.4 million, both CBS; "Little House on the Prairie," 26.3 or 20.1 million, NBC; "60 Minutes" and "One Day at a Time," both 26.1 or 19.9 million, both CBS, and "The Jeffersons," 24.9 or 19 million, "Alice," 24.5 or 18.7 million, and "Dallas," 23.8 or 18.2 million, all CBS.

Celina High School cheerleader dies from injuries from mishap

CELINA, Texas (AP) — Cindy Morris died suddenly, almost thankfully, without pain and without suffering.

The 17-year-old Celina cheerleader, paralyzed in a fall last August, died of internal bleeding early Tuesday.

School Superintendent Perry Morris said his daughter's work here was done, and she had suffered enough.

"I know she wouldn't have been happy. She told me Saturday, she told me and her mother: 'I'll wait again. I'll either wait here or I'll wait in heaven,'" said Morris.

Cindy died at 2:05 a.m. Tuesday at Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas. Her mother, Verna, was with her, Morris said. She had been scheduled to enter a rehabilitation clinic in Houston later this week.

"The Good Lord was not going to let her lie there and suffer," Morris said. "For her to lie there the rest of her life, we just don't feel that was her purpose."

Cindy was the object of a day of fund-raising activities in her hometown of Celina a month ago, billed Cindy Morris Day.

Local residents held a bake sale, a magic show, a garage sale, kissing booths and games to raise money for Cindy's soaring medical bill. More than $50,000 had been raised to offset the $1,000-per-day medical bill.

"Everybody has been real good," said Morris. He said Cindy, who was stricken with cancer of the kidney at the age of 7 but had overcome the disease, had kept her spirits high until the end.

"She's touched a lot of lives in the last two months. We feel that was her purpose here — to help someone else," he said.

"We feel like Cindy is in a better place now. She's happy now. She's waiting now," he said.

Morris said Cindy died when a blood vessel in her neck ruptured and "she just bled to death." He said the artery had been weakened by a breathing device inserted in her neck, without which she would have suffocated.

Hans Shultz, assistant director of nursing at Presbyterian, said Cindy had hemorrhaged slightly Monday but X-rays in the afternoon and again at midnight revealed no problem. But she began hemorrhaging again about 1 a.m. and died an hour later.

"All the nurses that had taken care of her so long — they were all in tears because she was doing so well," Shultz said.

Cindy was injured in August during a cheerleader workout in Celina, a small town in Collin County north of Dallas. She tried to demonstrate a complicated "flip off" from another cheerleader's shoulders in front of Celina High School. She landed on the back of her neck, breaking three vertebrae, and doctors said she would never walk again.

Morris said her death was painless.

"She went real fast. She didn't suffer," he said. "Whatever purpose she had was fulfilled. Now she's with her granddaddy."

Cindy's request to be buried next to her grandfather was honored.

Her funeral was held today. Celina High School football players, coaches, cheerleaders, drill team and pep squad members served as honorary pallbearers.

Two counts interstate transportation Texas grain dealer pleads guilty

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Former Iowa Park grain dealer Robert Johnson will plead guilty in federal court here today on two counts of interstate transportation of stolen grain, according to his defense lawyer.

Lawyer Gene Dougiass said Johnson was to appear before U.S. District Judge Eldon N. Mahon.

Asst. U.S. Attorney R.H. Waiiace said Johnson is being re-arrested for a change of plea.

He said a plea bargaining arrangement has been made to allow Johnson to plead guilty to two counts and have the remaining 11 counts dismissed.

Johnson, 43, was arrested in Idaho earlier this year. Authorities had searched for Johnson since companions said he fell overboard from a boat in the Gulf of Mexico Jan. 3, 1977.

Federal and state authorities discovered after his disappearance that about 400,000 bushels of wheat were missing from elevators owned by Johnson at Iowa Park and Wichita Falls.

H.C. Johnson, his brother, was convicted of issuing false warehouse receipts and was sentenced to 15 years in prison. He has since been paroled.

Johnson was first ordered jailed in lieu of $1 million bond, but it was later reduced to $500,000. He faces a maximum sentence of 10 years in jail and a fine of up to $10,000 on each of the two counts he was expected to plead guilty to.

Waiiace said the plea bargaining arrangement does not include any limitations on the sentence Mahon can impose on Johnson.

Pete Rose: "Money doesn't determine how well I play"

By The Associated Press

"Baseball is a kid's game. I'm an adult playing a kid's game. I admit it. It's like having a license to steal."

Pete Rose is a baseball anachronism — a Ty Cobb in tight-fitting double knits, a $3.2-million commodity with a corner lot psychology, an anachronism whose affluence has not dulled his enthusiasm for the sport.

Who is this stubby little guy who is methodically destroying Ty Cobb's proudest records, who is threatening to become the greatest hitter of all time, whose fighting grit has enthralled a nation?

Biblically speaking, by his words ye shall know him: "Money doesn't determine how well I play. I've got to give it 101 per cent every time I go out on the field, whether I make $12,000, as I did at Cincinnati in 1965 when I got 209 hits, or whether I make $800,000 or $900,000 as this year when I got 208. I never see my checks, anyhow." (They all go to agent-attorney Reuben Katz).

At 5-11, 200 pounds, Rose can't be considered a model athletic specimen, at 38 he is getting long on the tooth as ball players go. Critics say he can't run or throw.

"I know how to run. I know how to throw. But nobody says I can't hit. I always could hit. As for my age, I've seen some guys over the hill at 28 and others good at 40 like the Cy Young winner last year (Gaylord Perry). Look at me. I've got strong arms and strong legs. They're my assets. They say the legs are the first to go.

I ought to have three or four years left."

Did Rose think the firing of Phillies manager Danny Ozark was justified?

"When I put on my uniform, it doesn't say 'Sparky Anderson,' 'Dave Bristol' or 'Danny Ozark' across the chest. It says 'Phillies.' I don't play for the manager. I play for a team, the city and the fans. But the one thing I regretted going to Philadelphia was that I had to be a part of Danny getting fired. It wasn't Danny's fault. Every man on the team was responsible. I was responsible."

Rose, who erased another of Cobb's records by getting 200 hits in his 10th season and who was on base more than 300 times counting 96 walks, showed his true character when he was presented the Aqua Veiva Cup for compiling the year's longest hitting streak — 23 games. The award carried a cash prize of $23,000 — $1,000 for each game.

"I gave that away weeks ago," Rose said. "I gave it to the coaches, the trainers and clubhouse crew. Just as I gave away nine Jeeps to guys in Cincinnati when I left there. Those guys don't get paid much, but they are always helping out — pitching batting practice, getting things you need."

"I not only care for the stars, I also care for the little people."

Rose paused and, proving he's human, added: "Besides, it's a tax writeoff."

Steer fems decision Midland

MIDLAND — The Big Spring Steers overcome sloppily officiated game to take an 11-8, 15-13 win over the Midland High Bulldogs in a second half District 5-AAAA girls volleyball game here Tuesday evening.

Hawk Queens to host four team practice

The Hawk Queens Women's Basketball Team will host a four-way scrimmage at 2:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 25, in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum according to coach Don Stevens, head coach of Hawk Queens.

This scrimmage will include the women's varsity teams from Texas Tech University, Angelo State University, Western Texas College, as well as the Hawk Queens.

"We have been working extremely hard on all phases of the game since school started and we badly need to work against someone other than ourselves," said Stevens. "It will be of much benefit to us to find out what areas of the game we need to improve in and this is the purpose of any scrimmage."

