Disastrous train blaze contained

MISSISSAUGA, Ontario (AP) — Firefighters this morning reported they had contained a potentially disastrous fire aboard a chemical-laden train that derailed over the weekend and forced the biggest peacetime evacuation in Canadian history.

Authorities had urged 220,000 residents to flee a 60-square-mile area of this city in Ontario's western suburbs because of the spreading smoke and sickening fumes. Police said they believed most complied.

The greatest threat was from an upended car filled with 90 tons of liquid chlorine that lay only a few feet from some of the eight burning cars of propane gas. But by late this morning fire officials said the nearby cars had been coated with ice, though some flames still licked from cracks.

Poisonous chlorine was leaking slowly and vaporizing, but Ontario Environment Ministry official Maris Lusia said the amount would have to be 100 times greater to pose a serious health threat.

The remaining fires at the site were contained, said city Fire Chief Gordon Bentley.

"It's a very, very lazy dormant flame," he said. "We are completely happy with the situation as we see it at the present time."

But it was not known when the evacuated residents might be able to return to their homes, and chemical experts said the fires could continue until Tuesday.

TANKER FIRE CAUSES HAVOC — Massive rail-car fire has been burning in the city of Mississauga, Ont., just west of Toronto, since late Saturday night, releasing noxious gas into the air. Officials have ordered the evacuation of nearly a quarter million people in the area.

PLO fails to end impasse in Iran

By the Associated Press

A Palestinian delegation many regarded as the best hope for winning freedom for the U.S. Embassy hostages in Tehran gave up its efforts today and left the Iranian capital, a Palestine Liberation Organization official announced in Kuwait.

Word of the PLO's apparent failure to end the 9-day-old impasse came as Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime and the Moslem militants holding the embassy and 98 hostages reaffirmed their determination to face down the United States in the tense confrontation.

Tehran Radio said the Iranian people, heeding the call of the student militants, began a five-day hunger strike today to press the Iranian demand for the extradition of the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi from the United States.

The official radio, monitored in London, also reported that Khomeini's Revolutionary Council had met and discussed the possibility of U.S. military intervention or economic reprisals to end the embassy standoff.

In another move, Iran's new foreign affairs chief, Abolhassan Bani Sadr, summoned all foreign ambassadors in Tehran for a meeting today and urged that their governments pressure the Carter administration to extradite the shah, an Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

PLO sources reported over the weekend that the three-man delegation sent by PLO leader Yasser Arafat was engaged in intense talks at the Foreign Ministry with Iranian officials and representatives of the students.

But Salah Khalaf, No. 2 man in Arafat's Fatah guerrilla group, told reporters in Kuwait today that the delegation had left for Damascus, Syria.

He said the PLO envoys had told the Iranians that "despite the fact that we side with the Iranian revolution on any confrontation or battle, and despite our high regard for the Iranian revolution, we believe America cannot be fought through occupation of its embassy but rather through a serious and radical confrontation."

Khalaf did not say how the Iranians responded to the PLO's efforts.

It was not known whether the three Tehran ambassadors from Moslem countries — Pakistan, Syria and Turkey — who PLO sources said took part in weekend negotiations were still pursuing them.

The hostages are 62 Americans and 36 non-Americans — believed to be mostly Pakistani and Indian employees of the embassy. Foreign diplomats who saw them Saturday said they appeared to be in good health.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the Carter administration continues to hope that efforts by nations, individuals and agencies would have "a cumulative effect" that would impel Iranian authorities to release the hostages.

"I have no prediction to offer you on the time of release, nor do I have any expectation on this at all so far as tomorrow, or the next day, or whenever," said Carter.

Council to hear allegations against police on Thursday

Allegations presented to the Howard County Grand Jury against the Big Spring Police Department will be discussed at a special meeting of the City Council Thursday morning, 9 a.m.

Prior to that, District Attorney Rick Hamby will present the allegations when the meeting adjourns into an executive session.

Permission to advertise for bids for employee uniforms and janitorial service will be considered along with consideration of awarding bids for turkeys for city employees and a heater and crane.

Other items to be discussed at the meeting are:

— The final reading of an ordinance approving removal of traffic signals and the provision of traffic signs at certain intersections.

— Considerations amending ordinances revising rentals to be charged for the use of the Dora Robert Community Center, prescribing rates for the use of the Amphitheater, prescribing fees for the use of the Comanche Trail Municipal Golf Course and the Figure Seven Tennis Center and the rates and deposit for the use of the city auditorium.

— Consideration of repealing an ordinance concerning the prohibition of bees in the city limits.

A resolution will be considered to authorize the Mayor to make application to the Federal Aviation Administrator for permission to convey certain property located at the former Webb Air Force Base to Howard College.

A resolution authorizing the Mayor to execute a Quitclaim Deed covering 1.3 acres of land to the United States will also be considered.

Resolutions authorizing the submission of a community development block grant preapplication and casting the city's votes for the Board of Directors of the Joint Tax Appraisal Board will be considered.

George Quintero of Big Spring Police Department will be presented a five year service award.

Plans for four-day week scrubbed at college here

Howard College will remain on the five-day class schedule during the spring semester because a proposed four day schedule would provide no significant savings in utility cost, HC

President Charles Hays has announced. The decision not to change to a four-day week of classes was made by the college board of trustees and administrative council after reviewing a study on utility cost savings.

A lack of interest on the part of students also contributed to the decision, Hays added.

HC administrators considered a change to a four-day class week earlier in the semester in hopes of reducing fuel cost for heating the campus.

Tentative class schedules and plans for the four-day week were developed by administrators and a survey was conducted to see how students would receive the idea.

Although HC will retain the five-day schedule for spring, Hays said the summer semester will be conducted on a four-day schedule because of savings due to reduced air conditioning costs.

He explained that heating units on campus cannot be turned completely off during the winter, so savings from the change would be minimal. Air conditioning, however, can be started and turned off more easily than heating.

Chamber banquet slated Tuesday

LAMESA — Over 300 tickets have been sold here for the annual Lamesa Chamber of Commerce membership banquet, which begins at 7:30 p.m., in the Lamesa High School Student Center.

Priced at $7.50 each, a few tickets are still available.

Principal speaker will be Bill Marquardt, president of Texas Electric Service Co. Marquardt is also chairman of the board of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

The banquet honors Lamesa's newest industry, Prophecy of Lamesa Inc. Members of the '48 Delphians will wear clothes that have been manufactured at the Prophecy plant.

Chamber president Richard Gentry will preside at the banquet.

Beattie Ravino, 1900 Mesa, told police a juvenile known to her came to her residence, started a fight with her son, then threw a rock breaking her window Sunday afternoon. Value was $15.

Joe Lopez says he knows the person who struck him in the head at the Yanes Lounge Sunday evening.

A suspect known to the victim allegedly gained entrance to the residence of Randy Moore, 1401 Mt. Vernon. An assortment of clothing and a purse were stolen. One window was also broken Sunday morning. Value, unknown.

Elaine Merrell, 1601 Lark, does not know who tried to gain entrance into her home between 7 p.m. Saturday and 11:50 a.m. Sunday. A screen was torn, worth $60.

A man drove to Super Save, 1610 Gregg Sunday afternoon, paid three dollars in advance for gas. However, after putting $13.17 in his tank, he drove off.

Marvin Roscoe Winton, 41, was arrested Sunday morning for allegedly driving while intoxicated.

A vehicle was stolen from the residence of Rene A. Valdez Jr., 632 N.W. Third Saturday night. He said the keys were not left in the vehicle and the doors were locked. Value, $5,600.

Arnold R. Combs, Gail Rt., Box 64A and his daughter Kathy Moore, 1401 Mt. Vernon were assaulted at Jo-Boys Sunday morning by a subject known to them.

Terry McIntyre, 3709 Connally was at Waterhole No. 3 midnight Sunday when a subject unknown to him took his vehicle which was parked on the east side of the bar. The keys had been left in the ignition. Value, $2,200.

Sammy D. Clark, Carlsbad, N.M., came to Big Spring Saturday evening to retrieve her daughter's car which had been abandoned approximately two weeks ago. The vehicle, worth $600, was gone when she arrived.

A window was broken and an air conditioner pushed into a room at the Inn of the Golden West, 400 N. Gregg, between 6 p.m. Friday and 2:15 a.m. Saturday. Damage was estimated at $50.

Danny Eagle told police four door locks worth $60 were knocked off a door and entry gained at his workshop, 505 W. Seventh, between 8 p.m. Friday and 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

Two mishaps were reported Saturday.

Vehicles driven by Russell Edward Mabry, 1623 E. Third and James Craig Drake, 1515 Stadium at the 2100 block of South Gregg, Saturday 10:14 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Pete G. Gonzales, 714 Lorilla and Susan K. Brushhears, 1311 Princeton collided at Eleventh and Douglas, Saturday, 1:40 p.m.

AIR STRIKE COULD BE ORDERED — A derailed L&N freight train is shown here late Monday afternoon as burning LP gas spews from the stacked tanker cars. Officials are discussing the possibility of asking military authorities to order an air strike and blow up the potentially dangerous remaining cars. The immediate area has been evacuated without any major injuries reported.

Pam Mitchell is Canyon Winner

Pam Mitchell, a sophomore at Howard College, won All-Around Cowgirl honors at the West Texas State University Rodeo held Nov. 1-4 in Canyon, according to Skipper Driver, coach of the Howard College Rodeo Teams.

Miss Mitchell, of Tularosa, N.M., won the honors by placing first in the goat tying competition and fourth in the break-away roping event.

Miss Mitchell was the Southwestern Regional Goat Tying Champion in 1977-78, Regional Champion All-Around Cowgirl, Reserve World Champion Optioanal Racer, and All-Around Cowgirl of 1977. She was also the Goat Tying Champion at the National Finals four years in a row.

Wes Smith, a freshman at Howard College from Carlsbad, N.M., won first place in the team roping with the aid of Guy Allen of Rnager Junior College.

Guy Miller and Tracy Glover captured 3rd in the Team Roping event.

Other HC team members placing were Sherry Altizer, a sophomore from Del Rio, who placed third in the barrel racing event, while Pam Powers, a freshman from Big Spring, placed sixth in the break-away roping event.

David McGuire, a freshman from Big Spring, placed fifth in the bull dogging event, and Guy Miller placed third in the calf roping event.

The rodeo teams have ended their fall season, with the next rodeo scheduled for February 22-25 at Sul Ross University at Ft. Stockton campus.

Dawson's bale count mounts

LAMESA — The bale count in Dawson County has soared past the 32,428 mark, despite weather that slowed the harvest.

Twenty-six gins are operating in Dawson County.

County commissioners accept equipment bids

Bids were opened for Howard County office supplies and a new desk in the regular meeting of the county commissioners this morning.

Hester's Office supplies was awarded a contract with the county for office supplies. Hester's bid $2,437.45 for the supplies; $550.45 lower than the $2,987.90 bid from Tallant Printing.

The contract for the new desk went to Tallant Printing. The 60 inch by 30 inch desk was offered at $304.42 by Tallant compared to the same desk at $304.60 submitted by Big Spring Printing.

Also slated for bid opening this morning were the bids for two typewriters and a calculator.

Bids from auctioneers to sell unused Road and Bridge Department equipment were also opened this morning.

Eddie Owens and Don Kenemer submitted the lowest bids offering their services for a five percent commission. However, commissioners are waiting to hear clarifications on the bids before deciding. They will talk with the two low bidders after lunch today.

The need for clarification arose over a stipulation in standard auctioneers' contract that guaranteed that the county sell the items put up for auction. The agreement keeps the county from reusing to sell an item through the auctioneer, when a buyer is found, then selling the item to the buyer later to save paying commission to the auctioneer Bill Crocker.

Barry said that if an item is not included in the advertisement for the bid commissioners should bid on them anyway. "We're going to have to start putting things in the bids," said Barry.

Crocker said that if the advertisement neglected to stipulate an item commissioners should negotiate with the bidder to gain clarification. "Bidding can get us into more hot water than anything else we discuss up here," he said.

Also bidding were Mike Faulkner, offering seven percent commission and Dub Bryant Auction Company offering his services for 10 percent commission.

Commissioners canvassed the votes from the Nov. 6 special election, making Howard election results official. Howard County voters rejected all three proposed amendments to the state constitution.

County Engineer Bill Mims requested bid advertisement for a new ice machine for the Road and Bridge Department barn. The ice machine is in the 1979-1980 budget. Bids will be opened in the Jan. 14 regular meeting of the county commissioner's court.

KKK no threat to society

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ku Klux Klan, aided by a younger and more violent leadership, has grown over the past decade but is not a threat to American society, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith said in a new report.

