Mob burns U. S. Embassy, Marine slain

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Thousands of enraged Moslems, some firing rifles, stormed the U.S. Embassy here Wednesday and set it afire in rioting that killed one U.S. Marine guard and one demonstrator.

Thirty-seven other persons, including two unidentified Americans, were injured as Pakistani troops dispersed the mob and rescued more than 100 American staffers, some from the roof of the burning building.

One staffer, Thomas G. Putscher, an aid official, was captured on the embassy grounds and held hostage for more than five hours before being released unharmed at a nearby university, American officials said.

Pakistan's Moslem president Gen. Mohammed Zia ul-Haq spoke to President Carter by telephone and expressed "deep regret and apologies for the attack," White House spokesman Jody Powell said.

The Moslem crowds, reacting to erroneous reports that Americans were involved in the takeover Tuesday of the Grand Mosque in Mecca, Saudi Arabia, shouted "Kill the American dogs!" and stormed the gates with guns blazing, witnesses said.

A leader of some 300 students who led the attack said the group believed rumors that American Jews were responsible for the mosque takeover, adding: "We regret the lives lost and the destruction."

Another student said, "We got news that Jews had taken the Khana Kaaba and 500 hostages including 300 Pakistanis. We simply wanted to express our protest peacefully and then a shot was fired from the embassy, wounding a student in the thigh... After that happens, you can no longer control a crowd."

Robert Bledsoe, a Marine lance corporal, said: "We didn't fire one shot. We just threw gas grenades."

U.S. Ambassador Arthur W. Hummel also denied in an interview that any embassy staffers fired on the rioters, and added: "It was quite clear that they (the demonstrators) came with violence in mind."

The dead Marine was identified by the Defense Department in Washington as Cpl. Steven Crowley, 20, of Port Jefferson, N.Y. Witnesses said he was struck in a crossfire between Marines and Pakistani police and the invading Moslems, who numbered about 2,500 including the students and city residents.

The State Department said some of the employees in the burning building may have suffered from smoke inhalation before they were moved to safe places in the city.

Hummel, who had gone home for lunch before the mid-day attack began, said all six buildings in the red-brick embassy compound, built at a cost of more than $20 million, were destroyed as were 50 vehicles.

Elsewhere, mobs in the Pakistani cities of Lahore, 180 miles south of Islamabad, and Rawalpindi, near Islamabad, set fire to U.S. Information Centers, but no injuries were reported, the State Department said.

Other mobs in Rawalpindi set fire to the British Council Library and ransacked an American Express office, authorities said.

Reports reaching New Delhi, India, said about 200 young men marched on the American Consulate in Karachi, about 720 miles south of Islamabad, but troops firing tear gas drove them away.

The Americans inside the burning embassy were trapped in a third-floor vault for five hours but they got out through an escape hatch on the roof and were taken away by government troops, the State Department said.

Before Pakistani troops intervened, demonstrators were on the roof of the burning building, firing rifles down the air shafts, the White House said.

Black smoke poured from the gutted structure while groups of youths roamed around, pulling down antennas from a building in the embassy compound. Firemen battled the blaze into the night.

On Tuesday, the Saudi mosque was taken over by a radical Moslem group believed to be linked to Iran's Shiite sect. The Shiite's spiritual leader is Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who is supporting the student militant occupation of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

The State Department claimed Khomeini's office made a "false and irresponsible" statement alleging Americans and Israelis were involved in the takeover of the Saudi mosque, the holiest site in Islam.

Iranians vow to kill hostages if U.S. attacks

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iranian militants vowed Wednesday to kill the 49 American hostages and blow up the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran if the United States launched a military attack against Iran. A government spokesman said Iranians "would dig the grave of America" if it used force.

More than a million Iranians, responding to a call by revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, marched through the streets of Tehran shouting, "Mar bar shah, mar bar Carter — Death to the shah, death to Carter!"

The day marked the 1,400th Islamic

New Year and the beginning of the 29-day month of Moharram, a mourning period for Iran's majority Shiite Moslems.

In Washington, White House spokesman Jody Powell warned Iran's leaders they will be "strictly accountable" if the hostages are harmed. The Carter administration has ordered the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk and five escort ships from the Philippines into the Indian Ocean to join the carrier Midway, now cruising 600 miles south of Iran.

A statement by militants who seized the embassy Nov. 4, demanding that the exiled shah be returned for trial, said, "We have been informed that the Americans intend to attack Iranian territory. We are hereby warning the American government:

"If these threats materialize all the hostages will perish. The slightest military aggression against Iran will also threaten the lives of all Americans living in Iran and immediately the American embassy will be blown up."

An Iranian government spokesman said the movement of the U.S. carriers was probably a bluff. But "we are determined to resist to the last person and to the last breath, and we shall dig the grave of America or any other country here if they commit the slightest aggression against us," Tehran radio director Sadeq Ghotbzadeh said in a broadcast interview.

Defense Department officials in Washington said it was unlikely the United States would attempt to rescue the hostages by force, but added retribution was plausible if the hostages were harmed.

Powell criticized the treatment of the hostages, which he said is "at the least somewhat more harsh than reported." He said the 13 black and women hostages freed earlier this week were "clearly subjected to very sophisticated and subtle techniques" similar to those used to "break down prisoners and hostages."

State Department officials accused Khomeini of deliberately "creating the climate" for attacks on U.S. diplomatic missions in Pakistan early Tuesday by making false charges against the United States and Israel.

The marchers adopted a 17-point resolution calling for a struggle against the United States and demanding the hostages be tried as spies and punished by the revolutionary regime unless the United States surrenders ousted Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

The shah is in a New York hospital undergoing cancer treatment.

In a radio and television address Tuesday, Khomeini hardened his threat that the hostages would be tried unless Carter meets his demand, called on his followers to fight U.S. "imperialism" and declared Wednesday a national religious holiday to commemorate the beginning of the 15th Islamic century.

Abolhassan Bani Sudr, Iran's foreign affairs supervisor, tempered Khomeini's militant stance Wednesday, hinting the threatened spy trials would be for publicity purposes and the hostages might not be convicted or punished.

Bani Sadr, in an NBC-TV interview, said "to try does not mean to condemn or to execute... So don't be too afraid of this possibility. We have a lot of time."

He also reiterated his remark that the United States could defuse the crisis by admitting the shah wronged Iran and allowing the former monarch to stand trial in a third country to expose his alleged crimes. Khomeini has charged that the shah ordered the deaths of tens of thousands of Iranians and plundered them of billions of dollars before he left the country in January.

Mobs carried donkey and clown effigies of President Carter during the demonstration, the largest outpouring of anti-American sentiment during the Islamic revolution.

The crowd roared its approval as a turbaned Moslem cleric climbed a pillar along the embassy wall and hurled invective at Carter, calling him "satan." It was impossible to determine how many people marched, but some estimates went as high as two million.

"This is a day of happiness and joy for us, both because it is New Year's day and because we are showing America and Carter their threats do not scare us any longer, one well-dressed demonstrator said. "Our revolution has crushed America's influence here for ever."

Accused slayers of minister, his wife captured at farm

CRAIG, Colo. (AP) — Two men arrested in connection with the slaying of an Oklahoma minister and his wife waived extradition Wednesday night and were to be returned to Oklahoma within a few hours.

Glen Burton Ake, 24, and Steven Keith Hatch, 25, were arrested Wednesday morning at a farm near here, said Jack Egnor, special agent in charge of the FBI office in Denver.

The two have been charged with first-degree murder in connection with the slayings of the Rev. Richard Douglass, 42, and his wife Marily, 36, near Okarche, Okla., on Oct. 15.

Douglass was pastor of Oklahoma City's Putnam City Baptist Church.

The couple's two children, Richard Brooks Douglass Jr., 16, and Leslie Douglass, 13, were bound and shot in the incident, but survived the ordeal.

Authorities here said Ake and Hatch also were wanted in connection with the slaying of two men in Texas. Texas officials, after learning of the arrests filed an extradition request that was received in Craig soon after the one from Oklahoma.

Authorities said warrants had been issued for Ake and Hatch in connection with the deaths of Dale Kokenes, 35, of Beaumont, Texas, and Yerby Lane III, 27, of Lumberton, Texas. Their bodies were found Nov. 4.

Egnor said the arrests came after a rancher, Mike Pondella, telephoned authorities Wednesday morning, saying he had escaped from two men who had beaten and bound him Tuesday night.

Tops on TV: 'Texas Super Bowl'

For gridiron fans, today's best bet has to be the "Texas Super Bowl," airing at 3 p.m. on NBC. The Dallas Cowboys will try to halt a losing streak at home against the Houston Oilers. At 8 p.m., CBS will present a made-for-TV feature, "Letters From Frank." If nothing else, this flick about a newspaper executive forced into leaving his job because of mandatory retirement age has great stars in Art Carney and Maureen Stapleton.

Case of the missing cow solved at last

SEATTLE (AP) — King County police officer Terry Gallagher was in his living room watching television highlights of Saturday's University of Washington-Washington State University football game when he thought he saw a cow in the UW cheering section.

He called detective Jerry Harris, who had been working on the case of a particular cow missing from Theno's Dairy near Redmond.

Harris talked with Henry Brown, a yell leader, who said the cow had been brought to the field by members of an unknown fraternity.

It was left at the stadium and Brown locked it up after the game.

Owner Bud Theno has it back now and won't press charges. But he welded the cow's hooves to the dairy's roof.

Theno said the 150-pound, life-sized plastic Holstein was worth $1,000.

Iranians using harsh brainwashing methods

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iranian militants holding the U.S. Embassy in Tehran are using harsh brainwashing methods on their American hostages, President Carter's chief spokesman said Wednesday.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said treatment of the remaining 49 hostages held in the embassy in Tehran is "at the very least, somewhat more harsh than has been reported."

Later, an administration official, asking anonymity, said the militants are keeping some of the hostages bound hand and foot 24 hours a day and forcing them to remain seated without an opportunity to exercise during their waking hours.