"At this point we definitely do not have the poise or polish that I had hoped we would have by this time. I feel that these scrimmages will emphasize to our players the need to put it together as a team," said Stevens.

The Hawk Queen's season opener will be at 6:00 p.m. Nov. 6 at Western Oklahoma State in Altus.

The Queen's first home game will be at 7:00 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 8, against Temple Junior College, in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

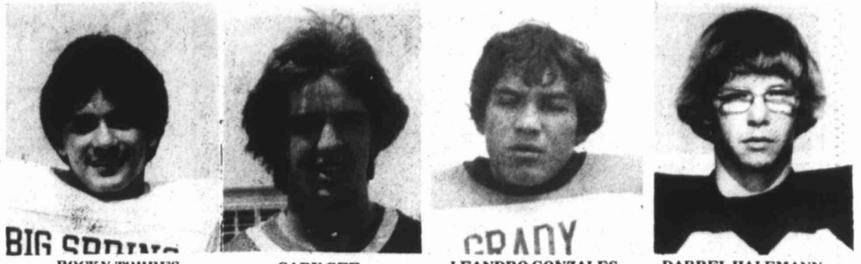

Shavers fine after surgery

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Frank Luca, manager-trainer of heavyweight boxer Earnie Shavers, says an eye injury suffered on Sept. 28 during his loss to World Boxing Council champion Larry Holmes has not placed his career in jeopardy.

Luca, a resident of Canton, was concerned because published reports suggesting that Shavers' career might be over because of a torn retina.

(AP LASER PHOTO) AWARDED OVER $160,000 — A Superior Court jury has awarded more than $160,000 in damages to All-Pro receiver Lynn Swann of the Pittsburgh Steelers, his two brothers and a cousin for a racially sparked beating the four men said they received at the hands of police during a 1974 arrest.

Area Players of the Week

Area teams continued to have a tough time in high school football action, as the teams could manage only one win (Coahoma's 14-6 victory over Winters) in seven games. Two schools did not name a "Player of the Week", while the rest of the coaches could find something positive in the play of their respective teams.

Big Spring played some much improved football in the last three quarters of their game with Odessa Permian, and one of the main reasons was the inspiring play of 130-pound senior strong safety Rocky Torres. Torres, who consistently plays much larger than his weight, made some jarring tackles on the bigger Mojo backs, and accumulated an outstanding 56 tackling points to lead the Steers in that category. Coach Ron Logback praised the play of Torres, stating: "He played an outstanding game, not only to support the team like he did, but to also play pass defense so well."

The Coahoma Bulldogs took an important 14-6 win over Winters, and one of the main reasons for the Homecoming win was the play of quarterback-safety GARY GEE. Gee had an excellent game both ways, as he rushed for 31 yards on 10 carries and a touchdown in directing a ball control Bulldog attack. Defensively, he had one timely interception of a Winters pass, as well as making several key tackles on some open field one-on-one tackles that prevented the opposition from picking up some certain size yardage.

The Sands Mustangs,

despite a 28-6 loss to New Home, came away with words of praise from their coach, Dickie Lepard. The Mustangs showed definite improvement, and he found it hard to single out any one individual. But he did cite this week's award to quarterback SHAYNE WIGINGTON and guard SCOTT ROBINSON. Wigington completed a 55-yard touchdown pass that was called back, and also had a fine game defensively, intercepting two New Home passes and making an astronomical 18 tackles from his defensive safety position. Robinson earned the award for his outstanding blocking that opened up some noticeable holes for Wigington, Jesse Ybarra and others.

Stanton Coach Steve Park felt that no one was deserving of the honor for this week, as his team suffered somewhat of an upset in a 10-9 loss to Plains. "Our kids know how they played," Parks stated. "They realize that nobody was ready to play."

Due to a poor telephone connection last week, Garden City will have two players honored this week, one for each of the last two games against Roby and Sterling City. In the Roby game, a 31-8 loss for the Bearkats, Garden City Coach Jesse Smelley cited the play of junior linebacker

ROSENDO YBARRA. Ybarra had three unassisted tackles, numerous assists, and also scored the lone Bearkat touchdown when he returned an interception 40 yards to paydirt. The Bearkats lost a decision to Sterling City the past week, but the play of offensive guard-defensive tackle DARRELL HALFMANN was not overlooked by Smelley. Halfmann had a good game defensively, making three unassisted tackles and assisting on eight others. Halfmann is one of three seniors on the Garden City team, and is doing his part to provide leadership.

Grady jumped out to an early 14-6 lead before Three-Way rallied to win, but Coach Richard Gibson had reason to be proud of the performance of the versatile LEANDRO GONZALES. Gonzales carried five times for 24 yards from his offensive fullback position, but it was defense that the 165-pound junior sparked. He had 11 unassisted tackles, and had to play three different positions—noseguard, end and linebacker.

Forsan Coach Ronnie Taylor didn't feel like anyone was deserving for this week's honor following a 40-0 loss to Shallowater, stating: "We didn't really have anyone that really stuck out."

JO JO REHEARSES — Jo Jo Starbuck, former U.S. Olympic skater and star of Ice Capades as well as the wife of Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw, rehearses for the opening of a promotional tour for the Winter Olympics at New York's Sky Rink Monday. Jo Jo says of her marriage to a man with a conflicting career that "We have beaten our problems with faith."

Superstar marriage of Bradshaw and Starbuck survives with faith

By The Associated Press
Jo Jo Starbuck has lived her life on razor-sharp ice skates and Terry Bradshaw has inscribed his career with football cleats on a hundred gridirons, and — in the language of the poets — never the twain shall meet.

But it did, and, contrary to the gossip mongers, all is well.

"It hasn't been easy," acknowledges Jo Jo, former U. S. Olympic skater and star of Ice Capades. "Husband and wife secede with conflicting careers. The pressures are tremendous. The challenge is great. But the relationship between Terry and me is very firm. "We have beaten our problems with faith."

Ms. Starbuck was in New York Monday practicing for her Winter Olympics promotional tour to be followed by a spectacular stage show, featuring her and her longtime skating partner Ken Shelley. It opens Feb. 14 — Valentine's Day and her birthday — at New York's Radio City Music Hall.

After a two-hour skating session and another two hours of dance instruction, she flew to Pittsburgh to watch her husband quarterback the Super Bowl champion Steelers against the Denver Broncos.

"I go to every game I can," she said, "except the away games. I can't stand the hostility of the crowds. We have one of those giant TV screens in our apartment. I watch it there."

The marriage of these two sports super stars thrilled romanticists everywhere but it wasn't long before the gossip mills were grinding. There were repeated rumors of a split.

"People wrote some crazy things," Jo Jo said. "It was never true. Marriage is hard enough for people with no pressures and not in the public eye. With us, it has been deadly. People scrutinizing us. Neither of us has any privacy."

"But we have organized our lives to fit our pressures. Our marriage is stronger for at first — he is a home person — but he adjusted. We both have adjusted."

Bradshaw, a national hero as quarterback of the 1975 Super Bowl champions, first saw Jo Jo when he attended an Ice Capades show in Pittsburgh. Friends tried to fix him up with one of the ladies in the chorus. "I want to meet the blonde in green," Terry said, pointing to Jo Jo. Ms. Starbuck declined.

A year later, Jo Jo, learning that the Steeler quarterback was a "Born-Again Christian," sought him out. Then came romance and marriage — five months after Bradshaw had won his second Super Bowl.

Jo Jo is making her Olympic tour as spokeswoman for Cup o' Noodles soup, adopted as a staple for the Winter Olympics in Lake Placid, N.Y., under the sponsorship of Nissin of Japan, one of the corporate underwriters of the Games.

