Canterbury ceremonies

Service of dedication, open house set Sunday

A service of dedication and opening house for the formal opening of Canterbury, an apartment complex for people 62 years of age and older, located at the corner of Lancaster and 17th Streets, will be held from 3:30 until 5 p.m., Sunday.

Canterbury was an ambitious undertaking of St. Mary's Episcopal Church. It was financed by a loan from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). A non-profit facility, it is open to any eligible person, regardless of race, color or creed.

Canterbury groundbreaking ceremonies were held Dec. 29, 1977, and is a culmination of action begun in October of 1975.

Donald Bailey was the architect of the building itself and the landscape. The builder was Cooper Construction Co., Odessa.

The residents of Canterbury are persons who can care for themselves or who have someone living with them who can look to their needs. There are no nursing care facilities. There is an emergency call system from each apartment to the manager's office. Canterbury contains 120 apartments, the majority of which are one-bedroom facilities. The apartments are all rented with the exception of two wheelchair units. A small waiting list has already been started. Present for the Sunday ceremonies will be Bishop Willis Henton Lubbock; the Ven. Richard Wilson, archdeacon of the diocese from Lubbock; Howard Quater of New York City, housing officer for the Episcopal Church; Guilford Jones III, who had the responsibility of supervising its construction and is the immediate past president of the board of directors of Canterbury; Orville Shapland, president of the Canterbury board; Galen Bradford, Canterbury's executive director; the Rev. Harland B. Birdwell, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church. The public is invited to attend the service and visit some of the apartments in Canterbury, which was built at a cost of $3.2 million.

Refugees threatened many times by slain fisherman

SEGUIN, Texas (AP) — A Seadrift crab fisherman slain in a summer "crab war" with Vietnamese refugees had angrily threatened Vietnamese crabbers several times before his death, once vowing to cut their throats, according to testimony in a murder trial here.

Nguyen Van Sau, 21, and Nguyen Van Chinh, 20, two Vietnamese refugee brothers who became crabbers in Seadrift, are on trial for murder in the Aug. 3 shooting death of Billy Joe Aplin, 35.

They face maximum 99-year prison sentences if convicted by a jury of 12 whites, including two retired Air Force officers who served in the Vietnam War.

The trial was moved 90 miles inland to Seguin because of the still-smoldering tensions and the threat of violence in the tiny coastal fishing town of 1,400.

Defense attorney Pat Maloney contends that the 5-foot-5, 110-pound Sau shot the much larger Aplin in self-defense, only after repeated threats and only after Aplin had beaten and slashed Sau with a knife. Chinh, he claims, tried only to calm his brother.

The defense maintains that the shooting, which touched off violent reprisals against Seadrift's Vietnamese community, took place in an atmosphere of hostility, fostered primarily by Aplin.

Prosecution witness Nguyen Duc Bang, 20, a friend of the brothers and a former Seadrift crabber, testified Wednesday that he and four other Vietnamese got into an angry confrontation with Aplin while crabbing in the same area about four weeks before the shooting.

The dispute over territorial crabbing rights occurred while the Vietnamese and Aplin were trying to harvest crabs in the lush crabbing grounds at the mouth of the Guadalupe River.

Under questioning by District Attorney William Day, Bang said Aplin took Vietnamese traps aboard his boat and jumped on them.

"He (Aplin) just cussed us and had his knife out. He said he was going to cut everybody's throat off," Bang testified in halting, heavily accented English, drawing his finger across his throat in imitation of Aplin's alleged threat.

"He tried to run over our boats, but his wife and children stopped him. I saw them crying. He said this water belonged to him. He said this was his country," added Bang.

Aplin's widow, Judy, testified that the Vietnamese had cursed her husband and bumped the Aplin boat while circling it with their own boats. Her husband waved a knife, she said, only after Bang brandished the knife he had clinched in his teeth.

Asked if her husband ever vowed to cut the refugees' throats, she replied, "Not that I know of. I was trying to quieten two younger children at the time."

Four prosecution witnesses testified Tuesday that Sau, a former South Vietnamese Marine, deliberately shot Aplin a short time after being beaten by the 6-1, 195-pound American. They said Aplin approached Sau because he was upset about the confrontation on the water.

All said they didn't see slash wounds on Sau, but Bang and a defense witness testified Wednesday that shortly after the incident, Sau had blood on his chest from what appeared to be cuts.

Day called Bang as a witness to show the jury that Sau and Chinh had gone to Bang's house after an early-evening, dockside argument with Aplin to obtain a pistol and rifle to use on Aplin.

But Day's questioning led Bang into testimony about Aplin's alleged threats with a knife and an incident in late July in which Aplin slashed tires on Sau's auto.

As Day intensely questioned Bang on each detail of his story, Maloney at one point objected that Day was trying to impeach his own witness.

During defense cross-examination, Maloney asked Bang if it appeared to him that Calhoun County Sheriff's Department investigators and the grand jury were trying to obtain only the information they wanted to hear, not the whole story.

"Right," replied Bang. Defense witness Jack

Campbell, a former constable in the area, later testified, "Aplin had a bad reputation for being rough and tough. I've observed a rifle in his truck several times."

He said it was common knowledge in Seadrift that Aplin had been threatening the Vietnamese and wanted them out of town.

Defense witness Georgia Davis, a manager at the crab processing plant that attracted the refugees to Seadrift, testified, "There was a whole lot of hostility in the Aplin family toward the Vietnamese. He (Billy Joe Aplin) told me he wanted us to get rid of all the damn gooks."

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE MEHRING

BRATWURST AND BEER

While visiting Big Spring

Mehring's discover enchiladas

By ROBBICROW
Family News Editor

Venturing into a local Mexican restaurant, opening a menu and deciding whether you want to eat enchiladas, tacos or beef chalupas is not a hard task, unless you're from Kohler, Wis., and don't know the difference between a frijole and a peanut butter sandwich.

Such was the case with Mr. and Mrs. George Mehring, residents of a "very German-Dutch community in Wisconsin."

The couple were recently in Big Spring visiting their daughter, Sarah Higgins. While here, they learned the way of the west and became familiar with several south-of-the-border dishes on the Mexican menu.

"The Mexican terminology on a menu was all new and strange to us," says Mrs. Mehring. "We had no idea what enchiladas or tostadas were. We just pointed something out to the waiter and hoped we would like it."

Eleanor Mehring and her husband, both of German descent, reside in, what they say, is a community comprised of many hardworking people.

"Our community is very stable," reveals Mrs. Mehring. "Most people there own their own homes. The unemployment rate is very low."

Kohler, Wis., is a small town known nationwide for the plumbing products manufactured there.

"We live north of Milwaukee," Mrs. Mehring continues, "and that's a fun-loving, eating and beer-drinking town. Beer is one of the favorite drinks in the area."

In comparing Big Spring to Kohler, Mrs. Mehring mentioned the fact that people here seem smaller than they do in Wisconsin.

"Wisconsin people are probably bigger because of their eating habits," she humorously explains.

Considered a northern specialty by Wisconsin natives, bratwurst is as common to the people there as chicken fried steak is down here.

According to Mrs. Mehring, bratwurst is similar to country pork sausage, usually 6 inches long and is fried on a grill over charcoal.

"We often have large community bratwurst and beer picnics."

Mrs. Mehring claims one of her favorite pastimes is cooking.

"I like to cook. I have five daughters and I've always had to cook a lot," she says. "My husband is a good eater, too."

German and Dutch people like to cook and cook very well, Mrs. Mehring points out.

"My husband's mother was a very good cook who originated many of her own recipes."