The official, describing the treatment as "calculated psychological pressure," said the militants had not kept their promise to pass along telephone messages and notes to the hostages, but were instead trying to make them believe they have been abandoned.

Powell said this effort included the use of "forged documents," including fake telegrams.

The official, who said the information came from "a variety of sources" which he would not reveal, called for neutral observers to be allowed to determine the condition of the hostages and he urged the militants to let competent medical personnel into the embassy.

The administration comment on the methods used against the hostages came as the militants holding the embassy in Tehran threatened again to kill the Americans if the United States makes a military effort to free them.

And Powell blamed the Iranian regime headed by revolutionary religious leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini for deliberately repeating a false report that may have prompted a mob of Muslims to attack and burn the U.S. Embassy in Islamabad, Pakistan.

Reporting on the pressures to which the hostages in Tehran are being subjected, Powell said the 13 black and women hostages who were released earlier this week were "clearly subjected to very sophisticated and subtle techniques," which he said were reminiscent of those used to "break down prisoners and hostages."

Although Powell did not himself use the term "brainwashing," he did not object when reporters used it to characterize the treatment Powell described.

Meanwhile, in Wiesbaden, West Germany, the 13 Americans who were released from the embassy appeared before reporters, but refused to discuss the conditions in Tehran "until our friends have been freed."

The former hostages read a statement they said had been given them by their captors. They said they were told that if they read the statement "the treatment of the hostages would not deteriorate."

The statement repeated charges against the deposed

Shah of Iran.

Responding to the new death threat against the hostages in the embassy, Powell said Iran's leaders would make a "serious mistake" if they doubt that the United States will hold them responsible for any harm that comes to the Americans.

The White House issued a statement Tuesday which, for the first time, indicated some military action could be taken against Iran. The statement said the United States could resort to "other remedies," including United Nations-sanctioned defensive military action.

In response, the militants holding the embassy in Tehran issued a statement threatening to kill their captives if a U.S. military rescue effort is mounted.

Stocks plunge triggered by turmoil

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices declined Wednesday, in a volatile preholiday session marked by confusion and concern over growing turmoil in the oil rich Middle East.

The market absorbed its steepest losses on heavy trading early in the session and maintained moderate losses for much of the day.

But prices improved near the close.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, off by more than 11 points near the opening, and down 6 to 8 points through much of the session finished with a loss of just 1.80 at 807.42.

Analysts could not cite any single news development for the market's improvement in the final two hours.

Big Board volume came to 37.02 million shares, up from 35.10 million the previous day and unusually heavy for a preholiday trading day.

The New York and other stock exchanges will be closed on Thanksgiving but open on Friday.

The NYSE also announced that shortly before noon on Wednesday, volume for the year exceeded 1978's previous record volume of 7.20 billion shares.

Overall losing stocks outnumbered gainers by a 7-6 margin on the NYSE.

Gold issues were among the standouts throughout the session. Oil stocks which had been uniformly lower earlier in the session were mixed at the close.

CROWN PRINCE AT SUMMIT — Saudi Crown Prince Fahd Ben Abdulaziz, left, leaves his hotel at the Arab League summit conference Wednesday in Tunis, Tunisia. The Crown Prince urged a long-term study of the Arab states' economic strength while Iraq asked Arab countries to use their "very effective weapon" — oil — to punish Israel and its allies.

Saudi troops acting with caution

Zealots seize Grand Mosque

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Armed members of a dissident Moslem sect with religious ties to the Shiites of Iran held out with hostages inside the Grand Mosque of Mecca Wednesday night. But Saudi troops had the situation under control and were in a position for an assault, the Interior Ministry said.

It indicated the seizure was strictly an act by religious zealots and had no connection with events in Iran.

Earlier accounts said Saudi forces had recaptured the mosque, Islam's holiest place, and freed some of the hostages after an assault.

An Interior Ministry statement said, however, the Saudi forces were acting with caution out of fear of harming the hostages and damaging the sacred building where thousands of Moslem faithful had come in observance of Islamic holy days.

It did not say how many invaders and hostages were inside the mosque. Other reports said as many as 100 attackers seized about 150 hostages.

The earlier reports, from Saudi sources at an Arab summit meeting in Tunisia, said that while Saudi troops had recaptured the main area of the venerated shrine and freed most of the hostages, a few invaders were holding out on an upper floor of the mosque.

The Interior Ministry statement, broadcast by the official state radio over the name of Interior Minister Prince Hayef bin Abdul Aziz, indicated there was no assault. It said there was no indication that the seizure of the mosque and the hostages "was connected with certain nationalities."

"What is firm, however, is that these people have deviated from the teachings of our religion," the statement said.

The invaders have been identified as Mahdist Moslems who believe in the imminent coming of a new savior and are closely linked to the Shiites, who form the majority in Iran.

The term "certain nationalities" in the Interior Ministry statement apparently referred to earlier reports abroad that the attackers might have been Iranian pilgrims to Mecca, the birthplace of the Moslem Prophet Mohammed, or Shiite supporters of the Iranian revolution leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Earlier in the day, Khomeini linked the attack to the United States in a statement broadcast in Iran. He said it is "not farfetched to assume that this act has been carried out by criminal American imperialism ... and international Zionism."

The Mecca incident also set off mob attacks on the U.S. Embassy and other U.S. properties in Pakistan, also a Moslem nation. The Pakistani attackers acted in the belief the United States was involved in the seizure of the mosque in Mecca. The attacks came before the broadcast of Khomeini's statement.

'Stay out' plea issued to KKK

SEADRIFT, Texas (AP) — Residents of this troubled fishing community have caused a "stay out" plea to the Ku Klux Klan, which says it will bring in several Louisiana klansmen Saturday to demonstrate against Vietnamese refugees.

About 600 persons — more than half of the town's 1,000 population — attended a meeting the Seadrift City Council called Tuesday night because of the announced Klan rally.

By a unanimous 5-0 vote, the council passed a resolution that said the council and a majority of its citizens "do not condone or approve of any organization or group of people that may advocate or provoke violence."

Two persons — including the father of a fisherman who was killed Aug. 3 by a Vietnamese fisherman during the height of controversy over fishing locations — spoke favorably of the Klan.

The meeting was scheduled in an elementary school, but the hot auditorium couldn't contain all the crowd. Some of them spilled out into the yard outside.

Jerry Weaver, a Seadrift resident, was cheered when he said the town "should show everyone we're not backing the Ku Klux Klan. We don't need to invite any more problems into town."

The town's four ministers, presented the council a resolution that criticized the Ku Klux Klan's intention to parade in Seadrift, which is on the mid-Texas coast.

Mayor Rayburn Haynie said there "is no legal way we can keep an organization from coming into town and demonstrating," but said the Seadrift City Council will propose an ordinance at one of its next meetings to require a permit to march or demonstrate within the city limits.

Haynie said the "bad publicity" caused junior high schools in other towns to cancel two basketball games scheduled in Seadrift.

"It's time to do something about the problem when you can't even have a basketball game in town," the mayor said.

Many members of the audience asked who had invited the Klan to Seadrift, and Haynie said he didn't know.

B.T. Aplin, father of slain fisherman Billy Koe Aplin, said he didn't call anyone.

"I've been accusing of calling the Klan. I didn't, but I'd be proud if it was us, because we want it stopped," Aplin said of the Vietnamese refugees, who moved into Seadrift two years ago when a crab-processing plant was opened.

He said Klan leaders had called him from five different states, however.

"All we're after is truth and justice, and we hadn't got it. Whenever you can't get nothing done about law and anything else, there's people watching it. The Klan wanted to come in here and run 'em out. I don't think they want to hurt anybody. They're good people," Aplin said of the Klan.

Two Vietnamese brothers were brought to trial for the shooting death of Billy Joe Aplin. The judge ordered a directed verdict of acquittal for one of the brothers in the trial and the jury quickly acquitted the other. Defense attorneys argued the accused acted in self defense.

Leon Ruthenberg, owner of Bo Brooks crab-processing plant, said more than 25 percent of his Mexican-American and Vietnamese employees had left in the past week, after the Klan said it planned to march in Seadrift next Saturday.

"We're about closed. We're on a skeleton crew," Ruthenberg said.

Holiday travelers stranded in snow

By The Associated Press
A record November blizzard sweeping across the West with winds up to 70 mph virtually shut down parts of Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska on Wednesday and stranded holiday travelers in snowdrifts up to 8 feet deep.
The storm, in the third day of an assault that left at least seven people dead, closed many major highways in the three states and forced schools to turn out early for Thanksgiving.
With winds gusting to 70 mph across Colorado's eastern plains, hundreds of motorists slid off Interstate 70, which eventually was closed to the Kansas border.
The Colorado State Patrol rescued travelers in four-wheeldrive vehicles but could not guess when the highways would reopen.

Throughout the area, hundreds of people were expected to celebrate Thanksgiving Day in emergency shelters, such as the National Guard armory in Sidney, Neb.
In Wyoming, where a record 24 inches of snow was on the ground in Cheyenne, National Guardsmen with giant snowplows worked throughout the night to rescue about 70 motorists stranded on Interstate 25 between the capital and the Colorado border, some for as long as eight hours.
The Laramie County sheriff's department brought in nearly 200 people from 50 cars stranded on Interstate 25.

Hightower says city 'gouged' by railroad

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A candidate for the Texas Railroad Commission charges that body has short-changed the city of San Antonio by not investigating rate increases levied by the railroad that hauls coal power to city's utilities.
Jim Hightower, former editor of the "Texas Observer," said Alamo City residents are being "gouged" by the Burlington Northern Railroad.
"Burlington Northern's rates have gone from $11 per ton to more than $19 per ton in the last three years," Hightower said.
"Worse yet, despite their complaints about the rate increase, granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the railroad commission turned around in late October and kicked a little rate increase of their own — a 1.1 percent rate hike supposedly to cover the rising cost of diesel fuel," Hightower said at a capital news conference.
"It appears obvious that the railroad commissioners are more concerned with Burlington Northern fuel costs than those of the people of San Antonio," he said.
Hightower also claimed that San Antonio switched to a coal-fired utility system because the commission insisted it do so.
He also said a pair of lawyers found the railroad "has been giving preferential rates to some of its corporate shipping customers."
He said International Paper and Scott Paper have been allowed to buy timber from Burlington Northern forests at a "fraction" of the market price.