"I quit skating seriously after getting married in June 1976," Jo Jo said. "I resigned myself willingly to the role of housewife. But I found it difficult. Terry would come home very tired. I found I couldn't be brilliant every night. It was not total fulfillment."

"When I got a chance to continue skating, I took it. Terry naturally didn't like it

TCU soph gains Back of the Week honor

DALLAS (AP) — Kevin Haney never even had a day like it at Decatur High School.

The sophomore Texas Christian quarterback put the following stats in the school record books in a 24-17 victory over Tulsa Saturday:

—Rushed for the most yards ever by a TCU quarterback (178).

—Scored on the longest run ever by a TCU quarterback (77).

—Scored three touchdowns on runs of 13, 40, and 77.

—Moved into fifth place on the All-time list for most yards rushing in a game.

—Tied a record for least passes in a game. None.

The performance earned Haney The Associated Press Southwest Conference Offensive Player of the Week award.

The 6-foot-2, 210-pound Haney, who runs the 40 anywhere from 4.6 to 4.7 depending on how holy he is being pursued, was a safety his freshman year but Coach F.A. Dry switched him to quarterback, Haney's old high school position, in the spring.

"He had been a Wishbone quarterback high school and was sort of a skinny youngster," said Dry. "But we told him we would give him a chance at quarterback. Now, he's kind of exploded on the scene. He has the ability to make the big play...the REAL big play. When he breaks it, he can go."

Haney played behind Steve Stamp until the second half of the Texas-Arlington game which TCU lost.

Haney was instrumental in the Horned Frogs almost upsetting Arkansas the next week.

A finger in the eye during practice kept him from starting against Rice the next week. Stamp started against Tulsa before Haney came in to dazzle the Hurricane.

His teammates naturally enough call Haney "The Eighter from Decatur."

"Some of the black guys on our team have been kidding me," said Haney. "They tell me they thought their speed was rubbing off on me."

As UH cougars visit Arkansas Saturday

Yeoman doesn't mind travelling

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston Coach Bill Yeoman has not always been a welcome visitor when he took his Cougar football team on the road.

He's been peited with everything from salt shakers to coke bottles from Los Angeles to Athens, Ga. and from Austin, Texas to East Lansing, Mich.

Now comes the Fayetteville, Ark. treatment. "They've called the hogs in Houston before so we know about that," said Yeoman, whose sixth ranked Cougars play fourth ranked Arkansas Saturday. "As long as the hogcallers remain in the stands everything will be okay."

The Cougars will be subjected to a packed stadium filled with intensely loyal Razorback fans, more than likely dressed in red, wearing those distinctive red hats in the shape of a hog's head and screaming "ooooooo, pig, sooooooeeeeee."

Houston's hopes of remaining unbeaten to its best start in history, may depend on Yeoman's casual approach to the hazards of playing on the road.

"Coaches often out-coach themselves because they worry about playing on the road," said Yeoman, who has had a losing road record only twice in the past 14 years. "I don't really say anything. I just don't worry about it."

"If you are apprehensive so is your team. If you are edgy, it will show up in your voice or in your actions."

Yeoman's overall 41-41-4 record over 18 seasons at UH suggests he may know what he's talking about. Discounting Yeoman's first four seasons, the Cougars have a 39-26-3 record over the past 14 years.

Houston is 6-0 this season, equal to its best start in history, and owns road victories UCLA and Texas A&M on the road.

Yeoman says he merely talks to his team about the distractions that they'll face when they go on the road.

"You explain that there will be distractions but they can't allow themselves to be affected," Yeoman said. "We'll tell them we'll fly to Fort Smith and there will be a bus ride to Beita Vista but it won't be too bad."

"If they are anticipating the distractions it's not so bad."

The Cougars were able to survive a mishap-filled bus trip to College Station two weeks ago that would test any team's concentration. Fullback David Barrett missed the bus and one of two team buses broke down five miles outside Houston.

"Well, we didn't exactly anticipate a bus breaking down and wandering aimlessly around on the freeway," Yeoman admitted.

Aggies remain mysterious

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas A&M's football game against the Rice Owls last year always will be a special memory for Aggie Coach Tom Wilson.

Wilson had just taken over as head coach following Emory Beilard's resignation and on A&M's first offensive play, quarterback Mark Mosley hit Gerald Carter on a 52-yard touchdown passplay.

Rice Coach Ray Alborn, whose Owls will host the Aggies Saturday, remembers the Aggie coaching change with less enthusiasm.

"Last year on Tuesday we were getting ready to play the Aggies, practicing against the wishbone," Alborn said Tuesday. "Then we got the word that Emory Beilard had resigned and Tom Wilson had taken over."

"Right there in the middle of the week we had to change over and start preparing for the I formation."

The Owls still may face some confusion in preparing for the unpredictable Aggies this season. The Aggies are 0-3 in Southwest Conference games, including last-minute losses to Texas Tech and Houston, yet defeated Penn State earlier in the year.

Alborn said he wouldn't be fooled by A&M's 2-4 record.

"They are a lot better than their record indicates," he said. "You take a look at their film of the Penn State game and you'll see what they can do."

Running backs Earl Cooper and Tim Sanders, both injured in Rice's 30-7 loss to Texas Tech last week, will play against the Aggies.

And they'll be needed, Alborn says.

"A&M's defense just swarms all over you," Alborn said. "I'm worried if we'll be able to hold them out if we should decide to drop back and pass once in a while."

Portland off to record start

Cotton Fitzsimmons doesn't play any vacations in Portland, Ore. In fact, he'd just as soon not make any business trips to the Rose City, either.

"It's damn tough to win here. I'm getting tired of it," said Fitzsimmons, coach of the Kansas City Kings. Not even a trio of three-point goals by Kansas City's Otis Birdsong in the final 90 seconds could keep the Kings from dropping a 90-88 decision to the Portland Trail Blazers Tuesday night.

The Blazers are now 7-0, the best start in their 10 seasons in the National Basketball Association. Five of the victories have come at the Portland Memorial Coliseum, where the Blazers have played before 105 consecutive sellouts of 12,666.

Birdsong led all scorers with 29 points and Phil Ford added 20 points and 11 assists for Kansas City. Owens led the balanced Blazers scoring with 17.

Lakers 102, Jazz 87

Los Angeles clinched its victory with a 14-5 burst to start the final period, opening up a commanding 86-70 lead. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Michael Cooper led the Lakers' balanced attack with 17 points apiece.

Bulls 108, Nets 103

Rookie David Greenwood sank three free throws in the final 36 seconds to help the Bulls beat the Nets. Greenwood, a first-round draft choice from UCLA, scored a pro-high 20 points.

Spurs 129, Celtics 120

George Gervin and Larry Kenon scored 23 points apiece and led a fourth-quarter surge that carried San Antonio past Boston. The score was tied 100-100 before the Spurs broke the game open with a 26-10 surge. Gervin getting eight points and Kenon seven in that spurt.

Dave Cowens had 32 points and Larry Bird 22 for the Celtics.

Knicks 136, Pacers 112

The Knicks, using an aggressive, pressing defense, broke the game open with a 31-10 spurt in the first half and were never in trouble. Toby Knight led the way with 34 points, 22 of them in the first half, while Alex English scored a career-high 37 points for Indiana.

Hawks 121, Cavaliers 111

The Hawks outscored the Cavs 34-20 in the second period to take command. John Drew poured in 27 points to top Atlanta while Mike Mitchell had 35 for Cleveland.