The Mehring's have returned to Wisconsin, taking with them a little Mexican menu terminology to share with their friends and neighbors.

Before leaving, Mrs. Mehring left several of her mouth-watering delicacies, including a few German dishes and an original recipe created by her mother-in-law. Try them and see what you think.

POTATO SALAD
(Mrs. Mehring's mother-in-law's own recipe)
10 medium potatoes, boiled in their jackets, peeled and sliced thin
1 medium onion, diced

1 medium carrot, grated
1 tablespoon salt
1 1/2 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons vinegar
Mix and put on top of diced potatoes.

4 strips bacon, browned and diced. Remove fat and add 3 1/2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon butter and 3/4 cup hot water.

Make a paste with flour and butter; add water and one small can (8 ounces) evaporated milk and cook until thick. Pour over potatoes. Boil 2 eggs and slice into potato salad. Season to taste. Serve at room temperature.

GERMAN POTATO SALAD
6 medium potatoes (cooked in their jackets in a covered sauce pan until tender. Peel and slice while hot)

Heat in a skillet:
4 slices bacon, minced
Remove bacon to sliced potatoes. Reserve drippings.

Saute 1/2 cup chopped onion in drippings until golden and add to sliced potatoes, reserving drippings.

To drippings, carefully add:

1/2 cup vinegar
1/2 cup hot water
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
Thicken with paste made of 1/4 cup flour and 2 tablespoons water.

Pour sauce over potatoes, stir slightly and allow to stand three or four hours before serving. Leftovers may be served cold.

The big bambino bows out

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frank Rizzo knows they don't all love him, but he's positive every Philadelphian will sorely miss him.

Rizzo, the 59-year-old ex-cop from the Little Italy rowhouses of South Philly, is leaving the mayor's office after two stormy terms, ending eight years of colorful and controversial leadership.

He has chased fire engines, raged at the press, been featured in the "Doonesbury" comic strip, failed a lie detector test in a patronage flap and worn a nightstick in his juxtao cummerbund.

And he feels no one can fill his shoes. "I will return," he promises. "In about six months they'll be begging to have me back."

Rizzo's thoughts about those seeking to succeed him in City Hall in the Nov. 6 election?

"Between them, if you aggravated their brains you still couldn't get a half wit. I've got to vote for one of them, but it's an awful choice."

Rizzo — nicknamed the Big Bambino, the Cisco Kid and Hizzoner in various stages of his police and mayoral career — could retire on a $45,000-a-year pension but says he's considering a run at the U.S. Senate seat held by Republican Richard Schweiker, who is retiring next year.

"If my wife says go, I'll go," Rizzo says. "If my wife says no, I'll talk to her a little bit more. I'm confident if I made that move, I would be successful."

Critics of the mayor say he's sold this city of 2 million down the river, leaving it financially shaky and struggling with high unemployment. Freeing businesses and racial unrest aggravated by his "vote white" crusade.

"No other city in the United States could compare to what's heppening in Philadelphia," counters Rizzo. "Last year we had a billion dollars worth of economic development, this year a billion and a half."

"Thousands of jobs? You can't fault me for the job loss. They don't print the truth. The job losses were the federal jobs that moved out of here, and we've turned it around."

The son of a policeman and himself a former beat patrolman who rose through the ranks to become police commissioner, Rizzo prides himself on his organizational abilities.

"I've got my grave already picked, name and all," he says. "All they have to do is chisel the date. I do everything right. I've even got my suit, with tie. I've been through it. I watched families in confusion. I don't want my wife running around."

The 6-foot-2 Rizzo, his muscular frame carrying 270 pounds, has a married daughter and a bachelor son. He lives with his wife, Carmella, in a fancy $250,000 house and likes to smoke expensive cigars, although he declines to be photographed with one. He still suffers pain from a right hip broken when he fell while helping direct rescue efforts at an oil refinery fire in 1975.

Rizzo often jabs the air with his beefy hands as he talks, punctuating his comments with unprintable words and occasional humor.

"My positions are always clear," he says. "You don't have to have a Webster's dictionary beside you to understand me."

Rizzo is both loved and hated here. Much of the ill will stems from his tough law-and-order stance. The mayor was enraged when the U.S. Justice Department filed suit against his police force, in part alleging a pattern of police brutality.

"I'm not saying they are angels," he had said, "but while I'm around, right or wrong, if they're trying to do their job, they're going to be protected, even if they're wrong."

The brutality sections of the suit were dismissed on Tuesday.

Much of the evidence of alleged brutality was gathered in black neighborhoods, and Rizzo heightened racial tension last year when he urged citizens to "vote white" in a referendum on whether he could change the city charter to allow a third term as mayor. The bid was rejected 2 to 1.

"I'm no racist," he said. "The black man has done better under me than all of the liberal mayors before me.... I'm ultra-liberal when it comes to human rights, but ultra-conservative when it comes to criminals."

Rizzo, who once called Richard Nixon the greatest president America ever had, has stayed on the sidelines in the current campaign. "the dullest I've ever seen because I'm not in it."

Rizzo was infuriated when Green and Marston made pitches for the black vote, each promising to name a black to the post of managing director, the No. 1 job in the mayor's cabinet.

Monkeying around

MARION, Ohio (AP) — Small, peaceful Marion County in central Ohio has been startled recently — by monkeys.

Two furry primates escaped from the Columbus Zoo in June, but apparently have survived in the wilds of Ohio. They were spotted last week and Sunday in opposite ends of Marion County, about 30 miles north of the zoo.

"A farmer spotted one a week ago," said Marion County Dog Warden Stanley E. Long who has been receiving calls from people spotting the monkey in his county. Long reported another sighting Sunday in another part of the county and said he's seen both monkeys.

Columbus Zoo officials confirmed that a 6-year-old, brown-haired male Japanese Macaque, or snow monkey, escaped in June by climbing a hose used to fill a moat around the "Monkey Island." The fugitive was described as 2½ feet tall and about 35 pounds, with the potential to fight if frightened. A similar monkey escaped on the same day, the officials said.

An electrifying bill

DENVER (AP) — Birdie Casement owns a 1,200-square-foot cabin in the mountains near Grand Lake but hasn't been able to spend any time there during the past two months.

So when her bill from Mountain Parks Electric Inc. arrived this month, she was shocked.

The bill, for the last half of September and the first half of October, was for $24,641.71, she said.

"It made my jaw drop," Mrs. Casement added.

Marguerite Holland, office manager for the utility, said it was all a computer mistake.

"I'm sorry we had to get Mrs. Casement's attention so emphatically with such a bill," Mrs. Holland said.

Mrs. Casement's bill was corrected to the usual monthly winter rate of $5.97.

Kuhn's integrity overloads Mays' performance

Willie Mays' dark eyes widened in that naive, little boy way of his and he said he didn't understand why he couldn't work for an Atlantic City resort hotel and still wear his New York Mets uniform.

"They say it's because the hotel has a gambling casino," he said. "That has nothing to do with me. I don't know anything about gambling.

"Besides, look at all the owners in baseball who have race horses. That's gambling, too. If you gamble, what difference does it make how you do it?"

Mays' question was being echoed all around the country today — by pinstriped executives having lunch at the athletic club, guys tossing a few beers in the neighborhood pub, kids, taxi drivers and housewives.

Why? Really, why? Commissioner Bowie Kuhn gave his explanation — a forthright dictum that fit nicely the straight-laced corset of baseball — but a majority of people were left confused.