The league said membership in Klans in 22 states had increased from 6,000 to 10,000, and the number of Klan sympathizers grew from 30,000 to 100,000 during the period. The number of sympathizers, the report said, doubled in the past 22 months. The report called for a broad-based community denunciation of Klan action and beliefs, more sophisticated news coverage of the group and more FBI surveillance.

Hometown honors poet

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Vachel Lindsay, who wrote such poems as "Booth" and "Abraham Lincoln Walks at Midnight," was remembered in a four-day centennial tribute in his hometown.

The events included the world premiere Sunday of "Vachel," a new drama on Lindsay's exuberant but tragic life. In addition to the play by Whitney Blair, there were art exhibits, poetry readings, scholarly symposiums, and concerts. For the most part, the celebration centered around the clapboard house next door to the governor's mansion, where Lindsay was born Nov. 10, 1879, and where he died after drinking a liquid home-bleeder on Dec. 5, 1931.

Wind-powered ship asea

THOMASTON, Maine (AP) — After a rocky start, the nation's first wind-powered cargo ship in 40 years has begun its maiden voyage to haul lumber from Massachusetts to Haiti.

The 97-foot wooden schooner John F. Leavitt ran aground about a mile down the St. George River on Sunday and had to wait seven hours for the next high tide to clear the rocks and mud. The trip to Quincy, Mass., where the Leavitt will pick up its first cargo of oversized lumber, and then head to Haiti, is expected to take two days or more, at a rate of about 100 miles a day.

Food procedures altered

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Revised food handling procedures will be instituted at Marlboro Psychiatric Hospital, where 131 persons were sickened and five died Oct. 28 because of food contamination.

Health Department officials issued a series of recommendations in an effort to minimize risks of bacterial contamination in food served to patients at the hospital, said Mitch Leon, a department spokesman.

Florence Perry, president of the union local representing hospital workers, said Saturday that none of the patients were examined until at least eight hours after the outbreak of diarrhea began. Officials say the exact cause of the outbreak won't be known for a few weeks.

Jury selection gets under way

Jury selection got under way this morning for the trial of Jimmy Charles Bryant, accused of striking prominent rancher and oilman D.L. Dorland on the head and fleeing in his car.

Bryant was arrested the day after incident on Aug. 22 and indicted Oct. 5 by the Howard County Grand Jury.

Liquor petition is circulated

LAMESA — A second petition calling for the sale of alcoholic beverages for off-premises consumption is being circulated in Justice Precinct Two in Dawson County.

The first one, initiated by Israel Ybanez, was invalidated when county officers discovered that 14 of the required 54 names on the petition were ineligible to vote in the precinct.

Iranians not supporting students feeling hostile American backlash

Whatever their politics, some Iranians say they don't find life in the United States easy today. Angry Americans are shouting at them, shunning their businesses and — in rare instances — acting out U.S. frustrations with violence.

The slogans in recent days have been bitter — "Rape All Iranian Women," "Nuke Iran," "Get The Hell Out of America."

And while some have marched in support of Moslems holding 62

Americans hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, other Iranians who do not support the takeover are feeling a hostile American backlash.

"We get quite a bit of calls and we don't know who's calling us," said an Iranian businessman in California, who asked not to be identified. "They tell us to get out of the United States or go to hell or something like that."

Since the takeover: —Some Iranian-American businessmen in California have changed the names of their stores, to remove the word "Iran."

—Three Denver teen-agers went out to "find some Iranians to hassle," police said. Before the night was over, one of the teen-agers was dead and two were wounded.

—Muhammed Mobarez, who lives in Southern California, has organized the Association of Iranian Communities Worldwide "to help Iranian people in America bring to the public a different view of Iranians than the street fighting."

The Iranian students who seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran last week are demanding the return of the deposed shah, now in New York for cancer treatment. The shah, who fled Iran in January during a revolution led by the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, is under a death sentence in that country.

Midland man is killed

MIDLAND — Raul (Roy) Reyes, 28, of Midland was pronounced dead at the scene of a four-vehicle crash Saturday night on an IS 20 overpass at FM 715 near here. The collision, according to Justice of Peace John Biggs, occurred at 6:20 p.m.

Miss. when the two drivers moved to miss Reyes. Reyes hit the truck-tractor, traveled its length and spun around and was facing east in the eastbound lane and slowly rolling backwards, reports show.

about three hours after the accident.

A rosary for Reyes will be said at 8 p.m. today in the Ellis Funeral Home chapel here.

Mass for Reyes will be celebrated at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church here. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Deaths

Services for Chester F. Barnes, 72, who died at 2:30 p.m. Friday in a local hospital following a short illness, will be held at the graveside at 2 p.m. today at Mount Olive Memorial Park. Officiating will be the Rev. Bill Smythe, pastor of the First Christian Church. Arrangements were in charge of Sheppard Funeral Home.

Department of Public Safety reports indicate that Reyes, driver of a 1966 Pontiac, was traveling westbound in the eastbound lane of IS 20, and that the other three vehicles involved in the accident were traveling eastbound on the interstate.

Reports said that a truck-tractor, driven by Larry Glenn Daniel, 28, of Sweetwater, was passing and was beside a 1975 Chevrolet, driven by Isaac Glapion, 44, of Edwards, that a 1971 Chevrolet, driven by Glapion's wife, Florence Ann, 25, struck Reyes' vehicle in the rear, and it burst into flames.

Reports said that Daniel came out of the median, back across the eastbound lane and struck Glapion's car.

The Glapion couple was treated and later released from Midland Memorial Hospital for injuries suffered in the accident. Daniel was not injured in the collision. The eastbound lane of the interstate was blocked for

Cathey ranks ninth

Cowboys eye nationals

Howard County-native Wacey Cathey (who now registers out of Del Rio remains a strong ninth in the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association bull riding standings with winnings totaling $28,152.

The nation's leader in bull riding is Don Gay of Mesquite, Tex., who since Jan. 1 has accumulated winnings of $56,499.

The rodeo performers are preparing for the National Finals Rodeo, which will offer purses totaling $450,000.

The National Finals looks to be perhaps the most exciting in recent years. Headliners competition will be the race for the world all-around title between Tom Ferguson, Miami, Oklahoma and Paul Tierney, Rapid City, S.D. As the defending world all-around champion, Ferguson carries a slim $71 lead over Tierney to NFR-79.

Tierney continues to lead world standings in calf roping however, by $1,100 over Ferguson; Nebraskan John Rothwell sits 3rd, well behind the leaders.

Four-time world champ Leo Camarillo, Clements, Calif., ranks 3rd in PRCA team roping, alone. Camarillo will partner with the PRCA's 1978 Rookie of the Year, Dee Pickett, Caldwell, Idaho, who is ranked 11th on the money list. Pickett is one of five NFR qualifiers in the all-around competition, as he is currently 4th in PRCA calf roping standings.

(Ferguson, Tierney, Oregonian Doug Brown, and Californian Chris Lybbert are the other all-around contenders.)

Bareback riding has been virtually no contest this season, with Bruce Ford, Evans, Colo., taking an early lead in January and building it to a near-record $65,000, with the National Finals remaining. Ford needs but $2,500 to break Roy Cooper's single-event earnings record of $67,153.

Nebraskan Sam Perkins is the only bareback rider with a chance of overtaking Ford at the National Finals, as he trails the leader by $13,000. (The NFR will pay $15,000 to the first plaE IN EACH EVENT.) Perennial qualifier and five-time world champion Joe Alexander, Marysville, Calif., enters the National Finals in the 3rd position with nearly $50,000, and defending world champion Jack Ward, Dallas, Tex., ranks 4th.

Gay, with four world titles to his credit, holds an $8,000 lead over Jerry Beagley, Medicine Lodge, Kan., among bull riders. The world title in this event is up for grabs between these two cowboys, with only 10 head of pro's ranked bulls to be ridden at the Finals.

Charleston, Ark., cowboy Denny Flynn enters National Finals bull riding in 4th position, some $22,000 behind Gay. Jerome Robinson, Brandon, Neb., will qualify for his 9th National Finals, equaling Texan Sandy Kirby's record; Robinson enters NFR-79 6th among the bull riders.

Defending world champion Butch Kirby will be missing from NFR bull riding due to a severely broken leg suffered last April. Kirby promises to be a contender for the 1980 world title.

In the Girls' Rodeo Association barrel racing standings, Carol Goostree, Verden, Okla., has an $11,000 lead going to Oklahoma City's NFR contest. Goostree leads Martha Josey, Karnack, Tex., and defending world champion Lynn McKenzie, Shreveport, La., respectively.

Manuel Morales

Manuel Montanez Morales, 50, died at 5:30 a.m. Monday morning in a local hospital after a lengthy illness.

Services are pending at Larry D. Sheppard Funeral Home.

J. W. Brigance

Funeral services for John Woodson (Woodsy) Brigance, 90, who died at 11 a.m. Saturday following a sudden illness are at 3 p.m. today in Nalley Pickle Rosewood Chapel with Rev. W.O. Rucker and Rev. Royce Womack officiating. Burial will be in Mount Olive Memorial Park.

Palbearers will be Arnold Lloyd, Nile Bailey, Tommie Lovelace, Bob Wagner, Luther Coleman and G. H. Brien.

Pete Benton

Sterling (Pete) Benton, 63, died Sunday morning in a local hospital following an illness. He was a resident of Midland at the time of his death.

Services will be at 2 p.m., Tuesday in the Assembly in Christ Fellowship in Midland. Officiating will be the Rev. Glenn McNeelin. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park in Midland under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Shortage of electricity 'inevitable' in future

The National Electric Reliability Council, in its ninth annual report, assesses bulk power supply systems of the total electric utility industry in the United States as adequate at the present time, but warns of an apparently "inevitable" shortage of electricity in the future.

"An inadequate electric power supply, with extended shortages of electricity to serve customer needs, is a condition this nation has never had to face — even during wartime. The consequences of failing to respond to this anticipated crisis ought to be unthinkable," the report says.

The trends which could prevent the maintenance of adequate and reliable electric power for the future are:

- Rapid increases in the prices of all fuels.
- Inflationary pressures on the cost of building new facilities.
- Proliferation of often conflicting state and federal regulations.
- Persistent opposition to the siting of any type of new generating unit and transmission lines.
- No clear recognition by the public that an adequate supply of electricity is vital to the economic and personal well-being of the people of the U.S.

To assure future power supply adequacy and to reduce this nation's reliance on foreign oil, it is imperative to maintain the current coal-fired and nuclear generation program on schedule, the report states.

Alternate energy sources such as solar, wind, and biomass are in early developmental stages and can be counted on only as supplements to conventional energy sources by the year 2000.

Even with the current emphasis on conservation, the report says, the nation's electric requirements are still expected to increase by 50 percent over the next 10 years. Additional generating capacity must be installed — from 25,000 to 30,000 MW (megawatts) per year over the next decade — if we are to maintain a reliable and adequate bulk power supply system.

To provide adequate power supply to meet current load projections for the 1979-1988 period, utilities are planning the net addition of about 250,000 MW of generating capacity, the report points out. This includes 125,000 MW of coal-fired, 107,000 of nuclear and 5,000 MW of oil-fired base load capacity.

However, utilities face formidable obstacles in their efforts to install the necessary new generating plants by the time they are needed, the report stressed.

"The efforts to complete those coal-fired and nuclear generating units now under construction are being thwarted at every step."

The obstacles are:

- Uncertain and lengthy lead-time for planning, construction and licensing generating plants.
- More time-consuming federal and state government regulations.
- Severe environmental restrictions on the use of coal.
- The impact of the Three Mile Island accident on future nuclear development.

The report stated it is essential there be a viable nuclear program. "Considering that nuclear currently supplies about 14 percent of the nation's electric energy needs — expected to increase to 38 percent within the next decade — were this energy source to be foreclosed, there would be serious reliability problems immediately, increasing in severity each year.

"This would result in shortages in generating capacity and severe long-term curtailment or rationing of electricity," the report says.

For the 1979-1988 period, the peak load growth rate for the Electric Reliability Council of Texas (ERCOT) is to average 5.3 percent per year.

The installation of coal-fired and nuclear generating units currently scheduled will result in generation reserves in ERCOT higher than required for reliability purposes alone, the report states, because of the construction program underway to reduce the region's dependence on natural gas.

The report speculates delays in the construction of these new coal-fired and nuclear units will require increased use of oil and/or gas. "Assuming that oil were to fill the entire energy gap, annual oil usage would increase by about 36.6 million barrels by 1988."