Bucks 114, Suns 108

Milwaukee raised its record to 6-1, best in the Midwest Division, by handing the Suns their fourth straight loss. Marques Johnson led the way with 32 points and Brian Winters hit a clutch jumper in the final minute to put the game away.

Pittsburgh early 3 1/2 point favorite over confident Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers are three and one-half point favorites for Sunday's meeting with the Dallas Cowboys and Tom Landry says "that's about right."

"I hope we can play a good game but they ought to be favored," said the Dallas coach. "They are playing very well again and they are at home."

However, don't construe Landry's statement as running up a white flag.

"We feel good and we feel like we can win," said Landry. "We might not have felt that way at the start of the season. But there was a question about our defense then. Our defense is getting much better."

Asked if he was miffed that the Cowboys had to play in Pittsburgh for the second consecutive year during the regular season, Landry laughed and said "I was surprised."

The meeting in Pittsburgh this year came about because of the National Football League's new scheduling which called for the National Conference Eastern champion to play the American Conference Central champion on the road in 1979.

Landry said he doesn't look upon the meeting as a Super Bowl rematch.

"We had our chance to win that other game (the Super Bowl) and we didn't," said Landry. "They don't give you a trophy if you beat 'em Sunday. They just give you one game."

The Cowboys posted a 7-1 record in the first half of the season—best in the NFL.

"It would be a miracle for us to go 7-1 in the second half of the season because we play all the contenders," said Landry. "We have to play Pittsburgh, Washington, Philadelphia, and Houston. That's a lot of contenders to go through."

"The Steelers put on a remarkable display last night," said Landry who watched their 42-7 victory over the Denver Broncos Monday night. "Nobody could have beaten them the way they played. Fortunately, we didn't have to play them last night."

"They looked like the same old Steelers with Lynn Swann back in there. I wasn't surprised because they had played so poorly against Cincinnati that you just knew something was going to happen. They had all their weapons going."

Landry said the matchup with the Steelers was important to the Cowboys "in the confidence area. If we should win a big game against a big team it will help. But this isn't one of those games where the loser drops out of sight."

Lister heads LSC All-Decade list

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — James Lister, who set 16 school records and led Sam Houston State to the small college No. 1 ranking in 1972-73, heads the 1970s All-Decade Basketball Team announced Tuesday by the Lone Star Conference.

The 6-10, 204-pound Lister and former Stephen F. Austin ace Pete Harris lacked only one vote being unanimous choices on the mythical squad.

Lister was a four-time all-conference center for the Bearkats from 1969-1973 and won the conference's Most Valuable Player honor as a sophomore and senior. He holds the league record of 1,662 career rebounds. Harris, a two-time all-LSC

Tarrant scored 2,203 career points, averaged 20 points a game and hit 83 percent of his free throws.

Granger set a school and conference scoring record with 2,380 career points. He also holds the Lone Star Conference record for most points in one game (55) and was the league's most valuable player as a sophomore.

On the honorable mention list were: Guards—Rick Penny, McMurry, 1971-73; Gary Hopkins, Howard Hayne, 1977-present; Larry McGhee, ETSU, 1974-78; Dennis McLaughlin, Angelo State, 1974-76; and Hoegie Simmons, Texas A&I, 1972-74.

 Forwards—James Hall, Howard Payne, 1976-78; Hugo Cabrera, ETSU, 1972-76; Jeff Wildenberg, Texas A&I, 1969-73; and Travis Cornett, SWTS, 1970-74.
 Centers—Lee Johnson, ETSU, 1977-79; and Andrew Prince, Abilene Christian, 1973-75.

Beil won the last event Sunday near Sonoma, Calif., but could not overcome the lead Howerton had built in the previous four races of the series.

Clayborn withdraws appeal on $2,000 fine

NEW YORK (AP) — New England Patriots defensive halfback Raymond Clayborn, fined $2,000 by Commissioner Pete Rozelle as a result of his altercations with sports writers, has withdrawn his request for an appeal, the National Football League said.

Clayborn threatened Bruce Lowitt, an Associated Press sports writer, after the Patriots' 16-13 overtime loss to Pittsburgh in the teams' season opener. The following week, after the Patriots beat the New York Jets 56-3, Clayborn threatened and struck veteran Boston Globe sports writer Will McDonough in the eye.

IT'S NATIONAL BUSINESS WOMEN'S WEEK — This week, Oct. 21-27, business women all across the country will be recognized for their efforts in providing better working conditions for women since 1928. Pictured here, left to right are Edith Gay, Tot Sullivan, Edith Foster, Ruby Billings, and Kip Bracy, all members of the local Business and Professional Women's Club.

Since 1928 'Pink' collar workers fight for equality

By ROBBI CROW
Family News Editor

Everyone has heard of blue collar employees and white collar employees. They've both been around for ages and neither are new. But what in the world is a pink collar employee?

"It's disgusting is what it is," says Kip Bracy, president of the local Business and Professional Women's Club.

Pink collar workers, according to Mrs. Bracy, are women of the work world holding down such positions as secretaries and stenographers.

"Women employed as 'pink' collar workers, on the average, make less than men employees 20 years ago," she protested.

Such discrimination in the working world of women is what the Business and Professional Women's Club has been battling against since its organization 51 years ago in 1928.

In recognition of the organizations constant struggle to serve their communities, their states and their nations in civic and cultural programs and in their overall purpose of bettering the working conditions for women, this week, Oct. 21-27, has been designated National Business Women's Week.

Mayor Wade Choate has officially signed a proclamation confirming it. The first national Business Women's Week was celebrated in 1928.

"It's been going on forever," stated Mrs. Bracy. "The purpose is to publicize working women and the club, nationally and as a whole, has been responsible for the ERA's progress over the years."

The Business and Professional Women's Club State Legislative Chairman Hermine Tobolski is known throughout as 'Ms. ERA' in Texas. She is an Austin lawyer.

"She's really pushed it all the way," revealed Mrs. Bracy.

The local B and PW Club was formed in 1939 and its first president, Jeanette Barnett, is a resident of the Mountain View Lodge. She was partly responsible in the club's organization.

Present officers include Mrs. Bracy, president; Louise Nuckolls, vice president; Edith Foster, recording secretary; Bernice Gallaway, corresponding secretary; Lupe Dominguez, second vice president; Nancy Martin, treasurer; and Edith Gay, reporter.

In commemorating National Business Women's Week, Mrs. Bracy was featured on the Jim Baum Radio Show at KBYG Tuesday morning. Guest speaker Marianne Gilbert, Sherwin-Williams decorator, spoke to approximately 40 B and PW members and guests on her experience as a working female at a dinner meeting held that evening.

Members of the B and PW are sponsors of numerous worthwhile activities which benefit the community and its citizens.

Karen, 18, from Santa Rosa, Calif., wants to know if she should live with her boyfriend before she gets married. Steve Bloom, 19, from Huntsville, Ala., and Colleen Rice, 18, who lives in Springfield, Ohio, will handle the teen point of view. — Welcome.

Dr. Wallace: My boyfriend, Phil, and I are very much in love, and eventually plan to marry. In the meantime, Phil wants us to live together for a year to test our love and to see if we are compatible.

It seems like the right thing for us to do, but my parents are terribly upset. They really like Phil, but want us to marry before we set up housekeeping.

Both Phil and I are high school graduates, and have jobs. Phil is also attending college part-time.

Your advice, please. I'm 18 and Phil is 19. — Karen, Santa Rosa, Calif.

Karen: Setting up housekeeping with a member of the opposite sex without a marriage certificate is more socially accepted today than it was a decade ago. Remember, in your parents' time, this was NOT the thing to do.