After all, little old ladies fly out to Las Vegas to feed nickels into the slot machines. Secretaries enter office pools at Kentucky Derby time. Kids pitch pennies at a crack in the sidewalk. Churches hold bingo games and preachers are not averse to engaging in a twobuck Nassau on the golf course. Millions play the football cards.

Where does the sin of gambling actually lie? Can you be half pregnant?

Kuhn says this is largely immaterial. The key factor, he insists, is that the one thing baseball has going for it is integrity, which should never be jeopardized.

"The commissioner's main job," he says, "is to protect this integrity at all costs."

Baseball, he reasons, must avoid not only evil but the appearance of evil. It must guard against the slightest intrusion — even if it's a tiny germ — that could ultimately contaminate the whole sport.

Gambling, in his view, is a dire threat. He always, he contends, has opposed legalized as well as illegal gambling and will combat it at every gate. Acceptability of baseball involvement in horse racing was deeply entrenched when he took office in 1969 and there's little he can do to change it.

He can only try to prevent the spread of the infection, which he did 10 years ago by persuading Charlie Finley of the A's and three Braves directors to divest themselves of stock in a company with casino holdings. The Willie Mays affair is the first such case since then.

You can't fault the commissioner's idealism. Baseball still is the great American pastime, a sport that has not sold its soul to the money changers and has remained within reach of the common man.

Nevertheless, it is ludicrous to believe baseball can be insulated from the rest of the imperfect outside world.

Steer fems host Cooper tonight

The Big Spring Steer girls volleyball team, still undefeated in the second half of the District 5-AAAA race, play host to the Abilene Cooper Cougars tonight at 7:00 p.m. in Steer Gym.

The Steer fems are currently tied with first half champion San Angelo in the second half race. Tonight's game will be a sort of revenge match for Big Spring, as Cooper was one of only two teams that defeated them in the first half.

There will be a community pep rally for the volleyball and football team beginning at 5:00 in front of the Steer Gym. The rally will start the Homecoming activity for 1979.

A junior varsity volleyball game is slated for 6:00 p.m.

Cowboy Cheerleaders: More than pretty bodies

JEANNE MONFORT — Is a 26-year-old Cowboy Cheerleader originally from Melbourne, Florida. She is an excellent swimmer and an avid tennis player whose foremost interest in life is her health and nutrition. She makes a living as a flight attendant for Braniff, and is currently taking French courses to prepare her for future international routes.

TOWARD THE END of the Dallas-Denver pre-season game in Texas Stadium on a hot and muggy Irving night, I was led from the press box onto the sideline of the Broncos bench by a member of the Dallas Cowboys brass. Actually, I was searching for either Charlie West or Tom Sorely for a talk about their progress in training camp.

But crossing the 15-yard line, I couldn't help but notice a group of Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders curvaceously wiggling to the beat of the music. Suddenly unaware of the game, my eyes became mesmerized with the figure of one of the lovely ladies. She was at least a nine in my judgement (and my judging is very strict), with beautiful brown eyes, a sexy tan, and a figure that would make most any damsel envious.

And although the blood was definitely surging through my body at this time, I did manage to suppress my emotions and walk on to where I was being led.

Later that night, driving back to Big Spring in the darkness of Interstate 20, I decided to have a little fun with the cheesy Herald Photographer Danny Valdes, who has been known to take a cheerleader's picture, whether she be with the Dallas Cowboys or Timbuktu Junior High. But I do know that he especially likes the Cowboy Cheerleaders, and rightfully so.

"Hey, Danny," I said in my most serious voice, although it was strictly a put-on. "I was walking by those cheerleaders tonight, and, you know, they looked so good. The thought crossed my mind, 'What if I just grabbed one of them and took her to the ground. Right there in front of 60,000 people.'"

"No, no, no, no!" Danny stated emphatically and most excitedly. "No, Nathan, you can't do that! The NFL would make you a national goat. They put you in prison to show everyone what would happen to somebody that tries to mess around with them. You can't do that!" he continued, showing much concern.

By this time, I could definitely sense that Danny thought I was being totally serious. So I added, in my best Nick Nolte voice. "Well, you know, this one had such a nice body, Danny, and the sweat was pouring down to her navel. I couldn't help but think about it for a moment."

"No, Nathan," Danny continued, still "concerned over what my mind was thinking. "You do that, and we don't get to come back to anymore games," he continued quickly in his likable Cuban accent.

I couldn't control my laughter any longer, and he realized at this point that I was putting him on the whole time.

THAT SCENE had escaped my mind until yesterday, when Herald Editor Tommy Hart gave me a Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders yearbook entitled "A Touch of Class." Well, I shouldn't say gave it to me, as he did add, "You can look at it, but give it back to me."

After looking at the pictures, I began reading through the colorful press guide and realized for the first time that the Cowboys Cheerleaders are not your average yea-leaders.

FORMER COWBOY CHEERLEADER MONICA MEUHLHAUSE

No doubt that they are nice looking, as are most cheerleaders, but after reading through the rigorous requirements and competition that each must go through, it became quite obvious to me that each one has three basic assets that your normal cheerleader doesn't. (And I'm not knocking the rest of the cheerleaders in the world.)

1) They know the difference between a first down and a completed pass, as some I have known do not. 2) They aren't cheerleaders for the strict purpose of dating the quarterback. 3) They enjoy the attention of being in front of a crowd, but don't thrive on it like so many do.

Called by some as "The 36 Most Beautiful Girls in Texas," I have to disagree. There are no doubt some better looking females in the state, but I don't know of many that can combine relatively pretty faces and good figures with the talent and personality that the Cowboys Cheerleaders must display.

COMPETITION is growing more and more intense for the hopefuls. 1976 was the first year that the Cowboys held open auditions, and 250 young women applied. The number has increased each year, with 1617 applying for the 40 spots this year.

The auditions are held over a month and a half beginning in April, and are based on a three-stage system: 1-Preliminaries, 2-Semifinals, 3-Finals. The judges are the Cheerleaders' director Suzanne Mitchell; along with choreographer Texie Waterman; Ron Chapman of a Dallas radio station; Bert Rose, vice-prexy of Texas Stadium; and a Dallas attorney.

This year 155 girls qualified for the semi-finals. At this time, the field was reduced to 83 for the finals. 31 of the 83 included members of last year's squad, which are automatically given byes into the finals.

In the preliminaries, the girls come to the judges in groups of four and give their name, briefly describe their occupation, background, and why they want to be a Dallas Cowboy Cheerleader. Judges claim that it is hard at this time to describe what they are looking for, although such qualities as charisma, verve and sparkle have been mentioned.

The semifinals have become more taxing. The past year, a talent competition was added, going along with the agility that the hopefuls must display in learning to do dance routines which they then must perform to music.

Another of the tests of versatility that prospective Cowboy Cheerleaders must overcome is an interview with director Mitchell. "What we look for in our cheerleading squad is simply something for everyone — a cross-section of the American woman. We want every day people, not professional cheerleaders. They must be full-time employed, students or homemakers. They must also be educated, well-informed women who represent the Dallas Cowboys in a first-class manner. We've turned down many beautiful women because they weren't able to express enough enthusiasm and personality," say Mitchell.

And this is no sales pitch. Personality sketches are given on all 40 of this year's Cowboy Cheerleaders, and they have a wide range of occupations, interests, and ages.

They have an age span of 19 years of age to 29. Some are married, but most are not. Only a handful have children.

THEIR OCCUPATIONS have a wide range. A couple are high school teachers, and many are full-time students at such surrounding schools as SMU, TCU and North Texas State.

Others have such vocations such as secretaries, nurses, sales representatives, a social worker with deaf children, fashion designers, flight attendants, insurance salesladies, and one is in school studying to be an orthodontist.