In the heart of America's fruited plains Giving thanks after the Dust Bowl

ULYSSES, Kan. (AP) — In the 1930s, the wind came swirling across the plains like an enraged dervish and swept this land's rich topsoil all the way to the rooftops of New York City.
Grant County farmers wept and shook their fists at the cloudless skies.
Then they looked down instead of up for the life-giving moisture that would make their crops grow. They bored deep into the land that stretches without ripple to the horizon. They mortgaged their homes and their cows to buy pumps and pipe, miles and miles of pipe.
They found sweet water and the land bloomed.
Yesterday Ulysses was the heart of America's Dust Bowl. Today it is the heart of America's fruited plains.
The people of Grant County have long memories, so every year they give thanks to God and each other for their rich harvest.
It is a most unusual sort of Thanksgiving, by anyone's standards.
On a Tuesday in late September at least 1,500 people sit down to dinner together. Everything they eat is grown with their own hands. Only the coffee comes from the great beyond, and it is brewed with the nectar that started it all local water.
The feast climaxes a year-long effort by 700 volunteers. It is held here because Ulysses is the only incorporated town in the county.

Rockies to the Mississippi, 7,000 people live about 50 miles from the Oklahoma and Colorado borders.
Two federal highways bisect the web of gravel roads leading into Ulysses, founded by homesteaders in June 1885. The nearest big towns, Liberal and Garden City, are 60 miles away. Big means populations of 15,000 and 19,000, respectively.
The annual Home Products Dinner has its roots in homestead days when families gathered in mid-August every year for a pioneer picnic. Many of the revelers were immigrants, taming the prairie with curses and prayers in accents from France, Germany, England, Norway and Russia.
The rare merrymaking brought a respite in the backbreaking work of civilizing a wild place. It gave the lonely settlers something to look forward to in a year of relentless labor.
In 1932 the picnics ended, choked by the swirling dust. The Depression brought new troubles and killed off old traditions.
But in 1941 state legislator Will Christian brought 12 colleagues and the lieutenant governor home to Ulysses for one of his wife Nora's hearty meals. As the politicians dined, Christian told them every dish on the table had come from the land they saw around them.
Memory of that dinner lingered in the minds of Ulysses' townfolks. In 1963 a civic committee put on the first Home Products Dinner; 450 people attended, and more come every year.

Chairman of the committee this year was Eldon Dirks, a certified public accountant with offices on Main Street.
"I started preparing for this year as we were clearing away the paper plates last year," said Dirks. "We have a thick guidebook that's been passed down on how to organize, assign chores, solicit contributions of food and help."
The Pilgrims would recognize some of the dishes on the lavish menu.
There is corn on the cob, 200 pounds of it, 250 pounds of candied squash, 70 pounds of baked pinto beans, 300 pounds of scalloped potatoes, 70 pounds of cantaloupe, dozens of heads of lettuce for salad and cabbage for cole slaw, 750 pounds of beef, four bushels of tomatoes for barbecue sauce — and caramel popcorn balls for dessert.
Thirteen donors provided the meat this year.
"We start out at 3 a.m. It's all wrapped up in foil, and the oak fire is hot and smoking in the new pit we built behind the civic center," said Dirks. "Last year we cooked it 25 hours, but every year we learn something. This time it was only for 14 hours."
More than 300 senior citizens were served first in a food line that stretched all the way around the new center. The Rainbow Girls poured water. The Ulysses Ladies Golf Association helped serve the food. Knights of Columbus and Masons ushered. Boy Scouts directed parking, and Girl Scouts wrapped plastic forks in napkins.
The whole hungry crowd was served buffet style in 45 minutes. Each paid $2.50, most of which goes for scholarships. There also was a speaker, and Grant Countians had chosen someone to make them laugh.
Dr. James Blakely of Wharton, Texas, an author with a doctorate, a weekly newspaper column and a radio show, had people holding their sides as he told stories about his small town origins, poked fun at the IRS. Hunkered down in the southwest corner of Kansas where the wind gathers speed on its sweep from the and praised old-fashioned virtues.

At the end, as folks wiped tears of mirth from their eyes, he hit them with the zinger, like they knew he would all along.
"You in this small community are living the life of action," said Blakely to an auditorium suddenly fallen silent. "You understand faith, and service, and the need to face the winds of challenge and change. Thank you for inviting me to your Thanksgiving. I'm glad I came."

Doc tried to kill man?

Jurors eye letters, notes, photographs

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Jurors in the attempted capital murder trial of former Pasadena physician Archie Herman Burkhalter looked through letters, notes, photographs and other evidence Wednesday in deliberating whether the doctor tried to kill a man.

The four-man, eight-woman jury took a 1½ hour lunch break after three hours of morning discussion. They asked State District Judge Darrell Hester to define the word "corroborate" but were told that was not permissible under court rules.

The indictment alleged Burkhalter hired S.J. Wilburn and Scott David Minnick, a co-defendant in this trial, to kill a man married to the doctor's ex-wife.

The maximum penalty for attempted capital murder is 99 years in prison or life plus a $10,000 fine.

The victim in the alleged plot, John Hensley, survived a rifle bullet in the face Feb. 15 but was blinded.

Assistant District Attorney Joe Hendley prosecuted the case. The doctor was defended by Odessa lawyer Warren Burnett and Brownsville attorney Joe Walsh.

Hensley was attacked outside his South Padre Island condominium where he and the former Laurita Burkhalter had lived since their marriage on Oct. 30, 1978.

The doctor and his wife divorced in November 1977.

Wilburn was convicted in July and sentenced to life in prison for what prosecutors said was his part as the triggerman in the case.

During the morning, Burkhalter and Minnick waited in Walsh's office across from the court building.

Burnett and Walsh will also represent Burkhalter in a kidnapping case stemming from the Oct. 24, 1978, alleged abduction of his wife from her South Padre Island home.

She was taken to Pasadena Memorial Hospital, which the doctor sold this summer. The woman was released unharmed.

The kidnapping case was delayed after Hensley was shot.

Wilburn was arrested minutes after the shooting in a 1968 red Cadillac equipped with a tripod, port holes and thick insulation in the trunk. The back seat had been removed and police witnesses said the arrangement allowed someone to fire a weapon from the car unseen.

Just before Wilburn's arrest, a high school freshman testified she saw two cars parked on the causeway between South Padre Island and the mainland. She said a man was throwing two packages off the bridge into the bay.

Police recovered a .223-caliber rifle and 49 rounds of ammunition from the bay three weeks later.

Minnick was stopped several hours after Wilburn's arrest, driving a 1977 blue Cadillac in Refugio County north of Corpus Christi.

Hendley contended the blue car was part of a payoff from Burkhalter for the shooting.

The original indictment against Burkhalter and Minnick included a count of attempted capital murder in exchange for $15,000.

However, Hendley dismissed the count when a crucial witness could not be found.

The witness was in the Cameron County Jail with Wilburn after his arrest.

Thanksgiving is not just a virtue — it is a real human need, Royce Clay, 14th and Main Church of Christ minister, told the Downtown Lions at its Wednesday meeting.

"We need to be thankful," he declared, and "we need to be reminded to be thankful." An attitude of gratitude is important, but it reaches its climax when it finds expression in thanksgiving and in acts of human kindness, he said.

Clay, who brought the club's traditional Thanksgiving eve message, was introduced by Jerry Phillips.

Thanksgiving

Let us be thankful for the presence of love in our hearts. What the world needs today is all the love we can spare. It is needed in our offices, in our factories, around the conference tables of the world, on our streets, in our schools, in our churches... but most of all in our homes. As we sit down at our Thanksgiving dinner, let us reflect for a moment on the ways in which we can give this greatest gift of all... our love.

Wind may blow goo back to sea

Tanker still burping its cargo

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A work force struggled against patches of oil lapping upon this island's beaches Wednesday, hoping for a wind shift to blow the goo back to sea.

The wind was still out of the southeast Wednesday afternoon about 15 miles per hour. The Coast Guard said. A cold front which passed through the state was to shift winds from the north.

A contingent of 340 persons Wednesday mopped up a thick layer of oil leaking from the crippled tanker Burmah Agate which collided Nov. 1 with the freighter Mimosa. The oil had dropped to a trickle prior to last weekend.

fire, but it was hard to tell what effect the explosions had on the vessel because of the fire and smoke.

Clark said there has been no more oil leaking from a crack in the left side of the ship that developed Sunday when the deck of the ship buckled. The fire spread from the right side of the vessel to the left, but went out when the crude stopped leaking on that side.

He said the offshore currents have been almost negligible, so the oil was held at sea by winds blowing from north until Sunday, when they began blowing from the south, driving the oil directly onto the beaches.

at the expense of the owner of the tanker.

In a letter to Coast Guard Capt. Robert Ingraham, captain of the Port of Galveston, Holbrook said at least 640 cubic yards of sand already had been removed from the beaches.

He noted that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has a large amount of sand piled at the east end of the island that was dredged from the Galveston Ship Channel and suggested that it might be used to replace the oily sand.

Earl Shuhom said the building contained chemicals that were potentially explosive, although he did not believe there was immediate danger of an explosion. # Court asked to review rates

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, asked the Supreme Court on Wednesday to review a federal agency's railroad rate decision that he said flies in the face of national energy and inflation fighting goals.

The action stems from the Interstate Commerce Commission's 1977 decision that allowed railroads to charge higher rates for transporting coal to two power companies.