Usually, living arrangements such as this benefit the man more than the woman. Why is it necessary to live together to test one's love?

My advice would be to maintain separate living quarters until you get married. — Dr. Wallace

Hi Karen: Don't be duped by Phil. He wants to "get the milk free without paying for the cow," if you know what I mean.

I had a friend (girl) who did live with a boyfriend without the benefits of a wedding ring. Everything was great until the novelty wore off, and she came home unexpectedly and found him with another girl. "His commitment was — Well, we're not married, you know." Hope you get the message. — Colleen, Springfield, Ohio

Hello Karen: Marriage is going back to school," revealed Mrs. Bracy.

This year's recipient was Becky Torres, a nurses aide who is now attending LVN school. The club also sponsors, and has for the last 15 years, a picnic for the drug and alcohol abuse unit at the Big Spring State Hospital.

Anyone interested in attending a B and PW club meeting or would like to become a member, contact Mrs. Bracy at 3-1758 or attend one of their meetings.

"We don't concentrate on any one career," Mrs. Bracy explained. "I encourage anyone interested in helping to better the working conditions for women to attend — one of our meetings. Our oldest continuing member is 86 and the youngest member is in her 20s. So you see, we span through all generations. That's what makes us so unique," she concluded.

Straitlaced Gay Spouses

DEAR ABBY: After reading your column on gay spouses, I just had to write.

It is a shock and a heartache when a wife finds out that her husband has had an affair with another woman, but I cannot comprehend how any woman could accept a MAN as her competition. She would have to be "meshugga" (crazy) — and with children in the house yet!

How can any normal woman let a man who has been with another man touch her? To me, it is unthinkable.

A YIDDISHE MAMA IN EL TORO, CALIF.

DEAR MAMA: To you it is "unthinkable." But to those who have studied bisexuality and realize that one's sexual preference is rarely a matter of choice, it is understandable. This is not an endorsement of infidelity of any kind, but rather an attempt to shed some light on one of the most misunderstood of all sexual behaviors.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently joined a tennis club. On our first day at the club, I was terribly embarrassed when my husband, who was wearing dark-colored street clothes instead of the usual white shorts or pants and white shirt, was refused admittance on the courts!

A big argument ensued, with my husband loudly proclaiming his right to wear whatever he chose.

My husband finally won and was allowed to play tennis in his street clothes.

Abby, can you (or anyone else) explain the reason for wearing white on tennis courts? And was my husband wrong to insist on playing in his street clothes?

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: On joining a club, members should be familiar with the club rules. If regulation tennis attire is required, then your husband was out of line. I have no idea why white is traditionally worn for tennis, but it certainly looks better. And it's cooler.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very dear younger sister who frequently infuriates me by revealing my age! She does this subtly by telling HER age, then adding that I am nine years older than she is.

I have asked her not to do this, but either she forgets or just doesn't respect my right to privacy.

She says she is "proud" of her age and I shouldn't care who knows mine. What can I do about it?

KENTUCKY FRIED CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: Nothing, so don't get your tailfeathers up.

DEAR ABBY: I have attended dinner parties and noticed that some people turn their wine glasses upside down to indicate that they do not wish to be served any wine. Is this considered proper etiquette?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: No. A word to the waiter is sufficient.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (26 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Senatorson mission to okay food distribution

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Three U.S. senators flew to Phnom Penh today in a bid to win approval of their plan to deliver food to the starving Cambodians by truck convoys from Thailand.

Sens. James Sasser, D-Tenn., John Danforth, R-Mo., and Max Baucus, D-Mont., and two State Department officers accompanying them were the first American officials to visit the Cambodian capital since the communist victory 4½ years ago. They traveled on a U.S. government plane.

A spokesman for the senators said they were "excited about the prospect of going to Phnom Penh" but had no assurance Cambodian officials would meet with them.

To expedite distribution of food to the estimated 2 million Cambodians threatened with starvation, the senators are proposing that truck convoys carry 1,000 tons a day from Thailand to Cambodia for six months. One source said the proposal was still in the "theoretical stage."

The International Red Cross and the U.N. Children's Fund are in charge of delivering the food and medical supplies which the United States and other countries are beginning to send to Southeast Asia for the relief of the Cambodians. The Red Cross is flying 15 tons of food and medicine from Bangkok to Phnom Penh daily, and 10,400 tons are due by sea before the end of the month.

The United States has pledged $7 million to the program, and a report from Washington said President Carter would pledge about $35 million more today. The report said the House Foreign Affairs Committee was expected to approve a bill today authorizing the money.

Arrangements for the senators' one-day trip were made with the Vietnamese embassy in Bangkok and with Vietnam's acting foreign minister, Nguyen Co Thach, who is visiting Thailand.

Last winter, the Vietnamese army drove Premier Pol Pot and his Khmer Rouge government from Phnom Penh and installed another communist Cambodian government headed by Heng Samrin. Since then, the Khmer Rouge army has been waging a guerrilla war against the Vietnamese and the new regime, and the Heng Samrin government has refused to accept aid from agencies that supply areas controlled by Pol Pot's forces.

The senators had no plans to try to contact the Pol Pot forces about their plan. But Carter administration sources in Washington said Vietnam's letting them visit Phnom Penh "represents a change in attitude which may prove to be significant" in opening the way for increased Western aid to Cambodia.

World Vision International, a private American relief organization, announced in Singapore today that the Heng Samrin government agreed to accept relief supplies from it. Stanley Mooneyham, an official of the organization, said the government would handle the distribution but assured him World Vision could "monitor it and carry out spot checks in the provinces as well as in the capital."

Elderly activists march for lower medical costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — They came to Washington — old, angry and put-upon by what to them are outrageous medical expenses.

Clutching copies of hospital and doctor bills, 400 elderly activists swarmed over Capitol Hill on Tuesday to complain for themselves and to put in a word for their children who are also bent over by explosive health care costs.

Their stories included: —Evelyn Donner Day of Mequon, Wis., who brandished a bill of $25,155.50 for 39 days in the hospital for heart surgery.

—Dorothy Ryan of Youngstown, Ohio, who said the family of a friend who died of a stroke was charged thousands of dollars for "hospital incidentals." She held aloft the total bill that came to $24,000.

—House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, who told the group about one of his employees, who complained of dizzy spells and went to a local hospital. Four hours later he was told he had high blood pressure, and presented a bill for $1,150.

Rachael Doll of York, Pa., who said her husband's medical bills following a heart attack were covered by insurance, but added, "a lot of people don't have the insurance."

What they want is congressional passage of an administration bill that would force most of the nation's hospitals to hold down their expenses or else be slapped with federal mandatory controls on their revenues. "People are hurting," said Bill Hutton, executive director of the National Council of Senior Citizens. "We must put a stop to these unbearable hospital costs."

It won't be an easy fight though. Those wanting controls on hospital revenues are up against medical groups that have poured hundreds of thousands of dollars into the so far successful drive to stave them off.

Both sides agree that hospital costs are rising. They part ways on how to stop them.

The Carter administration is touting its bill to set guidelines for increases in hospital expenses and impose mandatory revenue controls on hospitals that fail to keep within them. Under the proposal, federal controls could be triggered early next year.

That bill, which is expected to go to the House floor in the next two weeks, would bar hospitals from buying excessive amounts of expensive equipment. But the hospital industry argues that such restrictions would impair the quality of care it can give to patients.

The hospital industry has suggested as an alternative to the proposed law a substitute bill that would create a national commission to study the problem and report back to Congress.

The American Hospital Association says the average cost for a patient in the hospital one day is $200. It said the average hospital bill for a patient is $1,474.21.