One now attends Texas Women's University, but was the sports editor of the University of Southern California student newspaper her first two years in college.

And once they've made the final cut as Cowboys' Cheerleaders, the work is only beginning. From mid-May until late June, the girls work every Friday, Saturday and Sunday for four hours under Waterman. Then, from early July until the season begins, the Cowboys Cheerleaders work virtually every night for four hours in vigorous routines in a cramped, airless room.

LIKE THEIR GRIDIRON PARTNERS in the NFL, there are many hours of pain and hard work for their few hours of glory. And the girls receive only a token payment, although their Sunday afternoon profession undoubtedly creates numerous opportunities for them.

So Cowboys Cheerleaders, I'm sorry that I have usually just looked at your pretty bodies and listened to my perverted thoughts. I'll definitely have much more respect for you as people from now on, although I'm sure you couldn't tell it by the look in my eyeballs.

IOC members voting on China-Taiwan issue

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Ballots were sent this week to the 89 members of the International Olympic Committee, who will vote by mail on a plan to bring athletes from both mainland China and Taiwan into the Olympic Games.

In 1976 the Canadian government refused to grant entry visas to the Taiwanese, who went home without competing.

The IOC executive board has proposed a formula by which Taiwan would send its athletes to Lake Placid as the Chinese Taipei Olympic Committee, with a special Olympic flag and anthem to be approved by the IOC.

Peking's team would be known as that of the People's Republic of China, and they would use the national flag.

Nolan Ryan top name as draft begins

NEW YORK (AP) — At least 43 major league players will be available for claim at Friday's baseball re-entry draft — the free agent auction that often creates instant millionaires.

The list is headed by Nolan Ryan, flame-throwing right-hander of the California Angels, and includes a host of familiar names. Besides Ryan, some of the pitchers who have declared for the draft are Fred Norman of the Cincinnati Reds, Al Hrabosky of the Kansas City Royals, Don Stanhouse of the Baltimore Orioles, Rick Wise of the Cleveland Indians, Dave Cortz of the Minnesota Twins, Lerrin LaGrow of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Rudy May of the Montreal Expos and John Curtis of the San Francisco Giants.

Other players up for grabs include Bob Watson of the Boston Red Sox, Tony Perez of the Montreal Expos, Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds, Jorge Orta of the Chicago White Sox, Fred Patek of the Kansas City Royals and Jose Cruz of the Houston Astros.

One of the more interesting free agent declarations came Wednesday when Don Kessinger, former player-manager of the Chicago White Sox, who quit last summer in his first year with the dual jobs, filed his notice. Kessinger played in 56 games last season, batting .200 in 110 at bats.

Also declaring for the draft was Jesus Alou, who served as Houston's first base coach and a part-time player last season. Alou batted .256 batting just 43 times.

Also on the list are Ed Kranepool of the New York Mets, Willie Horton of the Seattle Mariners, Milt May of the White Sox, Merv Rettenmund of the California Angels, Rowland Office of the Atlanta Braves, Jay Johnstone of the San Diego Padres, Rennie Stennett of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Greg Gross of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Slow pitch action

The City Fall Slow Pitch Tournament gets into second round action tonight, with the Outlaws facing the Federal Camp at the Industrial Park, while Dibrell's faces Couden at 7:00 at Johnny Stone Park. Also at Johnny Stone, Kwiksilver plays the Cardinals at 8:00 and the Dusters face Getty Oil at 9:00.

Bucks hold off talented Lakers

By The Associated Press
 It was a night the players enjoyed watching and the Milwaukee Bucks really enjoyed winning.
 "This is what the NBA should be about every night," said the Bucks' Marques Johnson, who scored 25 points to help Milwaukee beat Los Angeles 110-106 and record its ninth consecutive National Basketball Association triumph.

Colts to stay in Baltimore

DALLAS (AP) — Baltimore Colts owner Robert Irsay withdrew his request for a franchise move before NFL representatives, saying, "If I can work it out, I want to stay in Baltimore."
 Irsay, who studied plans from the state of Maryland and Baltimore to refurbish Memorial Stadium, said the Colts will play there in 1980.
 Such cities as Jacksonville, Fla., and Memphis, Tenn., had been mentioned as possible sites for the Col franchise.

Borg advances in Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) — Top-seeded Bjorn Borg outlasted Bill Scanlon 2-6, 7-6, 6-1 and second-seeded Jimmy Connors whipped Austria's Peter Feigl 6-3, 6-0 to advance to the quarterfinals of the $300,000 World Super Tennis Tournament.
 In other matches, fourth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis defeated Tim Wilkison 6-3, 6-1; Bob Lutz beat Australian Kim Warwick 7-5, 6-0; John Sadri eliminated Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl 6-1, 4-6, 6-2; Tim Gullickson ousted Marty Riessen 6-1, 4-6, 6-2; France's Yannick Noah whipped Australian Geoff Masters 6-4, 4-6, 7-6 and Vijay Amritraj of India downed Britain's Buster Mottram 6-3, 6-3.

NOT THIS WAY — Seattle SuperSonics forward Wally Walker jumps to prevent a pass from Denver Nuggets guard John Roche in Wednesday's National Basketball Association game. Roche was forced to call a timeout after being unable to move the ball downcourt. Seattle won the game, 97-89.

Top rated Abilene Cooper visits Big Spring Friday

The Abilene Cooper Cougars travel to Big Spring's Memorial Stadium tomorrow night to highlight the area grid football schedule.

Cooper is the top ranked team in the state in Class AAAA, having held that lofty position since the initial poll in early September. Cooper has defeated Brownwood, Wichita Falls, Haltom City, San Angelo, Odessa, Midland Lee and Odessa Permian in their slate thus far. They are an extremely well-balanced team that has dominated their opposition thus far. Their closest game was last week's emotional win over defending 5-A AAAA champs Odessa Permian by a score of 14-3.
 Big Spring, 0-4 in district play and 1-6 on the year, will be entertaining the talented Cougars during the Steers students and exes Homecoming activities. A community pep rally is slated preceding the BSHS-Cooper volleyball game this afternoon at 5:00 p.m. in front of Steer Gym to boost the spirit of both the football and volleyball teams.

The Coahoma Bulldogs, still hanging tough in the District 6-AA race, host the Ballinger Bears tomorrow night at 7:30. Coahoma is 3-1 in the district race, and must win their remaining games against Ballinger, Colorado City and Stamford in order to have a shot at the state playoffs.
 Stanton takes the road against Anton. The Buffs all but eliminated themselves in their tie with O'Donnell, but still will have with their remaining games, with one of those against Seagraves, and still hope for help. Some of that help could come tomorrow night from For-san, which travels to Seagraves. But that is highly unlikely, as the powerful defending District 5-A champion is ranked sixth in the state in Class A.

In other area games, Dawson visits Sands and Meadow is at Klondike in District 3-B West encounters, while Jayton visits Garden City and Sterling City travels to Borden County in District 3-B East, and Grady meets District 3-B) Six-man toughtie) Cotton Center.

Gaynor to return to stage

NEW YORK (AP) — Film star Janet Gaynor, who retired from the movies more than 40 years ago, says she'll try her luck on Broadway.

Miss Gaynor will star in a musical version of "Harold and Maude," a film about an 80-year-old woman who takes a 19-year-old boy for a lover. The show opens in New York on Jan. 28.

"I never thought I'd go back to being an actress," said Miss Gaynor, 72, who won an Academy Award for her role in the 1927 film "Seventh Heaven" and retired from movies in 1937. "But I have no reservations about it at all. I felt I could do the part as soon as I read it."