New tensions in West Bank

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli government generated new tension in the West Bank by arresting an influential Palestinian mayor for deportation and announcing plans for more Jewish settlements in the occupied territory.

The arrest Sunday of Bassam Shakaa, mayor of Nablus, provoked the resignations of his town council and a group of other West Bank mayors and touched off demonstrations and school and business strikes in the area inhabited by 700,000 Palestinians.

The Israelis offered no reason for Shakaa's arrest or imprisonment in a maximum security facility near Tel Aviv. No charges were filed, but the deputy defense minister said the government was preparing a list of offenses for the Israeli Supreme Court to justify his expulsion.

Shakaa's arrest came days after Maj. Gen. Dan Matt, the occupation chief of the West Bank, reported the mayor told him to expect more terrorist attacks like one in which 34 Israelis were killed last year as long as the occupation of Arab lands continued.

Deputy Defense Minister Mordchai Zippori said this was "the straw that broke the camel's back."

Shakaa defied a government order last June and led a demonstration against Jewish settlements in the West Bank. The charge against him for that violation was frozen as a gesture to the United States, but it was not dropped.

Shimon Peres, leader of the opposition Labor Party in Parliament, and other Israeli politicians expressed satisfaction with the government's action against Shakaa. But the Arab mayor of Hebron, Fahad Qawasmeh, said it was evidence of "a clear policy of intimidation."

Adding to the new tensions was the Israeli Cabinet's general policy decision Sunday to establish additional Jewish settlements and enlarge existing outposts in the West Bank, Gaza Strip and Golan Heights.

Taxes, inflation taking toll on incomes

Americans earning more, making less

Americans are earning more and making less than they were 10 years ago.

That's the conclusion of a new study which shows that the after-tax, after-inflation median income for a typical family is smaller than it was in 1969.

The study was conducted by the Tax Foundation Inc., a nonprofit research group with headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The foundation said that from 1969 to 1979, the median income for all families with a single, full-time wage earner almost doubled, going from $9,277 to $18,467.

The group figured out how much federal income tax and Social Security would be due on the median income for a married couple with two children filing a joint return. It calculated that the after-tax income for the family went from $7,947 to $15,546.

Next, the foundation adjusted the 1979 figure for inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, and it found that the "real" income — in terms of 1969 dollars — was only $7,800, almost $150 less or 2 percent less than it was a decade earlier.

These statistics don't even take state and local taxes into account and they have been rising even faster than the federal levies in most places.

Since then, federal income taxes for the family used in the foundation calculations rose 82 percent; Social Security taxes went up 142 percent; and prices increased 75 percent. It all adds up to an 8 percent drop in actual purchasing power since 1972.

Tax bracket creep is one reason that earnings don't keep pace with inflation — even when paychecks go up. As your income increases, so does the bite taken by the federal government as you are pushed into a higher tax bracket.

Several proposals have been made to cure tax bracket creep by a system called indexation which links taxes and the inflation rate. It's easier to understand if you look at some hypothetical figures.

Suppose your income $15,000 a year. Assume the you pay 10 percent in taxes — $1,500 — for an after-tax income of $13,500. The Consumer Price Index goes up by 10 percent and so does your salary. You now earn $16,500 a year. Without indexation, you are automatically boosted into a higher tax bracket — let's say you pay 11 percent or $1,815. You are left with $14,685. Your 10 percent raise has just shrunk to 8.7 percent — less than is needed to keep up with the 10 percent boost in prices.

With indexation, your tax bracket would remain the same. You would still pay 10 percent — $1,650 on a $16,500 salary. You would be left with $14,850; your 10 percent raise would leave you 10 percent more money — enough to at least keep pace with inflation.

Opponents of indexation say it is better to adjust for inflation with periodic tax cuts. They say indexation costs the government money; the amount of taxes collected does not automatically increase with inflation. They also say that individual tax cuts are more effective for helping

Fire claims 14 lives in Ohio

Sprinkler may have helped

PIONEER, Ohio (AP) — Sprinklers could have saved the lives of 14 women killed in a fire that roared through a home for the aging and retarded, says the mayor of this Ohio town. But the owner, who died trying to save a boarder, apparently couldn't afford one, he says — and it wasn't required.

"They'll probably be crucified, the ones that are left," Mayor Bruce Kidston said of the family of boarding home owner Gladis Coats. "Gladis paid her bill this morning."

Twenty-eight people, ranging in age from 27 to 70, were living in the home when fire, perhaps started by a small boy, broke out early Sunday. Those who escaped were not injured, but more than a dozen died.

"Some of them were found in their chairs, some in their beds. Apparently, they were taken by surprise," said David Norris, Mrs. Coats' son-in-law and police chief for this northwestern Ohio town of about 950 people.

As townspeople and relatives took survivors into their homes, Kidston, a waterworks contractor, said a sprinkler system "would have saved lives, everything." He said he presumed the Coats "couldn't" afford the $30,000 to $50,000 cost of a sprinkler system.

"My mother-in-law got rock bottom money," Carol Coats said. "She wouldn't ask for more money."

The home, called Coats Nursing Home, became a boarding house after state laws were changed in the mid-1970s to require sprinkler systems in nursing homes, said

Dr. John H. Ackerman, head of the state Health Department. Most of the residents of the home were able to walk, thus avoiding the need for strict nursing home regulations.

Since the facility was not under state jurisdiction, no laws were violated by the lack of safety devices, Ackerman said. Kidston said no local fire regulations had been violated.

Mrs. Coats, in her early 60s, had escaped from the blaze, but ran back into the house to escort two people to safety. Her body was found at the bottom of a flight of stairs, her arms wrapped around a female boarder she was trying to carry out, Norris said.

Her husband, Gene, was hospitalized for shock, Norris said.

Kidston had said the fire was started by a 4-year-old boy who lived in an apartment connected to the two-story brick and wood building. But later Sunday, Norris said, "We may have been too hasty."

Mrs. Coats had telephoned that the boy set a couch on fire, but Norris said electrical and heating connections could have started the blaze. The state fire marshal's office, health department and highway patrol were investigating on orders from Gov. James Rhodes.

Meanwhile, residents of the town set up a temporary morgue in an elementary school.

"Mrs. Coats ... ran a very needed establishment here," Kidston said. "A lot of people lived here for a lot of years. They had nowhere else to go."

Doctor of autopsy says

Body in grave is Oswald's

SEATTLE (AP) — Despite an author's claims to the contrary, the body in Lee Harvey Oswald's grave is that of the man accused of assassinating President John Kennedy, says the doctor who performed the autopsy on Oswald.

"There is overwhelming circumstantial evidence that it was Oswald," said Dr. Earl Rose, chief medical examiner in Dallas in 1963 when Jack Ruby shot Oswald. But Rose said he would not object to exhumation of the body to verify the identity.

"It's the American way, to explore every possibility," he said.

Rose, in Seattle on Saturday to attend a meeting of the National Association of Medical Examiners, said Oswald's wife and mother identified the body.

British lawyer-author Michael Eddowes has written a book in which he claims the Russian secret police substituted a look-alike for Oswald when Oswald was in Russia prior to the Nov. 22, 1963, Kennedy assassination. The writer was granted permission to see Oswald's medical, dental and X-ray records.

Eddowes also has filed suit in Fort Worth, Texas, asking that Oswald's remains be exhumed to recheck the identity.

Scattered rain sited in Texas Panhandle

A weak cold front stretched from Childress to near Marfa today as cloudy skies prevailed elsewhere across the state.

Panhandle, and variable breezes prevailed elsewhere across the state.

Predawn temperatures were in the 30s north of the weak cold front and in the 40 and 50s elsewhere.

The forecast called for a chance of light snow in the Panhandle and scattered showers in northeast portions of the state.

Scattered rain was reported over portions of the Panhandle and the south plains during the night, but almost all precipitation had ended by dawnbreak.

Northerly winds blowing at 10 to 20 mph were reported in the WEST TEXAS — Clear to partly cloudy with a chance of light snow in the northern Panhandle. Generally fair tonight through Tuesday. Highs low 40s north to mid 50s south and low 70s in the Big Bend. Lows low 20s extreme north to near 30 south. Highs Tuesday low 50s north to low 60s south and 70s in the Big Bend.

EXTENDED FORECAST — WEST TEXAS — Mostly fair with a gradual warming trend through Friday. Highs in the 50s and 60s. Lows in the 30s and 20s.

Sun sets today at 5:40 p.m. Sun rises 11:13 at 7:13 a.m. Highest temperature this date 85 in 1978. Lowest temperature 19 in 1976. Most precipitation .34 in 1976.

Dollar closes highest on Japanese market

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar closed at a two-year high in Tokyo today, then opened mixed on European foreign exchanges. Gold was up $3 to $4 an ounce in Europe.

The dollar closed in Tokyo at 247.25 yen, up more than 5 yen from Friday's closing of 242.10. Dealers said the Bank of Japan sold between $150 million and $200 million in an attempt to halt the yen's slide, but it still sank to its lowest level since Nov. 10, 1977.

The dollar's strength was attributed to the continuing oil shortage and reports that Saudi Arabia may be about to hike the price of its crude. Japan imports 99.7 percent of its oil and has to pay for it in dollars.

Mid-morning rates in Europe were:

Frankfurt — 1.7940 marks, down from 1.7945 at the close of trading Friday.

Zurich — 1.6515 Swiss francs, up from 1.6498.

Paris — 4.2043 French francs, down from 4.2080.

Amsterdam — 1.9945 guilders, up from 1.9940.

Milan — 830.20 lire, up from 830.00.

In London, the British pound sold at $2.1005, up from $2.0915 on Friday.

HOW DO I MAKE A CONDOLENCE CALL?

To express your sympathies and console the bereaved, here are some logical "do's and don'ts" which may help you and the bereaved.

1. If you're not really sure whether you should make the call or not, then do it. The family is bound to appreciate it.
2. Remember, the purpose of the call is to express sympathy and offer assistance. Don't make it a long "social" event.
3. Make the visit short — unless the bereaved ask you to stay.
4. Dress neatly, tastefully; not necessarily in mourners' black.
5. If the bereaved wish to talk, fine. Be a good listener!
6. A simple "I'm sorry about (the deceased)" is appropriate along with a firm handclasp or brief embrace.
7. Leave after offering to help or doing what you've been asked to do.
8. Call back in a few days; the family will appreciate your thoughtfulness.

We welcome your questions and comments — privately or publicly through this column.

Grand institution survives a crisis

A few years ago, the owners of the Chicago Daily News threw in the towel. Few but members of the newspaper profession mourned, though there was great cause for the tears. A great news periodical had folded its tent, never to be replaced.

Recently, Ted Turner of Georgia predicted that the print medium is doomed because the energy crisis is going to force it out of business. Mankind had better hope that never happens. Newspapers are the last bastion against anarchy in this world. They stay the line against tyranny where other media can't fill the breach.

NEWSPAPER PEOPLE everywhere had reason to rejoice recently when the venerable Times of London, one of the most respected newspapers in the world, emerged successfully from what may have been the climactic battle of its long and distinguished history.

In the Times' case, the problem was the inability of management and the rancorous unions whose members put out the paper to come to terms. The result was a strike which stretched out over the months, a disagreement that kept the Times off the streets and deprived thousands of middle and upper class Britons of their cherished columnists and their crosswords.

As the outlook grew progressively bleaker, with management unwilling or unable to yield on its demands for modernization and labor just as determined to oppose new technology and secure hefty pay raises, many observers began to draft the obituary for the 194-year-old paper which, in its heyday, had been able to topple a government with a well-placed editorial.

IT TURNS OUT, however, that the crepe-hanging was premature. In an 11th hour settlement, workers and management came to terms. The last holdout, the National Graphical Association, accepted a package which would boost its members' weekly wage to 234 pounds, or $503 — roughly twice the average going rate for British industrial jobs.

Presumably, the union in turn made some concessions on the issue of modernization.

Many questions remain unanswered: Will the Times be able to gain back all the ground it has lost through its absence from the newsstands for almost a year? Will the times settlement spell trouble for other publishers? Will the settlement harness labor strife at the Times, or will it merely set the stage for even more inflated demands?

All of these points and many others remain unresolved; but, at least the Times will, in due course, be back. It leads one to hope that there really will be an England, after all.

Magic moment

Around the rim

Andrea Cohen

She wore white and so did he. The ushers wore beige while the other three bridesmaids and I wore apricot. The Rabbi (bless his heart) kept the ceremony short and simple and the groom broke the glass on his first try.

A typical wedding, only much better.