Inflation's cure requires sacrifices by Americans

HOUSTON (AP)—Dr. Herbert Stein, a former economic advisor to the White House, says the great illness of inflation "can't be cured by some magic potion" and any solution will take some sacrifices on the part of Americans.

Stein, now a professor at the University of Virginia, told a seminar in Houston Tuesday the tight money policy of the Federal Reserve Board will eventually help cure the disease of inflation and a conservative, free market approach would be another antibiotic.

But, he warned, there may be higher unemployment and no reduction in income taxes until the air has been let out of the inflation balloon.

Stein, once chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, said now is the time that the nation's chief executive told the people he would stop inflation "whether or not it costs your jobs or mine. If you insist on continuing recent rates of wage increases...businesses and consumers will be unable to hire you and you will lose jobs. Do not expect the government to bail you out by pumping up the economy."

The economist also said the decline in the share "of national output going to defense shouldn't continue."

Cake decorating course shapes

A course in Intermediate Cake Decorating will be offered by the Adult and Continuing Education Department of Howard College, announced Cheri Sparks, director. Classes will meet from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 29 through Nov. 19 in A-4.

Instructor for the course will be Billye Grisham. Prerequisite for the course is beginning cake decorating. Cost of the course is $15. A supply list will be available at the first class meeting. Cost of the supplies will be minimal.

Interested persons must pre-register in the Continuing Education Office located in the Horace Garrett Building. For further information, call the Adult and Continuing Education Department at 267-6311, ext. 70.

It should be reversed. There is no economic reason why we can't have much more secure defense. We could reach a situation of relative weakness."

The nation's security, he said, is being threatened by foreign oil producing nations and "for the first time in American history our economy is exposed to the risk of serious damage by a decision of foreign and possible hostile powers to withhold essential supplies."

Stein spoke at a special meeting for business and academic leaders sponsored by The Center for International Business.

Later, Howard Kauffmann, president of Exxon Corp., said no policy now existed to encourage energy production.

"We've bred a crazy-quilt system of regulations administered by cumbersome bureaucratic apparatus. Crucial decisions that affect this country's, and indeed the world's, economic future are being made in conformance with political, diplomatic and other factors that often have little to do with energy supply.

The president of the world's largest oil company said "because we have failed to get our priorities in order, domestic oil production is below what it could be."

Kauffmann said there may be a sufficient energy supply in 1985, but that it will cost.

"The day may have passed when simple market forces alone can achieve an equilibrium between oil demand and supply", he said.

The oil company executive added, "environmental constraints have slowed and in some cases prevented access to some of the most promising areas. Major energy development projects, involving billions of dollars, such as pipelines and offshore production facilities, have been delayed or even aborted.

"Controls on the price of crude oil and refined products have encouraged wasteful and inefficient use of supplies. By holding prices at artificially low levels we've also discouraged discovery and development of oil and gas as well as alternative energy resources," Kauffmann said.

POW's new life better if old talked about

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Rowdy Newingham emerged from captivity scarred, emaciated and in many ways shackled to haunting memories of four years, two days and 17 hours in Viet Cong prison camps.

Living chained in a 4-foot-tall tiger cage, he dwindled from 203 to 78 pounds on a diet of insects and grass. His ribs and shoulders bear the scars from frequent beatings.

"I've got more scars on the inside than the outside. I've learned to live with it," said Newingham, 36, who has found it hard to put the ordeal behind him.

"I have to talk about it. I figure if I keep it bottled up inside, then I'll really have problems."

Newingham attributed his survival to "a little bit of hate, a whole lot of pride and a whole lot of trying to show the Vietnamese that Americans have the best country ever."

He returned two years after his family had been notified he was dead. His wife filed for divorce the day after his release was announced as part of the prisoner exchange program brought about by the Paris peace talks.

He kept a copy of his death certificate and the small black pajamas he wore while shackled and near starvation in prisoner-of-war camps throughout Vietnam and one, he believes, in Cambodia.

In the six years since his release, Newingham has been divorced, remarried, become a father and opened his own business.

He splits his time between being the affable manager of a tire store and a family man content to stay at home with his wife, daughter and newborn son.

"I had more time to think about my values. I think I am a more sensitive person, because I had so much time for soul searching," said Newingham.

His experience has made him a fierce supporter of anti-Communist efforts of U.S. foreign policy. Under no circumstances, he said, will he go to see a Jane Fonda movie, regardless of the content.

Viet Cong guerrillas forced his jeep off a road one early February 1969 morning in Long Thanh province, where he was a civilian technical advisor for the Army.

During the next four years, he endured the mental torture of being told almost every day that he would be killed — and wondering why he was not.

"It starts to warp your skull after a while. Sometimes I felt like saying, 'Go ahead, do it, kill me. At least that would stop all the suffering. It would have been very easy to lay down and just die," he said.

Doctors examined him upon his release found he had suffered from beriberi, malaria and several parasites.

An emaciated Newingham stooped and kissed the ground of a U.S. military base in the Philippines after his release in February 1973.

Now he projects his lingering resentment from the war toward Vietnamese refugees.

"There are Vietnamese vets over here who can't get jobs, and we are giving jobs to the refugees," said Newingham. "It doesn't make sense."

Rationing plan will take time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite predictions from congressmen that gasoline rationing could be needed at any time, an Energy Department analyst says it could take a couple of years to whip a workable plan into shape.

Under a compromise given final congressional approval Tuesday, the president can order rationing any time there is a shortage of 20 percent in gasoline or diesel fuel supplies in the United States.

The House and Senate will get a crack at rejecting whatever detailed rationing plan the Carterized con-cocts before the stand-by plan goes "on the shelf" for possible future use.

Moreover, either house would have the option of blocking actual implementation of rationing at the time the president tried to put it into effect.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., a principal author of the compromise bill approved 301-112 by the House Tuesday, said conditions requiring gasoline rationing "could occur at any time."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, said the fragile U.S. oil supply line from the Middle East could be cut off at any time. "Without contingency planning, the country would be brought to its knees," Jackson said.

It is that contingency planning which Energy Department analyst Andy Fang says will take time.

"There is no stand-by plan at the moment because the Energy Department could not prepare one until Congress spelled out what it would insist on having in it. And Fang said it could be two years or more before a rationing plan is ready for practical operation."

"Gasoline rationing is not here tomorrow," he said in an interview.

Fang, a program analyst in the Office of Regulations and Energy Planning, said it may take several weeks to draft a plan, which then would be opened up for public comment.

That process could mean it will be months before a final plan is sent to Congress for what could be a time-consuming review.

Fang said planners believe that, practically speaking, it would take 18 to 24 months from the time a plan gets the congressional go-ahead to have it ready to work.

Gondola ride cleared inspection

Emergency stop switch failed

DALLAS (AP) — Witnesses said the accident started when one gondola on the "Swiss Skyride" jammed on a suspension tower while the other cars on the ride continued to move.

One by one, three other gondolas piled up behind the jammed car, until the cable slipped off the suspension tower and sagged up and down like a rubber band, the witnesses said.

At that point, "that should have shut down the ride. It did not," said state fair manager Wayne Gaiagher.

Two of the gondolas fell off the cable and plunged to the top of two crowded midway games on the ground, 65 feet under the cable car ride.

One man playing at a booth was struck by the arm of a gondola and killed as the car ripped through the booth's canopy top. Sixteen others, including his wife and three daughters, were injured.

The other gondola fell on an adjacent canopy, but did not break through.

Gaiagher said the emergency stop switch on the $500,000 ride did not function, but he said he did not know why the gondolas dropped to the ground.