Her only previous stage role was in "The Midnight Sun," a 1959 play that closed before coming to Broadway.

Ruth Gordon had the role of Maude in the 1971 film version.

Boone to undergo tests

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Actor Richard Boone says he expects to wind up a three-day hospital visit with a clean bill of health from his doctors.

After being hospitalized Tuesday in an intensive care unit, Boone, 62, said physicians performed a battery of tests and told him he was in good shape.

"I just really felt lousy," he said Wednesday when asked about his visit to Flagler Hospital. "I was tired. I just didn't generally feel well."

Boone, who said he expected to be released today, gained fame playing the character Paladin in the long-running television series "Have Gun Will Travel." He also starred in other series and has had leading roles in films.

Pearl Bailey in England

LONDON (AP) — Singer Pearl Bailey says the mysteries of religion are less perplexing than the syntax of French.

The singer, in England to speak at Canterbury University, was quoted by the London Evening Standard Wednesday on why she once changed courses at Georgetown University.

"I switched from French to theology because I discovered God was easier to understand than French."

Halston's skirts shorter

NEW YORK (AP) — The skirts were shorter in Halston's new spring collection that the American designer exhibited in a fast-paced fashion show from his Olympic Towers suite on Manhattan's Fifth Avenue.

The mirrored showroom, accented with potted flowers and indirect lighting, was packed with buyers, fashion editors, students and Halston's friends, including artist Andy Warhol.

In the show Wednesday, Halston showed more clothing for evening wear than anything else. Here, the emphasis was on a shorter skirt, rather than the conventional floor-length.

Homes sustain $1.3 million in damages

Flood waters send Florida residents to shelter

OKEECHOBEE, Fla. (AP) — Hundreds of central Florida residents jammed into motel rooms today, their vacation trailers and retirement homes surrounded by hordes of venomous snakes and flood waters from a crumbled reservoir.

Civil defense officials said 500 to 1,700 persons were evacuated and homes sustained at least $1.3 million in damages when a wall of the Lake Okeechobee reservoir gave way. However, officials predicted the damage figure would escalate as reports came in on devastated crops, cattle, roads and camps.

Officials said 300 or more mobile homes and houses around the lake were struck Wednesday by floodwaters up to 8 feet in depth.

"I can't even think of what our loss will be. It's everything we've got in the world," said an exhausted Ralph Knapp, whose two large mobile homes, a recreation building, a new swimming pool and sea wall were inundated.

There were no reported injuries or deaths — perhaps, officials said, because a surprised train company crew warned authorities of the rushing water when their 21-car train was washed off the tracks.

Authorities warned refugees to watch out for poisonous snakes that had been driven out of the underbrush and were slithering across U.S. 441, which runs along the east side of the huge lake.

"Water moccasins, grass snakes, anything you can imagine," said Sheriff Clayton Williams, who toured the area in a pickup truck late Wednesday. "I've been running over them all day."

Dead cows also were seen floating across the roadway.

The 6,700-acre reservoir was constructed to provide cooling water for four generating units now under construction.

The water broke through a 300-foot section of earth-andconcrete reservoir wall and surged across gently sloping sugar cane fields toward the basin of Lake Okeechobee. The dirty brown water hit a dike and backed up, covering a 13-mile stretch of U.S. 441, pushing northward toward the resort town of Okeechobee.

The flood waters swept through a line of fishing camps and mobile home parks, many occupied by elderly residents.

Living nearest the breach in the dike was cattle rancher William Arrieta and his wife, Judy. The couple awoke to find a knee-deep torrent of water in their bedroom and grabbed their children, Patty, 6, Shayne, 12, and their married daughter, Alisa Barfield, 19.

"By the time we got to the front door, it was five feet deep," said Arrieta, 43. Linking hands, the family swam to safety on a steep barn roof. They shivered in the night air for four hours before being rescued by a helicopter.

No acreage set-aside program set

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said today farmers "must decide soon whether to keep their soil tied down on the land or allow an additional 60 million tons of it to wash or blow away this season."

Bergland, in a prepared statement, noted that he recently announced there will be no acreage set-aside requirement for production of corn and other feedgrains in 1980. Wheat farmers were told earlier that no set-aside would be in effect for next year's harvest.

Thus, Bergland said, each farmer will decide for himself on how much land to plant.

"In the 1973-74 crop year, farmers plowed up an additional 9 million acres of marginal land — land nearly impossible to protect from soil erosion," he said.

"The result was 60 million tons more soil lost on those 9 million acres alone. That was the bitter result of plowing from fence to fence."

Bergland said, "Whenever farm prices are high we see thousands of acres of cropland that should have never been plowed and the destruction of a lot of good conservation systems. Each farmer should ask himself if the chance in the short run is worth the risk of long range damage to his farm."

Asthma clinic located in cave

MOSCOW (AP) — A cave is the site of a new asthma clinic that was opened recently in the Soviet Republic of Azerbaijan.

Doctors say the constant temperature, humidity and air pressure, the salt vapors and the absence of harmful micro-organisms improve the health of asthma sufferers in 8 to 10 days.

Rebuttal witness destroys Davis defense theory

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Prosecutors say their latest rebuttal witness has destroyed the defense theory in the murder solicitation trial of millionaire Cullen Davis.

The witness, Gale Helms, 52, was asked to remain on the stand today for cross-examination by defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes.

Helms testified Wednesday he was with informant David McCrory, the state's key witness, from 5:30 p.m. until dark on Aug. 11, 1978.

That is when Davis said he was with McCrory at a meeting which forms the cornerstone of the entire defense theory. Davis testified he met with McCrory that evening to record a staged conversation designed to head off a plot against his life.

He said that encounter formed the basis of another meeting a week later during which the two discussed mass murder.

In court Oct. 12, prosecutor Jack Strickland hammered home that point, asking Davis on cross-examination: "So, the events of Aug. 18, Aug. 19 and Aug. 20 of 1978 can all be explained on the basis of this tape recording session that you had with David McCrory on Aug. 11 of 1978 at Coco's parking lot—is that right?"

"Yes, sir," Davis replied. Davis later backed away from that position slightly, saying the taping was not the "sole basis" for the later meetings.

But Helms told the court he met McCrory at least 30 minutes before the meeting Davis recounted, and said they were constantly together until 8:30 or 9 p.m.

Helms said he could be sure of the time and date because of his recent return from a vacation and the special nature of the meeting. He and McCrory were testing some new engines for radio-controlled model airplanes, Helms said.

"If you don't believe David McCrory was making phony tapes on Aug. 11," Strickland told newsmen Wednesday night, "then none of that (expletive) Cullen threw out at the jury holds water."

"If the jury believes Gale Helms instead of the defendant, Thomas Cullen Davis will go to prison."

In addition to that testimony, Helms and another witness contradicted Davis' story concerning a previous meeting with McCrory.

Davis had said he saw McCrory at 6 p.m. on June 9, when McCrory reportedly said Davis' ex-wife Priscilla had issued a contract for Davis' death.

Helms and David Harter, though, testified McCrory was in Oklahoma City on that day, for a model airplane show. Helms testified he, McCrory and McCrory's wife left for the show about 5:30 p.m.

Helms' testimony obviously caught the defense team by surprise, as all five Davis attorneys busily

Car owners check sticker

Car owners whose motor vehicle registration expired in October should not drive their cars until a new registration sticker is acquired, according to County Tax Assessor Collector Zarah Bednar.