THE BRIDESMAIDS, I suppose, are the ones who get all gushy while they talk about the bride in earlier years and how perfect everything was. We on the other hand just laughed and laughed as we thought about some of the guys Lisa used to date. At first, it was more humorous than telling dirty jokes. Then we wondered how she lucked out on finding Kenny. Was he looking down her or did her parents happen to say the right thing to him at the right time? I guess it was that one final prayer her father said in the fall of last year.

The bridesmaids and ushers weren't required to walk up the steps to the altar. We just stood to one side, half hidden by the pews. It was better that way. I didn't have to worry about tripping and taking a dive down the steps on my way back. No matter. The groom's 13 year old brother took me into the chapel before the ceremony and showed me around. Forget the fact we had already gone through a rehearsal and I've been familiar with the chapel since I was a kid. It was brand new to him. He explained where everything was and stressed to me the importance of not tripping on the runner on my way down. You know, the runner that wrinkles up under the shoes that haven't been worn in four years.

The only lesson I learned from Kenny's brother was that I'm going to wait for him to grow up and grab him for myself.

All my fears about the wedding were groundless. My plane didn't crash and better yet, it arrived on time. I never did trip going down the aisle, but my usher, the bride's brother calmed me as I wondered why my knees were wobbling under me. The ceremony was too short for any of us to cry.

My biggest relief was not catching the bouquet, a tradition I don't know who started but is probably the most embarrassing mankind has ever created. It avoids the 'you're next' snarls from some of the other girls who think they are there with Mr. Almost Right and the 'when is the big day?' from some of the mothers.

However, not to run it, the Mother of the Bride, who I love dearly, told me at the end of the reception that the next time she sees me, she suspects I would be in white. In told her no, I would see her in about a half hour at her house in my blue jeans. Nobody wanted to see it end. It could have gone on for hours more and no one would have been the wiser.

The gift I gave Lisa and Kenny wasn't enough. What I wanted to give them I couldn't, the first 50 years of their marriage lump-free. Actually, 50 years without a fight would have been nice, but knowing Lisa's temper, I know she would be miserable....

Bring in holy men

William F. Buckley, Jr.

In the past 48 hours I have heard men of great political and intellectual distinction ask themselves the question: What should we do in Iran? What can we do in Iran? No one, from any quarter, has come up (at this writing) with any idea more productive than sending Ramsey Clark to Tehran. True, Clark early on found something ingratiating in the ayatollah and a relationship sprang up. But the ayatollah's man in American will perhaps have forwarded the information that Ramsey Clark once said that no crime deserves legal punishment. There will be something of an abyss in any dialogue between someone who doesn't really believe in legal punishment at all and someone who believes that adulterers should be stoned to death.

SO...WE SEND Ramsey Clark. What else? Although one can — and this writer most emphatically does — blame President Carter for the attrition of U.S. prestige (nobody ever seized a Soviet embassy) that makes thinkable the taking of 60 innocent hostages atwart the protocols of diplomatic immunity and holding them at bayonet-point against the exchange of a dying expatriate chief of state, one cannot blame Carter for proceeding cautiously at this juncture.

It would be grand to crank up some kind of an Entebbe or Mayaguez raid, the problem of it being that in all probability we'd end up with 60 dead Americans in the embassy in Tehran plus a heavy percentage dead among the liberation force. Such was the problem weighed by Governor Rockefeller at Attica eight years ago, and it is commonly accepted that he gravely miscalculated.

AND THEN ONE asks, What is it that we can do that would exert pressure on the shah? There is a very good case to be made for shipping home those students who have noisily demonstrated outside the hospital of the shah whose exertions were significantly responsible for those same students learning to read and write. Let alone travel to America to complete their education. But these are a handful — and isn't it likely that if we shipped them back, and also those other Iranian students who have behaved properly, the ayatollah would welcome the move on the grounds that Iranian students abroad are every day corrupted by the practices of the heathen?

Well, what about the shah's diplomatic agents in Washington? We could confine them to their quarters, to be sure. But nothing more than that. The ayatollah has great leverage at the moment, but insufficient to repeal those constitutional and prescriptive injunctions against making the innocent pay for the sins of the guilty. The confinement of the Iranian legation is unlikely to cause the ayatollah to wince: the Iranian embassy is an extremely pleasant place to spend a few days in, and besides it's nippy outside.

We can — and have — asked civilized government to stress to the ayatollah the unreasonableness of his surrogates' actions. The French, the Italians, the Germans, the British, can trot out the same stenographers to whom they dictated their appeals to General Zia for clemency to Ali Bhutto. American prestige is very low. But not much lower than that of other Western powers. If the ayatollah decides that enough is enough, and pulls back the students, it is unlikely that this will be the result of remonstrations by leaders who had no trouble at all in co-existing with the shah when he sat on the Peacock Throne.

Muscles can develop 'power shortage'

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please, doctor, can you give me any information on myasthenia? I am having an awful lot of trouble trying to eat. — F.W.N.

To understand myasthenia (MY-as-THEEN-ee-uh) it is necessary to understand how muscles work. Think in terms of electricity.

Electricity is sent from a power plant along wires to a final destination — like a lightbulb in your home. Electrical impulses from the central nervous system similarly go out through nerves to the muscles of your body.

When the lightbulb gets the electricity it turns on. When the muscle gets a nerve impulse it contracts. This is how we perform tasks, from scratching an ear to digging a garden patch. Each act requires many, many such impulses.

No wire is long enough to lead from the power plant directly to your house lightbulb. That would be impractical and expensive. Nor does a single nerve lead directly from the central nervous system to a specific muscle. There are chains of nerves.

When an electrical impulse reaches an end of one nerve, that ending discharges a chemical (acetylcholine). That causes the next nerve in the chain to "fire" and "boost along" the impulse.

The defect in myasthenia lies in a deficiency of this chemical (acetylcholine). The result is that by the time the impulse reaches the target muscle, contraction can't occur.

Swallowing muscles may be involved causing trouble eating. Many medicines are available today for myasthenia. They help increase the amount of acetylcholine and hence the strength of muscle action. Removal of the thymus gland is sometimes considered.

Dear Dr. Donohue: The only way I can describe my condition is that it is like a charley horse directly below my right breast. When I get these attacks they last about 30 seconds and I can feel a lump in the area. I get this about four times a day, one right after the other.

I also have trouble retaining food after a meal and vomit. I can hardly bear the pain when these attacks occur and would appreciate your opinion or suggestions. — Mrs. C.L.

I hope you realize how difficult it is to even suggest what might be wrong with you at this distance.

I do wonder if you are having esophageal spasms, especially since you mention vomiting shortly after meals. The esophagus (gullet) is muscular and can develop cramps much like stomach cramps.

If esophageal cramping into your problem it can be treated with the same medicine used for patients with angina — nitroglycerin under the tongue. But you really should have this looked at. A gastroenterologist would be the doctor to consult.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Just exactly where is the famous prostate gland? Question No. 2: Is it strictly a gland that troubles older men or can young men have trouble with it? — B.I.

It's a gland about the size of a chestnut. The best way to visualize it is in its relationship to the urethra, which is the tube that provides the urinary outlet from the bladder. That tube runs smack through the prostate. The prostate can be palpated (felt) rectally.

Older men (50s and older) tend to be the prime victims of prostate trouble, but younger men can also get infections there. The name of the gland gives rise to a persistent malapropism, many pronouncing it "prostrate." There is no second "r" — PROSS-tate).

Dear Dr. Donohue: Define aldosteronism, please — B.D. It's a correctible form of high blood pressure caused by excess production of adrenal gland hormones. Usually surgery to remove the gland is considered.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I think I read somewhere in the Bible that trials and difficulties can be a good thing. How can that be? — A.T.F.

DEAR A.T.F.: Perhaps you are thinking of a passage such as James 1:2 which says, "Consider it pure joy, my brothers, whenever you face trials of many kinds." The next verses hint why the writer can say that trials may be a blessing: "Because you know that the testing of your faith develops perseverance. Perseverance must finish its work so that you may be mature and complete, not lacking anything" (James 1:3-4).

This is not an easy idea for us to accept, because we naturally think of trials as painful, no matter what form they may take. But the Bible says trials and difficulties actually may be used by God to help us. But before looking at how God can do that, think a little bit about what it means to have our "faith tested." When you have a difficulty you are naturally tempted to ask, "Can God really be trusted to see me through this problem?" Your faith, or trust, in God is being tested, and you may be tempted to give in and refuse to trust God in that situation. Your faith is tested whenever you are tempted to quit trusting God, although the Bible says "Never will I leave you; never will I forsake you" (Hebrews 13:5).

What happens if you face a trial and you trust God to deliver you and be with you through it? What happens if you are tempted to forsake your trust, but you say "no" to the temptation? Then your faith grows, and the next time you face a similar problem you can look back and know from your experience that God can be trusted. Your faith has become stronger.

As Christians we should not despair when we face difficulties, or think that somehow God has forgotten us. We should ask instead, "Lord, what do you want to teach me through this experience?" As the Bible says, "No discipline seems pleasant at the time, but painful. Later on, however, it produces a harvest of righteousness and peace for those who have been trained by it" (Hebrews 12:11).

To learn about the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — read the booklet, "The Peaky Prostate." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Editor: I need a question answered and I don't know where to go. Why is it that a town as big as Big Spring with a shopping center containing three, four or five stores, including large grocery and family shops, do not have any public restrooms.

Nearly everybody has small children with them. Even school children and adults aren't exempt from the need of a public restroom.

Editor's Note: As far as is known, no commercial establishment, outside of service stations, has made a practice of making such facilities available to the public. Factors could be the cost of keeping them clean and the threat of vandalism likely discourages the idea.

Deskins, finding the Cranes not at home, left a notice at their house that "an animal allegedly belonging to you has bitten a person." Later that Saturday night, the Cranes returned, found the notice and telephoned the listed number. They were advised to call the animal warden on Monday.

So far, it was a routine incident. "It happens every day," said Deskins. But on Sunday morning, another dog catcher, Russell Curtis, was working the day watch. He appeared at the Cranes' door, scowling fiercely, a pistol on his hip, at 10:45 a.m. He had come, he said, for Sam.

WASHINGTON — When the wife of a presidential candidate is dragged off by police on the complaint of a 6-year-old boy, it is carrying law and order too far even for Phil Crane. Particularly if his wife is the victim.

Crane is an arch-conservative congressman who is second to none in support of his local police. It is his avowed intent to install his wife in the White House — if he can keep her out of the slammer.

WE WERE ASTONISHED to learn from the newspapers that the aspiring first lady, Arlene Crane, had been arrested in the case of a black Labrador dog named Sam. The latter is a frisky but friendly animal who is more disposed to play with children than to bite them.

But on a recent Saturday evening, he allegedly lunged for a tennis ball and grabbed a 6-year-old's wrist instead. So why did the dog catcher pick up Arlene instead of Sam? Here's the table that we pieced together from the available witnesses:

The 6-year-old went crying to his mother, Mrs. Robert Schmidt, about his unhappy encounter with Sam. As evidence of the assault, the boy displayed his wound.

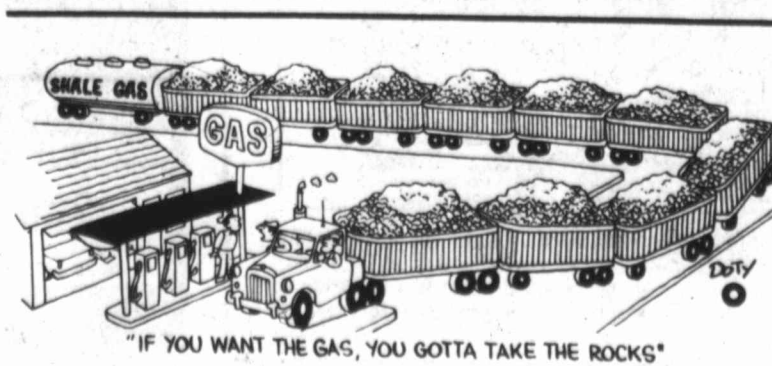

The authorities later described it as "a gash about an inch long," with "several puncture wounds." But the first dog catcher on the scene, Karen Deskins, said it was "more like a scratch." It became a matter for official concern, she explained, because "the skin was broken."

Deskins, finding the Cranes not at home, left a notice at their house that "an animal allegedly belonging to you has bitten a person." Later that Saturday night, the Cranes returned, found the notice and telephoned the listed number. They were advised to call the animal warden on Monday.

So far, it was a routine incident. "It happens every day," said Deskins. But on Sunday morning, another dog catcher, Russell Curtis, was working the day watch. He appeared at the Cranes' door, scowling fiercely, a pistol on his hip, at 10:45 a.m. He had come, he said, for Sam.