"If the cable comes off the tower, the system should shut down. How or why it didn't — we just don't know," Gaiagher said.

He said the ride got a "clean bill of health" after an inspection Oct. 5 and one last December by an engineer sent by the ride manufacturer. He acknowledged there have been no state or federal inspections of the ride.

Gaiagher said he had not ruled out 23-mile-an-hour winds gusting to 35 mph as a factor in causing the first car to jam, but said the exact cause had not been determined.

"We cannot presume the wind did it. The ride was designed for a 36 mile-an-hour wind factor, but the direction is as critical if not more than the speed of the wind," Gaiagher said.

He said the winds were from south and thus parallel to the north-south cable car. A similar ride at the Six Flags Over Texas amusement park between Dallas and Fort Worth was closed Sunday because of high winds, but Gaiagher said that ride runs east to west, placing it perpendicular to the winds.

On Monday, the ride manager, Bill Hawkins, said a wind monitor to stop the tram automatically if winds are too strong did not function, but Gaiagher said the state fair ride had no such wind monitor.

"There is no automatic shutoff activated by high winds," he said. "It is a judgment decision. Ride operators watch it. They ride it, they check it."

But he said he was not ruling out the winds. "We're not ruling out anything until we know everything," Gaiagher said.

Marines still fighting severe burns

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Nineteen young U.S. Marines severely burned last Friday in a freak fire at their Japanese base are clinging to life in critical condition with burns over a majority of their bodies, officials say.

Doctors and a specially trained nurses were using anti-bacteria burn creams and temporary grafts with donor and pig skin to battle infection, which they said is their primary concern.

A total of 37 Marines were airlifted Sunday to Brooke Army Medical Center's famed burn unit, which was mobilized for its toughest task since the Vietnam War.

The other 18 Marines were in either serious or satisfactory condition.

Doctors said the most significant new development in treatment of third-degree burns is the use of a white chemotherapeutic cream — sulfamylon — developed at Brooke, which is known for its burn research, treatment and rehabilitation therapy.

"The patients are completely naked and covered with just the cream. They don't use bandages anymore because I understand bacteria can accumulate in them. The discovery of the cream eliminated the need for the bandages," said Brooke spokesman Andrea Urbanczyk.

More than 70 Marines at the Mount Fuji base were burned last Friday when Typhoon Tip damaged a 5,000-gallon rubber fuel container and sent fuel streaming into an enlisted man's barracks area. The fuel ignited, creating a river of fire.

Two Marines died in Japan and a third died Sunday night en route to Brooke. Two others were left in Japan because they were too critical to move.

Col. Basil A. Pruitt Jr., commander of the burn unit, had said Monday that those 19 Marines in critical condition generally had less than a 50-50 chance of survival. "We anticipate more deaths," he said.

Those odds were even less, he added, for the four victims burned over more than 81 percent of their bodies and the seven others with burns covering more than 60 percent of their bodies.

But Ms. Urbanczyk said Tuesday, "The conditions of the Marines remain unchanged. However, considering the severity and extent of injuries suffered, all of the Marines are doing much better than anticipated. This is probably due to their ages and their superb physical condition."

Those in critical condition ranged in age from 17 to 22 years old.

The next three weeks are the most critical, said Pruitt. Military authorities have identified the dead Marines as Lance Cpl. L.C. Maiveaux of Beaumont, Texas, Pfc. Tyrone C. Eiem, 19, of Alexandria, Va., and Pvt. Thomas J. Breunig, 19, of St. Paul, Minn.

Rodolfo Dominguez, 1207 Mobile St., recently completed a career training program with International Correspondence Schools where he was trained as an auto mechanic. He said he hopes to go on and get training as a diesel mechanic.

He said he feels that a benefit he received from his training is that he can show that he is a certified mechanic with school experience. He is an employee of Price Construction where he holds a job as assistant diesel mechanic and auto technician.

His wife, Jane, and he have a son, two years and 10-months-old named Rodolfo Dominguez III.

Schools no longer provide patients

Dental licensing may get tougher

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It'll take more than a white coat and four tough years of training to become a dentist in Texas if the State Board of Dental Examiners adopts a proposed rule.

In addition to the tough training and traditional garb, applicants will have to bring their own patient to work on during the licensing exam if the proposed rule goes into effect.

Carl Hardin, board executive director, says the dental schools can no longer provide patients for the prospective dentists to work on during the licensing exam.

"With the increase in the number of graduates from Texas schools and the increase in the number of out-of-state applicants, it has become impossible for the schools to furnish patients," says Hardin.

During the dental exam the applicant must show his skill by working on a live patient. Under current rules, the schools supply the test mouths. They are chosen from patients who go to the schools for low-cost dental care.

But there are not enough patients to go around, says the board in a rule proposed for Nov. 23 adoption.

"Now maybe they'll have to get an uncle or something," Hardin said.

Under the proposed rule the board would set standards for the patients brought in by the applicants. Hardin said board members will check the patients before the applicant begins the exam.

What about bringing a relative or friend who could be convinced to smile despite what was going on in his mouth? No advantage, says

Hardin.

"The question of family does not enter into it. Although the family member would smile and maybe not complain, the ultimate test is the expertise with which the work was done," said Hardin.

Texas' three dental schools graduate about 450 prospective dentists a year, according to Hardin. He said 150 out-of-state residents take the Texas dental exam each year.

"This is one of the few, if not the only, state agency where that which will be performed on the public must be performed during the examination," Hardin said.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, OCT. 25, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Adverse influences prevail early in the day so make sure you are careful in all that you do and say. Be on your best behavior and show understanding where needed.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Going off on some tangent could keep you from advancing at this time. The planets are favorable and you can get much accomplished.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle important business affairs early in the day for best results. A higher-up could grant you a special favor now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Strive for more harmony with associates and you accomplish a lot more. Go to the right sources for the information you need.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get right at your work and get it done instead of trying to put it off. Think of new ways to be more proficient at work.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You could be under some tension during the day but by evening this is relieved and you feel happy again. Be better groomed.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Let a difficult situation at home work itself out in the morning and harmony will be restored later. Study a new project of worth.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan how to improve regular routines. Contacting loyal friends who can help you solve a problem is wise at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't commit yourself to a task you are not sure about. Go after your aims early in the day and get excellent results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't get excited over some unusual situation in the morning and you can rectify it intelligently later in the day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take time to plan the future intelligently. Make sure a new plan you have is well organized before putting it in operation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Not a good morning for socializing. Associates have fixed views, so don't argue with them today. Be wise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You may be under some pressure in the morning but later all eases up and can accomplish a great deal. Express happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will need to be taught self-control and patience, then this becomes a most successful life. Education should be directed along the line that most appeals to your progeny. Religious training is most important here.

Travel notes not all sour

DETROIT (AP) - A hurricane struck a sour note in the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's plans for a first European tour this fall.

After delivery of special aluminum and formica cases in which to ship their instruments had been delayed for 18 months, the contents were crushed in the hold of a British freighter that was caught in a hurricane as it crossed the Atlantic. Since the custom-made trunks could not be repaired in time for the musicians' departure, members of the orchestra had to look elsewhere for help.

The problem was solved when members of the New York Philharmonic and the Pittsburgh Symphony agreed to let them use their travel cases.

BETTER THAN A FREEZE — United Auto Workers president Douglas A. Fraser discusses the state of contract talks with Chrysler Corp., the number 3 automaker, Tuesday with members of the press after meeting with the Chrysler Council in Detroit's Cobo Hall. Fraser will meet with Vice President Walter Mondale and Treasury Secretary G. William Miller Wednesday in Washington to discuss the situation at Chrysler.