If a three-part card renewal was not received from Austin the registration can be acquired by bringing the Texas Title and License receipt to the automobile department at the court house. A 20 percent penalty is required if the vehicle has been operated on the streets after the midnight May 31 deadline. If it has not been operated an affidavit stating it hasn't been operated is required.

GPA awards two scholarships

The Permian Basin chapter of the Gas Processors Association has awarded two $500 scholarships, according to Stewart Young, chairman of the Scholarship Committee.

The recipients are Michael E. Stogner, senior, New Mexico Tech, and James M. Stephenson, junior, Texas A&M University. The money is raised by tax deductible dues to the local organization.

scribed notes throughout his remarks.

Davis is charged with trying to hire the murders of several people during the summer of 1978. The state contends Davis tried to use McCrory as the agent to arrange the deaths, but McCrory said he went to the FBI with the story. Federal agents made audio and video tape recordings of meetings between the two men as part of their investigation and local police arrested Davis on Aug. 20, 1978.

Earlier Wednesday, police criminalist Max Courtney testified a defense exhibit had been altered significantly. He said McCrory's summer, 1978, job application with a Davis company had been changed so that the position for which McCrory was to be hired read "representative" instead of "manager."

The defense dismissed the testimony as "no big deal." Prosecutors, though, said it raised questions about Davis' motives for hiring McCrory at Jet Air Corp. The state argues Davis agreed to hire McCrory as "sales manager," at Jet Air, as cover for other activities particularly arranging the contract killings. Davis maintained he simply gave McCrory a salesman's job to do him a favor.

The defense said it could show the company's personnel director made the change in the routine course of business. McCrory, though, testified the document had been altered since he testified at an earlier Davis trial in Houston, which ended in a hung jury last January.

Asked if the state was trying to imply the alteration in fact took place since the Houston trial, state attorney John Bankston said: "I don't know that I could say that... we're relying on what McCrory said."

Government seeking $1 billion in loans for ailing Chrysler

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, sharply increasing its proposed aid package for the struggling Chrysler Corp., is about to announce it will seek more than $1 billion in loan guarantees to keep the No. 3 automaker afloat, sources say.

under increasing pressure from some members of Congress to put its proposal on the table before Chrysler's financial troubles become insurmountable. The automaker's third quarter losses, announced Tuesday, were a staggering $460.6 million, the largest deficit ever for any American corporation. It brought the firm's losses for the first nine months year to $721 million. Losses for all of 1979 are projected at about $1 billion.

$1.4 billion — in loan guarantees. The administration aid package approximates the $1.2 billion in loan guarantees Chrysler officials had sought in September. The company subsequently trimmed its request to $750 million after Miller said $1.2 billion was too high.

Baker declares candidacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. declared his candidacy for president today, coupling a warning that "America has lost its margin for error" with a new appeal for defeat of the SALT II treaty.

Departing from the traditional generalities of presidential announcement speeches, Baker devoted a major section of his brief statement to the proposed arms treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"Approval of this treaty with its acceptance of Soviet strategic superiority could guarantee to the Soviet Union the margin for error that used to be ours," said Baker, who as Republican leader of the Senate has emerged as a key opponent of the pact.

Referring to President Carter and the president's rival for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Baker said Carter negotiated SALT and Kennedy supports it.

"They may be on the right political side," he said. "But they are short-sighted and they are wrong." Baker said the nation needs a president who will "face up to the realities of a Soviet foreign policy that probes every weakness and fills every vacuum, a president to insist on defenses strong enough through the next generation to give us the confidence to stand tall again."

"I am ready to be that president," he declared. He also said he could bring "unity and action" to deal with the nation's domestic problems and described himself as "articulate enough to tough enough, honest enough, compassionate enough, young enough, experienced enough" to provide the leadership the nation needs.

In an appeal to fellow Republicans, Baker said he can win votes "in the South and in the North, on the farms and in the cities, with the whites and with the blacks, with the old and with the young."

Baker, who describes himself as a "center of gravity" politician, declared his candidacy in the Senate Caucus Room, a traditional forum for launching presidential campaigns.

Baker, 54, becomes the eighth declared candidate for the GOP nomination to the surprise of no one. He has been running hard for months and referred to today's formal announcement as "a celebration after the fact."

Baker played a crucial role in helping the administration win the votes needed for approval of the Panama Canal treaties, but is a leader of the opposition to SALT II. He contends the arms control agreement with the Soviet Union cannot win approval without substantial changes.

On economic issues, Baker supports proposals to require that deficit spending be approved only by a two-thirds majority in Congress, rather than the simple majority now required.

Like his rivals in the race, Baker calls the remaining known undeclared candidate, former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, the front-runner. Reagan is expected to announce his candidacy later this month.

And he agrees with people who call former Gov. John B. Connally of Texas an impressive figure.

"Very impressive," says Baker of Connally. "But I don't think he has very impressive support and I don't think he's going to be the nominee. Of course, I don't think Reagan's going to be the nominee or (George) Bush either."

In an interview in the Capitol office he rates as leader of the 41-member Republican minority in the Senate, Baker exuded confidence about his chances to win the nomination.

Fast food jobs are no picnic for teens

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Teens, if you think working in a fast-food restaurant consists mainly of chatting with friends and eating all the food you can, think again.

The real world of fast food isn't exactly a teen-age cornucopia under golden arches, says writer John Mariani.

Fast food is big business, designed to make profits for the owners and shareholders. That often means hard work, long hours and no free meals.

"It was no fun," laments one teen, who used to serve 'em up at Burger King but left as soon as she could get a better job. "They don't care if you quit, because there's always another kid to take your place."

It is true that the fast-food industry hires more teenagers than any other business. Of the eight million restaurant industry employees, 35 percent are teens. Millions of teenagers are competing for such jobs on a part-time basis, and like any unskilled laborer, the fast-food worker is highly expendable and easily trainable.

But there are many abuses of those lucky enough to land such jobs, including hiring underage workers, having unreasonably long hours, allowing teens to serve liquor and not paying correct wages.

Spokespersons for the industry maintain that while parent companies try hard to monitor standards and practices, it's difficult for them to check on every individual franchise owner who may be taking advantage of teen-age employees.

"The insensitive franchisee gives us all a bad name," says Allen Bernstein, who runs 11 New York outlets for Wendy's.

On the other hand, writer Mariani continues, "When Burger King sings, 'Have it your way,' they don't mean an unskilled employee can come in any time she wants, expect to eat half the store's profits, refuse to do any cleaning up and get a raise every other week.

"Working is part of growing up, and a job at a fast-food restaurant makes you realize that employers, in general, ask for a lot of work — sometimes distasteful — in return for the wages they pay."

Perhaps one major benefit of working at a fast-food chain is the opportunity for advancement. While young people shouldn't expect to be promoted right away, there are many examples of upward mobility in the fast-food ranks. The chief executive of Burger King is 37-year-old Don Smith, who started out as a food handler.

Whatever your reasons for joining a fast-food chain — whether to make a few dollars or embark on a career — be wary about the pitfalls and promises.

"Make sure your duties are detailed down to the last french fry," Mariani advises. "Familiarize yourself with the minimum-wage and child-abuse laws — and the company's expectations of your performance. Ask around to see if your friends have had any bad experiences there."

"Most of all, however, be realistic about the idea of working hard — and learn that everything is not as wonderful as it looks on the TV commercials."

Carrying A Drudge

DEAR ABBY: I have been seeing my lady for three years and want to marry her. "M" is 55 and I am 82. I have a nice home, no financial worries and live alone. My problem is getting "M" away from her family. She works eight hours a day as an accountant while caring fully for her 94-year-old mother who is blind and incontinent. "M" also has a 65-year-old brother, recently retired. He's a loner, smokes incessantly, is 100 pounds overweight and has an unexplainable control over "M." I can see her only a few hours on Saturdays. Brother is so possessive that I am not even permitted the pleasure of washing and waxing "M's" car! I want a wife, not a part-time lover.