Arlene Crane, clad in pajamas, blinked at him through a crack in the doorway. "It's not my dog," she said. True, the dog belonged to her 19-year-old daughter, Catherine.

MRS. CRANE OFFERED to speak to her daughter, to search for the proof that Sam had been inoculated for rabies and to deliver the dog on Monday. She reminded the dog catcher that it was Sunday morning.

"I can't help it if your dog bit someone after hours," he growled. Mrs. Crane spoke up in Sam's defense. "He doesn't bite," she said. She refused to surrender Sam, and the dog catcher stalked off muttering something about a warrant.

Mrs. Crane summoned her daughter who immediately drove Sam to an animal hospital. It was closed on Sundays.

The dog catcher returned, meanwhile, with a policeman in tow. "I have got three warrants for your arrest," Curtis announced.

Mrs. Crane incredulous. "I'm not going with you," she said and started to close the door. The two men threw their shoulders against the door. She screamed.

Her husband, who had overheard the commotion, rushed to the scene. He offered to accompany the dog catcher in the place. Curtis would not consider it. "The warrants are for her," he insisted.

Phil Crane is strictly a law-and-order presidential candidate; he quieted his wife and persuaded her to submit to the arrest. While she was changing into her clothes, the daughter arrived with Sam. So Crane surrendered both his wife and the dog.

Not long afterward, Mrs. Crane appeared before Virginia magistrate Raymond Shaw. She asked him to wait until her attorney arrived.

"What do you think we are, babysitters?" he demanded. He wanted to take her statement, but she refused to talk until she could get the advice of her attorney.

"That's it!" snapped Shaw. He steered her into a back room. "I'm not going to talk to you," he said. "You're going to jail."

The dog catcher took out a pair of handcuffs and started toward her. "It'll take a bigger man than you to put those on me!" shouted the congressman's wife. She then sat firmly on her hands.

Witnesses say the magistrate then ordered: "Call for a matron. Take her to jail." A spokesman for Fairfax County, Va., confirmed that a woman deputy was summoned. But Shaw said he didn't recall any request for a matron.

At this point, the intimidated Mrs. Crane complied with the magistrate's instructions. She had already signed three papers, without reading them, when her attorney appeared.

She returned home in a state of hysteria. Her husband said it took five hours to calm her down.

A hearing is scheduled next week.

Farm income could drop by 20 percent in 1980

WASHINGTON (AP) — If any doubts persist about the effect of inflation on farmers, take a look at the government's latest predictions about farm income next year.

And keep in mind that farmers, unlike automobile manufacturers and many others in the U.S. economy, for the most part are unable to set the prices they get for grain, soybeans, cotton, cattle, hogs and other commodities.

In 1980, says the Agriculture Department, farm income could fall by as much as 20 percent from this year's projected $31 billion, perhaps down to around $26 billion.

The value of sales by farmers — the gross receipts — are expected to gain only slightly in 1980, USDA experts told last week's annual outlook conference.

But production expenses are expected to go up by about 11 percent next year, meaning that net farm income will be cut.

Although the experts said the "forecast at this time is very tentative," here are some of their observations about how 1980 may be shaping up:

— "Gross farm income should increase slightly from 1979 record levels. Continued strong demand, especially for exports, is expected to increase cash receipts from crops.

— "Cash receipts for livestock and livestock products will be nearly unchanged, reflecting increases in the value of cattle and milk marketings and steady-to-lower receipts from hogs, broilers and turkeys.

— "The projected 11 percent upswing in total farm production expenses includes boosts of about 20 to 30 percent for fuel and fertilizer and 10 to 15 percent for operation, repairs and machine hire."

But the forecasters hedged a bit, also. The farm income situation for the first quarter of 1980 looks "fairly well established" at this time but the remainder of the year is much more difficult to predict, they said.

"Farm prices and income during the last half of 1980 will be largely influenced by worldwide crop prospects and harvests," one report said.

One big production cost is fertilizer, and another report indicated farmers, on the average, will be paying around 15 percent more than in 1979, with some kinds of chemicals rising even more rapidly.

Nitrogen, a major component of fertilizer, is affected by the rising costs of energy-related feedstock such as natural gas and petroleum.

"International prices for fertilizers have increased significantly in 1979," said USDA economist Robert D. Reinsel. "Those prices have been affected by rising energy costs, but energy costs can only partially explain the increases. Consistently strong world demand has allowed the pass-through of rising production costs."

But Reinsel added that the current boosts in fertilizer prices "likely will not approach the extremely high levels during the 1974-75 fertilizer price increases which followed the Arab oil embargo."

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than two-thirds of this year's U.S. meat allocation to foreign countries was imported in the first eight months, according to the latest government figures.

Through August, U.S. Customs Service reports showed nearly 1.06 billion pounds of meat entered the United States. The allocation for the entire calendar year is 1.57 billion pounds. The allocations, under so-called voluntary restraint agreements, affect meat covered by a 1964 import quota law.

OLD LETTERS REVEAL OLD FRIENDS — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, right is shown with Miss Lorena Hickock in 1962. Recently opened letters donated to the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library reveal an intimate relationship that existed between the two women since correspondence began in October 1932, which Miss Hickock was assigned by The Associated Press to cover Mrs. Roosevelt.

Between Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Hickock Opened letters reveal intimate relationship

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 3,000 recently opened letters reveal that Eleanor Roosevelt maintained an intimate relationship with Lorena Hickock, a reporter and author, for three decades, the New York Times reported Sunday.

The correspondence between Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Hickock began in October 1932, when Miss Hickock was assigned by The Associated Press to cover the wife of then-New York Gov. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee, on the campaign trail, the paper said.

The two women exchanged the tender letters up to Mrs. Roosevelt's death in 1962.

The 18 boxes of letters were donated by Miss Hickock to the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library in Hyde Park, N.Y., the Times said. The gift was made in 1958 on the condition that the letters not be opened to researchers until 10 years after Miss Hickock's death, which was in 1968.

"Hick, my dearest," Mrs. Roosevelt wrote on the night of March 5, 1933, as she was adjusting to the White House. "I cannot go to bed tonight without a word to you. I felt a little as though a part of me was leaving tonight. You have grown so much to be a part of my life that it is empty without you even though I'm busy every minute."

In a letter the next day, Mrs. Roosevelt said: "Hick darling. Ah, how good it was to hear your voice. It was so inadequate to try and tell you what it meant. Funny was that I couldn't say j'taime et je t'adore as I longed to do, but always remember I am saying it, that I go to sleep thinking of you."

The two women were from very different backgrounds. Mrs. Roosevelt came from a New York society family, while Miss Hickock was the portly daughter of an itinerant buttermaker.

According to the Times, Franklin Roosevelt Jr., a son of the former president, who is the literary executor of his mother's estate, said he had not seen the correspondence between Miss Hickock and his mother. He said his mother was an incessant letter-writer and her affectionate passages were standard letter-prose of the times.

"Mother had very many close non-family friends ... Today we don't understand that type of love..." Roosevelt said.

"Remember, my mother was brought up in an era when children read the Brontes and read Jane Austen, and they adapted that effusive form of writing," Roosevelt added. "My mother's generation was the last generation that used letters as communication."

Clubhouse

Final plans for banquet discussed

The Ever Ready Civic and Art Club headed by Louisiana Jones, met on Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. in the home of Shirley Tate. Business concerned the final plans for the club's Annual Pre-Thanksgiving Banquet which will be held on Nov. 16, at the Hospitality Center, Old Andrews Highway.

Club members will begin serving carry-out plates at 5 p.m., with the banquet serving beginning 7:30 p.m. Tickets for the banquet may be purchased from any club member for the price of $3 or they may be purchased at the door for the same price.

Mrs. Anna Green, program chairman, will present a variety show. The traditional Thanksgiving menu will be served.

Study club has costume jewelry party

The Forsan Study Club met Nov. 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Loren Castleman. There were 17 members present and 8 visitors. Mrs. Jon Hope gave the devotion on not giving up in life situations. The roll was answered with a family goal.

Mrs. Rudd was hostess for a costume jewelry party. Hostesses were Mrs. Castleman, Mrs. J.L. Barron and Mrs. Johnny Mills.

Members and guests enjoy salad supper

Thirty-two members and guests attended the monthly salad supper at the Eagles Aerie No. 3188, Nov. 6 at 7 p.m.

Members and guests brought covered dishes and salads and the men supplied and prepared the turkey and ham.

President Richard Sayers will host a group from Big Spring Aerie No. 3188 to the annual district four meeting in Odessa Nov. 10 and 11. All members are invited to attend. Members were reminded that Auxiliary meetings are the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

Teeters give Holy Land presentation

The Mary Jane Club met Nov. 8 at 9:30 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Dewayne Clawson, Coahoma. Mrs. David Barr was co-hostess.

Rev. and Mrs. Monroe Teeters gave a slide presentation and commentary on their visit to the Holy Land. They were presented with a gift subscription to Texas Highways. Mrs. Glyn Mitchel presided over a brief business meeting during which members answered roll call with their favorite scripture.

Mrs. Bobby Gee reported on the booth at the Halloween Carnival. Profits were divided between the AWAKE school program and the Coahoma Beautification Project.

Members brought gifts for the Big Spring State Hospital Christmas program. The resignation of Mrs. Jim Waters was accepted.

The refreshment table was decorated in the Thanksgiving motif. The next meeting will be a salad luncheon and Christmas gift exchange, Dec. 13 at 11 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Gee.

Premarital sex is considered sinful

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 14 and have been going steady with this boy for over six months. During this time we made love one time. We are a mature couple and we care for each other very much.

He did not push me or take advantage of me and he did not "dump" me.

I just wanted to show you that sex in a relationship is not bad or evil. — Nameless, Pottstown, Pa.

Nameless: If anyone is seriously hurt in a relationship like yours it is almost always the girl. As far as being bad or evil, I know of no religion that encourages premarital sex and in Christianity and Judaism it is considered sinful!

Dr. Wallace: I'm 16 years old, have a driver's license but I don't have a car. I made an A in driver's education, scored a perfect mark on my written exam for my license and have a good record when I drive my mom's car with her in it.

My problem is that my mother refuses to allow me to drive the car on a date by myself. Do you think this is right? — Brian, Goshea, Ind.

Brian: I feel that a teen who has a driver's license, is responsible and who shows good, safe driving habits should be allowed to use the family car for special occasions.

Dr. Wallace: I like this boy very much. I asked him if he had a girlfriend and he said no, that he never had had a girlfriend. This gave me hope but I saw him at my softball practice and he had a "bicky" on his neck. When he saw me looking at his neck, he kept trying to hide it.

What do you think about this? — Mary Ann, Astoria, Ore.

Mary Ann: Unless this boy is allergic to vampires, he is much more experienced with girls than he says.

Just be prepared, if you go out with him. For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 25-cent stamped, large self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Six residents among singers in TCU chorus

FORT WORTH — Six Big Spring residents are among the 46 student singers that make up this year's Concert Chorale at Texas Christian University, which will present its major fall concert on Nov. 12.

The concert, beginning at 8:15 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium, features the first on-campus performance of "Personent Hodie," written for conductor Ronald Shirey and the TCU choir by Lara Hoggard, professor at the University of North Carolina. The choir performed the work earlier this year at Ministers Week and at the state convention of the Texas Music Educators Association.

The major work on the program will be Lukas Foss' "Psalm" with texts taken from Psalms 121, 95, 98 and 23. The program also includes accompanied and a cappella works from the 16th through 20th centuries.

The six residents are: Beverly and Brenda Beil, 502 Highland Dr.; Joyce Hull, 605 E. 13th St.; Lorinda Lee, 2600 Crestline; Larry Wheat, 901 Mountain Park Dr.; and Russell Burchett, Gail Rt. Box 110.

Sex Detours Bridal Path

DEAR ABBY: I am a 32-year-old reasonably successful man — never married, but very much in love with a beautiful young woman with a Southern mountain background. My hangup is that I have a strict New England heritage, and am accustomed to dating girls who would not even consider kissing a fellow on a first date. This girl I'm in love with admitted that she let every guy she ever dated have his way with her.

She says that all young girls "in those hills" were raised that way, and it wasn't until her family moved to a major city that she learned "right from wrong."

So here I am, a man who has always dreamed of marrying a virgin, in love with a girl who can't even remember when or how she lost her virginity. (She "thinks" she was 12 or 13.) I would like to convince myself that I can forget her past and marry this ex-tramp and live happily ever after.

What are the odds, Abby? I am desperate for some professional advice.