Eckhardt said the decision is costing consumers in the Houston area alone some $40 million annually.

The ICC decision was upheld by a federal appeals court earlier this year.

The companies — the Houston Lighting and Power Co. and the Arizona Electric Power Cooperative — filed their appeal with the nation's highest court Tuesday.

Eckhardt's request came in the form of a "friend of the court" brief urging Supreme Court review of the case.

"This is an unusual case and it's an unusual proceeding," Eckhardt said at a news conference. "It deals with a very salient issue involving energy."

The Houston area congressman said he asked for Supreme Court review because the rapid increase in rail freight costs for coal threatened the national goal of converting utility plants from oil to coal.

The court also should review the case, Eckhardt said, because the ICC did not follow congressional guidelines to balance railroad finance and consumer needs when it approved the higher rates.

He said that the Texas company should be paying the railroads about $11 per ton for hauling coal from Wyoming instead of the current $18 per ton.

The ICC since has approved rate increases for other companies, but the Texas and Arizona companies are the first to have their cases completed by a federal appeals court.

The Arizona company has its coal hauled from New Mexico.

Eckhardt is the chairman of a House subcommittee that has reviewed the railroads' transportation of coal. A report on the hearings is due to be released in December.

"A careful balance must be obtained between providing railroads with adequate revenue levels and preventing them, in a case where they have market dominance, from obtaining these levels solely or principally from captive shippers through exorbitant rates for a commodity in high demand," Eckhardt wrote in his brief.

"Coal traffic has been singled out to bear a disproportionate share of railroad financing efforts," he wrote.

Tree trivia

The first Christmas tree to be lighted electrically was conceived by a telephone man.

In 1908, when his son upset a candle on their tree, (customary in those days, in the German tradition) the man decided to devise safer lighting.

He bought a handful of tiny electric lamps such as those used on telephone switchboards; then, in his spare time at home he soldered the lights into wires and strung them onto the family tree. Result: the world's first Christmas tree lighted electrically... and increased safety for homes everywhere.

Wrapping tips

Here are some suggestions for achieving that personally gift wrapped look.

The children on your list will be delighted to find Santa Claus's smiling face on their presents. For this jolly portrait, cut out Santa's features from heavy paper in appropriate colors and paste them onto a rectangular box. If you prefer, you can use self-adhesive paper. It comes in all colors and can be cut to resemble any form you like and attached to the top of your paper. Popular motifs for such cut-outs are little angels or animals. If you're not talented, simply trace your cut-outs.

Skills sharpened

Trickiest holiday selling in years

NEW YORK (AP) — This could be the trickiest holiday selling season in many years, one to test the marketing skills and courage of sellers and the financial inventiveness and determination of buyers.

Both groups have sharpened those skills throughout these volatile years of the 1970s, but the past might no longer be a guide. More than the calendar is changing; the economic world is too.

If you were a merchant, dependent on a good show during the holidays, how would you adjust to higher interest rates, tighter money, rising prices, declining buying power and gnawing fears of the future? Would you keep inventories lean, and risk being unable to fill orders? Offer your own brand of credit financing and then be unable to collect? Sink dollars into promotion, and then not get the orders? Lower prices?

As a customer, will you decide that less buying power means you must reduce purchases? Are you willing to buy on credit and leave to next year the worries about paying? Can you get credit? Do you want it?

The fact is that the consumer's ability to buy has been curtailed by reason of inflation growing faster than incomes. So far this year, that lost income exceeds 1 percent, or more than $150 on a $15,000 income.

There has been an expedient route around this hard fact, of course, by means of credit buying. Families also reduced their rate of savings, to just above 4 percent a year, and spent the money instead.

These practices helped maintain sales at near last year's levels. In fact, sales actually rose in August and September, even when adjusted for inflation, although much of the gain was from the new car market.

But consumer attitudes may be changing. People already are loaded with credit and they are worried about it. They are now delaying purchases of new cars. Apparel and home durable sales have been off sharply.

Moreover, the holiday season coincides with one of the harshest programs of monetary restraint ever attempted by the Federal Reserve, a program whose impact can be measured financially and psychologically.

All this may mean a change of buying habits that could extend through the holidays, but if so, it will be countered by aggressive selling by merchants. And aggressive selling often means discounts.

To what extent retailers will have to rely on discounting won't be clear for another two weeks. By then they will understand the mood of the buyer, and the buyer's willingness and ability to spend.

It might be the retail battle of the decade, a classic between buyer and seller, the first big battle to decide whether the Federal Reserve's anti-inflation policy will or will not work.

HOLLYWOOD HENDERSON

DALLAS COWBOYS COACH TOM LANDRY'S firing of Thomas Henderson, or Hollywood's retirement, whichever way you want to look at it, really comes as no surprise, especially if one listened to what D.D. Lewis had to say about his former linebacking cohort on the Channel 8 (WFAA) sports show Monday night. I won't go into the details of Lewis' talk, but it seems apparent that Landry wasn't the only person in the Cowboys organization fed up with Hollywood's act.

But it just goes to prove the old Dallas Cowboys organization adage that Landry is The Man, period. It's been said by countless people that have toiled on the team, such as Danderoo Meredith, Pete Gent (in his fictional book entitled "North Dallas Forty", and by former Cowboy linebacker Rodrigo Barnes.

BARNES WAS THE COWBOYS SIXTH ROUND DRAFT CHOICE out of Rice in the 1973 lottery. A person of immense physical ability, the 6'2", 220-pound Barnes was a former Class AAAA 440-yard dash state champion, as well as an expert in the field of karate.

In his junior season at Rice, he was a second team All-American and the Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Year. But he had troubles with the coaching staff at the SWC school due to his eccentric attitude during his senior season in college, and his performance disappointingly didn't reach his potential. But the Cowboys gambled that he would get his act together in pro football when they drafted him.

He did for a little over a year. Used primarily on the special teams and as a linebacker on goal line defense, he was known for his outstanding striking ability. As they do with so many players in their depth laden teams, the Cowboys coaching staff was grooming him to replace the aging Lee Roy Jordan at that time for a regular starting spot.

Hollywood's no different to The Man; Landry still runs the Cowboys show

BUT BARNES SPOKE OUT during the middle of his second season with the Cowboys against Landry, stating that he should be playing more and putting the only coach in the history of the Dallas team on the spotlight. Landry responded by releasing Barnes. Enough said.

Barnes then played with three teams over the next two years in New England, St. Louis and Miami. The coaches at these places were Chuck Fairbanks, Don Coryell and Don Shula, respectively. Barnes played well at all three places, but his radical attitude again influenced these teams to let him go.

Finally, Barnes was picked up by the Oakland Raiders, a team of misfits and outlaws that Coach John Madden yearly meshed into championship caliber. Barnes toiled three years for the Raiders, the first in which the Oakland team won the Super Bowl in a rout of the Vikings.

My roommate in college at Rice usually had a certain commodity that Barnes enjoyed during the off-season, and Rodrigo used to stop by the room weekly to visit.

A SELF ACCLAIMED RADICAL that wouldn't change his ways, Barnes spoke candidly one afternoon to me about his attitude toward pro football and his feelings about Landry.

"I know most coaches (in both college and pro football) can't understand my attitude," Barnes said one spring day on a warm Houston afternoon, as we sat on my balcony in lounge chairs. "But I can't understand them, either. They're (the coaches) always worrying about little rules that they all employ because they're all on some kind of a power ego trip. Telling me how I should shave this off my face, (Barnes had a shaved head, but a full beard, which made him look meaner than mean), how to dress, how we should act in public. I can't handle that. I'll do it my way, even if means letting me go. Landry and Shula both let me go for what I said to 'em, but that's me. I'd do it again," he said, matter of factly.

"That's the reason I can play with Oakland. Madden's a great coach and knows how to blend a bunch of people like myself together. Most coaches can't do that, because they're too worried about their power," he continued. He went on to say that the Raiders practices were so relaxed that Fred Biletnikoff occasionally wandered to the sidelines, sat on his helmet and smoked cigarettes, then returned to the playing field.

About this time, the thought ran through my head. "Man, you are crazy, Rodrigo! I'd love to play pro ball. If I had your ability, I'd shut up and play." But Rodrigo was a moody and intimidating person, and for the sake of my overmatched body, I decided not to give him any suggestions. The topic of Landry as a football tactician and as an organizer was then brought up.

"I played with some excellent football coaches in the past few years," he said, "but Landry was the best. He has a system that is better than anybody's, and is the most knowledgeable coach that I have ever been around. He's the best there is."

"LANDRY HAS HIS SYSTEM DOWN," Rodrigo continued in his low-key and unusual voice, "and I messed with it. You mess with Landry's system and you're gone. I don't care who you are. The man has everything down to the point that he could get rid of anybody on the team, and he would still win. One player doesn't make any difference to him. He knows he can get somebody else to fit in, no matter who he gets rid of. I found that out."

Even if that who is Hollywood Henderson.

Oilers not being fooled

IRVING, Texas (AP) — To Bum Phillips, playing the Dallas Cowboys is nothing special.

"It's just a game we need and a game they need," said Phillips of today's National Football League contest in Texas Stadium. "All this inter-state rivalry is overdone. Of course, there is a lot of pride between Houston and Dallas but it would be the same if San Antonio had a team and we were playing there. It's a football game, that's all."

The stakes are high for both the Cowboys and Oilers. Houston at 9-3 is tied with Pittsburgh in the American Conference Central Division while Dallas at 8-4 is tied with Washington and Philadelphia in the NFC East.

"Dallas is as championship football team that will play like champions against us," said Phillips. "They have been having trouble like Pittsburgh but once the Cowboys get their motor running that won't last long."

Phillips just hope the Cowboys don't get their lurching offensive machine into gear until the Oilers get out of town with their first regular season victory in three meetings with Coach Tom Landry's crew.

Although Phillips downplays the rivalry there is some resentment about Dallas adopting the title "America's Team" among the Houston players.