I really need her, Abby. Her family has had her 55 years. She does all the housework, laundry (in an antique washer), cooking and baking, and she's always tired. She's had four operations for kidney stones and she's not strong, yet she continues to take this beating. She spends her vacation at home washing walls, floors and curtains.

I don't feel accepted in the family. I'm never invited to dinner — even on holidays. "M" says she loves me but can't marry me until her mother dies. I question whether "M" can ever break away from her brother. I don't want to take him on our honeymoon, but I feel he is psychologically "married" to my lady. Please answer me.

MR. X

Granddaughter and family visit Reeder's

Recent visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Reeder, 1602 Kiowa were their great-granddaughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Jones and daughter, Lindsey.

The Jones' were moving from Boston, Mass. to Priest River, Idaho, and took eight days off to visit the Reeder's.

DEAR MR. X: The longest wait in the world can be waiting for someone to die. Your lady is not a prisoner of her family — she has chosen to take a beating, work herself to a frazzle and let her brother control her. SHE isn't the victim — YOU are for meekly accepting her terms.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 20 and my husband was 23 we were sure we never wanted any children, so he got a vasectomy.

Now, five years later, I find that I have changed my mind, and I desperately want at least one child. My husband still wants no children, and that is my problem.

He refuses to even discuss it. He doesn't even want to associate with couples who have children. (They are a "bad influence" on me.) He will not consider adoption, artificial insemination or vasectomy reversal surgery.

He gets angry if I mention it. I can't get any reason out of him for not wanting children except, "I don't want any more responsibility," or "We will be too tied down and broke to do anything else."

If I comment on how cute a baby is on a TV commercial, he gets hostile.

How can I get him to change his mind, Abby? I am determined not to go through life without at least one child.

CHILDLESS

DEAR CHILDLESS: Quit begging him to change his mind. If, in a weak moment, he were to give in just to please you, from what you tell me he would make a poor father. If you are determined not to go through life without a child, you may have to find another husband.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Tuition increases to be considered

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A tuition increase might be in the offing for students at tax-supported universities and junior colleges.

The Texas College Coordinating Board "probably will consider" a tuition increase recommendation at its January meeting, said Dr. Kenneth Ashworth, state higher education commissioner.

"There is a lot of talk among board members that Airlines need $90 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's scheduled airlines — if they are to accommodate traffic growth with the most productive technology available — will have to invest $90 billion in new aircraft between 1979 and 1990, according to a study by the Air Transport Association.

The study says the industry's investment needs consist of $80 billion for passenger aircraft to be delivered in the 1980s, $7 billion for freighter aircraft and $3 billion for passenger aircraft to be delivered in 1979.

Extortionist flees police roadblocks

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Banker Richard Poynter had a feeling something was wrong when he arrived at Danny Smith's home at 7 a.m. to pick him up for a business trip.

"I honked, but Danny did not come out. He stood in the doorway and motioned me inside. I didn't know what was up," said Poynter, who shrugged, turned off the ignition and entered Smith's house.

"Just as I went through the entryway, Danny said, 'Don't get excited. We have someone else here, a visitor,'" Poynter said.

The visitor had held Smith, president of the Arlington Bank of Commerce, his wife and their two children hostage at gunpoint all night. After Poynter arrived and was also taken hostage, the gunman forced Smith to raid his own bank's vault and later escaped with more than $200,000 Wednesday.

The hostages were released unharmed. A manhunt was launched for the robber, but law officers admitted by the time they had set up roadblocks the extortionist had probably already fled the area.

"We had a perfect roadblock system set up, but we were just too late," said Deputy Police Chief Marion Rettig.

Officers said Smith, his wife Linda, and their 8-year-old son and 5-year-old daughter, were confronted by the masked gunman in their home Tuesday night after the intruder apparently broke in through an unlocked door about 8:30 p.m.

Poynter said the gunman ordered Smith, 31, to get $250,000 — after telling the bank president if he alerted police or did not return with the cash within 35 minutes he would shoot his wife. Smith complied.

Police Capt. Mike Johnston said, "After the money was delivered the suspect then took Mr. Smith hostage in his automobile and they drove around for a short period of time in Fort Worth. Mr. Smith was put in the trunk of the vehicle, and the suspect left the car and Mr. Smith somehow got out of the vehicle and notified us."

Johnston quoted family members as saying the man was at times hostile and at other times reassuring and that they did not feel they were in any real danger.

Smith answered "shaky" when asked how he felt after the ordeal was over, but otherwise declined to talk to reporters. He had managed to free himself from the trunk, which was shut but not locked, about 10 a.m. He walked to the nearby Texas Bank of Commerce and notified Arlington police.

Poynter, forced to lie face down on the floor of Smith's bedroom with the other hostages until Smith returned with the money, said before the gunman left the house with Smith he told Mrs. Smith, "Danny depends on you. You owe your life to Danny, so no calls for an hour. Is that understood?"

"He said to me, 'Do you understand that?' I said yes. Then he and Danny left, and I called police."

The exact amount of money taken in the scheme was not determined, but Fort Worth FBI Agent in Charge David Rariely said it was more than $200,000.

this is something they should look at," Ashworth told reporters Wednesday.

Only the Legislature can change tuition rates, but a recommendation from the board would carry considerable weight. College costs are rising at a time when lawmakers have cut state taxes and are under pressure from Gov. Bill Clements to make further reductions.

The next regular legislative session is in January 1981, but Clements plans to call a special session next year.

Ashworth and Beryl Milburn, coordinating board chairwoman, were interviewed after a meeting of the Special Committee on Higher Education Financing, headed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Ashworth told the committee average tuition and fees at Texas state universities and junior colleges rank 46th in the nation and would rise to only 39th — between Louisiana and Tennessee — if tuition were doubled.

Tuition is $4 per semester hour, with a minimum of $50 per semester. Fees vary among the universities and junior colleges.

for or against a tuition increase but said if one is passed, the additional money should not be used to construct new buildings.

Senior colleges and universities would insist that junior college tuition be increased by the same amount as that of the senior institutions, he predicted.

"I believe the senior colleges would feel that an economic differential in costs to students for tuition would encourage more students to attend junior colleges and thereby depress the senior college enrollments even further," he said.

He presented figures showing college enrollments are growing more slowly than in recent years and are likely to increase at only about 1.4 percent annually between now and 1987.

Most controversial issue concerns farms and ranches

About 9 percent of voters expected at polls Nov. 6

By JACKIE CALMES
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The election a year away gets more attention, but Texans go to the polls Nov. 6 to vote on three proposed amendments to its book-length state constitution.

The lackluster election of 1979 probably will attract no more than 500,000 voters, or about 9 percent of the 5.75 million registered, Milton Mallory of the Secretary of State's election division says.

Even that estimate, which is about par for an off-year election, would be lower except the Houston's school and city council elections are the same day. A few other areas have bond issues, but nothing to draw out voters like in Houston, Mallory says.

While a relatively high turnout is expected in Houston, the most controversial of the three amendment proposals concerns farms and ranches. Proposition 3 would allow the legislature to set up a state program to guarantee loans for individuals wanting to purchase farm or ranch land.

Of less interest, except possibly around the State Capitol, is Proposition 2. If it passes, the legislature could reject, rules of state executive agencies.

Gov. Bill Clements opposes the proposal as a violation of the constitutional principle of separation of powers.