SOUTHERN GENTLEMAN

DEAR GENTLEMAN: As long as you view this girl as an "ex-tramp," I would estimate your chances for a happy marriage are zilch. The poor girl has already been the victim of an amoral upbringing; spare her the added burden of a "holier than thou" husband.

DEAR ABBY: I feel kind of weird writing to you, but here goes. You see, there is this real cute guy at school who follows me in the hall, pulls my hair and socks me on the arm. He has tried to trip me, grab my jacket and shove me into the lockers. He kicked me on the bus once and hit me in the head with his books.

All the kids say he likes me. So why does he act this way? LIKES HIM IN ANAHEIM

DEAR LIKES: It's his way of making YOU notice HIM. If you react, you'll probably lose him. Ignore him and you'll drive him wild.

Those thrilling days of yesteryear Passing combo reborn!

HOUSTON (AP) — Prior to the arrival of Earl Campbell, the book on how to stop the Houston Oilers read the same each week: stop the Dan Pastorini-to-Ken Burrough bomb and you stop the Oilers.

Then Campbell came along last year and led the National Football League in rushing his rookie season and the cry became stop Campbell and you stop the Oilers.

Now the Oakland Raiders are ready to throw away the book and start over.

The Oilers took a page from their history book Sunday when Pastorini and Burrough reformed the old demolition team for touchdown bombs of 55 and 33 yards en route to a satisfying 31-17 victory over the shocked Oakland Raiders.

The victory boosted Houston to an 8-3 record and kept them one game behind Pittsburgh in the tough American Football Conference Central Division race. Oakland dropped to a 6-5 record, their fifth loss in six road games this season.

Pastorini, with one of the worst quarterback ratings in the AFC, had been ineffective in mounting a strong passing game most of the season. But the Raiders felt the sting of Pastorini's judicious use of the forward pass. He passed only 13 times but completed eight for 206 yards and made each pass count.

"We thought we had to concentrate on stopping their running game and the passing game would take care of itself," said linebacker Phil Villapiano. "I thought we did a good job on Campbell, but we didn't know they were going to move the ball that well."

The Raiders didn't really stop Campbell, who rushed 107 yards on 32 carries and became the first player in AFC history to gain more than 1,000 yards in his first two seasons in the league. Campbell has 1,039 yards this season.

"I think we showed some people today that we have a few other offensive weapons we haven't used that much this season," Pastorini said. "We came out throwing so we could loosen them up. We ran the ball most of the time last week, and we knew we couldn't keep doing that or they'd start keying on us."

Pastorini wasted no time in reverting to Houston's old bombs away offense, throwing a long incompletion to tight end Rich Caster on the first play of the game.

Pastorini didn't stop, however, and eventually set up Campbell's touchdown run with a 17-yard completion to Ronnie Coleman and a 27-yard shot to Mike Renfro. He hit Burrough on the 55-yard touchdown pass play in the second quarter.

Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler, who completed 21 of 35 passes for 239 yards, hit touchdown passes of 23 yards to Raymond Chester in the first quarter and three yards to Dave Casper in the second quarter to salvage a 14-14 halftime.

Oiler safety Mike Reinhardt got his 10th interception of the year and returned it 33 yards to Oakland's 18 in the third quarter to set up a seven-yard touchdown run by fullback Tim Wilson and the Oilers stretched the lead to 28-14 on Pastorini's 35-yard strike to Burrough.

Pastorini set up his second TD shot with a 36-yard completion to Renfro.

The two teams traded field goals in the fourth quarter with Jim Breech kicking a 32 yarder for Oakland and Houston's Toni Fritsch booting a 51-yarder. It was Fritsch's 16th field goal in 18 tries this season.

The Raiders suffered a blow shortly before halftime when Chester received a knee injury and did not return to the game.

NAGGING BACK PROBLEMS — San Francisco quarterback Steve DeBerg looks downfield for a receiver despite a nagging back problem brought on by

New Orleans Saints defensive and Don Reese in the Superdome Sunday. DeBerg got the pass off but lost his shirt and the game to the Saints 31-20.

Weekend NFL Action Kickers decide three!

Alex Karras wouldn't have appreciated the goings-on in the National Football League Sunday.

Karras was the monstrous Detroit defensive tackle who frowned on place kickers trotting on the field at the last moment with clean, fresh uniforms to decide the outcome of games.

But those kickers turned around three NFL games Sunday. Washington's Mark Moseley and Mike Woods of San Diego booted last-minute field goals to secure victories, the Redskins edging St. Louis 30-28 and the Chargers topping Cincinnati 26-24. But Toni Linhart missed two usually routine extra points and that was the difference in the New York Jets' 14-12 loss to Buffalo.

Redskins 30, Cardinals 28

St. Louis erased a 27-7 deficit with three fourth-quarter TDs, but Moseley's 39-yard field goal with 36 seconds to play salvaged the victory for Washington.

The winning three-pointer came despite a bad snap from center which was salvaged by holder Joe Theismann.

Chargers 26, Bengals 24

San Diego hung on to its share of the American Conference West lead by overcoming an early 14-0 deficit to overhaul the Bengals. Woods kicked field goals of 22, 42, 34 and 32 yards, the last one with 19 seconds left for the Chargers' victory.

The four field goals was a San Diego club record and Woods now has a string of six straight since his release by St. Louis.

Bills 14, Jets 12

Linhart, cut earlier by Baltimore after missing some short field goal tries, cost the Jets dearly against Buffalo. Both teams scored two TDs, but the Bills' got the game's only extra points from Nick Mike-Mayer.

"It finally comes down to Buffalo's kicker made his two and our kicker didn't," said Jets Coach Walt Michaels.

Bucs 16, Lions 14

Tampa Bay stayed two games in front of Chicago in the NFC Central, rallying in the final 3 1/2 minutes to erase a 14-6 deficit.

First Neil O'Donoghue kicked his third field goal of the game, a 28-yarder, and then Doug Williams threw a 23-yard TD pass to Larry Mucker following Dana Nafzinger's recovered fumble for the deciding points.

"We didn't play well, but we won," said Bucs Coach John McKay.

Steelers 30, Chiefs 3

Terry Bradshaw threw three TD passes and Matt Bahr kicked three field goals as Pittsburgh won its fourth straight game.

"I just didn't have a good day," Bradshaw said. "... I threw more ducks and bad passes today than I have all year."

Saints 31, 49ers 20

New Orleans took over first place in the NFC West, rolling past San Francisco as Chuck Muncie rushed for 118 yards and three touchdowns. Archie Manning hit 15 of 21 passes for 153 yards for the Saints.

Giants 24, Falcons 3

Terry Jackson returned a blocked punt 47 yards for the game's first TD and New York won its fifth game in the last six weeks, beating Atlanta.

Seahawks 29, Browns 24

Seattle, limited to minus seven yards in total offense a week ago, erased that memory with a 427-yard game against Cleveland as Sherman Smith rushed for three TDs.

The loss dropped Cleveland into third place in the AFC Central, two games back of Pittsburgh and one behind Houston.

Dolphins 19, Colts 0

Miami moved into a first place tie with New England in the AFC East, bottling up Baltimore while Bob Griese tossed TD passes of 18 and 14 yards to Nat Moore.

The Dolphins sacked Colt quarterback Greg Landry seven times with Vern Den Herder recording four of the sacks. "We've always been steady," Herder said. "Today, we were spectacular."

Broncos 45, Patriots 10

Denver rolled to a 38-7 half time lead and just coasted against New England. The victory kept the Broncos tied with San Diego for first place in the AFC West and dropped New England into a first-place tie with Miami in the AFC East.

Craig Morton passed for two TDs and Denver turned two Patriots fumbles and a blocked punt into three other scores.

Bears 27, Rams 23

Virgil Livers intercepted rookie Jeff Rutledge's pass, setting up Walter Payton's winning touchdown, a 2-yard run with 1:12 left, as Chicago overhauled Los Angeles, which led 16-0 early.

Packers 19, Vikings 7

Terdell Middleton rushed for 135 yards and David Whitehurst passed for a pair of TDs in Green Bay's victory over Minnesota. It was the Vikings' first loss to the Packers since 1974.

TOUGH LUCK FOR GRIESE — Miami Dolphins quarterback Bob Griese winces as he is sacked for a loss of ten yards by Baltimore Colts linebacker Mike Osdowski (51) during the 2nd quarter of Sunday's game in the Orange Bowl.

Bowl decision up in the air

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

The Cotton Bowl committee can sign a guest team Saturday, but the way the Southwest Conference race is going they aren't going to have a host until after Thanksgiving and maybe just three weeks before Christmas.

Everybody predicted a competitive SWC football chase this autumn, but nobody thought it was going to be THIS wild.

Right now Arkansas is in high cotton IF the Razorbacks beat Texas A&M in College Station Saturday, no gimme by any means, then whip Southern Methodist in Little Rock on Nov. 24.

Arkansas, Houston, and Texas are atop the SWC standings with one loss each thanks to the Longhorns' 21-13 victory over the Cougars Saturday night in the Astrodome and Arkansas' 29-20 thriller over Baylor.

If it ends this way, Arkansas goes to the Cotton Bowl because both Texas and Houston have been to the New Year's Day Classic since the Razorbacks.

"This is such a tough, screwy conference," said Texas Coach Fred Akers. "You just can't tell what's going to happen. All I know is

Hawks open at home

The Howard College Hawks will open their 1979-80 home season against Cisco Junior College, 8 p.m. today in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The Hawk Queens, coming off a narrow loss to Temple Junior College Saturday, will also host a Cisco team, beginning at 6 p.m. today.

Tonight's game will represent a reunion of sorts between the Hawks and their opponents. For one, Cisco will be coached by Tommy Collins, former baseball and basketball coach at Big Spring High School. For another, sophomore Linwood Hines, an ex-Hawk, will play forward for Cisco in tonight's matchup.

U.S. team wins

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The favored United States team of Hale Irwin and John Mahaffey did what it was expected to do Sunday, winning the World Cup golf title for the second consecutive year with a total score of 575, five strokes better than its nearest opponent.

"So we didn't get this one," he said. "You get some and you don't get some. A loss hurts anytime, but unless I'm mistaken we're tied for first now, right? Arkansas still has A&M and Tech to play."

"Texas still has Baylor, A&M and TCU to play, and we still have Rice and Tech to play. So now maybe the fans will buy up all the tickets to the remaining games...there's some excitement left in it now."

Then he added, "That's why we did all this tonight, to keep the excitement in it."

In other games Saturday, Texas Christian tied Texas Tech 3-3 and Southern Methodist defeated Wichita State 3-0.

Rice is at Baylor, Texas Tech is at SMU and TCU is at Texas this week in games other than the Arkansas-A&M meeting.

Pokes thrive on two-minutes

IRVING, Texas (AP) — It has long been a mystery to the Dallas Cowboy front office and coaching staff why more National Football League teams haven't gone to the Cowboy two-minute spread offense.

"The other teams know you are going to pass so there is no surprise element," says Cowboys special assistant Ernal Allen. "The quarterback has an extra second to read the defense. We set a goal for our team of scoring at least 40 per cent of the time by a field goal or touchdown. I'd hate to see where we would be without our two minute offense."

The Cowboys spend long, dreary practice days with quarterback Roger Staubach set back in the Shotgun Offense orchestrating the team downfield against the clock.

"It's no accident when good things happen to us because we work so hard on the two-minute offense," says wide receiver Drew Pearson. "Maybe we ought to be in it all the time."

Dallas beat the New York Giants last Sunday out of the two-minute offense. The Cowboys downed St. Louis in the season opener and tripped Chicago in the final 120 seconds using the spread.

Without a productive two-minute game Dallas could be 5-5 instead of 8-2.

"You have to have a mobile quarterback like Roger for it to work," says Allen. "And you have to work on it all the time. Teams are always trying something new to defense it. Still I'm surprised other teams haven't started using it."

Pittsburgh had good success blitzing the Cowboy two-minute offense two weeks ago.

"We like for teams to blitz it because that gives us one-on-one coverage," says Allen. "We had seven dropped passes in that game. That will take care of any offense."

The Philadelphia Eagles hope they can get far enough ahead Monday night so the deadly Dallas two-minute offense can't catch them.

The Eagles are 10-point underdogs in what amounts to a "must" game for them if they hope to catch Dallas in the race for the National Conference Eastern Division flag.

Dallas has as two game edge over the Eagles.

Fastbreak still hot

Associated Press

When he was the center of attention at UCLA in the 1960s, he was the trigger for one of the best fastbreaks in the college game.