"I'll have turkey at 3 p.m. (the kickoff time) and turkey when I get back home," said Houston end Elvin

In today's Texas Super Bowl

Cowboys feel the key is stopping Campbell

IRVING, TEXAS (AP) — The Houston Oilers failed to score a touchdown from scrimmage against the Dallas Cowboys in the only two regular season games they've played in 1979 and 1974, but that was while Earl Campbell was tending mama's rose garden back in Tyler.

Campbell scores touchdowns now for Houston like he used to pluck roses, by the bushel basket.

The crippled Cowboys, their Doomsday Junior Defense on the junkyard blocks, face the Tyler Rose thorns, and all Thanksgiving Day in a vital National Football League game.

Betha.

The Oilers, who have never been in a Super Bowl while the Cowboys have played in five of the championship games, would like to be known as "Texas Team."

Odds maker rated the Cowboys, who have lost three out of their last four games, as three point favorites.

The Oilers were attempting to win their fifth consecutive game in the same season for the first time since 1962 when Frank "Pop" Ivy was the coach.

Dallas hadn't lost three games in a row since 1974.

Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini was expected to be totally healed from a scratched right eye suffered last week while running back Earl Campbell, who has already gone over 1,000 yards was hale and hearty.

"Houston should be considered as a proving ground for our 1979 team," said Cowboy tight end Billy Joe DuPree. "Our confidence level is not too high right now. We've got to quit waiting until the last quarter to play. If we beat Houston, it could be the spark we need to go ahead and win our division."

The Cowboys went into the game as one of the most error-prone teams in the NFL. They were a minus nine on turnovers such as interceptions and fumbles. The Oilers were a whopping plus 15, which meant they usually took much more than they gave away.

Perez happy with Bosox

BOSTON (AP) — At 37, first baseman Tony Perez, a seven-time all-star in 15 years in the National League, believes he can give the Boston Red Sox $1 million worth of baseball over the next three seasons.

"I feel great, the same as I did four or five years ago," Perez said Tuesday after signing a three-year Red Sox contract as a free agent, making him an American Leaguer. "I have no physical problems, and I think I can help the Red Sox. And I think I can help for at least three years."

Terms were not announced, but the multiyear pact reportedly will provide Perez, who will be 38 next May 14, more than $1 million.

Perez, who, with agent Reuven Katz, agreed to terms as a free-agent draftee last Friday, flew to Boston with his wife, Pituka, from his home in Puerto Rico for the formal signing at Fenway Park.

"The Red Sox were my first choice, even before they drafted me earlier this month," Perez said. "I'm looking forward to playing with the Red Sox and in the American League. I saw a lot of Red Sox games on television while I was in Montreal this year. I'm pleased to be here for a couple of reasons."

"My wife and I liked the city and the people while we were here during the rained-out games in 1975."

"Players changing" says LSUs Cholly Mac

By The Associated Press
"The pressure now is there to win at all costs," says Charlie McClendon, who will coach his last regular-season game when Louisiana State visits Tulane this weekend.

It wasn't that way when McClendon played for Bear Bryant at Kentucky 30 years ago. Of course, Mac & Co. were war veterans, older than your average present-day player.

"There were no pep talks, no meetings," McClendon remembers. "We'd sit in the locker room before the games and Coach Bryant would come in and go over to the sink and throw up. We'd nudge each other and laugh. Look at the old man getting sick."

"I never thought about emotion. I didn't need anything to psych me up or get me ready to play."

McClendon says the only ones who can stop the "win at all cost" attitude are the college presidents.

"I hope they get it back in focus or you're gonna find coaches not staying in the business," he says. "Booster groups are bad not only for an athletic program, but for a university. No one should have the right to interfere in your operation. A man is under enough pressure doing what he thinks is right."

A look at the Decade

Howard College Hawks race by Sul Ross JVs

The Howard College Hawks jumped to an early lead and simply overpowered the Sul Ross University Junior Varsity Lobos by a score of 110-93 in a game that was not as close as the score would indicate. Both teams were somewhat cold in the first few minutes, but the Hawks, behind the inside and outside shooting of Michael Wallace, controlled a 22-12 lead midway in the first half. The Hawks, now 4-1 on the young season, erupted in the latter stages of the first half to take a 55-33 lead into intermission. Freely substituting against their outclassed opponents from the start of the second half, the Hawks used a tenacious press to increase their lead. Throughout the first 13 minutes of the final half, Howard College managed to have leads by as much as 35 points, with the play of big Ron Akins leading the cause. Sul Ross, behind the shooting of Bill Koenig, never gave up, continually hustling in the latter stages of the game to decrease the huge lead. But the Hawks were too far ahead to take seriously. Howard College Coach Harold Wilder was pleased with the play of Akins under the boards throughout the game and the versatility that the 6'6" Wallace displayed. One aspect of the lopsided win that Wilder felt was to his squad's advantage was that everyone had a chance to play. "The game was beneficial in that it gave everybody a chance to play and let them get some more experience under their belts."

Passing attack gives Bears playoff threat

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Now that the Chicago Bears have developed a passing attack to accompany Walter Payton's devastating running, the difference is delightful, says linebacker Doug Buffone. Payton will be in the Chicago backfield Thanksgiving Day when the Bears meet the Detroit Lions, but just as important is the fact that Mike Phipps will be at quarterback. Payton, who will start despite a bruised shoulder, is the NFL's leading rusher with 1,207.

Over that stretch Phipps has thrown 90 passes, six for touchdowns, and has not allowed an interception. The six passing TDs is just one below the Bears' entire 1978 total.

"The way I see it, we're going out to score points," Buffone said after the Bears undid the New York Jets 23-13 Sunday, when Phipps completed 12 of 18 for 117 yards and two touchdowns. "We're going to put points on the board for a change, instead of just sitting on it."

In winning coaching of Ramsay, Shue Styles differ, but results the same

By The Associated Press
They are a striking contrast. Jack Ramsay and Gene Shue, the best coaches to join the National Basketball Association's exclusive 500-victory club. Ramsay is a meticulous planner, a man who thinks things out to the nth degree, develops a system he is confident will work and then fits his players into that master plan. Shue is known for his flexibility, his ability to take a roster of outcasts and renegades and mold them into a winning team. He did it in Baltimore, he did it in Philadelphia and he did it last season in San Diego.

On Tuesday night, Ramsay's Portland Trail Blazers beat the Los Angeles Lakers 114-99 while Shue's San Diego Clippers defeated the Phoenix Suns 117-100, giving both coaches their 500th NBA victories and places alongside Red Auerbach, Red Holzman and Dick Motta as the only coaches in the NBA's 34-year history to surpass 500 wins. Both are widely respected by their peers. Although he's never won Coach-of-the-Year honors, an award given out by a panel of media members, Ramsay's system at Portland is the envy of coaches around the league. Shue, who won the award in 1969 at Baltimore, is considered a savior of lost causes, a coach capable of winning with players nobody else wants.

Their paths crossed during the 1977 championship playoffs, when Ramsay's Portland Trail Blazers beat Shue's Philadelphia 76ers in a six-game series many regard as pro basketball's finest hour. The contrast in coaching styles between the balding Ramsay and the mod-haired Shue was spotlighted on an off day during that series, when the two teams held workouts at Portland's Memorial Coliseum. Ramsay's practice session was a model of efficiency. It was preceded by calisthenics — jumping jacks, stretching exercises, the works, with Ramsay and his assistant, Jack McKinney, taking part along with the players. The practice itself was devoted to drills, with not a moment being wasted. The Blazers worked on pick plays in three-man units, went through their offensive patterns and defensive switches in half-court drills and also worked full-court on their fast break. When it was over the players appeared tired but happy. There was a feeling of accomplishment, of time well spent. Ten days later, when the Blazers were champions, Ramsay gave much of the credit to his players' receptive attitude during practice. In his recent book, The Coach's Art, Ramsay spoke of that club. "They played the game the way I had always hoped to see it played," he wrote. "A great team playing within itself, playing with control and purpose, is beautiful to watch. Good play seems almost effortless. Five separate wills blended into a single whole, playing with one purpose — to win, yes, but by playing its own game, a game in which it believes."

Bright spot overlooked

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The shock of continually rising inflation has blinded most Americans to one bright spot in our economy. Agricultural exports hit an all-time high of $32 billion during fiscal year 1979, which meant a $15.8 billion positive contribution to the total U.S. balance of trade.

In simple terms, that means that without those agricultural exports to smooth things out somewhat, we would be experiencing even higher inflation rates. All of us who have felt inflation's bite owe the American farmer a word of thanks, for without them, things really could be worse.

Those agricultural exports are the direct result of agricultural productivity, which has been rising steadily since the 1950s. Agriculture is probably the only industry in this Country that can make that claim.

Congressman

Charles W. Stenholm

Congressional Comment

But, there are warning signs on the horizon.

That productivity — the relationship between resources used and production — is slowing. USDA economists report that agricultural productivity (not including labor productivity) has been growing at an annual rate of only 1 percent to 1.5 percent since 1974, compared to more than double that during the past two decades.

Those gains in productivity can be linked directly to technology developed through agricultural research in the areas of hybridization, improved machinery, chemicals, and fertilizers.

Not only are researchers in our universities and other institutions feeling the sting of inflation, but research budgets are prime targets for those unaware of their continued importance to the overall economy.

There are those who say those cuts are justified since limited production gains can be expected from research in the future. To those I would have two replies:

First, that's like telling Columbus, "Sorry, but we've already discovered more than we can handle. No one can predict research discoveries and those familiar with agriculture know there are many areas of production-oriented research projects nearing completion that are vitally important to the industry — hybrid cotton varieties, for instance, or glandless, high-protein, edible cottonseed, just to mention two of them.

Secondly, increases in productivity can be gained in other ways than by production increases alone. Remember the relationship that "resources" play in increasing productivity. We need research programs to improve our efficiency in using such vital resources as water and energy. Gains in these areas alone would mean tremendous boosts to our over-all productivity, and therefore our national economy.