San Antonio youth dies during beating by rivals

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The flag was at half-staff. Television cameras and police officers were evident and the 39 remaining Rodeo Club members were stunned and solemn expressions. There was something very wrong Tuesday at usually sedate Holmes High School.

Fifteen-year-old Billy Barnett Jr., described as a quiet, polite sophomore member of the Rodeo Club, had died Monday afternoon while being beaten after school by six other Holmes students from a rival faction.

Officials said Tuesday that Barnett died when a congenitally weak artery burst in his brain, not from injuries suffered in the fight.

Administrators and teachers, admittedly surprised that there had been any problems, hoped that tensions would be eased when stunned students learned of the medical examiner's ruling from teachers and extensive newspaper and television reports. They took steps Tuesday to calm the situation and prevent further fighting.

"The news of the ruling might help some, but I think it will take a long time to overcome the damage that's been done," said Charles Brown, 47, principal of the 3,100-student suburban high school in northwest San Antonio. "It will take a long time to outlive something like this."

Police investigators said they were told the fight stemmed from tension between "kickers," students who belong to the Rodeo Club, take agriculture classes and dress in country-and-western style, and "pot heads," students who allegedly smoke marijuana and dress in "hippie" fashion.

Police officers spent Tuesday taking statements from students who rode the school bus with Barnett and his six alleged assailants. Some of the witnesses admitted they were frightened and refused to talk to reporters.

Witnesses told police that Barnett was followed off the bus near his home and then beaten and kicked by the six other students. When Barnett collapsed, his assailants fled. Police initially treated the case as a homicide.

"The artery happened to rupture during the altercation. There weren't enough injuries to blame this on the altercation," Bexar County Medical Examiner Dr. Ruben Santos said Tuesday. "The aneurism (ballooning of the artery wall) could have ruptured while he was asleep or playing baseball."

Barnett, said Santos, suffered only "minor" bruises on his cheek, behind an ear and on his hip.

"These injuries are minor enough that if the boy hadn't had this defect in his artery, he would have walked away from this," said Santos.

The rupture could have been triggered by the attack, Santos said, adding "There is no proof the altercation caused it."

Police Lt. Walter Hall said the medical examiner's ruling means investigators would treat the case as an assault, not as a murder. Assistant District Attorney Charles Conaway said the investigation could result in involuntary manslaughter charges.

The alleged assailants, some of whom are juveniles, had not been arrested Tuesday afternoon.

Brown addressed the students over the public address system Tuesday morning in an attempt to ease the tension.

"I want to tell you all this is a matter for school officials and police," he said. "We will work hard in the next few days to settle it."

Brown urged the students to resume normal activities and led them in a moment of silent meditation. Brown said ROTC leaders asked permission to lower the flag to half-staff.

"He was a wonderful student," Counselor George Panfley said of Barnett. "He was a quiet boy who hasn't been in any trouble. We're going to miss him."

Brown said administrators and teachers had not heard of any tension between factions of students before the incident. There had been no fights or any reports of threats, he added.

"Normally, when there is going to be trouble, we'll hear about it some way. There's been no report of anything," he said.

Barnett's father, William Barnett Sr., told one reporter that a "pot head" had grabbed his son's cowboy hat and stomped it about three weeks ago. He refused Tuesday afternoon to talk to other reporters.

Police Detective Joe Oostervest said he was told Barnett had been warned by friends that he might be attacked by the other students.

Brown said students appeared stunned, worried, concerned and "uptight" Tuesday, but said, "I don't sense any tension as far as any fighting."

Where-with-all to break quickly Early money best in politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cecil D. Andrus, secretary of the interior, didn't wait.

He's already anted up a campaign contribution. And Jimmy Carter hasn't even gone through the formality of saying he'll run.

Press secretary Jody Powell; U.S. Marshal Earle McLaughlin of Burlington, Vt.; James Earl Carter III, son of the president; Anne Wexler, an assistant to the president, and her husband, Joseph D. Duffey, chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, didn't wait either.

Each gave $250 to the Carter campaign.

In politics, early money is the best. It provides the where-with-all for a campaign to break quickly from the starting gate; it is the money that raises more money.

A number of those who work in the White House, in U.S. embassies abroad and in the bureaucracy have hurried in to help Jimmy Carter with campaign contributions.

Reports on file at the Federal Election Commission show that John M. Sullivan, a Carter classmate at Annapolis appointed to run the Federal Railroad Administration, also gave Carter $250, as did his wife, his son and his daughter.

Gene Stuckey, a rural mail carrier in Statesboro, Ga., and his wife, Nellie, gave $1,000 each. Stuckey is past president of the Georgia Rural Letter Carriers Association.

Of course, most of the $2.4 million raised so far by the Carter-Mondale Presidential Committee came from people outside government. And there is nothing in the law to prevent people who owe their jobs to Jimmy Carter from contributing to his campaign.

As yet, there's no accounting for how much money supporters of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy have raised or spent.

Draft Kennedy committees in the 50 states haven't all filed reports. Since they are draft committees and not a candidate's campaign committee, the law makes a distinction.

Draft committees may get up to $5,000 from an individual. Campaign committees may take no more than $1,000 per contributor before the primaries and another $1,000 in a general election campaign. Kennedy will be subject to the same limits when he becomes a candidate.

Among reported contributors to some Draft Kennedy committees are Norman Lear, the television producer, $3,000; Mark Siegel, who once worked in the Carter White House, then quit in disenchantment, $1,000; Ted Ashley, of Warner Brothers, $4,000; and his wife, Joyce, $5,000; Carter Burden, former New York City councilman, $1,250; movie producer Margo Winkler, $5,000; former Massachusetts Gov. Endicott Peabody, $1,000; Charles G. Bluhdorn, chairman of Gulf & Western, $5,000; and former New York Post publisher Dorothy Schiff, $250.

Movie producer Joseph E. Levine hedged his bet by giving $1,500 to a Draft Kennedy committee and $1,000 to Carter.

Not all of Carter's supporters are big names. Contributions arrived from the executive director of the President's Commission on Personnel Interchange; a member of the Joint Federal-State Land Use Commission in Anchorage, Alaska; the director of the Office of Foreign Disaster Assistance; and a member of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Review Commission.

The father and mother of Peace Corps Director Richard Celeste each gave $1,000.

Two Big Spring residents hit with Mitchell County charges

COLORADO CITY — The Mitchell County Grand Jury returned a joint indictment on two Big Spring men Friday afternoon.

Buster Bedwell, 43, and Richard Cantwell, 37, were indicted on a theft charge concerning about 450 feet of copper wire belonging to the Colorado City schools. The theft occurred Oct. 16.

The grand jury handed down four other indictments and remanded a DWI charge naming Silverio Quintanilla of Fort Stockton to county court.

Jay F. Morren, 20, of Colorado City was indicted in connection with forgery on a note for $500.

Lawrence Elton Smith, 19, of Lakeland, Fla., was indicted for possession of more than four ounces of marijuana.

Indictments for DWI and a subsequent offense were returned against Manuel Del Real, 58, and Reynaldo Guerrero Selvera, 59, both of Colorado City.

Five-year pin given Perez

Luis Perez was honored today for five years of service to the city.

The five-year pin was presented by Mayor Wade Choate during today's meeting of the Big Spring City Council. Perez came to work for the city as a laborer in the Sanitation Department on Oct. 24, 1974. In June of this year, Perez was promoted to his present position of truck driver also in the sanitation department.