Proposition 1 would make the Secretary of State solely responsible for naming notaries public. Now, county clerks take applications and forward them to the Secretary's office.

The need for voters to decide rules for notaries public illustrates a peculiarity of Texas' 103-year-old constitution — its attention to details. Only five other state constitutions mention notaries public.

In the past century, every Texas Legislature has proposed at least one amendment. In 1965 Legislature offered a record 27 and voters accepted a record 20.

The 1979 Legislature passed 12 amendment resolutions (nine will be on the 1980 ballot), bringing the total of proposed amendments to 787 since 1879. Voters have approved 233. At more than 50,000 words, the Texas constitution — unlike the federal model — does not fit neatly into the back pages of school textbooks.

Still, in 1975 Texans overwhelmingly rejected eight amendments calling for a new, presumably streamlined constitution. The election attracted 23 percent of the electorate — more than twice the number who generally have voted in off-year elections this decade.

In April 1975 and November 1973, only 11 percent — or just over half a million persons — bothered to vote on constitutional amendments. In November 1977, the turnout was 9 percent — the figure predicted for next week's election.

Voter participation rockets in presidential election years — to 43 percent in 1972 and 66 percent in 1976. But not all voters bother with the propositions on the ballot.

Only one-third of those who voted in various political races last November got as far as the nine proposed amendments.

Rep. Luther Jones, a city boy from El Paso, sponsored this year's proposal for farm and ranch loan guarantees. He says he has spent more than $5,000 on his "one-man's crusade."

He trumpets the proposal, which is based on a successful Minnesota program, as a way to save the family farm from takeover by big corporations and foreigners.

If it passes, the legislature could authorize $10 million in bonds to guarantee $10 million in private loans to Texans whose net worth is not more than $100,000.

If the borrower defaults, the state will pay 90 percent of the balance due on the loan.

Those who oppose the proposal are wary of the state getting further into the credit business, particularly in uncertain economic times.

Jones is keying his crusade in urban areas, especially Houston, because rural areas support the proposal.

Jones is not running for reelection in 1980 and may bid for the Democratic state party chairmanship. His amendment efforts could endear him to rural party members, but, he says, "that's not why I'm doing it."

As for legislative review of state agency rules, opponents — like Clements — and supporters both cite separation of powers in their argument.

Opponents say the legislature is intruding in the executive branch; supporters say the mushrooming state bureaucracy has usurped a legislative function by issuing countless rules that have effect of law.

Now, House and Senate committees can only advise on agencies' new rules. Rep. Brad Wright of Houston sponsored the proposal but has not lobbied for it.

Likewise, Rep. Bob Close of Perryton says he isn't out pushing the proposition he sponsored dealing with notaries public.

The proposal would allow the legislature to extend terms of notaries public from two to four years and make appointment statewide instead of for a particular county.

The proposal was a top 1979 legislative priority of the County and District Clerks Association. Close says he sponsored it because an association member in his district asked him to.

Many county clerks say the applications make unnecessary paperwork for them. To take over that work, the Secretary of State's office would need four to 10 more persons, a staff member says. But that, she adds, would be offset by layoffs in some county clerks offices.

Proposal opponents say it is more convenient for applicants to file with county clerks rather than just pick up forms in their offices.

CROP drive collects $170 to feed hungry

About 40 young people from several Big Spring churches raised $170.18 Wednesday night to help feed hungry people. While the younger spooks and goblins were trick-or-treating, these teenagers were asking door to door for contributions to CROP. CROP is the community service arm of the Church World Service, an inter-denominational agency of Christian Sharing.

The youth met at 6:30 p.m. for an All Hallows' Eve Service at St. Mary's Episcopal Church. After canvassing their prescribed areas, they reported in at the First Methodist Church.

Funds raised by the youth will be sent to the CROP office in Austin next week. If persons who were not called upon have contributions to make to this project, they may send their checks to CROP, P.O. Box 2222 in Big Spring.

Bids farewell in wheelchair Clown's dream comes true

CHICAGO (AP) — They helped Jack Thum into his clown suit and wheeled him out on the hospital auditorium stage. As 400 school children cheered and laughed, the dying clown blinked back tears.

It was not just another hospital visit by Thum, who estimates he has performed before sick and ailing children more than 2,000 times in his 23 years as a professional clown.

Thum now is confined to the hospital, perhaps permanently, with cancer spreading through his body. Doctors told him in July 1978 he had less than two years to live because of spreading lung cancer.

"I'll go out making people laugh," he said. And he kept performing at benefits and such as long as he could. But radiology and chemotherapy treatments have made his bones so brittle he may break a leg just trying to stand, doctors said.

"I can think of nothing more beautiful than making the kids laugh, being a clown for them for probably the last time," he said before being taken to the auditorium of the Mount Sinai Hospital Medical Center. A small plastic tube ran into his body from a glass container, giving him liquid food continuously. He no longer can eat.

He gave a brief show of little magic tricks and jokes. His 15-year-old granddaughter, Jackie, also was in her clown suit to help out.

"I will carry on as Jackie the Clown when he is gone," she said. "He has been teaching me since I was eight."

Halloween was proclaimed by Mayor Jane Byrne as "Jack Thum" Day in Chicago. In a brief speech to the audience, Thum told of the honor to have a special day like Halloween. "I thank you all for coming and for letting me perform as best I can," he said. "God bless all of you and I wish you many happy years ahead."

Earlier in his hospital room, Thum lay in bed as his wife, Shirlee, made up his face as she has done before each of his performances since he became a clown — a big, red smile, arched eyebrows, a red, bulbous nose and sequin hearts like teardrops under his eyes. Then they helped him into his patched, baggy clown suit, his huge red and white shoes, his red, curly wig, and his hat of sprouting flowers.

"You've got to keep looking forward and try not to think about your pain and agony," he said. Then Thum lowered his voice and told a friend to come near.

"The doctors say I am much worse," he said. "Through the night Monday they gave me transfusions. I didn't think I was going to make it to my day."

"I don't like to admit it, but I really think this will be my last time in my clown suit."

Then Thum cried softly.

Story behind final proposal for college for deaf revealed

The final proposal for a regional college for the deaf was flown to Austin Wednesday, and there's a long story behind that. Carla Warrington filled the Downtown Lions in on it at their weekly meeting at Howard College.

It begins with Fred Maddux who was concerned because there were no special classes for his deaf son and he was determined to do something about it. One thing led to another, and eventually Dr. Charles Hays of Howard College was interested. The Big Spring Industrial Foundation pledged 67.5 acres at the former Webb AFB, including the modern base hospital. At every turn the Big Spring application received support, including the TEA, Gov. Bill Clements and Speaker Bill Clayton.

The proposal has its backer highly optimistic, and if the college is able to establish a campus for the deaf, everyone will benefit she said. That goes far beyond the economic benefits of three to five million dollars a year by presenting the community with an opportunity to work with a very special group of people — the deaf.

For too long deaf children of those with hearing disabilities have suffered from lack of educational programs geared to them, said Mrs. Warrington. Although the visual is critical, 80 per cent of learning is associated with the auditory, she added.

Circumventing this problem calls for very special techniques, otherwise too often deaf people are relegated to prosaic tasks which does not capitalize on their full skills or fulfill their self-esteem. This is evidenced by only a 3 percent graduation record for deaf people in conventional programs.

Mrs. Warrington, who directs deaf education for the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center and who has had a key role in the college-for-the-deaf proposal, told the Lions "I really do believe in it." She was presented by Dr. Wayne Bonner of the Howard College faculty.