No one is more determined to eliminate frivolous government give-away programs than I am, but we must retain a sense of priorities. Agricultural research must be judged on project merit, but we must beware of "throwing the baby out with the bath water."

Architectural firm retained

COAHOMA — The Coahoma school trustees, who met in regular session here Monday evening, voted to retain the architectural firm of Huckabee and Donbam, Andrews, to draw up a master plan for the school district.

The board also decided to seek bids to remove the present houses built by the trades classes and build new ones. The schedule calls for two houses to be sold and moved by next July 1 and an additional house to be sold and moved each succeeding July 1.

Trustees also set the reimbursement rate for extra curricular travel at 83 cents per mile, appointed Kirby Brown and Clovis Phinney Jr., on an insurance committee, along with Supt. Richard Souter, for the purpose of selecting fleet insurance and decided to purchase additional weight training equipment to be used by all students.

Approval has been given for an additional bus route effective during the 1979-80 school year.

Souter also offered a report on the dishwasher in the high school and elementary school. Plans were made to look into the possibility of purchasing a new dishwasher.

Dear Abby

Don't Discount Your Blessings

DEAR READERS: It's Thanksgiving again. (So soon?) A few years ago I wrote a column especially for Thanksgiving. It was so well received that I was asked to repeat it, and now it's become almost a tradition. Here it is again, with a few minor changes.

On this Thanksgiving Day, take a few minutes to think about what you have to be thankful for.

How's your health? Not so good? Well, thank God you've lived this long. A lot of people haven't. You're hurting? Thousands—maybe millions—are hurting more. (Have you ever visited a veterans' hospital? Or a habilitation clinic for crippled children?)

If you awakened this morning and were able to hear the birds sing, use your vocal chords to utter human sounds, walk to the breakfast table on two good legs and read the newspaper with two good eyes, praise the Lord! A lot of people couldn't.

How's your pocketbook? This? Well, most of the world is a lot poorer. No pensions. No welfare. No food stamps. No Social Security. In fact, one-third of the people in the world will go to bed hungry tonight.

Are you lonely? The way to have a friend is to BE one. If nobody calls you, call them. Go out of your way to do something nice for somebody. It's a sure cure for the blues.

Are you concerned about your country's future? Hooray! Our system has been saved by such concern. Concern for honesty in government, concern for peace and concern for fair play under the law. Your country may not be a rose garden, but it also is not a patch of weeds.

Freedom rings! Look and listen. You can still worship at the church of your choice, cast a secret ballot and even criticize your government without fearing a knock on the head or a knock on the door at midnight! And if you want to live under a different system, you are free to go. There are no walls or fences—nothing to keep you here.

As a final thought, I'll repeat my Thanksgiving Prayer: perhaps you will want to use it at your table today:

"O, heavenly Father: We thank Thee for food and remember the hungry.

We thank Thee for health and remember the sick.

We thank Thee for friends and remember the friendless.

We thank Thee for freedom and remember the enslaved.

May these remembrances stir us to service

That Thy gifts to us may be used for others. Amen."

Have a wonderful Thanksgiving and may God bless you and yours.

Love,

Squares plan Dec. dances

November has been an active and interesting month for the Big Spring Squares, beginning with a dance of seven squares called by Randy Phillips Nov. 3.

The Big Spring club was awarded $50 for having the most members in attendance at the Snyder Festival. Tommy Carstensen was the winner of a $25 money arrangement.

Troy Ray, Red River, N.M., called the Nov. 17 dance. The caller set a fast pace and workshopped several unfamiliar moves, including some progressive squares, which proved to be an enlightening challenge to the dancers.

Future activities to be participated by the Big Spring Squares include a dance, Dec. 1 to be called by a guest caller and the Dec. 15 Christmas dance which will be called by Phillips.

A New Year's Eve dance will be conducted Dec. 31 and the anniversary dance will take place Jan. 5. Phillips will call both.

Gay Smith presides

Members and families of Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284 met for a Thanksgiving dinner and meeting at 6:30 p.m. in the I.O.O.F. Hall Tuesday, with 35 attending.

Gay Smith, vice grand, presided over the business meeting which followed the dinner.

The group received an invitation to Nanny Adkins' birthday party Sunday at East 4th Street Baptist Church, 2:30-5 p.m. Mrs. Adkins will be 96 years old.

Sherri Wilson, team captain announced a practice session of the degree staff Sunday at 2 p.m.

Initiation ceremonies will be held at the next meeting, Nov. 27 at 7:30 p.m.

Lila Holland, lodge deputy, announced that she will be at the lodge hall each Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. to teach the unwritten work to those who want to learn it.

Margi Norwood, Sheri Wilson and Marion Savell were named to the project committee to raise funds to send a delegate to the United Nations pilgrimage.

A report was made on the schools of instruction in San Angelo Nov. 17. Twelve members of lodge No. 284 attended.

Auction to benefit Permian Ballet

An auction of rare art and fine antique pieces will be held in Midland at No. 20 Plaza Shopping Center, Nov. 29 through Dec. 2. A percentage of the proceeds will benefit the Permian Civic Ballet.

"We are excited about this art auction," said Mrs. Henri de Compiegne, Midland, project chairman of the ballet Guild. "and proceeds of the sale will offset the annual costs of the ballet's two productions."

The collection of fine jewelry and furnishings will be presented by Rare Art Estate Sales of Scottsdale, Ariz., and Daytona Beach, Fla. Included in the showing will be such unusual items as carvings of jade and ivory, Faberge enamels, Oriental and European porcelains, Georgian and Tiffany silver, antique French and English furniture, Western art, and estate jewelry.

Many of the pieces have come from private collections, especially the Vanderbilt family collection. Representing the Vanderbilt family will be William K. Vanderbilt of New York City who will attend all auction sessions.

The sale in Midland will cover a four day span with six sessions scheduled. The sale will start at 8 p.m. each night and at 2 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Public viewing is held preceding each sale with the exception of Thursday night when a private preview will be held.

Keep the faith

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I pray before meals and I pray every night in church but when I go to school my friends think I'm different. They tell everyone that I take drugs and smoke but I don't. This is really getting me down. I can't talk to my parents about it because they would laugh at me.

Please help! — Sharon, Sidney, Ohio.

Sharon: You are different but in a most wonderful way. I can't help you but the God you pray to will. Have faith because "God moves in a mysterious way. His wonders to perform..." Those who tell lies about you do this because they are insecure and jealous.

Dr. Wallace: My best friend is a tomboy and it is causing problems for me. We're 13 and whenever we are together, we always wind up playing football or baseball with the boys.

When I offer to teach her something else, she always acts offended. Her excuse is that she was brought up with all boys.

I don't want to lose her friendship but I'm tired of football and baseball. What should I do? — Happy, Rock Island, Ill.

Happy: You need a change of pace, a friend who enjoys the same things that you like. This doesn't mean that you shun your tomboy friend, but you cannot allow her to dictate how you are going to spend your leisure time.

Strong speaks to Desk and Derrick

The Big Spring Desk and Derrick Club, an educational organization of women employed in the petroleum and allied industries, had its regular monthly meeting, Monday at 7 p.m. at K-Bob's Restaurant.

Curtis N. Strong, Jr., Manager of Materials for Cosden Oil & Chemical Company was the speaker. Strong's topic was "Purchasing — Professional and non-professional in the 1980's."

After laying the background of methods for purchasing in the past, Strong went into detail explaining what Professional purchasers could expect in the 1980's, and also what changes the family and housewife would see in their methods of purchasing. The computer is the up and coming thing, with everything from putting your recipes and grocery inventory on the computer to your own personal financial statement and checkbook balances. The computer will also help to make estimates in business dealings from purchasing of raw materials to being able to design and build plants and refineries within a plus or minus 5 percent, where previously you were lucky if you were able to estimate this within a plus or minus 20 percent.

Strong also touched on many laws and regulations pertaining to the field of purchasing.

Vi Ballou, president, presided over the business meeting. The nominating committee presented the following recommendations for 1980 officers: President, Sue Warren; vice-president, Grace Kinney; secretary, Charlotte Sheedy; and treasurer, Venita Blassingame. The members attending the field trip to Fiberflex Products, Inc. reported a very worthwhile trip. Fiberflex is a new business to our community, and is a great asset in their manufacturing of fiberglass sucker rods for use in producing oil wells.

The dime drawing was won by Beth Kay. Members attending the meeting were: Vi Ballou, Marguerite Cooper, Beth Kay, Sue Warren, Linda Slater, Mamie Roberts, Oleta Barnett and Helen Green.

Next month's meeting will be the annual Christmas party and is to be held in the home of Helen Hurt, 500 Scurry on Dec. 17 at 7 p.m.

Food gifts never the wrong color or size

Holiday food gifts are never the wrong style, size or color. It doesn't matter if the recipient finds two of the same thing tucked in the Christmas stocking or Easter basket. The only precaution is to mark the box carefully "Don't open until..." or the contents will be sampled or completely devoured the minute the package arrives.

Selecting food gifts and serving accompaniments challenges the imagination. Surprise is an important element, so each year include something new, gaily accented with only satiny ribbons and bows or prettily wrapped with a sprig of holly or a cotton snowman.

One suggestion that may have been overlooked on your gift list is cheese. Not a cheese often found in the holiday mail order catalogues, but something unusual that shows special thought on the part of the giver.

A gift of Roquefort would fall into this category. Among the blue-veined cheeses, Roquefort is king, with its own distinct flavor and texture because it is carefully made from sheep's milk.

Semi-hard and soft cheeses can be considered perishable, so they should be shipped by a fast mode of travel to arrive in top condition. It is preferable to buy a full round rather than a piece cut from a round, unless the store can provide adequate wrapping material. The cheese loses moisture and becomes dry when cut surfaces are not properly covered.