Lew Alcindor has since changed his name, but not his style.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is the big gun on the Los Angeles Lakers these days, as everyone knows, and still has that fastbreak in high gear. Like Sunday night, when the Lakers defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 140-126 in the National Basketball Association and improved their record in the Pacific Division to a nifty 11-4.

"We're committed to the fastbreak this season," said the Lakers' interim coach, Paul Westhead, "and we're running and passing and scoring."

About Abdul-Jabbar:

"The more I see him, the more I appreciate his unselfishness. We're playing team basketball. The guys are trying to help each other all over the floor."

Abdul-Jabbar seconds the motion.

"The difference this year is that people are passing more and trying to get open. The team is made up of different individuals and we try to pass for the open shots."

In other NBA action, Phoenix defeated Denver 116-91 and Portland trimmed Kansas City 112-109.

Jamaal Wilkes scored 25 points to lead Los Angeles' balanced attack. The Lakers, who led nearly all the way, made their first 11 field goal attempts en route to a 23-17 advantage after six minutes of play. It was 43-36 after one quarter and 75-65 at halftime.

The Cavaliers closed to within four points on three occasions in the third quarter, the last time at 83-79 midway through the period. But Norm Nixon fired in three jump shots and Wilkes made a layup to make it 91-79 and Cleveland wasn't closer than six points after that.

Suns 116, Nuggets 91

Leonard "Truck" Robinson scored 13 of his game-high 26 points in the third quarter, including nine in a row, to ignite Phoenix past Denver. The Suns moved from a 50-36 halftime lead to one that reached 31 points in the fourth quarter as they rolled to their 10th victory in 16 outings.

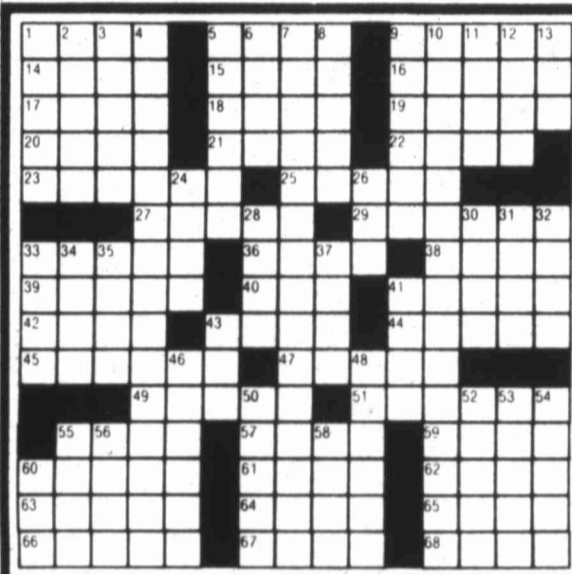

"This is the first time in three years that we've had a 10-game winning streak," said Phoenix Coach John MacLeod.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"Why can't you be polite, like your friend, Matthew?" "He's got his bag and I got mine."

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

"Hi, Mommy! Do you need some 'nother help?"

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, NOV. 13, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: All sorts of interruptions can occur now which can keep you from getting across the plan of action you have in mind. Keep as consistent as possible while accepting the opportunities which may come through these surprise circumstances.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use patience in trying to get your work done despite annoying interruptions. Listen to the problems of a co-worker and try to help.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't argue with a loved one or you create hard feelings. Find a new approach for improving your appearance. Pleasant news on the way.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Please those at home by more thoughtfulness and helpfulness. If it is hard to get a project working, now is not the right time for it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A co-worker could be confused about work, but use patience with him, her. Think logically and act likewise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make sure your income is greater than your outgo so that you need not worry about finances. Try to save more for the future.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to plan well if you are to gain personal aims. Attend social affairs but be only with trusted friends. Take no risks with health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan early how best to handle chores so that you have good results. Listen to the advice of an expert for any problems you have to solve.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't push friendships when others have problems to attend to. You have personal wishes to go after, so get busy at such.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you keep at it, you accomplish much. Be more cooperative in a worthy community project. Let others know your desires.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Many new situations can be handled successfully now. A new acquaintance thinks you are too old-fashioned, but laugh it off.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You want to get into responsibilities that are hardly worthwhile, so forget them. Don't jeopardize present security.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Know what associates want from you, so listen carefully. Civic matters might not work out well, so don't let it upset you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to make peace among others because of the desire to be of help. Stress the study of mathematics early in life. Sports are good here. Musical ability, also, that should be trained.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Names in the news
First Lady ranks third
 NEW YORK (AP) — First lady Rosalynn Carter may be "the most powerful woman in the country today" but she only ranks third in a listing of the nation's 25 most influential women.
 Washington Post owner Katharine Graham is No. 1 on the newest list by the World Almanac, and actress Jane Fonda is in second place.
 Almanac editors called Mrs. Carter the nation's most powerful woman, but she did not get the top slot because "there is a segment of the population that just doesn't like Mrs. Carter, maybe because they consider her too powerful," said almanac publisher Jane D. Flatt.
 She said the selections announced Sunday were made by the editorial staffs of 126 newspapers that co-sponsor the almanac — publications that she said "represent a broad spectrum of American thinking."
 Miss Flatt said Mrs. Graham, who was No. 2 last year, was "the runaway favorite in the new list." She is chairman and chief executive of the Washington Post Co., which owns the Washington daily newspaper, Newsweek magazine and radio and television stations.
 New to the 1980 list were Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne, consumer columnist Bess Myerson, television commentator Shana Alexander, Children's TV Workshop president Joan Ganz Cooney and soprano Beverly Sills, who heads the New York City Opera.

Reagan clearly favored
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan, the 10th and presumably final Republican to declare his candidacy for the party's 1980 presidential nomination, is entering the contest as the clear early favorite.
 The former California governor, who formally launches his third bid for the presidency Tuesday, retains a comfortable lead in popularity polls over the rest of the GOP field.
 Reagan has kept this lead intact while doing almost no campaigning — playing the part of the sleeping giant while other Republican candidates battled for attention in early-primary states.
 But the time for lying low has ended, and the one-time film star is using his declaration of candidacy to kick off a five-day, 12-city campaign swing.
 Reagan strategists hope the grueling campaign schedule will dispel any concerns by voters that age may be slowing the candidate down. If he wins the nomination and the race, Reagan, who will be 69 next February, would be the oldest person ever elected president.
 His entry rounds out the list of major-party candidates seeking to unseat President Carter. The Democratic field was filled last week as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Reagan's successor, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., both entered the starting gate.
 Carter is expected to formally declare Dec. 4 his candidacy for a second term.
 It will be a busy week for all major candidates, and their paths are likely to cross in Iowa, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Florida — all early battlegrounds.
 The GOP candidates trailing Reagan most closely — former Texas Gov. John Connally, Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee and former CIA director George Bush of Texas — all have exhaustive campaign schedules as they try to chip away at Reagan's frontrunner status.

LIZ RETURNS FROM TAIPEI AWARDS — Actress Elizabeth Taylor, wife of U.S. Senator John Warner of Virginia, arrives in Los Angeles International Airport following a visit to the Far East. Ms. Taylor took part in the Golden Horse Awards in Taipei, Taiwan, the Chinese equivalent of the American Oscar awards. She is in Los Angeles for a visit with her son who lives in the area.

Kennedy upsets Carter
 CHICAGO (AP) — Just a few days after he threw his hat in the ring, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., already has upset President Carter as the best-dressed man in American politics.
 Kennedy, who announced his candidacy for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination last week, was chosen by the Custom Tailor's Guild of America. Each year, the guild asks its members to name their choices for the best-dressed men in 10 different career fields.
 The 10 must be "immaculately groomed and properly dressed for all occasions," said Alfonso Caprio, president of the guild.
 Carter was best-dressed man in American politics in 1977.
 The other winners on this year's list included Burt Reynolds — films; Don Rickles — night clubs; Frank Sinatra — music; and Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw — sports.

Country meets east
 NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music star Roy Acuff looked at the gift from his new Chinese friend and said he thought the only thing bamboo could be used for was a fishing pole.
 Acuff exchanged gifts Saturday night on the Grand Ole Opry stage with Chai Zemin, the Chinese ambassador to the United States.
 Chai gave Acuff a painting mounted on a bamboo backing while Acuff reciprocated with a book on the Grand Ole Opry.
 Chai headed a six-member delegation from the People's Republic of China on a three-day visit to Nashville.

Little harm, great good comes from anti thinkers

NEW YORK (AP) — Since traditional thinking so often fails to resolve old nuisances to support our favorite assumptions, little harm and perhaps great good can come from listening to the contrary thinkers.
 Such as Vincent Giuliano, senior member of the research and consulting firm of Arthur D. Little, Inc., who declares that some of what we hear about declining American productivity might be nonsense.
 Giuliano believes that our productivity measuring devices might be outmoded because the market-oriented industrial economy has evolved into an information economy.
 He maintains that the traditional measurements fail to take into account a transformation produced by three waves of technological change: computers, telecommunications and office automation.
 Sixty-percent of the U.S. work force, he states, is now engaged in information work — gathering, processing, communicating it — but that our methodology isn't designed to measure it.
 Giuliano told executives attending an information forum at Tarpon Springs, Fla., last week that technology will greatly expand office productivity and reduce what he called the information "float."
 Meanwhile, economists of A. Gary Shilling & Co., another consulting firm, were questioning whether the "taxpayers' revolt" against government spending is really going to mean a cutback in programs.
 Many Americans already have assumed that it will, and they have swayed the thinking of economists, politicians, government officials and other Americans. We are entering a fiscally conservative phase, they say.
 The Shilling economists question the depth of the feeling, and they have a very convincing "fact," if that is what it is, to buttress their contention: A current report from the company contains this item:
 "The fact is, according to our research, that simply too many people have their feet in the government trough — 53.5 percent of the populace — for even a mild reduction in spending to go through across the board.
 However, say the Shilling people, "the growing disillusionment of the electorate with big government WILL tend to put the brakes on proposals for expensive new government programs."

Gas pipeline explodes near West Monroe

WEST MONROE, La. (AP) — A natural gas pipeline exploded, digging a crater 70 feet wide and 20 feet deep, and forcing the evacuation of three subdivisions in this northern Louisiana city of 14,000.
 The pipeline was the only object heavily damaged and no injuries were reported, officials said, adding that the explosion occurred near the spot where a pipeline ruptured eight years ago.
 "It sounded like a jet. It shook the house so bad that it knocked the light fixture off the carport," said Elizabeth Jones who lives nearby.
 "I heard the explosion and I knew what it was because it had happened before," she said. "I knew we needed to leave immediately. If it did ignite, we would certainly go with it if we didn't go out."
 The 20-inch Eastern Texas Gas Line Co. high-pressure pipeline runs about half a mile from the Jones' house.
 Ouachita Parish sheriff's deputy Carol Wright said the blast was touched off shortly before 9 p.m.
 "Most of the people left of their own accord," she said. "They described it to me as being like a jet aircraft was sitting on top of their houses."
 There was no word on how many people left their homes, but by 9:35, were letting everyone but the 10 or 15 families who live on Mrs. Jones' street back into their homes.
 A Texas Eastern spokesman said the line broke between a compressor station in Monroe and the Ouachita river.

On the Light side

No bubblegum included
 KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — They don't come with bubblegum, but police here are hoping kids will want the Kansas City Chiefs football cards enough to ask a cop for them.
 Under the program, to begin today, patrolmen will give away trading cards to children on their beats, giving the cops and the kids a chance to get to know each other.
 "There will be 10 different football cards of different players and on the backs will be 10 different crime prevention tips," said Russ Cline, the Chiefs' promotion director.
 He said 1.4 million cards will be printed for the first round of distribution. A private company picked up the tab, he said.
 The crime prevention information on the cards covers trespassing, riding with strangers, vandalism, shoplifting and drugs.

A night in court

LEWISTON, Idaho (AP) — Back by popular demand, after nearly 20 years — night court in Nez Perce County.
 Magistrate Ron Schilling said the revival of night court will open Tuesday to consider misdemeanor cases following complaints by many people that they were losing time and money by coming to court hearings during the day.
 "We're certainly willing to set it up to let them have their day in court," he said.

Tasteful logos

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Its 95 members call it the Inner Circle of Advocates. The National Law Journal calls it a "lawyers' secret elite."
 To join, you must be a trial attorney who has won at least one million-dollar verdict from a jury in cases usually involving some catastrophic injury to a client.
 S. Gerald Litvin, a Philadelphia lawyer who was one of the founders of the organization in 1972, describes it as "a very valuable professional organization" through which members swap information about expert witnesses, trial arguments and technical data.
 Members all get lapel pins with the club's logo, a sunburst with the club's name encircling a "7" for the seven-digit verdict needed to qualify for membership.
 "It would be sort of tasteless to put a million-dollar sign in your logo," Litvin said.