There are many lovely things that are delightful accessories to a gift of cheese. A glass or plastic bell jar for refrigerator use will keep your cheese in choice condition. Different types of knives or instruments are available for cutting cheese.

September ideal month

The Big Spring Rosebud "How To Grow" Garden Club met at the Big Spring Country Club Tuesday, with Mrs. Helen Terry presiding. A guest, Mrs. Emmett Thomason of Electra was introduced.

Mrs. Liz Edwards reported that the yearbooks were almost completed and would be distributed soon.

Mrs. Terry gave a report from the Texas Horticulture by Jerry Griffin on "Planting Bulbs For Early Spring Color," stating that September is really the ideal month for planting to achieve the most success for June blooms. Also that it would be helpful to keep your bulbs refrigerated for 6 weeks before planting.

The next meeting will be held Dec. 11 at the Dora Roberts Community Center with a salad luncheon beginning at noon. Mrs. Sue Carter will give a program on how to use plants in Christmas decorating your home.

A two-handled knife is excellent for a crumbly cheese like Roquefort. Other choices include a guillotine knife or cheese wire. The ideal solution for cutting and serving small portions is a cheese server with a five-inch blade and two sharp points on the end with which to pick up the cheese.

Cheese boards come in a variety of materials. Marble or beautiful wood combinations are the most popular today.

Should you personally plan to deliver your cheese gift, consider tucking a bottle of red wine in a basket with the cheese. Cheese, crackers, fruit and a glass of wine make the perfect ending for a holiday meal.

Lomax Country Girls new extension club

By MICKIE DICKSON
A brand new extension homemakers club was organized Oct. 22 in the close-knit Lomax community with six members.

The Lomax Country Girl Extension Homemakers, or the Lomax Country Girls, served their community-wide Thanksgiving luncheon at Lomax School Monday to 50 people including Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stallings, Stanton, son and daughter-in-law of Arthur J. Stallings.

Honored guests were Mr. and Mrs. E.W. Lomax and Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Stallings who have been members of the Lomax community at least 50 years. The Lomax school building belongs to Lomax who allows it to be used as a community building. It is a two-room building which was used as a school until about 1952, when Lomax children started attending school in Stanton.

E.W. Lomax and Mrs. A.J. Stallings, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L.E. Lomax, came to the Lomax community around 1923 from the Moore community.

The Lomax Country Girls actually reactivated the old Lomax Home Demonstration Club which disbanded six years ago by using the money left from that endeavor to buy the turkey, ham and dressing for the 1979 Thanksgiving luncheon.

The president, Donna (Mrs. Robert L.) Adkins and secretary reporter, Virginia (Mrs. David) Roberts, were both members of the former club. Other officers of the group are Christy (Mrs. Steve) Fryar, vice president; Mrs. Debbie (Fred) Newman, treasurer and Phyllis (Mrs. Bill) Romine council delegate.

Goodies served at the celebration Monday included Christy Fryar's homemade bread, pumpkin pies and green beans from Virginia and Faye Roberts gardens who also cooked the turkey and dressing, cherry cobbler and cottage cheese salad by Phyllis Romine and Debbie Newman's fresh fruit salad and corn. The Roberts are sisters as well as sisters-in-law.

The Country Girls first project is to try to have traffic signs placed near the Lomax Planter's Gin on FM 818 to slow down the truck traffic in the gin area for the protection of farmers and their families. Future programs will zero in on improving homemaking skills, bettering their community and themselves.

The group plans to attend the county wide extension homemaker's tea Dec. 10 at 2 p.m. in the Fannie Mae Archer room of the First Methodist Church after a short business meeting in the home of Debbie Newman, treasurer. The club's Christmas party plans will be made at this meeting.

The Lomax Planters Gin office is another community center for residents of Lomax especially at cotton ginning time. Located across FM 818 from the Lomax School building, the gin office sports a new Coke machine, a refrigerator which is kept stocked with sandwiches and burritos and a new candy machine. Coffee is available the year round as are fritos, potato chips and fried pies.

The newest addition to the community is the Tel-Cot computer system at the gin which has been in operation only one month.

Schooling of aliens poses sticky question

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas private education project may provide some of answers to the sticky question of who should educate the children of illegal aliens.

Representatives of the program, called "Proyecto Educacion" (Education Project) say parents of more than 100 illegal alien children have contacted them about providing temporary education for their youngsters.

Directors of the program say they are trying to avoid some of tricky legal pitfalls that killed similar programs in other cities — primarily, the possibility of getting caught in the web of immigration laws.

Program coordinate Celeste Guerrero said she has consulted several attorneys on the possibility of interference from immigration officials.

For first time in the long history of Houston

Women, Hispanics will have voice on city council

HOUSTON (AP)—For the first time in the long history of Houston, women and Hispanics will have a voice on the City Council and black representation will be increased by three-fold.

The drastic face-lifting of the council that began in the Nov. 6 general election was continued in the Tuesday runoff as black and Hispanic voters made felt their growing political strength in this booming city where the population increases an average of 1,000 a week.

Mayor Jim McConn,

seeking a second two-year term, put together a coalition of blacks, blue collar workers and low income whites to defeat City Councilman Louis Macey much easier than expected.

McConn received 90,553 votes, or 56.2 percent, to Macey's 70,357, or 43.7 percent.

The mayor lost the middle income white vote, but kept enough of it, some 48.5 percent, to insure his victory.

In the black wards, McConn collected up to 80 percent of the ballots.

It was a nonpartisan election, but the results showed McConn racing far ahead in most Democratic precincts and Macey leading in the Republican strongholds.

Macey took numerous verbal potshots at McConn, accusing him of failure to meet the pressing needs of the city, such as an alarming increase in crime, poor city services, badly maintained streets, and an unreliable mass transit system.

McConn said progress had been made in all of these areas and with enough time all could be solved.

Macey also pointed to McConn's acceptance of a $6,000 loan from an unidentified source to payoff a Las Vegas gambling debt. McConn said there was nothing wrong with the transaction.

The mayor said Macey had been out of step during his four years on the council and if elected would disrupt the flow of city government.

But it is the reconstructed council that apparently will bring the biggest change to Houston.

Never before had a woman

been elected to the council.

Now there are two.

Never before had a Hispanic

been elected to the council.

Now there is one.

Never had there been more than one black on the council.

Now there are three.

Eleanor Tinsley, former president of the Houston School Board, was one of the two women elected and she did it by ousting Frank E. Mann, a veteran of 20 years on the council.

Mann was opposed by minorities and was the special target of the Houston Gay Rights Caucus.

Christa Hartung, a 39-year-old former judge's aide from the affluent section of Houston, defeated insurance executive Don Hogan, 37.

State Rep. Ben Reyes became the first Hispanic on the council when he won easily in the Nov. 6 race.

The one black council member was re-elected and two others won in the general election.

The U.S. Justice Department ruled earlier in the year that Houston was in violation of the Voting Rights Act because recently annexed areas were diluting minority voting strength.

Houston residents then approved in August a plan to enlarge the council from eight to 14 members with nine elected on a single-district basis and five at-large. Previously the eight council members were elected at large.

Macey refused to concede "until the last vote is counted. Louis Macey will be the next mayor of Houston if not Jan. 1, 1980, then Jan. 1, 1982. I think you're going to hear a lot from Louis Macey."

McConn said, "Louis wanted to be mayor awfully bad. He said some things and did some things that indicated he wanted to be mayor. I just heard him say we'll hear from him again and I don't doubt that at all. "And, we wouldn't mind offering ourselves again at the end of two years," the mayor said.

Sentenced 99 years Court grudgingly frees Lufkin man

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday grudgingly set free a Lufkin man found guilty of shooting a man to death in 1974.

Maurice McElwee's conviction and 99-year prison sentence previously had been upheld by the appeals court but the U.S. Supreme Court forced the Texas court to take a second look at the case in light of new double jeopardy standards.

Wednesday's opinion reversed the conviction and ordered no further prosecution of McElwee.

The appeals court opinion, written by Judge John Onion, showed clear disdain for the Supreme Court action.

"Nonetheless, we now abandon these historically sound considerations of procedure and policy for an ill-disguised mandate for uniformity," the opinion said.

McElwee was indicted in October 1974 for the September 1974 shooting death of Joe Kirkwood. The trial was to begin on Feb. 4, 1975. A jury was chosen and sworn. However, the trial judge was detained in another case. McElwee's trial was postponed for a week. The indictment had not been read and no plea was entered.

Before the new trial date, Angellina County prosecutors asked for the dismissal of the indictment. A second indictment — adding mention of two previous felony convictions — was returned.

McElwee complained the new indictment constituted double jeopardy. The trial judge disagreed and McElwee was convicted.

However, the Supreme Court, in a 1978 ruling in a Montana case, called for uniformity in double jeopardy matters. The high court said jeopardy attaches when the jury is impaneled and sworn — therefore, McElwee had been tried twice for the same crime.

The ruling differed from accepted practice in Texas, the Court of Criminal Appeals' opinion said.

"This court has consistently applied the rule that jeopardy does not attach until the indictment has been filed to," said Onion's opinion. "Judicial economy and the saving of crucial time in the judicial process will be encroached upon by this decision."

Onion chided the high court for its allegiance to uniformity in states' application of double jeopardy standards. He began the opinion with a quote from Ralph Waldo Emerson:

"A foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds, adored by little statesmen and philosophers and divines."

DPS region honors Speir

Major Ira W. Dees, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety's 49 County West Texas Region, announced today that the Midland Region would honor Colonel and Mrs. Wilson E. Speir with a coffee-reception at the Midland Regional Office Nov. 29, from 3:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Major Dees said, "Col. Speir, Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety will retire from the D.P.S. Dec. 31, and this reception will give employees of the D.P.S. and his many friends in West Texas an opportunity to honor him."

Major Dees stated Speir had been Regional Commander here in Midland from Sept. 1, 1957, until June 1, 1962, when he was appointed assistant Director in Austin. He has served as Director since September, 1968.

Dees said Speir had 43 years of public service and 38 years of that had been with the D.P.S.

Dees noted that Col. and Mrs. Speir would be guests of the Midland Rotary Club at noon Nov. 29.

Regain the simple joys of Christmas

YOUNGSTERS OF ALL AGES will enjoy a gift of cozy pajamas for Christmas. This polyester, footed, two-piece sleeper, designed by Dr. Denton, features two rows of snaps at the waist for the "grow-a-size" advantage. Available in toddler sizes, it is Wear-Dated by Monsanto. About $6.

Has Christmas become "too much of a good thing?" Do you almost dread the carols on the radio and the jingle bells on every corner?

It need not be. If the holiday season seems to be "swallowing you up," resolve that this year you will take a stand. You will deliberately seek the simple, unhurried route, and let the commercial whoop-and-holler pass you by.

Invite the simple pleasures of the season by creating the right environment for yourself and your family.

For the hobbyist

Hobby gifts will be more welcome than ever this Christmas, thanks to the leisure time that more and more Americans are enjoying.

There are a wealth of hobby gifts to choose from, designed for beginners or experts alike.

Limit the intrusion of radio and television onto the scene. After dinner, have the family gather 'round to listen to "The Nutcracker" ballet by Tchaikovsky. Be spontaneous! If anyone wants to play the various parts in the magical tale, encourage her or him to do it.

There are many other musical pieces which lend themselves to family enjoyment this time of the year.

At bedtime, read aloud from Dickens' "Christmas Carol" . . . or better yet, let the youngsters take turns in reading passages. From stamp collecting to embroidery, hobbies appeal to all ages and all types. Check your local craft or hobby shop for appropriate pursuits that will interest those on your list.

Chances are you'll become intrigued and come away with a hobby for yourself as well.

know you and your family better, too. "A Visit from Saint Nicholas" by Dr. Clement Moore is an all-time favorite to be enjoyed at Christmas. In the library you might find a collection of stories and poems from the old "St. Nicholas" magazines of 70-80 years ago. They capture the charm of an era to be rediscovered with delight.

Christmas is an ideal time to rediscover your friends and neighbors, perhaps people who are a blur in the rush of your pell-mell life—these people have much to offer. They probably would like to

For decorating, the tree considered best by many is the Douglas fir. Thick and symmetrical, its branches seem made-to-order for ornaments. Another virtue: it lasts a long time indoors, with proper care and watering. You might also consider white spruce, Scotch pine and Norway spruce.

Making your own tree ornaments is a custom going back several centuries. The entire family will enjoy making paper chains, stringing popcorn or cranberries, folding silver foil into twinkling stars. Left-over wrappings from previous years are ideal for making paper chains—the more colorful, the merrier!

Even if you are not a "baking" family, 'tis the season for something lovin' from the oven. Bake gingerbread men, "star" cookies, chocolate chip cookies—whatever pleases the family . . . and, don't forget bourbon balls for the grown-ups. All these taste infinitely better than store-bought goodies, no matter how delicious.

GRANDFATHER CLOCKS are in great demand today, reflecting current nostalgia for yesteryear. Stately timepieces are available at many retail stores.

Romance of clocks traced

Man's quest to tell time is a story rich in legend and romance.

The precision clocks of today have a history which could serve as a mirror to civilization.

From the sundial... to the hourglass... to the grandfather clock, man has had a certain fascination with clocks. And, throughout the centuries, time and clocks have played an important role in the culture and history of the world.

The romance of clocks is highlighted in various types of literature.

The touching legend of Cinderella, a story familiar to every school child, comes to a sudden, realistic end at the stroke of midnight. Cinderella's magical romance is finished with the chiming of the clock.

Shakespeare, once shaken by despair at the flight of time, wrote in one sonnet:

"When do I count the clock that tolls the time And see the brave day sink into hideous night."

The pragmatic, American statesman Benjamin Franklin was somewhat more blunt in his assessment of time. Said Franklin, "Remember that time is money."

Throughout history, royalty expressed its personality with clocks.

George III of England had a clock so small it could be worn as a ring.

The vain, French monarch Louis XIV's love for clocks was much more grand. His majesty's treasured clock showed the king himself, enthroned. Likenesses of the German states' electors and the prince of Italy were fashioned in such a way that they first bowed to the king, then chimed the quarter hours with their canes. And, the likeness of England's William III, whom King Louis detested, would bow before the French ruler, then strike the hour.

All went well with the grand timepiece until one day at a public showing. At that time, King Louis toppled from the throne and fell at the feet of William III. The maker of the clock awaited his fate in the Bastille.

The heritage of the stately grandfather clock was carried across the ocean by early American colonists. Today, the demand for the clocks has reached new heights, according to Sears, Roebuck and Co., which offers grandfather and grandmother clocks in many of its large retail stores.

The working parts and melodious chimes built into Sears timekeepers come from the Black Forest of West Germany, an area renowned for centuries for the skill of its clock-makers.

Choose toys, games that outlast holidays!

Games and toys are "best bet" gift ideas for adults and children. But, too often, games and toys bought by frantic, last-minute shoppers run the risk of providing only a few hours' entertainment on Christmas morning—with their appeal being played out by the end of the day.

Here are some tips on choosing toys and games, including the new electronic ones, that will provide fun on Christmas morning—and all through the year.

Know what you're buying. Major game-publishers simplify the task by describing the game play and age ranges right on the package. These game companies have studied children at play and know what kinds of games appeal to each age group: board games for very young children should be simple, with few rules and winning based mostly on chance. For children who can't yet read, Parker Brothers has created special, no-reading-required games which are based on classic storybooks and timely themes. Once a parent explains the game, the youngsters can play without adult supervision. There are games based on the Snowman, "Holly Hobbie" and "Peter Rabbit," to name a few.

Read the warranty and instruction book before you buy.

"Many weeks ago, Santa started making his list and checking it twice! And then he had me help him drop off bundles of toys and games at all Safeways to help you get ready for the eager young 'uns who can hardly wait for the big day. These toys are sturdy, well-made, ready for happy recipients on the holiday. He paid special attention to the red Special tags that marked many good buys in your stores. He said he's sure you'll have these signs on a lot of the Christmas items he left. Of course, you will. Santa is always right!"

SAFEWAY GIFT CERTIFICATES

The best gifts ever to give and get!
Make someone's Christmas really merry with a Safeway Gift Certificate that's guaranteed to please! Everyone will be pleased to custom select the gift of his or her choice from Safeway's luscious array of fine foods and many things other than food.

CHRISTMAS CLASSICS: Apply the rule of versatility, and one gift of diamond earrings can be worth a thousand fashion statements. According to Zales Jewelers, pierced earring-wearers can get more dazzle for their diamonds by using earrings imaginatively. Paired, solo or mixed with other styles, earstuds accessorize hat brims, suit lapels, evening bags—whatever will benefit from the classic touch of diamonds. Tapered, 14-karat gold posts will penetrate most fabrics without leaving a trace (test questionable fabrics in an inconspicuous area). Diamond solitaire earrings are priced from under $100 to more than $1,000.

Gift ideas for father

Finding Dad a bundle of Christmas gifts is not a quick, easy endeavor. Presents for the man of the house should be thoughtful reflections of your love, and not just any old tie or shaving kit. If you want to give gifts that won't gather cobwebs in the back of Dad's closet, consider gifts like these that should have a great deal of appeal for the man of the house.

For The Sportsman

If Dad wants to keep his golf game up to par, a bagful of practice golf balls may be just what he needs. Ideal for helping golfers to gauge distances, or correct deficiencies such as slices and hooks, PeeGeeBee practice golf balls from Cosom have been a favorite with golfers for 21 years. Boost Dad's golfing ego with golf balls designed for practice both indoors and out.

Get Dad involved in the fast-growing, healthful, cold-weather activity of cross-country skiing. A complete set of ski equipment costs $125-$150, and learning to cross-country ski only takes a few lessons. Trak, Inc., offers a full line of waxless cross-country skis that allow quick exercise in the front yard or at the local park. Waxless skis give ease and simplicity to a sport once dominated by complicated wax application procedures.

Dad's Best Friend

Christmas time is the perfect opportunity for introducing a new family member—a dog. Man's best friend is truly a gift that keeps on giving. A dog can provide Dad with companionship and exercise every day of the year. Consult your local pet shop with any questions you may have about getting a loving puppy or any other domestic pet.

Tropical fish and tropical birds are other animals to consider when buying Dad's Christmas gift. If Dad putters around the house on weekends, the easy duties of caring for tropical fish can be a rewarding experience. The natural splendor of colorful tropical fish offers hours of viewing pleasure. Mynah birds and parrots are also fun; teaching them to speak can be entertaining for the whole family.

Some Special Treats

Not all Dad's presents belong under the Christmas tree. A unique surprise could be leading him to the refrigerator for a gift of quality taste, such as the increasingly popular St. Pauli Girl. Americans have learned to appreciate the taste of German beers, which are clean, light-tasting brews with virtually no aftertaste. One of the top-selling, imported beers in America, the German import is brewed with no chemicals or preservatives and comes in a tall, green bottle with a distinctive label.

Along with wearing out his fingers while opening up his assortment of gifts, the holiday season can put a strain on Dad's stomach as well.

GIVE A GIFT OF BEAUTY THIS CHRISTMAS—Cleansing hard-to-reach areas like the back and shoulders can be a problem. The "Bul" body scrub offers the "scrubbing power" of an abrasive cleansing sponge and the "reaching power" of a long, contoured handle. The sponge's gently abrasive action smooths rough spots, "buffs away" dirt and helps remove acne blemishes and oil plugs trapped on the outer layers of skin. The body scrub is available nationally in pharmacies and department stores at a suggested retail price of $4.95.

Cleaning out your garage easier than you think.

Let someone else carry them off for you, and put money in your pocket!