Capital's 'office sleeper society'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is also a home for Rep. Ken Holland.

But it's not dedication that causes the South Carolina Democrat to bunk on the couch in his congressional office and shower in the House of Representatives' gym. He says it's economic necessity.

Holland admits that may seem unusual — what with his $60,700 annual congressional salary — but he says eight or nine other congressmen are doing the same.

He won't identify the others but did say there are more Republicans than Democrats in what he calls the "office sleeper society." Holland says most have families back home and don't want — or can't afford — to maintain homes in two cities.

Holland, 45, doesn't expect the arrangement to last forever, but for now the light burning late in his office doesn't necessarily mean he's working.

The unusual living arrangement started earlier this year when he had a chance to buy his dream house — a three-bedroom house on 15 acres atop a mountain near Gaffney, S.C.

But it was expensive. "We had to make a decision on how bad we wanted it," he said in an interview. "We pretty well liquidated everything we had to buy it. We figured we'd never have a chance to buy something like that again."

Selling his house in the Virginia suburbs left Holland with no place to live for the three or four nights a week he spends in Washington. The cheapest basement apartment he could find near the Capitol was renting for $450 a month, he said.

"It just struck me as silly to spend that kind of money," he said.

So he sent his wife and children home to South Carolina and moved to the office. He says that although his little home is "not as comfortable as some would like it, it's very convenient. It keeps you close to your work."

It is also safe, since all congressional office buildings are under 24-hour guard — a factor not lost on Holland, who recalls that Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., was assaulted walking to his nearby apartment.

And it is free. No rent. No mortgage. No property taxes of $1,334 a year — which Holland said he paid on his Virginia home. No utility bills.

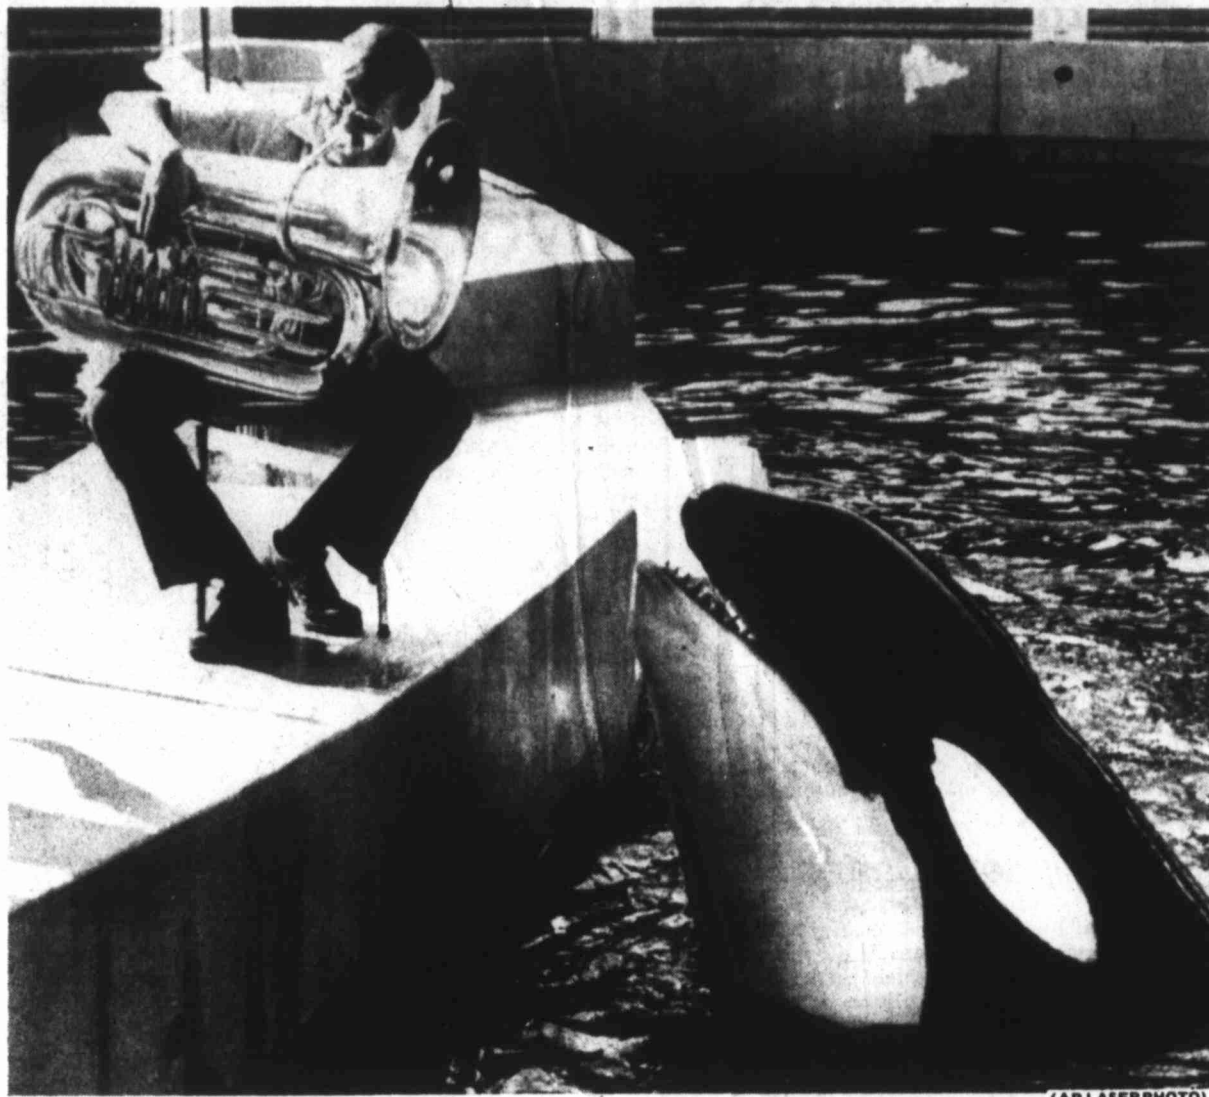

Holland's office shows no signs of its double use. His clothes hang in a closet next to the office bathroom, with the signs of his rural roots — boots and a guitar — squeezed in among the business suits.

Each morning he rises early and goes to the House gym where he exercises, showers and shaves.

Evenings, he often cleans up correspondence and other congressional duties. Sometimes he plays his guitar for relaxation.

He eats breakfast and dinner in the House dining room. Most lunches come from the government-run carryout in his office building.

On Friday, he flies back to South Carolina, returning to Washington on Tuesday. As a congressman, he gets 26 trips back to his district at government expense each year. He can bill his campaign committee for trips home when the purpose is political, such as campaigning.

Thousands affected by train mishaps

Derailments cause evacuations

Separate train derailments in Florida, Michigan and Ontario, Canada, forced officials to urge the evacuation of nearly a quarter of a million people to prevent injuries from toxic chemicals and propane-fueled flames.

About 220,000 people were urged to leave their homes in Mississauga, Ontario, as eight burning tank cars of propane and liquefied natural gas threatened to explode a carload of liquid chlorine.

Authorities and evacuees reported nausea and headaches from the fumes that spread more than six miles from the site of the fire. The 90 tons of chlorine was leaking slowly and vaporizing, just a few feet from the cars which caught fire following the derailment late Saturday.

Dennis Amyot, regional director for Emergency Planning Canada, said it was the biggest peacetime evacuation in the country's history. Schools and shopping centers were opened to those who needed shelter, and five federal agencies and the Red Cross were supplying sleeping bags and meals to those who fled their homes.

Officials a broken axle apparently caused the derailment of 25 cars of the 106-car freight train.

In Molino, Fla., officials were considering whether to use explosives or a military air strike to destroy the cars of a wrecked train.

Six propane-laden cars began to burn and explode after the derailment in a sparsely populated area Sunday. About 70 families were evacuated as officials let the train burn until an Army team could decide how to handle the fire.

Meanwhile, nearly 1,000 families were evacuated in Holland, Mich., early today after a railroad tank car carrying toxic hydrogen fluoride derailed near a mobile home park and overturned.

Officials said there was a burst of the chemical when the car overturned, but the turret was buried and authorities were not certain immediately if the tanker was leaking.

Deputies complained of irritation as they evacuated residents from the area. Officials said the chemical could cause respiratory problems and could be fatal.

Co-ops thrive, save consumers money

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The Food Fair sign still towers over the parking lot, but inside the vast supermarket one of America's new generation of food cooperatives has unplugged the soft music and taken over.

The New Haven Food Co-op, which moved into the boarded up building last month, is replacing the manager's office and vending-machine area with a library and a day-care center.

The Co-op has a van for transporting elderly shoppers, posters explaining food additives, a delicatessen serving knishes and pickled herring; and, in the tradition of most food cooperatives started in the 1970s, a wide selection of whole wheat spaghetti and organic peanut butter.

But perhaps most important for many of the 3,500 people who are members of the Co-op, it offers a discount of up to 12 percent in exchange for 12 hours of work each year.

Although cooperatives have been around as long there has been commerce, two periods in the past century produced a burst of new food cooperatives in the United States: The 1930s, when the nation was in a depression, and the 1970s.

Frederic K. Gammons, the 72-year-old treasurer of Cooperative Consumers of New Haven, a food cooperative that has been incorporated since 1937, sees a pattern.

"It seems to be a consensus among us that the times are right for a greater pressure for co-ops," he said. "We feel times are getting harder."

There are 920 well-established food cooperatives in the United States and several thousand smaller food-buying clubs, according to the Washington-based Cooperative League of the United States of America which says the number is still growing.

A rising interest in cooperatives, for food, housing and other necessities, prompted Congress to pass legislation last year establishing the National Consumers Cooperative Bank.

The bank, located in Washington, is currently establishing its operating rules. It will function in much the same way as the farm and utility cooperatives that were started in the Depression.

Cooperatives will be required to buy stock in the bank when they take out loans. Ultimately the cooperatives will control the bank's stock and board of directors, taking the bank out of the hands of the federal government.

"If we're going to attempt to deal with inflation and decrease the price spread between the producer and the consumer, coops are one way to do it," said John Ward, a spokesman for the bank.

The bank was established, he said, because even well-established cooperatives often have difficulty obtaining loans.

Tom Ballow, a 33-year-old Yale graduate who helped start the New Haven Food Co-op and now works for the New England Cooperative Training Institute in New Haven, said the co-op probably would have found it easier to move to its new location with the aid of such a bank.

'Community Center' store closes its doors

GRIFFITH SWITCH, Texas (AP) — Back when the Edwards Grocery Store was established in 1934, this town was nothing more than a wide place in the road with a grocery store and a cotton gin.

Today, it is a wide place in the road with a cotton gin.

The grocery store has closed its doors for the 32,000th — and last — time, and residents of this small town, located halfway between Venus and Maypearl, mourned its passing at a close-out sale Saturday.

"Us farmers visit and talk about the crops," said Joe Lee, who was a baby in diapers when the store first opened. "It's the only time we see our neighbors. People don't visit no more."

Even the owners, John and Mary Sue Edwards, who were married eight miles up the road at Mountain Peak two days before they opened their store, say it was as much a community center and clearinghouse for neighborhood news as it was a clapboard grocery.

"When it rains, the men gather here and talk. The women go to the hair place (in Venus or Maypearl) and gossip," said Edwards, 66.

But Mrs. Edwards, 63, said, "The men gather here and gossip."

They have run the store, pumped gasoline, made pork sausage and tended to other chores, seven days a week, for 45 years, and now they are tired.

"We will miss it, but we have worked ourselves down," Mrs. Edwards said. Edwards wants more time to hunt quail with his four bird dogs, and Mrs. Edwards wants to "sew, knit and visit — things I haven't had time to do." They both want to spend more time with their children and grandchildren.

When their store opened Dec. 8, 1934, they sold flour in 50-pound bags, and sugar and beans were stocked in bulk. They didn't sell meat because the customers in this rural area about 45 miles southwest of Dallas produced their own.

For years they ate lunch separately so one of them could always be in the store. But now it is part of this town's history.

"There has been crying and everything else going on down here. I tell them not to get me started, because I'll boo-hoo," said Mrs. Edwards.

Her husband, meantime, was hawking the last of the store's goods.

"You're pretty dirty and need to bathe more often — and I've got lots of soap," he told a woman pushing one of the store's four shopping carts across the worn plank floor.

Every thing happens in cycles. See Edwards under M.
